LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;
— or the —
Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XXIV.

"I hope so. But he fell back as though the words had struck him like a blow.

"I shall always remember," she said, "that I owe much to you. It was through you, indirectly, that I met Captain Osburn first. I—sometimes think that in the past I was a little proud, a little harsh to you, Mr. Bardon. One sees things so much more clearly in the light of a great love. Love comes direct from Heaven, I believe."

He answered her by a moan of pain, which she did not notice.

"I am so happy," she said, "that I cannot help wishing every one else was the same. I cannot help feeling kindly toward every one. If I have been proud or hard, you will forgive me now, will you not, Mr. Bardon?"—and she again held out her hand to him.

He hardly dared trust himself to touch it or look into her smiling face. His pain and his passion were so great that he could have struck her dead in the pride of her grace and loveliness.

"I am glad you are happy," he said at last. "I have nothing to forgive. You will know more of that later on. Has Captain Osburn told you the romance I spoke of?"

"No," she replied, "not yet."

"Ask him to do so; and when you hear it remember that it was I who planned, after listening to it, to bring you together, knowing how well such a romance would suit you."

"I will remember," she answered, with a happy smile. "Heaven bless you for all the happiness you have helped to give me!"

CHAPTER XXV.

Lady Iris Payne and John Bardon conversed yet a little longer on the terrace at Chandos. The strangeness of his manner at last struck the heiress, and, looking earnestly at him, she said—

"You do not seem well this morning, Mr. Bardon."

But he would not meet the clear, kindly eyes.

"I am well enough," he replied brusquely. "I wish I were not one half so strong. I shall live on while happier men die."

"You are low-spirited," she remarked. "Why should a man like you, blessed with everything worth having in life, be troubled with such doleful thoughts? One smile from your little son should drive dull care away."

"You are right," was the answer. "Blessed with such a child, I ought not to know care. Good-morning, Lady Iris."

When he left her, he did as he had

CUTICURA HEALS ITCHY SCALP
Was Sore and Red. Hair Fell Out. Head Disfigured.

"From using the same wash and comb as my sister, whose scalp was troubled with dandruff, it caused my scalp to be itchy. My scalp was sore and red, and the dandruff peeled off and could be seen on my clothing. My hair fell out gradually and my head was disfigured. This trouble lasted six months. Then I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I afterwards bought more, and I only used two boxes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment when I was healed." (Signed) Miss Frances Burns, St. Basile, Quebec.

"Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Cuticura Pills." (Signed) Miss Frances Burns, St. Basile, Quebec.

Captain Osburn took from his pocket a little morocco case.

"My darling," he said, "early this morning I rode over to King's Forest to get this. I am almost ashamed to offer it to you. I wish I had some grand family heirloom to give you; but I have not, and," he added with a smile, "you know the reason why."

He opened the case, and in it lay a superb ring set with diamonds and rubies. He took the ring from the case.

"You will let me put it on your finger, Iris? It is an engagement ring—a ring that binds you to me almost as a wedding-ring would."

She held out her hand to him, and he placed the ring upon her finger.

"It fits you exactly," he said; "and I look upon that as a good omen. Promise me, Iris, that you will wear this ring all your life."

"I promise," she replied; "and I promise even more, Allan. It shall be buried with me!"

He kissed the loving face raised to his.

"Thank you," he said simply. "So long as you wear that ring I shall know that you are true to me—that you love me, and no one else; but, if ever I see this sweet, white hand without the ring, I shall know that you have forgotten me—ceased to care for me, and perhaps even love some one else."

"I am quite willing to submit to the test," she replied. "If—which, thank Heaven, is impossible!—something should part us now, and for twenty years you saw and heard nothing of me, and on your return you looked to see if I wore the ring, you would know at once, if I did so, that, despite time and absence, I had been true to you. If no ring shone upon my hand, you would know that I had forgotten you. Is that it, Allan?"

"Yes," he answered briefly.

"You would find it there, my own," she continued, "if you were absent thirty years, and I lived so long. I may live many years, but I shall have only one love."

"I wonder," she cried, "that you should love me so much!"

She laughed the sweet happy laugh that always gladdened his heart.

"I was thinking this morning, Allan," she said, "that life is much shorter than love. If I live to be a hundred years old, and I tried every day to tell you how much I loved you, I could not—life would not be long enough. I wonder if other lovers are happy in thinking about their future as we are?"

"I do not believe that any one was ever so happy," he replied, "and for the best of all reasons—I do not think any one ever loved so much as we do!"

LIFE WAS MISERY!

"I was reading the other day about Neurasthenia, about the large number of people who were troubled with this disease. It is just what my wife had. She felt miserable all the time and was constantly depressed. She would wake in the morning and tell me that something dreadful was going to happen that day. Life was nothing short of misery for her. She was so depressed that I expected she would lose her mind and have to go to a sanitarium and I kept wondering how I would get the money to pay for her. She could not eat and had no appetite for food. She was irritable and cranky most of the time. If she was crossed in any way, she would immediately work herself up into a violent temper. This worried me because she had always had a kind and gentle disposition and nothing which was said or done seemed to irritate her. I spoke to our family doctor about her and he said that her trouble was imagination and that if she would try and forget about her depression and look on the bright side of life she would be all right. Of course I didn't dare tell her this because I knew she would get into one of her tempers. When she got over these fits of temper, she was always weak and ill and more depressed than ever. The doctor said a tonic might help her and gave me a prescription but this did not do her any good. She tried all kinds of other tonics with the same result. Carnol was recommended to me and I wish to state that it is the leader of all tonics. Since taking it my wife has changed completely. Now she is always ready for her meals and work is no burden. It is a pleasure for me to recommend Carnol to anyone who is in need of a tonic or a body builder. Excuse me for writing this letter but I want you to accept my thanks for that wonderful tonic known as Carnol.—Mr. S. M., Toronto.

Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money. 7-622

Just Folks.
By EDGAR A. GUEST.

WHEN REDSKINS BIT THE DUST.
Do you remember the days that were the days of "Chunky" and Bill and Joe?
And you and I and the thrill and stir
Of the books we read in the long ago,
"The trashy things," as our parents said,
And frequently burned in their deep disgust,
And the joy of us as we sat and read:
"Then two more redskins bit the dust!"

Those were the days of the Golden West,
The days of Custer and Buffalo Bill,
When we followed the scouts to the mountain crest,
And breathlessly watched them shoot to kill.
We knew the meaning of curling smokes,
The signs of fear and the guides to trust,
And we thrilled with joy when the rifles spoke,
And two more redskins bit the dust.

Out in the barn in those golden days,
In a secret place where our pamphlets hid,
And there we followed the trapper's ways,
And gloried in all that they said or did.
Adventure gripped at each youthful throat,
For we knew the meaning of savage lust,
But this was the line that we loved to quote:
"Then two more redskins bit the dust!"

Now we have boys and they're reading books,
Books of splendor and books of war,
But the tales we kept in our secret nooks
Have passed away from this bettered era.
And I sit and I smile as I watch them there,
And I think of the days when our tales were just
The bark of rifles upon the air—
"And two more redskins bit the dust!"

A good dinner deserves a good cigarette, a bad dinner needs one. Let your choice be CUB.

GOING STRONG.

There is always something wrong, something fierce that threatens doom, but the country jogs along and emerges from the gloom. Uncle Sam is hard to stay, hard to smother in despair; and he trots along his way with his coat-tails in the air. Just a little while ago everything seemed on the blink, and we wept and lapped up woe as our daily food and drink. Every prospect was a frost, there would be no coal to burn, and a cord of wood would cost more than any man could earn. All the trains would cease to run, transportation would collapse; all the world seemed bleak and dun, there were tears upon our maps. Even chronic Sunny Jims shook their heads and sighed, "Alas! We can't sing our cheer-up hymns for this crisis will not pass. We are up against it now, every day new ills appear, and the statesman beats his brow in extremity of fear." But the country jogs along, and the smiling statesman says, "We are surely going strong, better times will come this way. There will shortly be a boom that will knock the records cold; we're emerging from the gloom, and our skies are bright as gold."

LLOYD GEORGE'S PLAN. LONDON, Oct. 30. Mr. Lloyd George may attempt to regain the Premiership and the general election develop into a fight after all. The Lloyd George headquarters announced tonight that if the Conservatives continued to nominate candidates, as they have since Saturday, in constituencies considered safely, Lloyd George, the National Liberals will retaliate, and the fight would really be a "question of proceeding actually with the old Coalition agreement," as one party manager put it to the newspaper correspondents. He said, "Lloyd George's whole case, as he has admitted himself, is that party war is not the thing for the country at this time. There is no pact, that is, true, but we have been following the same lines as before, nominating only one hundred and sixty-five candidates for the seats we hold. Lloyd George's plan is merely to hold these seats and return to the Commons with a group sufficiently numerous to give him a voice. If not office, but he won't stand a raid upon that group. We have one hundred and sixty-five men in the field now, and fifteen are striving at the least anxious to contest their constituencies. If the Conservatives interpret, Sir George Younger's letter as encouraging them to invade our Districts, we shall invade theirs."

Happy Mother Tells How Children Were Restored

THE value of Tanlac as a family medicine is again very forcibly demonstrated in the home of Mrs. Josephine Deckret, 1913 Bank St., Baltimore. After putting this splendid tonic to the test with herself and three children, Mrs. Deckret says:

"Tanlac has been such a great blessing to myself and 3 children that it has won my lifelong praise. My health had been so wretched for two or three months that I was just dragging around. I could neither eat nor sleep to do much good and had a world of trouble with indigestion. I have just finished my third bottle of Tanlac and am almost a well woman already. John Frank, aged six, and Carolina, who is four, both complained of headaches, pains in the stomach and were very restless at night. They had no appetites, were thin and pale, and took no interest in play or anything else."

"And Joseph Paul, two years old, was in just about the same fix. I could not get him to eat, he was fretful day and night and was very thin and pale. They have taken about two bottles of Tanlac each now, and healthier, happier children could not be found. John Frank has gained six pounds, Carolina eight and little Joseph is as fat as a butterball and playful as a kitten. I certainly have good reasons for praising Tanlac."

"The experience of the Deckret family is only typical of thousands of others whose statements are on file in the Tanlac offices. Hardly a day passes that does not bring scores of such messages of praise from every part of the United States and Canada from families where mother, father, son and daughter have all found health, contentment and the joys of living through simply taking a course of Tanlac. Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

The "Gallant Three Hundred."

Everyone knows the story of how the "Noble Six Hundred" rushed into the "Valley of Death at Balaklava" the maddest and most splendid feat in the annals of war, but little is known of the charge of the Gallant Three Hundred who, a few hours earlier, hung themselves at the Russian sword with a valour equally great and glorious. The thrilling episode occurred in the chilly dawn at the end of October, 1854, and seldom has British soldiery faced such fearful odds. On the heights above them were three thousand of Russia's fastest horsemen, and with all the advantage of position. But even with the hopeless task before them, every man in the British line was convulsed with laughter, as down the hill in panicky flight raced hundreds of red-faced Turks, pursued by the flash of Cossack swords. But there was little time for merriment. As the Russian cavalry, with the thunder of hoofs, bore down upon them, laughter died on the lips of the gallant 93rd. Every jaw was set with firm resolve to stem that torrent or die in the attempt. The voice of their Colonel, that gallant old warrior, Sir Colin Campbell, rang out in stern accents, "Ninety-third! Ninety-third! Damn all that eagerness! Remember," he added, as he rode down the line "there is no retreat from here, men. You must die where you stand." And with one voice, came the thunderous answer: "Ay, ay, Sir Colin, we'll do that," and they did. On they went with Sir James Yorke Scarlett, ruddy-nosed and white-whiskered, heading the way.

"Down the hill, down the hill, thousands of Russians. Thousands of horsemen, drew to the Valley—and stayed. For Scarlett and Scarlett's three hundred were riding by. When the points of Russian lances arose in the sky, and he called 'Left wheel into line,' and they wheeled and obeyed."

"Then he looked at the host that had wheeled, he knew not why. And he turned half round, and he bade his trumpeters sound. To the charge, and he rode on ahead, as he waved his blade. To the gallant three hundred whose glory will never die—'Follow,' and up the hill, up the hill, up the hill. Followed the Heavy Brigade."

Can the Aerial Camera

RECORD THE MOVEMENTS OF THE CARIBOU

An interesting photograph is on exhibition in the window of Messrs. Dicks & Co. Ltd., Water St. Mr. Cotton secured this picture a few days ago when flying over the interior of a part of Newfoundland far removed from civilization. When it is considered that the photograph was taken under very adverse weather conditions in bad light, the value of Aerial photography in connection with survey work will be appreciated. The tracks being so clearly defined must be in regular use, otherwise, the fall of snow, which is clearly shown on the ground, would have covered them unless, of course, they are filled with water, as sometimes happens. Accurate detail of the ground is not clearly seen owing to the glare thrown off by the light-covering of snow. The main track running towards the centre of the picture from the left side is evidently frequently used, as a regular trench has been worn into the ground.

ALTITUDE OF 3000 FEET.

This particular picture was taken from a height of three thousand feet above the ground at an angle of about 45 degrees to the vertical, and gives much the same view that would be seen when looking down from a mountain top. An Aerial Photographic Map made up of a series of vertical photographs overlapping each other, and so making an accurate pictorial map, would doubtless show every movement of the caribou herds, and so establish some definite information on this subject. It is unlikely that these tracks are made by mankind or any animal other than the caribou, as the area is far from civilization and from tracks used by trappers and dog teams, while no other animal in Newfoundland would move in this fashion. Tracks show up just as well when no snow is on the ground owing to the refraction of light.

BATTLE RECORDS.

During the war the Aerial Camera was used daily in recording the movements of troops and guns in the battle area. A track leading to a hedge or farmstead, frequently gave away the position of a hostile battery or headquarters. This achievement was arrived at after much research and experimental work by the Photographic section of the Royal Air Force who were able to develop a highly sensitive plate which duly recorded tracks which are sometimes almost invisible to the average man on the ground. For instance, two or three men walking across a grass field will leave that portion of the grass that they had passed over slightly trodden down. These blades of grass being at a different angle to the rest of the grass in the field throw off a different volume of light and this is duly recorded on the photographic plates.

CAN MAP OUT CARIBOU AREAS.

Exactly the same state of affairs happens when the track passes over earth. The earth pressed down by the foot of man or animal throws up a different volume of light to the surrounding earth, and this is movement recorded. Mr. Cotton states that he saw these tracks running chiefly toward the area shown in the photograph, which seems to indicate that the caribou concentrate in that particular portion of the country.

Mr. Cotton also says he can undoubtedly map out the exact areas where the caribou move, and the extent of their movements by taking a series of Aerial Photographs. This information, will, of course, be of great value for protection purposes, as well as for the legitimate sportsman. A careful study of the photographs would no doubt solve the much discussed problem of migration. One of these days it is hoped that the Aerial Survey Co. will be asked to make a photograph of the whole of Newfoundland. This, in addition to definitely showing the movements of the caribou would also give exact quantities and types of timber in existence, full particulars of the water ways both for transportation of logs and for power, and also information that will be of great value to the geologists.

Dance at S.U.F. Hall.

HALLOWEEN CELEBRATION.

At the S.U.F. Hall last evening, Mr. Max Cotton's dancing class spent a very enjoyable time celebrating the Halloween festival. The hall, tastefully decorated with ribbons, streamers and festoons, presented a bewitching appearance. Miss Marion Corbett presided at the piano and a splendid musical programme was provided which was greatly enjoyed by the dancers. At 10.30 a delicious supper was served by the ladies present and it was thoroughly enjoyed. Dancing was then resumed and at 1 o'clock, when it terminated, all present expressed their keen enjoyment of a rare evening's fun.

Reduce the Price.

OF BREAD AND BISCUITS.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—You are possibly aware that the two Butterine Factories operating in town sent notices to their customers last week announcing a reduction of two cents per pound on their Butterine effective on Wednesday, November 1st. This concession of butter, one of our principal food products, will help to some extent in reducing the present high cost of living, and the thanks of the community are due these manufacturers for their liberality in reducing their prices without pressure or solicitation. Don't you think that it would be a very nice thing, Mr. Editor, now with a long hard winter ahead of us, if the Bread and Biscuit makers were to follow the example of the Butter factories and reduce their prices on Bread and Biscuits in sympathy with the recent decline in the value of flour. This time last year Flour sold at $19.50 and today it is selling at $8.50, or a reduction of two dollars per barrel, and I claim that there should be a corresponding reduction in the price of Bread and Biscuits, and it is to be hoped that the Bread and Biscuit factories will take this hint and reduce their prices without delay, otherwise I may be tempted in another letter to show the general public some of the large profits that these big monopolies are making at present out of the trade and average householder.

Yours truly,
"BREAD and BUTTER."

Cause and Effect.

There are many causes for the present trade deadlock in Newfoundland, and while the price of fish is called low, yet it conditions were as in pre-war days. $4.00 Labrador and $6.00 Shore would be considered a fairly good price. One cause for the decline in the markets is due to the Shore Labrador salted fish sent over during the War, which could not retain its once healthy state because it lacked proper cure. Some exporters took advantage of the circumstances in European countries, whose people were war worn and hungry, and started an arrapale which was unjust, in piling half-cured fish on the buyers across who when they could not dispose of their stocks, turned a deaf ear to us even though a better quality was guaranteed.

Thousands of quintals of fish, which took many hours of toil and worry to catch, sell, buy, pack and ship, were actually dumped overboard on arrival in Mediterranean ports, merely because of inferior cure. Another cause of depression in trade is due to the high rate of tariff of which all but the present rulers, realize is a great barrier to importation, and also a discouragement to the younger folk who find their earnings of little value, compared with other years.

Government interference in stipulating prices to European buyers, through regulations, was another cause of crippling sales and especially when too high a price was demanded.

All the causes which affect our wealth, our morals and our estates, summed up, is accountable for the depression, and we think very unreasonable burden thereby laid at our feet unjustly, especially in the years of a poor voyage.

If this country is to survive—and perhaps she may—a change in mercantile affairs and a change of policy on the part of the Government must come before we win the reputation and respect of the outside world. Otherwise the effect of mismanagement, if continued, will make it still harder for people to exist, and still harder to sell what bit we may produce.—Twillingate Sun.

The Vagrant's Lament

"I CANNOT SPEND MY MONEY IN THE PEN"

(This heartbreaking poem, contributed by the Vagrant, is his very own poem, and is on fact.)

I'm down with a fit of depression. My nerves are completely wrecked. Through stealing again and again. But in spite of my fervent prayer, I cannot get sent to the pen.

Although I'm a very good fellow, I let myself always get caught. For I want to get down for the night. But prosecute me, they will. The shopkeeper looks me up. And pity is writ on his face. He won't get me three months in clover.

But just kicks me out of the pen. I once threw a stone at a man. And hoped it would get me sent to College. But the owner, he only grins. He'd insured it for plenty of money. I up and I hit a policeman. Did it land me in quod, I don't know. The Judge said "You must be a peace, man."

Or next time I'll send you a letter. And now on the streets I roam. And work, if a living I'd make. Who in luxury dwell by the sea. On Christmas, I'll sleep in a bed. And think of them eating and drinking. While I'll have to feed in a cell. And likely get took with a Collegiate Footer.

BOYS AGAIN VICTORIOUS.
The third game of the second round Collegiate football series, was played yesterday afternoon at St. John's College between St. Bon's and the St. John's team, and resulted in a victory for the St. Bon's team by a score of 3 goals to one, which was the result of the Champion-ship. The weather conditions were ideal for good football, while those who were present found it very uncom- fortable due to a strong cold wind, blowing down from the westward.

FIRST HALF.

St. John's took the field at 4 p.m. Mr. E. Churchill controlled the play and the kick-off of the Method- ists. The game opened hostilities by a determined attack on the St. Bon's goal, but were frustrated by an attempt when Flynn skied the centre field. The St. Bon's lads give many busy moments in the leather, and had to play a defensive due to the strong wind which was blowing against them. However, managed to work the ball west, when Donnelly availed himself of an opening and landed the first of the evening behind Mott. This blue aggregation forced the St. John's backs to strong for them, secured two corners in rapid suc- cession, but nothing materialized. The St. Bon's forward line worked the M.C. territory for some min- utes, but having made several un- successful tries, on goal were finally repelled for their efforts, when Fraser, who will time pass from Donnelly, led the leather between the posts, No. 2. The efforts of the St. Bon's lads became better realized, many minutes of play, when scored one of the best goals of the season. This renewed the ef- fort of the red and blue team all the way for the remaining ten min- utes of play. The St. Bon's spent many moments in clearing the ball from the danger zone. The half ended with the score St. Bon's 2 goals; St. John's 0.

SECOND HALF.

The ends here changed it was a conclusion by many that the St. Bon's, with the strong wind to their advantage, would win their opponents, but this be- liever realized a short time af- ter the M.C. boys played rings with their opponents. This and the St. Bon's pressed the leather into the territory against the strong wind, which always ended in hard collisions, the St. Bon's goalie several spectacular stops and the situation again time. The final goal for the evening was scored by full time, when a pass from Raymond Hill, a mid-field, raced in all by his hands and drove the ball under the net safely into the twine. In some considering the wind, was a good one, both elev- ating really good football on.

Scotch Cured Herring.

There is a marked revival of interest in the Scotch herring fishery, due to reports that the Norwegians are going to this pack more extensively than in the past. A committee appointed by the Government to investigate the herring reported that the Scotch herring, gutted in the Scotch manner and cured in their own pickle, are able to com- pete with any other herring that has come into competition with them. Of all the herring barrels upon the world market, the Scotch packages are regarded as the best and strongest.

During a Bible lesson a teacher was trying to explain the parable of the tares.
"Can anyone tell me any person who is like the evil one who sowed the tares?"
A hand instantly shot up from the foot of the class.
"Well, David, what person do you say?"
"Please, ma'am, my mother."
"Why?" asked the teacher in astonishment.
"Because," answered he, innocently, eyeing his patched trousers, "the sows tares."

The Industries of Newfoundland.

TRIBUTE TO LORD NORTHCLIFFE

Lord Morris presided at a dinner given by the Newfoundland Club at the British Empire Club, St. James's Square, last evening, when a large company gathered to meet Sir C. A. Harris, the retiring Governor of Newfoundland, and Sir W. L. Allard, the Governor-elect.
The Chairman, in proposing the toast of "The Governor of Newfoundland," said that Newfoundland was the oldest of our Colonies. The Governor-elect, who, like his predecessor, had had a long career of Colonial public service, would find in that island a people true to the core to the British connexion and ready to work with him in advancing the interests of the Empire. Industrially and in other ways Newfoundland had passed through a rather severe experience during the last few years, but he hoped and believed that she had turned the corner and that her great fishing, mineral, and paper-producing industries would be developed. Newfoundland was second only to Great Britain as a British mineral producing area. Nearly a million tons of iron ore would be exported from Newfoundland to Germany this year. Why it was not landed in this country he would leave to the politicians to explain. Twenty years ago Newfoundland had no paper or pulp-producing industry. Then that great captain of industry, Alfred Harmsworth, came to the country and established one of the greatest paper mills in the world. Her resources awaited more enterprise and capital for further development and the settlement of thousands of people there.
Sir C. A. Harris and Sir W. L. Allard replied. The latter remarked that Newfoundland had enormous resources, and that the more they could be developed the better it would be for this country as well as for the colony.
Sir W. Goodie, in submitting the toast of "Newfoundland and the Empire," spoke of the difficulties which Newfoundland had overcome in less than half a century, and recalled that when Sir Robert Bond, then the Prime Minister of the island, was tracing the streets of London, in search of a small loan, and wondering how industries other than the fishing trade would be developed, he arranged for a meeting with Lord Northcliffe, and that meeting resulted in the creation of Newfoundland's paper industry. The great services rendered to Newfoundland by the late Lord Northcliffe and his brother Lord Rothermere could not be measured in terms of money or tons of exports. By the death of Lord Northcliffe Newfoundland lost a true friend.
Sir R. A. Squires, the Prime Minister of the island, responded.
Among those present were: Lady Morris, Lady Harris, Lady Allard, Lady Squires, Sir Glynn and Lady West, Sir James and Lady Allen, Sir Fabian and Lady Ware, Sir Richard and Lady Linthorpe, Sir James and Lady Connolly, Sir Patrick McGraith, Sir T. Berridge, Sir William Plender Sir John and Lady Wimple, and Capt. V. Gordon, the secretary of the club.

Infant Actress Walks for Star in Fox Special.

BABY TAKES HER FIRST STEPS WHEN WILLIAM FARNUM URGES HER IN PHOTOPLAY.
Many a screen actor of note has received valuable suggestions and encouragement from William Farnum, but only one can claim that her first steps were guided by the famous screen star. This is Vera Price, who enacts the role of Helen, infant daughter of Robert Moore, in the Fox special, "Perjury," at the Majestic Theatre to-day.
Vera was very young at the time of her first appearance before the camera. Indeed, she had yet to take her first steps in life. Director Harry Millards thought it would be more effective if the child would take a few steps toward her daddy as he entered the scene.
"I'm afraid that can't be managed," said the baby's mother, Grace LaVell, who plays the housekeeper in the same picture. "Vera hasn't walked yet."
Director Millards decided to try the coaxing, wheedling, commanded. Vera was interested and friendly, but she would not try to walk for the gentleman. Then William Farnum took the child in his lap and played with her until she felt thoroughly acquainted with him. He had her laughing, dimpling, crowing with delight. A little piece of the star once said of "Uncle Billy" told me to jump off a roof. I'd jump, because I know he'd catch me."
Well, after the preliminaries Mr. Farnum set Vera down and stepped back, holding out his hands to her. "Come, Vera," he urged.
A light of high resolve lighted up the baby's eyes, and with a gurgle of delight she toddled forward into the actor's outstretched arms.

Flying without passenger, the French aviator Maneyrolle remained in the air for three hours, 21 minutes, thus beating by 11 minutes the record made in the German competitions recently by H. P. Hentzen of the Hanover Technical School. Maneyrolle won a £1000 prize by his feat.
Extraordinary Ability.
Extraordinary ability was shown by the Frenchman in spite of ever changing winds. He occasionally glided into dangerous eddies, but always recovered. He flew in a Payer monoplane. The other record was in flight with a passenger. In this competition G. R. Olley, gliding in a Payer biplane, remained in the air for 49 minutes, or 36 minutes longer than the best previous record.
When Maneyrolle launched his machine, Raynham, the Englishman who glided an hour and 53 seconds Tuesday also went up, but was forced to land within eight minutes.

BILLY'S UNCLE

Evening Telegram

The Evening Telegram, Ltd., Proprietors. Tuesday, October 31, 1922.

Excusing Himself.

The editor of the Advocate had a very vague article in the issue of his journal on Saturday, the burden of which was a camouflaged defence of his action when chairman of the Board of Sugar Control, where he is quoted as a measure of excuse for his own blundering in this connection, all the millions that had been lost in Great Britain by a similar commission. As an argument of excuse this prodigious attempt fails of its purpose. We are not interested in what the people of the British Isles lost through the bungling of their Food Boards. They can well look after that phase of the situation themselves, and we believe that the various Commissioners came in for more direct digs over their ignorance, than even the famous body of Newfoundland Food Commissioners. The London Times, from which our contemporary so copiously quotes, did not lessen its criticism because of the weak defence that the Sugar Commission over there put up. On the contrary it was more than severe on the lack of knowledge of the sugar markets, which caused such huge sums to be lost, and ultimately to have to be recouped by the people themselves, exactly as is happening in this colony to-day. In order to make up for the losses incurred by our talented commission who controlled the purchase and import of sugar, the people of Newfoundland are now, and have been, paying a sum of duty far in excess of the cost of sugar in New York. Over one hundred per cent. is being extracted from the pockets of consumers of sugar, the rate of duty being in the vicinity of five and one half cents per pound, the total revenue on this article, going toward paying or meeting the gross loss in which the famous Sugar Board involved the colony. Cheap Sugar, what! Not for so long as the present aggregation is in possession of the administration. The humourous genius of the Advocate, with a simulation of ponderous Mark Tapscottism, designates the Telegram's strictures on his sugar policy as cheap wit, and who is better qualified to be an exponent of cheap wit than the man whose splendid genius is responsible for the loss on sugar. This funny chap then carries on with his list of fishermen's necessities at the present per centum rate of duty. Let us tell the fishermen that 11 per cent. Pork works out at about Three dollars and fifty cents a barrel, a rate more than double that which was paid, under earlier tariffs, when One dollar and fifty cents was the duty. Other items in the Advocate's list in proportion. Anyone can figure out from the per centum rates given by the one and only friend of the fishermen, the actual revenue being exacted by the Customs on the articles given in the list which has caused so many brain wringings to our genial contemporary. The fishermen from the North are arriving in the city to-day. Their schooners are anchored in the harbor, and their crews themselves will give the editor of the Advocate and his scribal staff an opportunity to answer a few questions on the price of fish and the rates of duty. When the big demonstration is carried out, our friend of Duckworth Street will no doubt be honored by a visit from the leaders touching some statements he has made in recent issues of his paper. Will he be at his office to receive the deputation? Will he also have the courage to tell the fishermen of Greenspond, Valleyfield and those other centres on the north side of Bonavista Bay that their meeting at Bonavista on Thursday night last was a failure? Will he dare face the indignation of these men with his threadbare stories of traitors and expulsion from the Union, when they demand an explanation and retraction of "Advocate falsifications?" "Hands off the Union" howls the "Suam Cuique" hack writers. The only people who are touching the Union to-day are those who have been long associated with it, and have at length discovered its true meaning and object. These are the men who will eventually smash the fishermen's Union as at present constituted, and out of its ruins will erect a greater and far more beneficent and lasting institution.

Reduced Taxation Means Profitable Fishery.

In 1897, fish sold for about two or three dollars per quintal. Destitution threatened. A considerable deficit occurred. Labor was scarce. The outlook was blue. The Whiteway-Bond government was defeated, and the Winter-Morine administration came into power. No classified tariff of customs duties, and no intelligible budget of expenditure existed. Under these circumstances, Mr. Morine was placed in charge of the Colony's finances. He classified customs schedules, made a suitable tariff rate, justified a complete budget, introduced the Customs and Audit Act, as they exist to-day; and as a result, when the Bond-Morris government came into power, in 1900, it succeeded to a surplus—the first actual one for years—and to an orderly condition in the public service. The author of this work has been talking to the Trade Review about Revenue and Expenditure, and his words call for consideration. He says, for instance, that under existing circumstances duties should be fixed with regard chiefly to the ability of the consumer to pay. Lower the rates, so that the fishery can be prosecuted with vigor, is, after his proposal for a temporary deficit in the Colony's finances will not bother anybody very much if the people be busy and prosperous. Better, he says, incur a deficit by lowering customs duties, and so stimulating the fisheries, than by giving employment upon non-productive public works. In prosperous countries, and in normal times, it is usual to arrange a scale of expenditures, and then provide a revenue to meet it. But this country is not prosperous, and these are not normal times, and Mr. Morine says that the proper method now is to decide how much the people can pay, yet live, and then reduce the expenditure to meet the revenue, if possible, and if it cannot be done, face a deficit with calmness while the country is recovering its stride. The exclusive power and responsibility of the Government for the making of the customs tariff is insisted upon by Mr. Morine. It is, he says, a matter for statesmanship. The Government which appoints such a commission as is now sitting, to make a tariff, is shirking its plain duty. He points out, too, that the fishermen and laborers are not represented on that Committee, which is composed wholly of importers or manufacturers. The Assembly is elected to deal with tariffs mainly. The Government exists in theory to administer the financial affairs of the Colony. Both Assembly and Government neglect their most obvious duties when they refer the making of a customs tariff to any other persons than themselves. This spirit of "let George do it" has been submitted to far too long, and the time has come when accountability should be insisted on.

L. O. A. at Broad Cove.

The officers of Grand Lodge L.O.A.A. R. C. Bros. A. W. Placott, G.M., Jordan Milley, G.S., and F. Gordon Bradley, G.D.M., held an official visit to the Primary Lodge at Broad Cove last night. The visiting officers received a hearty welcome, and were tendered a banquet, served in excellent style, by the Ladies' Association. The reports received showed the Lodge to be in a flourishing condition. On Thursday night an official visit will be made to the Lodge at Keltigrove.

Labor Delegation Unsuccessful.

WILL AWAIT RETURN OF PRIME MINISTER. Up to a late hour last night nothing definite had been arranged in connection with relief work for the six hundred men now out of employment. Yesterday afternoon the committee of six selected by the unemployed on Saturday last, went back and informed the gathering that they had approached both the Acting Prime Minister and Hon. Dr. Campbell. Having stated their case to them, they were told that their only alternative now, was the Humbertmouth Deal, which is alleged to have gone through, and they were given to understand it would be only a matter of time when operations would be commenced. The Acting Prime Minister, Hon. Gen. Shea, when interviewed by the delegation, could not understand how it was that a large body of men could be out of employment at this season of the year, when such a scene of activity as is at present being carried out along the various waterfront premises is in evidence. Hon. Mr. Shea informed the committee that he could not accede to their request, but pointed out to the delegation before their departure that the Prime Minister would be home within a week, when the time would be more opportune for the matter to be laid before him.

WHEN SQUIRES COME BACK.

The chairman of the committee speaking to a Telegram reporter last night, stated that after he and his delegation had informed the men as to what had transpired with the executive heads, they were again asked if they would hold another interview, and try if possible to receive more definite arrangements for relief work, as some eighteen hundred mouths depended upon them for support. The select committee of six acceded to this request, forthwith, and made another such call—as formerly—yesterday afternoon, when nothing other than the same flat refusal was handed out to them. What steps the men will now take in the matter is not known.

THREE HUNDRED MARRIED MEN.

A member of the delegation, last night, stated that 300 of the men are married, with families, and that some form of relief work would have to be secured as quickly as possible. The suggestion was made that the Government could at least grant men employment for the next few months in breaking up stone. A large quantity of this material is now at the Government's disposal, which could very easily be placed on hand for road and building purposes next year. Sheds are already at the men's disposal for this form of work, in both the east and west ends of the city. He pointed out that 325,000 of the $1,000,000 granted by Sir R. A. Squires last May for relief work during the year was still on hand, and should operations have been commenced with in this way, $180,000, plus the wages and some small contracts thrown in would be a big help in relieving the situation. He further stated, "You cannot expect the family man to go to Humbertmouth," as pointed out by Hon. Dr. Campbell.

EMPLOYMENT DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN.

Avenues of employment would have to be looked for the balance of the year in the Presbyterial Hall this afternoon. The young ladies anticipate that a large attendance will be present. For some time past they have busied themselves in making the necessary preparations for this sale. The goods on display consists of hand bags, cushions, handkerchiefs, table covers, pin cushions, embroidered aprons, etc. A handsome sum will no doubt be realized. The sale of work will be followed by a concert, the which includes several of our well-known artists. Caud Cannon will be served during the evening, while sandy and ice-cream will be on sale during the programme interval.

Portuguese Importers and Dealers.

LATTERS DEMANDS PARALYZE SALES. The following report from Esra Pinouta and Co., Ltd., Operated, dated Oct. 12, was received yesterday by the Board of Trade:—"For some days back dealers here advised importers that they intended to suspend all purchases of codfish until certain demands, which they have made of importers were conceded. These demands being: 1st. An increase in the bonus which they have been accustomed to receive in the act of purchase at the warehouses, and 2nd. the cessation of the direct sale of fish to the provinces, and the passing of this business over to the dealers." Sales were already dull, but this strike paralyzed them completely. However, at a meeting held to-day, this matter has been settled, and it is hoped sales will resume their normal course. The first cargo of Portuguese fish has now arrived at St. John's in the North of Portugal. Exchange was quoted at 2%.

First of Fleet Arrive.

IMPENDING STORM MAY DELAY OTHERS. Last evening some ten or more schooners, the advance guard of the fleet from Bonavista Bay arrived in port. The vessels left their home ports some days ago and harbored at Port Union, leaving there yesterday morning on the run to port. Owing to the barometer showing indications of an impending storm, it is not likely that the main body of the fleet will arrive for a couple of days. To-day's report from Labrador states that an easterly gale with rain and heavy sea is raging at Grady, Battle Harbor and Domino. Toronto also reports the approach of a storm and No. 3 signal has been ordered up. In connection with the arrival of the fleet it is stated that two other warships in addition to the Wishnet, which is still in port, have been ordered up. All the vessels being anchored well out in the stream, it was not possible to board them, hence no information as to the intention of the crews can be ascertained, but it is known that no action will be taken until the arrival of the whole fleet, when into an exhibition or as for St. John's will be the outcome. It is said that the Advocate has prepared iron shutters for the windows of its office buildings and will reinforce the main entry doors.

Why Pretty Teeth Are shown everywhere today
New ways found
Look about you. Note how many teeth now gleam. Note how people show them as they never did before.
Millions of people are brushing teeth in a new way. If you don't know the good results, make this free test.
Fight dingy film
One object is to fight the film on teeth—that dingy film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy costs. Tartar is based on film.
No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, under old methods, beautiful teeth were seen less often than today.
Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.
Very few people escaped such troubles under old ways of teeth cleaning.
You see them now nearly the world over
These gleaming teeth are now seen nearly the world over. Careful people of some fifty nations are now using Pepsodent. And those whiter teeth mean safer teeth. They mean a new dental era.
Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the vicious film. See how teeth whiten as the film-costs disappear.

International Fishing Schooner Races.

The Story of the 1922 Series Sailed Off Gloucester.

(Reprinted from Staff Correspondence of Morning Chronicle, Halifax.)

(By H. W. JONES.)
GLOUCESTER, Oct. 25.—We hate to say "I told you so," but this time we cannot help it. Bluenose, regarded by Gloucester last night as more or less of a joke when it came to sailing against the Henry Ford in the International Fishing Schooner Series, this day decisively defeated the Gloucester craft. And why, because she was the faster vessel in the weather of the day, weather which gave them fifteen miles of windward work on a forty mile course. If our memory serves us correctly, we said yesterday that Bluenose would trim Gloucester's pride to a fizzle in a muzzler to windward. Well, that happened to-day, though the muzzler was on the muzzler, the wind never topping twenty knots, thus holding down to less than fisherman's weather. If there is a breeze tomorrow, and it blows a real breeze, Bluenose will trounce her opponent soundly, and hold the cup. Light airs will give Ford the rubber, always dependent, of course, on what the skippers do.

CONTEST OF THRILLS.
With the tidy margin of seven minutes and twenty-three seconds to spare, the Canadian trophy defender, close hauled, drove triumphantly across the finish line, just before dusk to-day, completing the course in the truly slow time of five hours, fifty-

Ford favored the shore, scooting the smoother water and a better slanting Bluenose, instead of keeping her rival under her lee, went seaward, and we feared she might yet lose by spitting tacks. But the luck was with us to-day; the wind showed no favors and the Bluenose steadily gained so that the Ford was almost lost in the haze when the Canadian drove across the line a few minutes before five o'clock.

A SENSATIONAL INCIDENT.
Two sensations developed after the race. Foremost was the knowledge that Ernest Hiltz, of Martin's River, one of the Canadian crew, had narrowly escaped extremely serious injury or worse, when the forestaysail halyard caught him as it rubbed aloft when staysail was doused on one of the hatches on the last leg home. Head downwards he was hoisted in five minutes to the foremast head where, with his right leg firmly held in the bight of the rope, he hung. Both his hands firmly grasped the rigging, but his position was perilous and his comrades were prompt to the rescue. Capt. Moyle Crouse rushed to the leeward rigging to catch the dangling man if he should fall, while one of the masthead men, aloft in readiness for the schooner's tacking, scrambled along the cross-tree, whined out his knife and cut the halyards. The staysail flopped to leeward, a slatting, whirling piece of canvas that slanted itself almost to ribbons, but the man was saved. Hiltz, almost overcome by the pain of the rope burn on his leg, slipped swiftly down the rigging to the deck. He was tucked into his berth forward, the ripped canvas was smothered after a tussle, and Bluenose finished the race minus the staysail. When she docked Hiltz was rushed by ambulance to the Gloucester Hospital, where it was reported that his leg was badly bruised and swollen, but apparently no bones had been broken.

WHAT THE SKIPPERS SAY.
As to that, let Skipper Morrissey have his say. "In fresh breezes and by the wind," he said to me tonight, "Bluenose is always the better vessel I am quite content. I was beaten fairly and squarely in the sailing of the day, and I have no complaint to make regarding Capt. Walters jockeying at the start."
"We did no better than I expected," said Capt. Walters on board his schooner tonight at East Gloucester, where she has been docked ever since her too frequent stranding in the mud at the Gloucester wharf. "We lost a fat minute on the third leg when the mark boat held way to weather of the buoy. We sailed a lot of extra water, and the Ford, coming from behind, profited by our mistake. Apart from that we have no complaints. Tonight the glass is dropping fast. I hope it goes through the bottom, for Bluenose certainly loves the wind. Yes, we went pretty close to Clay, running down the buoy to the first leg, but we never touched him, I am sure of that. I'll be at the starting line long before ten o'clock tomorrow."

THE FORD'S ALIBI.
"Ford lost because her sails were cut." This, the alibi of many Gloucestermen tonight, was sensation number two. It appears that when the slick and pretty schooner hauled out from her dock this morning and towed out for the starting line it was found, upon hoisting her foresail that the canvas came away from the bolt rope along part of the leach, between the first and second leach points. The thread holding the "tablins" to the rope had been secretly ripped with a knife overnight, so said some of the crew. But Capt. Morrissey, to his credit he said, scouted the suggestion of foul play, checked the talk and ordered repairs at once. Ford approached the line with a sedly flapping foresail leach but, for lack of sail needles, the sail expert on board drove holes in the canvas with a marlin spike and sewed the separated part with marlin. Thereafter the sail set straight and the schooner went to the line in good sailing trim. A hole or two in her canvas would perhaps have benefited Ford in the puffs that had smothered her during the racing to-day, but you can't make Gloucester believe that. Partisans tonight declare with picturesque vehemence that the threads were deliberately cut and that because of this the Bluenose won.

A TRAGIC FEATURE.
A tragic feature of the series developed this morning before the start. Mrs. Morrissey, wife of the Ford's skipper, went to the schooner's dock before the vessel hauled away and begged her husband to sail. "I appeal to you men standing there," said she, addressing the crew of the Ford. "If you must race to-day let some other Captain take charge of the ship. My boy is dying at his home." And this is believed to be quite true. It became known to-day that Captain Clayton's eldest son is very seriously ill and that the Ford's skipper had been sailing through these races with this knowledge as a handicap. Morrissey listened patiently to his wife, then told his crew to cast off and headed his vessel out for the line.

CANADIANS PARADE.
Demonstrations by the Canadians and by friends of the Lunenburgers on the streets of Gloucester followed the Bluenose win. The principal demonstration was a street parade formed by more than fifty friends of the Bluenose crew, "the loyal rooters" of the defender. The marchers formed a parade after coming ashore from the Canadian cable ship Tyrian. Headed by an improvised band consisting of five musicians from the Tyrian, and drummer, the men each carrying a good sized cabbage which had been presented them by the Commander of the Tyrian, swung into Main Street and alternately cheering the Bluenose and Ford, proceeded to over the hill past the Gloucester Chamber of Commerce. Many of the crowds lining the streets joined in cheers for both Canadians and Americans, while a few disgruntled ones preferred to boo and jeer the elated marchers.

While the music furnished by the band was not of the best, it was recognizable. The marchers proceeded to the Olympia Theatre, where a large crowd was gathered. "The Henry Ford can lick you with her sails down," cried a youngster from the sidewalk. "You bet, but that is the only way she can beat us," snapped back one of the Bluenose rooters from the line. Again the paraders stopped and cheered Captain Morrissey and his Ford. An officer of the Tyrian who was acting as Bandmaster, suggested that the band play the "Star Spangled Banner." There was a hurried conference and finally one of the Tyrian's buglers sounded the first few bars of the American National Anthem. It was a wobbly attempt, but the crowd knew what the musicians were endeavoring to play and cheered them with a will.

START OF THE RACE.
It was announced last night that the start of the racing had been postponed until eleven o'clock in order to allow the crew of the Ford to take out this morning the ballast which they put in yesterday. Unfortunately those who had made the arrangement had omitted to notify the chairman of the Sailing Committee and the captain of the Bluenose.

Accordingly, when the wind was breezing up fresh from the southwest at eight o'clock this morning, Angus was very keen to start at ten o'clock and was surprised to learn of the postponement. Ford's ballast was out of her hold before eight o'clock but her skipper preferred to start at eleven so Bluenose perforce agreed. The Ford seemed to lay much lower in the water at her dock this morning than when she completed on Monday but the following written statement was handed to the Sailing Committee this morning by Jonathan Raymond, part owner of the schooner:

"I hereby guarantee that the entire amount of ballast put on board the schooner Henry Ford on Tuesday, October 24th, has been removed." (Signed J. S. Raymond.)

This time the newspapermen were guests of the officers of H.M.C.S. Patriot, which craft had been selected to act as committee boat for today. We boarded the destroyer from the Natalia, private yacht of John Hays Hammond, Jr., and had an excellent view of the race. As the Patriot made for the line the band of the U.S. cruiser Rochester played "God Save the King" in honor of the Canadian naval vessel. The little incident was very pleasing to the Canadians afloat and ashore, furnishing a refreshing contrast to the bickerings that have become so common since the racing started.

Half an hour before the start the breeze, which had been kicking up a choppy little sea and topping eighteen knots, so that the schooners had a tough tow behind small snorting Gloucester tugs dropped to twelve knots and went southwest. "Aren't you afraid to be out in this gale," megaphoned Angus in sarcastic vein to the destroyer. "We'd better get back into the harbor." It was easy to see that Bluenose crew, happy ten minutes before, were down hearted over the sudden lull. The Ford men as they rounded the destroyers stern contented themselves with pointing to the flapping leach of their foresail, which they subsequently remedied.

BATTLE FOR WEATHER BERTH.
Fifteen minutes from the start found the vessels commencing a battle for the weather berth. Walters (this time held well back from the line and considerably to weather of his rival. With five minutes to go they both made for the line, Bluenose broad off, and Ford almost by the wind. As the two were converging the Canadian seemed sluggish and her sails flapped idly as she yawed. Ford, on the other hand, was moving too swiftly for the line and hauled her headsails to weather to stop her way. Suddenly Bluenose, which had been carrying her mainsail to starboard, gybed and placed herself right on Ford's beam. Both boats were making for the line with sheets well eased to port. Ford crossed the line first, but Bluenose had covered her completely so that she took all her wind and shot out to weather. It was the first time in the series that the Canadian had been ahead.

New York territory couldn't help being "milk land"

It had to be the "milk land" of the Union. Iowa could raise corn. Main had her potatoes. Georgia says "cotton," and Texas spells "cattle." But New York's soil, rainfall, seasons, and climate generally made it the "Dairy State."
There are approximately 70,000 picked farmers in the New York State territory who belong to the Dairy Men's League Co-operative Association, Inc., farmers who have clean, regularly inspected barns and clean, healthy cows. They are the Dairy Men's League. Instead of 70,000 ideas regarding the production and distribution of milk and dairy products, they decided to have a single standard of purity and quality—the highest that human endeavor could make. When they put their collective name on anything, it is good.
So you can buy Dairy Men's League Evaporated or Condensed Milk knowing that it is rich, "creamy milk," that it is pure and good and comes from the "dairy territory."
It is good to-day. It will be good to-morrow and next year, for the life-work of these 70,000 farmers is to see that the dairy products of the Dairy Men's League are kept up to the standard that has been set.

The Rid-Jid Ironing Table is as steady as a bridge—it will not wobble, sway, bend or creep when you iron. You can sit on the end and it will not even tilt. No more propping an old board up on two chair-backs and having to lift it each time you wish to iron a skirt or petticoat. The Rid-Jid stands firmly on its own foundation, and is so constructed that a full-length skirt may be slipped over the top.
In spite of its marvelous rigidity, the Rid-Jid is lighter than any other folding board made. It closes at compactly as a pocket knife. We would be glad to have you stop in and see it.

Marshall Brothers

International Fishing Schr. Races, 1922.

Ford was in a hole and Clayton slipped out of it. He bore away heading for the shore. Blue-rose. They were heading to leeward of their course so that as Casey Baldwin remarked they kept on that way they would slip with windward work on a level leg, but Clayton was equal to the occasion. The Blue-rose had a little gap and Ford was up in her wake, shot to cover him. They hustled and engaged in a luffing race, and with Ford the victor, the Blue-rose, once ahead and bore for the buoy off that there, marking the five miles of the leg. Blue-rose, following a breeze began to crawl up on the challenger, which was not showing her usual turn of speed running in the light stuff. Both schooners were wing and wing. Angus, wise now in most of the yacht-race tricks held his vessel just to weather of the leader and cut off her wind. He put his bowsprit almost on board the Ford, his aim apparently being to see how close he could get to the McMannus product without touching her.

FEARED A COLLISION.
We all feared a collision in the scramble for weather berth at the buoy, but a few minutes before they reached it Blue-rose went ahead once more. To weather, they had taken 45 minutes to sail 5 miles; such was the wind. Our boat was 39 seconds in the lead and they were now facing a ten mile luff to windward in what was beginning to assume the proportions of a breeze. Blue-rose, her staysail set to leeward as a result of the delicate work just before she rounded buoy seemed to tear off, while Ford had gone well into the wind. Surely our dope had not gone astray. We blamed it on the course was compelled to wing out her foresail. She had sailed over so much unnecessary water that she was now running dead before the wind on a course that called for a reach. Morrissey following saw Blue-rose's error and held a straight course. He had gained 3 minutes and 24 seconds on his rival.

RACED WITH RAILS UNDER.
This was not much to our liking and we said so. But the schooners after gybing the third buoy were now on a fairly close reach of ten miles, and after that they would have five miles of windward work to the finish line. Blue-rose had gybed more skillfully than the challenger and had gained a little thereby. As the racers jumped along at a speed of nearly 12 1/2 knots we thought the Canadian was increasing her lead. All her canvas was drawing well and she was stiffer and steadier in the breeze, and following sea than the Ford, which yawed considerably, and shook her canvas. From the Patriot, Blue-rose's scuppers were clearly discernable above the curling water. Ford, her two top-sails flapping all the time, was heeled far over, so that her weather deck was all disclosed, while the lee part was covered by the ocean waves. The wind was holding at its height of eighteen knots. We gauged this by counting the white caps, which seems the most effective method in these particular waters.

At the fourth mark Ford had cut down the Canadian's lead by 22 seconds according to the official timer. A man who was on the Ford with a stopwatch asserted to-night that Ford by his clocking had actually lost 35 seconds on the leg. But it was of no moment because the remaining five miles gave a thrust to windward and there again we hoped that Blue-rose would slip. Rounding the buoy Blue-rose was slow in sheeting home and started as if she were in stays. The same held true for the Ford. The two held on the port tack for the shore, but Blue-rose changed her tactics after a while, and turned off on the starboard tack for sea. Morrissey, better acquainted with the shore conditions held on and we feared he would reap the benefit of the split tack. Ford was not showing her usual turn of speed running in the light stuff. Both schooners were wing and wing. Angus, wise now in most of the yacht-race tricks held his vessel just to weather of the leader and cut off her wind. He put his bowsprit almost on board the Ford, his aim apparently being to see how close he could get to the McMannus product without touching her.

GO TO THE NEAREST GROCER FOR Windsor Table Salt

sailed in the cove almost to Salt Island Ledge, then came about. Blue-rose off to sea did likewise, lost her staysail and nearly lost a man, made two short luffes, and crossed the line a merry winner.

Blue-rose will haul out on the slip at six o'clock to-morrow morning for examination of her shoes, and will take the water again in plenty of time for the race.
It is suggested that the rubber of the series will be held over a windward-leeward course instead of a triangle as at present.
Blue-rose sailed to-day without an official observer, Captain James Nelson, who had been appointed following the resignation of R. Russell Smith, having failed to put in an appearance. J. H. Snider, of Toronto, sailed as official observer on the Ford, the crew of the Gloucester boat having objected to Capt. Akias Conrad, who had hitherto done the observing on the Ford.

Washington Honors Burke and Bryce.

BRITISH-AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP IS VOICED AT THE PRESENTATION OF MEMORIALS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Amity between the United States and Great Britain was voiced at the presentation to the American people to-day of bronze memorials of Edmund Burke and James Bryce.

Acceptance of the bust of Viscount Bryce, which was placed in the capital building, was by Chief Justice Taft, while the acceptance speech for the statue of Burke, erected in a public park on Massachusetts Avenue, between Eleventh and Twelfth Streets, was by Secretary Weeks. Both presentations were made by Sir Charles Cheers Wakefield, former Lord Mayor of London, on behalf of members of the Sulgrave Institution and the British public.

Among those who attended the unveiling of the Bryce bust were Secretary Hughes and Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador. The bust has a permanent place in the corridor at the Senate end of the Capital in what is known as 'The International Shrine' along with memorials of Kosciuszko, Pulaski, Garibaldi and others.

Dr. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Re-establishment in the Canadian Cabinet, represented the Dominion at the Bryce unveiling and voiced its appreciation of the work of Lord Bryce in promoting the union of the two great English-speaking peoples, notably during his long service as Ambassador here. Chief Justice Taft emphasized the opportunities of the English-speaking peoples in restoring and promoting the peace of the world.

"James Bryce was as dear to us as he was to you," said Chief Justice Taft, turning to Sir Charles Wakefield, "we knew him best as the lover of freedom and popular government and the constant friend of the closest union of our two peoples as essential to the peace of the world and the preservation in the world of the rule of the people."

Weeks Urges Good Relations.

Secretary Weeks said in his address on Burke:—

"Americans and Englishmen who have the best interests of their countries at heart should enthusiastically endorse and support every means of preventing misunderstandings between the United States and Great Britain and bringing into closer bonds of friendship the peoples of these two great nations. This is the task to which the Sulgrave Institution has dedicated itself and in which it is admirably succeeding.

"America has never had two stronger friends than Burke and Bryce and certainly they understood America and its ideals and aspirations better than most Englishmen of their respective times. Lord Bryce was probably better known to the people of the United States than any other British subject of our time.

"Edmund Burke died 125 years ago. He never visited America, and there was no particular reason, certainly as far as any official position was concerned, why he should have given our affairs any unusual attention. Although a loyal British subject, no American who has read history can ever forget the service he rendered our country in the days of our stress and his endeavors to see that our forefathers received justice at the hands of the British Government."

Wakefield Eulogizes Burke.

Sir Charles Wakefield, in reviewing events leading to the break of the American colonists with the British Government, declared the British King's policy to have been "stupid and un-English" and that the beliefs of Burke were those of most statesmen of the times as well as of the British people. He eulogized Burke as a man of letters as well as of the highest type of politician and statesman.

"His utterances sank deeply into the hearts and minds of wiser Englishmen of succeeding generations and laid the foundations of the more generous and intelligent policy which has brought into being the free commonwealths and dominions of the British Empire to-day," Sir Charles said.

Alton B. Parker, of New York, who presided at the Burke unveiling, said that Burke was one of the few mortals of great eminence whose position may be said to have been due almost entirely to his mentality. Burke he lauded as a politician who thoroughly believed in party politics in a democracy and that every partisan should always stand with his party, even though he does not admire all of its candidates or all of its platform plans.

"His utterances sank deeply into the hearts and minds of wiser Englishmen of succeeding generations and laid the foundations of the more generous and intelligent policy which has brought into being the free commonwealths and dominions of the British Empire to-day," Sir Charles said.

Dominion Sports.

COMMITTEE FINALIZING ARRANGEMENTS.

The members of the Cadet Boat Club met last night in their rooms to finalize arrangements in connection with the Dominion Sports, which big event takes place in the Prince's Rink on Nov. 20th. The programme of events will be practically the same as last year, but the Committee contemplate introducing several new novelty races, which they anticipate will be a real success. Their idea of this is to do away with any dull moments that might have existed in the past. Gold and Silver Medals of a most elaborate design have already been placed on order, which the Committee hope will arrive out from England on time for presentation at the close. The feature of the sports will be the basket ball series and the tug-of-war. The cups presented by Sir R. A. Squires last year for the latter event will create considerable rivalry. The Methodist Guards won it last year. The conditions are if must be won three years in succession for keeps. The Committee have made the necessary arrangements with P. R. Outerbridge, the Secretary of the Rink for the use of the building for practice. The contestants are reminded that they can have the use of same commencing the (Tuesday) evening, when the rink will be opened

Sale of Work Opens.

CONVENT ASSOCIATION MEETS SUCCESS.

The Presentation Convent Association annual sale of work was formally opened yesterday afternoon in the C. C. Hall by his Grace Archbishop Roche, who was attended by Rev. Dr. Carter and Rev. Fr. Kennedy. Amongst other prominent people present was Lady Horwood, wife of the Administrator. The hall was tastefully decorated and an abundance of goods was attractively displayed. Articles of every description were in evidence and purchasers found no difficulty in securing their requirements as each stall-holder had a good number of assistants. The Mount Cashel Band was in attendance and discoursed lively music through the evening. Amongst the side shows was a gypsy fortune telling booth, which proved quite an attraction. The following ladies were in charge of the stalls:—

Plain and Fancy Work—Mrs. M. P. Tobin, Misses Clancy and Cowan, Miss Murphy, Mrs. L. Kennedy and Miss Margaret Walsh.

Refreshments—Clover Athletic Club, Candy—Misses Phelan and Meaney, Ice Cream and Candy—Miss Mary Power.

Novelty—Misses Howlett and Edney.

Afternoon Tea—Messdames W. J. Higgins, C. J. O'Keefe.

High Tea—Mrs. C. Thomas, Mrs. Cotter, Mrs. Codner, Miss Carew, Miss Fyfan, Miss Moore.

The sale will conclude to-night with a Cauld Cannon supper and dance.

Ceremony at St. Thomas's.

CHURCH FURNISHINGS DEDICATED.

The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland dedicated, on Sunday morning at St. Thomas's Church, new furnishings for the Church presented by members of the congregation. These consist of Chancel Chairs, subscribed for by the Adult Confirmation Class of 1919-21; and a Litany Desk, the latter being given by the Dowden family in memory of their father and mother. The chairs and desk are of English oak, beautifully carved, being designed by the well known makers of Church furniture, Messrs. Wipplid & Exeter. Old St. Thomas's has recently been fortunate in the receipt of valuable gifts from the parishioners. It was only a few Sundays ago that a beautiful Memorial Window, the gift of the People's Warden, was unveiled and dedicated. The Rector announced in the last Church Bulletin that a member of the congregation has placed two Clergy Stalls in St. Andrew's Chapel, in memory of her brother. During the summer another parishioner presented the Chapel with Altar Service Books, giving them in memory of the late Canon Arthur Wood, who in 1894 established in the Parish the first Chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in this Diocese.

The failure of faith and its consequences form the theme of Perjury, the picture that made such a hit at the Majestic last night. See it to-night. . . .

Mammoth Show at the Nickel Theatre.

PATRONS PLEASSED WITH EXCELLENT PROGRAMME.

The Nickel Theatre was filled to its utmost last night, when "The Battle of Jutland" was shown together with a Paramount special, entitled, "Behind Masks", featuring Dorothy Dalton. In the official pictures of the "Battle of Jutland" each move of the ships in the British and German fleets is shown so clearly that the full might of the British victory is clearly illustrated. Men who were present at the action declare that it seemed to them that they were again standing on their ships.

One of the best features in which Dorothy Dalton has been seen in a long while is "Behind Masks", which received a flattering reception at this theatre last night. It is a delightful story, filled with thrilling situations and scenes that exert a powerful appeal. The scenes of the story are laid in England and those who have read H. Phillips Oppenheim's novel, "Jeanne of the Marshes" of which it is a picturization, will relish it greatly.

FACING FACTS.

"I could have a crackjack car if I didn't have to support you."

That, according to a wife who was seeking freedom (with ample alimony) on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment, was a treatment, was a treatment.

one of the things her husband frequently said to her.

Of course he was cruel to say it. But, on the other hand, I wonder if she wasn't a fool not to realize that it was true and that it meant something in relation to their life together.

She Cost $3,000.

According to the testimony he was a man who made a good income. They had no children. They lived at an apartment hotel which meant, of course, that she made a very small contribution in labor and time toward the partnership. He gave her a reasonable dress and spending money allowance and, of course, paid her board. Presumably she cost him $3,000 a year. If he had not had her to support he could have lived at that same hotel, paid someone a few dollars a week to do the mending for him and had the balance of that $3,000 to spend on a car.

Of course it was a cruel thing for him to fling at her, but you can't quite get away from the truth, can you?

Would She Never Be Tempted?

And as I read the testimony I fell to wondering this. Suppose that woman, if she did not have him, could have had the luxuries she craved most—beautiful clothes, perhaps, and jewelry to outshine her neighbors, could have lived in the same comfort and could have had plenty of masculine society and all the masculine dattery she could stand—would she never think of that fact, would she never be tempted to throw it at him? And, of course, there is no doubt that he could have all the feminine society, all the feminine dattery he wanted if he were in possession of his income and not married.

True, he had married her and it was up to him to share his income with her fairly. But wasn't it up to her to recognize that he was sharing and to be grateful for it, instead of taking it as a matter of course as she most evidently had?

Many Wives Contribute More.

Of course that's not an average marriage. In many marriages the wife contributes as much to the partnership as the husband, and in some she contributes more. But there are many of the other kind, too.

All marriages have their basis in economic facts and in human nature as it is. Many people, in thinking on these subjects, try to substitute for this certain fine ideas about human nature as it ought to be. But that doesn't help them to understand things as they are and the result is a lot of muddled thinking. The first step toward handling any situation is to understand it as well as one can.

The man or woman who recognizes the economic and human nature foundation in marriage will be able to think more clearly on the whole subject and, hence, react more sanely and happily.
