Sirs .- Please allow me space in yo Sins.—Please allow me space in your journal to give a little advire as well as warn ing to the person or persons who through malice or some other equally unworthy motive, during my absence, and while away visiting my people in the neighboring County, started the story that I had left the country and would not return. Such dastardly try and would not return. Such dastardly attempts to injure the character of any in dividual should be put a stop to, and I warn the author of the malicious story that if I can trace it home I will take legal steps to have him punished; as a warning to others. When I do leave I will give ample notice; and nobody will lose one cent by me when I change my place of residence.

Great excitement and consternation prevailed, and on Wednesday about 100 men left River Head to meet the Orangemen and prevent their advance. At first they were not armed, but, upon their arrival at Parmenter lane, they halted and collected guns from neighboring houses, and also armed themselves with pickets and stones. At 1.30 o'clock the Orangemen appeared, with bands, flags and regalia. Head Constable Doyle now appeared on the scene.
