The Murderer of Constable Toohey Still at Liberty-Officers Returning.

Up to the hour of going to press, the police here had heard nothing regarding the capture of the murderer of Police Constable Michael Toohey. Detective Nickle returned home yesterday morning, and fast night Detective Egelnd P C Downs came home. Detective Nickle was detailed for duty on the frontier the greater part of the time, and was worn out by weary vigils of day and night. Exelton and Downs, as well as the six others from the city force, have slept but little since they joined in the chase. The idea of catch- themselves at a point about three miles ing the murderer of a comrade was a sufficient stimulus, and all night and most of the day they have watched and searched eagerly, but the peg-legged tramp still enjoys freedom.

THE WINDSOR TRAMP RELEASED. [G. N. W. Special to The Advertiser.] Windsor, Ont., June 30 .- The wooden legged tramp arrested by the Windsor police on suspicion of being the murderer of Policeman Toohey, of London, was released this morning, as he did not answer the description. Tramps with wooden legs have been arrested by the police of all the little country places on both sides of the border, till one would imagine that three tramps out of four had lost a leg. It seems altogether probable that the same men have been arrested over and over again

A Much Needed Accessary to Springbank's Charms To Be Inaugurated Today.

That London's great river park is more popular this season than ever has already been proven beyond question, and though it was a foregone conclusion that this would be the case as soon as the public became more generally familiar with Springbank's charms, the fact is worthy of mention because it serves as a pretty sure indication of the immense crowd of visitors the will today attract. So far this season the beautiful resort has been lacking in one respect, which materially affected the convenience of pleasureseekers there. On a crowded day particularly the refreshment pavilion has been much missed. However, despite this, the natural charms of the park have proved sufficient inducement to draw larger crowds than ever. Today the provisions for a delightful holiday are materially increased. The spacious pavilion has been completed. Under its roof cool refreshments in plenty will be served, and shelter and recreation afforded. Other pleasures have also been provided. The Seventh Battalion Band will give two open air concerts-afternoon and evening-and for the amusement of the children, cradle and high swings have been put up.

Confident of Success-Subscribers Ask ed to Send in Their Cards.

The Y. M. C. A. board met last evening, and the members were exceedingly happy over the result of the canvass for funds to clear the association of the debt incurred by the new building. They were confident of success. They urge that the parties who have received cards return them as liberally filled as possible, as the payments of many of the subscriptions are scattered over three years, and an extra amount will be required for interest until the whole debt is liquidated. The energy, zeal and self-sacrifice of the splendid corps of carvassers is worthy of all praise and could not fail in its object. The camp skillfully directed.

Battle of Siboney-General Wheeler's Report.

Camp Juragua, Wednesday, June 29, official report to Major-Gen. Shafter of what is now known as the battle of Siboney, is as follows: Sir,-I have the honor to report that in obedience to the instructions of the major-general commanding, given me in person on erican cruiser is firing continuously June 23, I proceeded to Siboney (Jura- upon the stranded steamer Antonio guasito). The enemy had evacuated the place at daylight that morning, taking a course towards Sevilla. About nine of them were wounded. I violating neutrality laws. rode out to the front and found the enemy had halted and established from Siboney. At night the Cubans returned to the vicinity of the town. At 8 o'clock that evening, the 23rd, Gen. Young reached Siboney with eight companies of Col. Wood's regiment, 500 strong, troops A, B. C and K, of the First Cavalry, in all 244 men, and marched from Baiquiri, eleven miles. 24th. Col. Wood's regiment was sent

Cavalry, in all 220 men, making the total force 964 men, which included With the assistance of Gen. Castillo, a rough map of the country was prepared, and the position of the enemy was fully explained, and I determined to make an attack at daylight on the by Gen. Young, accompanied by two of his staff officers, Lieuts. Rivers and Smedburg, to approach the enemy on the regular Sevilla road. Gen. Young and myself examined the position of the enemy, the lines were deployed, and I directed him to open fire with the Hotchkiss guns. The enemy replied and the firing became general. Col. Wood had deployed his right, nearly reaching the left of the regulars. For an hour the fight was very warm, the enemy being very lavish in expenditure of ammunition, most of their firing being by volleys. Finally the enemy gave way and retreated rapidly. We followed them over the line, keeping close upon them, but our men being physically exhausted by both their exhaustion and the great heat, were incapable of maintaining the pursuit. I cannot speak too highly of the excellent conduct of the officers and men of my command. Gen. Young deserves special commendation for his cool, deliberate and skillful management. I also specially noticed his acting adjutant-general, Lieut. Mills, who, under Gen. Young's direction, was at energy and cool courage. Col. Wood's regiment was on the extreme left of the line, and too far distant for me to be a personal witness of the individual conduct of the officers and men, but the magnificent bravery shown by the regiment under the lead of Col. Wood testifies to his courage and skill, and the energy and determination of his officers, which has been marked from the moment he reported to me at Tampa, Fla., and I have abundant evidence of his brave and good conduct on the field; and I recommend him for the consideration of the government. All I have said regarding Col. Wood applies to Col. Roosevelt as well. I was immediately with the troops of the First and Tenth regular cavalry, dismounted, and I personally noticed their brave and good conduct, which shall be specially mentioned by Col. Young.

I personally noticed the good conduct of Capt. W. H. Beck, Robert P. Wainwright and Jacob G. Galbraith. Major James M. Bell, Capt. Thomas Know and Lieut. George E. Byron. The last three were wounded. Major Bell, as he lay on the ground with a broken leg, said: "I only regret I can't go on with you further.'

Capt. Know, though severely wounded, continued as long as possible to exercise his command, and insisted to me that he was not much hurt; and fainted. I recommend these officers for the favorable consideration of the government.

The engagement inspired our troops, and must have had a bad effect upon the spirits of the Spaniards. It also gave our army the beautiful, well-watered country in which we have established our encampments. It has also given us a full view of Santiago, and the surrounding country, and has enabled us to reconnoitre close up to the fortifications of that

SUSPICIOUS OF WILLIAM. Washington, June 30 .- Senator Cannon, of Utah, who was among the first callers to see the president, expressed considerable concern over the German attitude at Manila. and thought that if the young emperor had some cautious adviser like Bismarck, who knew enough to appreciate the limitations of German power and authority, there would be little need of apprehension. Germany's object, troops A. B. E. and I of the Tenth said, evidently was not only to bring about a protectorate there under the powers, but to throw temptations and nearly all of my command, which had obstacles in the way of the United States, so that she might get involved in the controversy over the islands.

> A SPANISH "YELLOW" YARN. Washington, June 30 .- No word has come to the navy department from Admiral Sampson making the slightest reference to the Spanish story of the sinking of the Brooklyn by a shell from the Santiago harbor defenses. As Admiral Sampson is within an hour or two's reach of the cable station. and his orders would require him to report instantly any such occurrence, the officers of the navy department have no hesitation in denouncing the story as a fabrication similar to that gotten out a week ago from Madrid. describing the killing of Capt. Calixto Garcia, whose forces were taken to the east in order to co-operate with the United States army in the capture of Santiago de Cuba, will be sent back with 3,000 of his men to stop the advance of Gen. Pando, the Spanish commander, who, with 7,400 troops, many pack horses and a quantity of cattle, has arrived at a point 71 miles from Manzanillo, going toward Santiago de Cuba. According to information which reached the flagship New York today from Col. Rios, in command of the Cuban army, Gen. Pando started from Manzanillo on June 22, and is traveling at the rate of twelve miles a day. The distance to Santiago de Cuba is 127 miles, and the roads leading there are rough and difficult to travel. Cubans now opposing Gen. Pando only

On Board the Associated Press Dispatch Boat Dandy, off Juragua, Province of Santiago de Cuba. Wednesday June 29, via Kingston, Jamaica, Thursday, June 30, 11 a.m.-The forces of the American army are being mobilized as rapidly as possible in the vicinity of Aguadores, four miles from Santiago de Cuba. The moment the tedious task is completed, the attack on Spain's last ditch in Eastern Cuba will be begun. When that will be, Gen. Shafter himself cannot say. The troops can be moved without serious delay, and are pushing forward rapidly, but the movement of the pack trains, wagons, ambulances and artillery is taxing the skill and endurance of the officers and Lieut. Byron made light of his wound men to the utmost. From Baiquiri, and continued upon the line until he where the artillery was landed, to the present point of concentration, the road runs through a tangle of tropical undergrowth, up and down steep hillsides and over treacherous swampbordered streams for a distance of twelve miles. Through this continuous thicket the rear guard of the army is greater than ours, and that in-cutting its way. The London-St. Thomas game was the only one in the International League yesterday, owing to the holiday today. The Saginaws arrived in London yesterday. Umpires Lynch and Connolly are having less trouble than any other umpires in the National League. The Cincinnatis are in first place, despite their rank of ninth in hitting, thus showing that fielding and pitching only have been keeping them there -a condition which can hardly obtain all season.

Cincinnati, O., June 30 .- Pink Coat and Han d'Or, the two Derby winners, went down to defeat before the great 3-year-old colt John Bright in the Himyar stakes at Latonia today. There were but three starters in the race, and John Bright was the outsider, at 4 to at 4 to 5, while 6 to 5 was the best price that could be had on Pink Coat.

Han d'Or was always the favorite, The race was at a mile and an eighth, and was run in the remarkable time of 1:53½. Pink Coat was the first away at the start, but at the quarter pole Han d'Or took the lead and set a killing pace for Pink Coat and John Bright. After passing the half-mile post John Bright took second place away from Pink Coat, and then Mathews sent John Bright after Han d'Or. Turning into the stretch John Bright shot by Han d'Or like a ghost, and was soon two lengths to the good. Conley, on Han d'Or, and Martin, on Pink Coat, put their mounts under the whip, but they could not catch John Bright, who won easily by four lengths. Han d'Or got the place from Pink Coat after a fierce drive. The net value of the stake to the winner is $5,500. After the finish Jockey Martin assaulted Conley in the scales room, and the former was fined $250 and suspended for 30 days by the judges. Martin will not be allowed to ride for anyone but his employer. Pat Dunne, during his

Decided in Toronto-Hamilton and the Bell Telephone Assessment.

SOME APPEALS

Toronto, June 30 .- In the case of the Canada Life Assurance Company vs. Hamilton, judgment was given today in the court of appeal for the city, sustaining the assessment of the company on its total income as $692,000 instead of upon the amounts paid in dividends, $34,000, on which alone the company held it was liable. The taxes on this basis will amount to $13.840. In the case of the Bell Telephone Company vs. Hamilton, the company con-tended that it was liable for assessment only on the abstract or original value of its poles and apparatus instead of on their prospective value as a growing concern, as claimed by the city. Judgment was given for the company. A BELLAMY COLONY

Life at Equality Not So Bright as It Was Pictured To Be.

An Unfavorable Report Made on Its Prospects and Present Conditions.

A Duluth correspondent writes: The biggest co-operative scheme of recent years, the Bellamy project for reclaiming tidewater flats of Puget Sound, seems destined to fall, according to a and microbes," he asserts, "and stimuwest, and its town, Equality, has been sisted by washes or oils or ungents. particular star of hope for all the believers in the Bellamy theories.

According to a report made by a man sent out from this state to investigate the colony and its prospects, a man who is in sympathy with the co-operative idea, the colony is a failure, the "brothers" discontented, the lands unsuited. The "Brotherhood of the Cooperative Commonwealth" was organized three years ago after the Coxey episode, and was expected by thousands of men and women to go far toward settling the disturbances then in progress, not only by absorbing the idle, but also by its example and influence on other colonies to be formed

One of the chief causes leading to the present state of affairs was the selection of a location. The nearest railway station to the colony is Belfast, on the coast branch of the Great Northern Railway, and from there to the colony headquarters is a seven-mile drive over a corduroy road of the most primitive description. After two hours of bumping along, the traveler arrives at the opening in the mighty forest carved out for their town of Edison by the unaccustomed hands of the men forming this association. Mighty firs and cedars, towering to the height of 300 feet, and thickly set about with underbrush and tangled shrubs. covered the ground. Lying in profusion were trunks of trees, which had to be hauled away and burned before the ground was fit for cultivation. The officers of the co-operation are located here. Three miles further on in the forest, at a place reached by a path leading over the stumps, dodging trees and across a great swamp, lies the land of the colony. The wagon road leading to it is wretched. For its entire length a wagon must bump between jagged rocks on one side and stumps or roots on the other, with one wheel down deep in a rut and the other describing a circle in the air. Ruts filled with mud and water so deep that the wheel goes to the hub, holes and hummocks that make the rider hold to his seat in despair, make this ride one never to be forgotten. Even if the colony had supplies to sell, it could not take them to the railroad by such a road. Efforts are being made to cultivate 400 acres this year. Of this all but 60 acres is cut-over land, from which the valuable portion of the pine and other timber has been logged and the tops and roots cumber the ground. It is on a hillside, and there is an immense amount of rejected timber still standing that might be of value if near a market, but worse than useless here. Immense stumps, some of them more than twenty feet in diameter, fallen giant trees as large, a maze of brush, and all the remains of what lumbermen call slashings, must be taken out of the way before cultivation can begin. It is estimated that to clear up an acre of this timber land would cost $200. What land is not of this character is on the tide flats, and dikes miles long are being constructed to keep out the sea water. Sufficient time and labor have already been expended to prepare and plant a thousand acres of reasonably well forested lands, but not a foot and hardly an acre will be put in crop this year. A resident brother has given a few acres of partly improved lands and a few more acres of land have been leased, so there will be a little food raised, but not a tithe of what the colony will require for its needs for the The colony has received from year. membership dues some $12,500, but in

been about a third of what was calculated on. The colony numbers about 500 at this date, with monthly expenses of about $1,400.

The climatic conditions are such that malaria may prevail, and only hay, oats, vegetables and some small fruits will grow. There could be no market for a surplus of these, could they be gotten from the ground and taken to the railroad. There is no present prospect of the colony's becoming self-sustaining, says the report. Many members of the brotherhood would gladly go away, but they have not the means. Others try to make the best of it. Some say that they came there to work, that they could not get the privilege of working in the competitive world, and that now all they produce by their own hands is their own. As an offset to their deprivations and isolation they say the social advantages of living with those who think alike and work together for the common good are sufficient compensation. These people impress one with their earnestness and self-sacrifice. Their leaders are-many of them-theorists void of practical knowledge. The officers and many of their followers speak of their plans for the future with confidence,

Some May Miss Finding Gold in the Klondike, but All Will Grow Hair.

The gunner was lucky his fellow-men and women. For, be it known, that Rhoderick, before making the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. his perilous way to the Arctic regions, though otherwise pleasing to look upon and still on the sunny side of forty, was the owner of a head which made theater ushers, whenever there was a ballet on the programme, escort him down to the front row without even glancing at his seat check. While this might have been considered an advantage by some people, it was not pleasing to Mr. Smith, who is an essentially modest man and averse to being made unduly prominent on any occasion. It is said, too, that this baldness was the real cause of his starting out in search of gold, since he spent all his patrimony in the purchase of hair restorers, and it was necessary for him to do something, no matter how desperate, to retrieve his fortunes.

Be that as it may, he went to Alaska, and after a two years' residence there has returned a modern Samson, as far as chevelure is concerned, and he declares that the transformation is entirely due to the rigors of the climate in that quarter of the globe.

The intense cold kills all the germs report received here. It has been lates the scalp, and nature does the watched with interest all through the rest," and he proudly exhibited his lion-like mane as proof of what nature country, and especially in this central can do when she takes a fancy, unaspointed out as the best example of a P. J. McLeod, who has spent twelve co-operative commonwealth, and the years in Alaska and the Northwest, although he has not the pleasure of knowing Mr. Smith personally, and did not, therefore, see the sprouting and the bourgeoning of his especial crop of modified epidermic cells, still corrobor ates his story as to the virtues of that clime as a hair producer. "My hair was always thick," he says. "so I cannot speak from personal experience; but the way the dogs put on hair up there is a caution; they get as shaggy as Shetland ponies, and now I think of it, I never saw a bald-headed fellow anywhere around there. tell the truth, they all look, when they have got to work, as though a razor and a pair of scissors were far more needed than a hair restorer, and a missionary barber could do good work

G. H. Henderson, who has a claim on Dominion Creek, and has been up in that vicinity for two years, heartly echoes Mr. McLeod's statement. Ther is something about the intense cold, he asseverates, that makes the hair on man and beast flourish mightily. Dandruff and falling hair are unknown in that part of the country, but he thinks that the fact that people are too busy to "bother with their hair" has something to do with its unusual growth. "A man who is vain enough to put his time in trying to increase the thickness of his hair," in this gentleman's decision, "will generally manage to worry off him what little belongs to him naturally. He will scrub it and put fertilizer on it, and lay awake nights thinking about it until his head is as hot as a furnace and burns the roots of it to ashes, and end by getting un the shiniest kind of a bald head, but up there it is too cool to fool that way and the hair gets a chance for its life. L. S. Woodstock, an Alaskan of five years' standing, puts in his testimony in regard to the efficacy of good freezing weather as a hair rejuvenator or resurrector, and another gentleman reently returned from the Arctic gold fields, who, not having "made his pile as yet, is averse to having his name in the papers, says he is seriously considering the practicability of establishing a hair sanitarium in some reasonably accessible spot, where he will, for & satisfactory consideration, entertain bald-headed guests, and tell them pleasant little tales about Alaska, past present and future, to amuse and interest them, and a hair-raising ghost story occasionally for its practical effects, while upon their denuded craniums will appear first the fuzz and then the fur, and then the sleek and glossy hair, the possession of which is the one great desire of their existence.

LONG LINE OF ANCESTORS.

[Boston Courier.] The following is an amusing instance of the tenacity with which the Highlanders hold to the honors and antiquities of their kindred. A dispute arose between Campbell and McLean upon this never-ending subject. McLean would not allow that the Campbells had any right to rank with the Mc-Leans in antiquity, who, he said, were in existence as a clan since the beginning of the world. Campbell had a little more Biblical lore than his antagonist, and asked him if the clan McLean existed before the flood. what flood?" said McLean. 'Flood! The flood that you know drowned the whole world but Noah and his family and his flocks," said Campbell. "Pooh! you and your flood," said McLean, "my clan was before the flood." "I have not read in my Bible," said Campbell, "of the name of McLean going into Noah's ark." "Noah's ark!" said McLean, in

What May Happen Some Time During the Santiago Siege.

There are many devices to be used at Santiago in the landing of American troops on Spanish soil that are receiving their first practical test in war. The rifled mortar is one, the value of which all the foreign military attaches who are observing the operations of Gen. Shafter's corps are directed to particularly report upon. This mortar is an American invention, or, rather, the application of wellknown principles of gunnery in a new manner. The uncertainty of the projectile's flight when fired from the oldfashioned pieces, and the large 10-inch and 13-inch mortars, will be remembered by those who saw them used at [San Francisco Call.]

The experience of Rhoderick Dhu 6, 1862, when Farragut's fleet passed Fort St. Philip and Jackson and along a mile high, and at its zenith

The new mortar is nine feet long, breach-loading, with four feet of rifling to give the 600-pound shell its revolving motion. The bursting charge is 50 pounds of compressed guncotton. It is fired by a percussion primer fitted on a tube which the impact explodes, whether the shell fall on earth or water. The best results are achieved at from one mile to five. Seven miles distance is its extreme range. At any of its effective ranges its huge conical shell can be dropped into a five-acre field when once the range is which is usually after the second shot.

with the new range-finder. If this rifled mortar is successful, then modern fortifications, like Metz, for instance, are as obselete as is the old flint musket. Herein lies Europe's extreme interest in this American invention. Metz is absolutely impreg-nable with the present means of siege. If Shafter's mortars do what Americans claim they will de, Metz Constradt, the great fortress at Buda-Pest, and others all over Europe as defenses are but an iridescent dream.

A GOOD PROGRAMME

An excellent entertainment was provided under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society of the Askin street church last evening. Mrs. Jean Blewett, of Blenheim, the talented other verse, was present, and recited a number of her own poems, and, as is always the case on her appearances in London, a large audience was attracted. Mrs. Blewett's charming seections were alternated with solos by well-known local vocalists, and altoge ther the programme was a most de-lightful one. Encores were requent. The vocalists were Miss Marion Hutchinson, Miss Golding, Miss Couke, and Mrs. James, and the singing di each was greatly appreciated. Miss Rapsey and Mr. Fred Simpson were the accompanists. During the evening some pleasing gramophone selections were also presented, the instrument being manipulated by Mr. B. Cottam. Rev. Richard Hobbs presided.

The Y. M. C. A. Apply for Remission of Taxes

Conflicting Opinions-Meeting of the Financial Committee.

The finance committe hustled through their business last night in good form. The principal matters were applications for remission of taxes, etc.

Wm. Bowman, John Chapman, Chas. R. Sayer and George A. McGillivray petitioned for the remission of $530 75 taxes on the Y. M. C. A. Their letter set forth the great advantages of the Ald. McCallum opposed the granting of this petition, on the ground that the swimming baths, auditorium and the gymnasium entered into competition with other such places in the city. Any organization that could raise $30,-000 in so short a time as they did could pay the taxes. Ald. O'Meara favored granting the request, on the ground that it was practically a place of worship, as well as entertainment and education. He could not see that it was a moneymaking concern. Many other religious places were exempt, and this should be, too. The fact that the citizens subscribed so readily was an evidence that they were in hearty accord with the

Ald. Nutkins moved for a report upon the matter, and also that the city solicitor's opinion be obtained as to what portions of the building might be exempted. This carried, Ald. McCallum voting nay.

Mr. A. T. Corp, whose little 7-yearold boy lost the sight of one eye by falling against a barbed wire fence at the corner of Oxford and Wellington streets, applied on behalf of the child for some remuneration. The matter was referred to the engineer for a report, he to notify all persons having barbed wire on their boulevards to remove the same.

An application from several city printing firms for fixed assessment on plants was referred to the council. W. J. Element petitioned to be relieved of assessment on the new sewer in front of his property at the corner of Clarence and Gray streets, as he had paid $25 for the privilege of tapping the old sewer. The matter was laid over for further information. Among the accounts passed was one for $150 to defray the personal expenses of the delegation that waited on the government at Ottawa re the elec-

Letters That Are Interesting at the Present Stage.

The Consulting Engineer Refused to Recommend the McDougall System for This City.

Toronto, June 29, 1898. To the Editor of The Advertiser: Kindly insert the inclosed copies of a letter from Mr. J. MacDougall to me, dated Chatham, Nov. 12, do. me to him in reply, Nov. 13, 1895; do. from me to International Company of London, dated January 10, 1896 All the above are pertinent to mine of 27th inst., and corroborate my statements contained therein, in the mat-Willis Hackett, Richard Howitt, Roy ter of Mr. MacDougall's false charges or insinuations against myself. > C. G. HORETZKY. Answers to MacDougall's letter, dated Chatham, Nov. 12, 1895: Toronto, Nov. 13, 1895. John MacDougall, Esq., Chatham,-Your letter of 12th inst. to hand. cannot see why you should think that I should recommend the International process for the city of Lon-

The polarite filters are all very well for small plants, such as provincial asylums require; but, on the larger scale, would be utterly out of the question. As a matter of fact, some of the largest works in the United States are about to be changed. The disposal of the sludge is a problem in most cases; and as I have seen many of the best systems in vogue, during our recent trip, the conclusion has been reached that chemical treatment for the London sewage is not desirable. I know all about the "Candy" selfcleaning tank, and do not think it will do all that is represented. Regarding perozone, the latter has been unsatisfactory of late, and we shall use no more of it. Polarite may answer writer of "Songs of the Heart," and fairly for purification of drinking water, but it is too expensive. Yours truly, C. G. HORETZKY.

Chatham, Ont., Nov. 12, 1895. C. G. Horetzky, Esq., Toronto: Dear Sir,—I have noticed that you have been in London to see Dr. Campbell there in re the "Sewage Disposal Question." I presume that you have ecommended the International Company's system, with polarite filtra-I had a conference with Dr. tion. Campbell about it, and he seemed to be favorably impressed with it; you could, therefore, be of great service to me there in connection with that matter, and, if it could be arranged in some way, I would have no objection to you having the supervision of the construction, etc., etc. be glad to hear from you at your convenience. Yours truly, (Signed) JOHN MACDOUGALL

The International Sewage Purifica-tion Company, 7 Victoria street, Gentlemen,—I am in receipt of yours of Dec. 30 last. The polarite filters are, however, quite satisfactory, and are, in my opinion very serviceable in such small places as Kingston Asylum, where land disposal is out of the question; but, for large towns, think they are far too expensive. have met Mr. MacDougall, who is, I believe, acting as your agent in Ontario and Quebec. Better that you should have other agents than I, as I have no time to attend to such work outside government, excepting in occasional outside cases. I may, however, mention, for your own benefit, that any one acting for you should have sufficient engineering knowledge to carry out plans, and should thoroughly understand the work he talks about. I do not think Mr. MacDougall does, although I have no doubt he is very good man otherwise; but I know nothing of him personally, be-yond a passing acquaintance. I am, ham, Ont., and was "kind" enough to offer me the supervision of the London works, should that city decide upon a precipitation process. I wrote him that I had no intention of recommending any chemical process for London. Neither have I; but I have advised "land disposal" as the best in that

SHUT THEIR EYES, AND THEN SHOOT!

Gen. Grant's Nephew Gives an Ingeni ous Reason Why So Few United States Troops Are Hit by the Spaniards.

[Chicago Times-Herald.] Lieut. Bayne C. Dent, neph. a by marriage of Gen. Grant, and a graduate of Annapolis, spent eleven years in the navy. He has awide acquaintance with Latin-American peoples, among their peculiarities he holds that have a fundamental organic fault which prevents them being or becoming fit fighters. They shut their eyes graceful. and turn their heads the other way when they pull the trigger, and they can't help it.

"Many years ago," Lieut. Dent told me, "when one of the forgotten South American revolutions was revolving, the old, blunt-ended sumbering Philadelphia, on which I was an ensign, was ordered to Cartagena to protect American interests. I never knew what those interests were, nor could I see that they were in any danger, but we went. A sailor man would as soon cruise to Ecuador as elsewhere. It is all so many days' run and the anchor down and shore leave at the end of it. We found Cartagena invested by the gallant rebels and defended by the gallant government troops. It is certain that not any of the gallant privates knew what they were fighting about, and, although I tried many times, I could not find out; but they did fight every day. The firing was brisk and the cheering the most enthusiastic and continuous I ever heard. "We were six weeks at Cartagena, and I have never spent a more enjoyable time. It was Fourth of July every day, and when we wanted quiet we had only to go on board, sit down in the messroom and fight cockroaches This was the order of procedure six days in the week, Sunday being a holiday. There were two er three thousand troops outside the walls and as many inside. They rose at 7 in the morning and breakfasted. Then the bands played. Then the rebels outside squatted behind fences stumps and shot at the walls. The fellows inside peeked over the walls cautiously and shot at the fences and stumps. This kept up until 11 when everybody knocked off. Then the bands played. They dined from 12 to 1, and smoked cigarettes from 1 to 2. The siesta lasted until 3:30. At 4 firing was resumed and continued until & Supper was eaten and cigarettes were smok-The officers went to the house of the general, if inside, or to the tent of the general, if outside, and reported that they had been shooting. Then the bands played. At Cartagena I discovered how the firing was done. The fellows along the wall would sight carefully at some thing outside, turn their faces toward me with their eyes closed and jerk the trigger. I observed that the folks outside did the same thing. Not any of them ever looked to watch the effect of a shot. They knew that it didn't have any. The consequence this sort of thing was that the bullets went anywhere from 50 yards to a quar-ter of a mile wide, dependent upon how far around the chap turned his head and how hard he jerked at the trig-

'At first we were chary about going around during the fierceness of the engagements, but soon learned that a position on the walls was less dangerous than a seat on a Chicago stree car. We used to stand and laugh. sounds like exaggeration, but is the simple truth that during the six weeks of our stay but one man was killed and he was a non-combatant English man peacefully walking along the street. He was struck by a nearly spent ball, which in some mysteriou manner found its way over the wall At the end of the time the rebels had a long and gesticulatory talk with the president's people, and then they left. When they went away all of their bands marched along the walls and tooted, and all of the loval bands stood on the walls and tooted.

"I have seen other Spanish-Americans shoot, Cubans among others, and they all did it in the same way. It seems to be an ineradicable trait. When I read an account of a 'battle' between Spanish regulars and Cuban insurgents and learn that one man was wounded it does not puzzle me any. I think it probable that he shot himself, or some comrade behind him let off his gun accidentally. I am unable to see how he could have been hurt by an opponent.' Probably this matter-of-fact statement by Lieut. Dent explair Montojo's vessels could fire at Dewey's squadron for hours and not kill a man: why American ships can constantly engage land batteries in Cuba and show only an occasional dent in token of it; why American small boats at Cienfuegos could hang around for an hour within easy rifle shot and saw cables in two with ridiculously few casualties; why American vessels of all sizes and armor stagger backward and forward within a half-mile of Spanish fortifications and never lose a piece of string. The Spaniards turning their heads when they press the buttons or pull the lanyards could make no material difference; but probably they shut their eyes before they aim.

With the dog-days comes the usual outery for the muzzling of dogs, lest any of them may develop hydrophobia. It is satisfactory to learn from expert investigation that a genuine case of this disease is extremely rare. In a recent interview a prominent bacteriologist of Detroit, says that scarcely one dog in ten thousand, people think are mad, is afflicted with hydrophobia. In his entire practice, which has been large, and has extended over many years, he has come across only one case of a dog with robies, while Prof. William Osler, of Johns Hopkins University, a native Canadian, by the way, the greatest authority in the country on the subject, has found only two cases in more than 30 years' research. His view is that if an animal bites you, it is unnecessary to have it killed or to be fearful of evil consequences. Cauterize the wound, and resume the even tenor of your way. Lock the dog up and give him a chance to recover. When he does, the bitten one will lose his fear that some day he may have rabies.

"Canada First" Among the Clergy.

It having been reported that an Irish rendered vacant by the death of the late Archbishop of Kingston, the

"The appointment of the future Archbishop of Kingston is perfectly safe in the hands of the right reverend bishops of Ontario, and it is not at all likely that they have made a confidant of the Pilot's Waterford correspondent that he can be justified in making his silly surmise. The Archdiocese of Kingston is by no means an appendage to Ireland, or to the Diocese of Waterford, and if the good people there are under the impression that it is, why, we venture to say, they will be dis-abused of their unfounded opinion a few months hence. Our readers' own common sense will tell them that Canada has passed that stage of babyhood when it had to look to foreign countries for its bishops and clergy; and that we have now a native priesthood in every way the equal of Waterford or of any other diocese in Ireland. If we cannot supply own own bishops and clergy the outlook for the church and our holy religion is dark and unpromising beyond expression. We advise our readers to give no attention to such unfounded rumors as this of Waterford's correspondent, and to rest satisfied that our future archbishop will be no importation." This view that there are enough of talented priests in Canada to fill all the vacancies in the sees that may occur is not confined to our Kingston Catholic contemporary. We have found it strongly maintained both by clergy and people. In the early days it was necessary that bishops, and priests, too, should be brought from the old sod, and everyone who knows anything about the history of Canada is cognizant of the self-denial and hard work which these pioneers, in common with the clergy of other churches, underwent in their loyal devotion to the principles espoused by them. But that is long ago, and the Canadian church provides, through her seminaries, very good material from which to choose priests, bishops and archbishops, and even cardinals when required. To raise a talented clergyman to the office of chief pastor in some part of his native land, as has been frequently done in Canada. Is to give that encouragement to excel which is in the best interest of he church which adopts it. It will ease very many if a Canadian, by rth or long service, is preferred for Diocese of Kingston.

The constitution of the United States authorizes this uniform enactment, yet the New York Mail and Express points out that for less than two decades of the country's history have such statutes been in force. The fight now closed began actively in the Fiftythird Congress, and various bills were fought to death. In its latest phase the contest included the Nelson bill in the Senate-which denied to creditors the privilege of instituting proceedings for involuntary bankruptcyand the Torey-Henderson combination measure in the house, which insisted on this feature, while providing against the possibilities of malicious persecution. Continued inability to agree led to a conference committee. and it is the compromise report of this committee which has now been accepted by both houses.

To insure the passage of the bill with the involuntary feature retained numerous concessions were made to the ecclesiastic would take the position Southern and far Western men, who fought that feature on the plea that it Canadian Freeman thus discusses the a debt-collecting agency. Proceedings in involuntary insolvency may now be instituted as follows: Where a debtor has transferred his property with intent to defraud. Where he has transferred it to certain creditors with the intention of making them preferred. Where he has given a preference through legal proceedings. Where he has made a voluntary assignment for the benefit of his creditors generally: Where he admits in writing that he is bankrupt The debtor is protected against persecution, inasmuch as he cannot be made an involuntary bankrupt on failure to meet his obligations, so long as his property, on a fair valuation, is shown to be sufficient on realization to pay his debts. This provision is peculiarly essential in times of financial stress, when so many men become temporarily embarrassed.

Another benefit is the creation of a system whereby insolvent estates will not be exhausted by legal costs, to the detriment of creditors. Criminal punishment of a bankrupt, too, is reduced to perjury and embezzlement of property, and farmers and wage-earners are made exempt from involuntary proceedings. The latter provision, coupled with the exemption of national, state and territorial banks, was probably the most distinct concession made to the congressional malcontents.

It is claimed that this compromise measure, while duly protecting creditors, will enable from 150,000 to 200,000 bankrupts throughout the States to get on their feet again by reason of its liberal terms of discharge. The measure is, in fact, regarded as a triumph for the strictest integrity in United States commerce and hanking: and its working will be closely watched by very many persons in this country. who hold that the best interests of Canada demand that we have a uniform insolvener law for the whole Dominion.

Annual Sunday School Teachers' Convention,

Interesting Papers Presented and Practical Suggestions Made.

The seventh annual meeting of the Sunday School Association of Lobo township was held at the Bantist Church, Poplar Hill, on Wednesday, would have to be reckoned with before June 22. For the first time in its existence three sessions were held, dinner and supper being spread on tables erected in the shady grove opposite, for the entertainment of those from a distance. Everything, both in the charmingly.

The forenoon session was chiefly devoted to business. It was opened by a half hour of devotional exercises, led by J. N. Grav. The president. Mr. Peter Mitchell, gave a short address, welcoming those present, and inviting all to take part in the proceedings of the convention.

Miss Maggie Sinclair, the efficient secretary-treasurer, gave a very full and interesting report of the last meeting, which report met with general

The highest general average, denominationally, in the township, of scholars, is the Methodist, with 113: next comes the Presbyterians with braced in Sunday school work. Rev. Mr. Davis, Baptist, Poplar Hill, in his discourse on "The Sunday School a Divine Institution," took the ground that it was such, although no formal command for it is found in the Bible. The Bible does not teach us all our practical duty; who thinks so does not understand the purpose of the Book. But we find there the spirit that animates the good work in such commands as "Feed my lambs," ye into all the world and teach the etc. We find ourselves led into such work as the result earnest desire to follow in the footsteps of Jesus, desiring to know what would Jesus do if he were here in the world Judging from its origin and C. Miss Millie Irvine read a very thoughtfully prepared paper on "Sun-day School Music." She believed it essential, for various reasons, among encompassing of conversions. Care should be used, however, in the selections, with a view to appropriateness. Rev. H. D. Moyer, Methodist, Delaware, gave a talk on "The Co-operation of Young People's Societies in Sunday School Work." He hails the Young People's Societies as a solution old vexing and perplexing problem of bridging over the chasm existing between the Sabbath school and the church. He thought there had been gross negligence, and even ignorance in the estimate of the relation of the children to the church. He thought it wrong to consider them and call them "little imps." We should rather consider them from the start pure and innocent, and belonging naturally and rightly to God and to the church. I don't believe that God looks down them with wrath because of Adam's transgression; but rather that the bearing towards them is that of The spirit of the Lord, through his love, works upon their youthful hearts long before we can influence them; and even the parents mold their dispositions and form their habits of thought; not so much by what they as by what unconsciously shines out from their daily walk in The Y. P. S., through its lookout the Sabbath school by bringing in the was merely making the Federal Courts children in the neighborhood not attending any school, and it can also strengthen the church by doing such work among adults. But perhaps its greatest service to the church is in its ability to get young people to work "to have all at work, and always at work.

Mr. Alfred Day, provincial secretary of Sunday school work, having now arrived, was warmly greeted as he arose at the introduction of the chairman. He took as the subject of his discourse "The Teachers' Relation to the Sun day School." He is to teach the Bible not as an end, but as a means, to the end, that it may assist to the blossoming of righteousness and the fruitage of service. The teacher should before his class in point of time, in position, as in knowledge. His success a question of interest more than of ability. He must get them interested by being interested in them. This he can do best by finding out what they are best adapted for, and endea-vor to develop that. This is getting the point of contact, and the point of contact should be maintained through distinct and direct radius from the teacher's eye to every eye in the class. Interest, too, can be created by telling anecdotes that bring out the lessons on hand. Mr. S. P. Zavitz, Friend, Coldstream. gave a talk on home co-operation in Sunday school work. He thought the should not give over the training of its youth in religious matters to Sunday school, but should lay the foundation of purity of character in childhood, and should be further interested to develop true character all the way up, giving the Sunday school the needed encouragement of their encouragement of their presence, that the children may think it is indeed something worth while. Rev. N. Lindsay, Presbyterian, Ivan, followed, on "The Supreme Object of Sunday School Work." He said it was not to impart knowledge of the Bible. That was good, but not the goal. Nor was it to encompass conversion, important, but not the most. Nor to lead them to confess Christ; that is only one step. The supreme object should be the salvation of soul. It must be a continued and progressing work only he that endureth to the end shall be saved. It is a continued salvation or, in other words, as had een said, here today, the formation of character. This embraces our duty in all moral obligations, to be honest, true, just, kind, pure, loving, in fact, to be like Christ. You must be and do what you want your scholars to be and do. You must have the spirit of the Great Teacher. "Who." you ask, "is suffi-cient for these things?" Wait; our suf-ficiency is of the Lord. It is man's God, to co-operate with him, to feel God's spirit working within, to be full of the Holy Ghost, and attaining to the measure of fullness of stature in Christ Rev. T. M. Fothergill, Baptist, of Strathroy, in the evening spoke on "The Best Time in Life for Religious Teaching." He said there could be no answer but one; that was youth; and proceded to give reasons. The brain, then, was more susceptible to knowledge: as it grew older it became less pliable to impressions. Youth was likewise the time for conversions. Practically a greater per cent give themselves up to Christ in youth than in any other period of life. It is the character-forming period. It has the vantage, besides. Convert an adult. you have a unit. Convert & youth, you

Much credit is due the entertain-ment committee for the able manner in which they did their work; also to the choir, for enlivening the proceedings with high class music and song. BOOKFUL OF

Mr. Russell Prints His Collection of Ancedotes.

A Few Plums From the Pudding He Has Prepared for British Readers.

All of Them Are Not New, but All Are Good-They Relate to Prominent Persons of the Present and Preceding Generation.

A correspondent writes: The man who chronicles or invents a new story. if it be a good one, is more to be honored than the discoverer of a gold mine. What shall be said then of a man who enriches an effete generation with a bookful of good stories? This is what Mr. G. W. E. Russell, M.P., has done under the pseudonym of "One Who Has Kept a Diary," in a volume entitled "Collections and Recollections." It is a collection of tales about prominent people of this and the preceding generation, and of stories so good in themselves that the personnel is immaterial. Mr. Russell has been peculiarly fortunate in a large personal acquaintance with old people whom he describes as "links with the past." is almost startling to an Englishman of today to be reminded that there still lives, in full possession of all her faculties, a lady that can say her husband was born in Boston when America was still a British dependency. This is the widow of Lord Chancellor Lyndhurst. Then there is Sir Moses Montefiore, who lived to the ripe age of 101, and Capt. Francis Maude. R.N., who died in 1886, and used to say, "My grandfather was 12 years old when Charles II. died." Also numbered in Mr. Russell's friends was Mrs. Hoare, who remembered being at a children's party when the dancing was stopped because news had arrived that King Louis XVI. had been put to death; again, the sixth Earl of Albemarle, who, though he died but six years ago, had played with Charles James Fox and had fought in Waterloo.

I do not propose to review Mr. Russell's most entertaining book, but, after the fashion of Little Jack Horner and his pudding, I will pull out a few of the plums for the amusement and edification of the general reader. Here, for instance, are a couple of anecdotes of "twopenny damns" are proverbial in

When the Queen came to the throne her first public act was to got in state to St. James Palace to be proclaimed. She naturally wished to be accompanied in her state coach only by the Duchess of Kent and one of the ladies of the household; but Lord Albemarle, who was Master of the Horse, insisted that the had the right to travel with her Majesty in the coach, as he had done with William IV. The point was submitted to the Duke of Wellington as a kind of universal referee in matters of precedent and usage. His judgment was delightfully unflattering to the outraged magnate: 'The Queen can make you go inside the coach or outside the coach, or run behind like a damned tinker's dog.' ' "And surely the whole literary profession, of which the present writer is a feeble unit, must cherish a sentiment of grateful respect for the memory of a man who, in refusing the dedication of a song, informed Mrs. Norton that he had been obliged to make a rule of refusing dedications; because, in his situation as chancellor of the University of Oxford, and in other situations, been much exposed to au-

Lord Shaftesbury told the following story of his uncle, Lord Melbourne: "When the Queen became engaged to Prince Albert she wished him to be made King Consort by act of Parliament, and urged her wish upon the prime minister, Lord Melbourne. first that sagacious man simply evaded point, but when her Majesty insisted upon a categorical answer, 'I thought it my duty to be very plain with her. I said, "For G-'s sake, let's hear no more of it, ma'am; for if you once get the English people into the way of making kings, you will get them into the way of unmaking them.

Very interesting are the ancedotes which throw a distressingly white light on the state of society at the close of the last century, when from all the evidence of notable people who had been in contact with it, Mr. Russell is obliged to conclude that "religion was almost extinct in the highest and lowest classes of English society.

In these days, and even later only 60 years ago, "hard drinking was the indispensable accomplishment of a fine gentleman, and great estates were constantly changing owners at the gam-Here is a story of the fifth Duke of Bedford:

"One night at Newmarket he lost a colossal sum at hazard, and, jumping up in a passion, he swore that the dice vas loaded, put them in his pocket and went to bed. Next morning he examined the dice in the presence of his boon companions, found that they were not loaded, and had to apologize and pay. Some years afterward one of the party was lying on his deathbed, and he sent for the duke. 'I have sent for you to tell you that you were right. dice were loaded. We waited till you were asleep, went to your bedroom, took them out of your waistcoat pocket, replaced them with unloaded ones, and retired.'

'But suppose I had woke and caught 'Well, we were desperate men-and We had pistols.' '

Such were the manners of high society. As for the morals, such things as morals were not for the great. "When Lord Melbourne had accidentally found himself the unwilling hearer of a rousing evangelical sermon about sin and its consequences, he exclaimed in much disgust as he left the church: Things have come to a pretty pass when religion is allowed to invade the sphere of private life.'

"Arthur Young tells us that a daughter of the first Lord Carrington said to a visitor: "My papa used to have prayers in his family; but not since he has

In a chapter on the "Social Equalization," which the author attributes to the influence of the French Levolution, have a picture of the "typical aristocrat" before the days of leveling. The Marquis of Abercorn died in 1818, "but he is still revered in Ulster as the Owld

Marquis.' "This admirable nobleman always went out shooting in his Blue Ribbon, and required his housemaids to wear white kid gloves when they made his bed. Before he married his first cousin, Miss Cecil Hamilton, he induced the Prince Regent to confer on her the titular rank of an earl's daughter, that he might not marry beneath his position; and when he discovered that she contemplated eloping he sent a message begging her to take the family coach, as it ought never to be said that Lady Abercorn left her husband's roof in a

Talking of the "art or science of domestic sanitation," it is somewhat startling to read in the pages of our Diarist

"Sir Robert Rawlinson, the sanitary expert, who was called in to inspect Windsor Castle after the Prince Consort's death, reported that, within the Queen's reign, 'cesspools full of putrid refuse and drains of the worst description existed beneath the basements. Twenty of these cesspools were removed from the upper ward and 28 from the middle and lower wards. Means of ventilation by windows in Windsor Castle were very defective. Even in the royal apartments the upper portions of the windows were fixed. Lower casements alone could be opened, so that by far the largest amount of air spaces in the rooms contained vitiated air, comparatively stag-

In his collection of repartees, Mr. Russell has many old friends, but all are good. Here are a few examples: "Lord Bowen is immortalized by his emendation to the judges' address to the Queen, which had contained the Heep-like sentence: 'Conscious as we are of our own unworthiness for the great office to which we have been called.' 'Wouldn't it be better to say, Conscious as we are of one another's unworthiness?'

"When the German Emperor paid his visit to Leo XIII., Count Herbert Bismarck was in attendance on his imperial master, and when they reached the door of the pope's audience chamber the emperor passed in, and the count tried to follow. A gentleman of the papal court motioned him to stand back, as there must be no third person at the interview between the pope and the emperor. 'I am Count Herbert Bismarck,' shouted the German, as he struggled to follow his master. 'That,' replied the Roman, with calm dignity, 'may account for, but it does not ex-

There is a very amusing chapter on "Titles." Mr. Russell has a very democratic scorn for these "handles" to a name, and is good-humoredly satirical on the subject. Talking of Irish peerages, which used to be a cheap and convenient method of rewarding political services, until recent legislation put an end to their creation, he tells the following story of Pitt: "Pitt, when his banker, Mr. Smith

(who lived in Whitehall), desired the own terms with their captive. right of driving through the Horse Guards, said: 'No, I can't give you that; but I will make you an Irish peer'; and the banker became the first Lord Carrington.' As to baronets:

"What is a baronet? ask some. Sir Wilfrid Lawson (who ought to know) replies that he is a man 'who has ceased to be a gentleman and has not become a nobleman.'

The order of baronets, as Mr. Russell reminds us, grew out of the rebellion in Ulster. When created, each baronet had to pay as much as would maintain 30 soldiers three years at 8 pence a day. "As a historical memorial of their original service, the baronets bear as an augmentation to their coats of arms the royal badge of Ulster, a bloody hand on a white field. It was in apt reference to this that a famous Whip on learning that a baronet of his party was extremely anxious to be promoted to the peerage, said: 'You can telt Sir Peter Proudflesh, with my compliments that if he wants a peerage he will have to put his bloody hand into his poc-We don't do these things for

Speaking of "orders," as distinct from titles, we read:

"Of these, of course, incomparably the highest is the Order of the Garter, and its most characteristic glory is that, in Lord Melbourne's phrase, there is no d-d nonsense of merit about it.' North of the Tweed, 'the most ancient and most noble Order of the Thistle' is scarcely less coveted than the supreme honor of the Garter; but wild horses should not tear from me the name of the Scottish peer of whom his political chief said, 'If I gave --- the Thistle he would eat it.'

The following is an amusing story of young Prince Alexander of Battenburg, now at Eton: "Like many other little boys he ran ingenious letter to his august grand-mother, Queen Victoria, asking for miner, who can't read or write, and some slight pecuniary assistance. till his allowance next became due. the garment so as to make two great Shortly afterward the undefeated lit- heavy bags. I think he must have in something like the following form: 'My dear grandmamma,-I am sure you trouble you for any money just now, for I sold you last letter to another boy here for 30 shillings.' "

Here are some characteristic anecotes of Lord Beaconsfield. Lord Randolph Churchill vouched for the first: "Toward the end of Lord Beaconsfield's second premiership, a younger politician asked the premier to dinner. It was a domestic event of the first importance, and no pains were spared to make the entertainment a success. tom, $200,000 worth of gold, and I was When the ladies retired the host came and sat where the hostess had been. next to his distinguished guest. you have some more claret, Lord Beaconsfield?' 'No, thank you, my dear fellow. It is admirable wine-true Falernian-but I have already exceeded my prescribed quantity, and the gout holds me in its horrid clutch.' "When Lady Beaconsfield died he sent for his agent and said: 'I desire that her ladyship's remains should be borne to the grave by the tenants of the estate.' Presently the agent came back with a troubled countenance and said: 'I regret to say that there are not tenants enough to carry a coffin.'

In a chapter headed "Verbal Infelicities" occurs the following delightful

"Dr. Liddon told me of a Presbyterian minister who was called on at short notice to officiate at the parish church of Craithie in the presence of the Queen, and, transported by this tremendous experience, burst forth in rhetorical supplication: 'Grant that as she grows to be an old woman she may be made a new man, and that in all righteous causes she may go forth before her people like a he-goat on the mountains."

Dean Stanley used to tell the following story of an ecclesiastical dignitary who gloried in his presence of mind: "A friend invited me to go out with him on the water. The sky was threatening and I declined. At length he succeeded in persuading me, and we embarked. A squall came on, the boat lurched and my friend fell overboard. Twice he sank and twice he rose to the surface. He placed his hands on the prow and endeavored to climb in. There was great apprehension lest he I had brought my umbrella with me I had the presence of mind to strike him two or three hard blows over the knuckles. He let go his hold and sank The boat righted itself and we were

"When Lord Dufferin was Vicerov of India he had a sporting servant, or 'shikary,' whose duty is was to attend visitors on their shooting excursions. Returning from an expedition one afternoon the shikary met the viceroy, who asked: 'Well, what sort of sport has Lord - had?' 'Oh,' replied the scrupulously polite Indian, 'the young sahib shot divinely, but God was very merciful to the birds."

Mr. Russell does not forget to tell a few stories about children: "The late Lord ---, who had a deformed foot, was going to visit the Queen at Osborne, and before his arrival the Queen and Prince Albert debated whether it would be better to warn the Prince of Wales and the Princess Royal of his physical peculiarity, so as to avoid embarrassing remarks, or a leave it to their own good feeling. The latter course was adopted. Lord — duly arrived. The foot elicited no remarks from the royal children, and the visit passed off anxiously but with success. Next day the Princess Royal asked the Queen: 'Where is Lord —?' 'He has gone back to London, dear.' 'Oh, what a pity! He had promised to show Bertie and me his foot!' They had caught him in the corridor, and made their

The Klondike's Remarkable Record of Honesty.

Tents and Cabins With Precious Hoards in Them Left Unguarded Without Loss-Real Estate Speculations at Dawson City.

A Pasadena, Cal., letter says: Lyman A. Gregory, a native of Pough-Y., and for ten years a resident of Trenton, N. J., returned from Dawson City this week, and has much to say of the richness of the Klondike gold fields.

"What do I base my opinion upon?" he said, in reply to a question on the subject. When in traveling from cabin to cabin, one sees five-gallon coal oil cans filled with gold dust and nuggets under the miners' bunks and sees loads of 500 and 600 pounds of the precious yellow stuff brought in by parties of miners from remote camps and deposited with one of the two rich commercial and transportation companies that have headquarters at Dawson, one very naturally comes to believe that there is something in the stories of the richness of the Klondike diggings.

"Out on El Dorado Creek-twenty miles southeast from Dawson-there is a settlement of miners who came from Seattle and Spokane. They have among them about fourteen claims. and I have seen out there literally a galvanized washtub two-thirds full of gold dust and flakes. A number of the log cabins of the miners out there in that natural storehouse of gold have in them dozens of tomato and fruit cans hidden under the bunks and burishort of pocket money, and wrote an ed in the dirt floors of the cabins and miner, who can't read or write, He has a claim on Hunker Creek, showed received in return a just rebuke, telling me last fall a pair of heavy canvas him that little boys should keep with overalls that were his treasury. He in their limits, and that he must wait | had sewed and overlapped the legs of tle prince resumed the correspondence | had 100 pounds avoirdupois of the yellow metal on hand when I was at his cabin. That was worth about will be glad to know that I need not $27,000. Miners on the Klondike creeks have utilized rubber boots, kerosene oil cans, coffee cans, fruit jars, salt sacks and buckskin and walrus hide bags for the keeping of their golden Edward Mason, assistant registrar of mines for the Canadian Government in the Klondike region, told me recently that he had seen a ton of gold in his travels among the claims along the richest creeks in one week. I have seen several times in on day in the cabins along such creeks as Benanza, El Dorado and Gold Botnot out trying to see the stuff, either. Mr. Mason told me that in one day last summer he saw George Miller, one of the first half dozen white men the Klondike diggings, and five helpers sluice nearly 200 ounces of gold from Miller's claim (No. 5) on El Dorado Creek. That makes the yield worth about $3,000. Bill Emory, who came down the coast from Dawson on the Portland last August and sold his gold at the San Francisco mint for $87,000, and was a hero about California for a few weeks, had about $40,000 more in gold saved up when I last saw him. and he expected to run the amount up to $80,000 by his annual clean-up or sluicing this season.

"You probably wonder why such a land of gold would not make a thieves' paradise. Three men have been put to death up in the Klondike for attempted robbery among the mining cabins during the last seven months. Two were shot to death by the miners hanged. One man had got ten miles away from the scene of his theft when pected that there was something wrong about the man, who did not look like a genuine Klondiker, and has so much gold in buckskin pouches, and was not able to talk intelligently about the had dug the metal. So the miner kept the stranger there in his He could imprison his dependents, but cabin, while he secretly spread information concerning the suspected man, The thief was tried by fifteen men at a cabin. The trial lasted two hours, after which the man was stood up and shot because the weather was unfavorable for an execution by hanging, and there was no available tree or telegraph pole anywhere in that region of snow

"I never knew such honesty as there ls among the Klondike miners in their cabins-mark you, I am not speaking now of affairs in Dawson. It is common for a miner to go on a visit of a day in winter a few miles from home and leave his cabin unbarred and unbolted to anyone who comes that way. You hear true stories in Dawson all the time of men who, traveling among the gold diggers, enter cabins and tents left open while the owners have gone miles away on business or a visit, and see jars with pounds of pure gold in them. A friend of mine was out prospecting on Bear Creek last summer, when he stopped at the cabin of an acquaintance. The owner had gone fifteen miles to Dawson to grub up, after the weeks of sluicing, and had left notice to that effect pinned to the door. My friend went in and saw two wooden mackerel kegs in one corner of the cabin well filled with gold dust. A grimy, tattered old blanket had been carelessly thrown over the treasure, which was probably worth about $16. Up in the Klondike a thief cannot get out of the country without risk of his life, and it is impossible to stay there and not be apprehended for his

"Is Dawson City growing?" "At the rate of 2,000 a week, now that the thousands of people who braved a journey over the mountain passes and 900 miles across the most desolate and sullen country man ever looked upon have begun to reach it. Dawson will have fully 50,000 population before the summer is over. Two years ago it had a total of five white men and eleven half-breed Innuits. The whole site of Dawson might have been had for $200 or $300. Today the same area is worth about $2,000,000. One cannot find a spot in all Dawson where the moss earth may not be cleared away to a depth of twelve or fifteen inches and a cake of ice or frozen ground be found. The real estate market at Dawson is as fruitful of speculation as gold mining is. No town in the United States never knew such marvelous leaps in values as these in Dawson during the last two years, especially in the last ten months. I have seen more people crazy about real estate than about gold mining even, and that is saying a good Lots 50x100 feet sold a year for $1,000: last fall for $4,000, last December for $8,000, and a month ago sold for $12,000. I know two lots on Front street that together sold for $3,000 last August. They were recently sold for $18,000. Last year logs sold $1 40 apiece, and now they command $3 and $4. Most of the buildings are constructed of logs hewn on three sides and chinked with heavy moss. The roofs are made of poles on which a layer of moss fully ten inches thick is laid, and then a serves to keep out the cold. If green logs are used they crack and make reports not unlike a pistol shot when the heavy frosts come, and for the remainder of the winter frost will accumulate on the inside of the cabin and it is impossible to get enough heat out of the stoves to thaw the ice. About 130 log cabins and some 800 or 900 tents constitute the improvements of Dawson City. The buildings are on the streets, and a wide avenue separates the city from the river bank. Mechanics get an ounce of gold for nine hours' work, and many of them are earning from $20 to $25 a day. Aside from the two stores, three or four barber shops, half a dozen laundries, five or six restaurants, a second-hand store on Dominion Creek, and another was or two, two saw mills, three butcher shops, two jewelry stores, a dozen physicians and dentists, and a couple cut a hard dinner roll. The knife slipred and cut his finger, which the printhe night with a miner. The latter susengaged in is whisky and gambling.

Compared with prices in the States, the prices at first glance seem exhorbitant, but when the prevailing rate of wages of from $10 to $15 a day is taken into consideration, the charges appear more reasonable. Meat brings 70c a pound: codfish, 40c; a shave costs 50c, and a hair cut $1; five gallons of kerosene sell for $20; meals at the Chinese restaurant cost $2 each, and on Sundays States bring 50c in Dawson, and once last winter they were at $1; bread is worth $1 a loaf, and rubber boots (absolutely necessary in working a placer gold mine) sell at Dawson for $25 a

One of the Dearest Privileges of the Lord Was the Pit and Gallows.

This was the dearest privilege of the feudal lord. He called it by a more dignified title—"Droit de Haute et Basse Justice"; the other is our blunt English rendering. The right was jealously upheld, in the first place, because it appertained to certain fiefs and certain ranks of nobility, for persona pride in those days, and pride of family, dominated even the love of plunder, says the London Standard. The administration of Haute Justice which was power uncontrolled over all the inhabitants of the domain and all strangers who entered, saving churchmen and royal officers alone, was inherent in a baron and a chatelaine, says Hallam; but a vavassor often usurped it, to their disgust. Smaller dignitaries and any ruffian who could get possesnot hang them, unless caught in the act of felony. But personal interest also was concerned. The lowest of these privileges enabled a seigneur to arrest any man within his reach whom he suspected of possessing money, and when the poor wretch was clapped into his seignorial dungeon he could do his will uncontrolled; as, says the chron-icler of Roger de Belesme, "the pains of hell got hold upon him."

palmy days of feudalism there was no possibility of help or redress, except, perhaps, in the case of an inferior lord. If it could be shown rights, the suzerain was apt to fall uphim ruthlessly-not because pitied the victim, but because the insolent fellow was encroaching on the dignity of his betters. And upstarts constantly "tried it on," so minute were the rules of procedure that they found many opportunities to break them with an air of innocence. Thus, in the matter of gallows, a baron's machine stood on four posts, a chatelaine's on the boon of Haute Justice attached to regret this. Write your mother conhis fief, could plant only two. Impasometimes nail a crosspiece to a tree, and support it with a post on either side, thus arrogating the glory of a chatelaine; if challenged, he would represent that the tree was used as a mere convenience. Such was the state of things all over Europe in the dismal times which priests called the Ages of Faith, and romantic persons the Age of Chivalry.

The aragon, the lord who had only a right of Basse Justice, and so could not hang or kill his prisoner outright, was expressly authorized by law in 1247 to starve a vassal to death-Dominus loci possit eum occidere fame frigori et site. There was an exception to the rule indeed, and that in a country where one would have least expected it. Seignorial jurisdictions of the sert were recognized in the kingdom of Naples until 1443, when Alfonso, called the Wise, and the Magnanimous, introduced them, offering those valuable privileges to the barons for cash down. Upon the other hand, it was at Naples that they survived when all the rest of the world had forgotten them. Among the innumerable blessings of the French conquest at the end of the last century was the abolition of these horrid rights.

A STRONG APPEAL

enjoyed the right of Moyenne Justice, It's Hard to See How a Man Could

Secretary Alger, who is easily touched by any story ther or an afflicted family, is having all he can do to repress his feelings and enforce military laws. Every day he is besieged from some direction to release from the army some soldier who hastily volunteered without taking into consideration his duties to his family or to himself. Occasionally some man is allowed to leave the army, but the secretary is doing all he can to

The other day a fair-haired, smoothfaced boy walked in to see the secrethat he had gone an inch beyond his tary at the war department. "I come to ask you to release me from the the boy said. "I do not care army, myself, but my poor old mother is dying from grief."

The appeal of the little fellow, whose boyish face quickly caught the sec-retary, made an impression, but in the kindest manner the secretary said: "My boy, I do not know what your story is, but every day I receive these appeals. I was a soldier myself. Let three; a lower dignitary, who enjoyed | me say to you that you may always soling letters and go forward and do tient of this restriction, he would your duty, determined to come out of the war with a name and a record."
"Yes, Mr. Secretary," said the boy, "I realize all that. I am anxious to go to the front, but look at this note from mother."

The secretary glanced over the tearsplattered note, which spoke of "my little soldier boy." In the note she sent her son a lock of her hair. It was gray, almost white. "You see the color of my hair now," she wrote. "You know what the color was when you went away.'

the secretary: "Here sir, you see what a few weeks have done. From this beautiful brown my mother's hair has turned gray. God knows I love I love my country. I do not know what to do. The appeal was a strong one. investigate your case," the big-heart, ed secretary said, as he walked away

Dairy Markets. OTTAWA, June 30.-The offering of cheese on the Ottawa cheese and butter board today were nearly double of those a week ago, and the sales totaled higher than those at any board yet held. The number of boxes boarded was 1,956, of which 175 were colored. The highest offer received for the whole board was 74c, but many factories refused to sell. Auctioneer Burke succeeded in raising the price 1-16c, and at 7 5-16c 20 factories sold 1,251 boxes. The cheese was boarded by 30 factories, among them being nine which had never before boarded. The price realized was somewhat below that of last week, which was probably due somewhat to speculation. The Liverpool cable quotations were 30s 6d, the same as last Friday, and were 6d less than the cable on Monday of this week. Holders seemed reluctant to sell at the price offered, and many sellers refused the bids. Buyers, however, were quite willing to buy at the price, and secured a large part of the board. The buyers represented were C. H. Woods, of J. C. & G. D. Warington, and N. W. Pruner, of Hodgson Bros. The former bought 739 and the later 477 boxes. BARRIE, June 30 .- At the meeting of the cheese board here today 1,161 boxes of colored cheese were offered, of which 46 sold at 71/2c, and 90 at 71/4c. Balance unsold. Market very dull; four buyers present. Next meeting of board on Thursday, July 14, at 1 p.m.

Washington, June 30.—The situation at the close of the day was described by Secretary Alger as being such as to warrant him in entertaining the expectation of important news at any moment. There were two parties to a battle, and it might be precipitated by either side, and no one here knew what the Spanish disposition was. Nor is much more known respecting Gen-eral Shafter's plan of attack, although in his messages of yesterday he indicated a purpose to move early the enemy, as shown by his declaration that reinforcements could not reach him before he offered battle, Secretary Alger was very much gratified when he learned today that direct relegraphic communication now existed between Washington and General Shafter's headquarters at Siboney. The opinion is held here that the navy will co-operate in the attack on Santiago, and to that end part of Shafter's force is to move immediately upon Morro Castle to capture the forts and enable the naval launches to open the gateway into the harbor by removing the mines. The experience of the vessels while in Guantanamo harbor, in pulling up the mines there is expected to very much facilitate similar work at Santi-

No telegram came to the war department today from General Shafter, and the understanding here is that he is employing his time to the best advantage in taking his artillery and making all ready for the final assault upon Santiago. It is not known how far the uniting with Linares. The second expedition from Tampa to reinforce General Shafter appears to have encountered almost as many difficulties as the original expedicion on getting away. It was confidently expected here that the start would be made from Tampa last Monday, but one difficulty after another has arisen to retard the movement, so that it was with a feeling of relief that the news came from Tampa that the flagship of the expedition, the Hudson, had swung out into the stream, and is ready to lead the procession of transports, which, it is believed by this time are under way for Santiago. It is calculated that the second installment of the reinforcements dispatched to Shafter from Camp Alger, via steamer from Newport News, Va., reached him today on the Harvard, and the steamer Yale is expected at Newport News the day after tomorrow, returning from her first trip with Duffield's soldiers to take more reinforce-The steamers will be further availed of in pursuance of Secretary Alger's intention to continue to dispatch reinforcements after reinforcements to Shafter, until he has an overpowering force at his command. Major-Gen. Coppinger will probably command the Porto Rican expedition.

The advices from the Suez Canal only hasten the preparations making for the departure of Commodore Watson's eastern squadron. The commodore has reported to the navy department his arrival off Santiago, and is in consul-tation with Admiral Sampson respecting the details of the cruise, which, it is expected, will occupy fully four months, provided the war endures that length of time. The delays to which the Spaniards are subject at Port Said will redound very greatly to the advantage of Admiral Dewey if Camara is still in reality bound for the Philippines, for they ensure the arrival of

New York, June 30.—Dr. Chauncey M. Depew arrived home from Europe on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse today. We looked the picture of health and was welcomed by a tugload of prominent men.

During his absence, Dr. Depew spent considerable time in France. He said the sentiment there was most bitter against this country. Every paper in the city of Paris, except three unimportant ones, published right along articles showing the greatest hostility. It it believed there the object of the United States in beginning the war was extension of her territory, or imperial federation. The same opinion, he declared, seemed to prevail in Germany. In England there is a complete reverse of sentiment. Six weeks' time has changed the feelings of 95 years, and all animosities have been buried by the

Has Never Troubled Londoners Since the Re-Discovery of Springbank-At Least the Flocking of the People to the Popular Resort Implies So.

With grateful hearts and cooled brows, a large proportion of London's population will today enjoy the relief that Springbank affords after the heat and dust of the city. Two splendid concerts will be given this afternoon and evening by the Seventh Battalion Band, and many special attractions are announced. Not the least of these will be the opening of the new pavilion, where refreshments may be obtained by the picnickers, where shelter from the sun's rays will be afforded, while from the broad verandas nature in the height of her summer beauty may be looked out upon. There are points of vantage about the pavilion where are scenes than which no prettier can be found in the country. But it is folly to particularize regarding the beauty of the great resort. Each visit discloses new charms, and a chief pleasure of picnickers is to discover new and more beautiful views. In the portion of the park more re-cently opened up—the west end—the children have up to the present been somewhat neglected. Now cradle and high swings have been scattered through the grounds, and the younger element will have no lack of amusement. A ten-minute service will be provided by the street railway to accommodate the crowds, and speedy transportation is assured.

ARE YOU LIVING THE IDEAL LIFE?

That is full of sweet satisfaction and joyous recompense. It is blessed to the individual himself and to all who are touched by his influence. Prof. Drummond's book with this title is an exceedingly helpful contribution to such a life. It casts light on departments of life that need illumining. It is a very precious book for an earnest Christian Endeavorer.

LOSS OF VISUAL ACUTENESS.

Reasons That Tend to Make Children

Need Glasses. It is interesting to compare the visual acuteness of the normal eye before and after the effect of some purely physical cause, that may be within the realm of either nature or civilization. Taking a few instances of each for illustration, I will cite from nature first. It is well known that severe illness greatly impares the acuteness of vision of an otherwise strong eye. Almost the first thing a convalescent will do is to call for a book or newspaper to while away the tedium of the sick room. Unless warned not to try his eyes too much, he is apt, through forgetfulness, to overtask his accommodative powers or injure the alread weakened ciliary muscle. When the rest of his body recovers its normal strength the eye continues weak. After straining the eyes more, in the vain hope that his sight will improve, the person, if he is wise, will consult experienced help; if otherwise he will pick up the first pair of spectacles available, regardless of whether they should be too strong or too weak for his eyes. Should he finally find it difficult to fit glasses satisfac-Other natural causes that affect eyes are wind, dust, light and heat, when excessive. Eyes otherwise good enough become weak under such conditions. The weakness may be due to an error of refraction, and under most condied, the accommodation is lessened, and the eye cannot find relief, except by the use of glasses. They should generally be convex. Having mentioned those losses of visual acuteness due to natural causes, next in order are causes produced by civilization. At the outset I will say that if the patient were to change his occupation and take plenty of fresh air and exercise, the optician's service might never be needed, but these "ifs" are in the way, and are not to be got rid of by the average individual. Take a boy from the country, bring him to town and place him at clerical work, writing, perhaps, all day and into the night. Put him behind a into the night. Put him behind a counter, and let him stand all day with one hour free out of twelve or more, or let him sit at a work bench, following a trade that keeps his eyes fixed steadily, hour after hour, twelve or eighteen inches in front of him. Take this same youth with hitherto good eyes and bid him use them day in and day out, reading for a profession, or let him occupy his time in a dimlylighted room, or bend over a desk beneath artificial light all the time. I might go on, giving instance after instance, without particularizing any calling as more harmful than others to the eyes.

Is it a wonder that the children of this generation are wearing glasses along with their grandsires? Old age is no longer the reason for wearing glasses. In nine cases out of ten the young man needs a convex glass to assist his overtaxed eyes in fulfilling their duties. In addition to these causes of weakened vision, it is hardly necessary to mention the common evils of tobacco and alcoholic stimulants. Again, if the strong constitution of a boy cannot save his eyes from their thousand and one uses, how can frail women escape? The ever increasing army of women workers in shops and offices, and the new avenues of employment opening to them, swell the number of spectacle wearers. It has been my purpose to point out that it is not the serious and very plain errors of refraction that cause the most of an optician's patronage, and he must often attribute the loss of visual acuteness to other causes.

The dead-letter office sustained by our government is not the only one. Death runs a dead -letter office, to which are consigned thousands of intended letters that the wouldbe writers never wrote because of premature death, as a result of their own reckless disregard of health. There are letters of love and hate, affection and fury, pleading and forgiveness and borrowing and lending. Letters to sweethearts and rivals, husbands and wives, and sons and daughters. They never reach their destination, for they were never written. Death stamps them "only intended"—and the world is full of tears. LAMBETH.

Lambeth, June 30. - Mr. Norman Bogue had a narrow escape and bloodcurdling experience with his fine general purpose team while at his grand-father's at Littlewood one day last week. He left the team, attached to his new wagon, tied to a tree. A falling limb frightened the team, and they broke loose, starting off at a lively pace. Mr. Bogue, in his endeavor to stop them, was knocked down and run over, but happily he was not seriously injured. The wagon came to grief when it struck a tree, smashing the tongue, reach and hounds, but the horses tocaped without a scratch. While Rev. Mr. Blatchford was at the G. T. R. station in London a few days ago he left his horse tied near by. While the trains were shunting, the horse took fright, and broke loose. It was captured near the river with the buggy a total wreck.

groom was supported by his brother, Mr. John Brock, of London. -The schooner Maumee Valley, Captain Henry Scanlan, of Toledo, arrived at Port Stanley on Wednesday from Sandusky with 424 tons of slack coal for Hunt Bros., London. She endeavored to enter the harbor without a tug, which were otherwise engaged. The wind was fresh from the westand the schooner, drawing 10 feet 5 inches, began to smell the bar. Her helm was hard down, but would not keep away. She struck the west pier with the bluff of her bow and stove in her staunchions bulwarks and shivered her covering board, carried away her jib-boom at the cap, and broke some of her planking just above deep draught marks. Her lake freight is only 20 cents per ton, a good deal of which it will take to repair the damage. A PHYSICIAN'S LONG JOURNEY. Dr. A. Graham, who left London on Friday last for Moosejaw, N. W. T., in answer to an urgent telegram to go there to attend a patient, returned last evening. The round trip was made in six days, and a distance of 4,002 miles was traveled. He arrived at Moosejaw at 10 a.m. on Monday, and left at 3:30 p.m. the same day for home.

"DETROIT RED" JAILED. Edward McKenna, familiarly known as "Detroit Red," was brought here from Detroit yesterday and lodged in jail on the charge of robbing David Dale's house in Westminster township on June 18, when $30 in cash and several valuable articles were carried away. McKenna, it is said, was seen in the vicinity the morning of the robbery, which occurred while the occupants of the house were away.

Farewell Address and Presenta-tion to Mr. J. D. Clarke

Mr. J. D. Clarke, who is retiring from the editorship of The Advertiser to become private secretary of the Hon. David Mills, minister of justice, was surprised yesterday afternoon to find his sanctum invaded by nearly a score of his co-workers from every department of the paper. Before Mr. Clarke could demand the reason of the visit, Mr. Lewis Clark, superintendent of the job department had begun to read the following address, which explains itself:

"London, Ont., June 29, 1898. "J. D. Clarke, Esq.: Dear Sir,-We learn with much regret that you have relinquished the duties which you have so ably discharged for the past nine years, and as representatives of the various departments of The Advertiser we desire to express the deep sense of our loss. "Your position as managing editor has brought you into intimate relationship with all branches of the estabishment, and we can testify to the mutual harmony of the intercourse, to the cordial co-operation, the esprit de corps, which you have inspired. Although you are leaving us, our admiration and regard will abide with you. We shall cherish your example of kindness, industry, zeal and judgment, and we trust the ties of friendship that now bind us will never be dissolved by time or absence. "In asking you to accept this very inadequate gift, we assure you of our confidence that the success which you have won in journalism will attend you in your new sphere of duty." Signed, R. D. Miller, C. F. Adams, H. A. Kompass, George Elliot, A. E. White and R. Williams, on behalf of the counting room; E. Clissold, M. W. Rossie, H. M. Passmore, H. Atkinson and H. Blount, on behalf of the editorial room; C. H. Fewings, superintendent of the composing room, and Lewis Clark and Frank Plant; on be half of the job department.

Mr. Clarke was then handed a beautiful secretary's portfolio, inscribed in gold with his name and future address: When the applause had subsided he replied feelingly. The address, he said, expressed his own sentiments towards the members of all departments of The Advertiser. He had endeavored work with them cordially, and they had always reciprocated with the utmost kindness and good-will. The result was a hearty co-operation in the interests of The Advertiser, and the happy personal relations lent added pleasure and effectiveness to their duties. His nine years' association with the paper would always be one of his brightest memories. He would ever regard London with peculiar interest and affection, as it was in this city he made his entry into Canadian journalism. He sincerely thanked his colleagues for their warm-hearted address and for the handsome gift which accompanied it. Mr. Clarke was again applauded, and was given a hearty hand-shake by all
