ON LAKE UTOPIA

NEW BRUNSWICK

Blatant with his success, he thought he would try the vigilance of his own tribe at their encampment near Lake Utopia, and assuming the disguise of the bear, he so successfully deceived his own young braves that they killed him with their arrows. In doing, he chanted his own death song of triumph, because he had outwitted his enemies, but could not catch his own tribe unguarded. There was great sorrow at his death, and a large monument of stones was erected to his memory at or near the spot where the carved head was found. One of the early French missionaries, who was at the time among the Millicites, had some skill in sculpture, and carved this head as part of the rude memorial. The presence of several long stones, of uniform proportions, given some color to this story. I give it however, as it was told to me: for what it is worth.

The spot where the carved stone was found affords a fine view of Lake Utopia, and faces the east. Doubtless, away back "long time," it was a favorite outlook for the red men, and standing there under the shadow of the larger peak, known as Grey's Mountain, strange thoughts are developed. One can well fancy the untutored son of the forest gliding around the "handmade" in his graceful canoe as more in keeping with the surroundings of this lovely lake than any craft designed by the skill of navigation. Looking at Sebatis, who has all the bearing of an Indian chief, as he paddled the Count up the waters of his native land, I wondered if he felt very keenly the decline of his people, and the inevitable extinction of his race by contact with the whites.

To vary our sport, some of the party visited Mill Lake, and returned laden with game and fish. The game was several partridges and a duck, and the fish were about four dozen of brook trout, which were cooked for dinner. Having heard of Red Rock Lake, Spark's Lake, Lake Anthony and Clear Lake, all except the latter which has apparently no outlet, connected by streams with Mill Lake and Utopia, we decided to visit them, and having procured a team had the "kyack" hauled to Red Rock Lake, a few miles distant by road. Thence we passed up the inlet to Spark's Lake, and on to Lake Anthony outlet. Charmed as we were with the lower sheets of water, here we found ourselves in a perfect paradise for fishermen.

It requires some geographical knowledge to find the right spot for fishing, but fortune favored our party. The rods were yielded by "Ben" and "Fred," and although both had considerable experience in that line, they frankly admitted the sport surpassed anything they ever met. Two fish at a time was the regular line, and they were beauties, from a pound to three pounds in weight. It was useless to slaughter needlessly, and as we had quite a distance to go, in order to reach camp before night, we were obliged to leave the delightful spot.

That evening on our approach to the encampment, looking down from the adjacent hill, as the sun was setting, the white tents with green background, the lake calm and untroubled, the orb of day in its last moments gliding hill and tree top with a golden glory, we were so impressed with the splendor of the view, that we named the place "Camp Gorgeous," and dated a telegram to our editorial friend accordingly. Next day our message appeared in print, with some characteristic comments.

Charlie, our right bower, had, in anticipation of our coming, boiled the tea kettle, and supper was spread. During the meal our party gave glowing descriptions of the trip up the lakes, which, with our well-filled baskets, made those who remained in camp wish they had "bin there."

The weather continued fine, and each day we varied our program. Several new arrivals from St. John, some of whom put up at the "Hotel," had wonderful success with bait-fishing, which, of course, was "murder" and nothing else to the scientific angler.

One barbarian, (reported to be from St. John) excited the wrath of the whole party. He frequently caught some chub and suckers with his bait of worms, and with a cruelty worthy of a savage he put their eyes and let them go. Sometimes in crossing the lake we would come upon the sightless fish, swimming blindly around at the surface of the water, and curses both loud and deep were hurled at the inhuman monster. It was said he was out of health and came to Utopia to recruit. Some persons, ordinarily kind-hearted, expressed the opinion that it would matter little if he never recovered it.

We had several lady visitors from St. George, and we entertained them at "high tea" in our spacious dining saloon. Generally we sought our couches at an early hour and slept soundly; but occasionally, in one of the tents, the light was kept burning and a mild game of poker or "forty-five" indulged in. Stories were told, songs were sung and jokes that provoked the "loud laugh that showed the vacant mind" went around. It was pleasant when the moon arose, to take the canoe and paddle out into the lake, so calm and still, and as the cry of the loon was heard mingling with the song and laughter of the camp, quite to enjoy a cigar while communing with Nature. One would be strangely constituted who could be insensible to the charms of such a life. To get away from the cares of business, the noise and bustle of the town or city, free from restraint, with good social companions, and enough of exercise to give an appetite for food and provoke sound sleep, will benefit any poor mortal, be his lot to toil and labor, or to live in affluence and ease.

Tourists already haunt the hills and rivers of Maine, and speak in rapture of the interior lakes and forests, which can only be reached by long and tiresome journeys. Here, right almost on the seashore, with railway communication to the very borders, we have a chain of lakes, with river and mountain scenery, such as cannot be surpassed and is rarely equaled. Bounding in game and fish, fishing the finest trout fishing on the continent.

This season promises to be a good one at Utopia and adjoining lakes. Already Humphrey, the wary angler, has had his small "ack," taken nearly two hundred fine fish in a couple of days; the writer saw them at the railway station. Dr. Dick and W. Shaw, two veterans in the service, have even surpassed Humphrey in size and quantity. Quarters and boats are already engaged near the fishing grounds, and well known parties both east and west are en route to the lakes. Among others, one of our oldest visitors, Sheriff Harding, with some friends, are about to start. If necessary, boats can be taken with the outfit by the Grand Southern Railway to the foot of Lake Utopia, where the train usually stops to accommodate those wishing to get off at that point.

Count DeBury has a very comfortable double camp erected at the head of the lake in a lovely grove, on an eminence giving a fine view. We regret to learn that the Count is precluded from enjoying this autumn fishing, owing to ill health, and has been ordered to Europe by his physicians. The last time the writer saw the Count was in the shore camp dispensing hospitality, ably supported by the jolly police magistrate of Portland, a well known Portland councillor and that bon vivant, the manager of the telephone company. It was similar to the occasion when--

"Willie brewed a peck o' malt, And Rab and Allan cam' to see.
Three blither lads ye wadna find
Than the Count's associates. Long life to them!
To return. Our party, before separating, made a solemn compact to revisit the lakes coming season, and already the note of preparation is heard. Perchance ere the readers peruse these lines the writer and his quondam friends will be "off to the wars again" and be reveling in the "Happy valley, unbragous hills, Sweet glades and forests fair," by the waters of Utopia and its peerless sister lakes. Until then--Rod and Reel.

THE END

The Family Doctor

A REMEDY FOR DYSPEPSIA.--Take the white of an egg beaten to a stiff froth, stir into a wine glassful of cold water. It should be taken after each meal.

FOR BURNS.--An excellent remedy is Caron oil, made of equal parts of linseed oil and glycerine mixed together. An excellent plan is to put it in a bottle and shake well before using.

FOR SORE THROATS.--A simple way to relieve sore throat is to take a lump of resin about as large as a walnut, put it into an old teapot, pour on boiling water, and then put the lid on, and place the spout to your mouth, the steam will prove very beneficial in allaying inflammation.

FOR RHEUMATISM.--When the feet are tender and painful after long walking or standing, great relief can be obtained by bathing them in salt and water--a handful of salt to a gallon of water. Have the water as hot as can be comfortably borne, immerse the feet and throw the water up over the knees with the hands. When the water grows cool rub the feet and limbs with a dry towel.

A GOOD MOUTH WASH.--A mouth wash to keep the gums healthy and firm is made as follows: Take two teaspoonfuls of spirits of camphor, and two pinches of hot water in which have been dissolved two penny packets of patent borax. Put a wineglass of this mixture into a tumbler, fill it with water, and use it when cleaning the teeth.

A SIMPLE REMEDY FOR NEURALGIA.--Women who suffer from neuralgia will be interested in the simple remedy suggested and might try it. If the neuralgia is on the left side, dip the right hand in water as hot as can be borne, and if it is on the right side, dip the left hand. As the fibers of the fifth and median nerves cross, the theory is that any impulse applied to the right hand will affect the left side of the face, and vice versa.

A SIMPLE TONIC.--A simple tonic that refreshes and strengthens the stomach for its coming work and abuse is a glass of cold water taken upon rising in the morning. Those who take an early cup of coffee on waking should exchange it for water.

HOUSEHOLD

To remove mud spots from black clothes, rub carefully with a raw potato and they will disappear.

When making hot starch, use soapy water. It will give a gloss to the linen and prevent the iron from sticking to it.

A CURE FOR HEARTBURN

If you suffer from this, try eating a small piece of dried orange-peel when the attack comes on. This will often work wonders.

FOR THE COOK
If food becomes slightly burnt while cooking, set the pan at once in a basin of cold water, and its flavor will be uninjured.

When boiling cabbage, place a small piece of stale white bread in the pot, and you will be spared the objectionable small that usually accompanies this process.

To clean a gold chain, place for a moment in a cupful of ammonia, and water, using three parts of water to one of ammonia. Polish finally with a clean diamond leather.

To whiten piano keys, rub with clean soft rag, dipped in alcohol. If very yellow, a piece of flannel moistened with eau de cologne should be used instead.

FOR THE HOME LAUNDRESS

When ironing, stand on a hassock.
You will be surprised how much less tired you are at the end of the day than when you stand on the floor.

A good floor-stain that goes right into the wood, and is very durable, is made of linseed oil colored with ground burnt umber. Rub thoroughly into the boards with a flannel pad, and next day polish with beeswax and turpentine.

TO REMOVE DRIED TEA STAINS Apply equal parts of yolk of egg and glycerine to the stain, and allow to dry.
Rinse well in clean cold water. This will be found excellent for an afternoon tea-cloth which must not be boiled on account of its delicate coloring.

TO CLEAN WHITE PAINT

Mix whitening and warm water to the consistency of cream. Dip a clean flannel in the mixture and rub the paint lightly with it. Rinse with clear water and dry. When all traces of the whitening have been finally removed the paint will be beautifully clean.

TREATMENT FOR A DAMP WALL

The outer walls of rooms are often damp, and the paper peels off in consequence. If coated with the following preparation there will be no more bother of this kind: Take a quart of a pound of shellac, add a quart of naphtha, and stir well together. Brush the wall over with the mixture, allow it to dry, and you will find it has become firm and hard.

HOW TO WASH BLANKETS

First make some soap-jelly by heating and simmering one pound of soap in a quart of water until the former is dissolved. When cold it will be a jelly.
Allow a heaping teaspoonful of this jelly and a teaspoonful of liquid ammonia for each gallon of washing water, which should be just hot enough to bear the hand in comfortably. When the soap is dissolved put the blankets into the sudpressing them well down. Leave for a quarter of an hour. Wring with a wringer if possible, and put into another similar lot of suds. Souse up and down in this and wring again, and if the blankets do not look clean put them through a third lot of suds. Rinse in clear water, wring as dry as possible, shake and hang in a nice airy place to dry--out of doors if possible. Quilts, cider-downs and shawls can be washed in exactly the same way, but cider-downs need to be frequently shaken during the drying process, or they will be "lumpy."

How to Keep Young

Sleep is one of the great preservers of youth. Eight hours of regular sleep at night and a short nap during the day will do much to keep the face free from wrinkles. Always sleep with the bedroom window open a few inches at the top, both in summer and winter. A daily morning bath, tepid in winter and cold in summer, with a brisk rub to follow, will be found to keep the skin fresh and clear.

At least a couple of hours must be spent in the open air, either in walking, bicycling or playing games, as circumstances permit.

All tight clothing, and especially tight lacing, must be avoided, as compression disturbs the circulation, and is often the cause of enlarged veins and red noses.

The effect of diet on the skin is of the utmost importance, and many dermatol-ogists have made a careful study of this aspect of the question. Abstention from all rich food and stimulants has been tried with success. A celebrated lady, who was famous even in her old age for her beautiful, clear complexion and freedom from wrinkles, was once persuaded to tell the secret of her youthful looks.
The answer was simple. Abstinance had been the rule of her life. No tea, coffee or stimulant of any kind. To keep well, drink lemonade or water; eat apples, grapes and figs regularly. Take the raw juice of a lemon every other day.

Never fail to walk regularly. Bathe frequently. Above all, never let anything have the power to worry you, but always try to remain calm and cheerful.

This excellent advice, if possible to follow, is worthy of a trial. We can only offer it to our readers with the assurance that it has proved successful, and has helped in more than one case to preserve youth and beauty. It is needless to add that this goes a long way to create happiness.

Let Us Take Time

Let us take time for the good-bye kiss.
We shall go to the day's work with a sweeter spirit for it.

Let us take time for the evening prayer. Our sleep will be more restful if we have claimed the guardianship of God.

Let us take more time to speak sweet, "foolish" words to those we love. By and by, when they can no longer hear us, our "foolishness" will seem more wise than our best wisdom.

Let us take time to read the Bible.
Its treasures will last when we have ceased to care for the war of politics, parties and fall of stocks, or the petty happenings of the day.

A LONDON MYSTERY SOLVED.

Death of Thomas Wakley Recalls a Dramatic Episode

The death of Thomas Wakley, joint editor of The London Lancet, recalls a dramatic and almost tragic episode in the life of his father, the founder of the paper, and for many years prominently before the public as "Dover for Middlesex."

The circumstances arose out of the horrible sentence passed on the Cato street conspirators, Thistlewood, Lips, Brunel, Davidson and Tidd, a sentence which prescribed that after being hanged their heads should be cut off and held up to the crowd, the executioner shouting, "This is the head of a traitor!" To carry out this sentence the sheriffs of London were in a considerable difficulty. The ordinary hangman was not equal to the task, and it was doubtful whether anybody could be found to wield an axe for such a purpose.

However, eventually the obstacle was overcome, and the enormous crowd gathered in front of the Old Bailey burst into roars of execration when a man, dressed in a sailor's jacket and trousers, and with a black handkerchief tied over part of his face, stepped forward, brought down the axe, and ession, very skill-

tered into an arrangement with the Government of the United States for a new rate of postage on newspapers which seems to us extremely unfair and unwise. Any paper going from this office to the United States must be prepaid with a one cent stamp. This means that we must pay fifty-two cents per year to give our little paper to each subscriber in the United States. Our subscription is one dollar per year and it must be one dollar fifty to cover the additional postage. The result will be that a large number who ought to take Greetings will not do so, and thus sever their connection with the land of their birth and the friends of their youth. Such an arrangement is, entirely unfair to the smaller papers. Large newspapers can still send each issue by express and avoid this small and unnecessary tax. We smaller ones must lose the subscription or pay such a rate of postage that will make the production prohibitive. If there was any good to come of such an order, if there was any need of such legislation we would willingly submit without a murmur, but when a government will go out of its way in a small matter like this for no earthly reason except to benefit the large producer, and crush out the smaller one, we raise our feeble voice in protest. Letter postage and parcel postage has been reduced for no purpose but to throw the extra burden upon the country newspapers. Our subscribers in the United States will kindly take notice that our subscription price is $1.50 per year, and the blame lies at the feet of President Roosevelt and the Postmaster General of Canada. There may come a time (and such times usually return with each election) when the little newspapers that amount to such a small matter now will be hailed as the voice of the people, the popular press, and at that time we may be very much needed on the two sides of the line by those who live by politics.

Acadia Seminary Wolfville, N. S.

The Annual Catalogue of Acadia Seminary for 1907-1908 is at hand. It is well printed and contains much information in reference to the school, its various courses, personnel of the teaching staff, cost of tuition, etc., information which present and prospective patrons of the school will wish to have within reach. The management claims, and no doubt justifiably, that no school in the Maritime Provinces has maintained so high a standard in collegiate work as Acadia Seminary. Nearly a large number of pupils graduate either from the Collegiate Course, which furnishes a good general education, or from the Sophomore Matriculation Course, which prepares the student to enter the Sophomore Class of the University. For those who wish it a course is provided to prepare them to enter the Freshman Year.

During recent years notable advance has been made in the Department of Music. The staff in music for the coming year is exceptionally strong. Prof. J. Christian Ringwald, the director of the department, will have an able corps of assistants in pianoforte, voice, violin and theoretical branches. He himself is a graduate of Leipzig, a pupil of Juliussohn, Patti, Homeyer, etc., a teacher of large experience, a fine concert artist, possessing in large measure those qualities personal and artistic which ensure the highest and most permanent results.

In the Art Course attention is called to certain branches added to the department. Beside the regular studies there are offered classes in leather tooling, lock-cutting and stencilling, basketry, raffia and reed work. The course in Diction has been entirely rewritten and he work affiliated with the Emerson College of Oratory. A notable step in advance has been taken in the Department of Domestic Science, so it is now possible, by completing the Teacher's course of two years, to secure a license from the Provincial authorities, enabling the holder of a Seminary Diploma, approved by the Seminary as having attained to a certain grade of excellence in her work, to teach in the public schools of Nova Scotia without spending a year in Normal School.

Courses are also offered in stenography, business and physical education. This latter department is under the direction of Miss Hannah Lucas, who is a graduate of Sargent School of Physical Education, and comes highly recommended by Drs. Sargent and Schrader.

The catalogue and a finely illustrated booklet may be had upon application to the Principal, H. T. DeWolfe.

Salt Codfish Easier in Boston

The mackerel fleet has been having pretty good luck the latter part of last week, 5000 large fish having been landed Friday and 15,000 landed on Thursday. Thursday's price was 20 cents from the vessel, but on Friday this had dropped to 18 cents.

New Irish salt mackerel have been rather scarce, but are now more plenty, several hundred barrels having arrived, and more reported on the way. The market consequently has an easier tone, though quotations are still nominally unchanged. From second hands new Irish mackerel are quoted at $15 at 15.50 bbl. Offerings of late caught Irish fish are fairly liberal, but the trade seems to prefer the new fish, though the former are fatter. Cape shore mackerel are quotable at $14 at 14.50, and the new shore are nominally unchanged at $15, 50 at 15. The latter are selling from the vessel for a little more money, though this is due to the fact that the fish are improving in quality. There is considerable complaint as to count, as the retail trade demands a count not easily obtainable under present conditions.

The catch of fresh mackerel to date by the New England fleet has been 42,416 bbls, against 24,175 bbls, in 1905 and 42,293 bbls, in 1904.

The total catch of salt mackerel by the New England fleet to date has been 17,121 bbls, against 5119 bbls, in 1905, 23,658 bbls in 1905 and 22,738 bbls in 1904. The total importations of salt mackerel for the season to date have been 10-9 bbls, against 8242 bbls in 1904.

SALT CODFISH EASIER.

The bankers continue to arrive with fair cargoes of salt codfish, and prices are somewhat easier. Sales are being made from the vessel on about the same basis as reported for the first arrival of the season. The splitters have not been getting many fish, nor has the weather been favorable for curing of late. The quotations are about as follows: Large shore, $7.50 at 8; medium, $5.87 1-2 at 6; large Georges, cured, $9.72 medium, $6; large dry bank, $7.25 at 7.50; large pickled bank, $6.25 at 6.50; medium, $5.25 at 5.50; pickled pollock, $4 at 4.25; slack salted pollock, $4 at 4.50; hake, $4 at 4.25; haddock, $3.25 at 4.50; boneless hake, 5 1-2 at 6 1-2 c; boneless cod, 9 at 15 c.

The arrivals of smoked herring are running about one-half as large as at this time last year, and the market is firm, though not quotably higher at 10 1-3 at 13c for medium scaled. Pickled herring are seasonably quiet, prices being nominally unchanged at 57 at 8 for large Nova Scotia split.

Terrific Storm on Sunday

Lightning Strikes Barn --- A Dangerous Fire

About four o'clock Sunday afternoon one of the most terrific thunder and lightning storms in recollection of any resident, swept over the town. Fires were started, trees torn out by the roots, telephone and telegraphic communication suspended.

A panic and then the cry of fire rang out, and here is where the brave fighters of the town again demonstrated their bravery and ability in handling dangerous fires. There may be others as good, but none better. It was soon seen that prompt and effective work must be done to avoid a destructive fire. The Park's building, Boyd's Hotel and Frauley's stable were connected, and it meant tearing down buildings and doing it quickly. Hooks, ropes and axes were soon at work, and the building between Park's barn and house came down with a crash. Similar work brought down another and with water the rest was accomplished. Dr. Taylor met with a slight loss, caused by hurried removal of his office furniture. He also had several tons of hay in the Park's barn.

Very little, if any, insurance was on the buildings destroyed.

With rain pouring in torrents, thunder and lightning, and the roar of the fire, it will be a day long remembered by every person in St. George.
