

MAJOR G. S. KINNEAR CHIEF SUSSEX WINNER

Officer of Eighth Hussars Won Medals, Trophies and $40 On Ranges.

FINE WEATHER FOR THE WHOLE WEEK'S SHOOTING

Capt. L. O. Bentley and Lieut. C. A. Estey Also Did Particularly Well—Results in Matches and Aggregate.

Sussex, Aug. 15.—Weather conditions were splendid for the closing day of the P. R. A. matches and some good scores were made. The presentation of prizes this afternoon was attended by a large assemblage of visitors who showed their appreciation of the different cup and medal winners by generous applause.

Major G. S. Kinnear was the principal winner and the competitors showed, by cheering, their approval of him as champion of the province for the year 1913.

The meeting was favored with delightful weather throughout and was highly successful.

The McAvity Match.
The first shoot this morning was the McAvity match for the cup presented by Col. J. L. McAvity and $110 added by the association; ten shots at 900 yards:

MUST CHOOSE BETWEEN HIM AND PRESIDENT

Archbishop Bruchesi's Ultimatum to the St. Jean Baptiste Society in the Oliver Asselin Affair.

Montreal, August 15.—Following close upon Oliver Asselin's criticism of certain time-honored traditions which it is customary to observe on St. John Baptiste day, and his censure by the general committee of the "Societe de la Penose Francaise" for carrying his attack to the point of ridiculing His Grace, Archbishop Bruchesi for his defence of these customs, comes the report that the archbishop, as champion of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, has issued an ultimatum to its members, declaring that they must choose between himself and Mr. Asselin, who is president of that organization. Archbishop Bruchesi has apparently taken the remarks of Mr. Asselin, which were published in "L'Action" on Sunday, as a serious offence and considers that the society must renounce their president if it desires to retain his favor.

"I care not a snap of my finger what condemnation Archbishop Bruchesi launches against me, when it is based on opinions which I have delivered in connection with questions which any intelligent Catholic has as much right to discuss as he has," declared Mr. Asselin.

EXPECT SPEEDY SETTLEMENT OF B. C. COAL MINES STRIKE

Vancouver, Aug. 15.—The Vancouver and Victoria milita are now considered to have control of the situation in all of the strike and riot districts. Nearly one thousand militiamen are encamped in the centre of the trouble and any further outbreaks are expected to be sternly dealt with. Those who are in close touch with the situation believe that the long drawn out coal mining troubles will be settled in the course of a few days.

The miners spent most of this forenoon in session and at 12 o'clock named a committee of seven to talk with the

REPORTS ON GRAIN CROPS ENCOURAGING

Weather During Month of July Was Favorable to Grains.

LOOKS GOOD FOR PANCAKES THIS YEAR.

Buckwheat to be Plentiful in Maritime Provinces—Fall Wheat Yield Bigger than Last Year.

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—In a bulletin issued today the census and statistics office reports that according to the returns made by crop reporting correspondents at the end of last month the weather of July was on the whole favorable to the growth of grain crops. The conditions in the Northwest provinces was reported as generally excellent. Representing a standard or full crop by 100, the average condition throughout Canada of fall wheat is expressed as 77.75; of spring wheat as 87.82; of oats as 87.45; of barley as 87.58; of rye as 88.00; of mixed grain as 88.23, and of flax seed as 83.85.

The percentage of the standard condition of spring wheat, barley and rye, represent the promise of yields per acre for spring wheat of 82, for barley of five, for rye of two, and for flax seed of one per cent. above the average yield per acre of the last five years. The condition of the oat crop promises a yield equal to the average.

All the field crops of Canada on July 31, excepting only fall wheat (77.75), hay and clover (74.57), and of alfalfa (75.35), as reported having a condition above 80, the range being from 82 for beans and corn for husking to 89 for potatoes and mixed grains.

In the three Northwest provinces spring wheat is reported as 84.60 in Manitoba, 89 in Saskatchewan and 88 in Alberta, the other grain crops being correspondingly high, barely especially in Saskatchewan and Alberta, being 90 per cent. or over. Root crops in the Northwest provinces are also particularly good.

The condition of buckwheat in the Maritime Provinces and in Quebec is 80 and over, but in Ontario it is down to 73.43. Flax seed is above 80 in the Northwest provinces, and in Saskatchewan, where the great bulk of this crop is grown, the percentage condition is 84.17. Sugar beet, grown for best root sugar in Ontario and Alberta is 80.44 for the former and 82.31 for the latter province.

The preliminary estimate of the yield per acre of fall wheat is 22.38 bushels, which for the harvested area in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia of 325,600 acres, indicates a total yield of 18,482,000 bushels, as compared with 16,396,000 bushels from 781,000 acres in 1912. This yield is 13 per cent. above that of last year.

The average yield per acre of hay and clover is estimated at 1.23 tons, indicating a yield of 2,396,500 tons from 7,421,600 acres, as compared with 11,189,000 tons from 7,633,600 acres or 1.47 tons per acre in 1912. Alfalfa, with an average yield per acre of 1.38 tons, shows an estimated total production of 148,000 tons from 108,350 acres, as compared with 310,100 tons from 111,300 acres, or 2.73 tons per acre in 1912.

Officer Crawford Resigns.
Alexander Crawford has resigned his position as a patrolman on the police force and has accepted a position as city marshal, and will start on his new duties immediately. "Sandy" Crawford has been on the police force about five years and during that time has been a most efficient officer and one of the most popular men on the force, performing his duty in a manner which has been highly creditable. The resignation of Officer Crawford reduces the police force to about 37 men, including the chief.

The I. C. R. recognizing the fact that Alexander Gibson was the founder of the Canada Eastern Railway which afterwards became a section of the I. C. R., are today placing a special train at the disposal of the people of Fredericton who wish to attend the funeral of the late Mr. Gibson at Gibson and the train will leave Fredericton at two o'clock this afternoon, returning after the funeral. The train will be free to those who wish to attend the funeral. Rev. Dr. G. M. Campbell will officiate at the funeral services and will deliver a sermon on "The Good and Beautiful Life of the Deceased."

GLYNN STEPS INTO OFFICE—LATELY HELD BY SULZER

MARTIN H. GLYNN

Lieutenant Governor of New York Checkmated Governor's Plan to Take Fight for Office Into Court—Executive Chambers Under Guard—Mrs. Sulzer Critically Ill.

Albany, N. Y., August 15.—Lieutenant Governor Martin H. Glynn checked tonight the efforts of William Sulzer to invoke the arbitration of the courts on the question as to which of the two is the present lawful executive of the state of New York.

Replying to a formal proposal by the impeached executive to submit the issue to arbitration on an agreed state of facts, Mr. Glynn tonight declared that it was beyond his power to "barter away any of the functions attaching to the office in which I am placed by your impeachment."

"Any attempt on my part to do so," he said, "or to stipulate a method by which it might be done, would properly be in the position you now occupy—that of being impeached for malfeasance in office."

Mr. Glynn declared further that he proposed to perform every function of the office of governor, "except in so far as I am restrained by your illegal action or by physical force."

The announcement of the Lieutenant Governor's policy came late tonight and followed negotiations between the respective counsel of the two men in the late afternoon, which it was then supposed had resulted in a virtual agreement to take the case to the court of appeals.

Mr. Glynn returned to his country residence at Cedar Hill, 5:30 o'clock tonight, after a consultation with Judge Countryman of his court.

Governor Sulzer left the executive chamber at 6:30 o'clock tonight, and after a short spin in an automobile, returned to the mansion. The doors of the executive suite at the capitol were securely locked tonight, while guards paced up and down, both within and out in the corridors. It was said that the guards would continue their vigilance throughout the night.

The serious conditions of Mrs. Sulzer tonight necessitated the recall of Dr. Robert Abrahams from New York. He was expected on a midnight train.

No official bulletin was forthcoming tonight from the executive mansion concerning Mrs. Sulzer, but an afternoon bulletin, dictated by Dr. Abrahams after he had learned of the patient's condition over the telephone, stated that she was "still in a precarious condition."

MR. HAZEN HEARS OF BIG FIND

Minister of Marine Sails from Skagway on His Way South.

Governor Black of Yukon Wires Him Regarding Great Strike of Gold in Sushanna District—New Find Undoubtedly Very Rich.

Skagway, Alaska, Aug. 15.—J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine, arrived from the interior yesterday and sailed south last night. He has received the following telegram from George Black, governor of the Yukon territory at Dawson:

"Dr. Cairnes, Dominion geologist, who has returned from White River and the Shushanna districts, reports that the new strike is undoubtedly rich. The known area is yet of necessity limited.

"Gold has been found in four creeks. The formation is good for the deposit of gold. The claims extend to the Canadian side. The Cairnes party staked claims. I have approved the custom proposal to expedite the movement of goods into the Shushanna, where they are greatly needed. Strongly advise against men going in without supplies."

MURRAY MADE NEW RECORD AT GOLF MEET

Rickwood, St. John Professional, Finished Eighteenth in Open Championships at Montreal Yesterday.

Montreal, Aug. 15.—The open championship of the Royal Canadian Golf Association was won today by Albert Murray, who established a new record for the seventy-two holes, lowering the mark of 299 made last year's open championships by George Sargent, who played a 299 with four strokes. Tied for second place were Jack Burk of Fort William and N. Thompson of Hamilton, six shots behind Murray.

Burk, who as an unknown player, had been the feature of yesterday's golf, fell away badly this morning, and though he made a partial recovery during the afternoon, his putting was noticeably weak. In the morning he turned in a card of 80, taking the nine holes out in 43, while Albert Murray, who began the day only two shots behind, had made up the difference by the time three holes had been played.

Thompson's rich approach is wonderful, bringing him almost at will within putting distance of the hole, and during the two days' play he holes out in three 21 times. It was agreed that Burk and Thompson should receive a silver medal, while the prize money for second and third place, amounting to $125, should be divided.

F. Rickwood, of St. John, N. B., finished eighteenth.

Among the two young married men to Reno, that Diggins did not buy the tickets and Campbell drew the money, or that their relations did not fall within the language of the statute.

"We shall show," said Attorney Devlin to the jury, "that the purpose of this trip was not as stated in the indictment; that it was the intention of the defendants only to leave Sacramento for a short time to avoid notoriety; that they had at first intended to go to some place within the state; that it never was their intention to leave the state, but simply to get out of Sacramento. That they intended to return to Sacramento, and that the two girls did not accompany them."

MAY WORK OVER TIME TO FINISH TARIFF DEBATE

Democrats Make Canvass for Longer Session to Finish Up.

SPENT YESTERDAY ON AGRICULTURAL CLAUSE. Discrimination Against Farmer To Put Potatoes on the Free List and Charge Duty on Their Products.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Extended debate over details of the agricultural schedule delayed progress on the tariff bill again today in the senate. At the end of the session devoted to discussion of rates of duty on butter, hay and potatoes, the senate found it had passed on scarcely more than a dozen items.

Democratic leaders are canvassing the situation to decide as to the advisability of beginning longer sessions next week in the hope that work on the bill may be hastened. The senate is now working from eleven o'clock to six. Earlier sessions and meetings at night probably will be recommended.

Efforts by Senator Page of Vermont, to prevent the Democrats cutting the six cent duty on butter to 2-1/2 cents per pound were unsuccessful at the end of a long debate.

Senator Sherman of Illinois, criticized the Democrats for trying to reduce the price of butter, while they refused to reduce the price of substitutes, by taking off the heavy internal revenue tax. An attempt by Senator Gronna to put a duty of fifteen cents a bushel on potatoes was also unsuccessful. The present bill would make them free with a countervailing duty. The potato tariff brought another criticism from Senator Bristow concerning the potato starch duties, on which he made a vigorous speech some time ago. He declared today that to put potatoes on the free list while starch and other potato products were left dutiable "was one of the worst examples in the bill of the discrimination against farmers."

Senator Walsh argued that a duty on potatoes would not affect the price received by farmers, except along the Atlantic seaboard.

Senator Gronna opposed the committee amendment, reducing the duty on butter from three cents to two and a half cents per pound was adopted, 38 to 30. Senator Page's amendment to increase the rate to four cents was voted down by 35 to 20.

Senator Polfester led a fight to amend the bill by increasing the rate on hay from $2 to $3 a ton. He criticized the finance committee for increasing the duty on monopolized tobacco and reducing it on hay, a project incapable of being monopolized. The amendment was beaten, 37 to 26.

RICHARD ISAACS HELD AS FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE IN BOSKON

Special to The Standard.
Boston, Aug. 15.—Richard Isaacs of St. John, was sent to jail today without bail to wait examination proceedings at Washington. He was remanded by U. S. Commissioner Hayes, who held him as a fugitive from justice. He will go to St. John in September.

REPORTS ARE CONFLICTING AS TO CROP DAMAGE IN WEST

Regina, Sask., Aug. 15.—Two violent electrical storms in one day, each accompanied by a deluge of rain, have set the crop back several days. Wheat is reported as being badly down and some standing fields resemble grain in shock. It is expected that the warm sun today will bring the wheat up, however, and no permanent damage of any account will result. Beyond flooding of cellars all over the city, there was no damage reported in the Regina district and little over the province.

Arvola, Sask., Aug. 15.—Arvola and the surrounding district entirely escaped the severity of last night's storm which threatened with rain, some wind and a little hail, in some places,

SYDNEY HOTEL MAN ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Sydney, Aug. 15.—Ben Atkinson, proprietor of the Hotel Sydney, and one of the best known citizens of Sydney, was killed this evening by being thrown from his buggy.

Mr. Atkinson was driven out to his bungalow at Mira with his wife and sister in the afternoon and started to return home. In about half an hour the horse returned drawing the empty buggy. Search was made and Mr. Atkinson's body was found beside the road.

A doctor was summoned from the city at once, but on his arrival he found that his services were not required. Mr. Atkinson had sustained a fractured skull and death was probably instantaneous.

Estevan, Sask., Aug. 15.—No damage was reported so far from the violent windstorm of last evening. Very little rain fell in this district.

Fortage La Prairie, Man., Aug. 15.—Last night's storm visited Fortage and the surrounding districts. Four elements, wind, torrential rain, lightning and a little hail, went to make the storm the worst for some years. No bad damage is so far reported, although telephone lines and poles are down where miles east of here, cutting down telephone communication with Winnipeg.

MINISTER'S MESSAGE TO DISLEY HERO

Col. Sam Hughes Writes Letter to Private Hawkins, Expressing Pride in Success at Bisley.

Special to The Standard.

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, has addressed the following letter to Private Hawkins, winner of the King's prize at Bisley:

"Permit me to congratulate you again on your splendid success in winning the much coveted King's prize at Bisley this year. I am indeed very proud to think that this good fortune should fall to a Canadian militia man, and especially one whose father and uncle were members of my old regimental district, the 45th Darham County.

"Enclosed herewith please find my cheque for fifty dollars which in a small way expresses my sentiments in the matter. I sincerely hope that in some time in the near future I may have the pleasure of meeting you, when I will be able personally to congratulate the world's champion rifleman. Wishing you every continued success and with kindest regards,

"Sincerely yours,

"SAM HUGHES."

The minister will not be able to attend the reception to be given Private Hawkins tomorrow night in Toronto.

WORLD'S SERIES OCT. 6.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—President Ban Johnson said today that the National Commission had decided to start the world's championship series on Monday, Oct. 6, provided the New York Nationals and Philadelphia Americans win. It has been planned, according to Mr. Johnson, to have a first-class band amuse the spectators who will fill the ball parks hours before the game.

It is probable that the New York Nationals and the Chicago Americans will play a brief series here before they begin their tour of the world.

NEW YORK VETERANS DEFEATED

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 15.—A two-days' cricket match between the Veterans of New York and the team of the Hamilton Cricket Club ended today with the defeat of the Veterans by 144 runs. The Veterans made 82 runs in their first innings yesterday and 82 in their second innings today, while the locals gathered 308 runs for nine wickets.

EXCITED BASEBALL ROOTERS BROKE UNDER STRAIN OF 16 INNINGS

Orr Slammed Graham When Timely Hit Won Protracted Contest in East End League—Case in Court.

In the police court yesterday morning there was a case in which a baseball fan can readily imagine why a man named Orr became excited. Orr was charged with assaulting Edward Graham and was fined twenty dollars which was allowed to stand.

Magistrate Ritchie is somewhat of a baseball fan himself and as the case proceeded he was perhaps more interested than some of those in court who don't know the fine points of a ball game from a game of ping-pong. The magistrate asked Orr to tell just what caused the trouble between him and Graham. Orr then told the tale in a manner which held the attention of all present.

"You see, Yer Honor, I was excited."

"Well," said His Honor, "what caused you to get so excited?"

"You see the F. M. A. team and the All-Stars of the East End League played a sixteen inning game. On the sixteenth inning the F. M. A.'s were at the bat. There was two down and the batter had two strikes and three balls called on him and it was then that I was excited."

"Well," said His Honor, "what happened?"

"Oh," said Orr, "the batter swatted the ball out for a hit."

"Well," said the magistrate, "what had that to do with you having trouble with the complainant?"

In explanation to this question Orr said: "Oh, you see, Yer Honor, he was a rooter for the F. M. A. team, and I was for the All-Stars and that hit won the game for the F. M. A.'s."

This finished the case and he was allowed to go without paying a fine on the promise not to let his excitement set the better of him the next time.

Cadets to Camp.

For the past couple of days there has been great number of little soldiers in the city looking very proud in their new uniforms as they paraded through the streets looking into the store windows or taking in the "movies." The little fellows are cadets who are on route to Camp Sussex to put in a couple of weeks' drill. Yesterday 25 from Fredericton and 23 from St. George passed through on route to camp. It is expected that between 800 and 1000 cadets will be under canvas at Sussex today and the number is considerably larger than last year, when the camp was held at Aldershot.

BORN.

HAMILTON—On August 7th, to Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hamilton, 74 Algoma avenue, Moses Jaw, Saak, a daughter.

POLICE REPORTS.

Police Sgt. Finley reports that 84 persons who had been reported for working in the city without a license have since taken out the necessary license.

A child's straw hat was found in the old burial ground last evening by Officer Howard and can be had on the owner applying at the central station.

The police report dangerous holes in the sidewalks on Brussels street and a citizen reports that he nearly sustained injury by stepping into a depression in the King street sidewalk near the C. P. R. ticket office last evening.

Two law books found on Prince William street last night can be had on the owner applying at the central station. An account book found on the Market Square also awaits the owner at central.

John Hanlon was arrested on a warrant yesterday for assaulting George Wiley.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Frank L. Greason has just returned from a delightful trip to St. George, where she has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Greason.

Miss Alice Marsh, of Boston, and Ernest Marsh, of New York, are visiting in the city at the home of their parents, Elliott Row.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Webster, of Redding, Mass., arrived in the city yesterday on the Boston boat.

INVEST IN A GUARANTEED COMPANY AND PROTECT YOURSELF

The Taylor's Silver Black Fox Company, Limited

MONTAGUE, P. E. I.

The future of the Silver Black Fox Industry is thus described by Wesley P. Frost, U. S. Consul, Charlottetown, P. E. I.:

A LASTING INDUSTRY

"Confidence in the permanence of the market for the furs is based primarily on the fact that Black Fox Fur has from time immemorial been affected by the Royal families of Europe and by persons of highest wealth and fashion. It is pointed out that the acceptance of this fur as the choicest and most valuable is time honored and not a vogue, and that its worth is almost as fully standardized as that of the diamond amongst precious stones."

Such is the mature decision of a distinguished observer. Granted this permanent industry and a steady demand with prices well maintained, the TAYLOR'S SILVER FOX COMPANY can confidently look forward to paying high profits to its shareholders.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN

THE TAYLOR'S SILVER BLACK FOX COMPANY and other companies is that with this Company goes a guarantee that the present market price for young foxes the shareholder is ensured a dividend of WELL OVER 40 PER CENT. at the least. The guarantee of an increase of NOT LESS THAN TEN YOUNG FOXES to be raised and on the ranch at September, 1914, means that whatever happens the shareholder is AMPLY PROTECTED and that he will receive AT LEAST WELL OVER 40 PER CENT. But in the ordinary case the litters of seven pairs of foxes WILL NUMBER 18 TO 21 at moderate estimate; the shareholder in the Taylor's Company will then receive a profit that cannot be less than 40 TO 45 PER CENT. and more probably will be between 60 PER CENT. AND 80 PER CENT.

IF

The foxes of a Company without a guarantee have no pups the shareholders receive NO DIVIDEND, but whatever happens the shareholders of the Taylor's Company are ensured a profit of WELL OVER 40 PER CENT.

REMEMBER

The Taylor's Company has seven pairs of foxes of the best blood on the Island, several of the famous Dalton and Puplin strains. The Manager, R. A. Taylor, is an experienced and successful fox breeder and Manager of the Smith Company which has declared a dividend of 40 per cent., the officials are all men of standing and well known, the ranch is one of the best on the Island, and the Company is backed by a GUARANTEE that AMPLY PROTECTS the shareholder.

AS BREEDERS

The foxes will make a good showing. Two of the foxes are tested breeders: the balance are of excellent breeding stock, and will, according to the average, throw about three pups to a pair. This at current market prices means a profit in the neighborhood of 80 PER CENT.

HUERTA ADDS TO THE GRAVITY OF MEXICAN SITUATION

DIDER MASSON FLYING OVER HERMOSILLO. By telegraphing his thanks to Henry Lane Wilson, the retiring Ambassador to Mexico, for the presentation of that country's case in Washington and his statement that Mr. John Lind will not be welcome in Mexico unless he brings recognition with him, President Huerta of Mexico has displayed his hostility to the Wilson administration and to the gravity of the Mexican situation.

Mr. Francisco L. de Barra, Mexican Minister to France, in New York on his way to Paris, declares that Mexico of all parties would unite to oppose intervention by the United States. The above illustration shows Dider Masson, the Mexican rebel aviator. Masson's feats in Northern Mexico have caused much comment in the aviation world. On one occasion he circled above the federal trenches at Guaymas and dropped bombs, killing fifty soldiers. Later he dropped bombs around the Mexican gunboat Tampico, one falling into the water four feet from the vessel's side.

It's no wonder Maple Buds taste good, and it's no wonder mothers everywhere are encouraging the little folks to spend their pennies for them. Maple Buds are nothing more than the best of chocolate, pure milk and sugar—things the doctor would recommend to build up a sickly child. The most delicate child can digest them. The distinctive flavor of Maple Buds is entirely due to the use of only the best chocolate. The fine velvety texture comes from grinding and grinding through innumerable steel rollers.

OIL FUEL FOR THE NAVY.
 When Mr. Winston Churchill announced that oil will supplement coal in the case of large as well as small ships of war, he called attention to another of the long series of changes that have revolutionized ocean transportation. The use of oil will bring with it not only increased speed, but a much larger radius of action and easier and faster replenishment. The Admiralty has not come to this decision without full assurance that it is justified. For more than a hundred destroyers are built or under construction dependent entirely on oil fuel, and the experiment of building battle cruisers and a number of light cruisers burning oil fuel, Mr. Churchill affirmed, has proved successful.

The immediate policy of the Admiralty, as announced by Mr. Churchill, is to make contracts for oil five years ahead, and one contract, for a substantial proportion of the quantity required, is being placed with the Mexican Eagle Company, which is a British concern. This will be only an interim arrangement, enabling the Government to have for a time the certainty of being able to buy a steady supply at a steady price. In Mr. Churchill's words, "the ultimate policy is that the Admiralty should become the independent owner and producer of its own supplies of liquid fuel." It is to do this by building up an oil reserve sufficient to keep the navy supplied in time of war, and to be above price fluctuations in time of peace; by acquiring the power to deal in crude oil as it comes cheaply to market, afterwards distilling it as needed; and by becoming the owner or controller at the source, of a proportion of the natural oil that will be required.

The use of oil as fuel will effectively meet the increasing difficulty of securing stokers in sufficient numbers to feed the boilers of the great modern battleships, and thus will make possible a considerable reduction in a ship's complement. Larger and healthier living quarters can be provided for the men, because of the lesser space required for the storage of oil fuel, and the harsh and dirty work of coaling ships will become a thing of the past. But of greater consequence than any of these are the strategical advantages which the use of oil will offer—greater speed and secrecy of movement.

Coal will not be entirely abandoned because, as Mr. Churchill explained, oil is only required in ships when an exceptional speed has to be reached. Whatever may ultimately happen, coal will continue to be the main basis of British sea power in battleships at present. But the stake in oil ships is already so important that Great Britain must have the certainty of a steady supply of oil at a steady price. The Admiralty recognizes that it must become the independent owner and producer of its supplies. In the United Kingdom are great potentialities, since the Scottish shale deposits, if developed, can supply a large quantity of oil for many years. There are also many other sources of supply available in various parts of the world besides Mexico. The problem, Mr. Churchill stated, is not one of quantity, but price.

MR. WOODROW WILSON.
 The New York Post considers what has been going on at Washington since the inauguration of the present regime as of capital importance in the development of the Presidential functions. From the first Mr. Wilson made it plain that he proposed to take an active part in the making of laws. This became clear when he, in person, read two messages to Congress, and when he spoke of the members of Congress as "colleagues" with him in the legislative branch of Government.

It is, says the Post, the President who has been the chief driving force behind the two great measures (tariff and currency reform), that have been occupying the attention of Congress. Both now seem likely to become law, and if they do their passage will constitute a record without parallel in the annals of the Presidency.

In the words of the Post: "Nothing is so fascinating in public life as the study of a new personality wrecking itself upon old tasks. Some how, from this business President sitting at his desk, there has come an impulse and a sustained force which have made the legislation that looked impossible two months ago seem today almost within sight. It would be folly to attempt as yet anything like a complete account of the ways in which President Wilson works his will. It is evident, however, that he is a firm believer in the light which comes from the striking of iron on iron. He has the historic English conception of taking counsel as a part of his duty. His discussion seems to him properly ended.

DIARY OF EVENTS
 HISTORIC DAYS IN CANADA

SURRENDER OF DETROIT.

Detroit was surrendered 101 years ago today to the British forces under Major General Sir Isaac Brock, Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada, and commander of the troops in Canada. A month before General Hull, the American commander at Detroit, had invaded Canada, announcing himself in a proclamation as a savior who offered relief from "British tyranny and oppression." Nobody seemed particularly anxious to be saved, and early in August Hull returned to Detroit, having accomplished nothing. Governor Brock, with the promptness which was his chief characteristic, organized an invasion of his own, and with 320 regulars, 400 Canadian militia and 600 Indians under the great Tecumseh crossed the St. Clair and moved on Detroit. Hull had 2,500 men under his command—brave men who were able to put up a good fight. The advance was all on the side of the Americans, and yet when Brock came in sight, "erect in his canoe, leading the way to battle," the craven Hull ignominiously surrendered without firing a shot. Brock's bloodless victory not only gave him possession of Detroit, which practically commanded the whole of Western Canada, but also the entire territory of Michigan. Valuable and much-needed stores, many stands of arms, thirty-three cannon and a war chest fell into the hands of the British. Hull was sentenced to be shot for cowardice but was pardoned.

FIRST THINGS
 GAS LIGHTING.

The first street to be illuminated by gas was Golden Lane, in London, where the new method of lighting was first used 106 years ago tonight, AUG. 16, 1807. The method was invented by William Murdoch, an Englishman, in 1800, and in 1813 and 1820 the system was installed throughout London. Gas-lighting was introduced in New York in 1823, and in Paris in 1825. The first experiments with illuminating gas were made in 1792 by Mr. Murdoch, in Cornwall, England. In 1803 the first gas-lit street in Philadelphia was lighted with gas and in the following year a Manchester mill adopted the system. The cost of illuminating gas continued high until kerosene and electricity forced a gradual reduction. In 1860 the price per thousand cubic feet fell from $1.50 in Philadelphia to 75¢ in any big city except Pittsburgh, $2.15. In New York and Boston the rate was $2.50, and in St. Louis, Detroit, Milwaukee and most of the middle western cities, it was $3.00. In Montreal, St. John and other cities the rates ranged even higher, as high as $7.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

James Wilson, for sixteen years the head of the United States Department of Agriculture, will today celebrate his seventy-eighth birthday in citizen's clothing. Dr. Wilson recently visited his birthplace in Scotland, and the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him last month by the University of Edinburgh. He is a Scotchman, and he has received the same degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1904 and McGill University in 1909. Dr. Wilson—or "Tans Jim," to give him his less formal name—came to America at the age of sixteen, settling first in Connecticut and soon after in Vermont. He was actively engaged in farming for many years before the political bee began buzzing. He was tried, convicted, and sentenced to the State legislature. Later, for good behavior, he was permitted to go to Congress, appointed him secretary of agriculture in 1897. He continued to hold that portfolio throughout the McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft administrations. When he retired last March, owing to the election of a Democratic president, he held the record for cabinet service, having far surpassed the late Albert Gallatin, who served as secretary of the treasury just a century ago, after a service of a dozen years.

THE PASSING DAY
 THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.

In Santo Domingo, the capital, and throughout the Dominican Republic there will be a great celebration today, commemorating the semi-centennial of the establishment of the republic. The 675,000 people inhabiting the black republic will today give themselves over to merry-making and patriotic fervor, forgetting for the time the political warfare which began last November when Eladio Victoria resigned the presidency and was succeeded by Archibishop Nouel as provisional president. The Dominican republic occupies the eastern and far larger portion of the island of Hayti, and is nearly twice as large as its neighboring black republic, Santo Domingo was discovered by Columbus on his first voyage, and he found it inhabited by a race of Indians, who had divided the island into five kingdoms. Then came the Spanish conquistadores, and built the city of Santo Domingo, now the capital of the republic, but for a century the principal base and metropolis of the far-flung empire of Spain. The island died rapidly, and four centuries ago 4,000 African slaves were landed on the island—the beginning of the present population. French buccanniers gained a foothold in the island, and in 1795 the flag of France was supreme, but in 1809 the combined Spanish and English forces captured the island, and Spanish sovereignty was restored. In 1821 the people of the Spanish part of the island declared their independence, but President Boyer of Hayti was able to extend his dominions to include all of the island. In 1846 the Dominican Republic was established, and continued until 1861, when the Dominicans, fearing foreign invasion, appealed to Spain for protection. Spain accepted the appeal, and in 1862 a revolution was proclaimed, which was suppressed by the French. The republic was then re-established.

Muffled Knocks.
 "Bobby, you mustn't put your sticky fingers on Mrs. Kawler's nice dress; it's the only silk dress she has."
 "No, Mr. Snyler, I haven't the least objection to your smoking in my house; let me offer you a good cigar."
 "Old Scout, you always pitch a good game of ball—except when I'm betting on you."
 "You live in Outsomehurst, do you, Mr. Blubbins? Has that suburb a respectable residence section?"
 "Won't you let your little boy come to our Sunday school, Mrs. Jordie? It can't make him any worse, and it may do him much good."
 "Chicago Tribune."

His Manifest Aspect.
 Small Boy—Mummy, is it really true that the devil has horns and a club foot?
 The Mother—Ah, my dear, sometimes the devil appears in the shape of a very handsome and charming young man.
 Small Boy (pittily)—Oh, Mummy! you're thinking of Cupid—Punch.

Mule Power.
 "I speak that gemman has his automobile figured wrong," said Mr. Erasmus Pinkley as he watched the man and the motor.
 "What do you mean?"
 "He said it were a fifty-horsepower inline. De way it balks, I speak he mus' a' meant mile power."
 —Washington Star.

Untangle It Yourself.
 "This article says oleomargarine is made of beef fat."
 "Yes, and the person who eats lots of it will be fat."
 "Well, if beef fat makes a person fat that is nothing to beef at."
 —Houston Post.

Unmusical.
 "I like the songs that were popular twenty years ago," remarked Mr. Growcher.
 "But nobody sings them now."
 "That's why I like them."
 —Chicago Tribune.

Quite Willing.
 Kindly Disposed Magistrate—Don't you think this is a case that could be settled out of court?
 Plaintiff—I thought of that, but the coward won't fight.—London Opinion.

PROVIDED DELIGHTFUL PROGRAMME FOR GUESTS

Locomotive Engineers had Round of Pleasure During Montreal Gathering—Home after Fine Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Irvine returned to the city yesterday after an enjoyable visit to Montreal, Boston and New York. While in Montreal Mr. Irvine attended the meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers held there last week. After leaving Montreal they visited their son in Malden, Mass.

The meeting of locomotive men in Montreal was a great success, and besides the business session the visitors were given a delightful time. On Tuesday they were the guests of the Montreal Street Railway Company and were given a drive through the city, twenty-five cars being placed at the disposal of the visitors. On Wednesday morning a business session was held and afterwards the engineers and ladies were given a trip to the McDonald farm. They also had invitations from the different steamboat lines to visit the steamers in port and were given a sail around the harbor.

Another enjoyable feature of the entertainment programme was a trip to St. Anne de Beaupre, P. Q. The C. P. R. furnished a train made up of entirely new cars. The party left Montreal on Friday evening and spent Friday night at St. Anne.

HURROO, THE HEEROE

How the Return of The Standard's Special Life-Saver Affected the Elevator Boy.

The Heeroe has come back. Accompanied by the blarney trumpets as well as several other things which modestly forbids use to mention, James Edgar's "The March (Quick March)", arrived home last evening. And no sooner was he heard than he came down to the standard office and sed hullo fallos too the west of the gang. Hell, Oh, they sed how are you and he sed alright I came home to soon coz I not tired saven girls from drownen. An they sed you are a heeroe they sed. Shutup sed he an awl the fellos in sed shake an they shook an March (Quick March) sed, sed he leve a fello alone cant you and they sed we cant an Dutch sed wot was her naim an March sed none off yer business and dutch sed alright only her muther was a laidie. An after they awl shook hans March sed ses he cum on too the sho cus I aint goin too wurk till sundy nite. An Kellie gav him a dicker after he found out that March didnt pla in that alleged gam off bawl on thursday. So March went too the sho an wen he came back too the office he went down stairs too the other room an the fellos their awl sed hullo an they cheered like anything an March sed shut up cant a fello go swimmin with a bunch off other people without youse actin like a lot of damfools an he got mad an went out and went to wannamakers like he uster an hed a peace off stake an then he went home. An awl the fellos in the office are glad March aint feeling to smart just becoz he saved a cuple off people from gettin drownen an they cheered him wen he went out an they will do it agen if necessary, yours truly Jack elevator boy P. S. Plesse mster editor print this becoz it is the first peace I ever rote an I didnt rite it either but dutch put me up to it. Jack.

Old Country Farmers.

W. W. Corfield who is making a specialty of selling farms in the province to Old Country farmers, reports that interest in the farming opportunities are increasing. He has disposed of several farms recently to men from the Old Country, and yesterday he sold a farm of 200 acres near Sackville to John Frost, an English farmer of large experience.

MAY EXTEND PAVING TO THE SOUTH SIDE

All Property Owners on that Side of King Square have now Signed the Petition.

C. M. Bostwick and the executors of the Robertson estate have signed the petition asking the city to pave the south side of King Square, and charge one-quarter of the cost to the street.

Com. Agar said he would bring the petition, which is now signed by all the property owners interested, to the attention of the council on Monday, and recommend that the work of paving the street be proceeded with this year. On this street the city will have to pay three-quarters of the cost of putting down permanent pavement, as it owns the land on the north side of the improved street around the square.

MAINE SUMMER HOTEL BURNED.

Boothbay Harbor, Me., Aug. 15.—The Samsonet House, a large summer hotel on Mouse Island, was destroyed by fire this afternoon. The only telephone wire between the island and the mainland was rendered useless soon after the fire started and no details were early obtainable. The house was filled with guests.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL NEWS AND COMMENT

CLOSING STOCK LETTER FROM RANDOLPH

(F. B. McCURDY & CO.)

New York, Aug. 15.—The forward movement in the stock market which has reflected a revival of confidence in basis conditions received fresh stimulus during the current week from the final signing of the peace treaty between the Balkan belligerents, and more favorable aspect of the Mexican situation and the pronounced success of the Southern Pacific underwriting and found expression in a further expansion of prices on an increased volume of business. The advance continued until Wednesday afternoon when a reactionary tendency was developed, and prices have subsequently receded slightly. While the reaction, in view of the recent rapid advance, was due and the lessening activity suggests that the heaviness represents a speculative readjustment rather than any legitimate pressure of long stock. In fact the bulk of the offerings apparently emanated from professional operators upon the theory that the technical position had been weakened by a substantial covering of the short interest.

The most interesting and suggestive development of the week was the official announcement of the success of the Southern Pacific subscription underwriting, the $85,000,000 certificates of interest for Southern Pacific stock being over-subscribed two and one-half times. This has not only relieved the feeling of uncertainty which has been associated with this undertaking, but the result is regarded as of special significance inasmuch as it not only indicates a healthy relaxation in monetary conditions, but a reawakening of European interest in our securities, as disclosed by the foreign participation. Another important contribution to the budget of favorable news was the publication of the statement of the Bank of England for the present week. The bank of France also increased its stock of gold to the extent of $7,200,000. The foreign securities markets reflect a more cheerful tone and the character of the news suggests a tendency toward a loosening of the European financial strain. In this country the decision of the government to deposit from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 in the banks throughout the large agricultural sections to meet the demands for money incidental to moving the crops is calculated to relieve the usual strain on the banks at reserve centres and have a tendency to cause relaxation in the money market, and this has given rise to a more hopeful outlook concerning the financial situation this autumn. Railroad earnings for the first week in August as far as reported, generally show moderate increases, as follows:

Canadian Northern, $11,400 increase; Colorado & Southern, $23,232 increase; Rio Grande Southwest, $1,661 increase; Western Pacific, $21,500 increase; Toledo, St. Louis and Western, $19,640. Decreases reported are: C. & O., $18,499, and International and Great Northern $5,000. Of the industrials the statement of the Texas company made a most formidable exhibition. For the year ended June 30th, a surplus of $7,500,000 vs. $2,467,000 for the previous fiscal year was shown. Net earnings were $12,044,219, compared with $3,483,250 in 1912, equal to 34 per cent earned on the stock, against 8 1/2 per cent last year. As a result the price of the stock has made a sensational advance of about 12 points.

A reduction of $3 per ton in wire products was announced on Wednesday, but this was expected as producers have been selling below the market for some time. Recent concessions of from $2 to $3 in steel products have given rise to an impression that steel trade conditions are not altogether satisfactory but several large orders were reported yesterday and it is believed that the lower prices will stimulate new business. In the light of the above the recent strength of the steel shares has been all the more noteworthy, the price having advanced about 17 points from the low level of the recent depression. Total sales, $38,000. Bonds, $1,246,000. E. & C. RANDOLPH.

WEEKLY LETTER ON MONTREAL MARKET

(F. B. McCURDY & CO.)

Montreal, Aug. 15.—The local market was strong again this morning although only a few stocks actually experienced an advance. Among the most prominent of these was Ottawa Light, Heat and Power referred to in yesterday's despatch as being peculiarly susceptible to small trading. The chief feature of the week was Crown Reserve. During the past few weeks the stock has been under considerable pressure. Towards the close of last week it ran below 250, and on Saturday the break carried the price to 267, from which, however, it improved to 280. The meeting of the directors on Monday caused a great discussion over the situation, and much discussion was indulged in as to what it might mean. At the conclusion of the meeting the company announced that the bonus had been passed, the stock which had closed in the morning at 211, broke in the afternoon to 147. It afterward recovered considerably and has been fluctuating in the vicinity of 160 to 170 during the past couple of days. The street is filled with itself in plain terms in explaining the matter, notwithstanding the denial of the directors that any of their stock was sold.

The local market was strong again this morning although only a few stocks actually experienced an advance. Among the most prominent of these was Ottawa Light, Heat and Power as above spoken of. It is reported that there are still a few small orders to be filled, but it is hardly likely that prices will go much higher at the moment after such a striking advance. Richelieu and Ontario was a strong stock and is up about 7 points as compared with a week ago. The high point was struck this morning when sales took place at 112. Today the market sold off a point. Buying was moderately active, but in no way under ordinary circumstances to change the market very much. R. and O. gives promise of doing much better in the near future if the general situation adjusts itself at all favorably.

Montreal Power has had a good advance during the week, being up to 209 today. This is 6 or 7 points more than a week ago. Trading was only moderately active today. The rights are doing better also and sold at 9 1/2. The general feeling is that Power will stay down just as long as the large interests allow it to do so. The time is not far distant when traders will look back on the present price of the rights and consider them pretty much as gifts, so say important interests on the street. Laurentide Pulp is up 13 points from a week ago, selling at 157, and the rights are fully four points above a week ago, selling at a fraction higher than 17. Trading is moderately active, and gives evidence of a reaction, that Laurentide is cheap at the price. Even C. P. R. had its advance during the week from 218 to 222. Subsequently the stock has shown some weakness, but it closed at 218 1/2, which is several points higher than a week ago. The probabilities are that covering on the part of shorts is reported in the main for the advance in C. P. R.

Brazilian was another feature of the week. From 86 last week the price has advanced about 8 points. Sales took place at 94 and are now taking place at 93, the price having eased off slightly. McCURDY & CO.

CHEAP FARES TO TORONTO EXHIBITION. In connection with the Canadian national exhibition at Toronto, which will be held this year from August 23rd until September 8th, the Intercontinental Railway will give very low excursion rates which will give the opportunity to many to visit the Queen City on the occasion of its great annual fair. The Toronto fair is the largest and most attractive of annual exhibitions in America, and this year new permanent buildings have been constructed and its extensive boundaries enlarged by new boulevards. Aside from the attractions of the exhibition a visit to Toronto at this season is sure to be enjoyable, especially in view of the very low rates prevailing. From St. John the round trip will be $22.20, good going August 21, 22, 25, 28 and 27, and September 3 and 4. A special rate of $16.45 will prevail on August 22 and 28 and on September 2. All tickets are good to return September 10. Maritime Province travellers will have their choice of two through vestibuled trains, the Ocean Limited and the Maritime Express, both of which connect at Bonaventure union station, Montreal, with the through Grand Trunk trains for Toronto. It will be for intending travellers to apply early for reservations.

PASSENGER KILLED; AIR PILOT INJURED. Leipzig, Germany, Aug. 15.—Herr Ruetger, a passenger in an aeroplane driven by Roempler, was killed here today when a sudden gust of wind caused the machine to turn over. Roempler was injured but not seriously. The aeroplane was flying at a height of thirty feet when the accident occurred. Mrs. Isabella Roberts. The death of Mrs. Isabella R. Roberts, wife of John Roberts, took place at an early hour yesterday morning after an illness of more than a year. Besides her husband, Mrs. Roberts leaves one son and two stepsons to mourn. The body will be taken to Williams' Landing for burial.

Mrs. McKegg. I. C. R. Policeman Collins received a sad message from Ottawa yesterday morning informing him of the death of his niece, Mrs. McKegg, who was formerly Miss Armstrong of that place. Her death occurred in Ottawa at two o'clock Friday morning. Mrs. McKegg visited St. John for the first time last summer with her husband, when they were on their honeymoon.

ON COTTON MARKET

(F. B. McCURDY & CO.)

New York, Aug. 15.—The fact that an almost universally bearish sentiment might have created too big a short interest combined with continued deterioration reports from the southwest seemed to account for rather than a more general disposition to recognize the existence of possibilities on the bull side during today's trading in the cotton. It is probably fair to say that this does not indicate any turn to the bull side, or any sincere belief in a permanent higher level of prices, but shows signs of uneasiness and there may possibly have been some fresh buying on the possibility of early new crop receipts. At any rate we have a more active and generally steadier market. From a study of condition figures and yields, we are convinced that the ideal development of the crop is a high condition at the end of July followed by normal August deteriorations—in all sections. Particularly in the southwest particularly should it be accompanied by increasing complaints from the eastern belt, may cause a premature advance the more readily as the short interest is a large one. W. W. PRICE.

OBITUARY. Miss Elizabeth McManus. Miss Elizabeth McManus, daughter of the late Luke and Julia McManus, died at her home in Winter street yesterday morning leaving three brothers, James and John of this city and Dennis of Ellsworth, Maine. Mrs. Joseph M. Cowan. The death of Mrs. Mary A. Cowan, widow of Joseph H. Cowan, occurred yesterday morning, in the sixty-third year of her age, leaving three sons to mourn their loss. Mrs. Cowan lived at the home of her son, Herbert S. Cowan. She was a native of Hatfield, Point, and the body will be taken there today for interment.

LIDLAW & CO'S CLOSING STOCK LETTER

(J. C. MACKINTOSH & CO.)

New York, Aug. 15.—On the assumption that the market would have no important movement for the time being in either direction, the trading element took a bearish position this morning in the hope of realizing at least fractional profits without the burden of paying interest. Selling of this character imparted a somewhat reactionary tone to the market early but on the reaction there was evidence of substantial support in certain leading issues. A moderate recovery followed but the advance later in price of corn in response to further crop damage reports discouraged bullish operations. In the final hour a fair sized selling movement developed, under which prices receded to the lowest point of the day. Support seemed to be withdrawn from many leading stocks such as Steel, U. P., and the copper issues, which had recently shown evidence of good buying. Whether this reflected any important change of sentiment or merely a willingness on the part of bulls to encourage a short interest was hard to determine. Many unbiased observers were of the opinion that a reaction, if not carried too far, would attract a larger outside interest and that for this reason the big interests would not oppose a further setback. LAIDLAW & CO.

CLOSING COTTON LETTER FROM JUDSON & CO.

(J. C. MACKINTOSH & CO.)

New York, Aug. 15.—The combined influences of the Giles' report showing sharp deterioration in the southwest and the official forecast of clear weather stimulated a heavy covering movement in today's cotton market. Prices rose 20 to 22 points and closed at the top. It was clearly evident that extremely bearish average of recent sentiment had created big short interests in the market. It is doubtful if this interest was materially reduced today and the confidence which still underlies the commitments of the average bear does not suggest any material reduction for the immediate future. Unless conditions become obviously very much worse the short interest should act as a sustaining force for some time to come. The Giles report carried the crop to August 10th. The presumption is that the deterioration has been rapid during the past four days in the southwest and the bulls claim that if the report had given conditions as they existed today it would have placed the average very much lower. AROUND THE CITY

Congratulations.
Leonard T. Wetmore, of Scovill Bros. Ltd., is receiving congratulations on the arrival of a fine baby girl at his home, 133 Carmarthen street.

A Generous Gift.
H. C. Rankine, treasurer of the St. John Protestant Orphans' Home, acknowledges with thanks a generous bequest of $500 from the executors of the Ellis estate.

On the Quait.
N. R. Lund, general operator on the P. B. McCurdy staff, city, gave a surprise to his fellow employees by taking part in an interesting event last week. The marriage was performed in Charlottetown.

Able to Work Again.
W. A. MacVay, of the firm of Joseph MacVay & Son, contractors on the new government bridge at the Falls, who had two fingers of the right hand injured, requiring amputation, while working about the concrete mixer, is now improved and able to resume work.

More Harvesters.
Another harvest excursion left the city last night for the west. About a hundred and fifty harvesters arrived here yesterday morning and the Halifax express last evening brought about three hundred more. They left last night about 8 o'clock on a special train.

Represent Local Union.
M. J. Burns of the local Plumbers Union, and J. Cliff, of Moncton, leave tonight for Boston to attend the annual convention of the International Plumbers Union which opens at the Hub on Monday. It is expected that about 700 delegates from different parts of Canada and the United States will be in attendance, and many important matters affecting the interests of the plumbers and steamfitters trades will be dealt with.

Salmon Season is Over.
The salmon fishing season closed yesterday. For the weir men and harbor fishermen the season has been a poor one, but the net fishermen at Corveville and along the coast made much larger catches than usual, and as prices were very good had a very successful season. At the first of the season there were some salmon for export, but for the last month or so the supply has been pretty well taken up by the demands of the local market.

For the Housewife.
In the country market for today there is a fairly good supply of produce and the prices on the different lines of meat and vegetables remain the same as last week, the retail quotations for today being: Roast beef, 12c to 25c; steak, 18c to 25c; lamb, 12c to 18c; veal, 10c to 18c; pork, 18c to 20c; ham and bacon, 24c to 28c; chickens, 75c to $1.50; fowl, 50c to $1.50. Vegetables are selling as follows: Peas, 40c; beans, 50c; potatoes, 25c; and turnips, 25c; a peck; beets and carrots, 6c a bunch; lettuce, 5c to 6c; cucumbers, 5c each.

WILL AFFORD BETTER FIRE PROTECTION

New Hydrants on Canterbury Street—Old Concrete Pipes have nearly all Disappeared on West Side.

The water and sewerage department is installing new hydrants at the corner of Church and Canterbury streets, and at the corner of Prince and Canterbury. Formerly the fire plugs at these points were supplied by two-inch iron pipes which were attached to eight-inch mains, thus assuring better fire protection for the district. The department has started work on Byng street, where the water main is to be renewed.

On the West Side quite a number of water mains have been renewed. An eight-inch main is being laid in St. James street west, the excavation being for the most part through solid rock, and a new sewer is being laid in the same street. When the work is in progress on the West Side is finished, practically the last of the old concrete pipes will be replaced by iron mains.

The work on the outlet for the Adelaide street sewer has been finished. This was one of the biggest sewer jobs undertaken by the city for some time. The outlet is about 1,500 feet in length, and the cut was from ten to twenty feet in depth, largely through solid rock. Next week work will be started on the culvert across North-west bridge.

NEW SOURCE OF WEALTH IN PROVINCE

Experts Enthuse Over Deposits of Copper Ore in Kings.

SAY SMELTING PLANT MAY BE ESTABLISHED

Tests Reveal Great Quantities Averaging 25 per cent. Yield—Discovery may mean Big Industry.

The copper deposits at Scott's Settlement on the line of the I. C. R. and about eight miles from Norton, which turn out to be very valuable, is the opinion of J. R. McAuley, warden of Kings county, who was in the city yesterday. Prospectors have been at work in the vicinity for some time, and they are very enthusiastic about the outlook for the development of a big copper smelter at Scott's Settlement. They have been making excavations over a square mile of land, and in practically every place they have found copper ore in considerable quantities. It is said that on the average the ore will yield 25 per cent of copper, and as it says to smelt ore, which only yields 10 per cent, it would seem that the chances of the development of a new industry at Scott's Settlement are very good. The company which is engaged in prospecting will examine the whole area, and if the copper is as abundant as the investigation so far would seem to indicate, it will start development operations on an extensive scale.

One of the prospectors, who is an old miner from the west, is surprised at the apathy of the people of the east in regard to the possibilities of getting possession of mineral wealth, if such a strike had been made in the west, he says, as that at Scott's Settlement, there would be five thousand people in the vicinity with a week looking for mining prospects.

CANADA IS TEACHING HER SONS AT HOME

Dr. Thomas Walker Home after Interesting Trip—Met a Canadian Graduate at Edinburgh this Year.

"You hear more about the suffragettes in St. John than you do in London," said Dr. Thomas Walker, who has returned from a visit to the Old Country.

Dr. Walker attended the graduating ceremonies of the Medical School of the University of Edinburgh. As the occasion was the fiftieth anniversary of his own graduation he was invited by the principal, Sir William Turner, to a seat on his left during the ceremonies. While the degrees were being conferred the principal remarked that there was not a Canadian among the graduates. Dr. Walker pointed out that the educational facilities in Canada were now much better developed than in the old days when many Canadians had to go to Edinburgh to study medicine, and that Canadians were now being educated at home.

After spending some days in Edinburgh Dr. Walker went to Ayrshire, and visited the cottage where Burns was born, and motored over the old bridge across which the wretched chieftain Tam O'Shanter, from Scotland he went to London, and after taking in the sights there went to the Cathedral town of Winchester, which is known as King Alfred's town, and contains a fine statue of the famous king, and relics of his reign. Thence he went to Buxton in Derbyshire, a county of hills and beautiful valleys, where the railways run through numerous tunnels. Buxton is a famous summer resort, its population being doubled during the tourist season. There he had the pleasure of hearing the famous band of the Horse Guards Blue.

Dr. Walker left St. John on the 25th of June and made the passage across on the Empress of Ireland, having a calm but foggy voyage. On the return trip they passed through numerous icebergs, as many as 25 being visible at one time. Among his fellow passengers to Canada was Sir Gilbert Parker, the famous Canadian novelist.

Speaking of the suffragettes, Dr. Walker said that militant campaigns did not appear to attract much interest among the people generally. "They appear to be active in London mainly," he added. "I did not hear much about them in Scotland. The women who have been conducting processions up and down the coasts of England are suffragettes, those who do not believe in militant methods.

"Business conditions appeared to be very good in England," said the doctor. "You don't see many signs of the decadence you sometimes read about."

"ABSOLUTELY UNTRUE" SAYS CONTRACTOR

Joseph MacVay Says he Never Made Statements Credited to Him in The Telegraph.

The course pursued by the Telegraph and the Times in publishing, usually under big headlines, statements regarding the proposed way on the Dominion and Provincial governments, where, in the great majority of cases, there is no cause for honest criticism, has caused considerable amusement and no little indignation. A day or two ago the Times published an alleged interview with a young man who claimed the road between St. John and St. Andrews was in such bad shape that on a recent automobile trip he was several hours late in getting into St. John. The day the item appeared Chester Jones called at The Standard office and reported that he had been over the road on the day to which the Times referred, and with the exception of one or two small spots, he found it in good shape. He no place on the road did he find conditions so bad as to cause delay. As proof of his statement Mr. Jones said he came from St. Andrews to St. John in four hours.

The most glaring evidence of this policy of misrepresentation which appears to have found a steady job in the office of the Telegraph, however, occurred on Thursday morning last, when an alleged interview with Joseph MacVay, who has a contract in connection with the new bridge at the Reversing Falls, was published under a two column heading in black type. The heading was as follows: SAYS GOVERNMENT DELAY AT EAST END OF BRIDGE MEANS NO STEEL IN 1913.

Contractor on New Spandill Arch Bridge at Reversing Falls was kept back by Failure to Remove Buildings, He Says—Government Paid $10,000 for House and Lot and Sold for $5—Some Facts About New Bridge.

Under this plaster appeared a story which credited Mr. MacVay with statements indicated in the heading and which, he told a Standard reporter yesterday afternoon, he never made.

The statements credited to me by The Telegraph, the Dominion and the Dominion Bridge Company are absolutely untrue as far as I am concerned. I never made them. They, tersely, did Mr. MacVay the stamp of his disapproval upon the Telegraph's conception of veracity.

When the statements credited to him in the Telegraph were repeated to him yesterday, Mr. MacVay said that he did not know where the heading was laying on the government blame for delaying the work was true.

"In fact," he added, "the work is proceeding favorably and we are as well advanced with it as we expected to be at this time."

The final paragraph of the Telegraph's story was as follows:

"In Mr. MacVay's opinion the dilatoriness of the government had prevented the actual steel construction of the bridge until next year, although the Dominion Bridge Company was to have commenced some time last month. The bridge itself will hardly be finished now for traffic in November next year."

When the contractor's attention was called to this paragraph, yesterday, he said: "The young man asked me when I thought the steel work would be commenced and I told him that was the Dominion Bridge Company's work and as I was in no way connected with it, I could not say anything about that end of it."

Again, the following was credited to Mr. MacVay in the Telegraph: "Ten thousand dollars the government paid over in cash for that strip of ground over there to Miss Mary Burns and Tom Maherty."

Mr. MacVay also denied that he made this statement.

As regards the purchase of the right of way, three arbitrators, one for the government, a second for the owner, and a third disinterested party were chosen to arrange a selling price. "I have no fault to find with the government one way or the other, and the work is being carried on as rapidly as we expected," said Mr. MacVay in conclusion.

Mr. MacVay says this present instance is not the first one which he had occasion to discredit the Telegraph some time ago when he carried reports for several days of a strike of the men on the bridge, and he says it was not until he threatened legal action that the reports ceased. At that time, Mr. MacVay says, the men knocked off work for a short time one afternoon while he was absent from the scene, and when he returned work was resumed.

THE PREMIER WILL HELP IN ARBITRATION

Has Agreed to Assist in Settling the Mill Trouble.

OFFER SERVICES OF LABOR DEPARTMENT

Had Conference with Commissioner Agar Yesterday and will write Mill Owners and the Workers.

It was reported last evening that Premier Fleming, who has been acting as Minister of labor for the province for some time, had agreed to make an effort to settle the mill strike. At the last meeting of the local government, as previously reported, Hon. J. E. Wilson directed attention to the dispute to get together and try to arrive at a friendly settlement.

Premier Fleming, who was in town yesterday, had a conference with Com. Agar and Mr. Wilson in regard to the difficulty, and in view of the seriousness of the situation from the point of view of the local business interests, the premier agreed to address a letter to representatives of the mill owners and their former employees, offering the services of the local labor department in an effort to bring about a friendly settlement.

Randolph and Baker's mill resumed operations the other day, but as few of the regular mill hands returned to work at the old rate of wages, the mill has been working short-handed, and yesterday it was reported that it would be closed down again.

WANT STEAMER BETWEEN CUBA AND ST. JOHN

Government will be Asked to Subsidize Boat to Carry Local Produce—Don't Ask Scheduled Service.

Owing to the prospect of a heavy potato crop in the province this year the produce dealers are looking into the matter of securing a steamship service between St. John and Cuba this winter. A local produce dealer stated yesterday that the matter had been brought to the attention of Premier Fleming, and that the Federal government would be approached with a view to having it offer a subsidy for a service to Cuba. It is understood that the Elder Dempster Company, which formerly operated a monthly service to Cuba and Mexico was making enquiries into the possibilities of trade with Cuba this winter, and that it might run boats between St. John and Havana if satisfactory arrangements could be made, and the prospects pointed to good trade. It is said that the idea of the produce dealers is to get some company to run a boat whenever a cargo offered, and have the government offer a subsidy for each sailing instead of for a regular service. It is believed, meet the needs of the produce exporters, and would not be so hard on the shipping company, as the necessity of sailing on schedule without regard to the amount of cargo available.

Some years ago both the Elder Dempster Co. and William Thomson & Company ran boats from St. John to Cuba, and many thousands of barrels of potatoes, besides other produce and lumber were shipped to Cuba. Then the Federal government offered a subsidy and the Provincial Government maintained a storage depot at Havana, and also provided facilities here. In the last two winters, owing to poor potato crops in Ontario local produce dealers did not make many shipments to Cuba, and last year, owing to the withdrawal of the Mexican subsidy the Elder Dempster service to Cuba and Mexico was discontinued.

After the mariners have had advantage of being guided into harbor by a light on the end of Beacon Hill for the past one hundred and three years, this structure is being done away with. The bar is dredged away and in fact, here all clearly the dredges with exception of the small section which the lighthouse stands.

The old lighthouse is being dismantled, workmen having started it down the first of the week and in a few days there will be left of the former "Beacon Light" but a pile of stones. The light has been removed on Tuesday the government steamer Lansdowne made a call and with powerful derricks removed the structure by striking a blow on the eastern side of the lighthouse which the mariners of danger of thick weather when they could not see the light. The lighthouse has also been torn down and as day passes the structure is fast disappearing.

Known to Millions.

The old lighthouse was certain historic place and millions of visitors to the city have crowded to the top of the incoming passenger steamer and when the steamer would, while waiting for a breeze to raise the lighthouse keeper would turn the courtesy by striking a blow on the big deep-sounding bell. Picture post cards with an excellent view of the lighthouse from the tower, books showing the old lighthouse of the interesting sights, been sent all over the world and that it is being torn down and away with this old landmark surely be missed, not only by the tourists to the city, but by the residents of whom have remembered since the days of their childhood.

On dark nights the bright light of the beacon shows forth brilliantly, proved a sure guidance for the pilot as they came into port, put out to them the channel and then from being wrecked on the bar.

Many Visitors to Light.

The people who have resorted to the water front, and especially those who have resided on the western side of the harbor, will remember as they live the old lighthouse, on many occasions, they walked the bar at low tide on their bare feet, picking dulse and when the tide was at low ebb they would very often visit to the lighthouse, climb winding stairway and visit the house keeper who would receive kindly and many a time have they refreshed with a good hot cup of tea and delicious bread and butter. The writer visited the lighthouse many occasions when Timothy O'Connell, the father of Policeman George O'Connell was the lighthouse keeper, and recollect with pleasure the conversation with that gentleman. To spend a night on the lighthouse gave one a feeling of being on board a vessel, and the sea pitching up against the side.

WORK OF STRAIGHTENING ENTRANCE TO THE HARBOR REMOVES OLD STRUCTURE

For More than a Century the Island has been Marked, First by Crude "Dolphin", Latterly by Building now in course of Removal—Something of its Interesting History—Withstood Saxby Gale:

Party Accompanying the Minister of Militia and Defence will Sail for England on August 23rd.

Special to The Standard. Ottawa, Ont., August 15.—The revised list of officers chosen by the Minister of Militia and Defence to sail for the army and divisional manoeuvres on August 23, in England, is now officially announced. Of the sixteen officers originally chosen only two, Lt. Col. Meighen, Montreal, and Lt. Col. Thompson, Winnipeg, were not able to accept, owing to previous arrangements. Six additional officers have been chosen so that the total number to accompany the minister will be twenty. The additional officers chosen are Lt. Col. Simpson, Medicine Hat; Lt. Col. F. C. Jameson, Edmonton; Lt. Col. Howard Brantford; Lt. Col. E. S. Wigle, Windsor; Lt. Col. Cowan, Portage La Prairie, and Capt. W. H. Ball, Toronto, of the Royal Canadian Dragoons.

The other fourteen officers as already announced, have accepted the invitation and are Col. G. A. Cruikshank, Calgary; Lt. Col. F. J. Clark, Brandon; Lt. Col. P. J. Macdonald, Leed; Fredericton; Lt. Col. S. C. Mewburn, Hamilton; Lt. Col. W. S. Buell, Brockville; Lt. Col. A. G. F. Macdonald, Montreal; Lt. Col. E. G. Leckie, Vancouver; Lt. Col. M. S. Mercer, Toronto; Lt. Col. D. Watson, Quebec; Lt. Col. Rogers, Peterborough; Lt. Col. F. J. Macdonald, Montreal; Lt. Col. H. C. Macdonnell, Winnipeg; Major Pierre Davidson, Montreal, and Major Louis Levesque, Montreal.

the harbor of St. John has talked about the necessity of a straight course for the harbor and this course will soon be a certainty. In fact, it is stated that, at the present time, it is not necessary for shipping to make the roundabout course from the bell buoy to the gas buoy between it and the beacon light, as all obstruction has been cleared away between the bell buoy and the light, but it is further stated that the department has not had the course changed on the charts and until this is done the straight course from the bell buoy to the beacon light will not be used.

The Fate of the Old Bell.

The government steamer Lansdowne removed the fog bell from the lighthouse on Tuesday last, and it is now small bell, as it weighs just one ton and a half, and it has been asked what the government intends doing with it. It now rests on the deck of the Lansdowne and in a few days will leave port and will be installed at Swallowtail light, down the bay.

Now that the bell is a thing of the past and a gas buoy is doing service at this place until all is dredged away, it might be proper to tell something of its past history, and it certainly has had a long one. The Standard is indebted to John Kelly, inspector of lights in the Marine Department for the following information regarding the history of the old beacon.

At regular intervals for the harbor bar was unmarked and many of the seafaring people discussed the matter for some time, with the result that, in 1810, the Province of New Brunswick which had full control over such matters, established on a point of the bar what is known as a "dolphin".

For the benefit of those who do not know what a dolphin is, it might be stated that it is a few logs bound together and stuck on end on the top of this dolphin was placed a pole and every evening a man would row or walk to the dolphin and hang a lantern on the pole, and for a number of years the lantern was lighted every night and placed on the pole to warn the seaman from the bar and point out the channel.

The First Lighthouse.

In 1826, just sixteen years later, the Province passed an estimate for the amount of £400 for the erection of a pier and a lighthouse and this was erected during 1827-28, and the first lighthouse was then in full working order.

In 1866 the lighthouse, which, at that time was the pride of the port, caught fire and was quickly burned to the water's edge. The great necessity of a new light house was evident, and a new and larger structure was erected, which remained staunch against all the elements until the present day when it is being torn down.

Some time after the lighthouse was erected there were some expressions in favor of placing a bell on the house, and a light was all right during the fine weather, but when the weather was thick there was no warning to the boats and the seamen were in the lighthouse in 1873, and a small house was also erected as living quarters for the keeper.

Withstood Saxby Gale.

In 1866, when the lighthouse was rebuilt, after the fire, great precaution was made to make it a staunch one. It is surely needed to be such, for it has on many occasions had to stand against tremendous heavy seas. Perhaps the hardest test that it was put to was during the awful Saxby Gale, which caused great havoc along the coasts on the fourth of October, 1869.

In speaking of this terrific storm D. L. Hutchison, director of the St. John meteorological service, was able yesterday to give The Standard some interesting facts, which go to show that the Beacon Lighthouse was well built to withstand such a storm.

How The Gale Got Its Name.

This great storm was called the "Saxby Gale" for the reason that Lieut. Saxby, R. N., made a prediction nearly a year before the gale, on the 5th of October the earth would be visited by a storm of marked severity, attended by an exceptionally high tide.

On the day preceding the storm the weather in St. John was foggy in the morning, followed by partly cloudy in the afternoon, and a heavy rain on the night of the storm, Monday, October 4th, the early morning was foggy, then partly cloudy, and by 7 a. m. the sun was out, and the afternoon the heat was particularly oppressive, while to the southwest the sky assumed a dull leaden color becoming completely clouded by 5 p. m.

As the afternoon advanced the wind blew in fitful angry squalls and the rising tide was noticed to be coming in unusually early. At 5 p. m. the wind had increased to a gale. Rain began to fall at 6 p. m. The gale continued to increase. About 8.30 p. m. it was blowing with hurricane force from the southwest.

Marlborough at Blenheim

at a time at least, destroyed the military fame and power of France almost completely as Sedan did in the nineteenth century. A hundred victories since Waterloo, says the historian, "had taught the world to regard the French army as invincible, when the battle of Blenheim, on the 1st of July, 1704, broke the spell." But this was the least result of Blenheim. Its great merit is that it shattered the former invincibility of Louis XIV. to establish a sort of universal empire. Louis XIV. is looked at today through the lens of his defeated and inglorious old age, and his ambition is not realized. But in the qualities of an almost unerring intellect, and an imperious will, masterful intellect, and an ambition which vexed the peace and threatened the freedom of the world, he stands out as a Napoleon, not merely in French history, but any other character in modern European history.

It was Napoleon, the conqueror of the world, because through it ran a leaven of religious intolerance. His revolution of the Edict of Nantes drove 400,000 of the best citizens of France into exile, while another 100,000 perished of hardships or imprisonment, or on the scaffold. When his grandson ascended the throne of Spain and the Indies, it seemed as if the French King's dream of a world monarchy was about to be realized. The "Spain" of that date, it must be remembered, included the Netherlands, Italy, and the Milan, half Italy, in a word, and more than half America. Here, then, was the menace of an empire which in scope exceeded that of Caesar, and it is to be remembered that it was by the policy which drove the Huguenots into exile, and would have kept the Stuarts, as French pensioners, on the throne of England. As Alton puts it, "Spain had threatened the liberties of Europe at the end of the sixteenth century; France had all but overthrown them in the close of the seventeenth. What hope was there for the world if the Spain that launched the Armada against England, and the France which drove the Huguenots into exile were united under a monarch like Louis XIV., with his motto, 'L'Etat, c'est moi'?"

Our own William III. headed, with much ill fortune, but with unquestioned courage, the confederacy of England, Holland, Austria, and the other independent states against the ambition

THE BEACON AS IT APPEARS ON ENTERING THE HARBOR.

Necker, and kept on his steadfast march through Wurtemberg, his plan stood disclosed. There was wrath in Holland, alarm in Paris, and much agitated riding to and fro between the headquarters of the various French armies; but it was too late for the Dutch to object, and also too late for the French generals to intercept his movement, and it was clear that the combination of three French armies under Tallard, Marsin, and the Bavarian Elector, Max Emanuel, on the Danube, would be met by a counter concentration of three armies under Marlborough, Prince Eugene, and the Mar-

Marlborough's march to the Danube was a grand scheme grandly executed. Part of the route crossed the great chain of rugged hills in Wurtemberg known by the name of the Raube Alps—the rugged Alps—but through wild passes, across swift rivers, and, in spite of tempestuous weather, the steadfast Englishman pressed on. The strength of Marlborough's force consisted of 16,000 British, sturdy infantry, equal in endurance and warlike temper to Wellington's Light Division in the Peninsula, or to the foot guards who held the Sandbag battery at Inkermann. Amongst the British cavalry was a regiment of Scots Greys and another of Royal Dragoons equal in valor to those who, more than a century afterwards, charged across the sunken road upon the French cuirassiers at Waterloo. Their officers were men like Cutts and Rowe and Kaut and Ingoldsby, not, perhaps, great generals, but soldiers who, in fighting quality, in the stubborn bulldog pluck that never recognizes defeat, were equal to the Pictons, and Craufurds, and Colin Campbell of a later date.

Marlborough crossed the Rhine on May 26; on June 10, at Mondscheid, he met Prince Eugene, and began one of the most loyal and memorable friendships in military history. Three days later the junction with Margrave Louis was effected at Grossheppach.

The tree still stands under which, nearly a hundred years ago, the three commanders sat and planned the campaign which ended at Blenheim. Of that historic three the Englishman was the purest, intellectually the greatest, and certainly stands highest in fame. He was fifty-four years of age; he had won no first-class battle yet, but during the next seven years he was to win a series of the greatest victories in British history. He lacked, perhaps, Wellington's fighting impetuosity in military history. Three campaigns, fought only ten pitched battles; Wellington, in seven, fought fifteen. But Marlborough never fought a battle he did not win, nor besieged a fortress he did not take, and in many respects he is the greatest military genius the British race has produced.

The Margrave Louis of Baden owed his place in the group under the historic tree at Grossheppach rather to his rank than to his military skill; Prince Eugene of Savoy was a every respect a great soldier. As Stanhope puts it, he was an Italian by descent, a Frenchman by training, and a German by adoption; and in his signature, "Eugenio von Savoye," he used to combine the three languages. A little man, black-haired, black-complexioned, with lips curiously pendulous, and mouth semi-open; but with eyes through which looked a great and daring spirit. Eugene was a soldier as daring as Ney or Murat, and with their delight in the rapture of the onfall, the

Approve Bye-Laws of Medical Men

Government Sanctions by Order in Council, Measures Adopted by Canadian Medical Protective Association.

Special to The Standard. Ottawa, Aug. 15.—The government has approved by order-in-council the bye-laws adopted by the Canadian Medical Protective Association incorporated at the last session of parliament. The organization is open to all physicians in good standing in Canada and is designed to protect the profession. Upon an action being threatened or being brought for reprobation against any member of the association it is to be his duty to communicate forthwith the facts to the secretary. The executive committee will then decide whether the defence is one the association should assist and if so shall retain counsel and continue the member's defence so long as it appears meritorious.

Number of Voters at Polls in Federal Elections Has Increased.

MILLION AND HALF BALLOTTED IN 1911

Premier Borden's Majority Two Years Ago, Bigger than any Scored by Laurier, Except in 1904.

Special to The Standard. Ottawa, Aug. 15.—The Clerk of the Crown in Chancery is preparing a series of returns of the federal general elections since 1866. The figures show a steady increase in the vote polled and an increase in the proportion of the electors going to the polls. In 1866 the electors who voted were between 64 and 65 per cent. of the number of those on the lists, while in 1911 the proportion had risen to be between 73 and 74 per cent. In 1866 the total vote polled was 849,000, of which the Conservatives polled 418,000 while the Liberals obtained only 399,700. Thus the straight Liberal vote was some 16,000 smaller than the straight Conservative vote. The independent vote, however, was abnormal, heavy, $2,860, and most if not all of it was cast against the government of the day.

EGZEMA FROM HEAD TO ANKLES

Tortured with Terrible Itching and Burning. Scatched Until Tore Flesh. Lay Awake for Nights at a Time. Used Cuticura Remedies and Found a Cure. St. Ota, Ontario.—"When I was ten years old I began to be tortured with terrible itching and burning of the skin, and was told it was eczema. I have had it right along for seven years steady, it getting worse every year. I was advised from head to ankle, it seemed to appear like hives at first, then I would begin to scratch until I tore my flesh. It would always be at its worst at night. I have washed myself up nights scratching and my fingers would be just stiff and cramped from scratching, so this I would be hardly able to straighten them out. My hair I have suffered. My face and whole body would be just a mass of blotches red as fire and after having soap and water on my face then I would begin to burn. I have lain awake for nights at a time when my eczema was at its worst. "I would be tortured for months at a time. I was getting not only disheartened, but nothing helped, but completely discouraged also, but damn fortune smiled upon me one day in the summer of 1910 and laid before my eyes an advertisement of Cuticura Remedies. I used them according to directions and after a few applications I began to feel and see relief ahead. It is nearly six months since I first began, and I can truthfully say I've found a cure." (Signed) Miss Louisa E. Wilson, Dec. 13, 1911. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 25-cent book and postcard to Foster Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 38D, Boston, U. S. A.

FIGHTS FOR THE FLAG

THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER

AND THE CHORUS OF PRINCESSES SINGING "MY HERO."

Continued From Page Nine. Thunder of galloping hoofs, and the loud challenge of the cannon. But he was also one of the most loyal and generous of men, and if Marlborough was the brain of the great campaign just beginning, Eugene was its sword.

There is no space to dwell on the intermediate movements, nor even on the desperate fight round the Schellenberg, and the stern course with which the British at last carried it, but carried it at a loss of nearly one-third their number. On August 11, 1704, the two great armies confronted each other at Blenheim.

Blenheim is a little village on the bank of the Danube, a stream called the Nebel, gathering its sources from the roots of the wooded hills to the west, runs in its front, and curving round, so that its course is almost from north to south, falls into the Danube. From Lutzingen, on the lower slope of the hills, to Blenheim on the Danube is a distance of four and a half miles. Blenheim formed the right wing of the French, and it is Tallard who packed nearly 16,000 infantry, the flower of his troops, fortifying the village with strong palisades. Lutzingen, on the extreme left, was held by Marlin and the Bavarian Elector, and from the nature of the ground, was almost impregnable. Between these two positions was a marshy plain through which the Nebel flowed; in the middle of it stood a village called Oberglauh, held by fourteen battalions, amongst which were three Irish regiments destined to play a great part in the fight.

Tallard covered his centre by a long screen of cavalry, strengthened by two brigades of infantry. His position on this side was of great strength at either extremity, but his centre, though covered by the Nebel, and strengthened by the village of Oberglauh, was of fatal weakness, and through it Marlborough burst late in the fight, winning his great victory by a stupendous cavalry charge. It is curious, however, that Marlborough, though he had a military glance of singular keenness, did not discover the flaw in his opponent's line till the battle had been raging some hours.

Eugene, with 18,000 men, was to attack Tallard's left; Marlborough himself, with his best troops, nearly 30,000 strong—9,000 of them being British—was to attack Blenheim and try and turn the French right flank. Tallard had under his command 60,000 men, with ninety guns; Marlborough had 46,000 men and sixty-six guns. Marlborough's weakness lay in the strangely composite character of his forces. The battle, in this respect, has scarcely any parallel in history. To quote the historian Green, "The whole of the Teutonic race was represented in the strange medley of Englishmen, Dutchmen, Hanoverians, Danes, Wurttembergers, and Austrians who followed Marlborough and Eugene." Nothing more than the Teutonic race could have welded into effectiveness an army made up of such diverse elements.

Day broke on August 11, with mist; and under its cover the allied forces moved forward to the attack. Tallard was quite unprepared for an engagement, when the fog lifting for a moment, showed the whole landscape before him peopled with moving battalions and fortified with the clanking of steel. Marlborough waited till Eugene could launch his assault on the wing of the French, and so difficult was the ground that not till nearly twelve o'clock did an aide-de-camp, Gallop at speed, announce that the Prince was ready to engage. The fighting on the wooded ridges round Lutzingen was of the fiercest. Four times Eugene launched his troops in furious onset on the enemy, but each time the strength of the position held by the French and Bavarians, and with such steady valour did they fight, that Eugene's assaults were all repulsed, and he himself was only saved from disaster by the iron steadfastness of the Prussian infantry, on whose discipline and ranks the Bavarian cavalry flung themselves in vain.

The chief interest of the fight belongs to the left wing, and centre, where Marlborough commanded in person. He first attempted to turn Tallard's right by assaulting Blenheim. He hunched against it a great infantry attack, consisting of five British battalions, with one Hessian battalion, under Rowe, supported by eleven battalions and fifteen squadrons under Cutts. Nothing could be fiercer than the on-fall of the British. They carried it with a single rush some miles, which acted as a sort of outpost to Blenheim; then, dressing their ranks afresh, they moved coolly forward to attack the broad front of palisades which covered Blenheim. The village was crowded with 16,000 of Tallard's best troops, behind the palisades knelt long lines of infantry, while a second line standing erect fired over the heads of their kneeling comrades.

The broad red column, its general, Rowe, leading came on with iron steadiness, the tramp of the disciplined battalions every moment sounded nearer and more menacing. When the British were within thirty yards, the French fired. The long front of palisades sparkled with flame, a furious whirlwind of white smoke covered the whole front, and this was pierced again, by the darting flames of new volleys. The British front seemed to crumble under that tempest of shot, yet it never swayed or faltered. On through smoke and flame it came. Rowe led it, moving straight forward, till he struck the palisades with his sword, and bade his men fire. The whole British front broke at the word into flame. Then the men, their officers commencing to push his cavalry sides with the bayonet. The great breach at Badajos did not witness a more fiery valour; but Blenheim was held by a force double in strength to that attacking it, with every advantage of position, and a front of fire more than double that of the British, and the attempt was hopeless from the outset. Rowe fell badly wounded; the two officers in succession who took command after he fell were slain. The men, under the whirling smoke, and scorched with the flames of incessant volleys, were trying to tear up the palisades with their hands or claws, or over them by mounting on each other's shoulders.

Suddenly through the smoke on their left came the thunder of galloping hoofs, and with a long-sustained crash two squadrons of French horse broke in on the British flank. The men fought in broken clusters and with desperate courage, but Rowe's regiment was almost destroyed, and its colors fell into the enemy's hands. The British, however, nicknamed by the men "the Salamander," from his lust of fighting, and habit of always being found where the fire was hottest—had brought up the second line, and the French cavalry recoiled before the stern valour with which the infantry fought. As they recoiled, some squadrons under Lumley came upon them in a gallop, recaptured the colors of Rowe's regiment, and drove the Frenchmen in disorder back to their lines.

Marlborough watched the furious strife around Blenheim with steady eye, and was satisfied that Blenheim itself Tallard was impregnable. He withdrew his troops from the attack, the men falling sullenly back, full of unstarved eagerness for a new assault; but Marlborough had discovered the flaw in Tallard's centre. He kept up the feint of an attack on Blenheim, but commenced to push his cavalry and some battalions of infantry through the marshy ground and across the Nebel which covered Tallard's centre. It was difficult feat. Tracks through the marshy bottom had to be made with fascines and planks, and along these the mud-splashed cavalry crept, in single file, and floundered through the detail being perfection, since they were made by Bulgarian peasants and imported for the production. Musicality, the opera is a hit, not in any one number, but in all of Oscar Straus' clever score.

men, swept round the flank of a line of steady British foot, drawn across the line of their retreat, and this, too, opened a close and deadly fire on the Irish brigade as, breathless and disordered, it came down the slope. With horsemen on its flank, and unbroken infantry scouring it with fire in front, the Irish brigade was flung back in defeat to Oberglauh. Then came the great cavalry charge which decided the fight.

Marlborough resembled Hannibal in his use of cavalry for the deciding stroke in a great battle, and he had now no less than 8000 horse, a long line of nodding plumes and gleaming swords, ready to launch on Tallard's centre. Behind were steady battalions of infantry, under the cover of whose fire the horsemen might reform if the attack failed. In front was the long slope, soft with grass and elastic as the stroke of the galloping hoofs, an ideal field for a great cavalry charge. Tallard had drawn up his cavalry in two lines and had interlarded them with batteries of artillery and squares of infantry. These were drawn up slightly behind the main body of horse, so as to exactly cover the summit with their fire.

At five o'clock Marlborough launched the great attack. Slowly at first, but gathering momentum as they advanced, the long lines of horsemen came on. The air fell full of the clatter of scabbard on scabbard, the squadrons were just stretching themselves out into a gallop, as they reached the summit of the rise, when they were smitten by the fire of the French infantry and artillery. So deadly and close was the volley that the leading of the great cavalry assault, which was to break the French centre and win Blenheim, came.

First, however, the village of Oberglauh, which stood as a barricade in the line of the coming charge, and was strongly held by an infantry force, had to be carried. Marlborough launched the Prince of Hohenzollern, with eleven battalions of Hanoverians, against the village; but the French, who were well posted in the village, consisted of the celebrated Irish Brigade the last survivors of the gallant and ill-fated battalions which had fought at Fontenoy. Their departure was long remembered in Ireland itself as "the flight of the wild geese," but the Irish regiments were pursuing the continental battalions. After Fontenoy, when the Irish regiments alone proved the superiority of the British over the Hanoverians, when Marlborough broke upon their flank with some squadrons of British cavalry. The Hanoverians themselves, a mere tumult of flying men, swept round the flank of a line of steady British foot, drawn across the line of their retreat, and this, too, opened a close and deadly fire on the Irish brigade as, breathless and disordered, it came down the slope. With horsemen on its flank, and unbroken infantry scouring it with fire in front, the Irish brigade was flung back in defeat to Oberglauh. Then came the great cavalry charge which decided the fight.

NOTICE OF MEETING. Notice is hereby given that a special meeting of the shareholders of The Standard Limited will be held at the Company's office, 82 Prince William street, St. John, N. B., on Tuesday, September 2, 1913, for the purpose of considering the following by-law, adopted at an annual meeting of the company held on July 8, 1913.

By-law No. 20—Authority shall be asked of the Lieutenant Governor in Council to increase the capital of the company fifty-nine thousand dollars, divided into five thousand shares of ten dollars each.

squadrons went down before it, and for a few minutes, under the canopy of whirling smoke, Marlborough's horsemen were in fierce confusion. That was the moment for a counter-attack. Tallard saw it, and gave the word to his cavalry to charge. They were more numerous than the British, yet they faltered. "I saw an instant," wrote the unfortunate Tallard afterwards, "in which the battle was gained it—" his cavalry, in brief, had charged! But it failed to charge. The moment of possible victory was lashed, and over the crest, with bent heads and wind-blown crests, the gleam of a thousand swords and the thunder of innumerable galloping hoofs, came the British cavalry.

Tallard's centre was broken as with the stroke of a thunderbolt! His infantry was swept into ruin, his cavalry hurled into disordered flight, and his army fairly cut in twain. His left wing fell back, fighting desperately; but his right, the elite of his army, was hopelessly shut up in Blenheim itself. As night fell Marlborough drew his lines closely round the village. Webb, with the Queen's regiment, blocked one avenue of escape, a cavalry force—one regiment of which consisted of Scotch Greys—guarded the other. The French general in command of Blenheim, believing the situation to be desperate, ignominiously abandoned his men and tried to swim his horse across the Danube, and was very properly drowned in the attempt. For a time the fight raged in Blenheim was furious. Part of the village took fire, and in the light of the red flames Frenchmen and Englishmen fought hand to hand with furious valour. But with the centre destroyed, and the left wing in full retreat, the condition of Tallard's right, shut up in Blenheim, was hopeless and 11,000 French infantry laid down their arms as prisoners of war. The great French army, 60,000 strong, composed in the main of veteran soldiers, who had made the Empire of Louis XIV. had perished so long; it secured for the Anglo-Saxon race that opportunity of revenge which has made the Empire of today possible.

SHOULD A CHRISTIAN BE LONELY IN LIFE?

Rev. Dr. Ralph Wells Keeler Preaches Eloquent Sermon on this Theme

DESPERATE NEED OF TIME FOR PRAYERS

New Strength Needed by Christians and Larger Visions Must be Seen and Possessed.

Brooklyn, Aug. 11.—The Rev. Dr. Ralph Wells Keeler, assistant editor of Sunday school publications of the Methodist Episcopal Church, today a Brooklyn pastor, preached yesterday morning and evening at Goodsell M. E. Church, Sheridan avenue, corner of McKinley avenue, where several years ago he was pastor while a student at Drew Theological Seminary. With the story of the Last Supper and the Garden of Gethsemane as his background, Dr. Keeler preached on "Loneliness of the Spiritual" from the words recorded in Luke xxii:41: "And he was parted from them about a stone's cast." Dr. Keeler said: "After partaking of the last supper with His disciples, Jesus went forth to the world's great lonely hour. The comradeship of the years during which He had taught the chosen few by the cry and demonstration brought Him no companion for Gethsemane. The intimate fellowship in the upper chamber, where He had just revealed Himself to more than a teacher, as Friend—provided no human heart upon which He might lean. Jesus Christ entered into His hour of prayer and decision without human company. The gateway to the garden was as near as those closest to Him were qualified to go. Beneath age-old olives He bowed alone with His prophet who adequately states the situation. It was absolutely impossible that they enter into the fellowship which Christ had with the Father. They could not understand it. Just so it is impossible for anyone to fully grasp and understand another—his thought-life, purposes, motives, moods, his joys and sorrows. Men tapped their foreheads in the essence of Confucius. They scorned Harvey's theory of the circulation of the blood; Marconi and his wireless was hated with mad men's dreams, and Paul, the wisest of Athens jeered at when, atop Mars Hill, he spoke to them of the Resurrection. Discoverers, scientists, inventors, thinkers and seers have been alike misunderstood. Men have been unable to enter into the place where that which prompts thought and action appears. The ordinary man in every day affairs finds the same conditions. And in times of crisis this fact is intensified and emphasized. For the crises of life are for us all. Our crosses are hewn from different trees. But we all must have our Calvaries; We climb the height from a different side. But we each go up to be crucified. As we scale the steep another may share the dreadful load that our shoulders bear. But the costliest sorrow is all our own—For on the summit we bleed alone.

Because of this, the need for such times of a sustaining force or power within is felt keenly, in order that right decisions may be made. The Master had this power in His close fellowship with the Father. His decision on the Mount of Olives was made impossible but for the fact that He trusted God absolutely in the outcome of His yielding to the Father's will. "My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass away from me; nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt." And God did not fail Him.

This power is available for us through the fellowship with the Father, made possible through Jesus Christ. Men and women too often miss the way right here. Some one has painted the picture of a curlew all as inscribed "To the Unknown God." The Christ, with a crown of thorns upon His head and hands bound behind Him stands upon it. Passing this spectacle, with, now and then a scant glance toward it, are those engrossed in the safety of society, the scientist, the nurse, the prelate, the tramp, the soldier, the demagogue, the man, the drunkard, the author, the ragged newsboy, the flower girl, while at its base sits a poorly clad mother with a nursing babe at her breast—all building altars to unknown gods, unminful of the glorious reality of God made known to men in Jesus Christ. For to those who will have Him He is present in every thought and action of life. Strength to make right decisions is possible for us only on the same basis as Christ made His, a living consciousness of God's presence. Jesus Himself said: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." And one of our own day's loved poets has sung for us an interpretation of Jesus' words:

Keep pure thy soul! Then thou shalt take the whole Of delight; Then, without a pang, Thine shall be all of beauty wherof the poet sings; The perfume and the pageant, the melody and mirth Of the golden day, and the starry night; Of heaven and of earth O, keep pure thy soul!

Our opportunity and hope of attaining this fellowship lies in following the custom of Christ, in getting "a stone's cast" away from the rust of affairs. There is desperate need of time for meditation. Opportunity for prayer, the private, personal confession, of sin, the acceptance of forgiveness, and the communion with God. Self-examination is essential in order that the weak places of our lives may be strengthened. For the strongest life becomes weak at times, and One deed may mar a life, And one can make it; Hold firm thy will for a while, Lest a quick break break it! Even now from far on viewless wing, Hither speeds the nameless thing, Shall put thy spirit to the test.

Haply or e'er you sinking sun Shall drop behind the purple West All will be lost or won! New strength is needed. Larger visions must be seen and possessed. All this that by seeking after God we may come to know Him. All this in order that we may, with whole-hearted earnestness and in the spirit of Gethsemane, make our own decisions according to God's will, and meet our own trial with the Master's "Behold, the hour is at hand!"

The soul—the spiritual—is man's lonely place of vigil. His fellow can not enter therein with Him. And his soul must fare forth on innumerable quests of life, that he himself may justify the image of God in which he was created. The only hope is the presence within of God through Jesus Christ. With such presence the loneliness loses its terrors, the great things of the affairs of life, are no longer feared, and a man may tread with joyful shout the exhortation of Him who went out Beyond undaunted, Seize your thief! beyond this height We shall find the Infinite light! Gird your thigh! though sword shall hew Paths that reach the untroubled blue! Though dark mountains form the star, It is ours to climb and dare. Law, truth, love—the peaks are there: Sinai, Olivet, Calvary!

Mr. Arthur Herndon, a Newton student, supplied on Aug. 3rd, 1913, at his old home church at Dartmouth. The Maritime Baptists are already laying plans for the Convention to be held in Amherst, on Oct. 18th. It looks like a record delegation. On the last Sunday evening of July, the Baptists of Louisville, Kentucky, closed their churches and flocked to Walnut street church to attend a farewell service in honor of Dr. Henry Alfred Porter, Dr. Mullins, Prestidge and Landrum were the speakers. Dr. Porter goes to Dallas, Texas. Dr. Porter is a brother of Rev. F. S. Porter, of St. John.

The two notes following are taken from the New York Examiner. The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Kentucky, with its 323 students, is the largest seminary of any denomination in America. The Seminary was founded in 1859, at Greenville, South Carolina, and was removed to Louisville in 1877. The invested funds now amount to $550,000. The tract of land in the suburbs of Louisville has been purchased, and ultimately the Seminary will sell the present site, which grows more valuable every year, and remove to its new location. Since its beginning this Seminary has matriculated 4,210 students, most of whom are at present in the active ministry of the Southern Convention.

The minister in his shirt sleeves in the pulpit sins against decency and propriety. It does not make his congregation any more comfortable, and it makes him ridiculous. A few ministers have this summer been guilty of preaching in shirt sleeves, so that the men in the congregation might lay aside their coats. Let the ministers maintain the dignity which belongs to their high office, and let them remember that men of the world will not be drawn to the church and caught by any such bait. We do not advocate clerical vestments, nor pulpit uniform; but we insist that ministers shall not forget their position.

The following note from the Baptist Times of England is suggestive to Maritime Baptists: "The Rev. W. Y. Fullerton occupied the pulpit at St. John's Baptist Church on Sunday, in the absence of the Rev. J. H. Rushton. In a delightful address to the children in the morning, Mr. Fullerton referred to the League of Young Workers which he founded at Melbourne Hall, Leicester. It numbered 300 boys and girls pledged to attend the service every Sunday morning, to be in time, to bring their Bibles with them and to behave reverently. The establishment of the League had some curious results. The children were supposed to sit with their parents, but

It is sold by all druggists, or Edman, Baker & Co., Limited, 250 Water Street, St. John, N. B. Sample box free for 25c. paper and envelope 2c. stamp to pay postage.

There were not parents enough to go round, and one of the by-products of the League was that parents began to come with their children, who had not been in the habit of attending public worship. Then he had an inspiration. He suggested that those who had no children of their own should look up one or two and bring them to chapel with them. The idea caught on like wildfire, with the result that some of the old maid looked ten years younger after a Sunday or two. "What would the Church do without its old maids?" said Mr. Fullerton, quaintly.

This note is from the "Canadian Baptist": "There has lately been held in this place a militia encampment of 2,500 men, lasting two weeks—'the best thing of its kind ever seen.' During my thirty years of experience as a Christian worker, my lot has been cast on several occasions within various military camps and my relations heretofore have led me to discourage young men from entering the militia, and especially from going to camp. But so orderly, smart, business like and soldierly, was 'Camp Sussex 1913,' that I shall reverse my counsel while such conditions obtain. Of course the Chaplains, the Y. M. C. A. workers, and the local pastors looked carefully after the moral and spiritual interests of the men; but we were agreed that no one thing had done so much to make our Militia Camps so beautiful, profitable, and so enjoyable as the 'dry canteen' and the 'sober mess' for which our present Minister of Militia, the Hon. Col. Sam. Hughes, stands. May God uphold and strengthen Col. Hughes in his determination to banish the sale, and discourage the use of alcoholic drinks in the Canadian Militia. See 1 Tim. 2:15." Sussex, N. B.

Rev. John MacNeill is abroad again and is supplying for six weeks the City Temple, London. This is evidence of the way he captured that people a year ago when he supplied them a couple of Sundays. A colored man was brought before a police judge charged with stealing chickens. He pleaded guilty and received sentence, when the judge asked him how it was managed to lift those chickens right under the wings of the owner's house when there was a dog in the yard. "Hilt wouldn't be of no use, judge," said the man, "to try to splash and get you all. Ef you want to try it you like as not would get yer hide full 'n' shot 'n' git no chickens, nuther. Ef you want to try it, you better let me, yo' betack stick to de bench, whar yo' am familiar."—Chicago Record Herald.

To Discard Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Wrinkles (From Feminine World.) The use of creams on the face sometimes causes hair to grow. You can avoid the risk of acquiring superfluous hair by avoiding cosmetics and using Kellogg's Corn Flakes. There is nothing better for any condition of the skin, as the wax actually absorbs the offensive cuticle. The latter is naturally replaced by a clear, smooth, healthy complexion, full of life and expression. It is the sensible way to discard a freckled, tanned, overcast, blotchy or pimply skin. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist's and apply nightly like cold cream, creating in the morning with soap and water. It takes a week or so to complete the transformation. The ideal wrinkle eradicant is made by dissolving an ounce of powdered xaxolite in half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution brings almost instantaneous results.

Time spent using Calvert's Tooth Powder is time spent well. For the cleaner the teeth are kept, of course the longer they will last and the better they will look.

Peaches For Coming Winter

PEACHES, peaches—cheap peaches today! Who can resist the cry? Down the street it echoes, stirring every thrifty housekeeper, to "put them up" in rows of shining jars and glasses, says the Ladies World.

Be sure to procure cane sugar for your work, as beet sugar, although quite as good for general uses, will make a failure of your preserves and jelly. The jelly will not jell no matter what you do to it.

Have everything you will need handy, clean and in good order. All jars, glasses and rubber rings must be thoroughly cleaned, and only granite ware, wooden and silver utensils should be used.

The using of the cling or free stone variety of peach is purely a matter of personal preference. Wash the peaches in cold water and dry carefully to avoid bruising. Dip a few at a time in boiling water. In a few minutes the skins will become loose and may be easily removed with a silver knife.

In the meantime have some sugar and water boiling on the stove. To start with, last summer I used ten pounds of sugar and six cupsful of water for 15 dozen peaches, adding five pounds of sugar (but no more water) after the peaches I wished to can had been removed.

Boll the sugar and water together until they reach the consistency of a very thin syrup, and drop in as many of the prepared peaches as the syrup will hold, allowing all to be well covered. First put the peaches in that you wish to can, then the peaches you wish to preserve.

To Can—Boll just long enough to heat the peaches thoroughly and until they begin to show signs of softness. Place carefully in jars and through a granite ware funnel fill the jars with the thin syrup, until it runs freely over the top. Seal at once.

To preserve the process is the same as for canning, except that the process for cooking is longer, which brings the peaches to a higher degree of softness and sweetness.

If you have started with enough sugar and water, you still have a nice bit of syrup left. To this add more sugar, for by this time the water from the peaches has made it rather too thin, and then make your cut peach preserve by putting into the syrup pieces of peaches and boiling these until soft. Put in jars and seal as usual.

By this time you will find that the syrup left in the pot after the last of the peaches has been removed is very thick and sweet and of a dark color, which is the very essence of peach. Bottle this, seal and label. You will find it delicious for flavoring summer drinks, as a sauce for puddings that have cooked too dry, and for many other dishes which require a syrup flavoring.

Peach jelly is made from the juice of peaches and sugar. Boll cut-up peaches in just enough water to keep them from burning and when very soft mash as fine as possible. Drip through a pointed flannel bag. The juice thus obtained is boiled rapidly with an equal quantity of sugar for 20 minutes. Put into glasses and, when cold and hard, pour melted paraffin on top of each glass to the depth of a quarter of an inch.

The contents of the dripping-bag may now be converted into jam by the addition of sugar to taste and heating to the boiling point. Put in jars and seal.

All preserves and jellies must, of course, be kept in a cool dark place to prevent fermentation.

The Beauty Seeker

ARE you known by your acquaintances as a good-looking woman? Do they call you a pretty girl? Or do they say of you, "She is so homely!"

Go and look in the mirror, and ask yourself frankly if you are as nice-looking as you could be. If your hair is thin, it is no excuse for your twisting it up in a little tight knot on the top of your head. If your skin is pale and full of blackheads and pimples, you have been neglecting yourself. If you are too fat, or too thin, or your clothes do not look pretty on you, do not give up hope. What you really need is a cold shower bath to awaken you to activity. You can be as attractive and charming as the friends you envy.

But perhaps you think attractiveness and charm are not a part of beauty. They are so much a part that they are beauty in themselves. Frequent bathing, clean and pretty clothing, glossy and becoming hair, a clear complexion, bright, happy eyes, these charms are yours if you are willing to try for them.

Let me whisper a few secrets in your ear. But to be perfectly frank with you, they are not secrets, because every one has heard them over and over so much we do not consider them seriously.

If your hair is thin, give your scalp a good massage every day, and use a good hair tonic. Study to arrange the hair in the most becoming fashion. Brush it often, and keep it clean. An article will appear in the near future giving a few suggestions on dressing the hair.

If you have pimples and blackheads, perhaps you are not getting enough exercise, enough fresh air and out of doors. Maybe you are not eating enough fruits, and too much meats and pastries. Wash the face thoroughly clean before going to bed. Green soap is a wonderful cure for pimples and blackheads.

You can acquire good habits, you know, as well as bad ones. Brush your hair and comb it every evening. Give your scalp a good massage, and give it a sun and air bath often. Take a few minutes each day to manicure your finger nails. You can do it yourself, with a little practice, and it is these little attentions that make up the really good-looking woman.

Take a tepid warm bath every day, and if you are strong enough to bear the shock, a cold shower after the warm bath will be like a tonic to you. These things give you energy, and put you in a good humor, and that is a big factor in looking pretty. Study your defects, and build them up. Smile and laugh all you can. They are wonderful beautifiers. The real secret of it is that being charming, being attractive, well-dressed, and even good-looking, are habits. You may have to school yourself, and be persistent to acquire these habits, but they are worth while. Try it yourself, and you will agree with me. Get yourself and others used to thinking of you as a charming and good-looking woman.

Why Girls Become Nurses

WHY are young women willing to become trained nurses? The pay is good, to be sure, when they get it, but the preparatory course is long and arduous and unromantic. Moreover, the duties then and later are of a nature so presumably depressing, if not actually disagreeable, that the profession must surely become depleted for lack of recruits unless their natural reluctance were overcome by some potent factor. What is it?

A summer hotel in the Thousand Islands region witnessed a wedding the other day. The bridegroom was a wealthy banker and hotel proprietor of Washington, D. C., aged sixty-five. The bride, aged thirty-five, was his nurse. Hearty congratulations to both—for have they not accomplished that on which their hearts were set? The happy bridegroom, who is so infirm that he needs nursing, has attached his favorite nurse to his case by the more or less binding contract of church and state and has successfully induced her to undertake the additional duties, if any, of being a wife to him. And the bride has succeeded in "marrying rich."

Can this be the secret of hospital training's sufficient popularity among young women? Is the social opportunity, the prospect of a martial alliance with millions in it, attractive enough to offset the known trials of nursing?

No. The mystery remains. The hope of enamoring a sick millionaire can be no more than added incentive, supplemental to the main motive, whatever that may be. Of a truth, state aid has successfully induced her to undertake the additional duties, if any, of being a wife to him. And the bride has succeeded in "marrying rich."

Whipped Cream Desserts

HERE are some recipes taken from the fancy-cookery notebook of a Domestic economy student. There is more to recommend them than mere cooling deliciousness—If more is needed—for they are all easy to make and may be prepared either hours before the meal or at the very last minute, says the New York Times. They should be served cold.

Stanley Cream—Whip half a pint of double cream stiff. Cut a quarter of a pound of marshmallows into quarters, put the mests from a quarter of a pound of English walnuts through the chopper, cut into little pieces a third of a bottle of cherries, and stir them all into the whipped cream. Add a large spoonful of powdered sugar and enough of the cherry juice to color the cream a delicate pink. Serve this in individual dessert dishes and decorate each one with whole cherries.

Nuttet Cream—Soak a quarter of a box of gelatin in half a cup of cold water for an hour. Whip a pint and a half of cream stiff and sprinkle into it four tablespoonfuls of chopped almonds or pistachio nuts, three quarters of a pound of powdered sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour four tablespoonfuls of boiling water over the gelatin and stir until dissolved, then add it to the cream and stir until the ingredients are well mixed and begin to thicken. Pour this into a mold and put into the refrigerator until ready to serve, then turn it into a serving dish and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

Pineapple Snow—Dissolve on box of gelatin as per directions on the box. Add one quart of cold water, the juice of three large lemons, a quart of strained pineapple, and sugar enough to sweeten. Put this into the refrigerator until it begins to stiffen, then fold in half a pint of whipped cream and put into sherbet cups to stiffen.

Creamed Rice—Whip, sweeten, and flavor half a pint of double cream that has been chilled. Just before serving stir into it a cupful of cold, well-cooked rice. Put half of a large creamed peach into a sherbet glass and pile the cream on top.

Strawberry Fluff—Select large, firm strawberries and cut in quarters. Whip half a pint of cream very stiff and sweeten with confectioner's sugar. Just before serving stir in the berries and serve on a square of plain white cake. Raspberries or peaches may be substituted.

Almond Cream—Blanch three ounces of sweet and one ounce of bitter almonds and brown them in a pan over a slow fire, stirring constantly. As soon as they are a delicate brown pound them into fine pieces, then add a pint of cream that is scalding hot, three or four heaping tablespoonfuls of sugar and a half a package of gelatin that has been dissolved in cold water. Put on ice and when it begins to thicken stir in gently a pint of whipped cream and put it in a mold to stiffen.

Table Manners For Children

Do not sit sideways on the chairs or lean back in them.

Never put your elbows on the table.

Do not make playthings of either the food or silverware.

Break a small piece of bread from the slice. Never butter and attempt to eat from the entire slice or even half slice.

The mouth should be wiped with the napkin both before and after drinking.

Be sure to swallow all food in the mouth before taking a drink.

Do not look at people through the bottom of the glass as though it were a field glass.

Sip the soup quietly from the side of the spoon. Medium-sized spoons should be provided for children.

Do not put either spoon or fork further into the mouth than is necessary.

Put just enough food on the end of the fork to make a proper-sized mouthful.

Do not tip the plate for the last drop of soup.

Never put potato skins, egg shells, etc., on the tablecloth. Either put them on the side of the plate or ask for a saucer.

Do not dip cake or bread into the water.

The Daily Hint from Paris.

Pretty white crepon frock with a wide skirt brocaded with red velvet flowers. Shirt drapery caught with fanciful ornament.

Never help yourself with your own knife, fork or spoon.

Do not reach across the table or in front of anyone.

Never take anything from a plate and put it back to take something else.

Lay your knife and fork on your plate so that it will not fall off when the plate is removed.

Children should be helped first at meals, and should be given a little recess between dinner course and dessert.

Never ask what kind of dessert there is before it appears.

Never complain about the food.

Never ask for what is not on the table unless it be some necessary dish or utensil, such as knife, fork or spoon.

Never eat or drink with one hand while you pass a plate with the other.

The first and last rule is to never do anything unpleasant at the table, and to always be considerate of others.

Engagement Off.

Kitty—Your fiance tried to kiss me in the moonlight last night. He thought it was you.

Ethel—Oh, the wretch! And did he succeed?

Kitty—No, at least not till after he found out that it wasn't.

AGRICULTURE

Red Clover And Bumble Bees

Red clover is practically self sterile, i. e. for seed production it is necessary that pollen be transferred from one plant to another, whereas pollen transferred from one flower to another on the same plant only results in exceptional cases results in fertilization.

The transmission of pollen on red clover is effected by honey-gathering insects, and these must have a tongue of about mm. length in order to reach the honey at the bottom of the flowers. Several varieties of bumble bees possess such a tongue, and upon these we must depend in the fertilization of red clover.

If bumble bees were to be found abundantly in all localities and at all times, this circumstance would be of comparatively little interest to the clover-seed grower. Such, however, is not the case. As a matter of fact one finds more bumble bees in certain districts than in others, and they are always more numerous during the latter part of the summer than in the beginning of the clover season.

The whole family or hive of bumble bees do not live through winter as do for instance the ordinary honey bees. It is only the young fertilized queens that pass through the winter, all the workers and drones die in the fall.

together with the old queen. The young queens build very simple separate nests following spring, either above ground or in old mouse or mole tunnels or other holes in the ground, that is to say, if they belong to the ground-nesting species—and start to lay their eggs. The first hatch of workers is not very numerous. The rule it seldom contains over five individuals. These, besides, are so small as to be scarcely visible. Their tongues do not reach down to the bottom of a clover flower. The second hatch about fifteen workers is only of medium size, while the third hatch is the first to attain full size.

This affords a satisfactory explanation of why red clover is often poorly fertilized during the first part of the season in a locality where good fertilization is generally insured later in the summer. A friend of mine, Mr. E. Lindhard, superintendent of the Danish Experimental Station at Tysfort, has given this subject a very careful study. In one case he counted the working bees visiting the red clover field for several days, and observed on an average the following number during one hour:

Summer Feeding

This may seem a late hour to introduce the subject of summer feeding, especially if no feed has been provided. On the other hand it may be argued that it is not only a splendid period but also a very opportune season in which to emphasize its importance. July and August are usually counted on as being hot and dry, and it is therefore taken for granted by most farmers that pastures will dry up then and cows go down in milk, but in an ordinary year the situation will not become serious, if it happens to be exceptionally dry in these two months, as it is not infrequently happens, the situation does not become serious; and if the grass dries up in early June as it did this year, the farmer's main source of revenue, his milk-return, is severely cut, not only for the time being but for some time to come.

There is a difference of opinion as to whether it pays to feed meal to cows on grass, but there can be no question as to whether it will pay to feed cows something in a year like this when they are in many cases, starving in a field as dry and as bare as the road. There are some herds fortunate enough to enjoy a large run where the grass is shaded and the soil keeps moist at all times. Land in such conditions, however, is rarely profitable, and we have less of it from year to year.

The question is not, should we provide feed for summer or is it necessary, but what is the best way of doing it?—in a year like 1913 many could do without it, but in any year the excess would not be lost.

A grain ration may be employed in case of emergency, but if this is depended on entirely it proves too expensive, although this year on many farms where no other feed is available a little meal may be employed. It may not show an increase in milk but it will do much in retaining the milk flow and in maintaining the cow's important although too often we note only one and expect it without the other.

There are a few things I think which will account for the fact that so many farmers find themselves without summer feed. One is the habit and custom of running a large part of the farm in pasture—one of the most expensive crops a man can grow on good arable land.

The labor connected with summer feeding is another one, and the shortage of food or the difficulty of getting any ahead in another way. The first reason given is one our farmers should get over. We in Canada are not thorough enough. We are too content with the old routine, and expect return with out either thought or labour very often. A man should not have to think or observe very much to discover that if he were to plough up an acre of his old barren pasture and put it into some such crops as corn he would get a return for it, feed enough to supply his twenty cows forty pounds each for the whole month of August. Then in the matter of labor, undoubtedly we must not get lost here, but let me ask, how many farmers are there who if they had a silo half full of corn at their elbow, or an acre or two of peas and oats alongside the pasture, would not delight right now in taking time to feed their cows? I have heard numbers of them say it would indeed be a very pleasant sacrifice.

At Macdonald College many crops suitable for summer feeding have been grown. There are many adapted for this purpose. We have found, however, that when such important considerations as labor and convenience are to be met it pays to reduce the number. If alfalfa is grown, and it should be, it will fit in nicely for silage; in fact this seems to be its forte as a feed. Peas and oats, which anybody can grow in abundance, even this year, will prove an excellent feed. Our practice is to sow them at five or six different dates one week apart.

Best of all, we depend upon silage. A few extra acres of corn will put up without hardship with the rest and will help splendidly for the next summer's feed. It will be available with the least labor and trouble and will compare well with any other feed. An allowance of silage with a little meal to plough up an acre of his old barren pasture and put it into some such crops as corn he would get a return for it, feed enough to supply his twenty cows forty pounds each for the whole month of August. MOLASSINE MEAL

In early Spring, the milk from your cows may be plentiful and high in quality. But the summer sun dries all the juicy sweetness from the grass and it is an impossibility for the cows to derive the requisite nourishment from it. The flow of milk fails both in quality and quantity, your cows lose weight and you lose money. This loss, which amounts to a large sum yearly, can be easily saved. Instead of depending on the grass alone as a nourishment, supplement it with "MOLASSINE MEAL"—it will increase the flow and quality of the milk—make the cows actually gain weight—keep them in better health and make yourself much richer. The best food known to science to-day for milch cows, cattle, horses or any livestock for all year feeding is

By feeding it as a regular ration, it supplements the needed nourishment of the grass or other foods and enables the cows to retain their fat sleekness—insures good health and keeps the flow and quality of the milk high as in the good grazing days. "MOLASSINE MEAL" is a good food. It builds up your cattle, horses and all other livestock—it keeps the stomach and the blood clean and pure and also enables the cows to derive the full nutrition from other foods. Feed "MOLASSINE MEAL" regularly and your animals will be free from worms, intestinal troubles and other kindred animal diseases which claim so many victims every year. "MOLASSINE MEAL" is guaranteed by the makers to keep in good condition for any length of time. Put up in 100-lb. bags. Begin to feed to-day. If your dealer cannot supply you, write us.

Weaning Young Pigs

Weaning time is perhaps the most critical period with the young pig. At no other time is the digestive system so apt to be upset and the pig started on the road to unthriftiness. On the other hand the pig that has been changed successfully from its mother's milk to hard feeding suffers no check in growth. Its appetite is keen and it grows rapidly. Many farmers complain of unthriftiness of pigs if they wean them too early, but if they will find that in many cases the trouble began at weaning time. Too much care cannot be exercised at this period. As the pigs reach the age of four weeks they usually begin to feed out of their mother's trough. We frequently see litters that up to a week or two seem to lack vigor, some not growing as well as others. What is the trouble? Simply this: the food they are eating out of their mother's trough although proper for her was too strong for the litter, and their systems were not able to digest it properly. It is of the utmost importance that young pigs be encouraged to eat as early as possible but they must receive suitable food, not of a highly concentrated nature, but rather those foods that are apt to be digested and assimilated in shorts or middlings. Watch the pigs closely each day and gradually increase the amount of food as their appetites become larger. Their trough should be kept clean and sweet, food left over at feeding time should be removed and the trough washed out. It must also be seen to that sufficient exercise is given. Litters of sows that are housed and well fed often become over fat and one or several of the litter are liable to the disease known as "thumps" which is fatal unless promptly treated. Prevention is much easier than cure. When the sow is turned out on pasture where the litter as well as the sow is forced to take sufficient exercise.

When six weeks old the pigs are ready to wean. They have learned to eat for themselves and may now be removed from their mother. After weaning the litter requires more feed but care must be exercised. It is wiser to underfeed than overfeed at this

Pasturing Hogs

Of the many forage plants, alfalfa is one of the most satisfactory for hogs since it can be made a permanent pasture and is rich in protein, making an excellent combination with corn or other grain. The leaves are tender and the stem small, which make it easily masticated and it is very much relished. At Indian Head, on the farm of Mr. W. D. Lang, one of the farmers who is doing illustration work for the Commission of Conservation in Saskatchewan, some interesting results have been obtained. On less than one acre of alfalfa 55 hogs were pastured during the summer of 1912 for varying periods, 35 hogs, several sows and one boar being pastured for four months, while the others were on for a shorter time. While on the pasture the only grain fed was one-half ton of shorts mixed thinly with water. About 500 bushels of barley and a little oats were suggested by the sanitary officer F. C. N. in "Conservation" for July.

Supplementary Feeds In Summer

Summer weather very often means short and dry pastures, with a consequent decrease in milk yield. This is more especially true where no system of permanent pasture is practised. Permanent pastures usually possess greater drought-resisting qualities than do the temporary pastures in use on many of our dairy farms. Even with the best of pastures there will be more or less shortage of succulent feeds, during the late summer months. The business farmer, the dairyman who plans his work for the entire season instead of week by week, will then have means of supplementing his pastures with other succulent feeds. He knows that if the milk flow is once allowed to lessen he will be unable to again increase it at a later time.

Soiling crops are a favorite method of supplementing pastures with many dairymen, and their desirability must depend largely upon local conditions. The chief objection is the labor and the time involved in preparing and handling them each day, and the more or less difficulty in providing a succession of crops at the necessary times throughout the season. Under other conditions the summer silo is best; it will utilize and benefit any conditions. It affords the least laborious and least expensive means of storing and handling succulent feeds. This method is best when the weather is not so hot and appreciated on wet or muddy days, or during the rush of summer work. Cattle will consume silage even when on pasture with relish and benefit. A dairymen recently made the statement that through the use of silage in the summer he had produced twenty-four percent more milk of the same herd. In certain sections of the country canary refuse is used as a milk was tainted and that it was image. If a clover or grass paddock is available during summer it is preferable to a pen. The green clover or grass is relished by the pig and besides its feeding value acts as a tonic. Pigs fed in the pen get abundance of exercise, there is less labor in keeping them clean, and provided they have a building to shelter them from the rain they require little attention outside of feeding. Other green crops such as rape or alfalfa may be utilized to advantage, and the successful feeder will plan to have several paddocks, thus enabling him to change from one to the other. Pigs relish a change as well as any other animal.

Where paddocks are not available the pens must be cleaned regularly. They should be airy and fresh. Small runs are necessary for exercise. Where skin-milk is scarce one of the animal foods may be substituted in part and in a few weeks small quantities of oat, barley or corn meals may be added gradually increasing the amounts as the pigs become older.

A Whisky You Will Be Glad To Know---

It is possible to eliminate the taints in making the milk into cheese. In milk intended for city milk supply the taints were equally objectionable; in butter, making they could be overcome to some extent; although first-class butter can never be made from tainted milk. At the same time they found that there was little or no trouble from tainted milk when such green feeds were fed the cows some time before milking. Time was thus afforded the cows to eliminate the undesirable taints. Feeding such feeds just after milking is perhaps the best time. In the experiments less tainted milk resulted when green corn was fed than with any other feed, and the slight taints were readily eliminated before the cheese was finished. From this work we see that certain soiling crops should not be fed just before milking, if clean sweet flavored milk is to be produced.

In feeding silage we know that we must be careful to feed off enough each day to prevent spoiling. This is more marked in the summer time, as any fermentation goes on more rapidly then. Nothing will impart undesirable taints and flavors to milk more quickly than this spoiled silage.

THIS DATE IN RING ANNALS

August 16. 1899-Frank McConnell knocked out and killed Jim Franey in 14th round at San Francisco. It was John Barleycorn, however, who was really responsible for the fatality. Franey, an Irishman whose home was in St. Louis, was a fairly good fighter, and he did not believe he needed to train for McConnell. He tried to consume all the booze in San Francisco before the fight, and was not entirely sober when he entered the ring. McConnell dodged and side-stepped the fuddled Franey until the latter was exhausted, and then put over a stiff one to the jaw. Franey got up several times, only to be knocked sprawling each time. The final blow caused Franey to fall heavily, injuring his head so that he died within a few hours. McConnell was tried but acquitted.

SPORTOGRAPHY BY "GRAVY"

Ionia, Mich., isn't much of a city, as cities go. It is just an average county seat town, with an asylum for insane criminals as an added attraction. Nevertheless, Ionia has one claim to immortality, for the first no-hit game in the history of baseball was played in its midst. That momentous contest was staged thirty-seven years ago Sunday, August 17, 1876, and Jim Garvin was the twirler whose name will go rattling etyeterlater down the corridors of time as the perpetrator of that feat.

FREDERICTON WON GREAT GAME; ST. CROIX WINS FROM BANGOR

Fredericton defeated the Marathons yesterday afternoon by a score of 6 to 2, and the game was counted by all present as being about the finest exhibition of baseball that has been witnessed in this city this season. It was clean hitting in the early stages of the game that gave Fredericton the victory, and the excellent outfielding by the Fredericton trio, especially Duggan, that robbed the Greeks of a number of hits which would have mean scores. There was not one chance in the entire game that was not accepted by all the players on both teams. Fredericton played an errorless game, and the only error in the first inning threw badly to first in an endeavor to catch Ganley, and advanced that player to second. Dederich was the pitcher for the Frederictons, and only six hits were made off him. He gave five bases on balls and struck out four men. It was in the fifth inning when O'Brien started with a two bagger, and Pinkerton followed immediately after with a three base hit that the local fans expected something great, but Shankey hit a long one to Duggan, who gathered it in and Dederich instead of going in the air settled down, and the next two batters went out to the infield.

Only once, other than the fifth inning when the Greeks scored, did they get a man as far as the third base, while only three other men reached at all. The second base safety. Dederich pitched good and deserved all the applause he received. He was not the only player, however, to get the applause, as players on both teams, who made good plays were loudly applauded. There was no wrangling between the players and it was real baseball all through the contest.

First No-Hit Game was Played 37 Years Ago.

113-36, 90-48 and 62-37 were by no means uncommon. That year of 1876 was remarkable for other developments in baseball, besides the playing of the first no-hit game and the inaugural of the National League. It was during that annum that Arthur Cummings originated the curve-a delivery that had been called impossible by many highbrows. Cummings twirled for the Brooklyn Stars and used the underhand delivery that was universal at this period of the game. The honor of originating the bender has been claimed for Terry Larkin and Bobby Matthews, but Cummings is generally acknowledged as the pioneer.

however, was the fielding of Duggan, who gathered in five in the left garden, and some of these were extremely hard ones.

The following is the game by innings: FIRST INNING. Keaney went out, short to first. Ganley singled to right and went to second on a bad throw from Charles. Duggan drew a base on balls. Stone flied out short. Conley singled to left and scored Ganley. Duggan stole third. White flied out to short.

O'Brien drew a base on balls. Pinkerton sacrificed to first and Shankey flied out to centre and Pease struck out, leaving O'Brien at first.

SECOND INNING. Callihan, Murphy and Dederich went out in order. With two out Riley singled to right. York followed with a single to centre and a beautiful throw from Ganley caught Riley going to third.

THIRD INNING. Keaney beat out a hit to short and went to third on Ganley's hit to centre. Duggan singled to left and scored Keaney. Ganley went to second. Duggan stole second and went to third on Stone's out, second to first. Conley singled to left and Duggan scored. Conley was caught off first and retired the side.

ST. CROIX 13, BANGOR 11. Bangor, Me., August 15.-St. Croix took the third game from the home team today by a score of 13 to 11. The game was full of slow fielding on the part of the home players. Hits to left and center, which should have gone for singles, went for triples and doubles. Dolan had an off day and made several bad throws.

Bangor used three pitchers. Wallace was sent in first but had fielding behind him sent him to the bench. Hart relieved him and he was taken out in the fifth to let Ahearn in. Hart was saved for the game tomorrow. Howard pitched a fine game.

Bangor scored in the first, when Boardman tripled and scored on the relay. The visitors scored in their half of first inning when Tetrault hit one to left, the ball going through Dolan.

In the second they scored two more. Watt tripled, Vance scored him on a single and stole second. Howard doubled, scoring Vance.

BRITISH GOLF CHAMPS TO COMPETE

New York, Aug. 15.-Edward Ray, winner of the 1912 British open championship golf title, and Harry Vardon, runner-up in that event and champion in 1911 and on four other occasions, arrive here today from England. They will compete in the United States Golf Association open championship at Brookline, Mass., September 17 and 18. Vardon won the American title in 1900 at Chicago.

Montreal, Aug. 15.-Although they were played in almost all departments of the game, the All-Montreal cricketers made a surprisingly good stand against the touring Australians on the first of a two-day match at the M.A.A.A. grounds today.

Sixteen selected players represented Montreal against the cricketers, and after winning the toss went first to bat. The extra players gave the locals an advantage in two ways, they gave a greater chance to run up the field it made it more difficult for the visitors to show their running and batting ability, the greater portion of their total being secured by boundaries. The Canadians were retired after a total of 154 runs, while the Australians scored 239 before the fall of their tenth wicket.

As in the previous match played here in June, the Australians fielded more sharply than their opponents, who missed many chances to cut off runs. The visitors found some difficulty in becoming used to the matting after having recently played of a fast turf wicket.

BASEBALL TODAY AT 3 O'CLOCK

The largest crowd of the season will, no doubt, be present at the North End grounds this afternoon, when Fredericton and the Marathons will clash again. Yesterday's game certainly showed class among these players and another real game may be expected this afternoon. Phalen, the Fredericton's latest importation, will no doubt do the twirling for the boys from the Capital, while the Greeks expect to have Woodcock here in time to go on the mound for the local team.

It is a hard battle between these two teams for the championship and all eyes of the fans are looking at Fredericton and Marathons. Fredericton has won three straight games this week, which has brought them into the lead, and it is a certainty that they will try mighty hard to keep in the lead now that they have reached that position.

The game will start at sharp three o'clock, and the players on both teams, like the fans, are eager for the game to commence.

ST. JOHN DRIVING CLUB RACES. The lovers of horse racing may expect to see some speeding on the old Mooseph Park track this afternoon when matinee races will be held by the St. John Driving Club. Thomas Dean will be the starter and there will be three races.

In the free-for-all Addison, Fussey (Chimes and Lord Minto) will be the horses to start.

In the Class A pace the horses entered are Cassie W. Luck and Victor B.

The starters in the Class A trot are Lina Bell, Ed. C. Brazilian Jr., and Nan Patterson.

The crowd who attended the meet last Saturday were well pleased with the racing and another large crowd will undoubtedly be present today.
