

ORDER TO STOP FIGHTING
IS EXPECTED VERY SHORTLY

Efforts of Bulgaria to End the War Hastened by Action of Roumanian Army in Hurrying Troops Over the Frontier.

[Canadian Press.]

Vienna, July 11.—A dispatch from Belgrade reports that an order for the cessation of hostilities between the various armies in the Balkans is expected to be issued immediately. It says that a tacit armistice has been in existence at most points since yesterday.

ROUMANIANS MARCH.

[Canadian Press.]

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 11.—The Roumanian minister to Bulgaria left his post today after notifying the Bulgarian Government that the Roumanian army had crossed the Bulgarian frontier. Bulgaria has decided not to resist the invasion by the troops of her northern neighbor, which she considers, however, an unprecedented provocation.

MAY END FIGHT.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 11.—The Roumanian declaration of war on Bulgaria is expected here to assist in bringing to an end the carnage in the Balkans by forcing speedy action on the part of the powers who have been invited to intervene.

The object of King Charles of Roumania in assuming the part of a beligerent is to strengthen Roumania's claim to the Balkan peninsula, and to the Balkan peninsula. For the present Roumania, it is thought, will probably content herself with occupying the strip of Bulgarian territory on the Black Sea, including the city of Silistria. She has coveted this for a long time, and it is believed she will accomplish her object under the prevailing conditions without Bulgarian resistance.

Bulgaria Beaten.

While all the Balkan dispatches claim that Bulgaria has been beaten to her knees, by the Greeks and Serbian armies, whose road to Sofia is declared now to be practically open, it is possible that Bulgaria's appeal to the Czar, assuming it to be true, has been prompted much more by Roumania's action than by the successes of the Greeks and Serbians. The Roumanian mobilization has advanced far enough to enable that country to move a large part of its army, and according to reports from Vienna, a Roumanian detachment crossed the Bulgarian frontier yesterday afternoon.

Roumania's Move.

Recent rumors that Roumania was standing by to see whether or not it would pay her better to attack Bulgaria or the Greeks and Serbians have now disappeared, and it seems to be determined to use the occasion to wring from Bulgaria all the territory she claimed as a reward for her neutrality during the war between Turkey and the Balkan States, but of which the recent arbitration at St. Petersburg gave her only a part.

The war commentator of the Daily Telegraph, who is at Bucharest, telegraphs that Roumania's mobilization would be completed last night. She will want four more days for the concentration of the troops, and then the passage of the Danube will mark a new chapter in the history of southeastern Europe. The Danube will be crossed next week.

Whether this connotes a new war between Bulgaria and Roumania cannot as yet be said, but it is believed here that Roumania intends to occupy the territory in question, especially Silistria, and take chances of Bulgaria's ability to dislodge her.

Greek Victories.

There was an ominous absence of any news from Sofia last night, but all dispatches from Serbian and Greek centres report fresh disasters to the Bulgarians. The Serbians and Greeks are said to have joined forces at Radovich, fifteen miles from Ishtir, and are pursuing the Bulgarians.

A whole Bulgarian division under General Ivanoff, variously said to number from 24,000 to 50,000 men, is reported to have been cut off by the victors and to have surrendered en masse. This, as usual, needs confirmation.

A Greek fleet bombarded and captured Kavala, and the Greek army of Saloniki are reported to be still advancing with great success and capturing many guns. Strumitza fell to them yesterday. It is reported from Belgrade that a battle is on at Kuster, fifteen miles within the Bulgarian frontier, and thirty miles from Sofia. This also is not confirmed. The Serbians claim that not a single Bulgarian soldier except prisoners is now on Serbian soil.

ROUMANIA WILL SHARE.

[Canadian Press.]

Bucharest, Roumania, July 11.—The Roumanian Government decided yesterday to notify the Bulgarian Government that the Roumanian army would cross into Bulgarian territory, and also that Roumania would take part in the discussion of the final partition of the territory of what was formerly European Turkey.

SERBIANS JOIN GREEKS.

[Canadian Press.]

Belgrade, Serbia, July 11.—The campaign of the Serbians and Greeks against the Bulgarians in Macedonia is regarded by the Serbian military authorities as concluded since the defeat of the Bulgarians in the recent fighting. The Serbian troops yesterday morning joined hands with the Greek forces, which had just taken Strumitza.

MORE HOPEFUL VIEW.

[Canadian Press.]

St. Petersburg, July 11.—A distinctly hopeful view is expressed today by the Russian press and also in official circles in regard to the Balkan situation. Peace is regarded generally as imminent on account of the crippling of the Bulgarian armies and of the severe losses sustained by Serbia. The

[Canadian Press.]

Russian Red Cross Society has decided not to send any detachments of doctors, nurses and ambulance men to the front.

BIG GREEK VICTORY.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 11.—Greek troops today occupied Demir Hissar, thirteen miles to the northwest of Serres, after a brilliant victory over the Bulgarians, who had been in possession since they won it from the Turks in the recent war, according to an Exchange Telegraph Company's dispatch from Athens. The Bulgarians fled, abandoning their field guns, ammunition and provisions.

A telegram to the same agency from Constantinople says it is announced by the newspapers that Midia, the town on the Black Sea, which was to form the eastern end of the future frontier line between Bulgaria and Turkey, is in flames.

SEIZED SILISTRIA.

[Canadian Press.]

Bucharest, Roumania, July 11.—Roumanian troops today occupied the Bulgarian city of Silistria, on the right bank of the Danube. They were not opposed by the Bulgarians.

Silistria is a very important point on the Danube, and has been in existence as a city since the Roman era. Until the conclusion of the Russo-Turkish war in 1878 it had been for about 50 years the main bulwark of the Ottoman Empire on its northern European frontier. It sustained many sieges through the centuries, and always offered a stout resistance. Even as late as the Crimean war it was able to defy a bombardment by the Russians, but after the last Russo-Turkish war, the Turkish troops retired and left it in the hands of the Bulgarians. It has over 12,000 inhabitants, many of whom are Mohammedans.

BLAME CONDUITS
FOR SINKING OF
BRICK BUILDING

Carelessness in Installing System Held To Be Partly Responsible.

Electrical Department Says Contract Method of Laying Ducts Was a Mistake.

Carelessness in installing the conduit system for the city electrical department down town is believed to have been at least partially responsible for the sinking of a brick building on Dundas street, just east of Clarence. The structure was condemned last fall by Building Inspector A. M. Piper, and ordered rebuilt. Permission was sought to have the work put over until spring, and this was granted after the structure had been braced.

When the foundation was being re-bricked it was found that on both sides of the "break" that caused the partial collapse, part of the wall had been torn out for the purpose of running lateral ducts from the hydro conduits into the building. These holes had never been bricked up nor had the ducts been run in after it had been found there was no basement on the other side of the wall.

Are Holes to Blame? James Moran, contractor, who was in charge of the brick work in the alterations, said today that the holes might have been the cause of the break.

"I wouldn't like to say that these holes were the whole cause of the sinking," for the building is an old one," said Mr. Moran, "but they could very likely have been contributory causes to the sinking of the walls. The holes most certainly should have been bricked up."

Since the conduits were first installed there has been some repairs and reconstruction necessary because of faulty construction in the first place. At the city electrical department it was stated today that much more satisfactory results would have been obtained had the work been put down by the commission itself without contracts at all. When the extensions were planned to the underground service it was proposed to do it by the commission's own men.

POMPADOURS AND PSYCHE KNOTS ARE BANNED BY GOVT.

Special Regulations Governing Hair Dressing in Factories.

Girl Workers Are Being Educated to Prevent Serious Accidents.

A rather difficult piece of work that Factory Inspector Harry Clark has on his hands at present is the instruction of the fair factory workers of the city in the reformed styles of hair-dressing approved of by the provincial regulations.

Fluffy ruffles, marcel waves, Psyche knots, and the old-fashioned pompadour are all banned on account of their liability to catch in factory wheels and machinery.

Toronto inspectors report that it is a very slow task to educate the working girls of that city to the proper appreciation of the need of carefulness in arranging their coiffures or the desirability of wearing caps to prevent loose or much-beribboned hair from catching in hair-raising, scalp-erasing machinery.

Ontario factory inspectors are also insisting more strenuously on the provision of seats for female employees in factories and stores, and the strict observance of the regulations against the employment of child labor.

ITALY SWEEPED BY TERRIFIC STORMS

Weather Is the Coldest in 600 Years, and Superstitious People Blame It On Unlucky Thirteen—Crops Badly Damaged In All Parts of the Country.

Rome, July 11.—A terrific storm is raging throughout Italy and in many places the country has been devastated, and the crops destroyed. It is accompanied by remarkably cold weather for the time of year, the temperature in Rome at noon today falling below 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Such weather in the middle of July has not been recorded in Rome since the year 1313, when superstitious people attributed it to the repetition of the number 13.

STORM AT NAPLES.

Naples, Italy, July 11.—Extraordinary falls of rain and hail have flooded the surrounding country for the past two days. Torrents of water mixed with ashes from Vesuvius have inundated villages along the Gulf of Turin. Owing to a strong cold wind from the north, accompanied by hurricanes, the temperature fell today almost to freezing point. Snow is reported to have fallen in the Alps.

The recent negotiations for the merging of the Globe Casket Company with the other casket companies of Canada have been brought to a conclusion.

Leslie was a plasterer, and only came here from Toronto a few weeks ago.

SHOT FIRED BY SUFFRAGETTE FROM COMMONS' GALLERY

Came From Toy Pistol, But Caused Consternation in House.

Mouse Traps Wrapped in Pamphlets Thrown to Members.

[Canadian Press.]

London, July 11.—The report of a pistol shot fired from the strangers' gallery in the House of Commons today, accompanied by a yell of "Justice for women!" caused a panic among the members who were in session.

Simultaneously with the report a shower of pamphlets rained down on the members. They were printed with the words "Votes for women."

Two Are Detained.

Two persons pointed out as the perpetrators of the outrage were seized by the officials, hustled from the gallery and detained pending investigation.

It was later discovered that the weapon was merely a toy pistol. A number of toy mouse traps satirizing the "cat and mouse" act reached the members wrapped in the pamphlets thrown from the gallery.

Submitting Plans.—Chairman Dennis, of the board of education, and Trustee A. M. Hunt are in Toronto today, submitting the proposed plans for the Collegiate Institute additions for the approval of the department of education.

In this region. Crops have been destroyed and floods have compelled the population to leave the huts in which they have been living since the great earthquake a few years ago.

SLIGHT QUAKES.

Cosenza, Italy, July 11.—Hurricanes, accompanied by slight shocks of earthquake and underground rumblings have terrified the residents in this region for the past two days. This is more especially the case in the isolated villages, where the people are still suffering from the fright caused by the earthquake which occurred at the end of June.

POPE KEPT IN.

[Canadian Press.]

Rome, July 11.—The Pope's physicians today dissuaded him from taking his usual drive and walk in the gardens of the Vatican owing to the violence of the storm and the heavy rain. His holiness continues perfectly well, and the exceptionally cool weather continues partly to keep him in good health.

The pontiff is deeply concerned about the situation in the Balkans. He expressed regret today that both Bulgaria and Roumania, the two most advanced of the Balkan nations, should engage in fratricidal war.

ARETHUSA WAS AGAIN RAMMED

Mr. Watts' Yacht Hit by the "State of Ohio" at Port Stanley.

STERN BADLY SMASHED

Mr. Watt went to Port Stanley today to ascertain the exact condition of the unfortunate lake nymph, and what are her chances of recovery from her repeated mishaps.

GATHERED A NEAT SUM
TO HELP THOSE AT WAR

Greeks of the City Contribute Six Hundred Dollars in a Few Hours.

Peter Mandas, a Dundas street restaurant keeper, Thursday afternoon started a subscription to aid the Greeks in their fight against the Bulgarians, and up to 2 o'clock this afternoon had collected over $600.

He stated to The Advertiser that he will get in touch with Greeks in St. Thomas, Chatham, Stratford, Sarnia and other neighboring places, and that he expects to be able to forward over $1,000 by next week.

Peter Hrisikos and Nicholas Chialos headed the list when it was started on Thursday with $100 each. During the day half a dozen donations of $50 each were received. Many patrons of the restaurant gave various sums.

A. B. GARRETSON, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, asking for $17,000,000 increases.

A FRIEND OF HYDRO.

The London Free Press poses as a friend of hydro. It poses as a friend at present, but it was not always so.

There was a time, and it's not so very long ago, when the London Free Press was anything but a friend of the local hydro electric system. The pocket of the Free Press was affected and its loyalty to Hon. Adam Beck and to his pet project was affected likewise.

That time was when the local department was starting its first aggressive campaign for light and power consumers. The members of the water commission met in solemn conclave. They debated the future of the hydro service in London, and decided to institute an advertising campaign to secure customers.

When this was told to the Free Press there was manifest joy. There were cheers. It was a fine chance for a "killing." The fattest calf was ready and all would be well. All was not well, however.

A Hold-Up on Hydro.

The Free Press boosted its advertising rates to 12 cents a line for the hydro display ads. Its proposition was submitted to the water commission. The water commission refused to be held up. It declined to pay the 12 cents a line or more than triple rates.

That action "peevish" the London Free Press. Hydro was a Government project. The Free Press was a Government paper. These two facts, in the minds of the Free Press, meant big profits from one for the other.

A "Sore" Newspaper.

When the big profits disappeared in the refusal of the water commission to be "bled," the Free Press grew wrathful. Hydro would have to be shown that it could not exist without the Free Press—that mighty customer that spends as much as $1.17 in hydro power bills. Orders were issued by the management to the staff—hydro was to be taboo. It was taboo unless it could be harmed. The news columns of the Free Press were absolutely closed to any story of what progress hydro was making in the city. The increasing number of customers were ignored.

Attacked the Commission.

Nothing that bore even the faintest sign of boosting hydro appeared in the paper. Bitter attacks on Chairman Pocock and Commissioner Stevenson appeared. Nothing, in the minds of the Free Press could be worse. It was the greatest punishment that hydro could receive—to be refused the support of the news or editorial columns of that paper.

Weeks passed, and still the hydro ads failed to appear at the hold-up price. There was surprise. "How could it be so?" wondered the Free Press management, and orders were sent out to be even stricter in keeping anything from the news columns that might be construed as boosting hydro.

Hydro Flourishes.

Strange to say the hydro department appeared to flourish, in spite of the Free Press. That caused more consternation in the F. P. office. Embassies were sent forth to see the water commission. The water commissioners thereupon offered 6 cents a line, but the F. P. stuck to its guns—12 cents or nothing. It also abided by its decision to keep hydro boosts from the paper.

General Manager H. J. Glaubitz, of the city hydro service, admitted that the Free Press had refused to assist the local department in any way whatsoever, after the refusal of the water commission to pay 12 cents a line.

Mr. Glaubitz Admits It.

"Did the Free Press refuse to print anything that would boost hydro in London?" was the question asked Manager Glaubitz.

The manager's answer was given with some little hesitation, but he declared that it had refused.

Once the Free Press was blind to all hydro's virtues. Now it pretends to be blind to all hydro's faults. It uses no hydro power in the operation of its plant. It may start another "killing" campaign if its pocket is affected again.

GLOBE EDITOR REPROACHES
CHURCHES OF THE WELL-TO-DO

Says the Church Has Become the Conservator of Vested Interest—Worships the God of Things As They Are.

[Canadian Press.]

Los Angeles, Cal., July 11.—"From my point of view as a newspaper man the churches of America, alike in the Republic and the Dominion, have in the past been in danger of losing the national outlook and becoming mere denominations of the intellectual and the well-to-do."

This was the assertion of Dr. J. A. MacDonald, editor of the Toronto Globe, and one of the Canadian delegates to the International Christian Endeavor convention in session here, in the course of an address delivered today on "The Problem of Capital and Labor as Related to the Churches."

Beneficial Influence.

"All over America," said Mr. MacDonald, "there has grown up an industrial absolutism more baneful and much more arrogant than that of any Stuart king, but where is the church of John Knox that will stand against it?"

As a remedy Dr. MacDonald urged a return to the mode of living established by Christ and practiced by the primitive Christians—when Jews and Romans, Greeks and barbarians lived together happily, did work together helpfully through all the relations of industrial service in everyday life.

FORMER LONDON LADY
HONEYMOONS IN CANOE

Miss Mary Morris Wedded to a Strandsburg, Pa., Gentleman.

In a dispatch from Fulton, New York State, is the following reference to a former London lady:

Friends today received announcements of the marriage of Miss Mary Gertrude Morris and Homer Bacon Armstrong, which took place yesterday at Stroudsburg, Pa. Both have been residents of this city for the past three years.

Miss Morris is a native of London, Canada, and for the past three years has been employed in a local department store. Mr. Armstrong came here from Philadelphia and is employed as an assistant state engineer on the barge canal.

The wedding trip will be made in a canoe from the Delaware Water Gap, near Stroudsburg, to Philadelphia. It is estimated that the journey of 115 miles will consume ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong expect to stay a few days in Philadelphia and from there they will go to Atlantic City. After Aug. 15, they will be at home at Pine Bluff Cottage, Fulton.

CATTLE AND WHEAT WILL GO ON THE FREE LIST

New Tariff Bill Was Passed in Committee on a Straight Party Vote.

Washington, July 11.—The Senate may now proceed to dispose of the tariff bill, which the House passed last night. The bill will contain the extra session of Congress—revision of the tariff.

Today, three months and four days after the special session began, Chairman Simmons, of the finance committee, was authorized to report the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill. The measure was passed upon in committee by a strict party vote, Republicans voting against it.

As it goes to the Senate, the bill retains the principal provisions of the House measure and those particularly advocated by President Wilson, free wool and a provision that shall be free May 1, 1916. The finance committee majority and the caucus have greatly extended the free list, and reduced many rates, notably in the metal, wool and agricultural schedules. Sweeping changes, however, have been made in the administrative features and the income tax.

Cattle and wheat now are on the free list, the latter with a countervailing duty.

MAN AND HIS WIFE
WITHOUT COUNTRY

Neither Canada or the United States Claim Mr. and Mrs. Crowley.

[Canadian Press.]

Sarnia, July 11.—A man without a country and a woman without a country are Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Crowley, who are being held at Port Huron awaiting a settlement of their case. Tuesday the couple were deported from London to the States for violation of the immigration law, and arriving at Port Huron they were refused admission. Crowley is an American citizen, and Mrs. Crowley has lived in Chicago long enough to become a naturalized one. She was born in Canada, however, and the United States authorities refuse to admit her. So likewise do the Canadian officers. It is said to be the same with Crowley, he having lived in Canada long enough to be naturalized. Anyway, neither country claims them.

The Crowleys were married in jail here during Crowley's detention on a theft charge.

tyranny and oppression for the will of God and for the rights of men? "What does the comfortable church of the well-to-do know about the problem of work or wages? How can it hear the passionate cry of the children of America—a million of them—caught in the cruel wheels of our vast heartless industrial machine? How can it measure the agony of women whose only alternative is starvation or shame?"

ROBERT HUGHES
FATALLY HURT BY
C. P. R. FREIGHT

Young London Brakeman Fell Under Cars While Switching at Guelph.

Was Carried Into Station, But Died Before Doctor Came.

Robert Hughes, aged 25, son of Mrs. Jane Hughes, of 570 Oxford street, was fatally injured at 6:15 this morning at Guelph Junction, when he fell under a freight car while switching at the Y.

Hughes was a brakeman on the train which leaves London early in the morning for Hamilton. Just how the accident occurred is not known, but the railway men believe that the young man either stumbled or else missed his hold on the cars.

When picked up he was carried into the station at Guelph Junction, and a doctor hurriedly called from the city fifteen miles away. Before the physician arrived Hughes was dead. An inquest will be held at once.

The train was in charge of Conductor M. Riley, of this city. Hughes had been married only a couple of weeks.

Tragic Coincidence.

Hughes was a brother of Frank R. Hughes, clerk in the office of City Clerk Baker. His death is the third tragic fate to befall relatives of members of the staff of this office.

While working on the Molsons Bank building in the employ of John Hayman & Sons, Walter Toll, a brother of Miss Nora Toll, was killed by a heavy crane going away and striking him.

Less than two years ago William Scott, a brother of Miss Florence Scott, was killed in an elevator accident in the McCormick factory.

YORK LOAN TO BE CLEANED UP

Long Drawn Out Liquidation Proceedings To Be Ended This Fall.

ANOTHER DIVIDEND SOON

Toronto, July 11.—Immediately after the long legal vacation an attempt will be made to clear up the loose ends of the liquidation proceedings, which have been in progress over the remains of the York Loan and Savings Company since 1905, and it is possible, it is stated today, that the losers in that concern will receive a third and last dividend before the end of the present year.

ALL BOILERS TO BE INSPECTED BY GOVERNMENT

Important New Regulations Will Go Into Effect Very Shortly.

Manufacturers Were Planning to Evade Several Recently Passed Statutes.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, July 11.—Important legislation in regard to the proper inspection of steam boilers will go into effect shortly.

The regulations as drawn up at the beginning of the year went into effect on July 1, but since then the Government has considered and given approval to a number of important amendments, some of them at the suggestion of the manufacturers and others independently. The original regulations did not make inspection absolutely compulsory, although a penalty in pressure was exacted where a manufacturer did not have a boiler properly inspected.

Plan To Escape. In an unguarded moment certain makers let drop an intimation that in many cases they proposed to escape inspection and the attendant fees by merely accepting a penalty. Where a boiler was not to be used under this penalty would prove little if any hindrance, either to the manufacturer in selling or to the purchaser in using it.

But the Government was in no mind to risk having the efficiency of its boiler inspection policy injured, and the following little joker will cause some dismay to various manufacturers when they are officially made aware of it in the next week or two:

Made Compulsory. Every new boiler, etc., "shall be inspected during construction by the inspector in charge under the act, and shall not be removed from the place of construction before the inspection has been made and a certificate issued determining the maximum allowable working pressure to be carried."

In working out its plans the Ontario Government has set the way for reciprocity in boiler inspection throughout Canada and between the province and Great Britain and the various states of the American Union. When the present regulations were drawn up early in the year, the department of public works endeavored to have them conform with those in use in Great Britain and the provinces with a view to having standard regulations that would allow manufacturers to ship from one province to another without their boilers suffering a penalty in pressure. The other provinces have been co-operating, but it remained for Ontario to first open the door.

A New Section. A new section just added to the regulations, which puts the new policy into effect, declares that "boilers manufactured outside the province must be inspected at the authorized entry by the inspector authorized under the act, who shall collect a fee of $5 for such inspection" and then comes Ontario's free offer, made in the hope of a similar privilege in return—unless such boiler has been inspected at the place of manufacture by the duly authorized inspector of the Government of Great Britain, or one of the provinces of Canada, or one of the United States of America, and a certificate has been issued that the boiler has been constructed in conformity with the regulations of this province."

Other Changes Made. A number of other changes of less importance have been made in the regulations, most of them suggested by the manufacturers, while a number of their suggestions have been held awaiting further consideration. The fees for the examination of boiler designs have been lowered to conform with those in other provinces being placed at $5 instead of $10. The fees for plans for piping for power plants have been graded at $5 up to 500 horsepower, $7.50 for 500 up to 1,000, and $10 over 1,000.

In order to prevent future difficulties it has been provided that boilers to be used for heating purposes—this class including house boilers, etc.—shall be marked "For heating purposes only." These boilers are not required to be inspected.

Standards Required.

The section dealing with the quality of steel required for plates, firebox steel, etc., have been amended at the request of the manufacturers, making the maximum allowance of phosphorus and sulphur correspond with the formulas of commercial steel on the market.

The use of cast iron in boilers has been still further restricted, an added section declaring that cast iron flanges and fittings shall not be used on any steel main or connection used to carry superheated steam.

The work of boiler inspection has been placed in charge of Mr. D. M. Metcalfe. W. J. Main has also been placed on the permanent staff, and for the present they are being assisted by a number of temporary inspectors.

A RIVAL.

[Boston Transcript.] "The equator is an imaginary line, running around the earth," said the boy who likes to tell what he has learned at school. "An imaginary line," repeated the great railway financier, absent-mindedly. "Who is promoting it?"

Former Wingham Man Committed Suicide

Abraham Swindlehurst, Aged 84, Found Drowned in River at Durham.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Durham, July 10.—Yesterday afternoon between the hours of noon and 3 o'clock, Mr. Abraham Swindlehurst, 84 years of age, a resident of this place for the past eight years, and formerly living at Wingham, committed suicide by drowning himself in the Saugeen River on the outskirts of the town.

This was his second attempt at self-destruction during the past week, his former one being also by drowning. Passing factory hands rescued him. A severe attack of cancer of the neck had made the old gentleman dependent for some time past and he had on several occasions threatened to do away with himself.

He had his dinner as usual yesterday and started outside, presumably for the garden. An hour or so afterwards he was missed, and shortly afterward his body was found in the river by a party of boys who were in swimming.

His son-in-law, Charles Proctor, was notified, and securing help, he rescued the body and took it to his home. The coroner, Dr. Gun, was notified but thought an inquest unnecessary. Besides Mrs. Proctor the deceased leaves two sons and two daughters living in the States and Western Canada. The funeral takes place tomorrow to the Saugeen Cemetery here.

LONDON, FRIDAY, JULY 11.

A LESSON FROM THE NEW HAVEN.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has issued a report flagellating the management of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad (commonly known as the New Haven), for its reckless extravagance. In its effort to monopolize transportation in the New England States, the New Haven absorbed all competing roads, steam and electric. The commission recommends that it divest itself of its trolley lines. This is a rude shock to those who, from interested motives, have been parading the New Haven Railway as a triumph of electrification. Our local contemporary, for instance, has devoted columns of its space to the New Haven's electric activities, with pictorial accompaniments, to buttress its arguments for the Beck scheme of dealing with the London and Port Stanley Railway. It was an electrical engineer of the New Haven who furnished an absentee report on the L. and P. S. R., and the New Haven's experience with electricity was cited in support of the Beck plan.

In a recent public statement the New Haven Company pleaded that while its trolley lines were not dividend-paying themselves, they were a source of profit because they developed business for the parent system. Even if this assertion were true it would merely testify to the established fact that electric roads dependent on freight business for a large part on their revenue, were not a success, except as feeders for trunk lines. The London and Port Stanley, divorced from trunk lines, and in direct competition with them, would be almost isolated from freight traffic; yet the Gabey-Storer report estimates that 55 per cent. of its revenue would come from freight business.

But according to the interstate commerce commission, the New Haven's trolley lines have not only been unprofitable in themselves, but unprofitable as feeders to the parent line. They have been a weakness, not a strength. The exposure should be a warning to citizens of London against a certain line of "argument" by the supporters of electrification. The New Haven was "played up" with big headlines and illustrations galore. There is no reason to suppose that other literature on the subject coming from the same source is more trustworthy.

REVERTING TO DOWNING STREET.

We had supposed that the medieval theory of the control of British colonies from the Government office in Downing street, in old London, had been pretty well exploded. It was not an unannounced conception in the days when England first commenced to colonize, and when colonies were supposed to exist for the sole benefit of the mother country. But it proved disastrous. It lost England the thirteen provinces that formed the nucleus of the United States. Continued in her other British possessions it brought about dissatisfaction, rioting and rebellion. But the struggles of the early Canadian Reformers, aided by the wisdom of a new school of British statesmen, brought about a better condition of things. Slowly the old ideas seemed to die out. Finally Confederation gave them, we thought, a death blow. Sir John Macdonald secured for the first time the participation of Canada in the making of treaties in which we were especially concerned. Edward Blake obtained from the Imperial Government revised instructions which settled the status of the sovereign's representative, and required him to accept in its fullness the advice of the Canadian ministers. We thought it was settled that the Dominion, while "daughter in her mother's house," would at least be "mistress in her own."

But there have been indications of late of a tendency both in England and Canada to revert to Downing street rule. The proposition of the Borden Government for a naval policy of contribution to Britain, and the transfer of the control of our money and our ships to the lords of the admiralty across the ocean, has doubtless appeared on the surface to some to be a very innocent method of naval aid. But read in the history of our earlier conflicts, it has too much the appearance of the first steps in a retrogressive movement fraught with evil. And it is being opposed vigorously, not only for what it is, but for that to which it may lead.

There are other straws showing the direction of the current. Suggestions are being thrown out in speeches and in newspaper articles, each one perhaps trifling, but in their increasing aggregate ominous. Dr. Lawrence, formerly lecturer on international law in the Royal Naval College, Greenwich, warns us that while we are allowed to take an active part in the making of our commercial treaties, yet we are not to forget that they are really made by the foreign office; and we are led to infer, if it is not directly stated, that our participation in commercial treaty-making is more a matter of courtesy than of right, and that we must not expect too much.

Then another hint of retrogressive politics comes in a late issue of the Toronto Mail and Empire. Someone was describing the Duke of Connaught as being a man of tact. One would have thought that was complimentary. But our Conservative friend has a different opinion. It tells us that "It shows a misconception of the Governor-General's office if we attach much importance to his tact." Those who speak of tact as a thing of great moment in the incumbent grotesquely underestimate the office. "It is not so much tact that is required of a governor," adds the Mail and Empire, "as strength, sagacity, and unceasing care in the public interest." If this means anything at all, it means that a governor-general of Canada must take an active part in its management of its affairs. It is the old idea of our notorious Family Compact days; it is a reversion to Downing Street rule; it is the old Tory plan of colonial government.

That educated and well-informed people in Great Britain should fail at times to grasp the modern and only possible relationship between Britain and the overseas dominions is perhaps unavoidable. They may have no personal experience or knowledge to guide them in forming correct opinions on the subject. But when a Conservative Government and Conservative newspapers in Canada are turning their faces backward, it is serious. It is all the more imperative for those who love Canada, and who seek the best interests of the Dominion and the Empire, to vigorously oppose the very beginnings of evil, and thus save us from a renewal of the old struggle for responsible government.

THE WELSH CHURCH QUESTION.

A correspondent, signing himself Ecclesia, in a well-written letter takes objection to some comments made in these columns on the Welsh Disestablishment Bill. He seems to find in the article an attack on the Church of England. Nothing could be farther from the intention of the article in question.

A number of eminent members of that church have been and are in favor of the Welsh Disestablishment, and have favored even a larger measure of disendowment than the minimum now being carried through. William Ewart Gladstone was a stalwart Churchman, and his grandson is the same, who is now a leading exponent of Welsh Disestablishment in Parliament. Mr. G. W. E. Russell is another famous advocate of the reform, a leader among the comparatively small but brilliant body of Liberal Churchmen. The able Bishop of Hereford, a border see reaching into Wales, is for the bill, on the grounds urged by this journal the other day. "Ecclesia" has therefore no reason for charging animosity towards the English Church. This would be to accuse many of the ablest Churchmen in England and Wales, who believe that their church will be the better as a result of the disestablishment in Wales.

As for the claim of an organic continuity in the church through the Tudor period, it does not seem necessary to thresh over with "Ecclesia" such threshed-out straw. The debate on this question has been going on from time immemorial, and has lately been pursued ad lib. in the British Parliament, without any definite conclusions. The debate belongs to the region of half-splitting abstractions and historical cantantry. "Ecclesia" asks for "the exact figures as to the religious affiliations of the people of the little principality, to prove that 'the great mass of Welshmen are not adherents of the Anglican Church.'" He says, "figures I have seen do not bear out your statement." But here is what Mr. H. M. Vaughan, of Keeble College, Oxford, the writer of the article on Wales in the Encyclopaedia Britannica (eleventh edition, 1911) says (Vol. 23, p. 261): "Since the beginning of the nineteenth century dissent has been strongly represented in Wales, the combined numbers of the various Nonconformist bodies far outstripping the adherents of the Church. Universally accepted statistics as to the various religious bodies it has been found impossible to obtain, but the Report (1910) of the Welsh Church Commission stated that, exclusive of Roman Catholics, there were 743,361 communicants or fully admitted members of some denomination, of whom 193,081 were Churchmen and 550,280 Nonconformists." The proportions are then almost 3 to 1. The Roman Catholics numbered 64,500. Thirty-one out of thirty-four Welsh members in Parliament are for the Government's bill and long have been. They want more disendowment, indeed, than the compromise measure grants them. Several of them are Churchmen themselves.

"Ecclesia's" contradiction of The Advertiser's statement that the state supports the Anglican Church is rather amusing. The voluntary contributions of the Welsh Established Church for the year 1910 were reported by the commission to be £296,400, those of the Nonconformist Churches £318,700, though the rich land-owners almost all belong to the Established Church. Where does the Established Church get its support from, if not largely from old Catholic, Tudor and state endowments? Mr. Griffith Jones, writing in the Westminster Review, January, 1912, says:

"The total gross income from endowment of benefices, as found by the Welsh Commission's report, comes to £242,665. This does not include endowments for particular purposes, which are not touched by the bill. Out of the above figures £138,000 annually represents the tithe-rent charges in Wales. In the Middle Ages the church excommunicated those who did not pay. If this had no terror, the aid of the secular arm was employed, and by force of a certain writ the defaulter was cast into prison. Thus the voluntary subscription became a tax. If this be correct, there was no 'giving' of tithe, except by some early Saxons. Mr. Justice Phillimore, a strong Churchman, says, 'all subsequent tithe is a tax imposed by the state for the benefit, in the first instance, of the church.'"

By act of Parliament the Established Church in Wales has the use of old tithe-rents to the extent of £135,000 per annum; and to its other endowments prior to 1862 it has little or no more right than the Nonconformist Churches, which then broke away from the Anglican wing of the former national church. The Government proposes to divert these funds, partly state, partly private endowments, or rather only a portion of them, to national purposes of education, hospitals, etc. It is a strange thing to assert that the Welsh people generally do not by law contribute to a church that commands the allegiance of only one-fourth the population, but lives largely on compulsory tithes.

Our local contemporary will not reprint pictures of those New Haven electric locomotives.

It is growingly apparent that the Ontario Government doesn't like the "feel" of Mr. Proudfoot's foot.

The time is nearing when the western farmer will keep one eye on the crops, and the other on the thermometer.

It's a masculine jibe that woman doesn't know her own mind, but what about the stock market these days? In both Great Britain and Canada, a man may prove he is a sound Liberal by remaining a Liberal after he gets rich.

Perhaps the Dominion Government is spending a record sum this year in a benevolent attempt to relieve the money shortage.

The Underwood bill will restore the duty on Canadian paper. Hurray! This will save the Canadian paper makers from becoming disloyal.

A small pickaninny heaved a jug over the counter to the grocer.
"Mammy wants er dime's wuth er 'lasses," she announced.
Knowing the family ways, the grocer was inquisitive.
"Got yo' dime with you, Sally?" he asked.
"Yas, suh."

Thereupon the grocer went below to the molasses barrel in the cellar. It was a cold day, and the stream ran slowly from the spigot, but he whistled and stamped about for ten minutes to keep up his temperature as well as his courage. At last the jug was filled and his cold and lonely vigil ended. He returned and heaved the jug back over the counter.
"Lemme have yo' dime, Sally," he said.
Sally's eyes grew white and wild.
"Law's a mussy," she exclaimed, "if mammy ain't gone an' put dat dime in de bottom er dat jug."

"I can see it well enough from my own room window."
"Of course, but I've let that."

"JIM THE PENMAN."

[London Chronicle.]
The real "Jim the Penman" was James Townsend Seward, a barrister of the Inner Temple, who was tried in 1857 for forging and uttering a bank check. This was only one of a series of frauds committed by the gang of which he was made chief, owing to his extraordinary skill with the pen. Bills of exchange as well as checks were dealt with to such an extent that the conspiracy was beginning to affect the security of the entire mercantile community. Lawyers were repeatedly victims, a copy of their signature being obtained by one of the gang employing the victim to recover a debt from another. At last, by a combination of detective work and accident, they were all captured, and Seward was sentenced to transportation for life.

[Washington Star.]
"How is our friend Gratton's position on that bill regarded?" asked one member of a legislature.
"Well," replied the other, "the general impression is that his position is a very lucrative one."

MERELY AN 'OPENER' TO RESUME ATTACK ON ALD. RICHTER.

Free Press Is Again Seeking a Chance to Open Its Mud Artillery.
Alderman Says He Won't Make Up His Mind Until Reports Are All In.

"There was no authority for the use of my name in saying that I might be in favor of electrification," was Ald. J. G. Richter comment today on the story printed yesterday that he, in view of the Warfield report on the electrification of the London and Port Stanley, would support that scheme.

"The Free Press came as near as it possibly could to saying that I am in favor of the proposition. I believe the report was printed with the object of having me deny it, in order that I might be called an enemy of electrification, and have my name linked with what the Free Press calls the 'interests' who are opposing the electrification."

Attitude is Unchanged.
"My attitude now is what it has always been—neither in favor of nor opposed to electrification. The stand I have always taken is that I will not commit myself until I have considered all the reports on the London and Port Stanley Railway. I have gone into this proposition with an open mind. I have not yet considered all reports, and until such time I do not intend to make up my mind."

Not Checking Figures.
"As to saying that I have checked up the expert's figures, and that I knew what his report contained, there is nothing in it. I have had several talks with Warfield, but these have always been on some specific point, and not on the general scheme at all. If after going over the reports of installing and operation I come to the conclusion that electricity is the best method of London and of the road, then I will vote for it. If I find that it is I won't. But until such time as I have gone over these reports, I will not form any opinion. I will not declare myself either in favor or in opposition to the scheme."

Yesterdays when Henry Watson appeared before Deputy Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon he explained his condition as being due to two teaspoonsful of bromine. This morning his condition was such to indicate that Henry had swallowed a whole bottle. For the next 21 days Henry will be removed from the influences of bromine. High Constable Gumb arrested him as a "vag."

Bylaw busters in the usual numbers appeared today. Seven who chose side-walks for bicycle paths paid their $1 and costs each. Four more who broke the traffic bylaw paid the same. Harry Ashton and George Little were found guilty of the motor vehicle act—speeding and passing standing street cars. Both enriched the court treasury by $5 and costs each.

Mr. Gray in reply congratulated Mason & Risch, Limited, on the splendid treatment received by himself and staff. He felt sure on leaving that business would even be better in his absence than if he were present. Mr. F. H. The Storks

AS TOLD BY AUNT GERTIE

CHAPTER III.

"One, two, three, one, two, three," round and round the chimney top went the little storks.

How the boys stared and how they eyed one of the little creatures might tell you.

But mother stork watched them, oh, so carefully and drilled them, oh, so thoroughly.

One day one of the baby storks got very tired and cross.

"I am not going to try any more," he said, in a grumbling voice. "I am not going to bother to learn to fly. It is too much trouble."

"Very well," said the patient mother. "Then I suppose you want to stay here and let the small boys get you and kill you!"

"Oh, no, no, no, mother, dear. I will try again," he cried loudly.

"Stork, stork, long-legged stork!" cried the biggest boy down on the ground beneath the roof.

"Shall we fly down and peck out their eyes?" suggested one of the strongest little storks.

"No, child," said the mother. "Just leave them alone. Do as I tell you. It is of much greater importance."

"Very well," said the little storks, "but we intend to get revenge on those boys."

One boy, in particular, bothered the child storks more than all the rest. He sang louder and shouted noisier and seemed meaner than all the rest.

"We must do something to that horrid boy, anyway," said all the little storks one day to their mother.

"Very well, children," she answered. "I will think up some way to avenge you. In the meantime you must behave very well, and you must make me proud of you at the convention of storks which meets next week."

"We will, we will," said the children then, and they practiced harder than ever.

At last the convention time arrived. The little storks flapped their wings with those boys, especially the one bad, and showed General Stork how well they could fly!

They did so well that their daddy and their mother were awfully proud of them, and the General said they had been well trained.

"Goody, goody," said the little family of storks, "now we will get even with those boys, especially the one bad, and show General Stork how well they could fly!"

"All right," said the mother. "Now what do you think they did?"

I come again to bother you.

1. I am sixteen years old, five feet, three inches tall, and weigh one hundred and twelve pounds. Do you think I am too stout, and how long should my dresses be?

2. Do you consider when a girl of seventeen is ready to take a position as stenographer or bookkeeper, smart or dull?

3. Do you think I show any business form in my writing?

Thanking you in advance, I am, "TOODLES,"

A.—1. I should think you are very well proportioned. To within six inches from the floor would be a nice length.

The Poets' Corner

THE LAUGH.

Build for yourself a strong-box, Fashion each part with care; When it's strong as our heart can make it,

Put all your troubles there, Hide in it all thought of your failures.

And each bitter cup that you quaff, Lock all your heart-aches within it, Then sit on the lid and laugh.

Tell no one else its contents, Never its secrets share; When you've dropped in your care and worry,

Keep them from sight there, Hide them from sight so completely, That the world will never dream half—

Fasten the strong-box securely, Then sit on the lid and laugh. —Selected.

WOMEN AND BEE-KEEPING

Procuring the Finished Article—Bees in Winter—Protection From Stings.

[Written for The Advertiser.]

Part II.

As I said before, the bees live in the brood chamber; when the honey season arrives the beekeeper puts a queen excluder (wire screen) on the top of this hive, which the worker bees can easily get through, but the queen cannot, as she is so much larger. Then he puts on the surplus hives, in which the bees store the honey. These hives and combs with care will last for years.

Gathering Honey.

When the beekeeper wishes to take some honey from the hive, he arms himself with a smoker, which is a little arrangement of tin or copper to hold the fuel and fire, and a leather bellows to blow the smoke into the bees. He lifts the cotton cover inside the hive, and puts a little smoke into the hive, which makes them better natured. The bee-man replaces the full combs with empty ones, and after brushing all the bees off the full ones he takes them to his honey-house, where he uncaps and extracts the honey.

To do this, the beekeeper takes a large knife, and cuts off the capping on the covers of the cells, and puts two or more of these combs in the extractor. This is a large round can, inside of which is a basket with four or more separate compartments made of wire, and of a size to hold the combs.

In the centre is a crank and handle, which is turned back and forth, and the honey flies out, or "extracts." After being strained through wire strainers it is then ready for sale, shining clear and golden in bright tin pails or glass jars.

Wintering the Bees.

In October the bees are packed away in a hive several inches larger than the brood chamber. This space is usually filled with straw-chaff, but planter shavings or dry leaves will do. The bees should be left plenty of honey, for one does not see inside a hive for about four months, and, of course, wonders what they are doing, and if they have plenty to eat. Usually the first warm day finds the beekeeper looking into his hives. In the cold weather the bees cluster in a bunch on two or three combs, and if the weather continues cold long at a time they will starve and starve rather than move. The first time I look into them in the spring, I put a comb full of honey on each side of this cluster, so they can get it easier. If they haven't enough in their hives one has to feed them. It is a great pleasure to a beekeeper to find the hives all alive after not seeing them for so long.

Bee Veil and Gloves.

The reader may be wondering how I keep from getting stung. I wear a bee veil, which is made of a straw hat, wire screen, and cheese cloth. One can buy bee gloves, but I wear ordinary kid gloves, which are a few sizes too large, as one's hands swell with the heat, and one often wants to take them off in a hurry. The stings go through these somewhat, but I never know afterwards whether I have been stung, as they hurt very little, and once they get daubed with honey the bees do not sting the hands very often. My mother, who works with me, never wears gloves, but I am brave with them on.

SMILE WHEN YOU EAT—THINK PLEASANT THOUGHTS

[By a Physician.]

Digestion depends very largely on the state of mind.

Be merry when you eat is more than a mere saying. There is real wisdom in it.

It is best NOT to sit down to a meal when you are tired out, physically or mentally. It is best NOT to eat a hearty meal when your mind is perturbed or in an unhappy state.

It is best NOT to eat in solitude and to the accompaniment of unpleasant thoughts.

It may sound strange to the average person to say, "Watch your thought while you are at the table. But it is good common sense when you think it over and get at the reason. Watching your thought simply means that you will, by intention, think of and talk of pleasant, bright things.

Thinking and talking of bright, pleasant things simply means your mind will be in a proper frame. And then you are several points nearer properly digesting your food.

The next important matter, which, by the way, is just as "firstly" as the state of mind, is to do with the way you eat your food.

Do you masticate it, or do you swallow it almost whole?

Hurrying through a meal is poor policy. Many foods should be eaten, in part, by the mouth secretions. If they are bolted into the stomach they lose this part of the process of digestion entirely.

And do you know that the preservation of the teeth depends very largely on the use of them in masticating food. That which we do not put to good use is very likely to disappear.

Thirdly and lastly, do not get into the habit of rearing and studying while at a meal. It is a heavy tax on the digestive organ, and in the end will not prove either a saving of time or a relaxation.

Bedroom's Keynote Should Be Simplicity

Our bedroom sees us in all moods, in our joys and in our sorrows, in sickness and in health. Its influence is a vital part of our environment, and yet too many of us overlook the importance of the necessary responsibility.

There is a tendency, towards flimsy artificiality in bedrooms—towards meaningless ruffles and frills—towards collecting boxes and trinkeries. While neatness is desirable it can be obtained without the sacrifice of sincerity.

Many of us use our bedroom as a living room. It is a sanctuary to which we retire to write or to read undisturbed. It is the haven to which we fly when there are perplexities to be faced. Before we think of the furnishings and decorations it is well to consider what general qualities we wish the room to have.

Above all it must be cheerful and yet it must be suggestive of repose. It must be simple and sensible. It must afford perfect privacy, and a certain freedom. The room should not, therefore, be overcrowded. The furnishings should be substantial. There must be no tables to topple over if we stagger sleepily into the room.

About Typhoid

[By a Physician.]

People differ in the way they have diseases as much as in the way they do things.

For instance, some people have typhoid fever, and go to bed with it. Others have typhoid fever and walk around with it. We say they have WALKING typhoid.

The strange part about it is that the typhoid bacillus in these two classes of individuals suffering with the disease, may be the same in virulence, just as poisonous, just as active in growth, just as prompt in getting into the blood. But the effect is different.

Perhaps it may be a surprise to some people to know that it is just as dangerous to have a case of walking typhoid around the milk house as it would be if the patient were seriously ill.

Possibly some people will wonder how they are to tell when a person really has typhoid if he can walk around and still have a serious case.

That's where the skill of diagnosing comes in. Every state and most cities have a laboratory where tests can be made free of charge.

These include the blood tests, and especially the Widal tests and the bacteriological blood examination. The ordinary test only requires a drop of dried blood in a clean piece of glass.

In the fall a good share of the blame for typhoid fever cases falls on the shoulders of the people. The fall rise in typhoid fever means infection by careless people, walking typhoid carriers, typhoid milk and by flies.

Advice For Nervous Folk

A hot water bottle covered with flannel should be placed at the feet. A very thin silk tissue bag of rubber partially filled with cold water should be placed at the base of the brain. This bag can be about ten inches long and six inches wide, soft as silk, and only half-filled with cold water, so that it does not feel bulky back of the head. In many cases the patient goes to sleep within a few minutes with this treatment, because the blood is drawn from the active brain, which is one cause of insomnia.

When a patient is extremely nervous a cracker spread with butter and sprinkled slightly with cayenne pepper should be eaten. This warms the stomach. The stocking wound around the neck, not too close, yet rather snug, is an old method, but it does not retard the flow of blood from the head to the arteries, but it does retard the flow to the head, just as cold water as a whole. All of these methods are simple, effective and harmless.

A cup of hot milk taken just before retiring will induce sleep. Those who are troubled about drinking the milk in it cause certainly should remember that bottled milk, taken hot, acts as a laxative. It is only when it is cooled that it has the opposite effect.

FEMININE FASHIONS.

Petticoats much liked are of figured lawn, which recall the days when poke bonnets were in style. Narrow ruffles, scalloped with cotton matching the flowers, trims them.

A single large glass button fastens many of the separate coats in front. Lovely waists are made of pure white net, over flesh pink chiffon.

Lingerie card cases of fine white handkerchief linen are made to carry white calling frocks.

Net petticoats have made their appearance and the array is tempting.

MRS. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT'S MARSHMALLOW PASTE

All the women of the Vanderbilt clan are very devoted mothers, and their children think they have a great treat when their mothers concoct some candy or cake for them.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt makes a very delectable marshmallow paste, which her children prefer to that purchased in the sweetmeat shops. This is concocted in the chafing dish in the nursery. First, a pound of pure, clear gum arabic is dissolved in a quart of water and strained. After adding a pound of refined sugar it is placed over the lamp and stirred continually until the sugar is dissolved and the mixture becomes of the consistency of honey.

Then to the mass are added gradually the whites of eight eggs whipped to a stiff froth, the whole being stirred constantly until it becomes smooth and does not stick to the fingers when handled. The mixture then is poured into a pan or box which has been dusted with fine starch. When cool it is cut into convenient cubes and dusted with powdered sugar and starch mixed.

PROBLEMS OF THE FAIR SEX SOLVED BY CYNTHIA GREY

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn as they are received. No letters can be answered privately.]

Dear Miss Grey: I am making my little girl of 4 a scrapbook made of the "Goops" cut from The Advertiser, but have not enough to fill the book. I thought perhaps you could help me in asking some of the readers if they would kindly cut me some. I think the pictures teach a good lesson in a novel form, and she likes them better than her animal book. I have sent a stamped envelope. Hoping I have not bothered you very much.

A BUSY MOTHER.

P. S.—It does not matter if some of the pictures are the same.

A.—I fear that for the present at least, The Advertiser has discontinued the little "Goops." If I run across any of the pictures myself I shall gladly forward them, and perhaps some of our readers also will send me a few clippings for you.

"Nissourian" Sends Poetry.

Dear Miss Grey: Enclosed is the two pieces of poetry—The Drummer Boy of Waterloo, and The Gypsy's Warning. I hope you NISSOURIAN.

A.—The poems have been forwarded to the lady making the request. Many thanks, indeed, for your kindness in sending them.

Best Perfume and Powder.

Dear Miss Grey: Will you kindly answer the following questions for me: 1. What is the best perfume and powder made?

2. How to clean a mesh bag which is kid-lined? "ELIZABETH."

A.—1. There are many excellent makes of both commodity on the market. For obvious reasons, I cannot recommend one brand above another. The best way is to try a number of reliable articles, and then always purchase the one you prefer yourself.

2. If the lining can be pulled out from the bottom of the purse, the meshes can be nicely cleaned with a good silver polish, moistened with a little water. But if the kid lining is caught in with the metal, it would pay to take the bag to a jeweler to be cleaned. The cost is slight.

An Eagle Cake Recipe.

Dear Miss Grey: May I ask a few favors alone. Will someone be so kind and send me a few poems? Am sending a stamped envelope for the same. The Drummer Boy of Waterloo, The Heavenly Railway, and The Gypsy's Warning; and in return for your kindness, will send a good cake recipe:

Eagle Cake.—One-half cup butter, one cup granulated sugar, one cup sour milk, two-thirds teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves, one cup raisins, two cups flour. Sincerely, TOSPY.

A.—Two of the poems you ask for have been sent in, and I forward them to you. "The Heavenly Railway," which were sent me some time ago, have previously been passed on to readers, desirous of obtaining them. I retain your address, and should I get another copy, shall mail it to you.

Thanks for your cake recipe.

Has Been Helped.

Helps For the Amateur Tourist

Tourists should remember that on German, Swiss and most other continental railways only hand-baggage which can be placed in the racks of railway carriages is carried free, and that the charge for trunk is very high. Experienced travellers, therefore, limit the amount of their baggage as far as possible. It is advisable to carry only what is immediately needed and to forward by fast freight, rates for which are very reasonable, to cities where one intends to make a more lengthy stay.

Warm clothing and steamer rugs should be taken for the ocean voyage and for journeys in Northern Europe, there being few months in the year when they are not found necessary. Aboard ship women should wear a simple costume, which can be quickly donned.

A suit of serge will be found most serviceable for all occasions, both on the steamer and for travel abroad; a thick veil is indispensable. Striped shoes and caps or soft felt hats and a mackintosh are recommended for both men and women. Men will require a heavy suit and an overcoat and a black or dark blue suit is desirable for dinner, theatre and concerts. Ladies will find a silk dress of some dark shade suitable for any contingency. Although charges for laundry are not exorbitant, they are no cheaper than in Canada and tourists of experience agree that waists and petticoats of silk or some other light material, which will not crush, are both

"Father," said little Herbert, "why doesn't mother travel with the circus?"

"What could she do in a circus?"

"She might be the strong woman. I heard her tell grandma this morning that she could wind you around her little finger."—Judge.

Why did I not take a Katy? Well with me again this morning to the mountains?" said a charming woman.

"Because she is the worst-mannered girl I have ever undertaken to chaperone. I was constantly humiliated by her behavior last season, certainly shocked by her selfishness, constantly annoyed by her complete disregard for my wishes in everything that I felt was for her benefit. The children's grandmother was with us and Katy showed no more courtesy to her than if she had been a stick or a stone. Katy would rush into the hall before grandmother, march into the dining-room before her, and take her place at the table without ever dreaming of waiting for her grandmother or me. If any of the older women came out on the veranda, Katy would rise to offer a chair. By no means. All the other girls rose at once, but Katy sat, her legs sprawled out, and never dreamed of disturbing herself. When we went to table, Katy looked at the table to see what there was, and if there were cakes that she preferred, or bananas or other fruit placed there for dessert, Katy reached over, seized a couple or three, piled those up beside her plate, to the unmistakable shock of every other guest, and then, calmly eating her meal, is it not incredible that a girl could behave so like a barbarian? Yet, in looking at her you see a tall, good-looking, well-dressed girl, one who has been well educated, and who is intelligent, and even clever, one who ought to be popular and loved. But she was not clever enough to see the looks exchanged all about the table when she made these daily exhibitions of her greed and ill-breeding, and she was so selfishly absorbed in her own pleasure that she did not see that she was not desired by the older or younger women, or by the girls of her own age, all of whom daily, hourly, gave her lessons in manners by their example. I have come to the conclusion that only a bitter humiliation, a frightful snub brought upon Katy by her own behavior will ever awaken her to a sense of her own self-complacency and ill-breeding. She is of those who must be taught through badly-wounded feelings."

This is the prettiest and speediest bunch of rowers Wellesley College ever had in a shell. They have just broken

Richardson, Carrie Travers, Caroline Taylor, Sibyl Sweet, Carolyn Blackstone, Dorothy Huggins and "Coxswain" Elma Jackson.

PITCHER DUGGAN COMING; WILL BE HERE TOMORROW

Wired Manager Deneau Last Night That He Was On His Way—London Club Will Hold Booster Day on July 30th.

Pitcher Duggan, the University of Ohio twirler, who was to have reported to the club last week, wired Manager Deneau last evening stating that he would be here some time this evening or Saturday morning. Duggan has not yet received his transportation although it was sent him over a week ago. He will now come on without waiting for it, and will be here in time for tomorrow's game in all probability.

A Good Pitching Staff. With Duggan, Steiger, Beebe, Heck and Chapin, London will have a pitching staff that should produce something, and with an important series next week with the Saints, the team's position in the race should be much improved by the end of next week.

ANNOUNCEMENT. Pention B. Beebe, of Hase Hallville, Peddler of Pitching and Punting Pills, Tallest of Twirlers on This Tidy Team, Slinger of Slants and Sizzler of Steam, Tamer of Tappers, and Toller, Too, Pention B. Beebe, was boosting for you.

We notice that the Berlin team lost a game yesterday, but you cannot make us believe that Jo-Jo Keenan wired his condolences to Manager White this morning.

Jack Johnson avers that he will never again enter the United States, but nobody hears the United States making any great fuss about it.

Cy Reidy was in a happy frame of mind this morning. Somebody started a rumor that Jo-Jo Keenan was going to play third base for London.

One of the Hamilton scribes calls "Empire Davis" line of humor a joke, but the Hamilton ball club is taken seriously.

All the present writing, Jack White has an average of 500 as a manager. The Dutchmen have won 2 and lost 1 under his guidance.

Talking about Empire Davis reminds us of the fan who asked Davis where he got that fantastic tie he was wearing. "Under the railroad track at St. Thomas," was Davis' comeback.

Judging from the attendance at Hamilton, when London and Hamilton played a double-header, baseball is an unpopular little pastime in the Ambitious City. And yet the Hamilton papers wonder that the Hamilton team has to play so many Saturdays away from home.

The Advertiser and Free Press baseball teams may do battle again some day next week, provided the Free Press can pluck up enough courage to face the ordeal all over again.

The Ottawa players claim that Empire Davis has only umpired nine games outside of London this season, and that he always favors the local team in his decisions. And yet Ottawa owns its present position to the fact that it played 13 games in a row on its own lot, and seven of them were with Berlin.

Three straight from the Senators would give London a solid hold on second place, and while the Saints and Senators are punning each other at Ottawa the first of next week, two out of three from Brampton would put us so close to St. Thomas that when the Orlins come here the latter part of next week they will be shaking in their boots.

LEO FRIEDE WILL DEFEND CUP AGAINST CANADIAN

New York Canoe Club Changes Original Decision, But Ralph B. Britton Only Smiles.

New York, July 11.—At a special meeting of the international cup committee of the New York Canoe Club last night, it was decided to let Leo Friede, Manhattan Canoe Club, defend the international cup against Ralph B. Britton, the Canadian challenger. The decision was reached after taking into consideration the work of Friede against James E. Newman, originally chosen as defender. Newman's boat carried more than the specified ninety square feet of canvas in the regular trial races, and the tiny craft did not do so well under reduced sail, which led the committee to make a change at the eleventh hour.

Ralph B. Britton, the challenger, representing the Gananoque Canoe and Motorboat Club, of Gananoque, Ont., had no comment to make when apprised of the change. He only smiled that genial smile of his.

Everything is in readiness for the start this afternoon. The canoes of the challenger and defender have been measured and found to be built according to rule, and each spread the right amount of canvas. The weather indications this morning were favorable for a good race.

AMERICANS WON FIRST GAME FROM GERMANS

McLoughlin Lost First Two Sets, But Took Next Three.

Nottingham, England, July 11.—Maureen E. McLoughlin and R. Norris Williams both won their singles lawn tennis matches today from the Germans, Otto Froitzheim and Oscar Krutner, respectively. They thus placed the United States' team in a favorable position for winning the semi-final round of the Davis Cup preliminaries, as it is only necessary to win one more match of the three still to be played in order to advance into the final, where they will meet either Canada or Belgium.

McLoughlin had the most difficult task. He lost his first two sets to Froitzheim, but then plucked up and won three lasting points. The German track, as it was, won 21 games in the five sets to the 45 of McLoughlin.

On the other hand Williams had a much easier task, winning the match from Krutner by three sets to one, in which he scored 22 games to the German's 13.

CANADA REGARDED AS A SURE WINNER

Will Meet Belgium in Tennis Doubles at Folkestone Today.

Folkestone, England, July 11.—Second day's play in the Davis Cup semi-final between the Canadian and Belgian teams was by many English experts, after yesterday's fine showing of the Canadians, regarded as a foregone conclusion in their favor.

R. B. Powell and R. P. Schwangers, of Canada, were selected to meet A. G. Watson and W. H. Duvivier, of Belgium, in the doubles, in which the Belgians were considered a strong combination by their compatriots.

DETROIT GETS OUTFIELDERS.

Regina, Sask., July 11.—A scout for the Detroit American League Club has secured an option on two Regina outfielders, Williams and Smith, for $2,500, part of which was paid over. The balance remains to be paid at the end of the season, when the two local boys will report to Hugh Jennings.

DISPUTE OVER PITCHER CARLO.

Montreal, July 11.—President Lichtenheim, of the Montreal Baseball Club, says that he will refer his dispute with President McCafferty over the ownership of Pitcher Carlo, to the national commission. He further said that if Manager Bransfield wants to use Carlo in a game here with the Leafs he will authorize him in doing so.

MILLER'S TRIPLE BEAT THE GIANTS

Charlie Smith Broke Giants' and Mathewson's Winning Streaks.

PHILLIES LOSE AGAIN

George McQuillan Won For Pirates—Cincinnati and Boston Other Winners.

New York, July 10.—Chicago broke New York's winning streak here today, the champions dropping a close game, 3 to 2. Prior to today's game, New York had won 14 straight, while Mathewson was stopped today after winning seven straight. Charlie Smith, a veteran of both leagues, was the pitcher who succeeded in checking both Mathewson and his club. Smith was ably assisted by his supporters, the visitors pulling four double plays behind him, in each of which Manager Evers took part. Ward Miller's triple in the sixth beat the Giants' team. PIRATES BEAT PHILLIES.

Philadelphia, July 10.—A reconstructed team of Philadelphia players, composed largely of substitutes, gave Pittsburgh a hard battle here today, but lost the game by 3 to 2. Chalmers was pitched up for four hits in the first inning, but after that the visitors could not get a safety, although they scored a run in the third. McQuillan, a former Philly, was hit hard, but he was given brilliant support, which saved him in several tight places. Walsh performed in sensational style at second base, and made three hits in four times at the bat. Score:

Increased Efficiency With Use

KNIGHT ENGINE vs. POPPET VALVE ENGINE

For some years past we have maintained that, whereas the Poppet Valve tends to deteriorate in efficiency almost from its first active use, the Knight engine increases its efficiency in use; also that the law of diminishing returns operates far later in the life of the Knight engine than it does in the Poppet Valve engine. The test was as follows: The findings of the judges were remarkable for the absolute unanimity with which our claims for the all-round supremacy of the Knight Engine were substantiated:

RESULT OF THE KNIGHT ENGINE TEST, MARCH 15th TO 28th, 1909. R.A.C. OF GREAT BRITAIN.

ENGINE.
28 h.p., R. A. C. rating.
Maximum h.p. attained—57.25 h.p. for 5 hours.
Average h.p. maintained—54.3 h.p., or 141% of its rated load of 38 h.p.

REPORT ON GASOLINE.
Knight Motor gasoline consumption for each h.p.—.668 lbs.

NATURE OF TEST.
132 hours on bench, plus 2,000 miles on road at 42 miles per hour, thence 5 hours on bench.

CONDITIONS OF TEST.
That engine must develop 133.1-3% of its rated maximum h.p., or at least 33.1-3% over its rating of 38 h.p.

RESULT OF THE POPPET VALVE TEST, MAY, 1913. AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF AMERICA.

ENGINE.
6-cylinder, 38 h.p., A. L. A. M. rating.
Maximum h.p. attained—44.9 h.p. for 3 minutes.
Maximum h.p. maintained throughout test—35.7, or 93% of its rating of 38 h.p.

REPORT ON GASOLINE.
Gasoline consumption for each h.p.—.801 lbs.

NATURE OF TEST.
300 hours on bench alone; no road work given.

CONDITIONS OF TEST.
That engine be required to develop only 70% of its maximum h.p. (that is, 44.9 for 3 minutes), which was shown to be 20% less than its rating of 38 h.p.

Result of Examination of Parts

(KNIGHT ENGINE)

The engine was completely dismantled, and no perceptible wear on any of the fitted surfaces was noticeable. The cylinders and pistons were found to be notably clean. The ports of the valves showed no burning or wear. Adjustments—None.

AVERAGE H.P. DEVELOPED.

In 132 hours, 54.3 h.p., or over 141% of its rated h.p.

DISTANCE AND SPEED ON ROAD.

2,000 miles at the rate of 42 miles per hour. Average for 5 hours, final bench test, 57.25 h.p., or an increase of 3 h.p. over that developed in the first 132 hours of the test. (The Poppet Engine was not driven on road during test.)

JUDGES' REMARKS

Results of Examination of Parts.

(POPPET VALVE ENGINE.)

The report of the Judges of the Poppet Valve test was as follows: The exhaust from the motor was smoky, and considerable carbon deposits were observed on the exhaust valves after the test. Adjustments—The following adjustments were made during the 200-hour run: D-rings the 14th hour, lock on the exhaust valve tappet of No. 1 cylinder was found to be loose, and the tappet in such a position that the valve did not seat properly. The tappet was screwed down and locked. It was later found that this tappet had been set for more clearance than it had at the start of the test. It was consequently reset at the 152nd hour to its original position, where it remained momentarily, but aside from this the adjustments did not result in any greater variation in the power developed than were recorded during the periods when no adjustments were made. Two spark plugs were replaced without stopping the motor one during the 106th and one during the 128th hour. The screw covers above certain of the valves were tightened. The screw covers above certain of the valves were tightened. A slight leak around the gland on the water pump was present during the greater part of the test, but no adjustment thereof was made.

Average H.P. Developed.

1st five hours	38.7
2nd five hours	38.1
3rd five hours	37.8
At the end of 40 hours	37.0

Thence it decreased steadily until during the last five hours it was 34.1, or a decrease of over 10%, as compared with the average of the first five hours.

This goes to show how fully our claims as to the increasing power of the Knight have been substantiated.

EULER, OF BERLIN, CAPTURED TROPHY

Defeated McBride's Rink in Finals by Large Score of 27 to 7.

HEAMAN'S CONSOLATION

Charlie Abbott Was Runner-Up in Association, Losing in Finals to Veteran Burns.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 10.—It wasn't exactly a case of the Dutch taking Holland, but it was something like the Germans capturing Berlin. Mayor W. D. Euler's Berlin rink won the O. B. A. trophy this afternoon over their compatriots, Louis McBride's rink of the same city, by a score of 27 to 7. It didn't look as if it was going to end that way at first, because McBride had run up seven to Euler's four by the fifth end. Then Euler got a four end on the fifth and from then on it was nothing but Euler. The McBride rink did not turn another end. The rinks and score by ends were:

W. G. Cleghorn, F. Cochran, H. Boehmer, F. Ribler, H. J. Sims, W. H. Leeson, W. D. Euler, sk. 27 D. McBride, sk. 7

The final in the association between "Joe" Burns, of Niagara-on-the-Lake, and Abbott, of London, was another matter altogether, for the result was in doubt to the very end. The Burns rink was down three on the twelfth end, but in the next end they scored four. The Londoners' luck at last had departed, their bowls falling on several occasions to hit where a wick would have come in handy and the Niagara aggregation scored two in the fourteenth, putting them three up. In the last end the Niagaras drew in and got shot and they mixed their bowls so cleverly with the Londoners that the latter had not a chance in the world to get the needed three to tie. Abbott's rink failed to connect and the old-time skip, Burns, won the end by a shot. There was a great ovation, and everybody was genuinely pleased to see the veteran skip win.

The consolation trophy went to Bert Heaman's London Thistle rink, beating Port, of the Toronto Granites, by 18 to 2, in the finals.

NO MORE CATCH-A-TRAIN GAMES AT CHICAGO PARK

Owner Murphy Has Passed an Edict to Do Away With All Such Affairs.

Chicago, Ill., July 10.—No more games at the Chicago National League grounds will be curtailed to allow a catch train, according to an edict issued today by President Murphy. The order will do away, Mr. Murphy thinks, with any incentive to "stalling," which umpires charged the Chicago team did in the second game with St. Louis here last Sunday. Mr. Murphy, however, still denies the umpires took the right course in forfeiting the game to the visitors, and today appealed from President Lynch's decision sustaining the arbiters to the National League's board of directors.

FAMOUS FIGHTER DEAD. St. Paul, Minn., July 11.—Col. Timothy J. Shahan, civil war veteran, and Indian fighter, died at his home here yesterday, aged 78 years. He was commander in the famous defence of Fort Ridgely, Minn. in 1862 when the fort was besieged by Indians for eight days.

AN EYE-OPENER.

Ma: "Tommy, you have been fighting again! Didn't I tell you that if anyone insulted you you were to return a soft answer?"

Tommy: "So I did, ma. I hit him in the eye with a lump of mud!"

COULDN'T LEAVE IT. "Mamma," asked little three-year-old Freddie, "are we going to heaven some day?"

"Yes, dear, I hope so," was the reply. "I wish papa would go, too," continued the little fellow.

"Well, and don't you think he will?" asked the mother.

"Oh, no," replied Freddie, "he could not leave his business."

NOT FRIENDS NOW. Two young lady friends met, and after an interchange of the usual salutations, one remarked:

"Oh, my, I'm so glad to see you, indeed, I was just on my way to call. The fact is, I want you, as my oldest friend, to be one of my bridesmaids."

"Bridesmaid, Daisy! How lovely!" exclaimed May. "But I didn't know you were engaged."

"Well, I know it's sudden," was the answer, "but he's awfully much in love, you know; and it's really just too sweet to live. Will you act, May?"

"Act? Of course I will. I shall be charmed. But," and she took a step as though to move off, "do come round the corner and tell me all about it. Here is Bob Henderson, that laughing, gibbering idiot. He is grinning just as though he meant to stop, and I don't care to be seen talking to him."

"Bob Henderson?" exclaimed Daisy, in an amazed fashion. "Why, he's the man I'm going to marry!"

ONE WONDERFUL NIGHT

BY LOUIS TRACY.

"I came," she faltered—"I am here—

that is—will you ever forgive me?"

Down went the papers, and round Hermonie went Curtis' strong arms. He was a man of them and then, against whom

a slender girl's strength might not hope to prevail. The last thing she looked for was to be embraced at night. It is the last thing a woman expects, and the one thing to which she is most apt to yield.

And really, despite her fluttered cry of protest, there was something very comforting and dependable about that mas-culline hug. Hermonie had never before been clasped in a man's arms who was a highly lissable person, and woman

would embrace her readily, but the total absence of any milk-and-water convention

about Curtis' method of showing delight

at meeting her was at once bewildering and stupifying.

There must be a great deal, too, which does not leap promptly to the eye in the study of such a dry-as-dust subject as psychology, because three of its fixed principles are: "Experience is the process of learning by experiment." "One finds a measure of truth in the naive realism of Common Sense." "Action and Reaction are strictly correlative."

Applying these tests to the remarkable rapidity of decision and fixity of purpose

displayed by Curtis in squaring the breath-

er of Hermonie, and gazing into her eyes

until her proud head bent and sought refuge for a glowing face by hiding it, on his breast, it will be noted first, that, for a man who had no experience in loving, Curtis was quick becoming experienced; secondly, that Common Sense teaches that if one would win a wife

one must also win her mind; and thirdly,

that a wonderfully effective way to obtain a satisfactory response from Hermonie was to reveal the educational value of a hug.

At last, then—though not before Hermonie's arms had gone around his neck

and his own arms had gone around hers

with a sigh of relief—their hands had been joined. And all this time, it should be noted, that while it thrilled

him to hear,

"John, hear, she murmured, 'We have become husband and wife. It is a strange, mad way, but, perhaps it is for the best,

and I shall try never to give you cause

for regret."

By this time one hand was firmly braced around her waist, but the other was free to lift her chin until her swimming eyes met his.

"Hermonie," he said, "I vowed last night that not all the men and laws in America would tear you from me. If I parted, it was you, and you alone, who could send me away, and I am glad, oh,

so glad, that you have come back to me.

"Dearest, it sounds like a dream," she said brokenly. "Can a man and a woman

truly love each other who have only met

as you and I have?"

"I think we have solved that problem for all time," he said, lifting her hand to his lips and kissing it. "I have seen the joyous abandon of a lover, and even of the flowers and platted straw which should hide any of the sweet perfumings

of his mistress.

"But you have plunged me into a sort of trance," she whispered. "I came here to explain—"

An ominous rattle of a laden tray at the outer door drove them both apart

Pulpit, Stage and Bench

[From T. P.'s Weekly, London, Eng.]

The Rev. C. W. Cowan wrote a book some time ago on the "Humorous Side of the Pulpit," which as often as not is the "inside" though humor often becomes evident among the congregation. This volume has been reissued in a cheap edition (Gibbings & Co., 1s. net), and I have been refreshing both myself and my memory.

THE STERN CALL.

An old-time colored preacher in America when asked about his method replied, "I just 'xplain de text.' Den I presents de arguments. And den I puts on de rouséments." Can that way ever be cancelled? It is the old arrangement of doctrine and use, Bishop Atterbury's method, we are told, was to address the understanding in the first part of the sermon and the affections in the last. He practically applied at the close what he reasoned out in the beginning. Not every hearer, however, would be satisfied with this method. Doctrine is very well, but duties are not always relished. "How did you like the doctor the day, Thomas?" was asked of a north-countryman as he came out of the meeting-house. "Well, John," was the reply, "the sermon was no' that ill, but I didna like yon trash o' duties at the hinner end o' it."

A QUICK CHANGE ARTIST.

A doctor of divinity was addressing a number of young men on "Christian work," telling them the best way to carry it out with success. This is how he described the effect upon a "city army" of tactical suggestion which he once made: "Instantly he was transformed into an angel of light, and came marching down the aisle like a drum-major." Of the same extravagant style of oratory was that of an English curate who, describing the scene between St. Paul and St. Peter, exclaimed, "So Paul seized the banner of the Gospel out of the hands of Peter, broke, comprehending Peter and waved it in a flood of light and liberty over the head of the Galatian Church."

A DANGEROUS TEST.

A clergyman, remarkable for the simplicity and force of his style was one day discoursing on the text, "Except ye repent, ye shall all perish." Anxious to impress upon his hearers the importance of the solemn truth conveyed in the passage he made use of a very striking figure. "Yes, my friends," he emphatically urged, "unless ye repent ye shall surely perish." Placing his hand on the wing of a large fly which alighted on his Bible, and having his right hand uplifted—"Just as sure, my friends, as I'll kill this blue fly, before the blow comes the fly got off, upon which the preacher at the top of his voice exclaimed, "There's a chance for ye yet, my friends!"

THE DANGERS OF THEIVING.

It has sometimes happened that the preacher has appropriated bodily for the pulpit the complete sermon of another man, and with humorous results. A Cambridge don could hardly have been reading his own composition when he made the sudden appeal to an astounded undergraduate congregation, "And now, a word to you who are mothers." A young curate, friend of my own in preaching one Sunday read from his manuscript, "After forty years' ministry among you." He was, in fact using one of his sermons, and had not taken the precaution of reading it beforehand.

UNNATURAL HISTORY.

One remembers of a legal tale of the case of the barrister whom Mr. Justice Styles tells as of in his "Leaves of a Life." He lost his self-possession at the critical moment. He was defending a woman who was charged with killing the death of her child with not the necessary care. In address in the jury he said: "Gentlemen, it appears to be impossible that the prisoner could have committed this crime. A mother child? Why, it is repugnant to our better feelings. And then, carried away by his own eloquence, he proceeded, "Gentlemen, the beasts of the field, the birds of the air, the fishes of the sea, the learned judge interrupted him and said, "Mr. P., if you establish the latter part of your proposition, your client will be acquitted to a certainty."

AN OVERDUE EXPLOSION.

There are many tales of Sir Herbert Tree going about. But there is one from the Daily Citizen that strikes one as new. The story is in common with other members of the theatrical profession, has a belief that another well-known actor-manager is extremely conceited and possesses a very fine sample of the air known as "a swell." Those who are acquainted with the London stage will realize who is meant at once. For the sake of our story I will call him Herbert Tree was rehearsing with members of his company on the stage of His Majesty's Theatre, there was a gas explosion a couple of hundred yards away at the top of the market and a large portion of the building started the rehearsing actors, "Good heavens!" cried Tree in shocked and horror-stricken tones. "A. B.'s head has burst at last."

SCOTT'S LITERARY REWARD.

Sir Robert Allison reminds us of the amazing industry of Scott. "It is not astonishing to find that the result—the pecuniary result—of his untiring labors is unparalleled in the history of literature. In the first month of 1826 he is bankrupt to the tune of £150,000. But by December, 1827, he is £150,000 richer. By the end of the year he has produced no less than £250,000 in reduction of his debt. No wonder that he tells us in his journal of the surprise of his creditors at the time, exertions which, in a sum, "Woodstock" alone, written in three months—and in three months when he was at the very bottom of the abyss—produced more than £40,000.

A RECORD.

"I question," he says, "if more was ever made by a single work on a single author's labor in the same time." His rate of composition was, I suppose, the fastest known in the record of literary men. We have it carefully noted down from day to day. Thus in fifteen days, from January 15th to February 2nd, in 1826, the very year of his first hearing of it, he writes a volume. "A volume," he says, "at least is worth a thousand pounds," so that he was writing at a rate of no less than £24,000 a year. By such efforts his

25 CENT "DANDERINE" FOR FALLING HAIR AND DANDRUFF—GROWS HAIR

Don't Pay 50 Cents For Worthless Hair Tonics—Use Old, Reliable, Harmless "Danderine"—Get Results.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually, producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then falls out fast.

A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair. Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually, producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then falls out fast.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application you will say it was the best investment you ever made. Your hair will immediately take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an inimitable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Don't scatter dust and germs all over your home or office with an unsanitary feather duster or common duster. Always dust with 3-in-One oil this way: Moisten cheese cloth with a little of the oil. Then just wipe off your piano, chair, parlor table, mantel-piece—any venerated surface. Every atom of dust will stick to the cloth. Not one speck can fly about to settle somewhere else.

Make Your Own Dustless Duster Cloth for 5c.

This is the way: Take about two-thirds of a yard of cheese cloth. Sprinkle it with 3-in-One oil. Then let it stand until the oil has permeated every part. Then you have a real Dusting Cloth for 5c. Buy a bottle and make 7c worth of dusting cloth today!

ROWELL IN NORTH GREY SHOWS UP WHITNEY GOVT. NEGLIGENCE

Had Lots of Time To Pass Legislation for Big Interests, but None for the Farmers or Citizens—Proudfoot Charges Were Dealt With.

Owen Sound, July 10.—As a result of the crowd filling the hall at Shallow Lake so full that hundreds of people were unable to obtain admission, Mr. N. W. Rowell and John McQuaker, the Liberal candidate in North Grey, decided to hold an open-air meeting, so that all could hear fully the details of charges made by Mr. Proudfoot and the outrageous conduct of the Government in whitewashing the accusations made. Mr. Rowell was given a splendid reception.

Mr. Rowell confined his discussion to the needs of agriculture, the failure of the Government to enact modern social and industrial legislation, instancing this point with reference to the delay over securing the workmen's compensation legislation, tax reform, which affected both farmers and industrial workers alike, and lastly the temperance issue.

Proof of Him.
At the outset of his remarks, Mr. Rowell said it was a pleasure to be able to come into the riding and speak on behalf of Mr. McQuaker. Mr. McQuaker was a candidate of whom any party might be proud. He was a man of sound convictions and of sound judgment. It would be his aim as a representative in the Legislature to support those measures which were for the good of the community no matter from what side of the House they emanated, and he would be sure to reject all proposals that did not commend themselves to his conscience as being in the best interests of his constituents.

A reference to the name of Hon. A. G. MacKay brought forth rounds of applause. Although it is considered a Tory stronghold, Mr. MacKay was as popular in Shallow Lake as in any other part of the riding. Mr. Rowell paid personal testimony to the hearty co-operation that he received from Mr. MacKay during the sessions they sat together in the House.

Tribute to MacKay.
In a generous tribute to the former member for North Grey the Liberal leader said: "The Legislative Assembly has lost one of its ablest and most distinguished members by the removal of Mr. MacKay to Edmonton. No man on the Government side of the House was a match for him. I had the pleasure of working with him through one session of the Legislature. His experience, his advice and assistance were invaluable to me. They were always at my disposal. No two men could have worked more cordially together. No man in this riding regrets more than I do his removal to this riding, but to the whole Province. I am sure we all wish him success in the contest he has on hand at Athabasca Landing. You see he is at Athabasca Landing, you see he is engaged in the same work as Mr. MacKay in Ontario—fighting Tories. At least those who are not wise enough to support him. I know from his letters to me how interested he is in the fight, and how anxious he is for Mr. McQuaker's success. Had it not been for his own contest he would have planned to come down here and give a helping hand to his old friend and supporter, John McQuaker. (Applause.)

Making a Mistake.
"Mr. Cameron and his friends are making a great mistake when they are attempting to secure sympathy for Mr. Hanna and Sir James Whitney in the charges made against them by Mr. Proudfoot, one of Mr. MacKay's warmest friends and strongest supporters, by suggesting that Mr. MacKay and Mr. Hanna were much in the same position—both persecuted. The association of Mr. MacKay in any way with the Hanna-Whitney charges is an insult to him and to his friends in this riding. Do you think that Mr. MacKay would condone the expunging from the records of the committee of the most vituperative of the proceedings? Do you think he would have condoned the blocking of the investigation in the committee of privileges and elections in order to conceal the conduct of the ministers, or that he would have approved the misconduct already confessed and exposed? Had he been in the House this session his arraignment of the Government's misconduct would have been one of the events of the year." (Cheers.)

Nothing to Conceal?
Passing to the Proudfoot charges, which have been attributed to Mr. Rowell during the campaign, Mr. Rowell said any political leader who was worthy of the name would properly have demanded such an investigation as Mr. Proudfoot had. "What right has any man, any cabinet, or group of men, to spend your money and mine to decline to give an account of how that money has been expended or how it has been expended? If there was nothing to conceal, why was the Government concealing it? If there was nothing to hide, why hide it? I regret," he continued, "we did not have the splendid courage of Mr. MacKay to join with us in making that fight, which we maintained for the interest of the people." (Cheers.)

Farm Problems.
Passing on to the Opposition program in the Legislature, Mr. Rowell, without amendment or qualification, reiterated the proposals that have been pressed upon the Government to secure effective assistance through the department of agriculture to aid the farmers of the Province. It was not for him to disparage the work that had already been done, but in the face of excessive competition, of industrial advancement and improved machinery, it was time the Government took active steps to bring to the use of the farmers such facilities as would make farm life more attractive and more profitable.

A Record of Negligence.
In the realm of industrial legislation the record of the Government was one of negligence and indecision. The workmen, he went on, were seriously affected by the conditions of factories and shops, yet the Whitney Government was thoroughly remiss in its efforts to provide protective legislation for those who toiled from day to day in the great industrial plants of Ontario. The failure to gain workmen's compensation legislation stood out strongly as an evidence of undeniable neglect. Since 1907 promises had been made that something would be done, the workers all the while waiting in the hope that the promise would be carried out. Exasperated with the delay, the Industrial Banner, the organ of the labor unions, had declared against the "shameful betrayal" of the rights of the toilers by the "Autocrat of Queen's Park." The modern view of this great question was that a manufacturer should make the same provision for human wear and tear in his industry as he did for the wear and tear of his plant.

Tax Reform.
In the last session of the Legislature, although the Government had no time to pass workmen's compensation legislation, still it had time to pass a bill to grant big subsidies to railways in the north countries. Mr. Rowell showed how the question of tax reform was vital to the interest of the agricultural as well as the industrial workmen.

He demonstrated how under the present system of taxation the thrifty man who improves his property is penalized and the slothful man is encouraged in his slothfulness. He cited the city of Toronto as showing many instances of the injustices of the present system. Several Conservative and independent newspapers were quoted, showing that these journals were in favor of tax reform before they learned that Sir James Whitney was opposed to it. Mr. Rowell read articles from the Ottawa Citizen, the Ottawa Journal and other papers condemning the Whitney Government for delaying so long to introduce tax reform legislation.

The Liquor Traffic.
With the question of restriction of the evil of the liquor traffic Mr. Rowell dealt very briefly, merely indicating what Mr. McQuaker had said in that regard and promising that the Liberal Opposition would do everything in their power to curb the evils arising from the traffic. They were following in the footsteps of Sir Oliver Mowat, he said.

Mr. McQuaker's Appeal.
Mr. McQuaker made a straightforward appeal for the support of the electors on his extensive municipal experience and business standing in the community, and at once proved familiar with affairs in the Legislature by deprecating the tendency on the part of the Whitney Government towards centralization of authority.

This was particularly manifest in the administration of the Education Department. Gradually the power of the local school boards was being diverted into the hands of a few men in Toronto.

Similarly the voting of large sums of money had been taken out of the hands of the legislators—the representatives of the people—and placed in the power of a few men in the cabinet.

When the Government came into power it promised that "not one foot of the public domain" would be given to railways. But since that time millions of acres of land had been given to railways.

In the face of this there has been an absolute refusal to give any aid whatever to a projected line to connect Meaford and Owen Sound, which had been urged upon the province for many years.

PROUDFOOT AND HANNA WILL CROSS SWORDS ON SATURDAY

Recent Charges To Be Debated as Result of Arrangement Reached by Committees of Both Parties—Liberal to Speak First.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Owen Sound, July 11.—An arrangement has been reached between the Liberal and Conservative committees, by which Hon. W. J. Hanna and Sir Wm. Proudfoot are to meet on the platform here on Saturday evening. The plan which has been accepted by the campaign managers of both sides is that Mr. Proudfoot, who will speak first, will be allowed forty-five minutes. Mr. Hanna will follow, speaking for an hour if he so desires, and Mr. Proudfoot will then be given fifteen minutes in which to reply, and

Mr. Hanna will be allowed ten minutes in which to conclude, but he must not introduce any new material in the discussion. The text of the Conservative letter accepting the proposed this afternoon is: "Our committee have gone into this matter carefully and while the privileges which you ask are unusual, keeping in view that it is our meeting, yet we accept the terms stated in your letter. We hope that this meeting will be an orderly and quiet meeting so that all the speakers will receive the best attention."

Mrs. Edith Rigby Gave Herself Up to the Police Voluntarily.

Glories In Her Achievement in Burning Sir Wm. Lever's House.

[Canadian Press.]
Liverpool, July 10.—A dramatic confession of incendiaries was made by a well-known militant suffragette, Mrs. Edith Rigby, wife of a physician at Preston, to the magistrate sitting in the police court here today. Mrs. Rigby declared it was she who had on Tuesday this week burned down the country residence at Blivington, Lancashire, of Sir Wm. H. Lever, causing damage estimated at $100,000. She further confessed to being the perpetrator of the outrage at the Liverpool Cotton Exchange on July 5, when a bomb exploded, but caused little damage.

Gave Herself Up.
Mrs. Rigby surrendered voluntarily to the police. When arraigned in court she admitted her part in the burning of Sir Wm. H. Lever's house, saying she wanted Sir William H. Lever to consider whether his house was more valuable as a show place than as a reason for the burning of the country. She was seen suffering from an insupportable grievance. She told the magistrate: "I lighted that beacon. I also placed the explosives in the Liverpool Cotton Exchange. How easy it is to procure them and to place them in public buildings. I might just as easily have blown up the Nelson monument. She is remanded for further hearing."

A Leading Worker.
Mrs. Edith Rigby has been a member of the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant suffragette organization, and has taken a great part in public movements to promote the welfare of women. She has been imprisoned five times in connection with the movement and was on several occasions released owing to the breakdown of her health ensuing on "hunger strikes." Mrs. Rigby, in the course of her speech to the magistrate, said:

Revenge for Women.
"I chose the Liverpool Cotton Exchange because the cotton industry has been built up largely by women's labor. The merchants are willing to get power and wealth out of the labor of women, while the women themselves are denied the vote. I chose the Liverpool Cotton Exchange because it was the first knock at the door. Under the 'cat-and-mouse' act one of the greatest women in the land is going to be done to death. If the Government is going to kill the women, this is a warning of what will follow."

The police today raided the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union in Manchester and seized everything they could find.

HEAVY WESTERN RAINS ARE HELPING CROPS
Splendid Showers All Through Southern Manitoba Where It Had Been Very Dry.

Winnipeg, July 10.—Throughout the Canadian prairie west copious rains fell today starting about noon and continuing well into the night. While the western crops are not, as a rule, in urgent need of rain, a few places like the Brandon district, Southern Manitoba and parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta have been suffering for lack of moisture. According to correspondents, however, today's precipitation improved the crop situation in these districts a hundredfold. The rain was not spasmodic, but from the first fall brought a steady, soaking downpour, with hardly a moderation throughout the day. Of all the principal western cities only Edmonton, Calgary and Regina reported "no rain," and of these Edmonton had a heavy fall last night, while at Calgary and Regina the sky is overcast with heavy clouds and a fall is imminent. From as far west as Nelson the "heavy rain" bulletin has been received. At midnight a slight decrease in the fall at some points is reported.

Charge of Homicide Against Governor

[Canadian Press.]
Havana, July 11.—Fear of popular excitement following the announcement of the indictment of General Ernesto Asbert, governor of Havana province, on the charge of homicide in connection with the death of General Armando Riva, chief of the Cuban national police, caused the Government to take rigorous precautions against the possibility of an outbreak.

The military guards in the city were largely increased late last night. In the park, and troops of cavalry patrolled the streets throughout the night, while the police prohibited the gathering of more than three persons after midnight.

President Menocal today signed a decree suspending General Asbert from his office as governor of Havana province.

TWO AGED MEN LIKELY KILLED BY MAD WOMAN

Port Huron Girl, Intimating Murder, Asks That Mother Be Guarded.

Mrs. Sullivan Made Six Attempts To End Her Own Life.

Port Huron, July 10.—After having made six unsuccessful attempts to end her life during the past week and having endeavored once to burn the dwelling in which she and the surviving members of her family reside, Johannah Sullivan, aged 63 years, sister of Michael Sullivan, and widow of James Sullivan, both of whom died under suspicious circumstances at their home in Emmett Township, is being held at the county jail. It was learned by the sheriff and prosecuting attorney today that since the death of her husband she has been violently insane at times and has been restrained only by the combined efforts of all members of the family.

Tried to Suicide. Six times Mrs. Sullivan has attempted to end her life, according to stories told to the county officers this afternoon by Marlon and Margaret Sullivan, daughters, both of whom are teachers in rural schools. Once she swallowed insect powder, still another time she swallowed a sidecomb two inches long and four inches wide, and on other occasions she attempted to die by choking herself with a towel, handkerchief and cord.

A few mornings ago, Marlon, the eldest daughter, was awakened at 4 o'clock by the fumes of smoke. In the kitchen she found flames leaping up from the woodbox, and she called out, partially clothed, sitting near by. Mrs. Sullivan was the only member of the family awake at that time, and she did not deny that she attempted to burn the dwelling, though she could give no cause.

Found Strychnine. A partially emptied vial of strychnine was found today in the house. It was Mrs. Sullivan who had prepared the means for both of the deceased men a few minutes before their deaths. The daughters, now intimate a belief that their mother, while laboring under a belief that injury would come to her, placed the fatal drug in the food of the farmers.

It now appears doubtful that any criminal action will be taken against Mrs. Sullivan. If she is insane and her conduct indicates that she is not feigning a mental weakness—she cannot, according to Michigan laws, be held for a criminal offence. This afternoon an application for her commitment to an asylum was filed in probate court by her daughter Marlon. In all probability she will be sent to the Pontiac institution or to the one for the criminal insane at Ionia. A committee of physicians has been appointed by Judge Hart, of the probate court, to examine her condition. A report of this body is expected before noon tomorrow. At 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon she will be given a hearing in probate court.

Lost Her Memory. Mrs. Sullivan now appears to have lost mind completely. She declares she has no memory of the past at all. She said that she missed her brother and husband from the house, but had no idea when they died or what caused their deaths. All power of reasoning apparently has been lost since the deaths of the two men. She displayed no feeling at all when placed in custody of Sheriff Malmes, and rambled incoherently all the time she was being driven from Emmett to Port Huron.

The woman formerly was an inmate of a Dearborn retreat. She was committed to that institution in 1885 and remained there a few weeks. According to her daughters her mentality never has been right since that time. At times she would be seized with a violent fit and would surrender only to be restrained by force. For several months she had been rational and able to discharge her ordinary duties, the daughters state, but from the date of the death of her husband she has been most violent.

POLICE IN LEAGUE WITH BIG GANG OF HOODLUMS

Serious Charges Made Against Montreal Force After a Serious Assault.

Montreal, July 11.—That the city police here are in league with a gang of hoodlums, who on Monday night almost killed John H. Roberts at the close of an open air temperance meeting, is one of the serious charges made by the grand lodge of Quebec, Independent Order of Good Templars, in a letter forwarded today to Sir Lomer Gouin, the provincial premier, who is asked to control the Montreal police force and place it under a competent head.

Mr. Roberts himself, in an interview, says the local police administration "out-Beckers Becker, and values prudence and savor faire more than honor, justice and right."

Mr. Roberts traces the alleged animosity of the administration to him to accusations, denied by the parties concerned, he has lodged that Chief Campbell and other police officials are connected with the Frisco Soda Water Company, whose products hotels and houses of ill-fame buy for "protection."

STEEL TRUST IS FREE TO SECURE MONOPOLY

Government Granted a Charter Permitting Acquiring of Other Firms.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, July 11.—The report from Detroit that the United States Steel Company has secured a charter under which it could form a monopoly of the steel business in Canada is quite correct.

Its charter authorizes it to acquire other companies, and if it has money enough it can buy all the steel plants which exist. The steel company is not alone in this privilege. Practically every charter granted by the state department contains authority to acquire other companies. The only thing to prevent the operation of a monopoly is the anti-trust act, which provides severe penalties against any corporation convicted of operating as a combine in restraint of trade. This law was recently applied against the United Shoe Machinery Company of Canada.

Porter Charlton To Face Murder Charge

New York, July 11.—The Italian consulate is advised that two agents of the Italian Government are leaving Italy today for this country to get Porter Charlton, and take him back to Italy to stand alone in the murder of his wife, which their honeymoon at Lake Como, on June 7, 1910. The authorities of the Hudson County jail, in Jersey City, have been directed to turn the alleged murderer over to the Italian agents, in accordance with the recent mandate of the United States supreme court. Mrs. Charlton was the divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a lawyer of San Francisco.

RAILWAY TIE-UP IN UNITED STATES GOOD FOR LONDON

Would Mean That Huge Traffic Would Be Diverted This Way.

ALL CANADIAN LINES UNAFFECTED BY THREATENED GIGANTIC WALKOUT.

LONDON will likely receive another impetus as a railway centre should the strike of 75,000 railway conductors and trainmen of the eastern American railroads materialize next week. Canadian roads—the Canadian Pacific, Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk, Great Northern, and the Canadian lines of the Michigan Central, are not affected by the strike order. The result of a strike will mean additional traffic for the lines throughout Canada.

ROYAL YEAST
MAKES PERFECT BREAD

A Letter From G. B. Shaw

HUMANITY IN RESEARCH.

Sir—I am afraid I cannot deal with Mr. Paget's letter point by point as he asks me to. As he has not dealt with mine in that way, or indeed at all except for three flat contradictions as to which I can assure him he has been imposed on as usual, he will forgive me, and may say comprehensively of his thirteen articles that, as far as they are relevant to the controversy (which is not saying much), they are—as far as I may say so without invidiousness, malice, or identification of Mr. Paget personally with his academic opinions—erroneous, abominable, damnable, abhorrent, and excommunicable. That, I think, meets the case very clearly and fairly.

As to Neisser, I leave Mr. Paget to tell the story himself in his own way, since he does not consider that I told it accurately. But what really interests us all is not in the least whether I have told three lies in sixteen words as Mr. Paget avers, but whether Mr. Paget takes my sixteen words, true or false, as a calumny of Neisser or a compliment to him. From Mr. Paget's point of view there can be no possible objection to inoculating children with gonorrhea. Yet Mr. Paget seems to object. Is Saul, then, also among the prophets?

I said that the official theory of Malta fever has been not ignominiously disproved. Mr. Paget says I will not find, in all the world, one man of common sense who will agree with me. This is rather hard on the medical profession, considering that the man who explored the theory by the trite expedient of going to Malta and making a few simple inquiries on the spot, is described in Who's Who, in addition to the surgical qualifications held by Dr. Paget and the diplomas of doctor and physician, as first prizeman in physiology, operative surgery, pathology, and forensic medicine, Clarke, a scholar, Rupa prizeman, and double gold medalist in surgery and medicine. Mr. Paget's contention that a man can be all this without having any common sense is interesting. I suppose there is Queen's Hall with people who agree with me, or to suggest that the rapid subscription of £4,000 to pay Miss Lind-a-Hageby's costs may indicate that the British nation is not quite so wholly uneducated as Mr. Paget would simply deny that the parties have any common sense. I am then, I suppose, content with the admission that professors of physiology and pathology may suffer from the same very common disability. Note, by the way, how Mr. Paget, confronted with Miss Beatrice Kidd's clear and circumstantial account of how the Maltese mare's nest was converted into a British cocked hat, does not venture to challenge a single particular of it.

Now for Mr. Paget's new statements. "The life and health of children come before the life and health of guinea-pigs and rabbits." But that is a very bald example of this sort of arithmetic. The life and health of some children come before the life and health of others. The speed of communication on which our modern civilization turns comes before the life and health of a few children, but not of a starving child comes before Mr. Paget's need for seeing a musical comedy. If the Research Defence Society is right, the life and health of Mr. Paget comes before the life and health of Dr. Hadwen. Therefore, let motor mail-vans drive at fifty miles an hour through village streets. Let every man whose child is hungry pick Mr. Paget's pocket of half a guinea. Let the rickety child in the hospital be sacrificed to test a drug or a treatment or an operation before trying it on a sturdy little boy whose parents can afford to feed him and educate him properly. If vivisection is science, and science is to be the salvation of the world, and it is expedient that one man should do for the people; so let Mr. Paget prescribe an overdose of his favorite drug, digitalis, to Dr. Hadwen. This is what comes of tampering with logic. I advise Mr. Paget to drop it. It is not his job.

Anyhow, it has nothing to do with the controversy. Mr. Paget is like the old critics of the Puritan who objected to heart-baiting. They called him a sentimentalist. "You are mistaken," he said. "You think I object to the pain inflicted on the bear. That does not concern me at all. What I object to is the pleasure (the heart-baiting gives to the spectators)." I am not fussing about the rabbit's feelings, greatly as I dislike cruelty to rabbits. What I do object to is turning a decent medical student into a scoundrel by teaching him the arguments that are used by scoundrels. I had rather let our children take their chance of surviving without the help of vivisection (after all, children occasionally survived ailments before the Research Defence Society was founded) than destroy the souls of the men whose consciences are the living hope of science. After this it would be an anti-climax to point out that a man who believes that the existence of the human race depends on the vivisection of rabbits and guinea-pigs is so obviously on the particular subject that it is hardly charitable to argue with him.

Says Mr. Paget, "Animals, for certain experiments under anaesthesia, are tied down, for this reason, that they cannot lie on their backs, as we can, when they are under anaesthesia." I did not know that animals, when vivisected, are always placed on their backs. Is Mr. Paget quite sure that they are? It must be inconvenient when the spinal cord has to be investigated. Besides, we humans do not have it all our own way. It is true that animals do not share with men and turtles the honors of the supine position. But then an animal can lie on its side more solidly than any man; and a turtle cannot lie on its side at all. Are men strapped down and gagged during operations which require them to lie on their sides? Are animals vivisected without straps and gags when the same position is convenient? Dr. Saleeby almost replied that all operations are conducted on tables similar to the one exhibited in the anti-vivisection shop in Bond Street. I am personally convinced in this, because I have been twice operated on, and I was not provided with a table or with gags or straps; and if this was an improper and unusual omission, I must ask Sir Anthony Kewley what he meant by describing me of my rights. The whole thing is very mysterious. And yet there is no question as to what Mr. Paget means. "Animals are tied down for the reason, and for this reason alone, that they cannot lie on their backs as we can when we are under anaesthesia." Now that I think of it, I cannot lie on my back when I am under anaesthesia. I have to lie just as they put me.

"Tuberculin, in suitable cases, gives good results." Certainly it does. There was a quite celebrated case of a woman who had a tuberculous ulcer on her arm. On treatment with Koch's tuberculin, the arm promptly rotted off; and the woman, who was poor, was enabled to make a very welcome addition to her little income by exhibiting herself at the hospitals as an object-lesson. This was unquestionably a good result; and yet it led to the disease of tuberculosis until Sir Almonst Wright, instead of inoculating rabbits and guinea-pigs on the ground that their lives are less important than those of children, unexpectedly mixed tuberculin with a little of his own brains, and immediately made important discoveries which might just as easily have been made by the vivisectors if they had had any time to spare for really scientific work from their silly ancient Roman superstitions of giving trials to animals for magical revelations.

"The efficacy of the protective treatment against typhoid fever has been proved, etc., etc." Of course it has, to the satisfaction of vivisectors. You can prove anything to the satisfaction of vivisectors, provided it is something improbable and disgusting. The efficacy of the treatment was proved to their satisfaction before the South African War broke out. That was why our troops were inoculated on the spot, with the result that they were not annihilated by the Boers. And they died of typhoid in heaps after all.

"The suggestion that the Indian Government has killed six out of nine million people with a serum treatment is, to say the least of it, false." Well, come! How does Mr. Paget know any more than I know? I did not make the statement, but I know that plague, which used to ravage London, has been exterminated without any serum treatment by common sanitation. And in the face of that fact, I am prepared to say that any government is creditable enough to trust to serums instead of to sanitation as a safeguard against plague, a statement that the serums (or, rather, the people who advocate them) and not that ignorance, poverty and dirt have anything to do with disease) are responsible for the deaths by plague, is much less sporting than the one I shall now quote from Mr. Paget's letter. "No operation, more than the lancing of a vein just under the skin, is allowed to be done on any animal in this country unless the animal, throughout the whole of the operation, is under some anesthetic strong enough to prevent it from feeling pain." I am glad Mr. Paget has committed himself to this statement, because it confirms what I suspected, that he knows practically nothing about vivisection, and has never read the act

Henley's Heroic Soul

English Poet-Journalist Undaunted to the Last—Smiling in Affliction.

In the latest biography of William B. Henley, by L. C. Cornford (Houghton, Mifflin) are several admirable pictures of the most heroic of poet-journalists. The writer is anxious to dissipate any impression that Henley was a bloodless, nervous Victorian and to substitute for it the image of a man of massive build and great stature, charged with an immense vitality, and gifted with indomitable energy and a hearty enjoyment of the good things of life. Take, for instance, this description of the first time the writer saw him:

The door opened, and a big man was suddenly framed in the opening. He supported himself with one hand pressed against the woodwork, the other bearing upon an ivory-handled stick. His great head was poised a little backward upon his broad shoulders; his upstanding hair and fine-spun beard were of a tawny hue; the eyes of a clear blue, their gaze direct and yet as though dwelling upon far things; the mouth was full-lipped, the face large and square of jaw. He carried with him an indescribably proud air of courage and tragedy and power. He had the port of a commander. He seated himself at his desk and leaned his arms upon it, lifting his head like a wounded lion. His visitor knew that he moved in the pain of a recent irremediable loss, and in the shadow of impending trouble; that his whole life had been a gallant fight against disastrous odds; and that he stood unbeaten upon the heath road of high achievement in art.

The loss which is spoken of here was of Henley's daughter, the most devastating stroke of his life. There are other brief portraits of this gallant figure, especially in the homes of his later years at Barnes, overlooking the slow river which he called the river of Death, and at Muswell Hill, where he died in 1903. Even those which exhibit him in his last days, when he sat working, with the pallor of suffering upon his face, show us the high energy of a life whose gospel seems best expressed by his friend Stevenson's essay "Aes Triplex." It was the same as in his active lifetime, when "he made enemies, but he made staunch friends; he hit hard, and took punishment with a jovial carelessness; and he radiated an enthusiasm, a courage, and a hearty delight in real things, that made up one of the most potent influences of the time." It will be remembered that in 1876 Stevenson, sent by Leslie Stephen to visit Henley in the hospital, where his foot had just been amputated, found him "furling up in bed with his hair all tangled, and talking as cheerfully as if he had been in a king's palace."

MR. ASQUITH AS SPEAKER.

"Most of Mr. Asquith's speeches nowadays are the result of careful preparation, and very frequently they are read from manuscript. In the Welsh debate we had the preparation, but not the manuscript—an ideal arrangement in Mr. Asquith's case.

"Although the subject was stale, the House half empty, and the emergency by no means pressing, yet, in a curiously spontaneous and wilful fashion that seemed to surprise even its author, the speech soared into a Gladstonian amplitude of thought, phrase and vision which would have been impossible if the orator had clung to his notes. Not for a long time have I seen the House so visibly under the spell of an attractive intellectual domination," says "A Wayfarer" in the Nation.

A PREMIER'S WIFE.

"The members of the new Radical cabinet refuse to wear uniforms or decorations or to accept the title of 'Excellency,'" says the Daily Mail's Copenhagen correspondent. "The wife of the Premier, Mr. Zehle, who is a lawyer, is an official parliamentary shorthand writer, and she is the first woman to hold this position, and her salary is about £165 a year. While her husband is Premier she will present her salary to a shorthand writer's fund."

Her gown is made so tight
She cannot walk at all,
Her hat obstructs her sight,
Her shoes are very small.
So small she cannot stand
Without a deal of pain,
And if she raised her hand
Her gloves would split in twain.

The corset underneath
Her very modish gown,
Enwraps her like a sheath
And so she can't sit down;
The figures on her veil
Disfigure all her face;
Her diet's made her pale
And stolen half her grace.

Yet when she hobbles by,
A funny sight to see,
The women look and sigh,
"Ah, would that I were she."
She suffers grievous woe
From tiny foot to curl,
But women whisper, "Oh,
She's SUCH a Stylish Girl!"

BRILLIANT SCENE
AT THE ARMORIES

I. O. O. F. Decoration of Chivalry
Bestowed on Four Ladies.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS

Unique Ceremony Made a Beautiful and Interesting Pageant.

The Decoration of Chivalry was conferred on four lady members of the I. O. O. F. in the armories on Thursday evening. Brigadier-General
Dr. G. M. Hermon, of Toronto, commander for Ontario of the Patriarchs Military, I. O. O. F., conferred the decoration on Mrs. George E. Logan and Mrs. Garrett Stack, of Victoria Rebekah Lodge, and Mrs. Richard Johnston and Miss Annie Buskard, of May Queen Lodge.

In Full Regalia.
Headed by the Seventh Regiment Band the London Canton No. 1 and Victoria Canton No. 6, St. Thomas, marched in full regalia from the city hall to the armories where the decoration was conferred. The Patriarchs Militant were in full uniform of purple and gold, and made a very imposing sight on the floor of the armories, where they had charge of the ceremony. The four ladies were escorted by the guard through a lane of uniformed patriarchs with drawn swords to the end of the hall, where the decoration was conferred by Brigadier-General G. M. Hermon. The ceremony was attended by 200 spectators, who watched the proceedings with great interest.

Ladies' Drill.
After the bestowal of the decoration, which is a white enamel medal, with a ruby heart in the centre, surmounted with a gold cross, the ladies performed some fancy drills, and gave an exhibition of military marching. Everything worked like a smoothly-running piece of machinery, and the audience were highly delighted. At the close of the evening refreshments were served to all present.

The general staff consists of Assistant Adjutant General W. J. Foster, of Toronto; Assistant Commissary General A. J. Morrey and Major Reid, of Windsor; Brigade Major Tanner, of St. Thomas; and Commissary Captain
S. W. Priestley, Victoria Canton, No.
5, was commanded by Captain Logan.

The floor work was in charge of Captain Priestley, and the ladies' drill was conducted by Lieutenant G. Shaw, of London.

GAVE HIS LIFE
TO AID SCIENCE

[Canadian Press.]
Hartford, Conn., July 11.—
Berton E. Baker, inventor of the Baker X-ray tube and other machines of that type, is dead at his home here today, following an illness since last September, since which time no less than nine operations were made by scientists in Philadelphia, New York and Hartford
in a vain effort to save his life.
He was virtually a victim of constant exposure to the X-ray, and despite warnings of his danger four years ago, he had kept at his work until he had perfected one of the very best machines on the market.
Baker was born in New Brittain Aug. 19, 1870. He received a common school education, and became interested in science in his early days. He never studied in a school of higher education.

MONSTER MASQUERADE
AT FORSTERS' GATHERING

Great Preparations Being Made For Annual Convention
of A. O. F.

The week of the 25th of August will witness one of the largest conventions ever held in this city. On that date the Dominion convention of the Ancient Order of Foresters opens here and lasts for one week. There are eight lodges in the city, having a total membership of over 1,100, and they are combining to make this convention one of the finest ever held. The executive council meets on Monday, Aug. 25, and the convention proper opens the next day. The delegates are coming from all over the Dominion and preparations are being made for their arrival. During the convention a monster masquerade parade will be held, in which each lodge in the city will stage their own piece.
The firemen of the city are being invited to take part in the parade, after which a banquet will be given to the delegates. The arrangements are not all complete, but it is expected that this will be the best and most interesting convention that has ever been held by the A. O. F.

Annual Picnic
of Christ Church

Largely Attended Outing Was Held at Springbank Thursday.

The annual Sunday school picnic of Christ Church was held at Springbank yesterday, and was largely attended by the parents as well as the children. The day was cool in the forenoon, but proved to be ideal in the afternoon, and the crowd which went over in the morning was largely increased by the doubters of the weather who came in numbers later.

STORM CENTRE OF METHODIST CHURCH

British Journal Comments on the Professor Jackson Incident in Canada.

"LIBERTY IN METHODISM"

Says Attempt Was Made to Block Professor's Appointment in English School.

London, July 11. — Christian Commonwealth, published in London, Eng., and which calls itself the "Organ of the Progressive Movement in Religion and Social Ethics," in its issue of June 11, features an interview with Rev. George Jackson, recently of Toronto, under the heading, "The Storm Centre of Methodism."

Editorially, this comment is passed under the caption:

"Liberty in Methodism."

Rev. George Jackson, B. A., principal-designate of Disbury Wesleyan College, returned from Canada last week to find himself the central figure in a dispute which threatens to have serious consequences. His first act on landing was to telegraph a repudiation of the report published in the Toronto Globe, and reprinted by the British Weekly, of an address delivered by him on "Genesis." On Saturday our special commissioner made a journey down into Devonshire to interview Mr.
Jackson. The account of his visit appeared on the front page of this issue and embodies a review of the main issue involved.

Refused to Discuss.

Not unreasonably, we think, Mr.
Jackson felt himself unable to discuss the question with our representative, and made it clear that he preferred to hold no communication with the press, denominational or extra-denominational,
until the conference of the Wesleyan Church has met. From his personal point of view, Mr. Jackson is doubtless well advised in holding himself apart from the discussion which is now certain to follow, since the question has also been raised at several of the Wesleyan synods.

More Than Personal.

But the matter was more than a personal significance. It involves not only the right of one teacher or preacher in Methodism to deal fearlessly, frankly, and fully with the findings of modern Biblical criticism and scientific research, but the right of all teachers and preachers in the Methodist Church. This is the justification of our representative's visit to Mr. Jackson, and for the publicity
we have given to the whole affair.
We called attention months ago to the movement, set on foot by the reactionaries to get the conference to reconsider Mr. Jackson's appointment to Disbury College. The Methodist Recorder said last week it had not hitherto allowed the matter to be discussed in its columns because it "did not wish to assist in the introduction of a matter into the synods that would have complicated many grave issues and set at naught the work of the past." We cannot understand what graver issues could possibly arise than the question whether a minister and teacher can be allowed liberty of intellect and conscience as a member of the church.

A Legal Opinion.

We do not, however, deny that many serious difficulties will call for attention now that the question has been raised. In last week's issue of the "Primitive Methodist Leader," a letter appeared dealing with what we believe to be the fundamental difficulty. This correspondent puts a perfectly plain dilemma. He states, on the authority of a legal contributor to that journal, that the legal interpretation of the deed-poll upon which the Primitive Methodist Church is founded ties the church down to John Wesley's teaching. In the same issue that contained this legal opinion Dr. A. S. Peake, "as the authorized exponent of scripture in our connexion, gives an answer to a correspondent which shows that he does not regard the Bible as the basis of anything like the same light as John Wesley regarded it, and it is impossible that such doctrines as the innocency of our first parents, the fall and that of the posterity, should remain unaffected."

Points Out Absurdity.

The writer of this letter points out very forcibly the absurdity of allowing the reactionary and the heresy-hunter to occupy such impregnable legal ground. It places the ministers and teachers of the church in an impossible position when their intellect and conscience oblige them to shape their message according to the needs of the present and not the dead standards of the past. The only reply that means anything ever made to this case is that practical preachers and teachers have all the liberty they need. Within the Methodist Church there is unquestion-ably a large measure of liberty of intellect and conscience. But there are also reactionaries and obscurantists.
And if the obvious reading of the formal documents and deeds of the church is also the legal one, the reactionaries and obscurantists have an advantage which they have proved themselves more than once not unwilling to use.

May Crush Churches.

We repeat, therefore, that the question of liberty of intellect in the Methodist Church is not a personal one, though, unhappily for Mr. Jackson, it seems probable that it will be discus-ed on those lines. For ourselves, the matter has a larger meaning, and we shall be surprised and disappointed if this is not regulated by the general body of Methodist ministers. Their freedom, not less than Mr. Jackson's, is in peril.
No grip is more paralyzing than that of the "dead hand," and as it fastens
now on an individual here and there, it will as surely crush the life out of the church as a whole, unless its weight be lifted.
