The Joy of Good Health Is Now Experienced

Nervousness, Dizzy Spells and Sleeplessness Are Now a Thing of the Past.

This is a cheerful letter from Mrs. Peacock, and it should bring joy to the heart of many a reader of this paper. Dizzy spells and sleeplessness are symptoms of exhausted nerves, and are the bug-bear of many women, who do not know how to get relief by treatment to use.

husband is conductor on the Wabash Railway, states: "I was quite run down in health, was very nervous, did not sleep well, and had frequent dizzy spells. Believing this to be the result of an exhausted nervous system, I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that this medicine did me a world of good. I feel much better and the symptoms stated above, built up my health generally, so that to-day I feel that I am quite well again."

Growing Old.

The days grow shorter, the nights grow longer. The headstones thicken along the way. And life grows harder, but love grows stronger. For those who walk with us day by day.

A Rich Man's Will.

The fire burned readily in the wide, deep grate, and yet the room seemed cold. Monica shivered in her chair beside the bed, the great fur rug draped about her.

She rose softly to lay more coal upon the fire, and as she returned to her seat her uncle spoke her name. "Monny?"

"Yes, Uncle Jabez."

"Feel under my pillow, take my keys," the voice came weak and faltering. "Open the bureau. Pull out the third drawer on the right. Feel hehind. That's right."

Monica's fingers had probed a large hidden space behind the drawer and drew forth an oblong envelope. By the freight she saw the superscription, "My Will," in her uncle's cramped, crabbed handwriting.

She came back to the bed and found the sick man's eyes fixed upon her with that secret, malicious twinkle she knew so well.

"Read it to me," he whispered. And by the flickering firelight Monica read it aloud, stumbling now and then over the long, intricate legal sentences, and recovering herself with anxious haste.

Even upon his deathbed, impatient to raise hand or finger, the terror of Jabez Samsauer had wilfully inspired in all his entourage abated no whit of its potency.

But as the girl read on certain sentences detached themselves and remained etched in her memory.

"Hereby revoked all former wills, 'of sound mind,' and then one or two of the smaller bequests.

Only £50 to Mrs. Bishop, the widow of my late brother, for her maintenance; and I hereby bequeath to my dear daughter, who has served him so faithfully for 30 years, bearing with his temper and his tantrums as no other woman in the world would have been bound to do—who was nearly too old to work—

Only £100 to his head clerk, Geoffrey Morland; £50 to buy a mourning ring to poor old Cousin Susie, to whom he had, grudgingly enough, hitherto allowed a small annuity.

The same to herself, Monica Idlesleigh, whom many people had wooed as being, without doubt, part heirress with his grandson, Harry! Well, she had never counted on anything at all.

She knew her uncle too well for that; she could earn her bread somehow—and not by the quiver of a muscle, or faintest change of tone, should the sick man be able to fancy her disappointment.

This under all but little about the matter. Generous Harry would see justice done to all as soon as he came into his kingdom.

He might be a son's son to Jabez Samsauer, but in heart and mind oceans flowed between them. She read on steadily, and the residue, both personal and real estate, whatsoever I die possessed—

Suddenly the clear voice faltered and died away. What, what was this? The letters danced before her eyes, and yet she read them but too plainly.

"To found zoological gardens in 20 of the leading cities of the United Kingdom, one half of the collection to consist of the monkey tribe, in order to provide facilities for the future generations of my countrymen to study their ancestors, and, 'it is my hope, learn to profit by observing them.'"

A joke, surely? One of the cruel grim, practical jests which were all Uncle Jabez understood by humor? But no, it was duly signed, witnessed, sealed.

"What have you stopped for, girl? came a fretful whisper from the bed. 'Read on.'"

"Uncle! You can't mean it! This isn't really your will?"

"Isn't it, married the old man feebly. 'Wait till after the funeral, my dear, and see.'"

"But Harry?" she faltered. "Your natural heir—the only child of your only son—why, he's not even mentioned!"

his own? Didn't I make it every penny?" he chuckled again.

"Read it'll delay your marriage for a bit, my girl! Master Harry'll have to learn to keep himself before he takes a wife in tow!"

Monica had risen to her feet and stood staring at him in wide-eyed horror. So he knew! So he had guessed—erected it out somehow—the secret that only she and Harry shared. And because of this—because of this—he would disinherite Harry.

Suddenly he began to laugh aloud, horrible, eerie laughter from those bloodshot lips in the chill and shaded room. The laughter changed, seemed to rattle in his throat, the twinkling eyes flamed over.

Terrified, Monica called the nurse. Together they sought to fan the flickering flame of Jabez Samsauer's life. But the effort was useless.

In five minutes all was over. And it was not until late that night that Monica remembered the will.

She looked at it with wide eyed loathing. It was wretched! Now, at this very moment the 20 towns were practically owners of the Samsauer fortune and Harry forever dispossessed of all he had the right to claim.

Monica's eyes filled with tears. For herself she cared nothing. Her life had been bitter enough. It would be peace and joy now to know herself released forever from her uncle's crushing yoke. But Harry! Ruined—and by her very love.

From the mantelpiece she took down his photograph. How splendid he was, yet wital, so gay, kind and gentle. Just like his mother who had received her, a penniless orphan, 15 years ago.

The hand that held the will twitched involuntarily. In Monica's gaze also there burned a fire. A kindly house maid had lighted it, knowing the master to be beyond objection. The glowing heat of the coals seemed to lure her to drop the paper into them.

Monica remembered that she had closed the bureau and replaced the keys under the pillow before commencing to read aloud. Even the lawyers must suppose that he, him self, destroyed it.

And then Harry would inherit all—his mother's, her own, and the people, clerks, servants, dependents. Above all, Harry and herself. And the 20 towns would not miss their cynical bequests.

Her fingers trembled over the fire. Surely—surely—it would not be wrong.

And nobody need ever know—not even Harry! But suddenly in the quiet, empty room, Monica's cheeks turned scarlet at that thought.

If Harry knew he would never keep the money. He was the soul of honor; his dead mother's own child. She was somehow ashamed that the two pictured faces should see her—Lady Harry in the big, gilt frame above the chimney and Harry on her lap.

What she desired to do would not be playing the game! And the motto of her mother's people—Harry's Norman ancestors—rang suddenly in her ears like a tolling bell.

"Hate is que dots, adieu que ponner." "Do the right, come what may!" Duguesclin's motto, and if she married Harry—hers. But she would have staid it.

With a sudden desperate effort she pulled back her fingers, still poised above the fire, and walked quickly out of her room and down into the dining room, where the doctors were still chatting in lowered voices.

"My uncle's will!" she said. "Perhaps you will take charge of it, Dr. Harris!"

And before the astonished man could answer she had fled to her bedroom, where, crouching low beside the glowing hearth, she wept at last.

The funeral, with its solemn, portentous mockery was over. Side by side the betrothed pair sat in the library. The news had spread of the contents of Jabez Samsauer's unjust will, and people looked at them with a half hidden pity.

Capt. Samsauer was certainly a little pale—no wonder. But his ring sparkled boldly on Monica's finger, and it was said that they intended to emigrate to Canada and build themselves a home in the country of Hope.

The solemn lawyer cleared his throat. "I have here a will dated July 17th," he said, "which was handed by my late client to Miss Idlesleigh on the night of his death, and by her given in charge of Dr. Harris in the presence of witnesses. This will, however, is superseded by a second will executed on the 18th of last June, which I will now proceed to read."

The startled audience roused itself to listen. Monica's head buzzed. The words were plain enough. Mr.

German Treachery.

The London News states through German treachery the great Russian ammunition factory at Ochia, a suburb of Petrograd, was blown to pieces a number of months ago. It was the Russian Woolwich, really the only munition factory in Russia. The Russian military situation was badly influenced, as the Allies had to come to the rescue by the circuitous Archangel route. Russia, crippled in this manner, had to fight for time and the striking power of France and Great Britain was checked. All the thought of the proposed spring offensive had to be given up and the chief energies of Allies bent to the task of supplying Russia with munitions.

Greatly Discouraged Over Baby's Illness.

Mrs. Jos. Gaudreau, Notre Dame des Bois, Que., writes: "Last autumn our baby was very sick and we were greatly discouraged. The doctor did not seem able to help him and we began using Baby's Own Tablets which soon made him a fat, healthy child." The Tablets regulate the stomach and bowels, break up colds and simple fevers, expel worms, cure colic and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How Victory Must Come.

The victory must come to us through mind, will and soul. If we were inferior in these things nothing could save us. In our capacity for these we are inferior to no race on earth, and it is time for this truth to shine out again, as in the first phrase of the war. Now, as in the days of Cromwell and Chatham, Britain is ready for heroic leadership, and demands nothing less. We are certain that the thing will come with the need, but the true touch and accent of heroic leadership are only known when, in the very hour of difficulty, the spirit of indomitable courage, exertion and resolve are breathed into a whole people by men who scorn weak concealment and seek strength from the full and require frothing of emergency.

Wolfville People Praise Simple Mixture.

Many in Wolfville praise the simple mixture of huckthorn bark, glycerine, etc. known as Adler-ka. This remedy is the most THOROUGH bowel cleanser ever sold being even used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gases rumble and pass out. Adler-ka cannot gripe and the INSTANT action is surprising. Sold by A. V. Rand.

Long-Range Prayer.

The Swiss mountaineers have a custom of calling through speaking trumpets at dusk each evening, "Pray for the Lord God—The Lord God may be started by one herdman and is answered by others from neighboring peaks, the sound being much prolonged as it reverberates from one mountain to another. After a short interval, supposedly devoted to prayer, a herdman calls in the same manner, "Good night," this, too, being repeated by his fellows. Then all retire to their huts. The impressiveness of these calls, echoing and re-echoing from rock and mountain to mountain can easily be imagined.

In Dread of Croup.

Every mother dreads croup unless she knows about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Given in frequent small doses, at the first indication of croup, it soothes the inflamed membrane and affords relief and comfort. Its use should be kept up until the child is entirely recovered.

An Appeal on Behalf of the National Patriotic Fund.

We have now entered upon the second year of the war, and the end seems as far off as ever. No one imagined, a year ago, that by September of 1915, Canada would have sent across the Atlantic nearly one hundred thousand men with as many more to follow if necessary. This magnificent enlistment, while primarily due to the loyalty of our people, has been, in a large measure, made possible by the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

There are flashes of humor on the field of battle.

There are flashes of humor on the field of battle. There is one told of an Irish soldier who coolly asked a comrade to give him a light to his cigarette just as they were beginning to charge the enemy who were much superior in number. His comrade struck a match, and as he was handing it to Pat a German bullet carried it away.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFFVILLE, N. S., OCT. 1, 1915.

Editorial Brevities.

The wind and rain the first of this week did a great deal of damage to the fruit crops.

Some of the people who told us that there wasn't going to be any war will soon be around declaring that there isn't going to be any peace.

Something for Thanksgiving Day: If we can't give thanks that we have licked the Germans we can at least be thankful that they haven't licked us.

The war news this week has been much more encouraging. The Allies appear to have the enemy on the run. May it indeed prove to be the beginning of the end—and the end not far away.

Re-inforcements for the Princess Patricia's C. L. I.

The Universities of Canada have now for some time been working loyally together to reinforce that gallant regiment, the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. Three Companies have already gone overseas, numbering nearly 900 men, and a fourth Company is now under formation at Montreal.

The University Companies are now known throughout the length and breadth of Canada, so that there is a continuous flow of men of the right type to Montreal. Not only do such men find entry to a famous regiment but they are rapidly equipped and trained and sent without delay over sea to England, where they are comfortably billeted in huts at an excellent camp near the sea on the south coast of England. Moreover the men secure the great advantage of good comradeship with congenial spirits of similar tastes and antecedents.

The first Company under a notable officer, Captain Gregor Barclay, has been declared by regular officers of experience to be second to none compared with any company of any army in the world.

The second Company was raised over-strength in seven weeks by Captain G. McDonald and Captain Percy Molson. Both companies are now in France.

The third Company sailed eighty over strength because the newspaper publishers of Canada were good enough to make known, through their columns, that the Company was being formed. This resulted in such a rush of recruits that it was necessary to apply to the Militia Council of Ottawa for special authority to increase the strength from 250 to 350 men.

Each man before embarkation writes to a friend who is a likely recruit and tells him of the advantages of the Universities Company, so that, even before the men have disembarked a fresh company is assembling on the McGill Campus at Montreal.

Recruits are examined locally by an Army medical officer and are attested by a magistrate in the nearest city, after which an application is made for transportation, which is speedily furnished from Montreal.

This system is effective and rapid, and free from red tape. There are, in nearly every city, representatives of the various universities who are always ready to help forward the good work, and to give information to men anxious to enlist.

The regulations respecting enlistment, pay and separation allowances are precisely the same as those for other Canadian troops.

At Montreal, the University lends buildings for barracks and the campus for drill ground. Affiliated with the McGill Officers Training Corps is a great benefit, and interesting tactical work is carried out on the slopes of Mount Royal.

There is competent instruction in tactics, musketry, bayonet fighting and trench making. The C. P. R. is kind enough to lend their gallery for shooting practice. A machine gun is available and signalling, now of immense importance, is also taught.

All information can be obtained from Capt. A. S. Eves, 382 Sherbrooke st., west, the headquarters of the successive companies.

The newspapers have proved themselves to be the most efficient means of raising recruits, and every reader who cannot himself go to the front can help in the present struggle by calling the attention of his friends to this opportunity.

Specialty Delightful Offer.

During the month of October the Acadia Seminary Conservatory of Music is able to offer special inducements to prospective pupils who have had no instruction before. The number of pupils to be received will be necessarily limited as the time of the teachers is rapidly filling. The terms, which are exceptionally favorable may be learned from Mr. McKee or Principal DeWolfe. No persons who are interested in securing the best instruction for their children can afford to remain indifferent to this offer.

The School for the Deaf at Halifax has reopened and parents having deaf children not yet admitted should apply to the Principal at once. In that school children are taught to speak like ordinary hearing children and the earless they are admitted the better are their speech and lip reading. The school provides education, board and lodging the parents being only called upon to provide clothing and pay the travelling expenses.

Big Boon for Women's Work and Education.

NEW HALL OF DOMESTIC SCIENCE AT TRURO IDEAL IN SCOPE AND APPOINTMENT.

(By Special Correspondent.)

A singular blessing, despite the war, has come to the women of Nova Scotia, and, indeed, to the women of the Maritime Provinces. By the cooperative solicitude and action of the Dominion and Provincial Governments they can now proudly boast of being the possessors of the best—the most valuable—gift within the powers and resources of their country's administrators. This is no less a gift than the whole of the space on the top floor (125 feet by 45 feet) of the splendid new Science Hall of the College of Agriculture, at Truro, arranged and equipped as a laboratory, lecture room and assembly hall; with a library and reading room, solely and exclusively for the study, demonstration, discussion, encouragement and promotion of women's work and education—in domestic science, home economics and household handicrafts. Seriously, as women, by their graces, department and handicraft, are acknowledged by men to be the chief dispensers of human sunshine, it was only becoming and consistent that when provision was designed and apportioned in the new Science Hall for women's special work and education, they should be allotted the most sunny and cheery division of the building. Equally on a summer, fall, or winter day, pure light from nature radiates through the laboratory, lecture room and assembly hall, while on rare days, especially in summer, the oak-toned furnishings, furniture and walls delight the eye and cheer the heart with soft tints of golden light. From the wide windows of the facade and the rear elevation, the views of nature are particularly charming. Through the former the eye sweeps the broad fields and wooded dales of the North River district, through the latter, the eye looks out upon the Cobequid and the valley of the slow winding Salmon River in summer the view is entrancing; in fall inviting, and in winter, both picturesque and invigorating. Briefly in hygiene and in interior and exterior beauty, as well as in educational facilities, this new home of domestic science is ideal.

Letters to the Editor.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ACADIAN:
DEAR SIR—Will you kindly allow me space to call attention to what can be nothing but a serious menace to the public health. I allude to the town pond, prepared at some expense as a place of amusement for the children, especially in the winter. A most commendable thing in itself, but surely not intended to degenerate into a huge cesspool which is now its condition.

To explain there are more than twelve houses and bars draining, more or less directly, into it and the brook which runs directly into the pond. I am told that one house with bath, toilet, etc., drains directly into the brook. All this with no chance of anything escaping, as there is no outflow except at times of freshet, and then only surface. There might have been means of keeping it clean by a pipe and sear valve in the old sluice, but that not being done, I submit that something should be done, and that soon, to remove such a plague spot from our midst.

There is another matter which occurs to me needing attention, viz. the custom of putting soft coal ashes on the side walks. These are clean enough of themselves, but being the residue of all sorts of family slops and garbage, not at all suitable for sidewalk purposes, the dust from it carries germs to be breathed, causing a manifest danger to all.

Seminary Notes.

The attendance at the Seminary is gratifyingly large, aggregating to-day 150, not including household science pupils from the public schools.

The time of all the teachers in the special departments is practically filled, except a few vacancies possible with Misses Gaines and Cambin (Education); Miss Bryant, (Violin); Miss Dora Gilbert, (Voice).

Plans are being laid for a presentation of King Reve's Daughter by the Glee Club, and two short dramas by the pupils in Expression. The Seminary will thus continue to contribute to the work of the Red Cross and Belgian Relief.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form. Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.
To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-fund in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building tonic, free from any harmful drugs. Try it.

More Than Good Looks

Taking care of your teeth means better health. Neglect of them leaves acids and hurtful germs of decay that harm not only the teeth but often seriously affect the throat and stomach. Proper care of the teeth means daily cleansing with something that will remove the acids and destroy the germs.

REXALL TOOTH PASTE

Does these things, we believe, better than any other dentifrice. It not only tends to preserve the teeth and keep them free from tartar and discoloration but it helps insure the health of other parts of the digestive apparatus. Also delightful to use.

WE ARE HERE TO SERVE YOU

To the Lot Holders of Willow Bank Cemetery.

Progressive communities to-day take as much pride in the care of their cemeteries as they do in the streets, lawns and homes of the living. Go into any cemetery and you will find many evidences that the departed are held in loving remembrance. You will also notice some neglected graves, especially where families have become broken up and widely scattered.

The lot owners of Willow Bank Cemetery wish to improve the appearance of the property of which by voluntary purchase they are the owners and proprietors. Every owner of a lot is a member of the corporation and has a voice in the management of its affairs. The cemetery is cared for by a board of trustees elected by the lot-holders. Those who have looked after its affairs have thus far received no pay for their services.

The property which consists of eight acres had to be fenced and the fences and gateways have to be kept in repair. The land must be surveyed and a plan prepared which shows the roadway, paths, lots, etc. The ground had to be underdrained and every lot as sold has to be connected with the main drainage system. The provision for all these necessary outlays and expenditures has come from the sale of lots, and the sums received have been insufficient to keep the property in respectable condition. An attempt has been made at a general assessment but the response thereto has been only partial. Extensive improvements are already underway. The balance of the property heretofore not staked off has recently been surveyed and lots and paths defined in accordance with the original plan which was drawn up some thirty years ago. All underbrush has been cleared away, rough ground has been broken up with the plough and dead trees and limbs removed from the groves.

Some people keep their lots in order by voluntary contributions for that purpose, but many seem forgetful or are not aware that their lots need attention. In many cases the monuments have been thrown out by the frost and the graves look neglected. This ought not to be. It has been stated that the thrift and enterprise of a community may be fairly judged by the condition of its cemetery. The citizens of Wolfville feel that the present condition of the cemetery here does not reflect credit upon those who should be interested in it and the members of the Corporation residing in and about the town are desirous of improving and beautifying the appearance of their cemetery, so that henceforth it will not be an "eyesore" to the community. They are hereby making an appeal to every owner of a lot to assist in this worthy purpose. The Corporation has the power to levy a tax upon each lot owner and to collect the same for that purpose. If the taxes are not paid the lots can be resold and the bodies removed to the section assigned to the poor. It is hoped that no such drastic measure will ever be required.

The wish is to raise a fund of $4,000.00 or more by voluntary contribution. This fund will be judiciously handled by a committee chosen from the board of trustees, who will use the utmost caution in securing a safe investment. The income from this invested money will be used to keep every lot in good condition and for the purpose of carrying out plans for improving our property generally. Some people can give generous sums, others cannot. If all will assist in this worthy undertaking it will be a success and the stigma of neglect will be removed from Willow Bank Cemetery for all time. Will you kindly give as generous a contribution to this object as in your estimation the object deserves.

The present officers of the company are as follows:—

President DR. J. W. MANNING.
Vice-President DR. G. E. DEWITT.

Recent Deaths.

At Boston, September 23rd, the death occurred, suddenly, of Mrs. Katherine Davison, formerly of Gasperian and daughter of the late Obed Benjamin, of that place. The remains were brought to the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. Freeman E. Caldwell, Gasperian, last Saturday and the funeral services held Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Mr. Milbury, pastor of the Baptist church. Many friends attended to pay a last token of respect to one who had been much beloved in her home village and held in high esteem wherever known. The interment was made in the Gasperian cemetery near father and mother of deceased. Mrs. Davison had been for some time resident of the Infants' Home, Chelsea, Mass., and was 55 years of age.

On Sunday last the death took place of Mrs. Laura E. relict of the late Samuel S. Borden, aged 88 years. The deceased was a daughter of the late Col. Joseph Crane, of Lower Horton. She was a most highly esteemed lady. During recent years she made her home with her son, Mr. Clarence H. Borden, and although she had been confined to her bed for some months her mind was wonderfully clear until the last. She is survived by three sons: Clarence H., of Wolfville; Clifford R., of Boston; and Clinton A., of Sheffield Mills. The funeral was held on Monday.

The death of Eunice Waterman, widow of the late Arthur J. McLeod, barrister, occurred at her residence, Danver Lodge, Clementsport, on the 19th inst. at the advanced age of 89 years.

Miss Ada Johnson, who has been assistant librarian at Acadia University for the past year, has gone to Simmon's College, Boston, where she will complete her library course.

Dr. Geoffrey A. Bars and Mr. Walter D. W. Bars have been in town visiting Miss Margaret Bars and Mr. J. H. Bars. Dr. Bars has received an appointment as Lieut. Surgeon in the British Medical Corps and sailed from Halifax on Tuesday for England.

Friday Evening's Play.

A really delightful entertainment was presented by the Wolfville Dramatic Club in the Opera House last Friday evening, being a domestic drama in four acts, the name, 'Valley Farm.' The audience was large, filling the house, and more than $100 was realized for Red Cross work.

The story of the play was both interesting and amusing, and the climax happy and artistic. The scene opened at Valley Farm, where Harold Rutledge, a wealthy young New Yorker, is spending the summer holidays together with his friend, a city lawyer. Harold becomes engaged to Hetty, the farmer's pretty daughter, and their marriage soon takes place. When Harold brings his young country bride to his mother in the Rutledge mansion in New York, exciting events transpire. Mrs. Rutledge refuses to accept a rural daughter-in-law, and plots with Isobel, a New York belle, who has been in love with Harold, to bring about a divorce to be followed by the marriage of Harold to Isobel. Hetty finally leaves her husband no longer cares for her, and so she escapes from the mansion and returns to the farm. Harold, who has also been the dupe of his mother and Isobel, accompanied by his friend, the lawyer, follows Hetty to the farm. Each learns the constancy of the other, and every one becomes happy.

'Harold' was played by Mr. Lewis Pick; 'Hetty' by Miss Marjorie Chute; Mr. Vernon Curry was Harold's friend; Miss Hazel Woodman, 'Mrs. Rutledge'; Miss Myra Chambers, Isobel; Mr. Lloyd Langille, a servant at the mansion; Miss Doris Chambers, a servant at the farm; Miss Alice Stairs, Hetty's old maid aunt; Miss Margaret Murray, a country neighbor; Mr. W. H. Chase the aunt's admirer; Mr. Frank Chute, Hetty's country lover; and Mr. Austin Chute, Hetty's father.

All the parts were cleverly taken, displaying artistic skill and originality. Miss Doris Chambers as the 'shred girl,' Miss Murray, as the gossiping neighbor, and Mr. Chase, the deaf man, were most amusing characters. The 'Siren's Orchestra,' composed of eight musical young ladies from the town, rendered 'Ship Ahoy,' 'Tipperry' and other popular selections between the acts. The whole affair was most enjoyable.

Wedding Bells.

WOODWORTH—EATON. Fragrant with pink and white sweet peas and saters interspersed with ferns, the fire place, before which the bridal party stood, converted into a perfect trellice of greenery, fashioned of festoons of smilax and strands of asparagus ferns, four stately palms standing on either side, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Eaton's drawing room was a miniature garden last night as, at eight o'clock when the wedding of their youngest daughter, Alice Gertrude, and Rev. Frederick Irving Woodworth, B.Sc., was solemnized. Rev. F. W. Patterson, assisted by Prof. Bland, officiated.

Clad in her bridal robe of ivory white Duchesse satin, the bride was really lovely. With a court train depending from the shoulders, the gown was of a graceful cut, and was trimmed with narrow fringe of the best. The fish tail caught at the belt, giving the deep girle effect, with a knot of orange blossoms. The long net sleeves, the draperies of Venetian point lace and ropes of pearls were dainty touches. A long silk tulle veil—hand embroidered—coronelle, mob cap style, with orange blossoms and a huge shower bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas completed the picturesque effect. She was given away by her father. The matron of honor, Mrs. Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland, was richly gowned in white satin, Brussels net overlacing it. The deep girle of golden yellow tones was an effective touch. She carried a bouquet of wonderful yellow roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Florence Eaton, Boston, was handsomely frocked in coral satin with draperies in the same tone. Mr. Oliver Weaver acted as groomsmen. Mr. Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland, brother of the bride, and Mr. Appleton were the ushers.

Beginning and concluding the ceremony were the conventional nuptial strain—Lohenglin's and Mendelssohn's wedding marches played by Miss Kimp. Then followed a reception, and buffet supper. Mrs. Eaton received her guests handsomely gowned in black satin.

The recipient of many lovely gifts, the bride was indeed lucky. From the bridegroom came a beautiful Alaska robe sent from her father and brother two hand some cheques, and from the Amittic Club a irridipainted china tea set as well as many other tokens of popularity were apparent.

An interesting fact is that both bride and bridegroom belonged to the 1900 graduation class of Acadia College in Wolfville, N. S. Rev. Mr. Woodworth and his bride, amid showers of good wishes, left on the 10:30 train for Jasper Park and Pocomantas. On their return they will take up their residence at 1027 82nd street.—Edmonton Daily Bulletin.

THE ACADIAN extends best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Woodworth, both of whom are well known in Wolfville.

Mr. J. W. Bigelow will be pleased to welcome and receive at his home the brethren of St. George's Lodge, No. 29 A, F. and A. M. on Monday afternoon, October 4th, from 9 to 5 o'clock, the being the celebrating of his 81st Birthday (which falls on Sunday) and 48 years since he was master of St. George's for the first time.

All the new members as well as the older members are expected to avail themselves of this privilege.—By order of Acting W. M.

Stomach Trouble and Rheumatism Relieved by "Fruit-a-tives"

MR. L. LABRIE
594 Champlain St., Montreal.

"I have been restored to health by taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. For two years, I was a miserable sufferer from Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble. I became very weak, had frequent dizzy spells and when I took food, felt wretched and sleepy. I suffered from Rheumatism dreadfully, with pains in my back and joints and my hands swollen. A friend advised me to try 'Fruit-a-tives' and from the outset, they did me good. After I had started the second box, I felt I was getting well and I persevered in the treatment. I can truthfully say that 'Fruit-a-tives' is the only medicine that helped me.

Poisoning the Children.

Ottawa Citizen: The sincere temperance advocate has the greatest consideration for people who have used alcoholic liquors more or less all their lives not knowing that the practice was harmful either to themselves or to the children who might be born to them. But the truth in respect to alcoholism must be declared again and again that people may free themselves from this great menace to the individual and the nation. What is the truth and where may it be found? Great government commissions in many countries have spoken with no uncertain sound; church conventions of all denominations have spoken and the great employers of labor have spoken and they all agree that alcohol in any form if used frequently is poisonous to the drinker and his offspring. Read and weigh the following sentences from the report of the French commission and determine for yourself whether the Citizen attaches too much importance to this matter:

"Sins of the alcoholic parent are visited upon the children. If they survive infancy they are threatened with insanity or epilepsy and many are carried away with tuberculosis. For the health of the individual, for the

I give you permission to publish what your good medicine has done for me."—Mrs. SIMON DOUCETTE, Bellefleur, Yarmouth Co., Nova Scotia, Canada.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backache, dizziness, nervousness, irritability, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and insomnia, and dizziness, are promptly relieved by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when women's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has cured many women safely through this crisis.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (consultants) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be answered, free, and if you are a woman, and held in strict confidence.

HER MAGAZINE STORY

He Knew She Was Right.

In a Missouri town a desperate character, intoxicated, attempted to run white ribbons from their post at the entrance to the polls. He absolutely threatened them and it appeared for a moment as if the W. C. T. U. leader might be shot. She looked the infuriated brute straight in the eye and refused to withdraw her women. Her very quickness disconcerted him and he failed to discharge his weapon. She talked to him calmly but firmly, and at last he went away and left her holding the fort. The next day he said, "I like that woman. She isn't afraid to stand her ground. She was right and she knew I knew it."

Eczema on the Head.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

'Go Where I Cast Anchor.'

These words were spoken to him by John Knox a few hours before his death. Where did John Knox cast anchor? In the seventeenth chapter of John's Gospel. Canst thou find any other anchorage as thou surveyest the earth at this moment of time? No, there is none. Cast thine anchor in that chapter, live, tell and pray that that chapter of the divine promise, the unity of all believers, of the union of Christendom, of our part in God's plan, may make that chapter the charter of Christendom.

HER MAGAZINE STORY

How Bob Found His Long Lost Ruth.

By ADELE MENDEL.

"Come on to bed, Robert; it's past midnight," said his roommate, Kenneth, as he knocked the ashes from his curved meerschaum pipe.

"Just wait to read one more story and then I'll be with you," answered Robert, settling himself comfortably in the huge leather arm chair.

"One would think you were a love-sick maid, the way you devour those magazine stories," growled Kenneth.

"I'm not a love-sick maid, but may be I'm that kind of a man," said Robert with a quizzical air and throwing down his magazine.

"I've no doubt of that, none at all," emphatically answered Kenneth. "Any fellow of twenty-eight who refuses to call on girls, declines all invitations to dances, dinners and parties, who never changes the color or style of his necktie, has something wrong with him, mark my word."

"Her name is Ruth Wilson," began Robert, as if he were repeating a well-known lesson. "She was a little pen-and-ink sketcher and sold some of her work to our firm; that is how I first became acquainted with her. But our acquaintance soon grew to friendship, and then it wasn't many months before we both knew we were in love with each other. I wanted to marry at once, but Ruth insisted upon waiting a year, as she felt she had a future in her artistic career and was not as yet willing to give it up. Patiently I agreed, and at the end of the allotted time she begged for six months more. And then another year and yet another delay, until one evening, as we were seated in her two-four hall-room studio on the third story of a second class boarding house, irritated by her seeming preference for her profession when she again asked for a postponement of our marriage, I lost my temper and burst unkind, angry words at the girl. Naturally, she resented my attitude. One word led to another, I banged the door and dashed like a madman down the stairs and out of the house. I walked miles and miles.

HIS FIRST USE FOR WEALTH

For a Millionaire, Mose's Aspirations Would Seem to the Ordinary Man Singularly Modest.

E. F. Swinney, president of the First National bank of Kansas City, was born in the south, says the Saturday Evening Post. He goes back home once or twice a year and it is part of the homecoming program to have Old Mose polish his shoes. Old Mose prides himself on the fact that he has known "Mist' Eddie" since he was known as "Mist' Eddie" before him.

When Mr. Swinney was there recently Mose was polishing his shoes. He stopped and asked:

"Mist' Eddie, how much is a million dollars worth?"

"Well, Mose," Mr. Swinney replied, "you have seen ten silver dollars, haven't you? Now, imagine ten of those stacks and you have a hundred dollars. Imagine ten of those and you have $1,000. Then ten times that and you have $10,000—and 100 times that and you have a million."

"Mist' Eddie," continued Mose, gazingly at the ceiling, "would all that money be worth to you?"

"No, Mose—not if they were piled to the ceiling. What would you do if you had a million silver dollars, Mose?"

Mose stopped shining. He pondered for a minute. Then he said: "What would I do, Mist' Eddie, I reckon I'd have my cistern cleaned out."

Decided by Appearances.

John Melpolder, superintendent of the Boys club, is very fond of walking. Melpolder was camping recently north of Broad Ripple and decided to walk to Indianapolis. The roads were dusty and the sun beat down relentlessly. When Melpolder reached Broad Ripple he had covered ten or twelve miles and looked like a tramp. Coming to a fork in the road, and not being sure of the correct route, Melpolder approached two girls and a young man sitting in the shade.

"Can you tell me how to get to Indianapolis?" he asked. The correct route was pointed out and as he started to plod on one of the girls said:

"Why are you not going to walk, are you?"

"Why, yes," said the pedestrian, "I thought I would."

"Here," he said, fishing out 2 dimes, "you better ride the street car. You can catch it about a square up the road."

Then each girl handed him a coin. Melpolder thanked them kindly for their proffered assistance, but declined the offer, saying that he preferred to walk. When he started on they looked after him in open-eyed astonishment—Indianapolis Nova.

Real Comeback.

"Why do you spend so much care on the creases of your pants, hey?"

"It is important, dad, not to wear baggy trousers."

"Important, is it? Why, you young cub, look here. Did you ever see a statesman in a pair of baggy trousers?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Dropped into Poetry.

"Our office boy dropped into poetry yesterday."

"How was that?"

"The literary editor kicked him into the wastebasket."—"The Blue."

publisher's office, where he discovered that the name signed to the story was the author's real name, and that she lived in a small suburb in the outskirts of New York. Jumping on a train, after two impatient hours he reached his destination. A pretty girl, with a twinkling eye and sympathetic voice, answered the bell. He introduced himself, explained his mission, and added:

"Tell me, please, where I can find your heroine, for find her I must."

"I'll gladly give you her address, but first I wish to explain how I came to have the story published. Ruth, after leaving New York in an unhappy state of mind, came here to visit and rest with me. Poor thing, she was so distressed that I begged her to tell me the cause. I never intended to use the story for material to sell, but just wrote it up because its dramatic possibilities appealed to me. Last fall I sprang my arm, and mother, addressing some manuscripts to my publishers, in mistake included yours. I felt dreadful at the time to think that it might appear as a breach of confidence. But now, if it will be the cause of bringing Ruth and you together again, I will be the happiest of girls."

Robert thanked the girl, boarded his train, and lost no time in reaching his office and writing a passionate appeal to Ruth for forgiveness.

Many and weary were the weeks that followed. Hope and despair alternated in Robert's breast, but no answer came.

"It's no use," he remarked one evening to Kenneth. "Ruth has received my letter long before this, and it is evident that she no longer cares enough for me to answer it. I don't—"

The telephone rang, and Robert stepped to the phone. He heard a soft voice say, "Is this you, Robert? I just received your letter, returned to me from England. I am stopping with my aunt, Mrs. Davenport, who, strange to say, lives in an apartment next to yours. Would you care to

"Would I care to?" cried Robert. "Oh, girl, just wait two minutes and see!"

As Robert bounded down the stairs, Kenneth said to himself: "I guess the little authoress won't be able to call her story 'Unfinished' any more."
