FOR SALE

A Business and Property.

Situated on the main line of railway, close to station, consisting of two dwelling houses, shop and three stores. The shop is well stocked and doing a good business. Would sell the whole thing together as a going concern. Any merchant at St. John's wishing to own a branch business will never get a better chance. Rabbits are plentiful, also a good piece for a fox farm. Reason for selling is that having been in business for a number of years, would now like to retire. Address "R." Telegram Office. feb6.121

WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XIX.

I have said that the atmosphere was more than chilly; and the master of Holmedean was not one of the favored mortals who look well in cold weather. His always pale face looked almost blue, and the color which should have been elsewhere was in his sharp nose. But, as usual, his tall spare figure was dressed to perfection, and his shingling teeth gleamed as white as ever under his black mustache, and looked as intolerable. His thin fingers were so cold when I took them that a shiver ran through me, and I saw Nat fairly jump when she gave him hers. His manner was as bland and deferential as ever, and his self-possession as complete. Fraser Froude was not the man of moods; he was at once dead polite level at all times and seasons.

"This is a very early visit, Mr. Froude," said Nat, receiving him not too graciously, and not particularly pleased. I dare say, to have her pretty tender dream of love broken by the actual presence of another. Indeed I have not the slightest doubt that, had the little lady strictly followed her private inclinations, she would have boxed the master of Holmedean's ears with all possible promptitude and heartiness. As it was, it was a very reluctant and chilly little hand that she gave him, and she withdrew it from the clasp of his long thin fingers as quickly as might be.

"Not so early that I disturb you, I hope?" Mr. Froude said in reply.

He was so much taller than she—that he stooped in speaking to her, but he need not have made a whisper of it, I thought. Nat dropped back into her chair.

"Oh, dear, no! Ned and I were only staring at the fire and waiting for lunch-time. He is lazy, and I am supposed to do nothing to-day. I am only just down-stairs. Won't you sit down, Mr. Froude?"

"I hardly hoped to see you down at all," he said, complying; and Nat's big bright eyes opened to their widest extent.

"What—because I was foolish enough to tumble over Daphne's head and graze my forehead? Surely you did not think I would consent to be made an invalid for that?"

"I heard a much more serious account of it than that. I understood that you were badly hurt."

"Really!" cried Nat, staring at him, and then at me. "What an exceedingly imaginative person! May I ask who it is that thinks a scratch worth a sensation?"

Eczema Cured Three Years Ago

Best City Doctors Failed, But Cure Was Effected by Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

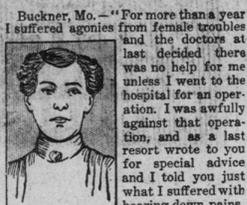

Mrs. A. T. Smith.

"You apply Dr. Chase's Ointment for eczema and feel the benefit as if by magic. It may take some days to get the sores cleaned out and the healing process fully established, but from day to day you can see the old trouble gradually disappearing and know that you are getting rid of it." Charles St. Montreal, Que., writes:—"I had eczema on my leg for four years, and tried many remedies and doctors in Montreal and Boston, without any benefit. I used three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and was cured completely. This was three years ago. Since then I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for irritations and eruptions of the skin, and easily got rid of them with two or three applications. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a wonderful preparation."

MRS. SCOTT'S SUFFERING OVER

Doctors Advised An Operation. How She Escaped Told By Herself.

Buckner, Mo.—"For more than a year I suffered agonies from female troubles and the doctors at last decided there was no help for me unless I went to the hospital for an operation. I was awfully against that operation, and as a last resort wrote to you for special advice and I told you just what I suffered with bearing down pains, backache, shooting pains in my left side, and at times I could not touch my foot to the floor without screaming. I was short of breath, had smothered spells, felt dull and draggy all the time. I could not do any work, and oh how I dreaded to have an operation."

"I received a letter full of kind advice, which I followed, and if I had only written her a year ago I would have been saved so much suffering, for today I am a well woman. I am now keeping house again and do every bit of my own work. Every one in this part of the country knows it was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that has restored me to health, and everywhere I go I recommend it to suffering women."—Mrs. LIZZIE SCOTT, Buckner, Mo.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"No one in particular—I should have known better than to pay attention—only that young doctor fellow, Dizarte's partner. What do they call him? Yorke?"

If Mr. Froude, leaning back in his chair and looking at the fire, as he talked, could have seen the angry gleam of Nat's black eyes as the crimson surged into her face, it might have opened his own a little; but he only added, with a kind of contemptuous complacency which made her long to tilt him off his chair—

"To be sure I might have known that he knew nothing about it."

"As Doctor Yorke was there and picked me up when I fell, I fancy he knows more about it than any one else does," Nat said, tartly—so tartly indeed that Mr. Froude's keen dark eyes shot a sharp glance at her.

"Indeed!" he answered. "He was fortunate."

"I was, you mean, for Ned was almost scared to death. If it had not been for Doctor Yorke, I believe I should be lying in front of Wilde's cottage now."

"Oh, Wilde's cottage!" I am not sure that Mr. Froude did not whisper softly. "Was it there that you all, Miss Orme?"

"Yes. Fortunate for me, wasn't it? It would have been very pleasant if I had come in one of those horrid mud-uddies in the middle of the common."

"And Doctor Yorke was there?"

"Yes, luckily for me."

"He seems to spend a good deal of his time there," said Fraser Froude, trying, looking back at the fire.

"More time than he likes, I dare say. I put in, for somehow the smooth tones of that last speech had grated upon my nerves. "That old reprobate of a Wilde has got the gout awfully."

"Ah, a very long attack! By the way, what a pretty little rustic beauty his daughter is!"

"Very pretty," said Nat, indifferently, leaning back in her chair. "Ned, won't you let madame know that Mr. Froude is here?"

Now this was merely a neat little bit of hypocritical diplomacy on the young lady's part as I knew very well. In the first place, if I ventured to leave her alone with her present companion, I certainly should not bear the last of it for some time to come; and, in the second, Mr. Froude did not particularly seek the stately society of madame when he could avoid it, and certainly had not paid this early visit to see her. Of course he wished me at Jericho, and he gave me an impatient look; but I was sensibly stupid just then, it happened, and would not go.

"What—go after mother just now? No, thanks, I think you will have to excuse madame this morning, Mr. Froude. She and mademoiselle are up to their eyes superintending the puddings."

Miss Nat's diplomacy had its effect. Mr. Froude rose from his chair and took up his hat.

"Pray don't trouble Madame Chavasse for me. I came only to see how Miss Orme was. I am beyond measure relieved"—this to her, with one of his sudden gleaming intolerable smiles—"that the account I heard was so absurdly exaggerated."

He took himself off with that, not seeming to notice how the little lady bit her lip, or what a flash her great velvety eyes sent after him. Watching her, I laughed.

"Charming man, isn't he, Nat?"

"Ugh!" she cried, shrugging her shoulders, vindictively. "I do believe he is the most unbearable creature on the face of the earth. I wish he'd go and smile at mademoiselle instead of me. Impudent thing!"

"There would be a charming couple of them then. I say, young lady, I hope you are grateful to me for not going to hunt up madame?"

"Rather! You are a dear boy, and very clever—for a boy. Oh, dear, I wish it were luncheon-time! I'm getting hungrier every minute. Oh, what's that?"

She knew, and she forgot all about being hungry as she dropped into her chair again, turning her suddenly rosy face away, and trying to steady the two slender brown hands which she clasped in her lap. The smart gray horse which Roger Yorke always drove had a step of his own, and we were both familiar with it. I said nothing as I got slowly out of my chair and with an elaborate yawn stretched my arms over my head, but I wondered if it would not be as well if I went and tried to pave the way a little with a few words to madame. I thought it would. I had been useful just now, but I should be decidedly in the way presently, and I approached the door with a highly successful assumption of sauntering indifference. I do not think I have ever been more astonished in a small way than I was when the door opened, and there walked in—not Roger, but old Dizarte!

CHAPTER XX.

What on earth had brought him; had the good-natured old blunderer the innocence of his heart, packed our Roger off to Market Waford? I wondered, starting with a disconcerted blankness. But surely Yorke would never be such an idiot as to go! I looked round at Nat. Judging from the expression of her face, we were a self-possessed-looking pair. And old Dizarte, rosy, bluff, and burled-up, beamed blandly upon us both, and observed with charming inconspicuousness that it was a cold day.

"Freezingly cold, wouldn't it?" he said, pulling off his woolen gloves to hold his plump hands to the fire. "A fine winter we shall have, it strikes me! Ah, you young folks are in luck, with nothing to do but sit by the fire and enjoy yourselves! And how are you, Miss Natalie? A fine fright you gave us yesterday—or one of us at any rate."

"I am quite well," Nat returned, all the red color flying back to her cheeks again.

"Ah, that is what you children all

The Quickest, Simplest Cough Cure

Easily and Cheaply Made at Home. Saves You $2.

This recipe makes 15 ounces of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $2.50.

Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually stops the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take—children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, sore lungs, asthma, throat troubles, etc.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents) worth in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Pinex is one of the oldest and best-known remedial agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in galic acid and all the other natural healing elements. Other preparations will not work in the formula.

The prompt results from this recipe have endeared it to thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully. A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Subjective to Objective.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Did you ever realize to what an astonishing extent pleasure and pain, desire and dislike, are subjective rather than objective? I have found that is, produced by our own minds and our own condition rather than by external objects? Suppose I make that more concrete. For two or three years I have been telling everybody about the indescribably delicious orangeade which I once bought at a little corner grocery store in a small country town. A few weeks ago I chanced to visit that town again and, of course, I hastened to the little corner grocery store to see if they still had the magic drink. They did. I ordered a glass and waited eagerly, but when I lifted it to my lips what was my astonishment to find nothing but very ordinary orangeade, not so good as that I could buy in the city any time. Surely this was not the same thing I had had there two years ago. I asked. They insisted it was the very same, made by the same man, with the same materials, and brought on witnesses to convince me, while I listened in unbelief.

And so three-quarters of the pleasure I took in that orangeade was subjective and not objective. Again at the end of a vacation at a primitive summer resort where the attendants were of the kind that seem to be making an effort to push up through your anatomy, I spent a long day, journeying in the open air, and stopped at night at a rather nice little inn. I never slept in such a soft and luxuriant bed as that little inn afforded me. So impressed was I by its comfort that I actually asked the manager of the hotel the make, and was surprised to find that it was a most inexpensive affair, far inferior to those in my own home. You see the softness and luxury were in my mind and in my condition of weariness rather than in the bed.

Surely you have had similar experiences, when you attributed great charm or lack of it to some object and found after all that most of this feeling was subjective. And don't you imagine that very often the same thing is the case when we don't find it out or admit it to ourselves? For instance, our admiration and desire for some expensive article we think is caused by the beauty and desirability of the article. Isn't it often merely subjective and inspired by our knowledge that the article desired by other people, in other words, is in the style?

And again I wonder how often love itself is subjective, and is inspired more by the lover's desire to love, than by any wonderful charm in the beloved. But I am afraid that is a dangerous subject and I had better stop right here.

Ruth Cameron

Are the Fly and Mosquito Dangerous?

The fly, with spongy feet, collects the invisible germs of diseases, spreads them over our food and poisons us with typhoid and cholera. The mosquito with its bite injects into our veins malaria and yellow fever. The bacteria of consumption, or grip, are everywhere present for us to breathe into our lungs. The blood which flows through our veins and arteries is our protection. It should contain healthy red and white blood corpuscles—capable of warding off these disease germs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood medicine and alterative made entirely without alcohol, a pure glyceric extract of bloodroot, golden seal, Oregon grape root, queen's root, mandrake and stone root, which has enjoyed a good reputation for over forty years. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives life to the blood—the vital fires of the body burn brighter, and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which has accumulated during the winter.

M. MAGUIRE, ESQ. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are for liver ills.

Fashions and Fads.

For early spring wraps, crepe meteor and charmouse are used. The prettiest are lined with printed chiffon.

Some of the newest veils have hexagonal meshes and hand-run borders—the borders to be worn high on the hat.

A lovely boudoir robe is of a shell pink charmouse with a half girdle of turquoise blue velvet holding it in place.

Metal woven tissues are seen with metal, combined with such dark colors as taupe, mordore or dark currant red.

The oriental note is seen in some of the new white silks. Sometimes it is in the shape of Chinese brocade trimmings.

Some of the newest linen weaves have borders of a curious openwork in crossover pattern. Ecu is a favorite color.

Gray, beige, amber and a great deal of white are among the most favored shades for day wear the coming season.

Immense satin roses—two covering the space from the girdle to the shoulder—are seen on the most recent evening gowns.

Dark evening gowns are a pleasant change from the delicate hues, though it is doubtful if they ever obtain a very great vogue.

A dark blue crepe gown had a dull gold butterfly ornament fastening its high girdle and giving the only color to the whole.

Enchanting little coats are being made of a heavy sponge-like cotton printed in vivid colors to wear with the new lingerie dresses.

Small hats are certainly having things their own way for the first of the spring season. A great many are of black or blue satin.

Double collars and cuffs appear on the spring coats, the overcollar and cuffs being of a vivid color, like mustard or Wilhelmina blue.

New dresses of white serge and white satin have the serge carried up above the girdle, where it ends exactly as if the skirt were very high indeed.

We shall not have to part with the lovely brocades, even in summer time some of the newest fabrics are of cottons, brocaded in the same designs as velvets.

Dark currant red, deep coral, geranium and rose will be favorite colors; also the vivid greens, such as emerald and myrtle. Bottle and lettuce leaf green are also liked.

Some of the most striking novelty cottons are closely patterned in East Indian colors—dull reds and blues—and the borders to these cottons are broad, very decided stripes.

Half-season hats are being made with crowns and upper brims of flowered taffeta, covered with chiffon, and this again covered with shadow lace—all to get some evasive, desired tone.

A strong flavour of the Japanese is coming again into the fashions; some of the new gowns have folds of net laid inside their V-necks, like the kimono linings, and also they have flowing sleeves.

A Strange Disappearance.

Sir Roger Curtis, the well-known English baronet, succeeded to the baronetcy fourteen years ago under strange circumstances, his father, Sir Arthur Curtis, having disappeared in the Klondyke. Sir Arthur left a station on the C.P.R. in June, 1898, with an expedition to the goldfields at Klondyke, but got lost during the journey. Search parties were organized and Eventually a skeleton was discovered which was said to be that of the missing baronet. On this evidence the Probate Court gave leave to presume his death, and Lady Curtis married Colonel Robert Brady. This gentleman subsequently succeeded his uncle, Sir Francis Brady, in the family baronetcy, but died not long afterwards. Just ten years after Sir Arthur's disappearance came a tale that he was still alive, and living a hermit-like existence in a remote part of British Columbia, the reason given for this course being that he was overburdened with troubles and wished to hide himself. The story was not substantiated; and, indeed, there is little reason to doubt that he died on the way to the Klondyke.

Puzzle to Neurologists

Hospital Physicians unable to diagnose case of a Shamokin, Penn., man who barks like a dog.

Philadelphia, Jan. 26.—After twenty-four hours' observation physicians and surgeons at the Medico Chirurgical Hospital have been unable to make a satisfactory diagnosis of the case of Fred Saunders, the Shamokin, Penn., man, who at times barks like a dog, though conscious and apparently in his right mind.

Prof. T. H. Wisenbarg, neurologist of the hospital, and the members of the medical staff confess that they are perplexed. The only thing they know is that the barking started 27 years ago, when Saunders, aged 7, was accidentally hit on the forehead with a baseball bat by Jack Stivets, who afterward attained a reputation as a pitcher with the Brooklyn National League Club.

Saunders recently got a position driving mules, but had to give it up because his barking frightened the animals.

Bowels Bad, Liver Torpid, Cascarets.

If Constipated, Bilious, Headachy, Stomach Sour, get a 10 cent box of Cascarets—take one to-night.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have back-ache and feel worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never gripe or sicken.

A Close Call From Drowning.

Last evening, Dr. M. C. Roberts and Mr. John Dooley, cabman, had a hard experience, while driving to the city in a sleigh from Portugal Cove, where the physician had been on a call. As a result, Dooley has lost his horse although is thankful to have saved his life. As darkness had set in when the party were returning to town, and the roads were not in good condition, Dooley decided to shorten the distance by going over Round Pond. This was attempted and it was not known that the ice was too thin until in the middle of the pond when the horse and sleigh went through, as did also the occupants. Dooley managed to jump clear, but Dr. Roberts was not so fortunate at first, and had a narrow escape from drowning and was only rescued by his holding on to the side of the sleigh grim death. Dooley's horse was struggling hard for its life but the weight of the sleigh was preventing it from being rescued. P. and E. Gladney, W. Murphy, P. Caul, P. Hall and W. Thomas rendered assistance and Mr. Dooley expresses his thanks to them. After considerable difficulty the animal was extricated and brought ashore where it perished in the course of a few minutes.

The loss to Cabman Dooley is rather heavy. Only a few weeks ago he lost a fine beast and periodically during the past couple of years has been unfortunate in losing horses.

Notes and Comments.

The Grabbals Must Go!

The country has had enough of the Morris Government, and people want a change.

What is more, the electors have made up their minds they will have it, and have it they will next fall.

A great number of petitions from F.P.U. Local Councils were presented to the House of Assembly last spring, asking the Government to go to the polls in the fall.

Sir Edward Morris in setting forth his refusal to go to the country last fall, took exception to the statement that there was alarm in the country at the expenditure of the Government. He denied also that in introducing the Railway Resolutions that he had assured the country that the branch railways would be completed by a charge of $4,000,000 to the public debt.

Sir Edward claimed that he made no estimate of the cost of right of way, of fencing, of stations, of additional rolling stock. But why did he not mention these matters? Why did he suppress them? Why did he not tell the people that the cost of railways up to date had been $19,000 a mile?

The proposition Sir Edward Morris was dealing with, in introducing the Railway Resolutions in 1910 was not the PARTIAL cost of the Branch lines but the WHOLE cost. His words themselves make that clear. He said: "Now, Mr. Chairman, the Committee is entitled to know what our branch railways are going to cost, and how that cost, or the interest upon it, is going to be met without increased taxation." How does this thesis square with the position he advanced two years later, that he meant to deal with only part of the cost?

How does it agree with his statement, that "when all these lines are built, the interest on the cost, which we shall have to pay, will be $140,000 a year." How does it agree with his query, "Can this Colony afford $140,000 a year for five branch railways?" There is no intimation in these remarks and queries that Sir Edward was dealing with part of the cost, but there is a clear assumption he was deliberating on what he was putting forward as the whole burden, viz.,

$140,000 the interest on the $4,000,000 as the total cost.

Nay, more, he elaborated on the assumption that $140,000 a year would be the total annual burden on branch railway building. Did he not say: "But on the basis of fifty miles a year, what interest charge will the Colony have to face? It will be as follows: 1911 $23,000 1912 56,000 1913 84,000 1914 112,000 1915 140,000

"The whole of the branches will then be completed, and the question must naturally arise, what will the revenue be in 1915? Will it be sufficient to meet the charge of $140,000 &c." Then he argues the revenue will be sufficient. And in his argument he again insists that the total annual charge will be $140,000 a year for he uses these words: "And seeing the outlay for interest on the branch railway construction will be ONLY $140,000 a YEAR."

Now, inasmuch as before 1915, the country will be called upon and as a matter of fact has already been called upon to pay in part, for right of way, fencing, stations, and additional rolling stock, why did Sir Edward Morris leave out the cost of these items, which, according to his later showing would add some $4,000 a mile to his estimate of cost, and $70,000 extra to the annual burden for the new construction. The only conclusion we can draw is that Morris has not made good with the country in these matters, and that he cannot be allowed to go on after the fall with the administration of the country's affairs.

The express, which left here Thursday last for Port aux Basques, and which could only get to Millertown Junction, got back early this morning to the city. The train had fifty passengers on board some bound for local points on the West Coast and others to connect with the Bruce at P. aux B. These were kept on the cars since Friday and were fed at the expense of the R. N. Co. On returning here they embarked by the Invermore which left here at 12.30 p.m. The passengers say that after the down-pour of rain Saturday last, the track was covered for miles with water which froze in the night and turned to ice.

Terrible Accident

While George Morgan, of Manuels, was in the woods near his home this morning, he slipped and fell on a stump. A thick branch of this went up under the tip of the left ear, tearing the flesh off the face and inflicting terrible injury. The man lost much blood and was attended to when he arrived home. He was driven with speed to the city by Mr. R. Hibbs, Dr. Anderson had to put a number of stitches in the wounds.

Here and There.

FROM WESTERN PORTS.—The S. S. Fortia is returning from the Westward. She left Marytown at 9 a.m. to-day and is due to arrive here to-morrow evening.

DID NOT COME.—The Redeemptorist Fathers who will conduct a Mission here, did not arrive by the S. S. City of Sydney, as expected. They are probably coming by rail.

DOCKED AT BARBADOS.—The schr. Nellie M. is being docked at Barbados and will receive a sheathing of copper and other repairs there.

LARGE FISH SHIPMENT.—The S. S. Westward sailed to-day for Mediterranean ports taking thirty thousand quintals of fish, in cases, shipped by the Newfoundland Fish Exporting Co.

COLD SNAP.—It was cold to-day across country and the weather gives promise of a frosty snap. The mercury dropped to 10 below zero this forenoon at the Quarry.

FRESH BEEF SHIPMENTS.—A large consignment of dead beef arrived by the City of Sydney to-day and is welcomed by our local victuallers whose supply was running short.

SAILED TO-DAY.—The s.s. Invermore sailed for Sydney to-day taking a large mail and several passengers. The ship arrived here at 5 p.m. yesterday and had fine weather on the run. The ship will return to Port aux Basques when the R.N. Co. hope to have the road open, and trains running regularly. The ship will then run across the Strait until ice prevents her continuing the service.

MISSED HIS PASSAGE.—This morning M. Mallowney, of Bay Bulls, came to the city to take passage by the Invermore to Boston, and left his valise on the sidewalk a few minutes while he went into a store. When he came out his valise was gone but he found it later with a man who picked it up for safety. It contained clothes to the value of $50 and the man was glad to get it. He, however, lost his passage.

These doctors represent but a fraction of the thousands of physicians who use Postum in place of tea and coffee in their homes and in their practice.

Cases of shaky nerves, irritable hearts, indigestion, biliousness, headache and sleeplessness, due to tea or coffee drinking, are observed in the everyday experience of medical men everywhere

Following the change from tea or coffee to Postum, the ailing one quickly discovers that the Doctor's advice to "quit tea and coffee and use Postum" was sound.

CHAPTER IX.—THE IRISH EMIGRANT.

Being young and somewhat impetuous, I was one of the first to get on shore, and when once the ship's company scattered, even small as the town was, we never all really saw each other again. But the friendships formed on the voyage were cherished very closely, and many of us were neighbours and friends for thirty or forty years, and a few are still living. I did not have much luggage, not any worth while; a few pounds in gold slung around my neck in a bag, also a carpet bag and a small chest. These were my worldly belongings which I brought with me to Newfoundland. I did not have much, but I had good health; I had the faith of my fathers; I had youth and vigour, and all these I have endeavoured to keep; so that while I did not bring wealth to the country I brought the best I had, and I have given the best I had; and now though past seventy, I have still good health and vigour.

On going on shore I did so with the intention of looking around for a place to stay, and also of finding employment. The fishery was as its height and at that time there was abundance of fish around the shores and coasts, almost in the harbour. Of course I was not a fisherman. I had come mostly from rural life; and though somewhat used to a harbour and the sea, and to shipping, I did not know anything about it. Several of us came in the boat together and landed at one of the wharves some where about the market house hill. It was very strange to us indeed, and we again wondered if we had made a mistake, or what the end would be. We made enquiry for work, and much to our delight we found there was plenty to be had, and there was no occasion to be idle. Thus it was that within a day or so after landing, I found myself employed at the fish-mooring with an engagement for the summer months for my board, or diet, as it was called, and so many pounds for the term.

I got on very well at the work, and the days and weeks of summer passed as I began to feel a little more settled, and so did many of the others who came. But there was one drawback that I did not like, and which I think hurt Newfoundland, and has a tendency to hurt it still. It was the custom of truck. It was a bad system, but much of it is now gone. (1870).

My next thought was to get a letter to my home in Ireland, and so in the early fall a chance offered, and I sent home the first message to my people. Hundreds like me did the same, and many a tear was shed on these letters, and many a heartbreak was endured. For although we had had a very nice summer, there was still a feeling of exile. We were here, but all that we had loved and known was far off in old Ireland across the sea. By the time the summer was passed and I had been paid off, I had learned a little about Newfoundland, and I was quite satisfied that I had come to a good country where there was good health and bright sunshine and rich fisheries, but I had not seen the silver. Even the truck system seemed to have dimmed the vision of silver.

So with good health and the money I had brought from home with me, and the twenty pounds that I had shipped for, and with plenty of work of being, and a chance of work for the winter, I had good news to send home, and I felt that whatever Australia would bring my brother, Newfoundland would be equally as good to me.

I was Irish to the core, and firm in the faith of my fathers, but still I felt the safety of the British flag; I felt that while it flew from Dublin Castle, it also flew over Australia, and was flying over Newfoundland, and that under the folds of the Union Jack I would have protection and safety in my new found home; I would make an honest living, and without doubt get a little property, and this I have done.

Though I have worn canvas clothes and a moleskin jacket, and I have only been a working man getting three shillings a day (60 cents), and am not rich and did not get any titles or position as my brother won in the far off land of gold, I have had health and my own humble fireside, and am able to say that in my fifty years of toil about the wharves and at the fisheries, I have helped to build up St. John's from the small straggling town which I found it, to the fine city which it now is. (1870).

Such may be taken as part of the story of my old friend whom I knew well, and who always impressed me as being a kindly and good-natured person. As I stated in opening the story, it really contains the facts of three or four persons, all of whom I knew, and all of whom came from Ireland, and had long passages in small sailing vessels. I have told it as I know how, and have done so for the purpose of showing what our forefathers endured in their endeavour to colonize Newfoundland.

As a suitable ending to this class of story I will add one chapter more in which I shall give an account of how our old friend and others like him spent their first winter in St. John's, and then we will turn westward again and find our third story.

Stop Coughing

It's quite as foolish as it is annoying to keep on coughing since Phoratone Cough Mixture is guaranteed to soothe and heal the irritated parts at once, and to rapidly destroy the very cause of this aggravating nuisance. Hundreds of persons are complaining every day about the cough or cold they have had for a long time and are not able to get rid of it. Don't let a Cough or Cold hang on to you day after day and run the chance of catching and developing the Cough that is not easy to get rid of. You will avoid all this unnecessary worry (about the cough or cold you have) by obtaining "Phoratone Cough Mixture" at once.

wharves and waterside stores on the south side. The three public wharves were very much damaged and will need to be attended to at once. Another wharf owned by the Messrs. Taylor was also very much battered and partly destroyed.

The K. E. Brigade are holding a Pancake Party, at their Armoury to-night. Dancing will be indulged in until 11.30 o'clock.

On Saturday evening as Mr. Archibald Noseworthy, of the South Side, mail carrier, was going across with the mail he had a rather bad experience. He was crossing the ice which was made bad by the sea and rain, and had a difficult task in getting along. When near the shore he went through and got a cold bath. Like all true mail officers he held the mail bag over his head, determined to protect that while he could. At last he succeeded in extricating himself, and half-frozen and scarcely able to walk he made his way home. Mr. Noseworthy is a good officer, very obliging and kindly, and his friends are glad no serious accident occurred. Even a mail carrier, while doing his duty can be obliged to earn the esteem of his fellow citizens.

Harbor Grace, Feb. 4, 1913.

Stand Them Down.

There's trouble in store for the gent who never salts down a red cent, who looks upon the cash as veriest trash, for foolish extravagance. Since money comes so easy to-day, he thinks 'twill be always that way, and he burns up the seeds with the rollicking lads and warbles a madrigal gay. His dollars are drawn when they're due; and rather than salt down a few, he throws them with jests, at the robin red breasts, with riotous hallelaloo. I look down the scurrying years—for I'm the descendant of seers, and the spendthrift desery when his youth is gone by, an object of pity and tears. I see him parading the street, on weary and ring-boney feet, a-begging for dimes, for the sake of old times, to buy him some suerkraut to eat. I see him abandoned and sick, his pillow a dornick or brick; and the pecker comes by with a vulcanized eye and swerts him for luck with a stick. I see him when dying; he groans, but his anguish for nothing atones! And thy cart him away in the dawn cold as I gray, to the place where they bury close bones. Don't burn up your money, my friend; don't squander or foolishly lend; though you say it is done, and regret not its loss 't's a cent 'rt and staff in the end.

Special to The Evening Telegram. LONDON, Feb. 5. Margaret James was sentenced today to six months' imprisonment.

HAVANA, Feb. 5. A general strike of truck drivers began this morning, paralyzing traffic.

LONDON, Feb. 5. Rt. Hon. Sir John Gordon Sprigg, four times Premier of Cape Colony, is dead. He was first elected in 1869.

LONDON, Feb. 5. The Express says that the whole Cabinet were set sneezing by simultaneous receipt of letters containing red pepper.

PARIS, Feb. 5. The Seine continues to rise and is now at danger level. Precautions are being taken, rescue parties organized and boatmen instructed to be in readiness.

LONDON, Feb. 5. The Government, and Atlantic steamer lines are arranging for equipping vessels with powerful wireless apparatus to patrol the ice regions, and report. The cost will be shared between them.

PARIS, Feb. 5. The Chinese Loan will likely be carried through by a group of bankers, without the co-operation of France, and one or two of the Powers, despite the protest of France through the Ambassador at Peking.

LONDON, Feb. 5. Sylvia Pankhurst has been sentenced to two weeks' imprisonment or a fine of $10 by the Bow Street Magistrate, for participating in the raid on the Commons, together with 19 others, under the leadership of Mrs. Drummond, on January 23th.

LONDON, Feb. 5. The Constantinople correspondent of the Times says that all attempts to raise a foreign loan have failed. A new Serb-Bulgarian agreement has been concluded, under which Monastir will go to Serbia, as compensation for assistance to Bulgaria on the Tchetatja lines.

LONDON, Feb. 5. The bombardment of Adrianople ceased temporarily at 11 o'clock last night; the allies offering the Turks 24 hours to capitulate. One division has advanced a mile nearer Adrianople. A Bulgarian aeroplane, yesterday dropped proclamations into the city, inviting its surrender.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 5. Forty-eight hours' bombardment of Adrianople has resulted in eight inhabitants being killed up to this morning, 10 wounded, and 50 per cent of the houses set on fire. Skutkri Pasha, commander-in-chief of the fortress, says 128 common shells and 11 shrapnell had then fallen.

VIENNA, Feb. 5. The Austro-American Shipping Co. has decided not to cut passenger rates between Trieste and Canada, in order not to artificially stimulate emigration. The rate will remain at 165 kronen. The C.P.R. rate has, however, been reduced to 140 kronen.

LONDON, Feb. 5. Last night the Nationalists saved the Government from defeat over the Welsh Disestablishment, the majority being only 23. Even with the Irish vote the victory was only won by speakers spreading their speeches while the whips were busy. Ultimately the second reading was passed.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5. The model of the first cruiser stern built liner for the Canadian Atlantic Service, was set up in the lobby of House yesterday. The "New Albatian" is expected to be on the Quebec route in July. She may be converted into an armed cruiser in time of need, is 17,500 tons, and of 18 1/2 knots speed.

TOKIO, Feb. 5. A most exciting time was witnessed during the disposal of the Japanese Diet to-day, after a vote of censure on the recently appointed Premier, Prince Katsura's Government, had been carried. The exits were thronged with people who cheered the members of the Constitutional Party when they assailed Saburo Shimada and other so-called members of the National Liberal Party. They were thrown out of their rickshaws, and attempts were made to duck them in the canal, but these were frustrated by the police. The session was suspended for five days. It is expected that Katsura will immediately dissolve the Diet and call a general election; meanwhile retaining office. The order for the suspension of the session was issued by the Emperor himself.

It was ordered that the interrogatories go.

Nickel's Fine Bill.

The Nickel Theatre had usual holiday audiences yesterday, and all were highly pleased with the excellent quality of the entertainment. The Pathe weekly was an artistic treat and of itself were worth seeing. It shows the King and Queen of Sweden, visiting the Kaiser, the Sicilians fleeing before the lava, the visit of King George to Scotland and his hearty reception; then Cardinal Gibbons is seen celebrating his jubilee, the parade of Church dignitaries is an interesting one. "Where the Money Went" is a domestic drama amusing and exciting. "His Secretary" is a great drama which "Bannister Morwin" made famous. It is a story which appeals to all and one which never tires. Mr. Thomas sang "My twenty-one to-day" again to the delight of all. He will be heard in a new song this evening.

A New Invention

Which Will Revolutionize Motor Engines.

NEW GLASGOW, To-day.
Kerosene may now be used in the FRASER gasoline engine, same as gasoline and with equal results. Mr. Thomas Fraser, President of the Fraser Machine & Motor Co., has just announced to the world that after two years of research and experiments he has found the secret of carburetting kerosene into vapour equal with gasoline, and that his invention can be attached to all FRASER ENGINES which will give the same results with kerosene as formerly with gasoline. Mr. Fraser will claim the prizes offered by the different societies in London and Paris for an invention to use a cheap fuel to supercede gasoline owing to the high price of the latter which now sells in European countries at two shillings per gallon.

To Visit Ireland.

Some twenty members of the B. I. S. have got together and formed a club with the object in view of having its members and others who wish to join, go on an excursion to Ireland after the Home Rule Bill becomes law. After the annual meeting of the Society the matter will be taken up in earnest by the club and each will pay in at stated periods a designated sum as a fund to defray expenses. It is a movement which should be very popular in the Society.

We have just opened a new line of perfumes which we shall sell on draught. A splendid variety floral extracts, remarkably true in odor and very rich and lasting. You can have almost any floral perfume you want in this line, at the very reasonable price of fifty cents an ounce. Among the names of these perfumes, the following are some of the most popular: Violette de Parme, Carnation, White Lilac, Lily of the Valley, Sweet Pea, Crab Apple Blossom, Wallflower, and Ess. Bouquet, and there are some others.

One Hundred Thousand Say 'Tis So.

Of all the engines in the world, Fairbanks is a beauty. 'Tis guaranteed for years to stand, and always does its duty; and now we'll have our readers know, and let them duly note it, one hundred thousand say 'tis so, and to it they're devoted. Fairbanks never yet went wrong, nor couldn't it be tried in 'tis durable, 'tis neat and strong, the rest are 'fools' beside it. So if an engine you would buy, 'tis up at BARR'S you'll get it; and you may bet it now, my boy, you never will forget it.

Bid Brides Keep House.

Those who think that a career ruins a woman as a home-maker should read her experience as told recently by Mrs. Marie Hemstreet, formerly private secretary to Lyman Abbott, now, besides her reputation for poetry, famous as cook and housewife.

"How can I make my husband happy when I don't know how to cook, nor make a bed, nor propel a vacuum cleaner?" she queried, tearfully, at her wedding.

"Fudge!" replied her best friend.

"I don't know," was the tremulous answer. "I believe some people think so."

"Then use your intelligence. An intelligent woman can solve any problem that's solvable."

Mrs. Hemstreet learned to cook and is proud of her self-taught accomplishments. "I am more proud of a good dinner than of any verses I ever wrote," she said, the ring of conviction in her voice. Like all other women who think rationally, Mrs. Hemstreet has a message to other women. It is this practical one:

"A woman needn't stay single because she has never learned to keep house. If she uses her intelligence she can learn to do the work well. She may even be better prepared for it than the girl who has been pottering around the kitchen all her life. She will have no bad habits to unlearn. For the girl who is untrained it holds interest and novelty. That will furnish a certain zest and excitement. She will be interested in it. She won't be so liable to think of it as drudgery, as will the girl who has been at it all her life.

"Every woman should start a home, be it ever so small, when she marries. It is the only place in the world where she can be independent. There's no other place, restaurant, store, office, factory or friend's home, where we are not under orders.

"I think I can best help girls who want to marry, but are frightened at the prospect of keeping house, by telling them of my own experience. I was the daughter of an army officer, and was born in a western garrison. My mother had never kept house, nor had my grandmother. So I inherited no equipment for home-making. I married a man whose work kept him busy from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 2 in the morning. Those ghastly hours I spent in learning how to cook.

"There was no one to give me cooking lessons. With my cook book on my knees or at my elbow, I sat and studied the strange pages. When I thought I had absorbed enough theory I started on the practice, and by the time my husband returned I had our breakfast or supper ready. I kept up this cook book study and practice for two years. At the end of that time our friends began to praise my cooking. I got a reputation of which I am proud, for I learned it literally by midnight study of the cook book.

"And it was well worth while. Cooking is not drudgery. It is a vast and interesting branch of household duty. It is the backbone of the household.

"I would advise every young wife to learn cookery by cooking, and I would advise her to be her own cook.

"Being your own cook saves waste in three directions. First, there is the waste of the cook's wages. Second, there is the waste of her food. Third, the waste of her cooking. For if you use your own materials in cooking you can and will save much that the cook is likely to throw away. There is a fourth waste—that of your own nervous energy. I have a friend who keeps a cook and when she gives a dinner she does four-fifths of the work. She prepares her own salads, makes her own salad dressing, makes her own dessert, sets her own table. If she did it all she would know it was being done right, and her face would not wear the trained, worried, 'I-wonder-what-the-cook's-about-now' look.

"Then there is the waste of time in teaching cooks your way of doing things. Why conduct a kindergarten in the kitchen when you want to be with your husband? There is a reason better than all these for knowing how to cook and doing your own cooking. It pleases your husband. A good dinner stands highest in the list of how to keep him.

"Learning to cook adds to the interest of living. I think we would better adopt the old-fashioned standard of living in one respect, that is, every woman a housekeeper and cook. I hate clubs, but to help a friend out I acted as marker and general factotum at her euchre club, and what I heard convinced me of the need of that standard. The women were all married and each one spent at least four afternoons a week at cards. It failed even to promote a social spirit in them for I heard them complaining of the prizes. One said: 'We might as well have stayed at home if this is all we get.' As well, thought I, 'a thousand times better, especially for the sake of your homes.'

"I do not believe a woman should be housebound. But I know that if she systematizes her work she need not be. I do all my own work, because I wish to, in an apartment of seven rooms, and I have trained myself to finish all my work and be ready for my bath by 11 o'clock.

"I bathe and dress and am ready at 12 to go out and meet my friends, go to the market, shop, or do whatever errands are connected with housekeeping. Foresight and forethought will simplify housekeeping. For instance, cooking meats and vegetables en casserole will provide you with food by noon of one day until 5 o'clock the next. At 4 o'clock I am ready to come home. Dinner takes on large proportions in my life. It is a big event, the helm, so to speak, in the home ship. If I happen to be at the beach, I may not want to leave the shore, but I want more, to have a good dinner for my husband as soon as he gets home. I have had four hours for outdoor exercise, for social recreation, and that is enough. Our husbands don't get so much.

"I don't like to be baffled by a situation, and I am glad housekeeping did not baffle me. Any woman can conquer the housekeeping situation by the use of her intelligence. Intelligence will teach her how and foresight will make housekeeping easy.

"No bride need board because she thinks it cheaper. Better have a little home and save on household supplies.

"Another reason for being your own cook and housekeeper is that housekeeping is the best of exercise for women. If I awake in the doldrums and have a fancy for staying in bed, I get up, go about that house attending to this or that, and in an hour I am feeling as well as I ever did in my life."

Attack Gallipoli Forts.

Special Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-day.

The Bulgarians are devoting their entire attention to attempt to capture the Gallipoli Peninsula, so as to take the Turkish Forts in the rear. An official despatch, issued at Constantinople, indicates the Bulgarians have been successful in their first operations in the latter quarter. According to a Sofia despatch, the capture of Gallipoli is the chief object of Bulgarian ambition. For the time being no serious attempt will be made to force the Tchatalja lines. The same despatch says the Bulgarian attack on Gallipoli is supported by the Greek navy in the Gulf of Saros. If fifty thousand Bulgarians can capture the Turkish forts, there is nothing to prevent the Greek fleet entering the Dardanelles, where, in the opinion of Naval officers, they could easily defeat the interior Turkish fleet, in which case Constantinople would be at the mercy of the Allies. The statement, attributed to the Greek Premier, that peace will speedily be concluded, tends to confirm the report in European capitals. The Turkish Government is, however, evidently in dire straits for money, even attempting to dispose of Crown jewels and making a desperate attempt to place the Treasury bonds in Turkey, Egypt and among Moslems in India. The Ottoman Consul to Bombay claims to have applications for bonds amounting to $5,000,000. Large reinforcements of some 70,000 men have been sent by the Turks to Gallipoli Peninsula. The army in the Tchatalja lines has been reduced to 120,000 men.

Narrowly Escaped Drowning.

Tuesday night late in the midst of the storm which raged the watchman at Franklin & Co's premises had a narrow escape from death. While going his rounds he was thrown overboard with the force of the wind and clung to the shores. His cries for help were heard by the captain of the Westward who rescued him after much difficulty and in the nick of time as the man was much exhausted.

Fell in Pond.

Yesterday afternoon as Jacob Summers was going over Island Pond, near Topsail, with a load of wood which his horse was hauling, man and beast got out on the thin ice unwittingly and went in. Summers did his best to get out and clinging to the load when his cries attracted men from the foot of the pond who hurried to his aid and rescued him and the animal in an exhausted state. John Mercer and his horse also went through the same pond in the forenoon and these also narrowly escaped drowning.

A Horrible Campaign.

Special to Evening Telegram. DUNDEE, To-day.

Five postmen were burned, several of them seriously, by the combustion of chemicals contained in letters. As one postman returning from the evening collection of mail from mail boxes emptied his mail on the sorting table in Post Office, the contents instantly burst into flames. A large number of envelopes contained tubes of phosphorus and other highly inflammable chemicals. They were addressed to Premier Asquith, with sheets of paper within, inscribed "Justice for women."

Give Us Bread, But Give Us Roses, Too.

Give us Bread, but give us Roses too. "Bread for all, and roses, too!" is the motto of the Chicago Women Trade Unionists. It is thus interpreted by James Oppenheim in the American Magazine:—

As we come marching, marching, in the beauty of the day,
A million darkened kitchens, a thousand mill-lofts gray
Are touched with all the radiance that a sudden sun discloses,
For the people hear us singing "Bread and Roses, Bread and Roses."

As we come marching, marching, we battle, too, for men—
For they are women's children and we mother them again.
Our lives shall not be sweated from birth until life closes—
Hearts starve as well as bodies: Give us Bread, but give us Roses!

As we come marching, marching, unnumbered women dead
Go crying through our singing their ancient song for Bread:
Small art and love and beauty their drudging spirits knew—
Yes, it is bread we fight for—but we fight for roses, too.

As we come marching, marching, we bring the Greater Days—
The rising of the women means the rising of the race—
No more the drudge and idler—ten that toil where one reposes—
But a sharing of life's glories: Bread and Roses, Bread and Roses!

As we come marching, marching, we bring the Greater Days—
The rising of the women means the rising of the race—
No more the drudge and idler—ten that toil where one reposes—
But a sharing of life's glories: Bread and Roses, Bread and Roses!

Harbor Grace Notes.
To-day being Ash Wednesday, services were held in the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches.
In the guessing contest at the K.E. Brigade Armoury, last night, the five-storey cake was won by Mr. L. Ash, he making the nearest guess to the number of peas in a jar.
The Pancake Party at the Brigade Armoury last night, was well patronized and a most enjoyable affair it proved to be. There were "rings" around to find out who secured the buttons, many of the latter not turning up. Several old maids surprised themselves by getting a ring; they could scarcely believe it. Dancing was indulged in after the party had partaken of the seasonal dish, and kept up until 11.45, when all retired to their homes, tired out no doubt, but happy.
The solo rendered by Thomas Hanrahan, Esq., at the Knights of Columbus Ball on Friday night, last was very highly spoken of by those present; as it helped in no small way to make the social gathering the great success that it proved to be.
Miss L. Davis, teacher of the South-side, while crossing the harbor on Tuesday morning, fell through the ice and was rescued after much trouble and taken to the home of a friend.
The Please U. closed last night with a very nice selection of pictures, pretty songs well sung by Mrs. Jones and others. This theatre will open again after Lent.
A car load of hay arrived to the Agricultural Society on Tuesday. Mr. Munn, who has the distribution in hand thinks there is some mistake in this car load, as it is of inferior quality. It is said that quite a large quantity of hay is now on the road between here and Port aux Basques. Cattle owners generally are anxious to get their hay along. Hurry it up, Mr. Reid, and save people from grumbling and cattle from suffering.

Wedding Bells.
O'NEIL—CURTIS.
A happy and interesting event took place at Long Beach, on Tuesday, Jan. 7th, when Josephine O'Neill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Neill, of Long Beach, was married to William Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Curtis, of Trepassay.
The Rev. Father Renouf officiated, the wedding taking place at the residence of the bride's father, at 8 p.m. The bride was handsomely attired in a princess dress of fawn and carried a pretty bouquet of white flowers, and was attended by Ellen O'Neill, her cousin, Margaret Myrick, Ellie F. Curtis and Annie Molloy. The bridegroom was supported by John O'Neill, brother of the bride, assisted by Nicholas O'Neill, her cousin, George Wadleton and Jerry Molloy.
About one hundred guests assembled, and after the ceremony sat down to daintily laid and well filled tables, after which dancing and singing were vigorously indulged in throughout the night and well into the next day—everyone enjoying themselves to the utmost.
On Saturday, Jan. 12th, the happy couple left Long Beach for their home at Trepassay, where they were welcomed by numerous friends and relations who passed the night happily dancing, etc., which was continued until the "wee sma' hours." The presents were very numerous and of a useful character.

Vics'-Crescent Match.
To-night's hockey match between the Crescents and Victorias promises to be a stiff struggle and ought to prove of more than ordinary interest to the onlookers. In the last meeting of these two teams a splendid exhibition was witnessed and it is hoped that to-night's match will be no exception. The ice was never seen in better condition than it is at present, so that a fast game is looked forward to.

Another Night Prowler
Breaks into Holy Cross Schools, Uses Matches and Endangers Building.
Yesterday morning when the Christian Brothers teaching the schools at Holy Cross, Patrick Street, opened the building they were surprised to notice that the place had been entered the previous night by some marauder who was bent on theft and was especially on the quest for money. The class rooms in Brothers Hearn and O'Flanagan teach were given special attention, and the fellow, whoever he was, ransacked the building pretty thoroughly. Matches were scattered over the floors of the class rooms showing that he used them to afford light while he went through the place. He "prized" open the presses in which books and requisites for the pupils are kept, burst open a safe in his search for cash but received little or nothing in this line for his pains. He, however, stole several things such as a gun from the Armoury where the Holy Cross squad of the C. C. C. drill, and on looking through the building the Brothers discovered that he entered by raising a window on the ground floor at the rear. Leo Byrne, son of Mr. Peter Byrne, of the Reid No. Co., at 8.30 Tuesday night saw a light moving through the building and said he distinctly saw the form of a man passing through the school rooms. Last night at 8.30 this boy with another named McDonald went to the neighbourhood of the schools in hopes of again witnessing something untoward and were not disappointed. The boys saw a man come from the rear of the building out to the front gate and wait. He wore an overcoat and down peak cap which he kept well over his eyes. The lad Byrne stole away quietly from his companion and gave the alarm at the Western Fire Station, Officers Day and Bussey responding. The fellow evidently became alarmed when he noticed the boys absence from the neighbourhood, and the lad McDonald who was with Byrne says he escaped by getting through the fence in the rear of the building. When the officers arrived he had vanished. Prowlers had also been observed late at night on the more quiet streets of the higher levels and in some cases such scamps have tried the doors to basements and rearways with the idea of gaining an entrance.

Furness Liner's Experience
The Furness Liner Almeriana, Capt. Fairclough, reached port yesterday afternoon after a very stormy passage of a fortnight from Queenstown where she put into for repairs to her machinery after being a week out from Liverpool to this port. After leaving Queenstown the ship met terrific weather. A succession of strong westerly gales, accompanied by heavy seas, were encountered and for nearly a whole week the ship was "lay to." She was badly buffeted but came through without mishap. She brought a large mail and six hundred tons of cargo.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT.—There was quite an amount of drunkenness evident in the city last evening, but no disorder and the police compelled most of the men to go home. A man who had a ticket to go to Sydney and tried to board the train at 6 o'clock which was bound only as far as Millertown Junction. He had to be ejected by the police and was found tying in a lane off Water Street at 7:20 p.m. insensible from alcohol. He was brought to the station.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Yesterday forenoon, Mr. Frank Poland, of the Queen Hotel, Queen Street, was passing up Water Street when he became suddenly ill and fell to the ground. By passers took him into Mr. John Thistle's Shoe Store where he was quickly attended by Rev. Father Pippy and Dr. Scully. He was later conveyed by D. I. Collins to the Hospital where in little over an hour he departed. Death was due to heart failure. Deceased was in his 69th year, and was well known and respected. To his widow and relatives the Telegram extends its condolence.

Body Of Fred Janes Found.

A SAD HOME-COMING.

The search for the recovery of the body of Fred Janes, the younger victim of Saturday's awful tragedy, was continued all yesterday forenoon. About 12:45 Diver Squires went down in the vicinity of where it was supposed the lad met his fate, and after groping the bottom for about a half hour, found the body and came to the surface with it. The corpse, which was recovered midway between the buoy in the harbor and A. Harvey & Co's wharf, and several yards from where his companion's body was found. After being taken out of the water it was wrapped up in canvas and brought ashore in a boat to the King's Wharf, where the police took charge of it. The body was left in the boat for nearly an hour gazed at by hundreds of people, until Constable Tucker, who was the senior officer present, arrived with a stretcher, placed the corpse, partially covered, upon it, and with three other officers, walked through Water Street with it, followed by a large concourse of people and placed it in the morgue. This mode of procedure was adversely criticized by onlookers who thought that the authorities should have some sort of conveyance at hand instead of carrying a corpse through the streets semi-exposed. The body was examined at the morgue and was confirmed by Undertaker Bursell and taken to the home of the parents of deceased. The scene was then a particularly sad one as Mr. and Mrs. Janes are heartbroken over the loss of their son. The funeral takes place to-morrow afternoon from Barter's Hill.

Lenten Services
The services at the Cathedral and St. Patrick's Churches yesterday were well attended by large and devout congregations. At all the early Masses the Blessed ashes, emblem of penitence and a reminder of man's comparative nothingness, were distributed to the faithful. At 10 o'clock High Mass was sung by His Grace the Archbishop. At 7:30 in the Cathedral there was Rosary, Sermon and Benediction. At the Cathedral His Grace the Archbishop preached and spoke of the utility of the proposed Ecclesiastical Seminary and the great benefit it must be to the Church in Newfoundland. At St. Patrick's Rt. Rev. Monsignor Roche preached a very eloquent sermon appropriate to the season. At each Church after Benediction thousands of people performed the devotion of making the Stations of the Holy Way of the Cross.

Not Yet Arrived
The schr. Adriatic, to which the Telegram referred a couple of days ago has not yet arrived from Sydney, though out 14 days. Unless she harbored at some out of the way place on her way from Sydney, it is feared some mishap has befallen her.

Improved Demand Looked For
The Board of Trade have received this letter from Messrs. Lind and Couto, of Oporto:—
"Since we last wrote there has been very little doing in our market owing to the Christmas and New Year Festivals. There has been a moderate demand since the beginning of the year, but chiefly for a Norwegian cure, owing to its lower price. We look for an improved demand shortly in view of the approach of the Lenten season."

Good Looks And Good Temper:
A Chat With Our Lady Readers.
Have you ever noticed how miserably and unhappy the little pains and aches make one? A stinging cut, badly chapped hands, a nasty burn, a sore foot, a poisoned finger—none of them wounds or ailments ever likely to cause trouble, but bad enough to put an edge on one's temper and give one a "grouch."
Take this advice. When in pain from any of these everyday evils, just use Zam-Buk. As soon as you put it on to a sore, a cut, a burn, or any skin injury, it stops the pain and the smarting, and starts up healing. Don't think that because Zam-Buk is so widely used by medical men, by nurses, and for serious skin diseases and accidents it is only for serious cases. Keep it handy in the kitchen, the workroom, and use it immediately you get some injury or have some sore.
Mrs. Chas. H. Barrett, Harmony Road, Truro, N.S., says: "I had an ingrowing toe nail, which caused me acute agony. Sometimes the pain was so severe I could not sleep. It became so bad that I feared blood-poisoning had set in. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and bound up the sore toe with it. In a few days it was much easier, and I continued the treatment. The result is that to-day the toe is sound, and I have no more trouble with it. I strongly recommend Zam-Buk to every housewife."
Zam-Buk is just the thing, too, for the children. Pure in its composition, and herbal in nature, it is suitable for the most delicate skin. It cures piles, eczema, varicose ulcers, cold sores, abscesses, blood-poisoning, ring-worm and all similar skin diseases. Sold everywhere at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfd., upon receipt of price.

Special Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Feb. 5.
The Bishop of Birmingham says that there is danger of overstrict adherence to the rules of abstinence. Sometimes Anglicans take them too literally. He hoped that some day the Church would deal with the whole question in the spirit of the present age. All he asked for now was judicious observance. Selfish luxury should be avoided.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 5.
Military experts believe that serious operations on the Tchatalja lines are unlikely at present. The southern portion of the zone between the belligerents is little better than a morass, and it is not probable that the exposed higher ground will invite either side to action. Much confidence is placed in Enver Bey, and Sherket Pasha is displaying exceptional organizing qualities and personally supervising the military arrangements.

SOFIA, Feb. 5.
General Savoff has addressed an order to the Bulgarian Army, declaring that the Turks object in the negotiations was merely to gain time, but the Bulgarians utilized the time to prepare a better advantage. We are now entirely ready and in a better state of preparedness than before the declaration of war, said the General, and in order to break the enemy's resistance, we shall have to overthrow him once more, and dictate terms of peace on the battlefield. The Turks must be driven beyond the seas.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.
"I cherish the earnest hope that our gathering may emphasize the cordial relations we know to exist between Britain, Canada and America," wrote King George in a message read at the annual dinner of the Pilgrims. Other messages read by Toast-Master Joseph H. Choate were from Lord Roberts, Sir Thomas Lipton, Admiral Beresford, and the Private Secretary of Queen Alexandra. Several hundred private citizens of England in this country joined in the banquet. Mr. Choate, speaking of international differences said that there was nothing that could not be settled by the direct application of the doctrine of good faith and honest dealings with one another.

LONDON, Feb. 5.
Special, but unostentatious precautions are being taken to prevent any untoward happening at Buckingham Palace. If disorderly women attempt to give trouble they will have a warm reception. The Palace is in direct communication with both Scotland Yard and Wellington Barracks, which are close by. Military protection can be increased at a moment's notice. The women have done their utmost to obtain the necessary passports to the Court on Friday evening, and officials have been instructed how to act in the event of a suspicious stranger presenting himself or herself for admission. The staff of uniformed and plain clothes police will be greater than ever before.

He Found Them No Faith Cure.
But, Dodd's Kidney Pills Cleared Out W. F. Black's Scintia.

He was in agony when a friend gave him a box. Now he recommends them to everybody.

Newcastle, N.B., Feb. 5. (Special).—In these cold fall days when the chill winds crystallize the uric acid in the blood and cause the pangs of Rheumatism and Sciatica to bring sleepless nights to many a home, a man's best friend is he who can tell his neighbor of a sure cure for his tortures. Such a friend is Wm. F. Black, of this place. He suffered from Sciatica and lame back. He was so bad that he could not lace his boots or turn in bed. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him and he wants all his neighbors to know of the cure.

"Yes," Mr. Black says, in an interview, "I was so bad with Sciatica and Lame Back that I couldn't lace my shoes or turn in bed. When a friend gave me about a third of a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, I started taking them without much faith in their curative powers, and found them all they were recommended."
"Now I am recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from Kidney Disease."
Dodd's Kidney Pills are no faith cure. They're a simple but sure cure for diseased kidneys.

INVERMORE HERE.—The S. S. Invermore, Capt. Goobie, arrived here yesterday at 5 p.m. from Port aux Basques. She had fine weather and made the run down in 30 hours. She brought a large freight, mail and the passengers who came over on the S. S. Bruce.

Trunks
BY H. L. RANN.

A trunk is a piece of perishable freight which usually manages to perish at the first transfer and spill lingerie and hair goods all over the depot platform. When a trunk once falls into the hands of a red-whiskered baggage agent with canker spots on his temper and the ferocious agility of a trick elephant, it stands about as much show as a lean man in a subway exit. Trunks are made of soft pine and glue, and when reinforced with a few guy ropes can be shipped quite a distance without falling apart in the baggage car. You can never tell by its looks how a trunk is going to act. One man will invest in a brand new trunk, with iron ribs and fireproof compartments, send it two stations east, and have it returned minus its front teeth and looking like the wreck of the Hesperus, while another will take an old, exhausted family relic, stuff it full of bedding and hand-painted china, ship it 4,000 miles over twelve connecting lines, and have it turn up without a dent in its sang froid.

The older a trunk gets the more a woman thinks of it. Old trunks are usually placed in the garret, in such a place that when a man goes up to hunt for his last summer's union suit he will fall over the baby's high chair and raise a neat bass relief on both shins. Every fall a man's wife will gather up his half hose and soft shirts and straw hats and bury them with uttering ain in the lower left-hand corner of some old trunk, underneath a pile of decrepit comforters and discarded petticoats, so that when her husband breaks into it for something he will be assailed by the new-mown breath of the industrious moth ball. This is a criminal practice which has shortened many a man's life in addition to raising purple bumps on his anatomy.

All trunks are equipped with a Yale lock which can be picked with the fingers while at home but has to be opened with a screw driver at the hotel. A great deal of money has been spent in telephoning to the hired girl for a trunk key which was placed in the upper right-hand drawer of the chiffonier, next to the powder puff, with the result that the girl usually manages to send the front door key.

ENJOYABLE TIME.—Yesterday afternoon and night hundreds of people attended the Parade Rink and enjoyed skating over the fine sheet of ice. The Terra Nova band was in attendance.
