The Finest Novel

RALPH CONNOR HAS EVER WRITTEN.

"The finest thing Ralph Connor has done, and when we remember his past achievements that is no mean praise. His style throughout is strong and forceful, he has an intimate knowledge of what he is writing about, and his inspired descriptions of the heroisms of the North-West Mounted Police make one glow with the same feeling of pride as do the accounts of our heroes in the battles that are raging now. Ralph Connor shows us what magnificent men and what brave, noble women, the sons and daughters of the Empire, are. It is a joy to meet some of our old friends again, and in the dangers and anxieties they undergo they more than ever show of what pure gold they are made." RALPH CONNOR, THE PATROL OF THE SUN DANCE TRAIL. Cloth 80c., Paper 60c. Plot That Failed; OR Love That Would Not Be Denied.

CHAPTER XVII.
"Ay, ay," said Willie. "That is right enough."
"Perhaps you will give him to understand that when he is capable of understanding anything," said Leicester.

Drink SEAL BRAND COFFEE

not because it is Made in Canada, but because it is the equal of coffee made in any country.

Quality First! 156

"Ay, ay, I will," said Willie.
"Good-night," said Leicester.
"Good-night, Master Leicester," said the two men, or rather shouted it, for they had to make themselves heard above the mad ravings of their companion.

Leicester, calm and unconcerned, gravely walked on.
The two men exchanged glances as they looked at the dark mask of the last blow upon the drunken man's face and grinned appreciatively.

Nat, the carrier's cottage was but a little distance from the spot, and they succeeded in getting Jim to bed without further disturbance of her majesty's peace.
In the morning it was soon over the village that there had been another scene between Mr. Leicester and Jim Starling, and when the man appeared at the "Blue Lion" about noon they expected to hear a second edition of the dreadful threats which had broken the stillness of the preceding night.

But Jim came in silently, with the dark bruise upon his face, and sullenly kept that silence.
And so the day passed, and the little incident had before night sunk into insignificance.

But it was doomed to bear bitter fruit, and that before many weeks should pass.
"I have been thinking," said the captain, as he entered the breakfast-room on the same morning, "that this is the very day for a ride. It is not so hot and there is a delicious little breeze."

Violet looked up with an indifferent smile.
"A very good idea," said Mrs. Mildmay. "Violet, you look quite pale again this morning. I think a ride would do you good."

"I did not sleep very well last night," said Violet, flinching for a moment as she thought how many hours she had heard the clock strike, and how full those waking hours were of one individual. "And I think it would be the wisest thing this morning."

The horses were brought round, and Violet acquiescing, the steeds were turned thitherward.
Violet felt trite, as she looked, and the captain endeavored to rouse her.
In consequence of those endeavors and the fresh breeze conjointly the color returned to the beautiful girl's face and the wonted light to her eye.

And it was looking thus joyous and happy that Leicester, grim and unhappy, mounted upon his black horse, met her.
"An unexpected meeting. I did not think to have the pleasure of an encounter with you this morning, Miss Mildmay," he said.

"There need be no battle though you have," she retorted, with a smile, carefully misunderstanding his words.
"We'll proclaim a truce, then," he said. "May I turn my horse's head?"
"Oh, certainly," said Violet, and he turned the Knight and shook hands with the captain, who eyed the pair keenly behind his pleasant, frank smile.

"Beautiful day," said Leicester. "Quite a relief this breeze. Are you going far?"

"Only for a gallop," said Violet, her heart was beating fast and rapidly melting under the grave and almost reproachful gaze of his dark eyes.
After all, might there not be some mistake about him and Ethel Bosdale? Oh, at that moment how she longed that there might be!

"I was going over to Tenby," said Leicester.
"A pretty town," said the captain smiling to himself as he recalled his visit and his purchases. "I passed through it a short time since, and I thought of going again soon. I want to find a solicitor."

"A solicitor," said Leicester. "I am going to see mine this morning. Can I recommend him?"
"Why will not dear old Mr. Thaxton do?" said Violet. "He is our solicitor."

"He lives in London, does he not?" asked the captain, who did not want any solicitor, and who had been merely fishing to ascertain who the Mildmay solicitor was and where he resided.

"Yes," said Violet. "But of course he can come down at an hour's notice. He does come down sometimes. I do not know what for, but to see to things, I suppose. A lawyer is a necessary evil."

"Rather hard upon the legal profession," said Leicester, with a smile. "I thought of being a lawyer myself once," he added.
"And why were you not?" said Violet, trying to speak with coquettish indifference.

"Too lazy," he said. "My new trade will suit me best, I think."
"Your new trade!" said Violet, leaning forward and stroking her horse, "and may I enquire what that may be?"

"Oh, yes," said Leicester. "There is no patent connected with it. I am going to turn traveler—not commercial traveler, for that, I am afraid, I have not head enough—but traveler and explorer. I am suddenly filled with a vast longing to see what Central Africa is like."
"You might do worse," said the captain. "But you can certainly do better; don't you think so, Miss Violet?"

Now, if he had let her alone, Violet would have broken down.
Tears had already formed in her sweet, truthful eyes.

But his question was, what he had intended it should be, an appeal to her pride, and, summoning all her presence of mind, she choked back the tears and said bravely, with a little smile:
"Mr. Leicester is the best judge of that. I think there is a great charm in novelty, and even Africa is not too far off to go in search of it."

She longed to pour out her whole mind, to accuse him of his inconsistency, but his next remark awoke a fresh thrill of feeling within her.
"May I ask a favor, Miss Mildmay?" he said. "I would not have spoken of my trip but for that."

"A favor?" she said. "What is it?"
The reply sounded cruelly ungrateful, but she could not trust herself to many words.
"My mother will feel lonely when I have started—though only for a time, perhaps—would you, in the kindness of your heart, and out of that womanly charity which is the glory of your sex, take in the Cedars sometimes in your walks and drives?"

Violet's face paled.
"I will, gladly, and for my own sake," she said. "If you go," she added.

He did not notice the addition.
"I am very grateful," he said, "very; and of her gratitude I need not assure you. Penruddle is a dull place, and dullness is bad for more than the 'weed on Lethe's wharf.'"
"Not so dull as the Lacklands are at the Lodge," said the captain, with a pleasant smile.

Violet flushed, simply because Leicester's grave, dark eyes were suddenly turned upon her face with an earnest gaze.
"No," she stammered, confused by her own meaningless flush.
But he did not think it meaningless.

He pulled up the Knight with an iron hand, and in a grim, hard voice said:
"I am afraid I must deny myself the pleasure of a longer chat. I am expected at home. Good-morning."

Violet gave him her hand.
He was too excited and mad to feel that it trembled.
He turned the horse, dug the spurs into it almost savagely and tore on.

"It's too true," he muttered, between his teeth, "that blush told all. Lord Fitz has won, and I have lost. Well, so be it. Africa at least will be constant, if only in death."
For some little time the captain and Violet rode on in silence.

As for him, he could have burst into a fit of wild and triumphant laughter, for he had won the day once more, and turned what would have been a glorious, joyous triumph for Leicester into a complete defeat.

That question and that wily remark had done the deed, and once more he had widened the gulf of jealousy and misunderstanding which yawned between John Mildmay's daughter and Leicester Dodson.

As they neared home, and after a little rambling conversation, he remarked casually:
"I have been thinking, and I have concluded to wait until Mr. Thaxton comes down before I go into my little business matter. It is only a small, trivial affair about some money which I think ought to be due me, and I can easily wait."

"Yes," said Violet, absently.
She was thinking of other than the captain's words, and his voice—smooth, silky and musical—fell on her ears like the plash, plash of a distant waterfall to a weary, heartsick traveler.

But his next words aroused her.
"And it has occurred to me," he continued, in a graver tone, "that if you intend opening the deserted study it would be as well to have the lawyer with us."

Violet paled, and the agitation which always came over her when her father's death or the study was alluded to showed itself.
"Why?" she said.
"Well," said the captain, softly, "only because it is usual. There may be valuables or—papers."

"I see," she breathed. "It shall be so. I will write."

WINDSOR TABLE SALT

most everybody in Canada uses WINDSOR TABLE SALT

"Or allow me," said the captain, "we will fix a day; and Mr. Thaxton shall come down."
"Yes," said Violet, "soon. I meant to have the room opened to-day, but I will wait if you think it better."
"Oh, yes, I think it better to have the lawyer with us," said the captain, "and I will write to him."
So the captain wrote that evening to Mr. Thaxton, requesting him to be kind enough to come down to Mildmay Park as soon as he could conveniently do so, as Miss Mildmay wished to see him on a matter of business.

All the evening he was as good-tempered and as amusing as usual, and there was no shadow upon his face when he wished the unsuspecting women good-night, though already in anticipation he was tasting the horror of an ordeal which he had determined to go through.

As usual, he waited until all was quiet, then he lit his cigar and with an outwardly calm bearing smoked it and enjoyed it.

When it was finished and after another term of listening, he took a cloak and muffled himself up.
It was an old-fashioned riding-cloak, and he could pull it over his head and face and still leave a greater part of his legs covered.

In the pocket he slipped the dark lantern.
Then from his bureau he took his revolver and a short, deadly life-preserver, the thong of which he tied round his wrist.

Thus armed, he smiled with a serene feeling of security, and, as an additional fillip to his courage, he tossed off a glass of brandy.
It was his intention to leave the house, and here a question arose for him which was the better means of egress.

He decided upon that which he had used formerly, and with practical dexterity he fastened his rope, leaped on the sill and rapidly descended.

Cautiously, and looking round him with vigilant eyes, he entered the dark cloisters; and, feeling his way, crept on tiptoe to the trunk on which Leicester had surprised him three mornings since.

In a few moments he was groping on again, and at last reached what seemed to be his destination, a doorway protected from observation by a pillar, up which had grown a thick mass of ivy.

From that point he commanded a view of the whole of the chapel and of the window of the deserted room.
With a slight sigh of satisfaction he seated himself upon a stone and, revolver in hand, waited and watched.

Canadian Fish Sent to England

AS NEVER BEFORE.
The famine in the British fish market, due to the closing of the North Sea, has led to the exportation of Canadian fish to England in larger quantities than ever before. Halibut and other fish from the Pacific coast of Canada are now being forwarded across the continent and the Atlantic to supplement the British supply. The North Sea fishing fleet has been badly hampered and almost put out of action this season through the menace of mines, and the result has been a serious depletion of the fish supply, so large a part of the food of the British people. Six Months of World War.

To-day is the anniversary of the capitulation of Paris on January 29th, 1871, and it affords a convenient time for contrasting in a general way the campaign of 1870-1 with that of 1914-15. When Paris fell the Franco-German war had lasted a few days over six months, the present war has lasted within a few days of six months. The combatants in the first war were the French and Germans. In the present war they are the Serbians, Montenegrins, Russians, French and Belgians and British on the one side and the Germans, Austrians and Turks on the other. The Franco-German War was schemed and plotted for by the Germans, or rather the Prussians, and France tricked by a manipulation of telegrams into declaring war. Germany schemed to inveigle Russia and France into this war, and used Austria as a pawn to start the war. The strategy she had settled on she prepared for by large increases in her army, the building of military railways, and the collection of a large War Tax in 1913. That strategy, as often avowed, was to smash the French army and take Paris within a month, and so cripple French resources that she could be held by the Landstrum, that she could offer no further resistance, while the First Line Army and the Landwehr could be transferred by the splendid system of railways to Russia and smash the western armies of Russia, before a general mobilization over the Russian Empire could be effected. Every practicable preparation was made before the war to attain their objectives. Germany was ready, France was not ready, and Russia could not get ready for many months. The results achieved in the Franco-German campaign buoyed the Germans up with the hope that they could accomplish these things. Declaring war on July 19th, 1870, great victories had been won at Weissenberg and Worth by August 6th. Gravelotte and Sedan had been won by Sept. 1. The Crown Prince reached the vicinity of Paris on Sept. 15. In a short time Paris was invested, Metz had capitulated by Oct. 27th, Orleans was won by Nov. 9th, and the siege of Paris had ended on January 29th, 1915.

Temperance the Topic Next Sunday. Rev. D. B. Hemmen will preach in the morning and will have something definite to say on the great question of Temperance. The subject by the Pastor in the evening will be, "Can a Soldier Fight Better for having taken Alcoholic Liquor." Everybody welcome.

PORTIA OFF.—The S.S. Portia sailed to-day for the Westward taking a full freight and as saloon passengers.—Mrs. G. Deveraux, Miss Kearley, Dr. Hogan, G. Ellford, L. Farrell, G. Hollett, J. Melvin, G. Daley, Constable O'Flaherty, P. J. Cormack, R. G. Ross, S. Hearn, Capt. Kennedy, H. Lake, 10 steerage.

tor in six months as she was forty years ago, her whole strategy has failed egregiously. France is not crippled. Her army is much stronger now than it was last August. There have been no Sedans. There have been no capitulations of the decisive character of Metz and Paris. Austria's forces have been badly crippled. Russia's forces are increasing from day to day. Britain has now an army of two millions, and another million men have enrolled themselves, have equipped themselves at their own expense, and are spending their nights, Wednesday evenings, Saturday evenings and Sundays with their rifles, at drilling and route marching. Germany, on the other hand, while she still holds a strip of France, the greater part of Belgium and part of Poland is doing so at enormous cost. She has her landwehr and landstrum in the field and is calling to arms young and old men outside even these organizations. She has reached the end of her resources of men and yet she has been able to make no material advance for three or four months. She must hereafter weaken whereas her enemies have large resources of men absolutely untapped. Her navy had done nothing effective. Her commerce destroyers are driven off the seas. Her commerce has gone completely, and most of her colonies have been taken from her. Her battle cruiser squadron dare not face the British battle cruiser squadron. She has lost half of her armoured cruisers and that half includes the biggest, latest and most effective of them. She has also lost the best half of her light cruisers, and as to her line of battleships, which she has kept in reserve, their relative strength is weakening from month to month, as Britain, France and Russia are putting dreadnoughts in commission at a much faster rate than Germany can do. In short, while forty years ago she had paralyzed her enemy in six months, in this war, in six months she has been caught firmly in a vice which must in the course of time result in her own paralysis.

Slovan-Duployan
Shorthand Exam

Two Newfoundland Successes.

The results of the last semi-annual competitions of the Slovan-Duployan Shorthand Society (Headquarters, Ramsgate, England) are now to hand. The war seems to have affected the number of entries, and there is a considerable drop in the number of competitors. Nevertheless, six medals have been granted, and two of these come to Newfoundland. Silver Medals in Class II, for good work in reporting style, have been won by Miss Mary Brownrigg, 408 Water Street, St. John's, and Miss Kitty Alcock, 49 Parade Street, John's. Both winners are pupils of the Commercial School, Convent of Mercy, Military Road, St. John's. The remaining four medals go to candidates in England, Ireland, Egypt and Mauritius. The next competition will be held on June 30th, 1915.

Lintrose Sold to Russia

On Wednesday the Reid Nfld. Co. sold the Lintrose to the Russian Government. Some days ago an attaché of the Russian Embassy at Washington, together with a shipwright from the Cramp building yard at Philadelphia arrived here and the steamer was examined and the sale and transfer followed. She is looked upon as the best ice-breaker on this side of the Atlantic, and is to be used for this purpose in the White Sea with the intention of opening Archangel and keeping it open. The Earl Grey, which left in the fall, reached there, but since then she has become disabled. The Lintrose will be taken to her destination by a Newfoundland crew. For the past three days we have refrained from publishing the story at the request of the authorities, but as the story has been published in Sydney, the object of keeping the news from the enemy has failed, and the authorities see no object now in refraining from publishing it.

fare Has Been Changed

The conclusion is reached by an official observer attached to the headquarters at the front in the last days of the war, that the heavy guns are of supreme importance in modern warfare. "Experiences in this war have shown many profound modifications of theories commonly held before the war broke out," he says. "But it was so underestimated as to be of high explosive projectiles, guns and howitzers.

"The opening of the war has allied in a position of inferiority which respect—an inferiority which ever, has since been made good by the Germans are now experiencing greater extent than before the vast effects of these missiles. "The successes of the Japanese at Port Arthur had given an idea of the potentialities of the howitzer when employed against distant fortifications, but the defect of high explosives against the field, in well-concealed trenches, has come as a surprise.

"The gunner, and more especially the garrison gunner, has come into its own, for this arm of the service assumed importance greater than it has ever before possessed, certainly greater than it has since the time of Napoleon, artillery officer himself, place reliance on the moral and effect of the fire of massed batteries concentrated against that of the enemy's line which it was his duty to break. But for the last years, against troops in the front line, generally speaking, depended upon to create a perfect rather than to achieve a material result, and it has proved that this war to prove the chief agent in destroying the enemy's power of resistance.

"It is extremely hard to compare the position of trenches from the servers, and once their positions closed to the gunners and to range obtained, it is not long whole lengths of trenches are blown in and entanglements are formed of obstacle, however swept away.

ATTEMPT ON THE LIFE OF SHAL VON BER GOLF

London, Jan. 25.—A despatch from Cairo says an attempt has been made upon the life of Field Marshal Baron Helmuth vonoltz of the German Army. It was said, recently had the German Emperor would take command of the Turkish army on the Caucasus front report emanated from the German Embassy in Jaffa, Syria. It was said that the Field Marshal had been shot at and that he was badly hurt. Other officers were also shot at the same time.

PRISONERS ARE SHOT.

London, Jan. 18.—The correspondent of the Central Press reports that three English prisoners escaped from Louvain have been shot. Serious occurred at the prisoners' camp, the same correspondent reports. The prisoners attacked German guards, killing one on the drastic methods of reprisals adopted. Six Englishmen and French Turks were shot.

Officially entered on the rolls as dead for over a year, Sergeant C. Bennett of the (Eng.) Regiment, has had documentary proof of his survival in order to obtain his pay. He was wounded at the outbreak of the war. On his discharge from hospital he went home to his strength. Recently he told his regimental headquarters that he was still alive, who knew him well, regretted that he was unable to do anything more for the army, but he was in a position to pay Bennett is now obtaining from his former employer and the police to convey him to the office that he is still a British citizen.

MR. CUSTOMER,—

Probably you've economised by doing without your usual suit and overcoat during Fall of 1914. Are you going to have that down-and-out look in Spring 1915? The Allies have millions of men on the firing line, each requiring thirteen pounds of wool every six or eight weeks. The British Government are keeping British Mills turning out army contracts. Spring quotations for woollens are sky high. We have on hand a particularly fine range of Serges, Tweed Suitings and Overcoatings. Order now as you will have to pay considerably higher in the Spring.

Dull gold is really very important in present fashions. Millinery is using a new ocean blue and an army gray. Corded bands now go around the foot of the full skirts. Turnover collars are to be worn with the new high stocks. Many of the new gowns have net sleeves and shirred skirts. Black lace overdresses over black tafetta are very charming. New gowns are coming with fringed bodices and skirts. There will be a great deal of gold used with other braid effects. Tie your boudoir cap under your chin with black velvet ribbon. Much in demand will be the buttons of brass, silver and steel.

Big Guns Justified

British Official Statement Says Warfare Has Been Changed.

The conclusion is reached by the official observer attached to British headquarters at the front in a report given out under date of Jan. 8, that heavy guns are of supreme importance in modern warfare.

"Experiences in this war have caused many profound modifications of theories commonly held before it broke out," he says. "But no factor was so underestimated as the effect of high explosive projectiles fired by guns and howitzers.

"The opening of the war found the allies in a position of inferiority in this respect—an inferiority which, however, has since been made good—and the Germans are now experiencing to a far greater extent than before the devastating effects of these missiles.

"The successes of the Japanese at Port Arthur had given an inkling of the potentialities of the heavy howitzer when employed against permanent fortifications, but the decisive effect of high explosives against troops in the field, in well-concealed entrenchments, has come as a complete surprise.

"The gunner, and more especially the garrison gunner, has come into his own, for this arm of the service has assumed importance greater probably than it has ever before possessed, and certainly greater than it has known since the time of Napoleon, who an artillery officer himself, placed great reliance on the moral and material effect of the fire of massed batteries concentrated against that of the enemy's line which it was his intention to break. But for the last hundred years, against troops in the field, artillery has, generally speaking, been dependent upon to create a moral effect rather than to achieve any great material result, and it has been reserved for this war to prove that it is the chief agent in destroying the enemy's power of resistance.

"It is extremely hard to conceal the position of trenches from aerial observers, and once their position is disclosed to the gunners and the exact range obtained, it is not long before the whole lengths of trenches will be blown in and entanglements and every form of obstacle, however ingenious, swept away.

"That the moral effect is very great is shown by written and verbal evidence of prisoners who lately have been captured.

"The allied artillery is gradually assuming a superiority over the German—a factor of great importance in the prosecution of our general offensive."

ATTEMPT ON THE LIFE OF MARSHAL VON DER GOLTZ.
London, Jan. 25.—A despatch to the Daily News from Cairo says that an attempt has been made upon the life of Field Marshal Baron Kolmar von Der Goltz of the German army, who, it was said, recently had left Constantinople to take command of the Turks on the Caucasian front. The report emanated from the German consulate at Jaffa, Syria. It was to the effect that the Field Marshal had been fired at and that it was believed he had been hit. Other officers were attacked at the same time.

In a disturbance in a cafe in Damascus recently, according to the correspondent, a Turkish captain was killed and a German colonel wounded.

PRISONERS ARE SHOT.
London, Jan. 18.—The Amsterdam correspondent of the Central News reports that three English prisoners who escaped from Louvain have been arrested and shot. Serious rioting occurred at the prisoners' camp at Neerwinden, the same correspondent reports. The prisoners attacked the German guards, killing one, who upon drastic methods of repression were adopted. Six Englishmen and eight French Turks were shot.

Officially entered on the War Office rolls as dead for over four months, Sergeant C. Bennett of the Norfolk (Eng.) Regiment, has had to prepare documentary proof of being alive in order to obtain his pay. The sergeant was wounded at the outbreak of the war. On his discharge from the hospital he went home to regain his strength. Recently he took a trip to his regimental headquarters and applied for his back pay. His major, who knew him well, regretted that he was unable to do anything, since it is not army custom to pay dead men. Bennett is now obtaining affidavits from his former employer, his pastor and the police to convince the War Office that he is still alive and entitled to pay.

"A Disgrace to Civilization."

The first great air raid has reached England, and the destruction accomplished must be set down as ridiculously puny. Zeppelins are now thought not to have shared in the attack. If so, the last word in aerial invasion remains to be said. But the night terror spread over the east coast apparently represents the best that a set of aeroplanes can do. As in every other air venture of the war, the aeroplane has failed, failed signally, as a weapon of military offence.

Germany's gain was therefore insignificant. If the same could only be said of the loss, the cost to the German people, of the episode and its predecessors! Here was a quiet country county, whose towns were as defenceless as the villages of our own Long Island or New Jersey. Without a vestige or pretence of military purpose the German raiders rained bombs on these non-combatant communities. But one purpose could possibly have dominated the expedition—the desire to terrorize England and raise a cheer in the streets of Berlin. A wanton and brutal disregard of Hague rules and humane principles, the raid belongs with the worst acts of German militarism in the present war—with the invasion of Belgium, with the burning of Louvain, with the bomb dropping on Paris and Antwerp, with the destruction of Rheims Cathedral, with the Scarborough-Whitby bombardment.

We are not now concerned with the unavoidable terror and horrors of all aerial warfare. The nations of the world could not agree to eliminate bomb dropping, and the practice stands. So long as any military purposes are in view of the Germans, like the Allies, are entitled to make the most of their air fleets. Those purposes are numerous. When the German Taubes sought to destroy the Eiffel Tower wireless they were within the rules of war. Similarly with the British hydro-aeroplanes when they attacked the forts of Cuxhaven. Had these last German raiders attacked forts or arsenals or encampments or any institution of conceivable military value, there could be no criticism. But from the start no such standard has ruled the German militarist mind. Taubes dropped bombs on Paris with insulting messages—sheer insult and wanton destruction of non-combatants. The Zeppelin exploit over Antwerp was of the same brood. Rheims Cathedral stands irretrievably damaged to no possible gain. And now peaceful English villagers are butchered without pretence of military need.

It is a grievous list and indictment of German militarism which the friends of Germany cannot attempt to excuse. It is savagery which the civilized opinion of the world has already condemned—which must stand condemned for all time. The stain of it the German people will be long in wiping out. We wonder if it is too late for the military leaders of Germany to see where their blundering has led their nation and to prevent the crowning outrage which undoubtedly hangs in the air above France and England: We mean the long-threatened Zeppelin raid on Paris and London—the logical successor to the Norfolk Invasion. These attacks might accomplish more destruction than did the aeroplane raid. They might conceivably destroy a number of historic buildings, much precious art, some lives. They would be utterly unjustifiable by any rules of war. They would be crimes against civilization which not centuries could live down. German loyalists in this country could do no greater service to their Fatherland than now to speak out in protest against this last brutal stroke. —New York Tribune.

Things One Would Rather Not Have Said.

By RUTH CAMERON.

As a prelude to a few words on "breaks" I started to say that these unfortunate little mistakes were due to lack of tact, but after a few moments' thought I withdrew that statement. "Breaks," by which, of course, you know that I mean those well meant but unfortunate little things which one finds immediately after uttering that one would infinitely rather not have said, are made by the tactful and tactless alike.

I doubt if there is one of you who reads this who cannot recall at least one such unfortunate mistake which she would have given the tip of her tongue to get back the moment it left that fateful spot.

The Only Comfortable Chair in the Room.

Indeed it was one of the most tactful girls I know who made a most painful break in a quarter where she particularly wished to appear well. She was calling with two or three other girls on a woman whom they all greatly admired. The room in which they sat was a rather stiff and formal room and the girl noticed that her beloved hostess was sitting in an uncomfortable chair. Whereat she astonished herself and everyone else by springing to her feet to offer her own chair, with the unfortunate remark, "Why, here I am sitting in the only comfortable chair in the room."

"How well you look, I hardly knew you," is the general type of one of the most common things one would rather

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the London "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. This was that one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years; and that not one had ever given them up."

Professor C. V. Boys F.R.S., says, in the "Standard": "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudice. A gas fire, burning with a fire, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and, as a scientist, I fail to understand how such a gas fire dries the air in a room more than any other fire."—now!

KEEPING BOOKS.

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Swash."

Keeping books is a pastime which the careless merchant usually indulges in after the sheriff has pasted up the front door of the store.

It is an intricate art, as difficult as calculating the rainfall on Venus, and much more important. By means of a good, easy-running, well-balanced set of books some merchants retire rich on a small business; while others do a roaring trade for ten years, keeping their accounts behind their ears with their pencils and quit owing everybody but the loose-leaf ledger people.

The man who does little business is in little danger. He can shut up shop at any time and go to farming. But the man who fills a large store full of eager customers and then discovers ten years later that, owing to the overlooking of such trifles as overhead depreciation, bad accounts and interest charges he has been shoveling out goods at 17 per cent below cost, usually has to throw in the piano player and his diamond shirt stud in order to pay 25 per cent on his liabilities.

Good business consists of selling goods with one hand and filling large sheets of paper with figures with the other hand. After a man has kept books for a few years with fearless devotion he can tell how much to add to depreciation and tack onto the price of pins every time the front door opens and wears down the hinges a little farther.

Some men have made fortunes by selling goods, but more have made them by knowing just when to refrain from selling in cold tones and to mark the price up another notch and take a vacation until the rival across the way has ruined himself by unconscious philanthropy.

Keeping books can also be overdone. We should not have too much faith in a set of books which can neither be arrested for lying, or sold for anything but junk. Many a man has figured out a handsome profit for himself on his books at the end of the year and when he has placed his hand confidently in the money till to cash in he has found a few overdue bills and a two-cent postage stamp.

Too many expert mathematicians have made the mistake of thinking that the surplus figures in the ledger can be exchanged for automobiles and trips to Europe and have done so before counting the yellow back boys in the strong box. We should not have so much faith in figures as to refuse to believe in an overdraft.

WHITE HOPES.

I've hoped this country might produce, before I pull my freight, a pug who'd jar Jack Johnson loose, a first class heavyweight. And each new hope I hallooed with joy, with almost frantic glee; "at last," I'd say, "there is a boy who looks quite good to me. When he's been trained three years or four, the Smoke he should displace; the treasured wreath he should restore to our dependent race." But every hope turns out a frost, a hopeless leatherhead, and oh, the sleep that I have lost, the tears that I have shed! Oh, there were giants in the land, in happy days long since; now hopes abound on every hand, but every hope's a quince. Carl Morris, Flinn, and such as these, Jess Willard and his ilk, recall the cheaper brands of cheese, made of de-natured milk. The whole year round such fighters fling orations at our ears, and when we see them in the ring, we think of auctioneers. But let not grief disturb our nights, nor sorrow cast its pall; let us remember that we whites are great at basketball!

MOTOR CAR SOMERSAULTS IN THE AIR.

A skid in the sand at a speed of 100 miles an hour caused an automobile to fly high in the air and turn a somersault, during a trial race near Johannesburg, British South Africa. The machine, carrying a driver and four passengers, skidded as it made a turn at high speed at the foot of a hill and crashed into a rock beside the road. Eye-witnesses said that the car flew into the air as high as a telegraph pole, somersaulted, and landed 50 feet beyond the rock, right side up but facing in the opposite direction. Two of the passengers were killed and the other two seriously injured, but the driver was unhurt in the steering post and plunger.

FATHERHOOD.

I Refer to, 19.
(Arundo, in the Westminster Gazette)
"My son! my son! O Absalom, my son!"
David, all father in that wail of woe
Forgetful that the fallen was his foe,
Turn'd with a sob from news of victory won.
Bursting each barrier-thought of treachery done,
Imprison'd love, with unrestrained flow,
Rush'd to the little child of long ago
Who to the shelter of his arms had run.
O riven hearts that have with David cried
"My son! My son!" in accents of despair,
Your hearts are on the field of honor died.
The "Gentle Jesus" of his baby-prayer
—The Father's Only Son—was with him there,
Wounded for him, in Hands, and Feet, and Side.

Suspect German Influence

IN THE SIKH EXPEDITION.
Calcutta, Jan. 18.—The report of the committee appointed by the Indian Government to inquire into the circumstances connected with the return of the Sikh immigrants from Canada last September has now been issued. The most interesting section deals with the question of whether Gurdit Singh's enterprise was engineered, as is generally believed in Canada, at the instigation of Germany.

The committee say that they are aware of the fact that German influence has for some time been at work in various parts of the British Empire to create disaffection to the Government, but "beyond the fact that the Komagata Maru was chartered from a German agent at Hong Kong, we have not been able to secure any evidence of German influence in respect of this voyage."

The report continues:
"There are, however, suspicious circumstances in connection with the undertaking and it is quite possible that even if German influence had been at work we should be unable to secure direct evidence of it. Thus it is noteworthy that until Gurdit Singh met Herr Bune, the German agent at Hong Kong, he was unable to hire any vessel to convey these emigrants to Canada."

"It is also possible that Herr Bune, in aiding Singh to secure the charter of the Komagata Maru, acted with the intention of embarrassing the Canadian authorities and indirectly the British Government, as he was aware that the passengers would not be allowed to land in Vancouver. But of this there is no direct evidence."

"It is also noteworthy that the Komagata Maru was owned by a German company before she became Japanese property, and that the first intimation of her departure from Hong Kong reached London through Germany, the news being published in Berlin papers eleven days after the vessel had left that port."

St. Bon's L. A. Annual Meeting.

At the annual meeting of the St. Bon's Ladies' Association held at the Aula Maxima on Wednesday afternoon last, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. P. C. O'Driscoll; 1st Vice-Pres., Mrs. J. W. McNeilly; 2nd Vice-Pres., Mrs. W. T. Scully; Treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Atkinson; Asst. Treas., Mrs. J. Duchemin; Secretary, Miss M. Bates; Asst. Secy., Mrs. P. Kennedy. Rev. Bro. Ryan, President of the College, conducted the election, and before doing so expressed his sincere thanks to the ladies for all they have done for St. Bonaventure's. The amount handed in by the Treasurer this year was only one thousand dollars, as a result of the generous action of Rev. Bro. Ryan, who at the time of the sealing disaster last year, expressed his desire that in view of the many calls that would be made on the public, no appeal for the College should be made for at least a year. With the exception of the annual "Sports Day," no entertainments have been held in aid of the college, which accounts for the amount handed in being less than that of previous years. At Wednesday's meeting, Rev. Bro. Ryan again gave proof of his sympathetic and generous spirit. After making reference to the war and its attendant sufferings and the many demands which it has made necessary and to which our people are so nobly responding with men, money and goods, he stated that it was the wish of the Brothers that in no way should the college make a claim on the resources of the people, who are already overtaxed during this great crisis. He went on to say that not only the different patriotic funds claimed a generous response, but the poor of the city needed attention. He therefore urged the ladies to concentrate their efforts this year, in the alleviation of distress throughout the city. It was then unanimously decided that the proceeds of the "Irish Night" to be held this year, will be devoted to the poor of the city. At the conclusion of the meeting the following committee was appointed: Mesdames G. Byrne, Keegan, O'Dea, H. Brownrigg, W. E. Earns, A. D. Flynn, A. McNamara and Miss Coughlan.

Accidents to Workmen.

As already referred to, the cargo of sulphuric acid and sulphate ammonia, brought here by the tramp steamer Desola, to be re-stowed, is very dangerous handling. One of the workmen named Kavanagh, who is engaged at the stut at Bowring's Southside premises, is the victim of a very painful accident. While some of the acid was being hoisted from the hold of the ship in an iron receptacle, a few spatters went over one of Kavanagh's arms badly burning the flesh. He had to be attended to by a doctor and will not be able to resume work for some time yet.

DISLOCATED HIS HIP.
Shortly before six o'clock, or just about when the men were getting ready to discontinue work for the evening at Harvey & Co.'s fish premises, Samuel James, of Prospect St., who had been engaged trucking, fell in some unaccountable way and dislocated his hip. He was taken to the General Hospital in the ambulance for treatment.

M. C. L. I Debate.

"Is the present European Conflict an indication that the churches have failed to impress the teachings of Christianity in relation to war?" was the subject of debate discussed at the M. C. L. I. club rooms last evening, before a large gathering. This question is engaging the public mind and particularly is it occupying the attention of the Church thinkers. Those who took part in the debate were:— For Affirmative:—Messrs. G. Grimes, M. H. A. C. Woods and D. Thistle; Negative:—Rev. N. M. Guy and W. H. Peters, the third speaker being unavoidably absent. The strong arguments advanced showed that the various speakers had a good grasp of their subject. At the close the negative side won by a slight majority.

Dance Held by Volunteers.

The volunteers of the Second Contingent held a farewell dance at the British Hall last night under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson and in aid of the Women's Patriotic Fund, and was a success.
His Excellency and suite were present on arrival and were received by Capt. E. S. Ayre and other officers of the Contingent as well as a guard of honour under Sergt. Watson. The ballroom was filled to its utmost capacity and was tastefully decorated. Prior to the dance an impromptu concert was held, to which Misses Strang and Job contributed vocal selections. Dancing commenced at 10 p.m. and supper was served at midnight. Before dancing was resumed Sergt. Major Moore and twenty volunteers sang Tipperary, the solo being taken by Mr. J. O'N. Farrell. The affair was brought to a happy termination at an early hour this morning. The C. C. C. band furnished the music.

Gracious Message.

In a sympathetic letter from His Excellency the Governor, received by Mr. and Mrs. M. Chaplin, was enclosed the following messages from Their Majesties the King and Queen: "The King and Queen deeply regret the loss you both and the Army have sustained by the death of your son, John Fielding Chaplin, in the service of his country."
"OURS" IN THE WEST END
Crowded out at each performance the West End Theatre is nightly the pleasure place of the West End. The clever little Aneta, child vocalist, made another great hit last night; she sang "Bravo, Territorials" and received rounds of applause, so much so that the picture following her song had to be taken off again for her to respond to encores.

THE ICE BLOCKADE.—Last evening's easterly gale caused the ice to come in and block the harbour. In consequence the Belgian steamer Tiflis and schr. Robert J. Dahl, fish laden for Bahia, are prevented from sailing.
What more do we need to say! Her answer—our answer—is given. The answer that thrilled the world. It came from the banks of Marne. By the waters of Aisne and Oise. It fell like a doom from Heaven On the foe of all mankind.

A BRITON'S REPLY TO CONSCRIPTION.

What is this that we hear
Of coercion, compulsion and force?
Do you mean to say that we Britons
Are so cowardly, cruel, and base,
That even when Honour's dishonoured,
And Justice is snuff for fools,
We can stay back in utter indifference,
And watch undisturbed, unmoved?
Never, and never, and never
Will I shame as gross as that
Live in the bounds of Britain
And flourish beneath her flag.
No! A thousand times, No!
Is our answer to such base lies,
Britain is Britain forever.

What is this that our enemies say,
And not only say, but believe?
That we'll wait till the foes at our doorsteps
And force the law of our land
To drive out each lagging coward
To defend his children and home?
Kaiser, so long have you driven
And forced the poor of your land,
You really must have forgotten
That freedom abides on earth,
And especially she loves that isle
Which you hate with so black a hate,
Britannia, the Empress of Oceans,
The birthplace of Liberty!

A Child's Laxative Is "Syrup of Figs"

They love to take it and it doesn't harm the tender little stomach, liver and bowels.
When your child suffers from a cold don't wait; give the little stomach, liver and bowels a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.
If your child coughs, snuffles and has caught cold or is feverish or has a sore throat give a good dose of "California Syrup of Figs," to evacuate the bowels no difference what other treatment is given.
Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.
Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

ALLIES SUCCESSFUL.

PARIS, via St. Pierre, Jan. 28.
Yesterday was the Emperor of Germany's birthday. Our adversaries had announced on this occasion a heavy effort. It took place but did not succeed. The day was favorable for us on the whole. Front. Every German attack was repulsed, and all of our attacks were successful.
In Belgium, the enemy's positions were cannonaded and several of their trenches were destroyed.
South of La Lys, British artillery swept the roads of German troops.
In Arras, Albert, Roye, Noyon, and Soissons sections, there was intermittent cannonading and firing on several points. German infantry vainly tried to come out of their trenches, but were thrown back by fierce fire.

In the Craonne district, the total German losses on the 25th and 26th surely attain to the effectiveness of a brigade. German prisoners show the impression of having suffered heavy defeat. Our losses during these two days are about 800 men, and this is easily explained by the fierce struggle and by the closing up of a quarry, reported yesterday, in which two of our companies took shelter and no doubt fell alive in the hands of the enemy. Our counter attacks gave us entire possession of the ground contested.
In Rheims section, and from Rheims to Argonne, was an artillery duel, where our heavy artillery silenced the German batteries.
As reported last night, three German attacks in Argonne at Pontaine Madame, between 6 a.m. and 1 p.m., were completely repulsed. The same German failure marked three attacks at Ailly Woods, southeast of St. Mihiel. German detachments were defeated at Parroy and Bures.

In the Vosges we have advanced north of Senones on the slopes of the Mere Henry lookout. Our gain is estimated at 400 metres.
There was the same success southwest of Senones, and in Ban de Sapt we gained ground, coming in contact with German accessory defense line. We also progressed in Alsace in Amertville.
In Bernhaupt district we captured and kept ground near Carnay, and repulsed an attack of a German battalion.

According to the number of killed gathered on the battlefields to the east of Ypres, La Bassee, Craonne, Argonne, Woivre and Vosges, during 25th, 26th and 27th, the German losses during these three days appear superior to twenty thousand men.

GERMAN ATTACK UNSUCCESSFUL.

PARIS, Jan. 28.

After having concentrated large forces between La Bassee and Festhubert, says a Havas Agency despatch from Saint Omer, under date January 25th, the Germans attempted to break through the lines of the Allies in an effort to capture Bethune. The attack commenced early in the morning, and infantry supported the artillery and armoured trains. Five attempts were made, but all were unsuccessful. The Germans went so far as the church in Givenchy, west of La Bassee. Fierce bayonet fights were incidents of the battle. The carnage was great. Vermelles and Givenchy are covered with bodies of Germans. According to a prisoner, the message says, this attack was planned several days before, Emperor Wilhelm himself going to La Bassee to study the disposition of the troops.

ATTEMPT TO KILL KING OF GREECE.

GERMAN ATTACKS FAIL.

LONDON, Jan. 28.

A Daily Express despatch dated on the Belgian frontier, Wednesday, says the German Army in Flanders thus far has celebrated the Kaiser's birthday by presenting to the Allies another strip of Belgian territory.
The day, as the Emperor desired, was fraught with great significance but not in the way he expected. As far as it is possible to ascertain on the Northern frontier this afternoon, a series of strong preliminary attacks by the heavily reinforced army of Germans against several points of the Allies' line everywhere failed. The fighting, which continues to-day in even greater intensity, judging by the continuous cannonade heard in Belgian villages, shows the Germans still determined to gain by a desperate effort at least one notable position occupied by the British, but if they continue to sacrifice troops in the same lavish manner as during the last two days in the region of Ypres and La Bassee, their losses will be very heavy and not commensurate with any possible advance.

Although strong artillery attacks during the last days of last week gave them possession of two ruined villages west of the Roulers main road which had previously been occupied by the Allies' outposts for six weeks, there is a corresponding loss of ground nearer to the coast due to exactly the same cause. They were driven from a trench near the Yser a mile from Schaarboek, on Monday night, by a dashing infantry charge by Belgians, which came as a climax to a long and accurate bombardment by the Allies heavy guns posted behind the Newport railway line. Their retreat was hampered by the mud and pools of water remaining from the floods, and numbers of them were made prisoners.

Five Minute Cure If Stomach is Bad

When "Pape's Diapepsin" reaches stomach all indigestion, gas and sourness disappears.
You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.
Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

Tabasco's Tedious Trip.

IMPEDED BY ICE AND FOG.

The Furness liner Tabasco, Capt. Yeoman, arrived here yesterday evening from Liverpool after a tedious trip of twelve days from Liverpool, bringing a small mail, 200 tons of freight but no passengers. In the early part of the voyage the weather was moderate and good headway was made. On approaching this coast strong westerly and northwesterly gales, accompanied by heavy seas, were experienced, though they did not last long. About a hundred and fifty miles off St. John's field ice was met. Thick fog also prevailed, helping to hamper the progress of the ship. Sometimes she made less than three knots an hour. Off the Narrows the ice was found thick and closely packed and the ship had a difficult task forcing her way through. She reached the harbor before 4 o'clock last evening, but owing to the ice-blockade did not berth at the pier for several hours afterwards.

GERMANS LOSE 20,000 MEN.
LONDON, To-day.

Although no big battles, as battles go in this war, have been fought of late, there have been engagements in all the arenas from Asiatic Turkey to the English Channel, in which loss of men and material probably have been a greater aggregate than in many battles of history.

According to French reports, the attacks which the Germans delivered against the Allied lines in Flanders, France and Alsace on the first three days of the week cost them 20,000 men, to which must be added the losses sustained in their repeated attacks on Russian entrenchments in Central Poland. All the German attacks west, the announcements of the Allies say, met with failure except near Craonne where it is admitted the French lost 800 men due largely to the subsidence of an old quarry. The Germans, on the other hand, assert they inflicted severe defeat on the French at Craonne, that they repulsed all French attacks cost both sides dear, they with heavy losses. While it is evident these attacks and counter-attacks cost both sides dear, they make no great difference in the relative positions of the opposing armies.

They convey an intimation, however, that the Germans have by no means given up the idea of delivering a smashing blow at the Allied armies. With the approach of drier weather and the consequent hardening of the ground, the Germans still more troops through Belgium, tention of getting in their blow before the full strength of the Anglo-French forces was ready to meet them. Thus far they have made little if any headway, but undismayed they are sending still more troops through Belgium to Ypres and La Bassee, at which points earlier in the winter they attempted to break their way through to the coast. Knowing as they must that the Anglo-French armies have been greatly strengthened since then, they themselves must have increased their striking power on their present lines to move forward when all preparations are completed. In the East the interest centres in the Caucasus where the Austro-Germans have brought up new armies to oppose the Russian invasion. Hungary, according to announcements at Vienna, has re-captured some Passes which the Russians were holding in strength, while naturally Russians, like other belligerents, do not relinquish any ground gained, they declare this is compensated for by the fact that their aggressiveness compelled the Austro-Germans to postpone the expedition which they were preparing with the object of crushing Serbia. Russia hopes that Roumania with her financial position guaranteed by the recent London loan of $25,000,000, will soon send her army into the field and form the missing link between Russia and Serbia.

The Turks, by bringing up their fifth army corps have been able to resume their offensive in the Caucasus, but the Russian report says they have suffered another setback. Nothing further has been heard of the Turkish army, which is invading Egypt. The British Admiralty to-night, issued a formal denial of German reports that some British ships had been sunk in the naval battle in the North Sea on Sunday. The Admiralty adheres to its former statement that all British vessels engaged, returned safely to port. The same department also denies the story from the States that the German battle cruiser Von der Tann was sunk by the British cruiser Invincible in the South Atlantic, and says no engagement occurred between these two vessels.

WHERE THEY WILL STRIKE.
PETROGRAD, To-day.

Colonel Shumsky, military critic of the Bourse Gazette, in a study of the Carpathian situation presented to-day, declares that the Austrians will deliver their main attack on the right wing in West Bukovina, where they hope to achieve a victory which will halt Rumania. This view of the situation is supported by the concentration in Southeastern Hungary of Archduke Joseph's fourth army and a German force of four corps.

RAPIDLY DEVELOPING.
LONDON, To-day.

The Times' Petrograd correspondent telegraphs: The activity of the Austro-German forces in the eastern or Beskid division of the Carpathians is becoming the dominant feature in the military situation. The enemy's movements are rapidly developing, which extends from Dukla to Wyszokw, a distance approximately of one hundred miles. Their columns are trying to cross the mountains by numerous passes within this front, fed by four important railways from the south. Przemyśl stands in the centre of the enemy's line of advance and its relief forms apparently the immediate objective of the invaders.

HEAVY BUYER OF COPPER.
New York, Jan. 28.—Russia was reported as a heavy buyer in copper in local markets to-day under contract calling for delivery during the next three months. The total was estimated in some quarters of the trade as 25,000,000 pounds, although this figure was considered rather high in others.

Purchases for Russian account apparently had a favorable influence on the prices, for copper was quoted at the end of the day at 14 cents a pound as compared with 13 5/8 cents at the close of last week.

Russia is not normally an importer of the metal direct from the United States. For this reason to-day's purchases were believed to represent buying for war purposes and an effort to accumulate supplies far in excess of those usually available from the country's own refineries.

SAW PART OF FIGHT IN NORTH SEA.
London, Jan. 25.—A despatch from Amsterdam to the Central News says that the German cruisers in the North Sea action were accompanied by twenty torpedo craft, according to the master of the Dutch trawler Epica, who declares he witnessed part of the fight and saw one British ship slightly damaged.

GREAT BRITAIN AND THE DACIA.
New York Sun.—Great Britain is within her rights as a belligerent in declining to assent to the voyage of the Dacia with a cargo of cotton to Rotterdam. Great Britain proposes to test the good faith of the transfer of the ship from German to American registry, and it is better for the relations of the United States and Great Britain that the question should be settled as soon as possible.

The Passing of Judge Conroy.

The Bench and Bar of Newfoundland to-day mourn the loss of Judge Conroy, whose death occurred at Westmount, Montreal, yesterday afternoon, after an illness of some months.

The late James G. Conroy was a native of Ireland and came to Newfoundland in 1872, when he entered into partnership with the late John Boone. The law firm of Boone and Conroy attained a prominence in these days that has never been excelled by any legal partnership since. Mr. Conroy was not long in Newfoundland before he became prominent in politics, and for some years was a representative of the district of Ferryland. It was during this time that he founded and edited the "Advocate," a weekly paper that became famous.

In 1880 he was appointed a Judge of the District Court, an appointment he held up to the time of his death. It was as Judge he was best known to the present generation. He belonged to the old school, and his examination of a witness was an interesting event of the sessions of the District Court. A few months ago he returned to the city, and presided occasionally at Court, but it was quite evident that the sands of his life were ebbing fast. He was in his seventy-ninth year. To Mr. Charles O'Neill Conroy the only son of the late Judge, and to his six grandchildren the Telegram extends sincere sympathy.

Meeting at Fortune.

(To Hon. W. C. Job)
Fortune, Jan. 29, 1915.

Enthusiastic meeting here last night. The audience was large and the chair was occupied by Mr. John E. Lake. More volunteers are offering. All the schools were addressed this morning. Great good done by the tour.

GOD OUR SHIELD AND PROTECTION.

Eternal Father, God Supreme,
Who didst in love the world redeem,
We looked to Thee in days of old;
Thy mercies have been manifold,
Oh, hear us, as we cry to Thee,
And bless our Flag on land and sea.

Protect our King, his empire guard;
O'er all our shores keep watch and ward;
We have not served Thee as we might—
We plead unworthy in Thy sight.
Yet, hear us, as we cry to Thee,
And hold our homelands safe and free.

Lord of the waves, our Sailors keep,
Who meet their foes on treacherous deep,
Protect and bless them in the strife;
All souls are thine in death and life.
Oh, hear us, as we cry to Thee,
For our brave sailors on the sea.

Almighty Father, guide and shield
Our soldiers on each battlefield,
In camp and fort, reveal Thy power,
And mercy give in conflict's hour.
Oh, hear us, as we cry to Thee,
For all who may in peril be.

Dear Father, bless the shadowed homes
Where haunting fear now daily comes;
Defend the right, make war to cease;
Forgive all wrong, and give us peace.
Then, once again, shall rise to Thee
Glad hymns of praise from land and sea.

In addition to three artillery officers, the British Government has thirty-two artificers and armorers staying at South Bethlehem to test the guns and projectiles which are being turned out by C. M. Schawb's big steel plant.

OUR MEAT IS SOMETHING TO CROW OVER. It comes from the choicest cattle, and small stock, and no king's table has better.

A LITTLE GOOD MEAT that you can eat is better than a whole lot that you cannot get your teeth through. For your own benefit and ours, give our meats a trial.
