"I don't think so," was the answer. "His mind is too much taken up with politics."

"What gave you the idea that he's fond of nature?"

"A remark that my father made. He said that your father was always hollering before he got out of the woods, and that whenever he went on the stump he was sure to be found up a tree sooner or later.

Crisis at Cape Town

Resignation of Premier Sivewright May Be the Result.

Britain's Policy Regarding Turkey Defined by Sir Hicks-Beach.

Statement by the British Liberal Federation.

Obsequies of Late Archbishop of Canterbury—Du Maurier's Ashes Placed in a Golden Casket.

CRISIS AT CAPE TOWN.

London, Oct. 15.—A Pretoria dispatch to the Daily Telegraph says that it is reported that a crisis is imminent at Cape Town, involving the resignation of the Premier of Cape Colony, Sir James Sivewright.

AMNESTY.

Rome, Oct. 15.—The Italian Cabinet has approved the granting of amnesty to a large number of prisoners upon the occasion of the marriage of the Prince of Naples, Crown Prince of Italy, and Princess Helena, daughter of the ruler of Montenegro.

THE LATE ARCHBISHOP.

London, Oct. 15.—The body of the Most Rev. Edward White Benson, Archbishop of Canterbury, arrived in Canterbury, accompanied by the family of the dead Primate. Immense crowds had gathered about the station, and the streets through which the cortege passed on its way to the cathedral were lined with people, who stood with bared heads as the body was borne past. Shortly after the arrival of the procession at the cathedral, where the body will lie in state, there was celebrated a solemn service for the dead.

ANGLO-CANADIAN TRADE.

London, Oct. 15.—The Anglo-Canadian trade fared badly during the month of September. British exports to Canada declined 5 per cent, as compared with September in 1895. The total exports for the first nine months of this year amounted to £2,779,957, a decrease of £130,000. The imports from Canada increased 3 per cent for September, and 5 per cent for the nine months, as against 26 per cent for the eight months ending August. Sheep declined £39,000 during September; oxen declined £50,000; wheat and flour, £47,000; butter increased £65,000; cheese, £17,500, and wood £93,000.

EXPLORER STANLEY TURNING BLACK.

Berlin, Oct. 15.—Henry M. Stanley, the famous African explorer, is gradually turning black, as the result of having negro blood transmitted to his veins as a protection against the deadly malaria while he was traveling in the dark continent. The climate of certain portions of Africa is extremely dangerous to foreigners, and as Stanley had to pass through the "fever country," he had a skillful native operator perform the operation of transfusion of blood from a negro to his (Stanley's) veins. Stanley traveled repeatedly through that district without ever having the fever.

A STYLISH WEDDING.

London, Oct. 15.—At St. George's Church, Hanover Square, today, at 2 o'clock, David Dwight Wells, second secretary of the United States Embassy in London, was married to Miss Marietta Ord, of this city, daughter of a prominent West End physician. The church was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and lilies. The service, which was fully choral, was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Bainbridge, rector of St. Thomas' Church, Regent street, to which the bride's family belong. Mr. C. W. Everard, formerly British consul at Ichang, China, acted as best man. The bridesmaids were Miss Evelyn Ord and Miss Beatrice Carpmall, cousins of the bride.

ENGLAND'S POLICY REGARDING TURKEY.

London, Oct. 15.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at Darlington, declared that the actual position of the powers with regard to the eastern question was that Russia, Austria and Germany were determined, with a view to preserving European peace, to maintain the status quo in Turkey. That had been England's traditional policy, he said, and any departure from it would meet with active resistance by the powers. At the same time absolute inaction was more dangerous to the peace of Europe than would be united interference by the powers to compel Turkish reform. England's present policy, the Chancellor of the Exchequer affirmed, was to secure a concert of the powers to insist emphatically that the Government did not desire to act alone, or to obtain any special advantages for England.

PROFOUND REGRET

At the Withdrawal of Rosbery Expressed by the Liberal Federation.

London, Oct. 15.—The executive committee of the National Liberal Federation has issued a statement expressing profound regret at Lord Rosebery's withdrawal from the leadership of the Liberal party, and making public recognition of his lordship's signal service as Prime Minister an leader under circumstances of unusual difficulty. The committee, in its statement, recognizes also the fact that Lord Rosebery's action in resigning was due to a desire on his part to promote unity in the Liberal ranks, and rejoices to know that the party will continue to benefit by their late leader's high character, ability and enthusiasm.

The social reform committee has decided, in view of the public feeling touching personal questions, not to call a meeting of the federation at present.

Henry Labouchere, editor of Truth, in an article in that journal, writes: "Nopody cares a brass farthing what the National Liberal Federation may say or do on any subject. The Federation is extinct as a factor in the Liberal party."

DU MAURIER'S ASHES

London, Oct. 15.—A large number of literary and artistic men and others, including the entire staff of Punch, Burnard, Lucy, Furness, Sir Walter Besant, Bancroft, Poynter, Alfred Gilbert, Henry James and Pof. Lankester, assembled at Hampstead Church on Tuesday to do honor to the ashes of the late George Du Maurier, the artist-author.

The mourners were headed by the widow, sons and daughters of the deceased, Canon Ainger officiated. The gold casket was smothered in flowers, and after the funeral ceremonies was interred in the churchyard under a yew tree. The floral wreaths included several from actresses who have played the part of Trilby.

The Premier Speaks.

Hon. Mr. Laurier and His Colleagues on a New Steamship.

The Transportation Question Ably Discussed.

Fast Atlantic Service and the St. Lawrence Route.

Montreal, Oct. 15.—A complimentary luncheon was tendered to the Premier and his colleagues on board the magnificent new steamship Canada yesterday by the Dominion Line officials. The chair was taken by Mr. John Torrance, the genial agent of the line. Among those present besides were the Ministers, General Manager Hays, of the G. T. R.; Vice-President Shaughnessy, of the C. P. R.; and many prominent shipping men and merchants. At the conclusion of luncheon, and after the usual loyal toasts, Mr. Torrance proposed that of the Premier and Government of Canada.

THE PREMIER'S SPEECH.

Mr. Laurier on rising to respond was greeted with cheers for several moments. After a few introductory remarks he said the Government had many questions to settle, among them the Manitoba school question. "This," said Mr. Laurier, "I hope we will be able to settle without doing violence to the conscience of any, but by appealing to the consciences of the majority in Manitoba, by appealing to the justice and generosity of our brothers to do by others as they would be done by themselves. (Cheers.) We have to settle the question of the reform of the tariff, of which I shall say nothing in the presence of the Minister of Finance. We shall endeavor to show once more that the principles of the party of reform are not those of revolutions. (Hear, hear.) There is another question not as much talked of, but in my opinion as important; I mean the question of transportation, and certainly no more fitting place could be found than on board the good ship Canada to talk of that. Here we are in Montreal, the commercial metropolis of Canada, and I express my own feelings, as well as yours, the mass of commercial men of Montreal, that we are above all things

A NATION OF FARMERS.

Other interests we have, and of great importance I admit, but if I am to speak my own mind the farmer is the chief of all. Unfortunately, the condition of the farmer for fifteen or twenty years has not been as brilliant or as prosperous as we might have expected. When the time came that the product of England was insufficient for her people, and they had to look abroad, for 50 years or so the Canadian farmer had almost a monopoly of the British market, but for the last 20 years the conditions have been changed. The farmer on this side has to compete with Argentina, Russia and even India, and the Canadian farmer is so situated that while his competitors are on the sea shore his fields are thousands of miles away from it. There is the problem, and the one thing which in this country the Government and every citizens must apply themselves to is the QUESTION OF TRANSPORTATION.

No one has done more than Mr. Torrance towards the solution of that problem. I am bound to say for the late Government that the problem engrossed their attention for many years. It was recognized years ago that the Atlantic system had to be revolutionized, and the Government interested themselves in the matter. When the present Government came into office they had to approve or reject a contract made by their predecessors with the Messrs. Allan, deservedly well known and popular, with the object of giving us a fast Atlantic service. It was the duty of the Government to give a decision immediately, but this we could not do on the spur of the moment. We thought that before committing the Government we ought to have more information. I speak in no carping or fault-finding spirit of our predecessors, but I want to impress upon you that the late Government, in their idea of improving the service between Europe and Canada, had in view the passenger service, and not as much the freight. Before committing the present Government to that contract, I do not say that we will not come to it eventually—which would have chiefly induced passenger traffic, but also to effect an improvement in the freight traffic. (Cheers.) The farmers must have a great deal to say in that question, because the prices of all farm products are determined in the British markets, and every cent paid by the farmer is taken from his products, and it therefore follows that every cent deducted for freight is so much less profit for the farmer. We therefore thought it well to look ahead and inform ourselves before coming to a decision on this matter.

THE ST. LAWRENCE ROUTE.

"I do not overlook the importance of a fast passenger service. There was a time when Sir Hugh Alan established his line that the route of the St. Lawrence was more popular for all passengers bound for America than any other. If such was the case perhaps it is a noble ambition to have a return of that condition and make the St. Lawrence route the most popular. (Cheers.) One thing I know well, because every one who knows the geography of the country knows that by natural laws the St. Lawence route was intended by the hand of God himself to be the greatest artery of the continent of North America. (Cheers.) This is the one object I would impress on you as being the wish of the Government to achieve. It has been proved that by the deepening of the canals the trade of Canada and of the west as well will come this way. The moment the St. Lawrence canals have been deepened all the products of the great Western States beyond the Mississippi must come to the seashore by way of the St. Lawrence. (Cheers.) We will endeavor, whether our administration be long or short, to show that the ideas are carried to a practical issue. We do not claim any paternity for the ideas, for they were the ideas of the fathers of Montreal, Hon. John Young and Sir Hugh Allan. (Cheers.) And let me say, speaking as a political man, not as a business man, that when in New York a few years ago, I saw the statue of a man I did not know. It was not that of Clay, Webster, Lincoln, Seward or any other great man, but a man unknown to me, a Mr. Dodge, a merchant who had done much to make New York what it is today. I think it strange that in Montreal neither Mr. Young nor Sir Hugh Allan have statues, for they ought to have them, because it was their idea to make the St. Lawrence route like what I have mentioned. There is nothing I would like more than to carry into effect their great ideas. Once more, Mr. Torrance and gentlemen, I offer our cordial thanks for the kindness with which you have drunk the health of the new Government of Canada."

Mr. Laurier was loudly applauded, and the entire company, rising, sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Brief addresses were also made by Messrs. Fielding, Tarte, Fisher, Geoffrion and others.

Finance Minister Fielding, in his address, said that the coming tariff revision would help, and not hurt, the industries of Canada. There was nothing to fear from it.

ROASTED TO DEATH!

Three Train Hands Meet a Terrible Fate.

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 15.—Through a misunderstanding of an order the north and southbound trains on the Florida Central and Peninsular Railway had a head-end collision yesterday, two and a half miles below Swansea, thirty miles from this city. The trains came together on an embankment. The engineers and firemen jumped and escaped without injury. The wreck caught fire and the express messenger, W. D. Lines, and Mail Agent, L. E. Thomas were roasted to death. Flagman Ulmer is supposed to have been burned to death. No passengers were hurt.

A REBELLION CRUSHED.

Madrid, Oct. 15.—An official dispatch from Manilla, capital of the Philippine Islands, announces that the rebellion in the island of Mindanao, the second largest of the group, is ended.

BANDIT KATE DEAD.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 15.—A great deal of regret is felt at the Salvation Army barracks over the death at Butte, Mont., of Helen Foresland, alias Kate Evans, once a famous frontier bandit, who was converted suddenly, and for years lived a life of honor and piety. It is reported that the woman died from the effects of poison, administed by her own hands.

GREAT GRAIN LOAD.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 15.—The steamer Queen City has broken all grain carrying records by taking 134,000 bushels of wheat and 42,000 bushels of rye, equivalent to 174,000 bushels of wheat. This big increase is made possible by the increase of water at the Sault Canal, allowing boats loaded up to 16 feet to pass.

BUFFALO BANK OF COMMERCE SUSPENDS.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Withdrawals from the Bank of Commerce have been recently quite large, and at a meeting of the board of directors this morning it was deemed expedient to place the bank in the hands of the banking department for examination, and suspend business. The directors expect that the mank may be able to resume in a short time.

Twelfth Annual Shoot of the Seventh Battalion.

Lance-Corp. Webster the Champion Marksman.

Major Hayes, Sergt. Hennessey and Corp. Robson Also in the Van.

Most Successful Matches the Association Have Ever Held—The Tracy Cup Won by "B" Company.

A fine day, plenty of enthusiasm, and determination made the twelfth annual shooting match of the Seventh Battalion yesterday the most successful they have ever held. Considering that the shooting was done with the old Snider rifles taken from the armory, the scores were remarkably good. One thing that tended to lower the scores was the fact of the rifles having been used and cleaned so much. After the first shot or two the barrel expands, and those who did not make allowance for the diminished speed of the bullet by raising the sight a few degrees higher, were the ones who made small scores. None of the marksmen shot with their own rifles. No "possibles" were made. The scores in military matches are, as most marksmen are aware, smaller than those of the association matches, because a bullseye in the former counts only 4, an inner 3, and an outer 2. The highest possible score in the battalion match was 60 points; nursery, 40 points; extra series, 20 points.

The most fortunate man at the ranges was Lance-Corp. Webster. He won the gold medal presented by Capt. Watt to the member of his company making the highest score in the battalion match. He also won the silver medal presented by Mr. Halloway, of Toronto, to the man making the highest number of points in the nursery match.

The silver medal presented by Capt. Dawson to the non-commissioned officers making the highest score in F Company was won by Sergt. Hennessy.

SKIRMISHING AND VOLLEY FIRING.

D Company won the prize in the skirmishing and volley firing contest. The skirmishing shots created a great deal of excitement. Three shots were fired in the advance and three in the retire, at 400 yards range exposed for twenty seconds. The company was then required to halt, load and fire by command at target exposed for fifteen seconds. Five points were allowed for order in the advance and retire, and three for each perfect volley. The following is the score:

SILK VS. GRAHAM.

An Interesting Assault Case in Which the Stories Are Rather Conflicting.

George Graham, the Hamilton road hotel-keeper, was before Squire Smyth yesterday to answer to a charge of assaulting Mr. Fred H. Silk, bank manager at Shelburne. Mr. Silk met with an accident while wheeling one night near Nilestown. He was dazed from the effects of his tumble, which had rendered him unconscious for hours, and accidentally broke a window glass at Graham's hotel, while rapping for admission. He says that Graham thereupon struck him violently on the face three times, painfully injuring him. He denied having been drinking.

Graham averred that the complainant, after breaking a window, tried to force himself into the hotel at 2 o'clock in the morning, and was merely pushed back. He denied striking Silk. W. C. Drake, Dorchester Station, and George Byers, Nilestown, both hotel-keepers, swore that Mr. Silk had several drinks of whisky and ginger ale that night.

Evidence for the complainant was given by his father, Mr. Henry Silk, of 551 Talbot street; by Henry Reynolds, an uncle of the complainant, and by George Walker, who lives in Nilestown. The former said he and his son visited Graham's after the affair, and drew the latter out in conversation. Graham told them the story of Silk's arrival. He said the first thing he did was to knock Silk over and take possession of his bicycle, for breaking the glass. He returned the wheel upon Silk paying 50 cents for the damage. Graham said Silk was not drunk, but appeared to be dazed. The witness' son was very sick after the affair.

As there is more evidence to come the case was adjourned until Oct. 20.

Distress in Cuba.

Spaniards Begging Food from the Insurgents.

Contradictory Accounts of a Thirteen Days' Struggle.

Gibara, Cuba, Oct. 15.—Such is the state of suffering in Baracoa that the local Spanish commandant is permitting women and children to go through the Government lines to beg for food in the rebel camps. More than 300 passes for this purpose are being issued daily. The correspondent in Baracoa reports the landing of a new filibustering expedition in Marivi, in eastern Cuba. The party brought 1,000 rifles and a proportionate quantity of munitions. The men disembarked from a Haytian schooner between two Spanish forts, neither of which was a mile and a half away. The war material was all transported into the interior before any alarm was raised.

A special dispatch to the Madrid Imparcial from Havana says another engagement has been fought between the insurgents and Spanish troops at Cascorro, Camaguey, which place was recently besieged for thirteen days by the rebels. In this battle the force of Gen. Castellanos, the Spanish leader, was compelled to retreat. The loss of the rebels is estimated at 200.

The correspondent in Cuba of a London news agency represents the result of the recent fight at Cascorro as a decisive victory for the Government troops. Five thousand rebels, under the leadership of Gomez, the correspondent says, were obliged to raise the siege of Cascorro, losing 300 men killed or wounded. The Spanish losses were 55 men.

Bayham in Trouble Over a Marriage License.

Aylmer, Oct. 15.—John H. Eveland, of Bayham, appeared before Magistrate McDiarmid on a charge of perjury. Crown Attorney Donahue prosecuted. The accused was committed for trial, and was taken to Elgin jail.

Eveland is charged with having "on th 14th of August, 1896, at a trial before Freeman Chute, J. P., falsely, wilfully and corruptly deposed and sworn that a license was obtained from Edward Suffel at Vienna, and that he and Susan Coutts were married by Rev. Mr. Crocker, whereas in fact they were not married, and such license was not obtained as aforesaid."

HE MEANT WELL.

The story of the Irishman who wrote his friend, saying, "Telegraph me if you don't get this letter," was equaled in a local business house. One of the office men came down, and found that he had left his keys behind. He sent to his wife for them, and the messenger returned with the information that the keys were not there. At this juncture George ——, a fellow clerk, said, "Why, I found your keys."

"I have them in my pocket," said George. I pushed a note through the slit of your desk telling you I had them."

"Well, you idiot," said the first, "how was I to get the note when the desk was locked?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

BASEBALL.

LONDON BALL-TOSSERS DEFEATED.

A local nine went to St. Thomas yesterday to tackle a St. Thomas team and were defeated. Both sides were misnamed. The London team called themselves the Alerts, and their opponents the Y. M. C. A.s. The former were made up chiefly of the city league members and St. Thomas was assisted by Joe Knight, of the Providence league team, and Albert Wood, late of the Alerts. The latter, who lost the pennant for the Alerts and then started to pitch good ball after he was fired, struck out 15 men. Carney was hit freely. A feature was the umpiring of Emslie and Sheridan, of the National League. Score:

EVOLVED FROM CRICKET.

"I can see," says Pfeffer, "how the game of baseball could have evoluted from cricket. The principles of the batter, pitcher and fielder appear in both games, and the idea of having a man hit the ball and run to and from a given point. Ten men are out in cricket to three in baseball, and I can see where the idea of making three outs to a side and increasing the number of bases could have gradually taken form."

In this connection it will be remembered that baseball pitchers were formerly allowed to take a run and jump before delivering the ball, exactly as the bowlers do now. The home plate has taken the place of the wicket, and the other variations in the two games can easily be traced out by a little study.

THE WHEEL.

C. W. A. BREAKERS AHEAD.

Toronto Mail and Empire: As exclusively told in these columns nearly a month ago, the Canadian Wheelmen's Association is in imminent danger of dismemberment. Rumblings of discord that have been in the air for many months latterly have grown so ominous as to demand the immediate attention of C. W. A. officers. The primary and chief causes of disorder is the excessive club membership fee levied to maintain the association in working order. Clubs that hitherto have paid into the C. W. A. treasury each year sums of $50, $75, $100, or $125, have at last had their patience and their exchequers worn out by the continual drain, and now demand a halt. They are beginning to ask what return they get for their money. They are beginning to inquire where the money goes. They are beginning to realize that they cannot afford such extravagance. They are all good C. W. A. clubs; they all recognize the necessity and importance of a governing organization; but they can't stand the price.

One of the oldest C. W. A. clubs in Toronto, at a meeting last night, decided to withdraw from affiliation unless the club membership fee be reduced to a reasonable basis. At least five other city clubs will follow that club's example at approaching meetings. As a matter of fact delegates from all the C. W. A. clubs in Toronto will meet early in November to determine upon a line of action, and to consider the advisability of withdrawing from the C. W. A. if that body does not concede to their wishes.

APPLES FOR THE COMPLEXION.

Life and Health.

"The secret of a bad complexion," said a well-known physician recently, "is a bad digestion, and we generally trace that to a bad liver. One of the best remedies for a sluggish liver is cheap and pleasant. Dieting is the secret of the cure. The best liver regulators for persons of sedentary habits—and those are the ones whose complexions are muddy—is to be found in apples, eaten baked if they are not well digested when eaten raw. I attended the pupils of a well-known boarding school, and among them was a country girl whose complexion was the envy of all her associates. I found that she was a very light eater at her meals, but she had a peculiar custom of taking a plate of apples to her room at night and eating them slowly as she studied her lessons. This was her regular practice. Some of the other girls in the institution took it up, and I know, as a result of my personal investigation, that the apple-eating girl had the best complexion of any in the school."

OBSCURE MILLIONAIRES.

The Only Thing the Possessor of Millions Can Do to Keep Himself Unknown.

Church Standard.

The London Spectator once published a list of those it called "obscure millionaires" who had died within the previous ten years. The list was a rather long one. This list sets one considering. The age is a shopkeeping age, it is true. It is apt, we say, to value men according to their property. Great wealth gives great consideration, and yet, notwithstanding the exaggerated importance of money and money getting, it appears that wealth in the largest measure redeems no man from obscurity; that money in itself, by its mere possession, confers no distinction which even this age values. Its use, and not its possession, is all that can make it a matter of distinction. In our own country even more than in Europe wealth exaggerates its own consequence. It is natural that it should, for here, more than there, it is a personal matter. The American millionaire has "made," as he says, his own millions. They represent his own shrewdness, industry, tact, perseverance, or "good luck." He is fond, it may be, of reminding us all that it is so. He is a "self-made man," and recurs to the time when he was a barefoot boy, or a penniless youth, with some pride, as a proof of how bright a man he is in having changed by his own powers the early poverty for the present wealth.

He feels in his heart he has done a noble work, and that he deserves the commendation of mankind for doing it. He is liable to disappointment, as we all know, and it is somewhat strange that, shrewd as he is in money matters, he is so blind in others. For the rest of the world is very busy and has little time to trouble itself about his success or his failure. Neither can other people see on exactly what grounds a man can claim its applause only for having taken good care of his own interests.

The consideration given to him for his money is given only to his face by those who expect to get something by it. The community would look complacently upon the matter if a sudden revulsion should set him to sweeping the streets tomorrow, would consider him indeed quite as important in the last occupation as in that of raking his heaps higher. In other words, it is the wealth itself that is important, if there is any importance in the case. The man who owns it may be very unimportant; in fact, if he is content to be merely its owner, is sure to be so.

The only way to create distinction with wealth is by its use. What a man does with what he has determines the question of his obscurity. The world is very just, and forgets all but its benefactors. The millionaire who uses his millions for his own benefit is like the office-holder who uses his office for his own benefit, or the man of genius who exhausts his genius for his own selfish ends, or, indeed, like any man who, endowed with a trust, uses the trust for his own exclusive use and behoof.

Men possessed of other trusts are not as apt to make this mistake as the men possessed of money. Genius, intellectual power, high spiritual gifts, we are all loud to claim are conferred for the good of humanity. We stand ready to condemn relentlessly the men who, endowed with such gifts, use them mainly for their own advantage. But great wealth, especially if a man has himself won it, is less apt to be considered a trust. The greed for it is great. It is often sought not for itself, but for the supposed distinction it confers. When the young man of energy and ambition looks forward to the attainment of it as the end of his endeavors, he is not led by any miserly desire for money in itself. He has rather the nobler desire of winning distinction and importance by its possession. It is a means and not an end. Pity he should in the years of his pursuit so often change his notion. For his first opinion is right. Wealth can confer distinction. It can bring honor and high consideration. It can make a man's memory fragrant for centuries. But to do all this it must be used.

There are millionaires in our own country who will neither be remembered nor cared for thirty days after their costly funerals. Their passage from among living men will leave no void, for the stocks and bonds and shares which alone gave them their consequence remain. Mankind has lost nothing, misses nothing. There are others who will be missed in a thousand places and by thousands of hearts, for though the millions remain, the heart that made the millions a blessing is gone. The man in this case is lost to us, and he was more than his money. There are again some few who so dispose of their thousands that their names and memories are linked for years, for centuries, to the monuments of beneficence they leave behind them, famous the land over, not for their wealth, but for the good deeds their wealth was used for. The millionaire is nothing, his importance nothing, his consequence nothing. We want to know what he does with his millions before we care to remember his name. As a millionaire merely, he is like the great poet who never writes, the great orator who never makes a speech, the great inventor who has never invented anything. He had grand opportunities. He could have done so much with his money. He did nothing. He "died worth so many millions." That is all. We stand by his grave, and think "what a fool he was!" Another "obscure millionaire."

Another serious outbreak of hog cholera has been reported from Kent county. All the outbreaks of the disease throughout the Province have been traced to the diseased hogs, which were exposed some time ago on Toronto market. The veterinary college has made a careful diagnosis of the disease, and finds that it is very similar to typhoid fever, and if cholera-tainted pork is eaten, it would cause typhoid fever to those using it. Veterinary surgeons throughout the Province have been warned to slaughter the animals on discovering the first symptoms of the disease, and are following instructions.

Jos. Speers, jun., of Goderich, is asking the divisional court at Toronto to declare invalid the will of his father, Joseph Speers, made in 1893, which left him a little of his $10,000, and to declare valid a former will of 1890, which the son says was the only will he was mentally capable of making, and which left him all. Heirs who come under the last will say that Judge Doyle, of Huron county, was right in declaring the last will valid, but Mr. Speers, jun., says Judge Doyle was not the senior judge of Huron county, and had no power to adjudicate the matter.

DR. SMITH AND THE BIBLE.

Rev. Dr. S. F. Smith, author of the national hymn, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," was well acquainted with his Bible. He illustrated the fact when at one time a professor at Colby University. The president of the college was accustomed to conduct each morning the chapel worship, but being ill for several days, he requested Dr. Smith to lead the service. The students, not knowing his great memory for exact Biblical history, thought they would have a little fun at the expense of the youthful professor, and spirited the Bible away from the chapel pulpit. Dr. Smith took in the situation, and, losing no time in hunting for the hidden book, repeated from memory an entire chapter. The next day, the Bible still not appearing, the doctor repeated another chapter from memory. On the third morning, there being no Bible on the desk, he repeated a longer chapter, without apparently noticing the absence of the book. On the fourth morning, the Bible still in its hiding place, the professor thought he would be even with the boys, and repeated, entirely from memory, 71 verses from one of the longest chapters in the Gospel of Luke. He spoke with great deliberation, taking very much more time than was usually allotted to Bible reading. The students found that Dr. Smith was too much for them and suspended further operations. Not a word was said, but the Bible reappeared the next day on the desk.

The EVENING STAR.

Shipments Begun and the Mine Looking Well—Good Ore Assays.

And Four Feet of Ore of Shipping Grade.

The Evening Star was bought in the spring of 1895, by L. H. Drumheller, of Spokane, for $1,500 cash. Rich ore was found on it during the summer of 1895, and two car load shipments were made, from which very satisfactory returns were obtained. It has taken over a year to place the mine in a condition to make regular shipments. The ledge has been tapped at a depth of 100 feet, and shows four feet of ore of as satisfactory grade as on the surface. Shipments will, for some time, be limited to one car load a day, until drifts and stopes have been opened up. Mr. Drumheller claims to have the longest continuous chute of pay ore in Trail Creek, 600 feet long. He estimates a net profit to the company of $50,000 in sight, and expects to have a dividend for his shareholders by the end of the year.

On Sunday night a further strike was made on the Evening Star. What was supposed to be the hanging wall was broken through, and a fine body of quartz, mixed with sulphide ore, and showing free gold, was uncovered. The Evening Star has now one of the most remarkable showings in the camp at 100 feet in depth.

On Monday some rock was taken out of the Evening Star tunnel, which gave an assay of $1,600 to the ton.—Rossland Mining Review.

HAS HIGH-GRADE ORE

Smelter Returns Show That Evening Star Averages $47 Per Ton in Gold.

Rossland, B. C., Oct. 8.—Development work on the Evening Star is going on with regularity and precision, and now the shaft, at a depth of 42 feet, shows up four feet of fine arsenical iron in a quartz, and (strange as it may seem) hornblende gangue. Two shifts are at work in the shaft, and are breaking enough ore to permit of weekly shipments of 30 tons to the Trail Creek smelter. The returns from the first shipment have been received. The shipment of 30 tons yielded $47 in gold per ton. The ore carries a heavy excess of silica over iron, and consequently is more difficult than the ordinary Trail Creek product. However, this figure means that the ore will net over $25 to the ton, which in a mine of the Evening Star's dimensions means a stupendous yearly profit. As soon as connections have been made between the surface and the lower tunnel, stoping will commence in full swing, and then the mine will easily have a daily output of 50 tons. The lower tunnel is now in 200 feet, and is being driven toward the colossal outcrop of the vein. The face of the drift tonight cannot be more than 30 feet from the ore chute.—Spokane Spokesman Review.

We believe that Evening Star stock is worth fully as much as Crown Point, and at its present price Evening Star is a splendid purchase.

It is selling in Rossland at 30 cents on a rapidly rising market.

We are prepared to fill orders for it at 27 cents per share.

Wire orders at our expense.

The Grand Trunk Meeting.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson had not much difficulty in passing the report of the Grand Trunk Railway, of which he is president, at the half-yearly meeting yesterday. It was not easy for fault-finding shareholders to get groundwork for objection, as Sir Charles answered in advance the various points which have been raised against the new management. They were principally minor matters of detail, upon which there could be differences of opinion, though the real arbiters, who could speak with authority, were the general manager and his assistants, who recommended them. These gentlemen are on the spot. They are expert railway men, and know their business. Mr. Hays, the new general manager, whose policy has practically been indorsed unanimously by the shareholders, has proved himself to be one of the best managers on the continent. He has never failed in anything that he has undertaken, and there cannot be a doubt that it is his intention to so manage the G. T. R. as to produce the best possible results.

There have been changes in subordinates, and new men have been brought in. Some are former Canadians, who had risen to prominent rank in United States railway service. A number are expert natives of the United States. But General Manager Hays, though himself a native of the United States, like the head of the C. P. R., has no prejudices in favor of one nationality over another. What he has striven to accomplish, and his president and shareholders back him in his policy, is to get the best working aggregation of assistants together that can be had for the money. In this he has followed the example set by the United States railway managers, who have again and again come to Canada for bright young men, and advanced them to places of prominence and power, as their talents merited

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, indeed, reminded the shareholders, as we in Canada well know, that the Grand Trunk is to no inconsiderable extent a United States railway, and is dependent upon the prosperity of that country for not a little of its traffic. We here, who are so much affected by the prosperity or depression in the business of the great pioneer international line, will rejoice when the political turmoil in the United States is over, and when trade resumes those normal progressive conditions which will aid in restoring prosperity to the G. T. R. When times are good on the railways, we are certain that their customers are faring well also.

It turns out that the Ottawa census, which has so swelled the population of the capital, was taken just before the defeat of the Tupper Government, when the city was crowded with office-seekers.

Developing the Industries.

George White & Sons, city, are building an extension to their factory.

The Bennet Manufacturing Company, city, are making a large addition to their factory. The company recently sent a large consignment of its famous school seats to South Africa. It is constantly shipping its manufactures to Great Britain.

The McClary Company, city, find an increasing sale for their wares in the mining districts of the Rocky Mountains and Northern British Columbia.

At Ridgetown, Mr. Cawthorpe will rebuild his rolling mills, recently destroyed by fire.

A company, with $1,000,000 capital, is being formed at Ottawa to operate a cotton mill in that city. Electricity may be extensively used.

Heard & Co., St. Thomas, have built an addition to their carriage woodwork factory, and put in additional machinery.

A new barrel and keg manufactory is to be built in Windsor.

Stories About Stanley.

The cable correspondents sent a dispatch to the effect that the famous traveler Stanley is gradually turning black through having negro blood transmitted to his veins as a protection against the deadly malaria while traveling on the dark continent. This is probably a new adaptation of the story about the explorer which some time ago found extensive currency. It was then given out as a fact that Stanley owed his surviving, when others connected with him in his African explorations had died, to the transfusion of blood five or six times while he was in Africa from the veins of natives into his arm. Partly for amusement, and partly to ascertain what the story originated in, the New York Advocate sent him the clipping. It appears to have been a ceremony adopted to make his life safe by keeping the peace with the natives. This is his reply:

"2 Richmond Terrace, Whitehall, London, Sept. 10.

"Dear Sir,—The paragraph relating to blood brotherhood which you sent me is too absurd to be taken seriously. There is no transfusion of the blood into the veins during the ceremony. The wound made is just deep enough to allow a drop of blood to be drawn, which, when applied over the arms of the new made brothers, barely suffices to stain a spot the size of a nickel. We owe a great deal of nonsense to the paragraphist; his business is mainly to amuse housemaids and infants. With best regards, yours faithfully, HENRY M. STANLEY."

There is probably about as little foundation for this new story about Stanley as there was for the yarn he has now so neatly explained away. If any person with a white skin thinks he can make it black by an infusion of negro blood, let him try the experiment.

When the Mackenzie Government was defeated in 1878, there were, according to the Times, four boot and shoe factories in Hamilton. Now there are none. One moved to Toronto, and the other three collapsed under the pernicious influences of the "N. P."

A Menace to Health.

Many people in the city complain of sore throats and colds in the head. Are they sure that that have correctly diagnosed their complaint? A leading physician informs us that the sore throats and alleged colds are caused by the breathing of smoke-laden air, caused by the wholesale burning of fallen leaves and rubbish in city backyards.

This is an annual complaint, which causes severe illness to many. It should be avoided. The worst use to which fallen leaves can be put is to burn them. Fallen leaves should be dug into the ground, and used to fatten the soil. They are the best manure that can be used.

—Of all the men, women and children in Great Britain, every seventh person is a depositor in the postoffice savings bank. And yet we have had a class of politicians in Canada who have represented the British people as starving because of their policy of trade freedom.

The Scorcher to be Scorched.

The scorcher does not find much encouragement in Missouri. When he is tempted to indulge in his foolhardy racing on the public thoroughfares, he is confronted with a law containing this provision:

'If any person shall be maimed,' wounded, or disfigured, or receive great bodily harm, or his life be endangered by the act, procurement or culpable negligence of another, in cases and under circumstances which would constitute murder or manslaughter if death had ensued, the person by whose act, procurement or negligence such injury or danger of life shall be occasioned shall, in cases not otherwise provided for, be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or in the county jail not less than six months, or by both a fine not less than $100 and imprisonment in the county jail not less than three months, or by a fine not less than $100."

It can readily be seen that any wheelman who is tempted to run amuck in that State will think twice before he indulges in lightning speed to the great danger of his fellows.

THE MINISTER'S COMPLIMENT.

Tid-Bits.

One Sunday, as a certain Scottish minister was returning homeward, he was accosted by an old woman, who said:

"Oh, sir, well do I like the day when you preach."

The minister was aware that he was not very popular, and answered:

"My good woman, I am glad to hear it. There are too few like you. And why do you like it when I preach?"

"Oh, sir," she replied, "when you preach I always get a good seat."

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

Toronto Globe.

The Minister of Education is credited with the desire to make the educational system of Ontario more suitable for the requirements of the province. If he succeeds in the development of a school course that will turn the thoughts of our boys to the better culture of the soil, to the development of our mines, and to the utilization of the resources of nature in the production of material wealth, he will have performed a service of incalculable value. The statistics regarding graduates of Toronto University, who have, within four years, secured positions in American universities, are startling in the extreme. The present system of education is apparently responsible for a great part of the exodus of our youth. If 81 graduates of the Toronto University have in four years been absorbed by American universities, how many have found place in private life across the border and have been lost to Canada? Surely we can, in the development of our marvelous natural resources, find as profitable and as desirable occupations for the flower of our young men as are to be found in the overcrowded ranks of the professions in the United States? It is, of course, flattering to Canada, that her sons can, by superior intellectual gifts and educational attainments rise so high in the United States. The gain is to the individual a material one, however, while to Canada it is but an empty honor, bringing with it no wealth, but national impoverishment. We are doing more for our rural population than England is, and the Agricultural College, School of Mines, and similar institutions are of great benefit. But why not bend the twig when it is smaller, and put a little more of agriculture and mineralogy and mechanics into the elementary school course?

A MOUNTAIN MICA MINE.

Edmonton Bulletin.

Geo. Wilkins and W. Oliver arrived in town at about 1 o'clock today from their mica mine in the mountains. Their trip was marked by considerable rough weather, and they were detained eighteen days at the grand forks of the Fraser, where the water was a rushing torrent during that time. One of their horses was drowned in the Fraser. They reached their mine safely, and found everything as they had left it the previous year. They did considerable preliminary work and staked out their claim and put everything into proper shape for working and developing the mine next year. They brought some samples of the mica in with them. Their mine is situated ten thousand feet above sea level, where there is perpetual snow in shaded places, and is somewhat difficult to approach. The trip home took nineteen days, amid beautiful weather.

POISON IN THE PEARS.

Attempted Murder of an Actress in New York.

New York, Oct. 15.—When Letta Meredith, leading lady in Carr's theater, reached her dressing-room, she found a pretty box made of sea shells on her bureau. Inside were several large golden Bartlett pears. The name of the donor was not on the card. A messenger boy had left the package without a word. Miss Meredith bit into one of the pears. Instantly her throat burned as if a flash of flame had rushed down. She fainted.

BABY THIEVES.

Chicago Police Capture Some Remarkable Crooks.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Two unique criminals are under arrest here. They are Agnes Meyer, 10, and her brother, Charley, 7. Their mother is a prisoner with them. A storm of recent complaints have told the same story. Mrs. Meyer on entering a house would engage the elderly people in conversation while her children did the stealing. As their mother, with the air and appearance of a thrifty woman of affairs, entered a house, ostensibly to buy it or rent a room for a brother, the children would slip in with her and begin to play in the rooms. Then the youngsters would pull out bureau drawers and take anything they could get their hands on in the way of jewelry and money.

They are bright, interesting little things, and were dressed in elegant taste. Agnes looked like a doll in the police station, where her dainty gown, fine shoes and hosiery were utterly unlike the garments worn by the waifs that misfortune throws into the custody of the police. Charley was dressed in a Lord Fauntleroy velvet suit, and looked the child of some family of wealth.

SARNIA IS GRATEFUL.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 15.—The Port Huron firemen went to the assistance of Sarnia, when it was threatened with total destruction last spring. The Sarnia Council has presented them with a solid silver water service. Mayor Morrison made the presentation and Mayor Boynton responded.

TO BOYCOTT THE COAL COMBINE.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 15.—An organized and general effort is being made among the business men of Yankton, South Dakota, to boycott the hard coal combine throughout the Northwest, by inducing as many consumers as possible to substitute corn for fuel.

SIMCOE FAIR.

Simcoe, Ont., Oct. 15.—The second day of the Norfolk Union Fair closed with the lightest attendance that the society has had for years. All classes are well filled in every department. The fruit and root exhibit is undoubtedly the finest ever shown in the country, while there is considerable falling off in the dairy products, cheese being very light. The carriage exhibit never was larger nor of better quality. The poultry entries were so numerous that the poultry house was unable to accommodate all the exhibits. The fine arts department falls below the average, except in crayon work, which is excellent. The horse ring made the best showing the fair has ever had.

TRAIN VS. TROLLEY.

Terrible Disaster at Hazleton, Pa.—Three Men Killed.

Hazleton, Pa., Oct. 15.—Three men were fatally and a score of others more or less seriously injured last night in a trolley accident at the Hazleton crossing of the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill Railroad and the Lehigh traction line. The dead are: Jefferson Kirschner, of Hazleton, a telegraph operator; Wm. Stapleton, of Milton, a telegraph operator; David John Williams, of Plymouth. Patrick Dowd, a trolley conductor, and Morris Ferry, a boy, are at the hospital unconscious, and are not expected to live. The engine caught the rear end of the car and tore it from the main portion, which was thrown over an embankment into a swamp. Kirschner, who was near the rear end of the car, was caught and dragged over 100 yards before the engine could be stopped.

The Lacteal Question.

Ought Milk to be Peddled on Sunday?

Conflicting Views on the Matter—Some Ministers Think Sunday Delivery Excusable in Summer—Others Favor Entire Prohibition — An Interesting Symposium.

Whether milk shall be delivered or not on the Sabbath is a question which directly concerns nearly every household in the city.

The milkmen naturally object to Sunday delivery, as it entails a day's extra work, without corresponding profits, because if people could not get milk on Sunday, many of them would purchase a double supply on Saturday. The Dairymen's Association, to which nearly all the milkmen belong, will, therefore, petition the City Council to prohibit Sunday milk peddling.

There are two sides to the question, however. A number of citizens have been spoken to, and their opinions are summarized in the following brief interviews:

Mr. John Friend, the confectioner, was decidedly opposed to Sunday milk selling and all unnecessary Sunday work. He had never found it necessary, either in his family or his business, to have milk served on a Sunday. He would not ask another to do for him what he thought was wrong to do himself. The milkman's horse, as well as the driver, needed the Sabbath rest.

Mr. James Wilkins, barber, would like to see Sunday milk peddling prohibited. The rattle of the milkman's wagon and bell—often heard while divine service was going on—disturbed the quiet of the Sabbath. The work was not necessary.

Mr. John Chamberlain, barber, was opposed to Sunday milk selling. He did not want milk brought to his place on the Sabbath. He did not want to work on Sundays, and would not ask another man to do so.

Mr. Norman McLeod, grocer, was opposed to unnecessary Sunday work. There was no need to peddle milk in the winter on the Sabbath; but he hardly saw how it could be avoided in the warm weather, especially where there were young children in the family, and the people had no cellar and could not well afford to buy ice.

Mr. James A. Dobie, barber, didn't believe in Sunday milk selling, and took care to engage a milkman who did not peddle on the Sabbath.

A Medico.—You might as well suggest that the water supply be cut off on Sunday, and that people should drink stale water drawn on Saturday. Milk is just as much a necessity as water in most families, where there are children, whose principal diet is milk, and it must be fresh. It cannot be fresh and pure if standing over in an ordinary cellar from Saturday morning until Monday morning. Milk delivery is one of the necessities of city life.

Dr. C. T. Campbell, chairman of the Board of Health, said: "I am personally in favor of a Sunday delivery. In families where there are infants or invalids, fresh milk is a very necessary article, and any hard or fast law might be a hindrance. But people generally should do as little dealing on Sunday as possible, and not cause others to do more than necessary."

Mr. Chas. D. Johnston said: "I don't see how we could get along without it. It is one of the necessities of life. If the council passes the by-law requested by the milkmen, it will mean a great loss to them."

Mr. D. A. McDermid, superintendent of the Dundas Center Sunday school, said: "Personally I am not in favor of Sunday milk delivering, and think that many families could get along without it; but there seems to be strong reasons against the prohibition of it."

Mr. Barkwell, druggist: "It is not a necessity, but people feel they must have it just the same, as they come to this store on Sunday and ask for things which we know are not necessities. I think we could get along without the Sunday delivery. Sufficient could be delivered the night before."

Rev. J. G. Stuart, Knox Church, South London, thought that in winter Sunday milk peddling was unnecessary, as the Sabbath supply could be delivered on Saturday. In summer the case was different. Poor people could not afford the ice to prevent the milk from souring, and besides, fresh milk was indispensable to sick children. He believed in no Sunday labor, except when it was absolutely necessary.

Rev. M. P. Talling's views agreed with Mr. Stuart's. There were some classes of labor necessary on the Sabbath. Sunday milk peddling in cool weather did not come under that heading, but in warm weather it was excusable.

"I would rather have my milk delivered on Sunday before church than have to drink sour milk," said Mr. C. F. Colwell. "Let those who are suggesting these wonderful reforms provide an adequate remedy. Certain lines of trade are unjustly assailed, when others, far more reprehensible, are let alone.

"There are two sides to a question," said a Queen's avenue housewife. "If you have a baby to feed, it is absolutely necessary that you should have fresh milk every day, but more especially during the hot days of summer. I would certainly have a milk delivery every day in the week from April 1 to Nov. 1. Most people might wrestle along with a Saturday night supply for Sunday during the winter months. Let those who would fain confine milk delivery to six days in the week reflect on the hardships which poor people, with families, and unable to buy ice, would undergo during the summer months, if they had to do without milk from Saturday till Monday. Sunday milk delivery during the summer is an absolute work of necessity."

Mr. Thos. R. Parker—I have not given the thing much thought, and therefore don't care about giving an opinion, but I am inclined to think that the poor people would suffer because they have no place to keep milk for the young children. By that means the little ones would be deprived of their regular food on Sundays, or would have to take the stale milk.

Mr. Frank Love—I think it is very necessary that our young children should have fresh milk on Sunday. There are real evils to be suppressed, without beginning on imaginary ones.

W. H. Bartram—It's all bosh. It is all very well for the rich, who have refrigerators, but what are the poor people going to do who have no place to keep the milk sweet for the little ones? There is only one household in a hundred who have a place to keep milk sweet, and it would be a piece of Czarism to deprive the poor of the opportunity to procure milk on Sunday. It might possibly be dispensed with in the winter months, but it is a necessity in the summer time.

Ald. Charles Taylor—Oh, we must not restrict the people too much. I would not support a question of that kind. Milk peddling on Sunday could be dispensed with in the winter time, but it is absolutely necessary in the summer.

Squire J. B. Smyth—I don't care much about expressing an opinion on the question, but what are the hotels, the large boarding houses, and the little babies to do for milk on Sunday? It might be all very well in the winter, but it won't work in the summer months.

Medical Health Officer Hutchinson—Well, I can't see that it is any harm to peddle milk on Sunday. I respect the Sabbath as much as any man or woman, but I can't see why they want to prohibit the delivery of the milk. It is a work of necessity. The cows have to be milked on Sunday and then the question comes up, "What are the dealers to do with the extra day's supply?" Very few of them could keep it with advantage. That is not the only thing. Many of the dealers, I feel sure, would be unable to supply the demand on Monday morning, because people don't want old, nor yet skimmed, milk. About half the infants in the city are fed on cow's milk, and this will have to be procured fresh daily. It is an absolute necessity to have Sunday milk peddling, in the summer months especially.

A well known lawyer remarked: "What restriction they place upon a man simply because he is alive! It is not long since the women in Toronto wanted the Government petitioned to make a man climb up a tree when he wanted to smoke a cigar on the street. They objected to smoking in public. I'll have to keep a cow in the city, if I can't get Sunday milk. That's all I have to say.'

CHARLIE POPE HEARD FROM.

Absolute Denial of the Report That He Is Dead—Very Much Alive—Charlie's Greatest Detective Work.

Chief Williams today received an amusing letter from Charlie Pope (colored), who was one of the best county constables in this neighborhood five or six years ago. Charlie, who is now in Milwaukee, writes to annihilate the report that he had died, a local life insurance company having written for particulars of his demise. He says he is "proud and thankful to the Great Creator that he is yet alive." He assures the chief that "his weight last night was 198 pounds," and that he has gained 38 pounds since he left London, despite the fact that he has been in two or three railway accidents. He has not been naturalized, and is still a Canadian. After such specific information, there can be no doubt that Charlie is very much alive, as he always was when here.

Charlie's crowning triumph as a servant of the law was achieved while he was a jail bird. That may seem paradoxical, but it isn't. Some years ago it was found that prisoners at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary were communicating very freely with the outside world. The guards were suspected of corruption, but direct evidence was hard to procure. Charlie was chosen for the task. He was arrested on a trumped-up charge of burglary at Ottawa, and sentenced to three years at St. Vincent de Paul. He donned the convict's garb, and very soon afterwards Chief Williams, of this city, received from him a surreptitious letter written on tissue paper, such as is used in closets. He had bribed the guard to post it. Then Charlie created a great disturbance in order to be placed in the dark cells and to trap another guard. He was successful in both. An exposure followed, the guards pleaded guilty, and Charlie was given his reward—$5 a day for the seven weeks spent in the cells, and an additional grant of $50 by the Government. Mrs. Pope also received $50 as a solace for the absence of her spouse and the temporary humiliation she suffered through his escapade.

Charlie left London for Chicago, and secured a position as colored porter on a railroad. His present address is 1,011 Fifth street, Milwaukee. He wishes to be remembered to his old friends, and assures them he is doing well.

AFFLICTED BY TYPHOID.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Henry, of Niles town, Lose Their Daughter—The Others Recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Henry, living near Nilestown, have been sorely afflicted by death and illness. Mr. Henry is an expert oil treater, and has lately been employed in Cleveland. A short time ago Mrs. Henry left to pay him a brief visit. During her absence, her eldest daughter fell ill of typhoid fever and she returned hastily. Mr. Henry was under contract not to leave his employers except in the event of death, but when he learned that his child was dying he secured leave of absence and reached home a day after she had passed away. The two remaining children caught the contagion, and for a time were at death's door, but happily they are now convalescing. Mr. and Mrs. Henry have the deepest sympathy of their friends and neighbors.

Brockville, Oct. 12.—As stated by Mr. Wm. A. As soon as I decided that the cause might be from derangement of the kidneys. I procured a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I am glad to say that only a few boxes were taken before I was as well as ever.

WORLD FAMOUS ARTISTS

With the Seidl Orchestra — Brilliant Career of Mme. Rive-King.

One of the most brilliant features of the Seidl concern on Monday night at the Princess Rink will be the performance of Julie Rive-King, the pianiste.

Beginning with her debut in Leipzig, at the age of 16, Mlle. Rive made a most pronounced and brilliant success in the very cradle of classicism; and before an audience at once the most cultured and critical to be found in Europe. Her success, great as it has been, may be said to have no more than kept pace with her steady advancement and artistic development. The remarkable little prodigy, who was at once the wonder and pride of the brilliant coterie of art students assembled at Weimer to draw inspiration and instruction from Liszt, the great master, has ripened into one of the acknowledged artists of the world, and has achieved a reputation that vies with that of her sisters in art, Mesdames Schumann, Essipoff, Menter and Careno. During the past twelve years Mme. Rive-King has performed at over three thousand concerts and recitals, having played with grand orchestra under almost every conductor in the United States. She was the soloist with the Thomas orchestra in his tour across the continent, and has been engaged as soloist of all the principal concerts given by the most distinguished musical societies throughout the Eastern and Western States.

Marie Decca, the "American Jenny Lind," is a worthy companion of the great pianiste.

Seidl's fame is such as to require little notice. Lacking all suspicion of sensationalism in public, Mr. Seidl is in private a quiet, thoughtful student, ever illustrating, even in his leisure, the axiom of Beethoven, that "genius is all work." Few are aware of his extended knowledge of English literature. The Shakespearian drama is a special object of his devotion, on which he has written numerous essays.

The dramatic, indeed, is what appeals most forcibly to his nature in music, as an analysis of his work with the orchestra will readily show.

Local Brevities.

—Mr. Kelly, the county jailer, was somewhat better this morning, after passing a very fair night.

—The friends of Reeve Saunby, of London West, are asking him to stand again. He will probably consent.

—Rev. J. E. Moore, of Dutton, is announced to preach church anniversary sermons at Dorchester Station on Oct. 25.

—Mr. Arthur Gorman and bride have returned from their wedding tour, and taken up their residence on Hyman street.

—D. Collins is erecting a new ice house in London West. Mr. Collins is the first one to take advantage of the exemption scheme.

—Today was "potato day" on the Market Square. Almost everybody had them for sale, and the ruling price was 35 to 40 cents a bag. The attendance was fair, and the demand for all commodities, with the exception of apples, was good.

—Mr. Andrew Denholm, caretaker of the First Presbyterian Church, was knocked down at the corner of Queen's and Park avenues Tuesday evening by a bicyclist, who says he did not see Mr. Denholm on account of a rig. Mr. Denholm was cut in the head and otherwise bruised.

—The "Scotch Twins" arrived home today (Thursday), after a two and a half weeks' evangelistic campaign at Dutton. They leave the last of this week for St. Catharines, where on Sabbath next they commence a series of meetings in the Welland Avenue Methodist Church, of which Rev. G. W. Kerby, B.A., is pastor.

A POOR WOMAN'S HARD LUCK.

This morning the 13-year-old son of a poor widow living in the East End was intrusted with a $5 bill to pay the water rate, although only $2 was necessary to cancel the debt; but the bill was all she had. The boy was on the way to do his errand about 9 o'clock, and when near the corner of Dundas and Clarence streets discovered that he had lost the money. He had been carrying the bill inside the water notice in his hand, and cannot account for its slipping out. If the party who found the money will kindly return it to this office he will not only be rewarded, but will also confer a favor on a poor woman, who can ill afford the loss.

TONIGHT AT THE GRAND.

At the Grand Opera House tonight Mr. Wm. Owen and his excellent company will present as an opening bill to their three nights' engagement of standard drama the great love tragedy of "Romeo and Juliet," to be followed on Friday night with Shakespeare's masterpiece, "Hamlet." A special matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon, at which time will be presented Bulwer Lytton's great play, "The Lady of Lyons," and on Saturday night the well-known English comedy of "David Garrick." Mr. Wm. Owen is an actor of great merit, having been connected with the best companies upon the road, and together with his company—which has been selected with great care from among the best artists in their various lines—has been making a decided hit through Canada and the United States. Special scenery and elegant costumes are used in every play presented, and, together with the careful attention which is paid to every detail, go to make every production of this company artistically perfect, and worthy of the public's best patronage.

Big Buyers-Close Sellers

The merchant who buys in large quantities can always buy at close prices than if he did a hand-to-mouth business—buying a little at a time as he requires. Buying at closer prices enables him to undersell the merchant who is afraid or does not care to venture into big transactions. We have got over that. Experience has taught us that if we buy right goods at right prices, and offer them at right prices, the public is ever to take them off our hands. This season we have made a big purchase of Shoes for ladies, girls and boys. It isn't a venture, because at the prices we feel assured we could sell double the quantity, and we may yet have to repeat our order. The facilities of our Shoe Department, in fact, of our entire store, are immense. To keep everything in full swing and to deserve your patronage we offer the following:

Mr. Wm. Drought shipped two carloads of cattle to Toronto and one carload of lambs to Buffalo today.

Still another, and more to follow! Yesterday afternoon a very quiet marriage took place at the residence of the Baptist minister, when Mr. Thos. After the newly wedded couple had had tea at the Munro House they went on their way rejoicing.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Horse.—If my horse gets out of my yard without my knowledge and is found running at large, am I liable to be fined? Ans.—Yes; but on the facts being shown to the magistrate the minimum fine would only be imposed.

Belmont.—I have a field of corn, and my neighbor has a lot of hens which I can't keep out of it. I have notified them to keep their hens out, but they only laughed at me. Would I be justified in shooting the hens or putting out poisoned wheat on my own ground? Ans.—Yes.

Algoma.—I am assessor and tax collector for a school in an unorganized township. When a person takes pulp wood or logs off Crown land, can I lawfully assess said pulp wood or saw logs? Ans.—It is part of his personal property, which is liable to assessment if over $100 in value. 2. What are the lawful expenses of seizure and sale? Ans.—Those payable to bailiffs under the Division Courts Act.

Cow.—Is it a breach of the bylaw against cattle running at large to tie my cow to a tree on the side of the street and pasture the cow on the street, and can I lawfully do so? Ans.—It is not a breach of the bylaw, because the cow is not running at large; but it may be a breach of the bylaw against injuring trees, and it is an offense under the Ontario Tree Planting Act, punishable by fine. You cannot lawfully pasture your cow on the street. You have no more right to do so than to build a stable on the street.

Geese.—My neighbor has a flock of geese which come into my garden and are a nuisance. It has been going on all the past summer. I have repeatedly asked him to keep them away, and have applied in vain to the pound-keeper to impound them. Last year another party similarly annoyed took out a summons before the local magistrate, who after hearing the case dismissed it. Would it be lawful to set poison for them on my land? Ans.—Upon the facts stated you would be morally and in my opinion legally justified in doing so, but you have a right to impound them and deliver them to the pound-keeper if you can catch them. If there is a local bylaw under which the owner could be fined, you might prosecute him before the magistrate, and if the case was proven and he dismissed it, contrary to the bylaw, you should then represent the matter to the Attorney-General, so that a magistrate might be removed and another appointed who would act according to law.

Vienna.—A man is hired to work on a farm from the first day of April to the last day of November. How many holidays would he be entitled to? What days are they, and is he compelled to do chores on said holidays? Ans.—He must do necessary work or chores on holidays. He is entitled to Sundays and such other holidays as are observed by his master. The Queen's Birthday, Dominion Day and Labor Day are the public holidays during the term mentioned. Their observance is optional, unlike Sunday, on which regular labor must not be performed. A domestic servant—which a hired man is—has no absolute holidays like a mechanic, who does not earn wages on holidays unless he works.

Prospect Hill.—Can a person lawfully take a neighbor's animal that is on the road, put it into his stable, keep it over night, and then notify the owner to take it away? If not, is the person liable to an action in law? Ans.—An animal distrained for unlawfully running at large should be delivered to the pound-keeper. It is only when such animal is trespassing on private property that the owner of such property may lawfully retain the animal in his own possession, and provided he makes no claim for damages. A person distraining and retaining in his possession an animal running at large and not trespassing is liable to an action, but unless substantial damages could be proved, only nominal damages would be recovered, and the judge or court would probably not allow costs.

Ontario.—We have been troubled considerably by a bad neighbor doing injurious things on the sly to me and others. Among other things he tried to employ his hired man to take my horses out of the pasture this summer at night and take them down to the Indian settlement, five miles distant, where I could not find them, and cut their tails off; and on his arrival back home he was to pull his boots off outside and slip upstairs quietly to bed, for which he offered him $5 reward, which the young man refused, stating that he had nothing against me that he should do such a dirty trick. This his hired man told me himself. Can I prosecute him? Ans.—By the criminal code maiming horses by cutting off their tails without the authority of the owner of them is an indictable offence. Taking horses away from the owner's premises without his consent is also an indictable offence. Every one is guilty of an indictible offence who attempts to incite another to commit any indictable offence, and upon being found guilty is liable to one year's imprisonment. You can therefore prosecute him before a magistrate. Consult the county crown attorney.

Rye, per bu	25c to 30c
Barley, per bu	20c to 29c

The wheat market has again taken one of its quick changes, the one today being in favor of sellers. The advance was 2c on all grades, and at the close it looks as if the advance would be permanent. The range was $1 12 to $1 15. Receipts were good, and the demand strong.

Oats were active at 45c to 50c for ordinary and poor quality of new. One load of jet black new sold at 57c. Old oats brought 60c to 65c, according to quality.

Peas, barley and beans quiet; demand steady and values unchanged.

Very little hay came in. The ruling price was $7 50 to $8. No poor quality offered—it would likely sell down to $7.

Straw was slow and unchanged.

Butter in good demand. The supply was moderate, and prices firm. Pounds sold at 14c to 15c in basket lots, and 15c to 16c by the roll.

Eggs found an active demand at 15c for the best by the basket, and 16c by the dozen.

The supply of meat was good, but the market was slow. Beef brought 3 1-2c to 5c, and mutton, 5c to 6c.

Hides and tallow unchanged and steady.

Potatoes offered freely at 35c by the load, and 40c by the bag.

GOLD MINING IDEAS

Have Already Taken Root in This City.

The gold mining idea, which seems destined to occupy a large share of attention throughout Canada soon, has taken root already in this city. The London Gold Mining and Development Company is the first to represent this idea in concrete form here. It held its first shareholders' meeting, or rather subscribers' meeting for the company is now applying for incorporation, in the law office of Mr. G. N. Weekes, last evening, the 14th inst. The chief business was to perfect its provisional organization, and to give some parting instructions to its managing engineer. Dr. W. F. Roome, ex-M.P., is president; William Spittal, secretary-treasurer of the People's Loan Company, is vice-president; A. A. Campbell, managing director of the People's Loan is treasurer; Andrew Greenlees, solicitor of the Canadian Savings and Loan Company, is secretary, and G. N. Weekes is solicittor for the company. Probably the most important office of all, however, is that of managing engineer, and the company has practically assured its success by retaining in that capacity Mr. Joseph Powell, civil engineer, who has had much experience in mining camps and is withal a man of great shrewdness and judgment as well as of eminence in his profession. He was formerly chief engineer of the International Radial Railway, and has been concerned in numerous other works of magnitude. Mr. Powell will now proceed at once to Rossland, B.C., the present center of gold mining excitement, to make some careful investments on the company's behalf before the great boom which everyone expects next spring.

Judging from the names of the first directors, the business of the company is bound to be pushed forward by every honorable means. They are nineteen in number, and are all, with three exceptions, London men, and men whose names should inspire confidence in the undertaking when the company shall wish to sell its stock.

The company does not purpose at first to operate mines, producing and shipping or smelting ore, but rather to buy an interest, wherever possible a controlling interest, in partially developed mining claims, putting the purchase money into further development up to the point of proving the existence of pay ore, then selling out to the foreign or other mining syndicates who will put in plant and operate. Thus the company will have on its hands several or many mining claims on which development work in all stages will be going on, and will be continually buying and selling.

The company is to be incorporated under the laws of Ontario, which provide for the shareholders' absolute exemption from personal liability. The fees for incorporation in this Province are extremely high, but the promoters prefer to pay the high fees and insure such protection to purchasers of stock.

POSTMASTER FARROW'S CASE.

(Special to The Advertiser.)

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—The report that Mr. Farrow, postmaster of Brussels, has been dismissed, is premature. His case was before Mr. Mulock this morning. Mr. Farrow was the Tory member of Parliament who said that the National Policy caused hens to lay larger eggs.

LIFE SAVED.—Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs, and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me any good."

Local Brevities.

—The Tennesseean Jubilee Singers are at the Grigg.

—Mr. Adam Brown, of Hamilton, was in the city today.

—The entire Wm. Owen theatrical company are at the Tecumseh.

—The annual sports will be held at Wolseley Barracks tomorrow (Friday). The public are invited to attend.

—Mr. G. E. Hotson, picture frame dealer, of Dundas street, who has been ill for the past two weeks, is able to be around again.

—A well-traveled gentleman from the United States stated recently that London, with its wide streets and fine trees, was the handsomest inland city on the continent.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Andrus, of Dundas street left today for the Eastern and Southern States. Mr. Andrus has been advised to go away by his physician.

—Local plumbers will wait on the Board of Health committee tomorrow night and explain why they think a sanitary and plumbing inspector for the city should be appointed.

—Yard engine No. 252, of the G.T.R., jumped the rails at the high switch near Wellington street this morning, and tore up the roadbed for about 30 feet. It took about half an hour to jack it on again.

—At a meeting of the Ontario Society of Artists, last night, deep sympathy was expressed with the relatives of the late Mr. James Griffith, of this city, who was a respected member of the society.

—It is noticeable how little fear the horses now seem to have of the electrical street cars. The inauguration of the new system has been attended by fewer casualties than in any other place, owing partly, perhaps, to our wide streets.

EMILY BANCKER'S NEW PLAY.

Emily Bancker appeared at the Grand last evening in her new play, "A Divorce Cure." The house was well filled. Miss Bancker has, in her new play, achieved a success that will further extend her reputation as a brilliant exponent of refined comedy. The stage settings were unique, while the magnificent costumes worn by Miss Bancker were greatly admired. As a curtain raiser, Gilbert's one-act drama, "Comedy and Tragedy," was presented, and Miss Bancker won an enthusiastic recall.

MACE—EDGECOMBE.

The residence of Mr. W. H. Edgecombe, 527 King street, was the scene of a very happy event last night, when his daughter, Miss Della, and Mr. Will Mace were made man and wife. The groom is book-keeper for the Carling Brewing Company, and the bride is a very popular young lady. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of friends, by Rev. M. P. Talling. The bride was charmingly attired, and had as her bridesmaid Miss Kate Kelly. Mr. E. Rechnitzer was groomsman. After the ceremony, which took place at 8 p.m., the guests sat down to an elegant lunch and spent the remainder of the evening very pleasantly. Mr. and Mrs. Mace left on their honeymoon trip about midnight.

DEATH OF JAMES GRAHAM.

About 6 p.m. yesterday Mr. James Graham, of 332 Adelaide street, died at the age of 60 years, after a brief illness, caused directly by gangrean of the foot, but deceased was injured in an accident six years ago and never completely recovered, although able to continue his daily work. He was confined to his bed only one week. On Sunday his brothers, Robert and Thomas, and his daughter, Mrs. Alfred Willis, of Hamilton, arrived in the city and were present when the end came. Mr. Graham came to this city from Brantford twelve years ago, where at one time he was station master, and has been employed here for a number of years as carpenter in the G. T. R. shops. He was a highly respected citizen of retiring disposition—an affectionate husband and loving father. He was an adherent of the Dundas Center Methodist Church. Deceased leaves a widow, three daughters—Mrs. Willis, of Hamilton; Mrs. J. W. Plewes, of this city, and Emma, living at home, and one son, James E.

EDMUND COOPER DEAD.

Yesterday Henry Edmund Cooper died, after four weeks' illness, at his residence, 35 Evergreen avenue, South London. Deceased was born in England 57 years ago, and was the son of a lace manufacturer who conducted an extensive business in Nottingham, England, afterwards going to France with his family. The late Mr. Cooper spent some time in France, coming to this country about 25 years ago. He first settled on a farm in Westminster. He afterwards invested heavily in the oil business, but the venture proved to be unlucky. For some time he was interested in the old London Foundry on Thames street. When the Hobbs glass factory was started here six years ago he entered the traveling department, and in a short time was made foreman. Deceased leaves three sons—Frank, a merchant in Tacoma, Washington Territory; George, of Buffalo; Fred, employed in Architect Matthews' office; and three daughters—Laura, a teacher in the South London kindergarten; Annie, an artist, formerly a teacher in the Art School, and Ella, living at home. Mrs. Cooper died shortly after coming to this country.

LAKE MICHIGAN LEVEL RISING.

Milwaukee Wisconsin.

The rainfall has been nearer normal this summer than for several years. As a result the lake level is rising. In a year it has risen a foot. It is now a foot and a half below datum. This is a matter of considerable importance to Milwaukee and other lake cities, as it will save dredging in the river. While the lake level has been falling of late years, shipbuilders have been launching boats of deeper draught than ever. While in Chicago this week City Engineer Benzenberg learned that the drainage canal would not be in working order for about four years yet, so that Milwaukee has nothing to fear from that source for a while. Mr. Benzenberg says it is possible that the water for the drainage canal may not be taken through the CHicago River after all, as it is found that the flow of water up the river would be so rapid as to make navigation impracticable.

No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly, and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery, etc., in the market.

AN ARMY WEDDING

At the Citadel—Capt. Lowery and Ensign Creighton Married.

Before 500 people at Salvation Army Citadel last night, Miss (Capt.) Ettie Lowery, of Hamilton, formerly of this city, was wedded to Ensign Charles Creighton, of the Chatham corps. Brigadier Margetts tied the knot in the army fashion. Miss (Capt.) Collett and Capt. Smeaton, of Toronto, supported the bride and groom respectively. Before the wedding the bridal party and guests partook of a capital supper, reversing the usual order. The army ceremony is more spectacular than the church ritual. When the bridal party appeared, the assembled soldiers fired a volley. The happy couple received showers of congratulations. After a honeymoon in Nova Scotia, they will return to Chatham.

GOLF.

THE AUGUST AND SEPTEMBER HANDICAPS.

The August and September handicap matches for the club's silver button were played over the links during the latter part of September and the beginning of October, and were taken part in by a large number of players. In both matches there was a tie for first place, with a score of 93—in the first place between Mr. George T. Brown and Mr. H. E. Gates, and in the second, between Mr. H. Cronyn and Mr. J. W. Hamilton. In the tie match, Mr. George T. Brown succeeded in defeating his opponent, and winning the button. The second tie will be played off in a few days. LUCKY DELAY.

The author of "Three Gringos in Venezuela and Central America" speaks vividly of the uncertainties of government in Central America, where one revolution is no sooner over than another is likely to begin. One sight which gave him a clear idea of such ups and downs of fortune was an open grave by the roadside, which had been dug by the man who was to have occupied it.

The man who had been captured, with two comrades, while they were hastening to rejoin their friends of the government party. His companions in misery thought it mattered little, so long as they had to die, in what fashion they were buried. So they scooped out a few feet of earth with the tools their captors gave them, stood up in these hollows, and were shot back into them, dead; but the third man declared he was not going to let his body lie so near the surface, and he accordingly dug carefully to the depth of six feet, smoothing the sides of the grave and sharpening the corners.

While he was thus engaged at the bottom of the hole, he heard yells and shots above him, and when he poked his head up over the edge of the grave, it was to see his own troops running down the mountainside and his enemies disappearing before them.

He is still alive and frequently rides past the hole in the roadside, on his way to the capital.

writes: "For years I could not eat many kinds of food without producing a burning, excruciating pain in my stomach. I took Parmelee's Pills according to directions under the head of 'Dyspepsia or Indigestion.' One box entirely cured me. I can now eat anything I choose without distressing me in the least." These pills do not cause pain or griping, and should be used when a cathartic is required.

'Twixt Love and Duty.

Suddenly she turned and faced the stooping man. "Your scarf take. I will not have it; no, and I will not have anything that I have bought from you. All of the goods you shall receive back, and my money, give it to me. You are no honest hawker! you are a bad man who have come here for a bad woman. You know that of my husband you have been talking—mean, lying! You know that this is his house, and that his true wife am I! Not one more word shall you speak. Lettice, bring here all the goods I bought from this man; poisoned may be the unguents and scents and gloves—of such things I have heard!"

She had spoken with an angry rapidity that for the moment confounded the stranger; but at this point he lifted himself with an insolent air and said: "The goods be bought and paid for, madam; and, in faith, I will not buy them back again."

"In faith, then, I will send for Sir Thomas Swaffham. A magistrate is he, and Capt. Hyde's friend. Not one penny of my money shall you have; for, indeed, your goods I will not wear."

She pointed to the various articles which Lettice had brought back; and, with the shrug of a man who accepts the inevitable, he replaced them in his pack, and then ostentatiously counted back the money Katherine had given him. She examined every coin, and returned a crown. "My piece this is not. It may be false. I will have the one I gave to you. Lettice, bring here water in a bowl; let the silver and gold lay in it until morning," and, turning to the peddler, "your cap take from the floor and go."

"Surely, madam, you be not so cruel as to turn me on the fens, and it a dark night? There be bogs all about, and how the road do lay for the next house I know not."

"The road to my house you could find; well, then, you can find the road back to the woman who sent you here. With my servants you shall not sit; under my roof you shall not stay."

"I have no mind to go."

"See you the mastiff at my feet? I advise you stir him not up, for death is in his jaw. To the gate, and with good haste! In one half-hour the kennels I will have opened. If, then, within my boundaries you are, it is at your life's peril."

She spoke without passion and without hurry or alarm; but there was no mistaking the purpose in her white, resolute face and fearless attitude. And the peddler took in the situation very quickly, for the dog was already watching him with eyes of fiery suspicion; and an occasional deep growl was either a note of warning to his mistress or of defiance to the intruder. With an evil glance at the beautiful, disdainful woman standing over him, the peddler rose and left the house—Katherine and the dog so closely following that the man, stooping under his heavy burden, heard her light footsteps and the mastiff's heavy breathing close at his heels, until he passed the large gates and found himself on the dark fen, with just half an hour to get clear of a precinct he had made so dangerous to himself.

For when he remembered Katherine's face he muttered: "There isn't a mossel o' doubt but what she'll hev the brutes turned loose! Dash it! Women do beat all! But I do hev one bit o' comfort; high-to-instep as she is, she's heving a bad time of it, now, by herself. I do think that, for sure!" and the reflection gave him some gratification as he cautiously felt his steps forward with his strong staff.

CHAPTER XIV.

In some respects the peddler's anticipations were correct. Katherine had "a bad time by herself" that night. For evil has this woeful prerogative—it can wound the good and the innocent, it can make wretched without provocation and without desert. But whatever her suffering it was altogether her own. She made no complaint, and she offered no explanation of her singular conduct. Her household, however, had learned to trust her, and the men and women servants, sitting round the kitchen fire that night, talked over the circumstance, and found its very mystery a greater charm than any possible certainty, however terrible, could have given them.

"She be a stout-hearted one," said the hostler, admiringly. "Tony and I a-watched her and the dog a-driving him through the gates; with his bundle on his back, he was a-shuffling along, a-nigh on his all-fours, and the madam at his heels, with her head up in the air, and her eyes a-shining like candles."

"It would be about the captain, he spoke."

The remark was ventured by Lettice, in a low voice, and the company looked at each other, and nodded confidentially. For the captain was a person of great and mysterious importance in the house. All that was done was in obedience to some order received from him. Katherine quoted him continually, granted every favor in his name, made him the authority for every change necessary. His visits were times of holiday, when discipline was relaxed, and the methodical economy of life at the Manor House changed into festival. And Hyde had precisely that dashing manner, that mixture of frankness and authority, which dependents admire. The one place in the whole world where nobody would have believed wrong of Hyde was in Hyde's own home.

And yet Katherine, in the secrecy of her chamber, felt her heart quake. She had refused to think of the circumstance until after she had made a pretense of eating her supper, and had seen little Joris asleep, and dismissed Lettice, with all her accustomed deliberation and order. But, oh! how gratefully she turned the key of her room! How glad she felt to be alone with the fear and the sorrow that had come to her! For she wanted to face it honestly; and as she stood, with eyes cast down, and hands clasped behind her back, the calm, resolute spirit of her fathers gathered in her heart, and gave an air of sorrowful purpose to her heart and attitude. At that hour she was singularly like Joris Van Heemskirk; and anyone familiar with the Councilor would have known Katherine to be his daughter.

Most women are restless when they are in anxiety. Katherine felt motion to be a mental disturbance. She sat down, and remained still as a carven image, thinking over what had been told her. There had been a time when her husband's constant talk of Lady Suffolk had pained her; and when she had been a little jealous of the apparent familiarity which existed in their relations with each other, Hyde had laughed at her fears, and she had taken a pride in putting his word above all her suspicions. She had seen him receive letters which she knew to be from Lady Suffolk. She had seen him read and destroy them without remark. She was aware that many a love billet from fine ladies followed him to Hyde. But it was in accord with the integrity of her own nature to believe in her husband's faithfulness. She had made one inquiry on the subject, and his assurance at that time she accepted as a final settlement of all doubts. And if she had needed further evidence she had found it in his affectionate and constant regard for her, and in his love for his child and his home.

It was also a part of Katherine's just and upright disposition to make allowance for the life by which her husband was surrounded. She understood that he must often be placed in circumstances of great temptation and suspicion. Hyde had told her that there were necessarily events in his daily experience of which it was better for her to be ignorant. "They belong to it, as my uniform does," he said; "they are a part of its appearance, but they never touch my feelings, and they never do you a moment's wrong, Katherine." This explanation it had been the duty both of love and of wisdom to accept; and she had done so with a faith which asked for no conviction beyond it.

And now she was told that for years he had been the lover of another woman; that her very existence was doubted or denied; that, if it were admitted, it was with a supposition which affected both her own good name and the rights of her child. In these days America was at the ends of the earth. A war with it was imminent. The colonies might be conquered. She knew nothing of international rights, nor what changes such a condition might render possible. Hyde was the probable representative of an ancient noble English family, and its influence was great—if he really wished to annul their marriage, perhaps it was in his power to do so. She knew well how greedy rank was of rank and riches, and she could understand that there might be some powerful family reasons for an alliance which would Lady Suffolk's wealth to the Hyde earldom.

She was no craven, and she faced the position in all its cruel bearings. She asked herself if, even for the sake of her little Joris, she would remain a wife on suffrance, or by the tie of rights which she would have to legally enforce; and then she lifted the candle and passed softly into his room to look at him. Though physically like the large, fair, handsome Van Heemskirks, little Joris had certain tricks of expression, certain movements and attitudes which were the very reflection of his father's—the same smile, the same droop of the hair on the forehead, the same careless toss of the arm upward in sleep. It was the father in the son that answered her at that hour. She slipped down upon her knees by the sleeping boy, and out of the terror of her soul spoke to the Fatherhood in heaven. Nay, but she knelt speechless and motionless, and waited until He spoke to her—spoke to her by the sweet, trustful little lips whose lightest touch was dear to her—for the boy suddenly awoke; he flung his arms around her neck, he laid his face close to hers, and said: "Oh, mother! beautiful mother! I thought my father was here."

A Record-Breaker

Splendid Array of Exhibits in All Departments.

A pleasant surprise awaited the good people of Delaware yesterday morning when, instead of the looked-for customary rain that has been playing havoc with the fall fairs' finances this season, a bright, warm sun smiled upon the efforts of the directors to give the best show ever held in the village. And how the crowd did pour in! From early morning rigs came in from the east and west in unbroken squadrons, until the street around the hotel was completely blocked, the place resembling London market on a busy Saturday before noon had arrived. An Advertiser man was talking to several farmers about the reported decline of the fall exhibitions, when a sturdy yeoman, whose pet hobby is attending these shows, joined the group, and after patiently listening to reasons why the shows should be abolished, said: "Does this crowd look as though the Delaware show was on the decline? Why, men, I tell you, this is the best in our experience. Exhibits are more numerous than for years past, the quality of them shows that farmers take pride in raising stuff to place on exhibition, not for the value of the prize, but for the honor attached to obtaining it. And every time we have good weather, the crowd seems to increase yearly. Do I think our efforts should be centered in making one big fair in London? Why, men, the average farmer has little show in London. How can we expect to successfully compete in our small way with those professionals who cart their exhibits from place to place, winning awards every time? Besides, the average farmer can't afford the expense of a week's residence in London, pretty town though it is. The township fairs are the only places where we farmers can obtain a show, and we are going to make them better every year. They are here to stay, and don't you fail to remember it."

And the interest evidently taken by everybody in the fair seemed to justify the farmer's argument. The departments were well filled, except in a few cases, which were hardly noticeable to the average sightseer. To make things lively the services of the Tecumseh Warrior Band were enlisted, and the brave red men did their level best to furnish a good programme. They were paid by popular subscription.

The success of the show is due to the untiring efforts of W. S. Weld, president; James Bradt, first vice; D. Ryckman, second vice; N. Bodkin, secretary; H. C. Johnstone, treasurer.

NOTES.

Host Jarvis had a very busy day.

The small boy was deprived of one of his chief amusements in other places. He could not steal into the grounds. No admission was charged.

Fakirs of all kinds abounded. They had unlimited license, but farmers are waking up, and comparatively few would part with their money.

The California, hump-backed, double-jointed, silver-plated, hokey-pokey peanut man was there in several places. Their voices are getting a little the worse for wear as the season declines.

Secretary Bodkin, even though a first-year man, can give some of the veterans pointers how to manage a big show.

The slick gent who sells chains with knots in was at his old tricks. The Dorchester riot had no effect on his conscience. He found several victims.

It looked as though the whole county was on the "carousal." What a harvest the managers did reap!

"Washing made graceful."

(After a sketch in New York Truth.)

We want to show it, because this seems to be a woman who uses Pearline (use with-out soap). She's doing no work to speak of, you see—she doesn't look as if she ever had to. She appears to be rinsing out the clothes, after letting them soak in Pearline (use no soap) and water, which is about all the labor required.

The washboard we don't understand unless she's washing it. Women who use Pearline (use with-out soap) don't need a washboard. They don't have that tiresome, wearing rubbing over it. But for cleaning washboards or wood work or paint or anything of the kind, then they want Pearline.

Washing can't be made graceful unless it is made easy. Of all the ways of washing that are perfectly harmless, the easiest, quickest, most economical, is with Pearline. 466

NEARLY KILLED.

Serious Runaway Accident at Port Stanley.

A serious and what may prove a fatal runaway accident occurred at Port Stanley Tuesday. Mr. John McIntosh, of the Mill road, Southwold, was bringing a load of apples to the station at Port Stanley, and as he was descending the heavy grade at the rear of the L. E. and D. R. R. station, the nose iron of the tongue of the wagon gave way, and the horses were unable to prevent the heavy laden wagon from going to the bottom of the hill. Mr. McIntosh remained on top of the wagon until it reached the foot of the hill, and in attempting to make a turn around the corner, the team upset the wagon, and Mr. McIntosh was pinned underneath the heavy load of apple barrels. He was picked up in an unconscious condition, and kind hands carried him to the Franklin House, near by, and summoned medical assistance. Dr. Mothersill did all in his power to relieve the sufferings of the unfortunate man. It is stated that the life of Mr. McIntosh is despaired of at present.

A NEW TEACHER

Added to the High School Staff—A Fifth Form in the Public Schools Suggested.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held last night for the purpose of deciding the appointment of an extra teacher for the lower forms in the Collegiate Institute. The over-crowding of the school necessitates an addition to the staff. It was reported that Miss Kelso, of Ingersoll, who was recommended at the last meeting of the board, would be willing to come at a salary of $700 per year. The board decided to engage her.

In speaking of the appointment, Trustee Hunt referred to the over-crowding of the school, and said that something should be done to lessen the attendance, or in a short time an addition to the building would be necessary. He suggested the establishment of a fifth form in the public schools. This, he said, could be done without extra expense, as the classes could be taught by the principals of the schools along with their other work.

There were present: Trustees Dr. Campbell (chairman), Hunt, Burdick, Greenlees, Wilkins, Gillean, Dr. Wilson, Keenleyside, Dr. Teasdall and Buchner, Secretary McElheran, and Principal Merchant.

EMBLIDGE—CASE.

A pretty wedding took place at noon yesterday in Memorial Church before a large audience. It was the marriage of Mr. George Emblidge, of Buffalo, to Miss Margaret Alice Case, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Richardson. The bride was attired in white organdy muslin, and carried roses. Her maid, Miss Anna Emblidge, sister of the groom, wore white muslin, with a pink under-dress. The groom was supported by Mr. Richard Evans, of the G. T. R. After the marriage ceremony the party drove to the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. John Case, 722 Rectory street, where the wedding breakfast was served. The happy young couple left on the 4:25 train for their home in Buffalo.

BITTEN BY A DOG.

Stanley Evans, a lad who drives for Mr. Jarmain, butcher, was badly bitten by a vicious dog about noon yesterday. He was delivering some meat to N. F. Yeo, on the Wortley road, and proceeded to the rear door, as was his custom. The dog was in the kitchen, and, perceiving the boy, made a spring at him, biting him on the leg just above the knee. The boy made a move to get away, and the animal again bit him on the calf of his leg from behind. Dr. Ferguson attended the injured youth, who was then driven to his home, on the corner of the Wortley road and Euclid avenue. The injuries are not serious, but very painful. There is some talk of having the animal disposed of. The dog has hitherto been inoffensive.

Sewerage Systems.

Mr. Chipman Asked to Report on Ottawa's Proposed Works.

Pointed References to the Experiences in This City.

Mr. Chipman, the engineer who was consulted by the London authorities with regard to the proposed sewerage system, was asked by the Ottawa Journal to inspect and report on a proposed system of sewerage for Ottawa, which will be voted on on Nov. 3. The Ottawa people are asked to adopt what is known as the "combined" system, to carry off storm water, as well as sewage and drainage. Mr. Chipman says he cannot examine and report on the Ottawa plans and system in the short time given—before Oct. 15. He thus refers to the separate system, which does not carry off storm water, and which has been adopted in this city:

"In 1892 I made a report for the city of London upon their proposed trunk sewer system and method of sewage disposal, which report was not acted upon at the time; but last year two expert engineers (one from Boston) were engaged to report upon the matter. After giving full consideration to the reports received, my scheme has been adopted and a bylaw carried for about $150,000 to construct the works. If, at the first, engineers had been engaged to report upon the London scheme who were wedded to the 'combined' system, or who were ignorant of the practical working of the 'separate' system, I am certain that their estimates of cost would have been double those given in my report and the project would have been postponed indefinitely.

"The first town in Canada to adopt the separate system was Brockville, where it was introduced upon my recommendation, after consultation with Col. Waring, the father of the separate system in America, and Engineer Pierson, of Michigan, who has had great experience in the construction of separate systems.

"Brantford, Barrie, Cornwall, Toronto Junction, Berlin, Waterloo, Galt, and many other places in Canada, have since adopted this system, and in the majority of places I have acted as engineer in charge of construction, or at least as designing engineer. When properly designed and constructed, the 'separate' system has many advantages over the 'combined' and can be adopted with advantage by the residential portions of cities.

"The advantages are not all of a financial character, but from a sanitary standpoint as well, the separate system is to be preferred to the combined.

"The larger cities in Canada know practically nothing of the 'separate' system. I am convinced that if it were thoroughly understood by the aldermen and the city officials, that it would be generally adopted in the residential portions."

Mr. Chipman maintains that, as the sewers in the separate system are smaller than in the combined system, the cost is much less, consequently a larger area can be sewered and a greater population served with the same amount of money.

KINGSMILL'S CORSETS

The thing most necessary to a woman's comfort is a well-fitting Corset. There is no firm in London that can give you such satisfaction in this line. But, why can we guarantee a more comfortable Corset than our competitors? Simply because we carry a far larger assortment, and in contrast to them handle only the very best makes. There's less profit in handling a good make of corset, but far more satisfaction, both to our customers and to ourselves. There are a couple of lines which we specially recommend as ones which are particular favorites. These are Thompson's English Gracella Corset at $2, and, in a cheaper grade, Kingsmill's Special at 55c. We are not above copying the good points in all makes, and have had combined what we could learn as regards comfort, durability and economy, in our Specials manufactured solely and expressly for us. The tale is told below:

Kingsmill's Specials.
We won't say that our low-priced "Special" is worth 75c—that's too common—but we used to get 75c for it..... 55c
Leota is another of our "Specials," fitted with watch-spring steels to prevent all breaking. It is also made in gray to our order..... $1.00
At the same price we will introduce to our lady customers our other "Specials," Queen, Princess and Parisian—worth twice the money..... $1.00

Ferris Corset Waists.
We also carry Ladies' and Children's Ferris Corset Waists, in all sizes. Ladies', $1.25 and $1.65; children's from 65c up.
For people of more than ordinary size we carry a large and varied stock of extra large Corsets, ranging from 28 inch to 36 inch waist.
As a final persuader we offer you Thompson's True-Fit Challenge Bone Corset for $1. This is a thoroughly reliable garment.

P. N. Corsets.
These Corsets need no introduction, and hardly more recommendation, even though they sell at the price of an inferior grade. In drab..... $1.00
In the same line, we can give you a Corset in either cream or drab, at $1.25; also in black and white for $1.30 $1.25
The sale runs upward, but in every case the quality outruns the price. At $1.70 we can give you a Corset bound to wear..... $1.70

Thompson's Corsets.
Gracella is the name of one of Thompson's best. We guarantee every one we sell. A large stock, in white, black and drab..... $2.00
In black only—Thompson's "Tailor Made," distinguished by its high bust and shoulder straps. Extra comfortable..... $2.00
Thompson's "Glove-Fitting" Corset, web band, extra long waist—in drab only. Don't judge the quality by the price..... $1.75
