SUCCESS in life is almost impossible for a man with bad breath. Nobody wants to do business with him. Nobody wants to associate with him. He is handicapped every-where. Offensive breath comes from Catarrh; metimes from Catarrh of the Stomach, sometimes of the lungs, sometimes of the head, nose, and throat. It is from Catarrh somewhere, and Catarrh is another name for uncleanness.

Many men understand this, and make every effort to cure it, but it is beyond the reach of ordinary practice.

No self-respecting man can ignore Catarrh. If he has it in any form he makes constant effort

There is something about the manner of life and the climate of Canada that seems to breed diseases of the mucous membrane. The Locals Win a 12-Innings Game With St. Thomas

While Chatham Defeats Hamilton After Playing Fifteen.

BASEBALL. WON IN THE TWELFTH.

It was a nerve-straining struggle a Tecumseh Park yesterday, when the home team won out in twelve innings. Quite a crowd of rooters and enthusi asts were present to cheer the locals on to victory, while St. Thomas was also well represented. Those in attendance had the satisfaction of witnessing one of the best games of the season. It was replete with heavy hitting, daring base running and the sharpest kind of fielding.

Lute Johnston was in the locals, and managed to keep the Sainst guessing for six inmings, only three hits being secured off him, all scattered singles. He had lots of speed, but was pounded considerably after the sixth. Kern puzzled the locals for a while, and actually had the teremity to strike out Jo-Jo Keenan. The fans thought this very cruel of him, and doubtless Jo-Jo did elso. In the matter of strike-outs the pitchers were about even. Umpire Daley made his appearance at yesterday's game, and satisfied the fans that he is the right man in the right place. While his judgment may have place. While his judgment may have been a trifle severe at times, neither team found occasion to enter any serious objection his decisions. Joe Knight made his pearance in a St. Thomas uniform, and played right field. He did some nice hitting, and accepted his one chance. He was given a hearty round of applause as he took his position.

The locals were easily disposed of in the first inning, but drew first blood in the second. Ward went to first on balls, stole second and came home on Lohman's hit to center field for three bases. In the visitors' half of this inning, Johnston struck out Rodden and Kern. In the fourth the home team again got into the game, and piled up two more runs. Carey drew a pass to first, stole second and went to third on a wild throw of the catcher to head him off at second. Ward hit to left, scoring Carey. Ward then stole second and came home on Johnston's hit to short, who fumbled the ball. The visitors squeezed in two runs in the seventh inning. Busse hit safe to in the ninth, and tied the score. Rodden hit a long drive to center for three bases. Pears, who is supposed, to bat in Kern's place at this juncture, but was easily bowled out by Twirler Johnston. Sheehan hit to center and scored Rodden. Excitement now ran high, and the faces of the St. Thomas enthusiasts took on a smiling appearance, which was a treat after pained look their countenances had worn before this period. Knight made a long drive, between center and right field, in the tenth inning, which was easily good for three bases, but he tried to convert it into a home run. and was nipped at the plate. threw to Mohler to return to Lohman. Kuehne here attempted to block Loh-

This had the desired effect, and two runs were added in the "glorious twelfth." Smink hit for two bases to right, and Laroque followed with a two-bagger to center, scoring Smink. Carey hit to pitcher, who threw wild to first, and Laroque made a dash home and scored. The Saints started in to wipe out this lead in the last half, and all but tied the score. Lyons hit for three bases to right field, and Knight followed with a nice two-bagger to center, scoring Lyons. Knight went to third on a single, but died there. The game was well fought, and proved a well-earned victory. Smink's base stealing was reckless. He should follow the coacher's advice a little more, and would not be caught so often. Bcore:

DOWN GO RATES

Passenger Tariff War Declared in the West.

Eastern and Southern Lines Are Also Affected.

Chicago, Aug. 6.-A passenger rate war that will affect directly every fare in the west, and indirectly half of the tariffs of eastern and southern lines, has been declared. Next Monday the rate between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis will be $8. The tariff now is $11 50. On the same day and thereafter until peace is declared the rate between Chicago and Omaha will be $9 25. The normal rate is $12 75. Tickets now may be purchased between Chicago and Kansas City for $10 50. The normal tariff is $12 50. It is expected that this rate will go down to $925 within a few days. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul took the initiative in the fight. Other lines have declared their intention of following their lead. Blame for the necessity for these reductions is placed by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul upon the Canadian Pacific. That line, the Milwaukee and St. Paul declares in its notice, brought about a war of rates to Alaska points. The application of these low rates-about 60 per cent below au-

Mr. Skea, who is a native of the Orkney Islands, is now 66 years of age, and is hale and hearty. A few years ago he was attacked with grip, which left in its wake acute rheumatism. For two months he was unable to work and suffered a great deal from this dread disease. He used several kinds of linaments, but to no avail. He took a second and finally a third, when he found that his old enemy was about routed. #### The British Army.

London, Saturday, Aug. 6, 1898.

The British army returns for 1897 just been issued, and contain Of these 74,500 are of 538,000 men in the United Kingdom. Of these the regular troops number slightly under 100,000, the reserves 82, militia 114,000, the yeomanry and the volunteers 230,000. The total cost of all the British forces at home and abroad is a little over $115, 000,000 a year. A regular costs annually $415, a reservist $50, a militiaman $73 50. and a volunteer $27 50.

Those who think Great Britain is not a first-class military as well as naval do not understand her military Britons can hold their own the tyranny of conscription, or France and Germany. Of course, they have been favored by nature above ontinental neighbors. Thanks to her insular position and naval supremacy. Great Britain finds home de fense an easy problem, and is free to throw the greater part of her forces into foreign and colonial territory. The continental powers must spend millions their frontiers for defensive operations. Great Britain can devote her energies almost entirely to the offensive. This adds to the effectiveness British army beyond all calcula-Besides, the British forces are small relatively as figures would The reservists are trained who have served with the Upon returning to civil pur suits they are paid a retaining fee, and are ready to spring to arms at a mo ment's notice. As has been aptly said, they are the finshed article kept in eady for use. The militiamen and yeomen are trained a month every year. The volunteers are instructed by regulars. At the outbreak of war, therefore. Great Britain would have nearly 200,000 seasoned soldiers at home, prepared to take the field at once, and 350,000 militiamen and volunteers with training, who would every day approximate to the condition of regulars. The military spirit is still active among the British people. Last year there were 33,000 recruits

The war department is considering plans for increasing the efficiency of the reserves by shortening the term of service to three years. It is believed this would attract to the reserves thousands of those who are now content to serve as militiamen and volunteers. By democratic methods such as these, British military power and glory can be preserved without the despotism which threatens liberty in her contipental rivals.

Again Evangelists.

The British Weekly, in a recent issue, publishes the first series of answers to set of questions on the effect of evangelistic missions, in bringing accessions to the churches, and their influence on the spiritual life of the congregations

A glance over the answers referred to shows the complexity of the question, and the varied points of view from which it can be viewed. The strongest statement of the favorable answer comes from Edinburgh, and is given in this qualified form: "There are missions and missions, missionaries and missionaries, but given the right man and the right time, evangelistic campaigns, even although they are not conducted under the aegis of any particular church, invariably do the churches good." This is a statement of faith by one speaking from large experience, but at the same time there is much stress to be laid on "the right man and the right time." Another tells us: "These gigantic missions have indeed acted as a stimulant upon the spiritual life of the churches, but stimulants in overstrong doses are rather dangerous. Many ministers have suffered many things at the hands of many professional evangelists, who have displayed a tendency to disparage any kind of spirituality which was revivalistic in its manifestations." We are told that at one mission nearly 100 names were taken down of people who professed "conversion," and that a year after "nearly all the leaders were present, but not one could tell of a member gained or retained."

But, on the other hand, a church vis- America for funds to enable her to molety of the century. Presently the lited by the same missioner seven years return to Paris. This sentimental and Queen of England will assume her ago, still retains lively memories of the blessings received. As to injury received by the churches through such special services, the testimony is also various. Where it is claimed that the results were wholly beneficial, it is stated that special care was exercised in the conduct of the services. In some cases serious harm is reported through spurious excitement and artificial rapwhile one writer concludes his report with the words: "As to injurious effect on the life of the church, I have never experienced any, unless the tento depreciate the ordinary pastorate be an injury, and perhaps it is." The word "perhaps" here weakens the statement, and suggests weakness or the part of the witness. We have, however, given sufficient

of the subject. No brief formula can upon men and moods, places and circumstances. In free lands there must be liberty for the preaching of the gospel, and occasional rudeness or fanaticism is, after all, a small price to pay for such a blessing. Even the highest work has its limitations and dangers, and the minister must be wise man who can avoid vulgar sensationalism and feeble fastidiousness, or stiff, narrow officialism, and a weak pandering to every novelty. It is a responsible thing to undertake such services, and it is also responsible to oppose them. Each case must be settled on its own merits in the spirit of Christian charity. Special services must grow out of the real life of a congregaand not be a mere attempt to galvanize it from the outside. The delusion is that such services can be device for avoiding work and achieving high results by short and easy methods. They call for more work both before and after, and only ion that understanding can they bring real adrantage. But all reasonable men will admit that a loss of faith in the quie regular ministrations of the church is too high a price to pay for even time of great excitement. Wholesom excitement must then be defined as that quickening of emotion which braces men for common duties, and quickens em a keener percention of th Presence which gives real meaning and sacredness to daily life.

Father Chidwick, Catholic priest with the American army in Porto Rico, is evidently a man of sound sense. When two resident Jesuits appealed to the American general for aid toward the churches of the district, they were told that the United States gave no state aid to any church. Father Chidwick emarked that it was better so, as it taught the church to be self-reliant. This is a sentiment that all ecclesiastical authorities should subscribe to. Disestablishment would invigorate the Church of England in England, and save it from such reproaches as have peen cast upon it by the Hooley trial for instance. It came out that one of Hooley's chief assets was a church living. Many of these livings are the personal property of profligates, who great church-too great to need state props. A BRITISH TRIBUTE. Mr. Henniker Heaton, who has fought single-handed (of the imperial penny postage), has now reaped the first fruits of victory. But the credit for actually bringing the question to an issue belongs to the Canadian Government, which proposed penny post-age last autumn. The policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Ministry is being rapidly justified by success. Their aim all along has been to draw Canada into closer relations with the Mother Country, and during their term of of-fice trade has been steadily improv-We believe that in the near future Canada will develop rapidly, and will take a more and more important place in the world. BISMARCK'S CONTEMPORARIES. The death of Bismarck at the age of 83 is not an event that disturbs the world, but it is an event that awakens the thought of the world to the appreciation of a great statesman. In the latter half of this century there have been but four men to compare with the German—Cayour, who did for Italy what Bismarck did for Germany, but who, with an inferior race, could not parallel the greatness of the German's achievement; Gladstone, who had been the principal force in the development of England; Pope Leo XIII. who has brought the Papacy up to its

dent Near Port Burwell.

Aylmer, Aug. 6.-A sad accident occurred near Port Burwell about 10 o'clock Wednesday evening. While Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Marlatt and son were returning from a visit to Port Burwell, Mr. Marlatt got out of the buggy to water the horse. The animal became frightened and ran away. Mrs. Marlatt escaped by jumping from the rig, but the little boy was killed, dying in three or four minutes. A correspondent writes: Mr. James Marlatt, wife and son, of Calton, and Mrs. Wilson, of Springfield, were returning from the camp meeting at Port Burwell, on Wednesday night. Mr. Marlatt undertook to water his horse at Mr. Elliott's, removing the bridle. The horse started and ran up the first concession. Mrs. Wilson jumped after riding about a mile, and was hurt about the arm and side. Mrs. Marlatt rode another mile, and then, taking her child in her arms, jumped also. The child was picked up in front of Fred Saxton's, with its mother, and carried into the house. The child died in about ten minutes, Dr. Johnston, of Port Burwell, was soon there, but the little boy, age 7 years (the only son), had departed. Mrs. Marlatt and Mrs. Wilson have no bones broken, but are severely bruised.

Aunt Mary's

The other evening Aunt Mary took the electric cars and rode eastward to the house of her niece who a few weeks previously had just commenced housekeeping. Without ceremony the old lady entered the house and found her niece in the kitchen looking very much dejected. Aunt Mary soon discovered that her niece had tried to dye an old cream opera shawl a cardinal red with some poor cheap dye. The result was certainly enough to test the patience and goodness of an angel. A miserable mixed color, half red and half brown, was the result of labor. Aunt Mary deeply sympathized with her horrorstricken niece, and advised her in future to use nothing but the Diamond Dyes that had given her such satisfaction and profit for over 20 years. The unsightly, variegated shawl was then washed in several waters in order to get rid of the horrid colors, and was then put into a bath of Diamond Dye Fast Cardinal Red for Wool. It is now a thing of joy and beauty.

Mr. Kingston said the 30 days would expire before the next meeting of the council, and Ald. McCallum withdrew his motion in favor of Ald. Graham's. He was anxious that they should deal with both companies.

The mayor left the chair to speak to the motion. He strongly urged the council to say at once whether or not they were willing to make any concessions to the People's Company. Employes had to be retained at expense to the company, and/if the council intended to refuse them the franchise, they should say so at once. It should be beneath their dignity to dilly-dally in order to use these men as tools. Ald. McPhillips also spoke of the trouble the People's Company had been put to, and said it was most unfair to keep them in the present position. Definite action should be taken at once. They should express their opinion whether or not they were willing to help the company any further. Ald. Stevely thought it a great mistake to lose any opportunity of securing competition, but believed it would facilitate the matter to refer it to a special committee, which he moved.

"That's absurd," said Ald. Graham. Ald. O'Meara said the only object he could see for sending it to a special committee was to put it in the hands of the friends of the People's Telephone Company.

Ald. Winnett insinuated that there must be some motive in moving a special committee. He did not say what the "motive" was, but resented the "slur" on No. 1 committee. It was suggested that the People's Company might accept the terms of the Bradstreet's review says: Hot weath-

Toronto reports the outlook for the Manitoba wheat crop as improved. more active, and Northwest lumber camps working all summer, an unus-ual feature in this industry. Hot weather has checked trade at Montreal, an exception to this being business in fruit, which is very active. A satisfactory business is doing at Victoria and Vancouver, with the jobbing trade larger than a year ago. Business in the Maritime Provinces is quiet, and re-ports that the fisheries are not encouraging. Canadian bank clearings for July aggregate $123,653,873, 18 per cent larger than in July a year ago, while for the seven months they aggregate $798,796.633 26 per cent in excess of last year and larger than any correspond-ing period on record. Canadian failures number 23. as against 34 last week, and 41 in this week a year ago. Dun's review says of Canadian trade: With excellent crop reports on the whole Canadian business seems to be still waiting, although fair in volume and without much complaint on the whole, in regard to the collections. St. John reports trade no more active than it has been, but fair for this time of the year, with collections slow. Halifax reports a decrease in the volume of business, although promising crops indicate an average autumn trade, and collections show a slight improvement, but renewals are still frequent. Quereports a fair volume of business without much complaint about collec tions. Montreal reports that the 4th was a heavy day for drygoods settlements, of which a good proportion was met and general remittances are satisfactory. Crop prospects have seldom been better, and the expectation of the fall trade are excellent. Money is easy. Toronto notes fair trade in sugar and canned goods, and larger demand for hardware, metal and building materials than usual at this season, though wool and nides are dull. Hamilton reports fair general business, with but little demand for grain. At Winnipeg business remains quiet without special feature in jobbing or retail trade, but crop prospects make the outlook more promising. Wholesale trade at Victoria exceeds in volume that of last year, and weather conditions favor retail trade in drygoods. At Vancouver trade in leading lines is steady, but at retail

ON THE OTHER SIDE. Bradstreet's weekly review says: The stimulating influence of the apparently near approach of peace, coupled with the generally expected beneficial benefits it is hoped will follow from the opening of new markets in the lands added to the national domain, seem to increase as the summer wanes. That the improvement, while as yet admittedly one largely of sentiment, is not entirely so confined, however, is proven by reports of a still further increased distribution of staple goods in the west, northwest and southwest, where the excellent crop situation has rendered harmless the supposed benumbing effects of war. So far as the crop situation is concerned the past week furnishes not the least notable contribution of the year in reports coming from the great surplus corn producing states of beneficial rains, checking a demand which threatened material damage to this most widely grown and intrinsically valuable of the country's cereals. While the tendency is generally to cohcede some diminution in the corn yield as a result of the recent drought, the steadiness of the price of that cereal bears witness to the willingness of the trade to believe that some falling off in this year's yield can safely be permitted in view of the bumper crops of recent years. Another encouraging feature of the week has been the perceptible growth in strength of the iron and steel situation, partly as the result, it is claimed, of the hoped-for approaching close of hostilities, but partly also as the result of an active demand on domestic and foreign account for nearly all forms of these metals. Particularly noticeable is the demand, more especially in the central west, for iron for agricultural implement manufacturers, and for steel rails and plates for export or for domestic shipbuilding. Firmness in prices is a feature of particular interest in view of the enormous production of pig iron early in the year, and apparently reflects the going into consumption of most of the immense production, leaving stocks generally within controllable limits. Encouraging export demand for our cereals, great steadiness of prices, largest recorded midsummer bank clearings, and fairly encouraging railroad earnings, notwithstanding the unwillingness of farmers to accept present cereal values, are additional encouraging features of trade at the present time. Business failures in the United States are at a minimum, numbering 189, identical in number with those of last week, but comparing with 214 in this week a year ago, 269 in 1896, 209 in 1895, and 197 in 1894. Wheat shipments for the week (flour included as wheat) aggregate 4,111,312 bushels, as against 2,271,872 bushels last bushels in this week a year ago. Since July 1 this year, the exports of wheat the week aggregate 2.856,923 bushels. as against 2,601,821 last week, and 2,223,-885 in 1897. Since July 1 this year, exports of corn aggregate 13,516,392 bushels, against 12,461,206 last year. R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade says: "Failures were in number fewer in July than in either of four preceding years, and in amount of liabilities smaller than in any year excepting the last, when July failures were the smallest in any month on record. Most industrial works have resumed after a short vacation, with fewer participating than usual. A few labor troubles only call attention to the fact that this season has been remarkable free from such hindrance. In spite of a promise of 700,000,000 bushels wheat, including 300 spring this year, the price is 21/2c higher for the week. The disposition of farmers to hold back their wheat for prices more like those obtainable recently accounts for receipts 36 per cent, smaller than last year, but exports, including flour, were 3,641,647 bushels, against 2,530,725 for the same week last year, is extremely low, but exports at the present rate throughout the year have little lifting power if the crop is about 300,000,000 bushels more than home needs for seed and food. Corn exports for the week have been only 1.-734,347 bushels, against 2,725,000 last year, though the price has scarcely cure it for you.

HOBSON'S STORY

His Harbor Exploit as Told by Himself.

Gives Cervera Credit for Saving His Men's Lives.

All Right in the Water-Discovered at Daybreak-Their Treatment Aghore.

The full details of the trip of the collier Merrimac into the mouth of Santiago harbor have at last been made known. Lieut. Hobson, the hero of the expedition, and the only man who could speak with authority, refused to discuss the subject for publication on his recent visits to New York. To a party of naval friends, with whom he dined one evening, he spoke most freely of the venture and of his narrow escape

"It was dark when we started in toward the strait," said Lieut. Hobson, "and it was much darker when we got the ship into position. We all knew that we were taking desperate chances, and in order to be unencumbered when we got into the water, we stripped down to our underclothing. The ship gave a heave when the charge exploded, and as she sank with a lurch we got over her sides. That we got into the water is nearly all we know of what happened in that brief period. Some sprang over the ship's sides, but more than one of us was thrown over the rail by the shock and the lurching of the ship.

PLAN OF ESCAPE.

"It was our plan to escape on a catamaran float, which lay on the roof of the midship house. One of the greatest dangers of the thing was that of being caught in the suction made had hold of me. He looked at me to the Fortnightly Review information by the ship as she went down, so we tied the float to the taffrail, giving it been down in the engine-room of the sically, the Tagals are, she tells us, of slack line enough, as we thought, to Merrimac, when I got covered with a markedly Malay type, having smooth let it float loose after the ship had settled into her resting place.

My treatment were plainly visible, and I could see the by the naval officers-and that of my ds of my seven men as they followed my example and made for the float I was a prisoner. They heard my story

"Before we could get to the float several rowboats and launches came around the bluff from inside the harbor. They had officers on board and armed marines as well, and they asked permission to send a note to searched that passage until the next morning. It was only by good luck that we got to the float at all, for they were upon us so quickly that we had would not permit me to send it. The drunkenness, although this he deeply barely concealed ourselves when a boat admiral seemed greatly worried, but it with quite a large party on board was beside us.

SAVED BY A RAFT.

"Unfortunately, we thought then, but it turned out afterward that nothing more fortunate than that could have happened to us, the rope with which we had secured the float to the ship was too short to allow it to swing free, and when we reached it we found that one of the pontoons was entirely out of water and the other one was submerged. Had the raft lain flat on the water we could not have got under it, and would have had to climb upon it, to be an excellent target for the first party of marines that arrived. As it was, we could get under the raft, and, by putting out hands through the crevices between the slats which formed its deck, we could hold our heads out of water and still be unseen. That is what we did, and all night long we stayed there, with our noses and mouths barely out of water. None of us expected to get out of the affair alive, but luckily the Spaniards did not think of the apparently damaged, half-sunken craft floating about beside the wreck. They came to within a cable's length of us at intervals of only a few minutes all night. We were afraid to speak above a whisper, and for a good while, in fact whenever they were near us, we breathed as easily as we could. I ordered by men not to speak unless to address me, and with one exception they obeyed.

'After we had been there an hour or two the water, which we found rather warm at first, began to get cold, and facts and conclusions set forth by them are well worth marking. It is well known that the only sections of the native in abitants of the islands, which have been completely subdued, converted to Christianity, and domesticated, are the Tagals in Luzon and some of the Visayas, who occupy the smaller islands between Luzon and Mindanao. Although the Philippines have been for over three centuries a Spanish possession, it is computed that at the present day one-fifth of the population even of Luzon and one-fourth that of the Visayan Islands are still and I shouted in Spanish again: "I unsubjected to Spain, while in Mintinued swimming, and when I reached the side of the launch I was seized and

The character of the domesticated Tagal is described in the words of one of their priests: "They are big children whom one must treat as little ones." When in the interior he is called upon to show hospitality to strangers, he gives it lavishly and refuses to accept any payment in return. Endowed with great physical bravery, he does not hesitate to plunge into waters infested with sharks or alligators. Under leaders in whom he has confidence, he makes an excellent soldier: but losing them, he becomes at once demoralized. He is incapable of organization on any considerable scale, consequently no revolt, if confined exclusively to the Tagals, would have a chance of success. As regards their social organization. we should note that the domesticated Tagals have been permitted to retain, to a great extent, their own tribal government. To the head men of the several tribal communities are intrusted the offices of mayor, magistrate and tax collector. We remark next that the Tagal laws relating to the property of married persons are entirely in favor of the wife. The property of a bride is never settled on the husband. If a husband becomes bankrupt in a business in which he has invested some of his wife's money, she ranks as a creditor under the commercial code. Even on her death the husband cannot, save under a deed executed by her in the presence of a notary, derive had gone out to tell our fleet that my any benefit from her estate. thus debarred from the staple industry of the cities, various kinds of work usually performed by women fall to their share. It is they, chiefly, for example, who manufacture and embroider the gauze tissue made from the long, silky fibre of the pineapple plant; it is they, also, who weave on primitive hand looms the striped gauzes made from Chinese silk, and the hempen abaca. In Tagal homes, too, while the wife is earning out of doors the family bread, or rather rice, the husband looks after the children and cooks the dinner. As it is very difficult to get women to act as nurses and maids, it is not uncommon for European families to employ boys for the purpose. Irregular unions are extremely frequent, partly owing to the exorbitant marriage fees exacted by the clergy. THE GENTLE JAPANESE. To those whose duty or pleasure calls Three centuries of intercourse bethem into the busy thoroughfares of tween European men and native wolarge cities and whose ears are assailed men, and also between the latter and with the shocking expressions with the numerous Chinese immigrants, have which many of the passers-by delight to garnish their language, Japan should be a terrestrial paradise—for the added to the original population great many half-breeds representing every degree of admixture. the Philippines no sharp line of demarcation is drawn between race and classes, the social position of these half-breeds is somewhat equivocal, though vastly superior to that of the Eurasians in British India. It is said to be a fact that the increase of energy introduced into the Philippine native by European blood last only to the second generation. Left to himself, the tendency of the mestizo is always to revert to the maternal type. The Tagal is too indolent and the hold upon civilization upon him too slight to make anything higher than municipal selfgovernment possible in these islands. A similarly unfavorable view of the Tagal's capacity for self-rule is taken by Mr. John Foreman in the article which he contributes to the Contemporary Review. After pointing out that Gen. Aguinaldo desires to set up local republic and proposes to convoke at Manila a congress, to which deputies from all the principal islands shall be invited, Mr. Foreman does not hesitate to prophesy that unless it is launched under American or European control the scheme will end in utter failure. It is not disputed that at first the islanders would welcome any arrangement which should promise to rid them of monastic oppression. It is pronounced certain, however, by this first-hand observer that the Philippines would not remain one year a peaceful united archipelago under an independent native government. There is such racial antipathy that the Visayas would not in this generation submit to Taga domination, and the Tagals, having helped to bring about the overthrow of the Spaniards, would resent a preponderance of Visayan influence. Even the Tagals, collectively considered, are little suited for concerted action. The rivalry for prestige at the present day between one Tagal village and another in the same district is sufficient to prove the tendency to disintegrate. Then, again, the question would arise, Who should be the electors? The masses are too ignorant to be capable of voting intelligently; the votes, therefore, would be entirely controlled by cliques of landowners. Moreover, if the native commonwealth did succeed in averting anarchy at home, Mr. Foreman is confident that it would not be strong enough to protect itself against foreign aggression. So boundless are the resources of the islands they are well worth picking a quarrel for, and spending a good many millions of dollars in the effort to secure them. In a word, what would happen would be this: An unprotected native republic, claiming the allegiance of the whole archipelago, would last only until the novelty of the situation had worn off. Then every principal island would in turn declare its independence. Finally, nothing but the intervention of the United States or of some European nation could prevent utter chaos. Mr. Foreman believes that Gen. Aguinaldo is alive to these facts, and that in his assertion of temporary authority he desires only to make sure of the expulsion of the friars, which was the principal aim of the last insurrection, as it is also of the present uprising. Mr. Foreman insists that if a protectorate be the expedient ultimately adopted, the control exercised by it should be a very direct one. might be a chamber of deputies, he thinks, with a native presiding officer, in which assembly all races should be represented by men of their own class. Executive powers, however, should be 24 Part lot. N Dundas st., 110 ft.

DORINDA ST., east side vested in a protector number of advisers, all of whom should be Americans; in no case should the finances be confided to a native. Among the most pressing legislative measures which should follow a drastic reform of the administration, Mr. Foreman mentions the improvement of the port of Iloilo and the opening of some ten other ports to the world; the working of the coal beds, marble deposits and stone quarries; and the construction of railways in Luzon, Panay, Negros, Cebu and Mindanao Islands. Road-making and bridge-making would also have to be undertaken on a large scale, and could be paid for by toll concessions; the railway's also, he thinks, would be built by private corporations, if they could obtain nineteen years' working concessions and 99 years' leases of the adjacent lands. Mr. Foreman has no doubt that, under a protectorate, capital would flow from all parts of the world into the Philippines; still more certainly would this result follow our annexation of the islands. He says, finally, that the possibilities of development under a free, liberal government are so great that the next generation will look back with astonishment at the statistics of 35 the present day.-New York Sun.

This belliant talker, this inveterate chatterer was silent after we passed through the gate. What was the matter with him? What was he hiding from me? Not a word did he speak as we hurried through Gentilly—pillaged and deserted. A dog bounded out in front of our horses, waking the echoes with his barks. My friend drew a pistol and fired; the dog leaped into the air and fell dead. You are a little nervous this morn-

Those who did not suffer from the great shipwreck of '70 cannot comprehend what Bazaine's name represented-the heroic Bazaine, as Gambetta called him-the spur which he was to our courage; the black night into which his defection plunged us. The incident which stands out most clearly is the memory of the marvelous change effected upon the careless and the laughing faces of the soldiers as my friend went among found him lying across his bed, the them telling them his mournful news. firing hung over all.

It was evening. The commandant was seated in the little hut which now served him as a lodging place. There was a knock, and a man entered. He was a new arrival, and had been sent to take the place of a captain who had had an arm torn from his shoulder by a shell. His face was pale and convulsed with suffering.

"My commandant," he said passionately, "I am a dishonored man! There is nothing for me but to die." "De L-, my friend, what is it?"

"It is-oh, shameful to tell! During an attack upon the bastion, fear seized me-the firing took me by surprise-I was afraid! There! I have never known war-only once, in Mexico, and that was nothing serious. Under this hailstorm of shot, after two or three assaults, I lost my head and became confused. I saluted a howitzer shell-and the men saw me. I heard them laugh. Since then-all is at an end! There is something between my men and mesomething impalpable, yet not to be mistaken. A song is going about; it is sung to the tune of Barbanchu; you doubtless have heard the words. Whereever I go I hear this song, or imagine I hear it. Oh, my God! Night and day

Women who would shudder at the risks of a gymnastic performance take vastly more dangerous chances by trusting their life and health to the advice of some incompetent, uneducated person, when they are suffering from weakness or disease.

Only a skilled, experienced physician is competent to prescribe remedies for the complicated ailments of the feminine organism. No mere nurse is fitted to deal with diseases which demand the utmost resources of medical science.

For nearly 30 years Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief onsulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., has given special, expert attention and study o the treatment of women's diseases. No physician in the United States has had nore remarkable success in this particular

He put his hand affectionately on the young man's shoulder, and said all that he could to console that stricken soul. He told him that only friends were around him, and at Montrouge they did not love cowards. Why, then, talk of coward-ice? And was there anyone who had not ducked at a howitzer shell? There

WHY ACTRESSES

Fanny Davenport's Illness Attributed to the Ordeal She Endured to Get Rid of It.

The present fliness of Fanny Davenport, which has continued now for several months, has been attributed by some persons to a strain she underwent about fifteen years ago, and they believe that the weakness which has made her unable to struggle against the disease that now threatens to end her life came from the heroic efforts she made at one time to reduce her weight. She had become a little too large to represent the youthful heroines of the plays in which she appeared, although she was always well proportioned and her facial beauty was not lessened by her increase in size. But the public is prompt to resent increasing weight in an actress. All the jokes that Sarah Bernhardt's thinness produced probably had little effect or her feelings compared to the distress that has been experienced by actresses who grow stout. No doubt Lara Bernhardt smiled when some wit remarked during her first London visits that the door of an empty carriage opened and Sara Bernhardt got out. But when it was said of Fanny Davenport that her Marguerite Gautier in "Camille" died of dropsy, not of consumption, she was really hurt. Her sensitiveness over her flesh was great. It finally served to drive her to one of the most heroic through the air, cases of flesh reduction that was ever known. Next to Amelia Summerville, spectators usu-ally think it is a Fanny Davenport produced the most terribly risky

Restored to her former size, she made the most notable successes of her career and began to accumulate the greater part of the large fortune she In 1883 is now supposed to possess. she retired for a year from the stage and went to Europe. During this per-iod she saw Sardou's "Fedora" and decided to acquire the rights to the play for this country. To act Fedora weighing as much as she did was quite out of the question. She studied the play and at the same time started to reduce her flesh by dieting. Astonishing stories were told of the 20mile walks which she took daily and of her abstinence from food. One story was that she ate for a period of three months only tomatoes dressed with vinegar and occasionally a little potato salad saturated with the same sour condiment. These stories were undoubtedly exaggerated, but her cure was strenuous enough to lose for her about 50 pounds. When she reappeared as Fedora in October, 1883, it was astonishing to the audience to observe the change in her figure. again slender and graceful, an almost faultless specimen of feminine physique. Her beauty, however, was never the same after the severe strain by which she recovered the lines of her figure. One effect of these reductions is the invariable haggardness which comes from the long lines made by the skin when the flesh has been removed. sole profession, get it up with a care So she was never as beautiful after and nicety which can seldom be equalthe reduction, although she was never again threatened with excessive stoutness. # Air in Liquid Form

Thing Known to Science.

Now It Is Produced by Its Inventor Charles E. Tripler, of New York-Wonderful Experiments Conducted by the Gotham Investigator, Scientist and Capitalist-It Is Now a "Real Live Force."

(Special Correspondence.)

New York, July, 1898 .- Liquid air, which is the air we breathe reduced to liquid form under high pressure, is about the coldest thing known to science. Except for a faint bluish tint, becoming more prenounced as the liquid evaporates, it looks like pure water. Each cubic foot of liquefied air represents about 748 cubic feet of ordinary air. All heat originally derived from the sun having been practically expelled during compression, in returning to its gaseous state immense power lies in its expansion. This power, of highest efficiency, is easily centrolled and utilized. Two distinct fluids are present, liquefied nitrogen and liquefied exygen. The normal temperature of liquid air is 312 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, or about 260 degrees colder than the perpetually frozen Arctic

During the past ten years Mr. Charles E. Tripler of New York has devoted his time to improving and cheapening the process of liquefying air, and experimenting with the fluid. His machines now liquely air at the rate of 40 gallons per day and the cost is less than 25 cents per gallen. Mr. Tripler expects to produce it at a much lower price. It will thus become of inestimable commercial value, and promises to revolutionize present agencies for refrigeration and production. Its general use would disconinue the demand for coal in the production of power. The new force is much more pewerful than steam and farther reaching in its possibilities than electrieity. Proposals from capitalists to develop his inventions have been showered upon Mr. Tripler, but his ewn large fortune will enable him to go forward without their aid. His apparatus, taking the heat from the air, creates a cold so intense that incoming air liquefles at atmospheric pressure. At the beginning steam power and a strong compressor forced air into a series of coils, minutes from the beginning of the Havid air pours from a faucet at the end of the route traversed. It is then passed into another apparatus producing a more intense cold, and the external air, driven by natural pressure through the inlet tube to fill the vacuum caused by cendensation, becomes liquefied.

It has been found difficult to confine the liquid for transportation. Mr. Tripler has succeeded in transporting it from New York to Boston and Washington, keeping it from evaporation for 36 hours, and now claims that it can be handled without danger if the gases are not confined. If by chance the tops of the cans were entirely closed the fluid would explode with terrific force, a gallon being sufficient to wreck a building of the strongest construction. Yet it may be dipped with an ordinary cup and poured from one vessel into another as one pours water; but if a tin dipper which had been immersed in liquid air for a few seconds should be dropped it would shatter like glass. A few weeks ago a number of scientific men were invited to witness Mr. Tripler's experiments. Among them were Dr. Cyrus Edson, Mr. James J. Pearson, an authority on explosives, formerly with the Armstrongs, warship builders; Mr. Herbert Tweddle, one of the constructors of the pipe line built by Great Britain across Sahara desert; Lieut. George Kuenzel, inventor of airships, and Mr. W. E. Munn, editor of the Scientific

During two hours a bewildering series of experiments were performed before these witnesses. A tumblerful of liquid air was poured into a tese tube about a foot long and a little mere than an inch in diameter. The top was closed with a cork through which three slender glass tubes two feet long passed. These were open at both ends and dipped beneath the surface of the fluid. This prepared tube was taken into the street and there immersed in a tumbler partly filled with water. The pressure of the "air steam" was so great that the cork could hardly be held in place and the liquid was forced through the small tubes in snowy jets rising amid clouds of vapor to a height of about 15 feet, and falling in a storm of snow and rain. If the test tube had been held in the hand the result would have been the same, but in a few seconds the hand would have been frozen. There is hence no doubt that liquid air would be of incalculable value in cooling rooms in summer. In the next experiment fire was frozen. A tea kettle partly filled with liquid air was placed over the intense heat of six Bunsen gas burners. It began instantly to boil. Noar the first kettle a second also partly filled with liquid air, was placed upon a cake of ice. This liquid air began to boil harder than that which was over the fire. On lifting the kettle from the fire a sheet of ice was found the bottom, thickest where the flames had been hottest. Dropping ice in the kettle made it boil harder, and a few ounces of water caused it to gurgle, spout and spit and the lid could be held on only with great difficulty. At the close of the experiment the kettle was inverted and lumps of ice were found incide, as dry as chalk. Scientists generated to run an orgin- The "steam"

Unquestionably It Is the Coldest | A tin lemonade shaker half filled with Thing Known to Science liquid air was slowly revelved in a pan of water. The casing of ice which immediately formed around it cracked with the intense cold. After repeated immersions an ice cup was formed, thick enough to handle after the tin cup had been removed. The ice cup was partly filled with liquid air into which Mr. Tripler dropped a lighted cigaret. With a single puff it was consumed, the ice cup remaining uninjured. A white-hot carbon rod was plunged into the liquid air in the cup. It burned with intense bright ness. Heat came through the ice which was not melted or cracked. A steel wire in the cup, lighted with a match, burned

EXPERIMENTS WITH LIQUEFIED AIR. like a fuse, the bottom of the cup being covered with pellets of steel. During this time the ice cup had been held on a linen handkerchief, which was found to be frozen so stiffly that it could be broken in the fingers. After remaining in the liquefied air for a few seconds an egg could be pounded into bits as fine as flour. Raw beefsteak yielded the same results. When taken from the liquid it was so hard that it rang like silver. Rubber after having been immersed a few seconds became as friable as glass. Leather, strange to say, was not affected

If into cream, sweetened and flavored, a spoonful of liquefied air be dropped six seconds of stirring will produce excellent ice cream. A nail may be driven into wood with a bar of mercury, frozen by having the liquid air poured over it.

The great explosive power of the fluid was shown by pouring a teaspoonful into a copper tube a foot long, and sealed at the bottom. A closely-fitting wooden plug was driven in the tep. Within four seconds, with a loud report, the plug shot up 200 feet above the surrounding buildings. Its possible use as an explosive n war can hardly be imagined. It may also be of great value in cooling guns in action. It may also be used as motive power in ships and may be safely handled in an ordinary engine. The vessel would be freed from the weight of coal, and the necessity for coaling stations would no longer exist. In submarine boats the motor would furnish all the air needed for breathing, pure and cold, and used in engines of aluminum and boilers of paper it may perchance solve the air-ship problem. The surrounding atmosphere would furnish all the heat needed,

When liquefled air is delivered to our houses in cans and bottles, coal and ice trusts may become things of the past. As germicide it will prove of immense value, as clothing may be disinfected readily by ite use. It is said that the molecules of oxygen are brought nearer mechanically in liquid air, hence any carbon body ignited in close contact to it will undergo oxydation instantly, resolving itself into its original gases. with explosive energy. It is expected to epen up a new field in the line of safe explosives, and is likely to be utilized as a pulverizer of refractory substances, as by its evaporation they are made excessively brittle in low temperatures, probably frem the shrinking apart of their

Mr. Tripler says that he resolved 25 years ago to devote his life to produce some power to supplant steam and electricity. After experimenting with many different substances and agencies he became satisfied that in liquid air could be found the power which would revolutionize the world. As a motive power, he now thinks, it is no longer a theory, but a "real live force which requires no conditional experiments."

BOWIE AS A SLAVE TRADER.

Pactics by Which He Beat the Law and Made Enormous Profits. The United States had not long suppressed the slave trade. There were plenty still of lowland planters, with money in both pockets, ready to buy whatever of "black ivery" other men would fetch in. Lafitte, the Louislana pirate, kept up the business of such fetching in. His haunts were ne great ways from the Bowie habitat. Moreover, young James was in the way of coming upon the pirate whenever the business of board rafting took him to New Orleans. He was too shrewdly American not to grudge such fair profits to a pack of foreigners. In company with his brother, Rezin Bowie, Jr., and two others of like adventurous minds he undertook to get a fair sharing in it.

Money was needed to begin. Bowle sold his land to get it. Then the four entered into treaty with Lastte. He sold them sound and likely blacks off his slaveships at the rate of $1 a pound. That made the average price something like $140 the In the open market the blacks would fetch from $500 to $1,000 each. But there was another and a better chance of gain, which the trading erew were quick to seize upon. Under the laws then standing all Africans brought in in violation of the statute were confiscated and sold out of hand, one half the price going to the authorities, the other to the informer. Bowie and his comrades made a practice of informing upon themselves; then when the slaves were seized and sold they bid them in, pocketed half the money they paid and found themselves free to offer their purchases wheresoever they chose, blacks were now lawfully within for the United States boundaries and a commodity as staple and as marketable as cotton. The profit was enormous-nobody ever bid against the partners at the forced sales, though there were a lively crying and swift mounting of prices at the later vendings. Altogether the company realized a profit of some $65,000 within a couple of years. But the business involved such mummery and flummery of false names, pretended disguises and pretended seizures that the Bowies pretty soon tired of it. They dissolved it, and at least set about spending as strenuously as they had gone about making .- Martha McCulloch-Williams in Harper's Magazine.

The End of a Famous Old Inn.

Hampstead folk and Londoners who find their way up to the heights of Hampstead for a breath of fresh air will have noticed that the famous "Jack Straw's Castle" is now in the hands of the builders. At present the old inn is supported with huge props and the lower part incased in scaffolding. This should be enough to raise an alarm among those who fly to the defense of historic buildings, for "Jack Straw's Castle," it is well known, has been frequented by some of our most famous celebrities, past and present. Here Dickens came for a well cooked chop and a bottle of good wine after a ramble on the heath. Washington Irving introduces the inn in his "Tales of a Traveler," and it has always been a hostelry beloved of artists. Here, too, the old courts leet were held. As a matter of fact. the ancient face of the "Castle hotel" is to be preserved, but the interior will be entirely changed, and the charm of the old inn will have passed away. The low rooms and bar will be replaced by loftier rooms and a modern bar. There must be many who have pleasant recollections of good dinners at "Jack Straw's Castle" after breezy walks on the heath, and many will mourn over the inevitable changes that modernize old cities .- Westminster Gazetta.

all, is it? If you begin on magazines, you'll think you have to keep it up. At the end of every year you'll want to have 'em bound. There's two volumes in a year. Costs $1 a volume for binding. That makes $6 a year. In ten years it's $50. Then you'll want a bookcase to hold the 20 volumes. That'll cost about $25, because you'll think it ought to be big enough to hold the 20 more volumes There's $85 thrown away. Do you think I'm made of money? emancipating him. At the first meeting of the Emancips tion society of the city of New York Hamilton attended at the request of Lafavette, who desired to become an honor-his slaves now. The members were astonished at the application of this severe test. Not one was willing to submit to it. Hamilton, seeing that his proposition met with general disapproval, took his last and left the building.-Exchange.

Played a Paying Game During the Civil War.

The Richest Harvests Were Reaped in the Closing Days of the Conflict-Boston's Exciting Experience With a Gang of New Hampshire Recruits.

When the civil war broke out and the call in the north went forth for volunteers, no bounties were paid, and nearly 1,000,000 men volunteered with no more pecuniary inducement than the regular army pay. After a time, however, volunteering languished, and to stimulate enlistments bounties were offered by the nation, the state and the cities and towns. This not bringing forward recruits in sufficient numbers, the draft was resorted to. Drafted men were paid smaller bounties or none at all, and this fact sent into the service as volunteers many who were liable to conscription.

Men who were drafted often, when able, procured substitutes, paying at first $100, then $200, then $300, and finally, as available substitutes grew scarce, much larger amounts. Many cities and towns obtained the recruits needed to fill their quotas under the various calls for troops by enlistments in other localities, as men who were willing to enlist wanted to be credited to the places that would give them the most money. The procuring of men to serve as substitutes and to make up deficient quotas grew into a business of itself, and a very profitable one at that. "Substitute brokers" quickly appeared in great numbers all over the north, and they made enormous profits by agreeing to fill quotas at so much per recruit, providing men whom they had induced to enlist on the payment of amounts much smaller than ose offered by the towns. One of the results of the payment of big bounties was the coming into existence of a class known as "bounty jumpers." The various bounties and gratuities toward the end of the war rarely aggregated less than $1,000 per recruit, and a great many hard characters took advantage of this national, state and municipal liberality by enlisting, getting the money and deserting at the first opportunity. It is on record that some of these men "jumped" their bounties as many as 20 times, each time clearing from $1,000 upward. Generally the desertions were effected at the state camps, where recruits were herded until called to the front. Sometimes, however, the bounty jumpers did not get away until they had been sent to regiments in the field. Unsually the deserters left singly, as opportunities arose, but once in awhile many would make a simultaneous break. An instance of the last mentioned sort occurred in Boston, which created a sensation at the time. On Aug. 21, 1864, 450 recruits for the First New Hampshire cavalry, under command of Major Cummings and guarded by a company of the Veteran Reserve corps, arrived in this city by special train from Concord. They had all been paid their big bounties the day before and were to sail from this port for Washington on the United States transport steamer Constitution. Arriving in the old Boston and Maine station at 11 o'clock in the morning, they were taken under convoy by a detachment of troops from the Beach Street barracks and a detail of police and started on their march to Battery wharf, where the Constitution lay waiting to receive them.

A great crowd, which, as The Herald of the next day averred, "consisted mainly of the lowest characters from north end, gathered around the detachment as soon as it left the station, and immediately it got into Haymarket square scores of the recruits threw away their knapsacks, blankets, coats, caps and canteens and started on the run in every direction, their escape heing covered by the toughs, who surrounded the guards and prevented them from firing on the deserters. The police pursued and caught a number of the fleeing men, whom they brought back to the officer in command, but about 85 succeeded in getting away. The remainder were marched down Blackstone to Commercial street and thence to the wharf, but on the way still more of them escaped from the ranks, while others flung away their clothing and equipments, until the pavement along the route of murch was fairly carpeted. Many hurled their canteens at the officers, and one lieutenant was struck over the head with a beer bottle and knocked senseless. At the wharf two men broke away and jumped overboard, and the guard fired as them, wounding one so badly that he was easily captured and killing the other, who immediately sank. It is hardly necessary to add that the steamer did not linger as the wharf after her unruly passengers were aboard. In the course of the afternoon ten of the deserters were arrested by the police. One was discovered to be an escaped convict who had been confined in the state prison at Charlestown for the murder of his mother. The others were all "tough citizens." with long records of crime and well known to the police in this and other cities. Five were found in the cellar of a liquor dealer on Hanover street, near the First station house, and a number of persons were arrested for secreting them.

Most of the deserters were never captured and got away to enlist again and jump more bounties.—Boston Herald. A Perfumed Darling.

I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done. for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES R. MURRAY.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

Eloquent Expression of the Old Boys' Sentiments by President Davis.

Addresses of Welcome by the Mayor | well known to all the visitors, marched. and Others-Names of Many of the Visitors-The Scene on the Train-The Day's Festivities.

The Old Boys own the city today. The people of London want them to feel there is no place like home. The Old Boys are distinguishable, not only by badges, but by the glad face and the glad hand, the outward and visible sign of the glad heart. They feel that it is good to be here. The Forest City is so lovely just now that perhaps a good many of them wished they had stayed here. The people of London rejoice to welcome them. They would like the Old Boys to make the visit permanent; if that isn't possible, they hope the Old Boys will do the next best thing, and continue to come every

Some of them come oftener. To others the return trip is like the awakening of Rip Van Winkle. Among the Old Boys who arrived with the Windsor and Detroit detachment today are T. J. Fortune, who went away 42 years ago; Charles Sullivan, 35 years ago; J. Thodoing in Canadas up to noon; spring mas, 35 years ago, and J. W. Absence makes the heart > only visible, but audible. There's music in the air. It is a long time since Lon-Guards' Band, the Queen's Own Brass Band, the Queen's Own Bugle Band, and the Royal Foresters' Band. They tion of Mr. Charles Smith. It is composed of young but excellent musicians, who look natty in their blue uniforms. Both of the Queen's Own corps are resplendent in their regimentals. The brass band is under Mr. Bayly; the bugle band under Mr. Swift. Royal Foresters' Trumpet Band is a mu-sical adjunct of the Independent Order of Foresters. The members are handsomely uniformed in blue, with scarlet trimmings, and handle their instruments like artists. Their presence is a special tribute paid by the order to the Old Boys and to the citizens of

This afternoon the Old Boys will revel in the beauty of Springbank. Tonight they will luxuriate in Victoria Park, where the band concert should attract thousands. The Old Boys are all young

FROM WINDSOR.

The Windsor and Detroit contingent arrived at 10:30 a.m., coming via the G. T. R., in a special car. They numbered 35, which was a remarkably large crowd considering that the organization was formed only last Tuesday. The jolly crowd was composed of (Hon.) John Thomas (chairman of the Old Boys' Association, (Col.) Charles Sullivan (marshal) and Mrs. Sullivan, J. W. Caldwell, E. C. Wilson and wife, Dr. F. B. T. Leys and wife, A. T. Lash-brook, W. R. Landon, M. McDonald, A. Hambly and wife, Dr. Honor, Dr. Parker, T. J. Fortune, J. F. Smyth, H. C. Smyth, Caleb J. Wall, C. D. Williams, W. Kingsley Evans, Jas. Payne, A. W. Joyce, J. R. Gillean, Ulric Hambly, Monte Moore, James Belcher, W. Burke, Fred W. Cooper, John Dryden, Ben Tomlinson, Lyle Havener, C. Holt, J. Fleming, Lyle Johnson and Charlie Cooper. A large number of the Old Boys of London who have remained at home were at the G. T. R. station to meet their friends and "right royal" was the welcome extended. The Seventh Band struck up a suitable air as the train pulled in, and the procession was quickly formed. The famous Light Guard Band of Detroit, under Director cursionists, and of the twenty members five are former Londoners. The Old Boys were handsome badges formed of red, white and blue ribbons, fearing the words "Detroit," "Old Boys," "Wind-sor," and on each pin were the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack intertwined. They also wore white caps, on which were buttons expressing the sentiment of Anglo-Saxon unity. route of the procession was north on Richmond street to the C. P. R. station, where the Old Boys from the west were to greet the Old Boys from the east in the grand reunion. The two bands and a number of citizens, including the veteran teacher, Mr. Nicholas Wilson, THE SCENE IN TORONTO.

An Advertiser reporter went to Toronto London this morning. At daybreak in the Queen City many hundreds of former Londoners were astir preparing for the trip to the Forest City. At 6 o'clock the buglers of the Queen's Own Bugle Band sounded the assembiy, loud and long, in all points of Toronto; and from 6:30 to 7:30 there was one continued stream of Old Boys, and their friends passing through the commodious portals of the Union depot. Messrs. J. J. Ward, S. Wigmore, Arthur Peters, James Lewis and others well known here, were actively engaged in directing people to the train and providing tickets, which it seemed were almost impossible to get for a short time before the train pulled out. With the Royal Foresters' Trumpet Band came another large contingent of Old Boys, rendering more coaches necessary. Two were added, into which the Queen's Own Band, the Buglers and Trumpeters, and everybody else that could, piled in. This made ten coaches and they were all packed. Engineer Childs and Fireman J. Haritz had a good head of steam long before the train pulled out. It was somewhat late in leaving, owing to the crowd. The enginemen were decorated with Old and soda water right on the mogul. Conductor Scanlon and Brakemen Thos. O'Neil and George Gallaher, were held up by the executive committee in the Pullman and "painted white." THE JOURNEY.

From the time the Old Boys started until they arrived here, it was one su-preme and uninterrupted "jolly," and those who didn't "jolly" other people felt sorry and other people "jollied" them. J. J. Ward was jollier-in-chief, and performed his duties perfectly, to the great delight and admiration of the young ladies. Arthur Peters provided a couple of bottles of mixed pickles which were passed round in the smok-ing cars. Jimmy Middleton, known among the printing craft as a typographical artist of the highest order, had printed a few badges bearing the pictures of Atwell Fleming, J. W. Davis and A. S. Wigmore (caricatured of course), over which were the words "Who are we?" This was followed, under the pictures, by the answer:

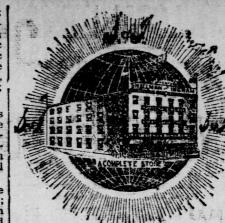

Don't yer know! Canadian Cockneys.

It is needless to say these were eagerly sought for, but were reserved by the artist for the more energetic of the association. Everybody enjoyed himself. Notwithstanding that the train was 30 minutes late, the time seemed only too short.

THE PATRONS. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and con-vey the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. Fergus, Aug. 6.-The many friends on both sides of politics will be pleased to learn that Mr. John Craig, M.P.P., has taken a very decided change for the better during the past week. THE ARRIVAL IN LONDON. The Toronto train arrived at London about half an hour late. The C. P. R. platform was crowded, and when the train did pull in the scene was a most enthusiastic one. The crowd pressed forward so quickly to grasp the glad hands of the Old Boys—and girls—that Ald. Douglass and Ald. Wilkey got into a heated argument after the counpark the street was lined by thousands, to welcome the boys back again. . THE PROCESION.

The bands played "Home, Sweet Home," as the procession entered Victoria Park, and the appropriate old tune sent a thrill through the throng, and the cheering swelled spontaneously. The procession lined up around the band stand, from which the speeches were delivered.

THE MAYOR'S WELCOME. Mr. Frank Love introduced the mayor in a neat speech. Mayor Wilson was received with applause. On behalf of the citizens of London he said he welcomed the Old surrounding cities. . In every walk of ers. life they had distinguished themselves had gained a proud reputation that exprovince, and even the Do-minion. They filled the highest positions that Canada afforded, and what was true of the clerical was true of the legal and medical professions. They were a credit to the city, to their parents, and to those who had given them their education in the schools of London. In this connection the speaker referred to Mr. Nick Wilson as one who had done much to help the Old Boys on in life. (Cheers.) He then spoke of the progress of London during the past few years. It stood second in the province commercially, but first in every other respect. (Applause.) Londoners' doors were open, he said. They were glad and proud to have the Old Boys with them again. He hoped the association would make it an annual occasion, for the interest would increase. (Applause.)

PRESIDENT J. W. DAVIS' REPLY. President Davis replied on behalf of the association. He said: "It is with feelings of pride that I fill the office in our association, which gives me the pleasure of replying to this flattering and spontaneous reception of the London Old Boys on this, the occasion of their second annual excursion to their former home, by the mayor, corporation and citizens of London. I thank you most heartily, Mr. Mayor and gentlemen of the council, and, with a sense of the honor done us—once for-mer residents of your happy and prosperous city. (Applause.)

"As president of the Old Boys' Association, I feel the responsibility of my position, which your gracious kindness, sir, on this occasion has not decreased, and whilst, no doubt, there are others who could reply in choicer Ottawa, Aug. 6 .- Elia Boyer, a farmer | and more elegant dicta to the gracefrom Eardley, six miles from Aylmer, bestowed upon us, there are none who was found dead by the wayside early can have stronger feelings of apprethis morning, cut, bruised and battered ciation and regard for the old Forest City and its residents than myself and

"To say that I am taken by surprise is putting it mildly, indeed, but it is always a pleasant task to receive greetings, and it is equally a pleasure, ions when the nerve centers refuse to act, and it is then difficult to picture in proper language one's sense of gratitude and good feeling-occasions, sir, when hesitating speech and beof the heart; but when gracious and soothing words of welcome and good will, such as those we have just lis-tened to, are spoken by such men, on Miss Maggie Norton, of Brick street, such an occasion, as the present, and in such a place surrounded by so many pleasant memories of the past, it is easy, indeed, Mr. Mayor and aldermen, to utter the heartfelt words of thanks which come as if by magic

to my lips. (Cheers.) "Londoners abroad take a lively interest in the welfare of their former home, and whatever makes for the material good of this fair city, is the Civic Holiday, for the one price of pride and joy of them wherever they may be found. So strongly, indeed, Track Association and the London pride and joy of them wherever they may be found. So strongly, indeed, is this feeling existent that when London is at all extolled, it is a common thing in the city from which I have come, to hear uttered: 'Oh, you Londoners think your town is the hub of the universe. Sir, I am free to con-fess that there is a great deal of force and truth in the remark; at any rate, it has sent out a good many good 'spokes,' and they never forget the hub that gave them birth, to cope with the vicissitudes of life. (Cheers.)
"London, at home and abroad, always leads, and sets the example for bettering things, and it is very touching, indeed, to us, sir, to have the material evidences before us, showing the great interest taken by resident Londoners in us old fellows of the past, as indicated by the warmth of our greeting at this time; and I assure you, Mr. Mayor and gentlemen, that these feelings and marks of good fellowship are thoroughly appreciated and reciprocated. (Cheers.) "The origin of the Old Boys' annual excursion to the place of their nativity or of the commencement of their business careers was simple in its concep-24 tf tion, but I foresee in its continuance success unbounded and a series of demonstrations that nothing can supersede for geniality, friendliness and sociability, and, at this juncture, let me say, sir, that while the boys are thoroughly appreciative of the great kindness and distinction shown them by yourself, Mr. Mayor, and the worthy aldermen with you, representing the dignity of the city and the citizens of London generally, it was not—and it is not—the desire of the Boys that they should trespass on your good nature or impose in any particu-lar on your good offices, but that the Boys themselves should bear the brunt of the work toward making these excursions operate to our mutual advancement and pleasure. (Applause.) "To the ladies and gentlemen from a distance who have joined in this excursion, as representing the London Old Boys from the Queen City, I extend the hand of hearty welcome, and trust you will ever be with us, and increase in numbers as the years roll on. Let us fraternize and enjoy ourselves together, and though at some distance, we will become better acquainted, and thus beget a spirit and feeling which will make our love for the old Forest City grow greater and stronger, and eventually cement us into one harmonious whole, moved by one sentimental impulse, so that in our future descents upon this borough they will recognize in us such metal as only London can produce "Before concluding, Mr. Mayor, I cannot refrain from thanking the ladies of London who have graced this occasion with their fair presence. I am told there is nothing a success without the ladies, and I am glad, therefore, to our reception. I trust they will be as well pleased to see the Old Boys as the latter are gladdened at heart to see them.

"In conclusion, Mr. Mayor, aldermen and citizens of London, let me again | V. thank you in the name of the Old Boys for the cordiality and sincerity of your reception, as well as the singular marks of your esteem and favor, as outlined in your happy address, besides the exceeding kindness with which the projected excursion has been received, and whilst we may feel that we do not more than deserve these favors at your hands, we gratefully acknowledge the same, and with much fervor accept the honors and dignities showered us, and I trust will worthily bear them in token of our great love, respect and goodwill to the Forest City, its worthy aldermen and citizens." Mr. Davis concluded his eloquent address amid cheers.

DR. ORONHYATEKHA

Dr. Oronhyatekha, the supreme chief ranger of the Foresters, was warmly received. He humorously referred to himself as one of the "young boys," and on behalf of the others of his class claimed a measure of the attention and affection that was being lavished on their elder brothers. London was distingluished not only for itself, but because of the people who lived in it. When here he had formed friendships that would last him through his life. GREAT DOUBLE ATTRACTION FOR CIVIC HOLIDAY. Arrangements have been completed during the past week whereby our citizens will be treated to a splendid double attraction at Tecumseh Park Baseball Association have agreed upon a plan which will have the effect of bringing together one of the largest audiences in the history of Tecumseh Park. The bicycle races will be run off previous to the ball game, and will be contested by some of the fastest flyers in Canada. The programme will include the city championship for the Davis (Tecumseh House) trophy. Immediately following the races a championship league game of ball will be played by Hamilton and London. The rivalry existing between those two teams at present is alone sure of guaranteeing a large audience, but, coupled with the bicycle races, the spacious stands at Tecumseh Park are sure to be taxed to their utmost on Civic Holiday. Secretary McCormick has received entries from some of the fastest men on the circuit, and lovers of bicycle racing are assured of a good treat at the coming meet. Competent officials have been selected, and no loafing will be tolerated, as arrangements have been made to pace every event. Citizens will do well to remain at home on the holiday and enjoy the

Gen. Toral, the commander of the Spanish troops, has sent a letter to Gen. M. HANOTAUX, THE FRENCH

Empire Day.

STATESMAN. The career of M. Hanotaux, French politician and statesman, has been one of steady, continuous and well-earned success, says the Windsor Magazine. By great good fortune M. Hanotaux discovered in 1879 the lost Maximes the lost Maximes thereby not only acquired a certain amount of fame among historians and scholars, but received, it can hardly doubted, a definite cautious and unscrupulous statecraft of the cardinal-duke.

From this discovery, moreover, dates the commencement of M. Hanotaux's great work—"The Life of Richelieu" the first volume of which did not appear until sixteen years had been spent in original research and indefatigable collation of documents. This fact throws a flood of light on the conscientious industry and perseverance shown by him as foreign minister. The value of the work itself was attested last year by the fact that it won M. Hanotaux to the academy.

M. Hanotaux has never possessed the gift of speaking long and eloquently when there is nothing of importance to be said, and it is this failing-from the demagogue's point of view, which has, perhaps, won him more respect from the crowd than any of his undoubted qualities. He is considered, and very justly, a man who knows; a careful, farseeing, thoroughly safe guide. It is not to be wondered at that M. Hanotaux is somewhat lacking in initiative. He is supposed to depend a little too much on his subordinates, to pay undue regard to precedents, and to be over-slow in moving when an emergen-cy may demand bold and confident action. Nevertheless he has been almost uniformly successful; the Congo triumph, the Madagascar coup, and the growing influence of France in Europe and in the east, all may be due in part to his undoubted good fortune; but, together with his opportunist policy, M. Hanotaux has a very definite idea of what France wants and how she can obtain it. His keen sight reaches not only into the past, it reaches far ahead into the future; he is no idealist, but he has a certain practical, patriotic enthusiasm; he believes in France, and, above all things, he believes in him-

FOUND DEAD IN HIS BERTH. Montreal, Que., Aug. 6.—A tragic affair occurred on board the steam Bona Visto while en route to this pore on Wednesday. Mr. Philip Bailey, a Montrealer, was found dead in his berth with a revolver wound in his head. The weapon lay near by. At the inquest it was shown the wound must have been self-inflicted, but in the absence of any cause for suicide a verdict of accidental death was found. Deceased was returning from a vacation in Newfoundland.

They did what they could, however. Mrs. Harwood believed in Miss Pendleton as she did in the sun and moon. She was pious, and she paid great court to herself, and she had the gentlest manner in the world. Never had she seen her otherwise than complacent and "sweet." "The consul wishes to have the consent of the doctors who consigned you to him," Mrs. Harwood said after a moment's silence.

time to go."
She had not patience to talk any more. She preferred to go back to her prison. The great iron gate opened for her, and was locked behind her when she had entered. They went up the long stairway, through gloomy passages, passed over the arch of San Spirito, and up to the villa. Here sunshine broke into the dark archway, the great palm-tree by the veranda was waving its branches up and softly down, the ladies were out, and the gardener was clipping the trees. Valeria went to ask him the names of some of his plants; but his flowers all spoke Latin, and he knew none of their familiar names.

She went upstairs and finished her letters as well as she could for the noise about her, then left her chamber to carry them down.

The door of the Signora Agnese's room was open, and two nurses were putting the strait-jacket on her, while Sister Agnes stood looking on with an impassible face. The woman had so long refused to eat that it was found necessary to use force. The strait-jacket, made of a strong double cloth of twilled linen, had very long sleeves ending in straps that were tied to iron bars at either side of the bedstead. An opening in the sleeves allowed the hands to be free; but this also could be laced up so as to imprison the hands. The jacket was laced behind. Strong loops were set at the waist, the backs of the arms, and at the shoulders, through which wide bands were passed and tied to the iron railing of the bedstead.

The yellow fever cases are all among the Spanish soldiers. Sixteen of the 488 wounded Spanish soldiers in this hospital have died since the United States troops took possession of this Investigation revealed one of the most daring bank robberies ever perpetrated in Michigan. The robbers had blown the bank safe to pieces with nitro-glycerine, and secured $5,000 cash and $4,600 in notes. The inside doors of the safe were blown ten feet out into the office, and pieces went through the plate glass window 20 feet

The gang approached the town in different directions, part of them coming on a hand-car (which they disabled so that it could not be used in pursuit), and the others coming in a carriage. Alvin Barnes, an old man who lived near the bank, was ordered into the house with a threat that they would shoot him. George Robson and Ed Barrett saw the robbers, but did not molest them. A farmer living near Augusta saw the gang at daylight. They forced him back into the house and told him to keep his mouth shut or they would blow his head off. The rig was taken to Augusta and there abandoned. A man was seen between Augusta and Battle Creek, walking on the railroad track, carrying a large satchel and a Winchester rifle. No one who saw him dared to make a move to arrest him. Officers started at once to capture him. Posses were scouring the country in all directions.

Pare's Statements While Under Cross Examination.

Witness Reported To Be Dying and Released From the Ordeal.

Napanee, Ont., Aug 6. - Inspector Burke, of Boston, Mass., gave evidence yesterday concerning the arrest of Holden, and exhibited the money found upon the prisoner. The fourteen silver coins were tied up in a dirty old sock. All of the coins were non-current in the United States. One was a 5-franc Belgian piece of 1870, and upon it were four marks in indelible ink. Partly burned bills of the uncountersigned Dominion Bank issue $46,000 were shown. They had been rescued from the fire by

D. H. Preston, Q. C., cross-examined the witness briefly, but did not upset the evidence in any way. Burke found a knife, a check for $400 and $17 in U. S. money. The $17 Burke gave to Mrs. Holden, and he did not bring the check, because it had been attached by the Pinkerton's agency. PARE ON THE RACK.

Pare was again cross-questioned by Mr. Porter. He got confused as to where he bought the hoop iron from which to make a key for Mr. Baines' compartment, though he remembered distinctly the words he used when bought the iron. The witness declared that the impressions were made upon plain paper. The impressions found by the detectives last year were upon printed paper. The prisoner kept the impressions because he wanted to use them again."When the key was made," continued witness, "the impression and the file were buried in a shed on the Bay of Quinte road, and Mackie was told of this. The same day Holden and I went to Kingston. The next day we returned to Napanee. I went up to Ponton's rooms, and coming out I met a woman, but I turned my head away and passed on. The next day I made a key out of a piece of brass. Ponton told me that night about the entrance from the back, and said I could use it. The next night Pare went to Ponton

Mr. Baines fingering at the combinastead of Pare, Inspector Healy, of Manchester, N. H., was put on the stand. It was at his instigation that Pare was arrested. He described in detail how the bills were found in a cake box in Pare's woodshed. On Pare were found $96 bills; in the cake box 210 $10 bank

A QUEER ADMISSION. On cross-examination Mr. Porter went thoroughly into the details of Mr. Healy's evidence. He elicited no new information, but the witness' story tallied with the tale told by Pare. The witness declared that the detective agency was much interested in the matter. The first information emanated from Mr. Saville. Mr. Thornhill, of the Pinkertons, was present with

Officer Connor when 96 bills were found in a secret slide in a tool chest.

Mr.Porter drew from Inspector Healy that $90 of Pare's money had not been given over to the crown, but was used by Healy to pay for Pare's board and attention. The witness admitted that some of the $90 was in Dominion Bank

"Were they not part of the money stolen?" asked Lawyer Porter.

"I don't know," said the witness. PARE A DYING MAN. Dr. Leonard, the jail surgeon, declares that Pare is dying, having an incurable kidney disease. That was the reason Pare was relieved from examination yesterday afternoon. The crown thinks that today has seen the most important admission yet made. It is Pare's statement about the government bonds, which was known only to the bank officials. Mr. Baynes is expected to give important evidence along this line. The crown is of the opinion that the defense is weakening its case by drawing such a mass of details and dates from Pare. But the defense's object is to prove that Pare's whole story is concocted, and that he has been drilled by inside parties, who know Napanee and the bank's daily routine like a book.

The strait-jacket, made of a strong double cloth of twilled linen, had very long sleeves ending in straps that were tied to iron bars at either side of the bedstead. An opening in the sleeves allowed the hands to be free; but this also could be laced up so as to imprison the hands. The jacket was laced behind. Strong loops were set at the waist, the backs of the arms, and at the shoulders, through which wide bands were passed and tied to the iron

There are causes enough to separate people and to produce frictions and alienations. One was a 5-franc Belgian piece of 1870, and upon it were four marks in indelible ink. Partly burned bills of the uncountersigned Dominion Bank issue $46,000 were shown. They had been rescued from the fire by

D. H. Preston, Q. C., cross-examined the witness briefly, but did not upset the evidence in any way. Burke found a knife, a check for $400 and $17 in U. S. money. The $17 Burke gave to Mrs. Holden, and he did not bring the check, because it had been attached by the Pinkerton's agency.

PARE ON THE RACK. Pare was again cross-questioned by Mr. Porter. He got confused as to where he bought the hoop iron from which to make a key for Mr. Baines' compartment, though he remembered distinctly the words he used when bought the iron. The witness declared that the impressions were made upon plain paper. The impressions found by the detectives last year were upon printed paper. The prisoner kept the impressions because he wanted to use them again. "When the key was made," continued witness, "the impression and the file were buried in a shed on the Bay of Quinte road, and Mackie was told of this. The same day Holden and I went to Kingston. The next day we returned to Napanee. I went up to Ponton's rooms, and coming out I met a woman, but I turned my head away and passed on. The next day I made a key out of a piece of brass. Ponton told me that night about the entrance from the back, and said I could use it. The next night Pare went to Ponton and the latter told him he had seen

Mr. Baines fingering at the combina-The court reassembled at 2:05. Instead of Pare, Inspector Healy, of Manchester, N. H., was put on the stand. It was at his instigation that Pare was arrested. He described in detail how the bills were found in a cake box in Pare's woodshed. On Pare were found $96 bills; in the cake box 210 $10 bank bills. A QUEER ADMISSION. On cross-examination Mr. Porter went thoroughly into the details of Mr. information, but the witness' story tallied with the tale told by Pare. The witness declared that the detective agency was much interested in the matter. The first information emanated from Mr. Saville. Mr. Thornhill, of the Pinkertons, was present with Officer Connor when 96 bills were found in a secret slide in a tool chest. that $90 of Pare's money had not been given over to the crown, but was used by Healy to pay for Pare's board and attention. The witness admitted that some of the $90 was in Dominion Bank

"Were they not part of the money stolen?" asked Lawyer Porter.

"I don't know," said the witness. PARE A DYING MAN. Dr. Leonard, the jail surgeon, declares that Pare is dying, having an incurable kidney disease. That was the reason Pare was relieved from examination yesterday afternoon. The crown thinks that today has seen the most important admission yet made. It is. Pare's statement about the government bonds, which was known only to the bank officials. Mr. Baynes is expected to give important evidence along this line. The crown is of the opinion that the defense is weakening its case by drawing such a mass of details and dates from Pare. But the defense's object is to prove that Pare's whole story is concocted, and that he has been drilled by inside parties, who know Napanee and the bank's daily routine like a book. The court adjourned until Tuesday

COLLIDED WITH A STREET CAR. A young lady, while wheeling on Richmond street, near Kent street, yesterday afternoon, collided with a street car and very narrowly escaped getting under the wheels. As the car approached her she could not see it for a hack, and apparently did not realize her danger as she turned to wheel across the track at the corner. The bicycle struck the car step and the young lady was thrown against the side of the car. Before it stopped she rolled off the step, but fortunately not onto the track. Those who witnessed the accident were horror-stricken, but to their relief it was learned that no serious injury had resulted.

The show has a splendid array of horses. It was not only the small boy who was attracted by the circus, but the man of the world finds the gaily-painted wagons, the towering elephants, the restless

He said he was not to be deceived by talk about specifications and further information, and he implied that the real reason for Ald. > Ald. Carrothers wanted the matter referred back to the committee because he had been unable to attend the neeting Thursday morning, and he was the one who had moved the previous reference to the board of works.

> Ald. Taylor asked a question about the three tenders which Mr. McDougal had made to the committee. Mr. McDougall gave the desired explanation, and in doing so charged the Free Press with making a "false and malicious" statement on that point. Ald. Douglass said he would just report "progress." Objection was then raised that the discussion was out of order.

The contention was not allowed, because of the motion to refer the matter Ald. Graham bitterly attacked the movement to rush through this "prize package of McDougall's." By waiting three years the city would save about $24,000—the interest and the cost of operating. There was no need of nurry, he said: and if the aldermen were affected personally in the matter they would not take such a step. They would get more information. Ald. Cooper said ex-Mayor Little and ex-Ald. Parnell had been canvassing the aldermen in the matter, and it had got down to a political vote. Ald. McPhillips said a motion for a six months hoist was out of order, but

It had been voted down at a previous meeting of the council. Ald. McCallum said to prevent any fluke, he would change his motion from a six months hoist to a seven months

Ald McCallum denied that ex-Mayor Little or Ald. Parnell were lobbying the aldermen on the sewage question, and he defied any alderman to prove that they had. It ill became a man who had profited to any extent by ex-Mayor Little's generosity, as Ald. Cooper had done, to make any such state-

Oh, boys, was that Fly a bussard?

Col. Matheson Held the Floor Most of the Time.

Assailing the Government on General Principles-Mr. Garrow and Dr. Barr Heard From.

Toronto, Aug. 6.-Col. Matheson, the financial oracle of the opposition, held the floor yesterday for most of the time. Referring to the seconder of the address in reply, he thought his flattery of the government would be too fulsome to suit his constituents. Why did not the member for West Northumberland follow the example of the honorable member for London? The speaker alleged that Col. Leys was promised the Normal School as a bribe for London. But he knew the men he had to deal with; he knew that no reliance could be placed upon them, and he was informed that the member for London took the ministry by the throat, took the minister of education by the throat, rather, and forced them to pledge themselves for the building before he entered the house or took the oath of office. In West Northumberland they had Victoria College, bought two years ago, and permitted to lie idle. Why did not Mr. Clarke, like the member for London, insist that before he made that speech they should put those buildings in order? Col. Matheson also charged that the two Oxfords were bribed by public works. and the Algomas by colonization roads. In Russell the returning officer was almost a "nincompoop," said the colonel. The honorable gentleman from South Perth was sitting in the house owing to the misprinting of the ballots by the men employed by the government in power. The minister of education had bribed his constituency by purchasing at a high figure a large quantity of cordwood for the provincial creamery at Strathroy. With all this bribery it seemed wonderful that the Conservatives should occupy even half the seats in the house. Col. Matheson then turned his attention to Messrs. Gilson and Dryden. The provincial secretary, he sad, was the only cabinet minister who truly represented his constituents. No ministry should meet parliament without having every member of the cabinet with seats in this house. Mr. Garrow asked: "Had any reputable lawyer in the country pronounced the opinion that on the law as it stands a constable has not the right to vote?" Mr. Whitney-It is rumored that the attorney-general has. (Opposition applause. Mr. Hardy-Well, the rumor is entirely wrong. (Ministerial applause.) Mr. Garrow (West Huron) said he did not want rumor; he preferred argument. He did not believe there was counsel in Ontario who would venture to say that the constables had no right to vote. Mr. Garrow said he was one of the constable members, having the proud distinction of perhaps having the smallest majority in the house. Mr. Garrow went on to say that West Huron was usually found with the government. True, the majority was not large. He was returned the first time by 112, and the last by 67, which was whittled down by a series of circumstances to nothing at all. (Opposition laughter.) But great men had been defeated before, and if he had been defeated it would have been a very small matter. But he was not defeated. He was there, and intended to remain there. (Ministerial applause.) He protested against the holding of morning sessions. Dr. Barr (Dufferin) filled up the rest of the session. He said it was not the intention of the Conservatives to take away the legal vote of any man in the Province of Ontario. On the question of ministers holding portfolios without seats. Dr. Barr said that with two members defeated the government should have resigned, and then Mr. Whitney could have formed a ministry which could have gone to the country and have been handsomely returned
