The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

National Library of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol → (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ▼ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Bibliothèque nationale du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole → signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ▼ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

PREFACE.

In one of Cicero's many confidential letters to his friend Atticus he asks, "What will history say of me six hundred years hence?" Thrice six hundred years have flown and history still vacillates between senseless censure and sycophantish praise regarding Cicero the statesman : regarding Cicero the orator the almost universal verdict is, and has ever been, —micat inter omnes velut inter ignes Luna minores. Every succeeding generation acquiesces in the judgment of the preceding and adds the weight of its authority to the ever accumulating glory of the illustrious Roman. Without the charm of his living voice, without the subtle spell of his urbanity and personal magnetism, Cicero still by the eloquence of the silent page holds undisputed sway in the realms of oratory.

* * * * *

The Catilinarian speeches have always been regarded with peculiar favor, both on account of their intrinsic merit and on account of the thrilling interest of the events that produced them. This little book contains the first of the four speeches,—one of the prose selections to be read for the next three years by candidates for University Matriculation and for Teachers' Certificates.

INTRODUCTION.

LIFE OF CICERO.

Marcus Tullius Cicero was born on the third day of January, B.C. 106, at Arpinum, a town of Latium. His family was of equestrian rank. Marcus and his brother Quintus received the rudiments of their education in their father's house. When Marcus was about fourteen years of age the brothers were taken to Rome, and placed under the best teachers in the capital. Among their instructors at this time was the poet Archias. After assuming the toga virilis at sixteen years, Marcus frequented the forum and heard all the great orators of the day. It was at this period that he learned the principles of Roman jurisprudence from Scævola, the augur.

Cicero served as a soldier but once—in his 18th year, in the Social War, under the father of Pompey the great. Thenceforth he devoted himself with wonderful assiduity to the pursuit of his favorite studies. His masters in philosophy were Phædrus, the Epicurean; Diodotus, the Stoic; and Philo, of the New Academy. Under the Rhodian Molo he cultivated his oratorical powers.

Cicero began to practise as an advocate at the age of 25. His first extant speech was on behalf of P. Quintius. Two years later ill-health sent him abroad. He spent six months at Athens in the study of philosophy and rhetoric. From Athens he passed to Asia Minor and Rhodes. After an absence of two years he returned to Rome with invigorated health and ripened powers.

His oratorical success was immediate and signal, notwithstanding the popularity of his great rival, Hortensius. In his 31st year he was elected quæstor. He spent the year of his quæstorship in Sicily, where he gained the affections of the provincials by his clemency and integrity. After his return to Rome his forensic engagements occupied all his time for four years. In the year 70 B.C. his career is marked by the famous impeachment of Verres. In 69 B.C. he held the position of curule ædile. He held the prætorship in 66 B.C., in this year defending Cluentius and delivering the celebrated speech in favor of the Manilian Law. Two years later he gained the supreme object of his ambition, and received the consulship, with Antonius as colleague. He began the duties of the office on the 1st of January, 63 B.C.

Up to this time Cicero had sided with the democratic party, but his ingrained sympathies were with the aristocracy, and he now openly deserted his old allies. In his consulship Cicero, by his energy and watchfulness, crushed the formidable conspiracy of Catiline, and thus won for himself the illustrious title of Pater patriæ. The summary execution of the ringleaders of the plot was an unconstitutional act, which laid the consul open to subsequent attack. Cicero had many enemies, and even the popular party whose cause he had deserted now began to turn against him. The most implacable of his foes was Clodius, a demagogue, whom he had mortally offended by giving evidence against him in a trial for sacrilege. In 58 B.C. Clodius, being tribune, introduced a bill, aimed directly at Cicero, "interdicting from fire and water any one who should be found to have put a Roman citizen to death untried." Cicero anticipated the issue and fled to Thessalonica. In his absence he was declared an exile, and his town and country houses were plundered. During his banishment of sixteen months he displayed unmanly pusillanimity. As Livy says, "he faced none of his calamities as a man should, except death." Meanwhile the orator's friends at Rome had not forgotten him, and in Sept., 57 B.C., he returned to his beloved city amid the tumultuous acclamations of the assembled people.

Cicero had little to do with national affairs during the next five years. In 52 B.C. he was sent to the East as governor of Cicilia, where he exhibited unrivalled talents for administration. On his return to Rome in 49 B.C. the civil war between Cæsar and Pompey had broken out. After much hesitation he decided to join Pompey in Greece. After the battle of Pharsalia in 48 B.C. he returned to Italy, and was generously pardoned by Cæsar. During the next four years Cicero composed the greater part of his rhetorical and philosophical productions.

The assassination of Cæsar on the Ides of March, 44 B.C., brought Cicero again before the public, this time as leader of the republican party. With vehement invective he delivered his Philippic orations against Antony. This proved his destruction. On the formation of the Second Triumvirate by Octavius, Antony, and Lepidus, Cicero's name was placed on the fatal list of the proscribed. The evil news came to Cicero at his Tusculan villa. At the entreaty of his brother he endeavored to escape. The myrmidons of the triumvirs were soon upon his track. With singular courage he met his tragic fate. His severed head and hands were carried to Antony, whose wife, Fulvia, the widow of Clodius, gloated with demoniac delight upon the pallid face of the dead statesman, and, with inhuman malevolence, pierced with her needle the eloquent tongue of Rome's greatest orator. Thus, in 43 B.C., perished Cicero, and with him Roman eloquence.

CICERO'S ORATORY.

"Cicero was above all things an Orator. To be the greatest orator of Rome, the equal of Demosthenes, was his supreme desire, and to it all other studies were made subservient. Poetry, history, law, philosophy, were regarded by him only as so many qualifications without which an orator could not be perfect. He could not conceive a great orator except as a great man, nor a good orator except as a good man."

"Some of his speeches are deliberative, others judicial, others descriptive, others personal; and while in the two latter classes his talents are nobly conspicuous, the first is as ill-adapted as the second is pre-eminently suitable to his special gifts. As a pleader for an accused person, Cicero cannot, we may say could not, be surpassed. . . . In invective, notwithstanding his splendid anger against Catiline, he does not appear at his happiest . . . The truth is that his character was all sympathy. . . . It was not his nature to feel anger long; it evaporates almost in the speaking. . . . No man who lived was ever more forgiving. . . . He was pre-eminently fitted for the oratory of panegyric. And beyond doubt he has succeeded in this difficult department better than any other orator, ancient or modern. Whether he praises his country, its religion, its laws, its citizens, its senate, or its individual magistrates, he does it with enthusiasm, a splendor, a geniality, and an inconceivable richness of felicitous expression which makes us love the man as much as we admire his genius."

"For deliberative eloquence it has been already said that Cicero was not well fitted, since on great questions of state it is not so much the orator's fire or even his arguments that move as the authority that attaches to his person. And in this lofty source of influence Cicero was deficient. Cicero was always applauded; men like Crassus, Pompey, or Caesar, were followed."

"Even in his own special department of judicial eloquence, Cicero's mind was not able to cope with the great principles of law. . . . Without any firm basis of opinion he was compelled to judge questions by the results which he could foresee at the moment, and by the floating popular standard, to which, as an advocate, he had naturally turned."

"In nothing is Cicero more conspicuous than in his clear and life-like descriptions. His portraits are photographic. . . . His power of description is equalled by the readiness of his wit. Raillery, banter, sarcasm, jest, irony,—light and grave, the whole artillery of wit, is always at his command. . . . His chief faults are exaggeration, vanity, and an inordinate love of words. The former is at once a conscious rhetorical artifice, and an unconscious effect of his vehement and excitable temperament. His vanity is more deplorable; and the only palliation it admits is the fact that it is a defect which rarely goes with a bad heart. His wordiness is of all his faults the most seductive and the most conspicuous, and procured for him, even in his life-time, the epithet of Asiatic. . . . His wealth of illustration chokes the idea, as creepers choke the forest tree."

INTRODUCTION.

"Nevertheless, if we are to judge his oratory, by its effect on those for whom it was intended, and to whom it was addressed ; as the vehement, gorgeous, impassioned utterance of an Italian speaking to Italians, his countrymen, whom he knew, whom he chafed, whom he mastered ; we shall not be able to refuse him a place as equal to the greatest of those whose eloquence has swayed the destinies of the world."

—CRUTTWELL.

CICERO'S CHARACTER.

"An Italian rather than a Roman, he possessed in a larger degree than any of his contemporaries the perfervid Italian temperament: excitable as a child, vain as a woman, eloquent and witty as an Athenian, living wholly in the moment, capable of the wildest exultation and the most abject despair, susceptible without conscious insincerity to the attractions of characters the most opposite to each other—he numbered friends among witty debauchees like Cælius, Epicurean art connoisseurs like Atticus, litterateurs and statesmen like Cæsar, and Puritanic stoics like Cato and Brutus."

"The features in Cicero's character which appeal most strongly to Christian sympathies are three in number: (1) his humanity ; (2) his domestic affections ; (3) his intellectual industry."

"Against these virtues must be set off his insincerity, vanity, and jealousy ; his insincerity 'almost shouts' throughout his speeches and letters, but it had excuses. From a temperament naturally excitable, and passing in a moment from extreme love to extreme hate, exaggerated language comes not unnaturally: still less unnatural is it, if to this temperament be added the training and instincts of a lawyer and orator. The former completed the mischief for which natural excitability paved the way. Of his egotism, vanity, and jealousy it would not be difficult to find examples."

"Here, then, is much to respect and much to despise in Cicero."

—PROF. HUTTON.

M. TULLI CICERONIS

ORATIO

L. CATILINAM

PRIMA.

I.

1. Quo usque tandem abutere, Catilina, patientiā nostra? Quam diu etiam furor iste tuus nos eludet? Quem ad finem sese effrenata jactabit audacia? Nihilne te nocturnum praesidium Palati, nihil urbis vigiliae, nihil timor populi, nihil concursus bonorum omnium, nihil hic munitissimus habendi senatus locus, nihil horum ora voltusque moverunt? Patere tua consilia non sentis? constrictam jam horum omnium scientia teneri conjurationem tuam non vides? Quid proxima, quid superiore nocte egeris, ubi fueris, quos convocaveris, quid consili ceperis, quem nostrum ignorare arbitraris?

2. O tempora! O mores! Senatus haec intellegit, consul videt: hic tamen vivit. Vivit? immo vero etiam in senatum venit, fit publici consili particeps, notat et designat oculis ad caedem unum quemque nostrum. Nos autem, fortes viri, satis facere rei publicae videmur, si istius furorem ac tela vitemus. Ad mortem te, Catilina, duci jussu consulis jam pridem oportebat ; in te conferri pestem quam tu in nos [jam diu] machinaris. 3. An vero vir amplissimus, P. Scipio, pontifex maximus, Ti. Gracchum mediocriter labefactantem statum rei publicae privatus interfecit : Catilinam, orbem terrae caede atque incendiis vastare cupientem, nos consules perferemus ? Nam illa nimis antiqua praetereo, quod C. Servilius Ahala Sp. Maelium novis rebus studentem manu sua occidit. Fuit, fuit ista quondam in hac re publica virtus, ut viri fortes acrioribus suppliciis civem perniciosum quam acerbissimum hostem coërcerent. Habemus senatus consultum in te, Catilina, vehemens et grave. Non deest rei publicae consilium, neque auctoritas hujus ordinis : nos, nos, dico aperte, consules dēsumus.

II.

4. Decrevit quondam senatus, ut L. Opimius consul videret ne quid res publica detrimenti caperet. Nox nulla intercessit : interfectus est propter quasdam seditionum suspiciones C. Gracchus, clarissimo patre, avo, majoribus ; occisus est cum liberis M. Fulvius consularis. Simili senatus consulto C. Mario et L. Valerio consulibus est permissa res publica : num unum diem postea L. Saturninum tribunum plebis et C. Servilium praetorem [mors ac] rei publicae poena remorata est ? At nos vicesimum jam diem patimur hebescere aciem horum auctoritatis. Habemus enim hujusce modi senatus consultum, verum inclusum in tabulis, tamquam in vagina reconditum, quo ex senatus consulto confestim te interfectum esse, Catilina, convenit. Vivis, et vivis non ad deponendam, sed ad confirmandam audaciam. Cupio, patres conscripti, me esse clementem : cupio in tantis rei publicae periculis me non dissolutum videri ; sed jam me ipse inertiae nequitiaeque condemno. 5. Castra sunt in Italia contra populum Romanum in Etruriae faucibus conlocata : crescit in dies singulos hostium numerus ; eorum autem castrorum imperatorem ducemque hostium intra moenia atque adeo in senatu videmus, intestinam aliquam cotidie perniciem rei publicae molientem. Si te jam, Catilina, comprehendi, si interfici jussero, credo, erit verendum mihi ne non hoc potius omnes boni serius a me, quam quisquam crudelius factum esse dicat. Verum ego hoc, quod jam pridem factum esse oportuit, certa de causa nondum adducor ut faciam. Tum denique interficere, cum jam nemo tam improbus, tam perditus, tam tui similis inveniri poterit, qui id non jure factum esse fateatur. 6. Quam diu quisquam erit qui te defendere audeat, vives ; et vives ita ut vivis, multis meis et firmis praesidiis oppressus, ne commovere te contra rem publicam possis. Multorum te etiam oculi et aures non sentientem, sicut adhuc fecerunt, speculabuntur atque custodient.

III. -

Etenim quid est, Catilina, quod jam amplius expectes, si neque nox tenebris obscurare coetus nefarios, nec privata domus parietibus continere voces conjurationis [tuae] potest ? si inlustrantur, si erumpunt omnia ? Muta jam istam mentem : mihi crede, obliviscere caedis atque incendiorum. Teneris undique : luce sunt clariora nobis tua consilia omnia, quae jam mecum licet recognoscas. 7. Meministine me autem diem XII. Kalendas Novembris dicere in senatu, fore in armis certo die—qui die futurus esset ante diem vi. Kal. Novembris—C. Manlium, audaciae satellitem atque administrum tuae? Num me fefellit, Catilina, non modo res tanta, tam atrox tamque incredibilis, verum—id quod multo magis est admirandum—dies? Dixi ego idem in senatu caedem te optimatum contulisse in ante diem v. Kalendas Novembris, tum cum multi principes civitatis Roma non tam sui conservandi quam tuorum consiliorum reprimendorum causâ profugerunt. Num infitiri potes te illo ipso die, meis praesidiis, mea diligentia circumclusum, commovere te contra rem publicam non potuisse, cum tu discessu ceterorum, nostra tamen qui remansissemus, caede, te contentum esse dicebas? 8. Quid? cum te Praeneste Kalendis ipsis Novembribus occupaturum nocturno impetu esse confideres, sensistine illam coloniam meo jussu [meis] praesidiis, custodiis, vigiliis esse munitam? Nihil agis, nihil moliris, nihil cogitas, quod non ego non modo audiam, sed etiam videam planeque sentiam.

IV.

Speech
 Recognosce tandem mecum noctem illam superiorem : jam intelleges multo me vigilare acrius ad salutem quam te ad perniciem rei publicae. Dico te priore nocte venisse inter falcarios—non agam obscure—in M. Laecae domum ; convenisse eodem compluribus ejusdem amentiae scelerisque socios. Num negare audes? quid taces? convincam, si negas. Video enim esse hic in senatu quosdam, qui tecum unâ fuerunt. 9. O di immortales! ubinam gentium sumus? in qua urbe vivimus? quam rem publicam habe-mus? Hic, hic sunt, in nostro numero, patres conscripti, in hoc orbis terrae sanctissimo gravissimoque consilio, qui de nostro omnium interitu, qui de hujus urbis atque adeo ^{de} de orbis terrarum exitio cogitent. Hos ego video [consul] et de republica sententiam rogo, et quos ferro trucidari oportebat, eos nondum voce volnero. Fuisti igitur apud Laecam illa nocte, Catilina: distribuisti partis Italiae; statuisti quo quemque proficisci placeret; delegisti quos Romae relinqueres, quos tecum educeres; descripsisti urbis partis ad incendia: confirmasti te ipsum jam esse exiturum; dixisti paulum tibi esse etiam hunc morae, quod ego viverem. Reperti sunt duo equites Romani qui te ista cura liberarent, et sese illa ipsa nocte paulo ante lucem me in meo lectulo interfecturos esse pollicerentur.

10. Haec ego omnia, vixdum etiam coetu vestro dimisso, comperi: domum meam majoribus praesidiis muniri atque firmavi; exclusi eos quos tu ad me salutatum miseras, cum illi ipsi venissent, quos ego jam multis ac summis viris ad me id temporis venturos esse praedixeram.

Point of time.

V.

Quae cum ita sint, Catilina, perge quo coepisti. Egredere aliquando ex urbe: patent portae: proficiscere. Nimium diu te imperatorem tua illa Manliana castra desiderant. Educ tecum etiam omnis tuos; si minus, quam plurimos: purga urbem. Magno me metu liberabis, dum modo inter me atque te murus intersit. Nobiscum versari jam diutius non potes: non feram, non patiar, non sinam. 11. Magna dis immortalibus habenda est, atque huic ipsi Jovi Statori, antiquissimo custodi hujus urbis, gratia, quod hanc tam taetram, tam horribilem tamque infestam rei publicae pestem totiens jam effugimus. Non est saepius in uno homine summa salus periclitanda rei publicae. Quam diu mihi consuli designato, Catilina, insidiatus es, non publico me praesidio, sed privata diligentia defendi. Cum proximis comitiis consularibus me consulem in campo et competitores tuos interficere voluisti, compressi conatus tuos nefarios amicorum praesidio et copiis, nullo tumultu publice concitato: denique, quotienscumque me petisti, per me tibi obstiti, quamquam videbam perniciem meam cum magna calamitate rei publicae esse conjunctam. 12. Nunc jam aperte rem publicam universam petis: templa deorum immortalium, tecta urbis, vitam omnium civium, Italiam [denique] totam ad exitium ac vastitatem vocas. Qua re, quoniam id quod est primum, et quod hujus imperi disciplinaeque majorum proprium est, facere nondum audeo, faciam id quod est ad severitatem lenius, et ad communem salutem utilius. Nam si te interfici jussero, residebit in re publica reliqua conjuratorum manus. Sin tu, quod te jam dudum hortor, exieris, exhaurietur ex urbe tuorum comitum magna et pernicioosa sentina rei publicae.

13. Quid est, Catilina? num dubitas id me imperante facere, quod jam tua sponte faciebas? Exire ex urbe jubet consul hostem. Interrogas me, num in exilium? Non jubeo; sed, si me consulis, suadeo.

VI.

Quid est enim, Catilina, quod te jam in hac urbe delectare possit? in qua nemo est extra istam conjurationem perditorum hominum qui te non metuat, nemo qui non oderit. Quae nota domesticae turpitudinis non inusta vitae tuae est? Quod privatarum rerum dedecus non haeret in fama? quae libido ab oculis, quod facinus a manibus umquam tuis, quod flagitium a toto corpore afuit? Cui tu adolescentulo, quem corruptelarum inlecebris inretisses, non aut ad audaciam ferrum aut ad libidinem facem praetulisti? 14. Quid vero? nuper cum morte superioris uxoris novis nuptiis domum vacuefecisses, nonne etiam alio incredibile scelere hoc scelus cumulasti? quod ego praetermitto et facile patior sileri, ne in hac civitate tanti facinoris immanitas aut exstitisse aut non vindicata esse videatur. Praetermitto ruinas fortunarum tuarum, quas omnis impendere tibi proximis Idibus senties. Ad illa venio, quae non ad privatam ignominiam vitiorum tuorum, non ad domesticam tuam difficultatem ac turpitudinem, sed ad summam rem publicam atque ad omnium nostrum vitam salutemque pertinent. 15. Potestne tibi haec lux, Catilina, aut hujus caeli spiritus esse jucundus, cum scias horum esse neminem qui nesciat te pridie Kalendas Januarias Lepido et Tullo consulibus stetisse in comitio cum telo? manum consulum et principum civitatis interficiendorum causa paravisse? sceleri ac furori tuo non mentem aliquam aut timorem [tuum], sed fortunam populi Romani obstitisse? Ac jam illa omitto—neque enim sunt aut obscura aut non multa commissa—quotiens tu me designatum, quotiens consulem interficere conatus es! quot ego tuas petitiones, ita conjectas ut vitari posse non viderentur, parva quadam declinatione et (ut aiunt) corpore effugi! [Nihil agis,] nihil adsequeris, [nihil moliris,] neque tamen conari ac velle desistis. 16. Quotiens tibi jam extorta est ista sica de manibus ! quotiens vero excidit casu aliquo et elapsa est ! [Tamen eā carere diutius non potes,] quae quidem quibus abs te initiata sacris ac devota sit nescio, quod eam necesse putas esse in consulis corpore defigere.

VII.

Nunc vero quae tua est ista vita ? Sic enim jam tecum loquar, non ut odio permotus esse videar, quo debeo, sed ut misericordia, quae tibi nulla debetur. Venisti paulo ante in senatum. Quis te ex hac tanta frequentia, tot ex tuis amicis ac necessariis salutavit ? Si hoc post hominum memoriam contigit nemini, vocis exspectas contumeliam, cum sis gravissimo iudicio taciturnitatis oppressus ? Quid, quod adventu tuo ista subsellia vacuefacta sunt ? quod omnes consulares, qui tibi persaepe ad caedem constituti fuerunt, simul atque adsedisti, partem istam subselliorum nudam atque inanem reliquerunt, quo tandem animo tibi ferendum putas ? 17. Servi (mehercule) mei si me isto pacto metuerent, ut te metuunt omnes cives tui, domum meam relinquendam putarem : tu tibi urbem non arbitraris ? et, si me meis civibus injuria suspectum tam graviter atque offensum viderem, carere me aspectu civium quam infestis omnium oculis conspici malletm. Tu, cum conscientia scelerum tuorum agnoscas odium omnium justum et jam diu tibi debitum, dubitas quorum mentis sensusque volneras, eorum aspectum praesentiamque vitare ? Si te parentes timerent atque odissent tui, neque eos ulla ratione placare posses, tu (opinor) ab eorum oculis aliquo concederes. Nunc te patria, quae communis est, parens omnium nostrum, odit ac metuit, et jam diu te nihil iudicat nisi de parricidio suo cogitare: hujus tu neque auctoritatem verebere, nec iudicium sequere, nec vim pertimesces?

18. Quae tecum, Catilina, sic agit, et quodam modo tacita loquitur: 'Nullum jam aliquot annis facinus existit nisi per te, nullum flagitium sine te: tibi uni multorum civium neces, tibi vexatio direptioque sociorum impunita fuit ac libera: tu non solum ad negligendas leges et quaestiones, verum etiam ad evertendas perfringendasque valuisti. Superiora illa, quamquam ferenda non fuerunt, tamen, ut potui, tuli: nunc vero me totam esse in metu propter unum te, quicquid increpuerit Catilinam timeri, nullum videri contra me consilium iniri posse quod a tuo scelere abhorreat, non est ferendum. Quam ob rem discede, atque hunc mihi timorem eripe: si est verus, ne opprimar; sin falsus, ut tandem aliquando timere desinam.'

VIII.

19. Haec si tecum, ut dixi, patria loquatur, nonne impetrare debeat, etiam si vim adhibere non possit? Quid, quod tu te ipse in custodiam dedisti? quod vitandae suspicionis causa, ad M'. Lepidum te habitare velle dixisti? a quo non receptus etiam ad me venire ausus es, atque ut domi meae te adservarem rogasti. Cum a me quoque id responsum tulisses, me nullo modo posse isdem parietibus tuto esse tecum, qui magno in periculo essem quod isdem moenibus contineremur, ad Q. Metellum praetorem venisti:

a quo repudiatus ad sodalem tuum, virum optimum, M. Marcellum demigrasti ; quem tu videlicet et ad custodiendum [te] diligentissimum et ad suspicandum sagacissimum et ad vindicandum fortissimum fore putasti. Sed quam longe, videtur a carcere atque a vinculis abesse debere, qui se ipse jam dignum custodia judicavit ? 20. Quae cum ita sint, Catilina, dubitas, si emori aequo animo non potes, abire in aliquas terras, et vitam istam, multis suppliciis justis debitisque ereptam, fugae solitudinique mandare ?

‘Refer’ inquis ‘ad senatum :’ id enim postulas, et, si hic ordo placere decreverit te ire in exilium, obtemperaturum te esse dicis. Non referam, id quod abhorret a meis moribus ; et tamen faciam ut intellegas quid hi de te sentiant. Egredere ex urbe, Catilina ; libera rem publicam metu ; in exilium, si hanc vocem exspectas, proficiscere. Quid est, Catilina ? ecquid attendis ? ecquid animadvertis horum silentium ? Patiuntur, tacent. Quid exspectas auctoritatem loquentium, quorum voluntatem tacitorum perspicis ? 21. At si hoc idem huic adulescenti optimo P. Sestio, si fortissimo viro M. Marcello dixissem, jam mihi consuli, hoc ipso in templo, senatus jure optimo vim et manus intulisset. De te autem, Catilina, cum quiescunt, probant : cum patiuntur, decernunt : cum tacent, clamant. Neque hi solum, — quorum tibi auctoritas est videlicet cara, vita vilissima, — sed etiam illi equites Romani, honestissimi atque optimi viri, ceterique fortissimi cives, qui circumstant senatum, quorum tu et frequentiam videre et studia perspicere et voces paulo ante exaudire potuisti. Quorum ego vix abs te jam diu manus ac tela contineo, eosdem facile adducam, ut te haec, quae vastare jam pridem stūdes, relinquentem usque ad portas prosequantur.

IX. is it to be hoped that

22. Quamquam quid loquor? Te ut ulla res frangat? tu ut umquam te corrigas? tu ut ullam fugam meditare? tu ut exsilium cogites? Utinam tibi istam mentem di immortales duint! tametsi video, si mea voce perterritus ire in exsilium animum induxeris, quanta tempestas invidiae nobis — si minus in praesens tempus, recenti memoria scelerum tuorum, at in posteritatem—impenteat: sed est tanti, dum modo ista sit privata calamitas, et a rei publicae periculis sejungatur. Sed tu ut vitiis tuis commoveare, ut legum poenas pertimescas, ut temporibus rei publicae cedas, non est postulandum. Neque enim is es, Catilina, ut te aut pudor umquam a turpitudine aut metus a periculo aut ratio a furore revocarit. 23. Quam ob rem, ut saepe jam dixi, proficiscere; ac, si mihi inimico (ut praedicas) tuo conflare vis invidiam, recta perge in exsilium: vix feram sermones hominum si id feceris; vix molem istius invidiae, si in exsilium jussu consulis ieris, sustinebo. Sin autem servire meae laudi et gloriae mavis, egredere cum importuna sceleratorum manu: confer te ad Manlium, concita perditos civis, secerne te a bonis, infer patriae bellum, exsulta impio patrocinio, ut a me non ejectus ad alienos, sed invitatus ad tuos isse videaris.

24. Quamquam quid ego te invitem, a quo jam sciam esse praemissos qui tibi ad Forum Aurelium praestolarentur armati? cui sciam pactam et constitutam cum Manlio diem? a quo etiam aquilam illam argenteam quam tibi ac tuis omnibus confido perniciosam ac funestam futuram, cui domi tuae sacrarium scelerum tuorum constitutum fuit, sciam esse praemissam? Tu ut illa carere diutius possis, quam venerari ad caedem proficiscens solebas, a cujus altaribus saepe istam impiam dexteram ad necem civium transtulisti?

X.

25. Ibis tandem aliquando, quo te jam pridem ista tua cupiditas effrenata ac furiosa rapiebat. Neque enim tibi haec res adfert dolorem, sed quandam incredibilem voluptatem. Ad hanc te amentiam natura peperit, voluntas exercuit, fortuna servavit. Numquam tu non modo otium, sed ne bellum quidem nisi nefarium concupisti. Nactus es ex perditis atque ab omni non modo fortuna verum etiam spe derelictis conflata improborum manum.

26. Hic tu qua laetitia perfruere! quibus gaudiis exultabis! quanta in voluptate bacchabere, cum in tanto numero tuorum neque audies virum bonum quemquam neque videbis! Ad hujus vitae studium meditati illi sunt qui feruntur labores tui,—jacere humi non solum ad obsidendum stuprum, verum etiam ad facinus obeundum; vigilare non solum insidiantem somno maritorum, verum etiam bonis otiosorum. Habes ubi ostentes tuam illam praeclaram patientiam famis, frigoris, inopiae rerum omnium, quibus te brevi tempore confectum esse senties.

27. Tantum profeci tum, cum te a consulatu reppuli, ut exsul potius temptare quam consul vexare rem publicam posses, atque ut id quod est a te scelerate susceptum, latrocinium potius quam bellum nominaretur.

XI.

Nunc, ut a me, patres conscripti, quandam prope justam patriae querimoniam detester ac deprecere, percipite, quaeso, diligenter quae dicam, et ea penitus animis vestris mentibusque mandate. Etenim si mecum patria, quae mihi vita mea multo est carior, si cuncta Italia, si omnis res publica, loquatur: 'M. Tulli, quid agis? Tunc eum, quem esse hostem comperisti, quem ducem belli futurum vides, quem exspectari imperatorem in castris hostium sentis, auctorem sceleris, principem conjurationis, evocatorem servorum et civium perditorum, exire patiere, ut abs te non emissus ex urbe, sed immissus in urbem esse videatur? Non hunc in vincula duci, non ad mortem rapi, non summo supplicio mactari imperabis? 28. Quid tandem te impedit? Mosne majorum? At persaepe etiam privati in hac re publica perniciosos civis morte multaverunt. An leges, quae de civium Romanorum supplicio, rogatae sunt? At numquam in hac urbe qui a re publica defecerunt civium jura tenuerunt. An invidiam posteritatis times? Praeclaram vero populo Romano refers gratiam, qui te hominem per te cognitum, nulla commendatione majorum, tam mature ad summum imperium per omnis honorum gradus extulit, si propter invidiae aut alicujus periculi metum salutem civium tuorum neglegis. 29. Sed si quis est invidiae metus, num est vehementius severitatis ac fortitudinis invidia quam inertiae ac nequitiae pertimescenda? An cum bello vastabitur Italia, vexabuntur urbes, tecta ardebunt, tum te non existimas invidiae incendio conflagraturum?'

XII.

His ego sanctissimis rei publicae vocibus, et eorum hominum qui hoc idem sentiunt mentibus, pauca respondebo. Ego, si hoc optimum factu judicarem, patres conscripti, Catilinam morte multari, unius usuram horae gladiatori isti ad vivendum non dedissem. Etenim si summi et clarissimi viri Saturnini et Gracchorum et Flacci et superiorum complurium sanguine non modo se non contaminarunt, sed etiam honestarunt, certe verendum mihi non erat ne quid hoc parricida civium interfecto invidiae mihi in posteritatem redundaret. Quod si ea mihi maxime impenderet, tamen hoc animo fui semper, ut invidiam virtute partam gloriam, non invidiam putarem. 30. Quamquam non nulli sunt in hoc ordine, qui aut ea quae imminent non videant, aut ea quae vident dissimulent: qui spem Catilinae mollibus sententiis aluerunt, conjurationemque nascentem non credendo corroboraverunt: quorum auctoritatem secuti multi non solum improbi, verum etiam imperiti, si in hunc animadvertissem, crudeliter et regie factum esse dicerent. Nunc intellego, si iste, quo intendit, in Manliana castra pervenerit, neminem tam stultum fore qui non videat conjurationem esse factam, neminem tam improbum qui non fateatur. Hoc autem uno interfecto, intellego hanc rei publicae pestem paulisper reprimi, non in perpetuum compari posse. Quod si se ejecerit, secumque suos eduxerit, eodem ceteros undique conlectos naufragos adgrogant, et extinguetur atque delebitur non modo haec tam adulta rei publicae pestis, verum etiam stirps ac semen malorum omnium.

XIII.

31. Etenim jam diu, patres conscripti, in his periculis conjurationis insidiisque versamur, sed nescio quo pacto omnium scelerum ac veteris furoris et audaciae maturitas in nostri consulatus tempus erupit. Quod si ex tanto latrocinio iste unus tolletur, videbimur fortasse ad breve quoddam tempus cura et metu esse relevati; periculum autem residebit, et erit inclusum penitus in venis atque in visceribus rei publicae. Ut saepe homines aegri morbo gravi, cum aestu febrique jactantur, si aquam gelidam biberint, primo relevari videntur, deinde multo gravius vehementiusque affligantur; sic hic morbus, qui est in re publica, relevatus istius poena, vehementius reliquis vivis ingravescet. 32. Qua re secedant improbi, secernant se a bonis, unum in locum congregentur, muro denique [id] (quod saepe jam dixi) discernantur a nobis: desinant insidiari domi suae consuli, circumstare tribunal praetoris urbani, obsidere cum gladiis curiam, malleolos et faces ad inflammandam urbem comparare: sit denique inscriptum in fronte unius cujusque quid de re publica sentiat. Polliceor hoc vobis, patres conscripti, tantam in nobis consulibus fore diligentiam, tantam in vobis auctoritatem, tantam in equitibus Romanis virtutem, tantam in omnibus bonis consensionem, ut Catilinae profectione omnia patefacta, illustrata, oppressa, vindicata esse videatis.

33. Hisce ominibus, Catilina, cum summa rei publicae salute, cum tua peste ac pernicie, cumque eorum exitio qui se tecum omni scelere parricidioque junxerunt, proficiscere ad impium bellum ac nefarium. Tu, Juppiter, qui isdem quibus haec urbs auspiciis [a Romulo] es con-stitutus, quem Statorem hujus urbis atque imperi vere nominamus, hunc et hujus socios a tuis ceterisque templis, a tectis urbis ac moenibus, a vita fortunisque civium [omnium] arcebis, et homines bonorum inimicos, hostis patriae, latrones Italiae, scelerum foedere inter se ac nefaria societate conjunctos, aeternis suppliciis vivos mortuosque mactabis.

THE CONSPIRACY OF CATILINE.

Lucius Sergius Catilina was a man of noble birth, but of the most vicious character. From his earliest youth he took pleasure in vice and crime. He was daring and cunning; covetous, and yet prodigal; violent in his passions; immoderately ambitious. He was always a terror to constituted authority, but his want of practical sagacity saved the state on more than one occasion. He first came into notice as a zealous and cruel partizan of Sulla. He held the office of praetor in B.C. 68. He was governor of Africa in B.C. 67. He was a candidate for the consulship for the year 65, but he was disqualified by an impeachment for oppression in his government of Africa. Thereupon he formed a project with Piso and Autronius to murder the consuls Torquatus and Cotta in the Capitol on the 1st of January. This scheme miscarried, as Catiline himself gave the signal prematurely before a sufficient number of his associates had assembled. He was not disheartened by the failure, but at once set to work to organize a more extensive conspiracy. This second plot was the famous Conspiracy of Catiline.

There were at this time many men in Rome, especially among the younger nobility, who had lost their fortunes, and to whom was welcome any change that might relieve their desperate condition. Among these were some of senatorian rank,—P. Cornelius Lentulus, P. Autronius, L. Cassius Longinus, C. Cethegus, P. Sulla and S. Sulla (nephews of the dictator), L. Vargunteius, Q. Annius, M. Porcius Laeca, L. Bestia, Q. Curius. The equestrian order was represented by M. Fulvius Nobilior, L. Statilius, P. Gabinius, C. Cornelius. The purpose of Catiline's new scheme was to overturn the government and to make himself supreme. The time seemed opportune. The regular armies of Italy were abroad. Pompey was at a distance. The senate was in a state of careless security. Sulla's veteran soldiers who had wasted their possessions in wanton luxury were eager for another civil war. By promising to some an absolution of their debts, to others the death of their enemies, to others abundance of plunder, Catiline made himself strong. He determined to make use of the consulship as a stepping-stone to power. He intrigued to have a confederate of his—C. Antonius—elected as his colleague. After an exciting canvass Cicero was elected by a large majority with Antonius as associate. Catiline's fury was great. He exerted himself more than ever in the prosecution of his secret designs. He levied troops in various parts of Italy. He established a camp near Faesulae in Etruria under Manlius, one of Sulla's veterans, a bold and experienced officer. Meanwhile Cicero was apprised of all the details of the conspiracy as soon as they were formed. The indiscreet and almost indifferent Q. Curius, one of the conspirators, made a confidante of his mistress, Fulvia, and she could not withhold her secret information from the consul.

The senate so long irresolute was at length roused to action. Cicero and his colleague were granted absolute power by the passing of the decree "that the consuls should take care that the republic received no harm." In B. C. 63 Catiline offered himself again for the consulship of the following year. Through the exertions of Cicero he was again defeated. He then determined on an immediate outbreak. The conspirators met on Nov. 6th at the house of M. Laeca to mature their plans. Catiline was to put himself at the head of the troops in Etruria. Lentulus, Cassius, and Cethegus were to manage the arrangements in the city. Rome was to be fired in several places, and all the foes of the conspirators were to be massacred. The prelude to the carnival of blood was to be the murder of Cicero in his bed in the early morning by Vargunteius and Cornelius; but this part of the plot was frustrated through the agency of Fulvia. On the 8th of November Cicero called the senators together in the temple of Jupiter Stator in the Capitol, where the senate met only in times of public peril. Catiline had the effrontery to attend this meeting. Cicero, filled with indignation at the presence of the arch-plotter, broke out in extemporaneous invective against him and disclosed the whole course of the villain's treason. This remarkable speech, one of the most notable and vigorous of Cicero's many splendid productions, was afterwards written down by the consular orator in its present form.

—o—

SYNOPSIS OF THE ORATION.

PROPOSITIO.

- I. The orator inveighs against Catiline on account of his obstinacy, his audacity, his folly. He deplores the age and its principles. He proves by the examples of T. Gracchus and Maelius that plotters should be slain.
- II. Other examples,—C. Gracchus, Fulvius, Saturninus, Servilius. He accuses himself of remissness and criminality in allowing Catiline to live. But he is to live for a while only, and under surveillance. The senatorial decree is to be suspended until the conspirator's guilt is acknowledged by all.

- III. He exhorts Catiline to change his purpose. He cites proofs of Catiline's guilt.
- IV. He confounds the traitor by disclosing all the details of his nefarious plans.

EXHORTATIO.

- V. He orders Catiline to depart from the city and to join his confederates. The plots against the consul have been thwarted : now the state is attacked.
- VI. All good men fear and hate Catiline on account of the baseness of his private life and the infamy of his public career.
- VII. The conduct of the senators on Catiline's appearance in the assembly. Catiline's country pleads with him to depart.
- VIII. The senate by its silence approves the exhortation to depart. The Roman Knights and other citizens surrounding the senate are anxious for Catiline's departure.
- IX. Catiline is to depart, and to bring unpopularity upon Cicero if he chooses. He will depart, since he has made all arrangements for so doing.
- X. Catiline's natural baseness and evil courses. His defeat as a candidate for the consulship has made him from a conspirator into a public enemy.

PERORATIO.

- XI. The state remonstrates against the leniency of the consul.
- XII. It is better to drive Catiline into exile, for then the conspiracy will be brought to a head. His immediate death would only allay the evil for a short time.
- XIII. The orator beseeches the senators to allow the conspirators to depart, and he implores Jupiter to ward off the threatened calamities and to punish the foes of the state.

NOTES.

I

Quo usque, 'How long, pray, wilt thou abuse our patience?'

Quem ad finem: this is almost equivalent to quam diu and quo usque.

Praesidium Palati: the Palatine was the most central of the seven hills of Rome and was one of the strongest positions in the city. On the present occasion it was guarded to prevent its being seized by the conspirators.

Trace the history of our word 'palace' back to Palatium.

Urbis vigiliae: whenever there was alarm or disturbance in the city the senate instructed the inferior magistrates to guard the various streets with armed forces.

Hic munitissimus etc. The senate usually met in the Curia Hostilia, but in exigencies like the present it was convened in some strongly fortified or consecrated place. The place referred to here was the temple of Jupiter Stator in the Capitol. Some locate this temple at the foot of the Palatine.

Ora voltusque: is this a case of hendiadys?

Constrictam teneri: literally, 'is held firmly grasped.'

Proxima: Nov. 7th. Superiore: Nov. 6th.

Publici consilii particeps, 'a sharer in the public deliberations.'

Fortes viri: ironical.

Satis facere rei publicae, 'to do our duty to the republic.'

Jussu consulis: about three weeks before this, on Oct. 21st, the senate had armed the consuls with special powers by the formal decree issued in times of peril: Videant consules ne quid respublica detrimenti capiat. Under this decree Catiline might have been put to death.

An vero, etc. This form of question is really the double question with the first part omitted,—‘(am I wrong) or, indeed, did that very illustrious man,’ etc.

P. Scipio: for the historical references consult in the Index of Proper Names the articles on Scipio, Gracchus, Ahala, Maelius.

Privatus: the office of pontifex maximus was not a magistracy. Perhaps, moreover, Scipio had not yet been made pontifex.

Nam illa, etc, ‘for I pass over those more ancient instances such as how,’ etc.

Novis rebus studentem, ‘plotting revolution.’

Fuit, fuit: epizeuxis.

Senatus consultum: the decree mentioned above giving the consuls absolute power.

Vehemens et grave: vehemens refers to its effect on Catinine; grave, to the powers it gave the consuls.

Consules: who was Cicero’s colleague?

II.

Decrevit: decretum emphasizes the purport of the consultum.

L. Optimus: for historical allusions in this chapter consult Index of Proper Names.

Quasdam suspiciones: notice the very mild language of the orator in reference to the Gracchi: cf. mediocriter in Chap. I.

Clarissimo patre: his father had been consul and had enjoyed triumphs.

Avo: Cornelia, the mother of the Gracchi, was the daughter of Scipio Africanus who defeated Hannibal.

Mors ac: Barker suggests mortem and changes the preceding accusatives to genitives. The difficulty with the present reading is in making num poena remorata est mean ‘did punishment fail to overtake?’

Vicesimum diem: strictly, the 19th.

Convenit: perfect tense.

Patres conscripti: what is the origin of this phrase?

Castra sunt, etc., referring to the camp of Manlius in the mountain-defiles near Faesulae in Etruria.

Imperatorem: Catiline.

Atque adeo, 'yea even.'

Credo, etc. A difficult sentence—'I shall not, I dare say, have to fear lest all good men assert that I have done this too late' etc.

The meaning is—'of course I shall be charged with cruelty rather than with dilatoriness.'

Certa de causa: See Chap. XII. There the orator tells us that he feared that Catiline would be regarded as an injured man if he were punished too early, and that the conspiracy would not be crushed by the death of Catiline alone.

Interficiere: another reading is interficiam te.

Tui similis: the genitive of internal resemblance.

Multorum: chiefly Fulvia.

Fecerunt: this verb does duty for the perfect tenses of the verbs that follow. Compare the same use of the English verb 'to do.'

III.

Privata domus: the house of Laeca.

Inlustrantur: this verb and crumpunt refer to tenebris and parietibus respectively.

Quae...recognoscas: according to the Latin conception licet has for subject the clause quae jam mecum recognoscas. Licet frequently introduces a subjunctive of concession, but the present expression is not concessive.

Ante diem etc. This peculiar construction may be explained thus:—originally its form was die duodecimo ante Kalendas: then by a transposition of ante it became ante die-duodecimo Kalendas: then the position of ante led to the corruption, ante diem duodecimum Kalendas. In dates, therefore, the phrase ante diem (a.d.) with an ordinal is followed by an accusative like a preposition, and the whole phrase itself may be governed by another preposition, as below, in ante diem etc.

The dates of the chapter are, in their order, Oct. 21st, Oct. 27th, Oct. 28th, Nov. 1st.

C. Manlium : subject of fore.

Ego idem : idem (masc.) is best rendered, 'also.'

Multi principes : many of the principal men had left the city because they feared death at the hands of Catiline. Crassus had received a threatening letter advising him to depart.

Sui conservandi : various explanations of this construction have been given. (1) "With the gen. of pers. pronouns—mei tui, sui—the participle ends in -di without reference to number or gender." (2) "The gerund usually governs the same case as the verb, but sometimes by virtue of its substantive nature it governs the gen., especially the gen. of pers. pronouns,—mei, tui, sui." (3) "The gen. of the gerund is used, like a noun, with the gen. of an object agreeing neither in gender nor in number; here sui is really the gen. sing. neut. of suus."

Cum tu etc., 'when you said that although the others had departed you would nevertheless be satisfied with the slaughter of us who had remained.'

Nostra qui : the antecedent of qui is contained in nostra.

Praeneste : this was one of the strongest fortresses in Italy and would have been of incalculable use to Catiline in the war.

Sensistine : notice that here the enclitic ne has its original negative force.

Coloniam : it was one of Sulla's military colonies.

Praesidiis etc. : praesidiis, on the walls; custodiis, at the gates; vigiliis, the night-watch.

Nihil agis, etc. An oft-quoted example of climax.

IV.

Noctem illam : Nov. 6th, called below priore nocte.

Inter falcarios, 'into the street of the scythe-makers.'

In senatu quosdam : the names of eleven senators are given.

Gentium : partitive genitive with ubinam.

Nostro omnium : a genitive may be used in apposition with a possessive.

Atque adeo, 'and indeed.'

Distribuisti etc. Sallust tells us that Manlius was to go to Faesulae, Septimius to the Picene territory, C. Julius to Apulia.

Delegisti etc. Lentulus was to manage affairs in the city; Statilius and Gabinius were to start the conflagration; Cethegus was to kill Cicero.

Dixisti paulum etc., 'you told them that even then you had a little cause of delay.'

Duo equites : Cornelius and Vargunteius.

Paulo ante lucem : distinguished Romans held their levees and received their clients early in the morning. The assassins were to visit Cicero at this time.

Comperi : the information came from Curius through the agency of Fulvia.

Salutatam : the supine with a verb of motion to denote purpose.

Id temporis : id, adverbial acc.; temporis, partitive genitive.

V.

Manliana castra : in Etruria.

Si minus, etc., 'if not all, as many as possible.'

Non feram, etc. Anthon makes feram refer to the orator as a man; patiar, as a citizen; sinam, as a magistrate. It is more likely oratorical tautology.

Jovi Statori. This temple is said to have been erected to Jupiter Stator by Romulus in accordance with a vow made at the time of a severe engagement between the Romans and the Sabines. Jupiter was invoked at a critical juncture by the Romans and the god interposed and stayed their flight (Stator, sto.)

In uno homine : the orator refers to himself.

Consuli designato. The consular elections usually took place in July or August. The newly-elected magistrates were called consules designati until they were installed on Jan. 1st. The elections this year, on account of the disturbed state of the city, were postponed till Oct. 22nd.

In campo: the consular elections were held in the Campus Martius.

Competitores: Silanus and Murena were elected.

Nunc jam, 'now at length.'

Id quod est primum. 'that which first suggests itself,'—capital punishment.

Hujus imperi: (1) 'this government;' (2) 'this consular office;' (3) 'this supreme power;' conferred on the consuls by the special decree.

Sentina rei publicae, 'foul political rabble.' Anthon takes rei publicae as a dative with perniciosa.

Num in exilium. The special decree gave Cicero power to send Catiline into exile, but many would have regarded such action as a tyrannical abuse of the exceptional authority.

What is meant by ignis et aquae interdictio?

VI.

Domesticæ turpitudinis: he had murdered his brother and his son.

Privatarum rerum: this probably refers to his private life out of his family.

Haeret in fama: the old reading haeret infamiae is doubtful Latin.

Faciinus: a bold, daring deed; flagitium, a wicked, disgraceful action.

Novis nuptiis. Catiline is said to have poisoned his first wife and to have murdered his son by a former marriage in order to remove all obstacles in the way of his union with Aurelia Orestilla.

Incredibili scelere: this probably refers to the murder of his son mentioned above. Several editors make the allusion refer to Catiline's infamous relations with an illegitimate daughter of his.

Tanti facinoris immanitas, 'a crime of such enormity.'

Proximis Idibus: Nov. 13th. Money was lent and called in and interest paid on the Kalends and Ides of every month.

In March, July, October, and May
The Ides were on the 15th day.

In other months the Ides fell on the 13th.

Difficultatem: financial difficulties.

Pridie Kalendas etc. The 31st of Dec. 66 B.C. The new consuls, Cotta and Torquatus, were installed on Jan. 1st, 65 B.C. It was the intention of Catiline to murder the new magistrates at their inauguration. The plot was divulged and the arrangements were postponed till Feb. 5th. Catiline's precipitation led to the failure of the second attempt.

Lepido et Tullo: consuls for 66 B.C.

Cum telo: it was unlawful to carry a weapon into the comitium, the forum, or the senate-house.

Non mentem aliquam, 'no change of purpose.'

Neque enim etc., 'for neither are thy deeds obscure nor are they few in number.' Some editions have post commissa, 'deeds subsequently committed.'

Petitiones: this word and declinatio are gladiatorial terms. In the Second Speech the orator styles Catiline, 'that gladiator.'

Quae quidem etc., 'I know not indeed by what sacred rites it has been consecrated and devoted by thee that thou should'st think it necessary to plunge it in the body of the consul.'

VII.

Quae nulla, 'none of which:' "Numbers and words of quantity including the whole of anything take a case in agreement and not the partitive genitive."

Necessariis: used of any intimate private relationship and not confined to relatives alone.

Quid, quod=quid dicam de hoc quod.

Ista subsellia etc., 'those seats near you were left empty.'
When Catiline entered the assembly he was received in silence and the senators abandoned the benches near him.

Nudam atque inanem: one of Cicero's doublets.

Servi: account for the odd position.

Isto pacto, 'so much.'

Urbem: why accusative?

Injuria, 'unjustly'—an adverb.

Aliquo, 'some whither,' 'somewhere'—an adverb.

Odit: what is the tense?

Tacita: referring to patria. Observe the oxymoron in tacita loquitur.

Civium nece: during the proscriptions of Sulla.

Sociorum. Catiline, in 67 B.C., was propraetor in Africa, where he was guilty of the most oppressive extortion. On his return to Rome he was impeached for mal-administration, but he escaped by bribing his accuser, Clodius, and by corrupting the very judges.

Me totam etc. Me represents patria, so totam is feminine. These three infinite phrases constitute the subject of est ferendum.

Quicquid increpuerit, 'whatever noise may have been made'='at the least noise.'

VIII.

In custodiam: when a Roman was under suspicion, in order to make the public believe him innocent he would place himself in the custody of some distinguished citizen until his guilt or innocence was judicially proven.

Ad me venire auses es: the most impudent of Catiline's numberless audacious acts.

Qui...essem: subjunctive, as qui=cum ego.

Virum optimum: ironical. So with videlicet

• Emori: the common reading is morari.

Id quod abhorret etc. Cicero was averse to harsh measures. He knew that Catiline would be certainly condemned if the matter were formally referred to the senate.

Hanc vocem: the word exsilium.

P. Sestio: Cicero had occasion subsequently to defend both of these men. In B.C. 56 was delivered the oration Pro Sestio; and in B.C. 46 the Pro Marcello,—which was rather a speech of thanks to Caesar than a defence.

This Marcellus must not be confounded with the man of the same name mentioned above.

Vim et manus, 'violent hands: ' apparently a case of hendiadys.

Cum tacent, clamant: a species of oxymoron.

Quorum...villissima. Catiline pretended that he respected the authority of the senate while at the same time he was plotting the destruction of many individual members of that body.

Qui circumstant senatum. A guard of Roman Knights surrounded the temple of Jupiter Stator to prevent an expected attack of the conspirators.

Voces: the patriotic shouts and the clamorous invectives of the excited citizens assembled.

Eosdem facile etc., 'I shall easily induce these same men to escort you even to the gates if you leave these scenes which you have long been eager to lay waste.'

When a man went into voluntary exile it was customary for his friends to accompany him to the city gates. Catiline is to be escorted into exile by a crowd of his foes glad at their deliverance.

IX.

Ut ulla res frangat: supply with Anthon sperandumne sit fore.

Duint: archaic form of dent. This form is used in solemn or in comic language.

The verb with utinam is present, as the wish is conceived as possible.

Si minus, 'if not.'

Sed est tanti, 'but it is worth the while';—tanti, genitive of value.

Privata sit: the patriotic orator, to save his country, is willing that calamity should fall upon his own head.

Recta: supply via.

Sermones: censures.

Meae laudi: Cicero says that he will endure public odium if Catiline goes into exile: that he will acquire renown if Catiline goes to Manlius.

Latrocinio: opposed to justum bellum.

Forum Aurelium: the word Forum—market-place—was applied to the rural market-towns where the praetor held court. This town was on the Aurelian Way about 50 miles from Rome.

Pactam diem: why is dies fem. here?

Aquilam: it is said that Marius had used this eagle in the Cimbrian War. Catiline in the city made his soldiers swear by it; and on the battle-field he himself fell beside it.

The silver eagle was the main standard of the Roman legion. As it was revered by the soldiers, the orator aptly gives it a sacrarium at the house of Catiline.

Tu ut illa etc. We may follow Anthon again and supply credendumne sit fore.

X.

Haec res. Some editors make this refer to Catiline's departure into exile; while others, with more force, apply it to Catiline's efforts against his country.

Non modo otium, 'to say nothing about leisure.'

Ab omni etc. Ab governs fortuna and spe, the whole compound phrase depending on derelictis.

Conflatam: a metaphor from molten metal.

Ad hujus . . . tui, 'for the zealous pursuit of such a life as this those labors of yours, as they are called, have been engaged in.'

Bonis otiosorum: the common reading is occisorum, referring to those slain during the proscriptions of Sulla.

Habes ubi etc., 'you have an excellent opportunity of showing.'

A consulatu reppuli: Catiline had missed the consulship mainly through the exertions of Cicero.

Exsul: observe the paronomasia or play on the words exsul and consul.

XI.

Querimoniam: regarding his want of energy, or his ill-advised clemency.

Detester ac deprecere, 'to remove by earnest protest and solemn disavowal.'

Evocatorem: a technical term for the public officer who was sent in times of emergency to summon for active service the emeriti and the military colonists.

Mosne majorum: notice the three grounds of excuse that are here brushed aside:—(1) mos majorum, (2) leges, (3) invidia posteritatis.

At, 'well, but.'

Etiam privati: Scipio Nasica, for example.

An leges: the Lex Porcia enjoined that no one should bind, scourge, or kill a Roman citizen; the Lex Sempronia ordained that sentence of death should not be passed on a Roman citizen without the order of the people.

Rogatae sunt. Rogare legem strictly means 'to ask the people about the passing of a bill' (rogatio). Here the phrase must mean 'to enact a law.'

Praeclarum: ironical.

Per te cognitum. Cicero often referred with pride to the fact that he was a novus homo, i.e., one whose ancestors had not held any curule office in the state.

Tam mature. Another frequent boast of the orator's was that he had obtained the principal offices of state in the earliest possible year. The years fixed by the Lex Annalis for the different positions were: for the quaestorship, 31st. ; for the aedileship, 37th. ; for the praetorship, 40th. ; for the consulship, 43rd.

Conflagraturum: notice the force of the prefix, 'burn up.'

XII.

Vocibus: et connects vocibus with mentibus. Mentibus here means 'secret thoughts.'

Etenim, 'and (I say so) for.'

Maxime, 'as much as you please.'

Tamen hoc etc., 'still I have always been of such a disposition as to regard odium gained by manly action as glory not odium.'

Regie, 'tyraunically.' Rex and its derivatives acquired this taint from the detestable oppression of the last Roman King, Tarquinius Superbus.

In perpetuum, 'for ever.'

Tam adulta pestis: the full-grown conspiracy.

XIII.

Jam diu: for three years.

Nescio quo pacto, 'in some manner.'

Erupt: a metaphor from a bursting ulcer.

Latrocinio: latrones,—abstract for concrete.

In visceribus, 'in the vital parts.'

Aestu febrique, 'with a raging fever'—hendiadys.

Praetoris urbani: this officer administered justice in the city. The revolutionists had more than once by open intimidation tried to effect a miscarriage of justice.

Patefacta etc.: the words go in pairs,—'made plain and clear, checked and punished.'

Juppiter: in this sentence the god and his temple are identified.

Arcebis: future, for mild imperative.

PROPER NAMES.

Ahala: Caius Servilius Ahala, the master of the horse during the dictatorship of Cincinnatus. He slew Spurius Maelius in the forum because the latter, having been accused of aiming at regal power, refused to appear before the dictator.

Aurelius, a, um, adj. Aurelian. The town of Forum Aurelium was on the Aurelia Via in Etruria.

Catilina, ae, m. The early part of Catiline's career has been already described. After he was driven from Rome by the eloquence of Cicero he joined Manlius in Etruria. In the battle fought near Pistoria against the republican troops Catiline's forces were routed and he himself fell fighting bravely.

Etruria, ae, f. A district of Italy lying north and west of the Tiber.

Flaccus: Marcus Fulvius Flaccus, a friend of the Gracchi, was consul in 125 B.C. He was one of the triumvirs charged with the execution of the agrarian law of Tib. Gracchus. In 121 he lost his life along with C. Gracchus.

Fulvius: see Flaccus.

Gracchus: (1) Tiberius Sempronius Gracchus, the son of Cornelia, the daughter of Scipio Africanus Major. (2) Caius Sempronius Gracchus, brother of No. 1. The Gracchi made it their main object to ameliorate the condition of the Roman poor. Their attempts at agrarian reform cost them their lives. The elder brother was slain in a conflict between his followers and a party of nobles under Scipio Nasica. Caius was slain a few years later in an affray with the consul Opimius.

Italia, ae. f. Italy.

Januarius, a, um, adj. [from Janus].

Mensis Januarius, the month of January.

Juppiter, Jovis, m. Jupiter, the King of the gods.

Kalendae, arum, f. pl. The first day of the Roman month.

Laeca: Marcus Porcius Laeca, one of Catiline's fellow-conspirators.

Lepidus: Manius Lepidus, consul with Tullus in 66, the year in which Cicero was praetor.

Maelius: Spurius Maelius, a distinguished plebeian knight who in the great famine at Rome in 440 B.C. bought up corn in Etruria and sold it to the poor at a low price. This exposed him to the hatred of the ruling class and he was accused of aiming at regal power and slain, at the command of the dictator Cincinnatus, by Ahala.

Manlius: Caius Manlius, one of Catiline's accomplices. He levied troops for Catiline in the country districts and established a camp in Etruria. He commanded the right wing of the rebel forces in the final contest near Pistoria.

Manlianus, a, um, adj. Of Manlius.

Marcellus: (1) Marcus Marcellus, an accomplice of Catiline's; (2) Marcus Claudius Marcellus, an intimate friend of Cicero. He was consul in 51. He was a staunch republican and a bitter enemy of Caesar. After the battle of Pharsalia he went into voluntary exile. He was pardoned by Caesar two years later on the intercession of the senate. Cicero returned thanks to Caesar in the oration Pro Marcello.

Marius: Caius Marius, the illustrious Roman commander, the conqueror of Jugurtha and of the Teutones and Cimbri. He was seven times consul.

Metellus: Quintus Caecilius Metellus Celer, praetor in 63, the year of Cicero's consulship. He was sent by the consul to raise an army against Catiline in the Gallic and Picene territories. He was consul in 60.

Novembris, e, adj. Of November.

Optimius: Lucius Optimus, a Roman nobleman who as consul crushed C. Gracchus.

Palatium, i, n. [root pa in pasco] One of the seven hills of Rome.

Prænestæ, is, n. and f., now, Palestrina a city of Latium about 20 miles S.E. of Rome.

Roma, æ, f. Rome.

Romanus, a, um, adj. Roman.

Romulus, i, m. Römulus the founder and the first King of Rome, called Quirinus after death.

Saturninus: Lucius Saturninus, the celebrated demagogue, a violent partisan of Marius. In the year 100 Marius was consul, Glaucia was prætor, and Saturninus was tribune. Toward the close of this year there was a struggle between Glaucia and the upright Memmius for the consulship. Memmius was murdered by Saturninus and Glaucia, whom the senate straightway declared public enemies. They took refuge in the Capitol, but being driven therefrom they were pelted to death by the mob in the senate-house.

Scipio: Publius Cornelius Scipio Nasica, chiefly known as the leader of the senate in the murder of Tib. Gracchus.

Servilius: Caius Servilius Glaucia, prætor 100 B.C., the principal supporter of Saturninus. [See Saturninus above.]

Sestius: Publius Sestius, quaestor B.C. 63. He was tribune in 57 and took an active part in securing Cicero's recall from banishment. Several years later Cicero defended his friend from a malicious attack in one of his longest speeches Pro Sestio.

Tullius: Marcus Tullius Cicero.

Tullus: the colleague of Lepidus in the consulship of 66 B.C.

Valerius: Lucius Valerius Flaccus, consul in 100 with C. Marius. Flaccus was put to death by Fimbria in Asia in the Mithridatic war.

14. Why was the term novus homo applied to him?
15. Define fully the place which he occupies in Roman literature.
16. Give a brief account of the political life of Cicero.
17. To what does Cicero thus allude:
"Recte, igitur, Magnus ille noster, me audiente, posuit in iudicio . . . rempublicam nostram justissimas huic municipio gratias agere posse quod ex eo duo sui conservatores exstitissent."

18. Show that Cicero purified the Latin language morally as well as æsthetically.

(See Browne's Roman Literature, p. 278.)

19. In what sense is the saying true, "he bore none of his calamities like a man, but his death?"

20. Examine the statement of Quintilian: "Cicero combined the force of Demosthenes, the copiousness of Plato, and the elegance of Isocrates."

21. What unconstitutional act was the ruin of Cicero?

22. "M. Tullius Cicero was born on the 3rd of January, B.C. 106, according to the Roman calendar, at that epoch nearly three months in advance of the true time." Explain words in italics.

23. Under what circumstances did Cicero obtain the province of Cilicia?

II.

(Based mainly on Cruttwell's Roman Literature.)

1. "The more truly free a nation is, the greater will its oratory be." Apply this statement to the Roman eloquence of Cicero's time.

2. "This great man was the first orator as he was the greatest statesman of his time." Does this remark, made regarding Cato, apply with equal force to Cicero?

3. "One of the great peculiarities of ancient eloquence was the frequent opportunity afforded for self-recommendation or self-praise." What do you say of Cicero's egotism?

4. "Few of Rome's greatest orators died in their beds." Was this a mere coincidence? Apply the statement to Cicero's manner of death.

5. Who was Cicero's great rival in oratory?

6. What is meant by the Asiatic style of eloquence? Name one Greek, one Roman, and one Englishman, who leaned towards this style.

7. "Some of Cicero's speeches are deliberative, others judicial, others descriptive, others personal." What about the Catilinarian speeches?

8. "In invective Cicero does not appear at his happiest." State the reason.

9. "He was pre-eminently fitted for the oratory of panegyric." Name one or two of his most famous panegyrics.

10. "Raillery, banter, sarcasm, jest, irony light and grave, the whole artillery of wit, is always at his command." Is there much of this in the speeches against Catiline?

11. "His wordiness is of all his faults the most seductive and the most conspicuous." What name did Cicero receive on account of his turgidity?

12. "It seems that after Cicero oratory had lost the fountain of its life." Is there any way of accounting for this?

13. In what work does Cicero attempt to reduce eloquence to a science?

14. In what speech does Cicero give a graphic description of the character of Catiline? (Pro Caelio).

III.

1. Sketch the history of the first plot of Catiline.

2. What were the leading causes of the great conspiracy?

3. Name the principal conspirators and describe the part played by each.
