

HISTORIC "OLD RED HOUSE," BUILT 171 YEARS AGO, TO BE USED AS A MUSEUM

LONGMEADOW, Mass., Oct. 17.—For 171 years the "Old Red House" has remained in the Colton family of Longmeadow, a reminder not only of revolutionary days, but of events forty years previous to that time. Now the house has been sold to T. W. Lette, a prominent business man of Springfield, but who lives in Longmeadow, having purchased it to preserve it for the town. It is very likely that it will eventually become a museum for the town, and that interesting mementoes several centuries old will be given to start a historical collection. Just what Mr. Lette's plans are have not been made public, but it is very likely that the Historical Society will be given rooms in the old house.

The house is the oldest in town preserved in its entirety. There are several other houses with small sections which antedate the "Old Red House," but these houses have been so changed and added to that they can hardly be classed with the Colton homestead.

The "Old Red House" was built by Captain Simon Colton in 1735. He was a prominent man in the affairs of the place and was a soldier in the French and Indian wars that preceded the revolution. He kept the house as a tavern before and during the revolution, and the old tin lantern, perforated with holes, which Captain Colton swung nightly from the elm tree over-

UNVEILING OF BURNS STATUE AT THE CAPITAL

Veil Removed by Miss Belle Hutchinson of Chatham— Splendid Oration of Lieut.-Governor Fraser of Nova Scotia—Burns as the Man and the Poet—St. John Men Present.

(Special to the Sun.)

FREDERICTON, N. B., Oct. 18.—The unveiling of the Robert Burns statue and the coronation and stirred up Scotch patriotism in the most glowing terms of Burns as a poet and a man. He heartily congratulated the true greatness of the statue, and it was difficult to speak of Burns, so much had been written, but as a poet who taught everything that was good and noble he had no superior. To estimate the true greatness of the man we must understand Scotland as it existed at the time and the difficulties and burdens under which the poet lived. Scotland at the time was kept down by a drudgery worse than slavery.

I sometimes think, said the speaker, if Burns had been given the free lands of Canada to dwell in without hardship and let his muse sing and sing, how much more greatness would have been his, but it was ordained otherwise. I believe that when God sends for the man like Burns He sends him into narrow avenues, that all his nature may be kept in subordination to his great gifts.

When Burns was young, when he was a boy, he was a poor man. He has a great deal to tell us of the life of the people, and so with Burns, the poems depict on the man.

Governor Fraser next spoke of the depth and feeling exhibited by these poems, his songs and ballads had never been equalled, and he doubted if they would ever be surpassed. As great writers have said, if Burns had written nothing else than "Cotters' Saturday" and "The Twa Dogs," his name would be immortal. In three particulars Burns was by far the greatest of poets. These were in his sensibility, simplicity, and in his ability to know how to work and be honest and look at work as a thing a man should ever earnestly do. He was a true man and was loyal to every sense of the word, and his whole nature was implanted with the loveliness of the little river and small hills, the singing birds and the soft breezes of the coast. He has taught us that labor is noblest gift of God to man. He taught that character not wealth is better than every-thing else. He took all mankind in their distress and loneliness into his large heart. But greater than all Burns was a religious reformer, in that he showed that honesty and straightforwardness are the only ways to success. He never sneaked into a ball room and then lied about it as some of your best men do today, but he opened his front door to any and every man, and he was content with daylight and did not play at concealment. He saw men who were hypocrites and different from what they professed to be, and when a man says "He is a hypocrite" he is nothing but a curse to the community.

Governor Fraser concluded his eloquent oration with a grand peroration on Burns' teaching of the brotherhood of mankind.

Provincial Government to Take It Up.

Forestry Convention to be Held at Fredericton in December— Premier and Dr. Pugsley Back (From Friday's Daily Sun.)

Premier Tweedie who, accompanied by Attorney General Pugsley, returned yesterday from Ottawa, where they attended the conference of provincial premiers expressed himself to a Sun reporter as being well pleased with the outcome of the negotiations. He said, however, there was nothing he cared to say in an interview which he gave in Montreal, and which appeared in the Sun on Wednesday, outlining the probable distribution of the increased grant. The premier announced that it had been definitely decided to hold a Provincial Forestry Convention during the month of December. It was the present intention to have the convention meet at Fredericton.

It is expected that there will be a large attendance of those engaged in the lumber industry and experts will be present to give information as to the most economical and advantageous methods of cutting timber and preserving the forests from fire.

Before the convention is held the Premier and Attorney General will visit Washington, to get all information possible in regard to the care of forest lands. The Premier is hopeful that very beneficial results will ensue from this gathering.

When asked if the Restrictive bye-election was to be brought on soon the Premier smiled and said he had been too busy to give that matter any attention.

Attorney General Pugsley, who returned yesterday at noon with Premier Tweedie after attending the recent conference of provincial premiers, was seen last night regarding what changes the increased federal grant is likely to make in the policy of the local government.

Regarding the conference Dr. Pugsley said that the Premier's proposals were interesting, also, as it did, an opportunity to meet and hear the views of the premiers of all the provinces of the Dominion.

The conference was harmonious, although there were some points of difference. The Premier thought that they could concede to the entire wishes of Premier McBride of British Columbia.

The arrangement, however, as agreed upon by the conference, he considered, a most satisfactory one, from the standpoint of this province, particularly in that it abolishes the system, which he thought unjust, of giving grants to the provinces after forty-five years upon the basis of the census of 1861. In regard to the grants for administration the smaller provinces will get a very much greater amount proportionally to the larger provinces. This, he thought, a practical arrangement.

The arrangement as entered into rather to be considered as a re-arrangement between the provinces themselves and not as agreements between the Dominion and the provinces separately.

He considered it an acknowledgment of provincial rights, according to the B. N. A. act certain subjects, education, roads, etc., are assigned to the local government for legislation, and it is very much to be regretted that it is agreed that no money is required for these purposes.

With the increased subsidy the local government will be able to carry some of their wishes in regard to increased salaries for teachers and the retaining of a fund for retired teachers, for which probably a sum will be put away each year. The details have, however, not yet been arranged.

Another subject to which the local government will likely now devote more attention is technical education. Lately, said Dr. Pugsley, the Manitoba Education Association petitioned the federal government to appoint a commission to look into the advisability of the Dominion taking up technical education, but now with the increased subsidy and the consideration that that education is assigned by the B. N. A. act to the local government, he thought it probable that the Dominion would feel that the subject should remain entirely with the local governments.

John Mullin, one of St. John's oldest and most esteemed citizens, died very suddenly Wednesday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Alex. W. Little, Carmarthen street. Mr. Mullin had eaten a hearty dinner and towards nine o'clock complained of a slight illness. His grandson was helping him to his room, when he suddenly collapsed. He was carried to his bed and Dr. Bentley was summoned. He said that Mr. Mullin had died immediately after the attack. Mr. Mullin's wife died many years ago. He is survived by two sons—Charles and John— and one daughter, Mrs. Little. Mr. Mullin was a prominent business man in this city before the fire. He kept a large shoe store on King street, but retired from business a few years after the fire of '77. He was one of the old-time respected citizens of St. John, and his loss will be greatly felt by a large number of friends. He was a prominent member of the Masonic Order and belonged as well to the Orange Order.

TAMMANY LEADER IS KNIFING W. R. HEARST

Murphy Declares that Hearst's Independence League Demanded Bribes for Withdrawal of Independent Candidates—District Attorney Jerome Will Take Action.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The most startling development in the present political campaign in this state came today when Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, publicly charged that money had been demanded by representatives of the Independence League in consideration of the withdrawal of their candidates in certain districts, and when Mr. Murphy was served with a subpoena to appear before the grand jury in a "John Doe" proceeding and testify to his charges.

Mr. Hearst's campaign throughout the state has been under the joint management of the Democratic and the Independence League state committees.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The subpoena served upon Mr. Murphy late today cites him to appear before the grand jury tomorrow and testify to what he knows of the alleged bribe transactions of the Independence League men.

District Attorney Jerome himself will conduct the examination of Leader Murphy by the grand jury, and Judge Rosalesky will be present.

Judge Rosalesky's connection with the case is merely incidental.

According to the published interview with Mr. Murphy, it was brought to the attention of the Tammany leader that the Independence League had filed a nominating petition with the name of Judge Otto Rosalesky on it for court of general sessions, and Mr. Murphy is said to have exclaimed: "Well, I suppose he got his money."

Judge Rosalesky indignantly denied that he was a party to any agreement. COLEMAN BARKER, N. Y., Oct. 18.—William H. Hearst was showered here tonight with telegrams reporting the published statement of Charles F. Murphy, charging representatives of the Independence League in New York City with demanding money from the Democratic congressional, legislative and other candidates as the price of withdrawal of Independence League candidates. At first it was intimated that Mr. Hearst might make a statement on the subject as soon as he could verify by telephone the exact words of Mr. Murphy.

Mr. Hearst later said to the Associated Press that in the absence of specific names and other particulars, he doubted whether any statement by himself was called for. When told that Mr. Murphy had been summoned before the grand jury by District Attorney Jerome to give evidence in the matter, Mr. Hearst said that he would certainly have any evidence of that sort, he certainly ought to make it public.

CHARLES F. MURPHY

The subpoena was issued by District Attorney Jerome after a conference with Judge Otto A. Rosalesky of the court of general sessions late in the day.

In his statement Mr. Murphy charged that certain Independence League men had demanded money for the withdrawal of their candidates in congressional, senatorial and assembly districts where a third ticket had been put in the field. He added, however, that William H. Hearst, the Independence League and Democratic candidate for governor, knew absolutely nothing of what was going on in this connection.

The Independence League headquarters tonight made a positive denial of Mr. Murphy's charges, adding that if any one connected with the organization attempted to "hold up" candidates they would be glad to know of it.

The Independence League, which was promoted by W. R. Hearst, held

HERE IS A CHANGE

For Canadian Hockeyists to Get Big Wages

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 17.—Between fifteen and twenty new players will be wanted by International League hockey teams for the coming season. All will come from Canada. Though the youth of the United States towns in which hockey has become popular, are playing the game, none have shown form that will give them admission to the big professional leagues, and so the Dominion remains the source of supply for the United States teams.

The new players will replace those who have retired from the game, and those who have been found wanting. Every club in the league is out after men. Competition is, however, not so keen for the individuals as it might be. The club that can pay the most "big frat," gets full leeway from others in its negotiations, with a player, and the system has been found satisfactory.

The Houghton team which won the pennant last year will need two or three new men. Riley Horn, the Stratford goalkeeper, announced his retirement at the close of last season, and will be replaced by Bill Regan, formerly of Orlia and the Canadian Soo, is spoken of as his successor. Grindy Forrester, the greatest point player, is also said to be out of the game. He injured his knee in a football game during the summer and has notified his club that he will be unable to play. He will be a hard man to replace, as he was among the best. Golden will likely be again at cover point and for the line there are Bruce Stuart, Joe Hall, Fred Lake, Harry Bright and Fred Taylor.

Unconfirmed rumor is that Bruce Stuart may be with the Michigan Soo. But Houghton is not likely to let him go for nothing. Stuart is not the man one finds standing on the street corner during the winter months of the evening peer looking for a job. In the hockey line he's one of the very best.

Of the Calumets, Nicholson, Gardiner, Strick and Mallen, all of whom are good men, may not be in the game

DOCTOR'S BILLS.

(San Francisco Argonaut.)

The bill of $5,000 that Dr. Frank Billings presented to the Marshall Field estate for seven days' treatment of the dead millionaire comes to more than $3,500 a day. At that rate Dr. Billings' income would be a million and a quarter a year.

A patient of a certain famous eye specialist, coming to pay his bill, growled:

"Doctor, it seems to me that $600 is a big charge for that, considering that I didn't take you over half a minute."

"My dear sir," the other answered, "in learning to perform that operation in half a minute, I have spoiled over eleven pecks of such eyes as yours."

 UNABLE FATE

ATA, Tunis, Oct. 15.—It now almost certain, according to reports received at a late hour tonight, that the crew of the Lutin has suffered an irreparable fate, similar to that which overtook the crew of the submersible Farfadet here last year.

A few of the Lutin numbered 14 under the command of Lieut. Phocaire Bellu, commander of the submersible division, who went out on the night of the late hour to find the Lutin, returned at a late hour to the harbor, and in the heavy darkness of the night was unable to find the boat.

Oct. 16.—M. Thomson, the French consul, has received an order from the naval command at Brest, confirming the message of the Lutin.

The message says: "The submersible while exercising off the Lutin, near the view of the wrecked tug. Search and salvaging operations were begun immediately, but no trace was felt at a distance near the place where the Lutin sank."

GOVERNMENT, BANKS AND CORPORATIONS ADOPT THE FINGER PRINT FOR POSITIVE IDENTIFICATION.
A WOMAN TEACHES UNCLE SAM ITS USES.

Mrs. E. Holland, said to be the 'Greatest Finger Print Expert in America.'

She could identify the counterfeit by placing his finger prints under a searchlight.

The Microscope Brings Out Finger Print Characteristics Even on a Tarnished Metal Surface.

OFFICIAL recognition has been given the finger print as a means of identification. The United States Government has adopted the system.

Hereafter all recruits enlisted for the army will have impressions of their record, and those of men already in the service will be taken. At each army post and recruiting station a man educated in the new art will be stationed. In a short time it is expected that the navy will do likewise.

Not only will the finger prints absolutely identify deserters, and, it is thought, serve to check the great and growing evil of desertion in both branches of the service, but will prove a blessing to the families of enlisted men. There need be no more "unknown dead" in any war, everybody found upon a battlefield can be identified.

Instructions in the new system are now being given to army officials by a woman, who is regarded as its cleverest exponent in this country.

One of the most interesting and important developments of the new century, the finger print system, is making wonderful strides. Originally adopted to insure the identification of criminals, it is being taken up for use by banks and the paymaster's departments of large industrial enterprises where hundreds of illiterate men are employed. Many business men have begun to stamp the impressions of their thumbs as a safeguard against check raising and forgery.

OVER an immense green mound in Stonehill Cemetery, at Winchester, Va., is a stately marble shaft erected in honor of the unknown dead who he buried beneath. One of the inscriptions upon it states that "none knows who they were nor whence they came."

In the future, if only a finger print of the dead can be obtained, positive identification of the remains will be had. When it is necessary to inter the fallen at once, upon the field of action, prints of their fingers will be taken, the impression enclosed in a vial and buried with the soldier.

By comparing this print at any time thereafter with records filed with his enlistment papers, it will be an easy matter to identify the dead. From the cradle to the grave, the lines on the tips of a person's fingers never change, and the chances of the finger prints of two individuals being alike are one in sixty-four billion.

Frequent applications are made to the Pension Bureau for certificates in lieu of a lost or destroyed discharge paper. When papers are issued on these substitutes they are sometimes found to be fraudulent.

With the finger print system no man will be able to get a new certificate unless his identity is established by it.

In order to put the system into operation, or, at least, to give it a start, forty enlisted men from various army posts in the Eastern part of the country will be instructed at Washington in taking finger prints and in photography. One smaller squad has already been trained.

It is the purpose of the War Department to have at least one man at every post and recruiting station who is familiar with finger print and photographic work.

Arrangements are being made by the Navy Department to follow the example of the sister service, but for the present only the finger prints of new recruits and those who reenlist will be taken.

More or less of a prejudice exists in the navy against the system, as is said, but it is hoped that this will be removed in time when it is understood that the enlisted men of the army submit to it without objection and without feeling that they are in any way humiliated.

Within a short time, it is announced, an examination will be held in the Bureau of Navigation to secure clerks who will have charge of the work in Washington, and will file and classify the records. These positions will pay $1,800.

While indorsement of the United States Government gives the finger print system an official standing, it had already come to be recognized as one of the really big and important products of modern times.

For some years it has been employed by English police in their criminal records, by the French and others in the Old World, and its value is now being generally recognized by the police authorities of American cities, in many of which it has been adopted.

But even more, the system seems likely to be adopted by banks and by large industrial institutions. Only a short time ago it was announced that officials of the paymaster's departments of steel and iron companies and other extensive enterprises in Chicago were considering the installation of a finger print system of pay checks.

Instead of making his mark on the pay check, the employe, if he cannot write, will leave the impression of his right thumb as his receipt.

The paying teller of a prominent trust company in Chicago is also investigating the method.

The value of the system can best be told, perhaps, by a woman who is regarded as the leading expert in the United States. Indeed, so great is her skill that she has been summoned to Washington to instruct government officials in finger print methods and to help establish the service there.

Mrs. M. E. Holland, of Chicago, is this woman. Even before she made a study of finger prints she was widely known as a detective and criminologist.

Handsome, with dark, searching eyes, her face stamped with alertness and power, Mrs. Holland is charmingly amiable and womanly.

"The science of finger prints," she said the other day, "is valuable both in detecting crime and in providing an absolutely reliable and unchanging record of identity."

Only in its developed use is this system new. It was known as a means of identification ages ago by the Chinese and was used to some extent by the Hindoos. In modern times, as far back as 1834, a learned man in England named Grew wrote a paper noting the curious fact that the peculiar ridges of the fingers were not changed from infancy to age.

DEVELOPED BY BRITISH POLICE

"Of late years, as is pretty generally known, the British police department has made use of an developed from this simple fact a wonderful system of identification which is fast being adopted in America.

"It is now being used in many of the larger cities of the United States. Before long it will be in use in every prison in the country, for its usefulness in positively identifying criminals is proved beyond the shadow of a doubt. Bertillon uses it himself in connection with his own system, and the two work hand in hand with the most perfect harmony.

"The Bertillon system, admittedly, is practicable only for adults, depending as it does upon measurement of the bones. For, should the criminal grow after the measurements are taken there would be slight chance for identification. But in all my life I have not seen the finger prints of any two persons in any degree alike."

Mrs. Holland then took the finger prints of several visitors as a practical demonstration of the work. The fingers were pressed lightly upon a piece of paper, preferably by rolling each from side to side so that an impression is left of the whole of the finger end, front and sides. A chemical was then applied, when the powerful glass revealed the print. This is the perfect impression, but an absolutely positive identification can be made, it was explained, however the impression may be made.

No person, Mrs. Holland declared, could escape identification after their finger prints had been taken. Explaining she said:

"Examining the terminal phalanges, or finger tips, on the inner surface, you will find a number of lines known as papillary ridges which take on certain forms known as loops and central and lateral pockets, where to find it...

"These never change. The ridges are finest in the finger tips of women and children and are heaviest in the hands of those who do hard manual work. Strangely, the ridges on the hands of a negro are very fine, resembling those of a woman.

"All prints are classified and placed in cabinets. And here is the need for scientific knowledge.

"It is by means of this classification and a wonderful system of filing that a given finger print can be found by the expert from among millions in a few minutes of time. More difficult still, although requiring little more time, is the placing of a print in its exact place among the millions in the cabinet, so that when you want it again you know exactly where to find it...

"The expert at this work does not even require a copy of the finger print filed in order to find it. We have signs that just as certainly identify the print. Therefore, if the chief of police in Washington, for instance, takes a prisoner suspected of having committed a murder, he has but to take his finger print, and by classification reduce that print to a sign expressed by a few letters and numbers.

"Upon receiving this sign in Chicago I am as well off as if I had the actual finger print.

"Often a murderer will leave the imprint of his thumb or finger on some article of wood, paper, glass, iron, anything, I have known of a number of cases where a piece of wood was sawed out of a window sill or a door to be used for purposes of identification on account of finger prints left upon it. The prints, you understand, though at first invisible, are made visible by a chemical and intensified by a powerful glass.

"The growth of the system will immensely facilitate the work, making possible the positive identification of any man who has ever been in the hands of the police, no matter how many years may have passed.

"Again, let a merchant draw a check and press his finger upon the written figures. The amount could never be changed without instant detection by the use of this chemical which reveals the finger print.

"Look at the impression I have here, taken at the Leavenworth penitentiary. We take first the fingers of the left hand, then the right, and then both hands together. In this way we are sure that no mistake is made.

"A curious case that comes to my mind was that of twin brothers in New Jersey. Both were notorious criminals.

"Now, they were not only alike, but their measurements were identical. And, to further confound the police, they had been tattooed with precisely the same patterns. Wasn't that enough to drive a very Sherlock Holmes crazy?

"But one day the police took their finger prints, and the vexing problem no longer existed. The prints were no more alike than an albino and a Hottentot. Ever after that, when either of them was taken, the police knew which one it was. It practically ended their operations in that part of the country.

Mrs. Holland, stately states that she is a pupil of J. K. Ferris, the leading finger print expert of the Scotland Yard criminal investigation department, London.

PREFERRED JAIL TO LOSING HIS DOG.

DR. HORIGAN lives in a handsome house on Main street, Kansas City, but the dog, at least accounts, could not be so definitely located, as he had been spirited away in order to evade the execution of the death sentence imposed upon him by the police judge.

That is why the owner spent three hours in the municipal lockup. He preferred imprisonment to revealing the whereabouts of the condemned animal.

Dr. Horigan's dog was charged with having bitten a little girl, and the physician was arrested for harboring a vicious animal. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $100, and, in addition, was ordered to produce his pet for immediate execution by the police.

This the doctor flatly refused to do. "The dog is in a safe place and all the police and police judges in Kansas City cannot make me produce him," he said.

"Then you are in contempt and I will send you to jail until you purge yourself by agreeing to bring the dog into court," said the Court, determinedly.

After three hours confinement the Police Judge, Harry G. Kyle, thought that the lesson of repentance had worked sufficiently to produce the desired effect upon the doctor, and he ordered him halcy before the tribunal once more.

"Will you tell the police where the dog is concealed?" asked the Court, not seriously and she really got more than she deserved. The dog is a pet of the family and plays with my children every day. Do you suppose I would allow a vicious dog to play with my children?"

"That may all be as you say, doctor," argued the Court, "but this girl's father has filed formal complaints, and the law says that dogs that bite people must be killed."

"The law be—" well, the doctor indulged himself in the luxury of a remark similar to that ascribed to Mr. Vanderbilt in relation to the people. "This dog," he continued, more diplomatically, "will not be shot, and that is all there is to it."

It was squarely up to the Judge to send the doctor back to jail or gracefully back down. He chose a middle course. Besides, the doctor's attorney was already preparing habeas corpus papers to take the case to a higher court.

"Will you agree not to place any obstacle in the way of the police in their search for the dog?" the Police

Judge asked, as a final way out.

"I will willingly agree to that," replied the doctor, knowing that he was perfectly safe in so doing. The dog had been safely smuggled away by some underground dog railway, and the doctor knew that all the police in town could not find the animal.

"Then I won't send you back to jail," remarked the Court, much relieved and with a great show of magnanimity.

"Thanks," replied the doctor, laconically, as he bowed himself out of the magistrical presence.

In the meantime, the doctor's children are in considerable disfavor, as a temporary exile of their playmate, which is a handsome black setter, with the glossiest fur and the most graceful of drooping ears. It is really a handsome brute, and the whole neighborhood sides with the doctor.

Mrs. Horigan comments her husband's stand in the matter and is rather proud of being the wife of that sort of a "jail bird."

THANKSGIVING DAY.

(Psalm 107.)

O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever. They are glad because they are quiet; so he bringeth them unto their desired haven.

Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! Let them extol him also in the congregation of the people, and praise him in the assembly of the elders.

And there he maketh the hungry to dwell that they may prepare a city for habitation.

And sow the fields and plant vineyards, which may yield fruits of increase.

And some sow the fields and plant vineyards, which may yield fruits of increase.

And some sow the fields and plant vineyards, which may yield fruits of increase.

And some sow the fields and plant vineyards, which may yield fruits of increase.

And some sow the fields and plant vineyards, which may yield fruits of increase.

And some sow the fields and plant vineyards, which may yield fruits of increase.

his honor, his death-bed would not have been so desolate. But the fame he so avidly craved, came too late—as it so often does—and though it has grown world-wide and will never cease to grow while human hearts can be touched by love and beauty, how sad a thing it is that Burns' own reward was so pitifully meagre.

One short winter of feasting and adulation—and that prompted more by the desire of Edinburgh society to lionize so strange a freak as a peasant poet, than by any genuine appreciation of his genius—that was all Burns reaped materially from his great gift. From his youth on his father's unfeeling farm to his death at the early age of thirty-seven, the rest of his life was one unremitting grind of toil and bitter penury.

A stranger contrast than is provided by the daily life and the poetry of Robert Burns, history has never shown. The one was low, the other lofty; one was weak, foolish, wicked, almost contemptible, the other strong, noble, beautiful. And yet the enigma is not insoluble. Every man bears the answer in his own breast. Every man knows what it is to be able to see the good, and still to follow after the evil. Burns' vision was clearer than the most, but also his human nature was stronger than the most, so that he oscillated continually between the extremes of righteousness and wrong, between the heights where the light is not of this earth and the uttermost depths.

But the soul of the man was sweet and true, and always tremblingly sensitive to all that was beautiful and pure. And the frail body of him—the eyes that lusted and the lips that lured and the hands that wrought his own ruin—dust and ashes this hundred years. We can afford to forget that now. The harsh discords of his human life have melted into the exquisite and immortal harmony of his songs—those we have and rejoice in, the other we can leave with his Judge, to whom Burns, more than most men, has the right to say, with Omar of old:

"Oh, Thou, who didst with pitfall and with gin "Beset the path I was to wander in: "Thou wilt not with predestined evil "Tempt and then impute my fall to sin!"

It is for the poet that the monument is being unveiled in Fredericton today, the poet of the common things, under whose genius the field mouse and the mountain daisy took on immortality, and before whose manly soul the trappings and graces of humanity fell away so that, under the purple of a king or the rags of a beggar, he could show us the "man for all that." The Scots of New Brunswick have done well to so honor this greatest Scotch-though they have no exclusive right in him, for he is greater than any country—even then Scotland. The best appreciation of him has come not from his own people but from the English Wordsworth:

Fresh as the flower whose modest worth He sang, his genius "glinted" forth. Rose like a star, that, touching earth, For so it seems. Doth glory in his humble birth With matchless beams.

NEBRASKA WOMAN MAKES LIVING AS THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

MRS. WILCOX AT WORK.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Philip E. Wilcox, a slender little woman, weighing scarcely over one hundred pounds, is the village blacksmith of College View, Neb. She learned her somewhat unusual trade from her husband.

Having taken up the work at first for pleasure, Mrs. Wilcox found her health steadily improved with the exercise, and decided to keep the little Wilcox blacksmith shop open one summer while her husband was away working in the railroad shops. Her success was so marked that she was kept at the work ever since. She can shoe a horse as well as any other blacksmith in the country, though she admits this is one part of the work which is a little disastrous to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox are staunch Seventh Day Adventists, Mr. Wilcox having resigned his place in the railroad shops of Ottawa, Kan., because they wanted him to work on Saturday, the day he observes as Sunday.

The liens which were claimed under the Railway Act of 1903, were not given and the case was dismissed.

MONCTON, N. B., Oct. 15.—Moncton, in common with other cities in Canada, is feeling the pinch of prosperity in very high rents. A prominent business man has the following to say in regard to the problem: "Moncton citizens are speaking as a whole, men of moderate means, who have recently seen the price of houses and rents away up, but they are not so much perturbed as they should be. You know how it is. If you think so, just try it. In the first place there are scarcely any houses to rent, and when one is offered the applicants are so numerous that there needs be anxiety on the part of the owners. Houses are renting today for $25 per month that a few years ago would go begging at $12, and houses constructed in defiance of the rules of health, decency and convenience, rent readily at exorbitant figures. "I know personally of men who earn less than $800 a year who are obliged to pay $25 per month rent in order to get a comfortable house for themselves and family. Moncton needs homes more than anything else. It may be a sign of good times to see houses scarce and rents away up, but the same is true of the city and checking our development. I know that at the present time that there were fifty suitable houses to let they would be taken at once by good tenants and they would pay a rent that would be fair. There are, I believe, a hundred people looking for homes who cannot find them. "Another feature is that there are many of our young men who would if circumstances were different, marry and settle down. These are confronted with the proposition of finding a house, and then paying from $15 to $25 per month rent after they do manage to locate one. Not much encouragement, that, for a young man matrimonially inclined, but whose salary is small. So he postpones the happy day and continues his hall-room board at $3 per week."

MONCTON, N. B., Oct. 16.—Charles Lacey, who gives Montreal as his place of residence, was committed for trial in the police court this morning charged with stealing a dress suit and a pair of shoes. When Lacey was arraigned this morning charged with the valise and both were landed at the police station about an hour later by Chief Chappell. When Lacey was arraigned this morning charged with the valise and both were landed at the police station about an hour later by Chief Chappell. EARL OF CARLISLE VISITS CANADA

Head of Carlisle Branch of the Howards Delighted With Things Canadian

Moving briskly about the rotunda of the Windsor Hotel last night might have been noticed a man of medium height, but walking with a stoop which made him seem shorter than he actually was. He was a man with prominent features and bright, keen, brown eyes, and with a white beard and moustache, wearing a plain brown suit and a soft hat with the brim pulled well down over the forehead. Those who remarked him would probably never have imagined that the unassuming but alert and active-looking middle-aged man who strolled about the rotunda smoking a pipe at the head of an important branch of one of England's noblest families, was in fact no other than the Earl of Carlisle, chief of that branch of the Howards. His lordship, who is accompanied by his daughter, Lady Dorothy Howard, arrived in this city today from Quebec, where they arrived two days ago by the Empress of Britain.

The Earl chatted in the most frank and cordial manner to a Star reporter of his trip and his impressions of Canada. "This is the first time I have ever been across this part of the Atlantic," he said, "and I have enjoyed the experience immensely. I have never before visited either the United States or Canada, although I have travelled very considerably in almost every other part of the world. The trip over by sea is a splendid one, and the scenery of the gulf and of the St. Lawrence River impressed me very much. "He is probably the head of the Carlisle family, the Earl of Carlisle, who is a beautiful girl. "His lordship stated that he would have liked to have come up the river by boat, but that he found it would not have time for that, in view of the fact that he must go on to Boston on Tuesday, and that he wished to spend as much time as possible in the city. His trip to this country will occupy about a month, but its duration will depend a great deal on circumstances. After a short sojourn in the States, the Earl of Carlisle will return to Canada, going to Ottawa, where he will be the guest of the Governor General Earl Grey, who is his personal friend. "He had hoped to see something of the great Canadian West," he said, "but I fear that my time will be so occupied otherwise that I will be unable to do so at this time. "You say you intend to return again in the near future?" "Well," he replied, smilingly, "it is always one's hope at least to be able to see again some of the places one likes so much."

His physicians hope to be able to avert an operation.

GENERAL NEWS

ROME, Oct. 16.—The "Observatore Romano," published a semi-official article saying that the French cabinet is preparing to attack the Vatican at the re-opening of the chambers by accusing it of engaging in a conspiracy with the monarchists to overthrow the Republic and giving the following statement as proof of its charges: "The Royalist press which opposed the late Pope Leo approves of Pope Pius. That the Royalist leaders urge the pope to support the religious movement in France. That the pope granted an interview to the Royalist organ, the Gaulois. The 'Observatore' Romano answers these allegations by stating that Pope Pius like Pope Leo loyally accepts the Republic as the former has repeatedly affirmed, confining in his recent encyclicals of the church and state separation law, and challenges anybody to quote a word uttered by the pope or to adduce a fact showing the pontiff as an enemy of the republic. The proofs to be referred to by the French government," the Observatore Romano adds, "are not serious. The Royalist supports the pope either as a political ally or for political aims. In the latter case it is in the Vatican's interest to keep the pope neutral. The responsibility resting on the republic and resulting from the anti-religious measures adopted in opposing the church under the guise of carrying out republican ideas."

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The imminence of a formidable native rising in Morocco and Algeria is giving the French military authorities great concern. The commander of the troops in the district of Ain-Sefra has cabled to the minister of war saying that the preparations among the Moors for a holy war are proceeding energetically. Mouly Abou, a cousin of the Sultan of Morocco, has visited all the tribes and has induced them to start on their internal quarrels and prepare to take the field in the middle of November. ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 16.—After investigating the killing of Mlle. Semonova, the young medical student confined in the central prison of St. Petersburg, who was shot dead by a sentry September 17, the authorities have ordered the court to annul her sentence. The court, which was held at the window of her cell overlooking the courtyard, the commander of St. Petersburg has thanked the soldier who killed the girl and has given him a reward of five dollars. The soldier is upheld in the order of the day as an example to his comrades of the faithful performance of duty. The prisoners claimed that the girl had been provoked by an unprovoked insult. The girl, Semonova, four times to leave the window, where she and some of her companions were taunting members of the Semonova regiment with the part they had taken in the suppression of the revolt at Moscow which resulted in the assassination of General Min, who was formerly colonel of the regiment.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 16.—The authorities threaten to close the universities of St. Petersburg and Moscow because of the holding of revolutionary meetings within the buildings and the participation of non-students in the near future. "According to a despatch from Yalta, Crimea, a member of the secret police has been arrested there for firing on a dragon patrol with the intention of provoking a riot among the Jews in the part of the soldiery against the Jews. VORONEZ, Russia, Oct. 16.—The police here today seized 12 bombs which were found in the possession of a peasant belonging to the village of Paskal, the centre of the agrarian disorders in this vicinity last summer. LONDON, Oct. 16.—A theatrical sensation has been provided by Miss Edna May, who on Saturday night brought up her part in the "Bell of Mayfair" at the Vaudeville Theatre. Miss Edna May's action, as explained by her to a representative of the Overseas, is due to what she terms the injustice of the management of the theatre. She is giving Miss Camille Clifford, who is engaged to be married to Lord Aberdeenshire, greater prominence on the stage than she herself receives. Miss Clifford, Miss May pointed out, does not receive nearly such a large salary, yet because she is engaged to be married she gets a share of the box office, and the name of Miss Clifford appears in larger type on the sandwich boards.

"I am not going back," said Edna May, "my decision is final. I was engaged as the star of the piece at £200 a week; I am not being advertised as the 'star,' and I am leaving because my contract has been broken. There is no person to whom I feel jealousy of Miss Camille Clifford. Miss Edna May wished to make quite clear. Early last week Miss May made it known to the company that she did not intend to substitute anything that she regarded as an injustice, but it was not until Friday that they received a direct intimation that she intended to leave the part on Monday. As she is under contract to Mr. Charles Frohman, who brought her into "The Belle of Mayfair," which is the joint production of Messrs. Frohman and Gatti—the contract to him in New York on that day, and the same afternoon Mr. Frohman advised Messrs. Gatti that his "star" would leave the Vaudeville Theatre because of an alleged breach of contract. Messrs. Gatti, the proprietors and managers of the Vaudeville Theatre, inform us that as Mr. Charles Frohman does not agree with them that they have not entered a breach of contract with Miss Edna May, he has notified them that he is no longer associated with Messrs. Gatti in the management of their theatre. Miss Phyllis Dare, who, though only sixteen years of age, is a prominent London actress, has been engaged to play Miss May's part.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 15.—The colonial minister has refused the American naval tug tug the Potomac, which is now at Bay of Islands free entry for stores, in spite of the fact that this concession is accorded French warships in those waters. BOSTON, Oct. 15.—The first case called in the divorce court today was that of Sybil A. Perham, a pretty Nova Scotian, who asked the court to annul her marriage to Harry B. Perham, recently of Medford, but now of Whitman, on the grounds that two years ago, when she was only eighteen years old, she had been forced into a marriage ceremony by her father and a man who was her lawyer expressed it, "Perham married in good faith, but she married in a fright. "It was always urging me to marry him," testified Mrs. Perham, "and I was always standing him off. One night two years ago last July, after I had agreed to become his wife, he said, 'You'll be sorry for this,' and he said it in such a way that I believed he intended to kill me, so I went out with him to a justice of the peace and we got married. "As soon as the ceremony was over I made some excuse to him and went home without him. I never intended to live with him, never have and never shall live with him. "But why did you marry him?" asked Judge White. "To get rid of him," answered the witness, whereupon everybody, including the judge, laughed. "According to the statement of Mrs. Perham, who had not intended to contest the suit, appeared in court and demanded a hearing. He denied emphatically and categorically the allegations of his wife that he had coerced her into marriage. In fact, according to his version of the circumstances leading up to the marriage ceremony, it was she who did most of the coaxing. "After getting me to marry her, your honor," he said, "she declined to do with me. It was the greatest shock I ever had in my life. "I'm just as anxious as she is to have the marriage annulled, and if the court doesn't see its way to annul it for her I'm ready right now to produce the evidence which I believe entitles me to an absolute divorce. In the nullity proceedings decision rendered last month the court decided in favor of Mrs. Perham. The King v. J. N. Chute, assault, on the information of Mrs. Tapan Adney. No bill. The King v. Ernest Carlisle, on the information of Mack Fulton, True bill on second count for common assault. The King v. Truman Lovely, on complaint of David Lovely, for assault. No bill. The King v. Robert Shannon, on complaint of Mrs. Tapley, common assault. True bill. Information of Edward Faulkner, on information of Alfred Geddes, True bill for committing grievous bodily harm. While the jurors were considering the case the court took up the Mack Kendrick v. Shaw case, for shooting with intent to maim, postponed from the last circuit. Solicitor General Jones conducted the case for the crown against the defendant, M. J. for the defense. At the hour of adjournment this evening all the crown's evidence was in and Mr. Carvell had begun his opening address. The case will be resumed in the morning. An interesting case took place this afternoon. The Adney Chute case took place this afternoon. After the grand jury brought in no bill against Chute the parties met on

WAR AGAINST HINDOO INVASION

BRITISH COLUMBIA WILL ASK THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT TO PASS RESTRICTIVE MEASURES

VANCOUVER, Oct. 16.—British Columbia has determined to wage war against Hindoo invasion. Two hundred more of these cheap laborers arrived on the Athletian. A large number are en route to the Empress of Japan, and the Montague is to bring 100. In fact there is a large colony waiting at Hong Kong to take ship for Vancouver. There is no law to keep them out, but the province will demand of the Dominion parliament that it pass one at the session to be held at Ottawa next month. R. G. MacPherson, M. P., has already started a campaign for restrictive legislation, in fact, he has just returned from the federal cabinet and states that the Dominion government is to slive to the menace that it has decided to introduce restrictive legislation. It is pointed out, however, that by the time parliament gets to work the accomplished damage will be done. It is even declared that the companies which are figuring on large railroad contracts have hurried these Orientals here, and will continue to have them brought in until the law is changed, so that when active railway construction starts next year there will be no dearth of cheap labor.

He referred in feeling terms to his association with Mr. Thorne, which has been particularly close and intimate. His feeling for Mr. Thorne he could adequately sum up by saying that if any time in the future he became editor of a party paper owned by a first class company he would select such a man as Mr. Thorne as president.

Speaking of matters political Mr. Scott referred to the fact that no less than seven candidates had been run in the province since he came here twenty-one years ago. Some of these had been party victories and some defeats. The former party had borne the brunt of the blame...

Mr. Scott was a Conservative by conviction, and he knew that in the new field to which he has gone he is to win new honors. He hoped the next time they would be together would be to celebrate a great conservative victory.

LEWIS ARRESTED FOR PERJURY

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 16.—Tom Lewis, after being on the witness stand for one hour and a half this afternoon, was placed under arrest, charged with perjury in connection with the London bribery case. In his evidence, he gave a straight denial of the stories told by the other witnesses, and in part contradicted his own previous evidence. Lewis was recalled and asked to be sworn over again. He had been ill when he testified a few days ago, and didn't want to be held responsible for his evidence given then. Col. Denison refused to grant bail without the consent of the crown, and Lewis will spend the night in custody. Mr. Robinson, K. C. made a determined effort to obtain his release on bail, and his assertion that the case was a political one led to warm triangular argument between the counsel for the crown, the defense and the bench.

Nothing Short of Fully When Curo is Guaranteed With Ferrozone. Rheumatism can't be cured so long as your system is weak and run down. You must first build up and get strength to fight off the disease. Ferrozone cures because it builds up, because it renews the blood and dissolves the Uric Acid and the poisons that cause rheumatism. It is proved right here that Ferrozone does cure. Col. S. M. Russ, of Edwards, Saint Lawrence Co., one of the fine old heroes of the Civil War, was completely restored by Ferrozone. Read his statement: "I couldn't get around without a cane, and then only with difficulty. Rheumatism took complete control of my limbs. The suffering was more intense than hardships on the battlefield. When my doctor had done his best I got Ferrozone. That came a quick change. Ferrozone gave me comfort at once, eased the pain and took the stiffness out of my muscles. I am well today. Ferrozone cured me completely. I can jump and run like I did forty years ago."
