Four Generations in One House.

A Kingslear, York Co., correspondent writes to the Sun as follows: At Capt. John Barker's house there are four generations surrounding the old family table, the youngest of which is in her 16th year. The captain is now in his 86th year, enjoys good health, has a retentive memory and converses freely on the long past, but owing to a fall some three years ago he is unable to walk without the use of crutches. Next in number is Mrs. Lawrence Dent, now in her 80th year, but still in very good health. Then comes Mrs. Francis Burgine, in her 80th year and enjoying very good health. After this comes Captain Judah Hammond, who has been in the halcyon days of 85 summers, still enjoying a good north west breeze as he sits around like a youth, attending to the barn and wood-pile, with which he is so familiar. Now comes Nelson A. Cliff, in his 85th year, and Rhoda, his beloved wife, who has seen 83 New Brunswick winters and is still a smart old lady. They have passed their 60th anniversary of wedded life, and are surrounded by children—grand and great-grandchildren. The next on the list of those who have passed the octogenarian point of life, are Robert Kilburn (one of the six Kilburn brothers), Cleo and Alex. Gooding, all in their 80th year and enjoying good health. Here are nine persons, ranging from 83 to 98. Can any parish in the province of New Brunswick compare with Kingslear in this particular.

Of recent years he has lived a retired life; but his younger days were passed amid scenes of excitement and excitement. He served with distinction in the Crimean war, and on that occasion which finally took him off was contracted in the first place in the trenches before that stronghold, Col. Robinson also took part in the suppression of the Indian mutiny, and was in the Chinese war when the celebrated assault was made upon the Taku Forts, in which he participated. Election Petitions Filed. A protest has been filed in the Supreme Court in the return of Messrs. Blair, Wilson, Anderson and Bellamy, as members for York county. One William McKay's name is used as a petitioner. Messrs. Charles H. Whitaker and John Beadle are sureties for the petitioners' costs in the matter. Many people will hardly recognize Alderman McKay in his new role of a public moral reformer. But when it is known that McKay is only a tool for Geo. A. Gregory, who is the real petitioner, a flood of light will be thrown upon the whole proceedings.

Election Petitions Filed. The Leeds Mercury says: The two speeches which have been made this week in Leeds upon Imperial Federation by G. R. Parkin must have established, in the mind of every one who had the good fortune to listen to them, the fact that the speaker is a man of high intelligence and of high moral character. He showed that his action had the approval of the business men of the county, and made a strong case against the opposition, who are endeavoring to get into power on false issues and by an appeal to sectarianism.

Death from Want and Exposure. A sad case of death from starvation and exposure occurred in Carleton, St. John, at the first of the week. Two sisters, Ellen and Johanna Smith, whose ages are in the vicinity of 60 years, resided for upwards of 20 years in a tumble down house, near which stood the Waters of Maine Hotel. Some boys passing the place heard one of them rapping on the boards that covered the windows of the house, and breaking open the door, they entered the building. In the lower room where the old women kept their fire they found the dead body of Ellen Smith, on the floor near the stove. The body presented a sickening sight, half naked and covered with mud. The other sister, Johanna, was found in a similar condition. She was removed to the house of a relative. A coroner was notified and an inquest held on the body of Ellen. The cause of death was starvation. The deceased had a small balance to her credit in the bank, but was probably unable to get to it.

POETRY.

EVELYN HOPE.

Beautiful Evelyn Hope is dead—Sits and waits by her side an hour, That is her book-shelf, this her bed;
She plucked that piece of geranium flower, Beginning to die, too, in this bed; Little has yet been changed, I think—The shutters are shut, no light may pass, Save two long rays from the hinges' chink.

commutation of his sentence. If a petition for his instant execution had been around, it would have stood a much better chance of success!
Cap spent many days in her fruitless enterprise, but at last it up—but by no means in despair, for—"TI save his life, yet! by one means or another! I can't change clothes with him as I did with Clara, he's too big! but one way or other, TI save him," said Cap, to himself. She said it to no one else, for the more difficult the enterprise, the more determined she was to succeed, and the more secretive she grew as to her measures.

This brought Cap into a park with a garden, that, while still stung with mortification and absolutely hating her, I could tell her what I thought of her, show her that I had cast her chains aside, and turning on my heel with some such speech as heroic makes upon the stage under such circumstances, leave her forever.
But the sun went down, and the dew began to fall, to the detriment of my glossy beaver, and yet she came not.

LIVELY CORPSE.
San Francisco, Cal., February 10.—The divorce of bookmaker Asa M. Hamilton of San Francisco, Cal. against his wife, Hannah H., has brought out more rare testimony. About two years ago the Hamiltons visited New York, and so announced of the life in the metropolis was Mrs.
Hamilton that she wanted to remain, and so her husband returned to the Golden Gate alone. Mr. Hamilton waited with Job-like patience for his young wife's return and one day was startled by the following message from New York:
"A. M. Hamilton—Hannah died Sunday night; send $250 for funeral expenses.
Signed, Lucy."
Lucy is Hannah's sister. Hamilton promptly forwarded the amount by telegraph. Three days later the wife had resumed the following: "The undertaker demands $100 for funeral accoutrements.
Please send by telegraph. Lucy."
As before, the money was sent forward.
Two months afterwards business took Mr. Hamilton to New York, where he intended to visit the last resting place of his wife. On his first night in the city, however, he was sadly walking the street when he met his erring wife. "How is this," he demanded the astonished Hamilton, "Ain't you dead?"
"Do I look like it?" cried his radiant wife laughing. "Weren't those telegrams the loveliest jokes ever played. While you were mourning me for dead and paying money to have me buried, I was spending that same money in a royal way. Wasn't it funny?" "Why don't you laugh?" "Hamilton didn't say anything in-diculous about the affair. He finished his business in a hurry and sped back to San Francisco, when the first thing he did was to apply for a divorce.

SELECT STORY.

THE HIDDEN HAND

BY MRS. SOUTHWORTH.
AUTHOR OF "THE CURSE OF CLIFTON," "THE CRANED BRIDGES," ETC. ETC.

This dreadful doom, most solemnly pronounced by the judge, was received by the prisoner with a loud laugh, and words:
"You're out of your reckoning now, cap'n! I never was a saint, the Lord knows, but my hands are free from blood-guiltiness; there's an honest little girl that believes me—don't you?" he said, turning laughingly to his little heroine.
"Yes, I do," said Cap, bursting into tears, "and am so sorry for you as ever I can be Donald Bayne."
"Better! It is sure to come to this first or last, and I knew it! Now, to prove you do not think this rugged hand of mine stained with blood, give it a friendly shake!" said the condemned man.
"Better! It is sure to come to this first
stained with blood, give it a friendly
shake!" said the condemned man.

THROUGH FIRE.

She had stung me by her ridicule. She had laughed at me when I was serious and refused to smile when I attempted to be witty in order to win her admiration.
Then she had turned about like a very weathercock, and been so gentle, so womanly, so graceful in all she said and did, that she brought me to her feet only to repulse me in the old way.
She had invited my escort to some social assemblage, and coolly accepted that of another man when she returned home.
She had done impertinent things undoubtedly, rude things too. But, oh! when she chose, she could make me forget all that. For I loved her in the blindest fashion, in the most inexplicable way.
Had the old tale of Satan's bargains for man's souls been true, I am afraid he would have found that my price was Arline Rositor.

INGROWING NAILS.

For that very painful affection, ingrowing toe-nails, the simplest measure of relief which has been advocated is the application of tannin. One who has had many years' experience with it uses a concentrated solution (an ounce of perfectly fresh tannic acid dissolved with six drachms of pure water, with gentle heat, and has the soft parts around the nail painted twice a day. Two cases recently had no pain or lameness after the first application, and went about their work immediately, which they could not do before. After about three weeks of this treatment the nail had grown to its proper length and breadth, and the cure was complete. No other treatment of any kind was used, though formerly he introduced liniment under the growing edge in such cases. [Medical

BUTCHERED BY A YOUNG FIEND.

Joseph Barker, a colored boy, twelve years old, living with his parents at Eola, Missouri, deliberately killed his brother and baby sister. Mr. and Mrs. Barker were away on a visit, leaving the younger children, a girl of eight and a little boy of three, in Joseph's charge.
Purely in response to a fiendish impulse, the boy took his father's shotgun, approached the baby, took aim and pulled the trigger, the loud blowing the girl's head almost to pieces.
Joseph then secured an axe and cut out the baby's head. After completing his devilish work he washed his hands, walked to Louisiana where his grandmother lived and told his sickening story, claiming that the shooting was accidental.
