CHAPTER XXX.

"I will forget, and all shall go on as it was before; we will take life easy, Bob, and mind our fields, and crops, and dogs, and horses, and be happy, as in our old fashion before this—this wild young man came to break our peace; we will be happy in our own way!"

A groan that breaks from his lips startles her into silence, and she turns to look at him.

His face, his clear, handsome, honest face is pale and working with distress, which is all the more marked for his efforts to conceal it.

"Bob," she says, laying her hand upon his arm, her dark eyes fixed on his face with apprehension and concern. "What is it? There is something else. You are in trouble! Oh, Bob! how selfish and inconsiderate I have been! I have been thinking only of myself, while you—you said you were going up to London on business before—before this affair of mine. Was it bad business, Bob? Tell me," and she draws nearer to him.

He sits with his pipe in his hand, his head bowed, his brows knit.

"No, Paula; he couldn't. He said—that was perfectly true, and I knew it—that the land was mortgaged in the best times, and that now it wouldn't fetch the money lent on it, and that—that—"

"Go on, go on. Do you think I can't bear it?" she says, almost wildly.

"That if we couldn't raise the money we should have to turn out."

Silence for a moment. Ah, it is indeed when sorrow will not allow of words.

"Those were the words. He said them with a smile, because he thought that I could raise the money; but—but—and I didn't tell him that I couldn't," says poor Bob. "You see, I was too proud. But"—with a gesture of despair that would be comical but for its awfulness—"what the devil we are to do, I don't know," and he laughs a curt little laugh. "One cannot farm without money; one cannot pay one's debts, either, without money. We've each of us a small income—it's not much; not enough to keep even this crooked place up, with the land. We—he draws a long breath—"we shall have to let it, Paula—the old place that—"

He stops and looks round the room, and then like a man refills his pipe.

Paula nestles closer to him; she is too wise to utter the commonplace condolences, but she puts her hand in his and presses it, and he understands her.

"The worst of it is," he says, presently, and with a grimace, "that Alice must be told. She'll kick up a shine, as sure as eggs are eggs. She'll say that I have muddled the money away, and—that sort of thing."

Paula flushes angrily.

"Will she?" she says. "Then you ought to remind her that some portion of it has been 'muddled' in keeping two idle girls."

"Nonsense!" he says, roughly.

"It is not nonsense; it is simple, honest truth!" says Paula, her eyes filling. "Oh, Bob! do you think I don't understand? Do you think I don't know how much you have sacrificed for us—what a father as well as a brother you have been to us, and how generous, and—a little sob—"how unselfish? You have gone about in your old clothes, and worked like a farm-labourer while we have played the fine ladies with our new dresses, and—"

"At any rate, Paula," he says, with a grim smile, "you haven't had many fine dresses; don't talk nonsense, my child."

"But there shall be an end of it," she goes on, thrusting back the hair from her forehead, "at least so far as I am concerned."

He laughs.

"What do you mean to do, young man?" he says, half-sadly. "Don't talk rubbish about earning your own living, and going for a governess or a companion, because that wouldn't be in your line."

Paula sighs. It is so true!

"You'd box your pupils' ears before the first half-hour was over, and utterly decline to carry foot-stools about, which seems to be the chief occupation of companions. No, Paula, my child, if you could get a good situation to bring in young horses, or teach fellows how to throw a fly—"

She winces, and he stops short. "I beg your pardon, but don't get any absurd notion of that sort into your head. As I said, there's enough for us to live upon; but the cottages and the land must be let, and—Have you seen anything of the Palmers lately?" he breaks off, with affected carelessness.

Paula looks up at him, quickly, her woman's wit reading his heart.

"Oh, Bob, Bob!" she says, "what will May say?"

He is silent for a moment, and his handsome face grows pale.

"I don't know," he replies, simply.

"I—I shall know to-morrow."

Paula creeps closer to him, and lays her hand over his.

"Oh, Bob, how selfish one can be! I have never thought of your trouble, and it must be as great as mine! Poor May!"

"Don't say any more," he says, hoarsely, his hand covering his face from the light. "After all, it—it is what I expected. It isn't likely her father would give her to me, and yet—yet—well, Paula, you know what I mean, you have gone through the mill yourself. And—and if you can bear it, I ought to be able to, but it is awfully hard and rough. I think you'd better go to bed; I shall sit up and finish this pipe, and try and rehearse what I'm to say to Alice to-morrow. There's one thing—with a smile—"it will be something to do to fight it out with her. Put a bottle of smelling-salts on the mantel-shelf in case she faints."

And Paula bends over and kisses him, and leaves him to fight his fight as she has fought hers.

CHAPTER XXXI.

"Did you know that I was coming here?" says Bob, with a flush on his face and light in his eyes, as jumping the stile that separated the Court lands from his own, he almost fell over May, standing, blushing demurely, by the hedge.

"No," she says; then she hangs her head and flushes. "Yes, I watched you from the window, and—and I thought perhaps you might come."

Bob wrings both her hands and looks down at her, and for the first time there is no shyness in his face. Brave men are only shy and timid when it is all plain sailing; show them danger, and they are as bold as lions.

"When did you come back? What a long time you have been away!" she says, offering to withdraw her hands, but so faintly that he manages to keep them, still looking down into her blue eyes with grave tenderness and something that is like pity.

"I came back last night, May, dear," he says. "Yes, I have been away a long time—though it is only a day or two."

"And have you enjoyed yourself? What is the matter?" she breaks off, with all a woman's quickness at reading the signs of trouble or joy in her lover's face.

"I'm in trouble, May," he says, frankly.

Bob couldn't beat about the bush to save his life.

"I am so sorry!" she murmurs, and the blue eyes lift themselves to his, already moist with sympathy. "Will you—may you tell me about it?"

"Yes," he says, widening his chest, just as he does when he takes a dive in the pool on the early spring mornings when the ice is still on the surface. "Yes, I've come to tell you, May—it is only your due."

"Then it's about me?" she says, quickly, and with a little pant. "Is—is it very bad news?"

"It is very bad news for me, dear," he says, simply, and with compressed lips. "So bad that I shrink from telling you. But—but perhaps you are prepared. You remember what I said in the stables, May, that I was not good enough for an heiress like you—"

"You said some stupid things," she says, with a smile, "but I forget them; I only remembered that—"

"Well!"

"That you said you loved me," she says, looking up at him bravely.

He draws her to him and bends his head to kiss her, but stops suddenly and suppresses a groan. She turns pale, and shrinks back from him—a half-careless is worse than none to a woman—and slowly takes her hands away. He does not try to recover them, but thrusts his own in his pockets, and looks aside.

"Well?" she says, after a moment, during which poor Bob stuns, fighting hard against the desire to take her in his arms and hide her face while he tells his story. "Aren't you going to tell me? It is that—that I have offended you, or that—that you are sorry for what you said in the stable?" and her eyes fill, though she keeps them fixed upon him bravely.

Bob turns to her and puts his hand upon her arm, and she can feel the strong hand tremble.

"May, dear," he says in a low voice, "I'm trying to tell you; but don't make it harder for me. I'm trying to do my duty—and it comes very rough. Look here, May, you know I love you—I feel that you know it. I needn't keep saying it. Tell me that you know it."

She creeps a little nearer the stile upon which his hand rests with a firm grasp, and looks up at him.

"I—I—thought so," she says.

"I do love you, with all my heart and soul," he says, fervently. "But—but, May I ought not to have told you so. I know that I ought not, if I was like stealing a rare jewel when the owner wasn't looking; for, May, do you remember that I said I wouldn't speak to your father till after the harvest?"

"Yes," she says, almost inaudibly.

"Well," he says, and he draws a long breath; "there will be no harvest for me."

"No!"

"No," he says, with a groan. "May, I was always a poor man, not the man to come wooing the heiress of Powis Court; but I'm a ruined one," and his hand closes spasmodically.

She looks up at him with timid, frightened eyes for a moment, then she comes closer to him and puts her hand timidly on his arm.

"Oh, I am so sorry!"

He inclines his head with much gratitude.

"I—I knew you would be," he says. "I felt that. And I knew that you'd believe me when I told you that I didn't know the fix I was in when I asked you to let me love you. I didn't, indeed, May."

"I believe you," she says in a low voice. "I'd believe every word you said, though all the world were against it!"

"Thank you, thank you, dear!" he says. "But I wish I hadn't spoken! I'd borne it so long, that I could have borne to keep it silent longer; but that night you looked so beautiful, and—and my resolutions slipped away like water, and so I spoke. Forgive me, May! It wasn't fair!"

"Forgive you!" she says, with a strange smile. "For making me the happiest girl in the world! Yes, I'll forgive you, Bob!"

"Don't," he says, almost painfully; "say something hard and unkind. Tell me I, a pauper, had no right to love you, who are rich and above my reach. Don't say a kind word, May, it will make it harder to say good-bye."

Her sweet face pales and her eyes close for a moment, then she raises them to his face.

"Are you going to say 'Good-bye'?" she says, almost inaudibly.

"Yes," he says, hoarsely; "I have come to tell you all, May. The fact is that I—I am a ruined man; the land is mortgaged—you won't understand; I'm afraid; but, anyhow, I can't afford to keep up the farm, and—and we are going—Heaven knows where we are going; it doesn't matter where, as we are going to leave here. May, it is a bitter parting, my dear, but—but you have made it as sweet as you can. You have forgiven me, I shall always remember that; and, May, wherever I go I shall remember you, and I hope that you will be happy."

"Thank you," she says, and a strange change comes over her face, a strange light in her eyes, that are no longer timid and shy, but burn with a fierce fire. "Thank you. Is there anything else?"

He shakes his head and clears his throat, for there is a suspicious lump in it.

"Nothing else, May, except this: I hope some better and—and worthier fellow will make you happy."

"Did you come to insult me?" she says, with a little smile direct into his eyes.

"It—he cannot repeat the word. (To be Continued.)"

Lansings Resignation Taken Seriously in London -- Italian Transport Captured -- "Flu" Epidemic Subsiding -- U. S. Senate and the Peace Treaty.

DISCUSSING METHODS OF TAXATION.

LONDON, Feb. 16. In the Commons to-night on the Government's motion for the appointment of a committee to inquire into the practicability of a tax on war increases in wealth, Sir Donald Maclean, Liberal, moved an amendment in favor of extending the inquiry into the practicability of a capital levy to reduce the national debt. J. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, opposed the amendment on the ground that the prospect of such a levy would encourage extravagance, spending, check enterprise and discourage saving. He said he believed Great Britain would be able to meet her liabilities without resorting to dangerous or other experiments. The motion was defeated.

ITALIAN TRANSPORT CAPTURED BY INSURGENTS.

FUME, Feb. 16. Two war vessels attached to the forces of Captain Gabriele D'Annunzio have captured an Italian transport having on board one thousand regular troops, in the Gulf of Quertis, southwest of this city.

AND PROBABLY MANY OTHER THINGS.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 16. Danish importers have decided to discontinue all importations of American cattle fodder because of the extremely high rate of exchange. It was stated to-day in business circles.

LONDON PAPERS TAKE SERIOUS VIEW LANSING'S RESIGNATION.

LONDON, Feb. 16. The resignation of Secretary of State Lansing is given great prominence in the morning papers, and in view of the circumstances is treated as a first-class sensation. Most of the papers editorially express the fear that the incident will have an adverse effect on the progress of America's influence in world affairs.

STEAMER ADrift IN GALE.

BOSTON, Feb. 16. The United States Shipping Board steamer Red Mountain, which was reported disabled and adrift in a heavy gale about a thousand miles east of New York shortly after midnight, expected assistance to-day from the steamship Elmport, also a Shipping Board vessel, according to a radio message intercepted here. Captain Gott of the crippled steamer said the tubes in all three boilers had blown out and the vessel would have to be towed to Halifax for repairs. The Red Mountain was bound from Galveston to Havre.

READING NOT FOR U.S.A.

LONDON, Feb. 16. Reports that Earl Reading would resign as Lord Chief Justice and accept the position of British Ambassador at Washington, are not justified, according to a statement made by the Earl's Secretary to the Star this morning.

"FLU" EPIDEMIC SUBSIDING.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16. Epidemics of Spanish Influenza throughout Canada are rapidly subsiding, according to the Federal Health Authorities. While the outbreak in some centres has been fairly sharp, it has not been nearly so bad as last year.

RESERVED JUDGMENT.

LONDON, Feb. 16. The Privy Council to-day reserved judgment on the appeal concerning the collision of the steamships Ima and Mont Blanc which caused the Halifax explosion. The appeal involves liabilities of ten millions.

MUST DECIDE FOR THEMSELVES.

LONDON, Feb. 16. Bonar Law, Government spokesman, said in the House to-day that Great Britain had informed the Baltic States, Finland and Poland, that the question of peace or war with Soviet Russia was one they must decide on their own responsibility. Great Britain taking no responsibility in the matter.

PARIS PAPER SAYS WILSON TURNED DOWN.

PARIS, Feb. 16. Prompt rejection of President Wilson's objections to the compromise agreement by which England, France and Italy hoped to settle with Jugo Slavia the questions relative of the Adriatic is reported in the Echo de Paris. Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain, and Millerand of France, drafted a reply to the American Chief Executive and insisted that Jugo Slavia must agree to a compromise with the alternative of seeing the Treaty of London become operative, it is said.

WILSON'S NOTE NOT ULTIMATUM.

PARIS, Feb. 16. President Wilson's note on the Adriatic question is not considered in French circles as an ultimatum. It was declared to-day, by a Foreign Office Official. On such partial information as was obtainable yesterday, the Paris Press construed the note as meaning that France and Great Britain must change their attitude on that question or the United States would withdraw from all connection with European affairs.

PREPARING EX-KAISER'S FUTURE HOME?

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 16. On his way to the Dutch East Indies, ostensibly to become a planter but in reality, it is believed, to prepare a future home there for the ex-Kaiser, Count Uffiaak Kraten, of the Dutch diplomatic service, and nephew of Count Bentinck, the Kaiser's present host in Holland, passed through the city last evening on his way west.

THE DEBATE AGAIN BEGINS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. Consideration of the Peace Treaty was resumed in the open Senate to-day by unanimous consent. Without debate the Senate acceded to the request of Senator Lodge, Republican leader, that the Treaty be taken up. To start the parliamentary machinery toward a possible compromise, Senator Lodge moved the adoption of a

STORM DISRUPTS RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

MONTREAL, Feb. 16. A blizzard this morning disrupted the railway traffic between Montreal and the United States points. One train, which left New York at ten last night, was abandoned near Malone and the passengers were brought here this afternoon on a special.

SEVEREST STORM OF WINTER.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16. Driving snow into deep drifts and reducing the temperature to the neighborhood of zero, a Northwesterly gale, which began on Saturday, brought with it the severest storm of the winter. The train service has been discontinued to an extent not experienced this year. Battling against the drifts, which have blocked the tracks over a large area, trains struggled into Central Station to-day hours late. Many have been cancelled.

ANOTHER AMERICAN CAPTURED BY MEXICANS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. Wilson Adams, an American, has been captured by bandits in Zacatecas, Mexico, and is being held for fifty thousand pesos ransom, the State Department was advised to-day. Adams' home is in Los Angeles. The American Embassy at Mexico City has been instructed by the State Department to bring the kidnapping to the attention of the Mexican authorities with the request that every step be taken to secure Adams' release.

PREMIER DRURY ELECTED.

MILTON, Ont., Feb. 16. Premier Drury was elected in Halton County to-day by a majority of two thousand over Edward Stephenson, Toronto returned soldier, who opposed him.

RETAINING SOME DESIRABLE REGULATIONS.

LONDON, Feb. 16. The principal debate in the House of Commons to-day was on the second reading of the War Emergency Court Continuance Bill, proposing to retain until August 31st some of the Defence of the Realm Regulations specially affecting seditious and dangerous speeches. Vehement opposition was offered by several Irish members thought the measure had no special application to Ireland. The second reading was, however, carried by 319 to 81, and the bill also passed through committee and was reported to the House.

C. C. C. At Home.

Under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor and His Grace the Archbishop, the annual At Home of the C.C.C. was held in the C.C.C. Hall last night, and proved the most successful in the history of the Corps. His Excellency the Governor and Capt. Hamilton, P.S., Rt. Rev. Mons. McDermott, Rev. Dr. Greene and Rev. Dr. Carter were among the guests and were received by Lt.-Col. Conroy, Major O'Grady and Major L. C. Murphy, and a body guard of lads of the brigade. At 8.15 a concert was held, consisting of songs by Mrs. C. J. Cahill, Misses Mary Ryan and Browne, Mr. Karl Trappell and Capt. A. Summers, all of which were splendidly rendered. Mr. C. Hutton acted as the accompanist. Dancing was then taken up till midnight, when supper was served, the ladies in charge being Mesdames C. O'N. Conroy, A. Hiscock, H. Brownrigg, C. H. Hutton, Jas. Mabey, McNeilly, W. R. Howley, F. J. Foran, J. Curran, M. Tobin, W. B. Comerford, G. Gough, J. C. Buckley, W. E. Beams, W. H. Jackson, (Dr.) Scully, Misses Parker and J. Bulley. Following the repast, which was all that could be desired, dancing was resumed and continued till early this morning. The music by the C.C.C. Band was par excellence, and His Excellency personally congratulated Capt. Bulley on the selections.

Died at Halifax.

In a late issue of the Halifax Herald is noted the death of Richard H. Brown, a first cousin of Mr. G. A. Hutchings, of Job Bros., this city. Mr. Brown, who was eighty-two years of age, went down to the office of the Mortgage Corporation of Nova Scotia, of which he was president, in the morning and shortly after reaching there returned home by cab. Arriving home he collapsed and in a short while passed away.

Known in Newfoundland as well as Halifax as a mineral expert of rare ability, Mr. Brown's sudden passing comes as a shock to his many friends. One son, Richard, at Sydney Mines, and three daughters—Margaret, who has for years been a foremost figure in good work in Halifax, Elizabeth and Lillian.

PASTORAL LETTER

Of His Lordship the Bishop of Newfoundland.

BISHOP'S COURT,
Septuagesima, 1920.
To the Faithful Throughout the Diocese of Newfoundland.

My Dear People:—In the earnest hope that the solemn call of another Lenten Season may incline your hearts and minds to give heed to some thoughts that have to do with spiritual matters I venture to ask your prayerful consideration to the contents of this Pastoral Letter.

To hear the summons of Our Lord to "Come apart, and rest awhile," is at any time a very high duty, showing our readiness to give Him simple obedience, and this in itself is an acknowledgment of one of our primary needs as Christians. But in these days especially "the world is too much with us, early and late we lay waste our powers," and so the very sanity and safety of our Faith, the "saving of our souls alive," demand a special readiness on our part to "Come apart at this time for a while," to stop and think, and consider what the real trend of life as we are living it is.

We can scarcely be unaware of what is going on beyond the narrow boundary of our individual concerns, and how events which are stirring the world almost from one end to the other are having their influence upon us. Not so very long ago we were all deeply concerned with the terrific conflict in which we were involved. Few things besides were for four long and weary years uppermost in our minds. Many thoughtful people hoped and said that such unspeakable sufferings and sacrifices would surely bring the world, which had become so sadly estranged from Him, back to God. Men, who had been so strangely brought together and had fought side by side, or who had laboured with hand or brain in the common danger, would be cemented in a common brotherhood; class hatred would cease; men would recognize the rights of others, and in the new world which was being born in the cruel agonies of war there would be peace and good will. Few, however, of these hopes have as yet been realized. It has to be admitted that the aftermath of the war presents as great dangers (some think they are greater) than the days of actual warfare presented.

There is, however, little to be gained by merely lamenting that we have had bequeathed to us a legacy so unwelcome. As we once realized that we were sharers in a conflict that concerned us all, so now the only hope of a happier future for us and for our children is to gauge as accurately as we can the measure of our responsibility in provoking so sore a judgment, then lay its stern lessons to heart and with full purpose of amendment unitedly seek to bring forth fruits worthy of repentance.

For it is repentance, national, and individual, that is now required. The former of necessity depends upon the depth and sincerity of the latter. We had been seeking to build upon purely material foundations. We talked of progress, efficiency, advancement, prosperity; but all the while our minds were dwelling upon perishing things. Now we have seen that these cannot suffice. "The rains descended, and the flood came, and the winds blew, and beat upon our house, and it fell." Let men say what they will, the one true reason why the world is, where it finds itself to-day is this: it had largely forgotten God. There is no reason whatever to hope that a more enduring civilization than that which has been so rudely shattered can be built up except upon the principles of truth, justice and righteousness embodied in the Christian Revelation—God in Christ would reconcile the world unto Himself. The world cannot be reconciled either to God or to itself otherwise. Here is the secret of the only worth-while reconstruction. It must be God-ward, God-acknowledging, spiritual, as well as social and economic.

And the Church, chastened, renewed, revived, the custodian still of the Divine Revelation, has its message of hope for the world, and bears in its hands the Grace requisite for renewal. The Church of Christ is as we know only too well a divided church, and as a consequence it cannot witness to the world for God with that force and compelling power which a united body could bear. But Christians are no longer happy or satisfied in the face of division; they are for the most part ready to confess that division not only spells impaired power, but to continue a state, induced by short-sightedness and impatience, and blindness on the part of followers of Christ, is sin. A divided church, responsible for its divisions, must repent; and one of the most hopeful signs of the times is the church's desire to amend. God's Holy Spirit is at work, and it would be sheer impiety to say that the Church cannot again be one. That the Church of England is alive to the magnitude of the tasks confronting believers in Christ is amply demonstrated by the list of subjects drawn up for consideration by

The Bishops of the Anglican Communion, at the Lambeth Conference meeting in July. In a letter (of invitation to be present at the Conference) which I have received from the Archbishop of Canterbury he announces that the following (subjects) have been definitely selected for discussion:—

- 1.—Relation to and Reunion with other Churches.
  - (a) Episcopal Churches.
  - (b) Non-Episcopal Churches, with questions as to—
    - (1) Recognition of Ministers.
    - (2) Validity of Sacraments.
    - (3) Suggested Transitional Steps.
- 2.—Missionary Problems.
  - (a) Relations between Missions and Growing Churches.
  - (b) Missions and Governments.
  - (c) Liturgical variations permissible to a Province or Diocese.
  - (d) Marriage Question and other practical problems.
- 3.—The Christian Faith in relation to—
  - (a) Spiritualism.
  - (b) Christian Science.
  - (c) Theosophy.
- 4.—Problems of Marriage and sexual Morality.
  - (a) The Position of Women in the Councils and Ministries of the Church.
  - (b) Christianity and International Relations, especially the League of Nations.
  - (c) The Opportunity and Duty of the Church in regard to Industrial and Social Problems.
  - (d) The Development of Provinces in the Anglican Communion.

That the discussion of subjects of such vital importance, not only to our own church, but to the whole world, may be Divinely guided, we should invoke the presence of the Holy Spirit upon the deliberation of the Conference, and that we in this diocese might be of one mind, I recommend that the following Prayer be used after the "collect for the day" at celebrations of the Holy Communion and in Morning and Evening Prayer from this time until the Conference concludes its sessions.

PRAYER FOR THE LAMBETH CONFERENCE.

"O Lord God Almighty, Father of Light, and Fountain of all Wisdom; we humbly beseech Thee that Thy Holy Spirit may lead into all truth Thy servants now (to be gathered together in Thy Name in the Lambeth Conference). Grant them grace to think and do such things as shall tend most to Thy Glory and the good of Thy Holy Church; direct and prosper, we pray Thee, all their consultations, and further them with Thy continual help, that the true Catholic and Apostolic Faith once delivered to the Saints being maintained, Thy Church may serve Thee in all godly quietness; through Jesus Christ Our Lord.—Amen.

Here in the smaller world of our own Diocese we are faced with serious problems, to which a solution must be found if our Church is to do its appointed work. Larger sacrifices are essential on the part of all. We must learn to spend and be spent in the service of our Master. Our people, who are already placing a greater measure of their substance at the Church's disposal for the maintenance of the Church's ministrations than ever before, must expect, and be taught to expect that far greater sacrifices are still necessary. There is little need to detail the reasons why such sacrifices must be demanded. In this Lenten season we might all do well to train ourselves in downright self-denial, not that we might possess more, but that we might have more to give.

The Diocese needs clergy. The men are waiting to be prepared for the ministry. Our College—Queen's, under the new Principal, Dr. N. S. Facey, will be ready to accommodate at least twelve students as soon as funds permit. And as a supply of duly qualified clergy is one of the first essentials if the Church is to meet her obligations, I recommend that the Lenten Self-denial Offering this year, as last, be devoted to the needs of the College. I appeal to every Parish and Mission in the Diocese to put aside as far as possible other claims, however pressing and deserving they may be, in order that this crying need may be met. Missions are vacant and there are no priests available; large parishes are pleading for more ministrations than are possible in existing circumstances. The people are ready to welcome and, I believe, to pay towards the support of additional clergy. Will not the Diocese give me the means for their training?

But be assured that in seeking your assistance for the foregoing purpose the great end we have in view is not lost sight of; that end is your edification, and the honour and glory of God. This is the purpose for which the ministry exists; to promote it self-denial is a prime necessity, and is in accord with the teaching of Christ.

In some form or other Lent makes self-denial obligatory. It is not conceivable that we can make a worthy use of the season, and yet not have to practice it. The use of increased opportunities for prayer and instruction; our efforts in self-examination and prayer; practical work for the church; who can worthily engage in these things without denying himself in some way? It is of the very essence of the Christian life, by it we qualify for the privilege of bearing our cross; it is the badge of our discipleship of Christ. But, let us not imagine that the world with which we are acquainted is likely to be attracted by the Way of the Cross. Hence the necessity for "coming apart," and being sometimes "alone with God" and realising "that life is more than meat, and the body than raiment."

During the past two years large numbers of the young people, especially, of our congregations, have been confirmed. Others are looking forward to the Ordinance. To all of these, and especially to those of them who are still young, Lent should make its appeal. The future of the Church rests upon them. Now is the time when habits of devotion can best be formed, but now also is the time of greatest danger. Unless the means of grace are made much of, temptation will prove too strong. The world, the flesh, and the devil combine to their undoing. The watchfulness of clergy, teachers and parents will all be in vain unless the conscience be kept tender and the will strengthened, and the soul be fed by supernatural agencies, to be found in constant prayer and a preserving use of the other means of grace.

And to the end that each of us in our several callings may promote as far as in us lies true religion, having brotherly love one towards another, seeking each the welfare of the other, and determined to uphold the principles of our Holy Faith, let us betake ourselves to earnest supplication, prayer and intercession to our Heavenly Father through the Lord Jesus Christ, and in the power of the Divine Spirit. To the Holy and undivided Trinity, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, be honour and glory for ever. Your Servant in the Lord, WILHELM NEWFOUNDLAND.

Teeth Do Not Stain

It is Film that Clouds Their Whiteness

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Free

A Ten-Day Tube of Pepsodent to show you its effects. See coupon.

Learn the Cause of Decay

Dental science has now traced most tooth troubles to a film. To that slimy film which you can feel.

That is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

The film is clinging. It enters crevices and stays. No ordinary tooth paste can dissolve it. A soapy tooth paste makes it more viscous.

So, despite your brushing, much film stays. Night and day it does its damage. It is the great tooth wrecker.

Science now has found a way to combat that film. The fact has been proved by many clinical tests. The method is now advocated by leading dentists everywhere.

For daily use it is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And we are mailing 10-Day Tubes so that every home may try it.

Do This and See

We urge you for your own sake to write for this 10-Day Tube. See the results for yourself.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

Pepsin must be activated, and science has discovered a harmless activating method. The usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth, so pepsin long seemed impossible. Now everyone may apply it morning, noon and night. And the evidence is that this invention brings a new dental era.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the film disappears.

Compare results with the methods you use now. Then judge for yourself what is best. Cut out the coupon now.

Look in 10 Days

Note how the teeth glisten. You can see that the film is gone.

FANNING FOR YOUR DOCTOR.

RUTH CAMERON

Did you ever notice how much pride people take in their doctors? I saw two women the other day who were just about ready to fight (gentle-ly, you know—that is, with their tongues rather than their fists or finger nails) because neither would recognize the other's specialist. One went 200 miles to consult hers, and the other went 100 miles to consult his. But, on the other hand, the first one who paid $5, of course the specialist could have explained that double or even triple that but he was so reasonable in his charges because he didn't believe in fanning people. The one who had a distinction of paying $10 received that with a "That's very unusual, isn't you think?" which—while, in substance, it could not be criticized—nevertheless something in the manner of its delivery that made the patient bristle.

They Get All "Het Up." I know two sisters who caution the subject of doctors without getting "all het up." They had to have the same family doctor. One of them got out with him. The one who remained faithful to old love, declares that the sister changed because the new man was more fashionable—the old one is old enough for her, she says, with self-congratulation. She thinks a man with 20 years' steady experience knows more than any young whippersnapper. What the sister who changed says about the unprofessionalism of the older doctor, I will leave you to fill in for yourself. I know you can easily do it.

Don't Dare Admit You Never Heard of a Friend's Specialist. An interesting aspect of the doctor question in any big city is the number of really prominent specialists there will be, each with his circle of ardent admirers who consider him a national figure and tell proudly of someone who came half-way across the country to consult him. Nothing enrages you a worshipper more than for you to confess, when he mentions his eye specialist, or nose and throat man (perhaps I shouldn't use that example, as it is hardly good form now to specialize in more than two inches of anatomy) or his ear specialist, that you never heard of him. And yet the chances are you never did if you belong to the circle of some other doctor.

Is It Because We Like to Feel We're Picked a Winner?

On the other hand, nothing delights one of these fans so much as to have outside confirmation of their fan-ship. "I told Dr. A. (a general practitioner) that I went to Dr. C. for my eyes" a man assured me, "and he said 'There isn't a better man in the country.'" He looked as proud and delighted as if he himself had just been highly commended.

I suppose in a way he felt as if he had, for isn't the basis of all this "fan-ship" our pride in having picked a winner?

It Kicked.

The Marchioness of Londonderry, who has started political entertaining once more, tells—with a delightful imitation of the genuine Irish brogue—the following story concerning an old gardener employed at Mount Stewart, her beautiful home in Co. Down. Our faithful retainer (says Lady Londonderry) was greatly perturbed owing to the depredations of sparrows in "his" orchard.

One day, however, he put in an appearance with a look of grim determination on his face, and on his shoulders an ancient Queen Anne musket which he had unearthed from somewhere or other.

Loading it generously with powder and shot, he took aim at one of the offending sparrows and fired.

The bird, with a chirp or two, flew away unconcerned in the foreground, and our unlucky gardener was swiftly and noiselessly laid on his spine in the background.

Picking himself up, and shaking his fist at the bird, he exclaimed: "Be jabbers, you wouldn't 'a' chirped if you'd been at this end of the gun."

Household Notes.

Never pass an exposed nail within reach of a human being or animal without removing it.

A tablespoonful of cooked tapioca may be put in each soup plate before filling it with hot consommé.

A little spritz of camphor sprinkled about in the sick room, will give the air an agreeable odor.

Dried vegetables should be well cooked and rubbed through a sieve before putting into a cream soup.

Round crackers, split, buttered and spread with peanut butter, then browned in the oven, are excellent.

Steak, chop, roast and chicken bones will keep in cold weather and any or all can be put into the soup pot.

A soup made thick with beans, barley and vegetables may easily be the main dish for a cold weather lunch-son.

Blue for children can be made of the same material as their play dresses, and are less conspicuous than old ones.

Insist upon the butcher giving you all the trimmings from the meat. They can be washed and boiled with the soup bone.

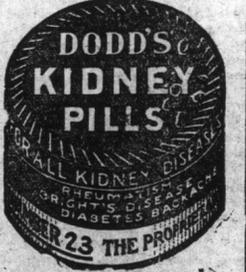

It is best to soak potatoes in water before frying, thus drawing out all the starch that they may be crisp and mealy.

Canned fruit and vegetables should be opened some time before using, that they may be aerated and the flavor improved.

A roast of beef should be put into a very hot pan on top of the stove and browned on all sides before it is put into the oven. This will prevent the juices from going out.

A tablecloth which is carefully folded when removed from the table will keep fresh much longer than one which is carelessly folded.

Corneal meal will keep better if sterilized as soon as it comes into the house — bake it in a hot oven for twenty minutes to prevent burning.

THE BLAME.

When Walter Notanickie fell in love with Lee, Mabel said: "Good heavens! Such a match can never be! This young man is beneath her; he'd disgrace our family name; To have him for a son-in-law would be a lasting shame." So they promptly said to Mabel she must choose another spouse. And they ordered all the servants not to let him in the house.

Now Walter Notanickie heard the orders, and he said: "Though the old folks do not like me, it's not them I want to wed; They can think up names to call me 'til their brains are in a whirl. But they'll wake up some fine morning and they'll find I've got the girl." And fair Mabel said to Walter: "Spite of all my parents say, 'I will take you for my husband,' So one night they ran away.

Now the honeymoon is over, and fair Mabel sits at night; And sadly realizes that her parents had it right. For Walter Notanickie has turned out to be no good.

And is treating pretty Mabel as her father said he would; And the old folks sit in sorrow, and they say that it's a shame. But they never think one minute that for this match they're to blame.

Here, There and Everywhere.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of "flu."

It required a whole lifetime in which to become wise, but a man can make a fool of himself in a minute.

The London post tells of the marvellous adventure of a bottle cast into the Atlantic, but they sound tame compared to the experiences of some bottles turned loose in Ontario, says a Toronto exchange.

Higher food prices for 1920, were predicted by delegates to the joint convention of the National Canners Association and other organizations identified with the canning industry at Cleveland, O., recently. Increased cost of production was the reason given.

Tit for Tat.

A carpenter sent to make some repairs in a private house entered the apartment of the lady of the house with his apprentice and began to work.

"Mary," the lady said to her maid, "see that my jewel-case is locked up at once!"

The carpenter understood. He removed his watch and chain from his vest in a significant manner and handed them to his apprentice.

"John," said he, "take these right back to the shop. It seems that this house isn't safe."

Spinach should be put into a large kettle without water, placed on the stove where it will cook slowly until the juice is drawn out, then boil until tender.

When the long tablecloth frays around the edges, cut a circle from the center, finish the edge of the circle with an inexpensive thread lace, and you have a very pretty luncheon or breakfast cloth.

Canned Fish Regulations.

Lobster and Salmon packers, who intend to engage in the canning industry during the current year, have to consider the Canadian Regulations in connection with the importation of canned fish into Canada, which become effective from the first day of April next ensuing. These regulations were published in the Telegram yesterday, for the benefit and information of all canners who may contemplate engaging in the tinned fish industry, be they small or large, in Newfoundland henceforth, in order that all concerned may take notice, and in the words of royal proclamation, "govern themselves accordingly."

As a great deal of canned fish is part of the produce of Newfoundland, and many shipments of same are made to Canadian purchasers, it becomes imperative that the regulations, as laid down, be adhered to. Otherwise the penal section is enforced, and failure to conform involves the confiscation of any consignment, unaccompanied by the declaration, describing the exact sanitary conditions under which the packing took place. This measure, adopted by the Canadian Government in 1917, has not been heretofore applied to Newfoundland, consequently our tinned fish exports had the entree of the Canadian market without any other recommendation than that of the number of the packer, corresponding to the number of the License to Pack issued by the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

This in itself was not always a guarantee of the quality of the article so packed, neither did it protect the Canadian, or other purchaser, and if the contents of a case of salmon or lobster were unfit for food, the only redress obtained by the buyer, who usually took it for granted that both quality and quantity were unimpeachable, was the cancellation on complaint and proof—of the delinquents' license. But this did not mend the evil, for it was quite possible for someone else to renew the license subsequently, the same factory proprietor then merely carrying on his industry under the name of one of his fishermen or relatives. No recommendation was ever asked by the Newfoundland department of Marine and Fisheries—which issued licenses to pack—that the hygienic and sanitary condition of the factory of the licensee were such as they should be, and no inspection to such an end was ever made. All that was necessary, and perhaps all that is still necessary, for the rules concerning the issue of licenses have not been changed, was to make application for license to pack lobsters or salmon on the form approved by the department, and forthwith without question or investigation into conditions, the license was issued, and the licensee was at liberty to engage in the canning industry without any further question.

He could cook lobsters or salmon in the family boiler on a stove in the kitchen annex, or he could have a more extensive plant in the stage in which he split and cured his day's catch of codfish. Many fishermen merely went into the lobster packing business as a side line, and to pack five or ten cases during a season was considered good business. Of course those who made a specialty of the industry provided a more elaborate outfit and did not connect it with their codfishery operations, having separate boiling, cracking and sealing departments, but none of them were under Government inspection, and visiting wardens were not obliged to make any report of the surrounding conditions, which might or might not, have been hygienic or sanitary, though in regular factories cleanliness in all the processes was the order, and many canneries, on the North West Coast particularly, were pictures of sanitation, and that virtue which is next to godliness. Still no certificates to this effect were asked for, but now that it has become incumbent upon canners to accompany their shipments with documentary evidence of their soundness, wholesomeness and fitness for human food, great caution will be required in the issuance of licenses by the Fisheries Department, and promiscuity of applications will have to be considered with care. Fishery wardens too, will have to be more on the qui vive than formerly and see that in all cases where licenses have been issued that the packing process is being carried out in such a manner that the declaration required by the Canadian Government will have the effect provided for in the regulations, and will be a true and correct certificate of origin and contents.

Obituary.

MALINA JAMES.
There passed away at 6.30 this morning, at 18 Hamilton Street, after a brief illness, Malina, widow of the late Capt. Mark James, of Carbonear, who was lost at sea with all hands in the ill-fated brigantine Cllo, twenty-four years ago. The deceased lady since then had resided at Carbonear, moving over to St. John's in November last, being then in very poor health. Spite of assiduous attention and care and all that medical skill could do, the end, not unexpected, came just as dawn broke in the East, and the released soul winged its flight into the Paradise of the blest. Four children are left to mourn the loss of a dear mother, Charles T., Editor of the Evening Telegram; Reginald H., late Major in the 7th Battalion Railway Troops, C.E.F., residing at Toronto, Ontario; Albert L., in the United States, and Mrs. Frank G. Lumsden, of this city, to all of whom general sympathy in their sad bereavement is extended. The corpse will be taken to Carbonear by train to-morrow, for interment in the Anglican cemetery, beside the body of a daughter, Nellie, who died in the same year that the Cllo was lost.

There passed away at Boston (Little Jim), darling child of James and Maggie Barnes (nee Haynes), formerly of this city. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved family, his death making the fourth in the family within nine months.

(Before Chief Justice.)
The King vs. Charles Bradbury and Martha Bradbury.
A jury of 48 and an extra panel of 24 were summoned to attend court for this trial and the following jury were empanelled: Fred Godden, H. Carter, R. Hudson, E. R. Pippy, D. Galway, John Evans, E. Parsons, T. Murphy, John King, John Newhook, A. W. O'Reilly, P. Murphy. The jurors were sworn and the others were released from attendance. The charge against the prisoners was then read. Mr. E. Leo Carter for the Crown addressed the jury and states the prisoners are charged with bigamous marriage on Sept. 14th, 1918. Rev. Mr. Bennett, who performed the marriage, was called as a witness. The prisoners, Walshe, who committed the bigamous marriages, were also called. Head Const. Byrne was examined regarding written statements made to him by the prisoners Bradbury. Mr. Winter objects to statements as evidence. The statements are read to the jury. Recess is taken till 2.30.

Police Court.

A returned soldier was charged with being drunk and technically assaulting another soldier. His wife, who was in court, told the Judge that her husband was drinking dope. He was let go on payment of costs.
A young man was charged with the larceny of 15 pairs of new boots, valued at $65, the property of Parker & Monroe. Upon recommendation of the Inspector General he was remanded for eight days.

Baby Found in Pillow Case.

The body of the infant brought to the Morgue yesterday was examined by Dr. Tait. It will be buried to-morrow. The body was found enclosed in a pillow case in the corner of the lavatory on the express from Millerton Junction. The authorities are investigating the matter.

Coastal Boats.

Argyle, Glencoe not reported. Clyde at St. John's. Home at St. John's. Kyle arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.30 p.m. yesterday on her way to Louisburg. Meigle at Louisburg. Petrel at St. John's. Sagona ice jammed.

Shipping Notes.

S. S. Rosalind at Halifax at 3 o'clock Sunday and is probably leaving there for New York to-day.
The S. S. Campello sails to-morrow at 8 o'clock with a full cargo of fish for Gibraltar.
No word of the Sackem having left Halifax had been received by the Furness Withy Co., up to noon hour.
The S. S. Orion, which was reported yesterday as been 200 miles off port and disabled, has not been heard from to-day. The ship is in heavy ice and has only 2 days coal on board.

Here and There.

SAGONA IN TIGHT ICE.—The S.S. Sagona is still in tight ice south of Greenspond.
LEFT FOR BELL ISLAND.—The S. S. Mary went to Bell Island this forenoon with a freight cargo.
LEAGUE HOCKEY — St. Bon's vs. Feildians, this evening, at 7.30, ice permitting. Smoking strictly prohibited.—feb.17.11

SMALLPOX PATIENTS.—Two children suffering from smallpox were removed from their home, Duckworth St. yesterday, and taken to the hospital for treatment.

SMALLPOX AT FOGO.—Dr. McKenzie wired the Health authorities yesterday that a case of smallpox had broken out at Fogo and that necessary quarantine regulations had been enforced.

Stafford's Liniment for Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism and all kinds of Aches and Pains. Price 20c. bot. For sale everywhere.—feb.2.11

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN.—Final instructions to the teams which are to conduct the Forward Movement Campaign were given at the Presbyterian Hall last evening.

CARNIVAL TO-NIGHT.—Provided the ice be good a carnival will be held in the Parade Rink to-night when prizes for the best and second best gentlemen's and ladies' costumes will be offered.

The performers in the opera "San Toy" will be photographed at the Holloway Studio, Henry Street, to-morrow at 12 o'clock. Full costume.—feb.17.11

SAGONA JAMMED.—"The steamer Sagona is jammed in heavy ice 3 miles South of Greenspond," stated a message to the owners this morning. It was added that Greenspond Bay was full of heavy ice.

TELEPHONE WIRES DOWN.—Owing to the weight of snow, which fell during the night, many of the telephone wires in the city snapped, and consequently the company's employees have been busily engaged all day effecting repairs.

AT THE CROSBIE.—The following are guests at the crobbie:—A. H. Taylor, Change Islands; E. Taylor, Change Islands; E. D. Elliott, Change Islands; W. W. Baird, Twillingate; J. E. Froude, Clarendville; Geo. Kennedy, Avondale.

TAKING A TEAM.—A half demented man jumped aboard a sleigh belonging to a well known cabman, while the latter was in court on a jury this morning. After a little persuasion the half demented man was taken to safety.

COMPANY JUSTIFIES TOBACCO RISE.—The increased rates of tobacco, as noted in this paper yesterday, is justified by the company on the ground that the high rate of exchange between Newfoundland and America, (from which tobacco leaf used is imported) necessitates the new increase in the selling price.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. Arthur Thompson and family wish to thank the employees of the British Clothing Co. for the wreath which they sent to adorn the casket of their wife and mother; also Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Miller for their kind attendance during her illness; Mr. and Mrs. T. Fleming, Mrs. A. Stephenson, Mrs. W. Duggan, Mrs. M. Miller, Mrs. C. McCarthy, Mrs. J. O'Toole, Aggie Miller, Margaret Collins, Michael Clance, Alfred Stephenson and all the kind friends who assisted them during their bereavement.

Here, There and Everywhere.

Erection of a huge memorial arch on the international boundary to commemorate the century of peace between Canada and the United States being urged by good roads men of Washington Territory and British Columbia. Tentative plans call for the erection of the arch in a big park to be established on the Pacific highway on both sides of the highway. The city of Blaine is willing to purchase the American share of the park if the British Columbia Parliament will buy the Canadian site.

Packed with care in small wooden boxes used to carry fresh fish, eleven cases of whiskey passed the eye-eyed officers of the law at Windsor, Ontario, recently, because the shippers had surrounded each case with a nice thick wall of real fish. Through the slats there was nothing to indicate that the boxes held anything but members of the finny tribe. However, somebody furnished License Insp. Moorhead with the information that the liquor shipment was passing through over the Canadian Pacific, destined to Detroit. He arrived too late to stop the case, but a 'phone message to Detroit apprised the Federal officers there and the liquor was confiscated.

The late Sir Wilfred Laurier, says Musical Canada, was intensely fond of music when he was close up to it, and once had quite an entente with an agent who wanted to sell him a phonograph. Sir Wilfred was sceptical about the instrument, but, on being told that it would produce his own voice, and, being asked to sing into the machine, he volunteered instead to play the flute on which he was some amateur. When he heard the record he said: "Do you really mean to tell me that in the way my flute sounded?" Precisely, Sir Wilfred. Now let me sell you the machine." "No," was the sorrowful reply, "I think I had better sell the flute."

Round and Round.

WAGES STILL CHASING PRICES.
The increase of 5c. a week in the wages of railwaymen, which has been negotiated by Mr. J. H. Thomas, to meet the increased cost of living, is already being condemned by some of the local leaders. Mr. Bromley, the locomotive men's leader, too, declares that as the cost of living has risen 17 per cent, since the last award, a new application for increased wages may be made by them.

If such an application is made and granted, would the workers be any better off? They would receive more paper money, but unless that paper money bought more goods, their position would not improve. Any increase in wages which is not accompanied by an increase in production means that there is more money but just the same quantity of goods to buy with it. And so the price of everything rises.

It is quite easy for the Government to run its printing presses and turn out more notes. It is not so easy to increase the quantity of goods. We can now see that it is almost a mathematical truth that if 15 or 20 per cent is added to wages (and the paper notes to pay them) without an increase in the quantity of goods, the goods rise in price 15 to 20 per cent. There is then a fresh demand for another advance in wages, followed by a still further advance in the price of goods.

The first remedy for this "vicious circle," as it has rightly been called, is to stop the manufacture of unlimited paper money. We have now in this country £18 or £14 of money per head, where before the war we had £4 or £5, and yet we have less goods. If we produce goods, not Bradburys.

BORN.

On the 13th inst., a daughter, to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. O'Brien, 17 McKay Street.

MARRIED.

On the 16th inst. at St. Patrick's Church, by the Rev. H. J. Renouf, Allan J. Smith to Isabella Brace, both of St. John's.

DIED.

This morning, at 18 Hamilton Street, Malina, widow of the late Capt. Mark James, of Carbonear, in the 88th year of her age. The funeral will take place at Carbonear. At East Boston, Jan. 31st, James F. Barnes, beloved child of James H. and Maggie Barnes (nee Haynes), aged 6 years, 11 days; funeral services were held at the parents' residence, 1193 Bennington Street, Boston, on Monday, Feb. 2nd at 2 p.m.; funeral private. Asleep in Jesus.

IN LOVING MEMORY

of the late Mrs. Arthur Thompson. One precious to our hearts is gone, A voice we loved is still; A place is vacant in our home That never can be filled. God in His wisdom hath re-called The one we loved so dear, To rest in peace with Him above Though we are mourning here. We miss thee from our home, We miss thee from thy place; A shadow o'er our lives is cast, We miss thy well-loved face. Though cast down we are not forsaken, Though afflicted not alone; God did give and God has taken, Blessed Lord, Thy Will be Done.

The Evangelists

At Gower Street Church.

The very bad walking caused a decreased attendance last night at Gower Street Church but the Evangelists had another good meeting, about eight hundred were present. The hymns which became dear to the people of St. John's in last winter's campaign have been revived, and the singing is more and more inspiring. The brought me out of the misty clay" a soul stirring chorus. Dr. Fenwick offered prayer and Mr. Demarest sang "Have You Heard The Glorious Tidings" one of his best solos, after which Mrs. Demarest rose and she seemed depressed. She was very susceptible to the spirit of the meeting. She felt the spiritual atmosphere was not right. There were many present with a censorious critical spirit, they were thinking of others instead of keeping their eyes on God. He exhorted her hearers to look into their own hearts and see if it was a number of laymen then took a prayer for half an hour, after which Mrs. Demarest took as her subject "Lazarus" (John 11). She said in her prayer: "It was a sweet little home in Bethany. I can imagine a small cottage, a garden full of flowers, and with it all an atmosphere of peace and harmony. Two sisters and a brother, who were all and in all to each other, lived there. Their three hearts were also united in one common love, the love of the Master. I love to think that there was one little room in that house which was kept for Jesus when He came, and it was furnished with the best they had. But one day sickness and the shadow of death entered into that home. The brother fell ill. Imagine what the loss of Lazarus would mean to Mary and Martha. He had been more than a brother to them. As a ray of light in the darkness came the thought of the Master. Quickly they sent a message to Him, a message full of pathos and a noble appeal. 'Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick'.

To our surprise we read that when Jesus heard that Lazarus was sick he should two days still in the place where He was. Think of what those days of waiting meant to the two faithful sisters watching their loved one die. We would feel almost like accusing the Lord of heartlessness. How strange are the ways of God. Has anything like that happened in your life? Have you cried to God out of the sorrow of your heart, and said, 'Lord, you love me, and you love my loved one. Answer my prayer. There is a silence, and you have been sorely tempted to doubt. Perhaps, instead of answering He has done the opposite to your request. Don't you think that if Mary and Martha suffered, Jesus suffered far more? He knew the doubts and fears in their minds and yet He had the strength to stay away. Why did Jesus keep them in this suspense? He stayed away for the glory of God. He stayed away, letting Lazarus die, and Mary and Martha suffer, that they might learn the greatest lesson any one can learn—faith in God—faith when we cannot see or understand. He stayed away also for the sake of the whole world. If God is trying you, it is not only for your own good, but it is also for the good of the whole world. Will you remember that through sorrows God is seeking to make you a better man, stronger and purer, that you may be a blessing to others? One day you will thank Him more for the trials and sorrows of your life than for the joys. At last Jesus went to Bethany. Oh, the tragedy, the deep pain, of that meeting with Mary and Martha. Bitterness had crept into the hearts of these dear women. It was expressed by the tone of reproach in the words, 'Master, if you had been here our brother would not have died.' Jesus said unto Martha, 'I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die.' Believeth thou this? That was the wonderful lesson Jesus sought to teach Martha, and through her teach the world. There is also no death for those that are in Him. Oh, that we might learn to trust God in the darkness as well as in the light, knowing that He doeth all things well.

They went to the grave. Between them and the dead man was a stone, rolled at the entrance of the sepulchre. Jesus said, Roll away the stone. Martha exclaimed, 'horror-stricken, Lord, by this time he stinketh. He hath been dead four days. Martha was the same woman who had said, 'Even now, whatsoever thou wilt say of God, God will give it thee. And yet when the Lord is about to answer her greatest prayer she is the one who stops Him. Some of you here are like Lazarus; your life stinks in the nostrils of the Almighty. It is impure and corrupt. Even now, it is not too late. Even now you can be changed, cleansed, renewed. But the stone is lying at the entrance. There is no use weeping and praying to be saved if you draw back when God is about to answer you and cling to the pet sin which lies as a heavy stone between you and Christ. The stone has to be removed; Jesus will not roll it away. You must.

At the entrance to every grave, shutting out liberty, life and sunshine, is a heavy stone. You know what that stone is: pride, unbelief, a sin of the flesh, an idol, an unclean habit. Whatever it may be, you must surrender it, you must give it up, you must roll it away. The evangelists felt there were too many critics and curiosity seekers in the audience, and in order that there might be the right atmosphere, the large congregation were dismissed at an early hour, and afterward it was apparent that the power from above was present, for the results were greater than at any previous night's service.

In addition to the city Methodist Ministers, we noticed the Rev. W. Swann, of Cupids, and Rev. S. Bennett, of Bay Roberts, in the meeting. —A.W.M.

Curb Broker.

Gives Hon. John Anderson Some Advice. Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I am informed that Hon. John Anderson made a statement in a morning paper a few days ago to the effect that we should buy barrelled pork from Canada, instead of from the United States, and thereby save a matter of several dollars in cost of exchange. Had Mr. Anderson taken the trouble to inquire from provision dealers in regard to this matter, he would learn, what he apparently does not know, that is that Canada has never been able to supply us with this article of commerce at a price to favorably compete with the U. S. market. Canadians themselves are obliged often to import the U. S. product which they find can be bought cheaper than in their own country, even though they have to pay an import duty on it also of $4.00 per barrel. It is nonsense, therefore, for Mr. Anderson to talk about buying Canadian pork, and so I would suggest to him to be more careful in future when writing to the press upon commercial matters. The trouble with the honorable gentleman is that he has too quick a tongue, too smooth a pen, and too rash a brain when he comes to the discussion of figures; and that he is permanently obsessed with the idea that when he juggles with prices and figures the whole populace must be expected to readily swallow every thing he says concerning same. Now I grant that Mr. A. is an excellent authority on Scottish tweeds, pound cottons, men's mufflers and shirts; women's skirts and blouses, and all other dry goods paraphernalia, but as he is not a provision dealer, he should not pose as an authority on such, therefore I hope he will let the subject alone. Some men have an idea that when they have the gull and ability to let their tongues run loose and talk at great length, no matter how non-sensically, or that when they rush into print and attempt to bewilder readers with huge masses of figures, that everybody believes what they speak or write of. They get carried off their feet and go to wing with "the exuberance of their own verbosity," and in the early stages of their career come to be looked upon as great writers, great financiers, clever because they talk and write a lot of stuff that the average man is inclined to look upon as cleverness when he sees before him long strings of figures that are slapped together in meaningless formation. Newspaper readers who have no time to sift or analyze these unintelligent, and therefore bewildering tabulations, are apt to believe too readily that the compiler thereof must be clever, but the veneer of cleverness soon wears off when the compiled drops into the realm of nonsense and quotes figures so palpably foolish in their relative aspect that even little office boys laugh in derision at them. I will take off my hat to Mr. Anderson when he begins to talk of dry goods, and would be quite satisfied to sit with him in his office all night listening to him shedding his versatile knowledge upon his real trade, but were he to invite me to his den to talk on pork and figures connected therewith, I should not hesitate to say "No, thank you. Mr. Anderson, your opinions are both valueless and uninteresting when you talk upon pork and exchange."

Yours truly,

B. I. S. Anniversary.

The 114th anniversary meeting of the Benevolent Irish Society will be held in St. Patrick's Hall this evening, February 17th. Amongst the many matters to come before the meeting will be the election of officers, in which a spirited contest is anticipated. The most important, however, will be that of President, the Hon. James D. Ryan, K.C.S.G., who had filled the position, faithfully and successfully for twenty-five years, having decided to retire. Mr. Ryan has been forty-five years a member of the Society, and during that time, besides the presidency, held other important offices on the Executive board. During his tenure as President, Hon. Mr. Ryan, had always before him the advancement of Education, and to his efforts in this direction are due the erection of the O'Donel Hall and Holy Cross School, in which numerous boys have been equipped with the knowledge necessary to go forth into the battle of life, many of them having distinguished themselves in all the callings and professions. It had also taken formation in the mind of the honorable President that the establishment of similar schools in the East End would be a desideratum, which will likely be taken up and carried out by his successors in office. Mr. Ryan's tenure of office, as will be observed in the list below, was the longest of any one President since the Society's inception in 1806. The following are the names and terms of office of past Presidents—many of whom played an important part in the public and commercial life of the country, especially in the obtaining of Responsible Government—of that old and venerable institution from its initiation to the present time:—

- Laurence O'Brien, Esq. . . . 1840
- Hon. James Tobin . . . . 1842-43
- Hon. Patrick Morris . . . . 1844-45
- Hon. John Kent . . . . 1846
- Hon. Laurence O'Brien . . . 1847-48
- John V. Nugent, Esq. . . . 1851-55
- Hon. Laurence O'Brien . . . 1857-58
- Hon. P. F. Little . . . . 1859-73
- Hon. Edward Morris . . . . 1874-79

The Passing of Mrs. Josiah Badcock.

A Note of Thanks and Appreciation. Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Since the passing away of Mrs. Badcock, numerous letters and telegrams have reached me from all over the Dominion, and a great many from outside, expressing the kindest possible appreciation of her and the deepest sympathy with us. It is more than I could undertake to reply to each of these kind communications, therefore through your columns I ask permission to thank those many friends for their expressions of esteem for the loved one who has gone home, and their sympathy with those of us who are left to travel the lonely pathway of life. I also wish to thank those who came forward and helped in every possible way; and the kind ladies who sent wreaths and flowers to adorn the casket, viz.—Miss Smith and Miss Laura Dawe, wreaths; Miss Bessie LeDrew, Miss Jennie K. Bishop, Mrs. Tobias LeDrew, Mrs. Abram LeDrew, Mrs. John A. LeDrew, Mrs. Eli Butler, and Mrs. Cris Bishop, flowers. While a sad vacant place is left in the home, yet there is a blessed consolation that she is only gone to receive her reward for faithful services rendered here on earth and to await the joyful reunion at the last day.
Yours very truly,

WINTER—HAYWARD.
The marriage of Mr. Herbert M. Winter, second son of Hon. M. G. Winter, to Miss Edith Hayward, daughter of George Hayward, Esq., took place this afternoon at St. Thomas's Church. The service was performed by Rev. Arthur Clayton, brother-in-law of the bride, and the ceremony was a quiet one. Although the guests comprising none but relatives of the parties, the occasion was a most popular one, and the Church was filled by the number of friends who attended. The bride, who made a very charming picture in a dress of white satin and beaded net with veil of Limerick lace, was given away by her father. She had as train-bearers Misses Jean and Lorna Bowring, the little daughters of Mr. Eric Bowring. They wore frocks of white velvet and silver, with cape of tulle. Mrs. Eric Bowring acted as matron of honour and wore a costume of blue nylon over satin. The groom was supported

WARD OFF INFLUENZA BY KEEPING IN BEST PHYSICAL CONDITION

Persons Who Catch Cold Easily and Who Are Weak and Run-Down Are Earliest Victims.

DANGER IS TOO GREAT TO TAKE ANY CHANCES.

Build Up Your Bodily Powers or Resistance By Taking Tanlac And Fortify Against Attack.

Much of the difficulty experienced by health authorities in checking the spread of influenza lies in the fact that it spreads with almost lightning rapidity. Although state and city authorities have succeeded in keeping it under control in some sections, the disease has gotten entirely beyond control in others.

It is universally agreed by all well-informed persons that the surest preventive is to get the system into the best possible physical condition, in order to be able to throw off the infection. It has been stated that it is possible to perfect the powers of human resistance so that it can throw off almost any infection, not excepting Spanish influenza, which is generally supposed to be one of the most contagious diseases known.

Medical authorities agree that people who are weak and run-down are the earliest victims of the influenza epidemic. If you find yourself weak and losing flesh, or if you are in a generally run-down condition you are really in danger if you should come in contact with the influenza germ. As a powerful re-constructive tonic and system builder Tanlac is without an equal. This is a statement of fact, and is fully supported by recognized authorities. According to all accepted reference works, including the U. S. Dispensatory, Encyclopedia Britannica, and the leading text-books used in the schools of medicine, the principal ingredients of Tanlac possess the most powerful re-constructive properties known to science. This statement is further proven by the fact that millions of persons who have actually taken Tanlac have testified to its extraordinary powers as a medicine.

Tanlac restores health and strength to the weak and run-down system by enabling every organ of the body to perform its proper function in the way nature intended. It creates a good, healthy appetite for wholesome, nourishing food, and is an ideal strengthening tonic for persons who are in a run-down condition and who are suffering from the after-effects of hard winter colds, gripe, or bronchial troubles.

Irrefutable evidence of the re-constructive powers of Tanlac is shown by the fact that it was used by tens of thousands during last year's epidemic with splendid results. One well-known Texas physician stated that he had never found anything to equal Tanlac for building up his patients who had had influenza, and that he had treated over fourteen hundred cases in one month.

In connection with the Tanlac treatment, keep the bowels open by taking Tanlac Laxative Tablets, samples of which are enclosed with every bottle of Tanlac. Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; in Harbor Buffet, by Thomas Waksley & Sons; in Flacencia, by James Murphy & Son, and in Topsall by J. K. Bursell.—adv.

In the Prize Ring.

FULTON HAS EASY WIN.

Boston, Feb. 6.—With a stiff left hook in the stomach in the eighth round, Fred Fulton, the lanky heavyweight from Minnesota, knocked out John Lester Johnson, the New York coloured heavyweight at Mechanics Building, to-night. When the knock-out came Johnson was a badly beaten boxer, but after the referee had counted him out he got to his feet and started looking for more punishment. After the second round Johnson was simply a punching bag for the challenger of Jack Dempsey.

About all the hitting Fulton did was with his left. He hooked and jabbed Johnson in the face and stomach in every round. He boxed in a cool manner all the time, and when Johnson did slap him in the face with a left or countered on the body with the right the big plasterer would smile.

Several times Fulton tried to get his right on John's jaw, but the blows landed on his ear or face.

For a couple of rounds Johnson showed some aggressiveness, but when Fulton kept shooting stiff lefts to his nose, mouth and eyes, Johnson resorted to running and covering up.

FREDDY WELSH RETURNS TO THE SQUARED CIRCLE.

New York, Feb. 6.—Freddie Welsh is going to return to the ring. The ex-lightweight champion now a captain in the army, expects to receive his discharge within a short time, and he announced that he will attempt to "come back."

When Benny Leonard took the lightweight title from Welsh in 1917, Billy Gibson, Leonard's manager, promised Welsh the first chance at the new champion over the twenty-round route. That promise still holds good.

Word received here from Miami, Fla., to the effect that the Bahama Islands shortly will make a flattering offer for a championship bout between Leonard and Welsh, revived interest in lightweight circles and caused Welsh to make his announcement. The match has not yet been made, but Billy Gibson said he will consider it seriously and Welsh will eagerly accept.

"Two years in the army has put me in better condition than I have been in during the last five years," a chance to regain the title and share a handsome purse has caused me to reverse my earlier decision to stay in retirement."

Welsh said that Gibson, true to his promise, offered the New Haven match that later was given to Johnny Dundee and then called off by Connecticut authorities. Being a captain in the army Welsh was unable to accept the match.

TUNNEY BEAT ROBERTS.

Newark, N.J., Feb. 6.—Gene Tunney, light-heavyweight champion of the American Expeditionary Force, knocked out Al Roberts of Staten Island, in the final round of an eight-round bout at the First Regt. Armory here to-night. Tunney weighed 175 pounds, one more than his opponent. The soldier champion showed improvement and exhibited some clever work. He scored one knockdown in the first round, three in the seventh and ended the bout with a right smash to the jaw. Roberts put up a game battle.

Eddie Fitzsimmons, the promising New York lightweight outought Jimmy Duffy of New York in an eight-round contest. Duffy weighed 137 pounds, and Fitzsimmons 135 3/4. The opening bout between Charley Beecher and Battling Reddy, both New York featherweights, had an abrupt ending in the fourth round, when the two fell through the ropes, and Reddy was knocked unconscious, his head striking the side of the ring. Beecher was having the better of the bout.

AMERICAN BOXERS FOR PARIS.

New York, Feb. 6.—Nine American boxers will sail for France on the Mauretania to-morrow. They are: Max Williamson, a Philadelphia bantam Frankie Brown, an East Side feather; Eddie May, an Allentown lightweight; K. O. Wilde Loughlin, a South Bethlehem welter; Johnny Alecks, a Philadelphia welter; Jim Ligeret, a Philadelphia negro middleweight; Jeff Smith, the well-known middleweight of Bayonne; and Tom Cowler, the English heavyweight.

Each boxer will take part in four bouts in Paris. Smith is said to be matched for twenty-five rounds with Georges Carpentier, while Cowler will meet Joe Beckett, the British heavyweight champion. The Cowler-Beckett bout will be decided on February 21, and the Smith-Carpentier scrap is scheduled for February 28.

JACK DEMPSEY'S MOVIE IS CALLED "DAREDEVIL JACK."

While Charles B. Cochran issues statement after statement concerning his plans to stage the Jack Dempsey-Georges Carpentier battle, pointing his remarks with wavings of a fistful of cables signed "Descamps," and Jim Croft sits back sphinx-like, his silence stimulating prophecy as to how it will all turn out, the champion himself works on serenely out in the sunshine of Los Angeles making a movie for the Pathe Company that will show Jess Willard's conquerer to the film fans as the super-six hero of a fifteen chapter serial called "Daredevil Jack." It will be ready for the waiting fans on February 15th.

Between times when not busy mauling the gang of civilians or being the little Romeo on the job to the blond heroine, Jack has been "paling" around with the kings and queens of the movies and reports have it that he is having a "swell" time. He started his career as a picture star in December. At first Jack felt that the World was all wrong. He felt as much at ease as a Mexican at the Hague when director pilots him into a big barn of a building with a glass roof and then issued some orders about make-up that was all Greek to Jack. But Jack picked up his ears when he heard the director say "it's going to be a long shot so make his eyes pretty black," and he felt more groggy than Fred Fulton after the big plasterer had been in the ring with Dempsey 15 seconds when a little brunette walked up to him and started to smear his eyebrows and eyelashes with a black grease pencil.

But all that has been forgotten now by Dempsey and they say he walks up in front of the camera and pulls a Douglas Fairbanks smile without thinking twice about it. And he even appears to feel lonesome when his face is not prettied up with grease paint. He has also learned to be a little more gentle with the supers so now it is not so hard getting villains for his picture.

If promises mean anything Jack will have the movie patrons hanging on to the arms of the theatre chairs and the young girls blinking their eyes as they watch the handsome hero plant a kiss on the lips of the heroine. But through all the film heroism Dempsey is reported to be keeping in mind the fact that he is the champion. He is working hard, gets up early and reports to the studio and is back hitting the hay every night when the curfew rings at 10 o'clock.—Pathe Exchange.

At the Majestic.

The show at the Majestic last night was everything that could be desired by the most discriminating audience. The feature, "The Coming of the Law," featuring dare-devil Tom Mix, was chock-full of concentrated action, and the very atmosphere of the wild and reckless west permeates the picture. Coming to a lawless settlement ostensibly as a tenderfoot, Mix right away starts things and from this moment to the end of the story keeps them moving—with a vengeance. Gunplay, cow-punching, newspaper-editing and love are mixed in five reels of as entertaining a picture as has been screened at the Majestic for months. In addition to the feature there is the Sunshine Comedy, "Virtuous Husband," a roar from start to finish. Acted by an all-star cast, this comedy is the best Fox one to be put on yet, and if the standard set is kept at par, nothing better could be desired. See this excellent picture to-night.

Dress and Dance.

(From the Catholic Register.)

Lewd dances and vulgar, semi-barbarous, pagan fashions in dress have been roundly condemned by the Church for 1900 years. The preachers have thundered their denunciations and the writers have moralised on the sin and the disgrace to Christianity, while at the same time recognizing the futility of their efforts to slay the sin and scandal. The prophets in the Old Law had much to say on the subject.

The Church not long since laid down plain rules to govern the conduct of Church organizations in their relation to dances. Good Catholics are scandalized when these regulations are pushed aside and receive neither that reverence nor dutiful obedience due them. The scandal is greater when bestial dances and debasing fashions go hand in hand, and the proceeds of the entertainment are applied to some religious or semi-religious work.

Valiant Catholic women are required to oppose the pagan customs of our age. They must be strong enough in faith and courage to defy the fashion plate and refuse to acquiesce in its tyrannical orders. Protestant women of noble character have already protested against the immoral and degrading fashions and dances of the day as things lowering the dignity of womanhood.

Addressing "The Union of Catholic Women," Benedict XV, exhorted them to remember that Catholic women besides feeling it their duty to be virtuous, must feel it their duty too to appear such in the fashion of their clothes. They are bound, the Holy Father said, to repudiate fashions contrary to that modesty which ought to be always the fairest ornament of Catholic women.

Human respect is the chief reason why so many women follow the disgraceful fashions of the time. A number, too, of shabby-genteel Catholics are always ready to ape the antique and the half-nakedness of the wealthy pagan neighbours.

THE WRONG SEED.
"And how are the tomatoes coming?" asked Mr. Youngusband of his little wife.

"Well, dear," began the lady nervously, "I'm rather afraid we shall have to buy them, after all."

"But, my dear Maria," he expostulated, "I distinctly understood from you a couple of months or so ago that you had planted a whole row!"

"That's quite right, dear," explained Maria, "but I've just remembered that I forgot to open the tin!"

Tested 250,000 Miles— Three-Point Cantilever Springs Greatest Improvement Since Pneumatic Tires

OVERLAND 4 Motor Car has been tested as no car has ever been tested before.

250,000 miles (400,000 km.) of mountain trails, desert sand, heat, cold, mud and dust, demonstrated the quality of every part of the motor car long before we began manufacturing it for the public.

This remarkable test showed conclusively that Three-Point Cantilever Springs, exclusive with Overland, are the greatest improvement in riding comfort since the introduction of pneumatic tires.

They protect the car from road shocks and prolong the life of every part.

They enable the wheels to hold better to the road. They give greater comfort under all road conditions.

They do away almost entirely with side sway and rebound which twist and rack the car.

Diagonal attachment of the Three-Point Springs at both ends of a 130-in. (3.3m) Springbase gives the steadiness and smooth riding of the heavy car of long wheelbase.

Equipment is complete from Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting System to Marshall Divan Spring Upholstery.

Nothing New Under the Sun. The Universal Order of Ancient Profiteers.

The high cost of living has been the subject of governmental investigations since the earliest existence of governments. It is interesting to note what results some of those investigations brought, and what measures, if any, were taken to alleviate the sufferings of the multitudes.

Sixteen hundred years ago the Roman Emperor Julian sent out a committee to investigate the altitudinous expense of existence, and upon, in his "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," reports these things as follows:

"It is an unequal contest in which the price of the land is claimed by the party as his exclusive property, and used by another as a lucrative object of trade, and is required by a third for the daily and necessary support of life. All the profits of the intermediate agents are accumulated on the lands of defenceless consumers. The hardships of their situation were exaggerated and increased by their own impatience and anxiety; and the apprehension of a scarcity gradually produced (because of hoarding) the appearance of a famine."

Six hundred years before that, Chi-hoang-ti of the dynasty of Thsin, the builder of the Great Wall of China, had already sought to devise protection against the high cost of living.

"Intermediaries were exacting from the people a greater share than the producer was given for his labor; more than the title of the priest, and still more than the All-High One ever demanded in qualities as payment for eternal bliss." (Rech. Asiat. 2d. ser.)

The cry against intermediaries was so strong in old Palestine that the Talmudists devote page after page protesting against them. The prophets too, hurled more than one dart against them.

"Price-fixing by governments is an old remedy resorted to in times of stress. Julian had already done it. Gibbon says about it:

"When the luxurious citizens of Antioch complained of the high price of poultry and fish, Julian publicly declared that a frugal city ought to be satisfied with a regular supply of wine, oil and bread; but he acknowledged that it was the duty of a sovereign to provide for the subsistence of his people. With this salutary view the emperor ventured on a very dangerous and doubtful step, that of fixing, by legal authority, the value of corn. He enacted that in a time of scarcity it should be sold at a price of which had seldom been known in the most plentiful years; and that his own example might strengthen his laws, he sent into the market four hundred and twenty-two thousand modii, or measures, which were drawn by his order from the granaries of Hierapolis, of Chalcedon, and even of Egypt. The consequences might have been foreseen, and were soon felt. The Imperial wheat was purchased by the rich merchants; the proprietors of land, or of corn, withheld from the city the accustomed supply; and the small quantities that appeared in the market were secretly sold at an advanced and illegal price. Julian still continued to applaud his own policy, treated the complaints of the people as a vain and ungrateful murmur, and convinced Antioch that he had inherited the obstinacy, though not the cruelty, of his brother Gallus. The remonstrances of the Municipal Senate served only to exasperate his inflexible mind. He was persuaded, perhaps with truth, that the senators of Antioch who possessed lands, or were concerned in trade, had themselves contributed to the calamities of their country; and he imputed the disrespectful boldness which they assumed, to the sense, not of public duty, but of private interest. The whole body, consisting of two hundred of the most noble and wealthy citizens, were sent, under a guard, from the palace to the prison."

Price-fixing had been resorted to much before that. We read in the Bible (II. Kings vi.): "And there was a great famine in Samaria— an ass's head was sold for fourscore pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cab (about a pint) of doves dung for five pieces of silver."

"Then Elisha said, Hear ye the word of the Lord. Thus said the Lord, 'To-morrow about this time shall a measure of fine flour be sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, in the gate of Samaria.' A measure was a little more than one-third of a bushel.

Ataxerxes Mnemon had already tried price-fixing long before. Plutarch tells us that it resulted in hoarding, and that during the reign of Artaxerxes Mnemon, an ass's head fetched sixty silver pieces. (Plut. Vit. Artich. 24.)

It was also tried in Sparta (Homard Shoenberg; Ler Wert and Preis XI.), and fell into disuse in a short time after its enactment. But in the British Isles it was still urged as a remedy in the sixteenth century.

"The price of wheat against which the populace had risen had become standardized. The price of barley had gone up somewhat to meet, half way, the new price. But the accumulated riches augmented dangerously. They set a higher standard of living to the sons and daughters of merchants; a standard which could only be met by a further increase in profits, which could only be obtained either by lowering the price of labor or by raising the cost of the necessities of life. (Bach. Hist. of Money.)

She Says They Are Surely Splendid.

MRS. HILL SPEAKS OUT CONCERNING DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

She Tells Suffering Women If They Use Dodd's Kidney Pills According to Directions They Will Find Relief.

Hatchley, Ont., Feb. 16th. (Special.)—That Dodd's Kidney Pills are the remedy suffering women are looking for is evidenced by the statement of Mrs. William S. Hill, well known and highly respected here.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are certainly splendid," Mrs. Hill says. "There is nothing better for female trouble and a run-down system."

"If women will follow the directions and rules Dodd's Kidney Pills will help them."

Mrs. Hill speaks out of a full heart and from her own experience. She suffered and found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. The kidneys were the cause of all her trouble. The kidneys are the cause of nine-tenths of the troubles of the women of Canada.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. By strengthening the kidneys they remove the cause of the trouble. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills are known as suffering women's best friend. Ask your neighbors about them."

Canadians Interested in the Cup Race

AND WILL TRY IF LIPTON FAILS.

New York, Feb. 2.—A good deal of interest has been aroused among Canadian yachtsmen by the coming contest for the America's Cup. The yachtsmen of the Great Lakes are keeping a weather eye on the Cup race developments. Should Sir Thomas Lipton fail in his coming effort to lift the great yachting emblem, it would not be surprising to learn that the Canadians would be the next in line with a challenge. Probably only the older yachtsmen in these waters recall the Cup races sailed against the Canadian challengers of years ago. These contests took place in 1876 and 1881 respectively.

Canadian Suggestions Adopted.

The attempts of the Canadians to capture the coveted mug were of particular interest, and each race developed new conditions as far as the actual contest was concerned. In the series of 1876, in which the Canadian schooner Countess of Dufferin was defeated by the American schooner Madeleine, the race was limited to two contestants for the first time.

The second race against the Countess of Dufferin was interesting from a historic point of view, as it marked the last appearance in a Cup race of the famous America. Although over a quarter of a century old, the America still had speed, and beat the Countess of Dufferin to the outer mark a thrush to windward of twenty miles. The America in turn was led by the Madeleine.

It was at the request of Vice-Commodore Gifford of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club that the pre-race choice of a defender was made, and this was afterward followed. The second Canadian challenge came from the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club of Belleville, Ont., and resulted in another innovation, which was also to become a rule.

First Race Between Sloops.

For the first time the race for the America's Cup was between sloop yachts. This challenge was received in May, and the races did not take place until early November. The Canadians built the sloop Atlanta—a centreboard vessel, 70 feet over all and 64 feet long on the water line. The mischief, a crack sloop of her day, was sent against the Canadian single sticker by the America's Cup committee of that time.

With smarter handling and benefited by a superior knowledge of conditions, the Mischief administered two decisive defeats to the Canadian vessel. These races started, as was the rule in those days off the yacht club station at Stapleton, S.I., thence down the Narrows, out past Sandy Hook and return.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, Jan. 12. PRINCESS MARY AND THE TAM O'SHANTER.

Princess Mary has set a seal on the popularity of the Scotch tam o'shanter as headgear, she is often seen about in this dainty form of hat. That is why, perhaps, a number of society girls are wearing them too; and it has almost become a compulsory fashion to wear them in the park. They can be seen in all colors, from the dour gray to the heather blues, in rust-yellow and reds, not only in the streets of London but in Paris as well, for Paris knows a good thing when she sees it, and out of memory for the jocks she wears their tartan headgear, only in a different way. It is slightly more tilted there, slightly more fetching, a little more chic, and it is worn with an air. The Bond Street milliners display great taste with these Scotch caps, and though they may appear inexpensive and simple to make, large sums are paid for them. A knitted tam o'shanter in a draper's shop may only cost five shillings, but the Parisian made one costs nearly ten pounds. Princess Mary does not pay these absurd sums for her tam o'shanter, for the Queen has set her face persistently against extravagance in every way, and what the Princess pays is a sum that many daughters of parents in lower social position might consider insufficient.

STANDARDISED DAYLIGHT.

Why not standardised daylight? The proportions of the component rays of daylight vary at different times and under different atmospheric conditions. No one "daylight" can be referred to as an absolute standard of color sensation—a thing very much needed by scientific and business men, who often require to refer to an absolute color sensation. Such a standard of color sensation is offered by the Sheringham daylight lamp, which has been on view at the Imperial Institute. An ordinary electric light is used, silvered at the bottom. The whole of the new lamp is in the reflector, which is decorated with small colored squares, and serves to correct the color balance of artificial light. The reflected rays give a balance over the whole visible spectrum which is the mean of daylight observations and approximates to the light of a blue sky at noon diffused by white clouds and coming in at a north window. Certain ultra-violet rays not visible to the human eye are missing, but the light bears a close resemblance to daylight rays. "Sheringham daylight" is the work of George Sheringham. At the demonstration colored objects were shown under artificial and then under the corrected light and delicate variations in color that could barely be distinguished under artificial light became clearly differentiated under the rays from the Sheringham-reflector. I am informed that several West End of London theatre managers are considering refitting their stages with the Sheringham lamp. There are, of course, difficulties to be overcome. Roughly, half the original light is absorbed, which would mean a substantial increase in the lighting bill—even now a heavy item in theatre expenses. Another difficulty is the provision of a reflector that can be easily cleaned when it gets dirty. Smooth glazed reflecting surfaces are impracticable. They must be dull, and the colors on them must remain clear. A cheap form of refill, the inventors think, can probably be provided. Whatever the cost, however, there seems little doubt the patentees will find a brisk demand for their invention, not only from shops where colors have to be displayed and matched, theatres and business houses, but even from artists who under camouflaged artificial light can paint by night as well as by day and examine pictures of quite delicate tints.

Tells How to Stop a Bad Cough

Surprising results from this famous old home-made syrup, readily prepared and costs little.

If you have a severe cough or chest ailment accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick relief, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents per bottle). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and add the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief. You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway spruce, throat and chest colds. There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. ### PRODUCTION OF BRITISH WAR MEDAL.

Although considerable progress has been made with the manufacture of the British War Medal, ex-soldiers are not likely to come into possession of it for some time. It is not the intention of the War Office to set up the organization that will be required to undertake the distribution until there is a prospect of making a more or less complete issue. The number required is in the neighborhood of eight millions. The manufacture, which is being done at the medal factory at Woolwich Arsenal, is proceeding as rapidly as possible. At present the rate of output is about 67,000 a week, and it is hoped at an early date to increase this to 120,000. The work has been undertaken by arrangement with the Mint, which supplies the plain silver discs and holding bars. These discs and bars go through some 27 processes before each finished medal and bar are placed in a special container for return to the Mint for storing until delivery is requested by the War Office. About 300 men are employed at the Arsenal in the manufacture of the medal, and of this number a large proportion are ex-soldiers, work which ordinarily would have fallen to be done by women being undertaken by disabled men. The staff is also engaged in the production of the bronze Mercantile Marine Medal. In this case the medal is prepared from the raw metal, and goes through all the processes and stages at the hands of the Woolwich staff.

WAR OFFICE WOMEN'S PROTEST.

"Why was it necessary to discharge all these girl clerks with a week's notice at most?" I asked a War Office authority whom I met in Whitehall, while a thousand discharged women followed by a rowdy labor element filled Downing Street (where is the official residence of Lloyd George) to force their demands on the attention of the Premier's representative. He replied "We promised a month's notice to all temporary employees receiving more than £800 a year because they were not entitled to the unemployment donation. As those with salaries below that figure were entitled to the donation they only needed a week's notice. That was stated in their contract so they have absolutely no grievance." Seeing that the donation is abolished the argument seems calous, even for the War Office.

THE COMING TRADE BOOM.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, M.P., the head of the Department of Overseas Trade, said, in an interview last week, that 1920 promises to be the greatest year in the history of British trade—that is, barring strikes. The only limits to British trade overseas, added Sir Hamar, were the limitations of human and mechanical production. This view is confirmed in conversations I have had with leading manufacturers and officials of commercial and trading organizations. All over the country the order-books of firms are so full that they are unable to execute the work fast enough to keep pace with the demand. Those in close touch with trade and business are largely of one mind, that the principal need for the coming year is peace in the industrial world, so that no opportunities for continuous production may be lost. Manufacturers, too, are keen that they should be left free to cope with the situation unshackled by the fetters of bureaucratic control, which still exist in some instances as a legacy of the war.

GREEKS AND THE TURKISH SETTLEMENT.

Needless to say, Greek opinion is seriously alarmed at the pro-Turkish sympathies now being manifested by the bulk of the Paris press. And Greeks all the world over are fervently praying that Lloyd George and the British Cabinet will stand firm in the matter of ending once and for all times Ottoman misrule over the non-Turks, whether Christian or Moslem. On the subject of the Turkish settlement I was privileged to have a chat with the Greek Minister in London, M. Caclamenes. Apart from such arguments as might be described as humanitarian, Christian and Allied, his Excellency impressed upon me the more strictly political case for the cry of Turkish rule from Europe. When Turkey first threatened to enter the war against this country she was promised the maintenance of her integrity if she refrained. She did not so refrain. Later she was assured of relative integrity if she would give up the German alliance. She declined, thereby lengthening the war by two or two and a half years. She was thus twice given her chance, but would not take it on either occasion. It is now suggested that she should enjoy comparative immunity? If so, she will infer that, in the future as in the past, whatever crimes she may commit she can commit without fear of punishment. At this moment, under the nose of the Armies of Occupation, she has resumed her regime of Christian perment of the black pyjama is its transition into a sort of lounge suit or negligee for women to wear in their own homes. The tunic is made fairly long and is elaborately trimmed on the collar, the large cuffs and the pockets much after the fashion of the old masculine smoking jacket. The trousers are short and are embroidered from the ankles to within a little of the knees. To protect against a cold winter the coat is sometimes padded but usually thinner clinging materials are preferred. Such suits are not worn in public or for receiving callers. When worn they are set off by smart black satin shoes, short and rounded in the toe.

Polenta is made of cornmeal just as common heavy pudding is, but has three-quarters of a cup of grated cheese added to it for every cup of meal. The cheese is put in when the pudding is nearly done.

There are always many chances to improve this vale of tears, as a delegate advances down the highway of the years. There are burdens you might carry, to relieve some weary jay, who would like to rest and tarry, for a season, on his way. Oh, some little chunks of kindness bring relief to those who sigh, and we walk in moral blindness if we let a chance get by. Just a pleasant morning greeting, as we strut along our way, to the citizen we're meeting, brightens up that fellow's day. Just a gossip with a kiddy as to school she toils along, in her tucker and her middy, fills her youthful heart with ### Capital" and "Labor" Debated.

Llewellyn Club Gathering Biggest in Its History.

"Capital and Labor" was the subject of the discussion at Llewellyn Club last evening, when the biggest gathering of its history was on hand to listen to the debating of this important subject. Hon. John Anderson and Mr. R. F. Herwood spoke for Capital and Labor.

The first speaker was Hon. John Anderson, who showed that without Capital there can be no industry, and that the employer is not always the grasping character he is generally considered to be. He also dealt at length with the value of money, rate of exchange, etc., also the housing scheme, and the need for fair dealing between worker and employer.

Mr. R. F. Herwood spoke for Labor, and said that the worker is not getting a just share of the income from his work, and the belief of the capitalist that he does not receive the application due him by the laborer results in the continued turmoil. The point made by Hon. Mr. Gibbs should be enlarged. The spirit of religion is needed and must be put in practice by both classes. The speakers were accorded a hearty vote of thanks and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Parliament are representatives of labor. Some of the trouble between the two classes is the result of the employer's capacity being enlarged for improved environment and the enjoyment of his God-given faculties, flowers, books, etc. That is why shorter hours are wanted. Statistics show that strikes are most frequent where conditions of work are worst. Another cause of trouble is the restraint of the movement in looking on man merely as a machine. The glaring extravagance of the capitalist class and their wives is another most potent factor in the unrest. The capitalist is one who is content with nothing but dividends, while on the other hand doctors, ministers, artists, etc., whose main recompense is the practice of their profession. Some employers will sacrifice the respect of the community for profits. Strikes, too, are not always on the labourer's side as shown by the wealthy in England, Canada and the States threatening when the income tax was introduced to withdraw their money from investment unless allowed to make whatever profits they choose. Industry, too, by keeping strictly to its agreements, can do much to allay the prevailing distrust, and in coming years must share more in the management of business. All the intelligence is not on the one side, and when it is found in the laborer it must be employed for the good of all. There must be a curtailment in industrial profits, otherwise the argument of strike and so will go on in a circle without any remedy being found. Capital earnings more than its just reward must be content with less.

Mr. R. F. Herwood felt one of the causes of acrimony between the two classes is that man has grown to look at work as a nuisance, something to be avoided. Even our system of education points in this direction, and our literature is full of it. The whole lesson of the poem, "The Man with the Hoe," is that work is degrading. This is all false, as work is one of the most beneficent things. Providence has put within our scope. That work is a necessity is forced upon us from every angle. There is a lot to do in the world and this need brings about organization. We can no longer work in a mob many years ago. The old system of all interest has done very well for the world and perhaps something better is coming. Again on the part of the worker in return for his pay, is needed efficiency, loyalty to his employer, and application to his duties.

Hon. M. P. Gibbs felt the recognition of the duties of both is at the bottom of the differences between the two classes. In the past it has been due to capital using its power for self benefit, and impoverishment of the worker. Religion teaches the solution to all strife, the worker to honestly carry out his agreements freely entered into and to protect the property of his employer. To the latter it is not to look on the laborer as a slave, but to recognize his dignity as a fellow Christian and pay him a just and fair wage. If these principles were applied the problem would be solved almost instantly. Because of grasping for riches and power, however, the trouble still goes on. Improvement has been gained by the worker by wringing from the employer his rights. The theory that wages governed by supply and demand is the grossest form of materialism. The worker has rights that must not be taken from him, the right to live a decent member of society, to apply the doctrine of supply and demand is to treat him as an animal or to treat other workers coming into

The Inter-Church Forward Movement.

AND THE METHODIST NATIONAL CAMPAIGN.

Last week, Feb. 5th to 14th inclusive, was the scheduled time set for the intensive Financial Campaign of the Inter-Church Forward Movement throughout the Dominion of Canada. The Presbyterian and the Methodist Churches have each set $4,000,000 as the minimum amount they require to "carry on" with efficiency in this new day. Lettergrams received from the Rev. Peter Bryce, of Toronto, the General Secretary of the Dominion Financial Council of the Methodist Church, by Mr. Soper, the chairman of the Methodist Finance Council in Newfoundland, furnish the following encouraging results:

NO. 1—Incomplete returns to Thursday night. Toronto City reached objective, eight hundred thousand. Toronto Conference outside of city, one hundred and fifty thousand. London Conference, three hundred and fifty thousand. Hamilton Conference, four hundred and twenty thousand. Bay of Quinte Conference, two hundred and fifty thousand. Montreal Conference, three hundred and seventy-five thousand. Nova Scotia, one hundred and twenty-five thousand. New Brunswick, one hundred and fifty thousand. Saskatchewan, one hundred and seventy-five thousand. Alberta, seventy-five thousand. British Columbia, ninety thousand. Dominion, THREE MILLION and fifty-five thousand, notwithstanding flu epidemic and storms. Church magnificently pressing forward. Outlook good.

NO. 2—Complete to Friday night. Toronto City, eight hundred and fifty thousand. Ontario, two millions four hundred thousand. Dominion THREE million five hundred thousand. Success assured.

In the list of Conferences given in No. 1, it will be noticed that Newfoundland Conference is not mentioned. The omission is owing to a combination of circumstances, whereby the financial campaign will not be completed until the end of April. The allotment to the Newfoundland Conference is $112,000, which should be forthcoming from approximately fourteen thousand Methodist families. If the magnificent result of the educational campaign in the city of St. John's last June be taken as the promise of what should be expected in the Church-wide campaign, then a highly successful issue is assured. From the present until the week of the intensive campaign in April, all the forces of the Methodist Church under the enthusiastic and consecrated leadership of the Circuit Ministers and Official Boards will be called to devote themselves wholeheartedly to prepare for the high privilege of uniting with the hosts of the Churches in Canada in laying upon the altar gifts in keeping with their ability, whereby the Methodist Church may be equipped to do her share in the further extension of Christ's Kingdom among men. A great deal is before the Evangelical Churches of Canada and Newfoundland, if they are enabled to take hold of and improve the glorious opportunity that is in the providence of God pressing itself upon them.

M.F. Personal. A note from Rev. H. J. Indoe indicates that he and Mrs. Indoe will sail from St. John to-day (Feb. 4th) for his old home in England. His addresses will be Wedmore, Nr. Cheddar, England. Mr. Indoe is much better than he was a year ago, but is still unable to resume circuit work. He and Mrs. Indoe have been residing at Sackville for the past year.—Wesleyan.

In inviting Rev. N. M. Guy, M.A., to return for a third year the Hamilton, Bermuda official board intimated that they would be glad to include a fourth year in the invitation, but Mr. Guy informed them that he planned, at the conclusion of his three years' pastorate, to take a further course of study at Harvard University.—Wesleyan.

Mr. Arthur Johnson, son of Mr. Percie Johnson, who is a student in the School of Commerce at McGill University, has passed successfully the second year course, tying with another for the fifth place. One of the successful students is a young lady. It is interesting to note that there are three ladies in the Accountancy class at McGill this year, the one referred to, and two among the first year students.

The New York Masonic Club sent one thousand dollars to the American Red Cross Society, being the proceeds of an entertainment and dance given at the Amsterdam Opera House in December, 1919.

A Lodge Pin and Grip saved the life of a Chinese merchant at Pansj, Mexico, when Francisco Villa's troops captured that place some months ago, according to a sworn statement made by the merchant thus saved, before the proper authority, recently, according to the "Texas Freemason."

The Bishop of Hereford said in a recent sermon that Freemasonry was a barrier against the tide of immorality which, in times like the present, beat against the fabric of social order. The essential principles in Freemasonry were those in which their historical and constitutional forms, stood for order and morality.

"Assuredly," says the Archbishop of York, "this great fellowship of Freemasons is bound, by all the principles and traditions of its history, to take a leading part in the new movement. It was in the brotherhood that the old Masons built these sublime Cathedrals: it is on Brotherhood that the new Masons must complete the moral and spiritual fabric of a recovered civilisation."

Silver Lodge, Cobalt, Ontario, had the pleasure of hearing an address from R.W. Bro. R. H. James, at the annual installation of officers, the message conveyed by Bro. James being an impressive one regarding the part Masons throughout the world might play in the social affairs of the universe in the present time of strife and unrest. Bro. James is a Past Master of Silver Lodge and a District Deputy of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario.

Veterans' Wives Entertained.

Over a hundred Veterans' wives attended the meeting called for yesterday afternoon at Spencer College Hall. There they were entertained by the Ladies' Executive of the G. W. V. A. After a short programme of songs, recitations and dances had been gone through, Mrs. John Browning, of the committee, pointed out that the object of the meeting was the bringing together the wives of the fighting men and band them together in a bond of friendliness such as existed between their husbands during the Great War. A similar meeting will be held every fortnight on Mondays, when it is hoped that every soldier and sailor's wife will attend.

DISCONTINUING IMPORTATIONS OF AMERICAN FODDER.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 16.
Danish importers have decided to discontinue all importations of American cattle fodder because of the extremely high rate of exchange. It was stated to-day in business circles.

CURZON DEFENDS U. S.

LONDON, Feb. 16.
Earl Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, speaking at the dinner of the Primrose League last night deplored the publication of sensational articles concerning the settlement of peace problems, and the attitude towards the United States, which he pointed out was confronted with exceptional difficulties. He added, "So far those difficulties are of domestic character.
They are not our business, and I hope nothing will be done in this country to aggravate those difficulties. Nothing could be more deplorable than that at the present moment the United States should withdraw herself from the Council of Nations. It would be bad for Europe, bad for the world and for the United States also."

NO TRUTH IN IT.

VIENNA, Feb. 16.
The statement made by the local newspaper Der Morgen, Feb. 2nd, to the effect that by an announcement authorized by the Pope, marriage of divorces would be permitted in Austrian Catholic Churches, beginning the present month, was inaccurate.
The story it is now said had as its basis alleged statements of certain priests, who it is asserted, advised divorcees that they might again marry before a registrar and continue unimpaired their relations with the Church. The alleged statements of these priests are declared to have carried an implied promise that remarriage of divorcees shortly would be made regular by the Rome authorities.

NO SHIPMENTS BEING MADE.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.
The statement that the export trade of the American Meat Packers, the largest single industry in the United States, has practically ceased as a result of foreign trade situation was made in a bulletin issued yesterday by the Institute of American Meat Packers. Beef exports ceased some time ago, and during the past month pork exports have also dried up.

PRESS HAS NEW SENSATION.

PARIS, Feb. 17.
In official circles it was stated yesterday that the French Government had no knowledge of any rumors or hints of discontent at Washington with Japan Jules Jusserand, French Ambasador to the United States, as reported recently in some American newspapers. The Government, it is said, know nothing about any alleged dissatisfaction with its Ambassador, further than the press reports of it.

EXCHANGE STOPS EXPORT.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.
Steamship men and marine insurance brokers here report that a material slump in exports to Europe has resulted from the foreign exchange situation, with accompanying restrictions as to financing bills of lading.
Many steamships have been compelled to depart with partial cargoes.

PLANNING BIG RECEPTION.

PANAMA, Feb. 16.
Plans are progressing for a reception to be accorded to the Prince of Wales on his arrival at the Canal zone, en route to Australia, according to an official announcement of his itinerary received here. The Prince will leave England on March 3, and expects to arrive at Colon by March 23. His trip through the Canal will be made next day.

MEXICO TO RECEIVE ATTENTION.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 17.
The central communist propaganda
Bureau for the Western Hemisphere will be established in Mexico, in accordance with a resolution passed at a secret international communist conference held here early in February, according to "Handelsblad."

THROWING UP PRESIDENCY.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 17.
President Carranza, denying in an interview given El Democrita yesterday, rumors that he intended to refuse to turn over the presidency to his successor, declared that he would not remain Mexico's executive one day after December 1st.

PROHIBITION BENEFITS BAHAMA.

NASSAU, Bahamas Islds, Feb. 15.
Prohibition in the United States, which caused enormous quantities of liquor to descend almost like an avalanche on this city, has transferred the Bahama Government's financial condition, as if by magic, from a deficit to comparatively a huge surplus, provided labor for large numbers of unemployed Bahamians, and put more money in circulation in this little British colony than has been the case for many years. Sir William Allan

LOAN FOR CHINA.

PEKIN, Feb. 16.
The Foreign legations have notified
the Foreign Office that Great Britain, France, United States and Japan are prepared to cause a loan of five million pounds, to be issued by a group of banks to be secured by salt and other revenues. The loan will be conditional on negotiations between North and South China being resumed, and the disbanding of unnecessary troops.

Important Announcement!

We are now ready to announce to the trade and to the public generally the opening of our Manufacturing Concern of Ladies' Readymades.

This is an enterprise which merchants will hail with joy, as Newfoundland has always been greatly affected by the lack of local made Ladies' Readymades, and at the present time this drawback is more keenly felt than ever before.

The severe rate of exchange, the high duties, freight charges and the uncertainty of safe transportation, which heretofore was a source of worry and trouble to you, we now shift to our shoulders and deliver to you at your door the finished product, in perfect condition, and at prices far cheaper than that of imported merchandise.

Another benefit that you derive from local made goods is that the local manufacturer strives to produce his merchandise to suit the needs and tastes of the Newfoundland people; a thing which foreign manufacturers cannot and do not do. We have made a careful study of the Newfoundland woman's likes and dislikes in the matter of Readymades and we are now producing Costumes, Raglans and Skirts to please your customers.

Advocate local made goods and increase your business. We are now showing samples. If you cannot call, drop us a card and our representative will call.
