PALATIAL LINER FOR THE BAY SERVICE

The Steamer St. George Splendidly Equipped Throughout. Will Make Run From St. John to Digby Under Two Hours.

(Halifax Chronicle)

People subject to seasickness will soon have no qualms in crossing the Bay of Fundy for when the steamer St. George starts on its service in a few days now she will almost cover the run from St. John to Digby before her passengers become afflicted with mal-de-mer. The St. George is an important link in the new rapid service the C. P. R. are preparing between Halifax and St. John and she arrived in port on Saturday night under convey of the noted Liverpool tug Blackcock, which has the reputation of being able to tow rings around anything equipped with bow, bridle or bitts on the seven seas.

With accommodation for eleven hundred people, triple turbines giving a speed of twenty-four knots and appointments superior to many of the first-class Transatlantic liners running to this port, the St. George is easily the finest ship of her tonnage and class ever seen here, and the general opinion of everyone who visited her yesterday was that she was entirely too fine a boat for her proposed service even if she would make the run in something under two hours.

A FINE STEAMER.

With her two big funnels painted the familiar blacktopped yellow, and her graceful, sweeping lines, the St. George attracted a lot of attention as she lay at Furness Withy wharf yesterday, and an impression of her interior increased the favorable impressions formed on first appearance. She is a product of Cammel Laird and Company's yards and is one of the speediest mercantile ships ever turned out at Birkenhead. On a displacement of 2456 tons, the St. George is engine to show 3,600 h.p. under natural draft and somewhere over 20,000 with the f. d. fans going. She has been running in the Irish Sea service ever since her launch and her schedule called for doing the fifty-four miles between Fishguard and Rosslare in two hours and twenty-six minutes. She did it too, day in and day out, although this required an average speed of 23.7 knots with some tortuous channels to navigate. "Dead slow" on the St. George's telegraph means a mere fourteen knots, which is the slowest speed at which her turbines will work, and the crew of the Blackcock, who have seen Capt. Cardiff swing his racer into piers at a clip which would scare a landsman blue, anticipate some fun the first few times the new boat docks on her St. John-Digby run.

SPLENDIDLY EQUIPPED.

As a stimulant to the tourist traffic of Nova Scotia, the St. George would be ideal. Running from New York or Boston to Halifax she would be a huge success, but on her present route, passengers will hardly have had time to examine the spacious drawing room, with its mahogany fittings, steel engravings inset in the wall and comfortable blue plush upholstered settees; the handsomely equipped main dining room, the cosy smoking room and bar, which are finished in fume oak, the music room, and the ladies' room on the main deck, the sixty-eight comfortable first-class cabins and the general excellence of the appointments before their journey is over. The third class, so called, cabin and lounge rooms are superior to many of the first class equipments on transatlantic steamers running here while for any superior mortals who desire to be actively aloof from the common herd for the hour and forty-six minutes the St. George will occupy from dock to dock, there are eight royal state rooms on the upper deck in which they can remain in elegant isolation.

These state rooms have nearly all been sacred to various members of nobility, crossing from Ireland to England. For example, state room "B" was always reserved for the Duke of Devonshire and "D" for the Duchess. The Lord, Lieutenant of Ireland positively never made the trip unless he could do so in cabin "A," while a long list of lesser duties including the Duke of Manchester, the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, Lord Kitchener, the Marquis of Ormonde and Lord Donnamore took turns in occupying some of the other state rooms. The most of these, however, were directors of the Great Western and consequently the Company never derived any great revenue from this source. On occasion, however, mere tourists were permitted to occupy them, providing they had sterling equivalent to six dollars.

WASHINGTON SWEEP BY TERRIFIC CYCLONE

Washington, July 30.—Like a giant hail a cyclone storm of wind, rain and hail whipped back and forth across the capital today, leaving death and ruin in its wake. Three dead, scores injured, and hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property ruined were the tolls recorded in the hurried canvass made when the city aroused itself from half an hour of helplessness in the grasp of the elements.

Under the blazing sky, under which the city was sweltering, with the temperature at the 100 point, came the storm, roaring from the north, driving a mass of clouds that cast a mantle of total darkness over the town. The gale, reaching a velocity of nearly seventy miles an hour, swept the streets clear, unroofed houses, tore detached small structures from their foundations, wrecked one-office buildings, overturned wagons and carriages in the streets, and swept Washington's hundred parks, tearing huge branches from trees, and even uprooting sturdy old elms, the landmarks of a century.

Tonight Washington's well-kept streets, with their wealth of trees were littered with broken foliage, roots, debris, and dead birds, as if a playful giant had carelessly swished his club up and down the city.

As the wind wreaked its havoc, the rain came, and in five minutes the temperature from the 100 mark dropped to between sixty and seventy. Then the rain turned to hail, and hail stones battered roofs and crashed through skylights and windows.

For half an hour the city covered, paralyzed under the beating of the storm, every activity suspended. Trolley lines, telephone lines, and street traffic were halted, and the government departments suspended operations.

The wind wrecked a three-story brick office building occupied by the B. S. Saul Company, real estate dealers, and fifteen persons were carried down in the crash. W. E. Hilton, Vice-President of the Real Estate Company, Thomas B. Fealy, sixty-five years old, a clerk, and an unidentified man who entered the building to try to rescue those caught in the wreck, were taken from the ruins dead. Half a dozen were taken to hospitals, seriously injured, and half a dozen more were treated for slight injuries.

Tonight the police were still digging in the ruins in the fear that other bodies might be recovered. The neatly kept lawns of the White House were devastated.

When the storm broke, thirty-five painters were at work on the dome of the capitol, swarming over the curving surface or swinging high on shaky scaffolding. William Reese, the foreman, hurried to the dome and got most of his men to shelter inside the big inverted bowl. But Jim Boyle, John Ford, Noble Bailey, and Bruce Jones succeeded in scaling the dome in the wind and rain and gained a sheltered ledge where they weathered the storm after trying in vain to get inside.

Here and there throughout the city panic appeared. Horses driven frantic by the wind and hail, dashed through the streets, in terror until they were stopped by collision with some other wind-struck object. In the office buildings and government departments disastrous panics were narrowly averted. At the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, where hundreds of women were employed, the wind, sweeping through a huge window, sent a storm of broken plate hurling through the big press rooms. Eight or ten women were cut by falling glass, and one printer, John Rhodes, received severe scalp wounds. The crash of the glass swept panic through the big room. A hundred or more foreigners who work as printers' assistants, fainted and fell to the floor, and the others dashed terror-stricken for the exits. For two hours the offices was in an uproar.

Another panic threatened at the pension office, where the lightning ripped a corner off the roof, and crashed in a score of windows. Another lightning bolt tore a hole in the roof of the post office building, and ripped open one face of the big clock in the tower.

The wind ripped fifteen heavy planks from the floor of the historic aqueduct bridge, and a horse and wagon crossing the structure were blown into the river. The driver escaped. On the Potomac River water traffic was demoralized. The tug Edith Godard Winship sank in the blow, and her crew were taken off by a barge which she was towing. The excursion steamer Charles H. Warner tonight is around several miles down the river, with more than one hundred excursionists on board. She is reported in a safe position however.

TOWN COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council of the Town of Bridgetown was called by His Worship the Mayor, and held pursuant to written notice to each councillor, on Monday evening, August 4, 1913, at eight o'clock in the Council Chamber. Mayor Freeman was in the chair and the following councillors present: J. W. Saiter, L. Brooks, S. F. Pratt, W. H. Reed, and E. A. Hicks.

It was ordered that the following bills be paid—O. L. Piggott, $3.85; Jos. I. Foster, on post account, supplies to W. Phinney, $9.00; N. E. Chute on street account, $0.75; Crowe Elliott Company on water account, $24.46; A. D. Brown, registration of seven births and three deaths, $2.50.

A letter was read by the Mayor from Arthur Roberts, Esq., Bridgewater, Hon. Secretary of the Union of Nova Scotia Municipalities, requesting the Council to appoint one or more delegates to attend the convention of the Union to be held in the town of Bridgewater on the 27th inst.

Resolved that His Worship the Mayor and the Town Clerk be, and they are hereby appointed such delegates.

Resolved that the Superintendent of the town water works be instructed to at once inspect all service taps, and to notify all users of town water to have same repaired where found necessary to prevent waste during the dry season.

Resolved that His Worship the Mayor and Councillors Hicks and Brooks be, and they are hereby appointed, a committee to confer with a committee from the Bridgetown Band, and make arrangements for arrangements with the band to have land concerts held during the remainder of the summer months.

HALIFAX WILL BE SCENE OF A REALTY BOON.

Ex-Aid. George Marcell of Montreal, who recently returned from a trip to Halifax, predicts a real estate flurry in that city as a result of the contemplated expenditure of forty million dollars on her harbor by the Dominion Government. Parliament, said he, has voted fourteen million dollars to begin operations and the whole forty millions will be spent in seven years. Of this sum two million follows a year will go in wages. The increase of the Halifax pay roll by that sum is sure to improve business wonderfully.

It is the intention, said Ex-Aid. Marcell, to make Halifax one of the best ports on the Atlantic Coast. The result will be a big land boom. The bulk of the unoccupied property of Halifax, is held in a few hands.

STUDENTS ENJOY THEIR VISIT IN HALIFAX

Scholarships and Prizes Presented to the Students Attending the Summer School of Science.

(Chronicle, July 30.)

Brilliantly marking the end of a specially successful session, the closing exercises of the Summer School of Science took place last night in the Assembly Hall of the Technical College. The hall was packed to capacity as the students accompanied by their parents gathered to receive their certificate prizes and scholarship presentations.

After a number of excellent speeches had been delivered, Hon. E. H. Armstrong presented the prizes and scholarships, these latter comprised a long list in value from $10 to $50, and were given on the basis of the best aggregate for three subjects.

It could readily be seen that this was the climax of a strenuous session, and the proceedings were continually punctuated by loud and long rounds of applause, as student after student went forward to receive his or her well-earned scholarship.

Probably the most marked applause was accorded to Mr. James Larkin, of Alberton, P. E. I. Mr. Larkin was the "eldest boy" of the school and his grey hairs denote a man beyond the Osler limit of usefulness, but his sprightliness is of the spirit of youth.

After forty years of teaching, a whole lifetime of many a man, Mr. Larkin is still in harness, and as he left the hall last evening all hoped he would attend many more of the Summer Schools before he ceased from active service. Hon. Senator John Yeo's scholarship prize of $20 went to Mr. Larkin, this being the second time in succession he has won it. This veteran of the Island schools, is no shirker of work, he having attended six classes during the term, one of them being the physical training course, and he never missed a class in any branch.

Mr. T. H. Morse, as Warden of the County, presided at the poll. There were 132 names on the list of voters. Of these 103 went to the poll of whom spoiled their ballots. Eight ladies of sixteen whose names appeared on the municipal voters' list, marked their ballots at this poll.

Of the twenty-nine persons qualified to vote who did not appear at the poll, a goodly number, it is understood, were paired, after the manner of statesmen at Ottawa.

The result of the voting is not a surprise, either to those who opposed the adoption of the act, or to those who favored it. The decision of the rate-payers is accepted good-naturedly by those who were opposed to the act, and without undue exultation by its friends.

The next move in the game would appear to belong to the commissioner. Whether that move should be taken now or next winter is an open question. Under the act the annual meeting, at which officers are appointed, cannot be held until "the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January"—a most inconvenient date. Public meetings under the act may be held before that time but assessors, etc., could not be appointed, and so no steps could be taken toward the collecting of money, if such were voted for any purpose.

The various addresses were extremely happy in their tenor, the chief subject being the value of technical education, that thought seeming to be uppermost in the minds of all. The fact that Nova Scotia was ahead of every Province of the Dominion, and lead every State of the Union in its system of technical education was emphasized, and to prove the great advance the Province was making along lines of such vocational training, Principal Sexton referred to the fact that Nova Scotia was the only place in North America to have schools specially for the training of the coal miner.

The unanimous opinion voted the Halifax session of the school the most successful one yet held. Two hundred and odd teachers from all over the Maritime Provinces were in attendance, New Brunswick contributing over seventy, and New England a small number.

Fine weather prevailed the larger part of the time, and with few exceptions every plan of the officials in charge of the school was carried out harmoniously and without a hitch.

Yesterday's outing to Cow Bay Beach in which one hundred and twenty of the students participated, was a fitting close to such a happy term. The excursionists were divided into two parties, sixty in each. One half went down to the Beach in Robinson's teams, the other proceeding across to Eastern Passage by the Nova Scotia Construction Company's tug. Here they were shown through the big concrete construction plant.

The teams conveying the first half of the party to the Beach returned to the works for those there, and on the return in the afternoon the order was reversed, those having first gone by land returning by water, and vice versa. The school felt they owed a great debt to Managing Lindey of the N. S. C. Co., for the use of tug, and attentions given the students.

Professor Starratt came in for a big share of praise for the great success of the school, his service evidently being highly appreciated.

FATAL ACCIDENT TO MR. JOHN ANDERSON

While Returning to His Home From Bridgetown His Horse Stumbles and Mr. Anderson is Thrown Out and Killed

This town and surrounding country was shocked last Saturday morning when it was learned that Mr. John Anderson, a well known and much respected citizen of Dalhousie, had been instantly killed the evening before result of an accident. Mr. Anderson had been in Bridgetown on Friday, transacting important business and left for his home in his own team at seven o'clock in the evening. On his way home he stopped at Mr. Norman Buckler's to leave a parcel which he had brought from town. He left Mr. Buckler's about nine o'clock and continued on his way homeward. This was the last seen of Mr. Anderson alive. At about eleven o'clock two neighbors, Messrs. Willis Medcraft and W. J. Hannam, were returning from Annapolis and on coming to Shipp's hill on the Dalhousie road, found Mr. Anderson's team in the middle of the road and the horse lying nearby tangled in the harness and unable to get onto his feet. On further investigation they found the prostrate form of Mr. Anderson. The supposition is that on going down the steep hill the horse stumbled and fell, throwing Mr. Anderson out of the carriage striking on his head and causing injury to the base of the brain, resulting in probably instant death.

As the telephone on that evening was out of commission a team had to come to town for Dr. Armstrong. When he arrived nothing could be done. The deceased was about sixty years of age, and is survived by a widow and one son—Barnaby. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon and the large number of friends, who had come from far and near to pay their last tribute to the deceased, testified to the high esteem in which Mr. Anderson was held by his fellowmen. Rev. Mr. Reeks of Round Hill officiated at the service, and interment took place at the Church of England burial ground at Gibson's Lake. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Thos. Todd, Eleazor Gillis, Norman Buckler and Joseph Fredricks.

BERWICK RATEPAYERS VOTE FOR TOWN IMPROVEMENTS.

(Register, July 31.)

The balloting under the "Act to enable the Inhabitants of Berwick to supply themselves with Sewerage, Electric Lighting and Water for Domestic, Fire and other purposes," took place on Saturday last, July 26th, and resulted in the adoption of the Act by a good majority, the vote standing for, 68; Against, 33.

Mr. T. H. Morse, as Warden of the County, presided at the poll.

There were 132 names on the list of voters. Of these 103 went to the poll of whom spoiled their ballots.

Eight ladies of sixteen whose names appeared on the municipal voters' list, marked their ballots at this poll.

NOTABLE UTTERANCE BY

London, July 19.—The Morning Post in an editorial today dealing with the speech by Walter H. Page at the banquet of the Anglo-Saxon Club given in his honor on Thursday night expressed its admiration for what it terms Mr. Page's first notable utterance in England, and says it gives ample assurance that he will add the long line of distinguished ambassadors to Great Britain. Mr. Page could have chosen no better subject than the relations of the Anglo-Saxon race.

A reference by Mr. Page in his speech to the large gifts of money in the United States to an international health campaign created great interest here. He was quoted as having said that a hundred million dollars had been anonymously given to aid an international health commission to combat tropical diseases.

In an interview yesterday Mr. Page said he had been misunderstood; the gift he referred to was not that of a single American citizen, but a foundation established by a number of wealthy men, the income of which was to be devoted to the study and cure of diseases among native races in all parts of the world.—Daily Star Montreal.

THE SUNDAY QUESTION.

We would commend the following paragraph from the "British Weekly" to those who are clamoring for a relaxing of some of the provisions of the Lord's Day Act, and for greater freedom to devote Sunday to recreation and sport among ourselves.—

"The Bishop of Southwell, in his diocesan charges, is at present drawing special attention to the Sunday question. Speaking at Chesterfield he said Sunday was being marred by the wealthy and leisured classes. He had spoken to many privately and found they were not aware of the results of their own actions. They had given the question little thought, and that had been from the standpoint of personal and selfish consideration. Sunday labour was growing on every hand. Many working men were being absolutely compelled to work on that day. They dare not disobey—if they did, they were marked men. Surely, said the Bishop, Sabbath was the gift of God to men. It was meant for rest, recreation—devotion. He would like to say to every employer of labour and to every limited company, Christ was Lord of the Sabbath."

The next step to making Sunday a day of pleasure is sure to be the converting of it into a day of toil for the working man. The Lord's Day Alliance is one of the best friends of the laboring man in Canada.

Two of our young folks, Edward Freeman of Windsor, and Harry Bishop, who at present is at Wolfville in the Royal Bank, are at home for a few days.

A deer came out to look the valley over last week, near the residence of S. Muir, but on hearing voices, concluded to keep to the woods, and bounded gracefully away. Several have been seen in this vicinity.

Canoeing, tennis and driving are the principal pastimes just now, though it is said that several farmers are thinning their apples. It would be in the way of pastime surely for many, though if any one has a tree laden with fruit, no more paying work could be done. It takes as much from the tree to mature a wormy or spotted apple as it does to produce a clean one. Then why not cull the unsaleable ones and give the healthy ones a fair chance?

Another Chapter in Capt. Scott's Own Story of His Dash to the South Pole

(Daily Telegraph.)

The second section of that immortal diary left behind in its little sealed tube by Capt. Robert F. Scott on his fatal dash to the South Pole, is given to the world today for the first time, in the August issue of Everybody's Magazine. It is one of the most thrilling documents ever to come under the eye of man, telling, as it does from beyond the grave, of the expeditions' long, long night-wait in winter quarters, of the final dawn of the Antarctic day and then—of that fatal start for the great pole itself.

Most vivid are the adventures of Scott and his companions at the bottom of the world, as told in this diary which The Daily Telegraph is able to print today through special permission of Everybody's.

The whole party, as the story opens is at Cape Evans. They arrive there April 13, and the next day—Good Friday—Scott notes in his diary as "Peaceful Day." The sun, he tells, made its last appearance on St. George's Day.

"Hereafter," begins Scott, "will come only the long, mild twilight which, like a silver clasp, unites today and yesterday; when morning and evening sit together hand in hand beneath the starless sky of midnight."

The dark days of maring time and waiting—waiting for the light that would enable them to go forth on their great quest—were not spent in idleness. Inspection of all the trappings and instruments, practice at setting up camps, and shelters, and the continuance of scientific observations and investigations occupied them.

"I have been gradually brought to realize what an extensive, an intricate, but eminently satisfactory organization I made myself responsible for," the leader notes in his diary. "There is not a single man who is not striving his utmost to get good results in his own particular department."

"I am very much impressed with the extraordinary and general cordiality of the relations which exist amongst our people," he writes at another time. "I do not suppose that a statement of the real truth, namely that there is no friction at all will be credited—it is so generally thought that the many rubs of such a life as this are quietly and purposefully sunk in oblivion."

"With me there is no need to draw a veil; there is nothing to cover. There are no strained relations in this hut."

And it is then that he writes: "If the southern journey comes off, nothing—not even priority at the pole—can prevent the expedition ranking as one of the most important that ever entered the polar regions."

"Never, I suppose, has a party combined so much of intellectual power with physical fitness, and the result was apparent in the high level of mutual appreciation, of intelligent co-operation and wise enthusiasm."

After penning this remarkable tribute to the men who had elected to stake their lives against his ability to lead them to world-wide fame—with the knowledge now that they had entered a race in which Amundsen was bending every effort to beat them—Capt. Scott describes the daily life in the hut during the long months of the winter-night.

But one expedition of any length was made during the winter night. Wilson Bowers and Cherry Garrard made a five weeks' trip to the Emperor penguin rookery at Cap Crozier for the purpose of observing the penguins during the breeding season. Most of this journey was made while the temperatures were as low as seventy-eight degrees below zero and frightful blizzards were encountered. "No civilized being has ever encountered such conditions before with only a tent of thin canvas to rely on for shelter," Scott states in commenting on this expedition. "We have been looking up the records today and we find that Amundsen, on a journey to the North Pole encountered temperatures similar in degree, but he was with Eskimos, who built him an igloo to shelter in nightly. To me and to every one who has remained the result of this effort is the appeal it makes to our imaginations as one of the most gallant stories in polar history. That men should wander forth in the depth of a polar night to face the most dismal cold and the fiercest gales in darkness is something new—that they should have persisted in this effort in spite of every adversity for full five weeks is heroic! It makes a tale for one generation which I hope may not be lost in the telling."

To me and to every one who has remained the result of this effort is the appeal it makes to our imaginations as one of the most gallant stories in polar history. AVERAGE YIELDS.

A common question round the factory receiving platform is "How are the cows doing?" What a volume of thought that suggests! If they are doing well it is because of good feed and careful attention; or may it be despite the feed and care they deserve but do not get? Leaving aside the questions of weather, breed, heredity and persistency of flow of milk, is it possible to account for the remarkable differences in yield that are to be found? For instance, the dairy division at Ottawa found in one locality 100 cows that gave 3,000 lbs. of fat last month, but 100 cows close by in the same county gave only 2,500 lbs. of fat. Another lot of 100 cows in a nearby county gave only 2,200 lbs.

Is the ordinary factory patron's herd keyed up to the pitch of creditable performance, or is it just joggling along in the old rut of "average" yields? Suppose the patron ascertains his herd is doing "about as well" as his neighbor's, does it not seem a great pity that his ambition should end there?

Average cows can do vastly better if their owners train them and train themselves for better results. If each lot of one hundred cows in the Dominion gave an additional five hundred pounds of fat per month, would that not make a startling difference in the amount of the patron's cheques? Cow testing has helped many communities to far larger banking business, because it shows that scores of cows and average herds, can be made to produce far more than they do at present. Make each cow pay a good profit.

WELL KNOWN BLIND MUSICIAN DEAD.

A St. John despatch says—Great regret will be felt by many friends on learning of the death of Professor Lemuel W. Titus, which occurred on Thursday. He was about fifty-three years of age, and is survived by his wife, one daughter, Miss Dorothy, and two sons, Harry and Alvin, and four brothers and two sisters. Professor Titus will be sincerely mourned and his death will be a loss to musical circles about the city. For years he has occupied a leading position in musical ranks about St. John and being possessed of a particularly fine voice, he was greatly in demand for concert and entertainment programs. He was a capable teacher as well as a singer, and has trained some of the leading singers in the city.

TWENTY-FIVE LEPROUS IN TWO CANADIAN LAZARETTOS.

There are twenty-five lepers in the two Canadian lazarettos, according to figures given by the Director General of Public Health. At the lazaretto at Tracadie, N. B., there are twenty-one patients, consisting of eleven males and ten females. Seventeen of them are French-Canadians two English, one Irish and one Russian. One man was recently discharged as cured of the disease. At the lazaretto at D'Arcy Island, B.C., there are four Chinese lepers at present.

One of the most common ailments that hard working people are afflicted with is lame back. Apply Chamberlain's Liniment twice a day and massage the parts thoroughly at each application, and you will get quick relief. For sale by all dealers.

Once too Often

A Tale of the Latest Type of Confidence Man.

"You will pardon me for speaking to you, I know, although I am a stranger to you. Could you find use for a fine Sheffield steel, hollow ground razor? I have one here which I would like to sell very much."

The speaker was a polished gentleman in appearance. His clothes were neat and clean, he was clean shaven, his hair was as slick as a brush and comb could make it while his waxed mustache was arranged to suit the most fastidious. He was a Frenchman—a Parisian, by birth, he said—a hair dresser by occupation.

The razor was a fine appearing one he had drawn forth for the inspection of the hoped for and possible purchaser as he began to relate his tale.

"I purchased it," he continued in his smooth, cultured tones, "a month ago—just before I sailed from Paris for your beautiful Canada. I expected to use it myself. I regret to tell you, however, that I have found life in this new country very hard, and so far I have secured no work. I am a hair-dresser. This morning I succeeded in finding a situation. Next week I am to begin work with one of the hair-dressers of the city."

"That is, however a week away and I am loth to say I have no money. I must live until my work begins. If you could purchase this razor it would assist me greatly. I would sell it for fifty cents."

He paused to note the effect of his talk. Evidently he was not satisfied with the progress that he had made for he added, "I have had nothing to eat yet today, and unless I sell this razor I fear I will have no dinner tonight."

The held-up stroller bought the razor. "I have no need for it, but I would not leave you hungry for fifty cents."

The famished gentleman beat a lively retreat to a restaurant—at least that is where he said he was going, while the other poked his new razor into his pocket, and walked along with the contented feeling that those have who have done something to make others better. He told the story to his wife, and patted himself considerably that "he was not as other men," and had not been adament to the poor man's story.

The next day the disillusion came. He was hurrying again in the same part of the city when suddenly at his side he heard:

"You will pardon me for speaking to you, I know, etc." He turned quickly at the sound of the voice. The recognition was mutual. The vendor made a hasty retreat down the street and was lost to view in a moment, while the "Good Samaritan" fairly shook with anger as he recalled how he had been "Stung."

This happened on the docks of Montreal a few days ago.—Daily Telegraph.

Mr. W. S. Gunculus, a farmer living near Fleming, Pa., says he has used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in his family for fourteen years, and that he has found it to be an excellent remedy, and takes pleasure in recommending it. For sale by all dealers.

EXHIBITION IN A MONTH.

The Time for the Annual Fair Visit to Halifax and the Provincial Exhibition Will be a Great Feature.

The great exhibition at Halifax is now coming within measurable distance, opening as it does on September 3rd. The approach of the Exhibition marks the advance of the summer season, with its pleasant outdoor life, and there may be a regret that the days are beginning to shorten, but it recalls the fact that the people of Nova Scotia should be actively arranging for their great annual visit to Halifax and the Provincial Fair from September 3rd to 11th.

The Exhibition will be well worth a visit, more so than ever, and the "City by the Sea" should be seen in those early days when in many respects it is at its best.

The entries in all classes, horse races, and the Departments of the Prize List close on August 16. Incoming exhibitors should bear this in mind.

The great amusement feature, the sensational event, will be the aeroplane flights of which there will be one daily. The machine used will be much larger and more strongly built and more heavily engined than last year. It will also carry two men, that of the previous Exhibition carried but one.

The Horse Racing, the Vaudeville, and the Fire works will contribute to a great amusement programme and the exhibition in itself will be par excellence.

Arrange now to be in Halifax between September 3rd and 11th.

Try to Assault the British Premier

Doncaster, Eng., July 24.—An attempt by Militant Suffragettes to assault Premier Asquith while he was on his way today to the Town Hall of Morley, Yorkshire, to receive the freedom of the city, was frustrated by the police.

Miss Key Jones, a well known suffragette of this city sprang on to the side of the Premier's automobile shouting "Stop torturing women, you scoundrel!" and tried to clutch Mr. Asquith, but the police caught hold of her and dragged her away.

London, July 24.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who had been re-arrested only a few days ago, was released again this evening. She left Holloway Jail in a motor ambulance.

Mrs. Petrick Large and Lady Sybil Smith, a daughter of the Earl of Antrim, were arrested this evening while trying to hold a suffragette meeting at the entrance to the Central Lobby of the House of Commons. They and a number of others who had been attending a meeting of protest against the "Cat and Mouse Act," in a hall nearby, proceeded to the House of Commons with the avowed intention of seeing Premier Asquith, who had refused to receive them. The police on duty failed to recognize the women and politely stopped the traffic to enable the supposed sightseers to reach the House of Commons in comfort. When their identity was discovered the women were ejected, to the accompaniment of considerable disorder, and the two leaders were arrested.

Miss Evelyn Sharpe also was taken into custody by the police. She and Lady Sybil Smith are both active members of the Women's Social and Political Union.

Lady Sybil is the wife of Vivian H. Smith, who is a partner in the firm of Mergen, Grenfell and Company.

The Entomological Station in this town is one of eight stations of a similar character, established and sustained by the Federal Government in different sections of the Dominion. Mr. Saunders, who has charge in Bridgetown, has spent four years in the Guelph Agricultural College, three years at an Experimental College in Illinois, and has three years experience on the same line in Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. He is able, therefore, to discourse learnedly upon all matters pertaining to his department. To attempt in these columns anything like a scientific description of the work done by himself and his capable assistant would require a special education, such as Mr. Saunders himself possesses. And, yet the mind untrained to scientific terminology can understand enough of the nature of the work to be assured of the very great interest which the study of insect life awakens in those who are able to devote their attention to it, and the great importance and necessity of it in its bearing upon the work of the agriculturist and the orchardist. What are the habits of the insect pests which are so inimical to fruit and vegetation? Upon what do they live? What are the best methods of dealing with them to prevent their propagation? And as these enemies of the orchard and the field have their own natural enemies, which we call parasites, creatures who get their living at the expense of those on whom they prey; and as these parasites have likewise their own parasites, how can the one be so set upon the other as to destroy the harmful and preserve the beneficial? Such are the questions which the entomologist has solved or is solving for the benefit of the producer and the consumer. And the government of any country is wise in fostering studies of this kind.

At present in this province one of the most dreaded of the enemies of the orchard is that known by the rather undignified name of the brown-tail moth. This creature, it is understood, is an immigrant which has in some way made a voyage from Europe to America. It has a parasite which, it is also understood, it left behind it. But, in order to assist in the destruction of this pest, the aid of the parasite has been invoked. It has been brought over from Europe and naturalized and propagated and set to work to destroy the brown tail moth. The Canadian Agent, located at Melrose, Mass., has recently sent over to Nova Scotia seven thousand of these parasites which have been set at liberty to find their prey and feed upon them. And it is hoped they will so increase and so prey as to assist the orchardist in putting the dreaded pest hors de combat.

The Made-in-Canada Train which has been travelling through the West for the purpose of exhibiting the produce of Ontario and promoting its sale, has brought prominently to view the fact, that many western buyers are refusing quite positively to buy Ontario fruit because it is so frequently sorted and packed improperly. Similar charges are sometimes brought against Nova Scotia fruit.

A little time since a man who was engaged to pack apples in a neighboring County, told the writer that he was endeavoring to do the work correctly, when his employer came to him and said, "Look here, you must pack those apples not to please yourself, but to please me." The result was that he must either leave the building or act dishonestly; and, like an honest man, he left.

Improper conduct of this kind is an injury to the honest as well as to the dishonest dealers, and should be exposed and condemned.

The elimination of the potato bug at one time so destructive to a vegetable regarded as a staple article of food in many countries, is attributed, not so much to the use of Paris green, as to a parasite, although the moderate use of the poison is still recommended.

Every occupation in these days is becoming more and more specialized. The work of the farmer is no exception to the fact. This is the natural result of the advancement in every department of science; and the man who gets his living from the farm, or from any other employment is unwise if he does not take advantage of all the discoveries of science which bear upon his particular work.

This Week Forty Years Ago

Bostonians found their market supplied for the first time with New Brunswick strawberries last week. "A thing which never happened before," says a Boston paper.

Death occurred this week to Edward Whitman of Lawrencetown, an old and influential inhabitant, who had been engaged in business as a general trader for many years. A very interesting and profitable Sunday School concert was given in the Baptist church on Sunday evening. Mr. Wm. Miller, the superintendent, was assisted by Mr. G. E. Tufts, of New Brunswick, in the exercises. Revs. Geo. Armstrong, S. F. Huestis and J. B. Giles were present and delivered appropriate short addresses.

A very disgraceful affair is said to have occurred at Annapolis last week in which some young men from St. John were the principal actors. They having been refused a passage to Bear River Ferry on the Str. "Fred Leavitt," which was to carry a cherry party, bought a bottle of liquor and into it put croton oil and by some means got a few of those on board to drink of its contents, making them seriously ill.

THE VICTORS AND THEIR SPOILS.

The Balkan Allies entered Macedonia in the guise of liberators, and today they seem bent upon plunging the whole region into worse and more implacable strife than it has ever known since the days of the Ottoman conquest. Their original triumphs, which aroused the sincere but perhaps premature admiration of Europe, could have had no more deplorable or repulsive sequel. They set forth to carry freedom to their kinsmen, and they are ending by spreading devastation through a land already tried almost beyond endurance. The collective public opinion of the greater European nations will not, at this stage, care very much about the relative responsibility of the disputants. It will very properly dismiss consideration of the finer shades of right and wrong, and be inclined to condemn all the parties to the quarrel with equal vigour for their ignominious lapse into further warfare. The general impression as has been furnished is that Bulgaria took the first serious steps in initiating fresh hostilities upon a large scale. While we cannot express the faintest endorsement of such peremptory procedure, neither do we at the moment specially condemn Bulgaria on the ground that she is a conspicuous aggressor. Where all have been equally culpable, there can be no taking of sides. We were ready to applaud great victories bravely won, but we can find nothing but censure for the decline into sordid bickering over the spoils, wherein all have participated in equal degree.—London Times.

GESNER SUCCEEDS MERROW AS FOREMAN.

G. E. Merrow, recently retired as engine house foreman of the Boston & Maine, is succeeded by J. V. Gesner under whose charge have been placed the coal sheds also. Between twenty-five and thirty firemen make their headquarters here. The Company has installed a powerful motor to move the turntable. It has a capacity for a 150 ton engine. It is enclosed in a sentry box at one end of the table. The enlarged roundhouse is capable of accommodating the one hundred-ton engines, in the old section, it being impossible to shut the doors with one of the moguls inside. The inspectors of the interstate commerce commission report the engine house to be the best kept and equipped on the Boston & Maine system.

(The Mr. Gesner referred to in the above paragraph is a former Granville man, and brother of Mrs. Lansdale Hall of Beauséjour.—Ed. Mon.)

Middleton Outlook—A splendid lot of tile is being made at the clay works at Middleton. Three carloads have lately been shipped to Truro. Nearly 300,000 of brick have also been shipped this season. The Annapolis Royal clay works about 1,100,000 bricks were made during July. This, we understand, is the greatest output ever made in one month from any yard east of Montreal.

Wolfville Defeats Bridgetown at Tennis

The Bridgetown Tennis Club went on the Bluenose train to Wolfville on Friday last and there played a tournament with the Wolfville Club. Two events were played after arriving that afternoon and the other events were played off Saturday.

At about eleven o'clock it looked very much as though the playing would end for that day, there being several showers, but after partaking of a delectable prepared lunch at the club house, play resumed at one o'clock.

Wolfville won the tournament by thirty-five games, but as several of the Bridgetown players remarked, it was a pleasure to be defeated by a club like Wolfville. It would be impossible to find a better lot of clean-cut sportsman-like players than those playing in the Wolfville team.

Friday evening the Bridgetown Club were conveyed to Evangeline Beach and there a pleasant evening was spent in dancing.

The Bridgetown players returned on the Owl Saturday evening and all were enthusiastic over the welcome and entertainment tendered them by the Wolfville people.

A return match is expected to be played this season in Bridgetown.

HOW THE ERMINE IS CAUGHT.

"The Cruelties of Trapping," is a ten-page pamphlet, published by the American Humane Education Society which tells the cost of furs in torture and death. As an illustration of how the white ermine is caught, the following conversation between a fur dealer and a prospective buyer is taken from the New York Tribune:

"This stole of imperial ermine is worth $1000," said the dealer. "Just consider how the animals comprised in it were caught!"

"In the first place they were caught in a winter of extreme cold, for it is only in such a winter that the weasel or ermine turns from tawny to snow white. In normal winters the ermine turns only to a greenish white—like this $400 greenish white stole here."

"In the second place, the ermines were caught young, for when fully developed their coats are coarse and stiff—as in this $250 stole—and to catch them young the tongue trap must be used. Any other trap would tear the delicate fur."

"The tongue trap is a knife—an ordinary hunting-knife—smeared with grease, that hunter lays in the snow. The little ermine sees the blade, which it mistakes for ice. Ice it loves to lick—and so it licks the knife-blade and is caught fast, its tongue in that zero weather frozen to the steel."

Yes, sir, when you see a stole like this, don't begrudge a good price for it, for every ermine in it was tongue-trapped in sub-zero weather—mighty slow and painful hand process." — Dumb Animals.

FROM RUINS OF OVERALL FACTORY.

Binghampton, N. Y., July 24.—Thirteen bodies, burned beyond recognition, were recovered from the ruins at the overall department of the Binghampton Clothing Factory. It is still impossible to accurately estimate the number of dead; at least fifty, probably more, are believed to have perished in the flames. Scores of laborers, many of them volunteers labored throughout the day and far into the night in search of bodies buried beneath tons of brick and steel. Crowds of relatives and friends silently watched the search continued.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

Wood Buffalo Herds

Many Bands Still Range North Alberta Wilds.

There are yet vast areas in northern Canada consisting of stunted and open grasslands and muskeg, of which practically nothing is known save what can be gathered from the stories of trappers and explorers, who have penetrated this northern wilderness. Such a country exists on the extreme northern boundary of Alberta to the West of the Slave River and from this country have come rumors of large bands of wild buffalo, the only remnant not in captivity of the great herds which once ranged the western plains.

To verify these rumors and to take steps to prevent the extinction of these herds, the Forestry Branch of the Dominion Government sent out an investigation party, working under the direction of Mr. A. J. Bell, the Government Agent at Fort Smith in the North West Territories. The report sent in reads like a book of adventure and will be contained in the Annual Report of the Director of Forestry which will shortly go to press.

The existence of at least three herds of buffalo was proved, each herd consisting of bulls, cows and yearlings to the number of about forty five. In appearance they closely resemble the plains buffalo, of which they are the remnants, but, being forced by necessity to live in the hilly wooded regions remote from settlement, they have changed their habits somewhat, and are fleet of foot and more agile than their ancestors of the plains. In summer they may be found in twos and threes roaming through the birch woodlands, but in winter they travel in large bands for greater security against the wolves. In winter, when passing from one feeding ground to another, they travel in single file through the snow, making a narrow trail on which the snow is packed as hard as a rock. When they come to a grass-grown slough or meadow they stay there until all the feed is exhausted and the whole area is compactly trampled down. Unlike the western horses, which paw the snow away with their front feet, the buffalo uses its huge head as a shovel and scatters the snow in clouds in order to reach the grass beneath. When alarmed the old bulls stand on guard in the rear, while the cows and yearlings make good their escape.

Several pictures of the wood-buffalo were obtained. The Indian Chief, Pierre Squirrel, who accompanied the party and who is most familiar with that region, estimated the number of the buffalo there to be at least two hundred. Their worst enemy, at present, is the fatter wolf and attempts will be made to exterminate this destroyer, by raising the bounty in this region.

OIL FOR WARSHIPS.

One of the chief problems of the British navy is the supply of fuel for vessels when going a long distance from home. To meet the requirements of this service, coaling stations have been established at convenient places in all parts of the world. The enormous amount of coal which these vessels require to carry, and the inconvenience of the large smoke stacks have led to successful experiments to obtain a substitute for this old form of fuel. It has been found that oil is a more suitable fuel than coal on the battle ships, that it increases the efficiency of the fleet by enabling better and easier management of great ships, giving an extra turn of speed and abolishing the stokehole. This discovery is likely to revolutionize the propelling power of the navy. The first battleship to be driven by oil—the super-treadnought Queen Elizabeth—is now being built at Portsmouth, England, and four other powerful ships are being constructed to burn oil fuel. In view of the new requirements of her navy, Great Britain will develop the oil fields in Borneo, Borneo, Egypt, and Trinidad, and large reserve stores will be kept at Halifax, Vancouver and other naval centers of the empire. Great Britain will thus be independent of the rest of the world for her fuel supply.

Uses for Sawdust

Former Waste Products Now Extensively Employed.

Not so very long ago about the only real use anyone had for sawdust was for packing ice. That was when small local saw mills were more common, and the amount of this form of waste wood was, or at any rate appeared, comparatively small. Now, when the tendency is to consolidate these into large mills with a capacity of several hundred thousand feet of lumber per day, the daily waste in sawdust is seen to be enormous and much experimenting is being done to discover new methods of utilizing it.

Perhaps the most promising in sawdust utilization in this country is the manufacture of ethyl (or grain) alcohol. The sawdust is treated with sulphuric acid under suitable conditions, resulting in the formation of sugar, which is then fermented to produce alcohol. Several plants have been erected to produce alcohol from wood in this manner, and, though there are some difficulties still to be overcome, the ultimate success of the process on a commercial scale is assured.

Sawdust has been successfully manufactured into briquets for fuel for a considerable time in Europe by a very simple process. The shavings and sawdust are first steam-dried, the water contained in the wood being thus evaporated and the resin almost liquified. The sawdust is then compressed under heat into briquets of the desired size, the contained resin acting as a binder. A firm in Vancouver is engaged in a similar line of manufacture, the sawdust being compressed into a cylindrical tube where it is cut into short lengths by a revolving knife, emerging in the form of small round briquets leaving only sugar and fibre to handle, easy to kindle, and leave very little ash.

In England sugar is manufactured on a commercial scale by treating sawdust in closed retorts with weak sulphurous acid under high pressure. In Austin, Texas, also a plant is being built to manufacture stock food from sawdust, by a somewhat similar process. The tar, pitch and turpentine are removed from the sawdust leaving only sugar and fibre to which is added forty per cent of cottonseed meal. The mixture is sold for fattening cattle.

Two and one-half parts of clean sawdust mixed with two parts sand and one part cement make a warm long-wearing and sound-proof floor, and which has the advantage over a cement floor in being more elastic. These qualities should find an extensive use for this form of flooring, that it can be stained to harmonize with interior finishings by the addition of color to the mixture while in a semi-liquid state.

The sawdust of certain kinds of wood is used in considerable quantities by manufacturers for metal polish, for packing, for meat curing, for making safety explosives, and composition novelties, and for fibre and pulp manufacture. Patent cleaning powders for use on carpets and rugs consist, principally of sawdust, lightly moistened by some cheap mineral oil.

NAPOLEON'S HAT SOLD.

A cosmopolitan crowd of buyers attended the sale of Napoleon's relic at Sotheby's, in London the other day, yet while duly authenticated, they brought only $7,007.

Spink paid $1,750 for a portrait in oils of Napoleon by Rene-Theodore Berthou, a pupil of David; $959 for a colossal marble bust of Napoleon by Chaudet, sculptured by order of Napoleon, who presented it to his uncle, Cardinal Fesch; $420 for a marble bust of Napoleon as Emperor and $425 for Napoleon's hat worn when he was First Consul, with an original document certifying its genuineness.

Permain paid $675 for Napoleon's gun, a flint-lock sporting rifle, which belonged for many years to Egg, the famous gunmaker, and $145 for an engraving. "Napoleon Premier, Empereur des Francais et Roi d'Italie," by Cazenove, after P. Vanderwal, in colors.

Some Nelson relics were offered, too. The christening shirt worn by Lord Nelson sold for $150. It was fully authenticated by Mrs. Garret, to whose husband it was given at the time of their marriage. He was nephew of Admiral Sir Robert Barlow, first cousin to Lady Nelson, the great admiral's sister-in-law.

So Other Sufferers Will Take "Fruit-a-lives" And Be Cured

Gratitude—heartfelt gratitude—prompted this letter. Madame Langlois was so thankful to "Fruit-a-lives" for restoring her to health and strength, that she gladly allowed her letter to be published.

MADAME VALERE LANGLOIS

ST. ROMUALD, QUE., SEPT. 23rd, 1912. I have pleasure in stating that I have been cured of severe Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation by using "Fruit-a-lives." I was a terrible sufferer from severe constipation for many years, and I tried every remedy I heard of, and also was treated by physicians without any permanent benefits.

Then I tried "Fruit-a-lives", and this fruit medicine has completely cured both the Constipation and Indigestion. I cannot praise "Fruit-a-lives" enough!

MOVING PICTURES TAKEN DEEP, DOWN INTO THE SEA.

It's not a dream. It's not a hope. It's not a possibility. It's a sure thing.

The thing—the great, big "movie" public—that is growing larger each week is to have the chance to sit leisurely in the comfortable theatre seat and watch the inhabitants of the deep sea moving, eating, living in their daily haunts.

It is to see the wonders of marine vegetation in its natural environment!

And it is to see, maybe, the remains of sunken Spanish galleys which went down in hurricanes long ago, while divers ransack for lost treasure.

Fish will play about before the human eye at a depth of five hundred feet below the surface! Sharks will flash by. Hideous devil fish will writhe through the water. Strange shapes, never seen before in their native element, will peer out from among swaying seaweeds!

All this is practicable, because Ernest L. Williamson, Norfolk, Va., the Jules Verne of the camera field, has discovered how to take pictures under water.

The Worth of Deep Breathing

(By John B. Murphy, M.D.)

If every boy would really try to understand and practice deep breathing he would soon discover that his physical condition was improving by leaps and bounds.

As near as I have been able to estimate, there are twenty-seven different ways in which deep breathing affects the entire physical system for the better. It is not necessary for me to mention the entire twenty-seven. But I will detail the most important ones.

How to breathe deeply is not easily learned. Before the habit is acquired it must be long practiced until breathing from the bottom of the lungs and stomach instead of the top of the lungs is second nature.

No deep breather uses the mouth to take in air. The nostrils are solely employed for that purpose. The mouth is for speech, but not for inhalation. The first perceptible effect of deep breathing, of making a practice of drawing in large quantities of air, is to keep the channels of the nostrils clear. Poisonous deposits which may accumulate there are not allowed to stay.

There is a free passage to the lungs, permitting them to secure all the oxygen they need. The second effect is to give the blood a faster circulation. People who do not exercise, who eat heavily, who sit a great deal, have their blood stagnant. This produces indigestion, headaches and nervousness. By deep breathing in the morning and evening and keeping up the practice during the day, the blood receives the oxygen it requires and then flows freer.

The brain is kept from clogging and the body muscles feel alert. Baseball players, runners, swimmers, all understand this, and where they are successful all reveal the value of deep breathing. Another effect of this practice is to expand the chest. The human chest and abdomen or stomach is the great machine shop of the body, above which sits the chief engineer, the brain. The chest cannot be too much normally expanded. The heart, the lungs, the liver and kidneys and the stomach require space. If they are confined they will not perform their duties properly. Deep breathing expands the space above them and their operation is freer and more healthy.

Deep breathing extends its benefits beyond the lungs and the stomach. If one has made more practice with it, it will be found that the muscles of the groin and the back muscles of the calves of the legs begin to harden.

For maintaining good health it is absolutely necessary that the stomach should digest the food. The liver distributes it, and the lungs must be free to take in all the fresh air possible. No one of these three functions can approach regularity without the regularity of deep breathing. It is as closely allied to their good conditions as an engineer is with the running of his locomotive. When the oxygen supply furnished by deep breathing is diminished, then the strength of the body and brain is immediately weakened.

I will illustrate this by the boy who eats a hearty supper. Shortly after eating he becomes sleepy. He has his lesson to study or other duties to perform, but he is drowsy. This is due to two facts—he has taken too much food into his stomach and there is not enough oxygen in his lungs to keep up the proper circulation of the blood which is to digest the food.

If he would throw open a window and stand before it, inhaling with deep breaths fresh air for fifteen minutes, or would go out of doors and walk briskly, breathing deeply all the time, he would feel better shortly; then his mind is alert and his body ready for work.

There are few races in the world that have so great a power of endurance under hard strains as the Japanese and the American Indian.

What the Japanese experienced and endured in the war with Russia would have destroyed an ordinary man in no time. What the unclad American Indian faced in snow, ice and cold, few white men could survive through without dying or being crippled for life.

These two races are naturally deep breathers. In a thousand individuals of either race it is rare to find one that ever opens his mouth in breathing. This is one of the principal reasons why they have such extraordinary vitality when subjected to hardships.

Deep breathing is the enemy of all kinds of poison that naturally accumulate in the channels leading to the lungs. These poisons in the form of germs are powerfully caught up by the deep breaths and either forced through lower discharge channels of the body or ejected through the nostrils. Very few of them can survive any attack of a deep breath.—Boys' World.

A vast amount of ill health is due to impaired digestion. When the stomach fails to perform its functions properly the whole system becomes deranged. A few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets is all you need. They will strengthen your digestion, invigorate your liver, and regulate your bowels, entirely doing away with that miserable feeling due to faulty digestion. Try it. Many others have been permanently cured—why not you? For sale by all dealers.

WHEN MIDDLE NAMES WERE BANNED. People have not always been allowed the pleasure of having as many names as they wish; indeed, four hundred years ago not even a middle name was allowed in England. It was illegal. The old English law was definite and admitted of no infraction of its ruling.

The only exception made to this iron-clad regulation was in the case of persons of royal rank. If they really wished it they could boast a middle name, but woe to the person of ordinary rank who was sufficiently unwise or obstinate to insist on having more than two appellations.

For the first offence he would very likely be tied to a whipping post and severely lashed. For a second offence he would endure some more lasting punishment, perhaps the removal of his thumbs or his ears. And if he still persisted in his stubbornness he would be hanged.

The laboratory utensils needed by the housekeeper for this method of canning are available in every kitchen—common clothes-boiler, several large kettles of boiling water, the fruit, the syrup, and a heavy old blanket or quilt.

The fruits that may best be put up by this method are the softer berries, such as peaches and all kinds of berries. Pears and quinces do not become sufficiently tender to be palatable. Strawberries retain their color and plumpness to a degree far above that attained by ordinary old-fashioned methods, and all fruits canned by this process retain flavor to a surprising extent.

Peel the peeled and halved peaches or hulled and washed berries, in your favorite kind of fruit jar. Shake down well to make the jar hold as much as possible. Have ready a quantity of syrup—one cupful of sugar to a cupful of water is a good proportion. Let the water and sugar boil thoroughly while you are filling the jars with the cold fruit.

Set the filled jars, one at a time, on a hot, wet towel, and fill to overflowing with the boiling syrup.

Now seal the jar just as if you were using screw-tops, adjust rubbers and screw-tops as tightly as possible. If vacuum-sealing jars are used, adjust cover and spring or snapper. Place the jars side by side on the bottom of a large clothes-boiler. You may place the clothes-boiler anywhere on the back porch, if you like, for you are not going to apply fire under it.

Have several kettles of boiling water ready, and pour boiling water into the clothes-boiler until the jars are well under water. To prevent accidental cracking of glass let the water run from the kettle against the side of the clothes-boiler rather than directly on the jars. If you have a large boiler and only a few jars of fruit, cover with the boiling water four or five inches over the tops of the jars. If the bottom of the boiler is fairly well covered with jars, add as much boiling water as the boiler will hold. The more jars, the more water needed.

Adjust the cover of the boiler carefully and cover with a heavy blanket, tucking it all around. Your canning is finished. Next day, twenty-four hours later, you may remove the jars from the boiler. Tighten screw-tops one more before setting away.

Of course, this kind of canning does not permit of carelessness or half-methods. The syrup must have boiled at least five minutes and must be boiling when poured over the fruit; the jars must be placed in the boiler promptly, and the water to cover must be boiling—not merely hot. The blanket-wrapping boiler must be left undisturbed for the twenty-four hours

STICK-AT-IVE-NESS.

Stick-at-ive-ness is the fundamental quality which tells to advantage in every profession, trade and calling of life. Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" took twenty years of drudgery, but the author kept at it, mumbling, "My time will come, my time will come." It did come; he produced one of the master-classes of the English language. Buiver scored nothing but failure after failure, yet he kept writing and writing until the world was compelled to notice and acknowledge him as one of the greatest masters of modern fiction. Some of the greatest actors, like Talma of France, when they first appeared, were hissed off the stage. The same is true of orators. Richard Brinsley Sheridan in his maiden speech, hopelessly broke down, but he muttered: "It is in me, and will come out."

Disraeli, uttered almost the same words when taunted on his first effort. Success is measured, not so much by what is accomplished, as by the opposition which is overcome. The most perilous hour is that in which you are tempted to give up.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

A good supper dish is made by buttering rounds of toast, then spreading sardine paste over them before the Welsh rarebit is poured on. When a cloth dress becomes spotted, sponge it with equal parts of hot water and turpentine. Iron the parts when dry over a damp cloth.

Pieces of old kid gloves are excellent for mending the back seam of children's shoes. Sew the patch neatly on the inside of the worn place.

If a package of value is to be sent a great distance, it is an excellent plan to provide the box with a cover of unbleached muslin securely sewn in place.

The white of an egg beaten in lemon juice and slightly sweetened is a simple remedy for hoarseness. The mixture should be slowly dissolved in the mouth before swallowing.

To clean lacquered furniture, brush with hot water and mild soap, wiping and drying before the fire and finishing with a soft cloth. Do not use alkali or soda. It will remove the lacquer.

FIRELESS CANNING. The following easy method of canning is based on the experiments of a scientist who demonstrated that fruit may be preserved as well by long exposure to low heat as by short exposure to a high temperature.

The laboratory utensils needed by the housekeeper for this method of canning are available in every kitchen—common clothes-boiler, several large kettles of boiling water, the fruit, the syrup, and a heavy old blanket or quilt.

The fruits that may best be put up by this method are the softer berries, such as peaches and all kinds of berries. Pears and quinces do not become sufficiently tender to be palatable. "Is she making him a good wife?" "Well, not exactly, but she's making him a good husband."

"Listen to this charming bit of obituary sentiment," said a cynical bachelor. "He had been married forty years and was prepared to die."

Hostess—"That is Mr. Bullion who has just come in. I hear he has done some very clever things in the city."

Guest—"Er—um—yes" As a matter of fact, I was one of them."

"That is an eight-day clock, madam," explained the antique dealer to a Christmas purchaser from the country. "It will go eight days without winding."

"Gracious!" exclaimed the customer, "and how long will it go if you wind it?"

In the late campaign the following incident took place, as related by a man who was in the audience. "I am willing," said the candidate after he had hit the table a terrific blow with his fist, "to trust the people."

"Great Scott!" yelled a little man in the audience. "I wish you'd open a grocer's shop."

A little girl was lost on the street, and was brought into the police station. The officers tried in every way to learn her name. Finally one of the officers said: "Tell me, little girl, what name does your mother call you father?"

"Why," responded the child, innocently, "she don't call him any name; she likes him."

He went into a store to buy his friend a comb for Christmas. He was a Boston man and careful of his grammar and of other folk's grammar. He asked for a man's comb.

"Do you want a narrow man's comb?" asked the clerk.

"No," said the careful grammarian. "I want a comb for a stout man with rubber teeth."

The teacher was trying to break James of saying, "I have went," but the task seemed hopeless. So as a last resort, she hid him stay after school and write twenty times on the blackboard, "I have gone home."

While the child was occupied the teacher left the room and was still absent when James finished the task. And to acquaint her with the fact he wrote: "Dear Teacher—I have wrote what you told me, and have went home."

A Frenchman arrived in England and began the struggle with the language. One day he came with his conversation book to an English friend: "Ze polar bear—vat does he do?"

"What's that?" said the puzzled friend.

"Ze polar bear—what does he do?" "Oh, he don't do a darned thing but sit on the ice and eat fish."

"Non, non! I not accept!" "Why's that?" "I been invite to be polar bear at a funeral."

The young man and the girl were standing outside the front door on a certain avenue in Westmont, having a final chat after his evening call. He was leaning against the door post, talking in low tones. Presently the young lady looked round to discover her father in the doorway, clad in a dressing gown.

"Why, father, what in the world is the matter?" she inquired.

"John," said the father, addressing himself to the young man, "you know I have never complained about your staying late, and I am not going to complain of that now; but for goodness sake stop leaning against the bell-push and let the rest of the family get some sleep."
