CAPTAIN WILLIAM ELLIOTT WRIGHT, R.N.

Capt. William Elliott Wright, R.N.

AND HIS DESCENDANTS

1. William Elliott Wright was born on October 12th, 1785, at Gravesend, England, where his father was connected with the Dockyard. He entered the Royal Navy July 26th, 1798, and saw much active service, rising steadily in rank. In 1816 he was Lieutenant on H.M.S. "Newcastle", one of the vessels guarding Napoleon at St. Helena, and in 1817 he was made Commander. In the same year he married Jane, the youngest daughter of Richard Leech, Governor of "the Honorable East India Company's Stores" in that Island, and the following year retired to live in England, at Lee, Kent, where the three eldest children were born.

He afterwards moved to Chudleigh, Devonshire, and lived there till 1833, when he brought his family to Canada. They stayed in Toronto a short time, where the youngest child was born. From there they went to Amherstburg, and remained nearly a year waiting for his log house at Corunna to be built. During this time his wife died of cholera, leaving him to take possession of his new house with seven children and his step-sister, Miss Ann Goble, who devoted the rest of her life to caring for them.

Here at "Oaklands" (so named from his wife's old home in St. Helena) on the banks of the St. Clair River, seven miles south of Sarnia, he lived till Jan. 20th, 1869, when he died at the ripe age of 84.
