CHAPTER IX.
 A SECRET COMPACT.
 "Well!" she said, "and if I do wish it, what then? Is it so unnatural? Are there many better matches, many better men than Cecil Neville?"
 "Few, if any," he assented, blandly. "He is young, handsome, popular, brave, and—a future marquis." She picked at the moss in the crevice of the stone coping. "A very good match, indeed, and Lady Grace is worthy of such a partner, truly!"
 "And you mean to do your best or your worst for the match?" she said, swiftly.
 He took out a cigarette.
 "May I?" he asked, then lit it, and leaning on the railing surveyed the beautiful scene as if he were quite absorbed in peaceful contemplation, and had quite forgotten his companion and the subject of their conversation. Then he turned his head and smiled at her. "No," he said, slowly and softly, "I mean to do all I can to further the idea."
 She started slightly, and her lips parted in a faint sigh.
 "You do! You—you mean to help me! And why?"
 He was silent again, smoking with placid, serene enjoyment for a moment or two, then he replied:
 "If I were to answer that I am prompted solely by a desire for your happiness."
 She made a movement of impatience. "You see!" he said, reproachfully. "You would not believe me, so what is the use? Suppose that we do not go into my motives. Let us, if it please you, decide that they are utterly selfish and bad, abandoned and wicked ones—will that do? Very well. After all, what do my motives matter? If I can help you—and I think I can—do not seek to go beyond the mere solid fact of my assistance. Leave the reasons alone. They can't matter much, can they?" and he looked into her eyes with the bland and innocent gaze of a child.

 She moved restlessly.
 "If I could trust you!" she said, un- easily.
 "I thought I had already proved myself worthy of confidence," he said, simply; but there must have been some hidden significance in his words, for they brought the blood to Lady Grace's face, and then left it pale and white to the lips.
 "I—I—" she faltered.
 "Oh, do not say anything of the past," he murmured, soothingly. "Let us think of the present. We will speak plainly. It is the dear marquis's wish that you should marry Lord Cecil Neville; you being gratified by his choice and willing to fall in with his views, an old and tried friend offering his services to you, do not hesitate to avail yourself of them. I am the old and tried friend."
 The last words were more softly and coolly spoken than any that had preceded them; but Lady Grace started up and looked at him suspiciously. He, however, met her scrutiny with his bland and innocent smile.
 "If I really thought you would help me," she said, doubtfully.
 "You may think so, for I will," he answered. "As I said, never mind my motives, they concern only myself. And how goes the business? Has our dear friend Cecil—eh?"
 She frowned slightly as if the question touched her self-love and vanity.
 "Our dear friend does not at present seem much smitten by your humble servant's charms," she said, with a short laugh, which only barely hid her vexation.
 He smiled and nodded.
 "Our young friend is rather spoilt, you see. One cannot be the favoured of the gods in the matter of youth and strength and features without paying the usual penalty. Cecil is the most popular man in London. Believe me, there are twenty young ladies—I could give you their names—and his lips curled—who are, if not dying, living in love of him."
 "I know," she said, with hardly restrained impatience. "Of course there has been a dead-set at him. That is very natural, is it not? But—but I don't think—"
 "That the sultan has shown any partiality; that he has not yet thrown the handkerchief," he finished for her. "No," thoughtfully; "I don't think he has. His lordship has, indeed, been so very impartial, not to say invulnerable, that I have sometimes wondered whether there was not some young lady hidden away, eh?" and he looked at her questioningly.

 She started and coloured.
 "Then there is?" he said at once.
 "I—I don't know," she replied, musingly. "There may be. Last night I dined away from the Towers—at the Thurltons, you know?"
 "I know," he murmured, pleasantly. "Thurlton's grand-father was transported for forgery; his wife's sister ran away with young Lengard, I remember."
 "Our course, you know all about them, every shameful secret in the family for generations back?" she said, with a sigh.
 He laughed.
 "I have such a dreadfully good memory, dear lady. Well, you dined there—"
 "Yes; and coming home I passed down the High Street, and saw Lord Cecil. He was standing at the door of a fly, opposite the theatre, talking to a lady—a girl."
 He nodded, and puffed at his cigarette placidly, with half-closed eyes, looking, indeed, almost asleep; but his next question proved that he was very much awake.
 "Was she pretty, Lady Grace?"
 "I only saw her for a minute. Yes," she admitted, reluctantly.
 "You did not know her?"
 She shook her head.
 "No. She was not one of the daughters of any of the county people; besides, it was a fly. It was opposite the side entrance—"
 "She was an actress," he interrupted, quietly.
 "How did you know?"
 "My dear lady! It is so simple! The fly was the only one there, or you would not have seen her so plainly; it was at the side entrance; she was unknown to you. Oh, plainly it was an actress. And it was she who was with Lord Cecil this morning."
 "Then you have seen her?" she exclaimed, eagerly.
 He shook his head.
 "No," he said, "only heard her. I met our dear Cecil in the woods. As I appeared, I heard two voices, though he, of course, denied it. One was a woman's, and, though I am not in the habit of having wagers with ladies—for they never pay when they lose—I would bet something considerable that the voice belonged to the young lady whom you saw talking to Lord Cecil outside the theatre last night."
 She bit her lip, and the look came into her eyes which indicates the first approach of the green-eyed monster—jealousy.
 "Some worthless actress, painted and powdered. Some woman old enough to be his mother, though made up as a girl—"
 He shook his head and laughed with serene enjoyment.
 "No, no; such an experienced bird as Lord Cecil is not to be caught with such chaff, my dear lady? Depend upon it, this girl is young and pretty."
 She twisted her handkerchief in her hand, then smiled contemptuously.
 "It must be the Juliet of last night," she said.
 "Perhaps."
 "Well"—she drew a long breath—"I think I am a match for a common actress, though she be young and pretty!" and she raised her head and turned to him defiantly.
 He looked at her with the calm eyes of a connoisseur.
 "Yes, I should think so," he said,

And the Worst is Yet to Come— blantly. "Certainly, I think so. A match for half a dozen of them. Forgive me if I say that I don't think there is a more beautiful woman in England than Lady Grace Peyton, or a more charming one!"

 She took no notice of the compliment. To her eyes there rang a tone of mockery behind the smooth phrases.
 "What—what is to be done? What do you advise?" she asked, after a moment's pause, and with an affected indifference which made him smile.
 He puffed a thin line of smoke from his sleek lips and watched it with half-closed eyes.
 "Nothing," he said.
 "Nothing?" she repeated.
 "No," he said. "Nothing, so far as you are concerned. Just go on being beautiful and charming—as you cannot help being—and leave it to me to do the rest. If this is not a serious business, if his lordship is really only scratched, why—" He laughed lastly. "If, on the contrary, he is badly hit and means business—means to make her the future Marchioness of Stoyle—why, we must deal with the young lady herself."
 "Deal with her?" she asked, with an eager interest she did not attempt to conceal.
 He nodded at the scenery.
 "Yes. There are two ways of going to work, each suited to the subject we are speaking on. Money and moral suasion. It may be money in this case; if so—"
 "I am rich," she said, in a quiet undertone. "If the creature requires to be bought; if—"
 "You will do it? Exactly. But the moral suasion?"
 "I will leave to you, who have so much of it," she said, with a half-smile.
 He laughed softly.
 "So they all say, dear lady; but alas! I am so tender-hearted that I can never bring myself to use it. I am all heart, all heart!" and he laid his hand on the spot in which the organ is situated, and beamed at her. Then, without moving a muscle, he went on: "And so, dear Lady Grace, we had the poor children to an evening-party, and gave them tea and buns, and I am sure you would have been melted to tears at the sight of their overbrimming happiness."

Lady Grace looked round in astonishment, and saw that Lord Cecil had stepped from one of the windows. Spencer Churchill's quick ear had heard him, and hence the swift change in the topic of conversation.
 "Mr. Churchill begging again, Lady Grace?" said Lord Cecil. "Beware of him; he never comes near you without an attempt on your purse. What's it for now, Spencer—the Indigent Washerwoman, or the Chimney Sweeps' Orphans? He's chairman or secretary of half a dozen charities—arent you, Spencer?—and he won't let you rest until you've put yourself down for lady patroness for half of 'em!" and he laughed the short, frank laugh which was so refreshing a contrast to Spencer Churchill's oily one, that Lady Grace felt as if it washed the other away.
 "It's the Indigent Basketmakers Children, my dear Cecil," said Spencer Churchill, smoothly. "Dear Lady Grace has consented to become one of our lady patronesses—have you not, Lady Grace?"

New Relief For Constipation, "LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.
 So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandria leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.

France Celebrated Yesterday.

Wounded Soldiers Given Place of Honor--Russian Elements Uniting for Common Good--Valparaiso Suffers from Hurricane.

GREAT VICTORY PARADE.

PARIS, July 14. The conquerors in the great war marched to-day in a victory parade under the Arc de Triomphe, through which only victors may pass. Picked units and individual heroes represented each of the Allied armies. Several million grateful persons, mostly French, but with many thousands of their Allies, struggled forward along the line of march for an opportunity to wave and shout their gratitude to them who saved them from German imperialism. The great triumphal arch, conceived by Napoleon to commemorate his victory at the battle of Austerlitz, took on new historic importance, when the Allies marched through the massive pile of masonry which dominated all Paris and moved down the Champs Elyses toward the Place de la Concorde. The place of honor in the procession was not accorded to the Generals and the smartly equipped troops, it was given to the thousand mutilated soldiers who passed under the arch and in front of the reviewing stand where stood President Poincare, moving haltingly and out of step as best they could. Many were injured, some were blinded some were in wheel chairs and others were on crutches or limped along with or without canes. Few of them were in uniform. They represented all the provinces of France, all the branches of the military service and all walks of life, as was indicated by the variety of their civilian attire. They made no effort to maintain military formation but marched as well as they could to the air played by the military band which followed them. Great crowds filled every inch in the streets and boulevards that commanded a view of the line of march. Windows were packed and roofs were black with people. Many hung in trees which lined the boulevards.

RAPIDLY GETTING NORMAL.

NEW YORK, July 14. Great Britain and France are rapidly getting back to a pre-war basis in industry, according to W. A. Eken-gren, Swedish Minister to the United States, who arrived here to-day with his wife aboard the steamship Stockholm, after visiting both countries. "This transition," he said, "probably will take more than a year, but judging the future by the present, surprising results may be expected in many lines. France already has resumed operations in a normal manner. This applies particularly in toys and dyes in which Germany held a monopoly before the war."

BIG STRIKE CALLED.

NEW YORK, July 14. The threatened strike of men employed on the vessels controlled by the United States Shipping Board was called for to-day. By this action, according to union officials 50,000 seamen and thousands of stewards and cooks and other employees joined the ranks of those already on strike in the coastwise trade. The offer of the shipping board of an increase in wages and shorter working hours in port was duplicated to-day by the American Steamship Association which controls seventy-five per cent. of the coastwise shipping but the proposals failed to bring about a settlement.

RUSSIA UNITING.

OMSK, July 3. Admiral Kolchak, the head of the All Russian Government replied to-day to the message from General Denikine the anti-Bolshevik leader in southern Russia in which the southern leader pledged his support of the Omsk government. In his telegram Admiral Kolchak said: "I am deeply touched by the patriotic decision dictated by your high ideals of duty to the country in the period of the disintegrating, general depression and pessimism you were one of the first to raise the standard of united, resurrected Russia. By your decision at the present moment you give the country their example of soldier and citizen who considers above all the happiness of his country and her historical future. God help you in your service to Russia."

DAMAGE CAUSED BY HURRICANE.

VALPARAISO, July 14. Five small vessels were destroyed or driven ashore and heavy damage was caused by a hurricane which blew over this port Saturday and Sunday. All but one of the crew of the German steamer Sals were drowned. The Sals was washed ashore and destroyed.

Dried Fish.

Considering the dried fish situation from its various angles, there appears to be no reason for any undue apprehension on the part of the shippers for the immediate future. While supplies have been fairly liberal, the demand has been generally well maintained and there is in prospect large business with many places which heretofore have not been calculated as more than possibilities. The effect of weather conditions to the eastward have delayed during operations somewhat, and very naturally there has been also some delay in shipments. This, however, has not been a bad thing for the export business in dried fish, for several tropical markets are or have been overstocked and delays in shipments from Gloucester in particular, allow time for a cleaning up at these places before new supplies are received. This would have a tendency toward stabilizing these markets for new fish. There is a fair supply of old fish on hand but it is not in any sense a heavy carryover. The spring fishery at Lunenburg, which has been in doubt, is estimated at about 50,000 quintals, which is a good catch. According to advice from this center fishermen are undertaking business on the basis of $12 per quintal, and it is understood that at Halifax this price is also the basis of trading at the moment. Porto Rico, Cuba and other West Indian markets are somewhat unsettled, and it is reported that Northern Brazil is over stocked. This is due in a measure to the fact that Newfoundland shippers have been sending their decline in European markets. It is goods to South America because of a interesting note that Norway and Iceland are again to be reckoned with in the dried fish trade, but how potential their competition will be cannot be foretold. The catch in Norway has been short and there has been no estimate of the production in Iceland. Both are shipping to Spain and Portugal however.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette July 5.

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

The Newfoundland Scotch cured herring situation, more than any other varied with the development of new conditions in the trade, both from the aspect of supply and demand. The present situation is none to encourage in view of the heavy stocks yet to be delivered, and the downward trend of prices during the past few weeks. While there were indications of an improvement, and holders of stocks in New York were inclined to be firmer in their ideas as to the future, the situation appears to have again been depressed by the announcement that there are some 20,000 barrels of winter and spring pack Scotch style herring to come forward. The first lots were received during the week, and it is the opinion of the trade that "the quality is only fair." At the same time it must be noted that Newfoundland Scotch cured herring of the fall catch is obtainable at prices as low as $12.50 in some quarters, despite the fact that holders of fancy stock are asking fancy prices. It appears a fortnight ago that the Newfound-

Fads and Fashions.

Tunics are irregular in hem. Square necks are conspicuous. The caught-under hem is new. The use of embroideries continues. Cuffs are rarely seen on sleeves. The waist line is long and vague. The supple silks are still the best liked. Ruffles are especially popular this season. Black satin frocks are very smart. Afternoon frocks have very short sleeves. Taffeta parasols are embroidered in wool. Slipover knitted blouses continue in favor. The mushroom-shaped hat is a favorite. Brilliant linings for furs are promised. Dropstitch voile is excellent for underwear. Dinner gowns are made entirely of black lace. A cape lining to match a dress is a new wrinkle. Vestees may be made entirely of narrow ruffles. Coats without fastenings are no longer favored. Pointed trains cut in one with the skirt are in use. Large hats are most worn during the midsummer. The coming evening dress will be daringly low. Fringe continues to enjoy an unheard-of success. Some dress skirts are flounced from waist to hem. The evening gown is showing a very plain bodice. Belted coats are made in two-colored combinations. Scarfs are now made of the same material as one's gown.

Order of the Thistle.

The Order of the Thistle, which rumor has it, is shortly to be bestowed on the Prince of Wales, had a warlike origin. During an invasion of Scotland the Danes tried a night attack, and to prevent their tramp being heard marched barefooted. They had succeeded in creeping close to the Scottish lines when one of them trod on a thistle and uttered a shout of pain. The alarm was given, and the attack was beaten off, and out of gratitude the thistle was adopted as the insignia of Scotland. The Prince of Wales will be formally installed in his new dignity in the "Thistle Chapel" that was erected in St. Giles' Cathedral in Edinburgh a few years ago. At the present time, and excluding the King, there are only two royal Knights of the Thistle, the Duke of Connaught and his son.

Bonaparte's Short Severignties.

On Friday, July 12, 1808, Joseph Bonaparte entered Madrid as King of Spain, in consequence of his brother Napoleon becoming Emperor of France and winning victories over European nations. But on July 29 of same year, Joseph Bonaparte felt obliged to retire from Madrid, and though he was restored to this throne on December 2 that year, the many successive victories won by the British invaders over the French invaders of Spain caused him to retain it till only May 14, 1814, when Ferdinand the Seventh was restored. Joseph had been, in 1805, made King of the two Sicilies, one on the island of that name, the other on the mainland of Italy; but in 1806 he was King of Naples only. After losing his Spanish kingdom he resided in the United States of America from 1815 till 1832, when he came to England. In 1841, when the Italians were successfully striving to get an independent kingdom, instead of being under the Austrian Empire, Joseph settled in Italy, but only to die there at Florence on July 28, 1844. Jerome Bonaparte, youngest brother of Napoleon, was, in 1806, made by him King of Westphalia, a manufacturing province of Germany. But by the battle of Waterloo, in 1815, this kingdom was lost to the French, and Jerome became a fugitive in Italy and France. Louis Bonaparte, another brother of Napoleon, was made by him King of Holland, after King Louis Philippe lost his throne, through another French revolution, was elected President of the French Republic in 1848, and Emperor in 1852, but he was deposed in 1870, and died a refugee in England in 1873. The very opposite has been the case with Bernadotte, a general and marshal of the French Army of the Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte. He was so gentle and generous to those whom he had conquered in battle, that he was asked by Charles XIII., King of Sweden, to allow himself to be named heir to the throne. Napoleon could not without difficulty be induced to consent. "What!" said Bernadotte, "will you make me greater than yourself by making me refuse a crown?" And Bernadotte did succeed to that throne as Charles John XIX., and it has been occupied by his descendants ever since.

How Bridges Breathe.

Like us mortals, big steel bridges feel the changes in the weather, and must be built to withstand them, or perish. In the heat of summer a bridge is appreciably longer than it is in winter, and at various times of the year it may be longer on one side than on the other, as when a hot sun plays on one flank, and a cold wind impringes on the other. The "breathing apparatus" of a bridge consists of rollers under the feet at one end, so that the end can move to and fro freely according to the expansion and contraction of the huge girders. Provision is made in the case of the Forth Bridge for so much as two feet of "breathing" of the immense cantilevers.

An Englishman's Home.

When the Prince of Wales visited Southwark recently he and the mayor climbed the stairs of one house to an attic so low that neither could stand upright. The only furniture consisted of two bedsteads with a mattress on each and some rags for bed coverings. There was a window with broken sash frames and several panes of glass were gone. The mayor asked the prince what he thought of it. "It is damnable!" was the emphatic reply. This story was related by the Mayor of Southwark.

The "Irish" Karelians.

That war is still being waged in Russia and other parts of Europe is not so strange, perhaps, as the circumstance that there are people engaged in it little known to the rest of the world. For instance, while it was common knowledge that around the shores of the White Sea, the Finns formed one of the valuable auxiliaries of the allies opposed to the Bolsheviks, the existence of the Karelian as an allied soldier will come as something brand new to the average reader. The Karelian, however, is one of the Finn family, and his country embraces the southeast corner of Finland and parts of the modern governments of Petrograd, Olenetz, and Archangel. The Karelians are also known as the "Royal Irish Karelians," from the fact that their commanding officer is a British colonel of the Royal Irish Regiment.

They are quartered about the town of Kem, and muster about 4,000, as against the 1,500 of the Red Finn Legion. Dressed in regulation khaki, the "Irish" Karelians, of course, have not forgotten the indispensable shamrock. This, be it said, is worn in the form of a badge, cut out of Maconochie tins.

Returned With Interest.

Two women of uncertain age, who had long been rivals in love, quarrelled over a trifling gift which was the object of their adoration had indiscreetly bestowed on one of them. "He intended those flowers for me," the elder woman said to the lucky recipient. "You waylaid him on the way to my house, and shamelessly robbed me of his offering. Your guilty face tells tales." The other woman shrugged her shoulders as she sniffed at the pretty bouquet, and answered, sweetly:—"Oh, well, my dear, have it your own way. At any rate, no one would ever accuse you of having a tell-tale face. It is so difficult to read between the lines!" And now the deadly breach between them had widened beyond repair.

We Must Remember Our Dead.

Now that peace has once again come to our Empire, and we are beginning to organize plans for the reconstruction of the world, I wonder in the making of our plans to what extent are we remembering our heroic dead who sleep beneath the soil in France and Flanders? Shall we forget the ideals for which they fought and died? Or shall we by their sacrifice be inspired to lay the foundation of a better future? If we remember them and make our plans in accordance with what they did for, then we need not entertain fears as to what the result will be. I think that among the first that should ever remember our noble dead is the returned man, for he knows to the fullest extent just what his brother-in-arms did to uphold, he is well aware of what it cost to maintain the standard of justice and liberty. But, are they not forgotten by some of us who have returned—have not we by our actions, in many cases, disregarded the sacrifice that our brothers have made? Too often, I fear, we have disregarded them and take advantage of our position as returned soldiers, without considering those who helped us in the struggle against injustice, but who were called upon to lay down their lives, that we,
 with others, may enjoy the privileges made possible by their sacrifice. We, who, upon the battlefields of Europe, upheld the highest ideals that ever a people were called upon to maintain, should bear in mind that we must manifest these ideals, now that we have returned. How can we, in the light of all that confronted us while we were in defense of our country, return home and lower the standard for which we fought and in so doing cast a shadow over our glorious dead? If we are to have a lasting peace and a better world to live in, we must one and all live up to the ideals for which the soldier fought and for which many gave their all to uphold.

GARLAND RODGERS.

In Memoriam.

Death has again been vivid among our loved ones, and this time has gathered to its fold, Torrence, beloved son of Mrs. and the late Mr. St.
 George (Heart's Desire). On July 2nd, after an illness of two years which he patiently endured, he passed happy and peacefully out of this life at the early age of 30 years. Although his death was not unlooked for, yet it came as a heavy burden to his people. Ted, as he was generally called, was the family favorite and the parting from him seems doubly hard. Still they have the consolation of knowing he was fully prepared to meet his God, as before passing to the Great Beyond he received full rites of Holy Mother Church, and his people had the happiness of watching over him until the last. He was of a bright and cheerful disposition which made him loved by all who knew him. Many years of his life were spent in the Soo, Ontario, where his many friends will be sorry to hear of his early demise.
 He leaves to mourn him a loving wife and mother, four sisters and one brother, all of whom are sorrow stricken over their loss. His father, James, predeceased him two years ago, and since then their home has been surrounded by sadness, but let us hope that God in His mercy will strengthen them, and that when this sorrow has faded away, sunshine and happiness may descend upon them for many years to come.

While here in death I lie, dear friends,
 Your lingering gaze I meet;
 Learn ye the great important task,
 the way and how to die;
 That when you too are called to go,
 from the throne of heaven above,
 Death may not have a single throe,
 but a haven of peace and love.

Shamrocks C. C.

The Shamrock Cricket Association held its annual meeting last night.
 The attendance was large and the old time interest in the good old game was very pronounced. After the election of officers which resulted in Mr. P. J. Berrigan being appointed Captain and Mr. E. T. Furlong, Secretary-Treasurer, a programme for the season's work was outlined and arrangements made to get a crease ready for practice. The champions are hoping for a revival of the game, and are very anxious to play any teams offering.

Soldiers Preparing.

At the C.C.G. Hall, last night, the organizers of the G.W.V.A. drive, which takes place on Thursday, held a most enjoyable meeting. President Mitchell addressed the meeting on the object of the "drive" and the urgency of the appeal. The necessity of a permanent club for our returned veterans was emphasized, and Capt.
 Leo Murphy made a stirring appeal for enthusiastic canvassers. Mrs. Mc-Keen, Major W. H. Parsons, M.C.,
 Major G. T. Carty, Capt. B. Butler,
 D.S.O., Lieut. C. B. Carter and Mr.
 K. M. Blair made interesting speeches, displaying the enthusiasm which is undoubtedly manifest. There can be little question about the fact that if last night's meeting be a criterion the financial result of the drive is an assured success.

Obsequies of Ven. Dean Doutney, P.P., Renewes.

The remains of the late Dean Dou-tney were brought to town by special train from Renews last evening. The body lay in state during the night at the Cathedral, and High Mass and Office was sung this morning at 8.30. His Grace the Archbishop Pontificated, and His Lordship Bishop Power as well as many of the Clergy from the three Dioceses were present. After the ceremony interment took place in the Priests' Plot, Belvidere.

TRIBUTE OF HIS GRACE THE ARCHBISHOP TO THE MEM- ORY OF DECEASED DEAN.

Yesterday morning at the St. Bonaventure's Re-union, His Grace the Archbishop took occasion to refer to the death of Venerable Dean Dou-tney, one of the oldest members of the Association. In the passing of the Dean, he said, another landmark had gone, another link with St. Bonaventure's past had been severed. The deceased Priest was not only the Dean of the Diocese in point of dignity and honour, but he was also Dean in the number of years in the Priesthood, being the oldest Priest in the Archdiocese and in age the oldest Priest in Newfoundland. He was one of the last of those pioneer Missionary Priests who in other days and under other conditions had done so much to build up the Church of Newfoundland. For more than forty years he had laboured in the different missions of Placentia Bay, for nearly the whole of that long period having been Parish Priest of the extensive Parish of St. Kyrnan's, Placentia West. This vast Parish stretched along more than sixty miles of the rough and rugged coastline of Placentia Bay. From this might be formed some idea of the great work that he had to perform, of his missionary zeal, his physical endurance and his spirit of self-sacrifice. The means of communication in those early days were very different from those of to-day. Trains and steamers were unknown, there was literally not one mile of road in his whole vast Parish, and his missionary work had to be done in small boats, the Priest sharing the dangers, privations and hardship of his fisher flock who brought him from place to place whereever his ministrations were needed. In his late years he had been transferred to Renewes, where he had passed the calm and quiet and peaceful even-tide of his life, remaining in active work until the very last. Though Re-newes was his best Parish, it was with St. Kyrnan's that his name would ever be associated. His memory would be long cherished and revered by the people of that Parish whom he served so faithfully and so well. The late Dean, as all who knew him could testify, was above all things a thorough Priest in every sense of the word. He never figured much in the public eye, because he shunned rather than sought the limelight of publicity. He lived but for his people and his work.
 He was ever the gentle, kindly "Soggarth Aroon." He had no interests in life outside his Parish and his parochial work. Wherever he lived and laboured he was revered by his people as their father and their friend.

The passing of the Dean, His Grace continued, was indeed a severe loss to the Church. It was true that he had passed the Scriptural limit of three-score years and ten and that his days of active service might be said to be over, but still his loss to the Church would nevertheless be a great one. In these strenuous days of progress whilst we needed the energy and enthusiasm, the dynamic force and driving power of the young, still we could ill-afford to lose that splendid Priestly spirit, that high sense of duty, that magnificent spirit of discipline, that simple and lively faith for which the old type of the Priesthood pre-eminently stood. To them,
 His Grace said, of a younger generation the lives and example of these venerable Priests could not but be a source of inspiration and an incentive to higher and better effort.

His Grace said that to him the passing of the Dean came in the nature of a personal loss. It was true that they belonged to different generations, that they were separated by more than a quarter of a century in age and in years in the Priesthood, still he had had the privilege of close intimacy and association with him, especially during the last four years. When four years ago he was placed over the Archdiocese of St. John's and in the intervening years, from no young Priest of the Diocese had he received more unfeigned homage, more sincere loyalty and more unselfish devotion than from this venerable and saintly Priest who had given years of faithful service in the ministry before he, the Archbishop, was born.

It was, His Grace, concluded, not once a sad duty and a melancholy privilege for him to pay this tribute to the memory of a good and zealous Priest who had now entered into rest after his labours, and who would, he did no doubt, receive the rich reward of his nearly fifty years of zealous and devoted work in the ministry of Newfoundland.

THE PERSONALITY OF COLORS.

One thing everyone should consider in choosing what colors he or she should wear is whether the colors harmonize with his or her personality. It is very matter-of-fact and striking, but it is tremendously dependable. You know just where to find it. Think of the people you know to whom dark blue seems peculiarly fitted. Do they not have some, if not all, of these characteristics?

Take dark blue. There is something infinitely sensible and business like about dark blue. It is a practical color, it has a tailor made personality, it is very matter-of-fact and striking, but it is tremendously dependable. You know just where to find it. Think of the people you know to whom dark blue seems peculiarly fitted. Do they not have some, if not all, of these characteristics?

Pale green is the color of youth or springtime, but then, so do fat women sometimes wear stripes running around them and colorless women try to brighten themselves up by wearing hats of some hard brilliant unsympathetic color like cerise.

Pink is the Feminine Color.

Pink is the essentially feminine color. The most essentially feminine, the most primitive uncomplex woman I know is at her best in pink. Bright green suggests style and smartness and so does the combination of black and white.

Baby blue is a young color. All the simple colors; blue and pink and green and yellow are young and unsophisticated. They suggest white dresses with colored sashes and hair ribbons.

Subtle Colors For Subtle People.

In direct contrast to these are the subtle off colors, the queer bricky reds, the ashen browns, the golden bronzes, the tawny yellows, the fawns, the ambers and the infinite off shades of blue. The people whom these suit best are the people who are themselves more subtle and complex. Perhaps each person finds his best character expression in some particular one of these complex off shades. But that is going to far for a mere amateur guesser in color psychology. I will leave that to the specialists.

I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best Liniment made.

"Excelsior."

The continuing popularity of Longfellow's poem about the boy who bore 'mid snow and ice the banner with a strange device, although there are doubtless many who think the poem forgotten, is shown by the reprinting of an odd item concerning its origin which somebody else has recalled and contributed to an American newspaper. Longfellow, it is said, got his first thought of the poem by happening one day to see the seal of the State of New York, a shield with the rising sun and the motto "Excelsior" in heraldic Latin. The image came to him of a youth climbing an Alpine pass with a pennant bearing the motto affixed to his alpenstock, but the large and waving banner which appeared in illustrations of the poem is said to have been an "interpretation" by the illustrators. The verses struck a responsive chord in the imagination of readers, and were reprinted even in a Hebrew translation. While this happened nearly fifty years ago, there is still a lively interest in the poem.—Christian Science Monitor.

Steam crushed velvet over a hot iron covered with a damp cloth. Boiled ham or tongue is among the best meats for outdoor meals. Wind wrapping twine taken from packages and use again.

I have a home that's pretty slick, a mansion made of wood and brick; the window panes are mostly glass, the doorknob is of costly brass. And there are screens to keep out flies and in the pantry there are pies; electric kicks up a breeze when torrid summer days displease. Oh, there a man in peace might rest, and feel that he was doubly blest, if he had sense enough to stay in that large dwelling refreshery. But summer makes a man insane; some doodle-bug infests his brain; he leaves his mansion for a shack in sylvan glade or mountain track; he scraps with bugs through weary nights, and suffers from mosquito bites; he packs his wood from distant piles, and carries water nineteen miles and lives on beans and has no pies and spoils his larynx cursing flies. I have a home that's slick as grease, and there, if sane, I'd live in peace, all modern comforts at command, and bowls of ice cold fizz at hand. But here I sit in a cheap coop, where mountain lions round me whoop, and drink warm water when I'm dry, and never see a white man's pie; I'm burned and blistered by the sun, and try to think I'm having fun.

When fireproof dishes have been scorched soak in strong borax water. Stretch a taut wire along the pantry shelf wall. Slip tin lids back of it.

Wonders of Cacti.

Some of the most remarkable denizens of the plant world are found in the extensive cactus family. A number of these strange plants are no doubt familiar to owners of greenhouses, who sometimes have a few small examples of the hedgehog-like variety, and others.

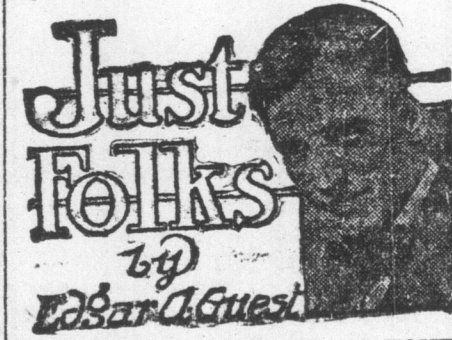

These, however, give but a faint idea of the growth and size arrived at in cacti, growing naturally in the hot Mexican deserts. In these dry, stony tracts of land, cactus plants have been known to reach thirty or forty feet in height.

An interesting feature of these plants is found in the wonderful flowers which many of them develop. In some cases these are of immense size—say a foot across—and of most brilliant colours. It is a pity, however, that these flowers only bloom for a very short time, and, strangely enough, some kinds only open at night. Many years ago, when the now common "night-blooming cactus" was a much-prized variety, it is on record that invitations were sent out by an enthusiastic owner to his friends to come to his gardens in order to witness the blooming of one of these singular plants.

Another remarkable family of plants—which, incidentally, have an equally remarkable name—are the resemblyanthemums, which are confined chiefly to the dry districts of South Africa.

Other curious fleshy-leaved South African plants are the Stapelias, which cater for the likes of certain carrion-loving flies, by the simple process of having brown and purple leathery flowers which stink. That is the only word that adequately describes the perfume of these blossoms.

WAIT TILL YOUR PA COMES HOME
"Wait till your Pa comes home!" oh, dear!
What a dreadful threat for a boy to hear.
Yet never a boy of three or four But has heard it a thousand times or more;
"Wait till your Pa comes home, my lad, And see what you'll get for being bad."

"Wait till your Pa comes home, you scamp! You've soiled the walls with your fingers damp. You've tracked the floor with your muddy feet And fought with the boy across the street; You've torn your clothes and you look a sight! But wait till your Pa comes home tonight."

Now since I'm the Pa of that daily threat Which paints me as black as a thing of jet, I rise in protest right here to say I won't be used in so fierce a way; No child of mine in the evening gloam Shall be afraid of my coming home.

I want him waiting for me at night With eyes that glisten with real delight; When it's right that punished my boy should be I don't want the job postponed for me. I want to come home to a round of joy And not to frighten a little boy.

"Wait till your Pa comes home!" Oh, dear, What a dreadful threat for a boy to hear. Yet that is ever a mother's way Of saving herself from a bitter day; And well she knows in the evening gloam That he won't be hurt when his Pa comes home.

The Newest 1919 Trench Coats!

The Trench Coats for men we are now showing arrived on the last English boat and are quite the finest Coats we have ever handled. They are the product of a first class English firm, famed for its Military Tailoring, are built of fine quality Gabardine in all shades of Khaki, well-lined with smart-patterned Twill Plaid. Pockets velvet lined. Three very special features in these Coats are: (1) Extra high and well-fitting storm collar; (2) extra wide revers, forming when fastened ample throat and chest protection; (3) an entire interlining of Oilskin, rendering them not only doubly waterproof but absolutely wind and cold proof as well; forming an ideal Coat for all weathers. All Coats are belted and strapped at wrists. All sizes.

PRICE FROM $30.00 UP.

Britain Supreme.

Score another aerial triumph for Britannia, the now acknowledged conqueror of the air as well as the ruler of the waves. Her big dirigible, lighter than air, ship has completed the crossing and recrossing of the Atlantic Ocean, and thus pioneered the way for transport through cloud-land. On the Eastward passage the giant airship beat her Westward run by thirty-three hours—the latter, because of considerable circle sailing over the Northern route taking one hundred and eight hours to accomplish, the former being done in seventy-five hours, the route for the homeward journey from Mineola being chosen for its proximity to the regular steamship lane between the American and European Continents, and while longer than the Northern route of the Eastward trip, being twice the over-sea distance, of the first flight, its freedom from fogs and storms was a factor too important to be left out of consideration. On the run this way the airship followed a course of thirty-two hundred miles, while on the home run this distance was considerably lessened; and with favorable winds the aerial liner cut down the time by nearly one-third.

The track followed by R-34 when homeward bound, runs in a due Easterly direction from Sandy Hook, New York, for a distance of twelve hundred miles, and then makes an abrupt turn into the great circle track which leads to the Fast-net Rock, the first land to be made and the last to be seen, when nearing and leaving the Irish Coast, by steamers. This turn from the straight Easterly course adds sixteen hundred miles to the run, so that the over-water flying of the dirigible compassed twenty-eight hundred miles or double that of the Western flight. But the more favorable weather conditions was an advantage that could not be missed, and the wisdom of taking the Southerly route for the home run has been demonstrated.

Every former record for trans-Atlantic journeys has been hopelessly beaten by Major Scott and his heroes of the air. The blue ribbon is in possession of R-34 for some considerable time to come, and whether or not an aerial mail and passenger service will be inaugurated at an early date the honor of being the leaders through uncharted air spaces will belong to Britons, who with the steady perseverance and daring courage of their ancestors have accomplished by aeroplane and airship the seemingly impossible, and created a brand new record which may be, in time, equalled but given similar conditions, never surpassed.

MEN'S ENGLISH FLANNEL SUIT SPECIAL.—We are now able to show a small shipment of splendid Grey two-piece English Flannel Suits, well made and good cut, worth at least $15.00. We offer at $7.75. G. KNOWLING, Ltd.—July 15, 1919.

"Over the Top."

G. W. V. A. DRIVE.

The returned soldiers and sailors will begin a new advance on Thursday morning when they climb over the parapet and start a money campaign amongst the citizens of St. John's, for the purpose of raising funds to finance their new headquarters building, a portion of which is to be used for club and recreation purposes. The need for such a place in which the men can foregather and exchange views and discuss matters in connection with their organization is obvious, and we feel confident that this new offensive of the G. W. V. A. will result in victory complete and lasting. We owe it to the men themselves to dig down deep and show appreciation of their great services by going "Over the Top" in the present drive.

Bastille Day.

Yesterday, being Bastille Day, and the National Holiday of the French Republic, was observed by the French Government and people as the day of the celebration of Victory and Peace. At sunrise and sunset the French Naval patrol ship in port fired salutes from her batteries, the sailors dressing ship, while the band played the Marseillaise. Other French ships in port were gallily decorated with bunting in honor of the occasion.

Accident at Carbonear.

Still another result of children playing around trains and engines in the outport stations was shown on Saturday last, when, at Carbonear, a young lad had his heel cut off while stealing a ride as the train was shunting there. Nurse Williams was quickly sent for and upon arrival got the boy ready and put him aboard the St. John's train to be taken to Hospital. It is possible that the injured foot may have to be amputated.

Another Drowning.

The following message to the Deputy Minister of Justice was received from St. George's yesterday:—"Reported to me Saturday, 9 p.m. that Joseph Young, of Bank Head was drowned in Tickle River Friday last, while attempting crossing on a raft, accompanied by his son, Fred. Raft capsized, son saved. So far body not found."

MAGISTRATE.

Iron Isle Garden Party.

The Annual Garden Party of the Bell Island Star of the Sea Association which takes place at Bell Island to-morrow, promises to be a most successful affair. Power's large field, next the Star Hall, has been engaged and fitted up for the occasion. The field has a beautiful view of Conception Bay and visitors from the city may spend a delightful afternoon there.

Last Evening's Footer.

STARS DEFEAT COLLEGIANS. The score of last evening's footer game between the Stars and Collegians was 6 goals to 2, in favor of the former. A splendidly fought, clean game took place, the referee, Mr. Ernest Churchill, being rightly stern in checking all breaches of the rules with the consequence that the game was the cleanest of the season.

Workmen for St. Pierre.

Forty laborers and ten carpenters for St. Pierre sailed by the Portia this morning, where they are to engage in the construction of a cold storage plant. The laborers are to be paid 50 cents an hour and carpenters 60, while their board, it is claimed, may be obtained for $5 a week.

Soldier Married.

Ex-Pte. Jack Spell of the Regiment and Miss Ethel Moore were married at St. Patrick's Church last evening. The couple leave by the S.S. Sabie I. to-day for Halifax, where their residence will be made.

Straits Blocked.

A wireless was received from Battle Harbor yesterday stating that large quantities of ice were still on the lower part of the coast, and that the Straits were blocked for Forteau. We are still of opinion that our fishermen will make up for lost time as soon as the ice clears off, like they did in 1873.

Presentation.

At Ayr Picture Palace, on the 26th inst., ex-Sergt. W. G. Lewis was presented with a handsome gold ring on his leaving for Newfoundland. 1213 ex-Sergt. Lewis, who is a son of R. G. Lewis, 16 Colonial Street, is married to the manageress of Ayr Picture Palace, also Gaiety Theatre, who is known as the most popular lady in Ayr. We hope to see some of Mrs. W. G. Lewis's Palaces in St. John's. Mrs. W. G. Lewis leaves Ayr privately when her business affairs are settled.

Church of England Educational Campaign.

OBJECTIVE SET AT $500,000.00

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Church of England Educational Campaign, held this morning, it was unanimously voted that the objective of the drive should make the raising of the sum of $500,000. Considering the magnitude of the need and the means and well proved generosity of those who will be subscribers to the fund, it is thought that this fine figure will be reached. If it is the cause of education in the Capital, and through it in the country generally, will have received a splendid impulse.

Following are the names of the gentlemen who compose the Committee: Hon. Sir E. R. Bowring, Chairman; C. E. Hunt, Vice-Chairman; Mr. B. Dunfield, Secretary; Mr. C. McK. Harvey, Treasurer; Hons. W. B. Grieve, M. G. Winter, R. Watson, J. R. Bennett, Tasker Cook; Revs. Canon Bolt, Dr. Jones; Messrs. W. R. Warren, W. S. Monroe, G. J. Adams, G. J. Carter, J. H. Monroe, E. A. Bowring, R. F. Goodridge, R. B. Job, Mayor W. G. Gosling, Dr. W. W. Blackall, Percie Johnson.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Captains was held yesterday afternoon, at which much progress was made. The "machinery" of the drive is being rapidly prepared and assembled and will soon be in working order. At the Executive Committee meeting a vote of thanks was passed by acclamation to the Governors of the Methodist College for their generous offer of the use of the College Hall at actual cost during the week of the drive.

New Feature at Majestic.

The management of the Majestic Theatre who are always studying how to please their patrons, have secured "another treat for to-night," when Mrs. Gordon Rubie, a celebrated singer who is a passenger on the S.S. Grampian, will delight those who attend the Majestic Picture Show, with numerous vocal selections of a popular and patriotic nature. We would recommend that patrons should not miss this delightful treat, especially as part of the proceeds of to-nights door money goes toward the Fund in aid of the Widows of the men killed on the Grampian when that ship struck the iceberg. The vocal talents and abilities of Mrs. Rubie are referred to in another item in to-day's issue.

C. C. C. BAND AT THE COVE. Eight members of the C. C. C. Band left by automobile yesterday afternoon for Portugal Cove, at which place they took part in the concert in honor of the returned heroes, recently returned from overseas, returning to town this morning after having spent a most enjoyable time.

Portia for West.

The s.s. Portia sailed at 10.15 this morning, taking a full freight and the following first class passengers: Messrs. C. Rex, C. Thomas, F. Hewett, M. Moulton, A. R. Jensen, A. Personal.

Mr. G. G. Spracklin of Brigus is at present on a visit to the city. Mr. J. J. and Mrs. Mully, who were visiting friends in South Omaha, U. S. A. during the last six weeks arrived here by yesterday's express. Mr. James Moore of Carbonear, who has been in the city on business, leaves for home by this evening's train. MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES COLDS, ETC.

Baseballers, Please Take Notice!

In view of three rounds having to be played this season and only the second round just started, combined with the fact that the regular League series are likely to be considerably protracted through the proposed visit of the Grand Falls' team here and the return visit of St. John's to there, the executive of the League have deemed it necessary not to interfere with the regular evenings set down for the schedule. They consider it advisable to have the preliminary Mount Cashel games for the H. D. Reid cup played on Wednesday afternoon. The fixtures were drawn yesterday by Vice-President Haverwall, resulting as follows:—

B.I.S. vs. Wanderers. Cubs vs. Red Lions.

It has been found necessary to incorporate these games with the Football and Mr. Shrubbs' running exhibition arranged for by Lieut. Spruit in aid of the Grampian's casualty fund, and the players are hereby notified that the B.I.S. Wanderer game will be played at 2.30 sharp on Wednesday afternoon, and the Cubs-Red Lion game at 5 o'clock about, immediately following the 5 mile race between Shrubbs and Atkins. The executive appreciates the fact that this will impose perhaps rather a hardship on the Lions team particularly by their having to play three games this week, but in the interests of the game and the working out of this season's schedule, it is felt that such cannot be helped. The games on Wednesday afternoon will consist of five innings only.

Reids' Boats.

A Worthy Cause.

"It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," and the regrettable accident to the Gramplan has given a number of visitors the opportunity of, visiting the senior colony. At the same time it has given pleasure to the citizens of St. John's to make their acquaintance, and during their short stay they have entered heartily into the life and events of the city.

To-night we are again to be entertained by one of the passengers. The management of the Majestic Theatre are giving a proportion of the evening's receipts to the Fund for the widows of the men who lost their lives on the Gramplan, in order that the citizens may again hear Mrs. K. S. Rubie, of Montreal, and Mrs. Rubie has kindly consented to sing for this purpose. Mrs. Rubie has a cultured voice, unusually full and sweet, to which it is a pleasure to listen. She has used this talent for the benefit of her fellow-citizens at Montreal, having led the choir at various city churches, and being in frequent request at benefit concerts. She is a sister of Mme. Oswald, the well known London artist. To-night you will be able to hear Mrs. Rubie, and at the same time help a deserving cause.

Long Hours and Short Wages.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Would you kindly publish this letter at your earliest convenience.

I have been thinking about writing this letter for a long time, concerning the closing hours of stores on Duckworth and New Gower Streets. I hope, that as the clerks have formed an Association, this will be one of the first matters they will bring up for discussion, and try to remedy.

It is a pity that we have a few business men on Duckworth and New Gower Streets who still persist in keeping their stores open after the time appointed for closing. I noticed as I passed along Duckworth Street last week at 5.30 o'clock that the majority of the stores were not closed and no sign of closing now. Why is this? Surely the clerks employed in these stores deserve the extra hour as do those on Water Street. I say, that it is time for these clerks to stand up and demand their rights.

I was speaking to a clerk who is employed in one of these stores, and he tells me that he has had three holidays in nine years, that is, outside of the regular whole and half holidays. Just imagine, three whole holidays in nine years! He must be working with a charitable man. Still they tell us we are living in a free country. To my idea, the only thing we have free is the air we breathe; and if we are to judge by the number of motors that are around us it will soon not be fit to even breathe.

I wonder if any of these business men on Duckworth Street would like to have their sons and daughters slaving in a store from 8.30 in the morning until 6.30 in the evening, and until 11.30 Saturdays. Another matter I would like to write about is the wages. That clerks are compelled to work from ten to twelve hours per day for which the majority of clerks in this town receive from $15 to $17 per week. Will any person tell me how any person can live on these wages? Clerks are the poorest paid workers in this town, and considering the appearance they have to keep up behind a counter, they should be paid $30 per week. Clerks in Canada are being paid these wages. Why not here, too, where the cost of living is so much higher than in Canada.

I hope that all the clerks in this town will join the Association. I am not a member at present. But come along to the next meeting and we will join and demand our rights, which I might sum up in these words—A LIVING WAGE.

Yours truly,
 CLERK.

 P.S.—When will the lady assistants form an Association?

Defies Roosevelt to Debate on Irish.

If Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt is desirous of engaging in a debate Shamus O'Sheel, poet and president of the William Rooney Society, is prepared to accommodate him. In fact, O'Sheel, in a letter sent to young T. R. recently, defies the "warrior," as he characterizes Col. Roosevelt, to debate the Irish question with him.

O'Sheel has been pursuing Roosevelt since St. Patrick's Day, when he alleges Roosevelt advised the "30,000 American citizens in the St. Patrick's Day procession to 'go back to Ireland.'" In his letter O'Sheel recalls that on April 26 he had a "long personal interview" with Roosevelt when the latter stated "that while it was proper to agitate in America for Belgium, Poland and Czechoslovakia it was unpatriotic to speak for Ireland until peace with Germany was concluded, because to do so might embarrass one of the allies, England." Roosevelt, it is explained, gave his views in confidence. —E.

Lioness Causes Trouble.

An angry lioness caused a panic at Woodbury. The show outside the "big top" of the circus was in progress before an audience of several hundred men, women and children. John Henry, keeper of the lioness, "slay" and her two cubs, entered the arena. Driving the lioness into another compartment, Henry carelessly swung shut the separating door and stopped to fondle the cubs. The enraged animal threw herself against the door, bursting it open, and with one leap closed her powerful jaws about Henry's neck, crushing the bones and killing him. Attendants in the tent shouted for help, and seizing iron bars, hooks and tent stakes began to belabor the animal in an effort to compel her to release her grip on the dead man. Infuriated further by the blows, the lioness threw herself against the doors, which Henry had failed to lock and burst her way to freedom. Screams of persons who saw her escape excited the audience in the main tent and a panic followed. Men, women and children scrambled from the tent and ran across lots to the centre of the town crying, "a lion has escaped." A posse of men and boys with guns, pikes and stones pursued the animal into the woods and finally killed her with a fusillade of shots.

land uber Alles." It is stated that the soldiers stole several French orders, including the orders of Napoleon I, which were among the greatest treasures of the Armoury. The director of the Armoury declared that what had occurred was the result of a long-meditated plan. The French Colors in the garrison church at Berlin, have also, it is stated, been burnt. The Allies have protested against these acts in a Note, which also deals with the sinking of the Hun ships at Scapa Flow.

 Users of Sunset Soap Dyes find several advantages in the employment of these up-to-date coloring materials. Sunset Dyes wash as well as dye the goods; they are not nearly so smeary or hard on hands or utensils as ordinary dyes; the colors do not easily fade. But perhaps the strongest claim they have to utility is the fact that Sunset Soap Dyes will with one dye, color all kinds of fabrics, cotton, wool, silk, or linen, or a mixture of any or all of these. No trouble in judging what such and such a material is composed of, no disappointment, no reason why you should not put pieces of different material into the same dyebath. Sunset Soap Dyes will treat all alike. A wide variety of colors on our list. Price 15c. a cake.

On the principle of the ancient motto of the Romans—"Salus publica suprema lex" (the public welfare is the supreme law), the Italian Government is said to have winked at the recent food riots in Florence and other cities in order that the proficients might get a well-deserved lesson. Indignation flames high in France because of an outrage in Berlin which prevents an act of reparation which would have been very grateful to the sentiment of the country. The flags captured from France in 1870 were kept in the Berlin Armoury. An officer and a number of soldiers gained access to the Armoury, ran away with the flags, soaked them in petrol, and then burnt them at the foot of the statue of Frederick the Great. All those present sang enthusiastically "Deutschland, Deutsch-

Saw R-34.

The Danish schooner Viking, Capt. J. C. Fredericksen, 24 days out from Cadiz, with sail to T. H. Carter and Company arrived in port this morning. At 2 o'clock on Friday morning last, the big airship R-34 was sighted, the position of Viking being then 44.57 North latitude, 43.16 West longitude, about 420 miles off St. John's. The dirigible was then in an easterly direction, flying low and making good progress. So near the surface was the airship that the Vikings crew could see the men on board the car pass and re-pass the windows, the interior of car being brilliantly lit up. The balloon disappeared from view some ten or fifteen minutes after sighting. The Captain of the Viking says that the view of the dirigible was most striking, a bright moon shining at the time, throwing the huge bulk out into broad relief against the sky, and all hands watched the aircraft until she was out of eye range.

Hindenburg as Scapegoat.

(From the New York Tribune.)
 Field Marshal Hindenburg follows Bethmann-Hollweg's example in offering to shoulder William II's war responsibilities. He telegraphs the Ebert government that he was accountable for all decisions and acts at Grand Headquarters from August 29th, 1919, until the signing of the Armistice. In making this assertion Hindenburg shows generosity. Technically, he was the head of the armies during the period named. But little concealment has been made of the fact that early in 1917 his power passed to Ludendorff, who became for the rest of the war a practical military and political dictator. Ludendorff's judgment was far less sound than Hindenburg's, and Germany suffered from the substitution. But the former's propensity to take big risks and engage in showy enterprises made him more popular with the clique which controlled the Kaiser. What part Hindenburg had in forcing the United States into the war and in planning the 1918 offensives in France is still uncertain. But it was not a decisive part. Logically, therefore, he injures the Kaiser's case when he tries to relieve him of responsibility for the acts and policies of the German High Command. If he is accountable for what others did, William II. is similarly accountable. For the latter was always legally and constitutionally the supreme commander of the armies and the head of the state. Hindenburg was responsible to him as "War Lord" to the same extent to which Ludendorff and others were responsible to Hindenburg.

The Hall of Mirrors.

WHERE THE PEACE TREATY WAS SIGNED.

In the Hall of Mirrors at the Chateau de Versailles, where of old gallants and ladies thronged around Louis XIV., the Peace Treaty was signed on June 28th. Versailles was held by seven regiments of cavalry and four regiments of infantry. There were no bands, but the drums and trumpets of one infantry regiment were drawn up in the Cour de Marbre, and the Garde Republicaine in gala uniforms were on duty inside the palace, lining the staircase up which the delegates passed, and the Place d'Armes, in front of the wonderful chateau, with its uneven cobbled paving, had been fenced off on both sides for the better control of the crowds of onlookers who attended. The wonderful gates had been regilded—gates through which the infuriated mob thronged on that summer day when, angered beyond control, they entered the wide courtyard to madden the poor hapless Louis XVI. and beautiful Marie Antoinette by their cries for bread. Through the same courtyard forty-four years ago the proud princelings of German Junkerism clanked their spurs and trailed their sabres as they took their way to the glorious Galerie des Glaces, in which poor humiliated France was to listen to the declaration of the founding of the German Empire. Here, with bowed head and broken heart, poor Thiers was to sign the peace which was to take away from France Alsace-Lorraine and impose upon his country humiliation after humiliation. This time there was no sound of enemy arms, but tamely and unwillingly the German plenipotentiaries, in closed motor cars, with Allied officers to guard them, were driven up the courtyard to the main entrance of the chateau. Here they mounted the handsome marble staircase, which was lined with serried ranks of troops, and as they entered the long gallery with its rows of windows and glasses perhaps at last, some faint idea of the defeat they had suffered reached their minds. The Galerie des Glaces, with its exquisite gilded mouldings and oak panelling was arranged with the crimson brocade-covered chairs, which were placed the whole length of the gallery with the exception of several feet at both ends, which were railed off, one part for members of the press, and the other for distinguished guests. The Louis Quinze table, with its elegant wrought ormolu mounts (lent by the Louvre museum) on which the documents were laid was placed in the centre window recess, and it is here, looking out on those spacious gardens, planned and laid out by Le Notre, before Germany was, that the final act of the world's great tragedy was sealed. With that act La Belle France was redeemed the sufferings of defeat, and the victory of to-day will enable her to forget the cruel wrongs of 1870-71. When the delegates had assembled and the Germans had taken their places M. William Martin, Chief of the Protocol, carried the treaty, which before was laid on the small table in the middle of the room, to M. Clemenceau, and the French Prime Minister, Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Lloyd George signed in their places. The treaty was then carried back, and the delegates came to the small table to sign, each nation being called on in turn by M. Dutasta, chief secretary to the congress, and the Germans signed last. Seals were affixed by the secretaries before the ceremony. The copy of the Treaty to receive the signatures of the Allied and enemy plenipotentiaries was printed on rice-paper and enclosed in a morocco cover. The German plenipotentiaries arrived through the park, and military honors were not accorded them on their entry, but they left at the same time as the Allied plenipotentiaries, and, being no longer enemy delegates, received military honors.—English Paper.

From the Jaws of Death.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Will you please give me space in your valuable paper to make a few remarks about two brave youths who saved the lives of two men and their two little boys on the morning of the 10th at that dreaded place, St. Shott's, who launched a dory in a fearful sea and safely landed them on shore. Their names are George Finley, of Thos and Geo. Finley of Wm. The people of Trepassay as well as the friends of the crew wish to publicly thank them for their bravery in the face of danger. Deeds like these should not go unnoticed and unheeded by men in authority.

Skipper Fitzgerald and his brother Denis with their two sons left Trepassay on the morning of the 8th in their motor boat and proceeded to the fishing ground at Cape Freeles. Fish was fairly plentiful that evening and they decided to remain for the night. A gale started during the night the wind blowing E. by S., but the water being smooth they held on all day until 3 p.m. when the wind veered around to South. They then ran for St. Shott's and once more the water being smooth and thinking the wind would die out, they held on board for the night. But later the sea began to rise and at daylight it was a hard sight to see that little boat riding the huge waves, every one threatening to smash her to pieces on those dread rocks, where so many staunch ships were broken to atoms. The boat held on until 3 o'clock and then took her anchors with her and landed, as luck would have it, in the one and only place she could be saved, and after getting the fish out of her, which amounted to 12 quintals the people assembled and pulled her up on the beach where she is at present. We congratulate these men and hope soon to see them arrive safely home.

Thanking you for space Mr. Editor, I remain,

Yours truly,

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—Kindly allow me sufficient space in the columns of your paper to thank the many friends of Bishop's Falls, too numerous to mention here, for the interest shown and the support rendered toward the upkeep of the Bishop's Falls Day School, for the past number of years, during which time the undersigned was Chairman. Without their help we should have been many a time without the services of a Graded teacher, as the different grants allocated for this school have never been sufficient to pay the teachers' salary, and it is most creditable to the people who have given donations, cakes, etc., for entertainments from year to year to meet the deficit in the salary.

I wish also to thank the manager and officials of the Albert E. Reed & Co. (Nfld.), Ltd., for the interest they have taken in the welfare of the school and education of the children. They have for a number of years provided the children with a Xmas tree and presented prizes to them for work done in the school, thereby encouraging scholars and instilling in them a spirit of endeavour to excel in their studies, plainly perceptible to those who have had direct touch with, and knowledge of the school.

I wish also to say that altho I am leaving the town I shall always have a kindly interest in its welfare, especially in the progress of the school, and I hope that in the future as in the past, the parents will put forth every effort to have their educational system kept at a standard as high and efficient as possible.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I must not forget the members of the Board who worked with me. The harmony and unity that existed will always be retained in my memory. I wish to thank them for the able support and cheerful readiness they exhibited at all times to do anything when called upon in soliciting and raising funds to keep the school going.

Thanking you for space,
Yours very truly,
FRANK J. DOVE.

Loose Methods Somewhere.

According to the armistice terms on which the German ships surrendered to the Allies these vessels, disarmed, remained under their own officers and crews pending the disposal to be made of them by the peace conference. As soon as peace has been signed the German officers and crews would have been removed. The scuttling of the ships were not due to any neglect on the part of the British navy. The terms of the armistice made possible what has happened.—Toronto Daily Star.

Rum for Crew of R-34.

New York, July 8.—Col. William M. Hensley, Jr. the American on the return voyage, estimated to-day that the cost of 3,000,000 cubic feet of hydrogen 10,000 gallons of gasoline and 400 of oil required for the round trip of the R-34 would be at least $16,000. Navy officials, in charge of the ship while she is here, have been requested to obtain the following rations for the return trip: Two hundred pounds of bread, 125 pounds of cooked meat, 45 pounds of cooked potatoes, 36 pounds of sweet chocolate, six pounds of tea, pound cake, sugar, butter and a few sundries. One "Sundry" which the department as yet has been unable to supply is $250 worth of rum, which is part of the crew's official rations. But Colonel Fredrick W. Lucas, commanding the dirigible's advance party, said that he requested the rum about ten days before the war time prohibition became effective, and that he understood an attempt was made to purchase it late on the night of June 30, but that it was unsuccessful.

Household Notes.

Chocolate cake requires a little vanilla.
Potato salad is excellent to take on picnics.
Always sift flour once before measuring.
Cherry pie is best made with no under crust.
Only choice fruit should be used for preserving.
Very small young beets have high nutritive value.
Egg whites should be cold if they are to beat well.
Peanut soup is much like that made from beans.
Stains on teacups can be removed by salt and vinegar.
Knitted articles may be cleaned by rubbing on meal.
Midribs of Swiss chard may be cooked like asparagus.
All the tiny carrots discarded in weeding can be canned.
If bacon is steamed instead of boiled there is less waste.
Rub porcelain-lined sinks with a flannel wet with kerosene.
Thyme and sweet basil may be used green for seasoning.
Tapioca made with clear coffee is served with whipped cream.
Cream of tartar will usually remove rust from table linen.
An envelope pasted in the recipe book for odd recipes is handy.
Pineapple to be used with milk, eggs or gelatine is best cooked.
Potatoes and bananas are very similar. Bananas are three-fourths water.
Peanut butter may be used with chopped raisins or dates for sandwiches.
The Dover eggbeater is best for egg yolks; whites should be done with the spiral.
Remove iodine from fabric by soaking in milk and occasionally rubbing the stain.
If a fowl is very tough, put it into plenty of cold water and cook five or six hours.
Candles will burn slowly and evenly if placed on ice for twenty-four hours before using.

The Bolshevist War.

The Russian Bolshevists took over a pulp mill and after running it for a week without technical or expert guidance, found they could not operate it. They therefore sent a delegation to another mill nearby. To the director and his assistants they proposed that they should come over and operate the Red mill. This the director and his aides refused to do. "Very well," said the delegation, "we will come again to-morrow." That night two of the engineers were murdered. On the second visit the Reds found the Directing heads still obdurate. And that night two more of them were murdered. When the delegation made his third call the director and his engineers, now frightened, agreed to run the mill for the Reds. And for three months they devoted their skill to running the business. At the end of that time the Bolshevists learned that anti-Bolshevist troops were approaching. The Bolshevists fled, but not before murdering the entire engineering staff and destroying the mill. — Morning Chronicle.

The Royal Coachman.

(From the London Daily News.)
The trouble when Queen Victoria first travelled by train (seventeen years after their institution in England), was not who should follow, but who should go before it. The chief royal coachman maintained that he must ride on the engine, as, though he could not drive the train, he ought to make a pretence of doing so. Finally it was decided that he should go on the pilot engine, which preceded the royal train. But the smuts from the engine played such havoc with his scarlet livery that the proud functionary abjured the honor afterward.

Coming Home to Roost.

William Trotter, an American Negro, is in Paris, seeking an audience with Lloyd George and other members of the Peace Conference on behalf of the 12,000,000 "down-trodden" Negroes in the United States. He has published a long list of lynchings, burnings at the stake and numerous other crimes committed against the colored race in the "Land of the free, and the Home of the Brave." The Senators at Washington have evidently been taking such a deep interest in Sinn Fein grievances that they have entirely overlooked the troubles of the colored race in the United States. A possible explanation for their negligence in regard to this matter may be found in the fact that the Negroes are largely disfranchised, although "by unconstitutional methods." If the British House of Lords would now pass a resolution asking the Peace Conference to give Wm. Trotter a hearing and grant the Negroes in the United States "self-determination," it might help the U.S. Senators to realize that they had no business meddling in British domestic politics.—The Sentinel.

Why Smithies Are Dark.

You may have wondered sometimes why the village smithy is such a dark building, its allowance of window light being fearfully small. The reason for this is not economy of glass, but for the special purpose of the smith's work. Too much light upon the piece of white-hot iron or steel is not desirable for two reasons; one is that the "heat" cannot be seen properly in a strong light. The other is that the course of "tempering" tools, such as picks, chisels, drills, etc., the smith has to judge by the colours, as the tool cools down from the white heat, exactly when to dip them in the water-bath, and these colours can only be seen accurately in a shaded place. Steel passes through a beautiful range of colours, from the most dazzling, seething yellow to dark yellow, reddish brown, purple, and finally to dark blue, all these temperatures having their particular uses when a tool is "quenched."

Snub's Seamanship.

The making of a recent Harold Lloyd comedy required that the entire Rollin Film Company lineup make the boat trip from Los Angeles to San Diego. Two miles off shore and a deathly pallor began to show through Harry "Snub" Pollard's makeup. "What's the matter?" asked Harold. "I thought you told me you were a good sailor." "I am," gurgled the unhappy Harry, "but I always feel mesny when they start shaking the water."

What's in a Name?

The meaning of the word "blimp," which has puzzled the brains of two continents for the last three months, was explained by Major G. H. Scott, Commander of the R-34. "Is the R-34 a blimp?" he was asked. "Well," responded the intrepid Commander with a smile, after a moment's reflection, "she is an overgrown blimp."
"What is a blimp, then, Major?" was the next question. Without a moment's hesitation he replied: "A blimp is a fileted rigid."

SOME PUN.

The Boston Transcript cheerfully remarks that the lessening number of arrests for drunkenness since prohibition went into effect indicates that the less rye we have the fewer men there are with legs in a rye-tangled condition.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

Both clubs are in readiness for the big clash to-night when the Cubs will once more tackle the Lions in a desperate effort to stop their onward rush for the 1919 Pennant and incidentally for that valued little piece of silverware now in the Cubs' possession. The game will start promptly at 6.30.

DIPPY DOPES.

If the Cubs were "Nuts" to the Red Lions and they got "cocky" could there be a dead "heath"? There might, but 'twould give them an awful "payne" every time they'd "sl." Next!

A FAN asks what's the difference between Joe Murphy and Brazie. About one foot and a quintal.

The Cubs won a game last June. Ah! They were the good old days.

The two baseball games to-morrow will be only five innings each. Quite enough as some games go.

'Sh! This is a deep dark secret! Bill Carew has been hard at it the past six weeks and is pitching nigh perfect ball. He is not inclined to play League ball, however, but will likely come to light in the Inter-Town Series next month.

This is an old one but it's always good: There is an outfielder called "Sl," possessed of an all-seeing eye. When a long fly is swat it's sure to be caught by Jenkins—so don't hit 'em high.

THE JARGON OF THE DIAMOND. The diamond has a language all its own; If a player makes an error, it's a "bone." If he attempts the "squeeze" and strikes out, it's a "breeze"—A play at which the fans belch forth a groan.

A safe drive to the field is called a "bingle." If good for one base only it's a "single." If the hurler throws a "cripple" and the batter clouts a "triple," The swat will put the nerves of fans a-tingle.

When a runner's left on base, 'tis said he "died." If he goes out on a high fly, he has "skied." A one-hand stops a "stab." The pitcher's mound, the "slab." Successful plays are certainly "inside."

When a player's making good his work is "grand." But let him boot just one and then he's "panned." If he comes up in a "pinch" And he "whiffs"—well, it's a cinch The fickle fans will yell,—"He should be canned."

Profitable Purchase.

40,000,000 YARDS OF LINEN.
London, July 9.—Leoner J. Martin, a young English business man, who deals in agricultural machinery, has bought for $20,000,000 from the British government about forty million yards of linen, which was intended for making airplanes. He knew nothing about linen, but bought it for speculation. Martin is 37 years old, and began his career, he says, with a capital of about $500.

"I bought over the heads of everybody else," he said in discussing the big deal, "simply by offering a higher price than anybody else would pay."

The stock of material Martin now controls represents three years' normal supply. He is reckoning on a profit of about $5,000,000. Of that amount, $2,000,000 would go to the British Treasury in excess profits, and another $1,250,000 in super tax. The linen has been for sale by the Government since January, under an offer to sell to the general public in eighty yard lengths, and one hundred yard bales, but only $1,000 worth of it had been purchased.

"Belfast people," said Martin, "imagined they had the stuff between their two fingers. A barge of this linen was actually manufactured after the armistice, because the Belfast mill owners refused to allow their contracts to be cancelled."

They went on making linen in millions of yards at 40 to 50 cents a yard. Then they offered the government 7 cents a yard to take it back. Their price later went up to about 25 cents a yard, and it was still hoped, in view of the monopoly, to sell it to the public at three shillings. They could have re-equipped all the mills in Ulster out of the profits. I have got the linen at about double the final Belfast offer."

TRANSCONTINENTAL AIR TRIP.

LONDON, July 14.
R-33, sister ship of British dirigible R-34, which has just completed a round trip across the Atlantic, will start on a trip to India within the next week. The dirigible will visit France, Switzerland, Italy and Egypt, and it is expected that the voyage will take from 15 to 20 days.

PERISHING IN LONDON.

LONDON, July 15.
General Pershing, Commander of the American forces in France, arrived here with his staff this forenoon to take part in the peace celebration. He was met at Dover by Gen. Sir Henry Horne and a guard of honor. Arriving at Victoria Station, General Pershing was welcomed by Col. Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary of State for War, and officers representing Field Marshal Haig and Sir Henry Wilson of the Imperial staff.

REFUSED MEN'S DEMANDS.

NEW YORK, July 15.
The demands of the striking marine workers, at this and other Atlantic ports, for union recognition to-day continued to be the principal stumbling block in the way of a settlement of the walk out which yesterday at noon was operated by the U. S. Shipping Board. The spread of the strike to Government controlled boats resulted from a refusal of the Shipping Board of officials to grant the seamen's demand for three shifts of eight hours each at sea, and preference to union members. Further efforts to end the strike were resumed here to-day, but the union leader predicted that unless the men's demands were met in full, there was little chance of an agreement.

Three Sales.

Three Sales went sale-ing out into the West; Out into the West as the sun rose high. Each thought of the bargain that she would love best. And wondered what marvels her money would buy. For men must work, and women must spend, The money is scarce, and no one will lend. And the Bargain Sales be raging.

Three wives sat up in their bedroom dim. And they turned up the gas as the sun sat down. They looked at fat parcels, and purses so slim; And happily planned their next journey to town. For men must work, and women must spend, The money is scarce, and no one will lend. And the Bargain Sales be raging.

Three husbands still gaze on the silks and lace. In the morning gray, when all hope has flown; But the women are sleeping and dreaming in peace Of a land where the sale-bills are never torn down. For men must work, and women must spend, And the sooner 'tis over, the sooner the end, And good-bye to the sales and their raging. —Blightly, (London.)

"Give Them Sand."

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—
"Now vermal sephyras wait once more Their bouctious fragrance o'er our land. Luxuriant verdure buds galore Where boreal blasts have swept before; Transmuted, as by magic wand Is now, my dear old Newfoundland. And every atom in Creation Rejoices at this transformation."

So much for my contribution to the annual spring-poetry. Now a few words about our little boys and girls who are likewise rejoicing at the advent of spring weather. Our parks are fast becoming a thing of beauty, a joy for ever. How nice would it be for our little youngsters if the park authorities would furnish a few loads of nice, clean sand and deposit it in some vacant spot far away from the flower beds, where the little ones could build sand castles and make pies after the occasional rain has made the sand a little adhesive. I have played myself at the game many years ago and have seen other children enjoying the same in some parks in other parts of the world. I have often wondered that a similar idea has not been adopted in this country. I am prepared to say that most of us who had in any way access to a pile of sand in their younger days considered it the best fun out. It would also save the already overtaxed caretaker many anxious moments, for imagine his consternation when he sees from a distance some little tots tumbling towards his beautiful flower-beds. Some of the parents of the little ones will be in constant attendance and see that no horse-play will be indulged in. Come on City Fathers, make a start; especially Bowring Park will be keener remembered by the now-growing generation when looking back in after years, perhaps far away from home, at the happy hours they spent building sand castles in Bowring Park. Sincerely Yours, —E.K.

Our Roads.

NECESSITY FOR IMPROVEMENT.

ARTICLE 'II.
In my opinion the first direction our energies should take should be to endeavour to better our means of internal communication.

It is a sad commentary on our three hundred years of colonization that we have not one first class road in the country. Indeed we have very few that would rank as third class despite all the money expended for the purpose. Besides there are several very important settlements in the country that have no communication except by water. A few years ago there was a very good carriage road from Holyrood to Placentia. To-day it is overgrown with bushes and a traveller has to take an axe to clear the fallen timber if he wants to get along with comfort or even safety. True, since the railway was built the great bulk of the traffic has been borne that way; but if we are to develop any of the resources of that neighbourhood the maintenance of this road is essential. With a good motor road to Placentia there is no part of this country so likely to attract visitors with the consequent result that a great deal of money would be expended amongst the farmers, fishermen, boatmen, guides. Besides, along the valleys of the Salmonier, North Harbour, Colinet and Rocky Rivers there are many square miles of splendid agricultural land which if we want to keep our people at home, will have to be cultivated. This we cannot hope to do without good roads.

Again the north side of Bonavista Bay from Gambo to Wesleyville is without a road, a distance of forty miles with a large and industrious population who, in spite of the immense amount of revenue they have paid into the treasury for generations have practically no communication with the railroad except by water. There are several other localities I might mention, particularly on the West Coast. Not only are we deficient of roads in several localities but those we have, or, at least the greater number of them are very little better than cow paths. We have been spending money year after year ostensibly for roadmaking but we all know that, in a great many cases the roads were the least thought of. The money was generally used for the purpose of doing the most good to the sitting member or members in the first place, and, secondly every man in each locality thought he had a right to a share of "his own money" and, consequently very little attention was paid to the amount of work performed or the result to the highway. It was thought sufficient to place a few shovelfuls of whatever material was to hand and leave the rest to "Jack Frost." The consequence was that, with the melting snow and rains of spring every bit of surface was washed away again. This in spite of the fact that, for hundreds of miles of our existing roads, we are near unlimited quantities of some of the best material in the world for a good roadbed viz., small beach stones. Where we have to-day roads over which it is positively dangerous to travel we should be able to have our mails and passengers carried by motor with comfort and despatch. This is particularly true of localities like Salmonier, St. Mary's, and several places to the northward besides from Placentia to Branch and again on the West Coast.

Then again we have the railroad. Under the abnormal conditions of the last five years everyone must realize the difficulty of keeping up what at the beginning was anything but a well built road. This is all the more true when we take into consideration the difficulties of our climate and its changes and the number of grades and curves in the road itself. Some people wonder why we have so many of the latter. I am no railroad man but I fancy that to straighten and cut down the grades would give several more deep cuts and consequently, more snow in winter. However it is obvious that the railroad at present is inadequate for the traffic and needs the outlay of a large amount of money in the road itself and the rolling stock before it can perform the work required with any degree of satisfaction. Who is to blame for the present condition of affairs I am not in a position to judge, but I should think the difficulty of procuring labour and material during the period of the war must have had considerable to do with it. The fact remains however, that the country needs a much better service than it is getting at present. It should be the duty of every citizen to use all the influence at his command to better the conditions under which we labour at present. Those men who have been away and observed the splendid roads of other countries in spite of the immense strain on them during the war should do all in their power to inaugurate a better system at home.

M. J. N.

"Fair Play" Says a Word

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—The uncalled for abuse of the Hon. A. B. Morine by the papers Advocate and Star is condemned by every right-thinking man, and lover of fairplay in the country. Many are the remarks of condemnation and disgust one hears as each succeeding arrival of those papers reveals its showers of abuse.

If Mr. Morine were an enemy of the F. P. U. or the country, we could quite understand those papers calling him hard names and justly so. But Newfoundland—the F. P. U. included—has had in Mr. Morine one of its very best friends in the past, and will have in the future, notwithstanding the ramblings of Mr. Coaker, Henry Hobbs, John Fitzgerald and others of Mr. Coaker's slaves or servants.

I cannot ask you Mr. Editor, to publish all the good actions of Mr. Morine and his associates towards his constituents in the past. Actions of which I know and which are only a small part of the whole, would take too much of your valuable space.

How many men have schooners and property to-day that they owe to the kind heartedness of Messrs. Morine and Morison in the dark days of 1894 and in later years.

How very soon eaten bread is forgotten. Many of those men, so favored are the first to bite the hand that fed them.

The Princeton Boy, who writes so fluently was much quieter, rumor says, when volunteers were called to fight for his country. We should follow other countries, and not allow such slackers to have a vote in the coming election.

The long lists of names appearing under the blood and fire effort of Keels to strangle Morine looks formidable on the surface, but if it is anything like their war efforts compared with their population, Mr. Morine need have no fear of the death grips.

I am rather surprised that Mr. Morine condescended to reply to Henry Hobbs, as no person here takes any notice of his barkings.

Mr. Morine need have no fear of a majority vote in his district, for the abuse thrown at him only amounts to the mutterings of a few sore heads, who are afraid of his power in the Bay.

Yours truly,
FAIRPLAY.

Obituary.

MISS CATHERINE GIBBONS.

Please allow me space in your valuable paper to record the death of Miss Catherine Gibbons, St. Vincent's, St. Mary's Bay. Although deceased had but reached the early age of twenty-three, yet her short life had its sorrows. Having lost her mother during childhood, it was she who cared for a delicate father and brothers and bore the bitter pangs of seeing them occupy early graves. Later her own health began to fail and she was removed to the Sanatorium, St. John's. There she courageously kept up against the dread disease, Consumption, and bore all her pains patiently and submissively. But although amidst loving attendance and medical aid it was seen she was destined to follow her loved ones to the regions beyond. She had the happiness of being fortified by last rites of Holy church before the final summons came on June 28th, when her pure soul was wafted on the wings of death to her Heavenly reward. Her mortal remains were embalmed by Mr. J. T. Martin and enclosed in a handsome casket and sent to her late home. It was accompanied by her sister, Miss Gertrude Gibbons, Matron of the Sanatorium. When nearing the vicinity of St. Vincent's the mourners were met by a large number of relatives and friends, showing the esteem in which deceased was held. She leaves to mourn two sisters, Mrs. Coady of Penrose, and Gertrude (Matron of the Sanatorium, St. John's), two brothers, Peter and William, besides a large circle of relatives and friends. To one and all the sincere sympathy of writer is extended.

Freedom of City Given to Prince.

London, July 10.—The freedom of the city of London, which has just been presented to the Prince of Wales, is one of the most cherished and ancient of civic privileges. Until quite recent times no person was permitted to trade in the city of London unless he possessed the freedom of the city, but this has now given way to a system which permits the purchase of the right to trade.
The document given to His Royal Highness is a small piece of parchment inscribed with his name and titles, and guaranteeing to him and his descendants many privileges to which he would not otherwise be entitled. Thus he will not have to pay a tax on any goods bought within the city gates, nor will he have to render any military or naval service. Should he fall on evil times, the Prince of Wales would be entitled to pecuniary aid.

Should he pass away, leaving children behind, the City Chamberlain would educate them, and administer their property until they arrive at years of maturity. Should his widow find herself in necessitous circumstances she can claim a pension sufficient to provide for her needs. On reaching their majority the children can claim their freedom as sons or daughters of a freeman.
The certificate is usually presented enclosed in a casket, but the Prince's certificate was presented in a frame and the value of the casket was represented by silver plate.
