BERLIN HEARS THE CZAR IS TO ABDICATE REGENCY FOR EMPIRE UNTIL HEIR IS OF AGE

Plot Unearthed Amongst the Palace Servants to Assassinate the Emperor.

Japanese Sweeping All Before Them in the Island of Saghalien.

Berlin, July 16.—Something of a sensation has been caused here by the receipts through diplomatic circles of news to the effect that pressure is being brought to bear upon the Czar to compel him to abdicate. The Dowager Empress is declared to be the leader in the movement, as it is felt that should his majesty retire and a regency be established some reforms might be granted that would appease the people.

In fact, it is stated upon the best of authority, that were it not for the personal jealousy in the grand ducal party this plan would have ere this been carried out.

It is believed here that so soon as the peace negotiations are concluded, and possibly before, the Czar will retire and relinquish the reins of government into other hands to administer for his son and heir.

Paris, July 15.—According to an unconfirmed report from St. Petersburg a plot against the life of the Czar and of the Grand Dukes Vladimir and Alexis has been discovered. A number of servants at the Winter and Anitchkoff Palaces have been arrested, including two men servants of the Dowager Empress.

Russians Routed.

Tokio, July 16.—In the latest engagement near Kabafuto, Saghalien, the Japanese losses were seven killed and 60 wounded, some of the latter seriously. The southern half of the island is now practically in the hands of the Japanese, who are moving slowly but surely northward.

The natives profess great delight at the outcome and are apparently very glad to get rid of the Russians. Large delegations call daily at the camp of the Japanese commander and profess loyalty to the Mikado's forces.

Fully 90 per cent of the inhabitants of Korsakoff, which was burned to the ground before being evacuated by the Russians, have returned and have begun to rebuild their homes. In this work they are receiving great aid from the Japanese commander, who has detailed a force of sailors to help the natives rebuild.

It is reported here that the navy department has received advices indicating that a general engagement is likely within 48 hours and that the outcome will likely be the capture of the entire Russian army of defense.

Between Two Fires.

Tokio, July 16, 7 p.m.—Reliable information has been received here that the Russian forces in Northern Korea had been driven gradually northward since last month and hold only two positions south of the Tumen River.

The latest information from the front, however, reports the advance south of a large force from Vladivostock, but it is believed the Russians will halt at Nokiefsk, north of the Tumen and concentrate their forces to make a resolute stand there against the Japanese advance.

The rainy season prevents movements on a large scale.

China and the Conference.

St. Petersburg, July 17. — China's possible role in the Russo-Japanese peace negotiations is attracting more attention. The foreign office intimates China's notification that unless assent previously was given to her to send a representative to the peace conference she would decline to consider the Washington treaty binding, if its provisions affecting Chinese territory were regarded as prejudicial, was sent to all the powers in the form of a circular note.

Russia sent no reply to Pekin, but it may be significant that some papers which occasionally have official inspiration like Prince Ouktomsky's Viedomosti, look with complaisance, if not satisfaction, upon the prospect that China may try to have a voice in the terms of peace.

Their argument is that any action on China's part will be necessary in the direction of restricting Japan's war spirit, and that the other powers, especially the United States, in support of the principle of Chinese territorial integrity, will be compelled to a greater or less extent to support the Chinese claims.

The Shanghai correspondent of the news agency reports that China already has selected Wu Ling Fang, former minister to Washington, to go to the United States to watch the proceedings.

Russia Want Sakhalin.

New York, July 17. — A Moscow dispatch to the Times says: A high official closely connected with the peace negotiations declares that the chances of concluding a treaty have become very remote since the invasion of Sakhalin, which is regarded in high quarters in St. Petersburg as an improper act after Japan consented to negotiate. It is also averred that M. Witte takes no special powers except those of an ordinary plenipotentiary qualifying him to make a treaty. The Czar will have to be consulted on every point.

Will Powers Interfere.

St. Petersburg, July 17. — The Novoe Vremya today prints the following statement of Russia's position, which may be inspired:

"Russia can consent only to such a peace as will not affect the dignity or vital interests of the empire. To act otherwise would be fatal to Russia and would threaten all Europe. Europe no longer believes in Japanese assurances that she will not restrict European interests in the Far East. Even in England and America the voices of moral instigators can be heard in favor of the indirect interference of the powers to moderate Japan's demands. Our plenipotentiaries must remember that they must defend the interests, not only of Russia, but also of the other Caucasian powers, and they will find moral support in Berlin, Paris, Washington, and perhaps, even in London. Our army in the field is much stronger than it was fifteen months ago."

The Hamburger Nachrichten proposes that Europe intimate to Japan that extreme demands will be resisted by Europe in general, especially Germany. This is a valuable statement. We must ascertain the acceptable maximum of our concessions to Japan from the European point of view and act accordingly.

GENERAL TREPOFF,
Governor-General of St. Petersburg, and most ruthless enemy of the Russian Revolutionary Party, who has had a narrow escape from assassination.

NEW BAPTIST ALLIANCE

The Congress at London Approves of World-Wide Union.

London, July 17. — The Baptist congress at today's session approved the constitution of the new Baptist World Alliance, the objects being to promote good fellowship and co-operation among the Baptists of all countries. The unions or associations of Baptist Churches can join. The executive committee will consist of seven members from the United States, seven from Great Britain, two from Canada and seven from the rest of the world.

MAY BE FATAL

Accident at Port Arthur to Londoner Named Hudson.

A Port Arthur dispatch says that a young man named Hudson, belonging to this city, was seriously, if not fatally, injured, there, on Saturday, while hanging temporary doors on the Methodist Church. A number of masons were working above the doors, when a stone slipped, striking Hudson on the head.

The only person by the name of Hudson, who appears in the city directory is Mrs. Hudson, of 233 Hyman street. Mrs. Hudson knows nothing of the young man at Port Arthur, her only son being a resident of Chicago.

SWEDEN'S NORWAY TERMS

Plans for Army Will Be an Ultimatum to Secessionists.

Stockholm, July 17.—Capt. Baumgarten, who has led the fight in Sweden against the dissolution of the Scandinavian bond, says the plans now being prepared for presentation to Norway will have all the force of an ultimatum. Capt. Baumgarten introduced in the Upper House the resolution to appropriate 100,000,000 kroner ($26,800,000), for use in emergency.

"When the Riksdags has decided on the dissolution terms," said the captain, "they will represent the country's irreducible minimum from the standpoint of national honor. Their rejection will give us no alternative except war. The Riksdag is determined that the crisis shall leave no blemish on Sweden's escutcheon.

"With the exception of the Socialists the country solidly upholds this attitude. The King will not oppose it when the steadfastness of the nation's attitude is manifest. Sweden can put 100,000 effectives into the field the week after the declaration of hostilities, and Norway can only put 45,000. Sweden could maintain the same rate of preponderance throughout the war."

America has raised the question of Norway's status and the competency of the Swedish Government to act for the Christiania secessions by asking the Swedish foreign office, for the extradition of Edward Park, wanted for larceny in New York.

TAKASAGO'S CREW DIED LIKE HEROES

Cheered the Mikado as Ship Sank in Mid Ocean.

FIRST SANG NATIONAL ANTHEM

Crew Assembled in Perfect Order, Lighted Pipes and Watched the Struggles of Doomed Craft.

Tokio, July 17. — An officer who was aboard the Japanese cruiser Takasago when she sank, gives the following account of the disaster and the remarkable coolness and bravery of the crew:

"The Takasago, fresh from the Kure dockyard, where she had been undergoing repairs, steamed straight to the mouth of the Pechili Gulf at the beginning of December, and on Dec. 11 she was ordered to wait for a collier at a point off Port Arthur. The collier, however, did not put in an appearance, owing to the rough weather. On the 12th the sea was still high and there were no signs of the collier. During the day the cruiser drifted with the waves, and at night cruised slowly at the entrance of the Pechili Gulf. She was not accompanied by any other vessel. At 9 p.m., half of the crew were allowed to take a recess and the men lay down upon the decks in their uniforms.

Struck Deadly Mine.

"It was an intensely cold night, with a gale and snow. At two minutes past midnight, when at a point twenty-five nautical miles south of Port Arthur, and on the eastern side of the Miatao Islands, she struck a mine on her larboard side, and a terrible explosion occurred, the sea leaping high above the ship. The crew took up their emergency positions. The mine had made a breach about six feet in diameter in the middle of the water line of the left side. The water rushed in with tremendous force and the ship listed to the left. Capt. Ishibashi was on the bridge and Commander Nakayama beside him.

"The crew worked hard to stop the inrush of the water, but in vain. In order to right the vessel, coal and other heavy articles on the left side were thrown overboard, but the ship continued to list more heavily. There was no vessel in sight, so that the fate of the ship, as well as that of the crew, seemed sealed.

Await Death in Darkness.

"Fifteen minutes after striking the mine all the electric lights on board were suddenly extinguished and everything was enveloped in darkness, with the exception of a light on the bridge and the glare of the rockets telling of the disaster. Owing to the list, the boats on the starboard side could not be launched, with the exception of one. Of those on the larboard side a steam launch was destroyed and only a cutter and one other boat were available.

"At 12:42 a.m. the vessel communicated the disaster to our squadron by means of wireless telegraph, and the crew had nothing to do but to await the sinking of the vessel.

"Captain Ishibashi on the fore bridge addressed the crew, 500 in number, who had assembled on the upper deck, saying that every one on board should equip himself with a life belt. He continued: 'No one must leave the ship until she sinks. We will together share the fate of the vessel.' After this speech there was solemn silence. At 1 a.m. the crew sang the National Anthem, and at the instance of Captain Ishibashi, rousing banzais were shouted for the Emperor, the empire and the navy. Then the crew sang a naval song styled 'Gallant Sailors.' On the conclusion of this song the crew were permitted to smoke.

"Owing to the list the captain and others assembled on the bridges, and in the masts and netting, and waited for the hour of sinking. The waves rose higher and the snow fell thicker. At 1:10 a.m. the vessel suddenly increased her list and, after once dipping her masts into the waves, raised herself with a convulsive shudder and then plunged to the bottom. Capt. Ishibashi and the crew were thrown into the sea.

"The three boats which had been lowered from the ship were fortunately afloat, with their regulation crews on board. They did their utmost to rescue the officers and men, but the fate of the boats themselves seemed at times precarious. A few minutes later, however, a searchlight was observed in a southeasterly direction. The light approached and disclosed to view the warship Otowa, which had come to the rescue. The latter stopped at a distance of 300 meters from the scene of the disaster, illumined the scene with all her searchlights and dispatched three boats to the rescue. At sight of the Otowa the men, who had resigned themselves to death, raised cries for help, thus increasing the sadness of the scene.

"Despite the efforts of the boats, only 123 persons, including Capt. Ishibashi, were saved, more than 360 being lost, including Commander Nakayama. A number of men died from exposure after being picked up."

1. That it is expedient to provide that every member of the Privy Council of Canada, who has served as a cabinet minister and head of a department for the full period of consecutive years, shall upon his retirement from the cabinet be entitled to receive out of the consolidated revenue fund of Canadian Equity a sum equal to one-half the salary attached to his office or position at the time of his retirement.

2. If any person receiving an annuity hereunder becomes entitled to any salary in respect to any public office under the Government of Canada, or to the additional sessional allowance provided for the leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, such salary or allowance shall be reduced by the amount of such annuity.

BOMB THROWN AT GENERAL TREPOFF

Governor of St. Petersburg Has Narrow Escape—Driver and Horses Killed.

St. Petersburg, July 17.—The terrorists are again at work in the city, with the result that the police precautions have been redoubled and guards posted about all of the prominent buildings. Two bomb factories have been unearthed within the last twelve hours, and a bold attempt to end the life of Governor-General Trepoff failed by the narrowest of margins.

The Governor-General had just left his carriage and entered his office, when some one unknown threw a bomb, which exploded on top of the coupe, shattering the vehicle and killing the driver and horses.

The bomb-thrower escaped in the confusion, but left behind some papers through which it is hoped that his arrest will be accomplished.

The larger of the bomb factories discovered was near the department of railways and in it were concealed some 20 completed bombs and 50 pounds of dynamite. There were also thousands of copies of a proclamation summoning all "loyal Russians to commemorate on July 22 the bloodbath given them on Jan. 20 by blowing up all soldiers and barracks."

JAGUAR TIES UP ROAD

Escapes From Car and Blocks the Way Through Tunnel.

Colorado Springs, Col., July 17. — More than 2,000 people and four passenger trains on the Colorado Midland Railroad have been held at Tunnel No. 6, two miles west of Manitou, by a fierce South American jaguar. Before he was captured the animal clawed Joseph Bennett, of this city, cutting a severe gash across the right leg. Miss Belmont, a passenger on one of the trains, became frightened, and in endeavoring to scale a high cliff, fell a distance of twenty feet, breaking her left leg.

The jaguar and a polar bear occupied two compartments in a large cage that was loaded upon a flat car of the train belonging to a circus. The cage was too high to enter the mouth of the tunnel, and as the cage struck the roof of the tunnel it was torn off and the jaguar escaped. In the efforts to drive it into another cage, Bennett received his injuries. The animal was finally placed in a new cage.

Yon, a Korean Methodist minister, to Washington, to see President Roosevelt, for the purpose of asking that efforts be made by the United States in the forthcoming peace negotiations to bring about an agreement by which the Korean nation will become independent within twenty years, of it shows fitness for self-government. Rev. Mr. Yon will solicit the good offices of President Roosevelt to ask Japan to grant independence, as the United States did to Cuba after the Spanish-American war.

HOLIDAY FOR MEN; DO NOT LIKE IT

Ninety Molders Laid Off by McClary Company Causes Friction—Firm's Views.

Ninety molders of the McClary works are idle today. They have been given two weeks' holidays by Superintendent King.

Saturday the men had a picnic at Port Stanley. It appears that they had prepared their plans without consulting the superintendent, and Friday night a notice was posted calling upon them to report for work in the morning.

The men resented this, and took no notice of it. They held their picnic, and the report says they had a fine time.

Today they reported as usual, but they were told by the superintendent that they could take a two weeks' holiday.

"We won't stand for this," one of the men told The Advertiser. "Work is too plentiful. We acted fairly by the firm, but the superintendent does not appear to think so. I intend to leave for Detroit at once. I know of half a dozen who will follow suit."

The same molder also said that the stove-mounters were thinking of quit-

A WRIT FOR $10,000 DAMAGES ISSUED AGAINST STREET RAILWAY

Action Commenced by the Parents of Pte. Wood, Victim of Trolley Collision.

A writ claiming $10,000 damages was issued this morning by Faulds & Campbell against the London Street Railway Company, on behalf of the parents of Harry M. Wood, the Wolseley Barracks private who met his death in the street car collision on Stanley street a week ago Friday evening. Deceased parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Wood, of Moore Township, Lambton County, in finding whom some difficulty was encountered after the accident. Mr. Moore is an employe of the Northern Navigation Company, whose headquarters are in Sarnia, and he works on the lake boats.

Since it is not permissible to issue writs during the long vacation at the court house, in anticipation of the fall courts, the case, if it comes into the courts, will not be tried until the January assizes. Plaintiffs feel that their son's death is attributable to negligence on the part of the company or its servants.

Several of those who were injured in the collision have also put their cases in the hands of their solicitors. Arthur Johnston, of 19 Cathcart street, South London, who received several cuts over the eyes, has instructed Faulds & Campbell to take action. Mr. Johnston, who is an employe of the Molsons Bank, claims that blood-poisoning has set in as a result of the wounds, causing erysipelas.

Others who received minor injuries are seeking compensation, but it is expected that most of these cases will be settled out of court.

No Inducements Offered By the Warren Company

Ratepayers Say They Were Not to Get Free Frontages for Signing for Bitulithic.

Evidence in the case of the Richmond street ratepayers, who are objecting to the bitulithic pavement, was heard at the court house this morning in the rooms of the master-in-chancery, Mr. Cowan being busy, both parties to the case agreed to accept the rulings of Mr. Coo, the official court stenographer, and he administered the oath. He was not called upon for a ruling all day, however, Mr. J. C. Judd represented the plaintiffs, McIntyre and Pratt, and Mr. T. G. Meredith represented the city of London.

When an adjournment was made at 12:40, a large number of witnesses had been examined, but nothing very startling was brought out, though Mr. Judd repeatedly asked the witnesses if they had been offered or had received any inducements to sign for bitulithic.

Rather Absent-Minded.

The evidence was for the most part given in a straightforward manner, though Mr. Fallahe, the Warren agent, grew very absent-minded at times. The most important piece of information elicited was from ex.-Ald. H. M. Douglass, who swore that he understood from Fallahe that the pavement, including the curb and gutter, would not exceed in cost $2 20 per yard. Mr. Douglass also admitted having secured the names of probably fifteen or twenty people to the bitulithic petition on this understanding. This point is important from the fact that an attempt will now be made to show that the people were deceived when they signed the petition.

The evidence, when completed, will be sent to Toronto, where the case will be decided.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the examination continued. It is expected that Mr. Walter Powell will be examined as to whether he held a written power of attorney when he subscribed his sister-in-law's name to the petition. Mr. Thomas Morkin admitted today that his son had signed his name for him to the petition, and it is not improbable that counsel for the plaintiffs will ask the courts to void the petition on this count also.

Mr. Fallahe on the Rack.

Mr. John Fallahe, the Warren agent, was the first witness examined by Mr. Judd. He said he was a bookkeeper and promoter for the Warren Paving Company. He has been two years in London this December. He had taken a hand in the promotion of the Richmond street pavements. Before he had circulated a petition for a bitulithic pavement on the street he had interviewed people in regard to removing their names from the asphalt petition which had been circulated on the street. He had absolutely no recollection of the persons he interviewed.

"They have gone completely from your mind?" asked Mr. Judd.

"Yes," said Mr. Fallahe.

He had employed no one in any capacity, whatever, to secure names taken from the petition. No one but himself was acting in this regard for the Warren Company. He didn't remember whether he had induced anybody to sign a petition removing their names from the asphalt petition. He knew of no persons who had been hired to have names taken from the asphalt petition. He had asked people to remove their names because he had heard they did not want asphalt.

The Bitulithic Petition.

The next step he took was to get up a bitulithic petition. He had told the people that the bitulithic roadway

The Rev. Duff-Gordon Has Support of Church

Hudson, Mich., July 16.—Rev. M. O. Fitzmaurice Duff-Gordon occupied the pulpit at the Episcopal Church at both afternoon and evening services today, with the net result that his congregations stands behind him unanimously, and he has been earnestly requested not to resign his pastorate here.

At the morning service few people, aside from the regular congregation were present, but the evening service the church was crowded. The much-abused pastor referred to the first Bishop of Michigan, Samuel McCloskey, declaring that he was deposed without a hearing because of newspaper scandal, and likened his persecution to that of Christ.

"I glory in my opposition!" cried the Rev. Maurice Fitzmaurice Duff-Gordon.

Testimonials of good character were read from a number of bishops, and from the mayor of Glencoe, Can., and other citizens of that place. He stated that the first trouble arose from the words of a drunken man, who has since made a retraction, linking his name with that of his housekeeper.

At the conclusion of the evening service a vote was taken by the church and the result was unanimous in asking the pastor to remain. The Ladies' Guild met and unanimously pledged its support if Mr. Duff-Gordon would remain.

The pastor stated that he would hand in a conditional resignation, the understanding being that he remain until he secures another church.

MET DEATH SINGING.

Tokio, July 17.—The story of the loss of the Japanese cruiser Takasago, in December last, only published since the destruction of Rojestvensky's fleet, is a military classic.

After the Takasago struck a mine and began to sink, the crew assembled in perfec order on the upper deck, there to await the battle with stormy sea and death.

Captain Ishibashi ordered every man to use a life belt and directed that no one jump overboard until the ship actually sank.

The crew then joined in singing the National Anthem, cheering the Emperor and lastly they sang "Gallant Sailors," their 500 voices ringing out over the storm.

After that, as a relaxation, the men were allowed to smoke and thus they went calmly to their deaths.

Of 500 men who went down with the Takasago, only 133 were rescued.

CAPTAIN MURPHY WINS FIRST PLACE

Last Match of the Military Rifle League Shot Saturday.

The fourth and last match under the auspices of the Military Rifle League was shot off by the two teams from the Seventh Regiment at the cove ranges on Saturday. The weather conditions were favorable and good scores were made, the wind, in fact, remaining almost exactly the same throughout the whole afternoon.

The special prize and marksman's certificate, donated by the league for each competitor who succeeds in making an average of 94 or over during the whole contest, were won by the following four: Capt. Murphy, who leads with a total of 380 points, or an average of 95; Pte. Allan, who holds second place with 377 of a total; and Capts. McCrimmon and Taylor, who together hold third place with the score of 376 each.

The contest between Pte. Allan and Capt. Murphy for first place, which has been extremely interesting throughout, was in doubt until the very finish. On Saturday Pte. Allan was three points ahead of Mr. Murphy when the two finished with the 500 yards range. At 600 yards, however, the private lost his luck, making seven inners in succession without touching the "bull." On the other hand, Mr. Murphy began with an inner and followed with six bullseyes, his steady nerve carrying him through his usual success in close finishes. Mr. Murphy's work of Saturday was extremely creditable.

THE SCORES:

The best score of the day, namely, 98, was made by Pte. Jeffery. Capt. Taylor came next with 97. Major Hayes came third with 96, and Color-Sergt. Hayes and Capt. Murphy tied for the fourth place with the score of 95.

No. 1 team made the excellent average of 92.6 points per man per match in the whole contest, while the other team's average was 74.25. The total scores were:

No. 1 Team—
First match	902
Second match	929
Third match	918
Fourth match	937
Total	3,686
No. 2 Team—
First match	753
Second match	745
Third match	716
Fourth match	771
Total	2,985

Saturday's scores were:

No. 1 Team—
Major Hayes	86
Capt. McCrimmon	92
Capt. Murphy	95
Capt. Taylor	97
Sergt. Fisher	89
Sergt. Galbraith	90
Sergt. Robson	92

Corp. Butler	81
Sergt.-Major Milligan	89
Sergt. McDonnell	87
Capt. Little	70
Pte. Harding	69
Corp. Houghton	66
Total	771

The certificates offered by the league for those making an average of 90 or over go to the following eight members of the regiment, their aggregate scores for the four matches being given:

Pte. Jeffery	371
Major Hayes	369
Color-Sergt. Hayes	361
Sergt. Robson	360
Sergt. Galbraith	360
Sergt. Fisher	355
Sergt. McDonnell	353
Sergt. Erskine	332

The regular regimental spoon shoot, which is providing some good material for future league teams, resulted on Saturday as follows: Capt. Taylor, first in class A with 98; Sergt.-Major Milligan, first in class B with 89; and Pte. Postal, first in class C, with 53.

WILL BEAUTIFY NIAGARA'S BANKS

Magnificent Boulevard From Queenstown to Falls Likely To Be Built.

Niagara Falls, July 17. — With the object of eventually making a continuous boulevard from Lake Ontario to Lake Erie along the banks of the Niagara River, the Queen Victoria Park commissioners, accompanied by Hon. Frank Cochrane, paid a visit to this locality Saturday.

J. W. Langmuir and P. W. Ellis, two of the commissioners, and Mr. Cochrane were joined by James Wilson, the park superintendent; L. Clarke Raymond, the recently-appointed commissioner; Evan Fraser, M. L. A. for Welland, and J. C. Rothery, superintendent of the International Railway.

A private car, the Ondrara, brought them to Queen Victoria Park. Here they waited till 3 o'clock for Hon. Adam Beck, when the party proceeded to Chippewa, where carriages were in waiting to convey them to Fort Erie. The tour of inspection occupied the day till 6 o'clock.

At old Niagara, the Minister of Lands and Mines and the park commissioners inspected the military camp ground, which the Dominion Government will abandon.

The area of this common is about 400 acres, and it is a part of the crown domain taken over by the Dominion Government for military purposes.

It has been a military camp ground since 1760, and it is thought it will revert to the Province of Ontario. Fort Mississaga stands sentinel on the lake front. The rifle butts are here. Fort George is further up the river, and fronts the camp ground proper.

If the province takes over this property for park purposes the shore must be protected, but it is expected enough land can be sold to leave a splendid strip to be improved and the revenue from the sales would go a long way towards paying for the improvements and maintaining the strip.

Adjoining the parade ground are 80 acres, known as Paradise Grove, which are under lease to the Canada Southern Railway. The railway maintains this property as a picnic grounds. It is thickly wooded and desirable as park property.

The river drive to Queenston is included in the proposed park. The township of Niagara owns the drive, but the slope belongs to the province. For miles the road skirts the edge, and many Americans have erected handsome residences along the drive.

If the road could be taken over, the Province under the proposed system would rebuild it and convert it into a boulevard. The extension of the Niagara Falls and Queenston Electric Railway to Niagara is one of the probabilities of the future.

At Queenston Heights the Province owns about 100 acres of the finest park land in Ontario. At Brock's monument a magnificent view of the river stretch to Lake Ontario is obtained.

The commissioners propose to acquire additional property, giving them the whole of the slope, a portion of which, directly below the monument, is known as the Jennings property.

The road through the park on the heights is owned by the Dominion Government, which neglects to keep it up, and negotiations will be opened to have the road transferred to the Province.

The trolley right-of-way all the way to the falls is owned by the Province, the company having a franchise for 60 years, with the privilege of renewing for two periods of 20 years each.

There is ample room on each side of the track for the fruition of the landscape architect's ideas, and before many years the intention is to have this natural asset improved on systematic lines.

After passing the two cantilever bridges at Bridge street, the run to Queen Victoria Park is a pleasant one, splendid homes lining one side of the drive.

The park itself is torn up by the contractors, who are installing the plants of the three electrical development companies, but in two or three years the natural beauty of the place will be restored, with a few things added.

Beyond Chippewa, there is a Government road all the way to Fort Erie. It was taken over by the Province two years ago, and something is being done every year to beautify it.

The road is 66 feet wide, and hugs the water all the way. Where the river joins Lake Erie the Government has possessed itself of a park, which, too, will be improved.

Mr. Cochrane expressed himself as favoring the adoption of a general scheme of improvement, so as to make the Canadian side of the river a greater attraction than ever for visitors from the United States.

One of the results of the carrying out of the scheme will be the influx of American millionaires, who will build mansions along the boulevard, and thus contribute to the district's welfare. There are many such here now.

One of them, Larkin, a soap manufacturer, has bought several farms between Queenston and Niagara, and has spent thousands of dollars improving them. His barns are the finest in the Province, it is asserted.

Where will the money come from? When the three electrical companies reach the limit of development there will be a revenue to the Province of approximately a quarter of a million dollars a year.

PEARY OFF FOR THE POLE

Arctic Explorer Sails for North in Another Attempt.

New York, July 17.—The Roosevelt, in which Captain Robert E. Peary hopes to reach the North Pole, started on her long voyage at 3:10 p.m. yesterday.

Captain Peary and a party of guests were on board at the start and remained with the ship on her trip down the bay, but they left her at the Narrows, returning to the city on a tug.

Captain Peary started by rail for Sydney, C. B., where he will join the ship.

A launch, bearing a party of excursionists, attempted to run close alongside of the Roosevelt after she was under way, and nearly collided with her.

The Roosevelt was saluted by many steam and sailing craft on her way to sea. She passed out the Narrows at 4:04 p.m.

DISMAL HIDING-PLACE OF CZAR

Emperor of All the Russias Cowers at Peterhof to Escape the Assassin.

Peterhof, July 16.—Nicholas the Second is here at Peterhof, on the Gulf of Finland. For the ornamental purposes for which in other countries emperors exist, he might just as well be in the Desert of Gobi.

An angular, ugly tower, painted muddy-yellow, topped by an eagle-crowned flagstaff, is all that can be seen of his abode. All that can be seen of his court is an unromantic individual in shirt-sleeves brushing his hair before a looking-glass in the tower window. It needs keen eyes and a field glass to see even these. The hundred eyes of Argus could see no more.

The rest is monastic seclusion. Impenetrable mystery—and tireless gossip. Persons who hire boats and row into the brown waters of Cronstadt Bay catch, I am told, a brief glimpse of the palace facade. But at present, anyone approaching the little harbor where boats are kept is promptly repulsed by a naval sentry.

A forest of birches, poplars, and pines curtains the hiding-place of the imperiled Czar. Almost encircling Alexandreika Park, and ending only on the muddy, reed-carpeted shore, is a brick fence painted white and picked out with a curious combination of orange and salmon pink.

There are enough sentries to slay all the bomb-throwers in Russia, and as if sentries were not enough, the avenue outside is patrolled with swarthy Circassians in blue caftans and flourishing naked swords.

The shore at Peterhof is muddy, stone-strewn, and and overgrown with reeds. To bathe you must go several hundred yards from the shore. Straight in front of the palace running half a mile into the sea, is a flimsy wooden pier; and on this pier—one at the end and one half-way along—are two blue-roofed bathing boxes used by the Czar's immediate family. From the shore the whole process can be seen; and Peterhof takes advantage of the occasion by crowding to the water's edge, and exclaiming excitedly when the little grand duchesses trot along the pier to the nearest bathing-box.

Last summer the Autocrat of All the Russias bathed every day, but he has not yet been in the sea this year.

Peterhof possesses no beach; but two months ago an ingenious courtier suggested that one might be artificially created. The coast of Finland is famous for its fine yellow sand. So far from Terioki, across the gulf, came 20 giant barges, manned by fair-haired Finns singing their national chanties, charged with the epic task of turning what is practically the shore of a lake into the shore of a sea. But the mud-bank rebelled against being a beach, and the first storm washed the sand away.

A ridiculous story got about that the Finns engaged in this vain labor had plotted to make a tunnel under Alexandreika and blow it, with its muddy-yellow tower and eagle-topper flagstaff, into the sky. So the Finns were treated as potential conspirators, being not only photographed and numbered, but watched by palace policemen all day, and forbidden to leave the shore until their barges were discharged.

A ruler whose navy has just been swept into the ewigkeit must find Peterhof somewhat trying. Not only does the town owe its name and existence to the father of the Russian fleet, but naval associations obtrude at every step. Mermaids, Neptunes, tridents, and prows of ships obscure all other decorative ideas in the palaces and gardens. The Grand Palace contains numberless effigies of the Great Peter, one showing him standing majestic and menacing on a shipwrecked vessel.

In the Alexandreika Park, near a path which the Czar must tread on his morning walk, stands a magnificent model of an imaginary naval battle, known as the Naval Triumph. It was made by an ingenious, one-legged sailor shortly before Rojestvensky's Armada left Libau. But of the great Baltic fleet which spent its winters in sight of Peterhof Palace nothing is visible save a single torpedo boat, though the Czar's yach, Standart, is moored opposite the Grand Palace. The malicious assert in order to be ready for the flight of autocracy when the day of national judgment comes.

Since he arrived at Peterhof, Nicholas II. has not once been outside the gate with its green spikes. But he seems to have full confidence that his children are under no peril. Twice last week they appeared in the so-called lower gardens, clapping their hands as the gilded statues began to spout columns of water. A little, aged lady in gray, and the seven-foot veteran of Zimin, were their only protectors.

Being debarred the privilege of seeing its emperor, Peterhof contents itself with superstitious gossip about him. Today everyone was excitedly discussing the latest "sign from heaven." On Wednesday night, it is declared, a mysterious drawing appeared on the wall beside the ikonostasis in the palace chapel. It was shaped like an ikon, and appeared to represent St. Nicholas, the "miracle-worker." On Thursday morning several score persons, obtaining tickets from the palace chancellery, invaded the church, and one of these declares positively that a drawing — not made by human hand—was plainly visible, and that it disappeared the same night. I searched for traces of it, but found only the finger marks left by the mystery hunters.

The explanation was probably invented to fit the occasion. During his last visit to the Czar, Father John, whose glittering church dome at Cronstadt is visible from Peterhof, declared that a sign would come from heaven when Russia's troubles were nearing an end. Four days after Nicholas II. arrived at Peterhof, the face of his name saint, "the miracle-worker," made a transient appearance in the chapel. Hence, says the superstitious, Russia will have peace within and without.

The precautions taken for the Czar's safety are wonderful. Workingmen whose antecedents are unknown are not allowed to settle either in Old or New Peterhof, the names of all prospective lodgers or boarders must first be submitted to the police. For nearly a quarter of a mile along the west wall of the park, trees and shrubs have been cut down in order to give the sentries a clear line of vision, and thus make it impossible for intruders to climb the wall.

Between the palace and the vast red brick barracks to the northwest, telephone wires have been set up. Every day stories are circulated as to innocent interlopers being shot by grenadiers or sabred by Cossacks; and I was even informed that a boating party from Oranienbaum was fired on by a torpedo destroyer for approaching to within a mile of the palace at night. Altogether the town is in a nervous state, the intensity of which may be gauged from the fact that the working class population fondly imagine that a Japanese flotilla may steal past Cronstadt and shell the palace which the great Peter built as a pledge of his new-gained mastery over the seas.

For residence Peterhof is not as pleasant as Tsarskoe-Selo. It is low, marshy and humid. As a seaside resort, it is a humbug, having neither sand nor rocks, nor salt water. There is no seafaring population and there are no water sports.

IRISH REDISTRIBUTION

Scheme Is Called a Breach of the Act of Union.

London, July 16.—The Government's proposal regarding the redistribution of parliamentary seats, while naturally received with the greatest bitterness by the Irish party and the Opposition, is coming in for considerable criticism from its own party. The scheme keeps the membership of the House of Commons at 670. The standard unit of population in relation to each representative is now about 54,000, with a proviso that no constituency under 15,000 shall return a member. The new scheme raises the minimum to 18,500 and the standard unit to 65,000. As a result, England will gain seventeen seats, Wales one and Scotland four, while Ireland will lose the entire 22.

The Irish hostility to the new proposals does not need explanation. The point most widely urged is that it is a breach of the act of union in depriving Ireland of any of the hundred members provided for her in that document. The Liberals condemn the scheme as a piece of gerrymandering, which makes victims of the counties in order to preserve the petty boroughs which are so useful to the Conservative party. Conservative criticism demands a wider measure, and regrets are expressed that the scheme leaves a number of small corrupt boroughs untouched.

A MOTHER'S INSTINCT

Reclaims Incubator Babe Born at the St. Louis Fair.

Rock Island, Ill., July 17. — It is a wise mother that knows her own child, and Mrs. Charlotte Bleakley, of Lawrence, Kan., is that kind of a mother. It took a year for Mrs. Bleakley to identify her offspring. Mrs. Bleakley became a mother at the St. Louis Fair. The baby was taken by the incubator concession people and placed in an incubator. A dozen other infants were in the machines at the time. Several died.

When Mrs. Bleakley recovered and inquired about her infant she was told it was dead. The mother did not believe her child, a boy, was dead. She looked all the incubator babes over, and saw one which she believed was her child. Her nurse had disappeared and she could find no proof to support her claim.

After a six months' stay at home, she began an investigation. The nurse was found, the baby traced to a certain incubator at the fair, where it thrived. J. G. Barclay and wife, of Moline, Ind., came along, saw the child, and obtained papers of adoption from the incubator people. Mrs. Bleakley appeared in court today with her proofs and a writ of habeas corpus, and was given possession of her child.

"We did not think that Mrs. Bleakley was the child's mother," said Mr. Barclay, "but we are now satisfied that

GERMAN OFFICER BEAT THE LION

Wrestler Considered Invincible Lost a Match to One of Kaiser's Men.

New York, July 14.—George Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, who has created such a furore in the wrestling world since his entry to the Graeco-Roman game, and who has thrown the best and strongest wrestlers who have been pitted against him in England and America, is not invincible, contrary to the general public opinion, as expressed after his easy victory over Tom Jenkins, the American champion.

In the fall of 1901, shortly after Hackenschmidt's first appearance, he went to Berlin and challenged all comers to meet him in competition on the mat at the Graeco-Roman style. Among the first to reply to this challenge, by coming over the ropes, was a young German officer, Baron Hans von Lieber, lieutenant in the Gardes des Corps, a regiment of the army stationed at Pottsdam, near Berlin, where the imperial palace is located. Von Lieber, who is a perfect giant of about 230 pounds in weight, outweighed Hackenschmidt by nearly 20 pounds, had little difficulty in disposing of the man whose name is now a terror to English and American wrestlers. Von Lieber is a wonder at the game, and would undoubtedly win the highest honors should he devote his time to it. However, as a German officer and a noble, his military and social connections are such as to prevent him from competing as a professional athlete.

Von Lieber is not the only European wrestler who has given Hackenschmidt trouble. Peterson, the Danish champion, a giant, weighing 220 pounds, wrestled a draw with the "Russian Lion" in 1900, the year when the latter entered upon his career as a wrestler. For two hours the two men tossed and tumbled over the mat, striving for the hold which would wrest the victory from him. At the end of that time neither had scored a fall and neither would give up. The referee was compelled to call it a draw and stop the match. The two have never met since, which is perhaps wise for Hackenschmidt, who may well fear losing his world's championship title at the hands of such a man.

Hackenschmidt, notwithstanding his title of "Russian Lion," is a German by birth, having been born in Koenigsberg, in Pomeranian Germany. The Pomeranians are noted as practically the only one of the Teutonic nations which retains, in its entire purity, the Teutonic strain of blood. They are giants in stature, averaging 5 feet 8 inches in height and ranging up to over 6 feet. They are double-jointed, have large-boned frames, and their feet are seldom under 9 in size. Bismarck, the great German dictator, who was a giant of 6 feet in height, was a Pomeranian, as is also Eugene Sandow, the world's champion strong man. In this section of the country wrestlers are very numerous. The gigantic stature of the men, the compulsory military and physical training in the turner schools and gymnasiums and the comparatively simple lives led by them, fit them for this strenuous game as perhaps no other training would. They are a nation of wrestlers, and the average man among them could meet the best men of other nations and made a good showing against them.

Among this German contingent there are also numbers of wrestlers of other nationalities who have made Germany their home and are regarded as Germans. Among those is Petroff, a wrestler from Georgian Province

PASSED SECOND READING

Autonomy Bill Forwarded Another Stage by 33 to 17.

Ottawa, July 17.—Shortly before 6 o'clock Saturday the Senate took a vote on the second reading of the Alberta bill. The vote stood 33 for and 17 against. Senators Poirer and Sullivan (Kingston) voted with the Government. The Senate will take up the bill in committee on Monday.

The arrangement was that the division should take place Friday night, on condition that certain members who had expressed a desire to speak should forego that privilege. This arrangement was broken and the lid of senatorial eloquence came off.

Senator Perley resumed the debate in the morning. He supported the six months' hoist. Senator Power also spoke, and, comparing the educational clauses, said the essential difference was the inspection, qualification of teachers and giving of religious instruction in public schools.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell moved an amendment for a three months' hoist of the Alberta bill and the division showed:

Yeas—Bernier, Belduc, Debouchervile, Bowell, Dobson, Ferguson, Landry, McDonald (P. E. I.), McKeown, Macdonald (Cape Breton), McKay, McLaren, McMillan, Merner, Miller, Montplaisir—17.

Nays—Beique, Black, Casgrain, Delanaudiere, Church, Cloran, Coffey, Cox, Dandurand, Davis, Domville, Edwards, Ellis, Fiset, Frost, Godbout, Kerr, Cobourg, McGregor, McHugh, McMullen, Mitchell, Poirier, Robertson, Ross, Ross, Scott, Sullivan, Templeman, Thompson, Gibson, Yeo, Young—33.

The second reading was carried on the same division reversed.

ROOF FELL IN DURING THE MASS

Scores Killed and Many Injured in Disaster at Fermo, Italy.

Fermo, Italy, July 16.—The roof of the chapel of the Women's Hospital fell in today during the celebration of mass, killing sixteen women and fifty children, and injuring thirty-two.

The injured have been taken from the ruins.

DIPLOMACY IN THE VESTIBULE

Surprised by Man Who Hastily Decided to Take the Next Car.

Toronto, July 15.—The value of diplomacy and its appearance in an unexpected place were the salient features of another of those "get-off-the-front-vestibule" car blockades that have added incident to the lives of the city's workers. As a street car blockade it was a distinct success, for the squabble only lasted four or five minutes. A burly fellow, with smudgy face and toil-marked hands, boarded a crowded car and stood in the domain made sacred to his Majesty the Motorman.

"Go inside or get off!" said the motorman, a featherweight.

"I can't get inside, and I won't get off," was the reply of the intruder.

"I'll make you," asserted the wee motorman.

"Try it," was the ultimatum of the workman.

The motorman was as good as his word, and gave the big fellow a shove, but he only leaned against the car side and laughed at the futility of the motorman.

The motorman tried again, breathed angry words, and then sprang off the car, shouting: "I'll get help and put you off!" The workman was determined and peered out of the entrance looking for the arrival of the reinforcements. There was a bustle inside, and a brawny-looking conductor appeared. The man leaned forward prepared to give the new arrival a tussle, and had one eye adrift for a rear attack by the motorman, but the conductor hailed him genially.

"What's the trouble here, old chap?" he said.

"Motorman wants to put me off," replied the man outside, shortly.

"Well, say, old chap, he's right. He has to obey his orders, just the same as you have to do what you are told, the way you are ordered down at your shop. Now we cannot carry you there, and we cannot go ahead until you get off. Just peek behind you, and you will see half a dozen loaded cars. You are delaying several hundred people. Won't you please get off?"

"Beg pardon," said the surprised workman, when this polite request reached him from a man who looked big enough to throw him off bodily, and he stepped off. "I'll take the next car."

"Ding-ding," said the bell, and the little motorman turned on the "juice." The blockade was broken.

"May God help the woman you marry, for you have no heart," was a pretty young woman's summing up comment upon Mr. George A. Greene, the Toronto Railway Company's claims agent, delivered at the conclusion of a dispute over a woman's right upon the front seat of a Carlton and College motor car.

The young woman, a petite creature, in natty brown suit and big picture hat, bewitched a green motorman, and in direct contravention of orders rode in the front seat. The motorman made a half-hearted protest, but a roguish glance from dark eyes made him throw discretion to the winds, and he chanced his job to gratify the young woman's whim.

At Carlton and Yonge streets, Cerebus in the form of Mr. Greene loomed up.

"I am sorry, young lady, but you will have to ride in the next seat," said Mr. Greene, as he boarded the car.

"Who are you?"

Mr. Greene detailed his official position, but the young woman pouted and utilized the equal rights argument.

"If men ride here I can as long as I pay my fare," she said. "I have paid and I won't move."

"The car will stay here a week unless you get off," sad Mr. Greene, but the young woman refused to stir. Then Mr. Greene tried his persuasive eloquence. She argued until she had a blockade of several cars.

"Won't you oblige me and not make trouble for the motorman, and delay for all the other passengers?" asked Mr. Greene, and the brown-clad maid took a seat further back, and then gave utterance to her hope that the Deity would see for and protect the future Mrs. Greene.

POUNDED BURGLAR'S HEAD

Chatham Colored Woman Puts Up Brave Fight With Thief.

Chatham, July 16.—Early on Saturday morning, Mrs. Ada Bedford, a colored widow living on Prince street, was the victim of a brutal assault and attempted robbery. The old lady works out by the day and is reputed to be well-off. She lives alone in a well-kept cottage, and is said to have money hoarded up. She retired as usual on Friday night, but early on Saturday morning, having earache, got up for medicine for it. When going into the other room she was astonished and horrified to see the head and shoulders of a man partly through the window. As there had been other similar attempts she had firearms in the house, and snatched up a pistol as the intruder advanced warning her to keep quiet. She snapped it at him twice without any other result than to enrage the man, as it missed fire. The marauder then closed with her, and, grabbing her by the throat, tried to choke her. She in turn again tried to use the pistol, but it missed and she pounded her assailant over the head with the butt till he, fearing the sound of a struggle would attract attention, hurriedly departed the way he came. The police were not informed till late on Saturday afternoon, as she has a horror of the police and notoriety. The [illegible]

THE CHARACTER OF THE JAPANESE

No Real Religious Spirit As Nation Is Too Materialistic and Practical.

London, July 15.—Among the most interesting studies of Japan and the Japanese, now so numerous in books and magazines, is an article from the pen of Archibald R. Colquhoun, F.R.G.S., who deals with the subject under the title, "Japan as a World Power." The writer calls to our attention some traits of Japanese character which are important to remember in any speculation on the future of this nation, traits which have had an adequate expression in the struggle with Russia, and which will have no little to do with Japan's peace conditions. To British subjects such considerations are of peculiar interest, in view of the alliance, and the possibility that Britain and Japan will be drawn even more closely together in the future.

Mr. Colquhoun insists that lack of imagination is a distinguishing feature of the Japanese people, and so often has this charge been made that we may accept it. As no individual can be supremely great without imagination, whether as an artist, a financier or a prize-fighter, this writer would seem to set a limit on Japan's ambitions, unless it be possible for a nation to cultivate the quality. If English military critics are to be believed, the lack of imagination on the part of Japan's generals has been manifested again and again. Up to a certain point, they have overwhelmed their foe, but never yet have they been able to force home their advantage. How many times was Kuropatkin hurled back apparently broken? Yet he was always able to gather his troops together and make a stand the next week. Military critics have been full of explanations, but perhaps the lack of imagination, assuming that there is a deficiency, may account for this blot on Japan's escutcheon.

Another puzzling feature of the Japanese character is its lack of religion. The nearest approach to a religion in Japan is the fanatical devotion to the Mikado and the country, a devotion which is translated into deeds of heroism on the battlefield. The belief in innumerable beneficent or malevolent spirits is inferior to the monotheistic conception, and on a lower plane of mental development, and yet the Japanese have rejected the latter, and cling to the former. Admiral Togo's dispatches, attributing success to the virtue of the Emperor's ancestors, are probably uttered in the same pious vein which bade other soldiers "Trust in God, and keep your powder dry." Nevertheless, these dispatches are deliberately calculated to embody the sentiments of the bulk of the nation and to strengthen a belief which is not actually shared by its leaders. The highly-educated Japanese is without belief in supernatural religion, though he may subscribe outwardly to forms which he regards as part of his national idiosyncrasy. Even the uneducated Japanese is indifferent to religious beliefs, and is actuated merely by superstition. The interesting question is whether a nation can achieve true greatness on a materialistic basis?

Two virtues which the Japanese have in greater measure than any other race are frugality and carefulness. As an example of the former, we may note that the worn-out socks of the Japanese soldiers are sent home to be remade into yarn. After all, these virtues are the result of stern necessity, although not the less admirable on that account. Japan is a poor country, with much unfruitful land, and a population of 50,000,000, which increases one per cent every year. The land is divided for agricultural purposes into small holdings of 2½ acres for one family, and it can be safely predicted from the lack of natural resources, that Japan will always be a poor country for the working people. An outlet for surplus population has been for some time a prime necessity, and the Japanese, with their love of the sea, are essentially a colonizing people. In default of colonies, emigration has taken place chiefly to Korea, Russian Asia, the British colonies, the United States and Hawaii, where 60,000 Japanese are a very influential factor in the body politic. Formosa, the first attempt at colonization, has been costly and unsatisfactory; it is, in fact, part of China; and, except for strategic purposes, cannot be useful to Japan.

Another interesting point discussed by Mr. Colquhoun refers to the probable influence of Japan's renaissance upon other Asiastic nations, chiefly those in India. The writer says:—

"It is suggested particularly that disaffection may be sown in our Indian Empire, and that the Oriental may lift up his head from bondage. Holding India as we do chiefly by moral force, this may seem a serious consideration, and it is certain that great interest is taken in that empire in Japan's doings; we know also that there is sedition in India, but we know, too, perfectly well, where this sedition begins and ends. We can put our finger on it at any moment, we permit it free vent because we are aware that it is more dangerous when suppressed. I believe, moreover, that the prestige of the Englishman in India rests on a foundation that is not to be lightly shaken. Moreover, we have covered the empire with means of communication, a greater defensive meaure than is usually supposed. Lastly, there is, and always will be, that ineradicable race hatred between the various peoples of the Indian Empire, and, fortunately, the Indian politician is not a fighting man, and the fighting man is not a politician.

"The commercial nations will find in Japan a serious competitor, but, if they combine to maintain the open door, they can co-operate in the development of Manchuria and Northern China. Any attempt at monopoly or unfair treatment will be deeply resented by Japan and by China under Japanese tutelage, and would go far to raise a real yellow peril. Russia, to all appearances, still relies on intervention in some form to save her the humiliation of surrender, but it is to the interests of Britain and America, as the two great factors in the Pacific, after Japan, to see that she is not balked of the legitimate fruits of her victory. The commercial nations who can co-operate with her have a good many things in hand with which to meet her. For one thing, she needs foreign capital, and for another she desires more than anything to be recognized as a civilized power. She wants peace, and this despite the warlike character of her people. They are too practical and materialistic to be satisfied with a national development which brings glory, but leaves the country poor. If Great Britain and America, instead of regarding the rise of Japan as necessarily inimical to their interests, adapt themselves to circumstances, the new position of Japan as a world power need cause no alarm."

A LIVELY FIGHT WITH DESPERADO

He Was Well Armed and Used Axe and Sword On Two Officers.

Chatham, N. B., July 17. — Word reached here Tuesday last of a serious row at Upper Blackville, between two Arbo brothers in which Reuben Arbo was clubbed about the head and seriously injured. Dr. Weir, of Doaktown, attended the unfortunate man, who was later sent to the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Chatham, where he is slowly recovering from the beating.

The Arbo brothers—Elijah, Reuben and Zachariah—are said to be rather peculiar characters. They live in a shack and are well supplied with guns, revolvers, ammunition, swords, axes, etc., and are ready for all comers. The row started over the question of the ownership of some harness, and Elijah settled the matter to his satisfaction by knocking Reuben in the head with a club and leaving him unconscious.

The trouble was made known to Deputy Sheriff Irving, of Newcastle, and he with Policeman Galliah went up to make an arrest. Elijah took to the woods, and when discovered he attacked the officers with a sword and an axe, keeping them at bay until the deputy sheriff put him out of business by sending a revolver shot through his shoulder and knocking him down with a fence rail.

Deputy Sheriff Irving said:

"On arrival there we went to their home and found the doors locked. I demanded admittance but was refused. We then broke in the door and searched the house, but did not find them. We then went to the barn and had to break the door in, but didn't find them. We saw where they had slept in the loft and found a loaded revolver and rifle and some cartridges.

"After leaving the barn we saw Zachariah near the house and arrested him. We then took to the woods in search of Elijah, and found him about 9 o'clock at night in a grove near his home. He ran when he saw us. We called to him to surrender, but he wheeled around and said he would die first, and that the first man who came near him he would murder. He was armed with a sword in one hand and an axe in the other. We asked him several time to surrender, and then tried to arrest him. He made at us with the weapons. I fired two or three revolver shots, thinking to frighten him. He made a charge at Mr. Galliah with the sword, but the officer put off the blow with a club, breaking the club. He made another charge at him with the sword. I then fired the shot that wounded him, but he continued the fight. I then got a fence pole and struck him; that brought him down. We searched his pockets and found one loaded revolver and one sheath knife."

The arms at the Arbo place consisted of three guns, two revolvers (all loaded), one sword, one axe, one sheath knife, and a large quantity of ammunition.

SOCIALISTS CHECK ARMY

Their Attacks On Conscription Are Alarming the German Govt.

London, July 17. — The Von Buelow-Jaures incident continues to direct attention to the growth of the Socialist parties in Germany and France. The masses of voters of both countries who cal lthemselves Socialists are opposed to war except in self-defense and in Germany they have become so powerful that they are the strongest restraining influence upon the military party.

The Socialist movement in Germany, France and Austria has begun a systematic attack on conscription and the Governments have become seriously alarmed. Their plan is first the whittling away if the term of conscription servitude, then, the relaxing of the severity of discipline and then demanding that the use of the system shall be confined, as in Switzerland to purpose of defense. The Spectator, well describes the situation when it says:

"Von Buelow's prohibition was unwise, for it brought to the Germans in an almost ludicrous way how far they were from having attained freedom. Just imagine it, a powerful party almost the strongest single group in a country which considers itself of all countries the most civilized, asks a well-known foreign orator to deliver a lecture on the advantage of being peaceable and the Premier of that country, fearing the effect of his eloquence, forbids him under a veiled threat of arrest to pay a visit. Even Germans who are so used to being ordered about by the police in the details of life are shocked, and the roll of Socialist members will, it is believed, be greatly swelled. But still if unwise, the order has its compensation. It proves that the influence of the Socialists is believed even by governing men to be in restriction of war and the most extreme radical party in the two great countries is intently seeking for power in order among other objects to diminish the ascendency of militarism."

United States Silver In Canada

There is a difference of opinion as to whether Mr. Fielding's plan to reduce the circulation of American silver in Canada by paying the banks a small commission to deport it, will prove effective. Some say the scheme will increase the volume of American currency in this country, because it will open a new and profitable line of business for the Canadian banks. Says the Winnipeg Tribune:

"Some enterprising banker may branch out as a big importer of United States silver coins. They might be brought in by the ton and handed over to the Government. It would give the finance and customs departments considerable difficulty to find out where all the American coins came from."

This objection may be dismissed as fanciful. Silver imported in large quantities could not escape the detection of the customs. Furthermore, it would be a frauduient transaction, and no bank would dare affront the public by resorting to it. The Government would be in a position to punish the culprit severely. Most of the American silver circulating in this country has been brought here in the first place by American tourists, and to a small extent by Canadians who have been across the line on pleasure or business. The amount of American money spent in Canada increases every year, and the aggregate amount of this currency is constantly expanding, because it is freely accepted in the ordinary way of business, and it only finds its way out of the country by chance. It would soon be expelled if merchants charged a discount, as they do on Canadian silver across the line, but when everybody is accepting American coinage, no one in business can afford to refuse it. The fact that the postoffice and other public institutions decline to take it has very little effect upon its circulation.

Under Mr. Fielding's scheme the banks will deport all of it that comes into their hands in the ordinary channels of business, and the volume must be reduced unless its importation is stimulated by the action of the banks. Granting that the banks will not cheat the Government by importing it for the sake of the commission they earn by exporting it, what incentive will anyone have to introduce more American silver? The Washington Government which makes a profit on every coin, cannot unload it here, as the Government has no direct financial dealings in this country. It can only be brought here by American tourists or visitors, who spend their money here, as we want them to do. It will find its way to the banks, and be returned to the other side, without permanently displacing Canadian coin upon which the Canadian treasury makes a profit. A year's experiment will prove this conclusively, we believe.

"Scotty's" Good Time.

The people of the United States have been entertained by the exploits of one "Scotty," a cowboy turned miner, who made a rich strike in the gold fields of Nevada. The sudden possession of wealth upset his equilibrium, and the impulse came over him to have "a good time" in his own way. A good time is a matter of temperament and habit. Probably most men of Scotty's antecedents would consider a spree the height of felicity. The average millionaire indulges in a steam yacht and an automobile. But Scotty's primitive instincts demanded something unique, picturesque, unconventional. He wished to give himself a thrill and let the whole country know it. This child of nature decided on a meteoric dash across the continent, and hired a special train which broke all records between the Pacific Coast and Chicago, negotiating the distance in 44 hours and some minutes. "There was only four whole windows in the dining car when he finished, and not a whole glass to drink out of," said Scotty jubilantly, adding that it was worth about $40,000 for the sensation, and it cost him about $9,000. Scotty was unable to complete his journey in a special train, the present 18-hour schedule between Chicago and New York being considered fast enough by the railway managers.

Scotty's sojourn in New York appears to be in the nature of anti-climax. During his progress from Los Angeles to Chicago bulletins were sent out every hour or so, for the information of an expectant public. He was met in Chicago by a big crowd of people and a corps of newspaper reporters, who wrote reams about him and his dog, which sported a collar made of $500 bills. When Scotty arrived in New York he was interviewed by all the newspapers, and appeared on Wall street, where he created a flurry among the brokers. Since then he has been seeing the sights of the big city, much the same as other greenhorns. New York people are disappointed in Scotty. They expected he would throw gold coins around the street or do something bizarre, as the denouement of his flying trip. Probably his conception of a good time has been realized.

The episode is interesting as a manifestation of human nature. Perhaps Scotty's ideas of the use to which money should be put are as sensible as those of many other rich people, or less harmful. The problem of spend-

Defenses of Canada.

At the time of the teapot tempest over Lord Dundonald's dismissal the Opposition organs were printing long homilies on Canada's defenselessness, and the necessity of a vigorous military policy. The Liberal Government was accused of neglecting an obvious national duty, and there was the furtive suggestion that British interests were thoroughly safe only in the hands of a Conservative administration. No doubt, some uneasiness was created by this clamor. Some of the Government's assailants at that time are now showing the grossest inconsistency by cavilling at Sir Frederick Borden's plans, and the increased military budget. Says the Montreal Gazette:

"The propositions of the Government laid before Parliament this year carry the cost of the militia, as of all other public services, beyond what is reasonable, and beyond what is within the power of the country to bear. * * * The fact seems to be that the Minister of Militia has fallen under influences that are not politically wholesome, and the loose-jointed system of the Laurier Government does not provide a check on the excessive zeal of its members, especially when the zeal leads to higher expenditures. It will have to be outside opinion that will check the inclination to go beyond what is reasonable and wise in this, as in other branches of the public service."

The Gazette's strictures are quoted approvingly by the London Free Press and other organs which were playing jingo tunes with the loud pedal during the Dundonald flurry. If they are right now, they were wrong then. They are on more solid ground at present, and while the current expenditure on the militia, which is about one dollar per head, is not excessive, public opinion should be on guard against tendencies which are indicated in the suggestion of compulsory military training for the whole male population. The popularization of rifle practice is the safest basis of a national system of defense, because it does not depart from the voluntary principle.

Fancy Tory newspapers accusing a Liberal Government of militarism.

If the members of Parliament would kick for shorter hours, instead of higher wages, they would have more public support.

Captain Peary sailed yesterday for the North Pole. He chose the psychological moment to raise the funds. Polar expeditions appeal to popular sentiment in midsummer.

The rush of tourists to Lake Temagami this year will be worth a good deal to the new Temiskaming Railroad. Temagami promises to rival Muskoka as a summer resort in a few years. Perhaps the next step will be Hudson's Bay—and then the Arctic.

A Chatham woman pulled a revolver on a burglar, and when it missed fire, pounded his head with the weapon until he fled. She was much braver than the average husband, who would discreetly manage to fall over two or three chairs if his wife told him to go downstairs and chase the burglar.

The heroism of the crew of the Japanese cruiser Takasago, who sang the National Anthem as the ship went down, has its parallel in the sinking of the British cruiser Victoria, which was rammed by the Camperdown during a naval maneuver ten years ago. The crew mustered in perfect order and sang "God Save the Queen," as the waves engulfed her.

"It isn't true to nature."

"Why not?" Mr. Rogers asked.

Tearful Milk.

"Bless you, them cows o' mine are just as sorry about it as I am. I often stands and watches 'em crying—regular cryin', mum—because they feel as how their milk don't do 'em credit. You don't believe it?"

"Oh, yes, I believe it," said the lady, "but I wish in future you'd see that they don't drop their tears in our can."

The Red Nose.

[Toronto Star.]

A German doctor claims to have discovered a cure for red noses, which is simple in the extreme. It consists in hammering the guilty organ twice a week with a wire-toothed hair-brush, until it bleeds—that is to say, until the nose bleeds, not the hair-brush.

It is to be hoped that the German doctor's cure will not be widely followed, and that the hair-brush will not abandon its place on the toilet table to become an instrumenta of surgical torture.

In the first place we are disposed to deny that red noses need curing. To dwell upon. If it does not reflect the color of the cheering fluids with which it has mingled, it advertises also good company and sparkling conversation, and we hasten to forgive it for these amiable faults.

The red nose is as often as not the badge of a gentle melancholy. It is much affected by maiden ladies of a certain age. Cynics put it down to dyspepsia or tight lacing. We prefer to believe that it blushes for the indifference of men, who have allowed so much virtue and intellectual charm to go ungathered.

In short, there is no reason for tinkering with red noses. They ought to be as incurable as bald heads, which lend an air to active mortality. The red nose is the fruit of experience and should be left where it can feast the eye.

As for hammering it with a hair-brush, that seems to be a refinement of cruelty when the same results can be produced by a bash in the features with a closed fist or a boot-heel. With lacrosse and Rugby football, and other healthful sports as popular as they are, there exists no excuse for the hair-brush treatment for red noses. The German doctor should be given to understand that his remedy is as unnecessary as it is foolish.

It appears that one Sunday the lady induced the nurse, who is the strictest sort of Presbyterian, to attend a beautiful church just erected in Wilkesbarre.

When the girl returned her mistress asked her if she hadn't found the church a fine one.

"Yes, ma'am," responded the girl; "it is very beautiful.

"And the singing," said the lady; "wasn't that lovely?"

"Oh, yes," replied the nurse, "it was very lovely, ma'am, but don't you think it's an awful way to spend the Sabbath?"

Modern Manners.

[Ladies' Pictorial.]

We are told that there is presently to be an outbreak of Georgian fashions, both in dress and furniture. If this be so, it is to be hoped we shall revert to something like eighteenth century manners and speech. The lack of refinement and courtesy in our manners and customs nowadays is enough to make our Chippendale chairs and Heppelwhite cabinets crack with horror.

The Canadian Tortoise!

[Washington Star Correspondence.]

It is a trait of the Yankee to believe in his country, and brag about it—perhaps not a bad trait at that, for it gives him confidence and stimulates him to "make good." But it is not well to overlook the fact that the Yankee has a neighbor to the north, a rather conservative, unassuming person, but with a tremendous amount of latent energy, dogged determination, and a magnificent domain with wonderful natural resources.

It is not to be denied that the Canadians are up and after us; with a Canadian gait, to be sure, but it is a gait that never flags and never takes the back track. Besides, you remember the fable of the tortoise and the hare.

BALFOUR PUTS OFF REDISTRIBUTION

Not Time This Session to Debate the Measure Clause by Clause.

London, July 17. — On the speaker, Mr. Lowther, agreeing to the contention of John Redmond, the Irish leader, that each clause of the redistribution of seats bills must be debated separately, Premier Balfour, in the House of Commons today, withdrew the bill, saying he would proceed with it at the next session of Parliament, adding: "This course was taken as his majesty's Government is not prepared to concede so much time during the present session."

THEIR BOAT TIPPED

Fatal Accident by Which Two Young Ladies' Were Drowned.

Rochester, N. Y., July 17. — Two persons were drowned and four others had a narrow escape from a like fate by the overturning of a boat on Keuka Lake yesterday.

The drowned are Miss Maude Masten of Pennyann, and Miss Reamer Faulkner, of Mansfield, Pa.

A pleasure party of six started in a rowboat to spend the day on the lake. Returning homeward, one of the party accidentally tipped the boat to one side, and it overturned, throwing its occupants into the water. A number of yachts and other boats were quickly on the scene of the accident, and rescued four of the party, but Miss Masten and Miss Faulkner had disappeared. Their bodies were recovered this morning. An inquest will be held.

JAP DEFENDS STOESSEL

Says Ammunition Was Defective and Shells Did Not Fit Guns.

Tokio, July 17. — Major - General Tosima, who was the commander of the Japanese artillery during the siege of Port Arthur, in an interview, defends General Stoessel against the charge of surrendering too early. He says:

"On the occasion of the capitulation of Port Arthur I entered the fortress as chief commissioner to receive delivery of the forts, arms, vessels, dockyards, explosives, ammunition and stores. I was one of those who were and that he surrendered too early.

"The gun ammunition was abundant in quantity, but most of it was defective in quality. Some of the shells were without fuses, while others could not be charged. There were heaps of a certain caliber of shells, but there were no guns for them. In short, Gen. Stoessel had not sufficient ammunition for his available guns.

"The forts were also reduced to their minimum strength."

TAKE EARRINGS AS VICTIM SLEPT

Daring Thieves Chloroform a Woman, Steal Gems and Set House Afire.

New York, July 17.—While Mrs. Bertha Cohn, wife of a Harlem milliner, was asleep in her apartment Saturday afternoon at No. 1542 Fifth avenue, thieves entered the tenement, chloroformed her, bound her with strips of torn bedcloths and after robbing the place set it afire and fled. The woman was rescued by a neighboring physician and druggist.

With the sponge soaked with chloroform the burglars secured $1,000 worth of diamonds, putting their victim under tht influence of the anaesthetic while she slept.

The burglars found Mrs. Cohn in her bedroom and so skillfully did they operate that her mother, in an adjoining room, heard no noise and the victim herself had no knowledge of the robbery until the pain in her lacerated ears, from which a pair of diamond earrings had been wrenched, brought her to consciousness. Her hands and feet were bound to the bed and two diamond rings were missing from her left hand.

Mrs. Cohn is only 27 years old and is about to become a mother. For some time she has been under the care of Dr. M. L. Loeb. The airshaft of Dr. Loeb's apartment opens in the airshaft of the Cohn apartment the backs of the houses coming together. Dr. Loeb was in his office today, talking with his niece when he suddenly heard wild screams coming from the Cohn apartment. He and his niece ran to the window, where the girl called out:

"Oh, uncle, Mrs. Cohn's flat is on fire."

Loeb rushed into the street, got Benjamin Lillienthal, who keeps a pharmacy, and the two ran up to the Cohn apartment and broke the door.

The place was full of smoke and Mrs. Cohn could be heard screaming for help in the rear bedroom. The doctor made his way to the room and found Mrs. Cohn lying on the bed fully dressed. Her hands had been folded across her breast and then securely tied with strips of sheet. Her legs were tied together at the ankles and a gag had been placed over her mouth, but she had succeeded in dislodging this. At the feet and at the head long strips of sheeting had been tied across the woman, binding her firmly to the bed.

The two men released the woman at once and carried her down into the drug store. There an alarm of fire was turned in and the firemen were soon on the scene. They put the fire out without any difficulty.

The burglars took everything they could find of value. There is no clue. Mrs. Cohn said she knew nothing of the affair until she awoke and found herself in bed.

THE NEW CAMP AT PINE PLAINS

Government Has Purchased Property for Western District Near Allison.

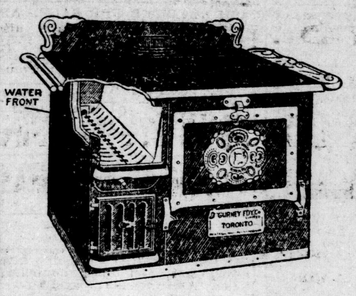

Ottawa, July 17. — To replace the discarded Niagara and Carling's Heights military camp grounds, both of which have in recent years been found much too small for the requirements, the Dominion Government has purchased the Simcoe Pine plains, five miles north of Allison and three miles west of Angus.

The purchase of the property has been under consideration for over a year, and the options were about to expire before the Government concluded the purchase. The new camp grounds are six miles square and will provide ample accommodation for all the men of the western military district. The land is watered with a river and large creek, and there are hills and valleys enough to afford opportunity for all sorts of manœuvers. The new camp grounds is central and has exceptional railroad facilities. Next year all the men who have annually gone into camp at both London and Niagara will be found under canvas here.

Two other sites—one near Cobourg, and the other near Kingston—were considered, but neither embodied so many good features as the Simcoe Pine plains.

The Oxford Chancellor coal range gives a continuous and plentiful supply of hot water. This is a point that should instantly appeal to every householder.

The Oxford Chancellor is fitted with an extra powerful water-front which is so placed in the front of the fire-box that it gets the direct and immediate benefit of the fire.

Oxford Chancellor Range

Plenty of hot water is an excellent feature in a range, but it is only one of many that make the Oxford Chancellor do such excellent work. We would like to send some of our literature which tells the whole story. Won't you write for it? A post card will do.

No Soot in the "Bison" Hot Water Heater

Soot is a non-conductor of heat.

If soot coats the surface of a hot water heater, half the heat from the fire is lost, half the coal is wasted.

That is why some furnaces do not heat well, their flat surfaces and sections collect soot.

In the "Bison" hot water heater, there are no flat surfaces —there is no non-conducting blanket of soot—you get all the heat in the coal direct on the water surfaces and you get it quickly.

18-HOUR FLYER IN WRECK

Freight Car Thrown Across Just as the Limited Arrived.

Harrisburg, July 16.—The Pennsylvania flyer, the new eighteen-hour train between Chicago and New York, met with an accident a mile west of Port Royal, but it did not result seriously.

The engineer of a west-bound freight train nearing Port Royal tried to stop suddenly and he applied the air too quickly. A car buckled and was thrown over to track No. 1, on which the flyer was speeding east. An attempt was made to flag trains in front and in the rear of the wreck, but the break occurred almost simultaneously with the arrival of the flyer, and the train planed into the wreck.

The momentum threw the wrecked car from the track, but the flyer did not leave the rails.

When Engineer Calvin Miller saw the obstruction on the track he jumped from the engine and was hurt about the head and back. He was the only one injured on the train. Fireman Garman brought the train to a stop.

The passengers, all of whom were in their berths, did not know that there had been an accident until the train had been stopped for some time. They were not even shaken up, and none of them was injured.

A wrecking train was sent for from this city, but the order was countermanded before the train got started.

A wrecking crew from Mifflin cleared the track, and Fireman Garman brought the train to Harrisburg. The engineer was taken to his home here.

Beyond the damage to the engine, which was slight, and the smashing of the platform of the combined baggage and smoking car, the train was not damaged. It arrived here at 8:28 o'clock and left 2 hours and 40 minutes late.

As showing how unusual this heat has been for London, a traveler over many continents, giving his impressions yesterday, said:

"I have traveled in the north, south, east and west, in continental Africa, and have experienced the extremes of African heat with all its attendant unpleasantness, but never have I been so affected by tropical heat as I have been by the heat in London this week."

This is what Americans also feel. They would much rather experience the worst heat of New York than this moist, energy-sapping heat from which we are suffering here just now.

MR. FROHMAN AND THE SYNDICATES

Says There Are Two in America and a Third Will Soon Be Added.

London, July 17.—"This syndicate business is a nuisance," said Charles Frohman, just before he left for Paris. "Here I've been harassed three months all because I am a poor, harmless manager, with only one idea, and that is to book my companies.

"American syndicate! Oh, no, there are only two over there; but here the number seems to be legion. I've been up against them all, good and hard. There are almost as many as there are towns in this country, and I can tell with great feeling how much more favorable the American syndicates are for the advancement of the manager and the dissipation of his troubles than the combinations here.

In England the theatrical syndicates are made up of managers in the provinces, who dictate to the London managers how and under what conditions they will accept a metropolitan success.

"I have been figuring that on the conditions that have been offered for my London company next spring in 'Peter Pan' if the house should be quite full the management would lose money.

"That set me thinking about this syndicate business, and how different it was in America. There are the managers of the theaters in all the different cities of the United States place their bookings in the hands of the syndicate in New York, which at once takes every means to secure a success for those places, offering terms that are satisfactory, and give you a tour made up in about ten minutes. Then you can go on doing some other work, so that the other people may be helped to make a living.

"If the same methods were employed in America that are in vogue here, insane asylums would have to work overtime. It has taken me nearly six months to place 'time' that aggregates only three months.

"One result here is that managers are compelled to send second-rate companies into the provinces.

"I am proud to be connected with the American syndicate, and chuckle with delight when I read about this terrible creature, which has gone quietly along the last seven or eight years without much talk, but accomplishing a great deal.

"In theatrical work the thing used to be to see how much talking we could do. Talk doesn't count any longer. It may help your house the first night, but it doesn't fill in the second. Perhaps it is because I speak as a man on the outside that I see hardships here. In America, being differently placed, it seems to me there are no hardships at all."

"You spoke of two syndicates. Are there two?"

"Of course, the second had to come. It was apparent from the time the first was formed. I myself once thought of forming an extra syndicate, because I felt certain there was room for a competitor in any business proposition that is successful.

"If I should like the new syndicate, I might place some of my extra attractions with it, but," said Mr. Frohman, with a sort of chuckle, "I think I should really prefer a third."

"Will there be a third?"

"It is bound to come," replied Mr. Frohman. "It is only a matter of the number of theaters."

The real reason why J. M. Barrie is going to America has just come out, according to a close friend of the novelist, and that is the idea of having a houseboat, just like William Gillette's "Aunt Polly," which has been floating about somewhere on the waters of the sound for three years.

Mr. Barrie has been looking at pictures of Mr. Gillette's comfortable craft for some time, and has been gradually making up his mind. He has booked his passage for Sept. 1, and will pass some time with the actor on the marvelous craft, and if it is like what he has dreamed he will order one just like it to keep in Scotland.

Charles Hawtrey sails for New York in September for another season of "A Message from Mars."

Forbes Robertson has abandoned the idea of producing "Diplomacy" at the new Scala Theater, and will open with Miss Gertrude Elliott. They will visit America later in the season.

William Collier, who winds up his season at the Comedy Theater, is going to Southsea for the holidays, returning in the autumn to open another theater, which Mr. Frohman has obtained.

Miss Marie Doro and Miss Ada Dwyer sail next Saturday on the St. Paul. Miss Dwyer is to reappear in "Merely Mary Ann." Miss Doro returns to London with Mr. Gillette.

Frank Daniels, who arrived on the Oceanic, has captured the Savoy Hotel. He started out the other night to see "Sergeant Brue." He found, however, that the London production of the play had been withdrawn six months ago.

Clyde Fitch sails a week from Thursday to begin rehearsals with Miss Maxine Elliott in the new play to be produced at the Criterion on Sept. 4, after being tried on a Buffalo audience a few night before. Miss Elliott will reach New York about Aug. 1.

Jerome K. Jerome, who is writing a play for Mr. Frohman, will reach New York on Oct. 15, under a contract to deliver readings for four months in America.

LONDON BAKED BY SUN

English Metropolis in Grip of a Torrid Wave.

London, July 17. — For once New Yorkers over here cannot find any consolation in escaping the great heat which is now, according to cables received here, being experienced on the American side, for London is as bad, if not worse. The reason here is that the heat is much more moist and, therefore, more oppressive. It has been a blazing, or rather, a stewing week, spreading lethargy and depression among all classes.

The street vendors, whose usual stock in trade is boot lace or rubber bands for umbrellas, are driving a great trade in Japanese paper fans. Fruit has gone up in price, so great

JOHN D.'S COUSIN POOR, BUT HAPPY

Neither Expects Nor Desires Anything From America's Wealthiest Man.

Binghamton, N. Y., July 17. — "No, sir; if my cousin, John D. Rockefeller, was to offer me $50,000 on condition that I should go to the city to live I wouldn't take it."

So declared Mrs. Isaac G. Gage, who lives in a little old farm house on the Hance road, just off the Hawleytown turnpike, about eight miles from this city.

"Besides, I don't think there is any danger of his offering me money to go to the city, or for anything else," she added.

"What! Me ask John Rockefeller for money? Well, I guess not. I would die in the poorhouse before I would ask him for a cent, even if he is my cousin."

Mrs. Gage's father was an uncle of John and William Rockefeller, but she has never seen her cousins. She is 70 years old, and the wife of Isaac G. Gage, and has spent most of her life on the little farm where she now lives with her husband, her son Bennie and her daughter-in-law.

"We are just plain farmer folks and are happy here," she explained, "happier than all of John D. Rockefeller's millions could make us anywhere else." Then to her son: "Would you leave the farm if you could get $50,000?"

"Me go and live in the city? Well, I guess not," promptly replied the 35-year-old son, who explained that his name was not Benjamin, but just "Bennie." "I wouldn't live in no city for all the money that John Rockefeller has got. Out here in the country I can yell to my heart's content. If I went into the city and let out one of my yells the constable would have me in a minute. No, sir; no city for Bennie."

"What would you say, pa?"

"Why, ma, if I were to have all of the money that John Rockefeller has got, I don't think I would go into the city and live. What would you and I do anywhere else but right here on the farm? Of course, I would like to get enough money to fix up the old house a little bit, for it is getting run down, and other things about the place need fixing, but we can get along all right."

"You don't think Mr. Rockefeller's money is tainted, do you?"

"Tainted!" repeated the old lady.

"Well, if he should bestow any of it on me I should take it and place it in the hands of the Lord and ask him to guide me in the use of it. Then I am sure it would be all right. I wouldn't stop to ask how he got it, I am a church member and a firm believer, but look at the churches that are talking about refusing to take his money when he offers it to them. Go into them churches any Sunday and when the collection box is passed who asks the person who drops in a penny or a dime or a quarter how he came by it. Does the preacher try to find out how the people that helps support the church come by it? I never heard that he did."

Mrs. Gage was the daughter of David Rockefeller, whose early life was spent in this vicinity, but who went west years ago, and who died in Fall River, Wis., thirteen years ago. His wife died three years later. When they were asked why they had never communicated with their rich relative, Bennie Gage replied:

"We are poor and he is rich. If we let him know about us he would simply think we were looking for money. Do you think we'd do that? I have got an uncle out west who saw John D. Rockefeller when he was out there a few years ago, but he did not let Mr. Rockefeller know who he was."

The Gages live in a typical old farmhouse, badly dilapidated. The porch posts have rotted away and no longer act as supports to the structure. There are rag carpets on the floors, with wooden-bottom chairs and old-fashioned, straight-back rockers and a whatnot in the corner. The "front-room" is prim and cheerless. The furniture is all old and stiff-looking. The old-fashioned organ in the corner looks funereal.

"No, sir, we are poor, plain people, but I guess we are more contented and happier than my cousin is with all of his millions," said Mrs. Gage, as the visitor left the house.

MUCH CONCEDED IN TRUCE ON MOROCCO

Agreement With Germany Due to Forbearance of French Diplomats.

Paris, July 17. — The last week has been notable in at least one particular. It has witnessed the close of the little unpleasantness between France and Germany, a difference which had Morocco as an excuse and as its real reason the policy so long followed by M. Delcasse, a policy that had endured, in fact, for well-nigh seven years, M. Rouvier read to the Chamber of Deputies the notes that had been exchanged on the subject between Germany and France, and finally the text of the declaration in which the two powers declare their accord.

The agreement, be it understood, was rendered easy by the forbearance of the Frenchmen, who yielded on practically every point. They, indeed, have agreed to attend the Moroccan conference and have agreed to do so without first demanding from Germany an explanation as to just what this conference is intended to bring about.

This submission on the part of France was rendered easy for her, I may say, by the perfect courtesy with which the negotiations were carried out and the recognition of her privileged position as a close neighbor of Morocco.

We should be altogether wrong to consider it as a great moral victory, however, the mere recognition of a geographical fact — that some 300 kilometers of our colonial frontiers borders on Morocco—and that in consequence our interest is greater than another's. As for the conference itself—whether it will result in more bad feeling or a better feeling still — that all depends on the attitude of the German delegates.

However, that may be, it is pretty safe to say the Emperor of Germany has lost by the whole affair a great many enthusiastic admirers whom he formerly possessed in France. They will find it hard to pardon him for the real war scare that he brought about by his obstreperous attitude. It was a poor sort of a way, to say the best, to lead folks here to forget their wounds—this brutal prodding of their scars.

Well, the chamber has come to a halt, and the last session presented the usual spectacle of our wise legislators, who had put off everything till the last moment, rushing through necessary legislation at fever heat. Among these latter measures was the calling for a general amnesty, and which failed, owing to the stubborn stand of the right. The Government at one and the same time wished to pardon those who had been condemned by the high court of justice and those who had been punished for the ever-famous secret army reports. The right, with a display of nothing more nor less than downright bad faith, accused the Government of wishing to group its friends (those of the right) with the army tale-bearers.

They did not stop to think that the Republicans were perfectly justifiable, even though they did thus group the two lots together, for, after all, the tale-bearers in the army merely used those weapons in defense of the republic which the partisans of the right had used to bring about the republic's downfall.

You can imagine how deeply all France has been stirred by the disaster to the ill-fated submarine Farfadet.

ST. THOMAS LADY DEAD

Mrs. Robert Robson Passes Away Here Very Unexpectedly.

The death occurred at Victoria Hospital on Saturday of Mrs. Robert C. Robson, of St. Thomas, who had come to this city for the purpose of undergoing an operation. The case was not believed to be very dangerous, and the news of her death will, therefore, come as a great shock to the many friends of deceased. Mrs. Robson was in her 35th year, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cook, of Malton, Ont. She is survived by her husband, and one daughter, aged 10. Mrs. A. Locke, of Buffalo, and Mrs. Robt. Hendry, of St. Thomas, are sisters of deceased.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, from D. A. Stewart's undertaking parlors, this city, to St. George's Church, near Ilderton, where Mr. and Mrs. Robson formerly resided. Services will be conducted here by Rev. Dean Davis, and at the church by Rev. Mr. Collins.

VICTIMS OF THE HEAT

Twenty-Two Succumb in One Day Throughout New York.

New York, July 17. — Despite the slightly lower temperature and a brisk northwest breeze, the deaths from heat Saturday reached the highest number of the summer. There were 22 victims.

This is accounted for on the score that the humidity of the last week has weakened the constitutions of many persons, who finally succumbed to the climatic conditions.

The fatal cases were confined largely to infants and to persons of advanced age.

USED CAT TO POISON WIFE

Inoculated Tabby Which in Turn Communicated Drug, It Is Said.

New York July16 — Frederick E. Cralton, Oxford graduate, man of leisure and man of affairs, sailor and physician, was the calmest prisoner in the Raymond street jail Brooklyn, while in the coroner's office in the city hall was being unfolded a marvellous story, given under oath, that sought to brand him a modern male Borgia. He only laughed at the extraordinary charges that were made.

It is suspected — and the coroner voiced the suspicion—that a cat was innoculated with a certain deadly virus that produces a disease known among sailors as "Farcy," and that the virus of the sick animal was injected into the blood of the second wife of Carlton. She died in the Long Island College Hospital on March 10, tetanus having resulted from a mysterious infection of her right arm. Only a few months before another wife died in a similar manner in Washington.

The burial permits in both cases ascribed lockjaw as the direct cause of death, but the parents of both women have long asserted that murder was done. They are insisting now upon a thorough investigation, and a demand for the exhumation of the body of the last Mrs. Carlton was made.

Each of Carlton's two wives were insured, the first for $2,000, and the second for $3,000, and they died only a few months apart.

Not the least sensational part of the whole Carlton mystery is the fact that it was Carlton himself who furnished the theory that it was infection from a sick cat that caused his last wife's illness, and it was this statement that resulted in the theory that the coroner now holds, hat the woman was murdered in this roundabout and scientific way.

Carlton is said to have different theories, which he expressed to various friends, but when before the coroner and under oath he made the statement that he believed that his wife's ailment was the result of infection from a cat.

"It was on Dec. 5," he testified, "when our pet cat was found to have a scratch over its eye. My wife put vaseline on the sore with her bare hands. The cat grew sicker and sicker, and ulcerated sores broke out all over it. My wife suffered similarly. The ulcers broke out on her right arm. pustules forming. On Feb. 19 she suffered from chills, and on March 3 of a stiffness of the neck. I noticed similar symptoms in the cat For three days it had lain on a chair unable to get off it, and I finally chloroformed it. It was our purpose to have a serum of the cat, made, but this we did not do. My wife died about five or six days after the cat was killed."

Carlton was again engaged to be married when arrested.

THE SUBMARINE TRAGEDY

Four Bodies Taken From the French Craft at Bizerta.

Bizerta, Tunis, July 17.—The task of extracting the remains of the dead crew of the submarine boat Farfadet, which sank at the entrance of the port of Sidi Abdallah, on July 6, and which was towed into drydock, is proceedingly slowly.

Owing to the displacement of the machinery through the action of the water, some of the bodies became firmly fixed beneath the engines and other apparatus, and the workmen were compelled to attach ropes to the bodies in order to disengage them.

It is apparent that four of the men, who occupied the forward compartment, were drowned immmediately the accident occurred.

Lieut. Robin was found lying on his back, with his arms extended. Near by was the quartermaster, whose jersey had caught in a hook close to the faulty hatch, which caused the catastrope, evidently while trying to escape.

Eight men in the after compartment were those who responded to the divers' rappings for two hours after the sinking of the submarine.

From the condition of the interior of the vessel, it was seen that they struggled hard against their fate, and endeavored to stop the leaking hatch with their jerseys.

Only four bodies have been recovered.

Reputations are easily made. The trouble lies in living up to them or living them down.

COBALT REGION BEATS KLONDIKE

Five Cars a Week of the Ore Shipped From Kootenay Mines.

Toronto, July 17.—Robert Kemer has returned from a prospecting trip to the Cobalt region, and is filled with the wonderfud prospects of that district.

At present Detroit, New York and Montreal people are the only people up there. It is true that Mr. Trethury, of Dowling avenue, shipped a carload worth $90,000, and dug $250,000 worth of ore from the surface of his claim, but this Toronto man is about the only one of importance.

Of the Americans the Phelps Dodge Company, the largest mining people in the world, and the Westinghouse Company have representatives there.

The best-known claims are known as the Foster, the Lawson, the Jacks and the Canadian Iron Foundry Company.

The Lawson claim has 44 veins on it, and is unquestionably the richest claim there. With the aid of eight men he digs out $3,000 a day.

A lake near Cobalt station has been passed over by hundreds, and now an astute Yankee has got it and has conceived the idea of draining it.

He dredged three tons of sand and got $1,800 for it. The lake is 20 acres in extent, is about 30 feet deep, and can be easily drained. A big silver mine awaits him in the sand at the bottom.

Even in the dumps from the present mines there will be big money some day. The dumps contain the ore from which the richest has been taken and shipped.

These dumps consist of ore that will run $100 to $300 a ton, but no attention is paid to it, as it is not considered rich enough to ship, and they have to reduction plant there nor any modern means of treating it.

There is a difference about Cobalt from other mining districts. None of the mines are for sale. Only one got into the hands of a company which was to put it on the market at $1 a share. The stock sold at $30 a share in about a week, and is now off the market altogether.

Mr. Kemer says the Kootenay country and the Klondike never were in it with the Cobalt region. Only the Vassar fields of the Klondike in their heyday could compare with it.

There is always a little romance in a new camp of this kind. Mr. Lawson only paid $200 for three-quarter interest it his mine, which today brings him $3,000 a day.

Mr. Timmons gave $25,000 for his, and he shipped a carload of ore before the last payment was due that brought him $400,000, and has been offered two millions for his claim. The people at Cobalt are shipping five cars a week, averaging $3,000 a car, and this will continue all summer.

The camp is unique because it is made up of greenhorns and tenderfeet. Of the 5000 people there there are not 75 miners. Even the prospectors are mostly bushmen.

Mr. Kemer came upon his claim in a rather peculiar way. Dozens of prospectors had been over it before him, rooting up the moss on the rocks, which is the great difficulty in the way of the prospector.

He saw all this upturned moss, and thought that where so many people had been looking there must be something, so he ran a long line and upturned the moss along it, and eventually came across a vein into which he put a shot of dynamite, and unearthed a fair specimen of ore which he hopes will be better as he goes down.

Mr. Kemer returns Wednesday with a camping outfit, and will delve into his rock to see what is below the surface.

Being too independent sometimes results in being dependent.

BATHING GIRLS AND PRINCE

Korea's Future King Again Mobbed On the Atlantic City Beach.

Atlantic City, July 17.—So great has become the desire of the summer maidens to meet Prince Yoe, son of the Emperor of Korea, that more than one hundred girls, of all styles of beauty, rudely interrupted the morning plunge of the prince and his suite in the waters of the surf Saturday, and he was compelled to lead them a merry chase up the beach, with the howling, laughing and screaming tribe trailing close behind.

Prince Yoe, his secretary and two Korean companions came down to the beach in an automobile, all attired in bathing suits. The machine was run under the boardwalk and the party alighted. Someone again recognized the prince and shouted: "Hurrah for Prince Yoe!" The girls came on a run. The prince, smiling in the crowd, slowly wended his way through the ever-increasing throng to the beach. Before he could reach the water he was surrounded on all sides. People who did not know what was going on came from a distance and added to the throng.

The secretary suggested a change of place and Prince Yoe started up the beach in a manner that endangered the records of the fleetest lifeguards, while the crowd pursued. He kept on running until he reached the Auditorium Pier. Darting in and out among the piling of the pier, the prince made for the boardwalk and executed a flank movement on the feminine chase, who lost sight of him.

Prince Yoe and his companions came down on the opposite side of the boardwalk, entered the automobile and were driven some distance up the beach, where he enjoyed his bath without being disturbed.

The girls who chased the prince were much chagrined at the manner in which he left them. They had pictured another marine reception such as took place last week, when Prince Yoe received them in the surf.

The Thin Man's Danger

He can't resist disease germs—that's why he's such a mark for consumption. In this land of plenty, thinness is wickedness, especially when it's so easily overcome with Ferrozone. This remarkable tissue builder makes you fat quickly; it does so by forming blood that's rich, nourishing and health-giving. Ferrozone supplies the nutriment needed by worn-out nerves, rapidly constructs muscle and fatty tissue. The form fills out, the cheeks redden, proving that weight is being added. To be well and stay well, use Ferrozone. Fifty chocolate-coated tablets in a box for 50 cents, or six for $2 50 at all dealers.

It's hard to account for so many mean men holding good positions.

CUCUMBERS AND MELONS are "forbidden fruit" to many persons so constituted that their indulgence is followed by attacks of cholera, dysentery, griping, etc. These persons are not aware that they can indulge to their heart's content if they had on hand a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, a medicine that will give immediate relief, and is a sure cure for all summer complaints.

When his best girl closes her letter with "love and kisses" it's about as satisfactory to the love sick swain as drinking froth from a glass of pop.

PREVENT DISORDER.—At the first symptom of internal disorder, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills should be resorted to immediately. Two or three of these salutary pellets, taken before going to bed, followed by doses of one or two pills for two or three nights in succession, will serve as a preventive of attacks of dyspepsia and all the discomforts which follow in the train of that fell disorder. The means are simple when the way is known.

LOCAL MARKET.

London, Monday, July 17.

The majority of the farmers are busy at their hay, and will be all week. Therefore those who are in want of hay and oats will find it a difficult task to secure a supply, at least for the balance of the week.

Six loads of hay were on the stand; all were new hay; sales were brisk, at $7 per ton; about a dozen or more loads of both old and new could have been sold had they been offered.

A couple of loads of straw sold at $5 50 and $6 per ton.

One load of oats were offered, which brought $1 48 per cwt.

Mr. D. McIntyre purchased a deck load of live hogs, paying $6 per cwt for selects.

It is expected there will be a good supply of raspberries at the market tomorrow, and it is expected that there will be a good demand.

STOCK MARKETS.

H. C. Becher, stock broker, next Free Press building, received the following by private wire from Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington today:

New York, July 17.—In spite of an almost entire absence of outside business, the market remains firm and bears the earmarks of going higher. There is little pressure to sell, and according to the leading commission houses, comparatively few stocks are being carried on margin. There has been some bull talk today on Amalgamated Copper, preferred, in anticipation of an increased dividend when the directors meet on Thursday next. There is, however, absolutely no reliable information that any larger return will be made to stockholders. The Harriman stocks, such as Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, continue to be moderately active, and display a very firm undertone. Sentiment in Steels favors higher prices, all advices in regard to the steel trade condition being very encouraging. That money will work somewhat higher in the near future is more than probable, but rates are not expected to advance sufficiently to cause liquidation in the stock market. Sales to noon were 276,000 shares.

KITCHEN ECONOMY
There is triple economy in using Strong's Baking Powder:
1. It costs less than other good powders.
2. It goes about twice as far.
3. It gives uniformly good results.
The amount of money lost in one "spoiled" baking, through the use of impure powder, would pay the entire cost of Strong's Baking Powder for several months. This powder is always pure, fresh and full of strength, hence you can always depend upon it producing uniform results. Price, 25c a pound.

MARRIED AT SHELBURNE, N. S.

On Tuesday afternoon an "At Home" was given by Mrs. Bill in honor of the bride, at which about fifty were present.

MEDALISTS AT ST. GEORGE'S.

Four gold medals and a gold watch have been awarded to pupils of grade VIII., St. George's School. The gold watch, given annually by Mr. George Robinson, of Robinson, Little & Co., to the pupil of St. George's school who has the best record for faithful daily work, and is obedient, honest and truthful, and a non-smoker, has been awarded to Miss Maggie D. Bell. The Baker medal, which is presented annually by City Clerk Baker for general proficiency, has been awarded to Master Ora Newton; and the Willie Omond medal, which is presented to the boy who has the best class record, if the principal certifies that he is "manly, kind and true," has been awarded to Master Keith Macdonald.

WON BOYLE MEDAL AT PRINCESS AVENUE

ELMER STEWART FETHERSTON.

Elmer Stewart Fetherston, who won the Boyle memorial medal offered for Princess avenue school at the high school entrance, is a son of Mr. J. W. Fetherston, of Queen's avenue. This is the second time a Boyle medal has been won by a member of Mr. Fetherston's family, Howard having taken it in 1901. It is a coincidence also that both Elmer and Howard won the medal at the close of their 12th year.

BOTH WRISTS BROKEN

Workman Meets With a Serious Accident This Morning.

A painful accident of a peculiar nature befell David Greenside, of 99 Clarence street, at the McClary works at the foot of Adelaide street, this morning. He was employed in the building operations which are in progress, and was working upon a roof. Leaning over a little too far in the course of his operations, Greenside lost his balance and fell into the basement, two stories beneath.

Since the basement is paved with cement, it is a wonder that the man is still alive. Dr. W. J. Stevenson was called, and found that both wrists were broken, and that Greenside was badly bruised on the body. The man was partially unconscious. He was removed to his home, however, and is now getting along all right. The fact that the man landed upon his hands doubtless saved his life.

AN EXPENSIVE JAG

Young Men Pay for Their Drunk and Damage to Livery Outfit.

Three young men got a cargo of hops on board recently and used up the energy thus acquired on a horse they had hired. One chap tried to prevent trouble, but at the police court this morning he had to contribute $1 for disorderly conduct. One of the others paid $3, and the worst offender of the trio paid $5. They likewise had to make good the damage done the rig and horse.

Two men were joyfully jagged on Saturday evening, and became very disorderly. One contributed $3, and the other fellow will pay $5 on Saturday.

NO INDUCEMENT OFFERED BY THE WARREN COMPANY

would not exceed in price $2 20 per yard. This guarantee was given in writing to Mr. Frank Harley. He had not represented to the people that the $2 20 per yard would include the cost of the curb and gutter. He had not mentioned the curb and gutter except at the meeting of the ratepayers which was held in the Western Hotel. Mr. H. M. Douglass was chairman of this meeting. At this meeting he had told the people that the roadway alone would cost not more than $2 20 a yard. As to the curb and gutter he could give no price, as he did not know whether or not his company would lay it. He had not been at Hugh Douglass' house more than five times in connection with the roadway. He wanted Mr. Douglass to do all he could to get the roadway through. He had made no agreement with Mr. Douglass nor had he ever spoken of compensation with him, nor had he sent anyone to make any such arrangement. There was no talk of paying Mr. Douglass' assessment for frontage on condition that he should support bitulithic. Neither had he talked with any person on the street in regard to compensation for their signing the petition.

Mr. Fallahe Objects.

"Without reservation you swear that neither yourself nor any agent of the Warren Company has directly or indirectly offered any inducement in whole or in part to any property owner of Richmond street?" Mr. Judd asked.

"I do," replied Mr. Fallahe.

Mr. Judd then asked Mr. Fallahe if, taking the engineer's measurement as a basis, the price put in by the Warrens does not exceed $2 20 per yard, but the witness refused to answer the question.

"It has nothing to do with the matter," he told Mr. Judd.

Then the agent and Mr. Judd fenced for some time, but the question was not answered.

Producing the sample of pavement Mr. Fallahe had shown the people when the petition was being circulated, Mr. Judd asked if the sample was the same as that which is to be given the people.

Mr. Fallahe replied no. Neither had he told anyone that the broken stone in it was granite stone. All he had told the people was that they would be given a roadway similar to that on Talbot street. Then he said he could not remember whether he had mentioned granite to any one.

More Emphatic Denials.

"Did you at any time or any place offer to pay anybody's assessment or any part of it, on condition that they should support the Richmond street pavements?" Mr. Judd asked.

"No, I did not—not that I remember."

"Why do you guard yourself?" Mr. Judd again queried.

"I made the positive statement that I did not," Mr. Fallahe answered.

"Did you send anyone to do such a thing for you?"

"No, I did not."

Mr. Fallahe then said that he had had a man following up the Barber agent on Richmond street.

"Was he a detective?" asked Mr. Judd.

"Call him what you like," was the agent's reply.

Ex-Ald. Douglass.

Ex-Ald. Douglass was next examined. Mr. Fallahe had not interviewed him in regard to knocking out the asphalt pavement. He had not seen Mr. Fallahe until after the asphalt pavement had been knocked out. He had first seen Mr. Fallahe at the meeting held in the Western Hotel. There never had been a meeting held at his house. All were held at the Western Hotel. At one of the meetings Mr. Fallahe had told the people the pavement would cost $2 20 a yard. He had secured the signatures of from 15 to 20 people to the bitulithic pavement. He had told the people the whole cost of pavement and curb and gutter would be included in these figures. It was on the understanding that the $2 20 should cover all that he signed the petition, and induced others to sign it. He had secured the names of Messrs. Hunt, Pratt, Dwyer, Morkin, McNeil and the Christian Scientist Church.

This Was Final.

"There is no doubt about the $2 20, including the curb and gutter?" Mr. Judd asked.

"There can be no doubt," was Mr. Douglass' reply.

To the best of his recollection, Mr. Fallahe told the ratepayers that the stone in the pavement would be the best St. Marys granite. He remembered the mentioning of granite from the fact that an argument had sprung up at the meeting as to whether there is any granite at St. Marys. Mr. Fallahe had not approached him in regard to promoting the pavement for the company, or of compensation for doing this work.

"The only man who ever did that was the Barber agent," the witness replied.

"I am representing the ratepayers on the street, not the Barbers," said Mr. Judd. "This voluntary information from you doesn't look good."

Mr. Fallahe had not been to his house more than twice.

No Compensation Whatever.

"And you got no compensation at all?"

"I didn't get a cigar or a five-cent piece," Mr. Douglass replied.

"No agreement as to your assessment?"

"No."

"Did you ever meet Mr. McKendrick?"

"Who's he? The Barber agent?" the witness asked.

"Now, now, don't go too far with your innocence," Mr. Judd sarcastically warned the witness.

What He Wanted.

In signing for bitulithic he said the people wanted a roadway similar to that on Talbot street, as they liked it. They wanted the best possible pavement for the least money.

"If you could get a roadway built like this $10,000 cheaper than the Warrens would build it, that's the road you wanted?" Mr. Judd queried.

"Yes," answered the witness.

Mr. Meredith then questioned Mr. Douglass. From his experience on the board of works, when he was an alderman of the city, he had come to the conclusion that he would do all in his power against asphalt, as he thought it was no good. The information as to the cost of the bitulithic he secured from an estimate prepared by City Engineer Graydon.

Cost of the Pavement.

Wm. M. Dwyer, 591 Richmond street, was then called. He had been secretary of a couple of the meetings held at the Western Hotel, but he had torn up the slips of paper upon which notes of the proceedings had been entered. At the last meeting seven voted for bitulithic and seven to have the matter referred back to the council, so that that body could secure all necessary information. At this meeting Mr. Fallahe had told the ratepayers the pavement would cost $2 20 a yard. He hadn't mentioned the curb and gutter [illegible] a man to put his name to the petition. He had signed the petition at the solicitation of Mr. Fallahe.

"Was there any conversation when you signed the document?"

"No."

"Nothing said by you as to the heavy cost it would mean to you?"

"No. I was led to believe by Hon. Mr. Beck, Sir John Carling, and others, that it was the best roadway."

"Was there any talk about your assessment?"

"No."

"Did you see any representative of the Warren Company outside of Mr. Fallahe?"

"No."

"Have you had any conversation with anybody in regard to any consideration for your signing the petition?"

"None at all."

Witness Changed Evidence.

Wm.J. Lashbrook, another Richmond street ratepayer, followed Mr. Dwyer. When Mr. Fallahe approached him with the bitulithic petition he had told him he was in favor of it because he liked Talbot street. He had signed a petition circulated by ex-Ald. Douglass against the asphalt initiated by the city. He had attended the Western Hotel meetings. He did not remember of any document from the city engineer being read.

Mr. Fallahe had told the people at the meeting that the pavement would cost $2 20 a yard, not including the curb and gutter.

"Did he say that?" asked Mr. Judd.

"I think he did."

"Don't think—we have too many witnesses who swear that he did not mention the curb and gutter."

"Well, I won't swear it, then," Mr. Lashbrook replied.

"You are one of the men Mr. Douglass got to sign the petition?"

"Yes."

"Do you remember what took place?"

"No, I do not."

"Here Mr. Meredith objected.

Some Sarcasm.

"My learned friend, I think, is going too far. These are not antagonistic witnesses," he said.

"I don't know about that," said Mr. Judd sarcastically.

"Did you ever have any talk with anyone as to the payment of your assessment for this pavement, as as to consideration of any kind?"

"No, sir."

Mr. Meredith then took the witness in hand.

"Your opinion in favor of bitulithic is an honest one?" he asked. "You have not been influenced by any consideration except that you think bitulithic pavement is the best pavement?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Lashbrook. "My opinion is honest."

Other Witnesses.

The next witness was Mr. William Pudney, tinsmith, of Richmond street. He had received a notice from the assessment commisioner telling him the pavement would cost him $10 a year for 10 years. There had been absolutely no agreement directly nor indirectly with anybody in regard to the payment of his frontage.

"I expect to pay it myself," Mr. Pudney said emphatically.

"No promise had been made to you, directly or indirectly in regard to compensation for signing the petition"

"No."

Ex-Ald. O'Meara was next called. At the Western Hotel, he said, he had been told the Warren pavement would cost $2 20 a yard, but he could not say whether this included the curb and gutter. He had voted at this meeting to have the city council call for tenders for all classes of pavements, but the vote stood a tie and nothing came of it. Next he heard of the bitulithic petition being circulated. He had not signed any petition. He had favored any pavement the majority of the people wanted. This concluded his evidence.

His Son Signed.

Mr. Thomas Morkin was next examined. He hadn't signed any petition, but his son William had signed for bitulithic. He didn't know for some weeks afterwards that his son had signed for it, but he was satisfied, anyway.

Mr. Thomas Lewis had signed for bitulithic. Neither Mr. Fallahe nor Mr. Douglass had brought the petition to him to be signed. He was told that the cost of the pavement before he signed for it. He had not had any conversation with anyone relative to the payment of his assessment, free frontage or the like.

Mr. Thomas Trebilcock signed for bitulithic, but he forgot who brought the petition to him. At the meeting in the Western Hotel he understood the pavement would cost $2 20 a yard.

Michael J. Gleeson had signed the petition against asphalt. It was brought to him by Mr. Stinchcombe. Subsequently he signed a petition for bitulithic brought to him by Mr. Fallahe. In signing the petition he had been governed by a statement of the city engineer that the pavement would not exceed in cost 46 cents a foot of frontage. He thought Talbot street a first-class roadway and he preferred the bitulithic to asphalt.

ting work in sympathy with the molders.

Superintendent King was seen by The Advertiser this afternoon.

"To me the matter does not appear at all serious," he said. "There is no grievance on our part, and we know of none on the part of the men. The situation is simply this: Saturday the molders of the seven city shops held a picnic. All the shops, with the exception of ours, worked part of the way. We had asked some of our men to work the morning and lay off in the afternoon, but they refused. Consequently when we heard that the men of the other shops had worked, we were none too well pleased with those who had refused to work for us.

"But we let that pass. For some time we had heard that the men, or quite a number of them, were thinking of taking in the excursion of the Chosen Friends, and also that of the Grand Trunk employes, both of which occur this week, and as we had been contemplating making some important alterations during the Old Boys' week in August, we concluded it would be better to make the alterations now and allow the men to get off when they wanted to. Consequently we proposed that the molders should work in shifts — about half at a time, until the alterations shall have been made. We told them to fix it up any way they liked, but they refused. They held a meeting and they told us all or none should work. Some of them were very angry, but I see nothing to be angry about. This is the whole trouble in a nutshell."

"Will you take the men back now?"

"Certainly. As I have already told [illegible] cided to have the alterations made at once."

Mr. King added that about thirty or thirty-five molders are now at work in the shops. This represents only about one-quarter of the staff. The stove mounters are not in the slightest disaffected, he said. To show that the men are restless, Mr. King remarked that as many as 25 men were off work in the molding shop at one time last week.

JAB PENS AT ROOSEVELT

Fewer Children and Better Development, Say Noted Writers.

London, July 17. — English women writers are apparently in rebellion against the dictum of President Roosevelt that the chief duty of the sex is maternity.

This interesting question is discussed in two articles by women writers in the current Fortnightly Review.

Mrs. Mona Caird, writing on "The Duel of the Sexes," takes as her text an article by Lucas Malet, in which that well-known feminine writer takes up the old-fashioned view that woman's mission is that of wife and mother, and that for her no other career is suitable.

Lucas Malet draws a sad picture of the crowds of modern breadwinners—girls employed in offices and so forth—hurrying to their work and returning at night to some lonely lodging.

"But," soys Mrs. Mona Caird, "what after all, is the cause of these crowds of solitary women? Simply that their mothers obeyed too well the commands of President Roosevelt and thought it their duty to produce more children than there was comfortable room for in the society to which they belonged."

Mrs. Caird does not find that the instinct of maternity is [illegible] flesh and blood." It is a "blind animal feeling," and it is "preposterous to claim for such an impulse a place among the higher affections."

"The old tradition," says Mrs. Caird, "which for weary centuries has sacrificed the individual life of the woman for the husband, the family and the race, has inflicted the deepest conceivable injuries on all three. Before the ideal of life can be realized, 'all trace and vestige of the master and bondswoman must disappear utterly and forever.'"

Lady Grove, dealing with "The Threatened Resubjection of Women," is equally emphatic. "Who has not noticed," she asks, "that it is always the least virile and manly among the men who are so bent upon 'keeping women in their proper place,' and the least womanly among the women who are willing to abdicate their God-given right of human will in favor of an unlovely subservience to the mere brute strength of the male?"

Both writers agree that what is wanted is not, as President Roosevelt claims, "plenty of children," but fewer children of better health and development.

A London paper states that a factory is to be established in Mexico, which will manufacture artificial silk. The company starts with a working capital of $1,000,000.

It is easier to pay women compliments than it is to argue with them—also more satisfactory to all parties concerned.

"Dear Uncle Rodney!" she cried, and then sprang away, drawing him up by his hands.

"I'm going to be a lot nicer to you than I ever was before," she declared. "And you'll help me to be good!"

"There are two or three things that I want you to do for me, Zee. I ask you as a favor—as a very great favor.'

"It's going to be something hard,—but go on!"

"Let me be your banker. And don't begin teaching or making yourself ridiculous in other ways. I have enough, and I want you to begin having the benefit of it now. And I should like you to keep the old house up there, for a while, at least. My father built it ,and I was born there—and your mother—and you! I should hate to have it pass to a stranger, in my day. And another thing. You've done a beautiful but not a very sensible thing in continuing your father in charge of your business—what's left of it; but you'd better let me—consult with him about matters."

"But you won't—scold, or be disagreeable?"

He smiled at her words, which seemed ridiculous when applied to the squandering of a comfortable fortune, under circumstances that did not appeal to his pity.

"I'm not going to be hard on your father. My enemies have always escaped me. I suppose it's because I'm so amiable."

There was a pathos in his figure as he stood, quite free from his chair, his hands thrust into the side pockets of his coat, his shoulders a trifle drooped, and the half-smile upon his face marking still his inner reluctance.

"Zee," he said, and he swayed a little, and put out his hand and rested his finger tips on the table,—"Zee, you are the finest girl in the world. I wish you would tell your father that I shall be up to see him soon. And don't worry about what I shall say to him. You can be there, if you like."

He followed her to the step, looking after her as she walked swiftly away, kissing her fingers to him from the corner.

Across the street, in Seminary Square, the wind was driving the leaves hither and thither aimlessly in the warm October sunshine and it stole across to Rodney Merriam and played with his fine white hair. The branches of the park trees were so thinned now that he could see clearly the bulky foundation of the new postoffice. He sighed at the thought of the changes that must come, watched the procession of automobiles and wagons in High street, and glanced at the uncompromising lines of the overshadowing flat whose presence never ceased to annoy him.

Then he anathematized it under his breath and went in and abused the Japanese boy because luncheon was not ready.

CHAPTER XXXV.

A Settling of Accounts.

"Good-bye, and hail my fancy!" shouted Balcomb as Leighton entered the promoter's office. "Excuse my quotation from Whitman, the good gray poet; but you always suggest bright college years, the dearest, best of life to me, Demetrius."

"I don't want to suggest anything to you, Balcomb. I've come to talk seriously about an unpleasant matter."

"The devil you have! You've certainly brought a death's-head with you."

"You always had the seeds of scoundrelism in you. I had hoped they wouldn't sprout; but the sprouts are in full bloom."

"Sprouts don't bloom; but we'll pass that with the gloomy silence it deserves," said Balcumb, imperturbably lighting a cigarette.

"You've been taking advantage of Mr. Dameron. You're played upon his necessities and got a block of lots away from him for nothing. You've also got an option from him on the strip of land out there on the creek where you propose putting up that flat you've been talking about. While you were planning this you were going to his house, where his daughter received you with courtesy. And I suppose that, i na way, I was responsible for you. I rather let it be inferred that you were a good fellow, and I allowed you to mention that we had been friends in college, though I knew all the time that you were a blackguard. I really think Miss Dameron might forgive you for involving her father in disgrace, but I don't think she would ever overlook your attentions to her cousin at a time when you were plotting to swindle a member of the family."

"You are a fool," said Balcomb. "I'm not responsible for old man Dameron's morals, am I? He was crazy to get money and came to me because he knew I had some snap and could get cash for his lots. He lied to me about it all along. You can't charge me with notice of all the private history of the Dameron family. I didn't know about the trusteeship until I took the deed. I was just as surprised as anybody when I found it out."

Leighton smiled at Balcomb's tone of outraged innocence.

"You're such a cheerful rogue I don't believe you really appreciate the fact that there are limits to human enterprise. Now your interurban friends are jays, aren't they?"

"They are, my brother. They are the genus cyanocitta cristata, or common blue jay, and mighty fine types, I can tell you that." He slapped his thigh in joy at the thought.

"You are a depraved beast," declared Leighton. "It seems a shame to disturb your peace of mind; but I came here to talk business. Now, your agricultural friends, when you sprang this lot purchase, asked about the title to the real estate, didn't they? If they didn't they are not the farmers I take them for."

"Your confidence is not misplaced. They did, and they quite satisfied themselves about it."

"They wanted to see an abstract of title."

"They certainly did, old man. You're a regular mind reader."

"They asked for an abstract of title," continued Leighton, "and you gave them one, didn't you?"

"Please don't mention it, as thou lovest me. They nearly wore out the darned thing studying it."

"I have seen a copy of the original at the abstracter's office."

"Awfully keen of you, I'm sure," said Balcomb, amiably. "I tell you, you're a credit to the bar, Morris. You do honor to your preceptor."

He bowed mockingly, but he was growing a trifle anxious and fingered the papers on his table nervously.

"The abstract, as I was saying, consisted of a good many pages. And there was a certain page 42, where a will was set forth, in due form, when you got the document from the abstract office; but when your friend Van Cleve made his report on it for your rural syndicate that particular page was missing, and another, bearing the same page number, but with certain points of the Margaret Merriam will omitted, was substituted. That is quite corrct, isn't it?"

"You may search me! If there's anything crooked about that abstract it's not on me, you can bet your life. But say, you're getting insulting. Now, I'll tell you something, Leighton, as long as you've come to me in this friendly spirit—this old-college-friendly spirit. I've been all over this thing in my mind. I'm not the twittering little birdling you think I am, to fix up a fake abstract and work it off on a lot of reubs. I didn't order that abstract made; I didn't have a darned thing to o with it. You seem to think that because there's a beneficiary of the fifteenth amendment in the cordwood. I must be there somewhere, dressed up like a minstrel first part; but you're a dead loser. I'm prepared to prove that that abstract of title was ordered by your Uncle Ezra Dameron, and that he gave it to me with his own hands. I guess you'll have to admit that my reputation in this community is about as good as your Uncle Ezra's. Now, it wounds my pride to have you talking to me as though I were the traditional villain of our modern melodrama, that you have cornered with a merry 'Ha, ha! base churl, at last I have tracked three to thy lair!' No, darling, you can't catch me on flypaper—not while my wits are in good working order. If you can seen how to save Miss Dameron's money without getting her dear old papa into the mulligatawney all well and good; but if you're trying to bring me within the long, lean arm of the penal code you'll have to get better. It's your Uncle Ezra that you're looking for."

"We're going to protect the stockholders of your company whose money has gone into the Roger Merriam lots," continued Leighton. "I honestly think I could set aside the sale; but we'll be generous and straighten the title for you."

"I rather guess you will, or Uncle Ezra wears the stripes."

"I don't think I'd say much about the stripes, with that abstract in Harry Copeland's possession. You know Copeland is rather a persistent fellow, and one of his rural friends is in your company."

"The devil he is!" But Balcomb batted his eyes uneasily.

"Now give me that option; it isn't any good, anyhow; but I'll feel more comfortable to have it out of your hands."

"You're welcome to me," replied Balcomb, fiercely. "The old man's crooked, and the idea of his being swindled by me or anybody else is funny, as you'd see if you weren't trying to be his son-in-law. The old fool is playing the bucket shops—"

"I'm in a hurry. Give me the option and get busy about it."

One of the typewriters came in with a card.

"Excuse me, Mr. Balcomb, but the gentlemanman said he couldn't wait,"—and Balcomb rose from the iron safe before which he was bending and snatched the card.

"Tell him I'm engaged. Tell him I don't want to see him anyhow," yelled Balcomb, in a voice that was perfectly audible to the waiting caller in the anteroom.

"Here," he said to Leighton, in the same tone of fury, "here's your hanged option. Give me back the thousand I paid Dameron and go to hell!"

"Now I want you to give me a check for that money you wrung from Mr. Dameron—"

"I didn't wring any money from him, you yelping ape. I paid him money. You don't seem to understand this transaction."

"I understand it perfectly. You reported to your company that twenty thousand would buy that group of lots; you took tha amount of money from then, gave Mr. Dameron eighteen thousand and put the rest in your pocket as commission. It sounds well, doesn't it?"

Bennets Beat Wortmans In the Wholesale League

Excellent Game at Springbank Saturday—Score 6 to 4.

The Wholesale League games at Springbank are becoming decidedly interesting, judging from the very large attendance which was present on Saturday afternoon to witness the game between Bennets and the Wortman & Ward teams. The game was won by Bennets by a score of 6 to 4, Bennets thereby tieing the foundrymen for second place. Wortman & Wards made their fourth run in the first half of the eighth inning, but as the time had expired Bennets did not take their half, in the eighth the score going back according to rule to the end of the seventh, 6 to 3 in Bennets' favor.

The game was marked by some beautiful plays, the furniture men taking part in three double plays. One of the most brilliant was the one by Smith to Anderson to Walters. Three fine catches by Cochrane in left field and two by Gives, of Wortman & Wards, and one by P. Heathfield, in right field, were the special features of the game. A clever throw by Patrick to the plate in the eight inning, cutting off Campbell's run, was also a fine play. Waud pitched well, but was not well supported, Campbell having an off day at shortstop. N. McConnell, at third base, and Anderson, on second base, took in everything that came their way.

The clubs are now getting well together, and as the season advances the race for the cup promises to be of special interest to the following of the respective clubs.

ST. PETER'S TEAM STILL A WINNER

Added Another Scalp to Belt in the Junior League Saturday.

The Junior League at Springbank on Saturday afternoon furnished a couple of good games of ball. The St. Peter's continued their winning streak, and defeated the Rockets. Jeffries had to pitch his best to win. In the ninth the Rockets had two men on bases, but Jeffries was equal to the occasion and struck two men out, thus saving his game. He pitched good ball, all the way through, having twelve strike-outs to his credit. Ball boosted the ball for a homer.

THE TURF.

TONGORDER FOR THE DERBY.

Toronto, July 15. — A telegram was received here today from Johnny Dyment, who is at Brighton Beach, saying that he would ship Tongorder tonight to Fort Erie, where he will start in the Canadian Derby on Tuesday next and meet King of Troy, his conqueror, in the Frontier stakes at Detroit.

FLYING HERMIS TAKES THE ISLIP

Although Heavily Handicapped Romps Away From a Fast Field.

New York, July 15.—E. R. Thomas' Hermis, carrying the heavy impost of 132 pounds, today won the Islip handicap, 1 mile and 1 furlong, at Brighton Beach, defeating Buttling by a neck. Redfern, who had the mount on Hermis, rode an excellent race.

Hermis' victory was exceedingly popular, and when he flashed under the wire a winner a great cheer rang out, which was renewed when Redfern brought him back to the scales.

Despite the fact that he was carrying top weight, conceding from 15 to 32 pounds to his field, Hermis opened in the betting at 8 to 5, but his price gradually went up to 13 to 5, while Wildmint was backed down from 15 to 1 to 8 to 1. Buttling was heavily played at 18 to 5.

The start was good, and Hermis, who was on the outside, rushed over to the rail and led by a length. Rounding into the stretch Bad News and Wildmina raced up to Hermis, who continued to set the pace. In the stretch, Hermis was still leading, but Buttling, who had been interfered with and knocked back, closed very strong and forced Redfern to ride hard to win by a neck.

SATURDAY'S WINNERS.

At Brighton Beach — Meteor 4 to 1, Phantom 9 to 20, Hermis 13 to 5, Don Diego, 4 to 1, Buttons 9 to 2, Roseben 6 to 5.

At Buffalo—Durbar 8 to 5, Crestfallen 5 to 1, Royal Window 4 to 1, Greencrest 5 to 2, Nagazam 1 to 2, Merciless 10 to 1.

At Detroit—My Alice 20 to 1, Cadichon 2 to 1, Monis 10 to 1, La Londe 3 to 1, Tichimingo 8 to 5, Bugler 6 to 5, Sam Parmer, 2 to 1.

At Latonia—Major Carpenter 5 to 1, Oak Duke 3 to 5, Florizel 10 to 1, Coruscate 4 to 1, Silent Water even, Cardinal Wolsey 16 to 1.

M'CLARYS AND LONDONS WIN; GREAT GAMES IN CITY LEAGUE

Now Stand First and Second Respectively for the Championship.

Two good ball games, a good crowd and good weather were served up to the rooters at Tecumseh Park Saturday. The McClary team again won, and is now in the lead, with the Londons, who also won Saturday, following close.

The first game brought the old rivals the Rockets and McClarys together. There was nothing much to this game, save the fat boy Earley. He had the Rockets snuffed out, and they were completely helpless before his shoots. Three singles, two of them very scratchy, were the best they could do with him. Seven Rockets fanned the balmy haze. Earley is pitching very smooth ball right now. McClarys started right off the reel and scored 2 runs on a brace of hits and a pair of errors. Crowe blanked them until the sixth, when Hutchinson hit a sassy slap to center for two sacks, going to third on a wild pitch, and scored when Earley singled. McClarys also scored three runs in the eighth, when the Rockets bunched their errors, and the foundrymen made one hit. Crowe pitched very good ball, his big fault being when the team behind him got him into a hole, he would sandwich in a wild pitch.

The foundrymen fielded very fast, their infield making some dazzling stops. Ecclestone had a couple of hard flies in left, and Dewan made some beautiful catches. Bell's long fling to the plate from center was a thing of beauty and a joy forever. The Rockets also made a pair of very smooth double plays.

LONDONS WIN.

The Londons won the second game from the Blue Labels, because they got real busy in one inning. Half their hits, and over half their runs were made in the third. Five runs from six hits, with a bunch of errors were too much for the "Blues."

Clark, for the "Old Boys," pitched very fine ball, and had the cigarmen in a heap all the way. All the hits were made after the fifth inning. There were no special features to this game save the good hitting of Fleming and Stein.

LAMBASTED RAILROADERS.

Sarnia, July 15.—Sarnia defeated St. Thomas Western Ontario League team on Friday night. They led all the way and won easily with 7 to 2. Krapp pitched for Sarnia, and struck out six, allowing only four hits. Agnew caught for Sarnia. The St. Thomas battery was Graney and Lyons.

EMBLEMS WALLOPED.

Guelph, July 15.—A small crowd witnessed the baseball game here this afternoon. The local team gave poor support to their pitcher, while Preston put up a good game all through. Score:

Preston ....0 0 0 1 0 0 2 4 0—7
Guelph ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2—2

Batteries—Heimbecker and Nairn; Whetstone and Drohan.

GOOSE EGGS HERE.

Brantford, July 15.—The Brantford baseball team whitewashed Woodstock, the leaders in the W. O. B. League, by a score of 7 to 0. It was a rather slow game, and Woodstock did not play up to expectations.

DUTCHMEN DOWNED.

Galt, July 15.—Berlin played here today in a Canadian League match and were defeated in a very fine exhibition by the score of 6 to 3. Schilling pitched a fine game for Berlin, but let up at critical times. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Galt	6	6	4
Berlin	3	8	3

Batteries—Flaherty and Marshall; Schilling and Jeffrey. Umpire Dyson, of Guelph.

WITH CITY AMATEURS

Two teams from Robinson, Little & Co. played a good game of ball at Springbank, Friday evening. Captain Beattie's team lost by a score of 13 to 10. Lister's playing at second was the feature.

The Tigers trimmed the Simcoes on Knott's field Friday evening by a score of 6 to 4. It was a good game of ball. Batteries—Tigers, Slater, Calhoun and Chatto; Simcoes, Wright, White and Gould.

LACROSSE.

HESPELER LOSES TO GUELPH.

Hespeler, July 15. — The junior C. L. A. match played here this afternoon between Guelph and Hespeler, resulted in 4 to 3 in favor of Guelph. Harry Gillespie refereed satisfactorily.

SLOW GAME AT ST. KITTS.

St. Catharines, July 15.—By the one-sided score of 10 goals to 2, the Athletics defeated the Chippewas, of Toronto, here today in the senior C. L. A. game.

The playing was rather listless, and the two thousand people present showed little enthusiasm.

Robinson, the visitors' goal tender, ran out from the net and struck Kalls, of the Athletic, a deliberate blow, for which Referee Brown Jackson, of Seaforth, sent him to the fence. Outside of this the game was void of roughness.

BRANTFORD DEFEATED.

Toronto, July 15. — Tecumsehs had little trouble in taking Brantford into camp in the senior C. L. A. match at the Island this afternoon, although the score of 7 to 2 hardly represents the play.

The Brantfords lost many chances to score in the second quarter through a lot of wild passing. It was only at this period that the home team were at all pressed.

The game throughout was one of the cleanest ever seen at the Island. There were no mixups, and the penalties handed out were of a minor sort and never beyond five minutes. Referee Waghorne had little to do, and his rulings were always satisfactory. The crowd was one of the largest of the season, there being about 5,000 present.

CAPS DEFEAT MONTREAL.

Ottawa July 15. — The Capitals defeated Montreal by 9 goals to 2 in today's N. A. L. U. match at 'Varsity oval. The Caps refused to consent to the playing of George Finlayson and Albert Dade, formerly of Brantford, and the much-talked-of professionals did not appear. Barney Quinn, who was to have played for the Sen-[illegible] Purse figured in the match. Referees Matt Murphy, Montreal, and D. H. Reynolds, Ottawa.

LACROSSE.

WILL BRITAIN LOSE CUP?

Seaforth, July 15. — One of the finest and cleanest games of Association football witnessed here for a long time was played here today for the senior championship of Ontario between the Seaforth Hurons, winners of the Western League, and the Parkdale Albions, winners of the Eastern League. The game was exciting. The Albions started with the spirit of conquerors, and after a few minutes of pretty combination scored the first goal. Seaforth awakened to realize the fact that unless something were done the visitors would make a record-breaking score. The home team soon evened up matters, and from this time on they made rush after rush on the Albion goal. At half time the score stood 2 to 1 for Seaforth, and at full time the Hurons had 5 to their credit, each of the forward line scoring one goal, while the Albions failed to get through the strong Seaforth defense. A friendly, sportlike feeling existed between the two teams, and they will meet to play the final in Berlin on July 21. Mr. Vogalsang, of Berlin, refereed to the satisfaction of all.

ELORA ROCKS BEAT GALT.

Elora, July 15.—The junior C. L. A. game, Galt vs. Elora, was called at 2:30 today, but after waiting over an hour for four or five Galt players to arrive by automobile a telegram was received stating that owing to the collapse of the machine they were unable to reach here and advised that the game proceed. Accordingly, the teams lined up with two men short on each side, and played three quarters up to train time, resulting in a score of 11 to 2 in favor of Elora.

CRESTFALLEN WON

Jack Flaherty's horse, Crestfallen, won the second race at Kenilworth, on Saturday, from a good field. The horse was not heavily played, the odds being 5 to 1.

FINAL DAY AT PRESTON

FAST TIME BY DELMAR AND DILLON

Cleveland, July 15.—Four thousand people yelled themselves hoarse at the Glenville track this afternoon when Lou Dillon and Major Delmar, sent against the season's record, came under the wire in triumphant strides. Lou Dillon was driven by Mr. Billings in an attempt to beat 2:09 to wagon. "Doc" Tanner accompanied the queen with a runner. They got the word the first time down. Lou was on the steadiest kind of a stride. She went to the quarter in :31¾, without a skip. She stepped to the half in 1:04, and to the three-quarter in 1:35¼, finishing the mile in 2:06¼, the fastest mile of the season. Great applause greeted the announcement, and an ovation was accorded Lou Dillon and Mr. Billings.

Major Delmar, with his owner up, was later in the afternoon also sent to beat a mile in 2:09 to wagon.

Like Lou Dillon the Major was accompanied by a runner, driven by Tanner. They got away on the first try and were going at a good clip at the quarter when Major Delmar broke and they came back to try it over. In the second attempt, Major went to the quarter in :31, a quarter better than Lou. He stepped the half in 1:03¼, He went to the three-quarters in 1:34 and finished the mile in 2:05½, beating Lou Dillon's time by three-quarters of a second, another new record for the season.

LAWN TENNIS.

WILL BRITAIN LOSE CUP.

London, July 15.—The tennis matches played at the Queen's Club today amounted to nothing more than exhibition games, as the Americans and Australians had already qualified for the finals for the Dwight F. Davis international lawn tennis trophy.

The match of the day, however, was an exhibition game in which Brookes and Walter Dunlop, the latter also of the Australian team, defeated R. F. and H. L. Doherty three sets to two.

The Dohertys played their game from start to finish, but their opponents gave a brilliant exhibition of tennis.

The result of this match complicates the outlook for the finals, for the Dwight F. Davis trophy, as it is quite evident if the Australians maintain their form of today, they will give the Americans trouble. Thus far the Americans are slightly ahead on points.

After today's exhibiton English tennis experts for the first time began to question the possibility of retaining the Davis cup.

Wright will meet Brookes and Larned is paired with Wilding for the finals in singles next Monday.

The Windsor Record says: When Miss Ethel Lord, daughter of John M. Lord, the well-known grocer on Aylmer avenue, left home on Dominion Day, she visited London, ostensibly to spend her vacation. It was, however, on a message for Dan Cupid that she journeyed from home, as word has been received here that she was quietly wedded to Charles J. Stowe, of the Page Wire Fence Company, Walkerville. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of Rev. James Livingstone, pastor of the Wellington Street Methodist Church, London. The bride was attended by Miss Jessie Pryce, while the groom was assisted by Albert Pryce, both cousins of the bride.

SUCCESSFUL WEEK ENDS

Methodist Summer School Was Attended by 1,000 Visitors.

A successful conclusion to the Methodist summer school, which has been conducted at Byron during the past week, was made yesterday. All who took part voted that the past seven days have been replete with pleasure and profit combined. And if the success of the institution can be judged by the attendance, it suffices to mention that over 1,000 visitors were present during the week.

The school was especially appreciated by the young people, who spent the week under canvass. For them, religious exercises and careful study of the Scriptures went hand in hand with a delightful holiday and the delights of "camping out."

The closing proceedings were opened yesterday by a love feast. Then followed services and sermons at 11 a.m. and at 7 p.m. Rev. F. J. Oaten, M.A., conducted an evangelistic service in the afternoon.

SEND IDLERS TO JAIL

The Prisons Should Be Made Manufactories for Human Beings.

London, July 17. — Is it possible to reconstruct society on a scientific basis? This was the portentious question discussed by Sir Oliver Lodge in his presidential address to the members of the Social and Political Education League of University College.

The custom of allowing absolute ownership of land, he said, was responsible for many social evils, and to him it was a most extraordinary and amazing thing that any man had the right to sell a piece of England.

The law of inheritance would also have to be considered. The idea that people might live without working, and yet without disgrace, was responsible for much incompetence and some misery.

"All should have leisure, but none should be completely idle, save on pain of starvation or the disciplinary drill of prison."

From mere generalizing, Sir Oliver passed to specific constructive reform, and expressed the opinion that the workhouses and jails should become manufactories for human beings.

"Paupers," said Sir Oliver, "must be shown how to live, how to work, how to develop their faculties.

"At present the poor tax is a mockery," he continued. "It does not help people till they are quite down and destitute, and then it tries to degrade them.

"If we could but feel assured that our contributions went to making happier and healthier and more hopeful the poor folk who have drifted into a condition of idleness as bad and useless as that of some specimens of our loafing, gilded youth, the occupants of the front row of stalls at certain theaters, we should be more satisfied."

REFUSED A LICENSE

Manitoba Bars Out Supreme Lodge of the A. O. U. W.

Winnipeg, July 17. — The Provincial Government have decided not to issue a license to the Supreme Lodge, A. O. U. W., to do business in the Province, and have officially notified the grand and supreme lodges to that effect. The decision is based on the ground that to grant the license would be to allow the Supreme Lodge to unjustly interfere with the rights of the Grand Lodge of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, which already has a charter for the province.

Grand Master Irvine says they will continue doing business in spite of this, as they in no way transgressed the provincial law.

Londoners in Thousands Picnicked at Lakeside

Ideal Day Spent at Port Stanley by the Employes of Local Shops.

Port Stanley drew a very large crowd of Londoners Saturday, and the popularity of London's lakeside resort was amply proven. Besides the three large picnics, Hyman & Co.'s, The Moulders, and the London Printing and Litho Company, hundreds of holiday-seekers thronged to the lakeside. There were between 3,000 and 4,000 people at the Port. The day was ideal for a picnic. The lake was clear and calm. A large number stayed until the last train, and enjoyed the moonlight on the lake. The crowd certainly had a good time. One picnic crowd had a badge with the legend: "We are out for a time," printed on it, and they certainly did have it. One of the features was the baseball matches, and several of the men who made baseball history in the long ago donned a glove, and played like juveniles. "Bob" Quinn, "Billy" Hynd, and several others have lost none of their cunning, although they have lost some speed.

Only one accident occurred to mar the day's sport. Fred Clark, of the London Printing and Lithograph Company, fell, when running between second and third in the ball game, and broke his arm at the wrist. Dr. P. Banghart was on the grounds and set the fracture.

C. S. Hyman & Co.'s Picnic.

The employes of C. S. Hyman & Co. held their sports on the hill, and they certainly went in for everything. A souvenir programme was gotten out. It was a booklet, with imitation leather cover, with programme of sports, committees, etc., printed in the inside. On the first page was a good half-tone of Hon. C. S. Hyman, with "Our Boss" printed above it. It was a very fine souvenir. Below are the winners of sports:

Boys under 10—1 F. Johnson, 2 Ed Brennan, 3 Roy Brennan.
Girls under 10—1 Lillian Brennan, 2 Hilda Brennan, 3 Lou Woonton.
Boys under 15—1 Willie Brennan, 2 Wilfrid Brennan, 3 Ed Brennan.
Girls under 15—1 Bessie Gibson, 2 May Osborne, 3 Gertie Brennan.
Boys, 3-legged race—1 E. Brennan and Roy Brown, 2 Roy Bennett and W. Brennan.
Single men's race—1 A. Beal, 2 H. Gibson, 3 C. McCauley.
Married men's race—1 J. Wener, 2 W. Land, 3 W. Blake.
Men's 3-legged race—1, H. Gibson and C. McCauley, 2 W. Blake and J. Wener.

Married ladies' race—1 Mrs. Price, 2 Mrs. Wener, 3 Mrs. Blake, 4 Mrs. Woonton.

The baseball match between teams captained by H. Gibson and A. Beal, was won by the former by a score of 11—4. The batteries were H. Gibson and R. Quinn for winners, and for the losers, A. Beal and Mike Tierney.

The committee in charge were chairman Arthur Beal, Edward Brennan, J. A. Belanger, Wm. M. B. Boyd, and Heber W. Gibson, secretary.

London Ptg. and Litho. Co. Picnic.

The London Printing and Lithographing Company ran a special to the Port, and about 500 went down with them. The Twenty-sixth Regimental Band furnished the music for the occasion. They were out for a time, and certainly did have it. The sports resulted as follows:

100 yards dash, men—1 A. McIntyre, 2 J. Davis, 3 George Garbutt.
50 yards dash, boys—1 A. Stenberg, 2 S. Chamberlain, 3 R. Orr.
Ladies' race, 50 yards—1 Edna Chamberlain, 2 Mamie Flannery, 3 Effie Perrin.
Cigar-and-match race—1 Brown, 2 Bard.

Fat men's race—1 W. Hynd, 2 T. Clark, 3 H. Ashton.
Boot-and-shoe race—1 A. Hynd, 2 W. Lang, 3 A. Brammer.
Peanut race, ladies—1 K. Foxworthy, 2 N. Perns, 3 Mrs. Hynd.

The married men were too much for the single chaps, and defeated them 12 to 10. The features were McIntyre's home run, and "Billy" Hynd's batting. Batteries: For married men, Jenkins and W. Hynd; single men, Nelson and Davis.

The Molders' Picnic

The Molders were out in large numbers, and provided a first-class picnic. The baseball match proved the undoing of the married men, as the single men gave them a bad beating—18 to 4. Batteries: Single men, J. Barnard and Ben Waud; married men, A. Blair and D. McLoud. The sports resulted as follows:

Boys under 6—1 B. Bradford, 2 W. McLoud, 3 L. Warren.
Girls under 6—1 A. Jacobs, 2 M. Stevenson, 3 T. Carroll.
Boys under 10—1 C. Stevenson, 2 H. O'Rourke, 3 C. Young.

The children were each given a bag of candy.

The committee who made the picnic such a success were Chairman J. MacKay, secretary-treasurer; George Belcher, amusements; A. McNeil and R. McLeod, sports; George Davis, John Jacobs and George Tye, entertainment.

Tony Cortese's orchestra was in attendance, providing music for dancing.

GERRY'S EMPLOYES PICNICKED AT PARK

Jolly Time Spent by All at Springbank On Saturday.

The fourth annual picnic of Gerry & Sons' employes was held at Springbank Saturday, and it was a rare day. Everybody had a good time, and the committee saw to it that everything went off without a hitch. Over one hundred and fifty merry picnickers were present. Ald. Gerry was right in it from start to finish. He won the judges' race, and also the pie-eating contest for starters. The latter contest mussed his ears considerably, but he was out to win.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Ald. Gerry and the committee—Messrs. Stinson, Ball and Boyce, and the crowd broke up with cheers for Ald. Gerry.

IMPERIAL RACE NEEDED

National Society to Improve Physique of the British People.

London, July 17.—A strenuous and organized attempt, national in scope, is about to be made to grapple with the growing evil of the physical degeneration of the British race, says the Daily Mail.

Scattered up and down the country the various societies and leagues which aim, in one department or the other, at the phpsical development of the people. It is now proposed to form a National League for Physical Education and Improvement, which will not displace any of the agencies at present at work, but will make them known to one another, ascertain how their work can best be supplemented where it is deficient, start branches where none exist, and thus do something to extend the benefits of physical training throughout the country.

It is hoped to form a branch in every parish and then to associate the branches into districts and the districts into county or borough units.

It will be the duty of each branch to see that instruction is furnished on the laws of health generally, to mothers on the care of their own health and on the nurture and care of children to girls on the methods of domestic and personal hygiene and of cookery and housekeeping. Efforts will be made to secure opportunities for physical exercises, and open-air games for boys and girls, the desire of young men to become volunteers will be encouraged, and marching drill, shooting practices and all healthy sports fostered.

The proposed league has already secured powerful support. Among those who have promised to act as vice-presidents are the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Archbishop of York, a majority of the bishops, medical men of the highest eminence, great lawyers, scientists, educationalists, prominent members of both Houses of Parliament, and noted athletes.

On Saturday night a meeting of the executive committee of the league was held at the Hotel Cecil, under the presidency of the Bishop of Ripon, when among those present were Sir Lauder Brunton, Gen. Sir F. Maurice, Sir Hugh R. Beevor, Sir Henry Lawrence, Sir John Macdonell, Sir H. Craik, Sir Hugh Gilzean Reid, and the Rev. H. Russell Wakefield.

The Bishop of Ripon, in outlining the scheme, said it was a healthy sign that public attention was being more and more directed to the physical condition of the people, and that a wider and nobler conception of Christian duty was now entertained. A great statesman had truly said that it was of little advantage for Britons to possess imperial realms unless they were an imperial race. The proposed league wished to impress that truth upon the people.

They wished, then, to create a national council, alive and vigilant, which could supervise and encourage existing agencies and which could establish such where they did not at present exist.

A meeting to inaugurate the new league will be held at the Mansion House, under the presidency of the lord mayor.
