PEACE IN MEXICO IS DEPENDENT ON GENERAL CARRANZA

Mediators Believe They Have Found Middle Ground to Work On.

PEACE PLAN IS OUTLINED

Huerta Delegates Assert That
If Fighting Keeps on Rebels
Will Meet Trouble.

[Canadian Press.]
Niagara Falls, Ont., June 3.—The attention of the mediators today was turned toward General Carranza, Constitutionalist chief. From him must come the next move which will determine whether or not Mexico will be sacrificed by diplomacy. The way has been opened by the mediators for participation in the conference by the Constitutionalist if they care to come in.

Rafael Zubaran, minister of the Interior in General Carranza's cabinet, who is now in Washington on a special mission, will have received today a note outlining the attitude of the mediators. A middle ground is believed to have been found, and the mediators feel encouraged and optimistic.

Internal Affairs. The mediators against discussing internal questions in the mediation is now answered by the Huerta faction, whose delegates have issued a statement saying they consider international and internal questions so closely interwoven as to make impossible a satisfactory solution of the entire problem without due regard for the inter-connection.

Advise Provisional Government.
The peace plan before the mediators is a simple one. It reaches into internal questions only in a general way. Suggestions as to personnel will have to be agreed upon privately. The protocol, which will be signed here, will be a declaration of principles on agrarian and educational reforms and advice to Mexico to set up a provisional government, having due regard to the interests of all factions. The actual composition of the new government will be a matter of physical implementation, as seen in the protocol is signed the United States giving its promise to recognize the new government.

Its Composition.
In the new government would be a provisional president, neutral in politics, a cabinet of four—two independent men chosen by the Huerta faction but not identified with the present regime, and two Constitutionalist. This may be changed if the Constitutionalist take part in the payoffs here.

The Mexicans were particularly happy that they had been able to make their statement about General Huerta's plans, taking the position that General Huerta's voluntary action had removed from the scope of his own elimination. He could thus retire with dignity, feeling that his resignation was of his own initiative.

Feeling of Optimism.
The general feeling here is one of optimism. Upon the Constitutionalist depend chiefly whether the trend of developments shall be for a peaceful solution or a continuation of bitter civil strife. The Huerta contingent declares, however, that if the Constitutionalist insist on fighting, they will try to take San Luis Potosi, where a big Federal force is concentrating.

C.N.R. Aid Bill Is Now With Senate

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, June 3.—The bill to aid the Canadian Northern Railway, by a bond guarantee of $45,000,000 reached the Senate at one o'clock, was given the formal stage of first reading and set for the second reading and leaving stage this afternoon.

DREAMED IRVING'S DEATH

Stage Manager of London Theatre Tells of Scene He Saw
During Sleep, and Recognizes Empress' Saloon in Photo.

[Canadian Press.]
London, June 2.—Tatting, the stage manager of the Kingsway Theatre, London, relates an extraordinary dream he had about the time of the Empress of Ireland disaster, in which he saw the exit of Laurence Irving from life. He dreamed he was present at a gathering of a number of people in a handsomely furnished room. The people passed in solemn procession before Sir Henry Irving, who was seated and had the appearance of a dying man. Each person took the actor by the hand in a sad farewell. When all had passed, Sir Henry rose and uttered the words: "I can endure it no longer." He placed his hand on his forehead and disappeared, death having claimed him.

Tatting then for the first time no-

NO AID FOR RADIAL LINES THIS SEASON

Premier Borden So Announces in Answer to Question by McCoig.

THE WIRELESS RUMOR
No Operator on Lady Evelyn,
But Rescued Man Acted as Such.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, June 3.—That Lord Mersey, who conducted the British inquiry into the Titanic disaster, will be chairman of the royal commission on the sinking of the Empress of Ireland was stated in Parliament this morning by Hon. Mr. McCoig, chief justice and admiral judge of New Brunswick, who is the other member of Lord Mersey's committee.

An Explanation.
Postmaster-General Pelletier said that he had been in communication with Capt. Poulet, of the Lady Evelyn, considering the report that the wireless operator declined to send Marconigrams from survivors without the cash-in-advance. Capt. Poulet replied that he had been sent out without a wireless operator, but among the survivors from the wreck he found an operator named Ferguson, whom he had instructed to wire ashore for food and clothes, but was given no authority to charge for messages. Mr. Pelletier said he was glad to be able to clear the Government officials from blame.

No Aid Yet.
A. B. McCoig, of South Essex, asked Premier Borden what the Government had decided to do in regard to general aid to hydro electric radial lines, which was asked by a great Ontario delegation, headed by Hon. Adam Beck. Mr. McCoig said he had many inquiries from the Government.

"The matter is still under consideration, but legislation will be introduced this session in connection with it," said Premier Borden.

Mr. Morphy, of Perth, speaking on the Farmers Bank, declared that there had been no canvas of the Senate to have the bill killed.

CAPTAIN KENDALL REFUSED LIQUORS EVEN WHEN HURT

Rescued Passenger Indignant at Charges Made Against Commander of Empress.

SPLENDID TYPE OF MAN

Other Passengers Sure That Liner's Engines Were Stopped Before Collision.

[Canadian Press.]
Montreal, June 3.—Insinuations that Captain Kendall of the foundered Empress of Ireland had been drinking before he got on the Stordard, drew prompt and vehement denials again today, one from Dr. Grant, medical officer of the Empress, and another from Percy Adie, of London, Eng. The denials also contain extra proof that Captain Kendall's conduct was absolutely without reproach and that of all the lamentable figures that reached Rimouski from the scene of the wreck he was probably the most painful.

Dr. Grant said that he was with Captain Kendall from the time he reached shore. The captain was in bad shape, and the doctor suggested that he take some brandy. The captain refused again and again, saying he had never taken a drink in his life.

Finally the captain's condition grew so dangerous that the doctor forced him to swallow a mouthful of brandy. Up to that time the doctor said he was willing to swear Captain Kendall had taken no alcoholic liquor.

More Nonsense.
Dr. Grant said all the talk about stabbing and brutality of the crew was nonsense, as he had gone through the wreck from beginning to end and had seen nothing of it.

Montreal, June 3.—"Some of the statements made against Capt. Kendall by officers or members of the crew of the Stordard are absolutely false and cruel," was the emphatic and unequivocal assertion of Percy Adie, of London, Eng., a survivor of the Empress disaster. Mr. Adie, with his wife and Miss Doris Gaunt, who had had providential escapes from the wreck, reached Montreal last evening, en route to Toronto.

"Capt. Kendall is known as a lifelong teetotaler," continued Mr. Adie. "We were constantly in his company from 10 a.m. on Friday until he left Rimouski. I can therefore vouch for the fact that, although he was badly injured and suffering both physically and mentally, he absolutely refused even then to take a little brandy or other stimulant, in spite of the danger."

Impressive Tribute
OF SEVENTH BANDSMEN
With Uncovered Heads They Play Dead March in Memory of Empress' Victims.

No more impressive tribute to the memory of the victims of the Empress of Ireland disaster could be imagined than the one paid last night by the bandmen of the Seventh Regiment during the first band concert of the season in Victoria Park. During the usual nine o'clock intermission the bandmen, standing at attention, played the Dead March from Saul. Their heads uncovered, the members of the band played the impressive march with a fervor never before equalled.

The impressive and large crowd that thronged the park was wonderful. As soon as Bandmaster Slater made the announcement thousands of hats came over and during the rendition of the march the people remained at reverent attention.

Strathroy Plant Is
Wiped Out by Blaze
Stave Mill Was One of Largest in Western Ontario—Loss
Over $10,000.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Strathroy, June 3.—Fire, starting from some unknown cause just after noon today, wiped out the East End stave mill here, one of the biggest plants of its kind in Western Ontario.

At noon the half-dozen men working in the premises left for dinner, believing everything safe, and in a few minutes the whole place was in a fierce blaze. The fire brigade responded promptly to a call, but was powerless to do more than save the surrounding stock in the yards, and only the fact that the wind was blowing to the west and away from the yards made this possible.

The property is owned by James P. Bogue, who was out of town today, and it is believed the loss will amount to ten or twelve thousand dollars, as much stock was burned and very little insurance was carried.

In the busy season about 25 men are employed in the mill, but this is the slack season.

UTILITIES BOARD WILL RAISE RIVER LEVEL ONE FOOT

Action Necessary to Keep Peak
Load Down as Much as Possible.

BOAT OWNERS JUBILANT

High Water Imperative to Operate Hydraulic Pumps at Springbank.

Another foot of water may be added to the Thames River by the public utilities commission at a meeting Friday afternoon. This means another foot will be added to the dam at Springbank, something that those interested in boating have been trying to bring about for years.

If the commission does it, however, it will mean that it is a saving of at least $600 a day.

Yesterday and today the river sank about a foot, and boatmen could not account for it. The cause was traced to the use of hydraulics at Springbank to keep the city's peak down as much as possible. It was an extreme emergency of the street railway connection. This is the first year the street railway is using hydro power, and it became necessary to use the hydraulic pumps to keep the peak load down. The use of the hydraulic means a saving of 300 horsepower.

Extra Foot Is Needed.
The hydraulic pulled the river down, and as no water came in from above it remained down much to the disappointment of the launch owners and canoeists. The only remedy this summer, it is said, will be to put another foot on the dam, and it is strongly indicated that this will be done.

Will Submerge Island.
This proposed raising of the river will practically wipe out Grave Island, just beyond the Grand Trunk bridge. Just this morning the city engineer, Mr. Ashplan, has looked up the property title to this island and while several persons claim it, the city can find no trace of ownership; so the disputed ownership will not be a bar to putting on the extra foot at Springbank.

Launch owners were jubilant today when they heard of the contemplated action of the utilities commission. It will give them a deeper channel for their boats and a greater depth of water for sports.

Paving "Gateway" to South London Now

The Actual Construction Work
Undertaken by City Engineer
Amounts to $525,000.

The concrete work on Horton street from Ridout street bridge has been completed, and the work of laying the vitrified brick surface will be started at once and rushed to completion.

"This is a strategic road into South London," declared City Engineer Ashplan today, "and when this pavement is laid it will be laid for all time. I regard it as one of the most important improvements we have undertaken this year."

Work on the Wharncliffe road storm sewer was started yesterday, and it is expected it will be completed in two weeks. Mr. Ashplan stated he knew of no health restrictions on the work, and that everything had been planned according to existing bylaws. He said after the sewer was down it would be possible to lay substatant pavements, such as the residents are demanding.

Improvements Total $525,000.
Actual construction work undertaken this year by the city engineer's department under bylaws passed by the council now totals over half a million, the exact figures being $525,000. A small amount of this was authorized by last year's council, but was not finished.

MAJOR MORRIS TO REMAIN IN MONTREAL
TO ASSIST IN IDENTIFICATION OF DEAD

According to a letter received this morning from Major Frank Morris, divisional commander of the Salvation Army, with headquarters in this city, who was the only one of the 22 London passengers on the Empress who escaped, it will be some time before he arrives back in this city.

Following is the text of the letter written from Montreal headquarters of the Salvation Army and directed to the acting divisional commander, Adjutant Smith.

Adjutant George Smith,
London, Ontario.
My Dear Adjutant,—
I have arrived here, as you will see, from Quebec and Rimouski, and was glad to hear from you. I will not detail here to you the trying experiences of the past few days. I will leave that till a later date. God has been merciful.
I do not know when I shall reach London, as I expect to remain in this vicinity for a short time in order to see if I can help in the identifying of the remains. Then I would like to get Staff-Captain Arthur's body, if at all possible. I was able to find that of his dear wife.

God bless you,
F. MORRIS, Major.

GAS EXPLOSION DAMAGES PLANT AND KILLS EXPERT AT TORONTO

Interior of Generator and Boiler Rooms at Consumers' Company Buildings Wrecked—Shock Felt Like Earthquake.

[Canadian Press.]
Toronto, June 3.—An explosion at the Booth avenue plant of the Consumers' Gas Company, this morning caused the death of one man and slight injury to several others, and damaged the plant and surrounding property to the extent of six or eight thousand dollars. E. Foster, an expert employed by the company, was so badly injured that he died on his way to the hospital.

A Leaking Main.
The cause of the explosion has not been definitely ascertained, but is supposed to have resulted from a leaking main. It occurred just after the early morning crew had gone off duty. Foster was alone in the boiler room at the time, and was struck on the back of the head by some flying debris.

The interior of the generator room and the boiler room has the appearance of having been visited by a cyclone. Huge iron pipes, heavy from doors, steel-framed windows, twisted and bent in unrecognizable shapes. Masses of brick and mortar lie piled in gigantic heaps, and sections of machinery are scattered over the neighborhood.

Like an Earthquake.
So great was the force of the explosion that houses over a block away swayed and trembled as if shaken by a mighty earthquake, while the sound of the terrific explosion was heard as far east as the Kingston road and west as far as Church street.

NO TRACE OF KERR- RUSSELL FAMILY

Peter Russell Wires Wife From Quebec That Bodies Are Not Recovered.

VIEWED NINETY CORPSES
That More Dead Will Be Brought In.

After a fruitless search among the rows of dead on the wharves of Quebec, where he has been patiently threading his way since last Monday, Peter Russell of 9 Elgin street has come to the conclusion that none of the Kerr-Russell family was recovered from the Empress of Ireland.

Mrs. Russell received a telegram, from had viewed 60 bodies on the wharves and in different morgues of the city, but found no trace of the nine relatives who took passage on the boat.

Went Down in Their Sleep.
It was Mr. Russell's belief before he left here that if the family was lost it went down together and probably while they were asleep in their berths. Mr. Russell will remain at Quebec for the remainder of the week, to see if any more bodies are recovered from the wreck.

Looking for Father.
James Faulkner, of Clarke street, wired back home today that he is waiting at Montreal in the hope of recovering his father's body, and that he would not rest until he had recovered it.

PLAN MANY VISITS

Pere Marquette and Grand Trunk Lines Will Be Covered By Train.

Following the custom of many of the up-to-date cities, both on the American and Canadian side of the international border, London will have its first businessmen's excursion either at the end of the present month or at the beginning of July.

The object of this excursion, which includes a three-days' itinerary of Western Ontario towns, west of London, is to bring the local men in closer touch with their business field and to promote an inter-Western Ontario-London spirit. It is being conducted under the auspices of the London Industrial Bureau, and is for the bankers, wholesalers and manufacturers of the city. Between 50 and 100 are expected to participate.

While Industrial Commissioner Gordon Philip, who arranged the trip, made the announcement this morning, no date has yet been fixed. It was originally intended to hold it at the last of June, but the calling of the provincial elections for the 29th may have the effect of postponing it until July. The definite announcement of the dates of the trip will be made later.

Time-Table May Change.
The itinerary has been practically arranged, but the time-table will not be completed, owing to the fact that it may be changed to meet the requirements of the various towns that will be touched during the trip. In some of these places the municipal councils and the boards of trade will meet the London delegation and show them 'round the town as well as arrange for an official reception. This means that no time can be set until the plans of the individual towns have been made known.

The special train, which will be one of first-class equipment, will leave via the Pere Marquette and will travel over that line as far as Sarnia, where it will be transferred to the Grand Trunk, and brought back to London.

The itinerary includes:
First Day.
Dutton,
West Lorne,
Ridgeway,
Blenheim,
Berlin,
Wheatley,
Leamington,
Kingsville,
Harrow,
Walkerville.

Second Day.
Windsor,
Essex,

Port Lambton,
Sombra,
Courtright, Sarnia.

TWO

REFUSE TO ALLOW FIELD SECRETARY RIGHT TO QUESTION

South Huron Conservatives,
Afraid to Face the Music,
Nominate C. H. Eilber,
Who Accepts.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

HENSALL, June 2.—That the South Huron Conservatives, who assembled here this afternoon, and nominated C. H. Eilber as their candidate in the coming fight, were distinctly afraid to face the music, was shown when Rev. E. G. Powell, of Exeter, field secretary of the temperance forces of Huron, and Rev. Mr. Jefferson, were flatly refused permission to state their message to the candidate.

This was in striking contrast to the attitude taken at the recent Liberal convention, when the temperance delegates, three in number, were invited to the platform, and each man was given all the time he required to question Mr. Zeller.

As a result of the feeling that has been aroused by Mr. Hanna's breach of faith in regard to not cancelling the license, Mr. Eilber found himself in such a position that he repeatedly declined to consider the nomination. Pressure, however, has been brought to bear, and today he said he would accept.

A delegate asked if Rev. Mr. Powell were present, and that he be heard. Mr. Powell rose and asked permission to make a statement covering only four lines.

This was refused by Chairman L. H. Dickson, and Mr. Eilber also said he objected to any clergyman being allowed to speak and sway a Conservative convention. Rev. Mr. Jefferson rose, and said that he was a disinterested party entirely, and asked to be allowed to read Mr. Powell's statement. This request was refused also.

As a result of the attitude of the leaders, many temperance Conservatives declared that they could not do otherwise than stand by Mr. Zeller on principle, as he had pledged himself to support the banish the bar policy, or any move along that line made by Sir James Whitney, if it went further than Mr. Rowell's proposals.

Mr. Eilber in his address today lauded the acts of Mr. Hanna and Sir James Whitney, denying that the Premier is allied with the liquor interests.

He alleged hypocrisy on behalf of the Liberals throughout the plebiscite and referendum.

BAD BLOOD

IS THE DIRECT CAUSE OF Pimples.

Pimples break out on the face and body, and it is impossible to get rid of them, unless you cleanse the blood of all its impurities.

Burdock Blood Bitters is without a doubt, the very best medicine for this purpose.

This old, and reliable medicine has been in use for nearly forty years, and has a reputation unequalled by any other preparation for removing all the impurities from the blood and banishing the pimples.

Mr. Edward Paquette, Navan Centre, Ont., writes:—"One month ago my face was covered with pimples and a rash. I had tried a number of these so called blood purifiers with no avail. Seeing an almanac of yours in which you strongly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to try a bottle, and after I had taken it I could see a decided change, and after using three bottles more all the pimples had completely disappeared."

FIGHT OVER C. N. R. BILLS AT AN END

Measure Gets Third Reading in House, With Liberals Fighting to Finish.

AMENDMENTS DEFEATED

Attempt to Get Conciliation
Board in B. C. Mine Trouble
Fails on Division.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

OTTAWA, June 2.—The most aggressive lobby which Parliament has ever seen and the big Government majority has won, the fight which the Liberals have been waging morning, noon and night for the past five weeks is over.

Mackenzie & Mann and the Borden ministry have won. Tonight at 11 o'clock the bill which guaranteed $14,000,000 worth of Canadian Northern bonds was given its third reading and sent forward to the Senate for the consideration of that chamber.

The Liberals fought to the last. Today two more amendments were offered for the improvement of the bill and the protection of the people. The Government rejected them both. Sir Wilfrid Laurier early in the day put forward an amendment of such a reasonable and sensible a character that it was hoped the Government might be induced to accept it. However, it went the way of all the suggestions which have come from the Opposition.

Labor Amendment. The other amendment was in the interest of Labor and was proposed by Mr. Alphonse Verville, the Labor member from Montreal. It declared that the Canadian Northern bill should not take effect until Mackenzie & Mann had agreed to the appointment of a board of conciliation to report upon the dispute between the miners of British Columbia and the mine-owners, the chief of which are the Canadian Northern magnates. The miners were turned out of Mackenzie & Mann's mine over a year ago, and all efforts to get a board appointed since have failed.

Labor members were able to show that there was good precedent for this position, as the Conservatives took similar ground when in opposition, at the time the Grand Trunk Pacific bill was before Parliament.

Government's Contention. The Government made no effort to conceal its dislike for Mr. Verville's bill. They sought to have it ruled out of order. This failing, Minister of Labor Crothers, Mr. Clements, of British Columbia, and Mr. Bristol, of Toronto, sought to show that Mackenzie & Mann did not control any of the mines affected by the labor dispute. Mr. Stevens, of British Columbia, described the amendment as perfectly useless.

However, the records of Parliament were against this contention. From returns made by the Government to Parliament, W. P. Carroll, of Cape Breton, showed that the negotiations with the Government on behalf of the mineowners concerned had been conducted by D. B. Hanna, of the Canadian Northern, and by F. W. Annesley, secretary to Sir William Mackenzie. The Labor department, in its letters to the Canadian Northern officials, had referred to "your mines," and the Canadian Northern had referred to the trouble "in our mines."

The vote resulted in the defeat of Mr. Verville's motion by a majority of 47. Mr. Nickle again voted with the Liberals, while Mr. Charlton, of Norfolk, voted against the amendment. R. B. Bennett was paired with G. W. Fowler, also a government member.

Third reading was then given the bill. During the long fight the Government voted down eight amendments.

Regiment From Taking Part.

MONTREAL, June 2.—Friends of the Sixty-Fifth Regiment, of Montreal, are very much concerned about a supposed order from Col. Sam Hughes, minister of militia, forbidding the regiment taking part in the next Corpus Christi parade. The regiment is composed of Catholics and has been accustomed to taking part in the Corpus Christi ceremony.

The commander of the Sixty-fifth declines to make a statement with reference to the matter. Father Labelle, parish priest of Notre Dame, says he is informed that the regiment must decline to take part in the ceremony.

STORSTAD SAILOR IS ACCUSED OF CRIME

Alleged That He Tried to Cash Check
Belonging to Empress Victim.

MONTREAL, June 2.—A sailor off the Storstad, which rammed and sank the Empress of Ireland, was today arrested by the police, charged with attempting to cash a check, which it is believed was found on one of the survivors of the wreck.

Until they have completed their investigations the police decline to give out the sailor's name.

In the police here believe that this sailor had already cashed one check. It was while trying to cash the second that the suspicion of a bank teller were aroused against him.

Two Sailors Arrested. MONTREAL, June 2.—Two sailors of the Norwegian collier, Storstad, were arrested in Montreal this afternoon on a charge of theft of checks to the amount of $1,000, the property of Lionel Kent, of Montreal, one of the survivors of the wrecked Empress of Ireland. Michael Chute, of Honolulu, and Carmel Spectti, a Maltese, are the prisoners in question.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3.

MR. ROWELL'S NOMINATION.

THERE have been jubilant predictions in the Conservative press of trouble among the Liberals of North Oxford. We were told that there was dissatisfaction with the choice of an outsider as the candidate for the Provincial Legislature, and that Mr. Rowell's re-nomination would be opposed. Evidently the wish was father to the thought. The convention has met, the enthusiasm was all that could be desired, but Mr. Rowell's name was the only one mentioned, and he received the unanimous nomination.

Liberals expected nothing else. That the natural preference of the party in North Oxford would be for a local man under ordinary circumstances is certain. There are in that riding people of marked ability, any one of whom would be a credit to any constituency as its representative. North Oxford has always been a stronghold of Liberalism and the abode of strong Liberals. There would have been no trouble in securing men in that riding who would easily take a place in the front rank among party leaders in the Assembly.

But the Liberals of North Oxford are as loyal as they are capable. The success of the cause bulks larger in their eyes than personal considerations or local pride. They recognized that the rejection of Mr. Rowell under present circumstances would have been a serious injury to the cause. It would have been heralded from one end of the province to the other by Conservative papers and politicians as an evidence of party dissensions, of lack of confidence in the leader, and of disagreement with his policy. Not only so, but it would have necessitated Mr. Rowell seeking a new constituency, and would have involved him in the time and labor of a personal campaign when his presence is required all over the province. The leader of a party must be free in an election contest to give his services wherever and whenever called for. Oxford Liberals realize the situation; and in the spirit of self-sacrifice and loyalty which has always characterized them they have placed themselves at the disposal of the party. All honor to them!

All that remains now is for our friends in North Oxford to secure Mr. Rowell's return to the Legislature by the largest possible majority. That will set at rest any talk about disapproval of his policy. That there is a normal Liberal majority in the riding will not justify any indifference. That Mr. Rowell's election is sure should not prevent all friends of social and moral reform, no matter by what party name called, acting with all the energy that would be necessary if the riding were closely divided. We want, not simply his election, but the largest majority that can be polled.

FAMILY QUARRELS.

MR. REAUME, Sir James Whitney's minister of public works, has apparently struck a snag. He rearranged the county of Essex so as to make things more agreeable for the party, and provided a new constituency, consisting of the urban portion, embracing Windsor, Walkerville and Sandwich. And after, as was supposed, fixing it up for himself, he finds that the constituency does not want him. At the Conservative convention he found himself so clearly in the minority that he withdrew his name, and ex-Mayor Fleming received the nomination. The convention was informed that the Premier wanted Mr. Reaume nominated, but that had no effect. Of course, there was any amount of quarrelling and mud-throwing. They called each other bad names, and the nominee was declared to be a traitor to his party. There was evidently enthusiasm of a kind, but not the kind that augurs well for success.

We have had considerable talk among the Conservatives about disagreements in the Liberal party, and that it was not united in support of Mr. Rowell's policy. And it has never been denied that there was truth in the statement, at least to the extent that some of the people who had previously voted Liberal would leave its ranks when it pledged itself to banish the bar. Nor is there any doubt that some good Liberals did not consider this radical reform a wise measure in the interests simply of party success. But that is perfectly natural. It is seldom that any political party can make a pronounced advance in any direction, and take up a principle on which there is a difference of opinion, but what it will find some of its members dissatisfied, and lose some of its supporters. But it is no disgrace to any party if it suffers some temporary damage on account of adherence to principle. And any loss the Liberal party may suffer on account of its advance in temperance reform is nothing to be ashamed of, no matter how much it may be regretted.

---and the Worst Is Yet to Come

The difference between the two parties at present lies in this: that while the Liberals may not be unanimous on some great question where a principle is involved, the Conservatives squabble and fight over petty personal ambitions, and for selfish considerations. From a party point of view, we do not know whether or not there is any choice between Mr. Reaume and Mr. Fleming. The former's speedy promotion in his party was said to be due to the desire of Sir James, when he came into power, to have the various nationalities represented in his cabinet. Mr. Reaume, the new member for North Essex, seemed to be the most available man to represent the French-Canadian element. That was the only qualification he had for a seat in the cabinet; so better men had to stand aside for him. He has not shown any special indications of statesmanship since he took charge of the provincial public works. But for all we know, he may be as good a man as Sir James can find for the place he wants him to fill. It is not our funeral. The Conservatives must decide the dispute among themselves. Only it might be as well for them to cease talking about Liberal differences on matters of principle, and settle their own family quarrels without washing a lot of dirty linen in public.

MR. ROWELL WINS AN ALLY.

NO man has been nominated by the Liberal party in Ontario who is not pledged to the policy of "Abolish the Bar." The Conservative press has been anxious to find dissension, and in one or two cases was able to report the words of those who did not agree with Mr. Rowell. These Liberals have a complete right to their opinions, but not one of them has been nominated to carry the Liberal standard. Whenever a man declared against the Rowell policy has sought nomination, he has been defeated. The party has demanded of its candidates that they shall support Mr. Rowell and his policy. The result has been that everywhere Liberalism is attracting to its banner the best types of men in the community, men who stand for all that is morally helpful to the community.

But it would appear that, in spite of all that has been done to prevent it, temperance sentiment is cropping out at many of the Conservative conventions. In Peterboro, on Monday, Mr. R. J. Soden captured the West Peterboro nomination by coming out directly as an "Abolish the Bar" candidate. Today, he stands pledged to vote with Mr. Rowell on the temperance questions. It may be said that in Ontario the two parties are so fundamentally alike on most policies, that his declaration makes of Mr. Soden a Liberal to all intents and purposes. No matter who wins in West Peterboro, the Rowell policy will have a supporter. That is all that Ontario Liberalism of today will ask. There is no need to give the tale a moral. The Conservatives would not appreciate it, and the Liberals see it quite clearly.

SIGNIFICANT.

THE revolt of the Conservatives of the new urban riding of Windsor, Sandwich and Walkerville, against the Ontario Government is of more than passing significance. The riding was created for Dr. J. O. Reaume, in the expectation that it would provide him with a "safe seat." Based on the figures at the last election, it appeared safe enough. Dr. Reaume had a majority of 141 in Windsor, and a majority of 205 in Walkerville, breaking even in Sandwich. In the entire riding of North Essex his majority was only 56. In the gerrymander of the province the Government sliced off the two strongest Conservative municipalities of North Essex, added a third, and assigned it to the Minister of Public Works. At the convention on Monday evening, the minister appeared, armed with a telegram from Sir James Whitney, urging the unanimous acceptance of Hon. Dr. Reaume as the nominee. Dr. Reaume was not nominated. This is the first jolt to the Hanna gerrymander; it will not be the last. If the Hanna government had been conducted with merely an indifferent desire to meet the wishes of the people, it would stand in a different light before the people today. There was no excuse for the gerrymander, except a desire on the part of the Hanna crowd to hog every possible seat in the Legislature, by either honest or dishonest tactics. There was no excuse for telling the people of the border constituency that they should nominate Mr. Reaume. A wise government would have recognized the fact that the people of Windsor and adjoining municipalities are capable of thinking for themselves, and should be permitted to nominate whom they choose. They have buried the insult back to Mr. Hanna's government in righteous indignation.

The gerrymander has been given its first jolt.

Dr. Reaume no doubt sees the beginning of the end.

Dr. Reaume took a large swallow of his own gerrymander tonic.

It is apparent that Conservative temperance sentiment is declaring itself with Mr. Rowell.

The rejection of Dr. Reaume should be a nightmare to the Seven Sleepers at Queen's Park.

The Conservatives will have quite enough to do looking after their own conventions in the future.

Every mother, sister, daughter and wife in Ontario has a direct interest in the fight to abolish the bar.

"Silence Reigns Over Ulster"—Newspaper headline. Perhaps all hands are holding back for the Twelfth of July.

Dr. Reaume turned down flat; Mr. Beck keeping out of it; Mr. Hanna managing the whole thing—that's about the situation.

Several Canadian cities are trying to solve the masher problem. It would help a lot if the average woman kept the "eyes front" rule.

It has been said that morals and politics won't mix. They will when the politics are clean and uplifting, as Mr. Rowell has clearly shown.

The issue of the coming elections is the cleanest cut of any campaign in years, but watch the Conservative spellbinders attempt to confuse it.

That the independent progressive people of Ontario should return to power the most unrepentant Government in years seems incredible.

Sir James' endorsement of Dr. Reaume failed to impress the Essex men in the slightest. First thing they know they will be prosecuted for lese majeste.

Sir James will have to trot out old Anti-Treating pretty soon. That Peterboro Conservative candidate will serve Mr. Rowell quite as well as a Liberal.

The world could ill spare that splendid band of Salvation Army workers who went down with the Empress of Ireland. Mysterious, indeed, are the ways of Providence.

Someone claims to be close to the origin of the solar system. He had better keep it dark until after June 29, or Mr. Hanna will be appropriating it as campaign material.

It is whispered in select political circles that there are other Conservatives who will not take a nomination unless it is understood that they will vote with Mr. Rowell on the temperance question.

The Conservative press has been trying to sow the seeds of dissension in the Liberal fields, but the fair winds that blow for Mr. Rowell have carried the tares and thistles back into Tory gardens.

Sir James wrote to those who nominated him at Dundas that he was almost as well as before his illness. He did not attend the convention, however, which does not indicate his usually keen interest in the contest.

Sir James Whitney has decided to consult the people, says the Kingston Standard. And may it be asked, about what? Perhaps the people would like to be consulted as to whether or not they want Mr. Hanna as the next Premier.

When a cabinet minister, with the endorsement of Sir James, cannot win a Conservative convention, what will happen when the country is asked to return the Government with an increased majority merely for the sake of making that Government feel a little more cheery.

Sir James Whitney was not the guiding hand in the last session. While he is now able to appear as the nominal Premier, his name is being used to conduct an election on behalf of the man who made the mess. It is not fair to Sir James, and it is an act of injustice toward the public which will be rebuked at the polls.

E. A. Peck, M. P. P. for West Peterboro, who won his contest by more than 600 votes in the last election, lost all chance of being elected this year because a temperance candidate for nomination stampeded the convention in favor of Mr. Rowell's policy. He proved to be a sort of Peck's bad boy. Mr. Rowell will welcome as many as care to join his army of this kind of Conservative candidates.

The Reaume incident is merely illustrative of the high-handed way in which the Ontario Government conducted the last session. They crushed out practically every reform measure suggested by the Opposition, and wound up ignominiously by carving up the province to unseat some of the militant Liberal members and add Conservative seats. Then they called an election long before it was due.

POEMS WORTH READING

IN AFTER YEARS.

[By Eric Ross Goulding.]
The paramount affairs of life occupy quite a secondary place in the scheme of things today. We have cunningly evolved for ourselves conditions such as are wholly detrimental to any clear conception of the permanent and satisfying values of life. The truth of the matter is, men cannot afford to love; and Byron's statement to the effect that:

"Man's love is of man's life a thing apart—
'Tis woman's whole existence."

in so far as it affects woman, is fast passing into the region of myth and fable. Because men cannot afford to love, woman's emotional energy is passing into an intellectual activity, the dynamic progress of which may lead anywhere but to the stars! Hope, however, remains in the fact that some true men and some true women do exist.

He dream'd— a slender youth—of things to be,
And saw in visions piles of glittering gold.
Vast wealth and power, all his to have and hold.
And so pluck fruit from pleasure's laden tree.
Life would be life—full, perfect, large and free!
So dream'd the youth; but when the years grew old—
The days of life—o'er his great spirit bold
Long'd for a vision brighter yet to see.

The fleet-foot years speeds swiftest on apace
(The race of life is not an easy race!)
What sees he now he never saw at first?
The vista of those empty years accurst!
Too late! He ne'er had seen love's wondrous face—
Love pass'd him by—tears from his dim eyes burst!

—Eric Ross Goulding.

Silk poplin in a new shade of blue, with facings of white, braided in blue, was used to make this attractive model. KEEP LINEN CUPBOARD NEAT

A linen cupboard is a much-desired or a much-prized possession with most housewives who have a good store of household linens. A cupboard that is entirely free from damp is a necessity for such use.

The linen must be methodically stored to be easy of access. One shelf should be allotted to sheets, which should be kept paired, and as each pair returns from the wash it should be placed underneath those in the press, as this done regularly insures proper rotation in use. The same plan should be adopted with all the other articles, which should be neatly piled on shelves reserved for them.

An inventory should be made of all the articles, either in a book kept in the cupboard, or on a large piece of paper pasted inside the door. If a book is used it is better to make the list on the right-hand side of the page only, as the left side is then available for comments later on, when the stock has to be replenished, as, for instance, opposite the item tablecloths might be inserted "two new cloths" (give date), two ditto, old, made into sideboard slips.

The tablecloths will wear better if from time to time they are folded in a different way when being ironed, for instance, folding them long ways in three instead of in four as usually done. This relieves the cloth from the wear of being continually kept in the same crease.

To protect the contents of the shelves from the dust that accumulates even in a closed cupboard, a piece of unbleached cotton is spread on the shelf, under the stored linen. It is wide enough to be turned up over the piles.

Cynthia Grey's Mail-Box

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letters can be answered privately.]

Delights in Column.

Miss Grey.—I have been interested in your column in The Advertiser for a long time, and take great delight in reading same. I would also be much obliged if you would come to my rescue by answering the following questions:

1. Which is the right place for a person to walk when accompanied by two young women?

2. What is the meaning of the following names: Helen, Lenore, Freda, Lillian, Elizabeth, and Florence? Kindly show this as soon as possible, as question No. 1 has been a puzzle to me in the past.

From.

"Inquisitive from Imperial City."
Ans.—I presume you mean that the third person is a young man. He should walk on the outside of the sidewalk. There, I trust this relieves your mind.

2. Helen, light; Lenore, light; Freda, peace; Lillian, a lily; Elizabeth, consecrated; Florence, blooming.

Sends Old Song.

Dear Miss Grey.—In tonight's paper you asked for the old song of "Gathering Up the Shells from the Shore." I have several books of these old songs and I find this among the others, so am pleased to be able to send a copy of the words.

Sincerely yours,

LEON.

Ans.—Thank you, Leon, I am indeed pleased to receive the song from you. It will appear within a day or two.

About Jean Blewett.

Dear Miss Grey.—Would you please tell me where the Canadian writer, Jean Blewett was born? And some of her works? What does she write the most of: prose, short stories, or poetry? Where can I get a sketch of her life?

Many thanks for your trouble, DODIE.
A.—Mrs. Jean Blewett was born at Scotia, Lake Erie, on November 4, 1862, the daughter of John and Janet McKinnon, natives of Argyllshire, Scotland. She was educated at St. Thomas College Institute, and very early in life displayed evidences of the marked literary talent which has made her famous.

As far as I know, she has only published one novel, entitled "Out of the Depths" (1885). A volume of her poems called "Heart Songs" was published in 1897. In this collection is a poem on "Spring," which won a prize of $600 offered by a Chicago newspaper for the best verse on springtime.

While she is a young woman, the poet married Basset Blewett, of Cornwall, Eng. They reside in Toronto.

Mrs. Blewett is a woman of great charm. She is a regular contributor to the Globe and many periodicals. Of her Eugene Field said: "Sweet and pure-eyed, clear-voiced, holding the God-given dower—a poet's soul."

I hope, Dodie, that the above is something along the line you desire.

If you send me your address I can mail you a little sketch which may be of use.

Dear Miss Grey.—Will you kindly tell me the date of the war between the North and the South?

READER.

Ans.—The American Civil War began with the bombardment of Fort Sumter April 12, 1861, and came to an end during the last of April, 1865, with the surrender of the Confederates.

Dear Miss Grey.—Here I come again to trouble you. I am going to send your columns to my sister in England, and I have sent you two recipes, also thanking you for your kindness. I will be on the lookout for the list of help-ful books, which will give me a better understanding what to get. Please would you give me the meaning of artemisia; the druggist here does not know what it means. Yours, JEANETTE.

Chocolate Fudge: Here is a recipe for chocolate fudge, but first of all I must say you have to use your own judgment with it. First take two cups of brown sugar, put in a pan, then butter the size of an egg, little vanilla, two tablespoons of cocoa, and just damp with milk; then boil till you see it a little thick, same as gravy; take from the fire and beat till quite cold so as it will spread; have your buttered plate ready; before it hardens cut in squares with a knife; the butter seems to give it a cream-like taste; it is also very nice with hickory nuts. Ingrown toenail cure: One of your readers was asking for an ingrown toenail cure; the patient on whom I first tried this plan was a young lady

THE HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1914.

Businessmen should find this day exceedingly lucky, astrologers declare. Jupiter, Mars and Saturn are all in benefic aspect, but Saturn and the Sun exercise an adverse influence.

Those who make the most of the early hours should profit. It is an auspicious time for speculation, but warning is given again ventures which will lead to public condemnation. There is a prediction that scandals in relation to war supplies will be uncovered.

The rule is fortunate for taking counsel with judges, bankers, merchants and brokers.

Commercial travelers are subject to a lucky leading today. The way is believed to encourage buying and to make those who buy satisfied with their purchases.

Mars is in a place read as fortunate, while the configuration lasts, but the planet presages troubles "within and without" the United States. Success with arms is indicated, but loss of life by means of fevers and pestilence is presaged by the stars.

Illness of a cabinet minister is prognosticated. There is a sinister sign governing the health of men who are in prominent places. Agriculture is subject to a promising rule of the planets. Good crops are indicated, but farmers will sustain large losses.

London astrologers predict that the twelfth and the twenty-eighth of this month will be critical dates for certain European and Asiatic countries. Athletes should benefit today, especially those who were born between March 21 and April 20. The kindly aspects of Mars are supposed to impart strength to the whole system, muscular and circulatory.

Engineers have a lucky omen, especially those connected with military operations. "Surgeons should prosper in this day's work. Fame for several is indicated. One will win public gratitude by deeds of heroism in a foreign country.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will enjoy a year of success and happiness. Increase of money is indicated by their stars. They should guard against accident.

Children born on this day have the augury of fortunate lives. As subjects of Gemini their principal ruling planet is Mercury. They should have talent, but they must be trained to do work with thoroughness, for the

HECK'S GREAT PITCHING WINS SENSATIONAL GAME AT OTTAWA

London Southpaw Gets a 1 to 0 Decision Over "Lefty" Rogers When Whitcraft Scores From Third on Mullin's Sacrifice Fly in the Ninth Inning.

(BY MALCOLM T. BRICE.)
OTTAWA, June 2.—By scoring the only run of the game in the ninth inning, London won a sensational contest from the Champions yesterday 1 to 0. It was a twirlers conflict, the whole way, between "Lefty" Rogers and Bobby Heck. The two portenders pitched such elegant ball, there was not a margin one way or the other. Heck had glib-edged support behind him, while a misplay led to the undoing of Rogers. Each moundman allowed six hits, no more than two coming in the single inning. Heck fanned eight Senators and was at his best in the tight places. Rogers also showed his game when trouble threatened.

Heck Gets Out of Bad Hole.
The whole game centred practically on the final inning. In the third, however, Heck pulled himself out of a terribly deep hole when the bases were full with none gone and got by without a run coming across. He exerted himself to the utmost in this period and forced the next three hitters to bounce the ball to his infield who, playing in, forced two men at the plate and threw the last man out at first. It was a brilliant recovery and the crowd gave Bobby a big hand for his achievement.

Whitcraft Scored Winning Run.
Outside of the third, neither side looked anywhere near scoring. In fact London only got two men as far as third during the contest. With cyphers going up each round, the crowd settled back for the break which was bound to come at some stage or another, but which could not be discerned with the slightest certainty and Heck was serving. The crack came in London's ninth. Bierbauer popped out to Dolan. Whitcraft bounced one down to Fried and short and the youngster juggled it. Whitcraft being safe. Reidy crossed everyone up by sousing a hit to left. Whitcraft going to third. He scored on Mullin's long sacrifice fly to deep centre. Shaughnessy making a valiant heave to the plate, but was much too far away to have a chance of getting the runner. Snyder then tore off a hit to left on which Reidy attempted to score, but was thrown out at the plate. Wager to Bullock to Lage.

Ottawa Looked Dangerous in Ninth.
It looked a cinch the Champions would tie it up in their half when Pettie Powers led off with a terrific drive to left centre, pulling up easily at second. Dolan made two vain attempts to sacrifice him to third, then fanned. Wager hit to short and Powers went to third on his out. Tom Kane was sent up to hit for Fried and sent a slow roller to Linneborn, who threw him out, ending the game.

The game was played in the remarkable fast time of ninety minutes.

Heck Fans Three in First.
Heck worked on the hitters more than Rogers, but the latter pitched fewer balls than the London man. In the first inning, Heck fanned Bullock and Nili, walked Shaughnessy and fanned Rogers. His predominate in the third came when Wager cracked the first ball pitched for a clean single.

Fried walked and Bullock laid one down along the third base foul line, which no one could handle, and all hands were safe with none gone.

Nili bounced one to Heck, who threw Wager out at the plate. Shag hit to Linneborn, who threw Fried out at the plate. Rogers then died, Heck to Bierbauer, not a ball being hit out of the infield after the runners got on.

Big Crowd Present.
The fact that a win for Ottawa would tie them with the Cockneys for the league leadership brought out a good crowd, the gathering being augmented by the fact that it was ladies' day, eight hundred fair fans being in the stands. Tomorrow is a holiday, morning and afternoon games being billed, and on account of the furious fight the two clubs are putting up for the top position, an enormous crowd is expected to be on hand for the game. The weather was quite chilly this afternoon, but more balmy stuff is promised on the morrow.

Linneborn accepted six chances at second in snappy style and Whitcraft played a sterling game in the short field. Ottawa had nine men left on bases against London's seven.

RYE, N. Y., June 2.—Heeled under a stiff northwest breeze until even her bronzed underbody glistened in the late afternoon sun like burnished gold, Alexander S. TALBOT STREET WON FROM ST. GEORGES

Talbot Street beat St. George by the score of 4 to 0 in a Schoolboys' Lacrosse League game played last evening. It was a battle royal from start to finish, and the youngsters showed a surprising knowledge of the fine points of the game. Head in the limelight for the losers, W. J. Clarke refereed.
The game between Chesley School and Ealing was defaulted to Ealing, Chesley failing to show up.

ASHER MAKES HIS DEBUT

Former South Michigan League Player Pitches Fair Ball for Brantford.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

ST. THOMAS, June 2.—The Saints broke their losing streak here today when they took Ruben Deneau's crew into camp by a score of 2 to 0, and Verne Hughey scored his second shut-out of the season. Ed Asher, formerly of the Southend club, was in the box for the Brants, and also twirled a good game, pulling himself out of some tight places.

The locals got their first run in the fifth inning, when Hughey was walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Kopp sacrificed, and Gadsby grounded out to Deneau. Hadley singled past first, scoring Hughey.

They added another in the seventh, when Kopp was given transportation, and went to second on Gadsby's single. Hadley forced Kopp at third, but Kustus got a life when Wagner dropped Roth's throw.

Gadsby scored when Umpire Bedford waved him in on Asher's balk. The visitors never got a man past second. Manager Craven has purchased infielder Jack McNellis from the Nashville, Tenn. club, and is dickering for a southpaw at Yale University.

AMAZING IMITATION OF ZWICKER JEWELRY STOCK

GEO. W. WISNOM, Sales Manager.

Can Wisnom sell this stock by Saturday night? Come and see the whirlwind selling. The great crowds, many of whom are unable to gain entrance at the night sale for lack of room, realize that here is a genuine sale of the best in diamonds, watches, clocks and jewelry. Mr. Wisnom has little regard for the cost of merchandise. He is universally conceded to be the greatest of sales directors, and his wonderful success in closing out stocks is largely due to the fact that he has the public's goodwill, because every day during this sale he saves hundreds of dollars for those who buy. The real climax of this going-out-of-business sale begins this afternoon and tonight. If you can realize what it means to sell everything by Saturday night, you will understand that we have a gigantic task on our hands. We will succeed, however, because we are willing to accept any price sacrifice that the limited time makes necessary. Out go fine watches, china, clocks, cut glass and fixtures. Come this afternoon and tonight, until midnight. Presents. Music. Seats. More room tonight.

"Done To A Turn"

THE UPPER CRUST

By the Author of
HE COMES UP SMILING,
THE MYSTERIOUS
"CHARLES SHERMAN."

Copyright, The Bobbs-Merrill Company.

Algernon paused. "Don't ask for justice, Molly. You might get it."

"And you?" she flashed out. "What of yourself? I am a thief, a liar, a reprobate, but what of you? Have you been above reproach; even during the last month of your life, to think nothing of what you did? What of yourself? You past is blameless. I can swear it on the Bible if you wish me to. I came up here with the intention to do the very best in my power for Mrs. Todd. The country people got it into their heads that I was Mrs. Todd and kept calling me by that name. I didn't want anything at first, just for the fun in it. I did everything I was ordered to. I put the house in order, saw to the gardens and stables—Wait, you must listen. Then one day Hancock came to call. He said he had heard that I was in the neighborhood, and came over in his motor boat across the bay to be friendly. I cared for no one else. You had not come. I played up to the part of Mrs. Todd, as anyone would, Joe, just for fun, and to see if I could fool him as I had the country people, and to help him. He seemed to care for me right away, Joe, and somehow I began to like him. How could I help it? What woman would not have thought about it? He knew nothing about the Todds, and it was easy to fool him. Joe, how could I have helped not wanting to marry him? You had not come."

"Molly, for heaven's sake!"

"I realized all it would mean to myself for me to marry him. Just having a home and someone to care for you and keep you from being forced to earn your own living was temptation enough for one woman. Well he began to come at all hours of the day. I did not have clothes to live up to the part. I was tempted and I fell. Joe, am I the first and only person who has been tempted by his strength? You know it isn't, that you know it isn't, he interrupted dully.

"What is it, then? I fell, but I thought I would simply run up a few bills in the Todds' name, that I should be married before he became due, as good as married, anyway, and I could pay the bills."

myself. The Todds would not be out anything, might not even know anything about it. And then, about that check I was desperate. Joe. Success was so near, in a day or two, a week at least, it would be mine. What was one little check? That, too, I could pay back. But you forged that yourself. Why am I beyond the pale? What of yourself? You joined in the cheating. You knew that I was not Mrs. Todd. I told you myself. Why don't you go then and tell the authorities? Have you done something in New York that you are hiding from the law yourself, and didn't dare go and tell me? Ah, you see! Last night you asked me to marry you, and yet you knew all that I had done."

"No, I didn't, Molly. But for goodness sake, let's drop this. I am busy. I can't stop."

"Yes, busy for the sake of some man. How is he any better than I? Look at what he has done! He is a cheat, forger, counterfeiter, just the same as I."

"Let's drop this. It is only degrading and utterly useless. The man has nothing whatever to do with me except indirectly. I gave him my promise that I would not tell his secret to anyone. I shall redeem my honor as well as I can in my own sight and to my own satisfaction."

"Your honor?" she sneered.

"Yes, but he only shrugged his shoulders and started again for the door. I don't do as she was before him, closing it in his face."

"Tell me what you mean."

"I mean that telegram you sent." he answered. "I told you his pitiful secret because I was fool enough to think I owed it to you, gave you my honor to keep and you tossed it aside with your own. Now you know, and have known all along. Let me by."

"The girl's face turned ghastly white, her hands clenched. She threw back her head and her eyes blazed with fury. In her anger she did not clearly grasp his words, thinking that he had been betrayed, and that he blamed her."

"It is false," said she hoarsely. "I sent no telegram to anyone. I asked you to trust me. You didn't, but I would have died, Joe, before I would have betrayed that trust."

He was miserable, embarrassed, and she saw that he did not believe her, that she had done nothing to destroy any possibility that he could believe her now. The thought drove her mad. She threw out her hands pleadingly.

"I have been false," she whispered. "through and through. But I love you, and would die before I would false to you. I love you, Joe, and I ask you to believe me. What I said last night I did not mean. I take it all back. I love you more than anything in all the world. I will take in washing, I will scrub floors, if only I may be your wife, and you will believe me."

Algernon turned aside, his face working, the hand that held his hat trembling. "Let me by," he muttered.

"Joe, on my knees, I ask you to believe me. This is only painful."

She leaned quickly toward him, the light springing up again in her eyes. He thought of her treachery, of the man who had given him his misplaced confidence, and his face hardened, as his disgust and quickly she saw the change. She laid her hands on his shoulders, and whispering his name, all his pleading and longing in the one little word.

"Joe."

Algernon put her aside gently and opened the door. "It's all right, Molly," he said. "You marry Hancock and be happy."

Then he crossed the terrace, leaped the coping to the lawn below, and as he ran toward the garage, the stable clock struck eight.

CHAPTER XVII.
The Weak Line.

Left alone, the girl thought desperately anxiously. She knew Joe planned to go with the sloop, and this wholesale robbery of her employer alarmed and terrified as well as angered her. She had intended to return all she took, and had soothed her conscience with the thought that it was only borrowing. She was sure of her own charms and of Hancock's susceptibility, but it knew that it was only a question of days before she would have thousands with which to repay the little she had taken. But Joe had no expectations. He was running away from the law as it was, and that with the sloop, stealing it deliberately, and with no chance or desire apparently to return it.

In dulled indecision she watched from the hall window Bates and the gardener go for the sloop in one of the motor boats as tug. She watched them scramble on board, pull up the anchor and get back into the motor boat. She heard the panting of the engine as the little boat tugged and strained to get under way, and finally started back to the wharf. She could have gone out and stopped them, for she had nothing to fear herself from anything Joe could do in retaliation, since the man she believed to be Todd himself was in town and aware of her trickery. But still she hesitated. The law was after Joe. The sloop was his one means of safety, and she realized weakly that she did not have the strength to take it from him, bemirched as she was with her own deceit. Besides, she had asked the boy to check, and though she was firmly convinced that he had done so often before, she had asked him, and that he was ready and willing to do it again, yet he had sinned for her, at her instigation, and she felt as though she was the one who had done wrong.

She was responsible for him, and could not stand in his way when he had done what he had for her. To Be Continued.

ARE YOU GOING TO MUSKOKA THIS SUMMER?

If so take the 10:20 a. m. fast express from Toronto daily except Sunday, via Grand Trunk Railway, and arrive Muskoka. Wharf 1:45 p. m., where direct connections are made with steamers for points on Muskoka lakes. This train carries parlor, library, buffet car and first class coaches, and passengers are assured of a comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka. Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far famed Muskoka Lakes.

The curative and balneological and pine, and the preponderance of water area to land surface, together with the high altitude (1,000 feet above the sea), render hay fever an impossible condition and a perfect remedy from this annoying ailment is assured.

Return connection is made with train leaving Muskoka Wharf 10:30 a. m. daily except Sunday, arriving Toronto 2:35 p. m.

Tourist tickets at low fares are now on sale to Muskoka Lakes points, good for stop-over and valid to return until November 30th, 1914.

If you are contemplating making a trip ask Grand Trunk Agents for full particulars or write C. F. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ontario.

ALGONQUIN PARK FOR THE SUMMER.

Now that the accommodation at Algonquin Park is of such a nature as appeals to the summer tourist and angler, there is not a more delightful spot to spend the summer months.

The Highland Inn, at Cache Lake, Algonquin Park Station, offers good accommodation at reasonable rates, and the two log cabin camps, one nine miles north of the Highland Inn on Island Lake, and the other seven miles south of the inn on Smoke Lake, give splendid accommodation far from the maddening crowd, and where the fish bite.

Write to Mr. G. W. Haworth, Resident Manager, Highland Inn, Algonquin Park Station, Ont., for all information and handsome descriptive publication. (47l)

ST. LAWRENCE NOT TO BLAME THIS TIME

Financial News, However, Says Canada Should Demonstrate Its Safety.

[Canadian Press.] London, June 3.—Dismissing the Ennals disaster in a special shipping article, the Financial News asserts that apprehension exists in the Dominion let the St. Lawrence route be adversely affected by the accident; but on this occasion the human element rather than navigation difficulties was responsible for the tragedy. Nevertheless, says the article, the river is a dangerous one. At the same time the southern route gives evidence of dangers.

It is now for the authorities on the other side to demonstrate that navigation in the river and gulf involves, for competent seamen and vessels, no unusual difficulty.

AVIATOR KILLED. [Canadian Press.] Sesto Calende, Italy, June 3.—The Italian aviator Cevasco was drowned in Lake Maggiore yesterday, as the result of the bursting of the engine of a hydro-aeroplane in which he was making a flight.

Last year, accompanied by the aviator Deroy, Cevasco made a flight from Milan to Rome, a distance of 410 miles, in a little more than six hours.

SNOW IN NEW BRUNSWICK. [Canadian Press.] St. John, N. B., June 3.—Though this is June 3 snow fell in several parts of the province early. In Fredericton there was enough to remain on the ground for a time. Crops, however, in general, are reported more advanced than last year.

TRAMPLED TO DEATH BY A HERD OF STEERS

W. B. Weir, of West Nissouri, Met Tragic End When Watering Cattle.

W. B. Weir, a well-known farmer of West Nissouri Township, living on the first concession, near Devizes, was trampled to death yesterday afternoon by a herd of steers which he went to water on another farm, about a mile distant from his home place. His son Benjamin left home with him early in the day, and called to see a neighbor, while his father said he would water the cattle and look over the other farm. When he did not rejoin his son, the latter supposed he had gone to a barn-raising, and drove there to find him. He was not there, and his son, with neighbors, made a search of the grazing farm. When found, about 5 o'clock, life was practically extinct. Dr. F. W. Hughes, of London, coroner for West Nissouri, was called, but nothing could be done.

Mr. Weir was 67 years old, and had resided practically all his life in Middlesex. Besides his wife and one son, Benjamin, mentioned above, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Alfred Hardy, London Township.

The funeral will be held Thursday at 1 o'clock to Silem Cemetery.

STRIKE IS OVER. [Canadian Press.] Chicago, June 3.—The strike of the brickmakers, which tied up building operations in Chicago for three months, was ended last night. The men get one cent an hour wage increase for those receiving less than 40 cents an hour. The manufacturers will have full control of hiring and discharging workmen.

Winnipeg, June 2.—The weather map shows temperatures have been high in the West, and a heavy rain is expected this being the area where rains are needed, prices were strong, especially in the October month.

Winnipeg market opened 1/2c higher for both months, and later July touched 56c; October, 59c, when there was a slight easing off, in the close, the market was strong, closing figures being 1/2c higher for both months. In cash circles there was a good demand for No. 1, and
No. 2, but wheat, but few offerings, ash wheat closed 1/2c to 3/4c higher for contract grades; cash oats unchanged to 1/2c higher; cash barley unchanged to 1/2c higher, and cash flax 1/4c lower on all grades.

Oats were in better demand, barley was in demand, and cash futures were higher, in sympathy with Duluth, but there was little or no business. Inspections Monday, 57s 1/2c, as against 29s last year in sight, 25s.

MYSTERIOUS BURGLARIES IN EAST LONDON HOUSE ARE BAFFLING POLICE

A series of mysterious burglaries that are apparently baffling the police have been staged in the rooming and boarding house kept by William Kennedy, 236 Rectory street, East London.

Three rooms entered. Since Thursday three rooms in the house have been entered, and money and wearing apparel of considerable value taken. Saturday night the room occupied by Walter Martin and his wife was entered while they were asleep and a pair of black trousers with $21 in one of the pockets, removed. Detectives working on the case have so far failed to affix the theft.

Mrs. Kennedy stated to The Advertiser last night that recently she had noticed that the soap in the washrooms was disappearing rapidly. Large quantities were removed every night, and a vigilant watch failed to catch the culprit in the act.

Stole Valuable Razor. Friday night H. Jennings, another roomer, entered the house and opened his shaving kit to get a razor. He should have contained three knives, almost new and valued very highly. Instead, they were missing. A hurried search of the room revealed that the contents of the dresser drawer had been rifled. Two new shirts, two towels, several pairs of socks and smaller articles had been taken.

Looking in the corner of the room where he had left a pair of new shoes, he saw that they, too, were missing.

He communicated the facts to Mr. Kennedy, and the police were at once notified.

Lost Overcoat. Saturday night Charles Berry, another roomer, believed of an overcoat, an alarm-clock and several smaller articles of wearing apparel.

"We are completely mystified," said Mrs. Kennedy to The Advertiser last night. "There are so many people going and coming here, that it is impossible to lock the front door. It was evidently some one familiar with the house who has been stealing from the boarders, otherwise they could not have searched the rooms and escaped with their loot without being detected."

Found Man in Hall. "One night some time ago, we heard a peculiar noise in the hall. My husband went down to investigate and found a young man prowling around the passage being detected."

"Saturday night an officer, who was passing, saw a man enter the house whom he thought at the time was a stranger, but as boarders are constantly coming and going, he thought the man was a new arrival and did not molest him.

"This mysterious petty thieving is getting on our nerves. The worst of it is that there does not seem to be any connection between the cases."

Detectives Harry Down and Robert Egerton are working on the case.

SALVATION ARMY LIST OF IDENTIFIED DEAD

The following advice on the identified dead of the Salvation Army was received this morning at the local barracks from Col. Gaskin, field secretary, at Toronto:

Yesterday we received information of the shipment of the remains of the following officers and soldiers:

Mrs. Commissioner Rees, Col. Maidment, Brigadier Potter and his son Willard, Major Findlay, Major Simcoe, Mrs. Staff-Captain Morris, Brother Charles Stevenson, Miss Jessie Green, Charles Wilks, Adjutant Hanagan, Baby Brooks, Mrs. Adjutant Green, Adjutant and Mrs. Debow, All but those of Adjutant and Mrs. Debow arrived in Toronto last night.

The scene at the railway station was memorably pathetic. Great crowds bowed tearfully in sympathy with us as our loved comrades were detained and borne through the city to the undertakers' parlors.

You will be gratified to know that the survivors are doing reasonably well, remembering the awful experiences through which they passed. Mrs. Frank Brooks and Mrs. Tom Greenaway are suffering the most severely of any.

Last night, on the same train as that by which the bodies were borne to Toronto, Bandsman and Mrs. Delmont, of Moose Jaw, with Deputy Bandsman Delmont and his sister, Lieut. Lizzie, arrived in Toronto. They were terribly affected by their suffering, and were very weak and exhausted.

Major Jennings has just sent the following message:

Major Jennings reports from Rimouski that no more bodies found. The body went to Father Point and interviewed the captain of the Eureka. It is thought that no more bodies are likely to be found for some days. The major went on the body Evelyn to the body which marks the spot where the S. S. Empress of Ireland went down. There were no signs of any bodies or wreckage.

of repeated urging. You could not hope to meet a finer man or a better seaman.

His chief regret seemed to be that he had been rescued. His officers and his crew did all that was possible in the frightfully brief time which elapsed between the collision and the sinking of the Empress.

No Effort at Rescue. After telling of his reaching a collapsible boat, after being in the water some time, Mr. Adie said: "What struck me as particularly abominable was that the Storstad was about two miles away, and making no apparent effort to come nearer or to rescue the survivors."

"Our boat was overloaded and water-logged, and began to sink. We had to take to the water, and I do not know what became of the others or whether all were rescued. I do not remember much of what we did, except that we clung together and were picked up by the boat from the Eureka. We were given every possible attention, both on the Eureka and by the people of Rimouski, and we now feel no ill effects from our experience."

Engines Were Stopped. Asked why the Empress stopped under her own power after the collision, Mr. Adie said that he could not be sure, but he did not think she could have moved any distance. His wife and Miss Gaunt were both positive that her engines were stopped at the time of the collision. It makes me angry," he said, "to hear the claim made by the Storstad captain that the Storstad was going full speed ahead, for that is certainly not true, and it is also maddening to hear the reflections made against Capt. Kendall."

Mr. and Mrs. Adie and Mr. and Mrs. Gaunt will remain in Toronto until Sunday, when they leave for New York to sail for England by the Aquitania.

PRELIMINARY TRAINING

MORE SKILL WITH GREATER SKILL ARE NEEDED ON VESSELS

So Says Seamen's Union, Declaring That "Convention of Safety of Life at Sea" Contains Nothing Effective.

[Canadian Press.]

Boston, June 3.—Resolutions declaring that the disaster to the steamers Empress of Ireland, Titanic, Columbian and Monroe were due to underranked vessels and lack of skill by their crews, were adopted by the International Seamen's Union, at its eighteenth annual convention in session here. The London "Convention of safety of life at sea" was declared to contain no effective remedies, protest was made against its ratification, and the United States Senate and Congress was urged to enact the La Follette seamen's bill, which was described as "conservative, but reasonably effective measure."

CALL PRESENTED

Invitation to Rev. D. C. McGregor Brought Before Toronto Presbytery—Answer This Week.

The call to Rev. D. C. McGregor, of Toronto, by St. Andrew's Church, was presented yesterday morning to the Toronto Presbytery between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock at St. James' Square Presbyterian Church.

Rev. H. H. Mitchell, interim moderator of St. Andrew's, addressed the presbytery. A. E. Silverwood spoke on behalf of the elders; A. E. Silverwood for the board of managers, and T. H. Purdon, K.C., on behalf of the congregation.

It was suggested that Mr. McGregor's decision would depend to a great extent on what action the general assembly took at Woodstock in connection with joining the home mission and social service work on to even the railways.

Mr. McGregor will likely accept, and if not it is very doubtful. His decision is expected at the end of the week.

BOYS BREAK INTO
SOUTH LONDON SCHOOL

Police are looking for five boys who broke into Victoria School last night and furnished through the contents of the room. Nothing of value was taken, Principal Alex MacQueen informed The Advertiser, but almost every room had been entered.

In every case, the boys had been observed by the boys around the school and they were taken into custody. Several of the boys were long trousers.

Arrests will probably follow before long.

No Royal Salute. The birthday of King George was quietly observed today by the flying of the Union Jack over the Federal buildings. None of the patriotic societies are holding any special gatherings tonight. The usual military salute of 21 guns is fired on the King's birthday, and on the occasion of this year on account of the battery being at Petawawa.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Miss Ester Swartz, of 23 Cynthia street, South London, is ill in Victoria Hospital, suffering from appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Carswell announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Grace to Mr. Charles W. Eastwood. Marriage is to take place in June.

JURY DISAGREES

The jury could not agree this afternoon at the court house in the case of F. C. Buzzel versus Victor Hendricks. It was accordingly discharged. The case will come up again at the next session.

Hendricks was charged with taking an overcoat belonging to Mr. Buzzel, on a train at Kerwood last February. Mr. Buzzel missed his coat and stopped the train. The coat was found behind a shed near the railroad track and Hendricks, who was drunk, was seen running away. The prisoner admitted that he had taken the coat, but said that he thought it was his own and didn't notice the difference until it was too late.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

From early morning, committees were at work preparing for the annual assembly, representing every presbytery in the Dominion from Halifax and Newfoundland in the east to Vancouver in the west, were being organized and the registration committee employed. Some fifty or sixty of the delegates are billeted at Woodstock College, and the remainder are in various homes throughout the city.
By 11 o'clock nearly 100 delegates had registered, and a special train from Winnipeg at 12:50 brought a large contingent from Manitoba and other parts of the West, including a number from Vancouver and the far western points.
Although the formal opening of the assembly is not until 8 p.m. tonight, a good deal of committee business has been transacted already. The church union committee convened in the boardroom of Knox Church this morning, and prepared a resolution for submission to the assembly, recommending that the basis of church union, as amended in Toronto last year, be adopted. It will recommend that a general conference between the Baptist, Congregational and Presbyterian bodies be called together; that if the basis of union meet with general approval it be sent on to the various presbyteries, and that, if possible, the proposal for organized union between the three churches be finally ratified by the general assembly of 1915.

TALE OF TWO SUITS IS AIRED IN COUNTY COURT

Rev. S. R. Heakes Is Awarded $75 on Suits Stolen From His Doorstep.

Two suits of clothes, valued at $150, that were stolen from the residence of Rev. S. R. Heakes, curate of Crayke Memorial Church, March 19, 1913, occupied the attention of the county court for over two hours yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Heakes was given a verdict of $75, half their value.

In his evidence, Mr. Heakes said that one brown tweed suit, valued at $75, and made by an American at the Boston had been taken. Though he had owned the suit for eight months, he had not been wearing it, as it was Lent. It had not been sent to Jackson, the cleaner, to be pressed more times than it had been worn, and that he considered it worth $75.

When Mr. McKillop, lawyer for the defense, asked Mr. Heakes if he was asking the jury for a suit that he had purchased seven or eight months before, he answered, "I am asking full value for it."

Mr. Heakes said that the coat of a dress suit had been lost with the brown suit. The coat had been made by Brown, of London, England. Mr. Heakes said he had been in the habit of sending two suits every week, and that he had picked out these two specially. He hadn't worn the dress suit since its previous pressing.

When the driver came the following Monday, he asked about the suits and told him no more clothes would be sent until his lost apparel had been returned. He knew he would be in London for some time, and therefore had brought a lot of clothes. The dress suit had not been worn more than eight times.

Placed In Vestibule.

Mr. Jackson's driver maintained that the box, containing the clothes, had been placed in Mr. Heakes's vestibule as the customer, and he was surprised to hear that it had disappeared.

Mr. Jackson did not think he was responsible as the clothes had been returned, and did not think Mr. Heakes deserved any such exorbitant amount as $150 for his clothes.

Judge Elliot ruled that the clothes had not been returned properly, and said that it was for the jury to decide how much Mr. Heakes should receive for his clothes.

Awarded $500.35.

In the case of the Asbestos Manufacturing Company vs. Camp, the verdict was given to the Company for their claim in full, $500.35, as he thought he was responsible as the defendant did not put in an appearance.

Court was then adjourned till ten o'clock this morning.

THOUSANDS ATTRACTED BY FIRST BAND CONCERT

Citizens Take Advantage of the Splendid Program Put On by Seventh Regiment Band.

London enjoyed its first band concert of the season last night in Victoria Park when the Seventh Regiment Band, under the direction of Bandmaster Albert Slater, put on a splendid program.

Citizens have been looking forward to the opening of the series of concerts. The cool promenades under the trees at the park seem incomplete without the air of the tango throes reverberating through the branches.

Several thousand people crowded around the bandstand at the park, while many hundreds walked the paths while the program was being rendered. The concert will be continued throughout the summer.

HOW TO TAKE OFF YOUR FAT AND REVEAL A SLENDER, GRACEFUL FIGURE

Lady Reader Reduced 17 Pounds and Looks 15 Years Younger, Without Taking Anything Internally.

Thanks to a recently discovered herb, superfluous fat may now be easily rubbed away. Get from your druggist one drachm Quassia Chips and three fluid ounces Aremone. Put the Quassia chips in a pan and pour over them a teaspoonful of boiling water. In about half a minute strain through a cloth and add Aremone. Keep in a bottle and apply with your hands wherever there is too much fat. Under the peculiar influence of these curious herbs the superfluous flesh shrinks away from the hips, abdomen, chin, cheeks and neck, soon revealing the slender, graceful figure that has been hidden beneath. And this without any drug-ging, exercises or starvation. A lady reader writes: "I reduced 17 pounds of fat from my hips and abdomen and look 15 years younger." Anyone can easily do the same by following the simple directions given above. We are informed that the ingredients for the above recipe can be obtained from George A. McEachin, 290 Richmond street; E. L. Guillemont, corner Dundas and Richmond streets; Bruce Wallace, 419 Richmond street.
