THE newspaper man is blamed for whole lot of things he can't help, such as using partiality in mentioning visitors, giving news about some folks and leaving others out, &c. He simply prints all the news he can find. Some people inform him of such things, and others do not. An editor should not be expected to know the names and residences of all know the names and residences of all your uncles, aunts and coustns even it he should happen to see them get on or off the train. Tell us about it. It's news that makes a newspaper, and every man, woman and child can be associate editor it they only will. Never apologize when you give this bit of information to the editor, for if there lives one so dead that he has lost his appreciation of such tavors he has lost his appreciation of such tavors he is dead, indeed, to every virtue that imparts value to a paper.

WATFORD, APRIL 12, 1912.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Happiness is a perfume that cannot be shed over another without a few drops falling on one's self.

The poorest girls in the world are those not taught to work. There are thousands of them. Rich parents have petted them, and they have been taught to despise labor and depend upon others for a him and he will be surprised to living, and are perfectly helpless. The most forlorn women belong to this class. It is the duty of parents to protect their daughters from this deplorable condition.

Men are too apt to leave their prayers to priests and nuns, women and children, Bishop M. F. Fallon told his audience at Our Lady of the Rosary church, in Detroit, Monday night. Prayer should not be the mere lip service but the breath of life in the nostrils of the Christand nuns, to the 'professional prayerists,' and to their women and children the saying of prayers. They say they are the bread-winners and can-help the man who is dependent to the end on the 'professional prayer-ists.' Prayer is the means by which man puts himself into effective communication with God. It calls for the greatest development of the intellect, the emotion and the will. Consider how much broader is the panorama before the mind of the woman who sees the love of Christ as she mutters her prayers than that of a man, however high and powerful, who thinks of nothing but the petty, material things of this earth."

Power to weld together all independent telephone systems of the province was given to the Ontario Railway Board last month in the legislature when the "telephone" bill introduced by Hon. I. B. Lucas was passed in committee of the whole. This important piece of legislation not only permits a joining together of the independent telephone system, but also provides for an interchange of communications between the different systems connected. The bill also makes it clear that no municipality can grant an exclusive franchise to any telephone system without a vote of the people, and this clause, it is expected, will be objected to by the Bell Company.

According to what appears to be very authoritative information, the annual military camps will hereafter be extended to fifteen-day affairs. Heretofore the training has been conducted at the different centres for 12 days each summer, but the railway companies have received instructions to carry the men to and from the camps at Kingston, Petawawa, Niagara Falls and the western training grounds, which London and Goderich are after, in accordance with a 15-day program. Some time ago the military men endeavored to have the training made for eighteen days instead of twelve, and it is now thought that Col. Sam Hughes has acceded to a degree. The pay will also be increased to 75c. for recruits, 85c. for seasoned men, and 15c. per day efficiency pay in addition.

An Aid to Success.

In an article specially addressed to young men with a view to encouraging them in habits of economy, the Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst, the wellknown preacher and social reformer of New York, writes :-

'Although five cents a day rescued from one's spendings is not much it may in the final issue make all the difference there is between being buried in the potter's field and owning a comfortable house on a main avenue.

"If a young fellow begins by putting aside five cents a day the ambition to accumulate will grow upon discover presently how many places there are where he can cut off some unnecessary and perhaps foolish little expenditure that yields him only a momentary gratification and one, it may be, that is more to his harm than his advantage.

And the moral effect of the economic habit is that it tends to bolster up a fellow's desire to lead a straight, clean, temperate life. The man who is ambitious to see his pile grow will be restrained by that ambition from loose indulgences "Too many men leave to priests that shrink the pocket-book in the same proportion that they pander to the body.

"Even a small bank account or a single small share of stock is a sort not be expected to pray. But God of salvation to a young fellow growing up in the midst of the allurements of a spendthirft society."

> SOMETHING THAT SHOULD BE RUBBED SOMETHING THAT SHOULD BE RUBBED IN.—Whenever pain is felt in the limbs or back, take Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil; pour a little in the hand, and applying it to the surface beneath which the pain lies, rub briskly. If the first application does not afford relief, which is not usually the case, keep rubbing. The Oil will gradually penetrate to the affected part and reliet will come.

Hardest Thing First.

There is never so easy a time to do a hard thing as the first opportunity we get for its doing. Every postponement then only makes the task harder. It may seem stupendously hard when we first face it; but if that is the time we ought to do it, it will never be so easy again. Efficient workers have learned, therefore, always to put their hardest tasks ahead of their easier ones, when they can take their choice. The early morning, immediately upon entering the day's work, is a good time to plunge into the hardest things that await us. After that it is a simple matter to pass on to the easier tasks. and get them done. But how often we take the invitingly easier ones first, and find by night time that the day has frittered away on them, while the hardest one is left over to be done "to-morrow," as it has been for so many days in the past! Rising up early in the morning seemed to be a favorite practise among the Bible men of strength when they had hard work on hand. We may be sure they did not rise up early in order to do the thing late that afternoon. With most of us, hardest things first, or hardest things not at all, must become the habit of

How to Tell If Your Hair is Diseased.

Even if you have a luxuriant head of hair, you may want to know whether it is in a healthy condition or not. 98% of the people need a hair tonic.

Pull a hair out of your head, if the bulb at the end of the root is white and shrunken, it proves that the hair is diseased, and requires prompt treatment if its loss would be avoided. If the bulb is pink and full, the hair is healthy.

We want everyone whose hair requires treatment to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We promise that it shall not cost anything if it does not give satisfactory results. It is designed to overcome dandruff, relieve scalp irritation, to stimulate the hair noots, tighten the hair already in the head, grow hair and cure baldness.

During the time the ark was floating about over the tall mountains mice and rats became an intolerable nuisance to the people on the great vessel, and they complained to Noah that everything was being literally devoured by the pesky vermin. That august personage forthwith called the male lion to his side and began to stroke his back, whereupon the great beast sneezed, and, lo, a full sized cat was blown from his nostrils!

THE LAZY ORIENT.

Leisure and Languer Dominate Life In the Far East.

The Turk in spring will sit on the hillsides and smoke and dream for ten minutes at a time, sometimes for when you have a Turkish student who makes "kef" in class he is hopeless. No part of the lessons sinks into his mind. He speaks when you call on him and tries to answer your questions, but his thoughts are far away.

I have stood leaning against our terrace wall in the beauty of spring and gazed for fifteen minutes at a terrace wall in the beauty of spring and gazed for fifteen minutes at a time at certain shrubs and flowers which were bright with sunshine until my thoughts seemed to soar away beyond the confines of space and of time. It is as easy to be mystic in the east as it is to be practical in the west. The difference between east and the west, in a word, is this: Here we do not like to sit down; there they do not like to get up. Here leisure is a sin; there it is a virtue. Our habit of crowding every moment, of seeking recreation in violent and exciting forms, is the result of our climate. It is hard to sit still and relax and desire nothing, not even amusement. Such a life, feverish in its activity, does not make one really happy and is bound to lead at last to a breakdown.

In the east one does not have to do something in order to be happy. One does not have to plan theatre paran the east one does not have to do something in order to be happy. One does not have to plan theatre parties, games, crowded excursions, in order to be happy. One is happy merely to exist. One can sit down and be happy. Repose is as natural as activity is to us. happy. Repose tivity is to us.

For this reason I have often thought For this reason I have often thought that the east may in time become our great sanitarium. Just as the orientals who come to our country learn to work and to hustle, so Anglo-Saxons who go to the east learn to repose. A few years there will change ones reatless, nervous habits into ones restless, nervous habits into oalm and poise. You cease to worry about things. Desire, which is the chief source of our anxieties, falls from you. If you can't do a thing you have planned on you say: "Never mind. It is not important." If there mind. It is not important." If there is something you need, but cannot get, you say, "Well, I can do without it." If there is a play you want to see, but cannot; a trip you want to make, a friend you want to visit, and things stand in the way, you say, "Some other time." Thus the east creeps in upon you with its laziness, its repose and its feeling of resignation, and you grow fat and healthy and forget that you have nerves. Reader, if you want to know what Reader, if you want to know what paradise is on this earth visit Constantinople and the Bosporus in the month of May.

This is attributed partly to the climate, but principally to its feeding on a rich wild clover called "zulla," found only in the Province of Cadiz, which people there say is the finest food in the world for horses. The zulla is very rich in sustenance and grows to three or four feet in height and with more luxuriance in chalky, clayey soil, such as is found here in the vineyards which produce the famous Jerez wine or sherry. It is never sowh or cultivated, as it seems to grow best wild.—London Spectator. wild.-London Spectator.

Crude Mining Methods.

Mica mining in the Nellore district, Mics mining in the Nellore district, India, though a highly profitable industry, is carried on practically as it was by the natives a hundred years ago. The mica vein is followed up by underhand stoping which results in the production of tortuous, worm like holes sometimes extending to a depth of 300 feet below the surface. The mica excavated is brought to the surface by a string of coolies working hand over hand on rudely constructed bamboo ladders. On account of the accumulation of water during the night when work ceases all sinking operations are delayed each morning for an hour or more while the water is being dipped out with buckets by

DARK ROOM TESTING

Every child on reaching the age of seven years should have the eyes exam-ed. Many children have defective vision, and it often happens that one eye only is affected. This throws all the work on the better eye while the other through disuse frequently loses its func-tion entirely. With proper lense correc-tion this trouble will be wholly overcome.

If accompanied by parents we will be glad to examine children's eyes free of charge.

How They Gained Time

Two Lovers Managed Their Affair Diplomatically

By JANET LITTLETON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Elmer Worthington, a banker of both his daughter Mabel into his private waiting room and said to her:

"My dear, I am very much troubled at having seen you walking with this actor, who seems to have thrust himself upon you." "You are mistaken, papa, in assuming that Mr. Deane has thrust himself "Well, he is an actor, and I wish you to understand that no actor is welcome in my house.' "The profession of the stage is an artistic calling, and I consider it above buying and selling merchandise or money. But you are not right in assuming that Mr. Deane is an actor. He was an actor, but is now a playwright, which means that he is a member of the literary profession. He is the son of a gentleman, has receiv-

SAW IN HIM HIS WOULD BE SON-IN-LAW. ed a college education and went on the stage for a short time in order to prepare himself for the work of writing

"Playwright or actor, his associa tions are not our associations, and I'll have none of him. Don't let me hear of your ever being seen in his company

There was a rebellious fire in the girl's eyes as she left her father that showed him the affair had gone further than he had supposed, Mr. Worthington was not a man to give an order without taking pains to insure its being carried out. He did not sit down calmly, relying upon his daugh-ter, on reflection, obeying him, nor did he assume that if she persisted in her infatuation he could prevent her. He hired a detective to watch Mr Deane and report to him if the actor were ever again seen in Mabel's company, after which drastic measures would be taken.

It was not long before the detective reported that Deane and Miss Worthington were seen sitting side by side at a matinee. The meeting was reported to the banker, who told his daughter that he had heard of her dis-obedience to his order and if she defied him again he would send her away where she would have no opportunity to see the actor. A clandestine meeting took place soon after this, in which Mabel told her lover of her father's threat, which she knew he would make good.

The same evening she had an interview with her father, in which she told him that he must look to Mr. Deane to fulfill his orders. If the playwright joined her he did it on his own responsibility, and her father must call him and not her to account for such action. This was something of a relief to the parent, who would rather deal with a man than a woman, even if that woman were his own daughter. He did not doubt that Mabel would assist her lover rather than her father in any contest that might arise between the two, but he considered himself a match for both.

Within a fortnight his detective reported that the lovers had been seen together. Mr. Worthington spoke to his daughter about the matter and asked her if it were true. She replied that, as she had informed him, he must settle all such questions with Mr.

Mabel left him without a word, and he knew that the fight with the play-wright was on. He sent the note, as he informed his daughter he would, and received a courteous reply, as fol-

My Dear Sir—If your informant on the day and hour of this alleged meeting had passed my house in A., the suburb in which I live when at home, and looked up at my study window he would have seen me diligently engaged at my work, which was on that occasion putting in the dialogue of a play the scenario of which I had just finished. I understood from your daughter that you had for-bidden her to meet me again. I have the nonor to be your obedient servant, HARWOOD DEANE.

Mr. Worthington called his detective for an explanation, and the latter admitted that he had not seen the lovers together. He had seen Miss Worthington enter a friend's house and had seen a man who looked very like Deane enter the same house half an hour later. After leaving Mr. Worthington the spy took a train immediately for A., went to Deane's house and saw him at work at his study window. Having reported the fact to his employer, the latter hired another detective to watch the playwright's house.

It was not long before the city de tective reported another meeting. Mr. Worthington took a memorandum of the day, hour and minute and sent it to the detective at A. The spy, who was a woman, living opposite the Deanes, reported that at that time she saw Mr. Deane writing at his desk near the study window. Half an hour later she made a note of the fact that his mother came to the window, noticed that the sun was shining too brightly on her son's desk and pulled down the shade.

This seemed to establish an alibi. Instead of writing a threatening note to the playwright, Mr. Worthington simply reported the fact to him that he had been again informed of a meeting of Mr. Deane and his daughter Deane wrote a reply stating that he had not left his residence at A. on the day he was reported to have met Miss Worthington.

A third report of a meeting between the lovers came to Mr. Worthington, but not through either of his detectives. The lovers were said to have been seen walking in a park near the center of the city. The person reporting the meeting was a sister of Mr. Worthington, who, in the event of his daughter's death or disinheritance, would inherit the principal part of his property. He telephoned at once to his spy in A., asking if the playwright was seen in his home on the day and hour named. The reply came that Mr. Deane had not been seen there after 10 o'clock in the morning, when he had driven out with his mother. Since he was reported to have been seen walking in the park with Mabel at 3 in the afternoon he would have had ample time to go to the city to keep an appointment at that hour. Mr. Worthington, who was now moving more cautiously, wrote Mr. Deane, stating the facts and asking for an explanation. Mr. Deane's reply contained affidavits of three different persons that they had seen him driving in L., a suburb of the city, fifty miles distant, between 8 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the day in question.

When Mr. Worthington read these replies his brow lowered. He was aware that his sister was next of kin after his daughter, and he at once suspected her of plotting to prevent Ma-bel's marriage. The more he thought of such a scheme the more feasible it seemed to him. He remembered that if a girl set her heart on a man and meets with a disappointment she is very apt not to marry any one else. If Miss Amelia Worthington could secure Mabel's disinheritance, that would be even a better scheme than to prevent her marriage. If he had been convinced of a plot on the part of his sister he would have consented to his daugh. ter's marriage at once. But the matter was merely a suspicion.

However, he was not sure but that some one was acting in opposition to Deane and Mabel, and this mollified him considerably. When one evening Mabel asked him to take her to the theater he consented. It was the first night of a new play, but the old gentleman knew nothing about that. All he did know was that as the play progressed the audience, including himself, became very much impressed with it and finally enthusiastic. When the curtain fell at the end of the third act shouts were made for the author. When he appeared Mr. Worthington found himself joining in the storm of applause. Then, putting on his glasses and taking another look at the recipient, what was his astonishment when he saw in him his would be som-

Mr. Deane's play was reported by the critics in the morning newspapers as a great hit, and the playwright found himself famous. Not only a living, but a fortune was assured. From the mo-ment of Mr. Worthington's leaving the playhouse he ceased his opposition to his daughter's match, his change of mind not only being due to Deane's success, but to what Worthington sup posed to be a plot on the part of his sister to get possession of his property after his death. So one day, after a conference between him and his daughter, she left him with his consent to her matriage.

One day some time after the wedding Mr. Worthington, who had become patter fond of his son-in-law, expressed the opinion to him that Miss Amelia Worthington had laid a piotto secure his property.
"I can't permit any one to suffer unjustly," said Deane, "so I must exonerate your sister from any such suspicion. This involves a confession. When as an actor I was studying the technique of the stage I took a double part, requiring my appearance on the boards when I was not there. A dummy was constructed that was my exact twin. When you put detectives upon me this dummy was placed in my study window and afterward, when I drove out with my mother, was carried wrapped in a shawl into the curriage. I got out at the station and my mother drove to L. with the dummy sitting beside her, while I went to meet Mabel in the park,"

MAGNET MARVELS

Modern Giants That Raise Tons of Metal at a Time.

LIFT BILLETS HOT OR COLD.

A Single One of These Monsters With Invisible Magio Fingers Will Do the Work of Half a Hundred Men-The Magnet In Medicine and In Surgery.

Those who have watched a toy magnet lift up pins and needles and marveled not a little at the unseen power that causes the bits of metal to jump might well be excused for standing aghast at the sight of a modern giant magnet picking up several tons of iron and steel from the scrap heap and conveying it with ease and rapidity to the melting furnace beyond.

So great has been the commercial development of the magnet that it can lift five and a half tons. These giant magnets used in iron and steel mills can pick up hot as well as cold billets. and a single one of this character will displace half a hundred workmen.

A further improvement may be noted in the combination of skull cracker and magnet. The skull cracker is a huge pear shaped ball of iron suspended by a chain to a hook and steel ropes. This skull cracker is dropped with great force on scrap metal to be broken up for remelting. It breaks the metal into conveniently small pieces and is lifted up and down by the magnet until the scrap is reduced to prop-er size. Then the invisible fingers of the magnet gather up the small pieces and carry them to the melting furnace. The entire operation is accomplished in one-hundredth of the time formerly required by manual labor.

More recently magnets have been employed in the milling industry to pick out small particles of metal that frequently get into flour and cause explosions through friction when they come in contact with the big rollers. Not a particle of metal can escape the powerful magnets suspended over the chute through which the grain passes. In mining and metallurgical work the magnet has become an indispensable labor saving agent. The magnetic separation of ores has saved thousands of dollars to mining companies. When the rocks are crushed and pulverized powerful magnets gather up the infinitesimal parts of metal released from their beds and convey them to the smelting furnace. Quantities of ore can thus be saved from old tailings that were formerly considered pure waste.

Recently commercial magnets were employed for the novel purpose of raising sunken treasures. A big cargo of nails was lost in twenty fathoms of water, and the loss seemed irreparable until some enterprising genius raised them easily and cheaply by means of a magnet suspended from a derrick by steel cables.

magnets hollow steel castings are used. in which magnetized coils are placed. The latter are built up of alternate layers of copper and asbestos and insulated from the cast steel frames by thick sheets of mica. A magnet of this construction is proof against heat and cold and free from the danger of short circuiting. There is nothing com-bustible used in its manufacture, and it can gather up a ton of hot scraps of steel with comparative ease.

But the invisible fingers of the magnet can pick up the most delicate splinter of steel no larger than a sewing needle as easily as it lifts a huge Iron or steel beam weighing a ton or The small magnets have there fore found as great a field of usefulness as the big ones. In all trades they are employed for handling pieces of metal too small for fingers to pick up easily. In a medical way they are used successfully for extracting iron or steel cinders from the eye and also for drawing out of the body needles and pieces of metal that have found lodgment there. A dressmaker who had inadvertently swallowed a dozen needles was operated upon in this way, with entire success. For several days she was placed under a powerful magnet until every needle had been drawn from her body. In a therapeutic way magnets have proved of value in destroying ulcerous and cancerous growths, and even blood diseases of some kinds have yielded to their curative effects. A man with the point of a dagger broken off in his body had it removed by a magnet. Another patient had been suffering from a painful ulcer on the chin for many years without finding relief. He was finally cured by treat-ment with a magnet, which drew from his chin a lot of steel filings that had caused all the trouble. The filings had found lodgment in a cut in his face one day when working before a turning lathe. No immediate trouble had followed, and the man had forgotten the incident until the magnet drew them out and gave the ulcer a chance to heal.-George E. Walsh in Chicago Record-Herald.

A Pertinent Question. There are great men who cannot spell, and small people who object to them. "Spell 'cat,'" said the teacher to the boy at the tail end of the class. "K-a-t," replied the boy. "Silly," replied the teacher. "Can't you spell "Well," replied the sensible cat?" boy, "what does k-a-t spell?"-London Chronicle.

other forms of nerve troubles are at their worst, and that then, more than any other time, a blood-making, nerve-restoring tonic is needed.

The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening, while purgatives only gallop through the bowels, leaving you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine, for they actually make the new, rich, red blood that feeds the starved nervous disorders. They cure also such other forms of spring troubles as headaches, poor appetite, weakness in the limbs, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact you unfailingly bring new health and strength to weak, tired and depressed men, women and children. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
