LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;
—or the—
Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER VIII.

In town Lady Iris Fayne received many complimentary and congratulatory notes and numerous invitations—amongst them, one to a Royal Ball and one to a State Concert. Lady Clyfharde was one of the first to call; and her congratulations were the more pleasant to Lady Iris, as she knew that every kind word was meant. Sir Fulke accompanied his mother. He was graver than usual. That morning he had read in the leading fashionable paper of Lady Iris' debut, of her grace and beauty, her costly gowns and superb dress and how she had suddenly appeared; and his heart began to fall as he had never done at Chandos. He blamed himself for not having made better use of his time when they were in the country together. Then he saw her every day, often alone; and he could wander through the grounds and the park with her. In London there would be no such opportunities.

The earl gave a series of brilliant parties, and Sir Fulke was a frequent guest at his house; but he never had a chance of talking to Lady Iris alone, for she was always surrounded by a host of admirers. Days passed without his being able to exchange more than a distant salute with her; and the handsome young baronet, who had believed that he had only to "whisper a word and with a wife," found himself quite discomfited.

"I can never get near her," he complained to his mother. "At Lady Scavier's ball I tried time after time to have some conversation with her, but I did not succeed. She had not even one dance for me. Princes and royal dukes engaged her whole attention. I am told that the Prince of Balthaz has sworn to win her. My chance does not look very promising now, does it?"

"Lady Iris will marry for love, Fulke—take my word for it. Neither duke nor earl will have the least chance."

"Unless," he supplemented, "she loves one of them."

"I understand girls, and I understand love," said Lady Clyfharde quietly; "and I tell you, Fulke, that I am certain Lady Iris loves no one yet. When she does love, it will be with all her heart; but the time has not come yet, and you have as good a chance as any one."

"You would smile, mother," remarked Sir Fulke, "if you heard how all the men rave about her. They say she is the most beautiful woman they have seen for years. I feel sure of one thing—if I want her to be my wife I must ask her soon. They said yesterday at the club that she was supposed to favor the Duke of Portland more than any one else. I watched her last night, but I did not see it. Did I tell you that the Bishops were in town? I met Lady Blake and Violet yesterday. I saw Lady Caton also, with Marie Bardon. I am told that Miss Bardon is very much admired."

He did not add, as he would once have done in similar circumstances, that when Marie saw him she blushed deeply and looked confused; for Marie Bardon's secret was this—that with all her heart she loved handsome Sir Fulke. She never expected, never dreamed of any return; but she gave him the lease of her life freely. Sir Fulke did not say that a quiver of pain had passed over her face, and that her hand had trembled as he touched it. His great love was teaching him humility.

"Do not be too hurried or anxious, Fulke," said Lady Clyfharde gravely. "Lady Iris will have more time to spare toward the end of the season, and then you must make your opportunity."

"But suppose she is won in the meantime?"

"There is nothing to fear. I watch her closely enough in your interest, Fulke; and I tell you that there is no love in her heart yet. I will warn you in time."

Sir Fulke was not the only one who found it almost impossible to obtain five minutes of Lady Iris' leisure time. John Bardon had been five days in town, and the earl's daughter had kept her promise. He had been invited to Lord Caldon's state dinner, also to the ball costume which Lady Iris, under the able tuition of her friend the duchess, had made a great success. He had attended one or two "at homes" at Fayne House; but he had never had an opportunity of conversing with Lady Iris. He suffered a thousand times more than Sir Fulke; he was desperate, often despairing. He spent his days in following her from place to place, sometimes seeing her at a distance, at other times missing her altogether. If she went to the Opera, he felt that he must go too, content if he was fortunate enough to catch a glimpse of her lovely face, longing that he were a prince or a duke—anything so that she would smile upon him. He would wait for hours at a fete or a flower show in the hope of seeing her pass by. He would go from her presence and throw himself with muttered imprecations upon the ground, raving in helpless despair.

"She is so beautiful," he would cry out; "and with all my father's wealth I am but a clod; and yet I love her with a love that might do honor to a king!"

How was this mad passion to end? He could not tell. He resolved however, to do his best to win her.

Lady Iris grew prouder every day. The tendency of her nature to become proud was strengthened by the worship and admiration she received, and her naturally noble mind and character deteriorated somewhat under the excess of homage and flattery bestowed upon her. Her least caprice, her slightest fancy, were laws. On all sides she heard the same story—she was most lovely, most graceful. She had lovers in plenty, and had had more offers of marriage than she cared to remember; but she had no thought yet for love or lovers. At present she was dazzled by the pomps and vanities of the world.

Her favorite motto, "Held with honor," was still her guiding star. But she was beginning in some vague way to misunderstand the word "honor." She began to think that smiles from royalty and constant association with princes meant honor. She was very young, and had no mother's loving hand to train her. There was no one to say a word of warning, to find kindly fault, to advise, caution, or guide. It at times she mistook pride for honor, there were more excuses to be made for her than could have been made for others.

How well in the after-years she remembered one little incident that occurred about this period! Lady Caton gave a water party, and the invitations included some of the most famous London celebrities. Lady Iris Fayne, Sir Fulke and Lady Clyfharde, Miss Bardon and her brother, were also present. The party went some distance up the river, and a few of the members of it landed at a pretty old-fashioned village on the banks of the Thames. Amongst the number was Lady Iris; and Sir Fulke seized the opportunity of joining her, while John Bardon gnashed his teeth with rage. A little church, gray with age and embowered in trees, presently attracted Lady Iris' attention.

"I wish I had my sketch-book here," she said. "I should like to make a sketch of this."

The square tower was covered with ivy, while the windows were framed in it; and from many of the mossy grave stones the names had been quite obliterated. It was a quiet, beautiful spot. Lady Iris grew thoughtful; she was young and healthy, and she wondered whether she would one day lie beneath the long green grass and be forgotten, as were some of those lying there. Over the radiant loveliness of her face came a faint shadow; and Sir Fulke, watching her keenly, asked her the cause of it.

"I was thinking," she said, "that under each of these green mounds lies some one who has perhaps been as happy as I am now. So small I lie sleeping one day, forgotten as they are forgotten."

"Looking at you," he answered, "it seems impossible to realize that you will ever die. It is the greatest of all miseries to me that such youth and beauty can change or fade."

"Yet, if the soul has been held with honor," she said, "it goes into a higher life."

This sudden thought of death in the midst of her brilliant life troubled her. She left Sir Fulke and went round the church-yard. Under the drooping boughs of a small silver-birch she saw a white cross gleaming; she went up to it, parted the long grass, and read these words:—

"In memory of Alice White, aged twenty-one. Third of June, I welcome death. You who read will one day lose youth, beauty, and life to sleep as I sleep."

The words struck her with something like fear. Why had Alice White died at twenty-one, when the world was just opening to her? Why was she tired of life? Why did she welcome death? What mournful mystery was hidden under the grass and the white marble cross? Lady Iris stood there for some time, holding back the long grass that she might better see the name.

It was a turning point in her life. There before her was a warning that one day youth, beauty—and life must leave her, and she must sleep with the dead. Some thought of the toils and emptiness of pride came to her, a sense of its being meaner after all; some of the higher and better feelings of her nature, which had been in some measure deadened by her triumphs in society, awoke in her. Her favorite words came back to her, "Held with honor." What did it mean after all that this life should be so spent as to fit her for the life to come? Did the life she was leading content her—this life of pleasure, gaiety, and—Ah, no; there was something higher than that!

Real Life Thrills.

A REPORTER'S EXPERIENCES.
The newspaper reporter in the United States fifty years ago had his days filled with one adventure after the other.

The so-called "yellow" journalism of to-day is babyish compared with that old "scorlet" journalism, as Mr. Julius Chambers tells us in "News Hunting in Three Continents." Mr. Chambers was the editor of two large American newspapers, and also, one at a time, the head of the London office of an American paper.

When he was in London the "farrotting" epidemic broke out, and he himself nearly fell a victim to a "garrotter."

One foggy night he was passing St. Clement Dances' Church, and stopped to look at a tablet on the church wall. A figure came out of the fog and accosted him. He soon discovered from the man's conversation that he was a madman.

After some conversation the man ripped Mr. Chambers' wrist and tried to strangle him; luckily Mr. Chambers was fairly handy with his fists and was able to knock his opponent out. The man was arrested and turned out to be a notorious character, known to the police as "The Ghost of St. Clement Dances."

It was at one time impossible in New York to get anyone placed in a lunatic asylum by bringing a couple of doctors to sign the necessary certificates.

The editor of Chambers' paper wished to expose this devilish practice, so he told Chambers to get himself locked up in an asylum and write about it; incidentally he promised to get Chambers out in ten days.

Chambers would not bribe doctors to get the certificates, he preferred to fool the doctors and was duly certified insane, and placed in an asylum.

"My room was on the main floor," he writes, "under me, in the cellar, were padded cells for violent patients. These unfortunates made night hideous with their lamentations for mercy."

He goes on to describe some of the happenings in this awful place. "Quarrels at the table were frequent, and the attendants handled the offenders roughly. A former United States Senator, aged and tottering, was on one occasion dragged from the table and thrown into the corridor."

When Mr. Chambers came out he wrote up all the facts that had come to his knowledge, and there was a great outcry, after which all the asylums were all examined and carefully reorganized.

His most famous story, however, is of a murder he heard committed over the telephone.

One day, while trying to get a telephone number, he found himself listening to a tragedy, owing to crossed wires and a receiver having been left off.

He heard a woman with a lover being surprised by her husband; then curses, blows, and finally a shot. The next day the body of a well known man was found in a park with a shot in his head.

Chambers tried his hardest to find out which line had crossed with his, so that he could trace the house from which he had heard the whole thing. But months went by before he finally traced the murderer.

But even then he could do nothing, as he was told by a lawyer that "evidence heard over the telephone is not admissible in a court of law," Pearson's Weekly.

At the Yarmouth Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp, held at Tuskent Falls in Alaska, I found Edward's Liniment most beneficial for sunburn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

Owning the Alphabet. Amongst many amusing stories in a newly-published volume of reminiscences by Mr. George Ham, the American author, is the following: Some time ago the Canadian-Pacific Railway Company issued notices to certain hotels, restaurants and shops protesting against the unauthorized use of its initials.

One Timothy O'Brien, proprietor of the "C.P.R. Barber Shop" in a prairie village, received the warning, and replied as follows: "Dear Sir,—I got your note. I don't want no law suit with your company. I no your company owns more everything—'airgrams', 'steamers', more of the best kind, and 'the time, but I don't no as 'you own the hole alphabet."

"The letters on my shop don't stand for your railroads, but for sumthin' better. I left a mother in Ireland, she is dead and gawn, but her memories are dear to me. Her maiden name was Christian Patricia Bardon, and what I want to no is what you are going to do about it."

"I suppose you won't argue that the balance of my time what refers to out rates has got anything to do with your railroads. There ain't been no out rates round these parts that I son of."

(Sgd. Timothy O'Brien.) The company, Mr. Ham tells us, decided to take no further action in this case.

BRITISH ATTITUDE TOWARD GREECE MODIFIED.

LONDON, Sept. 23. There is still no news from the Kemalists and there is now some tendency in official circles to discount the sensational statements made by Mustafa Kemal's representatives.

BRITISH ATTITUDE TOWARD GREECE MODIFIED. LONDON, Sept. 23. The question of peace or war in the Near East new turns, upon whether the question of the full status of Thrace can be kept separate and distinct from the question of the neutrality and freedom of the Dardanelles, and second, whether the guns speak before the negotiations between the Allied Governments at Paris have ended.

BRITISH ATTITUDE TOWARD GREECE MODIFIED. LONDON, Sept. 23. The second battalion of the Grenadier Guards will embark on the Empress of India at Glasgow tomorrow for the Near East and will call at Belfast for other military units. The third battalion of the Coldstream Guards will leave Aldershot on Tuesday for Tilbury to embark for Turkish waters. Battalions from the Fusiliers and Rifles Brigades are also under orders to move at short notice.

THE MAKING OF ANOTHER ROW. CHAN HUN, Manchuria, Sept. 23. An abrupt breakdown is imminent in negotiations now going on here between Japan, the Moscow Soviet Government and Siberia, owing to the Russian demand that Japan immediately evacuate the northern half of the Island of Sakhalin.

FRANCE'S LATEST ATTITUDE. PARIS, Sept. 23. The French Cabinet today decided that in view of the refusal of the British to withdraw their forces from Chanak on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, the efforts of the French Government should be directed towards preventing war between Turkey and Great Britain.

TURK'S PESSIMISTIC. CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 23. A pessimistic view of the present situation is taken in Turkish Nationalist circles here. It was declared yesterday that unless the Kemalists received assurance, and guarantees from the Allies within forty-eight hours that the question of the disposition of Thrace would be settled in favor of the Turks, a serious situation would arise and it would be impossible to restrain the forward march of their army.

WILL HANG. TUSKET, N.S., Sept. 23. Omar Roberts, 69 years old, of North Kentville, a guide, convicted of the murder of his nineteen-year-old housekeeper, Flora Gray, was sentenced to be hanged on Friday, November 24, by Mr. Justice Chisholm, of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, here to-day.

MILLION TO ONE CHANCE. BUT CLERIC RECOVERED HIS MONEY. LONDON.—How a clergyman who said he had never in his life made a bet on a horse race was inveigled into giving an unknown turf agent a cheque for £100 without receiving anything in return, and how Scotland Yard was shown to have been a poor prophet in return, came out in a story told by Rev. Ralph Doyle, of Bayswater, at the trial before the Magistrate at the Marylebone Police Court recently of John Hawtin, 61 years of age, on a charge of theft of £100 from Mr. Doyle. When the clergyman realized he had been victimized he reported the matter to Scotland Yard, and was told that his chance of seeing the man again was "a million to one." This looked like a pretty good guess.

HARMONY REPORTS FLEET WITH GOOD TRIPS.

S.S. Harmony, Capt. Jackson, arrived in port yesterday morning from the Moravian Settlements with a cargo fish, oil and furs. The ship left here some seven weeks ago and made a good trip North, but owing to ice on Northern Labrador there was some delay in making the different stations. Captain Jackson reports that the fishing vessels did not succeed in getting up the Northern coast of Labrador until late in August, but nevertheless good voyages of fish were secured and the schooners are now on the way South. The Mission Church and premises at Nain, which were destroyed by fire last year, are well on the way to completion. The Harmony brought along Rev. Mr. Aspin and family, who are returning to England. The ship is discharging at Bennett's premises and will sail again with supplies during the latter part of next week, going as far as Hebron.

MISSION CIRCLE PRESENTS PURSE.

The Cartwright Mission Circle, an association of young people of St. Thomas's Church, who have been working for some years for the Rev. Henry Gordon, their own Labrador Missionary, held a little entertainment at Canon Wood Hall on Wednesday evening, at which Mr. and Mrs. Gordon were present. Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., acted as chairman. The programme consisted of songs and recitations and a playlet entitled "Haunted Ground." At the conclusion the youthful President of the Circle came forward and presented Mr. Gordon with a purse containing $300, being the result of their efforts for the year.

JOY AND GRIEF.

When on a sea of troubles tossed, and full of grief and care, we sometimes say that life's a frost, and pause to rend our hair. But when our grievous woes are gone, we're willing to admit, that life, considered pro and con, has made a lasting hit. When I am pinched for speeding up to sixty miles an hour, I say, while drinking sorrow's cup, that life is harsh and dour. I think, while sitting in my cell, my face against the bars, the old world doesn't treat me well, my soul bears grisly scars. But when I've served my little stretch, and find that I am free, I feel that any man's a wretch who doesn't whoop with me. Our freedom, noble boon and great, seems rather flat and stale, its worth we don't appreciate until we've been in jail. For years all carelessly we eat the richest pies and cakes, and every kind of costly meat, and things

Methodist General Conference.

OFFICERS NOMINATED FOR ELECTION.

TORONTO, Sept. (Canadian Press.)—Besides the General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, Rev. S. D. Chown, of this city, who will face an election at the opening of the Methodist General Conference at its quadrennial meeting here on Sept. 27 the ten secretaries of departments of the Church will also be up for re-election—or defeat, as the case may be. Five of these secretaries will make their report for the first time at the coming Conference, they having been elected four years ago at the General Conference held in Hamilton. The five new officials are: Rev. Dr. F. W. Fallis, Book Room Steward, who succeeded Rev. Dr. W. Briggs as Administrator of the Methodist Book Room here, when the latter retired after forty years service; Rev. R. J. D. Simpson, Secretary of the Superannuation Fund Department; Rev. Frank Langford, Secretary of the Department of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies; Rev. S. Wesley Dean, Secretary of the Finance Department and Statistician of the General Conference. Of these five heads of departments probably the new Book Room Steward, doubtless has the most difficult task in the past four years. Lifted up by the vote as it were, from active ministry in Calgary, Alberta, and planted in what is probably the most important position in the gift of the Methodist Church in Canada, having supervision of one of the largest of publishing businesses in the country—with little previous business experience, but with an abiding hope and confidence in the outcome—Rev. Mr. Fallis set himself in the difficult task before him in such a determined manner, that he rapidly forged to the front in his new sphere. His first General Conference report will be watched for with more than the ordinary interest by the delegates and the members of the sphere. Rev. Mr. Simpson, succeeded the late Rev. Dr. Griffin as head of the Superannuation Fund—Dr. Griffin, the jocular, who carried on the work of his department up to old age, and who was one of the most beloved of all the Canadian Methodist Ministers. New methods of finance have been instituted by Mr. Simpson, Rev. Mr. Langford, who is barely 40 years old, as head of the Department of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies, is one of the youngest Methodists ever appointed to high office by the General Conference. He was active in young people's work prior to his appointment, and has shown abundant evidence therein. Rev. Mr. Manning came to his important position qualified by experience, and he had been associated with the late Rev. Thomas Allen, Secretary of the Home Mission Department, for some time previous to stepping into Mr. Allen's shoes as head of that branch of the Methodist Church work. Rev. Mr. Dean's office of the Secretary of Finance and Conference Statistician was new when he was appointed, it having just been created. In the past four years he has instituted a church insurance commission and has put the records of property owned by the Methodist Church on a better basis than it was before. Mr. Dean was well known for years as Supervisor of Methodist Social Union Work in Toronto.

OTHER CONFERENCE DEPARTMENTAL HEADS.

The other five of the ten heads of departments in the Methodist Church, who will report to the General Conference, and who will come up for re-election, have been in office for some years and are veterans in the service. They are Rev. J. W. Graham, Secy. of Education; Rev. Dr. James Boddy, Secretary of the Department of Foreign Missions; Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, Secretary of the Department of Evangelism and Social Service; Rev. Dr. W. B. Creighton, Editor of the Christian Guardian, and Rev. A. C. Crews, Editor of the Sunday School Publications. Progress in every Department of the Church will be reported at the General Conference. It is said, The Church membership has grown from 385,810 to 496,888 in the past four years, an increase of almost 10,000. In 1918 the contributions of the Canadian Methodists to Home and Foreign Missions were $762,249, and for the year ending May 31, 1922, the contributions reached the total $1,616,118. The total funds raised for all purposes have increased from $6,835,296 in 1918 to $9,400,523 in the year just ended. The salaries paid the ministers in the Methodist Church have increased from $1,782,880, in 1917-18 to $2,575,801 in 1921-22. This is partly due to the minimum salary having been increased as a result of the efforts of the Ministerial Salaries Commission. The present value of the Churches, parsonages and other buildings and cemetery properties owned by the Methodist Church in Canada and Newfoundland is close to $50,000,000. In the national campaign of 1920-21 to raise funds for the Methodist Church $4,827,513 was subscribed. Of this amount $4,065,154 has been paid, the Christian Guardian states. This special fund has been expended chiefly on the Church's missionary enterprises and in putting the Superannuation Fund on a more satisfactory

"FRIENDS OF THE ORPHANS"

Snakes Don't Sting.

THEY WALK ON THEIR BELLYS. It is not the forked tongue of a snake that poisons. A snake really bites, the poison fang being in the roof of its mouth, a small tube leading from there to a hollow or groove of tooth. The wound caused by the bite lets the poison into the blood of the victim, and thus into his system. British snakes—with one exception—are non-poisonous, and a bite from them will do no harm. The exception is the viper. You can easily identify it by the black V-mark on its upturned snout head, and the black zig-zag line down its back. The grass snake, often found in wild spots amid a tangle of bracken or long grass, is perfectly harmless. Every three months or so a snake sheds its skin, a process which takes about a fortnight. During that time the snake feels very sorry for itself, refuses to eat, and hides itself away more than ever. You will seldom see a snake with its mouth open and tongue darted out as in the picture. It opens its mouth only for the same purpose as we ourselves do—namely, to eat. And there is a groove in a snake's jaws through which it can dart its tongue without having to open the jaws themselves. The snake has the power of distending these jaws, so that it may swallow its prey whole. When a snake moves, the gliding motion is accomplished by means of the hilly shields on its underside, to which the ends of the ribs are attached. Muscles bring these into action, and the snake walks, as it were, on the ends of its ribs.

HOME. Home is the place where a man can find peace and rest. Home is the spot where life's joys are shared and life's sorrows are borne. Home is where we strive for gain, stand in the ache and the hurt and pain, rise or fall, but at last your feet will come once more to the little street. And the wide awning door and the sheltering roof which has kept and kept you safe and sound. There, it only your heart is kind, that shall last to the end you'll find. There is bravery, day by day, standing with you as you fight your way. There are the smiles that shall cheer you on. Smiles that live when the world's are gone. There, though all in the world revile, abide the trust and the praise worth while. Under the roof where your babies were born. There is no corner that harbors scorn, needs it through and there's no one who never goes out with a bitter word. Who never goes out with a bitter word. Who never goes out with a bitter word. Who never goes out with a bitter word. Who never goes out with a bitter word.

Fads and Fashions.

A normal-waisted black coat features a huge shirred white collar and flaring cuffs to match. Far trimming is a marked feature of the fall coats. Beaver, wolf and squirrel are especially good. A charming blouse of crepe de chame is diagonally pleated to make points at the front. Some of the smartest velvet hats for fall go untrimmed but win favor for the chic of their simplicity. A single strip of ermine runs down the side, from neck to hem, of a frock of black crepe de chine. The young girl's evening dress again is bouffant in style, this type being one universally becoming. The cascade drupe and draped panel produces the irregular hem line, which is still so much featured. Worn over a draped sheath skirt of black satin is a smart little coat of an untrimmed Kofler fabric. An afternoon suit of bright red chiffon velvet has wide sleeves mounted low and embroidered in gray. A novel veil is a large square of fine mesh, which goes over the face. The broken waist-line effect with shirring on the hips is a distinguishing characteristic of recent novelties. In general, coats are full but of the same width from hip to hem, and are deep and narrow through the arm. Among the narrow styles are those of ribbon in braided two-toned effects, some having flower designs.

The Balloon Punctured.

The cabled messages from the Shawinigan Water and Power Company, and the Abitibi Paper and Power Company of Canada, published in the Daily News yesterday morning, are the best arguments that could be quoted against the repeated assertions made in the Advocate recently that Canadian Pulp and Paper interests were doing all possible in damming the Humber Project. These replies to the cabled question of the News should certainly give a quietus to the Coaker organ's mouthings. They are not exactly of the "retort courteous" nature, but rather nail down the Advocate to the publication of a falsehood of a type that this alone veracious journal is prone to use when according with its general policy of hoodwinking the fishermen. The Shawinigan Company declare that they know nothing about the Humber enterprise, have not protested against it, and on general principles are always in favor of encouraging new industrial enterprises in Canada or Newfoundland which depend upon native raw material. The Abitibi Company declare that the statement made by the Advocate is absolutely without foundation. Furthermore they did not know there was any development contemplated at Humber Valley. Thus two of the largest pulp and paper companies in Canada give an emphatic denial to the belated charges of the Government's callopie. In an address delivered at the paper mill town of Groveton some time ago the manager of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association declared that Canada soon is destined to outstrip all other countries in the production of wood pulp, newsprint and coarser grades of paper, in which she is fast overtaking United States, her chief rival, as well as to become an increasingly important factor in the production of fine and miscellaneous papers. While production in United States has virtually stood still since 1913, it has tripled in Canada. United States was unable to supply its own full requirements of paper, but had to depend on Canada. None of the foregoing shows even a scintilla of proof that it is to the advantage of Canadian paper interests to block development in Newfoundland, and the Advocate will have to furnish indisputable evidence that there is any Canadian hostility toward the establishing of the proposed Humber industry. The curious framing leading article published by that sheet yesterday in replying to the News, is but a crude attempt to shift responsibility and the whole communication, brother, if you are anxious to convince. To slightly misquote Byron:

Mr. Coaker on The Products Corporation

The following excerpts from Mr. Coaker's speech on the Products Corporation Bill, on May 3, 1915, are taken from the official report of the House of Assembly proceedings of that day. It may not be amiss to note that the Humber Proposition is practically the same as that so roundly condemned by Mr. Coaker when in opposition. But let that gentleman's words speak for themselves.

"The Premier (Sir Edward Morris) painted a very rosy picture when he said that four thousand men would be working there (Humber Mill) I would like to see the day, I hope it will not turn out like the promise that the South Side Mills would be written with 'sheep' . . . But our fishermen are not going to get such tremendous benefits even if it does work. . . . As soon as the fishermen go up there to work for awhile they are useless to the country as fishermen. Many a man has gone up to work at Grand Falls and is very sorry that he ever left the fishery to go there. The ordinary fisherman if he remains at home and works hard catching fish would care a far better living."

From the above it will be noted that in 1915 Mr. Coaker was extremely sceptical about four thousand men being employed around Deer Lake and in the Humber Valley, yet in 1922, seven years later he loudly promises that five thousand men will be immediately set to work should his pet scheme go through. His disbelief in 1915 has changed to extreme belief in 1922, and a thousand more employees are added by him to the four thousand of Sir Edward Morris on the Products development plan. Yet it is one and the same thing. Whence then the change in the sentiments and the abnegation of principle on the part of the senior member for Bonavista? Other extracts from the same speech will be published from time to time, just to show the absolute inconsistency of the man who is boosting the newly-dressed Products scheme with all the wealth of language and all the influence at his command.

Unconventional Visitor.

DRUNK CLIMBS THROUGH BEDROOM WINDOW.
This is a somewhat unconventional age, but we have not yet reached the stage when a man can enter a woman's bedroom in the early hours of the morning and get away with it. A labourer named Viscount tried this stunt on a house in Haggerty Street last night, but was discovered and handed over to the police. This morning he pleaded ignorance of the affair and was remanded for eight days pending further investigation.

Digby Arrives.

STORMY PASSAGE FROM LIVERPOOL.
S.S. Digby, Capt. Chambers, D.S.C., arrived in port at 6.30 a.m., having had a very stormy passage from Liverpool. The ship has about 600 tons cargo, 46 bags mail and the following passengers:—Miss C. O. Barclay, Rev. G. A. Barclay, Mrs. Barclay, Miss R. Barclay, Mr. R. L. Barclay, Miss A. M. Best, Mrs. J. Chalker, Miss A. Copeman, Mrs. B. Crocker, Mr. H. Davis, E. V. Dawe, Mrs. Dawe, Miss C. Fellows, Mrs. E. G. Furneaux, Miss D. B. Furneaux, Miss E. G. Henderson, Mrs. C. D. Herbert, Miss M. Herbert, Mrs. H. Hinton, Miss M. Hinton, Miss N. Hinton, Miss W. Hinton, Mrs. D. S. Kerr, Mr. A. Lloyd, Hon. S. Milley, Miss G. Milley, Mr. J. R. Ross.

McMurdo's Store News.

Ezo is the latest, and a greatly improved type of deodorant for personal use, and it entirely destroys the odor of perspiration and of other body odors. Ezo is perfectly harmless, and a little is all that is necessary to counteract the odor. Ezo is put up in tubes of convenient size. You will want a box of Candy for the week end. Why not bring home a box of Whitman's. Everybody will be pleased with the Candies.

Juveniles Sentenced.

BIRCHING ORDERED BY COURT.
Two youths charged with stealing tobacco from the Fish and Chips store were before the Juvenile Court this morning and sentenced to one day's imprisonment and a number of lashes with a birch rod. The lads, who are about 15 years old, were taken to the Penitentiary to receive their punishment.

FISH AT PETTY HARBOR.

Fishing still continues good at Petty Harbor and boats are taking about 3 qts. daily of very large fish. The fisherman in this section have done fairly well during the season, and are now engaged in the curing so that many boats do not get on the grounds.

HIS DIARY.
Sept. 22nd.—The morning news sheet denies the report which the Advocate prints of how Canadian paper men did protest against the Humber scheme, but the Advocate will still have it that someone did make a protest but are not sure who it was. My wife makes complaint of how high are the prices for game, and she says how she will not have it. But Lord, what a strange mind the wretch has, that she will think it a small thing to pay $20 for a hat but will save 10 cents on a partridge. I did say nothing to her, however, being that I know her of old, and she like to fly into a passion about it.

Full Cargo for Digby.

LARGE APPLE CONSIGNMENTS.
S. S. Digby will probably get away for Halifax early Monday and will return direct to this port, the usual call to Boston being omitted. On the return to Liverpool the ship will have a full cargo, as a large consignment of apples are going forward from Halifax. Space for fish shipments by the steamer is being booked ahead.

Marine Works Started.

Breakwaters for English Mr. Bonavista and Twillingate.
The work of completing the breakwater and canal at Bonavista which was undertaken last year will be resumed in a few days and it is hoped to have the job finished before winter sets in. About 100 men will be engaged and these will be given about two week's work, after which their places will be taken by others. This is being done in order that all may get a share of the employment. At English Mr. T.B., a harbor for motor boats is also under construction. The government is also going ahead with the construction of the breakwater at Twillingate, although the site selected is still a matter of dispute. This structure will cost about $250,000.

Arrested for Larceny.

$1000 BAIL FOR WEST COAST MERCHANT.
For appropriating property worth $427 from his insolvent estate which is now in the hands of a trustee, a former merchant of Bonne Bay has been arrested and appeared before the Magistrate yesterday afternoon. Accused was not asked to plead, but was released on $1000 bail. The Chief Justice had discovered, during the examination of accused before the Supreme Court in the case of his insolvency that he had possession of goods belonging to the trustee and an order was made for their return. Criminal proceedings have been taken by the creditors. The case comes up again for hearing on October 7th.

Rev. Henry Gordon

LEAVING FOR ENGLAND.
The Rev. Henry Gordon, M.A., Missionary at Cartwright, who with Mrs. Gordon has been in St. John's the past fortnight, expects to leave next week for England via Canada and the States. He is on his way for the winter and during his absence will make an appeal for further funds for the Labrador Public School. The school is now in active operation and already accommodates over fifty boarders. Mr. Gordon preaches at St. Thomas's to-morrow evening on "The Children of the Labrador."

Personal.

Mrs. Arthur Hayward and Miss Isabel Hayward leave to-day by Manoa to visit Mrs. Kenneth Davies in Montreal.
Mr. A. Lloyd, son of Rt. Hon. Sir W. F. Lloyd, who was in England on a holiday, returned by S. S. Digby.
Hon. S. Milley returned by Digby from a visit to England and was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Gertrude Milley, who has been at school in the Old Country.
The families of Messrs. E. Furneaux and H. Hinton, of the Imperial Cable Co.'s staff, Harbor Grace, arrived by the Digby from Liverpool.

Here and There.

HOME EN ROUTE.—S. S. Home, which left Humbermouth Wednesday for this port to undergo repairs, has left Port aux Basques and should arrive here Monday.

FOOTBALL GAMES.—A football game has been arranged for this afternoon between a team of Old Fellows, captained by H. C. Hayward, and a Bishop Field College side. The school team are said to be hot stuff and a good game should result. It will be played on the school grounds.

MINARD'S LIMEWORK FOR GARBET IN COWS.

New Local Industry.

THE FACTORY OF THE UNITED TOBACCO PRODUCTS CO IN THE WEST END NOW IN FULL SWING.
The operatives of the United Tobacco Products Co. at the Brewery Lane, Water Street West, are now working at full swing in the manufacture of "Cub" cigarettes. The factory, specially built for the purpose, is situated in an ideal locality and is well lighted from windows on both sides and is scrupulously clean, airy and wholesome. The company has installed the latest and best equipped machinery, and to observe the different processes of turning out cigarettes from the raw leaf to the finished product is a most interesting and unique experience. The tobacco is first stemmed after being taken from the butt, and is then passed on to a receptacle where it is stemmed and sweetened when it is passed into another machine where it is solidly compressed into an oblong block six inches wide and two inches thick and shaved off into fine thin cuttings by a knife in the machinery as it passes through. This moss like product is next passed into a revolving steel cylinder 12 feet long and three feet in diameter, which is set revolving and makes the loose tobacco dry and falls into a chute in the completion of this process, and thence goes to a similar revolving cylinder where it is dried by heat as the cylinder revolves. It is then ready for a machine which is of the most complicated mechanism, viz., that which leads the loose tobacco in an elongated stream into the paper that wraps it into cigarette size, passes it and in its progress through drier the paste and finally cuts it off at the right length and drops into a receptacle in a receptacle attached, at the rate of 500 a minute. They are then collected and taken in baskets to the tables where they are, in lots of ten, placed in their proper packages by girls who work with astonishing rapidity and accuracy. The girls are so expert that in their deft handling they at one moment invariably pick up ten cigarettes—no more and no less. It is a remarkable instance of the accuracy of the sense of touch developed by the necessity of saving time and by long experience. The packages referred to in which the "Cub" cigarettes are wrapped are also fashioned on the spot by the girls with marvellous rapidity on a suitably sized perpendicular wooden cylinder, pasted and closed with magic skill and deftness. It looks as if this is the fourth of a big industry that in time will employ a much larger number of operatives. It is a good thing to see new industries inaugurated that will give all-the-year employment to our people, which is so badly needed at the present time. The "Cub" cigarette is surely making its way into the favor of the people and no doubt—according as the demand increases the work will expand, the number of operatives will increase and the price of the cigarettes be reduced. As soon as this stage of prosperity is achieved we understand the company will consider the further development of manufacturing plus tobacco likewise. There is ample room for this.

Seizure of Schooner M. M. Gardner.

CLAIMED VESSEL WAS WELL OUTSIDE THREE MILE LIMIT.
A recent issue of a New York paper gives the following account of the seizure of the schooner M. M. Gardner of the New Jersey coast last week:
A black hulled British schooner, the M. M. Gardner, which carried a tale unfulfilled, or otherwise, if not afflicted with aphasia, lies near the Barge Office at the Battery, Revenue men boarded her in the darkness of the New Jersey shore on Thursday night and brought her captive into port.
From her they took 65½ cases of whiskey and $50,886 in gold, one map of the Jersey coast and three books that seemed to the seagoing detectives to contain a list of hotel and restaurant proprietors of New York, Atlantic City, Long Beach and other citadels of prohibition.
The legality of the seizure may be questioned by the British Government after further inquiry by the Consulate here. The schooner was indisputably arrested outside the three mile limit. D. S. McDonald, master of the Taylor, the dry way cruiser that did the seizing, reported that the spot was seven and one-half miles east of Long Beach, and between eight and nine miles east by southeast of Navesink Highlands light. Under the customs law the Government claims the right to search cargo found within twelve miles off shore.

George R. Sims Dead.

One of Britain's best-known journalists and one of the most successful playwrights of his day, Mr. George R. Sims died on Sept. 14, at his residence, facing Regent's Park, London, at the age of 75.
Mr. Sims was perhaps best known by his pen name of "Dagonet," which he had used in the "Referee" as the author of "Mistard and Great" from the start of the paper in 1877. His success as a playwright was almost as great as his journalistic success. "The Lights of London," produced at the Princess's Theatre, London, in 1881, yielded him £250,000. He wrote many pantomime books, and several of his ballads are still recited all over the world. The most famous of these were "Billy's Rose" and "The Lifeboat."

Of Interest to Tourists.

CASBY'S TOBACCO STORE IS NOW READY FOR THE TOURIST TRADE.
The man from England or the United States or any other country, when visiting our city, will find his favorite brand of Cigars, Cigarettes Tobacco and other Smokers' Requisites at our store.
We also carry a full line of Picture Postcards and Books of Views of Newfoundland.
Our Soda Water Fountain is now in full swing. Our Ice Cold Coca Cola, and other Syrups are pronounced by all to be the very best in the city.
A good smoke, a cool drink and a visit to our beautiful Bowling Park will linger in your memory for many years.

Daring Woman Leads Lisbon Mob.

LISBON.—The recent bread riots in this city, the protest of the people against the last rise in the price of this commodity, produced a spectacular figure. A tall, good-looking woman, barefooted, dressed in white with a scarlet handkerchief around her head and carrying a black flag on a staff, led the crowd which was raiding bakeries. She waved her banner, cheered the Social revolution, and exhorted the people to revolt. The police closed in on her and she was soon suppressed, but her place was immediately taken by another wild-eyed agitator, who had no trouble in leading the rioters. The people of Lisbon paid nothing for their bread on this day. The bakeries entered the loss.

FORMIDABLE NAVAL FORCE.

LONDON, Sept. 23.
It is stated that several more units of the Atlantic fleet, including the battleship Revenge, been ordered to prepare for service in the Mediterranean. The fleet, which in a few days will be concentrated in the vicinity of Darussala, comprises a formidable array of naval power. With the addition of the Revenge there will be seven capital ships under the orders of Admiral Brook, mounting altogether sixty thirteen inch, and eight fifteen inch guns.

"I don't believe it," the child said, "you have to crown, no diamonds, no thrones, and then you are not handsome enough. All the kings I've seen in picture books were good looking."

Rheumatism Makes an Invalid in Arms
(Saturday Health Talk No.—1)
(By Wm. H. MacPherson, D.C., Ph.C.)

When rheumatism attacks a child it makes a temporary invalid in arms of its victim, and may result in a deformity lasting a lifetime. Rheumatism is an acid poisoning of the body due to under elimination of wastes and poisons through the kidneys and bowels.

When kidneys and bowels fail to function normally for any period of time long enough to result in rheumatism, the cause is found in the spinal condition. Due to displacement of spinal bones causing pressure on spinal nerves to liver and kidneys there is weakened functioning, and the poisons gradually accumulate. By chiropractic spinal adjustments the nerve lines are freed and the kidneys and bowels are restored to normal vigor. The poisons gradually clear from the system and health returns. There is nothing that will remove the cause like chiropractic.

Give the Local Breeder Credit.

A REPLY TO "SALESMAN"

Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—In the Daily News of the 15th and 16th respectively I read a letter relative to poultry matters and reply thereto. "Salesman" may have been a good deal kinder on advertising Canadian eggs than he was in robbing their best to improve the same. He complains of, but as a breeder of pure bred poultry for some years I would like to comment briefly as possible on his remarks. To "trot out" "Salesman" the owners names are trotted out and they are given as much credit for the laying of the eggs as the vendors that actually did the laying. To this I say, "certainly not" and it is right and only that they should. Heavy production depends largely upon the breeder's knowledge of the correct principles of mating and breeding, and his careful application of same. (B) Upon his knowledge of proper correct housing and feeding methods. (C) His methods of caring for the fowls so as to prevent disease, practically eliminate vermin, and keep vigor and stamina unimpaired. The names of all competitors in all American (and even Canadian contests) are "trotted out" and truly they show up that the skill of the breeder. White Barred Rocks bred by a certain breeder may head the list for that particular competition, while the same breed from the yards of another breeder may be anywhere from tenth to last. At another competition White Leghorns may show up as fifth raters as represented by the entry of one poultry man, while his more skillful neighbor who has also entered White Leghorns cops the cup and the laying record. A Black Orpington at one Missouri Contest laid sixty seven eggs for the year, another Black Orpington from a different breeder laid two hundred and seven eggs. It is needless perhaps to mention that all birds are fed, housed and cared for in the same way, under Government Inspection, and with such a wide variation in production by fowls of the same manner, don't you think the breeder has just a little to do with it? Then why deny him credit? It is an easy matter for any genuine hen man to "trot and explain" all about Canadian eggs or most any other kind of egg, but if "Salesman" will meditate while it will dawn on him that it is not the genuine hen men in this country that market the eggs of inferior grade he complains of. On the contrary they are doing their best to induce better and more up to date methods into all poultry work, and eventually give Mr. "Salesman" what Canada has taken decades to attain. Chinese eggs offered a great menace to the Canadian egg trade not very many months ago, but Canadian "Salesmen" did not advise Canadians to go to the Chinese and learn something. They lent a helping hand in a nice and cheerful manner and things went more smoothly. Canada and the United States have plenty of Agricultural Colleges and a large number of pamphlets on Poultry Culture or almost any other culture, that are obtainable without cost to those desirous of adding to their knowledge. People of Newfoundland have not advantage of this kind, not even a farm paper or a poultry magazine is at present produced in this country, and much general information needs to be produced so as to gain a maximum price and give highest satisfaction. I agree with "Salesman" as to improving quality of products, and properly grading same and giving due attention to packing. I do not pretend to agree with him when he accuses the "Hen Men" of crowing, but when he laments that a breeder's name should not be "trotted out" and credit given him for his work where credit is due. When I sell eggs they are put up in sealed cartons bearing my name and a guarantee that they are produced under sanitary conditions by properly fed fowls. They are uniform in color and size and weigh at least twenty-four ounces to the dozen and I get twenty cents a dozen above the price paid for Canadian eggs for all I can spare. If any local newspaper cares to place a limited amount of space at my disposal monthly I will do my best to pass along all helpful information I can, not by way of crowing, but to show the Bell Island boys and any other boys that I think they are worthy of better treatment than having cold water doused on them every time they show a little natural enthusiasm.

Yours truly, W. K. CHANCEY,

Fads and Fashions.

Belge is in great favor for simple dinner frocks.

The newest apron effect is slightly draped at the left side.

It is reported that velvet will be very good for evening wear.

Colored braids are introduced as trimming for dark colored frocks.

Coat frocks of new wool materials promise to have a distinguished vogue.

Although most of the new sleeves are long they run in a variety of widths.

Hats select the small hat, either with or lower trimmed, for restaurant wear.

FALL STYLES

The Royal Stores are now displaying the latest Fashion dictates for Fall and Winter wear. Our representatives have traveled afar in quest of Style, Beauty and Novelty. Now the fruits of their labors are on show.

Full of soft glowing colors and in thrilling variety, the new goods present the most brilliant assemblage we have ever shown. If you love Beauty, if you would see what is to be worn this Fall and Winter, you will make a point of visiting the Store this week.

Fascinating New Blouses

For Autumn.

This Fall brings a new assortment of Blouses in delightful new styles, as varied in coloring as the Costumes and Skirts which they will accompany; they reveal all the ruses most favored this season: Braids, Silk and Embroidery, applied in a variety of new ways, trim many of the favored models: Georgette, Tulle, Jap Silk, Volles and Poplins are the most popular materials.

Prices range from $1.25 to $7.00 each

Serviceable All-Wool Sweaters

Sounds mighty good this weather and later on one will not be able to do without a Sweater Coat. They are mighty attractive this Fall, coming in vivid and sombre colors and in designs that carry all the autumnal tints. Styles are very smart, especially the new Jumpers in Silk and Wool knit.

Prices from $2.50 to $7.00 each

Children's Wearing Apparel

Showing that nicety of detail accorded to the attire of their elders. Coats are smartly simple in line and may be found in beautifully tailored styles of Velour, Tweeds and Blanket Cloths. Hats are gay little models as smart as those worn by older heads. They catch the spirit of youth in the bright colorings as well as in the shapes.

Wonderful Millinery Modes

Correct in every detail Beautiful in every line

'Twas a wise man who said "Every woman is beautiful when she wears the hat that understands her."

Beautiful! 'Tis the wish of all women. Come—Here are the Hats that "understand you." Hats for all moods, for all times of day, all ages, all tastes. Hats of Push, Beaver, Velvet and Satin antique. Soft or hard of crown, draped and drooping of brim or smartly up-standing. Large Hats, medium Hats, Hats as close as a Halo

TURBANS TAMS

OFF-THE-FACE-HATS BRETON-SAILORS NAPOLEON HATS

in mysterious Black, Blues, Dark and Light; in Purple, Grey and Brown—in every autumn shade. Trimmings: Silk, Ribbon and Embroidery, Gold and Silver Thread, but Feathers are the favorite—curling, swirling or straight as a hair.

Where also can one find such an exclusive showing of magical flattering Hats.

Prices from . . . $6.50 to $14.00 each.

Tweed Costumes are popular

The New Costumes now displayed are nearly all made of handsome Tweeds and Homespuns, in various patterns; beautiful autumn Heather combinations. They are all out on graceful lines which create a magically slendering effect.

Prices from . . . $15.00 to $35.50 each.

The New Dress Fabrics

It seems as if our representatives had been favored with extraordinary good luck in their selection of Dress materials, for the patterns and colors were never more beautiful or more charming than they are in this present display. We believe you will agree with us once you have seen these new fabrics, at new low prices. We shall be honored and delighted to show them to you.

Large assortments of SERGES, BROADCLOTHS, TRICOLINES, POPLINS, etc.

are shown in all the weights and qualities suitable for Newfoundland weather. The prices are well below those of previous years. Indeed, many of the lines are marked at almost pre-war figures.

Striking new color effects in MELTONS, VELOUR CLOTHS, CHECK & BLANKET CLOTHS, RIVERSIDE COATINGS, etc.

On Buying FURS

Nowadays—more so than ever—inferior grades of Furs are being made up, solely to catch the eye. The cheapest Fur—after all—is the quality Fur—and as to quality Furs, it is generally conceded that our offerings mean greater values. Here you will find everything in full modelled Coats, Wraps, etc., in the season's most approved styles. Also the new Scarfs, Chokers, Muffs, etc. Every desirable Fur is here, including Sable, Seal, Otter, Mole—and Squirrel.

Carpets & Rugs for the Home

The selection of suitable Rugs for the Home should be one of your first considerations. Glaring colours and indifferent combinations are the jarring effects on even the most calm temperaments. Mellow colors, artistic combinations, in Carpet Squares, Rugs and Doormats are to be found here in abundance. They are all beautiful and the prices are very reasonable for merchandise of quality.

Prices—Hearth Rugs $3.00 to $7.45
—Doormats 95c to $2.50
—Carpet Squares $0.00 to 40.00

The New Hose

Smart Novelties in Stockings to wear with the new Fall Coats and Costumes, are now being shown. Heather mixtures are again in the lead. We have a great variety at prices ranging from 65c pair to $2.00

The New Gloves

Our presentation of Gloves for Autumn and Winter includes every new style in weave and design—for every period of the day.

Prices—Suede finish 65c to $1.20
—Kid Gloves $1.20 to $2.55

The New Coats

The wide inset sleeve often characterizes the new Coats which are so handsome that many of them may be dignified by the title of Wraps. Pleasingly varied in Silhouette, some of these models adhere to the straight lines, while others show the light-fitting waist and smartly flaring lower edge. The more expensive models are trimmed with Otter and Beaver collars; the materials are mostly in rich autumn shades of Brown, Fawn and Green.

Fur trimmed Coats—
Prices $25.50 to $55.00
Tweed and Cloth Coats—
Prices $12.50 to $25.00

Frocks and Dresses for all occasions

The New Styles in Street and Afternoon Frocks are much admired. They are here in Tricoline, Silk, Serge, Gabardine and other materials. Smart, slim models showing a partiality for Braided and Beaded trimmings in novel designs. Then there are artistic models in Evening Gowns, that have to be seen to be properly appreciated. The most popular materials for foundations being Satin Antique, Crepe-de-Chene, Georgette and Taffeta.

Street and Afternoon Dresses—
Prices from . . . $11.00 to $40.00 ea.
Evening Gowns—
Prices from . . . $29.50 to $65.00 ea.

New Fall Styles for Men

Sensible men are here appealed to, to use judgment, discrimination and care, in choosing their Autumn and Winter wardrobe. We can honestly say that our stocks have never been so large and varied. Knowing that the mind is more easily approached through the eye, and that conviction usually follows inspection, we hereby invite all and sundry to come, look, inspect and scrutinize.

New Fall Hats.

Exclusive but not expensive. Smartest models in all sizes and in all the newest colorings. Soft Hats, in Felt, Wool Felt and Velour; also a number of styles in Hard Derbys.

Prices $3.10 to $11.35 each

The New Shirts.

Almost every material has been requisitioned to complete our new Fall stocks in Shirts. Soft fronted, with fringed; some with collars attached and others in Union Flannel are here in all sizes and qualities.

Prices from . . . $1.55 to $2.50 each

New Ties.

Finest designs from the English and American markets. Persian and Oriental designs; Novelty Silk, Brocade and Basket Weave Silks, in the most exquisite shadings.

Prices from 95c to $2.00 each

Fairbanks in "The Three Musketeers" Coming.

"Doug" Has Achieved the Ambition of a Lifetime in the Character of D'Artagnan.

Predictions are being made that the screening of Alexander Dumas immortal story, "The Three Musketeers," by Douglas Fairbanks will stand forth in motion picture history as an epochal event and that it will popularize for all time the costume photoplay.

"A popular picture nowadays," said the star, "must be logical; it must have comedy and pathos, but above all it must be human. Any story that is human will succeed regardless of whether the players wear wigs and short pants or are garbed in pyjamas. Drama was the same in the Seventeenth Century as it is today. This may be the gasoline age of civilization, but it hasn't altered human emotions appreciably. People still laugh and cry and give vent to anger. And they are still inordinately curious. In fact, we progress because we are curious. People of today wonder if in the olden days kings and queens and dukes and lords were swayed by the same passions and emotions that now rule humanity. To satisfy in a measure this curiosity we have made a celluloid reproduction of "The Three Musketeers," and we have crammed into it everything that is dramatic, instructive, human, amusing and entertaining. We have tried to twang every emotion in the human system, just as D'Artagnan did in his memoirs, and as Dumas did in his great novel.

The best talent procurable has been called upon to help transcribe this great story to the aluminum sheet. Edward Knoblock, one of the greatest of contemporary playwrights, is responsible for adaptation, research and costumes, while to Fred Niblo goes the honor of directing the piece. Niblo, a born adventurer, has won distinction as a master in guiding the destinies of this type of play; he is said to have no peer. Arthur Edson, rated as a genuine lens artist, is credited with the photography and is said to have achieved some effects which hitherto have been considered impossible.

Arrangements have been made for the showing of this feature at the Majestic Theatre, where it will be the main attraction for 5 days.

Wedding Bells.

CARTER-FOX.

Rev. A. C. Clayton officiated at the wedding at 7 a.m. today in St. Thomas' Church of Helen, daughter of U. J. Carter, to Mr. Ernest Fox. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the bride's family. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride and was attended by only a few intimate friends of the contracting parties. Mr. and Mrs. Fox left for Brigus by motor car where they will spend their honeymoon. The Telegram joins their many friends in expressions of congratulations to the happy couple.

Little Bay Notes.

Mr. H. M. Wells, representing the Imperial Life Company, was a passenger by last Prospero for St. John's.

Mr. Lemester of St. John's paid a visit last week; later proceeding to Springdale.

Both the C. E. and R. C. Schools did well in C. H. Exams, each school securing a good percentage of passes in the different grades.

Mrs. Thos. E. Wells is at present visiting friends at Twillingate.

The many friends of Mrs. Henry Harris of Springdale, who has for some time past, been seriously ill, will be pleased to note that she is at present considerably improved.

Late reports from our fishermen at Huddy Mr. Island and vicinity show that on the whole the voyage will be an average one, though at present there is very little doing with hook and line.

Your correspondent was interested to note in a recent issue of the Telegram announcement of the wedding of Miss Mary Dopley of Hr. Grace to Mr. John Cooke of St. Augustus.

The bride is well and popularly known here, having spent a year with us as School Teacher.

Things are pretty quiet in mining circles and we are all patiently awaiting the long expected "mining boom" which same is a long time overdue.

A man, who recently arrived here by "Prospero" with a hard luck story of having lost his money, with the result that he became stranded, evidently wished to demonstrate to his own financial satisfaction that the Little Bay folks were 'easy marks.' However found it difficult to prove this theory and after barely escaping arrest, he was advised to "beat it," which he lost no time in doing.

Mr. T. W. Wells accompanied by Dr. Lidstone left on one of his frequent business trips to Gull Pond Saturday last.

Milestone's in Matrimony.

WHEN HURRY FORGETS WIFE'S BIRTHDAY.

Much nonsense has been talked about the milestones of matrimony. The dangerous time is put down as the seventh, the tenth, or some such year after the wedding; yet nobody has ever remarked upon the real milestones—those that mark the road either to happiness or to misery.

Such tiny things, apparently so unimportant yet it is they, and not the greater things of life, that mark the milestones in the road of marriage.

We always come to them. It seems such a bother to keep up the enthusiasm of honeymoon days, and yet that and that alone, is what is going to steer us safely and happily through.

Few men ever realize the pang it gives a woman when she finds her birthday forgotten or the anniversary of their wedding day, or the day they became engaged—something that meant to her so much, so very, very much.

On the other hand, no woman ever really understands that although a man may say nothing, he notices that she has put on a clean blouse in his honor, and that she did not skip the little kiss when he left for the office in the morning.

There are no milestones that mark the years, only those that mark the days, and they are the important ones to remember.

For those who can remain lovers always, and take trouble to care for and to keep their love, there is no dangerous age.

Beware of the little things.

Matrimonial Complication.

Husband Missing for Seventeen Years—Wife Who Has Remarried.

NEW YORK (Canadian Press).—A man and a woman, strangers in a crowded subway train, changed to bump, and turning to apologize to one another, discovered themselves to be husband and wife, who had not seen each other in seventeen years, according to the story told Supreme Court Justice Gannon in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Helen Courtney, of 424 Broadway, Brooklyn, the woman in the case, married George Beck in March, 1905, she said. They lived together only eleven days. Years passed and she believed Beck had died. In 1921 she married again. Mrs. Courtney asked the annulment of her marriage to Courtney on the ground that she was still the wife of Beck. Courtney made an opposition. Neither he nor Beck were in Court. Justice Gannon granted the annulment.

Hints for Young Men.

THE CHIEF SCOUT TELLS THEM HOW TO DODGE THE ROCKS IN LIFE.

There are five rocks in the sea of life that every young man should know and be able to steer past; these rocks are horses, wine, women, cockroaches and irreligion.

But if the helmsman is sensible and trustworthy, these rocks become havens of enjoyment and happiness. Let's have a look at them.

The first that Sir Robert Baden-Powell writes of in "Rovering to Success" is horses.

Horses as friends and as a form of exercise are splendid, but they are only rocks when they cause you to waste money betting on them.

Betting so often causes tragedies. In the twelve years before the war, in London alone, 234 people committed suicide, 3,234 were imprisoned on charges of embezzlement and theft, and there were 580 bankrupts—due entirely to betting losses.

Don't Drink Between Eats. The next rock is wine.

A glass of wine or beer with a meal is most welcome to many people, and will do little harm. But it is the second glass and then the third, and so on, that cause the trouble.

The author says that "it is drinking between your eats that does the harm." Those drinks in the middle of the morning or afternoon do one no good, and only cause the drinker to become drowsy and therefore unfit to get on with his work.

Have a drink with your meals, if you will, but at no other time. A baby rock, that is attached to the wine rock, is smoking.

The Chief Scout does not smoke at all, because it affects his health and his sense of smell, as it does everyone's; but if you must smoke, smoke a pipe, not cheap cigarettes.

Don't be a Cuckoo. The next rock, or blessing, is woman—according to how you steer.

A good woman can have the most wonderful influence on a man's life, but the fellow who goes about with bad women can hope for no blessing.

And here it is entirely up to the man himself. He should choose his woman friends carefully, as it means the difference between steering his boat of life into a safe harbor or on to dangerous rock.

Then there is the cuckoo rock. Just as the real cuckoo is an exaggerating, self-important bird, so is the human cuckoo a self-important, conceited man.

He only sees his own side of every question, always wants his own way, and he will push everybody else out to get it.

Don't become a cuckoo. Try to see every side of a question and attain your ambition in life without thrusting aside people weaker than yourself.

Finally, there is the rock of irreligion. Sir Robert advises all those who have any doubts about the existence of the Creator to study Nature and her wonders. This will convince even the most narrow-minded person of the existence of some one Great Power.

Fads and Fashions.

The small round coffee, shown of afternoon frocks from Paris, has become popular.

Among velvet dresses, black, alpaca, grey, navy and redwood are leading colors.

Wide brims and draped gowns are French features of the autumn millinery mode.

No more smarter fabric can be had for either evening or dinner wear than ruby velvet.

Gloves are apt to be quite long with loose, wide sleeves, and the inevitable fur trimming.

Monkey is more popular than ever before, entire gowns of it being one of the season's novelties.

Many of the new fur coats end at the hips and consider themselves the smartest for so doing.

The Fashion Line

There's a tingle in the air. Nature is donning Fall garb. I'm Showing it. Fall gloves. Fall Hats. Hose of 'tween-weight cashmere. Pyjamas for nippy nights. As always True-Value here—style true to the fashion line. Our new Clothing department will make its bow soon.

In the Realms of Sport.

THE REAL EXPERTS.
 Up at Brown's at the Cross Roads, Back in the group at the store. The fellows who played in the series. Are fighting their battles once more. All right for the lads who were winners. They dominate over the rubes. But the athletes who play with the losers Oh, what unfortunate boys.
 At Peddler's, the critics dissect them. Showed them how badly they played. Point out the tricks they omitted. And the mistakes that they made. Brophy and Hooks and Ern Churchill (Players of class in their youth). Tell the poor sorrowing losers Items of terrible truth.
 "By Heck, you should have shot that sooner. That pass was a dreadful mistake." Oh, what a scorching all winter. For those who failed first place to make.

all to do until winter sets in and the rinks open. Over three months they must lie quiescent, and the question is naturally asked "What can they do?" Sport enthusiasts are in the same position, and beyond the Indoor Championships Meet, which we understand is being mooted by the National Sports Committee for November, there is nothing in sight. There is some talk of a Basketball League being formed, but it is understood that the Rink Management is too mercenary in its demands. There is no doubt but that Basketball would be the ideal fall sport for Newfoundland. Not only would the athletes have an outlet for their enthusiasm and have a means of keeping fit, but it would give the fans something with which to occupy themselves until the hockey season comes around. The weather is really too fine for the various Stone Leagues to go seriously into committee, and there is no doubt at all about the success of a Basketball and Indoor Hockey League, if it were instituted. Now, then, who will start it?

Through an inadvertence the name of Walter Callahan was omitted from the B.I.S. players in Thursday's column. His splendid game in the forward line for the past three seasons assisted them materially in occupying the premier position they did, and his efforts were greatly appreciated.
 The last football game for the season will be played at St. George's Field on Monday night at 6.15, when the Junior B.I.S. team will play Holy Cross in aid of the St. Patrick's Memorial School. Many claim that the brand of football handed out this summer by the Juniors is far ahead of that furnished by the Seniors, and anyone prepared to dispute this point can do nothing better than be present on Monday evening and be thoroughly convinced. We are asked to say that League season tickets will not admit in view of the game being for charitable purposes. Mr. George Hunt, the official referee, will control the game.

TO THE LOSERS.
 This is a toast to the fellows who tried. With a courage unflinching and clean. When greatness and fame through the years were When the boys of their brothers were present. Ah, many the batter, who gives of his best. Through seasons of soul-testing strife. And few the bright victors who smile on the crest. Bedecked with the baubles of life.

This is a toast to the fellows that lost. With the smile of the brave that fall. The fellows played and paid the cost. At the end of the long long trail. Each soul that tried in the weary race. Though blessed by victory never. Leaves its shaft of light in a blossom In the garden of Man's Endeavour.

Royal Holiday.

THE QUEEN AT INVERNESS—HISTORICAL ASSOCIATIONS.

Her Majesty the Queen paid a visit to Inverness during the last week in August. The Queen's principal call was at the Northern Infirmary. On arrival at the main entrance to the infirmary, her Majesty was received by Provost, Sir Donald MacDonald, chairman of the managers of the institution, who was accompanied by Lady MacDonald, Bishop, Walford, chairman of the directors, and other directors, officials, and members of the medical staff. The Queen visited the Children's Ward. The little boy patients saluted as her Majesty entered the ward, and the Queen smilingly acknowledged. The Queen chatted with each child.
 Subsequently her Majesty visited the unique and ornate chapel, gifted to the infirmary by the late Dowager Lady Tweedmouth in memory of her husband, the first Lord Tweedmouth. The chapel is unique in respect that in accordance with the wishes of the donor, separate services can be held within the building for those of the Presbyterian, Episcopalian, and Roman Catholic faiths. The Queen remarked on the beauty of the chapel, and expressed appreciation of the facilities for the different forms of worship, contained within the building.
 On her departure, the Queen was enthusiastically cheered. The matron of the infirmary presented her Majesty with a beautiful bouquet of pink roses.
 Subsequently the Queen left for Braulien, as the head of the Glen Strathfarrar, on a visit to Viscountess Encombe, eldest sister of Lord Lovat. After her stay at Braulien, where she had luncheon, the Queen motored to Beaufort, where she had tea. In passing through Inverness on her return to Moy Hall the Queen was warmly cheered.

Queen's Boating Trip.

Her Majesty spent Friday at Moy Hall, and, the weather being fine, went boating on Loch Moy with her hostess, Mrs. Mackintosh of Mackintosh. In the centre of the loch is a small wooded island, in which the castle of the ancient chiefs of Clan Chattan was situated, and the loch is associated with one of the great clan disasters between 1410 and 1490, during a feud between the Mackintoshes and the Cumyns, several hundred Mackintoshes were driven to take refuge on the island. The Cumyns dammed up the waters of the loch, so as to drown the Mackintoshes. By using a raft one of the Mackintoshes bored holes in the wooden boards, and the result was that an embankment was carried away, and all the Cumyns were drowned. The Queen was interested to learn that until this day the heretic descendants are tenants of the Mackintosh, and are known as "Torries" or "Borers." Her Majesty also passed near a cairn of stones in the loch, on which captives used to be chained and drowned.
 The Queen walked by the loch side, where Prince Charlie was hurried along when Royalist troops were advancing on Moy Hall to capture him. The prince lost his bonnet, and it is one of the treasured heirlooms in Moy Hall.
 The King has had excellent sport on the Moy grouse moors, having had a record bag.

Is There a Way Out.

That the present industrial situation is hopelessly tangled and that there is no immediate prospect of a satisfactory solution to the difficulties, by which we are not only confronted but surrounded and hemmed in from all sides, requires no further proof. It is painfully and patently obvious. The backbone of the strike may be broken; the mines, with the beneficent assistance of bayonets and machine guns, may be kept open; the railroads may be kept moving freight and passengers and the strikers may be starved into surrender and absolute submission, yet this will not settle our labor troubles nor usher in an era of industrial peace and prosperity. The smothered fire will break out again; and at each renewed outbreak the situation will be worse and more difficult to cope with.
 Industry has gotten into a blind alley. It cannot get any further on the old road. The strike has become a chronic condition. It returns with inevitable and absolute periodicity. Under such circumstances, the complete breakdown of the economic order is but a question of time. It will be impossible for industry to bear indefinitely the terrific waste involved in the ever recurring walkouts. The drain is excessive and constitutes a loss that eventually must lead to absolute exhaustion. Worse than that by reason of the repeated strikes and lockouts the relations between capital and labor have become so strained that some day they will snap. This is the future which society is facing. There is no exaggeration in this description of the situation nor can it be accused of undue pessimism. Much cause exists for alarm. Entirely too much explosive material is heaped up round about us. And, in America, events travel at an enormous speed and very little is needed to set them in motion.
 Some, very foolishly, imagine that the ruin of the labor unions will bring us industrial peace and that when the open ship throughout the country and in all branches of industry has been established, things will go smoothly. That is a fatal error and a destructive delusion. If organized labor, through which the wage weaver finds legitimate and articulate expression, is crushed, industrial disorders will multiply and the last things will be worse than the first. Organized labor stands between society and anarchy. It is well to remember that the articulate speech of organized labor is infinitely better than the inarticulate mutterings and the mad grumblings of discontent and despair that come from a labor class that has been deprived of a legitimate means to express its grievances and voice its reasonable means.
 The public, of course, resents the inconvenience to which it is put by reason of the strike. It demands consideration of its rights. But what does it do to secure the rights of the workman? Is it at all concerned that the labourer receives just his hire, so long as it enjoys peace and well being? The object of society is to protect the rights of all and see that no injustice is done to anyone. If it neglects this duty, it need not be surprised that the injured party will try to secure its own rights regardless of the welfare of society. If the community at large persistently tolerates abuses and wrongs against any section of its members, that section, in seeking relief from these abuses and wrongs, does not consider the inconvenience of the community. If redress can be found through the established agencies of society, it would undoubtedly be wrong to resort to self-help that might interfere with the welfare of others. The public must realize that if labor has duties toward society, society also has obligations towards labor. The public cannot repudiate its duties and, nevertheless, insist on its rights. Unless, therefore, we one and all unite in supporting the claims of the workers to a fair share in the goods of this life, both material and spiritual, we ourselves are to blame for the effects of his resentment, for we are siding with those who refuse him justice and fair dealing. This side of the problem has been conveniently overlooked by the public. It is time that it should awaken to its grave responsibility.
 That will be the only way out of the industrial tangle if the public makes it its duty to probe industrial conditions to the very bottom and remove whatever injustice there exists. Experience has sufficiently and abundantly taught us that capital and labor cannot arrive at a fair settlement between them. There remains nothing then but that the matter be taken out of their hands and settled for them in an impartial and just manner. In this settlement, however, property rights must not be held more sacred than personal rights and the claim of labor to a living wage must be absolutely recognized. Only via social justice can we arrive at social peace and prosperity—Catholic Standard and Times.

CRIMES AND CRIMINALS.

Their Punishment and Reformation.

(By OBSERVATOR)

He lies in a convict's graveyard, to mix with the graceless dead, to rot in the marble above my head? To smile at your words of pity, for what is a stone to one who lies in the breast of nature with all his tolling 'deeds'?

By a Convict Poet.

PREVENTION BETTER THAN CURE.

While discussing certain phases of the subject with a legal friend the other day, he asked the question: "Is it not amazing to note the comparative silence that writers on criminology have maintained upon the subject of prevention?" Indeed, one would suppose that to prevent crime, just as to prevent disease, would be an important activity of a self-conscious community really interested in its own betterment. Under any circumstances it is an ugly thing, it eats at the heart of social well-being. Not only is it enormously expensive (last year it cost nearly $2,000 to bring prisoners from the district of St. George's, alone, and send them back to their homes after they had served their sentences), but it is opposed to beauty, art, happiness, the service of others, and whatever makes for the development of the best and the growth of self-respect. It is contaminative, for its example taints down many who would otherwise escape. Its expense lies not only in the cost necessary to arrest, convict and fine offenders, but also in the loss of ability and achievement of those who spend their lives in the prison and supervision of offenders. For instance, look at the size and equipment of our police department today.

ENVIRONMENT AND PERSONALITY.

Let me for a moment look at prevention under the same two heads as I have already regarded causation, namely, environment and personality. Crime is always the effect of a particular personality reacting to a particular environment, any comprehensive programme for the prevention of crime would necessarily include every measure that so modifies the individual or his environment as to decrease the kind of friction that results in anti-social conduct. One does not need to belong to a sociological, biological or any other school of criminology to accept this statement, though it may be better to speak of such measures as preventives rather than as preventives, since one of them, nor any considerable number together, will ever completely prevent crime; each may, in some degree, help to diminish it.

MURDER BY WHOLESALE.

Referring to the present startling prevalence of homicide in the great American Republic, with which we are always in close commercial touch, the Literary Digest furnishes some remarkable facts and figures. From that reliable source of information it learns that the unenviable distinction of leading that country in crime does belong to New York, as may have been popularly supposed. Statistics gathered by Judge William M. Cullen of Chicago, show that with fifty-five killings for each 100,000 inhabitants, or a total of 426 last year, St. Louis led all the cities of the United States in murders and homicides. As compared with the killings in England and Wales, those in St. Louis were "too many to count." In a survey of the crime situation he furnished recently to the Committee on Law Enforcement of the American Bar Association, Judge Gemmill says that New York, which people think is a very wicked city, is high up on the honor roll, so far as murder is concerned. St. Paul alone having fewer arrests for murder, while Chicago ranks third, Cincinnati fourth, Buffalo fifth, and New Orleans sixth.

CRIME IN PROPORTION TO POPULATION.

By comparison, according to the survey, Los Angeles, (where, during the past few years, several Newfoundland families have made their home) has three times as many murders in proportion to population as New York, and two and a half times as many as Chicago. Detroit, "which likes to be called a model city," has more than twice as many as New York and nearly double the number of Chicago, while St. Louis reports 389 arrests for murder and 36 for manslaughter in 1921. What is true as to murder is partly true as to other major crimes, reports Judge Gemmill. He says:—"If the balance of the year 1922 equals January and February of this year, or even March and April, Los Angeles will lead all other cities in the number of burglaries and housebreakings. She is not even closely followed by any other large city. Chicago comes next on the roll of honor, followed closely by Washington, Baltimore, Buffalo, St. Louis, San Francisco, Boston, St. Paul, Cleveland, New York, New Orleans, Denver and Louisville in the order named."

ARRESTS FOR INTOXICATION.

In arrests for intoxication Boston far outstrips all cities. But Chicago, with a sense of other pride or humiliation, refuses to list her cases. In contrast with these figures, I have collected the latest statistics from Canada and England and Wales concerning the same crime. About 600,000 people are arrested in England and Wales annually. The population there is about twelve times that of Chicago and seven times that of New York. For every arrest for murder in England and Wales in 1920 Chicago had eight and a half, New York six and three quarters, and St. Louis too many to count.

TO PROTECT THE INNOCENT AND PUNISH THE GUILTY.

Laws are the product of civilized society. They are made to protect the innocent and punish the guilty. When they fail in doing either of these two things, they fail society, and society degenerates into savagery. Whenever you find a lax enforcement of the law you find crime. Public officials can never have an allm. Success in enforcing the law can be their only excuse. Excuses won't go. The only reason why there is less crime in England than in the United States is because over there the law is supreme and whatever is needed to make it respected is done. It is for this reason that the penalty of flogging has been kept upon their statute books for a thousand years, and this last year over 1,600 criminals were flogged by order of the court.

FLOGGING FOR PROFESSIONAL CRIMINALS.

The Digest reminds us that flogging is in vogue in only one State of the American Union—Delaware. Yet it would be a strong deterrent, thinks Judge Gemmill, to put the lash on the bare backs of the 500 professional criminals known to the police in Chicago. "Whatever is necessary to make these crooks understand that this is a government of law and order," he says, "that we must do. Ninety-nine per cent. of our people are honest and law-abiding. They must not be ruled or intimidated by the other one per cent." Crime is not generally profitable to the criminal, and when he is made to realize that punishment is swift and certain and drastic, he will look for other fields in which to exercise his talents.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE SUBJECT.

But there's another point of view from which the whole subject can be seen in a different light altogether. I refer now to what Dr. Robinson says about it in his recently-published book on "Penology in the United States." The Dr. Robinson to whom I here refer is not the talented and popular editor of the St. John's Daily News, but Dr. Louis N. Robinson of Cleveland, Ohio. It is particularly noticeable that his attitude toward the "state-use principle" is illuminated by his suggestion that it has made progress because it has "won the approval of the labor unions," and "their influence in politics can not be neglected." But more of this in a subsequent article!

THE PRISON POET AND HIS EFFORTS.

Of course, it is very natural that men who have passed through surging emotional experiences, as all prisoners have, should seek relief in song. Most prison publications, such as "The Star of Hope" of Sing Sing, New York, and "Lend a Hand" of Salem, Oregon, to mention two out of many contain verse in almost every issue. This verse is not very good, for the most part, according to any serious literary judgment; it is often clumsily humorous, often morbidly introspective, and exceedingly sentimental almost always. To say this is not to censure the writers. Sometimes, however, prison walls close around a poet—a man who is a poet first and a prisoner by circumstance. Such a poet is an inmate of a large Massachusetts penitentiary, whose volume of poems, "A Tale of a Walled Town and Other Verses," with an introduction by William Stanley Braithwaite, is of more than ordinary appeal. The opening poem of the work, from which the book gets its title, is full of poignant, wistful beauty. Here is a fragment: "They know but little of desire / Who know no wall; / But who sit by no hearth-fire / Do know it all. / And would recall!"

"NIGHT IN THE CELL HOUSE."

The superintendent of a well-known American prison, which I visited many years ago, sends me the following poetical effusion from the pen of a prisoner named Ralph Chaplin. It seems that Ralph was convicted under the Espionage Act and is now serving a twenty-year sentence. This little poem appears under the caption of "Night in the Cell House": "Tier over tier they rise to dizzy heights— / The cells of men who know the world no more. / Silent menace from the ceiling to the floor! / While through the window gleams a lone blue light / Which stabs the dark immensity of night. / Felt-shod and ghostly like a shade of yore, / The guard comes shuffling down the corridor. / His key-ring jingles . . . and he glides from sight. / Oh, to forget the prison and its scars, / And face the breeze where ocean meets the land; / To watch the foam-crests dance with silver stars / While long green waves come tumbling in on the sand. / My brow is now against the icy bars; / There is the smell of iron on my hand."

Wireless of the Nerves.

THE BODY HAS A WONDERFUL TELEPHONE SYSTEM.

Our nerves are often likened to telephone wires, which send messages from various parts of the body to the brain. Actually, however, they are more like rows of tiny wireless stations, flashing messages from one point to the next over minute gaps. Where these little gaps occur in the nerve, the nerve-end branch out like the boughs of a tree, and the message is "wired" across from one branch to the next. Medical men are not sure as to the precise use of this gap, but they think it acts as a sort of "shock absorber" which softens a sensation before it strikes the delicate nerve centers. Sometimes, however, the nerve-ends curl away from each other and then no message can get through. In this way men can make themselves insensible to pain. Some of the natives of India, known as Fakirs, often do this, and actually go to sleep while lying on a bed of sharp spikes. Nobody knows how they do it. Probably, by constantly

"Willing" themselves not to feel pain, they affect these nerve-ends. Fear, too, will produce this state. When a rabbit is fascinated by a snake it becomes rigid, and after a few seconds, with the exception of the heartbeats and breathing, it is almost like a dead creature.

The brain has become disconnected from the body because the nerve ends have curled away from each other, and left the animal powerless and insensible to anything. A man recently condemned for murder deliberately killed his brain in this way. He refused to eat, speak, or move, and in the course of a few days he had cut his brain off from his body at the little nerve-gaps. Even when burnt he could feel nothing.

The Work of

Wilkie Collins.

On September 22, 1889, Wilkie Collins, one of the best of English novelists, died. Although not in the same category as Dickens, Lytton, or Thackeray, as a novelist, yet he deservedly holds a high place as a writer. Like Dickens, he was at first destined for the law, but soon turned his attention to literature, and his first novel "Antonina" or the "Fall of Rome," appeared, which was accorded an encouraging reception. Four years later a second novel "Basil," made Collins more widely known. He then became associated with Dickens first upon "Household Words," then on "All the Year Round," "The Ragged Dicks," (1852), and "Hide and Seek," showed a distinct advance in literary workmanship as also "After Dark" (1856), "The Dead Secret," (1857), and "The Queen of Hearts" (1859). But it was on the publication of the "Woman of White," (1860), that Collins gained general recognition as a novelist of power. In character incident and development of plot, it showed great skill and mastery. In 1862 appeared "No Name," and in 1863 "My Miscellanies." In 1868 another famous book "The Moonstone" came out, followed in rapid succession by "Man and Wife" (1870), "Poor Miss Finch" (1872), "Miss or Mrs." (1873), "The New Magdalen" (1875), "The Law and the Lady" (1876), and "The Two Destinies" (1876). Collins visited America in the seventies, and gave readings from his works. His later novels were "The Hunted" (1878), "The Fallen Leaves" (1878), "A Rogue's Life" (1878), "Jezabel's Daughter" (1880), "The Black Robe" (1881), "Heart and Science" (1883) "I say No" (1884).

SATISFACTORY PLATES.

Anyone unfortunate enough to be obliged to use artificial teeth should have the very best set it is possible to secure. Many have found cause for complaint in their inability to keep plates in place. This is due to a poor fit. The Dentist may not be to blame, as one's mouth is constantly changing, only slightly perhaps, but enough to outgrow the plate. There is no remedy for this but have a new plate made. We make a specialty of Plate Work and extracting. sept 17, t. h. s. f.

Let's Show 'Em.

Now, vacation days are over And we're back, again to town, From the sea or fields of clover, And our face and hands are brown; Let's remember we are finished, For a while, with idle fun, That our holidaying's over, And there's work that must be done!

We have played with merry laughter Every game that came our way, When fatigue came hurrying after, We still laughed and called it play; And nothing, then, could hinder, And nothing, then, could hold, Us back from fun and pleasure That lured like minted gold.

And now, a debt we're owing— It's up to us to pay, And who's not game for showing We had the right to play? And as we, then, were willing, Nor sought to quit nor shirk, Let us prove that, good at playing, We know better how to work— Edmund Leamey, in Forbes Magazine (N. Y.).

Remember the Orphans.

BELEVEDERE COLLECTION TOMORROW.

This being the eve of the Belvedere Orphans' Collection, may I trespass on your generosity once again to make a final appeal for a record sum tomorrow. You have been lavish with your column heretofore, and I do not wish to take advantage unduly of same, realizing the commercial value of your space, but will content myself with one last plea for those helpless innocents at Belvedere. Let all please remember that the good Sisters are not asking for themselves. When they gave up their lives to the service of God in the sanctuary of the Convent, one principal vow was Poverty, and they need very little except the essential food they eat and clothing they wear. It is very different, however, for the little ones. They are even increasing numerically and their needs are never fully covered. Think of the vast amount of fuel, to keep 155 little ones in comfort this winter.

Think of the loaves of bread that are needed, the tea, sugar, meats and other life necessities to fill so many little stomachs, and then remember the vast amount of warm clothing, and all these requirements can only be met by your help tomorrow, Mr. Catholic Citizen. True, non-catholic friends will doubtless help us as they have always helped, and may God prosper them for it, but to each and every Catholic man and woman belongs the absolute responsibility for these girl orphans. Don't let us be derelict in our duty to them. Each must do his individual part in the upkeep of this institution if we are to maintain our proud record of past years in similar work. So, when you have read this last plea, this heart-to-heart appeal, get your amount ready for tomorrow, whether it be only one dime or twenty dollars. Make a sacrifice, please, remembering that "who gives to the poor, lends to the Lord and will be rewarded a hundred fold." Let Monday's newspapers tell the story of the unselfishness on our part, but this can only be accomplished by an unusual effort on the part of every Catholic reader of this paper. I appreciate your courtesy, Mr. Editor, as a valuable donation to the cause, and extend you the thanks of those 155 little orphans.—L.

The Home Dressmaker should have a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Fashion Cuts. These will be found useful to refer to from time to time.

A PRETTY CAPE "SUIT"

3993-3637 Very becoming and exceedingly popular is this one piece dress and attractive cape. One may have the dress finished with slashed edges. Gabardine, ratine and sponge are good materials for this style. Taffeta and knitted fabrics are also desirable.

The dress is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The Cape in 4 Sizes: Medium, 38-40 and Large 42-44 inches bust measure for Ladies and 14 and 16 years for Misses. It will require 8 yards of 36 inch material for a medium size, for cape and dress. The width at the foot about 2 yards.

TWO separate patterns mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

A PRETTY DRESS STYLE FOR THE GROWING GIRL

4683. Smart, girlish and a long waist, with graceful lines throughout, are here illustrated. The model is good for the new prints and also for serge and knitted fabrics.

The Pattern is cut in 3 Sizes: 10, 12 and 16 years. A 14 year size requires 5 yards of 32 inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. in silver or stamps.

1911 LEAGUE MATCH.

C. L. B. Resall—STAR 8
C. L. B. 0—Played on Id-
gley Grounds, July 29th, 1911.

There was a smaller attendance than at any rate smaller than usual, after the "big" game of last year, but the game was played last evening. At this time it was found that only the C.L.B.
were present, and it was as if a scratch would be the result,
but taking on J. L. Noyan, Jr.,
"sub" for goal keeper, the Brigade pluckily decided to contest the game. The following were the players who took part in the game:
Joe Long (captain), J. L. Noyan, and turning up just before half time were: R. G. English, R. Power, Winnicombe, Marshall, Brophy,
Ryan, Collins and E. Power.

J. L. Noyan—Noonan, Garland, Joe Warren, Peters, Christoff, Richard, Goodridge and A. Long. With such unequal teams we were apparently over for the Star, and the score shows it to be a slight affair, we must give the credit, doing duty for the Brigade with such odds, considering the fact of their not having played together in practice, or otherwise.
The last League appearance was to see a close and interesting struggle between these old rivals, we were much disappointed at the appearance of a full Brigade

SIDE TALKS

By Ruth Cameron.

TWO WOMEN.

"Oh, dear, I'm so tired and I've got to have a two hour train trip
before I can get home and lie down," a woman
said to the other
day. "It does seem to me I couldn't stand it."

As I listened to her I thought of the other woman who had recently met me. The second woman had been working very hard up to the last minute when she started on her vacation. The night before she had unexpectedly been obliged to sit up half the night with a sick relative. She had worked at the office in the morning and then started on her vacation.
"You must be dead," I said.

"I was pretty tired at noon," she replied, "but I rested on the train coming down."

"What a contrast!"
I said. "One fretted, one rested."

She looked on the train trip as nothing unparalyzingly tiring, the other as a chance to rest.

It was exactly the same trip. The difference lay not in the thing itself at all but in the two people's reactions to it.

The woman who said, "I rested on the train coming down" is a woman who stands up wonderfully under the strain of a combination of a responsible position and a good deal of responsibility. Plainly that is one of her sources of power. She knows how to rest when she gets a chance, or even all a chance.

When she has a trip like that to take she is tired she takes off her hat and sits herself back, she relaxes, she closes her eyes and relaxes.
She tells me that she has often fallen asleep this way and arrived at her destination without any trouble.

Extravagance is always more appealing than thrift, whether it be extravagance of money or of time or strength. But it is not appealing to those who have to suffer its consequences. And self extravagance is by no means the least of these three offences.

She seems to think there is something creditable in her determination not to save herself. To my mind it is the height of folly and selfishness.
The day is coming when she is going to have to give up completely. And then someone else will suffer. She will think she has done all she could and should not be blamed. But she hasn't done all she could, if she hasn't been willing to try to save herself.

Extravagance is always more appealing than thrift, whether it be extravagance of money or of time or strength. But it is not appealing to
those who have to suffer its consequences. And self extravagance is by no means the least of these three offences.

The Shoe Man PARKER & MONROE The Shoe Man

A Contest.

Three darkies were unloading a car of fire-brick in one of the large steel plants of the East, and before they were finished a locomotive moved the car from the brick shed, thus preventing them from finishing the job.
The darkies slouched down in the hay and took a "spell."

A well-dressed man happened along and, upon looking into the car, exclaimed: "I don't believe I ever saw a set of laster men. I'll give you dollars to the latest man here."

Darkey Number one jumped up and said: "Boss, folks say dat Ah is de laiddest slegah around' here." Darkey Number two leisurely sat up and said: "Day all say 'dat Ah's too flash to walk a mile for a watahmation." Darkey Number three then drawled out in a very tired voice:
"Mistah, jes, shov' dat money in mah pocket."

When the well-dressed man was gone, the winner of the money said:
"Bustus Jones, who am dat sport dat jes handed me five bucks?"
