Boers Fold Many British Prisonershonors for Canadians.

London, Sept. 21 - The succession regrettable incidents" which Lord Kitchener has reported has evoked editorial counsels to the Government to cease to endeaver to wage war by proclamations, and to recognize the need of crushing the Boers by force of arms.

No news has yet been received that the Boers have liberated the prisoners recently captured, and, according to Boer circles in Brussels, Commandant-General Botha intends to hold the 150 British prisoners as hostages against the carrying out of the terms of Lord Kitchener's proclamation. The Daily Chronicle to-day finds great satisfaction in an alleged auhoritative statement from its Washington correspondent, to which it gives great importance and prominence that President Roosevelt is not pro-Boer in his sentiments, and will naintain President McKinley's policy

Ottawa, Sept. 20 .- As their Royal Highnesses reached the gate opening on the Parliament Buildings to-day. Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier, the of the Dominion Cabinet, with the exception of Hon. J. I. Tarte and Hon. Dr. Borden, marched down to meet them. On returning, Sir Wilfrid walked with the Duchess and Lady Laurier with the Duke, the other Ministers and notables following, while the great gathering sang with a - mighty voice "God Save the King." It was Mayor Morris, of Ottawa, then advanced and read an address of welwere handed in.

The Duke then made an address in reply thanking th epeople for their cordiality, and saying that he regarded the occasion as one of much interest, because taking place on the threshold of the building of which his father had laid the corner stone forty the match had occupied a promi-nent position in full view of the public, was brought down to the patch, and the Duke and Duchess came down, and His Royal Highness presented the cup to the win-ners. The captain of the winning team was presented to the Duke, and then P. J. Broderick, of Cornwall, presented H. R. R. with a lacrosse stick, made specially for the Duke. After the game the players tried to get the ball as a souvenir, and after quite a scuffle one of the Capital players secured it and ran with it to the dressing room. When the team was called before the Duke the ball was in the dressing room, and after the presentation of the cup, the Duke asked for the ball, as he wanted it as a souvenir. The Capital man at once ran for the ball, and brought it to the Duke. Captain Dunne was presented to their Royal Highnesses, who cordially shook hands with him. The winning team cheered the royal couple, and then President Davidson corted the Duchess to the carriage and the Duke was accompanied by Captain Dunne. When they passed the grand stand they were given a great ovation. To-morrow the royal party will ovation. This afternoon the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York attended the lacrosse match between the Capitals and Corwalls for the Minto cup, emblematic of the championship of Canada. The game was won by the Capitals, and was attended by ten thousand people. The royal party had a special platform erected for them, from which they viewed the game. The game was a lively exhibition of the national game, and the Capitals were plainly the superiors of the Cornwalls. Thousands of people waited outside the grounds to see the approach of escort, composed of Royal Canadian Dragoons, came up King street from Rideau Hall, and entered the grounds at the main entrance. They were met by President James Davidson and the executive of the Capitals, and escortstand. All the people in the stands cheered, and the welcome was most hearty. The Duke wore a silk hat

To-night all the departmental buildings were illuminated and the whole of Parliament Hill was a blaze of brilliance. The trees on the grounds were filled with rose-colored Chinese lanterns, and the trees in Major Hill park Avere also decorated in this manner. The parks on Wellington street were almost covered with lights, and all the banks and other business houses were brightly lighted. The effect was grand, and thousands of people thronged the hill until the rain came down and drove them away. The text of the Duke's reply to-day to the address of welcome was as fol-

Grand Trunk Line Blocked by Debris as Result of Local Collision.

A bad collision occurred at the Grand Trunk station last night, as result of which the main line was blocked for about four hours. An east bound freight train was shunting in the yards at about a quarter past eight and was switching off on to the siding after some ears when it struck some flat cars which were standing on the siding. One of the cars was thrown on the main track and three of the others were derailed and badly damaged. The engine of the freight was also njured to some extent.

Extra help was employed in repairng the damage which had been done, but it was not until about one o'clock this morning that the freight was finally able to pull out of Chatham. This is the second accident which happened to this train yesterday. Shortly after they pulled out of Wind-sor en route to Chatham the driving rod of the engine broke and the conductor was forced to procure another engine from Windsor.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 21.

A MATHEMATICAL PROBLEM.

Mr. Stratton, Provincial Secretary is getting some well deserved denun ciation and jeering because of a speech he recently made in East Lambton. According to the Liberal London Advertiser this pillar of the Ross Government said in several cases the price of school books had been "reduced 100 to 200 per cent. under the Liberal Government," This is a pretty specimen of ignorance and foolishness on the part of the Provincial Secretary of Ontario, is it not? No wonder the Montreal Gazette remarks upon it as follows:

"Outside of Ontario it is known that when the price of anything is reduced by 50 per cent., it is halved, and that to reduce it by 100 per cent, is to obliterate it, leaving of the original amount nothing at all. To reduce a thing by 200 per cent, is an arithmetical and physical impossibility, there being only 100 per cent., or one hundred-hundredths, in anything that is measured by percentage or hundredths. Yet Mr. Stratton, who is described in the records as having been a member of the Peterboro Board of Education for several years, gravely makes statements such as listened to and received, and as including those of Dr. Mitchell, A. B. troi, the officials having got informagravely reported in the press and re- Carscallen, and James Clancy, M. P. tion that he smuggled spirits in the ferred to as telling arguments in favor of the administration. It is the latter facts that are the most serious reflection on the intelligence of the Ontario public, and a proof of the inferiority of the education supplied in the province's schools."

NEED OF A FAST ATLANTIC SER-VICE.

Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance of the Dominion, blames the failure of the Government to have as yet established a fast steamship service between this country and Great Britain on the inability of the shipyards to undertake the contract of building the vessels, so great has been the pressure of business. Materials, too, he says, have been dear, but a lull is expected during which, he intimates, Canada's wants will be attended to. The excuse looks a little weak. All the shipyards have not surely been so busy during the past six years that they were unable to provide for the building of a few more vessels. The yards during that time have been undertaking new contracts right along and there is no question that if the Government had been anxious to have the service they would have found no difficulty in getting ships built. The second excuse, that they were waiting for the price of materials to fall, is, if possible, still more silly than the other. What Mr. Fielding says in effect is that for the sake of saving a few hundreds or a few thousands of dollars in the construction of the vessels they put off the establishment of a service by which it was expected that the export trade of the Dominion would be very largely increased and the country placed in a position to compete in the British market with the nations which now supply Great Britain with the bulk of such products as Canada exports. The advantages of a fast service have been so often described that there is no need for us to dwell on them . Let it suffice to point out that Australia, though distant more than twice as far as Canada from Britain, successfully competes with us there in many of our staple products. It is an expensive economy that allows a small difference in the cost of the service to stand in the way of the expansion of trade, and the sooner the Government stops making excuses and gets down to work to establish the fast line the sooner will Canada do the business she ought to do in the Old | Country markets. It is not enough that our exports have increased; they have not increased as they would if there had been the proper facilities for the trade, and until those facilities are provided the Government must rest under the blame of neglecting the interests of the country.

THE ASSASSIN'S PUNISHMENT.

Some persons advocate that President McKinley's assassin be flogged before his execution, says the Toronto News. He can, they argue, go to the electric chair or scaffold, as the grand promoter of a cause and can look toon himself and be looked upon by his followers as a hero martyr; whereas if the lash be applied the degradation will destroy all such illusion,

If, however, these people are fanatics and sustained by such fervent belief in their doctrines as is said to be the case, they would no more consider a flog ging degraded the victim of tyranny than we believe that the indignities to which hundreds of Christian martyrs were subjected, degraded them. Every additional suffering would add in their eyes to the sublimity of their brother's sacrifice of himself for the cause of humanity. There is, besides, something in the infliction of such punishment on those who are doomed to suffer the death penalty at which the human mind revolts. It savors too much of the engines of torture, which we exhibit in our national enemies of society, it is better that of this paper. we should acknowledge this.

Some of our journalisti cfriends over the border were discussing the probability of H. R. H. the Duke of Cornwall going to the United States to represent the British Crown at the obsequies of President McKinley. The British Crown, the British government and the British people have duly accredited officials whose privilege and duty it' is to represent the Empire on such occasions. They are of the British Embassy at Washington. To ignore or remove them just now would not indicate any deeper feeling on this part of the British people than to have them represented in the usual official manner. The British Ambassador at Washington still enjoys the confidence of his own sovereign and the friendship of the United States Government During the temporary absence of that Ambassador in London the Charge d'Affairs has all the power, privilege and representative character of . the

All languages seem to have a way of adapting themselves to error Given an impulsive mind and too tongue, and speech become hasty precisely the reverse of thought. An English workingman once applied to a country clergyman for a letter of introduction to a duke, of whom he wished to ask aid.

"But why don't you go in person and see my lord?" asked the clergyman. "Well, you see," was the nervous answer, "I don't like to speak to Lord —. He may be too proud to listen to the likes of me. I can talk to you well enough, sir, for nothing of the gentleman about you!' Cassell's Journal says that during a holiday excursion in Switzerland Sir Paul Hunter was lost. Guide were sent out in search of him, and the excitement became extreme. Lady Hunter, safe in the hotel, began to tremble for her husband, but at dusk he entered the Alpine hamlet alone, as if nothing had happened. Wishing to avoid notice and curious questionings, he had sent his guides to their own haunts. As he passed through the little English crowd assembled to meet him, Lady Hunter, nervous from the sudden re lief of seeing him again, rushed to meet him. "O Paul!" she cried, "where have you been? I am so glad to see you back. Some silly man has lost himself on the mountain, and I was afraid it might be you!" No Wonder she Was Upset.

International Bible Lesson for To-Morrow-Proverbs xxiii., 29-35.

Teaching Outline-Wine is now considered a light drink. In the days of Solomon it was the pure juice of the grape fermented. It is rarely that now. Compared with our intoxicat-ing beverages it was as little harmful as an alcoholic drink could be, yet we find every ill credited to brandy, rum or whiskey, given as the disastrous fruit of the wine habit. Teacher, make verse 30, which shows that the light wines lead to the stronger ones, the heart of the lesson. Verse 29 is an enquiry, verse 30 the answer, verse 31 the remedy, verses 32-35 reasons that move to the adoption of the rem-Let us remember that pride, en vy, love of money, ambition and even love itself are all intoxicants and lead to excess and intemperance. # GROWING GIRLS

OCCASIONALLY REQUIRE A TONIC MEDICINE

It Will Keep the Blood Rich, Red and Pure, Strengthen the Nerves And Prevent Declines.

Mrs. Hiram Rinkler, the wife of a respected farmer in South Pelham township, Welland county, Ontario, says:-"It is with great pleasure that I give this trubute to the health restoring virtuues of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When my daughter, Lena, (now thirteen years of age) began the use of your medicine, a little over a year ago, she was in a most wretched condition. In fact we were seriously alarmed lest she might not The first symptoms were feeling of largour and weakness, gradually growing worse. She be-came pale, lost flesh, had little or no appetite and was apparently going Finally the trouble into a decline. became complicated with a persistent sore throat, which gave her great difficulty in swallowing. I gave her several advertised medicines, they did not benefit her. Ther Then she was placed under the care of a doctor, who said her blood was poor and watery, and her whole system badly run down. The doctor's treatment did not help her any, and then cting on the advice of a neighbor, began to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The confidence with which this medicine was urged upon us was not nisplaced, as I soon noticed a dis tinct improvement in my daughter's condition. The use of the pills for a few weeks longer seemed to complete-ly restore her, and from that time he has been a cheerful, light-hearted girl, the very picture of health. I will always recommend Dr . SHAMROCK II.

Capt. Hank Haff, the famous skip per, had a look over the Shamrock II.. while she was in drydock in New York, and he is of the opinion that she is a dangerous boat in a moderate breeze and a dangerous boat in windward work in any breeze, whether strong or moderate.

"It is an open question with me whether she will be as fast trunning as Columbia or not, I think she would have been faster off the wind if she carried her width out further aft.

"The underbody of Shamrock close-ly resembles that of the Defender. She as about the same dead-rise and I should judge about the same lateral resistance. If she should prove to be as good or better than the Defender the cup is truly in danger, as I consider the Defender the best boat Herreshoff ever built; I do not believe that the people who rerigged Defender in 1899 did it with the intention that she should beat the Columbia.

"The rig of Shamrock is extremely neat and snug looking, though another shroud on two on each side might not be amis in a strong breeze and heavy sea. The blocks of the Challenger are sea. The blocks of the challenger are all of American make, and Watson seems to have followed the American idea in the whole rig.

"Judging from the appearance of spar, she has a shorter boom an vgaff than Columbia, but more hoist to her mainsail, while he forward triangle does not appear to be any larger Therefore I do not believe she will have to allow the Columbia much, if any, time. "From what I read in the newspapers, I had been led to believe that the Shamrock had an extremely broad mainsail, with a boom anywhere from 112 to 120 feet, but I doubt if it tapes more than 104 feet or 105 feet. Instead of being broad her rig is narrow and lofty, as compared with the Columbia. "Viewing the two boats as they now lay in the dock one is at once impress the smoothness and superior workmanship of the Watson boat. "In making comparisons of this kind it is easy to be mistaken, but judging the two models as I saw them to-day, consider that in light and moderate breezes the chances are in favor of Shamrock, though I look for Columbia to win in fresh or strong winds, expeci-ally over a triangular course.

"There is no question that both boats will be we'l and ably handled, and may the best boat win.'

FOOTBALL.

The Smart Set for October opens with an amusing novelette entitled "The Career of Mrs. Osborne," by S. Carleton and Helen Milecete, the latter the author of "Miss Vandeleum." ter the author of "Miss Vandeleur, Pirate," one of the successes of last year. The present story narrates the adventures of two charming young women who escape from tiresome country relatives and take an apartment in London under the fictitious chaperonage of "Mrs. Osborne." Their escapades, their many devices to avoid detection and their final disposition of "Mrs. Osborne" are highly diverting.

ONTARIO CROPS

John E. Riley of J. J. Riley and Sons of Vancouver B. C. Tells of his rip I hrough this Province.

Mr. John J. Riley, of Jas. J. Riley & Sons, who has just returned from an extended trip through Ontario, in conversation with a "Star" reporter recently, gave a report of the outlook in Ontario, which is not so bright as one could wish.

Janesville, Wis., Sept. 20.—Addie La Fave, a soubrette with A Breezy Time company, will lay claim to the estate left by John La Fave, hermit, who resided near Powers, Mich., and whose relatives cannot be found. Miss It would appear that the Ontario armers have had a bad year. All crops except hay, according to Mr. Riley, are very light, especially wheat, oats and apples, not only light in yield, but in weight and quality, father and that he had separated wheat in most sections not weighing over 55 lbs. to the bushel. The southover 55 lbs. to the bushel. The southern part of the country has suffered most from dry weather. Between Port Colborne and Windsor, taking in Jaroff the cup challenger. The yacht is Hagersville, Simcoe, Delhi, Tilson not to come out of drydock until Tuesburg, St. Thomas, Glencoe and Ridgeown, the wheat will not average ten bushels to the acre. The poor wheat crop is a bad blow to the flour milespecially those who after hard > up altogether, enough only being ob-tainable for local requirements. The canners also are grumbling very much; the total pack is certain not to be over 50 per cent of what it was last year, and, as a consequence, very much higher prices must be looked for, especially in peas, corn, apples and raspberries. The bean crop in Kent county and vicinity is almost a total dustry has not been as profitable to the farmer this season as last; the make is a little less, and the price for cheese for some little time past has been fully a cent a pound below last year's level. No doubt a chief reason of this is that the quality is not up to the average, July and the first half of factory men to attain the best results in making and shipping to seaboard. in making and shipping to seaboard.

Mr. Riley further said that leading experts claim that the crop of apples will not reach 45 per cent. of last year's yield, the quality available for export being at the than for many years. Fruit do lars and speculators are paying from 3! to $3 per barrel on the trees, which means that in cars the trees, which means that in cars on railroad track they will cost from $2.75 to $3.75 per barrel.

The only the that the farmer is happy about is the price of hogs; for the best quality the price for some months past has been 7c, a pound, and months past has been 7c, a pound, and at this figure many farmers acknowledge making a profit of 50 per cent.

In concluding, Mr. Riley said he would like to sound a note of caution to the wholesale merchants not to overstock the retailers; the Ontario farmer this season will watch the spending of his dollars very carefully, and in most cases all luxuries will be and in most cases all luxuries will be dispensed with.—Vancouver News-Ad-

he New President and the Old Cabinet

Washington, Sept. 20 .- After a sur pension of three days as a mark of respect to the dead President, the business of the Government at Washington was resumed at 9 a. m. to-day. The train bearing President Roosevelt and the members of his cabinet arrived at the Pennsylvania station at 9.20 o'clock, and 10 minutes later the President entered the White House, and going at once to the elevator, proceeded to the cabinet room, where President McKinley was wont to do the greater part of his work. When the new chief executive reached the White House, he walked briskly to the big front door, which swung wide open to receive him. He spoke pleasantly to the watchmen and other employes of the mansion, and reaching his office, was joined almost immediately by Secretary Long. Soon afterwards Senator Collom called to pay his respects, and following him came Senator Proctor, one of the Presi-dent's close personal friends. Secre-tary Long informed the President as to the condition of affairs in his office this year's presentation. The audiand was asked as to the work of the Schley court of inquiry. Editor and Pastor Drumm, of hames ville, isk s falmage in rand.

The Thamesville Herald, vigorously edited by Rev. A H. Drumm, well known in Chatham, publishes a leader under the caption "Talmage and The article is as follows :-

"I wish that the policemen in Buffalo who seized the pistol of the scoundrel who shot our adored President, had taken the butt of the weapon and dashed the man's brains out on the spot."

The words are not the utterance of an escaped lunaite. They are not the words of a professional anarchist; though they read like the frothings of one of that ilk. No; they were uttered at Ocean Grove, N. J., on Sunday last by Rev. Dewitt Talmage, and ten thousand people, it is said, applauded Seriously; is Talmage one whit betthe sentiment. ter than Czolgosz? Is it to be swon dered that anarchy is making headway n the United States when a man p Talmage's pretensions gives utterance to such lawless and unchristian language, and is applauded by a congrega tion of so-called Christians?

It has long been well known that Dr. Talmage's opinions carry no weight whatever with scholars; but he managed to get the pull and inside news syndicates so that his utterances are sent broadcast over the worldnore's the pity-and he does influence Czolgosz did wrong? Undoubtedly! He was a misguided man. But what of Talmage? People suppose-whether the supposition is well founded or not-that at some time Talmage read and studied the Sermon on the Mount. What influence has it had upon him Did he ever read the prayer of this Master when he was being nailed to the cross? "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do!" What nfluence has that prayer had upon him, that he should give expression to such utterly, heathenish and diabolical language?

God defend us from all such reli For Presidenti McKinley we express our sincere sorrow, and we respect him all the more for his noble utterances regarding the assassin. For the assassin we have a deep pity Wrongs there are; wrongs that need righting. But they cannot be righted in this way.

For Talmage, on the other hand, w have a supreme contempt. His are the words of a traitor to his Lord, and those of a coward as well. Rest assured that if Talmage had been be-side Czolgosz when the shots were fired he would have knocked the negro "bi Jim" Parker over in his hurry to get out of the music hall.

Almost Miraculous Cure of Mr. Thos. Warren,

Paine's Celery Compound

A POPULAR DRUGGIST INDOR-SES THE LETTER.

The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited Dear Sirs,-Ten years ago I was laid up with a bad cold contracted at the time of the big flood here. The cold developed into inflammatory rheuma-tism, and I was laid aside for nearly six months. I recovered, and was able to work for a time, when I was again seized with the terrible disease. I kept getting worse and suffered the most intense agony. My elbows were partially drawn out of place, and my knees were swollen to nearly double their natural size.

Words fail to express what I suffered, and for days at a time I could not get out of bed nor move myself, During all this time I was under the care and treatment of one of our best physicians, but he did not seem to be able to relieve me and I kept gotting

Believing that the doctor's medicine was not producing any good, I decided to give, it up and allow the disease to take its course. I grew weaker and weaker every day from the pain, and felt that there was little hope for me. Having read about Paine's Celery Compound I decided to give it actrial, After the second week I began to im-prove, and on the 20th May I was able to resume work. I have been working every day since, and am quite well at the present time. I continued the medicine until the middle of August, when I had used in all six bottles. Its effect was magical and permanent, and I consider it a wonderful medicine. I would advise any person who is af-flicted with rheumatism :to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial.

Yours respectfully, THOS, WARREN. Cornwall, Ont. This is to certify that I have known Mr. Thomas Warren for about thirteen years, and that he has been a great sufferer from rheumatism. In fact on two occasions, when suffering intensely from pain and being so reduced in strength it hardly seemed possible that he could recover. It is true he began to recover with the first bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and continued until he seemed perfectly well.

Another dink in the chain, that will some day bind the two English speaking peoples together, has been forged. This time it is a great national sorrow that brings them into sympathy with each other. At the beginning of the year one British nation was forced to see her, who had filled the highest post of the land for a period almost as long as the life of the oldest of her subjects, pass over to the great unknown. Pass away after a crowned with that noblest crown of all-completeness. Our great Queen lived till the last sands of life had passed through the glass, lived till her body was completely worn out in the service, lived till she herself must have felt that she had done all that it was possible for one to do in the space of a human life. Then she left us and no one was ever more truly mourned for. But there was no regret in this sprrow of the British nation. Ours was rather the sorrow that one feels when he loses that which he is accustomed to look on as permanent, the sorrow one feels when he sees that, which he has learned to love from infancy, pass How different from the wild sorrow of the great American Republic, a sorrow mixed with shame and disgrace. That arch-monstrosmodern civilization, anarchy has added another to her long list of victims. This time it is one of the most upright and noble char-acters of the hemispheres. The late President McKinley was not only a statesman whose worth was recog-nized by the leading lights in statecraft of the old world and the new but also a man whose private life was irreproachable. And it is for this that we love him, we who are not statesman.

The American people do not yet know what McKinley has done for his country. History is too recent. But glancing over his term of office find that he took charge of the reins of government at a time when the anti-British feeling was becoming very rabid and was being |encouraged by those holding responsible posts from the people. In a short time, too, he had a foreign war or his hands. It only has to be remembered that Spain was a conservative country among conservative countries, and that the United States was regarded as an interloper and an upstart, to understand the tact requir ed to carry the States successfully we find the British engaged in a war that was very unpopular with a great many American citizens-that

H-ALTH Y BABIES

Watchful Mothers Can Keep Their Babies Heal hy, Rosy-Cheeked and Happy.

Nothing in the world is such comfort and joy as a healthy, hearty, rosy-cheeked, happy baby.

Babies can be kept in perfect health only by having at hand and adminis-tering when needed some purely vegetable, harmless remedy, and of all this class of medicines Baby's Own Tablets are conceded to be the best.

For constipation, colic, diarrhoea, simple fevers, sour stomach, teeth-ing babies, indigestion and sleeplessness, these tablets are a really wonderful cure. You can give them to the smallest baby without the slightest fear. Dissolved in water, they will be taken readily. They contain absolutely not a particle of opiate or other injurious drugs. They are small, sweet lozenges that any baby will take without objection, and their action is prompt and pleasant. They will tone up the whole system and make the little one as hearty and free from infantile disorders as any mother could wish. Mrs. Walter Brown, Milby, Quebec, says: "I have never used any medicine for baby that did him so much good as Baby's Own Tablets. I would not be without them." This is the verdict of all mothers who have used these tablets.

They cost 25 cents a box. All drugists sell them or they may be secured by sending the price direct and the Tablets will be forwarded prepaid. The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Dept. T., Brockville, Ont.

Compiegne, September 20.-Emperor Nicholas exercised the prerogative of an autocrat to-day and kept President Loubet and all the French occupants of the Chateau Compiegne marking time the whole morning until he had signified his desires. It was fully expected that he would drive to Pierre-fonds and visit the castle, and that afterward he would go shooting in the great park attached to the Chateau Compiegne. All the arrangements had been made and, 500 pheasants were brought specially last evening and let loose in the covers.

But he did nothing of the kind. His Majesty remained in his apartments after breakfast, quietly until 10 o'clock when he took a short promenade in the gardens.

After returning to the chateau the Emperor had a long interview with M. Waldeck-Rosseau, the French premier. It lasted at least two hours. Court Lamsdorff, the Russian foreign minister, also conferred with M. Del-casse, the French minister of foreign affairs. It is whispered that the principal subject of the two interviews was the commercial relations between France and Russia.

CORDON OF BAYONETS. After giving it to be understood that he would arrive at Pierrefonds the Czar left the chateau with the Czarina in a Victoria at 3 o'clock, with no escort except a few detectives on bicycles, who kept discreetly in the background, thus giving him the il-lusion of a private drive and the life of an ordinary mortal. Measures were taken within the park, however, that absolutely precluded the approach of any stranger. In order to test the measures taken to safeguard his Majesty's person during the drive five detectives were instructed to attempt to enter the park last evening under over of darkness. In every case they were captured before getting inside

TEXAS...

The Oat ario and California Oil Company have secured the option on the control of the stock of the "Blue Bonnet Oil Company" of Golveston and Beaumont, Texas, owning va'uab'e oil lands on Spindle Top Heights, about half a mile from the famous Lucas "Gusher," which has been gushing liquid money at the rate of seventy thousand burrels per day; also three more blocks of valuable oil lands at Sour Lake, Diamonds Mound and close to the Town of Beaumont—al. In the very richest oil-bearing lands so far discovered in Texas. The Blue Bonnet Oil Company and its directors are highly endorsed by Walter C Jones,

The above advance is gratifying to the Company's Directors and Shareholders, but is only an exmest of what may be expected in the Ontario and California Oit Company, and looks small when compared with some other oil stocks which have actually advanced from fifty cents to two hundred dollars per share. JOE'S WIFE.

Dr. Ford was travelling home in the twilight after working hard all day, tired and anxious as to the result of an important operation performed that morning. The mud separated up from the streets as he rolled along, and the chilly November drizzle gave to the trees a forlorn, al-most ghastly aspect. His heart warmed as he pictured to himself a wife watching for him with a welcome smile from their cozy parlor. dinner ready, and a long, restful evening before them. But as he drew near home no cheerful light streamed from door or window. All seemed as dark and deserted as the dripping street. He duty it was to hold the horse on his professional rounds, and flung open the door with an irritated, injured tender smile; no sympathetic voice; no firelight; no dinner apparently. Elinor! he called. No answer.

Elinor! This time a voice spoke out of the darkness-a tired voice:

Do be more quiet, John; the baby is just going to sleep.

Confound it! Why isn't there a light here? And why isn't the baby asleep before this time of night?

He has been fretful all day with his teeth, and I have not had a chance to change my dress.

A wailing voice from the nursery sent the voice hurrying thither, and the doctor, with some inaudible words, proceeded to light the gas and take off his wet overcoat. The house was cold; the parlor had evidently been arranged by Hiberman hands; an odor of something burning stole in from the kitchen. A pleasant recep-tion for a man after a long day's

He ran up stairs with no gentle His wife sat by the nursery fire; her face wore a weary expres-sion, and she had on the same blue gown which she had donned for break-The baby at length slept in her arms. She held up a warning finger as her husband came blundering in, but already baby's light slumcess of soothing and singing had to be repeated for the fifteenth time. It seemed to the young mother as if

It was provoking to have the little one started from his uneasy dreams again. She knew Bridget would spoil the dinner. . She had been tryng all day to get down stairs to nake the home pleasant with a magic ough here and there. She longed to get anto a fresh gown and brush her hair, but there had been no time for her to do one of these things. Nurse was away with a sick sister, an babies always demanded more from their mothers than from any one else. They are tyrannical and know and seize every opportunity to prove their power over the anxious, half ignorant young mothers, who are happy after all to be their slaves. When at last the dinner bell rang Mrs. Ford laid the baby in his crib, sound asleep this time, warm and lovely in his utter repose. She gave a hurried dab at her wavy hair, caught up a fresh handkerchief and ran down to join her husband, who sat at the table with a decidedly cross look on his face. He barely tasted the soup, then pushed it away in disgust.

Burned ? asked his wife. Of course. Can't you smell it all over the house? Why don't you look after Bridget a little? Why, John, I have hardly been down stairs to-day.

Where's Hannah? She went to her sister's last night. Oh yes; I forgot. What's this? Cold corned beef. Really, Elinor, have you nothing else to offer?

Would you like an omelet? A beefsteak, if you have one.

Mrs. Ford rose and went to the kitchen. The girl of course had just filled up the range with fresh coal, so there was nothing to be done but make the best of the cold meat, potatoes and macaroni, followed by a dessert of apple pudding and cheese. Dr. Ford found fault with potatoes and said he was tired of macaroni; the bread was dry and the butter not perfect. As to the pud-

My mother always had mince pies at this season, said he.
This was the last straw, and his wife, unusually sensitive to straws tonight, could bear no more. It is a pity you ever left your

I think so, too, he responded, pushing his chair back.

His wife hesitated a moment whether to run around the table and burst into tears upon her husband's shoulder or to rush up stairs and have a good cry by baby's side. She decided upon the latter course, and with quivering lip left the room and shut herself up in the nursery, where the fire was dying on the hearth and the baby breathing softly in strange contrast to her overwrought condition. Well it is provoking. Women always must cry and fly into a passion about trifles. But her husband, even as he thought But her husband, even as he thought these words, began to feel repentant. He remembered the teething baby and the long day at home alone. In another moment he would have followed his wife upstairs and apologized for the pain he had given her. But the doorbell rang and a summons to visit a sick man at a distance sent him at once out into the wet night. And all domestic grievances were forgotten before he had driven 200 yards. The patient lived in a squalid part of the town by the river. The dark-ness seemed deeper in this poor neigh-borhood, the rain more soaking and the wind keener. The wind swept sullenly by, a black, swollen tide, re-flecting the flaring lights on the bridge. But the doctor minded this discomfort very little. He was in leve with his profession, ardent and love with his profession, ardent and young. Besides the despised dinner had given him new courage to fight pain and death. He entered the one room of the low house which he had been directed with a face quite free from impa-tience a woman opened the door for him—a lean, miserable creature, with pale eyes void of expression. Her thin hair hung over her neck, her calico dress fell limpy from her sharp shoulders., She started at the doctor as he entered, and he could see there was tears in her childlike eyes. Joe's sick, she said slowly, gazing into his face. What's the matter? He-he's going to die maybe, she No, I hope not.

Joe's sick, she repeated in a whisp-er, shaking her head. Who's come? asked a voice from the bed in a corner of the room. Nellie, girl, who are you talkin' with? It is Dr. Ford, whom you sent for, said the physician, approaching the

One candle lighted dimly the untidy, comfortless place, showing a stove and a man with tumbled hair and rough beard lying among the pillows of his bed. Oh, the doctor, said he, with fever-sh eyes staring from under shaggy How long have you been ill? asked Dr. Ford, sitting down on a rickety chair.

It's a week since I give up, but I've been feeling bad for a long time.

The doctor placed his little thermometer under the patient's tongue and waited silently. Joe's sick, mouned the girl, peering out of the shadows.

The sufferer seemed to be irritated by the repetition of these words and made an impatient gesture, but as he did so glanced pitifully at the slouching figure.

What you need most is good nurs-ing, said the doctor after examining patient.

The man's face darkened. The wonan hovered aimlessly over the stove. She's my wife, said the sick man hoarsely. I know she ain't quite like other folks. But she's peaceable and good; not bold and noisy like some women. I pitied her first off; then I got kind o' fond of her. And she— The girl had crept to the bedside and stood there with her vacant, troubled face, fumbling with the pil-and comforts of all kinds. Dr, Ford drove slowly homeward. Though it was late a bright light shone from the parlor window as he stopped. The glow of a wood fire illuminated the room as he entered. But no one came to meet him. His wife sat in her rocker fast asleep. The lamp shed a radiance over her brown hair and one delicate cheek as she slept with head against the crimson back of the chair. Her face wore a sweet, childlike expression, with a touch of pathos about the lips, and her hands lay closely clasped in the lap of her gown of soft dove

Near the fire stood a white draped table holding a tempting little re-past, carefully arranged. From a slender glass in the midst hung one red rose. The doctor knew she had cut it for him from her favorite plant.

It is divine and you are an angel, Elinor. But, dearest, come and sit by ms. I have just been to see a gentleman. I want to tell you all about it.

IVE thousand dollars reward is offered for Miss Maddison," said the station sergeant, yawning over his last hour on duty, for it was two solutions of the services of the services. o'clock in the morning. "That's a queer disappearance as ever we tried to fathom. A young girl buys a ticket for Chicago, takes a Pullman car, gets to her destination, fees the porter, gets in a street car and is never heard of again. Her aunt telegraphs to know why she doesn't arrive. Her parents telegraph that she left, as arranged. The conductor remembers her, the Pullman porter remembers her.

And, with all that, she drops out of sight like a falling star. She was one of the prettiest girls in Denver."

"And her luggage?" "Was claimed by someone the same day and shipped east."

"So she must have left Chicago."
"Not at all. Her checks were preented, but anyone might have got hold of them. Strange, however, that they truck the right place for finding the trunks, unless they were on the train,

"And the luggage was claimed again?" "No, not until the mother described the contents of a left trunk at Grand Rapids, which had the girl's initials on it. It was one of the trunks just as the mother had packed it. Five thousand dollars reward," and the station sergeant sighed. "I'd like to earn it." I was going to Grand Rapids, and laughingly remarked: "Well, I'll look out for Miss Maddison, sergeant. What did she look like?" The sergeant opened a locked drawer. "Here's a photograph of her," he said. "She's a beauty—at least, she was. I doubt if she's alive." I saw a cabinet portrait of a lovely, frarile-looking, refined girl, with long. slender nose and thin, arched lips, a sensitive, high-strung spirituelle crea-ture, but with nothing of weakness in her features. The great, serious eyes were deep and very beautiful, and half veiled by rather heavy lids. Anyone seeing that face wouldn't easily forget t. "May I have that picture?" I asked, impulsively. "I'll bring it back on my return trip."

The station sergeant laughed. "I got t from a reporter who made a drawing of it for the paper," he said. "But, as you say, I'd recognize Miss Maddison anywhere. She had the loveliest palegold hair, that curled in little rings all over her head, just like a boy."

"You've seen her?" "Certainly. She has often visited her aunt here, and I used to have a beat on the North Side before I got promotion. Miss Maddison spent one whole summer in Chicago, the year of the World's Fair. She was only a slip of a girl then. She was nineteen the day before she disappeared."

"Strange story!" I said, carelessly, but I put the photo in my pocket, and presently strolled to the station to await my train for the East. It was not long before I was comfortably set-tled for the trip and had impressed my porter with the fact that I was a person of consequence. How it is possible to do this I shall not make public, but the porter, a tall and fine-looking nehovered about me with a solicitude which was most soothing.

"We change time at Chicago, porter; what is the right hour?" I asked, as he before me to put in a cinder screen. He pulled out his watch, turning it away from me, and I caught its inner side reflected in the little mirror each day?" I enquired. which was set between the seats, he holding the watch very close to it as he stooped. In the lid was set a woman's picture, at which I stared as if ralvanized. It was a tiny replica of the large photo which at that very moment stretched my breast pocket. What was this son of Ham doing with the of the young Denver lady whose disappearance had raise commotion? Before I could draw breath, the porter snapped his watch shut, said in deferential tones, "Barely a quarter to three, sah," and straightened his tall form, as the cinder-screen slipped into its groove.

"Have you been long on this run, porter?" I asked, carelessly. "Yes, sah; run from Chicago to Detroit for several years now."

"And never further?" "No, sah, I don't know Canady at "Nor west of Chicago, either?" I asked, carelessly still, with my eye on him, as he reached into an upper berth opposite. For just one moment he hesitated, then with a short laugh he answered: "Well, not much, sah. I've run through to 'Frisco several times, and once or twice short trips. This is my regular route." Someone rang, and the porter hurried away, but presently he came back. "You goin' through to Canady, sah?" he asked. "Perhaps so," I said. "If I don't find what I want first." "Oh, you'll find it, sah," he said, with cheery conviction, and made himself busy over his bed-making again. went through to Detroit, after all. I don't know why, except that I hate being routed out at night, and when one has privileges such as I enjoyed it's no matter how far one chooses to travel. At Detroit I gave my man a dollar. "Buy your sweetheart an iee cream," I said, as he profusely thanked me. "My good lady thanks you, sah," he said, merrily. "I'se a married man, "Then what the mischief," said I to myself, "does your wife think of your carrying a white girl's picture in your watch cover?"

As I selected a cigar in the nearest reliable shop, again I thought of the freiable shop, again I thought of the five thousand dollars awaiting an earn-er, and a solution arrived. "He's got the picture for the very same reason I've got mine," I said to myself. "I mustn't go on any bat with this photo in my possession and be searched by some officious bobby!" and I grinned at what my wife would say if she read in the papers that I was a suspected abductor of Deaver womankind.

I had occasion to visit a man whose apartment was in rather an unpopular neighborhood that afternoon, and as we lounged in his sitting-room window I idly asked him what sort of neighbors he had. "Oh, all sorts," he said, cynically. "Poor clerks can't live in swell localities. "I have Jews to the right, and shady folks here and there. They're an inoffensive lot, white, the right, and shady folks here and there. They're an inoffensive lot, white, brown and black." I looked across the road, where some very tidy windows stood open. A small shop occupied the ground floor, and "Room To Let" was the legend on a card in the window. Above were the tidy open windows, and just within one of them hung across a chair a blue coat, gold-buttoned, and a railway porter's cap.

"Very decent nigger and his wife live there," said my Bohemian. "I suppose he's a Pullman porter; he's always apparently in bed most of the day when he's home. Wife's a perfect little dandy, with the prettiest voice. Sings very nicely, and is a good-looker. Not a real nigger; more of white than black.

pulsive. Let's drop the neighbors. They're a sorry lot." I stayed in Detroit for a week, and had business with this man which took me to his rooms again. While there I heard a beautiful soprano voice singing a rather difficult scrap of an opera some five years old. "That's my cream-colored Dinah," said the man, flippantly. "I wish she'd come and water her window-boxes. It's time she looked after them." Just as he spoke the curtains parted and a slim arm came out, holding a small shower watering-pot. The singing woman began to water her flowers, and I could see her small brown face peering down as she carefully showered her plants. Her dark hair lay in little curls upon her forehead, and her eyes looked handsome across the narrow street. When she caught sight of us watching her became mute and drew partly back. "She's a nice little thing, and not bold, as you see," said my client, observing her. "Even these humble folk have the good of life. They took those rooms about three years ago, and I quite enjoy them. Just a tidy pair. He's a great big chap; very good ing for a darkey. See! there he is, at the other window." There he was in his shirt-sleeves, my porter of the train from Chicago. We both drew back, as he leaned from the window and looked up and down the narrow street. The nan at the other window also leaned out, and called to him, pointing to a straggling strand of nasturtiums which trailed nobly independent from her flower-garden. She reached her arm very far out and tried to imprison the You've a room to rent?" I asked the old mother who sold wurst and other delectable edibles. "Yah, mein herr; vater, komm!"

Vater came, and we soon struck a hargain. "I will pay you for a month," I said. "And when I get my trunk I will send it. My name is Jones. Put

"Yah, for ein mark-twenty-fif cent." "Very good. Send it to-morrow morning at eight o'clock," and I betook myself to my small hall bedroom, only separated from the porter's menage by a plastered wall. During the evening I journeyed out more than once, purchasing several things at the queer little shops and grinning as I saw across the way the head and shoulders of my client, propped up in an easy chair. Presently a soft, clear soprano voice began to sing very sweetly next door, and a tinkling accompaniment on a rather fair plano was audible. The woman played and sang with evident culture and ability. And she was the wife of a colored porter! She sang so softly that I didn't catch the words at first, but presently I entrapped a line which was not English. My heart beat quicker. No one can imagine the strength of the impulse that guided me, as I gently set my door ajar and intently listened. The old German frau was going to bed, and she paused before my door.

"You dere, mister?" she asked. "You don'd light de gas?" "No; I have bad eyes. I am resting them after working," I mendaciously explained. 'Dose singin' bees nice?" she asked. "You like dem?" "Yes," I said. "Is it your daughter who sings German." "Ach, no; das ist Frau Jackson.

Ach! She is schmart singer, hein?" and the old woman glided away as my neighbor's door opened quickly and the girl came out.

"You want me?" she called to the retreating German.
"Nod ad all, my chilt; nod ad all. Only I wait to hear 'Du Bist wie Eine Blumchen.' That is nice singin'.' "Good-night,' said the clear, sweet voice-the cultured, white voice! "Guten-nacht, my chilt, Schlafen sie wohl," said the guttural German voice; and I stood in the dark, with many queer thoughts. The girl paused before my open door. 'Is anyone there?" she said, nervously. "A blind man, young lady, who has rented this room to-day, and thanks you for your music.' She shrank into her room timidly. "Oh! I did not know the room was taken," she said, hesitating. "There is a box of mine in it. Shall I send down for the boy to take it out?" "Don't trouble until to-morrow," I said. "It will be quite safe. I shall lock my door, madam." Then she very closed her own door, and the house was perfectly still. And I waited until very late before I cautiously lit my gas and found un-der the sofa bed the box of the porter's wife. It was a very good box, indeed—expensive, and not much used—and on the end were three letters—E. G. M.—which certainly did not spell Jackson! Very early in the morning I arose and went out, and found a locksmith to open a locked trunk. He soon had the trunk open, sold me a key which fitted it, and took himself off before eight o'clock. Then I hesitated, but only for a moment. I had gone too far to resist further temptation. In a trice the tray of the trunk was on my bed, and I was looking at its contents. As a married man, I could appreclate the cost of the fainty things it contained, none of which I dared disturb. I gingerly opened the hat-box. There, tucked in one corner was a dainty gray card-case, which I very carefully took out. Several cards were in it, and on each one was engraved "Emily Gordon Maddison!" I took one of them, hid it in my own pocketbook, and replaced the tray, locked the trunk, and carefully shoved it back under the sofa-bed. I had found what I wanted, and five thousand dollars lay in my inside not usand dollars lay in my inside pocket! After breakfast the boy came for the trunk, which he carried into the next room, and during the day I heard some more singing—such happy carols that I almost thought the whole business must be a weird dream, until I stealthily glanced into my pocketbook at the card. "What under the canopy could have led this sweet young lady to bestow herself upon a nigger?" I asked, furiously. "To leave home and family and associations, and live in a grubby city slum and yet be happy nough to sing in that wondrous way? am afraid when on the second or third norning I heard a deep mellow voice blending with her clear treble I had a nurderous impulse to begin an assault upon a son of Ham!

Before I became solicitor for the railway I had taken five years of criminal practice, and had come across some queer cases. But here was I, by a curous fatality, mixed up in a complication at once weird and interesting to "I shall go to Denver," I said, suddenly, when I had received at my supposed hotel an imperious telegram from my wife, asking when I was coming home to arrange our holiday trip. So on the next evening I boarded a train, and as soon as I stepped into the sleeper I encountered the tall form and dollar smile of my friend the colored porter.

"Evening, sah. Yes, the parlor is vacant. I got a message from town 'bout an hour back," he said, politely. go clear through this time, sah?" "Yes, to Chicago," I said.

and smiled. "Got what you was lookin' for, sah?" I started and stared, then answered thoughtfully, "I think so, John; I think so," for I remembered my words of a fortnight earlier.

"That's good, sah. Tole you you would, you know," and with a low chuckle the porter showed me to my state-room.

I fell asleep as comfortably as old travelers do, and neither dreamed of Jackson nor his white helpmeet. When I wakened hell was abroad. There was a hideous jolt and jar, loud calls and a crash of rending timbers. The door burst open, and the porter shot in, his arms outstretched as he plunged. To gether we fell to the floor, to the roofsomewhere-he over me, and then there was a sickening interval of faintness, which lasted but a moment, and cool night air blowing upon me, and someone deeply groaning close by. stretched up an arm and touched a warm face. "Oh, God! Is that you, sah?" said a deep bass. "We'se wrecked, sah, an' a beam is lying 'cross my back. It's close on good-bye time, guess, for me!' I put up my hand again. "I'm all right, porter, but a cut on the head," I said, weakly. "I shall call out for help," which I proceeded to do with my reeble might.

Then the deep voice went on. "I'se done, sah. This big beam's broke my back. I feel it coming. Oh, God! and Lady-bird's all alone!"

A sudden terror rang voice. I touched his face again. "See here, porter; is Lady-bird your wife," I asked, gently stroking his cheek. "Don't give in yet. Tell me what you want me to do, when we get out of this wreck.'

"Do!" he screamed. "You can't do nothing, sah. She's all alone except for me. She left all of 'em for me, and his voice trembled. "She's an angel, sah, is my wife, sure enough. God help her!"
"Well, she shall never want, John,"

I said, solemnly. "I swear it, and if you—feel so badly—is there anything you'd like me to say to her from you?" Tell her I died worshipping her said, in almost fierce tones. "Tell her if it could be done over again I couldn't do different; but tell her to go back. She'll understand. Tell her if hell lasts forever and I'm in the midst of it. I've no complaint to make. I've had my heaven. Can you reach me again, sah?' I knew perfectly what was coming, and touched, not his face, but his body. "Can you get my watch, sah, and put it in your clothes? Will you take it to her? My address is writter on it, on the chamois case. Will you just give it to her yourself, sah?" "Indeed I will, if you don't get there first," I said, cheerily, feeling in the vest pocket and taking out the watch, "Looks like robbery, porter," I continued, stowing it away in my pocket "See here, if my legs weren't pinned down, I'd try to help you. Now, I am going to call out again-a lantern is coming this way."

My shouts soon brought some scared rescuers, who succeeded in freeing my legs and dragging me from the wreck, when I promptly fainted and was carried to a shed near by. When I came to, my first words were, "Where's the

A man gasped out, "We can't loose him; he's pinned fast. Ain't groaning any more, so I guess he's passed in his checks. Did you know him, mister? Reckon he saved you from that big beam that's lying 'crost his spine now. He was a powerful nigger that, and as white inside as they make 'em.'
The past tense was chilling. "Go and see if he is dead, and if not, tell him to hang on, and that I swear I'll not forget to do as I promised him, and more also."

"Well, don't excite yourself, mister, or you'll go off again. Here's the doc tor was nearest," and away he went. grimy and weary, to take my message. Presently he came back. "Porter's passed out, mister," he said, terse ly. "I went straight to him with your "Good-bye, Lady-bird!" and gin

When I had been put to bed in wayside shack, and another man had gone with a telegram to my wife and yet another to "Lady-bird," and the day dawned on the wreck, the doctor came again. "They have freed the body of your porter, sir," he said. "What do you wish now?"

"Have it cared for in the best way possible. Forward it by special if you can to the nearest undertaker, and then look out for the answer to my telegram. And say, doctor, I have his watch and a message for his wife, which I am pledged to deliver." "Right," said the doctor, heartily.

"For, by design or accident, he certainly saved your life, sir!" "Oh, he meant it all right," I said, with a catch in my voice. "He made straight for my stateroom when we collided, and spread his arms above me. God have mercy on him!" Then I bethought me of my friend the clerk in Detroit, and the five thousand dollars reward offered by the parents of Miss Maddison for information as to her whereabouts. "I'll give him a chance to earn that some day!" I said. "For I don't want to have a hand in the matter till after I have just one talk with the Lady-bird!"

Very soon a nan came in with a wire for me, two, three of them! My wife's first-only three words, "Thank God! Coming." My partner's-"Will be down by special this morning." The Lady-bird's-"Send body to Mrs. Jackson, - Second street, Detroit. Wire when to meet it." Then, for all the horror and the sadness, I slept for hours.

My wife sat at my bedside when awoke, pale but smiling. Only those who enjoy happy married life can guess how our first words and thoughts were intimately personal; but suddenly an idea struck me. Here was my na tural helper in the case of the Lady bird. So, while we sat hand in hand. I told her what you know from this tale showed her the two pictures and en-listed her warm sympathy. "You must go to her," I said, decidedly. "Go to the Cadillac, send a carriage for her, and get that damn stuff off her face and hands. I suppose the hair-dye will take time." My wife put her hand over my mouth: "Don't swear over it, dearest," she reproved. "She shall be beautiful Miss Maddison once more if dearest. there's a face-doctor in Detroit worth her salt. She's my sister or yours, and has run away with a theatrical troupe. Could you stand the disgrace?" I kissed her emphatically. "Julia, you're a trump!" "Not an ace of spades, anyway," said my beaming wife. "I'd adopt a whole nigger family, I am so grateful for your escape—so grateful to that brave, good porter-man. Just He regarded me with reminiscent eye leave it all to me, honey, and you'll see how I can manage." A week after I was shown into a room at the Cadillac, where my wife sat with a slender woman in a crape gown. Her face was pale, and on her small head was a luxurious crop of golden curls, over which that most pathetic of the many crowns of wo manhood, a widow's cap, was perched. To a mere man, ignorant of the barber's art and the mysterious toupee, the change was magical. My wife rose and took the slender woman's hand. "Mrs. Jackson, this is my husband, who has something to tell you. Be brave, my dear sister." she said and kissing the pale cheek of the porter's wife-of Miss Maddison!-she left us

I cannot report that interview bu it is one of the short times I don't desire to live through again. My brain, usually so alert and well-regulated, was simply at loose ends. I was now the blind lodger, now the Peeping Tom across the road, now the man of busi ness, and, above all, the man for whom another man had faced death and beer taken at his word. Mrs. Jackson, being quite unsuspicious, had decidedly the advantage of me. I gave her the watch and the message, the latter as well as I could. Then I dodged her tremulous thanks, her tremulous lips upon my hand, and bolted from her presence in a complete state of demoralization.

"We are going home soon, husband, are we not?" asked my wife, when she had somewhat calmed me. I sent for my friend of Second street and invited him to earn five thousand dollars. Needless to say, he left for the West on the next train with a bee his bonnet and an address in Denver in his breast pocket. In due time a couple of notices appeared in the Der ver papers to the effect that Miss Madon had reached home a widow, having eloped three years before with a ret lover and on his death returned and been welcomed with enthusiasm. My wife and myself advised the Ladybird to keep her own counsel, and she did so, her married life being amply vouched for by my wife-and myself and its details being unknown even to the clerk, who pocketed the five thousand dollars and made his fortune apparently through a chance recognition of the lost girl when in our company in Detroit. We love the Lady-bird dearly, and my wife looks with detective eyes at every porter on the line. One day I visited once more the ser geant of police, and returned him the photograph. "You should have had it sooner had I not been nearly killed in that railway collision," I said, with a wild desire to tell him of my series of surprising experiences.

"Ah well, sir, them that's born to be hanged, you know," said the sergeant, "Now, wasn't it queer that just two months after you and I had that talk about Miss Maddison she should turn up? She saw life, if that's what she went away for, anyway!"

"Aye, and death, too," said I, softly. "And to think how easy that Detroit chap spotted her at the Cadillac. But suppose he got there just in time. They say she was on her way home to her people. Well, there won't be another five thousand dollars lying round for him to pick up as easy. There wasn't much about it in the papers?" he asked, with professional curiosity. "Very little," I assented. "It was just a runaway love match." But all the same, it remains to me a psychic

DECADENCE.

Dr. Talmage Denies the Accuracy of Church Statistics.

MORE CHURCHES THAN BEFORE

Churches Are Frequently Cleared of Their Audiences by the Attempt to Transplant the Modes of the Past Inte the Present -- The Trouble Lays in the Theological Seminaries.

Washington, Sept. 15 .- Most encouraging to all Christian workers is this discourse of Dr. Talmage while denying the accuracy of statistics which represent Sunday audiences as diminishing; text, Hebrews x, 25, "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together."

Startling statements have been made in many of the pulpits and in some of the religious newspapers. It is heard over and over again that church attendance in America is in decadence. I deny the statements by presenting some hard facts. No one will dispute the fact that there are more churches in America than ever before, one denomination averaging two new churches every day of the year. The law of demand and supply is inexorable in the Kingdom of God as it is in the world. More church supplied argues more church privileges demanded. More banks, more bankers; more factories, more manufacturers; more ships. more importers; more churches, more attendants.

In all our cities within a few years churches have been built large enough to swallow up two or three of the old time churches. I cannot understand with what kind of arithme tic and slate pencil a man calculates when he comes to the conclusion that church attendance in America is in decadence. Take the aggregate of the number of people who enter the house of God now and compare it with the aggregate of the people who entered the house of God twenty-five years ago, and the present attendance is four to one: The facts are most exhilarating instead of being depressing. That man who presents the opposite statistics must have been most unfortunate in his church acquaintance.

You are not to argue adversely because here and there a church is de-Churches have their day. pleted. metimes merchandise will entirely occupy a neighborhood and crowd. out the churches and families ordinarily attendant upon them. Sometimes a church perishes through in-But there are no facts to overthrow the statement that I have made in regard to the increasing attendance upon the house of God. Now, I am ready to admit, that there are churches which have been depleted, and it is high time that a sermon be preached for the benefit of young men who are ust entering the gospel ministry and prosperous churches as to what are the causes of decline in any case. If merchandise crowd out a church, that cannot be helped, but under all other circumstances decadence in church attendance is the fault either of the church or of the pastor.

Churches are often cleared of their audiences by the attempt to transplant the modes of the past into the resent. The modes and methods of fifty years ago are no more appro-priate for to-day than the modes and methods of to-day will be appropriate for fifty years hence. Dr. Kirk, Dr. McElroy, Dr. Mason, Dr. De Witt, Dr. Vermilyea and hundreds of other men just as good as they were never lacked audiences, because they were abreast of the time in which they lived. People will not be interested in what say unless we understand the spirit of the day in which we live. All the woebegonish statistics are given by those who are trying in our time to work with the wornout machinery of the past times. Such men might just as well throw the furof our church basements and substitute the foot stoves which grandmothers used to carry with them to meeting, and throw out our organs and our cornets, and take the old fashioned tuning fork, striking it on the knee and then lifting it to the ear to catch the pitch of the hymn, and might as well throw out our modern platforms and modern . pulpits and substitute the wineglass pulpit up which the min-ister used to climb to the dizzy ister used to climb to the dizzy height of Mont Blanc solitariness and then go in out of sight and shut the door after him. When you can get the great masses of the people to take passage from Albany to Buffalo in stage-coach or canalboat in preference to the lightning ex-press train which does it in four hours, then you can get the great masses of the people to go to a church half a century behind the

The trouble begins away back in the theological seminaries. It is a shame that larger provision is not made for ministers of religion, for the sick and the aged and the infirm who have worn themselves out in the service of God. We have naval asylums' and soldiers' asylums for men who fought on land and sea for our country when these men have become aged or crippled, and it is a shame that larger provision is not made for the good soldiers of Jesus Christ who have worn themselves out in battling for the Lord. But lack of provision in that respect makes a tendency to turn theological seminaries into hospitals for sick and aged and infirm ministers. When a man begins to go down, they give him the title of D. D. by way of resuscitation. If that fails, then the tendency is to elect him to a professorate in some theological seminary. There are grand exceptions to the rule, but it is often the case that the profes-sorate in a theological seminary is occupied by some minister of the

who, not being able to preach, is set to teach others how to preach. In more cases than one poorest speaker in the faculty is the professor of elocution. We want more wide awake, more ablebodied, ableminded men, more enthusiastic men in our theological seminaries and in the professorates-men like Addison Alexander, who could during the week teach men the theory of preaching and then on Sunday go into the pulpit and with the thunder and lightning of Christian eloquence show them how. What would you think of a faculty of unsuccessful merchants to train young merchants or a faculty of unsuccessful lawyers to train young lawyers? It is often the case that theological seminaries cut a man and clip him and square him and mold him and bore him and twist him until all the individual is gone out of him and he is only a poor copy of a man who was elected to a professorate be-cause he could not preach, We want less deadwood in the theological seminaries and more flaming evangels. I declare that a man who cannot preach himself cannot teach

Young ministers are told they must preach Christ and him crucified. Yes, but not as an abstraction. Many a minister has preached Christ and him crucified in such a way that he preached an audience of five hundred down to two hundred, and from two hundred to one hundred, and from one gundred to fifty, and from fifty to twenty, and on down until there was little left save the sexton. who was paid to stay until the service was over and lock up. There is a great deal of cant about Christ and him crucified. It is not Christ and him crucified as an abstraction, but as an omnipotent sympathy applied to all the wants and woes of our im- their hearts, the holiness of mortal nature — a Christ who will house, a Christ for the factory, a Christ for the congressional assem-bly, a Christ for the courtroom, a Christ for every trial and every emergency and every perturbation.

Oh, my brethren in the Christian ministry, we must somehow get our shoulder under the burden of the people on the Lord's day and give them a good stout lift, and we can do it. We have it all our own way. It is a great pity if, with the floor clear and no interruption, we can-not during the course of an hour get our hymn or our prayer or our sermon under such momentum we can, by the help of God, lift the people, body, mind and soul, clear out of their sins, temptations and their sins, temptations and I think that ministerial laziness often empties the church of auditors. Hearers, who are intelligent through reading newspapers and by active association in business circles, will not on the Sabbath sit and listen to fire. The pew will not listen to the pulpit unless the pulpit knows more than the pew. Ministerial laziness has cleared out many churches. Still ministers saunter around from parlor to parlor under the name of pastoral visitation and go gadding about through the village or the city on errands of complete nothingness and wrap their brains around a cigar and smoke them up, and then on Saturday afternoon put a few crude thoughts together and on Sunday morning wonder that the theme of Christ and him crucified does bring a large audience, and on Monday sit down and write jeremiads for the religious newspapers about the decadence of church attendance.

People will not go to church merely as a matter of duty. There will not next Sabbath be a thousand people in any city who will get up in the morning and say: "The Bible says I must go to church. It is my duty to go to church, therefore I will go to church." The vast multitude of people who go to church go to church because they like it, and the multitude of people who stay away from church stay away because they do not like it. I am not speaking about the way the world ought to be, I am speaking about the way the world is. Taking things as they are, we must make the centripetal force of the church mightier than the centrifugal.

We must make our churches magnets to draw the people thereunto, so that a man will feel uneasy if he does not go to church, saying: "I does not go to church, saying: wish I had gone this morning. I wonder if I can't dress yet and get there in time. It is 11 o'clock; now they are singing. It is half past 11; now they are preaching. I wonder when the folks will be home to tell us what was said, what has been go-ing on." When the impression is con-firmed that our churches, by archiby sermon, shall be made the most attractive places on earth, then we will want twice as many churches as we have now, twice as large, and then they will not half accommodate the people. I say to the young men who are entering the ministry, we must put on more force, more energy and into our religious services more vivacity if we want the people to come. You we want the people to come. You look into a church court of any denomination of Christians. First you you will find the men of large common sense and earnest look. The education of their minds, the piety of their lives, qualify them for their work. help us in every domestic, social, Then you will find in every church financial, political, national struggle court of every denomination a group Then you will find in every church -a Christ for the parlor, a Christ of men who utterly amaze you with for the nursery, a Christ for the the fact that such semi-imbecility kitchen, a Christ for the barn, a can get any pulpits to preach in Christ for the street, a Christ for Those are the men who give forlorn the store, a Christ for the banking statistics about church decadence. Frogs never croak in running water; always in stagnant. But I can say to all Christian workers, to all Sunday school teachers, to all evangelists, to all ministers of the gospel, if we want our Sunday schools and our prayer meetings and our churches to gather the people we must freshen up. The simple fact is, the people are tired of the humdrum of religionists. Religious humdrum is the worst of all humdrum, You say over and over again, "Come to Jesus," until the phrase means absolutely nothing. Why do you not tell them a story which will make them come Jesus in five minutes? You say that all Sunday school teachers and all evangelists and all ministers must bring their illustra-tions from the Bible. Christ did not when he preached. The most of the Bible was written before Christ's time, but where did he get his illustrations? He drew them from the lilies, from the ravens, from salt, from a candle, from a bushel, from long faced hypocrites, from gnats, from from moths, from large gates and small gates, from a camel, from the needle's eye, from yeast in the dough of bread, from a mustard seed, from a fishing net, from debtors and creditors. That is the reason multitudes followed Christ. His illustrations were so easy and understandable. Therefore, my brother Christian worker, if you and I find two illustrations for a religious subject and the one is a Bible illustration and the one is a Bible illustration and the other is outside the Bible I will take the latter, because I want to be like the Master. O Christian workers, we have got to freshen up. What is the use of our going back in the Christian classics to find an illustration of the victor-ious Christian deathbed when my of Cookinan when, iff his last mo ment, he cried, "I am sweeping through the gates washed by the blood of the Lamb!"

What is the use of going away off to get an illustration when in a house on Third avenue, Brooklyn, I saw a woman dying, and she said,
"Mr. Talmage, heaven used to be to me a great way off, but it now is just at the foot of the bed?" What is the use of your going away off to get illustrations of a victorious deathbed, when all Wales was filled with the story of the dying experience of Frances Uidley Havergal? She got her feet wet standing on the ground preaching temperance and the gospel to a group of boys and men, went home with a chill, and conges tion set in, and they told her she was very dangerously sick. "I thought so," she said, "but it is really too good to be true that I am going. Doctor, do you really think I am going?" "Yes." "To-day?" I am going?" "Yes." "Poutiful I am going?" She said, "Beautiful the gate of splendid, to be so near the gate of heaven." Then after a spasm pain she nestled down in the pillows and said, "There, now, it is all on the Sabbath sit and listen to platitudes. Hearers will not come to sermons which have in them no portant facts, no information, no stirring power, no adaptation, fire. The pew will not listen to the sermons which have in them no important facts, no information, no stirring power, no adaptation, no fire. The pew will not listen to the over—blessed rest," Then she tried to over—blessed rest," Then she tried note, high note of praise to Christ, but could sing only one word, "He," and then all was still. She finished it in heaven. It is high time that the church of God stopped writing apologies for the church. Let the men who are on the outside, who despise religion, write the apologies. If any people do not want the church, they need not have it. It is a free country. If any man does not want the gospel, he need not have it. It is a free country. But you go out, O people of God, and give the gospel to the of America who do want it! It is high time to stop skirmishing and bring on a general engagement. I want to live to see the Armageddon, all the armies of hear ven and hell in battle array, for I know our conqueror on the white horse will gain the day. Let the church of God be devoted to nothing else, but go right on to this trying to conquer the Ethiopians, profane history says, it was expect-ed that he would go in a roundabout way and come by the banks of the river, as other armies had done, because the straight route was infested with snakes, and army and no man had dared to go across this serpent infested region. But Moses surprised them. He sent his men out to gather up ibises. The ibis is a bird celebrated for serpent slaying, and these ibises were gathered into crates and into baskets, and they were carried at the head of the army of Moses, and, coming up to the serpent infested region the crates were opened, and the ibises flew forth, and the way was cleared. and the army of Moses marched right on and came so unexpectedly on the Ethiopians that they flew in wild dismay. O church of God, you are not to march in a roundabout way, but go straight forward, depending upon winged in fluences to clear the way. Hosts o tecture, by music, by sociality and the living God, march on, march on! Church attendance, large now, is going to be larger yet. The sky is brightening in every direction. I am glad for the boy and girl five years old. I think they may see the mil-lennium. The wheel of Christian progress has never made one revolu-tion backward. The world moves, the kingdom advances. All nations will yet salute the standards of Prince Immanuel. To him be glory in the church throughout all ages!

Dover Council.

The council met Sept. 9th. All the members were present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. The following report from the Reeve was read:—

Sept. 9 to the council of the Township of Dover. Having been appointed to examine the Wilcox Oueliette Drain I beg to report that I have examined said drain from the Outlet to the Bear Line. I found the drain finished up to lot 16, and accepted by the Engineer with the exception of a small portion on said lot not yet accepted but I understand accepted but I understand from Mr. Clements, the commissioner there is plenty of money to finish the drain to its proper capacity which I trust and hope will be done. The north branch of the drain is not yet finished. but the work is all sold and money security given for the due performance of the work. I also beg to say that I find on lots 17, 18, and part of 19. this drain is very much destroyed by cattle running down and up the banks, filling the drain so that it greatly destroys its usefulness. I find where there is a fence on one side of the drain, it is in better repair than where there is no fence on either side, that is, where cattle are pastured. I therefore re should even though a certain crop has been found to thrive on it, says American Cultivator. This is too often a short-sighted mistake which sooner or later manifests itself in an un pleasant way. If it is a sandy soil, there is something in it that supplies the strawberries, asparagus or other crop with nourishment. is it that the plants find in the soil to make them grow? This can be found out by ascertaining the special needs of the particular crop. If it is nitrogen, potash or phosphates, a systematic feeding of the soil and chops with this particular form of fertilizer should be made. In this way the soil will not be robbed. A great many sandy and loose, porous soils permit nearly all fertility to leach through, and if this leak were stopped in some way there would be better results obtained with the crops. Such soil may require commercial fertilizers in which the mineral elements predominate, but at the same time they need coarse plant food or barnyard manure in order to a cost $17.50.—Adopted.

An amusing incident happened recently in a bank in one of England's small seaport towns. During the dinner hour the swing doors opened to admit a party consisting of man, a woman, and a tribe of small fry. These, whose voices and dresses proclaimed their rustic origin, after glancing round the building, quietly settled themselves on a velvet settee. Slices of bacon and bread were then produced from a basket and handed round. After these edibles had been distributed, and before the horrified clerk could collect his scattered wits to inquire the cause of this invasion of his territory, the man advanced to the counter holding out a brown jug, and said, in the broadest Norfolk, "Point o' 'earf and 'earf, measter." - They had mistaken the bank for a public house a few doors farther on!

Unlucky Men Are All Alike.

"The unlucky men are all kin; they all have certain qualities alike," says "An American Mother" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "They have eyes keen to look into the root of things, but which also dream dreams and see visions; they have not hu-man blood, they love or hate in no half-way measure. To each of them, too, comes at times—no matter what the business or pursuit may be by which they strive to push their way among men and to grow rich-a sud den disgust of it, heartfelt and real, a contempt for the work and for its success. They dream of something before them better than money or office, and they try to clutch at it. So they go through life, groping for success with one hand and for their dream with the other, and-they lose both. We must choose either God or Mammon as master and keep faith with him if we mean to succeed."

The materials required for washing piano keys are a dish of tepid was ter, a cake of soap and three pieces of clean, thin flannel. Take one piece of cloth and wet it; then rub it over the cake of soap and apply it to the piano—a small portion of the surface at a time. Then wet another piece of flannel, and with this rub off the soap as thoroughly as possible. With the third piece dry the part treated, rubbing it till it shines brightly, and do it all as quickly as possible, that the soap may not remain too long upon the polished surface.
