CHAPTER XXXVIII.

They laid him gently in the ambulance, and the surgeon promised to send for Fairfax the moment it was safe to talk to the dying man.

The summons came much sooner than he expected. He and Frank were dosing before the fire, and the first faint flash of another day was showing in the western sky. They had talked themselves weary, and had not sunk into silence many minutes when a heavy step outside disturbed them. There was a knock at the door, and the young policeman who had been summoned with his sergeant in the earlier stages of the proceedings stood before them.

"He wants you, sharp sir!" the officer announced. "Mr. Fairfax, he asked for."

"We will both go," replied the barrister.

"Yes, sir. He's at Bow Street. The surgeon will take you to the hospital ward. There's another party he wants to see before he dies—somebody at Streatham Hill. I'm going there."

He saluted, and hastened away.

"Another party at Streatham Hill," repeated Fairfax. "That must be Viscount Melville. By George! the schemer is nearly run to earth!" He shivered a little as they emerged into the fresh morning air, adding: "Do you know, Rogers, I feel that we were about to learn the fate of my poor friend, and your late employer—Edmund Locksley."

"I am not hopeless," replied Frank. "Everything looks black enough in all conscience, but I am sanguine that my young master is not dead."

The prison doctor met them in the inspector's office, and at first objected to the presence of Frank.

"The man," he explained, "is bent upon making a confession. He has asked for Mr. Fairfax only, and we do not want his lips sealed."

"If the inspector rules that I must not be admitted, all well and good," Rogers said, "but there is more involved in this than you dream of at present. I am a private detective, lately in the employ of Hancock, of the Strand. I am specially interested in this case."

"I think that you may be admitted," the inspector remarked, looking up from his desk, "if the prisoner does not object."

The prisoner did not object. He said that it mattered little how many people were present, since his crimes would soon be published to the whole world. He was anxious to confess everything before he died.

The inspector and the surgeon conducted Fairfax and Frank Rogers to the hospital ward. At the door they paused, and the sentry drew aside.

"Make no exclamations that are likely to irritate him," the doctor advised. "He is out of all pain now, and this is a warning that his death may come at any moment."

They walked into the sickly-smelling chamber, and the inspector motioned them to be seated near a small bed, whereon reclined a form, as still as death, while he took his position at the foot.

The nurse was dismissed, and the surgeon touched the uninjured hand of the dying man.

"I am afraid that there is some mistake here," whispered Frank Rogers. "Our man is much older than this one, and has gray hair and whiskers."

"There is no mistake," the inspector replied, holding up a warning finger, while Fairfax gazed at the face before him, his blood almost as cold as ice.

"Just Heaven!" he ejaculated. "It is Viscount Melville!"

"Yes, it is Viscount Melville!" repeated the sufferer, sneeringly. "Viscount Melville, who has played for big stakes, and lost by his last move! Oh, you need not look at me so pityingly; I regret nothing, except my failure, Mr. Fairfax, and I am not going to die repenting. Tell me one thing—is Peters dead? Peters, the meddler, who has brought me to this?"

"He is not," replied Fairfax, sternly. "And will recover."

"Curse him! curse him! That blow of his was quite unexpected. But he did not recognize me. No, no, my disguise was a clever one. It reduced my height several inches, and the hump was cunning. I wonder how my noble uncle will take this? My noble uncle, the Earl of Traumere? He thinks so much of our honor! I robbed him in my youth, but I knew that he would never prosecute me, because of our unsullied name. There is some satisfaction in dying in this way, because I know that my disgrace will reach him and his baby-faced daughter, who stepped into my shoes."

A demonical smile passed over his features, and his listeners could not resist a shudder of loathing.

"Yes, there is even pleasure in this," he went on, "and, with my last breath, let me denounce Mr. Norman Locksley as a murderer and a thief. Let me swear that he killed Lord Morden, his friend, the father of Dora Deene, and has been using this friend's money for his own pleasure for nearly twenty years. This was my power over him, and my plan was to secure every shilling for myself. I have fought for it for years, and should have succeeded, after Edmund was out of the way, but for the infernal valet, Peters."

"You look at me inquiringly, Mr. Fairfax, when I mention the name of Edmund. I do not wonder at it, because he was your friend, and his fate appears to be shrouded in mystery. I will make that mystery plain, and I believe that I regret killing Edmund Locksley! I find no pleasure in the knowledge that I stole upon him from behind, as he was crossing Waterloo Bridge, after hearing his father's confession. He was heart-broken. I had heard where he was going while in your office, I was listening at the door. I followed him to the house in the New Cut, where his dotard of a father was in hiding; I followed him back, and struck him a savage blow—a blow that stunned him. To push him over the parapet, into the Thames, was but the work of an instant.

Both Fairfax and Rogers uttered cries of horror and detestation.

"Don't interrupt me! He could never have been a happy man, knowing the nature of his father's crime. It did not suit me that he should marry Dora Deene, when I knew that she might step in and claim the wealth I coveted. It was I who employed a detective to watch his movements, in conjunction with a man named Marlowe. It was I who instructed Marlowe to stop the marriage, and I suppose that Miss Deene has by this time been forced into some kind of marriage with the lucky Marlowe."

"You are wrong there," said Rogers, warmly. "You lured her from home by sending a forged telegram in my name, and I rescued her. She is back at Richmond, and your friend Marlowe is in prison."

Melville was silent for a minute, then he replied, coolly:

"Ah, well, it may be for the best. I see that my chances of success were not so rosy as I had imagined. I should have had you and Marlowe to contend with."

"There is one more thing of which I had better unburden myself, lest the innocent suffer. I am not very particular as to anybody's sufferings where my own interests are in conflict, but, with all my faults, I have passionately loved my cousin, Lady Clare Moncrieff. I have cared for her as she cared for my rival, Edmund Locksley. It was this hatred of him that nerved my arm to strike him that fatal blow. I do not want her to suffer for my misdeeds—no, not even the breath of suspicion must rest upon Lady Clare. There is only the word of Peters in her favor, and he may die. Everybody who knows anything at all about Sir George Moncrieff and his daughter is aware that there is no love lost between them—that he is a disgrace to our honorable family; that he keeps her poor, and then curses her for being so!"

"Ha! ha! I speak as though he were still living, when I know that he is dead—at the bottom of the horse pond. He found out my power over Norman Locksley, and threatened to be a disgraceful weight upon my hands, so I was obliged to remove him. Peters saw the deed, and that was my strongest reason for wishing him dead. I have sent for Lady Clare, but if she comes too late, you will tell her this."

The inspector nodded.

"Thank you. I have nothing further to say. I attempted too much, and I have failed. I am only sorry that I have failed."

He closed his eyes, and turned his face to the wall, refusing to speak again.

Fairfax and Rogers went away silently. Both had had experience of criminals in almost every form, but never had they met with one so unscrupulous, so cruel, as Viscount Melville.

After all that they had heard, it seemed that the efforts they were making for Dora—for Edmund Locksley's young wife, were useless and discouraging.

"At least, I believe that the accurate villain was wrong in one thing—the death of Lord Morden. I am convinced that it is he who has telegraphed to me from Switzerland, who is even now on his way to see me. Oh, my poor, young master!"

Frank broke into sobs, and Fairfax stared moodily before him.

"Our duty is plain now," he said. "We must see Mrs. Locksley righted, but it will be an awful thing to break the news to her! An awful thing. I believe that it will kill her, Rogers. It must be delayed for a day or two. If her father is really living, he will help to support her in this, her most dreadful sorrow."

As there was much yet to do, they went back to the barrister's chambers, and enjoyed a cold bath, after which they felt little the worse for their sleepless night.

It was the intention of Fairfax to go to "The Cedars" and see how matters were progressing there, although the place was in charge of the police by this time. And then, there was the promised visit to Marlowe.

The Problem of the Humane Killer

(By H. J. MASSINGHAM.)

The present Government has probably a settled period of office, and it would be a graceful act were it to remove from this country the slur of being one of the backward nations in the unconscious brutality of its slaughtering arrangements. England has prided herself in leading the world in the humane treatment of animals, but in this respect we have no claim to the title.

As long ago as 1893, Switzerland passed a law prohibiting butchers from killing without previously rendering the animals unconscious by a mechanically-operated instrument.

Finland followed Switzerland's example and since then the adoption of humane methods has spread to parts of Germany, Denmark and Holland.

But in England the adoption of clause 9 (b) of the Ministry of Health's bye-laws, which concerns the stunning of animals by a mechanically-operated instrument before blood is drawn, is not compulsory, as it should be, but permissive.

Some local authorities have earned the credit of freely adopting this humane bye-law and the L.C.C. recently joined their ranks. But in most slaughter-houses all over the country, day after day, week after week, thousands of animals are slaughtered by old-fashioned barbarous methods, often in the sight of later victims, sometimes by the clumsy device known as the "cruelty."

A fraction of the cruelties were practised on horses during their work in the streets the public would be up in arms, but as the brutalities in the slaughter-houses are not seen by the people who buy and who daily enjoy their roast beef and mutton, the daily massacre, conducted with totally unnecessary cruelty, goes on.

Were the citizens of this country to make it their business to see for themselves the ordeal the animals have to meet before death at last releases them, they would raise such a clamour that the permissive clause should be made compulsory that no Government could resist.

Of course, many butchers desire to continue the demode methods, and the disinclination to embrace new and progressive ones is a common-place of commercial civilisation, where the big industries are nearly always behind popular enlightenment. The Factory Acts, the Acts relating to employment and education of children, the Acts protecting the workers in dangerous trades, etc., have all been built up gradually, and have all being opposed by the established institutions responsible for the conditions to which change spells dislocation. The meat trade is no exception to this rule.

That the trade's objections are no more than common prejudice against modification of any kind, is shown by the following facts:—

The first objection is that "the meat after slaughter with the humane killer does not keep so well as that killed in the old way." But unassailable proof has been produced by an eminent authority in Scotland that the meat slaughtered with the humane instrument had equal keeping properties with that felled with the pole-axe.

"The Scottish trade was convinced that the humane killer had all the qualities claimed for it. There are many butchers in Scotland who voluntarily adopted the mechanical killer years ago; its adoption did not in any way handicap them in the conduct of their business, and the 'keeping' question has now ceased to have any effect as an argument against humane methods of slaughter." This is what the "Scottish Butchers' Journal" of November 15th, 1924, had to say:—

Objection two is "that the mechanical killer is dangerous." It happens that there are slaughter-houses where the humane killer has been in exclusive use for years, and where no serious accident through the fault of the instrument or of the operators. The raising of status of the meat trade in Scotland is the object of the trade leaders at the present time, and "nothing offers more healthy signs of advancement than the fact that humane feeling predominates in the outlook of the men who are endeavouring to make the meat trade second to none from every point of view."

"When the trade and the public are allied for the purpose of removing the more barbarous methods," proceeds the "Journal," "the day should not be far distant when, as far as Scotland is concerned, the pole-axe will be discarded for ever."

It seems hardly necessary to quote the butchers' objections and the answers to them. In Switzerland, Finland and parts of Germany, Holland and Denmark, the use of the humane killer has resulted in none of the disasters to consumer and butcher predicted by the less elastic-minded butchers.

Bacon firms are prominent in objecting to the adoption of modern methods, and it has been proved by experiment that there is no reason whatever why so intelligent an animal as the pig should not be as humanely killed as beasts and sheep; consumers should refuse to buy any bacon unless they know that the pig has been slaughtered by a mechanically-operated humane killer.

The matter is largely in the hands of the housewife. If the salesman tells her that the meat will not keep, etc., she should communicate with the R.S.P.C.A., who will forward her all the particulars they have amassed on the subject of pig-killing. Then let her refuse her custom to the shop where she buys her meat unless the proper means of slaughtering have been applied. If women would show some firmness here, those butchers who persist in antiquated views would soon alter them when the prosperity of their business depended on it.

For it cannot be too strongly urged that it is not the quality and desirability of the reform which is at stake, but the capacity for change. The humane killer needs no advocacy; it is objection-proof, because it has been used with success that silences controversy. The real trouble is the transition from an old and bad method to a new and good one and there stands in opposition to this, not so much what is called the conservatism nature, as the grooving of institutions. I do not like compulsion in any department of social activity, but if a case can be made for it, it exists for the establishment of the humane killer in the slaughtering trade, where nobody will be a penny worse for it, and the animals will die without physical pain and mental terror.

Better and Better

Dependable ten years ago, and five years ago, and more dependable than ever to-day, Dodge Brothers Motor Car simply represents the latest phase in a process of continual betterment.

The first cars Dodge Brothers built established a world-wide reputation. The cars they are building to-day incorporate the accumulated refinements of those ten intervening years.

That important improvements in the comfort and appearance of the car are made from time to time, implies no basic departure from Dodge Brothers' traditional policy of PROGRESSIVE rather than SEASONAL development.

Developing the Fullest Possibilities of the Four

If you will follow the new good Maxwell step by step through the great plants where it is built, you will quickly understand its extraordinary quality.

The new good Maxwell is manufactured almost to the smallest detail in Maxwell's own factories by an organization that has all the resources in mechanical equipment, scientific precision instruments, and trained man power to create superior qualities in any product it sponsors.

The new good Maxwell starts from the engineering department with a definite advantage—a design that is the result of a determined effort to develop as never before all the fullest possibilities of the four.

It is a design that is so far in advance of other fours that only in the new good Maxwell can you get a combination of 68 miles an hour, 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds, gasoline economy of 35 miles to the gallon and riding qualities finer than any other four ever possessed.

Only with such superiority of design and only with complete Maxwell manufacturing can so much better four-cylinder motoring be sold at the new good Maxwell price. We are eager to demonstrate these values to you, so that you, too, will be numbered among the ever-growing army of contented Maxwell owners.

PAAYO NURMI LOST TO HELFRICH IN HALF MILE RACE.

Great Finn Beaten For First Time In Short Distance—Faltered in Last Lap.

Yankee Stadium, N.W., May 25—Paavo Nurmi, super-athlete, went down to defeat to-night in his last appearance here, before Alan Helfrich, Penn State product, over a distance of a half mile.

Twenty thousand track fans, almost filling the Yankee Stadium, cheered Helfrich as he bore to victory, lengthening his lead as he sped down the stretch. He crossed the finish line ten yards in lead of Nurmi.

The Olympic star will sail for home on Thursday with this one defeat against his marvelous record built up in scores of races from Quebec to California.

While Nurmi failed in his last race, his countryman, Albin Stenroos, succeeded in his first. This burly Marathoner, 38 years old, and the father of two children, conquered ten local runners in a test of one hour and broke the United States record of ten miles 1.492 yards, set by Charles Pores of the Melrose A.A. on June 1, 1918. Stenroos' distance was 11 miles, 153 yards. Only fifty yards behind came the New England distance veteran, Jimmy Hannigan, of Dorchester, Mass.

Lift Newfoundland Out of Obscurity

When practically every country is making strenuous efforts to turn a part of the stream of tourist traffic in its direction, it is time for Newfoundland also to be up and doing, and it is gratifying to learn that a start has been made by the formation of a Tourist and Publicity Bureau.

Naturally the first essential to the success of such a movement is to possess in the country the attractions which are being sought by the army of holiday makers. Fortunately their fancies are not all alike. To some the attraction is the noisy throng, to others, the silent places. Some seek the modern hotel, in which they are surrounded by every luxury, while to others, with rod or gun in hand, the more primitive conditions are and the more they have to rough it, the greater is their pleasure. Others again are in search of the beautiful and the picturesque in Nature, or they are interested in historic associations, in the plant life or the geological formation of the country. One finds enjoyment in the heart of the tropics; the other, in the land of snow and ice. Of so diverse a nature are the inclinations of those in pursuit of pleasure, that it would be impossible to find a spot which does not prove a lode stone for the tourist in some form or another.

It is because of this, and because every person in search of pleasure is practically a free agent, restricted only by the time at his disposal and the length of his purse, that no country on the face of the earth can hope to make a "corner" of the tourist trade. It matters not that a place is off the beaten track; in fact, that in itself has a strong fascination for many. Provided the attractions of one kind or another exist, the promotion of the traffic depends upon making them known as widely as possible, in the most convincing way possible.

This is the object, in a word, of the Publicity Bureau, but the success of their efforts depends upon the support received from the general public. There must be enthusiasm in the project; there must be an intense desire to make Newfoundland a world playground; to see her outstrip New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and our other neighbours as a holiday resort, and supporting this spirit, there must be the willingness to do everything possible to accomplish it.

And why not? The chief effect of a publicity campaign is to make known the country's attractions, and everyone who has a spark of affection for his home land will be proud to take part in broadcasting her claims for recognition as one of the beauty spots of the earth. Too long has she played the part of Cinderella among her more aspiring sister Dominions. Let us all help to bring her out of her obscurity, and the result will be that not only will the eyes of the world be focussed on her beauty, but her other charms and her capabilities will immediately rivet attention as well.

Sentiment must play an important part in this undertaking. Because we love our country, we are anxious to see her prosper, and the influx of tourists will help very materially towards that end. The millions of dollars left in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and the other Canadian provinces last year meant increased prosperity, not for any particular business, but for all businesses; not for any particular class, but for all classes, and the increase in revenue derived from this source lessened the burden on every single taxpayer.

We have not dwelt upon the country's resources because they are fully known to all of us, but we do stress the necessity for the fullest co-operation between the newly formed organization and the public generally. Already in existence is the Game and Inland Fisheries Board, which has been invaluable in preserving the main attractions which Newfoundland possesses. In the Publicity Bureau it will find a willing partner, and there is every reason to believe that, together, they can make success assured.

On our desk is a copy of The Brooklyn, published by the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, and its leading article is headed "Newfoundland Cruise Arouses Interest." The members of the Chamber have chartered the Furness Withy liner Fort St. George for a trip which includes a visit to St. John's on July 7th, and already most of the passenger accommodation has been taken up. A significant fact about the bookings is that the first to make reservations have been those who have already made a similar trip. Here is an opportunity to open our campaign immediately. Whether that ship load of visitors will be "boosters" or "knockers" on their return to their homes will depend upon the impressions they form during their stay in the city. Let us show them we are glad to see them, and do everything possible to make their few hours in port thoroughly enjoyable.

St. Mary's Garden Party

ARRANGEMENTS NOW WELL IN HAND.

At last night's meeting of St. Mary's Garden Party Committee, all arrangements were completed for the annual event, which takes place at Lester's Field, on Wednesday, June 17th. All that is required now is a fine day to make the affair successful and enjoyable as possible.

The usual field events, consisting of sprint racing, football, 5 mile road race, with the side shows, etc., promise to be an attraction worth while, and as the total proceeds are to be devoted to the fund for the erection of the new parish hall, it is hoped the affair will be well patronized.

Grace Maternity Working for a Worthy Object

At the Nursing sub-committee of the Grace Maternity Hospital Association held on June 1st, the sum of $128.00 was handed over to the Treasurer, being the proceeds of the very successful Bridge Drive so kindly organized by Mrs. C. E. Hunt and Miss Furlong, M.B.E. This sum is the nucleus of a fund which will be held by the Association Treasurer to help the very poor mothers who wish to enter this hospital.

At the last Association Meeting it was agreed that the Association would seek the co-operation and advice of the Charities Bureau Organization in administering any money donated to them for this purpose.

The Association will organize the sale of Tags on Régatta Day for this fund and for further equipment of the Maternity Wards.

Obituary

By the English mail, which reached here yesterday, the sad news was received of the passing, on May 12th, of Sarah Jane (Jennie), beloved wife of Rev. George Crane, Rector of the Parish of Barmouth-Patna, Norfolk. The deceased lady was well known in St. John's, being on the teaching staff of the Central School here from 1873 to 1885.

Wareham's Banker Back With Good Trip

Yesterday the schr. Marjorie Inken, owned by Messrs. W. W. Wareham & Son, Capt. A. Moulton master, arrived at Harbour Buffett from the Banks, with 800 quintals of fish. She reports very rough weather. This is a most promising start of the season's operations and Capt. Moulton runs a good chance of breaking his last year's record.

Undersirable "Knights"

Certain "Knights of the Road" have been making themselves objectionable to ladies taking a walk in the evening by soliciting their company for a drive. It would be far better if these "gentlemen" confined their attention to their own exclusive set instead of attempting to extend their circle of acquaintances, as there are ladies who would rather not know them. Our attention has been called to this matter and a timely warning is given to one or two individuals that a repetition of their uninvited attentions will land them in the toils.

St. Patrick's Card Party

As will be seen by our advertising columns, there will be a card party at St. Patrick's Parish Hall on tomorrow, Wednesday evening, at 8.15 p.m. and the following prizes are being offered: Gold piece, butter, umbrella and safety razor. As the event promises to be most successful, a pleasant evening's enjoyment is assured all who attend.

Machinist Suffers Broken Leg

About ten o'clock this morning, an accident occurred at the Government Railway Machine Shops, when one of the machinists named Arthur Connolly had his right leg broken above the knee. Connolly was engaged moving a wheel weighing 550 lbs., to be placed on its axle, when it fell across his legs throwing him forcefully to the ground. Dr. Arch Tatt who was called to the scene made an examination of the man's injuries, and ordered him to hospital, to which he was conveyed in the ambulance.

CONFEDERATION LIFE.

Motor Boat Broken Down

This morning a motor boat belonging to one of the Battery fishermen, broke down outside the heads and for a time the occupants were in a perilous predicament, owing to the heavy breeze of wind blowing off the land. They were sighted from Cabot Tower and the Hugh D. was sent to the rescue. The tug brought the little craft safely to port.

Store Robbery

On Sunday last the store of Philip O'Reilly, of Argentia, was broken into and about $45 in cash stolen. The culprit in gaining an entrance was evidently cut, as blood marks were discovered on some glass that had been broken. The matter was reported to the police and last evening Detective Lee arrested a 25 year old woman resident of Argentia at a West End boarding house on suspicion. She appeared in court this morning and, pleading not guilty, was remanded to Picaentia for trial.

Inaugurates Fort-nightly Service

With the S. S. Digby leaving Liverpool on June 5th will be inaugurated the Furness Line fortnightly service between that port, St. John's, Halifax and Boston. The Digby will be followed by the S. S. Newfoundland, sailing June 16th. The service by steamers Digby, Sachem and Newfoundland will have sailings from Liverpool every second Tuesday and from Boston every second Saturday.

He deceased was 38 years of age and leaves to mourn his loss one daughter, five brothers and three sisters. Mrs. J. J. Steering Gear in Perfect Order

In the report yesterday of the mishap to the car owned by Mrs. S. Moore at Clarke's Beach, we are informed that the cause of the accident was not due to the failure of the steering gear, which upon examination was found to be in perfect condition.

Personal

Rev. R. E. Fairbairn, wife and daughter are passengers by S. S. Canadian Sapper. They are en route to Toronto.
 Rev. Dr. Fenwick, Mr. John Leamon, Rev. Geo. Patten and wife and Mr. A. Vetcher left by today's express for Toronto to attend the General Assembly of the United Churches.

Tremendous Orders From Newfoundland

In last evening's Telegram a "Special" (rush) message appeared for the benefit of the general public and we trust one and all will kindly take heed and act accordingly in buying Hartley's Jams, Jellies and Marmalade in preference to many inferior brands which may be seen in and about the city to-day. Positively the largest Preserve Contracts ever signed here have been forwarded Sir Wm. P. PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

June 1st—The day felt yet somewhat unsettled. I abroad and all the day about the business of my office, being that I must increase my gettings this month if I would not face the Bankruptcy Court. No news all this day and, indeed, the whole spring so quiet that there is no knowing where news may be obtained. My wife this day being dressed in some of her new finery, do take a tussle over the doorway, being that her high heels do catch in it. Kelly, Peters, her new gone beyond all repairing. This makes me mad that at this time the wretch should be so careless, yet seems she cares not at all. This night do remain at home, being greatly troubled by an ache of my head, caused, methinks, by futile seeking for news that does not exist. So to bed.

Mr. Parsons has now kindly presented the interesting souvenir to the Conference.
Mrs. J. R. Goodson, of Carbonara, is in possession of the first Commun-

A Suggestion for the City Council

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir.—On reading last week's report of the City Council, I was interested to learn the cost of a Concrete Curb and Gutter along both sides of the thoroughfare—LeMarchant Road, from Parade to Pleasant Streets. The City Engineer submitted his estimate of $18,200.00 for this work, and our City Fathers decided that they were unable to undertake this large expenditure and consequently the matter was deferred—presumably indefinitely. I think it a great pity that the Council evidently disposed of this matter without much consideration and believe that it would be very little trouble to finance the work without entailing an extra burden of taxation on the average taxpayer.

According to the City Charter, section 304, the Council "with the authorization of the Governor-in-Council, may borrow money for the acquisition of land or buildings for any lawful purpose, for the construction of streets and sidewalks, etc."

Armed with this power of borrowing, I feel it would be an easy matter to raise the $18,200.00, the cost of this work, and the Council might issue 6% bonds for this amount which would only represent an annual interest outlay of $1,092.00.

I would further add that the Council would experience no difficulty in selling these bonds even at a likely lower rate of interest than the 6% mentioned.

In order to collect money to pay this new obligation I would suggest that a small tax be put on all lotteries which are so fashionable at present, and I do not think anyone will feel disturbed or put out about this simple and feasible way of paying this interest.

Roughly speaking upwards of $120,000.00 were spent on the Seal Fishing Lotteries this spring, and there ought to be little trouble in collecting at least one per cent. on this amount which would very easily give us the yearly interest on the $18,200.00 required to improve LeMarchant Road, and have at least one road in the city with decent sidewalks which would be a joy and a pleasure to the vast throng of pedestrians who frequent this popular thoroughfare.

Yours truly,
St. John's, June 1st, 1925.

Dance in Aid of Orphans

A GREAT SUCCESS.

The dance held at the Galety Hall last night, under the direction of Misses Gladys Wiseman and Helen Noonan, was attended by 300 persons and proved to be one of the season's successes. Dancing was indulged in from 9 o'clock until the "we sma" hours of the morning. We must say that the dance music by the Prince's Orchestra, under the direction of W. J. Darcy, has never been surpassed and every number was encored again and again. During the interval supper was served in the dining hall downstairs. The room was converted into a daintily decorated ball room. During the supper the Adams-Cheney Musical Orchestra, of the Majestic Theatre, rendered delightful music for the extra dances. This music was very much appreciated. A feature of the programme was the elimination dance. The prize winners were Miss Alice Pittman and Mr. Thomas Crossman.

The proceeds of the dance, which go to aid the C. of E. and Mt. Cashel Orphanages, amounted to a handsome sum. Great praise is due the lady organizers and all others for their enthusiastic help. Messrs. Adams and Cheney announced, before the close, grammar was the elimination dance. Cheney announced before the close, menacing at 9 o'clock.

Park Policeman Necessary

It is suggested that owing to the many children now availing of the Banerman Park playground that the police officer whose duty it is to keep order there should be put on the job at once. During the past few days quite a lot of rough play is being indulged in there by a number of grown-up boys, and the presence of a policeman is necessary if the apparatus used is to be saved from destruction.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

GALLANT FIGHT TO REACH PORT SUCCESSFUL

NEW YORK, June 1.
Beached on the Red Hook Flats of South Brooklyn, the British freighter Fenchurch was still to-night aloft after a three day race for life against fire which broke out in her hold Friday night while miles at sea, although the Fenchurch sent out S.O.S. calls when the fire broke out, which brought the freighter Chudata to her assistance, the captain decided to bring the ship in under her power. Throughout Friday night and Saturday weary men stood to their work, holding the fire down as best they could, while all possible speed was made for shore. As the ship neared New York last night the fire was still rising, and when she entered the harbor smoke was rising from her in great clouds. Tugs were waiting at quarantine. The burning ship was towed to the Flats where she was beached early to-day. Fire boats were called and all day poured tons of water into the burning hold. To-night it was believed that the fire was under control, but it was still burning and plans were made to keep streams of water pouring into it all night.

BALDWIN TRYING TO GET AT THE ROOT OF THE EVIL

LONDON, June 1.
(Canadian Press Cable)—Premier Stanley Baldwin is not worrying over the Socialist movements, and he does not intend to "waste his time" denouncing them. Instead he is going to attack the conditions and evils which prevent improvements. This was his policy to-day when he addressed fifty thousand people at the Victoria railway at Welbeck Abbey, Nottinghamshire, and expressed his indifference to the Conservative critics who complained that he did not sufficiently denounce his opponents.

SHANGHAI RIOTS.

LONDON, June 1.
A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Shanghai says the declaration of martial law to-day, culminated in further rioting. Mobs attacked the police station and the police fired upon the demonstrators, killing twenty and wounding many others.

RUMOR OF AMUNDSEN'S RETURN DENIED.

OSLO, June 1.
The Norwegian Aeronaut Association to-day issued a denial of the rumors that Capt. Roald Amundsen had returned to Spitzbergen from his Polar expedition. The Association announced that a message had been received this evening from the supply ship Hobby that the situation was unchanged. Rumors of Amundsen's return have been current since early yesterday, but bulletins were posted in the windows of the newspaper offices declaring they were untrue. Early inquiries among the relatives of the members of the expedition failed to confirm the report in any way.

IRISH COMMISSIONER STORMED AT IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 1.
Two hundred military police and detectives were unable to prevent an outbreak to-night when General Owen O'Duffy, Chief Commissioner of the Irish Free State civic guards in Dublin, took his place in the armory at 26th St. and Lexington Ave. to review the 16th Infantry Regiment. The disturbance was quelled, and twenty women were ejected from the hall only after eggs had been hurled at the Irish chief, and a tempestuous chorus of cat calls and cries of "traitor" and "he is the second Benedict Arnold."

WAR DECLARED BY RUM RUNNERS

NEW YORK, June 2.
The New York Times says it has been learned from good authority that the New York bootlegging ring is having constructed a fleet of armoured rum runners which will battle the coastguard boats blockading rum row. The smuggling syndicate has given orders to a shipyard for the construction of the fleet. The Times says in addition to heavy armour as a protection against the bullets of the rum chasers, the boats, it is under-

To-day the voters of the Province will choose sixty-one of the sixty-three members who will form the sixth Legislature of the Province. A mob of 2000 students and workmen formerly employed at Nagai Wata cotton mill and closed owing to labor disorders yesterday morning, attacked a Japanese constable on West Poochow Ferry Road and threw him into the creek. Climbing out, he opened fire, killing one and wounding another. Defense units dispersed the gathering. ## Motor Fishing Boats

BRITISH COAST FLEET NOW THE FINEST IN THE WORLD.

The reorganization of the British inshore fishing industry, which has been going on for some years, has resulted in the catching of about 30 per cent. more fish a day and has made our fishing fleet the foremost in the world.

Ninety-five per cent. (about 4,000) of the inshore fishermen round the coast have installed motors in their boats, so that they make two or three trips in the former time of one.

Mr. A. Shaw, the secretary of the Fisheries Organization Society, said recently: "The fish these inshore fishermen catch is very much in demand, as it does not come to us after being days in ice."

The society has 53 local societies affiliated to it, and the president, Mr. Cecil Harnsworth, recently made a tour of these societies in the West Country and had informal talks with them.

The reorganization of the industry is due to a great extent to Mr. Harnsworth's efforts. He was chairman of the first committee, set up in 1912, which inquired into the advisability of recommending loans for installing the motors, and took a prominent part in obtaining the yearly grant which has made the development of the industry possible.

$160,000.00 Paid to Soldiers

OTTAWA, May 28.—In bonus or gratuity for the soldiers enlisted for the Great War, Canada has paid to date $162,310,156. Answering a question in the House of Commons today, the Minister of National Defence stated that up to March 31st, 1920, the amount expended in this way was $155,924,519, and the balance of the sum has been paid since that date. The annual expenditure on this head dwindled from $4,607,947 in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1921, to $78,829 in the fiscal year just ended.

British Labor Members Disagree

LONDON, May 28.—Sharp differences have developed among the Labor members of Parliament on the question of Imperial policy, according to the Star to-night. The Clydeside representatives, along with George Lansbury and J. Guest, favor a special close relationship between Great Britain and the Dominions, even to the extent of agreeing that there should be some partial preference given to the latter. They take this stand because many people are emigrating from the United Kingdom to the Dominions, where labor conditions generally are better than on the European continent.

Conversely the free trade view is upheld by Ramsay MacDonald, J. R. Clynes, Philip Snowden and other leaders in the Labor Party. It is understood that the Independent Labor Party is appointing a commission to prepare a deflated Labor policy with regard to Empire problems, with special reference to the feasibility of purchasing Dominion produce in bulk.

Mine to Close Unless the Strike Ends

NORTH SYDNEY, May 28.—Princess Colliery, Sydney Mines, will not re-operate this year unless there is an end, within two weeks, to the strike which has tied up the British Empire Steel Corporation in Nova Scotia for the past twelve weeks, according to information in circulation, following the conference of Corporation officials with President R. M. Wulven, which has been in session in Sydney for the past two days.

Canadian Artillery Officer Passes Away

Toronto, May 26.—(Canadian Press)—Edward Whipple Bancroft Morrison, whose death occurred on May 25th, was born at London, Ont., in 1877, his father being a Scotsman from Glasgow. From his early boyhood he showed an inclination to a military life and began both his writing and fighting career in Hamilton, Ont., over 30 years ago when he joined the staff of the Hamilton Spectator and also the Canadian Militia.

Whatever he did, he did thoroughly. Starting his journalistic career, he first fitted himself by becoming a proficient shorthand writer. He was a well known figure in Hamilton during his "club" days always carrying a substantial walking stick, which he knew well how to wield in case of necessity, and accompanied by a gambolling greyhound. He had a keen sense of news, graphic descriptive power, and above all that good old fashioned British bulldog tenacity which made him hang on till the whole story had been gathered and told his readers. He soon rose to be city editor of the Spectator and later went to Ottawa to take the position of editor of the Ottawa Citizen, a position he held until the outbreak of the South African War.

Mr. Morrison had been gazetted a lieutenant in the fourth Field Battery. He went to South Africa with Major Hurdman's command as Lieut. of "L" Battery R.C.A. For bravery in the field in saving the guns in a rear-guard action, he was mentioned in dispatches and awarded the D.S.O. He also received the Queen's medal with three clasps. At the conclusion of the South African war he wrote, "With the Guns in South Africa." He continued with the guns after returning from South Africa and on the outbreak of hostilities in Europe in 1914 he took the Ottawa and Kingston batteries overseas, with the rank of Lieut.-Colonel.

His first action in the War was at the Second Battle of Ypres when he did wonders with his batteries with the limited amount of ammunition at his disposal. Later in 1915, he was appointed commander of the Second Division Artillery and advanced to the rank of brigadier-general. During the Somme actions in 1916 he had command of the Canadian Corps Artillery at the taking of Vimy Ridge, being promoted Major-General. His high technical skill as an artillery officer was to be widely recognized on the West Front, and during the victorious forward drive of the Canadian Corps in the final days of the war he achieved new distinctions. Opening with the battle of Amiens, August 8, 1918—"black day of the German Army," according to Ludendorff—through the storming of the Drocourt-Queant line, Aug. 27-Sept. 2, and then successfully the captures of Cambrai, Denain, Valenciennes and Mons, the drive of the Canadian corps counted much in the final victory. And in this great achievement the Canadian Corps Artillery, under the command of General Morrison, played an increasingly important part. Perhaps no artillery action during the course of the war surpassed in technical skill, ingenuity and precision, the barrage laid down on the morning of Sept. 27, 1919, when the Canadian Corps stormed the Canal du Nord, and turned the flank of the famous Hindenburg line. General Morrison was a great leader, an inspiration to his men, and a strategist and tactician of no mean order.

He was keenly interested in all many sports and was a first rate horseman. When the Canadian Corps entered Germany, General Morrison was still riding "King," his thoroughbred charger which he took overseas with him and with which he had won many medals at the Ottawa Horse Show.

Sir Edward received his knighthood of K.C.M.G. in 1919. He had been created C.B. in 1915 and C.M.G. in 1917. After his return to Canada, Sir Edward was appointed Major-General of Ordnance and later combined with that office the duties of adjutant general.

In 1911 he married Emma Thacker, daughter of John S. Kaye, of New Orleans, Alabama. Sir Edward was a Presbyterian by religious denomination and a Conservative in politics. He was a member of Rideau and Ottawa Hunt Club.

St. John's Steamer to be Remodelled

NORTH SYDNEY, May 28.—The steamer, Lake Como, sailed from here to-day for Miramichi, to load deals for the British Isles, and the Russian steamer, Sangars, sailed from here for Dalnaya, N. The steamer Lake Como, is owned by St. John's interests, and after discharging will go into one of the British shipyards for remodelling. It is intended to strengthen the hull, to enable her to operate in the ice during the North Atlantic seal hunting season.

THE HALL OF INFAMY.

The Hall of Infamy seems to be popular. I have a good many candidates for it. But not too many. Don't be afraid to send along your candidates and if they are suitable I will give them a niche.

What I mean by being suitable is if they do not merely represent an attempt to knock someone you don't like personally but are real types so that people will say, "Yes that's the way I feel." Here are some of the recent candidates: That Tunesome Hum! "The people who when they watch you try on a dress invariably hum a tunesome song as they give you an appraising look and pull a sleeve here or a collar there." "People who judge you. As a child I hated to be handed along an aisle by means of a large knuckly adult hand pressed firmly against my shoulder blades." (If that doesn't make a lot of people say, "me too," I miss my guess.)

You Have Enough. "The people who think it is their business how large your family should be. My life centers in a nice middle class home with many electric lights, a loving husband, and five dear healthy children. They all seem bright as well as healthy. We are in love with each one. We couldn't spare one. We are busy and happy, serving their needs now and planning for their future. Perhaps if we could have had things just as we wanted them, we should not have had them in quite such a bunch. But we have them, we are happy and loving and so I nominate with a good bit of feeling for your Hall of Infamy the ladies who have said to my husband and me, "Yes he is a fine little baby, but I do hope you won't have any more. You have enough." "Women who owe $50 milk bills and others in accordance but never neglect to give their wealthy friends anniversary gifts on all occasions." "But, where do they get them?" "Women who boast that they bridge from one to one while their $5 a week maids take care of their husbands and children." (But where do they get $5 a week maids?) "The woman who talks about a doctor's wife dressing poorly when she owes the doctor money." "The married woman with a very ordinary husband who puts on airs just because she is married and tries to patronize the single girls, most of whom wouldn't have looked at the man she married." "Perhaps these candidates will suggest others to you. If they do, send them along. We have plenty of niches left."

THE SQUARE PEG.

"I work," said Job Kersimpkins Twins, "I work, but I don't like this job of mine—I'm built for something better. You see me here at dinky jobs, at brewings and at bakings, and I've an intellect that throbs for mighty undertakings. One day you see me sawing wood, the next I'm hoeing pumpkins, and at such tasks I don't make good—they're only fit for bumpkins. I try out all the jobs in sight, my spirit nothing daunting, but none of them appears just right, there's always something wanting. Men say I am not worth two bits, I'm lazy and unwilling; but when I find the job that fits, you'll see me make a killing." He teetered round from chore to chore, and when his years were fifty, he journeyed to the poorhouse door, in raiment far from nifty. Whatever job he had to do he viewed with scorn and loathing; he wished to join the lordly few who work in tailored clothing; he would be captain of the hosts, a man of lofty station, so digging holes for cedar posts stirred up his indignation. He'd supervise a diamond mine, or sell a set of lilies, but packing swill to shrieking swine gave him the well known willies. "Act well your part," the poet writes, and if your part be humble, still act it well. Oh, weary wights, and do not beef or grumble. We all admire the gent who slugs while doing jobs unpleasant, and if he's built for better things those things will find him present. But fortune doesn't often choose the man who hates his calling when her rewards she grandly strews—she doesn't like his bawling.

SPEAKING OF THE BABY.

Being her daddy it may be I'm prejudiced and favor
Beyond good judgement's boundaries the little tyke's behavior;
But knowing what her mother was when I became her sutor,
I hold of all the baby girls there never was one cuter.

Her mother must have made them laugh when she was small like Janet.

And in that time I fancy she both owned the house and ran it;
She surley had a thousand charms the old folks lives to sweeten,
But lovely though she must have been our baby has her beaten.

I am not fond of boastfulness, myself I seldom mention
To what I've done or what I own I'd call no man's attention.

But as her daddy I declare without one if or maybe
We have in her I love so much a most unusual baby.

The light of love is in her eye, there's music in her chatter;
There's joy in everything she does, Strangers stand staring at her!
And though I'm prejudiced of course, on all this earthly planet
I claim of all the lovely babes, the loveliest is Janet.

We cannot keep her three years old—I was it off in sorrow—
Age has a place for her to fill in some not-to-morrow,
And so for her I have one hope, dearer than any other,
When she grows up I pray she'll be as lovely as her mother.

"The House of Youth" a Splendid Feature

ADAMS and CHENEY in a REMARKABLY FINE PROGRAM AT THE MAJESTIC.

The audience at the Majestic Theatre last night enjoyed the bill immensely. The feature, "The House of Youth" was an ideal story full of intensity, interesting situations and very much appreciated. "The Star," Jacqueline Logan, was never seen to better advantage. She was assisted by an all star cast, including Richard Travers and Gloria Grey. "The House of Youth" is based on Maud Warren's great novel, a drama which merited world wide notice. The feature is a true to life dramatization of modern times and is a veritable triumph.

Adams and Cheney, who are now playing their final week at the Majestic are submitting their best act. These artists are indeed marvels and the many who heard them last night were pleased beyond expression. Their offerings are of such a character that their entire program appeals to all. Their program not including encores, is as follows:—
1—Scherzo, Van Goens.
2—Beautiful Girls, Song.
3—The Old Refrain, Kreisler.

Man's 200 Feet Fall

LIFE SAVED BY SAND.

Lying in bed at the Royal East Sussex Hospital, Hastings, Edward Willett, aged 38, of the Tackleway, Hastings, described his experience in falling nearly 200 feet and receiving only slight injuries.

"I was gathering broom at the top of the cliff," he said, "and was walking along, my basket on my arm, when everything began to swim. The next thing I knew was that I had landed in the sand at the bottom of the cliff."

"This saved my life. I landed feet first in the sand, which flew up and covered me."

Willett sustained a fractured ankle and some cuts.

Canteen Funds Probe Adjourned

AUDIT OF FINANCES OF GREAT WAR VETERANS NOT COMPLETED.

OTTAWA—(Can. Press)—The inquiry by a special commission of the Senate, into the administration of the Canteen and Disablement Funds, the use to which advances from these funds have been put, and the manufacture and sale of paper poppies by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment organisations, opened here recently.

Little headway was made, as C. G. MacNeill, Secretary of the Dominion Command of the Great War Veterans' Association informed the members of the Committee that an audit of the finances of the Association had not yet been completed, and therefore he could not then present full details of the amounts received and expended by the Association. "The audit began a few days ago and will be finished within a few hours," Mr. MacNeill said.

In reply to the chairman, Senator Belcourt, Mr. MacNeill declared that when the audit was completed, the Association would have a complete statement of its finances, available from April 1st, 1917, to May 1st, 1925.

Asks Expediency

Senator Giesbach urged that the enquiry be expedited. It had been decided, he stated, to have an independent audit made by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, of the books and accounts of the Great War Veterans Association.

Questioned by Senator Belcourt, Mr. MacNeill stated the association had no objection to an independent audit being made of the books of the Association. Access to the books and papers of the Association would be given to the auditors of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

"Can you complete your audit today?" asked Senator Belcourt.

"Yes," replied Mr. MacNeill.

It was decided that the officers of the D.S.C.R. Department would be instructed to proceed immediately with their independent audit, in order to make a full report of the committee at its next meeting.

Mr. MacNeill then asked if the directors of the association would be provided with counsel. The report had gone about, he stated, that the inquiry was particularly directed against the G.W.V.A., and he thought, therefore, the directors of the association should be provided with counsel.

Reply For Probe

"Personally," stated Mr. MacNeill, "I am prepared to place myself at the disposal of the committee without counsel." He thought the situation might be different, however, in respect to the directors.

"Who will pay the counsel?" interjected Senator Loughheed.

Mr. MacNeill considered that payment should be made by the Government, the situation, he considered, merited such action.

The committee had no objection to counsel being present, but, for the present, it could see no reason why payment of its fees should be made by the Government.

Adjournment was made until Wednesday next, so that the examination of Mr. MacNeill could be proceeded with on the basis of the auditors' statements.

Bridging the Golden Gate

The proposed bridge across the Golden Gate at San Francisco would span a gap of 8800 feet and for this purpose would have a 4000-foot centre span and two shore spans of 1820 feet each. As the self-weight of the cantilever limits its spans between piers to about 1800 feet maximum, a bridge is proposed which combines the cantilever and suspension principles. The cables of the suspended spans instead of extending the full length of the centre and side spans, tie into the ends of the cantilever arms at points which are so selected as to secure the economical length for both types of construction. In this case, for the single span of 400 feet there would be needed only a suspended cable span length of 2640 feet. This design is known as the "cantilever-suspension" bridge. The span will provide a clearance of 200 feet for the passage of ships. The two main piers will be 200 feet from base to top, and superimposed on them will be steel towers 747 feet high. Their maximum width at the base will be 115 feet. The total length of the bridge proper will be 9640 feet. The two main cables will be 30 inches in diameter. The cross-sectional width of the bridge is 80 feet, providing for two trolley tracks, two lines of motor cars, in each direction and two 7-foot sidewalk. The centre span is 2400 feet greater than that of the Manhattan Bridge and 750 feet greater than that of the proposed Hudson River Bridge. The estimates call for a total cost of about $17,000,000. "World Ports."

As he and dear Uncle Lucky drove away in the Luckymobile from the Tallo; Bird's little shop in the high treetop, somebody shouted, "Oh, dear me, I wish I were tall as the Old Pine Tree."

"Who are you?" asked curious Uncle Lucky, stopping the Luckymobile just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat. But no answer came; no, not a sound, except a gentle whistle by Billy Breeze up in the top of the tall green trees.

"Who can it be?" questioned Little Jack Rabbit in a whisper, cuddling up to his nice old bunny Uncle.

Just then a pretty Jack-in-the-Pulpit flower opened wide. Peeping out from amid the lovely petals smiled a funny little face—the face of a tiny fairy.

"What you don't want to be a giant?" laughed Uncle Lucky. "Why not be contented as you are? You have a nice little flower house."

"Yes, but I can't see the stars at night," answered the little fairy. "If I were as tall as the Tall Pine Tree I could see the stars at night."

"You should go to bed and dream," replied Uncle Lucky. "Little people like you should go to sleep at sundown."

former vice-president succumbed to heart attack.

WASHINGTON, June 1. Thomas Riley Marshall, vice-president of the United States for eight years, has followed his chief, Woodrow Wilson, to death at the age of 71.

A recurrence of a heart attack, which sent him to his bed last Monday immediately after a trip from In-place, brought on the end to-day. Death came to him quietly in his hotel room where he lived during his two terms as Vice-President. Brief services will be held late to-morrow in the hotel and then the body will be placed aboard a train for Indianapolis, where the funeral will take place.

Increasing Loop Sensitivity

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

A very simple way in which the connections are important. Now tune in a station and vary sensitivity of a loop receiver, can be increased by making the detector regenerative through feedback due to an additional tap from the loop. The connections shown above are for a minimum to maximum there will be superheterodyne primarily, but apply equally to ANY set which operates on a loop. The inside winding of the loop is connected to the stationary plates of a 17 plate, variable condenser (C1). The rotary plates of this condenser are connected to the plate terminal of the detector socket. In this case it is the first detector, but in a neutrodyne receiver it is the first radio frequency tube—or the last tube in the set. The outside turn of the loop is connected to the regular "loop terminal" on the receiver. You must trace the connections and see that the outside loop turn is connected to the binding post, which is, in turn, connected to the grid circuit of the first tube.

In the center of the loop a connection is taken off. This connection is made by scraping the loop of its insulation and attaching a piece of wire around the loop wire. This wire connects to the other loop terminal on the receiver. This connects the tuning condenser C in the set across the outside winding of the loop and the new center tap. There's Bobbie Redrest at the pane. Singing such a sweet refrain. 'Tis his daily morning habit: To tell me of my little rabbit: What has happened over night So my story I may write.

Quickly jumping out of bed, I lifted the window and invited my little bird caller into my room. Then I listened carefully to what he had to say, and now that he has gone, I am sitting before my friendly old typewriter, "Remmy," as I call it, to write another story of the adventures of Little Jack Rabbit.

As he and dear Uncle Lucky drove away in the Luckymobile from the Tallo; Bird's little shop in the high treetop, somebody shouted, "Oh, dear me, I wish I were tall as the Old Pine Tree."

PRIME MINISTER BROADCASTS ELOQUENT APPEAL FOR CO-OPERATION.
LONDON, May 28.—(C.P.)—An eloquent appeal to encourage the sentiment of the Empire whose bonds "are as light as the air yet as strong as iron" was uttered by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin in broadcasting an Empire Day message. He suggested that the British people must give the word "Empire" a new meaning, or substitute for it the title of the Commonwealth or British Nations.

"We cannot merely be passive admirers of the Empire's achievements and promise," he declared in deprecating belittlement of the material side of the partnership. "On the contrary all members of the family ought to assist freely and ungrudgingly for the good of all."
The Premier was of the opinion that everyone should be able to pay at least one visit to British and Overseas Dominions, and that they should modify the phrase "know thyself" into "know your Empire."

Regatta Committee Meeting

ANNUAL DERRY FIRST WEDNESDAY IN AUGUST.
A meeting of the 1924 Regatta Committee took place at the T.A. Armoury last night, with Vice-President Hon. W. J. Higgins in the chair. After the adoption of the minutes, the Chairman read a letter from President Hiscock, expressing regret at his inability to be present owing to indisposition, and then referred to the generosity of Sir Edgar Bowring in connection with the lake side property which had been purchased from him at cost price. He expressed appreciation of the splendid work being done by City Engineer Ryan in improving and beautifying the place. He then requested Hon. W. J. Ellis to give an account of the work being done. Being called away on important business he vacated the chair which was then taken by Councillor C. Ryan. Hon. W. J. Ellis dealt with the negotiations between the Sub-Committee and Sir E. R. Bowring, as to the securing of the land bordering the lake, the financing of the plan and the work being done, endorsing the remarks of Mr. Higgins as to the splendid efforts of Sir E. R. Bowring and Engineer Ryan. Mr. A. G. Williams also spoke in praise of the efforts of the sub-committee in securing the property for the public and on motion of Mr. J. Crotty, seconded by Mr. P. Hanley, a vote of thanks was accorded the sub-committee and Engineer Ryan, Secretary C. J. Ellis, on behalf of the Revision Committee outlined some proposed alterations in the rules governing the eligibility of oarsmen, etc., after which the meeting closed. A public meeting was then opened and it was decided to hold the Annual Regatta on the first Wednesday in August.
The Committee of last year was re-appointed with power to add to their numbers. Additional members, Messrs. P. J. Cashin, J. Murphy, G. Brownrigg and F. W. Hayward, were elected. At a committee meeting which followed, the election of officers resulted as follows:
President—A. Hiscock.
Vice-President—W. J. Higgins.
Secretary—C. J. Ellis.
Treasurer—R. W. Jeans.
Messrs. J. P. Crotty, A. Williams, J. M. Tobin and J. Spens were re-elected as the Medal Committee.
On a motion that the order for medals be placed, quite a lot of discussion took place and it was decided that the supply of medals be placed on tender. The meeting adjourned at 9.30 until Friday night, June 12th, at 8.30 o'clock.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

DR. GRENFELL ADVOCATES CONFEDERATION FOR LABRADOR.
VANCOUVER, B.C., June 2.
Confederation with the Dominion of Canada as a means of solving some of Labrador's problems, was advocated yesterday by Dr. W. T. Grenfell of Labrador fame, who arrived here from the Orient after a trip around the world, during which he studied the conditions and problems of fishermen. "I have come to this conclusion," he said, "after talking and living with the fishermen of the Labrador coast. They are 100 per cent. strong for confederation, and my personal opinion is Labrador would be better off as part of the big country. At present 3,000 fishermen on the coast are without a vote in any country." The doctor left Vancouver last night for St. John's, Nfld. His trip around the world was in the nature of a farewell in celebration of his 80th birthday. The building of a $30,000 fitted hospital on the Labrador coast is a big item in Dr. Grenfell's programme for the present year.

NURMI SAILS.

Had Offers of About $250,000 to Renounce His Amateur Status in U.S.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Offers totalling approximately $250,000 to renounce his amateur status were made to Paavo Nurmi, wonder runner from Finland, during his visit to Canada and the United States, during his visit to Canada and United States, Frederick Rubien, secretary treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, said shortly after Nurmi sailed for his home in Abo, Finland, yesterday.

All offers were refused, however. Rubien said, and Nurmi is particularly happy over the fact that his amateur standing remained undamaged.

Rubien reiterated that Nurmi received only $7 a day as expenses.

A crowd of several hundred persons were at the pier to wish him bon voyage.

Nurmi hopes to return either next year or in 1927.

SCOTTISH GOLFER CAPTURED AMATEUR TITLE.

Robert Harris Took Sensational Victory Over Kenneth Fradgley in Final Match.

WESTWARD HO, Eng., May 29.—The British amateur golf championship to-day was won in sensational fashion this afternoon when Robert Harris, of Dundee, Scotland, overcame his opposing finalist, Kenneth Fradgley, of Warren, throughout the course of the entire play and wound up a steady exhibition of fine golf three and one to the good.

Fradgley played poorly and nervously, his strokes leaked confidence and in every way he revealed himself to be suffering badly from "stage fright." Harris, on the other hand, quickly settled down to a steady game and kept it up for the whole of the final encounter. Unprecedented in the history of the championship final was the fact that at the end of the first eighteen holes Harris was nine up on his opponent. Fradgley was able to divide the honors on an occasional hole, but otherwise he was indifferent. There could be no doubt as to his being absolutely off his game. This was the third time that Harris had reached the final and for him the third time was the "lucky" one although there appeared to be no element of luck in his game, unless it was the distinctly bad showing of Fradgley. Harris is a veteran golfer and a rugged, determined player. The course to-day was flooded and a strong wind mitigated against accuracy in shooting.

CHAMPION DREW BLOOD ON DEMPSEY.

Boregarin Passengers Treated to Three Round Exhibition Bout.

NEW YORK, May 28.—(Associated Press)—When the Canadian Boregarin docked over the week-end from Southampton it became known that Jack Dempsey had boxed three rounds during the voyage eastward, with Kent, the butcher's mate, and had blood tapped from his new nose in the presence of fully 2,000 of the passengers and crew.

Kent was formerly amateur champion heavyweight boxer of the British army and navy. He is now 45 years old.

The sight of blood trickling down Dempsey's chin in spite of his frequent sniffling, caused such excitement among the big audience, that one woman fell off a hatch and broke a leg and another went clean through one of the canvas boat coverings. Dempsey did not try to knock his opponent about, it was said, and let him do all the fighting.

LADY SWIMMERS TO ATTEMPT TO SWIM ENGLISH CHANNEL.

Gertrude Ederle, U.S. Star, and Lillian Harrison, of the Argentine, Ready By July.

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER, France, May 28.—Miss Gertrude Ederle, champion woman swimmer of the United States, and holder of several world's records, and Miss Lillian Harrison, English swimmer, from Argentina, are preparing here for attempts they will make at separate times this summer to swim the English Channel, from Cap Gris Nez, near here, to Dover.

Jabez Wolf, well known English swimmer, is at Cap Gris Nez to arrange for Miss Ederle's training, which he will supervise. He thinks she should be ready to attempt the Channel swim about the end of July, if the weather is good.

Miss Harrison, who has already started her training, seems to be in good form. She spent two hours in the water yesterday.

The distance from Cap Gris Nez to Dover is about twenty miles.

Miss Harrison attempted twice last year to swim the English Channel. The first time she injured her leg by slipping on a sharp rock as she entered the water, and was forced to abandon the attempt.

The second time she was in the water eight hours, but gave up because of adverse currents. In 1923 she swam for 21 hours down the Parana River, in Brazil, and during the same year swam the Plata River, in Argentina.

Which is the Most Useful of Five Senses?

"Which of our senses is the most useful?" I was asked recently, writes N.M., in the London Daily Chronicle.

We had been talking about John Metcalfe, the blind roadmaker. That marvellous fellow who, in spite of completely losing his sight when a small child, rode races, fought battles, and personally surveyed and constructed hundreds of miles of public roadways.

"But he was only blind," remarked someone. "Miss Keller, the American authoress, is deaf and dumb as well, and think what she has accomplished.

Hence the question, which of our senses can we least well spare?

We were talking about mental qualities that are misleadingly called "senses." Common sense, for instance, The issue had been narrowed down to the respective importance of the five senses for which we have special organs. Seeing, hearing, tasting, smelling, and the sense of touch.

In the ordinary course we make little use of all our senses together. We get in the way of depending upon one or two and neglect to cultivate the others.

The shepherd and the sailor learn to make good use of their eyes. The engineer has keen ears. Few except the wine and tea merchant develop the gift of taste to any extent, while hardly anyone, if we omit weavers, has trained finger tips. The sense of smell is usually as little cultivated as taste. Many men frankly admit that they have no taste or smell for tobacco smoke, unless they see it issue from their mouth.

Miss Keller, deprived of the aid of so many faculties, has trained those she does possess to supply the deficiency. She can detect the passage of a person through a room although she cannot see or hear. The smallest particle of resin in the air will reveal to her magical mind that a carpenter has been at work in the neighborhood.

Diderot, the French philosopher, you will recollect, classified the senses as follows: The eye, he says, is the most superficial, the ear the proudest, smell the most voluptuous, taste the most superstitious and inconstant, while touch remains the most profound and philosophical of them all.

In his last conclusion we have, I think, the answer to our question.

We can manage without sight, hearing, taste, and smell, but deprive us of the meaning of a handshake, and you blot out all the meaning of life itself.

Our most useful sense is undoubtedly the sense of physical contact with the world around us, and our brothers and sisters in it.

BRING YOUR PRESCRIPTIONS TO US.

We handle all prescription work with skill, care and exactitude because one-sixtieth of a grain of some potent drug or chemical entering into a prescription will often effect the action of that compound to an almost unbearable extent. There is never any deviation here in prescription work. When one grain of a medical substance is called for, we use one grain not seven-eighths of a grain, nor one and one-eighth grains. We also carry a complete line of Summer Toilet Requisites, such as: Soaps, Perfumes, Toilet Powders, Perspiration Deodorants, Cold Creams, Sunburn and Freckle Lotions, etc. Let us serve you.

Thrilling Love Story at the Nickel Theatre

"His Hour," Elmer Glyn's Best Story.

One of the most thrilling love stories ever written is brought to the screen at the Nickel Theatre, where "His Hour," the Metro-Goldwyn production of the Elmer Glyn story is being shown.

A young English widow, Tamara Lorraine, meets Grizko, a Russian Prince. She is prim and conventional due to the fact that she has been reared as one of the English aristocracy and her emotions are hidden far beneath a frigid exterior. Grizko, on the other hand, is wild, impulsive, and handsome, and is the most beloved man in all Russia. Tamara is attracted to him, but resolves not to fall under his spell as every other woman has. She intrigues him by her distant charm, which is different from anything he has ever before encountered.

By her pronounced aloofness she spurs him to deeds of deviltry. She openly dislikes him, but is really hypnotized by the brilliant fascinating Prince.

The affair reaches a climax and a declaration of love is forced from the lips of the proud Tamara.

Alleen Pringle plays the leading feminine role while John Gilbert is cast as the Prince. They both hold by their dynamic personalities and Elmer Glyn in choosing them as her ideal lovers made a selection which should be generally popular. King Vidor directed and brought out realism and richness. The production was presented by Louis B. Mayer.

"Bringing Charm and Beauty to Every Woman"

The Cleansing Cream is generally used at night, or after motoring or exposure to dust and dirt.

Soap and water will not remove all the grime the skin collects. Some of it works its way so far into the pores that it requires a deeper, more thorough cleansing.

Three Flowers Cleansing Cream is designed to give the skin this deep cleansing. It is a pure white, satiny cream, containing sufficient pore oil to absorb all the dirt the pores hold, but not enough to clog them with oil.—35 Cents.

Three Flowers Face Powder is the solution to one of the most difficult problems of the toilet—the need for a powder that will stay on even a particularly dry skin without clogging the pores.

This powder not only has unusual adherent qualities, but contains perfume essence and other ingredients which promote a healthy condition of the skin and protect it from the sun, wind and dust. It is exquisite in odor and delightfully soft in texture.—35 Cents. June 2, 1925.

No woman who desires to maintain a smooth, youthful complexion need afford to be without Three Flowers Skin and Tissue Cream, for it performs three valuable functions.

It protects the skin, nourishes it, and prevents wrinkles. Its basic ingredient is a pure oil famous for its protective and nourishing qualities. Absorbed by the skin, this oil feeds the skin tissue and enables it to function in a perfectly natural and healthy manner.—$1.20

The value of using all three Creams.

Used regularly and faithfully, these three creams together will do more to keep the skin thoroughly clean, free from blemishes, fresh, youthful, firm and unlined, than any other treatment. There is no type of skin that is not benefited by their use. A very oily skin reacts wonderfully to the Three Flowers treatment. It opens the overloaded pores and allows them to throw off the excessive oil that has become habitual to them. On this type of skin all three creams can be used generously, even lavishly, with beneficial results.

You may obtain Three Flowers toilet articles at any drug or departmental store.

Write to GERALD S. DOYLE, Box 652 St. John's for beautifully illustrated book "Fleur-de-Walks in Beauty." It is a complete and careful guide for the proper care of the skin. Sent free to say address.

This cream is very different from either of the other Three Flowers Creams and is perfectly designed to supplement them. It is a non-greasy cream, but, unlike many vanishing creams, it is so constituted as it is not too drying to the skin. It is absorbed at once by the pores, leaving a smooth, velvety surface, which acts as a perfect base for powder. Any shine there may be on the skin disappears as the cream is absorbed, and any little rough places are softened and smoothed down. This smooth base makes the powder adhere so evenly that it is never unduly apparent.—35 Cents.

Three Flowers Talcum is made from purest selected and tested ingredients. It is impalpably fine and smooth, of just the right "weight," and is exquisitely perfumed. Excellent to use after bath to absorb remaining dampness.—50 Cents.
