GRAND DUKE'S ARMY MAY SOON MAKE STAND ON NEW AND STRONGLY FORTIFIED FRONT

London, Aug. 28.—Gen. Polivanoff, Russian Minister of War, announces that Russia is raising another 2,000,000 men and that the fate of the campaign will not be decided before some time next year, according to the Petrograd correspondent of the Times.

VON HINDENBURG'S ARMY REINFORCED MAY TRY AGAIN TO CUT OFF RUSSIAN RETREAT

Military Authorities, However, Believe Now Too Late to Succeed in the Attempt—Germans Found Russians Gone from Brest-Litovsk and Olita When They Entered Towns and Everything of Use Removed—Grand Duke Has New Line Fortified and Ready for Opportunity to Resume the Offensive.

London, Aug. 27.—The Germans, in full possession of the entire Brest-Litovsk line, have resumed the offensive in the Baltic provinces, and are pressing the Russians both in the districts southeast of Mita and to the east of Kovno, in an effort to reach the main line of railway which passes through Vlna and Dvinsk to Petrograd. This may in time prove the most important of the German operations, although at present they are using more troops in the pursuit of the Russians who are retiring from Brest-Litovsk and the line on either side of the fortress.

It is expected, however, that with the fall of Brest-Litovsk, which has been followed by that of Olita, south of Kovno, the armies of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg will be reinforced and make another attempt to cut off the retreat of the Russians. It is believed here, however, that it now is too late to accomplish this purpose.

The Russians apparently had evacuated both Brest-Litovsk and Olita before the Germans arrived, as the latter make no claim as to the capture of guns or booty. The Austrian official report states that Archduke Joseph Ferdinand found the town of Kamienka-Litovsk in flames when he arrived. There are indications, therefore, that the Russians still are carrying to the rear everything movable that might prove of use to the invaders, and burning what they are unable to take with them.

The intimation that the Russians have fortified another front, pending an opportunity for a renewed offensive, has received some confirmation. It is stated that the new line is being strengthened by all the latest methods known to military engineers. The Russian armies still are intact, with virtually all their guns and prospects of a more plentiful supply of ammunition. For this reason military writers here are of the opinion that Grand Duke Nicholas now should be able to make a stand, as the Austro-German losses must have been very heavy, especially during the three weeks which intervened between the fall of Warsaw and the occupation of Brest-Litovsk.

The capture of several German positions in France, as well as munitions factories across the German border. There has been no further news from the Dardanelles or the Balkans, but it is now certain that Serbia is prepared to make the necessary sacrifices to satisfy Bulgaria and gain her co-operation in behalf of the Allies. It may be several days, however, before the Serbian reply to the representations of the Entente Powers is received. The vote of the Serbian parliament was only upon the principle involved and negotiations now are proceeding between Serbia, Greece and Rumania regarding the exact nature of the concessions to be made Bulgaria.

Wales is threatened with another coal strike, as the result of dissatisfaction among the miners with the way in which the settlement recently arranged by David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, is being interpreted by the mine owners. Some 10,000 men already are out, contrary to the advice of their leaders.

Attack on British and Russian Consuls at Kenghever, Persia.

London, Aug. 27.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Petrograd, says:

"A telegram received here from Tiberan, Persia, reports that the Rus-

Danger of Germans Menacing the Russian Capital Very Remote

Would Have To Be In Undisputed Control of Baltic Sea—Retirement of Russian Army Covers the Approaches to Petrograd.

Petrograd, Aug. 27, via London.—Weighing the likelihood of a German advance on Petrograd, the Hetch points out that the Russian retirement covers the approaches to the capital and that it is extremely doubtful whether the Germans, without undisputed possession of the Baltic Sea, and particularly of the Gulf of Riga, could undertake the risks attaching to operations against Petrograd this autumn.

Moreover, on the whole front from the Dvina to the Upper Bobr, it is noted, the Germans have only two armies—that of General Von Buelow and Courland and that of General Von Eichen on the Niemen.

Munitions Depot of Enemy Destroyed By French Artillery Fire

Paris, Aug. 27.—The War Office tonight made public the following official communication:

"On a great many points of the front our artillery has concentrated on the German positions a very efficacious fire. To the north of Arras, German trenches have been upset and a munition depot destroyed.

"Between the Somme and the Oise, German encampments have been shelled. The enemy fired at long range seven shells on the city of Compiègne causing some damage and killing a nurse, and seriously wounding another nurse.

"The Germans have violently shelled the village of Bland, the city of Thann and Vieux Thann. In the region of Amertzwiller our shells started many fires."

Grand Duke Decides To Evacuate Grodno

London, Aug. 27.—The Russians apparently have decided to evacuate Grodno, the one important stronghold on their principal line of defenses which they still retain.

A message from Petrograd to Reuter's Telegram Company quotes the Russian invalid as stating that Grodno will be given up when the retreat of the defenders has been covered.

This message indicates that the fall of Brest-Litovsk, announced in Berlin yesterday, was not known publicly in Petrograd at one o'clock this afternoon the time of the filing of the message. The Russian invalid said that preparations were under way for the evacuation of Brest-Litovsk, adding that five German-Austrian armies were striving to surround it and cut it off from the Lovel district.

German and British consuls and their military escort have been attacked at Kenghever by an armed band led by M. O. Schuesemann, the German consular agent at Tabriz. The Britishers defended themselves with rifles but suffered some losses.

"A cabinet meeting was held, with the result that a request was sent to the commander of a Persian brigade of Cossacks who were encamped four days march from Kenghever to send a detachment there immediately."

FINISH TENTH SUBMARINE FOR GREAT BRITAIN

American Shipbuilding firm completes its contract to build 10 under-seas boats to be delivered to England after the war.

Quincy, Mass., Aug. 27.—With the launching today of the submarine H-20 the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation completed its contract with Great Britain for ten under-sea vessels to be delivered after the war is ended.

The trials will be held soon in Massachusetts Bay. Though not officially confirmed, it is generally understood that a representative of the United States navy department will be on board when the submarines are tried out.

KING GUSTAVE HAD CLOSE CALL

Train started as he was stepping into car—Foot jammed between platform and car.

Stockholm, Aug. 27.—King Gustave had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday at Jerna. As he was entering his car to proceed to Stockholm the train started with a sudden jerk throwing him down. His foot was jammed between the car and the platform and he fell heavily. He was picked up quickly, however, and assisted into his car. Except for a slight lameness he is little the worse of the accident.

SERBIA MUST BE WILLING TO MAKE THE SACRIFICE

Should Agree With Entente Powers' Request, Semi-official Paper Says.

Nish, Serbia, Aug. 27, via London.—Commenting on the vote of confidence in the government by the Serbian National Assembly, the semi-official Samoupravna says in a leading article: "To realize the sacred ideals of civilized humanity, still further sacrifices must be made. These sacrifices will be agreed to and supported by all the Allies, and consequently by Serbia too."

"When it is sought by asking Serbia, Greece and Rumania to sacrifice previous gains so that they may achieve in the main their national ideals by the extensive compensation which they will receive, it would be lack of foresight and a showing of incompetence not to agree to such sacrifices."

GULLEY CHOKED WITH ENEMY'S DEAD AFTER THE DESPERATE BATTLE FOR SARI BAHR HILL

FIREMEN BURIED UNDER DEBRIS AND INJURED

Bricks and Timber of Burning Building in Montreal Entomb Eighteen Firemen—One May Die.

Montreal, Aug. 27.—Eighteen firemen were buried in the debris of a fire in the building occupied by the Consumers Sack Supply Company, corner of Wellington and Ann streets, today, and were all more or less injured.

The most seriously injured is Fireman Gordon, who is suffering from an injury to his spine, and his condition is regarded as critical. The accident to the firemen occurred just about as the flames were brought under control. They were buried under a pile of bricks and timbers from the rear wall of the building, which fell out, and were all rushed to hospitals. The loss on the building and contents is estimated at nearly $50,000.

CHINA TO GET 100 SUBMARINES FROM STATES?

New York, Aug. 27.—Financial circles here were interested today in a rumor that the Chinese commission of naval experts recently sent to this country were negotiating for the purchase of 100 submarines at a total cost of $75,000,000.

While the representative of one New England submarine building company admitted that some of the Chinese had inspected his plant he denied that any contract had as yet been signed.

It was reported that Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, had been authorized by the Chinese government to place orders with American submarine builders. It was said that Mr. Schwab has also been given charge of the manufacturing end in this country of China's vast naval programme.

MONTREAL COMPANY ORGANIZED WITH A CAPITAL OF $1,000,000

Special to The Standard.

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—The incorporation of two companies in this week's list is evidently due to the war. One is the Excel Chemical Co. Ltd., of Montreal, capital $1,000,000. The other is the Zinc Company, Ltd., Sherbrooke, Que., capital $100,000. Only a few days ago the government announced a bounty on zinc production in order to ensure a supply at a reasonable price for the manufacture of shells.

The incorporation of the Zinc Company include L. D. Adams, Oakland, Calif., mining engineer, and C. H. Maxey, Rutherford, N. J., mine operator.

Fight For Hill Which Colonials Captured, but afterwards Lost, One of Fiercest of Week's Struggle in Dardanelles—Lull Along British Front Follows Successful Operations—Irish Division Wins Glory in Charge on Enemy Stronghold.

London, Aug. 27.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from the Dardanelles, dated August 19, says: "For the moment the severe fighting has come to a stop along the front of our new positions, after the week of battles which followed the landing at Suvla Bay. The most important advantage secured has been a large extension of the territory held by us on the northern shore of the peninsula. Resting upon Suvla Bay, with its left occupying the long ridge which follows the coast inland for several miles, our army holds the plain southward to where the heights of Anzac are situated. It is that we are in actual possession from the other side looking the full of Suvla Bay almost to Gaba Tepe."

Describing the charge of the Irish division on a Turkish hill to the left of the Suvla Bay position, the correspondent says: "The Turks came out to meet them, and most exciting bayonet fighting followed on the saddle between the two crests. Bayonets were flashing and stabbing for several minutes before the Turks began to give way. Then they left the crest and ran down over the ridge, the Irishmen standing up and firing down on them, while at intervals British machine guns on the hills behind drowned the sound of the rifle fire whenever the gunners were able to get a clear view of the fleeing Turks."

The battle for Sari Bahr Hill, which the Australian and New Zealanders captured but were compelled to evacuate because the troops on their left did not advance far enough, was a most desperate one, according to the correspondent, who says: "The dead lie thick everywhere, and the stench is appalling. On the ninth, the Turks came down in great numbers from the ridge above and tried to sweep our men off the hill entirely. They themselves were driven back, however, with grievous loss. Being unable to bury their dead the Turks throw their bodies down the gully until they are stopped by the nature of the ground, while others thrown after them are stopped by the first. Consequently the whole gully is choked with Turkish dead."

"The Australians and New Zealanders have gained another addition to their newly occupied territory. In their narrow position they now have elbow room, are in touch with our posts across the plain to Suvla Bay. And what is not their least important advantage, they have a supply of fresh water within their own position."

REICHSTAG ADJOURNS UNTIL NOVEMBER 30

London, Aug. 27.—According to a telegram received from Berlin, says Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent, the Reichstag has adjourned until November 30. President Kaempf was enthusiastically applauded when he announced that at the suggestion of Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, the Reichstag building henceforth would be ornamented with a tablet inscribed "To the German People."

FRANCE EXPRESSES ADMIRATION OF AND CONFIDENCE IN RUSSIAN ARMY

Paris, Aug. 27, (10.50 p. m.)—A joint telegram, expressing entire confidence in the future, has been sent to Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian army, by President Poincaré, Minister of War Millerand, and General Joffre, the French commander. The text of the message follows:

"Our thoughts turn toward your troops who, at the present moment, merit the confidence of the whole world by reason of the struggle they are making. With complete confidence in the final victory of your armies, we beg you to accept our respectful homage and fervent good wishes, together with the assurance that, more than ever before, our armies are happy and proud to co-operate with Your Highness and your valiant soldiers."

The Grand Duke replied: "The sentiments you express towards the Russian army are reciprocated. The close relations and common accord existing between the commanders of all the allied armies is a certain omen of the glorious end in which, with God's aid, we will participate."

MINERS' STRIKE CONDEMNED BY EXECUTIVE

London, Aug. 27.—The Mine Owners' Federation sent an urgent request to the Welsh strikers today to return to work at once. The executive council of the miners' organization adopted a resolution today condemning the new strike as unauthorized and urging the men to remain at work pending further negotiations.

A deputation representing the council is on its way to London in an attempt to overcome Mr. Runciman's objection to re-opening the matter.

BERNSTORFF GIVES BERLIN'S PROMISE TO U.S.

THE "IF" IN BERLIN'S PROMISE DISTURBS U. S. DIPLOMATS

May Mean Disposition on Part of Germany to Question Evidence that Arabic was Unarmed and Torpedoed Without Warning—Von Bernstorff Communicates to State Department Germany's Intention to Offer Full Satisfaction if Proved Arabic Sunk Without Warning.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Germany's intention to offer full satisfaction to the United States for the sinking of the liner Arabic, with a loss of two American lives, was communicated formally to the State Department today by Count Von Bernstorff, German Ambassador, on instructions from the Berlin Foreign Office.

The Ambassador read to Secretary Lansing a memorandum, outlining the position of his government. It promised that if it was found that the Arabic was attacked without warning the Imperial government not only would promptly disavow the act, but would give the United States "full satisfaction." This, it is well known, would have included reparation for the Americans lost, and assurances that such tragedies would not be repeated.

No further developments in the situation are expected now until the submarine commander, who sank the Arabic, has reported to Berlin. Meantime, President Wilson and Secretary Lansing, though visibly encouraged and relieved by Count Von Bernstorff's assurances and reports from Ambassador Gerard on his conferences with Foreign Minister Von Jawow, are in a waiting attitude. Before the American government can speak there must be forthcoming the German disavowal and explanation of what all evidence received has seemed to prove was an unfriendly act.

It became known tonight that the State Department has been informed that Germany is ready to renew discussion of the Lusitania incident, and to offer reparation for the American lives lost when that vessel was sent to the bottom without warning by a German submarine. There has been no response to the last American note on this subject, and it is known that the Imperial government already has indicated its desire to purchase three million bales of cotton, if delivery can be arranged.

Additional affidavits and statements bearing on the Arabic case reached the State Department today from Ambassador Pace at London. The Ambassador's mail report has not yet arrived, but officials think cable advice have given the substance of all information obtainable in England.

THE ONLY CURE FOR A WEAK STOMACH

Indigestion and Similar Troubles Must be Treated Through the Blood.

Indigestion can be treated in many ways, but it can only be cured in one way—through the blood. Puratives cannot cure indigestion. By main force they move on the food still indigested. That weakens the whole system, uses up the natural juices and leaves the stomach and bowels parched and sore. It is actually a cause of indigestion—not a cure. Others try pre-digested food and peptonized drugs. But drugs which digest the food for the stomach really weaken it, and make the trouble chronic. The digestive organs can never do the work properly until they are strong enough to do it themselves. Nothing can give the stomach that power but the new, rich, red blood so abundantly supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. So the reason for the success of this medicine is plain. Nothing can stimulate the glands and nothing can absorb the nourishment from the food but pure red blood. And Dr. Williams' Pink Pills surpass all other medicines in giving that new, rich blood. Miss B. E. Johnson, Hemford, N. S., says: "For months I was a great sufferer from indigestion; food of any kind was distasteful to me, and after eating I would suffer much. Naturally I grew weak and was but a shadow of my former self. I was taking a doctor's prescription, but it did not help me in the least. Then I read of a case similar to my own cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try this medicine. By the time I had taken six boxes the trouble had entirely disappeared, and I could eat heartily of all kinds of food. More than this I found my general health greatly improved through the use of the Pills. I can therefore strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a cure for indigestion."

You can get these Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

INQUIRY INTO SALE OF HORSES IN NOVA SCOTIA

Hallifax, Aug. 27.—At this afternoon's session of the enquiry into the purchase of horses in Nova Scotia for the Militia Department Dr. Walter Jackman, the veterinary whose horse was sold to the government by W. C. Thompson for $170 was the first witness. He had paid $225 for the animal. It was found.

"Why did you sell him at such a loss?"

"Well, I had four horses."

James Connors, whose horse was sold by Killeen, a witness of Thursday, said that he had asked Killeen to sell it for him.

"Why didn't you sell it yourself," asked Mr. Thompson.

"Because I thought Gough wouldn't buy from me," replied the witness.

"Why did you think he would not buy from you?"

"Because he wouldn't buy from the pasture to where the buyers were?"

"Not to my knowledge."

The witness said that the horse was quiet but it would pull.

The colt had been broken in since it was a year old.

The colt went better with a curb but this was not used all the time as the witness thought it was too hard on him.

"What age was the horse?"

"That's more than I can tell you," Foster on Stand.

Mr. Foster was called to the stand, at Mr. Sanster's suggestion, regarding the testimony about the Gough horse. He said that after the sale was over they went down to Gough's stables and there saw a horse, purporting to be five years of age. Later Woodworth presented to Foster a card and asked him to make out a check for $170, the price on the card, payable to Dr. Gough. Foster did so and the check was given to Gough.

"Did you see the colt at the purchase grounds?" asked Mr. Thompson.

"No," replied Mr. Foster.

"Do you know whether it was there?"

"No."

Examined by Mr. Sanster, Mr. Foster said that he had nothing to do with actually buying the horses. He issued the checks and Woodworth bought the animals.

The commission adjourned until Monday morning.

TOWN PLANNING EXPERT HERE FIRST OF WEEK

Thomas Adams, of Ottawa, town-planning advisor of the Canadian Commission of Conservation, has been attending the convention of the Nova Scotia Union of Municipalities at New Glasgow, but before returning to Ottawa, he will be in St. John for two days, for further consultation and advice regarding the proposed town planning scheme for the suburbs of St. John. On Monday and Tuesday he will presumably spend most of the time in looking more carefully over the areas in the town planning scheme and in private consultation with the commissioners and others.

He will address the Rotary Club at their luncheon on Monday, and on Tuesday at 11.30 a. m. he will address a conference of the Town Planning Commission in the council chamber, City Hall. All interested in the work are invited to be present at this meeting, and an opportunity will be given to ask questions, or to present views of the areas included in the scheme.

SIR ROBERT'S TRIP TO ENGLAND A REMARKABLE ONE

London, Aug. 27.—Sir Robert Borden, Mr. R. E. Bennett, M. P. and Sir Hugh Hughes may be expected at New York the last of the month. Commenting on this departure, now made public, the Times, referring to the Premier's visit, says that it has been a remarkable one. His attendance at the British cabinet meeting on July 14th created a precedent of extraordinary importance.

"Sir Robert made some memorable speeches during his visit, particularly when he presided the freedom of the City of London, and at the Opera House meeting. Both at the front and in this country, he was unwearied in visiting Canadian troops, and the wounded in the hospitals."

It is very much to be questioned that any serial or series of motion pictures yet produced can be compared with "The Goddess" for exquisite loveliness, true interest and genuine heart appeal. With all its thrills, the thrills are not what make it great. With all its mastery of plot, the plot is not what makes you love it. With all its perfection of stagecraft, it is not stagecraft that is its sole support.

LIFE AND EXPLOITS OF "CANADIAN SCOTTISH"

GRAPHIC STORIES OF BIG DAYS IN CANADA'S HIGHLAND BRIGADE

The Men who Captured All Hearts at Valcartier and Proved Themselves Splendid Soldiers When the Test Came — How Christmas Day was Spent on Salisbury Plain.

New Brunswickers who visited Valcartier at the time of either of the big reviews of last autumn will remember the splendid impression made by the Highland Battalion, the "Canadian Scottish" as it was termed later in England. This battalion, known to the army lists as the 16th, was composed of the following regiments:

The 50th Gordon Highlanders of Victoria, B. C.; the 79th Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg; the 91st Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders of Hamilton, Ont.; and the 72nd Seaforth Highlanders of Vancouver. Capt. Ralph Markham, recently killed in action, was an officer in the latter regiment and one of the last survivors received in this city from him was a little booklet published for private circulation among the men of the Canadian Scottish. The booklet contains three articles contributed by a member of the Seafoths to the Aberdeen Free Press. These articles deal with the life of the Canadian Scottish, both in England and on service in France. The first, entitled Christmas on Salisbury Plain, is published herewith. The others will appear on Saturday, Sept. 4th and Sept. 11th. The Standard is indebted to Mr. J. Edmund Secord of E. G. Nelson Company for the booklet.

CHRISTMAS ON SALISBURY PLAIN

(Reprinted from the "Aberdeen Free Press" of January 1, 1915.)

The Canadian Scottish have spent Christmas day in camp on Salisbury Plain, and it may not be inappropriate to give some idea of what the day was like. We have in our ranks many Aberdeenshire loons who gave up positions in the Dominion in order to do their share in the defence of the Mother Land. To these, therefore, who watch with some eagerness the doings of those near and dear to them, this description, brief as it is, may prove of interest. Never, perhaps, has there been such a Christmas, certainly not in the history of this country, unless we go back to the Coronation of William the Conqueror in the year 1066. But I do not wish to dwell on the misery and sorrow, and everything else that war brings in its train. At a time like this we would fain strike a note more cheerful. Let those who were anxious as to our Christmas in camp disabuse their minds of everything but one fact—it was a day full of fun and good humour—a day of happiness.

By the way, let me mention that many were absent from camp on Christmas Day. Each man was granted a week's leave on full pay, with a free railway ticket to any part of the Kingdom. The leave was divided into three parts, the week before Christmas, Christmas week, and New Year week.

Christmas Day with the Canadian Scots may be said to have commenced with a volunteer church parade at midnight, on Christmas Eve, for the celebration of Holy Communion. This service, of course, is too sacred to dwell upon; but there was one thing that did strike home, and that was the singing of the well-known Christmas hymn—

Hark! the herald angels sing
Glory to the newborn King,
Peace on earth and mercy mild.

"Peace on earth" with Europe an armed camp. The words seemed almost a mockery. But enough! Revellie was sounded at 7.30, instead of the usual hour, and some were in our hut—for we all live in huts now—ushered in the day with a tune on the gramophone. Curse his memory! Then the scurry to get breakfast over, for it takes some time for everyone to be shaved and washed so as to look his best at battalion parade. This parade, by the way, was called in order to convey to the men the message—a happy Christmas to one and all from our Colonel, (and numerous friends in Canada. But perhaps the most important of all that the Colonel had to tell us was the announcement that we leave for France at an early date. It was almost with difficulty the men refrained from cheering. It was a most welcome announcement, for truth to tell, we are all heartily sick of Salisbury Plain, with its ceaseless rain and mud; besides it is bringing the trenches nearer to us, and that is why we left Canada. When Colonel Leckie wished us many happy returns of the day, there was just a slight touch of pathos in his voice when he said that at a crisis like this we could not all hope to see another. Of course not; but that carries no terrors.

After parade, a rush is made for the hut to wait the Christmas mail—greetings and gifts from absent loved ones in Canada, and in the old country. What a weird collection these gifts were! Christmas cakes, socks, mince pies, sweaters, woollen caps, butter-scotch, mints, tobacco. And then there is the general share up of the cakes and sweets, for each one shares with another. The forenoon passes swiftly and with some anticipation, for, tell it not in Gath, we are getting away from the ordinary Mulligan dinner. Let me say what Mulligan really is. It is a sort of a cross between Irish stew and heaven knows what.

This may be said, however; after five solid months there is just a sameness about it. However, on the day of all days, a visit to the kitchen reveals the fact that a beast is in store. Turkey, roast beef, plum pudding, and the usual Christmas fare is in preparation. There is no general fog, and each and everyone takes his share in the cleaning of the hut and the peeling of the potatoes. A word of special praise is due to the cook. There is little rest for him, and his duties are of the most arduous. Rain or shine, he must be at his post, and so one's sympathy goes out. By the way, who was it that said, "Sympathy is a thing to be encouraged apart from humane considerations, because it supplies us with the materials for wisdom?"

Whether it be our last Christmas or not, no pains are being spared to make it one of the happiest. War and all its attendant horrors—Who cares?

Who lives if England dies?
Who dies if England lives?

I sometimes think that too much is made of the soldier's endurance and sacrifice, and I am fortified in that belief after five months' training with the Canadian contingent. Of course, hardships have to be met, but then we made up our minds to endure, or at least we should. And really, after all, there is little to complain of. True, we have at times disagreeable work, we have to wade through mud ankle deep, and the food becomes monotonous, and there are the usual irritating concerns just as there are in every walk of life. But aren't these trivial compared with what the real sufferers have to endure? We have clothing and shelter, food and pocket money, congenial companionship; and what more need a man? When we complain do we ever pause to think of the countless thousands who have to endure without the applause of the multitude? War or no war, ends have to be met, the dishes have to be washed, and the socks must be darned. Reduced in-

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I suffered from displacement and inflammation, and had such pains in my sides, and terrible backache so that I could hardly stand. I took six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I can do any amount of work, sleep good, eat good, and don't have a bit of trouble. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to every suffering woman."—Mrs. HARRY FISHER, 1642 Junata Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Woman's Case. Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of your Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and would not be without it. I had a displacement, bearing down, and backache, until I could hardly stand and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. I give you permission to publish my name and I speak of your Vegetable Compound to many of my friends."—Mrs. ABRIEL LAWSON, 126 Lippitt St., Providence, R. I.

Danger Signals to Women are what one physician called backache, headache, nervousness, and the blues. In many cases they are symptoms of some female derangement or an inflammatory, ulcerative condition, which may be overcome by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands of American women willingly testify to its virtue.

of. It was Christmas Day, and each and everyone threw himself into the spirit of the great day.

But how quickly the afternoon files; already it is 5 o'clock, and I have accepted an invitation to dine with another company. There it was even more enjoyable, if that were possible. The table simply groaned. What boots it if you eat your turkey with your pocket knife, and the Christmas cake is cut with a bayonet? The spirit of cheerfulness is abroad. There were amusing reminiscences of experiences as Volunteers, some of them scarcely for ears polite; songs, recitations, and last, but not least, a dance. Never have I seen the sailor's hornpipe and Highland schottische danced with such vim. I wish one could have taken all these young, able-bodied fellows who still sit at home and have shown them this gathering—and dare say among those who are ready to lay down their lives for their—it might have inspired them with some enthusiasm. I sometimes wonder how they will appear when arraigned at the bar of posterity. Time and again I think of these lines of Housman's:—

Far I hear the bugle blow
To call me where I would not go;
And the guns begin the song—
Soldier, fly, or stay for long.

Comrade, if to turn and fly
Made a soldier never die,
Fly I would, for who would not?
'Tis sure no pleasure to be shot.

But, since the man who runs away
Lives to die another day,
And onwards' funeral, when the come,

Are not wept so well at home.

Therefore, though the best is bad,
Stand and do the best, my lad;
Stand and fight, and see your slain,
And take the bullet in your brain.

But enough. I have seen Christmas Day in Scotland, England, France, Switzerland, Egypt, South Africa and Canada, but never have I enjoyed a Christmas like the Christmas spent with the Canadian Scottish on Salisbury Plain. The cheerfulness and pluck of these fellows gathered from all quarters of the great Dominion, may be regarded as the best augury for the work they will accomplish in the trenches. "They may be dear to friends and food for powder," but they are metal! But I listen. The bugle. Lights out.

The night at Thy command comes:
I'll sleep, and will not question more.

Seattle, Wn., Aug. 27.—The Great Northern Steamship Company announces it is arranging to sell its only steamer, the Minnesota, and discontinue trans-Pacific service, which has never been profitable. The Minnesota, now discharging cargo at Vladivostok, will return to Seattle for a load of wheat, lumber, salmon and flour, which will be taken to England by way of Cape Horn as the Panama Canal could not admit the Minnesota, the largest vessel on the Pacific Ocean.

The company expects to find a buyer for the Minnesota in London. The vessel is valued at $2,000,000.

COALITION GOVERNMENT.

From time to time suggestions have appeared in Liberal newspapers that a coalition government for Canada would not be a bad experiment at this time. Some of the more rabid Grit organs of the cheaper grade have intimated that Canada should follow the example of Great Britain and in this crisis, entrust destinies to a government composed of the brightest minds of both political parties. The Hamilton Herald, a sane Liberal newspaper, does not agree in the coalition talk. Dealing with the matter editorially, it says:

"In Britain the coalition government was formed because the national danger had become so imminent that it was necessary to unite the political parties in order that all the political resources of the country might be mobilized and organized to meet the danger. Coalition itself over a perilous crisis."

"There is talk of coalition at Ottawa. If there were any real need for a coalition government in Canada, party interests should not be allowed to stand in the way. But we fail to see the need of it. The government appears to be equal to the task of administration. No serious mistakes are being made—at least we do not hear of any complaints of want of energy or of prudence. To all appearance the machinery of government is running smoothly. Such being the case, it would not seem wise to risk trouble by a change in the operation of the machinery. There is no such national crisis here as there was in Britain when the political leaders were driven into coalition as the only means of safety."

The Standard has already ventured to point out that the conditions which made coalition government necessary in Britain have not existed in Canada. The Asquith administration, composed as it was of many diverse elements, and assailed vigorously by its own party, was forced to take a drastic step to prevent a condition of chaos which would have proved terribly serious. There was very general dissatisfaction over the manner in which Mr. Asquith's cabinet dealt with questions of national importance. In Canada there is no such feeling. Liberal partisans have indulged in criticism of the government but it has not been general and even those critics are, to quote the Toronto Globe, prepared to drop the criticism if "Sir Robert Borden will promise that no general election shall be held until after the war."

CONCERNING MACHINE GUNS.

The Times last evening stated that Senator Loughheed, acting Minister of Militia and Defence had wired to Mayor Frink that the Militia Department still open for the gifts of machine guns and then kindly added: "This is the official denial of the story published in the Standard recently that no more machine guns are required by the department."

Whether there are sufficient machine guns for the requirements of the Canadian forces the Standard does not know, neither does the Times. The fact remains, however, that on August 21st, one week ago, the acting Minister of Militia issued from Ottawa a statement that the donations for machine guns received at that time were sufficient for all requirements. This statement was sent broadcast and received wide publicity. The Vancouver World of August 21st carried the statement of the Acting Minister as follows:

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—Senator J. A. Loughheed, acting minister of militia, today gave out the following official statement regarding the ing official statement regarding the new fund to be raised to aid disabled Canadian soldiers: "Donations for machine guns already received have exceeded the expectations of the government. The government has placed an order for all the machine guns at present available and further donations would not result in furnishing any additional equipment of guns to our troops."

The Ottawa correspondent of the Telegraph also dealt with it and in the issue of that paper of August 23rd appears the following: "The appeal for machine guns has brought in offers aggregating over $2,000,000 and the government now has funds for all the machine guns that can be possibly secured or used for many months to come."

The Ottawa Journal of August 26th in an editorial dealing with machine guns and other purposes for which public subscriptions are being asked, said:

Subscriptions for machine guns continue to pour in upon the Government, and while they reflect deep sense of patriotism it is time the country was impressed with the fact that for the present, no more machine guns are wanted. Money subscribed for machine guns just now, if the Journal understands the situation aright, is of no possible service and may never be utilized at all.

Possibly conditions have changed during the past few days but enough has been published to show that there was ample warrant for the statement The Standard made.

Whatever may be the condition of the machine gun funds there can be no question of the need of subscriptions to the other funds being raised in connection with this war. The Patriotic Fund, for instance, is rapidly becoming depleted by reason of the demands upon it and unless something is done soon it will be totally exhausted. Of course it is an attractive proposition to give a machine gun and to know that by such a medium one may play a real part in the Empire war, but it should not be forgotten that the estimate of the Patriotic Fund managers is that for $15 a Canadian soldier can be kept on active service for one month, surely not an undesirable achievement. We cannot all give machine guns but very many men who have as yet made but small contributions to any of the funds can well afford to keep a soldier in the trenches for several months. If we cannot so on active service ourselves, and can afford the gift, by all means keep a representative in the battle lines.

THE LIBERAL POSITION

The Toronto Globe is generally regarded as the leading newspaper organ of the Liberal party and, consequently, its suggestions merit some attention as embodying ideas fairly representative of Canadian Liberalism. Recently the Globe had the following:

"If Sir Robert Borden will publicly announce that there shall be no general election until after the war, the criticism will cease."

It is difficult to follow the Globe's line of reasoning. Either the Liberals have been indulging in frivolous criticism of the Government for purely partisan purposes, or else they are prepared to neglect their plain duty as critics if the Government will make a deal not to go to the country until after the war, by which time the Liberals evidently hope to be better prepared for the conflict, possibly with a new leader, and something like a real constructive policy.

If the acts of the Government are wrong they should be criticized, war or no war, and if the Liberals are prepared to refrain from just criticism then they are remiss in their duty. If, as is really the case, although we did not expect the Toronto Globe to admit it, the Government's policy is the correct policy and the Government's actions are in the best interests of the country and the Empire, then what Liberal criticism there has been was undertaken solely for partisan purposes, and not because there is ground for complaint.

This is what The Standard has contended, but the Telegraph and the Times have strenuously denied that their criticisms of Hon. Mr. Hazen, New Brunswick's representative in the Borden Government, are unfounded, or indulged in only for purposes of party politics. Now the Toronto Globe gives the same story. Really, the sages of Canterbury street should speak quite plainly to the reverend gentleman who presides over the Globe's editorial pages.

WOMEN OF CANADA DO YOUR "BIT"

Soldiers Need Home-Prepared Fruit to Maintain Health.

A movement has been made by the Canadian Clubs and Red Cross Societies to furnish the Canadian Soldiers in the trenches of France and Flanders with canned fruit. The war office supplies jam, but it does not in any way take the place of preserved fruit. Much of the sickness of our men has been found to be due to the lack of fresh and preserved fruits. In several cities an organized effort has been made to supply this need, by getting our patriotic women to do down a little more than they require for family use, and send a few jars to the Red Cross or Canadian Club. Women in other sections of the country may join in this good work. Those who wish to do so should communicate with the Secretary of the Canadian Club in Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa or London, or better still, prepare the fruit and ship it to the Red Cross. The Overseas Club will look after the distribution by an arrangement made with the Canadian Clubs. Let our Canadian women show that they are not indifferent in this matter. An extra basket of peaches or plums will not cost much and the home preserved fruit will do a great deal of good. The best peaches to use for this purpose are the St. Johns, Elbertas, Crawford, and Smocks. The best preserving late plums are Bradshaws, Gages, Lombards, Reine Claude, etc. The city women have responded nobly. Will the women in the smaller towns do as well? The Fruit Branch Dept. at Ottawa is offering substantial prizes in all leading cities for window displays of Plums and Peaches.

ARRANGING WHIRLWIND RECRUITING CAMPAIGN

FIELD KITCHENS WILL BE ACCEPTED FOR CANADIAN TROOPS

Letters from War Office explains matters in this connection—Very acceptable gifts

Committee in Session yesterday at noon — Colonel Sturdee permanent chairman.

Plans for a whirlwind recruiting campaign were discussed at a meeting of representative citizens yesterday morning and it was decided to proceed with the work at once. Those present felt that there are plenty of men who can and will enlist; if the matter is placed before them in the right light, and it is believed that the committee will be able to fill the ranks and remove the stigma which would attach to this province in the case of failure. Col. E. T. Sturdee was appointed permanent chairman of the committee with the privilege of appointing sub-committees as required.

The meeting was held at noon in the mayor's office. Mayor Frink presiding and those present included Col. E. T. Sturdee, Senator Daniel, Lieut.-Col. B. R. Armstrong, W. H. B. Sadler, W. J. Mahoney, J. E. G. Armstrong, T. H. Estabrooks, Rev. M. E. Fletcher, E. A. Schofield, A. P. Barnum, P. J. Peters, E. W. McCready, John C. Ferguson, W. H. Golding, F. E. Hanington, R. T. Hayes, R. O'Brien, L. P. D. Tilley, C. B. Lockhart, Rev. M. E. Connon and Captain H. H. Smith, formerly of St. John, who is on furlough while recuperating from his wounds.

Mayor Frink spoke of the need of recruits to fill the 55th before a start can be made on recruiting for the New Brunswick half of the 64th. He said it had been suggested that he call together the committee for the first time next year in securing men for the 26th, and he believed that they would be equally successful this year.

Lieut.-Col. Armstrong.

Lieut.-Col. Armstrong said that about 1,500 have been recruited for the 55th, but that 600 have been sent forward in reinforcement drafts, and that about 200 more are needed. Although the same number have been taken from the 40th, Nova Scotia has succeeded in filling that battalion and now have more than their share of men for the 64th. He told of the methods used in Halifax to stimulate recruiting and suggested work along similar lines. If men could be enlisted in groups so that they would be with their friends he thought they would offer more freely. If enough could be secured for the 60th directly he did not think that there would be any difficulty about the 64th as a large number of men were holding back waiting for an opportunity to join that battalion. At the same time he believed that enlistees had been discouraged by the realization that we will win anyway, and the lack of the feeling of personal responsibility among the men of the province.

Mr. Tilley urged the formation of a permanent provincial committee to continue their work so long as the war lasts. A fund to meet the expenses of such a campaign should be made available so the work could proceed without interruption.

Col. Sturdee Chairman.

Mr. O'Brien said the need for men was pressing and that a start should be made in St. John without waiting for a provincial organization. He suggested the formation of a smaller committee with Colonel Sturdee as chairman, to undertake the work.

Colonel Sturdee protested that since his son had left for the front it would be impossible for him to act as chairman. He added that there was a feeling that St. John had not done its share and that, if several hundred of those who could and should go could be enlisted here, it would stimulate recruiting all over the province. He supported the idea of going after the men in groups, through their unions, societies, etc.

How to reach the individual was the big problem.

Mr. Estabrooks, who supported the nomination, also urged the need for greater efforts in the east, now that the rush was over in the west. In Winnipeg he found that it was necessary to undertake a big campaign to secure the men they need for their battalions.

From the Trenches.

Captain Smith was greeted with applause as he rose to speak. He strongly urged the need of inspiring a greater measure of patriotism among the men of the province, and driving home the realization that the future of the empire is at stake; that Canada is in peril of German domination, and that a British colony should not be willing to depend on the Monroe doctrine to protect them. Men are needed, and are needed now, and a man who has sufficient patriotism to enlist should not question whether he is needed in one battalion or another, or for a reinforcement draft. He had been asked by the department to assist in recruiting while recuperating, and he was willing to do anything in his power to aid the local committee.

The election of Col. Sturdee as chairman was then carried, and the mayor asked all present to serve on the committee, sub-committees to be appointed by the chairman as required.

Senator Daniel advocated the concentration of the immediate efforts of the committee upon the filling up of the 55th, as this was entirely a New Brunswick battalion, and it would be a serious reflection on the province if it were not completed.

Rev. Mr. Fletcher said that, as he had travelled through the maritime provinces, he had felt ashamed of

HEAVY PASSENGER TRAFFIC ON RIVER

About Five Hundred Down River Yesterday — Other News Concerning the Waterway.

The wharves at Indiantown presented a busy scene yesterday, occasioned by the arrival of the river steamers Majestic, Champlain and Victoria. Upwards of five hundred passengers came to the city from up river points, the majority of whom were returning from their holidays before the public schools open.

Two hundred disembarked from the Majestic. This is her largest passenger list this season. The Champlain carried one hundred and fifty and the Victoria about one hundred.

Large quantities of farm produce were also brought to the city by the steamers. Now that some of the farmers have about finished getting in their hay crop, they will commence to export their farm products.

The season from now on promises to be an excellent one. Yesterday the steamer Champlain had her biggest cargo for the season, made up chiefly of dressed meats, lamb, beef and pork. The Majestic also had large shipments.

On Thursday evening, the delegates attending the Municipalities Convention at Fredericton enjoyed a pleasant moonlight excursion on the river. The steamer Victoria carried the party. An orchestra and band furnished music during the outing and among those present were Premier Clarke and Attorney General J. B. M. Baxter.

YACHT RACE THIS AFTERNOON

The R.K.Y.C. cruising race will be held this afternoon from Millidgeville to Rocky Point under arbitrary handicap rules. The intention of the committee is to give the members a chance to indulge in the sport of racing under a handicap in which all the boats will have an equal chance of winning.

The course will be as follows: Starting from Millidgeville at the usual starting line, leaving flag to port, then to a flag near McColegan's Point, leaving it to port, then to a flag off Brown's shore in Grand Bay, leaving flag to starboard and finishing off Rocky Point, leaving flag to port.

It is the intention of the committee that all boats anchor after the race and have a series of sports, such as swimming, dingy races, etc., and a bon-fire and sing-song in the evening. The entries for the race are as follows: Vagabond, Dr. Merrill; Pe Yuen, Charles Elwell; Canada, F. S. Heans; Lovina, Harry Dunn; Irex, Walter Logan; Winsome, Howard Holder; Tanawha, R. McLaughlin; Smoke, Ralph Fowler; Robin Hood, Sydney Stanton; Walter E. William Hamm; Rena, George Mullin; Scout, Gordon Holder; Moeil, Ernest Whelpley; Wanderer, James Barnes; Grace M. William McLaughlin and the Edith, George Roberts.

MARSANS INJUNCTION DISSOLVED
St. Louis, Aug. 20.—The injunction restraining Armando Marsans from playing with the St. Louis Federals was dissolved by Judge Dyer in the Federal District Court here today and Marsans is now at liberty to play ball with the St. Louis team.

An attorney for the Cincinnati club filed a motion for an appeal, which will be heard by Judge Dyer tomorrow. An appeal, it was said, would serve to prevent Marsans from playing with the St. Louis Federals pending a decision by the Circuit Court of appeals.

Phil Ball, principal owner of the St. Louis Federals, said that Marsans would join the team Friday night. He also said that if the case is definitely disposed of in favor of St. Louis, the local club will file suit against the Cincinnati Nationals to recover money advanced to Marsans.

Marsans left here today to join the team at Brooklyn. Judge Dyer's decision, in effect, sets aside the reserve clause, for Marsans was to receive $1,100 for his services for 1915 and 1916. This $1,100 was included in the $4,400 salary, but the contract read that the "total compensation for the season herein contracted for" was $4,400. Under Judge Dyer's ruling the "season contracted for" terminated October 14, 1914.

MOOSEPATH RACES TODAY.
Two classes of trotters and pacers will start on Moosepath track this afternoon. Among the horses to start are some which have not entered in track races before, and a couple of hours of good racing is expected.

CLOSING LETTERS OF N.Y. MARKET

New York, Aug. 27.—
Low prices for industrial stocks were a feature of the closing. American Lined and C. Bull movements in stocks often mark the end of the year in the general list. The activity in the Copper there had been early in the year while Steel was active in figure, there seemed to be a drop of the stock for sale. Pronounced weakness the exchange market record was made for American Lined and C. Their task is a difficult one the flotation of a British York, but representatives of Treasury and of leading banking institutions are here to confer with American in an endeavor to reach their task is a difficult one not unlikely that exchange will soon decline to lower have yet been seen. The increased difficulty in arranging contracts, and little is to be that kind of business expected of the nature of sub-bott tracts by companies which ready obtained them.

CLOSING LETTER OF N.Y. MARKET BY E. & C. RANDOLPH

New York, Aug. 27.—A few of the low priced industrial specialties like American Lined and Corn products became very active in the afternoon.

Improved weather was one of the chief influences for lower prices. Though it was cool in the northwest and there was frost in some sections of that belt, the trade discounted reports of damage that caused the excited market of yesterday.

TWO YOUNG LIVES LOST BY DROWNING ALONG THE WATER FRONT YESTERDAY

Gallant Attempt at Rescue in Courtenay Bay Failed to Save Life of Albert Birmingham—Willie Lee, Aged Four Years, Found Drowned in Carleton Mill Pond.

Despite the heroic efforts of young men who jumped into the cold waters of Courtenay Bay, and the untiring work of three or four physicians, Albert Birmingham, aged 16 years, and son of Edward Birmingham of 32 Brussels street, did not regain consciousness after being taken from the waters of the Bay.

It was about three o'clock when young Birmingham was paddling about the Bay in the rear of the cotton mill on a raft constructed of old deals and pieces of boards. The tide was setting out. The raft was carried almost one hundred yards from shore, when the young fellow appeared to lose control of it. He either became excited at his predicament or in some manner fell off the raft, for in an instant a number of young men who were along the shore saw Birmingham struggling in the water.

He started to swim towards the shore but it could be seen that he was quickly tiring and his wet clothing was causing him to sink. Without waiting to discard clothing, James Nixon, M. McCann, Joe Milne, Robt. Graves and a young fellow named Secord were in the water and going to the rescue.

It was seen that Secord was in distress and Leo Holland, who was on the shore, jumped into the water and after a hard struggle managed to get hold of Secord and assist him ashore safely. In the meantime Nixon and McCann reached Birmingham, whose head was under water, but he was still struggling.

VISITORS DELIGHTED

The visiting list for this week totalled one hundred and forty-seven at Primcrest Farm, South Bay. Much interest was evidenced in the fine herd of healthy, pure-bred cattle, especially the baby milk cows. The light, cleanly, airy barns, the spotless dairy, the painstaking care and sanitary methods employed in the production and handling of both milk and butter proved a revelation to the visitors who were delighted with the hearty reception accorded them and the perfect conditions prevailing at this modern milk farm.

City Not Liable.

The city of St. John successfully defended a suit brought against it by John McCarthy, who claimed board for a horse placed in his stable by a policeman. The case came before Judge Armstrong yesterday and a verdict in favor of the defense was entered. Francis Kerr appeared for Mr. McCarthy, and Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, K. C., for the city.

Schools Open Monday.

The city schools will open for the new term on Monday morning. It had been intended to resume work on Thursday but it was felt that the two extra days would be appreciated and the change was made. The teachers will lose the two days' pay. Many youngsters will start to school for the first time. Already numerous permits have been issued and it is expected there will be a rush today.

Labor Men Coming.

W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, with headquarters at Cleveland, Ohio, will arrive in the city this morning on the Maritime express. During his stay in St. John the visiting president will be entertained by the local society. Included in the programme of entertainment is an outing to Ben Lomond. Mr. Lee will also address the local association in the Temple Hall, Main street.

Coachmen's Case.

Two cabmen, John Glyn and Philip Trovsky, were fined $20 each for going beyond the stand allotted to them in the Union Station. Policemen Collins and Roberts testified. Later they asked to be allowed to secure witnesses, as they had not understood the proceedings. Magistrate Ritchie said they should have done so before, but under the circumstances would leave the cases stand until Monday morning.

Tied-up Traffic.

A large double team loaded with soft coal, broke down in Main street, opposite Elm, yesterday morning and delayed traffic for an hour. The street cars were forced to stop below Harrison street until the trucks were cleared and many a disgruntled passenger had to pick up his valise and walk nearly to Adelaide street before he was able to board the car for Indiantown. The team was owned by John McCarthy, Simonds street.

Board of Health Cases.

Two Board of Health cases were disposed of in the Police Court yesterday. James Connell, who was instructed to make certain alterations to his premises in the Marsh Road, failed to comply and was fined $60. Miss Alice Cullinan was instructed to have sewer connections made to one of her buildings in Rockland Road, and was given until next Friday to have the change made to the satisfaction of the board. Dr. J. Roy Campbell appeared on behalf of the Board of Health.

One Hundred Ton Stone.

On Thursday the government stone lifter picked up the largest rock since it has been in commission. The lifter was working back of the foul ground and the rock was so large that it could not be brought up in the well of the vessel. Accordingly the lifter with the rock was towed to the rear of the Negro Point breaker where the heavy stone was deposited. It is said that the stone would weigh well on to one hundred tons and it certainly taxed the hoisting machinery and lifting powers of the lifter.

The new fall coats and suits have arrived at F. A. Dykeman & Co.'s. Notwithstanding the great scarcity of materials this firm has been fortunate in securing one of the best assortments of the above goods that they have ever displayed. They would advise making selections early as repeat orders will be hard to get and the best lines will be sold out first. You can secure your fall coat or suit by making a deposit and they will lay it away until the suit is wanted.

Dear Barclay: Every individual voter feels that he could do so by himself and thousands of others just like him. One vote would put the tariff higher than it ever was before; the next would abolish it. But, whichever type of thinker gets his candidate into power, there remain always millions of people who have to be poor, dirty and discontented.

From this even a child would conclude either that a vast majority of people are doomed to unhappiness by the God who made them, or that a vast majority of politicians are incapable governors. As to the first conclusion, we know nothing; but as to the second, we are certain beyond peradventure. With mighty few exceptions, those whom we put over us to govern us are the most incompetent lot of legislators and administrators in history. For the most part they are men vaguely trained to the law. They talk better and oftener on a greater variety of topics than the average man who is making or trying to make an honest living. They make it their business to be conspicuous, instead of the opposite, and so get themselves elected. As a body of men they know practically nothing about anything useful or important, and their small minds are so tangled with the little law that they are unable to see through the tangle into the heart of law, which is justice. If lawyers could be counted on to do right the pawnbroker down the street and the shoemaker round the corner would not have to be called away from affairs so important to them, to sit on juries and do justice.

But the thing goes deeper. What in each voter's judgment is the chief thing that is wrong with these United States? There are almost as many answers as there are voters. I've asked lots of men, and no two agreed, but I liked one answer better. He said: "The chief trouble with the country is that its citizens have to pay taxes when they ought to be receiving dividends. And this," he said, "is governed by our best minds, instead of by our worst; if as a nation we had been run from the beginning the way Standard Oil for instance, has been run as a trust."

I am not standing up for the rapaciousness of trusts, only for their efficiency. As a nation we have been more rapacious and dishonest than any trust that ever lived. The honest so, and a bad upon us that can never be wiped out, a wrong of our own doing that can never be righted, it is ten thousand pitiful that we haven't been swept out.

How many billions of dollars was this country worth, well he, oil, forest, gold, iron, etc., etc.? Only astronomers think in big enough figures to answer that. Anyhow, as a nation we grew up and owned it. And then we began to play ducks and drakes with it. If from the start our resources could have been handled by a Rockefeller how well he might be a thousand times richer than he is, but we would none of us be poor. And our house would be clean and efficient and full of vermin and not gutted and creaky and full of vermin and half the ceilings down.

Think of a whole country run as a trust, with employment at more than a fair return for every able-bodied man, and fat dividends being made useful. Even in Utopia there are offices which have to be swept out.

If there is salvation ahead of us, instead of ruin, something of this sort will have to be worked out from what is left to us of our natural resources.

Falling this those of us who are rich enough and contented enough as individuals will be pulled down from our high places and trampled by an unreasonable mob until there is no longer anything stable nor any one contented. The air of this great city which we breathe is 10 per cent air and 90 per cent revolution. In other parts of the country the only man with sufficient mind and power to effect anything good is yourself. But if you personally were to preach the gospel of efficiency people would think you were working to put it bluntly, for your own pocket. This gospel then ostensibly must not come from you. It must not come from the rich. From whom then? From the poor, your answer. But alas, my friend, even the champions of the poor are open to suspicion.

This gospel then must come from where? Why, from heaven, of course, whence all good messages have come, or are usually believed to have come. And, seeing that we are in America, where the women are given the best of everything, our heaven-sent messenger must be a woman.

I see your gesture of horror. But she shall not be as you see her. She shall be young and beautiful and good and sincere. She shall not speak her own thoughts, but ours. The masses will believe in her. The classes may, and if they don't they will have sense enough to pretend to.

With you to help, I believe, upon my word of honor, that I can make this thing happen. Will you help? What do you think?

Yours as ever, MILES STILLITER.

To this letter Professor Stilliter received the following answer by return messenger:

Dear Stilliter:

I'll help if you can answer one thing satisfactorily. To be a successful gospelist the woman, as you intimate, must be sincere, it she must believe what she preaches. If she is sincere, how can she tell people that she comes from heaven? You say she must come from heaven in order to believe. It is quite a riddle. I know that you have been thinking and experimenting for years toward some such end as this. But I am a business man, and I have to be shown.

Yours with sincere interest, B.

To this Professor Stilliter answered:

Dear Barclay:

She only has to believe that she comes from heaven. If she can be made to believe that, are you satisfied?

That night the two men met by appointment. Outlining his plan, and occasionally going into detail, Professor Stilliter talked rapidly for almost two hours without stopping, till the sweat stood on his brow and his voice began to fall him. He finished with these words: "And for a few of us, as a mere side issue, there's billions in it."

Gordon Barclay remained for a long time in profound thought.

"There is, as you say," he said at last, "billions in it. Yet if I was sure that could make it happen, really, really, everybody contented and not poor, I'd be content to give up everything I have already, and I could die happy."

"So would I," proclaimed Stilliter hurriedly. "But I'd rather make the world happier and myself with it. Wouldn't you?" Barclay shook his heavy shoulders, lifted his leonine head and smiled.

"Of course," he said, "I was dreaming. I believe the thing can be done. And without any sacrifice whatever, either spiritual or material."

"It will take a long time," he said. "I understand that you have to teach her almost from the beginning."

"I don't teach her exactly. I make her believe."

"Have you a child in view?"

"Now that you're with me, I shall soon find one."

"What are the chances against us?"

"Only these: That before we bring her to earth to preach the gospel you are dead, or I am, or the revolution has already come, and a born a different and better fruit for us all."

Professor Miles Stilliter was never idle, except when he was asleep. On a certain morning in the Spring of 1910 Professor Stilliter, having mislaid his glasses, was unable to tell what time it was, though he held his watch as near to his eye as he could without touching it. It was, however, his usual time for beginning the day, for at that moment his valet brought in the morning papers. Professor Stilliter did not read the papers word by word, but column by column. It was astonishing to see so much intelligence and energy and adroitness in a young man who resembled nothing so much as a monstrous baby.

The following headline in the New York American almost immediately caught his eye, and put an end to any further search for news:

"BRILLIANT END OF A EUGENIC ROMANCE."

"Brilliant John Amesbury, who married one of America's greatest beauties, killed by a trolley car. Widow, prostrated by news, not expected to recover."

A cut of a beautiful young man and a beautiful young woman lent to this unusual item of news a ting of real tragedy.

Professor Stilliter was out of bed in a twinkling of an eye. He bathed and dressed with miraculous speed. It made you think a little of the way a fire engine horse is harnessed.

Swift as were all his motions, he dwelled somewhat upon his breakfast. A close observer might have noticed that he chewed every mouthful exactly the same number of times.

The late John Amesbury's house was at Scarsdale. On the morning in which this narrative opens a number of village boys were pulling off a dog fight in the quiet country road that bordered the narrow front lawn. Tommy Barclay, aged twelve, hearing this racket from afar and full of the tragedy which had overtaken the kind and friendly people in the big house, came up on a dead run. His efforts to interfere with the sport and to secure peace and quiet for the sick woman in the house were not met with approval, and indeed for a moment it looked as if the noise of the dog fight was going to be swelled by the noise of a boy fight, a dozen to one. Fortunately for Tommy, the door of the house opened, and a trained nurse, with a long face like a horse and a domineering air, came running down the front walk with an expression so ominous and formidable that, without a word spoken, the dogs were dragged a part and the boys made off at high speed. Something in Tommy's face attracted the nurse's attention. She was far kinder than she looked.

"Do you want anything?" she said.

"The papers said," said Tommy, "that Mrs. Amesbury wouldn't get well." He said no more, but his whole attitude and expression was a poignant question. The nurse laid her hand suddenly on his brown head, peered at him, shook her own head just the varied which had hurried back to the house.

A shadow fell upon Tommy, and he found himself looking into the immense thick-rimmed glasses of Professor Stilliter. Intuitively the boy and the man distilled each other. Professor Stilliter would rather have asked almost any other small boy if that was the Amesbury house. Tommy would have preferred to tell almost any other man that was Professor Stilliter, his question as answered, moved energetically upon the house. Professor Stilliter in the room had a kind of hypnotic effect upon the two men. He stood in shadow, and the servant made the least show of his face. Professor Stilliter turned reluctantly away and heard the closing of the door.

At that moment a buggy driven furiously stopped at the front gate, and, thanks to his consulting interest in seeing the daughter, he stepped forward as if to enter the house, and the servant made the least show of his face. Professor Stilliter turned reluctantly away and heard the closing of the door.

"Glad to see you," said Professor Stilliter. "Are you in charge here?"

"Yes," said Dr. Wainwright. "I never knew Amesbury. I don't know his wife, but as a eugenicist I was immensely interested in their marriage, and I have a deep scientific interest in seeing the daughter. Now at such a time as this I could not very well force myself upon the household, but if you could slip me a word, you are obliged to you, and there will be no talk of splitting fees."

Dr. Wainwright smiled and nodded. The object of Professor Stilliter's interest was not hard to find. She was seated, for a torn and discolored, upon the bottom step of the front stair. Dr. Wainwright picked her up in his arms and kissed her. He made her shake hands with Professor Stilliter. He fond of little girls, and wouldn't he do her best to entertain him, while he himself was with her mother's upstairs?

Professor Stilliter could not conceal the fact that the child's appearance delighted him, and that his appearance did not furnish her with the same delight affected him no more than a duck's back is affected by water. She had a topknot and a chignon, and carried her three or four years with too much dignity to run from him and hide, as her instincts prompted her to do, when she was lifted her from the floor, asked her age and said, "My, how heavy she was!"

She was a little and flinched a little when he touched her arms and chest and felt with a wince admiration the firm and chubby calves of her legs, and when he made her open her mouth and looked in and murmured "Gosh!" she did not resist when he showed him the pretty house in which she lived, she did so gladly, for it seemed to put an end to being handled.

For his immediate purpose Professor Stilliter did not need to penetrate beyond the outer single door from here his eyes at once singled out from many three photographs, in which justice had pretty nearly been done, not only to his small company, but to her famous father and her mother.

"What is that funny thing on the piano?" asked Professor Stilliter. The little girl looked in the direction indicated, and told him that it was a picture of her father and mother.

During the moment in which he had succeeded in diverting the attention of the young man had slipped the three photographs in their folded leather frame into one of his capacious pockets. His mission in the house finished, he asked her if she would give him a kiss. This was a thing which, it seemed evident, she could neither accord nor refuse. She simply burst into tears. The professor shrugged his great shoulders, grunted like a pig and abruptly took his departure.

Still weeping, the little girl found her way to a piano that opened off the living room. Here she seated herself on a very small chair that was her very own and kept on crying until she had almost forgotten what she was crying about.

Tommy Barclay, still lingering about the premises, traced the infantile walls to their source. The sight of his sympathetic face above the veranda railing, across which he had thrown one leg, started tears again, for he was her best friend in the world, and he wished to tell him all about the wicked man with the black-rimmed spectacles. Tommy took her in his knees and listened and gave her a little rag doll, and very shyly, for now that he looked at it again, it seemed a poor gift.

He offered it to her.

There was a silence in the room, at once so rich and repressed in its moldings and furnishings, where Gordon Barclay received and gave orders to such of his fellow-millionaires as were in his confidence, were strangely moved. The great man for once had not been dealing with facts, but with fancies. Very quietly and earnestly he had been painting for them that terrific future to which, as he saw it, the rest-less forces of the world were driving.

It may have been that the presence of photograph of the little Amesbury girl with the tip of his finger.

"She is the answer," he said, "but by the way, Stilliter, what do you hear of the mother?"

Professor Stilliter shrugged his shoulders very slightly.

"Dying."

Barclay was not unmoved. "She thinks," he said, "that she is only dying in grief. As a matter of fact, she is taking a great pleasure in her situation."

"What are the child's habits?"

"She has a nap," said Professor Stilliter, "from 10 to 10:30 and from 3 to 3:30. At other times she is mostly out of doors with her nurse. There is a wood back of the house in which she has a playhouse, a sea-saw, etc. If you wished to see her it would be a simple matter, but I am ready to stake my reputation on her. She is absolutely out to our plan."

"Which," said Semmes, "is so far a complete mystery to Sturtevant and myself?"

In spite of Professor Stilliter's guarantee, the triumvirate, as they were both popularly and unpopularity called, determined to have a look at the little Amesbury girl for themselves. In a car driven so swiftly that the traffic could hardly be seen, they drove to the house, and the nurse, looking for them, led them to the playhouse.

They did not, however, draw up before the house itself, but in the wood back of it. Here they sat in Indian dress so that she resembled the ornamental side of a cent, they found the object of their search. It was no difficult task in three men to fill any suspicion that the child's nurse may have had. They complimented her upon the health and good manners of her little charge, inquired after her mistress and learned with every semblance of regret that the latter was sinking hourly. They joked Professor Stilliter a little on the fear with which he seemed to inspire the child. But to Stilliter, looking far ahead, perhaps this aversion seemed a serious thing.

"Well," he said brusquely, "am I right? Is she the finest child you ever saw, or is she?"

Just see the breadth of her skull above the ears."

He would have touched her, but she shrank from him. When Barclay, however, spoke to her she showed neither fear nor aversion, only a pleasant shyness.

"I have never seen you before," he said, "but I am very fond of little girls, and since I have none of my own I do not propose to lose sight of you in a hurry."

Leaving the others, he took the child and the nurse for a little drive in the car, and when they had come back he slipped something that jingled into the nurse's hand, so that the flighty woman felt prepared to go through fire with him.

The little Amesbury girl was of an age when most impressions do not long survive. She would neither remember her father nor her mother nor her nurse, nor her Indian dress, nor the playhouse, nor the sea-saw in the woods; but always she had a vague recollection of three great and important personages, who treated her as if she were more important than they were, and who on parting from her bowed over her chubby, dimpled hand and kissed it for all the world as if she had been a princess. It wasn't exactly a recollection either, for she did not remember their faces nor how they came into her life, nor how they departed. It was more like a dream, only fragments of which here and there survived in the waker's mind. It wasn't altogether a pleasant dream. There mingled with it a certain something of the essence of a nightmare. Whether it was another man in the background or some monstrous beast with extraordinarily large, black-rimmed eyes she did not know.

It is curious that she should remember a little of all this and nothing of that message which came presently from the house—a message brought by one servant to another and crudely blurted forth in the hearing of a child.

"Come quick, Mary, and bring the baby; the misus is dead." She does not remember running to the house between two women, dragged by the hand—and if she did it is most likely that she should remember only the novelty of the swift locomotion, and not the reason that called for it. The little Amesbury girl continued to live on in her father's house. The law said she might until things were straightened out. There were no relatives to interfere.

But it was a strange life. There was no longer any discipline in the house; even the trained nurse with a face like a horse had to go. The servants began to neglect their work and to amuse themselves. There were always "gentlemen friends" in the kitchen. Often the lights did not go out till very late at night. And there were always great goings on and laughter at jokes that could not have been half as funny as the laughter was loud. Nurse began to neglect her charge. She would tell her not to go off the piazza till she came back, while she herself strolled off to the big kitchen to take part in the conversations and the flirtations and the continual round of good things to eat and drink.

The little Amesbury girl was not a philosopher. Had she been, she must have noticed with some cynicism that when laboring people get a little liberty and power they do not necessarily make the best use of them, but try at any price to have a good time, just the way rich people do.

But being neglected by nurse had its advantages, for Tommy Barclay came every day to play with her, and often many times in one day. He was a much better nurse than nurse was. He knew more games and stories; he wasn't always "sharp set" for a cup of tea; he wasn't always breaking up a policeman. Sometimes the policeman dismounted and sat upon a fallen tree. Often she got giggling so that her arms were his arms, and he had to keep her from falling off. Sometimes he would pretend that she was his little "baby" (that is what he called her) and makes her sit on his lap, and she would hug her and kiss her, she laughing and screaming and pretending to fight him.

But Tommy Barclay wasn't such a fool. He took good care of her all the time, and she loved him with all her heart.

That night about 12 o'clock, nurse's bed in the little Amesbury girl's room was empty. The house was in darkness, except for the light from the street lamps. From this came sounds of revelry and of a victrola talking machine. The little Amesbury girl dreamed that a man was bending over her and she walked with a scream.

For once in her life she had dreamed true, and the fingers of his left hand were clasped almost chokingly about her baby throat. In his right hand he held before her eyes a lump of rock crystal the size and shape of a hen's egg. The crystal appeared to exercise an instant fascination upon her. She forgot that she was afraid and that she wanted to scream for help. She even forgot the presence of Professor Stilliter. She thought indeed that she was all alone and that somebody had opened a door through which she was at liberty to look her fair play.

Very far away she heard a voice that said very quietly, "Now you can't scream."

"Of course," she tried to, and found that she couldn't.

"And now," said the voice, "you can't do anything unless I tell you to. Get up." She slipped obediently out of bed.

"Dress yourself," said the voice.

For the first time in her baby life the little Amesbury girl dressed herself. She even tied her own hair ribbon in the presentable bow-knot and buttoned her own tiny boots.

Professor Stilliter had long since slipped the crystal ball into his leather case and into his pocket. The spell of hypnotism which he had cast over her by its means would last as long as he chose.

"Show me," he said, "where nurse keeps her coats and hats." He selected a hat for her and her warmest coat.

"Now, give me your hand," he said, "and don't make any noise." He led her downstairs and out into the night.

She never afterward recalled anything of the journey to the north woods which she made with Professor Stilliter. The long automobile ride, the Montreal express held between the shoulders of one man and then on the shoulders of another, until the party came to a wild spot at the foot of the cliff. Here in the warm Spring sunshine on ledges first on the shoulders of one man and then on the shoulders of another, until the party came to a wild spot at the foot of the cliff. Here in the warm Spring sunshine on ledges first on the shoulders of one man and then on the shoulders of another, until the party came to a wild spot at the foot of the cliff. Here in the warm Spring sunshine on ledges first on the shoulders of one man and then on the shoulders of another, until the party came to a wild spot at the foot of the cliff.

When the men who had brought her to the foot of the cliff had gone, with the exception of Professor Stilliter, the three masked men removed their masks. So that when Professor Stilliter, withdrawn the little so that she should not see him first of all and be frightened, told her to wake up, she looked into the friendly faces of Barclay, Semmes and Sturtevant.

Barclay advanced with great ceremony, dropped on one knee before her and kissed her hand for all the world as if she had been a princess. Then Sturtevant came forward and did likewise, and then Semmes.

Although Professor Stilliter had told her to wake up, the spell of the crystal was still upon her like drowsiness after sleep. To reduce her once more to a complete state of hypnosis it was only necessary for him to say quietly, "Go to sleep again."

What looked like a portion of solid cliff rose suddenly, without any sound, and disclosed a black passage that appeared to lead to the bowels of the earth. In the mouth of this passageway stood a handsome woman, a little under middle age. There was a diamond star in her dark hair, and she wore a white garment that fell from her shoulders in stately folds like those of a Roman toga. She came forward, caught the little Amesbury girl up lovingly in her arms, and, without a word, walked back into the passageway and disappeared. For a long time the sound of her sandals fell upon the rocky floor could be heard. Then the moving portion of the cliff slid slowly and noiselessly back into place, and the four men who remained without turned somewhat slowly to each other.

Barclay was the first to break the silence. "Gentlemen," he said, "fifteen years from to-day she will bring the world to her feet—and to ours."

UNCLE WIGGLY AND NEDDIE STUBTAL.

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Some one knocked at the door of the hollow stump bungalow, where Uncle Wiggly and Neddie Stubtal, the nice rabbit gentleman, lived with Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady.

"Who is there? Come in!" invited Uncle Wiggly, sitting back in his easy chair, so the electric fan, which he had taken from his airship, could cool his ears.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggly," exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, fanning herself with her tail, "you should first want to see who is knocking, before you invite them in. It might be the bad old fox, who has so nearly caught you a number of times."

"Oh, Uncle Wiggly," exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, fanning herself with her tail, "you should first want to see who is knocking, before you invite them in. It might be the bad old fox, who has so nearly caught you a number of times."

"What's that, a cake of ice? Why, certainly, Neddie, my boy!" exclaimed Mr. Whitewash when the little bear chap had said he wanted to cool off Uncle Wiggly and himself.

"Here is a cake of ice I'm not using," went on Mr. Whitewash. "It is good as new, only melted a little around the edges, and it is nice and cold."

"Thank you," said Neddie. Then he fastened his long, sharp claws in the cake of ice, just as the ice man stings his sharp tones in the cake he brings to your refrigerator, and back to Uncle Wiggly's bungalow started Neddie, the bear chap.

The water dripped off the slowly melting cake of ice as Neddie walked along the hot street with it, and Neddie hurried as fast as he could, so all the ice would not be melted.

"I want some left with which to cool Uncle Wiggly and Nurse Jane," said the bear boy, who was very kind. Just as Neddie was once more knocking on the door of Uncle Wiggly's bungalow, to go in with the cake of ice, out from under the front porch jumped the bad old fox.

"Ah, ha! Ha, ho!" barked the fox, a chance to get in Uncle Wiggly's bungalow, so I can carry him away. Now when he, or Nurse Jane, comes to the door, to open it, I'll slip in and you'll be gone."

"Well, I'm glad it wasn't the fox, anyhow," said Nurse Jane. "Let me get you some bread and honey, Neddie," spoke the muskrat lady, kindly.

"No thank you, just the same," spoke Neddie, in a tired sort of voice. "No honey for me, if you please. I am too hot, with my fur coat on. I think I will go get a hair cut."

Then Nurse Jane knew that Neddie must feel the heat very much, if he would not eat bread and honey, for all bears are very fond of that, especially his very hot.

"Yes, it is very hot," said Uncle Wiggly. "Come over close to me, Neddie, where you can feel the breeze from the electric fan."

Neddie did so, but still he was quite warm. For when the day is hot, and you have to wear a big, thick, heavy coat of fur, as Neddie, the bear, did, and can't take it off I guess you'd be warm too.

"What?" asked Uncle Wiggly. "I'll go down to the stove cave, where Mr. Whitewash, the polar bear gentleman, sits over the meadow, by the sea shore, and along the country roads, amidst the bright sunshine. I am sure many of you must be right sorry the vacation is over, but you must now settle down to school and do your best to pass the next exams."

"I shall like to hear of my kiddies all being particularly successful in their work during the next three months. Of course, I know many of you have been unable to enter the contests recently owing to your being away, but now that you have returned, I shall look for many more attempts. In any case I want my nephews to try harder, as at present the girls are sending far more work to me, besides there is a separate prize for both boys and girls, which I hope you will all try hard for this next week. I am sure whoever get the watches will be very pleased indeed."

This week I should like to draw my nephews attention to the notice under the Scout News, on this page, where they will find that a new trophy is being formed of Boy Scouts. If you are at all interested, or wish to join, be sure and write to Mr. Murray. I shall also be pleased to let you have any further particulars.

With best wishes to all my kiddies, Frow Your

LETTER OF THANKS FOR RED CROSS WORK

Dear Uncle Dick,

Will you thank the girls and boys in your circle for the face cloths and tumbler covers? They are all well made; some of them are beautifully done, and show patience on the part of the children. Will you tell them that when they do this work, they are working not only for the soldiers but for other little children too. Very often for the Belgians and French children who have been wounded in the airship raids and perhaps they will get your Canada covers. With many thanks from all our Red Cross members.

I am gratefully, JEAN R. WHITE, Conventor of Needlework, Red Cross Society.

How to Run a Troop.

By Ernest Young, Headmaster Harrow County School and Scoutmaster 4th Harrow Troop, in The Scout, England.

Third Week's Work

1. Give a written test on the Salutes. Suitable questions are: (a) What do the three fingers mean? (b) When do you use the full salute? (c) Give marks for the competition, and if a boy gets three-quarters of the marks, enter him in your register as having passed the Salute test for a Tenderfoot.

Scout News

Will any boy who is interested in the Scout movement, or who wishes to join a troop just starting, write to or call and see Mr. Walter W. Murray, Kennedy House, Rothesay, N. B.

The Patriotic Fair at Seaside Park is being well guarded by Boy Scouts, from various troops, including Lancaster, Fairville, and St. John. Many of the boys started work at five on Thursday morning, and the different shows and stands are now being guarded by them day and night. A camp has been erected on the grounds, at their headquarters, where boys are always on duty, ready to run messages, carry parcels, assist in directing people, and in many other ways are showing how useful, and clever a boy scout can be.

Chipman Troop will be willing during the coming winter to hold competitions with other troops in knot-tying, signalling, and any other Scouts' games, providing satisfactory arrangements can be made. Any so wishing to accept this challenge, please communicate with S. M. Hamilton, Chipman, N. B.

Chipman Troop has opened up for the coming winter's work, under the patrol system entirely, also using the court of honor as much as possible to run the troops. Although using partly this system when going to camp, we saw the advantage of entirely devoting the patrol leaders full time to running their own patrol, and we are confident of this being a complete success.

LIKES HER PRIZE

Dear Uncle Dick— Please excuse me for not telling you how I liked my prize, because I waited till I had read it, till I told you how I liked it. I liked it very much. I am trying the word-making contest this week, and hope I may be as successful this time.

I hope to still take in the contests.

Yours sincerely Dorothy Reeve Roach.

A NICE PRIZE

Dear Uncle Dick— I write once more to thank you for the prize you sent me which I think is very nice.

Your loving, Daisy Sears.

ANOTHER NICE

If you will except me for your niece, I will be very much pleased. I have never tried any of the contests before, so I thought I would try this word-making contest. School will soon start.

Yours truly, Edith Carvell.

patrol, and give practice in saluting till each member is smart.

2. Revise the four knots already learnt.

Teach the bowline and sheet bend (S. for B. p. 87). Have a competition to find the slowest boy as to teaching the knot.

3. The Flag. Hang up the Union Jack and fix its composition and history (S. for B. pp. 288-285).

Outdoor Work

Play the Wool Collecting game again, but this time use green wool. This is much more difficult to see, and there should be a rule that the pieces are to be laid every ten or twenty paces from each other.

In playing these wool games the Scout signs can be used as well; mix up the two kinds of trails so as to teach the boys to keep their eyes open.

At the end of the trail have some fire-lighting—star fires and the camp grate (S. for B. pp. 108-109).

Practise Scout Pace home again.

"Your money or your life!" growled the hooligan. "Take me life," responded the Irishman. "I'm savin' me money for me old age."

An Echo of the Camp

The Instruction Camp for Boy Scouts of New Brunswick is over, and it remains to ascertain if it was worth while. Did it pay? Is no doubt a question that will be asked by the friends of the movement—and they are many—as well as by those who are not active in it.

One cannot answer that question in terms of dollars and cents, but the following statements will give an emphatic answer to those who realize that returns come not in the form of material things, but in terms of efficiency and character.

There was an average attendance at the camp of 130 boys. Some stayed only one week, some only three or four days, owing to arrangements made before coming. All the boys went home saying, "I am coming back next year." So from the boys' point of view it was a success and therefore it paid.

There were 653 tests passed, and some instruction given on Friday the last day of the camp, has not been reported on yet. This will no doubt put the number up to, or over 700 tests passed. The work consisted of passing the Scouts from the tenderfoot stage, or under, to first class. The following figures will give an idea of the work done. The number of tenderfoot tests passed was 58; second class 462; first class 133, and as said above some returns are still to come in.

To obtain tenderfoot standing it is necessary to pass three tests: First—Know the Scout Law. Second—Know the composition of the Union Jack and the right way to fly it; explain color and form of the three crosses.

Third—The following knots, reef knot, sheetbend, sheepshank, clove hitch, bowline and fisherman's knot. All six were tied by one Scout in 59 seconds.

The second class tests are nine in number and are on the whole more difficult than the tenderfoot tests. First—One month's service as a tenderfoot, that is, before he can wear the Second Class badge, though he pass the test. Second—Elementary sign and Morse sign for eye.

Third—The following knots, reef knot, sheetbend, sheepshank, clove hitch, bowline and fisherman's knot. All six were tied by one Scout in 59 seconds.

Fourth—The following knots, reef knot, sheetbend, sheepshank, clove hitch, bowline and fisherman's knot. All six were tied by one Scout in 59 seconds.

Fifth—The following knots, reef knot, sheetbend, sheepshank, clove hitch, bowline and fisherman's knot. All six were tied by one Scout in 59 seconds.

Sixth—Lay and light a fire, using not more than two matches. Seventh—Cook a quarter of pound of mesquite and two potatoes on the fire made for test No. 6, using only the regulation billycan. Eighth—Have at least fifty bayonets in the bank. Ninth—Name the sixteen principle points of the compass.

For the First Class badge there are ten tests, and these are in turn more difficult than the Second Class tests. First—Sixty yards. This may be omitted, and either of the following substituted, when the doctor forbids the boy to swim, or animal, go to a distance of fifteen miles and back, and write a short report on it. Fifth—Describe or show the proper means for saving life in case of two of the following accidents: fire, drowning, runaway carriage, sewer gas, ice breaking and electric shock, and bandage an injured person or revive an apparently drowned person. Sixth—Cook satisfactorily two of the following dishes as may be directed: porridge, bacon, hunter's stew, or skin and cook a rabbit, or pluck and cook a bird. Also make a "damper" of half a pound of flour, or a "twist" baked on a thick stick. Seventh—Read a map correctly, and draw an intelligible rough sketch map. Point out a compass direction without the aid of compass. Eighth—Use an axe for felling or trimming light timber or, as alternative, an article of carpentry or joinery, or metal work, made by himself, satisfactorily. Ninth—Judge distance, area, also, numbers, or height and weight, within 25 per cent error. Tenth—Bring a tenderfoot trained by himself in the points required for a tenderfoot.

The foregoing summary will give an idea of the nature and amount of work necessary to make a first class scout. Many tried over and over again to pass some test only to fail, but finally victory crowned their efforts. The rivalry was always keen, but always good natured.

But the part most worth while of the work done at camp was not any of the foregoing, but the testing of the honor system and the splendid re-

What Scouts Do

A Scout! He enjoys a hike through the woods more than he does a walk over the city's streets. He can tell North or South from the moss that grows on trees, and East and West by the shadows that trunk and branches cast. When matches are forgotten he laughs and proceeds to kindle a fire by rubbing two sticks together, or by striking steel on flint. The fire once started, what a breakfast, dinner, or supper he can prepare out there in the open! Does he enjoy the meal? Just watch him and compare his appetite with that of a boy who lounges at a lunch counter in a crowded city.

A Scout does not run away or call for help when an accident occurs. He devotes all his strength and energy to assisting those who are in need. If a person has been cut he uses his first aid knowledge in stopping the flow of blood, gently and carefully binds up the wound; then, if necessary, he seeks other assistance. If a person has been burned his knowledge tells him how to alleviate the suffering, if anyone should be dragged from the water unconscious a Scout at once sets to work to restore respiration and circulation. He knows that not a minute can be lost.

A Scout can talk to a brook and without making a sound by signalling with flags; or by tapping on a log he can imitate the click of a telegraph key, and in either manner he can spell out words and sentences.

A Scout can tie a knot that will hold, he can climb a tree the ascent of which seems impossible to others, he can swim a river, he can catch a tent, he can mend a tear in his trousers, he can tell you what weeds are poisonous and what are not, he can climb nut-bearing trees from a distance, if living near ocean or lake he can reef a sail or take his trick at the wheel, and if any body of water at all he can pull an oar or use paddles and sculls.

A Scout never uses alcoholic liquors, because he does not wish to poison his body; he desires a clear, active brain, and so he avoids tobacco. He never swears, because swearing is a sign of weakness, as well as being sacrilegious.

In fact, a scout aims to be, in this, the twentieth century, as near as possible like those men who, two and three hundred years ago, pushed their way into what then was the great North American forest, and blazed a way. In those days our forefathers had to be ready for any emergency, and as a scout of the present emulates the scout of the past, he has chosen as his motto, "Be Prepared," and a better phrase could not have been selected, for it is both a motto and a slogan all in one. Be prepared for anything—to do a kind act—to rescue a companion, to ford a stream, to gather kindling, to salute the flag, to build a fire—always be prepared.

WOMEN'S REALM

The Daily Fashion Hint.

Fashion Notes

Latest Fall Dress

All the season stripes have been quietly coming to the front—vertical stripes and horizontal stripes, uneven stripes and narrow regular ones, stripes in color and others merely woven into the goods. But never one has anything been seen like the great wide stripes that will be introduced early in the autumn by the French couturiers says, the Christian Science Monitor. They carry the stripe style to its limit, and bring out expressions of astonishment. However, when combined with a plain material in a quiet tone, and when the stripes themselves are in subdued shades, the effect is not so startling as one may imagine. Some of the smartest models that have just appeared in the buyers' showrooms are a warm shade of brown—a color, by the way, which promises to be much used this fall although it was scarcely seen a year ago. The bodice is of plain brown satin, over which is worn a pointed vest of brown serge, buttoning at the sides on to a redingote back of the same color. The front of the skirt and the circle are of wide striped fall silk in two tones of brown. The stripes drop slightly at the sides and the skirt is laid in two plaits at the hips. The style is odd, and, in the dress itself, really very attractive. The hat of brown velvet has a brim of the striped silk, and a feather fancy in brown rests against the crown. High shoes with brown cloth tops complete the costume.

New Cretonne Pillows

The newest bedroom pillows are made of cretonne, either to match the hangings, or, if one prefers, in a pleasing contrast. The pillow should be made in box shape before it is covered with the cretonne, says the New Haven Register.

Cut two squares twenty inches and join the top and bottom with a three-inch strip of the goods. Then cover the cushion with cretonne, top, bottom and four sides, all of the seams being on the outside. Bind all of the seams with a tape and finish with a tassel at the corners.

A dainty nap pillow is made of the same cretonne pattern only shaped oblong and the cretonne covered with a coarse net and a net ruffle. The net gives a pleasing shadow effect to the goods.

Glove Novelties

Gloves vary little from season to season, save in the detail of popular length, says the Indianapolis News. The long sleeve short-on-button gloves back to prominence, and these are offered in everything from shamos, always a practical summer favorite, to the finest and softest of kid.

In novelties, the most eye-catching and attractive things are the white walking gloves, with a line of black or color introduced into the stitching on their backs. Other gloves of heavy white or black silk have a narrow plaited frill trimming the edges.

The elbow and three-quarter length sleeves are not entirely taboo, and there is still a considerable sale for long gloves, though for ordinary purposes the long sleeve and the short glove are most in evidence.

Morning Smock

On the lines of the smock coat for morning wear is a short smock slip to take the place of breakfast jacket or morning blouse. These short smocks fall just to the hip and have a loose blouse belt to hold the loose, smock-ed garments in trim lines on the figure. The smartest models are in white or tan khaki-wool, an all silk pongee with the smocking done by hand with brown or leaf green silk. Elbow sleeves and a low, turnover collar make the smock comfortable on summer mornings.—Indianapolis News.

Fluffiness in Favor

Fluffiness and daintiness are in favor again, and very soon we shall hear the swish of the silk petticoat, writes a Paris correspondent of the Queen (London). The summer sales have offered endless little dresses in crepon, voile, muslin, silk and serge at quite low prices, and the Sunday crowds which throng the Bois de Boulogne, the environs of Paris, and the seaside places, show examples of them in multitudes. The big sailor hat with unequal brim is the only big hat in favor. It is to be seen in all sorts of colors and materials—in white, in pink, in navy blue, and in black with a white underbrim. It is light as a feather, and very becoming to most women. Boots are still worn with tailormades, but the little summer frocks demand dainty shoes.

Velvet Garters

There are garters seen in the shops that would seem to eliminate the discomfort attendant upon the usual round garter, which, because of its silk surface, is apt to slip, and must, therefore, be tightened in order to insure safety.

This garter however, is covered with velvet, of any color desired, and the thick nap of the material fastens it self in the meshes of the stockings, and helps to keep it in place.

It ties with ribbon ends, so that one may adjust or loose as one pleases. For the bride there is one decorated with a little bouquet of orange blossoms, instead of the other flowers used and they are very simply made.

Reliable Recipes

Scotch Broth

Wipe out the meat from two pounds of neck mutton in dice. Do not use the skin and fat. Cover the bones with one pint cold water and simmer three hours. Put three pints cold water over the meat, heat slowly until the steam is white, add half cup soaked barley, and simmer two hours. Then add one cup mixed vegetables diced, onion, carrot, celery and turnip, and simmer another hour or until the meat and barley are tender. Thicken the strained bone water with one rounded tablespoon each of butter and flour, cooled together, and stir into the broth. Add two teaspoons salt, quarter teaspoon pepper and one tablespoon chopped parsley. Serve without straining.

Gouffle Rothschild

Take eight new-laid eggs; break the yolks into one bowl, the whites into another. Beat the yolks, adding three table-spoons of powdered sugar and a pinch of salt. Beat the whites until they rise to a stiff froth. Mix one with the other, pouring the whites into the yolks with a gentle hand; add about one half pound of fresh mulberries (if not procurable, candied fruits, cut into small pieces, can be used instead). Pour into a soufflé dish and bake in a moderate oven for 10 minutes.

Spanish Omelet

For lovers of Spanish Omelet there is a new bottled bottle of the preparation of the vegetables. Make a five egg omelet, using four table-spoons of the filling, which may be put in a tiny saucepan with a quarter cup of melted butter, a table-spoonful of catsup and a dash of hot Southern sauce to heat. Pour in the center and fold the omelet as usual; garnish with olive rings and strips of red pepper.

Green Currant Jam

Pick the currants from the stem, wash thoroughly, put in a preserving kettle and set in a larger kettle of boiling water over a gentle fire to dry out superfluous juice. Add three-fourths of a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit; boil quickly for thirty minutes or less if it shows signs of jellifying. Stir and skim often. Turn into jars and cover when cold.

Swedish Salad

One half pint cold boiled corned beef, two good-sized boiled or pickled beets, two sherkins, six sardines, one table-spoonful of capers, two hard-boiled eggs and two tart apples. Cut the beef into dice and chop the beets, sherkins and apples. Add them to the beef, also add the sardines, boned and cut into pieces and the capers. Place on lettuce leaves and garnish with the eggs cut into quarters. Serve with French dressing made with tarragon vinegar.

Green Currant Pie

Stew the green currants until soft, sweeten to taste and pour into a pie dish lined with paste. Dress lightly with flour, cover with a thin layer of crust, well slashed and bake for half an hour.

Black Currant Jam

Use for this five pounds of stemmed currants and four and a half pounds of granulated sugar. Wash and stem the currants and put in the preserving kettle with the sugar. Cook slowly three-quarters of an hour, put into jars, cool and seal.

Red Currant Conservé

Crush the currants and mix with sugar, allowing one pound for pound. Put into sterilized glass jars, and set in a boiler or kettle of hot water, protecting from contact with the bottom of the kettle or other jars by coils of rope or wisps of hay. Bring to a boil, cook ten minutes, seal and put away. All the uncooked preserves must be inspected occasionally to see if there are signs of fermentation. Should there be, cook up the contents of the jars and re-seal.

How to Lace Shoes

A shoe dealer states that low shoes can be laced tighter, look neater and tie better if the lacing is done by drawing the shoe laces through the upper part of the eyelet and not from the lower side. A demonstration proved that the shoe did lace better and looked decidedly neater.

Another item of interest, and something every one should know, was about the tan and brown shoes which spot. If water touches the tan leather, or it leaves a blemish which is never hidden with polish. It is advisable to take the new shoes, give them a coat of tan polish and you will never have them soiled by the blotches if you remember to do this simple thing.

MR. L. LABRIE

"I have been restored to health by taking 'Fruit-a-Lives' for two years. I was a miserable sufferer from Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble. I became very weak, had frequent dizzy spells and when I took food, felt wretched and sleepy. I suffered from Rheumatism dreadfully, with pains in my back and joints and my hands swollen.

A friend advised me to try 'Fruit-a-Lives' and from the outset, they did me good. After I had started the second box, I felt I was getting well and I persevered in the treatment. I can truthfully say that 'Fruit-a-Lives' is the only medicine that helped me.

For every knife handles that have become bright and sharp as they do, try rubbing with lemon juice and salt, and when they are clean wash them off and polish with a soft dry cloth.

If the punctation to be used at the seashore is stuffed with lamb's wool the pins will not rust, but will remain bright and sharp as they do at home where the atmosphere is dry.

If wooden castors are attached to the kitchen table, it can be easily moved about, which is a great convenience at busy times. It can be drawn to the sink for the dish washing, near the stove for the dishing up, or near the stove for preserving day-sparving.

To Shrink Gingham

To shrink gingham lay the cloth in a large tub of lukewarm rain water, to which a handful of salt has been added, taking care to place the cloth in the original folds. Let it soak until the folds are thoroughly wet through, then remove from the tub, and without wringing pin to a line in the open air. It will dry perfectly smooth and the color will not rub.

Keeping Eggs

There are two ways of keeping eggs if one lives at a distance and a case has to be purchased at a time. First, dip the fresh eggs in peanut oil, then pack them in bran and store in a cool place. Or, second, immerse them in lime water, setting the vessel that they are in away in a cool cellar. Some folks immerse them in boiling water 20 seconds, then pack them in bran, but they can be used only for cooking purposes afterwards.

For a Scald

Apply glycerine to a scald directly after the accident occurs and cover it up with strips of rag soaked in glycerine.

A Well Poised Body

Beauty is lessened by lack of grace.

and grace is not possible without poise. To appear at her best, a woman's body must be well poised.

Keep the Skin Cleaned
Don't forget that an occasional steam face bath is splendid for cleaning the pores of the skin and preventing the formation of blackheads.

Before Retiring
Every night before retiring wash the hands with soap and hot water, putting a pinch of borax in the water. Rinse and dry thoroughly. Then rub in camphor cream jelly.

Are the Children Irritable?
Before you deal too severely with your little sons and daughters because they are irritable or because they do poorly in their studies be sure that it's not some defect in their physical condition that is to blame.

How to Use Face Powder
A pure face powder will do no harm, but it should be dusted on lightly, and well-washed out of the skin at night. It is advisable to apply an invisible cold cream first, then wipe off the surplus before using powder.

A Clear Complexion
Keep the complexion clear by maintaining good health and cleanliness by the frequent bathing and rubbing of the whole body. Eat simple, wholesome food, go to bed betimes, exercise in the air, and bathe often.

If after thoroughly sweeping the dust from small rugs they are wiped with a clean cloth wrung out of strong ammonia water, it will make them look as bright and fresh as new, and it does not take long to do it.

For ivory knife handles that have become bright and sharp as they do, try rubbing with lemon juice and salt, and when they are clean wash them off and polish with a soft dry cloth.

If the punctation to be used at the seashore is stuffed with lamb's wool the pins will not rust, but will remain bright and sharp as they do at home where the atmosphere is dry.

THE TIGER LILY

Once upon a time all of the lilies (white) that grew in a garden and they were all a pure white. They danced together in the sunlight, and played together in the moonlight, and were all very happy. One day a naughty fairy came to the garden and told the lilies she would show them the wonders of the big world if they would leave the garden and go with him. He told them how beautiful it was out in the world, and that he would take good care of them.

Just then a good fairy came along and told them they would be much happier to stay in their own garden, so all of the lilies but one decided to stay. One of the lilies followed the bad fairy out of the garden and down the path that led out into the world. After a little he began to rain very hard and the poor little lily was soon covered with wet and mud and was very tired and wanted to go back home. But the bad fairy said: "You cannot go back now, after you have seen this, nor can you ever be white again, now that you have left your garden."

So the poor, foolish lily's face was covered with spots, and ever after that it was called a tiger lily, and

"CATTLE KING'S" GRANDDAUGHTER, BROKER'S BRIDE, IS MISSING

Following is a translation of a staff reporter's description of experiences when ordered by his superior to get either a photograph or sketch of the German trenches but a dozen or fifteen from the French outposts:

"There are some German trenches," he said, "within fifteen paces of ours. Soon this situation will change. In any case, before taking anything against them, just know them well. I wish you to see them, and to bring me sketches or photographs. Go under cover while doing your commissioned officers, who was through a loophole, was killed all right in the forehead."

"Where is Mrs. Harper Lake, who was Miss Margaret Stiff, of McKinney, Texas, the daughter of Mr. Clint Stiff and the granddaughter of the late Captain E. R. Stiff, known for many years as the 'cattle king' of Texas? The foregoing question is one which Mrs. L. L. Elliott, of McKinney, Texas, her aunt, and Mrs. Wm. M. Shipley, of New York city, would like to have answered. While two relatives of Miss Margaret Stiff have established a record of her marriage to Harper Lake, of Lake Brothers, New York, cotton brokers, they have had no message from the girl or her husband.

But Sometimes There Are "Bad" Enemies who are Always Sniping—So a French Officer Whistled a Popular German Song and the "Good" Saxons Pop Up from Their Trenches Fifteen Paces Away and Group Themselves for a Picture.

Where is Mrs. Harper Lake, who was Miss Margaret Stiff, of McKinney, Texas, the daughter of Mr. Clint Stiff and the granddaughter of the late Captain E. R. Stiff, known for many years as the 'cattle king' of Texas? The foregoing question is one which Mrs. L. L. Elliott, of McKinney, Texas, her aunt, and Mrs. Wm. M. Shipley, of New York city, would like to have answered.

"Hush! Speak low," the lieutenant said to me, before I had uttered a single word. "They are there, quite close, fifteen paces off, and they are watching us. If, by misfortune, one of us appears above the parapet of the trench, they fire; if one of us moves behind a loophole, they fire; at the least noise, they fire. Be on the lookout!"

But I wished to get an idea of what could be seen of the enemy's line from our trench. I went to a loophole stopped by a plug of straw, which is only taken out after nightfall. Through the interstices I perceived nothing but a mass of dead branches entangled with barbed wire. But the officers obligingly lent me a periscope, and then I was able to distinguish, a little beyond the felled logs which protect the open space beyond our parapet, a slight rising of newly broken earth; it is the German trench.

"Don't look too long!" the lieutenant whispered in my ear. "They really knock your periscope over. Let us avoid attracting their attention as far as possible!"

"But how do you expect me to draw anything in that case?"

At this point, the blond sub-lieutenant intervened, addressing his superior officer:

"Have you noticed, mon lieutenant, that, during the whole of this morning, the Germans have not fired a single shot at us? Perhaps the 'good' boys are on duty today!"

"Perhaps!" replied the lieutenant; "but last night it was the 'bad' boys. They kept sniping at us all the time. Have they been relieved already?"

I looked at the officers in natural bewilderment. What did they mean by "good" and "bad" boys? At my question, they smiled.

"You must know," said one of them, "that behind the barricade facing us there are two kinds of Germans. At one time the evil-minded Prussians: grenades, bombs, rockets, shells from the mine-throwers, everything suits them that bothers us. At other times, it is the Saxons, who, in contrast with the Prussians, habitually leave us at peace. You could not wish to meet better boys! Let us try to find out! Don't make any noise!"

Then in the midst of a profound silence he began to whistle the first notes of a popular song, such as the students sing in the fine evenings of July:

Drunken Im Unterland,
Eh! da let's so wunderschon.
Then he stopped. We remained motionless. All at once—something surprising! another voice rises, taking up the last notes of the song and finishing it:

Eh! da let's so wunderschon;
Da mocht' ich Jager sein.
And this voice rises from the German trench. I cannot believe my ears. However, just beside me, a soldier exclaims:

"Hullo! A German! That's the first one I've seen alive since the war started."

"Shut up, you duffer!" the lieutenant scolded familiarly. "Do you want them to bombard us?"

"I see two now, mon lieutenant!" the soldier continues, turning a deaf ear to the scolding; "and one of them is wearing a green cap with something shining on it! He's a sport, all right!"

We all look towards the enemy's trench. With the periscope, I distinguish two German heads rising above the parapet of their trench. One of them is wearing a gray infantry cap with a red line on it; the other a gray-green cap of the machine-gunners.

The Germans on their side saw our imprudent soldier's blue cap. They called out good-naturedly:

"In Morgen, Kamerade!"

Other heads began to appear. I counted three, four, five. One of them was wearing a peaked cap, an officer. It appeared just the right moment for me to get a document at once useful and curious. I handed my kodak to our sub-lieutenant, who, at that moment, was looking over the parapet. He showed it to the Germans, saying: "Photographieren?"

"Ja, ja!" they answered enthusiastically, and the broad faces broke into smiles.

I immediately wedged my feet into the edge of our shelter, and the upper half of my body above the parapet. I pointed the camera at the German trench. Click! It is done. A salute to messieurs the enemy, and I jumped back into my hole.

"Danke!" they called to us.

They were very pleased. Then one of them threw a packet of cigarettes towards us. It struck against the rim of our parapet, and fell back into the middle of the cut wood. The German then leaped from his shelter, picked up the packet and handed it to us.

"Hullo! No! Let him get back into his burrow!" Our lieutenant had to threaten him with his revolver to make him go. The Germans disappeared. The conversation was ended.

Then we exchanged our impressions of this strange adventure. Franco-German relations of this kind are rare enough, but not wholly exceptional. Our general orders forbid our soldiers to enter into prolonged conversations with the Germans. When the latter show that they are "good boys," perhaps we may be able to get some useful information from them. But it is still more to be feared that our men, too frank, too good-hearted, might give us more information. And if our soldiers, in their trenches, lived on too good terms with their neighbors "across the way," when the order to attack came, perhaps they would go forward less eagerly to spit them.

CHEERFULNESS OF WOUNDED FRENCH SOLDIERS WINS AMERICAN'S PRAISE

How bravely the soldiers of France bear their wounds is told graphically in a letter just received in New York from a nurse now with the American Ambulance Hospital at Neuilly.

"Speaking of myself," she writes, "I can truthfully say that I have never been happier in my work. The first thing which struck me on arrival was the cheerfulness of the patients. Some of these poor fellows have been fearfully wounded. A good many had amputations of both legs and horrible face wounds, and yet they are so cheerful. Of course, the French are a light-hearted race.

"When one begins to think one cannot but be appalled at the awfulness of this war. These men are all so young—nineteen, twenty or twenty-one years of age—yet simply handicapped for life. And this is so with the other nations as well as with the French.

"Splendid work is being done here. The patients get excellent care and every comfort, and consequently the death rate is very low. To my mind the most marvellous part of this place is the dental department. I never realized before what wonderful work the American dentists were doing.

"Last week I took four of my men for a drive in the Bois and then to tea. This is the proper thing to do now. One of the boys had been here since November. He was shot through the jaw and chin. While being carried from the field he was holding up the lower part of his face. The Germans fired on the stretcher bearers. He was shot through the wrist, the ball passing through the hand. In consequence he has lost the use of that hand, for it is paralyzed. One of our surgeons fixed his face up wonderfully well. He was one of my guests.

"Another is slowly recovering from the freezing of his feet last winter. Instead of amputating, they have let nature take care of them, so it is that his toes are gradually dropping off. It is slow work, but much better than losing part of a foot, which would have happened if the surgeons had operated. A third has a big shoulder wound and had lost part of a hand. The last had both legs amputated. A well known Boston woman had supplied him with a wonderful pair of American artificial legs. Francois is therefore the pride of the ward. Every visitor is brought in to see him. These legs are perfectly splendid. He walks quite well, and when he sits down one would never know that they are artificial.

tical. These were my guests, and I do not know when I enjoyed anything more. They were as happy as children. "The country is beautiful here just now, and one almost forgets that we are in the midst of such an awful war. When I go to Paris, however, I can notice a great difference between the Paris of two years ago and that of today."

The writer of the letter was for several years connected with an important New York hospital, and she mentions how her associates, of whom there was a considerable group, are enjoying their new work for humanity.

The institution is now thoroughly equipped and is in perfect running order.

BISHOP SHOT BY PRIEST WHO REFUSED HIM APPOINTMENT

Winona, Minn., Aug. 27.—Right Rev. Patrick B. Heffron, bishop of the Winona Roman Catholic diocese, was shot and seriously wounded today by the Rev. Father A. L. Lesches, a priest, for whom the bishop had refused to procure an appointment. The bishop was shot once through the right lung and once in the hip. Physicians said he would recover unless complications set in. Father Lesches was arrested. Bishop Heffron was sitting reading in his library when Father Lesches entered and fired twice at him with a revolver.

The priest then returned to his room at St. Mary's College and locked himself in. He was arrested soon after by a sheriff, who forced entrance at the point of a revolver.

Father Lesches had been spending the last week at St. Mary's College, diocesan headquarters here, seeking an appointment which Bishop Heffron had refused to give him. Father Lesches is 46 years of age, of French birth, and came to this country in 1893.

CUT PRICES AND INCREASE OUTPUT FOR 1916 SEASON

The beginning of the 1916 automobile season is marked by the announcement of a $60.00 reduction on all Ford cars, with the probability of a substantial increase in the coming year's output. This generous cut became effective on August second, and is in harmony with the policy of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, to make the price of the car as low as possible, while still maintaining the established high standard of quality.

These lower prices were made possible in part by the increased manufacturing capacity of the factory at Ford, Ontario, and the increased facilities provided by the new assembling plants at Toronto, Montreal and London.

The lower prices have already resulted in increased sales. For example, at the Winnipeg Ford Branch, during the first four days that the new prices were in force, 50 cars were delivered and orders were taken for 40 more.

More and more the light strong motor car is becoming a utility instead of a luxury. It is expected that this will be a bumper year for Ford cars in Canada. With a good crop yield in view this fall, the expectations of the automobile producers are more and more than likely to be fulfilled.

MANY SEEK TO IMPROVE TIRES

Goodyear Company able to use very few of thousands of suggestions it receives.

"The modern pneumatic tire appears to be a pathetically frail and untrustworthy structure if the letters we receive every day from inventive geniuses may be taken as a criterion," says Boston branch manager, Walter Bliss of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron, O.

"The ignis fatuus of a perfect tire, non-puncturable and indestructible, is most alluring to minds of inventive trend. We receive daily suggestions and plans of safety valves, patent tubes, spring heels, tire air-cooling systems, armor-plate treads, and an endless procession of cure-alls for tire troubles.

"A large number is submitted by persons who are unfamiliar with tire construction. Ninety per cent of all the thousands of inventions offered us deal with a puncture-proof tire, the usual recommendation being that of a metal tread or a metal strip inside the tread. As a matter of fact, puncture-proof qualities, in comparison with other qualities which are imperative, are a minor point in tire construction, and are usually obtained by sacrificing some other desirable quality. Our investigations show that on a basis of 100 per cent for direct wear on a tire, eleven per cent will represent expense caused by punctures. With well-made tires the puncture evil is no longer a bugbear to the motorist.

"We take the time to answer each communication, giving the ideas advanced careful consideration, irrespective of the merits of the device offered. If the idea is faulty, we try to show the sender just wherein his suggestion cannot be used, and encourage him to write again. We have found that sometimes a person unacquainted with the technicalities of the subject, by reason of having a broad perspective rather than intimate knowledge, may hit upon very valuable ideas which the trained expert may overlook.

"But after examining the thousands of suggestions of improvements, the present pneumatic tire that we know, seems superior to the schemes for improving it, and the prospects are excellent for its remaining so for an indefinite period. We are able to use about one in every two hundred suggestions furnished us."

A person may be driving any one of the 141 makes of cars equipped with Willard batteries. Suppose his generator is charging too much or too little.
