WHITE GOODS SALE.

HERE'S a certain foolish sentiment, limited to a select few, against buying things that are very cheap. In view of this sale it is in order for such people to strike up Hood's "Song of the Shirt," and for all our competitors to join in the chorus. But intelligent shoppers are not easily misled, and no amount of sentiment can interfere with active business.

As a matter of fact, manufacturers often run at a loss, rather than throw good people out of employment. Good materials are used, fair wages are paid, and things are made-up to be passed into stock and sold to the best possible advantage. Just about that time we happen along. Our ready cash is a temptation. Terms are arranged, the purchase is made, and the goods come here to be sold on the same saving basis as we bought.

Perhaps you object to such methods. Perhaps you prefer to pay high prices and give some merchant a chance to grow rich off your generosity. But the world isn't built that way, and this business isn't run on sentiment. Our aim is now, and always has been, "the greatest good to the greatest number." That means prices as low as possible consistent with good quality. It means looking after your interests as well as our own.

These values are the best we ever offered. No one need hesitate to buy out of consideration for the wage-earners. They were paid well for their work. The loss falls elsewhere—on those who are well able to afford it.

We're enjoying ourselves immensely these days. The sight of great crowds in January and the fact of big sales in midwinter are enough to enthuse even a pessimist. It is possible—easily possible, to maintain the stimulating busy days, and we're doing the best we know how in that direction.

MAIL ORDERS:—The accuracy of our mail order organization during recent years is well known. A blunder occasionally—the means are human—but so seldom that the department is known as having a model system. Success proves it. We shall lift it this year above its own level, so that what has been good service before—far above the average—will be excellent now.
