Sir Charles Hopes Other Cities Will Treat the G. T. R. Better Than London

President Thinks Attitude of London Is Strange.

Could Deal With Forest City in the Past.

But Not Now—No Reopening of the Negotiations Unless the City Makes First Move.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, General Manager Hays, Manager McGulgan, Third Vice-President Morse, Supt. Brownlee and a number of other prominent officials of the Grand Trunk Railway, spent twenty minutes in this city yesterday afternoon. The party arrived in special cars, Sir Charles was accompanied by Lady Rivers-Wilson.

An advertiser reporter had a chat with Sir Charles, Mr. Hays, Mr. McGulgan and Mr. Morse, and important matters were touched upon.

It had been hinted that a conference with the city might result from the visit, but no civic representatives were present.

Sir Charles is inspecting the system, and he expressed himself as very well pleased with the Grand Trunk and the rapid strides it is making in the carrying work.

Sir Charles on London.

"I must say, however," he continued, "that I trust the company will receive better treatment from other cities and towns than it has received from the city of London. However, the company will simply go on with its improvements outside the city. It would have been to the city's interests to have had elevated lines, but for some unaccountable reason the corporation would not meet the Grand Trunk half way."

"Why, years ago, we met the city of London and were treated in the most friendly manner, and I fancy the city did not lose by what it did. We put the car shops here, and we were able to come to terms in a business way. The present attitude of the city is very strange."

The general manager was then seen by the reporter.

The City's Move.

Mr. Hays, when asked if the company intended reopening the negotiations, agreed with the statement of Mr. McGulgan's that "it's the city's move."

"We are too busy," he said, "to devote further attention to London at present. You know, something is going on all along the line. We have not the time to further go into the matter, though we are always ready to consider any proposition the city cares to make."

"The damages clause is still the sticking point," the reporter suggested. "Well, if the placing of the clause in the agreement, is such a mere nothing as we have often been informed by some of the city's representatives, why does the city insist on the clause being there?" Mr. Hays asked.

Manager McGulgan.

Asked in regard to the pushing further south of the Springbank line, Mr. McGulgan said he preferred to say nothing at present.

Lady Left Behind.

Sir Charles looks hale and hearty. While the party was in the city, Lady Rivers-Wilson took a short walk up Richmond street, and Sir Charles, failing to note her absence, started away without her. Her ladyship's absence was not noticed until the special reached the east end yards, and it was necessary to back down the yards to the Richmond street depot to take her aboard.

Her ladyship enjoyed the joke fully as much as did the other members of the party, chief amongst whom was Sir Charles.

SENATOR VIDAL RALLIES.

Samuel, Aug. 14.—Senator Vidal, who was recently believed to be upon his deathbed, has rallied marvellously. On Saturday he celebrated his 87th birthday, propped up with pillows in his bed. Though still weak, the aged senator is mentally as active as ever.

CHICAGO'S UNDERGROUND RAILWAY FORTY-FIVE MILES OF TUNNEL

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The freight bores of the Illinois Tunnel Company will carry merchandise of all kinds in carload lots for the first time tomorrow. Announcement to this effect was made by officials of the company yesterday. This movement will mark the practical completion of the Illinois Tunnel Company's system of underground freight railroads, the construction of which was begun five years ago, and which has cost its owners about $80,000,000.

The company now has 45 miles of tunnel equipped with rails and overhead trolley in the district bounded by Chicago avenue, the lake, Halstead street and Sixteenth street. Fifty electrical locomotives and several hundred cars are now ready for use, and the company recently placed an order for 600 additional cars and 35 new locomotives.

The company has finished connections with 30 buildings in the downtown district. Connections have already been made between the freight and warehouses of nine of the principal railroads. Others are under way.

The Grand Trunk and the City.

It is evident that the breach between the Grand Trunk and the city is widening, even though the council as a whole is disposed to meet the Grand Trunk half way, while at the same time taking care to safeguard the rights of the city.

It is learned that one day last week Ald. Garratt, chairman of the railway committee of the city council, met Manager McGulgan, and that the manager and chairman did not get along very well.

At all events, nothing has been done toward calling a meeting to consider the wants of the Grand Trunk in regard to the shifting south of the Springbank trolley line so as to make room for the slope of the Grand Trunk embankment.

When seen by The Advertiser yesterday the officers of the Grand Trunk refused to say very much on the question.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, however, took occasion to remark that the city's treatment of the company was, in his opinion, most unfair. The company will simply go on with its improvements irrespective of further consultations with the city, he says.

ALDERMEN REFUSED TO SIGN REQUISITION FOR A MEETING

Grand Trunk Seeks to Secure Land from the City in South London.

The Grand Trunk is still looking for a meeting with the city in regard to the Springbank line, and Mr. J. D. O'Neill, solicitor for the company, is endeavoring to have a special meeting of the council called at once to consider the matter.

The trouble appears to be that the Grand Trunk and Ald. Garratt last week were unable to come to an understanding in regard to the meeting asked for.

It is alleged that Ald. Garratt insisted on the whole proposition of elevated lines being taken up, but the company simply desires to complete its improvements west of the city, and is not asking for anything in London.

But if the tracks west of the Wharmcliffe bridge are to be brought down on a proper grade, the company must encroach on the right of way of the London Street Railway.

The city holds the key to the situation, because it owns the land immediately south of the street railway lines. And it is to secure the consent of the city to the securing of the necessary land that the Grand Trunk wants the special meeting.

Acting Mayor Matthews informed the Aldermen today that he refused to sign the requisition which is being circulated by Mr. O'Neill, because of the fact that he is convinced the city should take up the whole matter of track elevation through the city, and not treat with the company on isolated points.

It is understood that Ald. Gillen and Garratt also refused to sign the requisition, urging that the matter be shelved until the mayor comes home.

Mr. O'Neill, explains, however, that the Grand Trunk is urgently in need of the land, and that as the company's request has no connection whatever with the main proposition being put forward by the city now, the council should entertain it without delay. In the meantime, there is nothing doing.

STRUCK ON HEAD BY IRON CRANK

John Hamilton Had a Close Call for His Life This Morning.

John Hamilton, a builder's laborer, who boards at the Britannia House, had a close call for his life while at work on a new warehouse, to be occupied as a poolroom, near the Fraser House, this morning.

Hamilton was loading a bucket under a windlass, placed on the corner of the building, which is four stories high, when the iron crank, weighing about ten pounds, fell.

It grazed Hamilton's head and sunk a foot into the ground beside him.

Mr. Teasdale was summoned and found that Hamilton had sustained a severe scalp wound, which required five stitches to close. The man will recover.

OWEN SOUND OUTRAGE

Owen Sound, Aug. 14.—The young woman, Miss Louisa Jones, who was the victim of the outrage on the north gravel road on Saturday night, has not fully regained consciousness, and is unable to give coherent information as to her knowledge of the attack. The police are confident, however, that when she was left after her attack her assailant believed that she was dead. While there is no direct clue connecting any individual with the dastardly outrage, the police are prepared for one of the most sensational accusations possible, should the young woman choose to confirm their theory. Indignation ran high today when the facts became generally known. It will be some days before she is able to give information that may be regarded as reliable, owing to the effects of exposure and ill-treatment. The police now suspect drugging.

HAD MERRY TIME AT SPRINGBANK

London "Old Boys" and Girls at Play in Pretty Park—Lively Games.

The Detroit Old Boys and Girls had a merry time at Springbank yesterday afternoon. About two hundred of them made the trip, and what fun they had!

Barney McCann was chaperone for the bunch, and President Carruthers, of the Old Boys, was there to see that everybody got fair play. Most of the crowd plinked with friends in the groves.

A fine programme of sports was run off. It included races of all descriptions and a tug-of-war and baseball match. The latter was very funny, and it actually developed that a couple of the fellows could play ball. Fines aggregating several million dollars were imposed on these chaps.

The tug-of-war resulted in favor of the visitors, who certainly were there with the "strong pull."

STURGEON CAPTURED

Alleged To Be One of Assaulters of Kincardine Girl.

Walkerton, Aug. 14.—Samuel Sturgeon, alleged to be one of the men who criminally assaulted a Kincardine girl, was arrested near here today by Constable Hodgins. The others wanted, the McLeod brothers, are still at large, but the authorities expect to land them shortly.

OFFERED $70,000 A YEAR

English Company's Tempting Bait to American Railroad Man.

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—The Examiner says today that J. C. Stubbs, the traffic director of the Harriman system in Chicago, has accepted an offer of $70,000 a year to go to London and handle the company's American travel. William Sproule, it is said, will be appointed in his place as traffic manager of the Harriman system, with a salary of $60,000 a year. Mr. Harriman, it is said, has insisted that Mr. Stubbs shall remain with him until the end of the year, to which the English railroad company has assented.

$35,000 GEM ROBBERY.

London, Aug. 14.—Jewelry valued at $35,000 was stolen today from a case belonging to some Viennese merchants at the Earl's Court exhibition. The robbery was committed in daylight.

MASTER BAKERS IN CONVENTION

5th Annual Gathering Opened Here This Morning.

THE REGISTRATION IS LARGE

Welcomed by Acting Mayor Matthews—Opening Paper Read by Professor Harcourt.

The fifth annual convention of the Canadian Association of Master Bakers opened this morning under auspicious circumstances in the city hall.

The local hotels are filled with delegates from all over Canada, many of whom are accompanied by their wives and daughters. The number of registrations thus far is very large.

President Shoulds, of Ottawa, presided at the opening session, and Acting Mayor Matthews welcomed the visitors. The hall was filled with delegates when the acting mayor made his address.

His worship made a humorous speech, in which he urged the visitors not to be backward in asking for anything they might "knead." He also referred to the fact that bakers are great on the "loaf," and advised everybody to take things easy and have a good time. Later Ald. Matthews, Booth and Armstrong called out the firemen and gave the visitors the benefit of a trial run to the corner of York and Talbot streets. Chief Clark and his men were given three cheers by the visitors, who commented highly on the efficiency of the brigade.

Ex-Ald. Parnell is doing much to make the delegates feel at home. He is a hustler and is popular with all.

Value of Bread. When the session resumed Prof. Harcourt, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, read a very interesting paper on "The nutritive value of bread as compared with breakfast foods."

After going exhaustively into tables which gave the results of scientific research, the professor concluded with the following statement:

"It is worthy of note that the protein of the white bread was much more fully digested than all other foods examined. It is also noticeable that the carbohydrate of the predigested foods

A Gain of Seven Hundred; Ward Three to the Front

Population Takes Rapid Rise—Assessment Goes Up by $300,000.

Ward 3 threatens to knock spots off the other three wards in the matter of increase in population and in assessment.

Assessment Commissioner Grant has practically completed figures which shows that the gain in population in the ward during the year is something over 700.

This is a record breaker, and speaks well for the progress of No. 3.

It is said that last year when the assessors went around very many new houses were not completed, but that now these houses are all filled and as a result the ward's population has been increased by well over 1,000 persons.

The ward will also show an increase in assessment of about $300,000.

Ward 4 is yet to be heard from, thus the city's assessment will be fully a million greater than it was a year ago, and the population as a whole will be nearly 2,000 greater.

London proper has well over 45,000 in population.

The assessment is chasing $22,000,000.

NOT APPROVED BY GREY

Endeavored to Dissuade Indian Chiefs from Visiting the King.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—The Governor-General, it is reported, does not favor Indian pilgrimages to the British capital for the purpose of seeing the King. It is understood that he endeavored to have the British Columbia chiefs dissuaded from going. However, arrangements were made through Earl Elgin, and they were received.

BRYAN GOING TO AUSTRALIA.

Paris, Aug. 14.—William J. Bryan confirms the reports that he will go to Australia. He says he will start immediately after the November elections, sailing from San Francisco, and making a tour of New Zealand as well as Australia.

THE WEATHER

TOMORROW—FINE AND WARM.

The weather continues fine throughout the Dominion. It has been cooler today in Eastern Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, moderately warm in Ontario, and very warm in the Western Provinces. Medicine Hat recording 100° and most other districts over 90°.

TO PUT U. S. GUNNERS AGAINST BRITISH

American Admiral Would Have Battleship Shooters of Navies Compete.

New York, Aug. 14.—A special cable to the Sun from London says: There is great interest in naval circles in the suggestion of Rear Admiral Bradford, of the United States navy, for a gunnery competition between picked teams from British and American battleships.

In the British navy there is a tendency to discredit somewhat the records of good shooting in the United States navy. It is not denied that there are many good marksmen across the Atlantic, but it is pointed out that the American service target is considerably larger than the British, while the Americans do not carry their shooting on the lines of British battle practice, regardless of weather and under conditions such as would prevail in war. Running target practice in the American navy is carried out in smooth water, rendering it much easier to score a large percentage of hits.

Concerning the selection of a representative British gunnery team, the Royal Marine Artillery holds the record, as having the best heavy gunners in the fleet.

DEATH MASK IN SNOW TELLS NAME OF DEAD

Perfect Imprint Enables Girl to Identify Brother Hunter.

New York, Aug. 14.—The World says today: With the imprint of his face in the snow, forming a perfect death mask, as the only means of identification, the skeleton of Bernard E. Kissam, formerly of Plainfield, N. J., and later of Long Island, has been found by the Canadian mounted police in the Klondike.

Kissam was hunting near Klauhu, on Sheep Creek, Dec. 8 last, and was overtaken in the mountains by a blizzard and was finally carried into a canyon by a snowslide. His friends and mounted police searched for him during the winter, but without success. With the coming of spring the mounted police kept a sharp lookout in the neighborhood where Kissam was last seen.

The fact that the body had been recovered was announced in a letter received yesterday by Mrs. Milton C. Barkalow, of North Plainfield, a sister. The letter said that only the skeleton was found, but that identification was certain because of the perfect imprint of her brother's face in the snow, where he had fallen face downward.

Electric Smelting a Go; Big Plant for Dominion

Canadian Experimenters Prove Its Worth and Pittsburgh Firm Will Establish On This Side.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Ont., August 14.—The investigations of Canada into the commercial possibilities of electric smelting of iron ore, which were published by Dr. Haanel some time ago, are bearing fruit. It is understood that a big steel firm of Pittsburgh is preparing to put up a huge electric smelting plant at some point in Canada where water power and ore are available. In the United States and in Mexico electric smelting plants are to be put up. Six months from now an electric smelting plant, capable of turning out twenty tons of pig a day, will be in operation in California. It is being installed by Dr. Haurault, of France, who erected the experimental station at Sault Ste. Marie, under arrangement with Dr. Haanel. The California plant is to be eventually enlarged to an output of six to eight hundred tons a day.

SHOWER BATH FOR POSTMAN GONE TO GATHER THE GOLDEN GRAIN

Irritated Lady Douces Letter Carrier—Trouble Settled Out of Court. Many Good Ontario Boys in the Western Excursions—400 Start from London.

A local letter carrier, while going his rounds the other day, in some way, aroused the ire of a lady at whose house he was delivering mail, to such an extent that she forthwith threw three dipper loads of water on him.

Then the postman got angry and went straight to the police headquarters and laid a charge of assault against her. When the case came up at the police court this morning both had cooled down, and an apology on the part of the woman was sufficient to settle the case.

Honorably Acquitted.

William Cotton appeared to answer to a charge of cruelty to animals. It was alleged that he had been driving a horse with a sore shoulder, but upon investigation it was found that although the horse had a sore shoulder its condition was not such as to prevent it from working, and that Mr. Cotton's treatment of his horses has always been good, so he was honorably acquitted.

W. J. Brazier and Edward Lee both appeared on charges of cruelty to animals, but their cases were adjourned until Saturday.

Minor Cases.

Samuel Robinson was fined $2 or 5 days for being drunk. Westby Brown was fined $3 or 5 days for being drunk. Burt Johnston, Joseph O'Tool, Earl Downey and two small boys were arrested the other day while begging from house to house. They were charged with vagrancy and remanded for one week so that the police can inquire into their former careers. They all claim to come from Toronto.

REV. J. B. AYLESWORTH DEAD

Methodist Missionary at Walpole Island Passes Away in 74th Year.

Detroit, Aug. 14.—Protracted illness from Bright's disease, resulted yesterday in the death of Rev. J. B. Aylesworth, at the residence of his son here.

Mr. Aylesworth was born in Canada, and for over forty years he labored in Ontario as pastor of the M. E. Church. For the past year he had been in charge of the Methodist mission at the Indian reservation on Walpole Island, in the St. Clair.

Mr. Aylesworth was 74 years old and leaves a widow, three sons and five daughters. The funeral will take place on Thursday with the interment at Highgate, Ont.

THE PANAMA CONSPIRACY

Wholesale Arrests Being Made in the Interior—Plot Is Extensive.

New York, Aug. 14.—A special cable to the Herald from Panama says: Four more alleged conspirators against the Panama Government were arrested there Monday. At Penonome, in the interior, wholesale arrests were made. The conspiracy it is said extends to Bocas del Toro.

RAMSEY TO PUT THROUGH NEW RAILROAD; $150,000,000 LINE NEW YORK TO CHICAGO

THE SURVEYS FINISHED FOR A GIANT ELECTRIC TRUNK LINE

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—Papers of consolidation of three railroads in different parts of Pennsylvania will be filed at Harrisburg this week, which will constitute the formal announcement of a project of prominent foreign bankers, associated with Joseph Ramsey, Jun., former president of the Wabash railroad, to build a low grade, double track railroad from New York to Chicago by way of Pittsburg, which will cost about $150,000,000. Complete surveys have already been made, and it is expected that work preliminary to actual grading and construction next spring will begin this fall. It is expected that the road will require three years to construct. It is contemplated to operate it with electric locomotives from the beginning. It will be known as the New York, Pittsburg and Chicago Air Line, and will be 65 miles shorter to New York than the Pennsylvania, and 108 miles shorter than the shortest line between New York and Chicago.

The new Keystone Air Line will traverse the important bituminous coal fields of central Pennsylvania, now controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad, and will also pierce the anthracite region throughout its length. It will not only be the shortest line through Pennsylvania, but it will cross the summit of the Allegheny mountains 400 feet lower than the Pennsylvania, and will have very easy curves and remarkably low grades for a mountain line.

Mr. Ramsey confirms the above in a telegram from New York to the Pittsburg Dispatch. The telegram says the information is correct. The cost of the line between Pittsburg and New York, Mr. Ramsey says, is estimated to be between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000, all of which has been pledged, the bulk of it by foreign capitalists.

The merger papers to be filed this week will provide for the consolidation of the Indiana, Clearfield and Eastern, the Allenton, Tamaqua and Ashland, and the Brush Creek and Crow Run Railroad.

WAR ON BETWEEN BULGAR AND GREEK

Stiff Fighting in the Balkans—Large Part of Aholu Destroyed by Fire.

Sofia, Aug. 13.—Advices were received here today from Aholu, where the Greeks and Bulgarians have been fighting, to the effect that a large part of the town has been destroyed by fire. The Greek metropolitan is said to have perished in the flames.

Aholu is a place. It is a report of Eastern Rumelia, on the Black Sea. It has a population of about 5,000.

London, Aug. 13.—A dispatch from Vienna to a London news agency states that the disturbance at Aholu yesterday was the result of an anti-Greek demonstration, which the Greeks sought to break up by rifle shooting.

Prolonged fighting ensued, both sides losing heavily in killed and wounded. The Bulgarians then set fire to the town in four places. The Greek close Dr. McNichol, the attending physician, says that troops had to be summoned from Bulgaria.

The Greeks held a meeting, at which it was decided to arm themselves with rifles and revolvers for the defense of their churches and cloisters, and to blow up the church, rather than allow them to fall into the hands of the Bulgarians.

The dispatch adds that at Rusechuk 20,000 Bulgarians tried to storm the Greek consulate, but were driven off by the troops.

A dispatch from Vienna to the same agency says that the news of the excesses against the Greeks in Eastern Rumelia occasions much excitement and indignation, adding that it is expected that Greece will be compelled to break off diplomatic relations with Bulgaria.

BOYS MANGLED BY TRAIN

Struck on "L" Tracks in Philadelphia—Bodies Hurling Into Crowd.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 13.—Four boys all under nine years old, were killed on Broad street by a Pennsylvania railroad train this afternoon.

The bodies of two of the boys fell into the street among the crowd of shoppers. Broad street is the main thoroughfare of the city, and was crowded with women at the time. A number of them fainted, and there was great excitement. The bodies of the other boys fell on the tracks of the New Jersey Central railway.

Both lines have double tracks at the point where the accident occurred, those of the New Jersey Central passing under the Pennsylvania tracks.

One of the boys that dropped to the lower track was found to be alive, but he died before an ambulance could reach the scene.

THE HIGHLANDS OF ONTARIO.

The Ontario Government may have to change its plans with regard to the disposal of the Temagami Islands, if the Province is to reap the fullest advantage from the possession of one of the most magnificent tourists' resorts in the world.

Lake Temagami has a coast line of nearly 3,000 miles, and contains over a thousand islands. Until the construction of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, which touches its eastern arm, it was known only to lumbermen, and to a few adventurous lovers of the wild. Now it is as easy of access as the Muskoka lakes. The inevitable summer hotels have sprung up and hundreds of tourists at this time of the year are reveling in its charms. The late Government of Ontario proposed to popularize the district by selling the islands outright upon condition that the purchasers would, within a reasonable time, erect summer homes and perform other duties looking to the preservation of the natural beauty of the district. The Whitney Administration, with the very best intentions, adopted a different plan. It was decided that the islands would be leased, but not sold, although the lease of any island would have the reversion of it in case the Government decided to sell outright in the future. The idea was that the Province should get the benefit of the increase in the value of the islands, which would otherwise go to the early purchasers. The Government's theory was good, but it has not worked out in practice. It appears that only thirty of the islands have been leased. Many who would pay handsomely for islands which they could call their own, object to paying a rental for 21 years. They do not care to lavish money upon buildings and improvements, unless they have titles to the land.

The presence of a large tourist population in Muskoka in the summer months provides a market for the farmers of that district, and they would be much poorer without it. It is desirable for similar reasons to encourage tourist traffic to the Lake Temagami and Lake Temiskaming districts. The islands are of no value except as a summer attraction. It would pay the Government to dispose of them on terms within the reach of people of moderate means. Speculation could be minimized by requiring certain duties of purchasers, the object being to induce them to occupy their property in the summer months. The Highlands of Ontario constitute one of the greatest pleasure grounds in the world, and annually attract thousands of tourists from the United States, who leave a vast sum of money in Canadian pockets. This traffic will be enormously increased with the opening up of Algonquin Park, if the Government will encourage visitors to acquire a permanent interest there, as in the Muskoka lake district.

REACTIONISM IN RUSSIA.

For the present the Government of Russia appears to be master of the situation, though the incident of the Imperial Guards firing upon the Grand Duke Nicholas is one of many indications that the forces of revolution are not extinct, but are working underground.

Premier Stolypin, following the dissolution of the Duma, announced that the Government would at once enter upon a programme of "strong-handed reform," with a due regard for the interests of the peasantry. Stolypin called to the cabinet men of liberal tendencies, like Count Heyden, but he was overruled by the Czar, and is expected to resign. Signs are multiplying that Nicholas has oscillated again toward the reactionary party. Another period of repression has begun. Newspapers are forbidden to criticize the administration, and many of liberal tendencies have been confiscated. The censorship has been renewed in all its rigor. The 230 members of the Duma who signed the manifesto drawn up at Viborg, Finland, are to be prosecuted. The jails are being filled, and the melancholy procession to Siberia continues. The Czar has promised to summon a new Duma in March, but it would not be surprising if he violated his pledge. Nothing is surprising in Russia. In the event of another election, the Government, if it is not wiped out by anarchy or revolution in the meantime, will exert all its power to prevent a second liberal victory. Unhappily the forces opposed to the autocracy and bureaucracy are divided. The moderate members of the Constitutional Democratic party, who controlled the Duma, went too far to please the Czar and his minions, and not far enough to please the peasantry. The Government might have compromised with the Constitutional Democrats, but chose to dissolve the Duma with the probable result that the revolutionary element will gather strength from the Czar's return to a reactionary policy. It is significant that the tremendous events of the past year have thrown up no impressive figure, no natural leader of men, to ride the whirlwind and direct the storm. But what else could be expected of a country where freedom of thought and speech has been a crime, and the souls and minds of men have been stifled by despotism?

TWO BANKING SYSTEMS.

Within a few weeks two great Chicago banks have been wrecked by their officials. The First National Bank was a one-man affair, but its owner, John R. Walsh, was regarded as a multi-millionaire, and a type of the highest integrity. When the crash came, it was found that Walsh had drained the bank of cash and substituted worthless securities. He is now facing a criminal charge. The Milwaukee Avenue Bank, which closed its doors a few days ago, was looked at a million dollars by the president and cashier. The former is a fugitive from justice. The latter gave himself up. Both are now known to have been race track gamblers for years. The Milwaukee Avenue Bank had 23,000 depositors, many of them very poor people. The Chicago papers print illustrations of the sad scenes in front of the bank premises where ill-clad women and men gather in the faint hope that they may recover their scanty savings. The bank inspector says that in 20 years 50 banks in Chicago have been closed and that not one has reopened its doors. Yet the banking laws of Illinois are held to be model, and are copied by other states.

In Canada the failure of a chartered bank or a savings bank of any kind has been always a very rare occurrence, and has become even rarer in late years. The banking business has been surrounded by safeguards as stringent as our law-makers can devise, though the highest security for the public must always be the character of the men directing our great fiduciary institutions, and in this respect Canadian may congratulate themselves. The United States banking system, by comparison with our own, is full of defects, and only a country of abounding wealth could get along with such a rickety financial apparatus. At the first touch of depression their small banks go down by hundreds, but Canadians can reflect with pride and comfort on the fact that during the monetary crash across the line ten years ago the banks on this side weathered the hard times without strain or danger.

The harvesters' excursions are in progress, and help to explain why rural Ontario is not growing rapidly. Canadians are buying more freely from every country but Germany. The surplus is doing what was expected of it.

A student of foreign affairs says that Germany is gradually absorbing Holland by a process of "peaceful penetration." This must be another form of "benevolent assimilation."

It is announced that the revolt against the sombre character of gentlemen's evening dress has won a victory in England, and that blue swallow-tailed coats with brass buttons will be strictly proper. In other words, the London swell will have the option of dressing like a waiter or a footman.

The report that the Mad Mullah is on the warpath again is a disappointment. The world was given to understand that this vivacious gentleman had turned his spear into a pruning hook, and settled down to a peaceful bucolic career in Italian Somaliland. He has cost the British people several million dollars, and a number of lives, and this ought to satisfy any heathen of moderate ambition.

A hero worshiper pictures President Roosevelt as being so busy with affairs of state at his summer home that he signs documents while in the barber's chair. Roosevelt is known to be a man of restless energy, but it would be far from complimentary to him to say that in all his working hours he is immersed in business, leaving no time for reading or reflection. Statesmen are not made in that way. Bacon uttered a truth which is often forgotten or ridiculed in these days of unthinking rush and stress, when he said: "For expert men can execute and perhaps judge of particulars one by one; but the general counsels and the plots and marshaling of affairs come best from those that are learned."

THE CONVERSATION MAKERS.

[Punch.] Mr. Punch's definition of a bore: The man who talks about his own motor car when you want to talk about yours.

REMARKABLE NEW POTATO.

[London Daily Mail.]

Vegetarians will doubtless hail with delight the advent of a new tuber, blue of skin and yellow of interior, which is about to be placed upon the market. This new potato is known as the Bolson, comes from the Bolson, and is the result of scientific cultivation by Messrs.

Sutton, of Reading. It has quite a distinct flavor of its own. Epicures describe it as a combined flavor of turnips, and asparagus. The plant will thrive anywhere, the wetter or more marshy the soil the better. It is claimed that its productive power is 50 to 100 per cent over the ordinary kind.

JAPANESE WOMEN BEST FORMED.

[Boston Advertiser.]

A famous German scientist who has made a life study of the beauty of women of all nations considers that he found the most perfect and harmonious development of form among the Japanese. His ideal proportions differ slightly from the standards of beauty left us by the Greeks, and he gives the following as his "normal proportions" of the perfect figure from averaging the measurements of many:

"The height should be seven and a half times the length of the head, ten times the length of the face, and the legs four times the length of the head. The shoulders should be two heads wide, and when standing erect perfectly developed legs should touch at the knees, the calves and the ankles." Here, however, are some other measurements which artists generally recognize as a standard for beauty: The stretch of the thumb and middle finger should just measure the length of the face; the thumbs and second fingers should exactly circle the neck, while the thumb and middle fingers should exactly circle the level with the shoulders; the perfect woman should measure exactly her height from the tip of one middle finger to the other, while the arm hanging down should reach exactly half-way down the side.

LENGTH OF SENTENCES.

[Philadelphia Bulletin.]

"The English sentence grows shorter and shorter," said an essayist. "Spenser, Sir Thomas More, Lyly and Sydney used sentences of the average length of 55 words. Nowadays the sentences of the average journalist are only 15 words long."

"Bacon introduced the short sentence. At a time when everybody else was using 50 words he took to 22. Praise be to Bacon."

"Macaulay used a very short sentence. Its average length was 23 words. Dickens' average was 28. Thackeray's was 31."

"Matthew Arnold's sentences are long, but beautifully balanced. They are 37-ers. Henry James is longer, and though intricate, graceful and well worth puzzling out, for in each of them a wonderful meaning is concealed. They are 39-ers."

"Kipling's sentences are 21-ers. George Moore's are 24-ers. H. G. Wells are 23-ers. Upton Sinclair's are 22-ers."

ALL RIGHT AFTER ALL.

[Philadelphia Ledger.]

She—Would you really die for me?
He—No, dear, I would not.
She—There! I thought you wouldn't, and yet you talk of love—
He—My dear, my love is of the undying sort.

HARDEST WORK OF THE DAY.

[Sketchy Bits.]

"I always do the hardest work before breakfast."
"What's that?"
"Getting up."

LIKE A DOG-WATCH.

[Harper's Weekly.]

Mamma had not noticed the clock striking during all of the afternoon, and, thinking perhaps it had stopped, she asked little Rita to go into the hall and see if it was running. After a hasty survey of the long pendulum swinging back and forth, Rita ran back and announced: "Why no, mamma. It isn't running. It's standing still and wagging its tail."

THE MONEY STANDARD OF LIFE.

[Truth.]

The artist or writer strives more to make money than for lasting fame; the businessman to make a fortune than to be honest; and the ordinary man and woman to become rich than to be respected for legitimate reasons. All is sacrificed in England now to money, and money excuses almost everything.

LIVING ON LOVE AND KISSES.

[Life.]

She—That's all very pretty, Jack, but do you think we can live on love and kisses?
He—It's much the safest—everything else is either adulterated or poisoned or tainted!

AN UNEQUAL STRUGGLE.

[Chicago Tribune.]

The hungry mosquito made several attempts to get into the house, but found itself barred out by wire screens. "Robbed of my living by the Iron Trust!" it hummed plaintively.

Wearied by its exertions it flew back to the margin of the pond whence it came.

Some enemy had sprayed the surface of the water with kerosene, making the neighborhood utterly uninhabitable.

"Defrauded of my ancestral home by the Oil Trust!" it moaned. "What is the use of keeping up the struggle against predatory wealth?"

Then it lay down and died—another victim of plutocratic greed.

SO ABSENT-MINDED.

[St. Paul Dispatch.]

A young bridegroom, after the wedding was all over and the bride's old father had gone off to the club, began to search anxiously among the wedding gifts.

"What are you looking for, dear?" said the bride.

"That $2500 check of your father's," he said, anxiously. "I don't see it anywhere."

"Poor papa is so absent-minded," said the bride. "He lit his cigar with it."

BITS OF PHILOSOPHY.

[Philadelphia Ledger.]

Even a "good fellow" may reform. The height of realism is to sing "coon songs" till you are black in the face. It's our charity that always covers a multitude of other people's sins.

Men wouldn't flatter if women didn't flirt.

The fellow who casts slurs generally throws a boomerang.

A Scholar in Politics

[From the Chicago Record-Herald.]

Augustine Birrell, who fathered the education bill which passed its third reading in the House of Commons last week and is now up to the lords, is the subject of a characteristic sketch by T. P. O'Connor in a recent number of his weekly. Mr. O'Connor is a sincere admirer of Mr. Birrell, who, indeed, is one of the cleverest and most versatile Englishmen of the day. Mr. Birrell has attained the distinction of being in the front rank as a lawyer, as a statesman and as a man of letters.

Born in 1850, Mr. Birrell graduated from Cambridge in 1872, became a barrister in 1875, and was subsequently appointed queen's counsel and bencher of the inner temple. He has written numerous delightful essays, among his most famous collections being "Obiter Dicta" and "Res Judicatae." Mr. Birrell is a member of the new British cabinet by reason of his portfolio as president of the board of education.

"Of all men who have reached power and office and who excite my sympathy," writes Mr. O'Connor, "I put Mr. Birrell first. He, as my readers know, is now in charge of the principal bill of this parliamentary session. It is a great duty and one of which any man might have been more clearly pointed out for the discharge of such a duty than Mr. Birrell. He is a man of letters to his finger-tips. There is nothing he has not read. I remember once talking with him on some kind of political mission. There were several of us, and most of us were only too glad to get into a carriage together where we could while away the dreary hours of a railway journey in conversation. Not so Mr. Birrell. He, with many apologies, curled himself up into the corner of a carriage all by himself, and was soon immersed in the perusal of an ancient volume of eighteenth-century literature. Anybody who has read his essays will know that there is no greater student than he of all our classics, and that he himself has added some pages to our literature which the world will not willingly let die."

"Add to all this, as special qualifications for his task, that he is the son of a nonconformist clergyman; that he was born in the great city of Liverpool, where religious controversies rages; that he was brought up in a church school, though a nonconformist. Look at him, too, as he sits on the treasury bench, and study his face and manner, and you will be astonished to find what a fitting frame for such a temperament and such a task nature has given him. If you were passing through a picture gallery and saw a portrait of Mr. Birrell you would be inclined to think that the artist had left nature, or perhaps I should say, that he had improved upon nature, and was starting from a real face, had then worked it up to a face that was dramatically, nay, melodramatically, like the ideal scholar."

"This is the man who is, then, fitly intrusted with the great task of settling the education problem in the midst of a tempestuous era of theological controversy. How tempestuous that controversy is—how full of currents, eddies, cross-currents—nobody can realize who has not spent a night listening to one of the debates on Mr. Birrell's bill. This is a house of groups. And there is not one of these groups that he has not studied his face and manner, and sometimes it is different from that of any other group. The Tories and the Irish have in many respects the same views about education, but the Irish want a settlement and like the Government; the Unionists hate the Government, and do not expect a settlement. The Labor men are in favor of secular education, but they do not like the nonconformist extremists. The liberal churchmen are Liberals, but they also do not love the nonconformist extremists. The extremists think one way, and some another, on the most important clauses of the bill."

"In the midst of this labyrinthine tangle sits poor Mr. Birrell. He makes a concession to one group; another bears down upon him. He then twists and withdraws, or explains away the concession and then the roles are changed, and the group he has just satisfied bears down on him in rage and resentment. Then he makes a somersault, and then all men join together, the battle becomes general, the noise deafening; and Mr. Birrell is up and down like a jack-in-the-box—first answering this man, and then that, and then a third. It is a wonder that the roses are fading from his cheeks and his hands. It is a strain which no single man could bear without some such sufferings, unless he had the skin of a rhinoceros, but then he would not be the delightful essayist, the broad, kindly philosopher with the gleaming and small eyes and the ironic smile, whom all love."

"Genius always has nerves."

COCKNEY IN THE COUNTRY

There are many people who live in the country, often at considerable inconvenience to themselves, yet who might just as well remain in town. They are those who are cockneys at heart, though perhaps they are not aware of it.

They have their houses "out of town" because their friends and acquaintances do so. They appreciate the pure air, but otherwise they live precisely the same lives they would live in town. The country, with its sweetness and variety, is wasted upon them, while many a poor fellow who longs for the open fields or the fragrant roadside frets out a hateful and uncongenial life in the city.

It is one of the unseemingly unfair arrangements of Fate that this should be so, but it is undoubtedly true. Cannot you picture such a place in your mind. The same elaborately pointed stone walls, same gravelled drives, same carefully arranged shrubbery, same house—everything just the same—and there are hundreds more such places.

The owner is driven to the station in the morning and returns in the afternoon. If anything were out of place he would notice it promptly enough, and the servant who was responsible would be sharply taken to task. Beyond that, however, the whole place has no meaning to him. It is a carefully designed bit of pomp and circumstance which has grown to be a matter of course to him. He takes about as much real pleasure in it as a canary does in a magnificent new cage—Aired Stoddard, in outdoors.

Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and guaranteed cure for every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles. See testimonials in the press and ask your neighbors about it. You can use it and get your money back if not satisfied. 50c, at all dealers or EDWARDS, BATES & CO., Toronto.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT. When Napoleon I. was mounting the steps of the royal palace, Madrid, after he had made his brother Joseph King of Spain, he remarked to Joseph: "You will be better lodged than I am," referring to the palace at Versailles.

DR. J. D. KELLOGG'S Dysentery Cordial is a speedy cure for dysentery, diarrhea, cholera, summer complaint, sickness and complaints incidental to children. It gives immediate relief to those suffering from the effects of indiscretion in eating unripe fruit, cucumbers, etc. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to conquer the disease. No one need fear cholera if they have a bottle of this medicine convenient.

The House of a Thousand Candles

BY MEREDITH NICHOLSON. [Copyright, 1905, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.]

"You don't intend fighting the fact of your absence, do you?" demanded Larry, after a long silence.

"Of course not!" I replied quietly. "Picking was right on his heels, and my absence was known to him here. And it would not be square to my grandfather—who never harmed a flea, may his soul rest in blessed peace!—to lie about it. They might nail me to the perjury besides."

"Then the quicker we get ready for a fight the better. As I understand your attitude, you don't propose to move out until you've found where the sinner's hidden. Being a gallant gentleman and of a forgiving nature, you want to be sure that the lady who is now entitled to it gets all there is coming to her, and as you don't trust the executor, any further than a true Irishman trusts a British prime minister's promise, you are going to stand by to watch the bonfire counted. Is that a correct analysis of your intentions?"

"That's as near one of my ideas as you're likely to get, Larry Donovan!"

"And if he comes with the authorities—the sheriff and that sort of thing—we must prepare for such an emergency," interrupted the chaplain.

"So much the worse for the sheriff and the rest of them!" I declared.

"Spoken like a man of spirit. And now we'd better stock up at once, in case we should be shut off from our source of supplies. This is a lonely place here; even the school is a remote neighbor. Better let Bates raid the village shops tomorrow. I've tried being hungry, and I don't care to repeat the experience."

And Larry reached for the tobacco jar.

Advertiser Patterns

Designed by Martha Dean.

A VERY ATTRACTIVE LITTLE GOWN—4065.

A little gown which may be the height of fashion any season of the year is shown. It is developed in the wide flouncing with a narrow lace insertion and edging adorning the bodice. The pattern provides for the bodice in high neck with deep, square yoke, and sleeves, long or in short puff. The bodice is of very pretty shape, and may be adorned in a variety of ways. The dress is one which may be made of a washing fabric, serge or pongee, and without any difficulty to the best experienced. For the medium-size, 2 yards of 36-inch material are needed. Sizes, 1-2 to 8 years.

I turned and took a step toward the door.

"I said Miss Devereux," he repeated in dignified rebuke. "She came up this morning, and the sister left at once for Chicago. Sister Theresa depends particularly upon Miss Devereux—so I've heard, sir. Miss Devereux quite takes charge when the sister goes away. At the last of the students are staying in school through the holidays."

"You seem full of information," I remarked, taking another step toward my hat and coat.

"And I've learned something else, sir."

"Well?"

"They all came together, sir."

"Who came? If you please, Bates?"

"Why, the people who've been traveling with Mr. Pickering came back with him, and Miss Devereux came with them from Cincinnati. That's what I learned in the village. And Mr. Pickering is going to stay."

"Picking stay?"

"At his cottage on the lake for a while. The reason is that he's worn out with his work, and wishes quiet. The other people went back to New York in the car."

"He's opened a summer cottage in midwinter, has he?"

I had been blue enough without this news. Marian Devereux had come back to Annandale with Arthur Pickering; my faith in her snapped like a reed at this astounding news. She was now entitled to my grandfather's property and she had lost no time in returning as soon as she and Pickering had discussed together at the Armstrongs' my flight from Annandale. Her return could have no other meaning than that there was a strong tie between them, and he was now to stay on the ground until I should be dispossessed and her rights established. She had led me to follow her, and my forfeiture had been sealed by that stolen interview at the Armstrongs'. It was a black record, and the thought of it angered me against myself and the world.

"Tell Mr. Donovan that I've gone to St. Agatha's," I said, and I was soon striding toward the school.

A sister admitted me. I heard the sound of a piano, somewhere in the building, and I consigned the inventor of pianos to hideous torment as scales were pursued endlessly up and down the keys. Two girls passed through the hall made a pretext of looking for a book and came in and exclaimed over their inability to find it with much suppressed giggling.

The piano-pounding continued and I waited for what seemed an interminable time. It was growing dark and a maid lighted the oil lamps. I took a book from the table, and, moreover, so utterly disgusted did he grow with himself and with the other woman, that he determined he was finished with her.

When Lady Queensberry discovered the bank in which they were placed, which by the way was one in Sloane street, she made up her mind she was going to have her jewels back. Always rather clever at imitating signatures, she practiced for hours together, copying that of her rival, which was really a remarkably good one. In the meantime she also managed to procure some note paper bearing the actress's address and then there Lady Queensberry wrote an order to the manager of the bank purporting to have come from the actress requesting that the jewels which he was taking charge of for her be given to bearer. The manager apparently suspected nothing and handed the case to the messenger, who conveyed it back to the marchioness. Every one remembers the sequel; the excitement in Scotland Yard, the amusement of London, the rage of the actress, and the abrupt manner in which the matter was eventually hushed up.

The marchioness is the one and only woman who has been a match for the notorious Mrs. X. At the time, Lady Queensberry was made a heroine by her friends and the late Queen thought the ruse so smart that she sent for her to congratulate her on her cleverness. After this Queensberry turned over a new leaf and they have lived more or less happily ever since.

ACTRESS LOSES ENGLISH MILLIONS

Former London Favorite, Nearly Sixty, Ousts Pretty Pauline Chase.

London, Aug. 13.—The engagement recently announced between Nicholas Wood, the Birmingham motor car manufacturer and reputed millionaire, and Pauline Chase, the pretty American actress, is off. A famous woman, whose name need not be mentioned, but who was once the talk of London, is said to be at the bottom of the trouble. When she puts her eyes on any man, he has but little chance of escape, and she betrays his fiancée or even his wife. But she puts her eye only on men who have money. They know this, yet they fall into the trap. It seems incredible that a woman who is getting on to 60 and with such a record should still have it in her power to oust young and pretty women, but there it is. Most people noticed that nearly every photograph of this woman taken at Ascot and Newmarket showed Nicholas Wood in attendance, and her friends declare that poor little Pauline Chase is inconsolable.

There is one remarkable story connected with this woman, which has never got into print, yet it is absolutely true. Some years ago she got hold of the Marquis of Queensberry, a weak, good-natured person, and having got from him all the money possible, she then insisted that he must give her the family jewels, which, of course, were in the possession of his wife.

"No," he said, "I cannot possibly give you Lady Queensberry's jewels."

"Oh, but I never take 'No' from anyone," she said. "You have got to get them and what is more, you must bring them at once."

The marquis did not dare refuse—he was then under her sway absolutely—and in good time the jewels arrived. Lady Queensberry missed them and accused her husband of having given them to the woman, who was then the sensation of London. He did not deny it. Instead of flying into a rage, she took it quite calmly and said very little.

"Try to find out where she has deposited them," she remarked.

Grateful for his wife's calm in the matter, the marquis decided that he would find out, and moreover, so utterly disgusted did he grow with himself and with the other woman, that he determined he was finished with her.

When Lady Queensberry discovered the bank in which they were placed, which by the way was one in Sloane street, she made up her mind she was going to have her jewels back. Always rather clever at imitating signatures, she practiced for hours together, copying that of her rival, which was really a remarkably good one. In the meantime she also managed to procure some note paper bearing the actress's address and then there Lady Queensberry wrote an order to the manager of the bank purporting to have come from the actress requesting that the jewels which he was taking charge of for her be given to bearer. The manager apparently suspected nothing and handed the case to the messenger, who conveyed it back to the marchioness. Every one remembers the sequel; the excitement in Scotland Yard, the amusement of London, the rage of the actress, and the abrupt manner in which the matter was eventually hushed up.

GYPSY SELLS DAUGHTER

Steals Her From First Husband to Make Her Wed a Second.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 13.—Claiming that his father-in-law had stolen his wife, for whom he had paid $225, and later sold her to his rival for $600, Charles Georgia, a gypsy, invoked the aid of the law in Macon county to assist him in regaining her. Georgia is 16 years of age and has a marriage certificate before her. He was married to the girl two years ago in St. Louis by a Roman Catholic priest. The maiden name of the bride was Rose Mitchell. He says he met the girl when she was but 13. It was a case of love at first sight. Her parents were well-to-do nomadic Hungarians and did not look with favor upon his suit, claiming that their daughter should have a handsome man than Georgia. They finally agreed to waive their scruples about looks if he would pay them $225 for the girl.

The young couple lived together happily for seven months. While traveling near Cincinnati the parents kidnapped her and carried her to their camp, several miles distant. There another wife trade was made. It developed that the father of Rose had a son who was very much in love with a kypsy girl. Her father desired to procure for him a pretty wife. He demanded $600 for his daughter, but also desired to marry off his son. A peculiar bargain was finally made. Rose's father agreed to marry her to the other man's ugly son for $600, and in return Mitchell's son was to be given to his daughter. Mitchell professed to love her first husband devotedly, she was compelled to obey her parents. She and her second husband were married, but the latter soon tired of her and sent her back to her parents.

A thimble Georgia, the deserted wife, keeping in touch with the proceedings and with his parents followed the band from place to place. Finally he came upon them in Macon county this week. The story was related to Justice McCoy and warrants were issued for the girl's parents and Peter Lewis, a member of the band, who acted as a sort of go-between to arrange the deal. The legal action was sufficient. The father of the girl was at first rebellious and demanded $600 more before he would allow the girl to return. A threat of imprisonment had the proper effect and the girl was turned over to her delighted husband. The parents were then allowed to go free, but Lewis was held.

KEY EXPLODED IT

Recipient of Box Opens the Same and Is Terribly Wounded.

Paris, Aug. 14.—M. Haegell, a partner in a firm of menders of antique porcelain and china, was terribly injured by a bomb explosion at his workshop in the Rue de Bondy this morning, which took place while he was opening a parcel delivered to him in the ordinary way.

He had opened an outer basket, and found an envelope with a key and a wooden box. He had no sooner attempted to turn the key in the lock of the box than a tremendous explosion occurred, which shook the whole neighborhood and shattered the windows of the workshop. A woman, who was sitting at a fourth-floor window sewing, was seriously injured.

M. Haegell was found horribly wounded standing in the courtyard, but apparently perfectly calm. His face was bleeding, nearly the whole of his hair and beard had been blown off and his left arm hung down a shapeless mass by his side, his hand and wrist having been blown off.

Inside the box, attached to the sides by wire, was a revolver, containing a spent cartridge. It had been so placed that on the key being turned it pressed against the trigger of the revolver by means of an ingenious arrangement of thread. The box was filled with black powder and with numerous pieces of old iron, nails, iron nuts, etc.

A portion of Haegell's arm had been blown against the wall, and fragments of flesh were found on a windowsill on the first floor. On arriving at the hospital he fell into a state of coma, and the surgeons found it necessary to amputate the stump. It is impossible to attribute any motive for the outrage, but there is a theory that someone to whom he had refused money may have taken this means of revenge.

Curiously enough, either last night or this morning some unknown person entered the courtyard and roughly drew on the ground-glass window of M. Haegell's workshop a sketch of a revolver and a dagger. The pane on which this drawing was made was the only one left intact after the explosion.

MAKES HOT PLEA FOR INTERVENTION

New York Wants U. S. to Restore Order in Russia.

AND END THE "HELL ON EARTH"

Would Have a Concert of Civilized Nations Free the Patriots of Russia.

New York, Aug. 14.—The Times soberly and editorially advises the United States to intervene to restore order in Russia, as a good opening to establish Uncle Sam on a sound footing among the powers of Europe. The Times says:

"If our territory adjoined the territory of Russia, if we stood geographically, let us say, in the relation of Germany or Austria to the Russian Empire, it can hardly be doubted that we should long ago have been compelled by considerations of our own peace and security to remonstrate with the Government of the Czar against the prolongation of hopeless civil disorder in his dominions. Were that our position, with the Russians as our neighbors, it would be impossible that the sympathy and the humane impulses of our people should not be stirred by the intolerable sufferings of the Czar's subjects in their struggle to secure the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Inevitably, too, our national and official attitude toward Russia would be affected. The cruelties of Weyler, his reconcentration order and the heroic but vain efforts of the Cubans to establish their independence produced in this country a state of mind that, even without the destruction of the Maine, most speedily have led to our intervention.

Would Astonish Europe.

"The mere suggestion of American interference or of any foreign interference with the domestic affairs of a great European power would be received with astonishment in every continental chancellery. But the idea of such an intervention was not viewed with astonishment, but with practical universal approval, when Emperor Leopold and the King of Prussia, in 1791, signed the declaration of Pilsnitz by which they agreed to join with other princes to re-establish the authority of Louis XVI, and to furnish him with the means of putting down the French revolution and maintaining a government suitable to the interests of the throne and of the people. That was intervention to strangle liberty and hold up the hands of her destroyer.

"Has time with such a leader foot that after more than a hundred years free peoples must be forbidden to consider the question whether it may not be their duty and their privilege to come to the relief of millions on millions of their brethren helplessly and almost hopelessly striving to throw off the yoke of an oppressive and unparably more tormenting than the burdens imposed on the French people by the privileges of the crown and the nobles? What are the preconceived notions of propriety that are held to preclude the consideration of concerted influence to put an end to the present 'hell on earth' in Russia? Is it the notion of mere bigness? Is it because men shrink from the idea of coercing a sovereign of such state and dignity?

Interests Demand Order.

"Our interest in the restoration of civil order and the erection of liberal institutions in Russia is the interest of every great nation. Our rights of trade and of intercourse are measurably abridged so long as this great empire's given over to strife and practically to anarchy. Moreover, the weakness of the Czar's Government and the incredible cruelty of his administration in many parts of the empire are sending to our shores every year a flood of enforced and therefore undesirable immigrants.

"The point on which we wish to insist is that the principle of ultimate intervention is not excluded by history by international law, or by human reason or human probability. The interests, the peace and the security of the great powers of the world, and, reinforcing those considerations, sympathy and humanity, the horror of cruelties long continued, the indignation kindled by the spectacle of a down-trodden people baffled in every attempt to win their freedom, shot down for no worse crime than expressing a desire for liberty, terrorized at every turn by the prison and the bayonet must sooner or later lead to a union of sentiment and a concert of action that will end the Russian hell on earth. It cannot go on forever. The time will come, and it ought not to be far distant, when civilization will say to the

A Health Rule of Importance

Medical doctors are probably unanimous in the opinion that the most important rule of health is that which relates to the regularity of the bowels and would put it something like this, "There should be at least one motion of the bowels every day."

Parents can inculcate no more valuable rule into the minds of their children, and when difficulty comes in living up to this motto, the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills should be resorted to.

By use of this treatment prompt relief is obtained and the whole system of filtration and excretion is set right because of the action of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills on the liver and kidneys as well as the bowels.

The very cause of indigestion, biliousness, headache, liver complaint, kidney disease and backache is removed when Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are used, and the benefit is not only thorough but lasting. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

DESERTED VILLAGE OF NORTH WOODS

Town of Mamainse Forgotten
for Twenty Years.

ON NORTH SHORE OF SUPERIOR
Mining Company's Failure Results in
Residents Leaving Never to Return.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 14.—Hidden away behind the precipitous, rocky bluffs of Point Mamainse, and surrounded by a dense forest, there lies the deserted village of Mamainse. It is unmarked on the map, and except for an occasional venturesome hunter or land-looker, it has been forgotten more than twenty years.

The town is composed of some fifty substantial frame buildings most of which are constructed of the finest clear white pine, lathed and plastered and set on solid stone foundations. Much of the timber used in these dwellings would cost $100 a thousand today and there is not one house among them that could be duplicated for less than $1,000 to $1,200. In size and shape most of them are alike, nearly two full stories in height and each containing from five to seven rooms.

Besides these there are several larger and more pretentious buildings, including a big boarding-house of forty rooms capable of lodging 200 men, and a shaft-house, stamp mill and reduction works on the site of an old and abandoned copper mine.

The latter fact, of course, explains the building and final desertion of a village in such an out-of-the-way place, and yet the explanation is only a partial one.

Ordinarily when men go into the wilderness in search of such mineral, timber or agricultural wealth as they may find, their places of habitation are merely temporary structures to be occupied until such time as they may have proven the existence of such wealth, and the possibility of its development.

But at Point Mamainse the promoters of the new copper mine waited for nothing. They built their own town and big stamp mill at the same time they were at work sinking the shaft to the supposed valuable copper lode below the surface. More than a million dollars were expended in the development and the building of the town, which was to be a permanent place of residence of hundreds of people. In fact at one time the company had more than 200 men on its pay roll.

The company was an English one, and was reputed to have untold millions behind it. And it must have had a goodly sum, too, for the men who came from England to start the mine and built the town lived high and spent their money lavishly. According to the stories told, the company that commenced the development of the mine was known as the Quebec, Lake Superior Copper Mining Company. Most if not all of the money furnished for the promotion of the project was raised, as such things are accomplished nowadays, by the sale of mining stock. That all of this money came from England is likely, and that there were many sore hearts and blasted hopes in that country when the mine failed to be a producer is a natural conclusion.

The mine was opened in the early seventies when the excitement incident to the discovery and development of valuable copper lumps on the opposite shores of Lake Superior near Calumet and Houghton was at its height. With the exception of a large store building about 40 by 80 feet in size and two stories in height, and half a dozen of the cottages which have since burned down, the rest of the houses remain standing, denuded of doors and windows and open to snows and rain of a cold and uncertain climate. It is said that when the last group of disappointed Englishmen left Point Mamainse for their own country it was with the expectation that within a few months they would return to prosecute their search for the mineral and to resume their residence in the little town they had built in the forest.

Miners Never Returned.

In this hope, too, they were disappointed. Whether English capitalists, who had been furnishing the money, came to the conclusion that they were being made the victims of a gang of sharpers, or whether their funds were depleted does not appear, but certain it is that the miners never returned, and the deserted village remains to excite the curiosity of the occasional visitor.

As a proof that the miners and villagers intended sometime to return to Point Mamainse it is said that upon their departure they left their houses furnished, and the big company store stocked with goods. For a time watchmen were employed to protect the property against thieves, but finally they, too, were recalled, and the houses and all their contents were left to the mercy of the wind, weather and vandals alike.

As soon as it was discovered that no one was left to take care of the mill, shops, store and houses a systematic process of spoliation was organized. Many boats landed at Point Mamainse to be loaded with household goods, plunder from the store and from the mill and machine shop. Two men, it is said, are serving time in the Central Prison at Kingston, Ont., for the theft of brasses from the stamp mill. The men took their plunder to Marquette and were caught in that city to be taken back to Canada to stand trial and go to jail. When everything else of value had been taken the doors and windows were stolen and carried away to be used in the building of shacks and log cabins in the woods, or in other settlements along the lake shore.

The big boarding-house, the only structure in the village that has been occupied since the departure of the miners, is used today as a temporary summer camp by James T. Bennett, who has purchased the timber left standing upon the mining claim. Other abandoned copper mines are to be found along the lake shore both above and below Mamainse. One of these, and perhaps the most promising, is the mine of the Lake Superior Copper Company, located in the woods near Hibbard Bay. This company is composed chiefly of Detroit capitalists and was abandoned only a few years ago.

HO! FOR SILLY SEASON

Staid Old London Is Now Busy With Nonsense.

London, Aug. 13.—The silly season has arrived at last, much later than usual, but there is no doubt about it now. Why?

Because the sea serpent has been seen and because the London press has given up its columns to the public discussion of such subjects as "Are we becoming less religious?" in which eminent divines are taking a serious part, and "Are we too squeamish?" which was led off by a well-known novelist, John Strange Winter.

A great time is this silly season for the amateur scribbler, for, encouraged by the London editor to contribute what may prove amusing copy—it must be or it would not be published—he is able to set himself or herself in print. And, what's more, it is an unusually hot season.

Whatever fears there were about the weather breaking down, they have proved quite groundless, for the weather has been of a most brilliant description, though had it been cooler it might have been more enjoyable. We've had it in London as high as 84 in the shade. Think goodness, the supply of ice this year continues adequate, and yet doctors are lamenting the fact. Some of them are taking advantage of the good nature of the newspaper editors in this silly season to inveigh against the evils of iced drinks and warning Londoners to beware of imitating their American cousins in their partiality for ice. This is a habit, they say, which should be suppressed sternly, for paralysis lurks in the cup of frozen coffee and the fiddle of the lump of ice in the champagne cup or hock and seltzer and has sounded the death knell for many digestions.

"A sudden chill," writes Dr. Josiah Oldfield, "contracts and cracks the enamel of the teeth, indulgence in ice may cause chronic congestion of the mouth and throat, but more serious injury undoubtedly is caused to the digestive organs. It is quite likely that on a hot day one who gulps down a quantity of iced liquid is running a risk of internal paralysis."

It makes me absolutely terrified to see children sucking lumps of ice," writes another physician, who emphasizes the risks of impurity. "Many of the diseases young children suffer from in hot weather have been contracted in this way. There is also danger in brain trouble."

"Everyone who eats ices has felt that shiver run running from the top of his nose to the roof of the skull. This frequently develops into meningitis or inflammation of the brain."

DESERTED VILLAGE OF NORTH WOODS

Town of Mamainse Forgotten
for Twenty Years.

ON NORTH SHORE OF SUPERIOR
Mining Company's Failure Results in
Residents Leaving Never to Return.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 14.—Hidden away behind the precipitous, rocky bluffs of Point Mamainse, and surrounded by a dense forest, there lies the deserted village of Mamainse. It is unmarked on the map, and except for an occasional venturesome hunter or land-looker, it has been forgotten more than twenty years.

The town is composed of some fifty substantial frame buildings most of which are constructed of the finest clear white pine, lathed and plastered and set on solid stone foundations. Much of the timber used in these dwellings would cost $100 a thousand today and there is not one house among them that could be duplicated for less than $1,000 to $1,200. In size and shape most of them are alike, nearly two full stories in height and each containing from five to seven rooms.

Besides these there are several larger and more pretentious buildings, including a big boarding-house of forty rooms capable of lodging 200 men, and a shaft-house, stamp mill and reduction works on the site of an old and abandoned copper mine.

The latter fact, of course, explains the building and final desertion of a village in such an out-of-the-way place, and yet the explanation is only a partial one.

Ordinarily when men go into the wilderness in search of such mineral, timber or agricultural wealth as they may find, their places of habitation are merely temporary structures to be occupied until such time as they may have proven the existence of such wealth, and the possibility of its development.

But at Point Mamainse the promoters of the new copper mine waited for nothing. REAUME IS BETTER.
Toronto, Aug. 13.—Word was received at the Legislature buildings today from Mount Clemens to the effect that Hon. Dr. Reaume, minister of public works, is rapidly recovering his health and will be ready to take up his office duties shortly.

It was stated that his rheumatism is becoming less acute than for some time past and is now only slightly affecting one of his ankles. Otherwise, the minister of public works is in excellent health, and it is positively stated that he has no intention of severing his connection with the cabinet.

TOMORROW'S RACES IN QUEEN'S PARK

Good Sport Assured—No Less Than 17 Entries—Fast Ones in Bunch.

The matinee tomorrow will have entered the largest number of horses that ever faced the starter at one of these meetings. No less than seventeen horses are entered and nearly all of them will be in the fast class. There will be some rare racing, better than that of last week, and that was great, and then some. Kitty Brown and Clipper will look up in the fast class, and as this pair is fast there will be something stirring all the while. Walter S. will start, and that will mean some excitement in class B. President McCormick will unseat a new one in this class, and his form will be watched closely. The other classes are well filled and will be interesting.

The entries:
Class A—Clipper, Dr. Fred L. Wood; Kitty Brown, James McCartney.
Class B—Golden Trent, James McCartney; Bobby T., Dr. Fred L. Wood; Mountain Boy, Geo. McCormick; Walter S., Norman McLeod.
Class C—Perry Carter, W. E. Robinson; Pandora, J. Brownlee; Sidney Pointer, Frank Adams; Dr. Jack, Dr. Tennant & Barnes.
Class D—Perfection, Geo. Campbell; Grace Allerton, Dr. Hughson; Little Maud, F. Sherlock; Quaker Queen, W. Putnam.
Class E—Sandy McGregor, N. McLeod; Nettie L., J. Lawson; Texas Charlie, Prof. Adams.

CONDENSED LOCAL NEWS

Mr. Charles Melbourne, a graduate of The Advertiser establishment, has been engaged on the Cleveland News, has been visiting London friends for a few days.

Miss Annie Brown has returned to her home in St. Catharines. She attended the funeral here of the late Miss Arscott, who was a close personal friend.

Mr. David Eastman, of the Canadian Cutlery Company, states that prospects for the new concern are very bright. All the company now needs is a few more subscribers, and then the concern will be on established fact.

An at home was held at the home of Mr. Long, of Kingston street, last night in honor of Mr. Mack McCarty, who has gone to Reston, Man., where he will reside. A gold locket was presented to the guest of the evening by his friends.

LOST THREE FINGERS.
A man named Robertson, employed by the London Foundry Company, lost three fingers while operating a machine in the works here of the late T. E. Ascroft, who was a close personal friend.

DANGEROUS TO LIFE.
Complaint was made at the city hall today that the Grand Trunk is permitting running shunts to be made over the Eglinton street crossing greatly to the danger of pedestrians and vehicles at night.

ENGINE BROKE DOWN.
The engine of the Limited Grand Trunk, due here at 7:43 p.m., broke down last night near Woodstock, and the engine of No. 5 had to be sent there to bring the train in. Both trains were three hours late leaving London.

APPOINTED BY THE BISHOP.
The Bishop of Huron has made the following appointments: Rev. A. H. Rhodes, of Holmesville, to incumbent of Teoswater and Lakelet; Rev. T. B. Howard, of Dutton, to be incumbent of St. James', Brantford.

THE NEXT FLOWER SHOW.
The London Horticultural Society will hold a grand flower show at the city hall commencing Thursday and lasting until Friday night of this week. Everybody is extended a cordial invitation to attend this exhibition, which promises to be a good one. Members and friends who have flowers to exhibit will kindly leave them at the city hall after a 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Special arrangements have been made so that all flowers will be given the best of care.

CAN'T FIND FATHER.
Telegraph messages sent broadcast over Western Ontario failed to find Joseph Stanley, who is thought to be working on a farm in the vicinity of Sarnia. His wife, who lives at 5 Huron street, Toronto, is distressed, as their six months old boy having died since he left home. The burial was delayed until yesterday in the hope that he would receive some word of his child's death and return home.

TOM HAS A BAD NAME.
Tom Harton, of Biddulph Township, was arrested yesterday by County Constables Shaver and John D. McColl, charged with doing grievous bodily harm to Joe Thompson, an old man of the same township. Harton's reputation is said to be very bad, and when in one of his tantrums it is alleged he gave Thompson a desperate beating. The case comes up before Squire Chittick at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

STIFF SENTENCE FOR BAD GANG

Boy Thieves Get from Three to Five Years at Kingston—Chinaman Gets His.

Judge Elliott handed out some stiff sentences this morning at the court-house, when the four young boys, members of the notorious east end gang, were up for sentence.

Wm. McDonald, with a suspended sentence hanging over him, was given five years in Kingston Penitentiary on each of three charges of stealing junk. The sentences will run concurrently.

Ernest Langley, who pleaded guilty to three charges of theft, will spend the next four years in the Kingston Penitentiary. The same dose was given on the three counts, but the sentences will also run concurrently.

Wm. Lake was found guilty on two charges. He was in the junk-collecting agency with the rest, and was also guilty of stealing $10 and some change out of the pockets of Martin Kenny, at Pond Mills. George Ward was his assistant in this little job. He was given three years in Kingston.

George Ward will go back to the Industrial Home at Mimico. He was sentenced some time ago to from one to five years in the institution, but while being taken there he made his escape from Inspector Sanders. He was ordered back, and sentence was in the meantime suspended on the charge of stealing from Martin Kenny.

The prisoners are all young boys from 15 to 19 years of age. They have been members of a gang of thieves that have operated among the farmers of East Middlesex for some time. His lordship was determined to break up the gang, and therefore imposed stiff sentences on the bunch. McDonald and Langley are somewhat larger than Ward and Lake, but they are not so cunning. The little fellows are certainly foxy.

Ward and Lake were tried this morning on the charge of stealing from Martin Kenny. Lake told the story, and acknowledged that he and Ward had gone to the Pond Mills cheese factory, and during their explorations after a football they discovered a pair of trousers belonging to Mr. Kenny. Both boys made a grab for the pants, but Lake found the money. They then proceeded to get out, but were chased, and the money was found in the field where Lake had dropped it. Ward denied this story, and said that he had nothing to do with the stealing. The evidence of several witnesses, however, convinced his lordship that he was equally guilty with Lake.

Quong Wing, alias Lee Chong, appeared before Judge Elliott for trial, on a charge of stealing a gold watch and chain from the clothes of a boarder at the Sadiel House. The evidence clearly showed the Chinaman to be guilty, and he was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison.

Crown Attorney McKillop prosecuted all the cases, and he and High Constable Hughes are being congratulated on successfully breaking up that east end gang.

High Constable Hughes also located three sets of harness stolen by this gang. Two of the sets have been returned to their owners and the other will be shortly.

A DEER EXCHANGE

New Zealand Would Send Us Red Deer for Some Moose.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—A cable has been received at the state department from Sir Joseph Ward, prime minister of New Zealand, asking Canada to furnish his country with 20 young moose, 15 females and 5 males. Sir Joseph offers to send Canada in exchange 20 red deer.

MORE NEW BUILDINGS

Warehouse for the Green, Swift Co., and Several Residences.

The Green-Swift Company today took out a building permit for a three-story and basement warehouse, on Talbot street, from Carling street to Queen's avenue. Permits were also given to A. Greer for three brick-veneer cottages on Wellington street, H. E. Whittier, for a 13-story cement block residence on Dame street.

STOLE COLLATERAL

Large Amount Believed to Have Been Taken from Wrecked Bank.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The belief that large amounts of collateral given as security for notes in the Milwaukee Avenue State Bank have been stolen, practically became a certainty last night, when a note for $9,000, known to be genuine, was found in President Stensland's house at Byron street and Lawndale avenue. Search was made for the collateral security, but it could not be found.

The criminal side of the bank case has been placed in the hands of Assistant States Attorney Barbour by Mr. Olson, who is about to take a vacation. Mr. Olson was informed yesterday that President Stensland has large holdings in Mexico and that he may be in the Southern republic now.

DEATH SUMMONS NOTED WRITER

Mrs. Craigie (John Oliver Hobbs) Passes Suddenly Away at London.

London, Aug. 13.—Mrs. Pearl Marley Teresa Craigie (John Oliver Hobbs), the authoress and dramatist, died in her sleep this morning of heart failure.

Her death was totally unexpected, she having been apparently perfectly well when she retired last night. Mrs. Craigie had been spending a fortnight at her home, Steephill Castle, Ventnor, Isle of Wight, which she left Sunday afternoon to keep an engagement in London. She was 39 years of age.

Pearl Mary Teresa Richards ("John Oliver Hobbs") English novelist and dramatist, born Boston, Mass., November 3, 1867. She was educated in Paris and London, married R. W. Craigie in England in 1887, and was divorced from him in 1895.

Her writings published under the pseudonym, "John Oliver Hobbs," include: "Some Emotions and a Moral" (1891), "The Sinners Comedy" (1892), "A Study in Temptations" (1893), "A Bundle of Life" (1894), "Journies End in Lovers Meeting" (1895), "The Gods Mortals and Lord Wickenham" (1895), "The Herb Moon" (1896), "School for Saints" (1897), "Asborn and Ursine," a blank verse tragedy (1899), "The Ambassador," a play (1898), "Robert Orange" (1900), "The Serious Wooing" (1901).

WENT THROUGH BRIDGE

Driver Hurt When Traction Engine Drops Twelve Feet.

Ayton, Aug. 14.—As Wm. Newton was driving his traction engine and water tank over a bridge at Ailsford, in the township of Normandy, the bridge gave way, carrying down with it the whole outfit, a distance of twelve feet. Mr. Newton was badly hurt, having been caught under the fallen timbers. One of his legs is broken in two places, and he is also badly scalded by water leaking from the engine.

THE HARVESTERS' RUSH

Four Thousand from Western Ontario for First Excursion.

Toronto, Aug. 14.—Nearly every train which arrived at the Union Station this morning from points in Ontario along the north and south of the main line of the Grand Trunk from Toronto to Sarnia brought in large numbers of persons who are going to Western Canada on the harvesters' excursion, which leaves here today. It is estimated by the railways that ten trains will be required to take all who are coming in westward. Four thousand persons at least are expected to go out on the excursion. This is the largest number who have ever left here on the first excursion.

BOYS AS SERVANTS

Woman Starts Agency to Supply Her Sex in the Household.

London, Aug. 14.—A battalion of page boys, captained by a motherly cook, is the latest solution of the servant problem. The battalion is headed by a lady, who described her idea yesterday. "I propose to start an agency of small page boys, who will do the work of companies under the charge of a responsible elderly woman, who will act as cook-housemaid," she said.

"For the small householder two boys and the cook will be sufficient; for the large mansion ten boys and the cook." "Orphans only will be employed. They will be trained in the agency, and only a small wage will be asked. This will be regulated by the work done and the time taken to do it."

The uniform will be dark green, with silver buttons, and the cook will wear a silver green linen dress to correspond. "There will be a kitchen boy, a drawing-room boy, a dining-room boy, and each will be trained for their respective work."

MULLAH RAIDS AGAIN

Kills 1,000 Tribesmen and Carries off 10,000 Camels.

London, Aug. 13.—The correspondent at Aden of the Daily Mail reports that the Mad Mullah has raided the Somaliland border and killed more than one thousand of the Rahanah tribe dwelling in the Ogaden region and captured ten thousand camels. In December, 1905, in pursuance of an agreement between Great Britain and Italy to offer the Mullah an assignment of a settled sphere in Somaliland, together with graziers' rights in certain parts of British and Italian territory, the Mullah undertook to observe peace toward both Great Britain and Italy. This arrangement, it was believed, had brought to an end the difficult and costly British expeditions against the Mullah and delivered the protectorate tribes from his devastating raids.

GREAT FIRE AT NOVGOROD.

Nishni Novgorod, Russia, Aug. 14.—The suburb of Gordievka is in flames, and the fire is spreading, as yet the great fair buildings are not endangered. One body has been found and it is thought that a number of other persons have lost their lives in the conflagration.

MISSIONARIES WED.

Belleville, Aug. 14.—Miss V. Sinclair, sister of Alderman Sinclair, of this city, and a leading member of the Presbyterian Mission staff at Indore, India, was today married to Rev. Jas. MacKay, also a member of the Indore staff. Miss Sinclair visited her home some little time ago and made many friends. Rev. and Mrs. MacKay will continue at their post at Indore.

HIS MAJESTY OFF TO THE CONTINENT

British King and German Kaiser to Meet at Friedrichshof Tomorrow.

London, Aug. 14.—King Edward left London today for the continent, traveling to Port Victoria, by special train and crossing the North Sea to Flushing, where he will land this evening, on the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which will be conveyed by two British cruisers. The German and Austrian ambassadors were among those who assembled at the railroad station to see the King off. The greatest interest is manifested in the meeting between King Edward and Emperor William, which is to take place at Friedrichshof, Aug. 15.

THE TORONTO STRIKE

Building Operation May Be Tied Up by Sympathetic Walk Out.

Toronto, Aug. 14.—Five thousand men, representative of the building trade in Toronto, will be on strike at 5 o'clock tonight, if the carpenters' strike is not settled. This is the action of the men have taken to bring the trouble to a termination as speedily as possible.

The immense amount of building going on in Toronto now is to be tied up in a sympathetic attitude toward the striking carpenters. This was decided upon last night, after nearly four hours of animated discussion by the Federated Council of Building Trades, at a most representative meeting in the Labor Temple. At 5 o'clock tonight the trades, with the exception of the bricklayers and bricklayers' laborers, will put away their tools until the carpenters' difficulty with the employers is settled. The trades interested are plumbers, sheet metal workers, plasterers, lathers, steamfitters, painters, electrical workers, stone cutters and marble workers.

JAPAN FORGING AHEAD

Rapid Strides in Industrial Pursuits of Mikado's Subjects.

London, Aug. 14.—Japan is making rapid progress," says the British commercial attaché at Tokio in his report on the trade of Japan for 1905.

In 1902 her imports and exports amounted to $54,107,562, in 1905 to $82,694,669.

Raw cotton of the value of $1,153,000 was imported in 1905, as against $7,266,000 in 1904, and 150,000 spindles are being added to the native cotton mills. The two new giant battleships of 19,000 tons are being built with Japanese steel, and a leading Japanese ship-builder has stated that ships can be built as cheaply if not cheaper, in Japan than in the United Kingdom.

The native oil industry has nearly doubled in one year, "greatly assisted by the extra war duty."

JESUIT ELECTIONS.

Rome, Aug. 14.—Preparations are proceeding actively for the Congregation of Jesuits to elect a new general of the order. They expect to meet Sept. 1. America will be represented by the Very Rev. T. J. Gannon, of New York, the provincial of the province of the Very Rev. H. M. O'Leary, the provincial of Missouri, representing altogether 1,750 Jesuits. The election is likely to occur Sept. 8.

OPENING THE TENDERS.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—The Transcontinental Railway Commission are this afternoon opening tenders for about a dozen bridges on the line of the section of the Transcontinental Railway from the Quebec bridge to La Tuque, on the St. Maurice. Accompanying the tenders are plans, and the commission will have to examine and report upon these before contracts are awarded.

BURLING MAY ESCAPE.

Windsor, Aug. 14.—George Burling, who was arrested in Detroit on Sunday night and brought here to answer to a charge of bigamy, has been remanded for one week. He claims to be an American citizen. If this is so, under the Canadian criminal code, it probably will be impossible to convict him. The court is looking into the matter.

PONTIFF TALKS OF CANADA.

Rome, Aug. 14.—Among the visitors today the Pope received the Very Rev. P. G. Blanchet, apostolic vicar of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, who found him perfectly well and strong. The pontiff spoke lengthily about Canada and also referred to his encyclical, giving instructions to the French bishops for their future guidance, as a result of the developments of the Franco-Vatican conflict, saying that he hoped it would have a salutary effect.

A FRISKY OLD DUKE.

Munich, Aug. 14.—Duke Ludwig of Bavaria who was 75 last month, announces his intention of renouncing his second morganatic marriage with Frau Helene von Bortoff, whom he wedded in 1892, in order to contract a third morganatic alliance with Fraulein Tordek, a youthful prima donna at the Munich Royal Opera House.

Duke Ludwig's first morganatic marriage took place in 1859, with Henriette Mendel, who was given the title of Baroness von Wallersee, and died in 1881. One daughter by the first marriage is living.

The sanction of the Prince Regent is necessary before Duke Ludwig can divorce his present wife, who is 35 years of age.

—Mr. Robert Sanderson, gardener of Byron, left today on a land-prospecting trip to Calgary. If things look favorable, he may locate in the west.

MASTER BAKERS IN CONVENTION

were not so fully absorbed as might be expected in view of the fact that this constituent was supposed to be partially digested in its preparation. Certainly there is nothing in these results to show that the high-priced predigested foods were any better absorbed than the rolled oats or wheat farinas.

"The figures also show plainly that the white bread is more fully digested and absorbed than that made from the coarser grades of flour. This is doubtless due to the fact that the coarser bran layers present in the entire wheat and Graham flour form coatings around the cells which are more or less impervious to the digestive juices and consequently more of the constituents of the bread from these flours escape digestion and absorption."

Papers of much value were also read by Messrs. J. G. Gualmal, London; C. P. Misner, Simcoe; R. Harrison, Woodstock, and Mr. Bredin, Toronto.

REVOLT HEADQUARTERS RAIDED

A Peasant Member of the Late Dum To Be Tried for Treason.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 14.—In spite of the attempt on the life of the Grand Duke Nicholas Nicolaievitch on Aug. 10 at Krasnoye-Selo, the Emperor, accompanied by his entire family and the major portion of the court, has gone to Krasnoye-Selo to spend a week at the guards camp. Six additional guard regiments have gone to the camp from St. Petersburg, and the most rigid precautions have been taken to protect the Emperor's safety during his stay. The railroad station at St. Petersburg is heavily guarded and no civilians are allowed to leave there for Krasnoye-Selo except after being fully identified. A grand review is scheduled for August 19

LOCAL MARKET.

London, Tuesday, Aug. 14.
The market today was a slow one. Vegetables formed the bulk of the offerings, for which there was a slow demand. There was not a great deal of farm produce offered, as the farmers are still busy with their oats. Prices paid today were about the same as on Saturday.
Cattle—There was a lively demand for the ten loads of oats that were offered. Prices were firm at $1.15 to $1.18 per cwt.
Hay and Straw—There were only six loads of hay on the stand. Sales were extremely brisk and prices were higher $1.25 to $1.30 per ton. No straw offered.
Butter and Eggs—Butter sells at 20c to 21c for crocks and 21c to 23c for pound rolls. Eggs are firmer at 15c to 16c per dozen for fresh laid in whole and half lots.
Fruits—Apples were slow at 40c per bushel for red and 35c for yellow. Plums and cherries were slow at 30c to 35c per bushel. Peaches sold at 30c to 40c per bushel.
Vegetables—Potatoes sold fairly well at 25c per bushel. Corn was lower in price at 7c to 8c per dozen whole. Tomatoes were very plentiful at 35c to 40c per bushel. Cucumbers were a rug at 10c to 12c per dozen. Pickling cucumbers, 12c to 15c per 100. Other vegetables dull at Saturday's prices.
Poultry—Spring chickens sold mostly at 60c to 65c per pair alive, or 70c to 80c per pair dressed. Old fowl was scarce at 75c per pound alive, or 85c to 90c per dressed.
Dressed Hogs—About a score were offered, selling at $10 to $12 per cwt.
Butchers' Meat—Saturday's prices were repeated today. The supply was fair.

JUST LIKE RUSSIA
Home of Deputy and His Desk in Parliament Ransacked.

Berlin, Aug. 14.—Herr Erzberger, a member of the Reichstag, who has made himself obnoxious to the authorities as an exposé of colonial abuses in Africa, is being treated with scant consideration by the police. His apartments here in Berlin have been searched for papers and documents which would enable the authorities to see from whom he obtained his information, and his desk in the Reichstag has also been rummaged with a similar object. From both places quite a number of documents have been taken.

Herr Erzberger claims immunity from such treatment as a member of the Reichstag. The fact that the Reichstag car, by entering the Berlin police and the papers of members admitted creates an uneasy feeling here and makes people feel that, after all, Berlin is not so far away from the Russian frontier.

The Government is conducting strict investigations into the abuses of the colonial office. It recently came to light that certain Berlin newspapers were being supplied with confidential information, and Herr Erzberger also is believed by the authorities to have been in communication with subordinate officials of this department.

City Officials Must Not Mix in Private Business

Manufacturers' Committee Opposed to Proposal of International Electric Co.

The manufacturers' committee of yesterday afternoon, and refused to adopt a proposal submitted by the International Electrical Company to the effect that the city auditor and city solicitor should investigate the affairs of the concern, and, if things were found all right, sign a statement setting forth that the company is a good financial proposition.

Instead, the committee submitted a motion stating that the city auditor and city solicitor may investigate and sign the statement proposed by Mr. Sifton, but they must not do so as city officials.

Mr. Sifton's proposition was couched in the form of a motion, and was as follows:

The Proposal
"We, the undersigned members of the manufacturers' committee, of the city of London, being a special committee to report on the International Electric Company, Limited, beg to report as follows:

"We have examined the properties, plant and merchandise of the said company, and believe it to be carefully and reasonably valued. We believe the business of electric manufacturing to be capable of unlimited expansion.

"We have noticed the size and class of contracts handled, and we have concluded that it is advisable to have a considerable increase of capital to properly finance and carry on to an even greater profit the business which they have in hand. We have examined their prospectus and find the statements therein to be reasonably and conservatively estimated. Our auditor has examined the books and statements of the company, and finds them carefully and correctly kept. Our solicitor has examined the legal standing of the company from its inception and reports favorably.

"We beg, therefore, to recommend this company's stock to the citizens of London and vicinity as a reliable and safe investment, and worthy of their best support and interests."

The Substitute.
The following motion was substituted by the committee:

"That this committee congratulate the Electrical Construction Company, Limited, on the report in the public press, stating that they have had a very successful year, and are about to declare a dividend of 10 per cent, with a substantial balance also, placed to the reserved funds of the company.

"The committee also has no objection to the company employing the services of the city solicitor and city auditor to investigate their books, but this must be done with them as private individuals, and not in their capacity of city officials.

"The committee regret that they cannot grant the request of the company, as they think it unwise to create the precedent of taking the responsibility of vouching for the accuracy of the statements of private firms."

Principal Radcliffe Says Results Are Most Satisfactory in Years.

The results of the Collegiate Institute examinations were made public today by Principal Radcliffe the names of the successful students having arrived from Toronto last evening.

"The results are the most satisfactory in the history of the Collegiate," Mr. Radcliffe said to The Advertiser.

Mr. Hargrave's Place Will Be Taken by Lieut.-Col. Sharp.

A dispatch from St. John, N. B., announces that the Salvation Army is transferring Lieut.-Col. Sharpe, for the past five years head of the army in the Maritime Provinces, Newfoundland and Bermuda, to London to take charge of the work here. He will arrive in a couple of weeks.

This means that Brigadier Hargrave, who has been in charge of the army work here for the past three years, is to be transferred to another post. He came here from Spokane, Wash., and has proven himself a capable administrator, with an untiring zeal and an affable manner, which made many friends for the army and for himself.

The brigadier does not as yet know to what point he will be transferred, or when he will be notified to leave London.

JOHN D. AND REPORTERS
Has Sincere Regard for Newspapermen and Magazine Writers.

Cleveland, Aug. 13.—John D. Rockefeller greeted his friends at the Euclid avenue Baptist Sunday school yesterday morning with a cordial and freedom never before shown by him. His light-heartedness was shown by his greeting of Cleveland's smart news-paper reporter. The reporter was conversing with Assistant Superintendent Briggs when the old king came up behind and slapped him on the neck.

Mr. Rockefeller invited the reporter out to his Forest Hill home to play golf and then spoke of the visit of the American press humorists to him last fall, adding:

"Do you know, I find newspapermen—and even magazine writers—a charming class personally. They impress me as being a really sincere type of men. I think newspaper training fits a man for making acquaintances quickly and fits him to judge the worth of them in the same short time."

PROF. PENFIELD DEAD.
New Haven, Conn., Aug. 14.—The death of Professor Samuel Lewis Penfield, head of the department of neurology in Sheffield Scientific School, at Yale, was announced at Yale. Professor Penfield died at his summer home in South Woodstock, Conn. He had been ill for two years with kidney trouble. He was one of the most distinguished neurologists in the country, and was a member of the National Academy of Science and a number of scientific bodies abroad. The interment will be at Catskill, N. Y., where he was born.
