THE LIBERALS AND THE FUTURE Hon. Mackenzie King and Mr. Mowat, in their speeches before the Ontario Liberal Association, have given some indication to the lines along which the Liberal party is expected to move in organizing for its next victory.

Mr. Mackenzie King speaks out in favor of reciprocity as stoutly as ever and Mr. Mowat tells the Liberal party that the best fighting ground is to be found in advocating an extension of the British preference.

We find the Montreal Herald, and one or two other sterling Liberal papers, pointing out to Mr. King that, while reciprocity is just as desirable now as it ever was, he should not attempt to commit the Liberal party indefinitely to further pilgrimages to Washington.

From this standpoint there can be no doubt about the wisdom of the advice given by Mr. Mowat in regard to the British preference, for the best thing the Liberal party can do is to land the cost of many articles to the Canadian producer, in addition to giving the people of the United Kingdom an advantage in the great market of Canada.

Those who desire to know what Mr. Borden and his government are going to do about the most important of these issues must wait awhile. The Conservative leader was not in a position to declare himself plainly in regard to some of these questions, because he did not yet know what his own attitude will be, and in regard to certain others he could not be frank because, from his standpoint, questions of policy or of party affiliations caused him to speak with caution, to confine himself to generalities, or to be silent.

Already there are indications that certain elements in Mr. Borden's party will demand of him on the one hand a narrow and selfish tariff policy, and on the other some modification of the sensible Laurier naval policy which would have made Canada pay a fair share of the cost of Imperial defence and would still have kept within the hands of our own Parliament control of the expenditure for naval service.

naval policy, the position of the Liberal party should be reaffirmed, and it should be made clear that from this time forward the opposition will set its face resolutely toward tariff for revenue only and avoid compromise.

ANCIENT CITY BUILDERS Scholars tell us that the water pipes of Sardis were found in excellent repair when they were recently uncovered after the lapse of the centuries.

The ancient city was usually supreme, and not merely a part of the state. It was sacred in the eyes of the citizens, his church as well as his home.

After all, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Mr. Borden, as we have said, beyond his references to the late campaign, dealt mainly in generalities.

A noteworthy feature of Mr. Borden's speech was that he omitted all mention of some topics in regard to which a very definite declaration is desired and was expected by the country.

Like the hazards of war are the risks of arbitration treaties, in the opinion of Mr. Roosevelt. He stands with those who do lip service to the cause of peace, but who oppose any agreement wholly removing the probable sources of friction between Britain and the United States.

One idea to be kept in mind by the council, in case it should be upon a plan for selling or leasing the city's lands, is that these should be disposed of, not for the benefit of taxpayers in any one part of the city, or taxpayers of any one class, but for the benefit of the citizens generally so far as that may be possible.

Another feature of the case that is worthy of consideration is the coming of commission government. After some years of dissatisfaction with the old civic methods, the people of St. John, by a majority of two to one, and after a sharp and vigorous contest, decided to do away with the charter, and elect, instead of a mayor and seven council members, a commission of five members who are to be paid for their work.

they do and one of whom is to be the governing head of a department of public business. In view of the near approach of this new form of government, and in consideration of the fact that the citizens have passed a very clear vote of confidence to vote so far as the old civic government is concerned, there will be many who will question the advisability or propriety of the common council initiating any new policy in connection with the public lands particularly if that policy should involve the sale or alienation of the property.

Obviously the matter is one in regard to which there should be no hurried decision. The commission might well take it up, and no doubt if it did so it would be with the understanding that the public by no means approves of the manner in which the civic lands have been administered under the old municipal rule during the last twenty years.

A NEW LIBERAL LEADER What sort of man is needed to give a successful lead and to enlist public confidence in a Liberal opposition in these days? Liberals who are asking themselves some such question as this may find some light upon it in the Conservative Montreal Star's comment upon the selection of a new Liberal leader in the province of Ontario.

The selection of Mr. N. W. Rowell as leader of the party is a promising sign, however. Mr. Rowell is without political opponents, but probably fairly free as well from the traditions and affiliations which so frequently paralyze the activities of professional politicians, so that he is at least no worse for having kept out of the arena thus far.

The Roes government in Ontario died because it became careless and lethargic after it had been long in power. A truly progressive policy would have saved it. The policy turned toward the Whitney Government because of the progressive plank it advocated.

When Cobden was agitating for the repeal of the corn laws in England he complained bitterly that the people who came forward to besiege the members of Parliament were those whose selfish interests led them to protest against any change.

Our Conservative friends are going through the banquet process, and they do it well. Unfortunately those who shine at the banquet table are not always conspicuously successful in the legislative chamber. Canada wants to know just what Mr. Borden is going to do about the tariff and the navy.

which while led to manufacturing, was the duty raised from seventy-five cents to $5 a ton. A few were to make a fortune from its manufacture, but the millions who use white lead were to tax themselves a "little more" for the privilege of making millinery.

The Consumers' Gas Company, of Toronto, has issued a report covering the first period of the sale of its gas at seventy cents a thousand feet. That price was introduced on January 1st, and by the reduction the company realized a revenue of $128,000 during the remaining nine months of the operating year; and yet it paid out $416,000 in dividends on $4,370,000 of stock, put away a renewal fund of five per cent on the total value of its plant, and carried $28,700 to surplus account.

NOTE AND COMMENT St. John has been talking about taxation reform for ten years. The time for work in regard to taxation reform must be almost here.

It is good to hear that several gentlemen are busy securing options on St. John real estate, and to read that the representative of a British contracting firm that bid for the Courtenay Bay work speaks hopefully of that project.

The Toronto Star records some unusual features of the Borden banquet in Halifax. It says there were 120 waiters, who were secured from the Garrison, and from His Majesty's Cruiser Niobe.

It is good to hear that several gentlemen are busy securing options on St. John real estate, and to read that the representative of a British contracting firm that bid for the Courtenay Bay work speaks hopefully of that project.

The Toronto Star records some unusual features of the Borden banquet in Halifax. It says there were 120 waiters, who were secured from the Garrison, and from His Majesty's Cruiser Niobe.

THE HOME MARKET When Cobden was agitating for the repeal of the corn laws in England he complained bitterly that the people who came forward to besiege the members of Parliament were those whose selfish interests led them to protest against any change.

Our Conservative friends are going through the banquet process, and they do it well. Unfortunately those who shine at the banquet table are not always conspicuously successful in the legislative chamber. Canada wants to know just what Mr. Borden is going to do about the tariff and the navy.

Manchu Rule Seems Doomed

Warships Without Stores Since Arsenal Was Captured

Shanghai, Nov. 5.—The first night after the capture of the city to the revolutionaries passed uneventfully. Perfect order was maintained in Shanghai and the outlying districts, which constitutes a remarkable feat, the movement.

Li Ping Shu is the responsible head of the new administration in the native city and suburbs, and is now engaged in completing his organization. He informed the corporation that he recognized only the "Republic of Han" and would guarantee order.

The only disorderly elements, he said, now in China, are the former officials, their supporters and the Manchu troops, who would never again be permitted to social.

There is reason to believe that the revolutionary sentiment throughout the south strongly favors the unconditional abdication of the emperor and the establishment of an entirely new regime.

Huang Sing, the revolutionary leader in the Yang Tze Delta, arrived in the native city of Shanghai by motor boat today. He was engaged with other chiefs in a conference.

The serving out of arms continued today but applicants were so numerous that the leaders were forced to make careful discrimination. They are also endeavoring to recover 5,000 rifles which were seized by the crowds yesterday when the arsenal was captured.

Three loyalist gunboats and one transport, part of Admiral Sall's fleet, put into Shanghai today for provisions and ammunition, ignorant of the fact that the arsenal had changed hands. They are now in the river, loyal for the time being, but the officers of the warships are nervous.

Revolutionary proclamations abolish the kuan and land taxes and maritime customs being only retained.

The remainder of Admiral Sall's fleet has arrived at Wu Sung without incident and without provisions. Reports are numerous of the defection of the capture of various other Chinese cities, these including Wai and Foo Chow.

The imperial telegraph operators have gone on strike. They demand three months' pay in advance.

It is reported that Yuan Shi Kai is at Hankow negotiating with Gen. Li, leader of the rebels, who is in a position to dictate terms. It is believed that the south will demand the retirement of the Manchu royalty with a pension, and will not be satisfied with less.

The revolutionary leaders at Shanghai today expressed no fear that the imperialists would attempt to recapture the city. They said that the new government was fully competent to control the situation and protect foreign interests.

SPOKEN. British bark Calhoga, from Barbadoes for Annapolis (N. S.), Oct 31, lat 37, lon 71. HUDSON BAY ROUTE FULL OF OBSTACLES

This is the Experience of W. E. W. Jackson Official Report, However, Not Yet Made Public—Pack Ice Encountered in Increasing Quantities in Middle of the Open Season—Ice 75 Miles from Land.

Mr. W. E. W. Jackson of the Meteorological Observatory believes that the use of the proposed Hudson Bay route to Europe for the transportation of western wheat is beset with serious obstacles.

During the summer Mr. Jackson was sent to Hudson Straits by the Dominion Government to conduct a magnetic survey of the Straits, determining the variations of the compass for the purpose of compiling a chart in connection with the proposed trade route to England. He was unable to carry out his object owing to the juxtaposition of two deterrent factors, a leaky ship and ice floes.

Mr. Jackson with the Government proposed schooner "Burleigh," which made such an adventurous voyage and was brought back to Halifax by difficult weather, before she left Belle Isle the schooner developed a leak, which was not regarded as serious by the Government at the time, however, in tow of the Government steamer Minto, strained her, and the leak became more noticeable. When in Hudson Strait the steamer cast her off, and proceeded on an easterly course to enter Ash Inlet, where there was anchorage. So enormous were the ice flows, however, that the nearest point that could be reached was the open sea, while the schooner was in the ice, and in a leaky ship in the middle of the Strait, with the ice becoming more compact every day, the only course open was to run for Halifax.

Mr. Jackson does not state that ships cannot make the journey, but holds that they cannot compete with the Montreal route from the point of view of cost. For one thing, the ice in the Straits necessitates ships of specially reinforced construction and consequently smaller carrying capacity and very powerful engines. These would probably be able to steam at the utmost speed, but the cost of fuel and the risk of making more than two return trips a season. Again, for the rest of the year they would be useless, as their construction is not adapted for short time, but for long time, when they would not be able to compete with the ordinary class of freighter. Thus, if the boats were to be run at a profit, the freight charges would be considerably higher than usual and render the cost of transport prohibitive.

THE LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT

Men's Congress to Be Held in St. John Nov. 20 to 22—Something to Dwell Upon.

The Men's Missionary Congress to be held in St. John Nov. 20 to 22, serves to direct the attention anew to what someone has termed "the biggest thing in the world"—certainly the greatest factor in recent years in the spiritual awakening of the manhood of our churches—the Laymen's Missionary Movement.

Whatever attitude one may profess toward missions in general, the position of the Men's Missionary Movement is so fair to challenge the most kindly consideration of every right thinking man. The purposes of the movement, to investigate the missionary needs of the church at home and abroad and then to inspire the manhood of the church adequately to support the great enterprise, is broadening and uplifting.

Too many men live narrow, unappreciative lives, straying from the path of personal growth and development. The result is a shrivelling in heart and intellect. The Laymen's Missionary Movement gives men great things to dwell upon. It invites them to survey the whole field of human activity, to take account of the forces at work for the uplift of mankind and to take counsel together how the work of making the forces of good predominate and advance their way, can best be accomplished. It is a noble movement in which every man may worthily wish to have a part.

For some time the general question in ecclesiastical circles has been concerned with the evident loss of the interest in the work of the churches, particularly among the men. The Laymen's movement offers a way to increase this interest in the work of the church, temporarily at least, and earnestness and devotion are being displayed where indifference was before. The introduction of the Laymen's Missionary Movement as an active force in every church in this province and the country adjoining—one of the hoped for results of the movement—has been elected to St. John—will be a long step in advance in the moral and spiritual uplift of our own people.
