Body of Missing Child Found Buried Under Stone

LITTLE SADIE McAULEY EVIDENTLY VICTIM OF BRUTAL MURDER

Discovery Made by Lad While Picking Berries Near Spot Where She Was Last Seen—People Greatly Incensed.

One of the most gruesome murders on record in the annals of crime in this city came to light this morning when the body of little Sadie McAuley was found hidden beneath two large boulders on the hill leading down to Marble Cove, the victim of a human monster.

The child had evidently been criminally assaulted and then murdered. The guile of the murderer was apparent from the method he used in hiding the body of the unfortunate little victim of his lust. A large boulder had been unscarfed and the body placed in the hole, the limbs doubled up and covered with another large, flat rock, which, with the aid of a little earth and leaves entirely obscured the body.

Halifax, Aug. 8.—The thirteen ton yacht Neith, which left Halifax on July 13 for Burmah-on-Crouch, England, with a crew of four, under the command of Sydney C. Houghton, her master, has arrived safely at her destination, according to a message received here last night.

Commander Houghton attempted to cross the Atlantic from New York last year, leaving the American port Aug. 31. Nineteen days out he had made only 1100 miles of easting and decided to make for Halifax. He arrived here Sept. 23 and laid his yacht up for the winter.

PROTECTED TEXT OF PASSION PLAY

Death of Father Schroeder, of Oberammergau, Saddens Village— Will Not Allow Play to be Filmed.

Oberammergau, July 26.—(Associated Press, by Mail).—Through the death of Father Schroeder, who has been the priest in charge of the Oberammergau village church for thirty-two years and the most zealous supporter of the traditions of the Passion Play, this little village has been much saddened just at the time when preparations for the production of the Passion Play in 1922 are under way.

The first texts of the Passion Play prepared by priests and monks in the Eifel monastery and repeated in the last 500 years to adapt the production to changed conditions and improve its literary character.

Commercial producers in several other German cities are offering religious plays which they advertise in such a way as to give the impression that they really are the Oberammergau Passion Play. One production which is being given in this year openly announces that it uses an old Oberammergau text.

William Rutz, the burgo-master of Oberammergau, has just issued a statement warning the public against imitations of the play which the Oberammergau peasants have given every ten years for three centuries in fulfillment of their

INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION MEETS

Premier Taschereau Reminds United States Delegates of Chinese Tariff Wall Barrier — Samuel Gompers Says Industrial Outlook Improving.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)
Quebec, Aug. 8.—Premier Taschereau, on behalf of the province of Quebec, by Major Watson, for the city, by Sir Daniel Watson and Hon. Frank Carroll, for the master printers, of Quebec, J. E. Atkinson, Toronto, president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association, and by Hon. G. Robertson, federal minister of labor, at the 66th annual convention of the International Typographical Union which opened here today, with some four hundred delegates from all parts of Canada and the United States present.

The premier drew attention to the fact that the first newspaper published on the North American continent was published in the city of Quebec. "Labor has always wished very largely to help towards the solution of the disarmament problem," said Samuel Gompers, the veteran president of the American Federation of Labor, when interviewed today on his arrival here to attend the annual convention of the International Typographical Union. "Disarmament," continued Mr. Gompers, "is no utopian scheme, but one quite capable of fulfillment if the claims of universal brotherhood are only allowed to be heard above the clamor of national and individual greed and selfishness."

The first test of strength between a pro-administration and an anti-administration element in the union came at this afternoon's session. The administration faction won out. The Antis made an attempt to change the time honored custom allowing the president to nominate committees. The issue was joined specifically on the question of the selection by President John McPartland of the appeals committee. C. J. Corcoran, of New York, when the president asked if there were any objections to his naming the committee, entered a protest and moved that the committee be elected by the convention. He was supported by John A. Goldberg, of Minneapolis (Minn.), who argued that there was nothing in American or British jurisprudence to justify a judge selecting the jury which was to pass on his decisions. President McPartland himself objected to being made to pick the men for the committee. On the vote being taken in the morning it was found to have been defeated by 175 to 106 and the president picked the committee. The first of the forty-four-hour strikes are in progress on this advisory capacity to the executive committee in its conduct of the strike and will report on a shorter day which will report to the convention on the progress made towards securing their general release. The feature of tomorrow's session of the convention will be an address by Mr. Gompers.

VETERANS FIGHT BLUE LAWS.
Plan "Blues" Sunday in Two Towns to Force Reformers to Relent.
Pittsburgh, Aug. 9.—Plans to close up "tight" all Oakland and Verona streets and other places of business on Sundays, as the Blue Law of 1784 provides, if the Church Law and Order Committee does not relent in its campaign of poking its nose into other people's affairs and cease trying to tell everybody how they shall live, are now being made by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Kletzky-Egill Post 441.
The veterans have adopted a resolution, which they are spreading broadcast, in which they take up the fight against the church committee and declare for "a square deal to Oakland and Verona merchants, who are required to open their places of business Sunday to supply the needs of the public, and for those persons who desire to engage in harmless amusement and relaxation on the Sabbath."
The action of the veterans of foreign wars follows an attempt of the Church Committee on Law and Order to regulate Sunday closing of stores, the clothing of haberdasheries at the river beaches and amusements of people within the town's limits on Sunday.
The committee recently declared that drug stores might sell soda water and ice cream, but no cigars nor cigarettes on Sunday, but more recently amended this order to allow the sale of one cigar to a customer.
The soldiers, incensed by the committee's action, threatened to close the town so tight that the church members could not even buy soda water, ice cream, newspapers, or even ride on street cars.
Last night the church committee brought the campaign for a closed Sunday to a head by appearing against the Burgess of Oakland, Claude W. Hood, whom they had charged with selling cigarettes on Sunday, a violation of the law of 1784.
Burgess Hood had fought strict enforcement of the church committee's blue law interpretation and Burgess Crookston of Verona has refused to enforce the blue laws for some time.

CHARLIE RAY IN "OLD-FASHIONED BOY"

Popular Star Entertains Greatly at the Imperial — Excellent Topical Views.

One of the most humorous incidents in Charlie Ray's latest rip-roaring comedy "An Old Fashioned Boy," scheduled offering at the Imperial Theatre just now, centres around a "tally-pull," wherein Mr. Ray, as David Warrington, plays the role of "kitchen-king" for the amusement of three kiddies, whom he is asked to secretly shelter in his home.
Garbed in a tea-apron, wielding kitchen utensils in a most awkward manner while endeavoring to make the taffy, Mr. Ray soon transforms a spotless kitchen into something resembling a cannibals' den after a raid by the police. Mr. Ray's strenuous efforts to remove the taffy from his hands and face at the end of the scene, to say nothing of the time and trouble involved in removing it from his hair, which had become completely covered with the sticky mess, provoked much mirth at the Thomas H. Rice studios where the picture was filmed.

If a repetition of the scene had been requested by Director Storm, Mr. Ray emphatically declared that "prop" ingredients would have been substituted for molasses, sugar, etc. etc., which he had actually used in making the candy. The story was written by Agnes Christine Johnston and the picture, directed by Jerome Storm, produced by Jimmie Evans and his Big Revue. The piece sparkled with good, clean comedy interspersed with catchy music and graceful dancing. At both evening shows the house was filled to capacity and the company has strongly entrenched itself in the good graces of the St. John theatre-going public.
The show opened with a laughable skit in which a dog and baby become exchange on the part of the owners of the same. The first musical number was "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," sung in an excellent manner by Robert Ellison, who is fast becoming a favorite here. Kitten Fraser, and Bonny Rossley, a St. John favorite, pleased the large audience with a Scotch dance, which was well received. The orchestra, under the efficient direction of Frank McDonough, was a big factor in last night's success. An episode of the serial, "Double Adventure," also was shown. There will be a complete change on Thursday.

ROYALTY VISITS GREENLAND FOR THE FIRST TIME

(The Associated Press, by Mail.)
Godthaab, Greenland, July 10.—(By Agence.)—For the first time in its history, Greenland has been entertaining royalty. King Christian and Queen Alexandrine of Denmark arrived here last night on the steamer Island from Iceland and received a warm welcome from the Eskimo population.
After rounding Cape Farewell at a considerable distance to avoid the ice, the weather changed from foggy to clear and the rocky west coast of Greenland, glittering with ice, was slightly tinged with a pinkish glow. For some time the island and her escort, the warship Fylla, had to drift in a westerly direction, a stretch of drifting ice, and several icebergs were seen near the vessels.
Just outside the skerries off Godthaab, a single Eskimo kayak appeared, and its sole occupant was taken on board the Island and presented with a rifle by the king.

Inside the bay, encircled with snow-clad mountains, a whole squadron of kayaks rowed out to greet the royal party, who admired the skill with which the Eskimos handled their craft. The native women wore the characteristic many-colored Greenland costume, with short breeches and long skin boots.
After landing today a reception was held, followed by religious service, and the rest of the day was given up to festivities. The king was presented with a kayak and the queen with a blanket of elder skins. The royal party afterward left for northern Greenland, and are expected home by the end of the month.

Unique Has Splendid Picture for Young and Old
Many a youngster snuggled close to the arm of father or mother and was thankful for a good home and dog-loving ones; and many a pair of sweethearts smarting under some fancied grievance or misunderstanding, made up their minds to forget their differences and begin anew. Such was the effect of "The Big Adventure" the story of childhood, which had its first showing at the Unique Theatre last night, and which served to bring back that wonderful time of the films, Breezy Eason, in the title role. This youthful actor, not yet five years of age, gives a more intelligent performance of his role than would be expected of many players many times his age. He is so genuinely natural, so whimsical in his expressions and so sincere in his depiction of the various emotions that every person in the audience fell captive to the little fellow at once starts to repay the kindness by his sunny disposition and by acting the role of Cupid. A shattered romance is renewed a band of outlaws is captured, and happiness comes to all concerned as the result of the youngster's ingenious efforts. In addition to the above named picture a century comedy entitled "The Kids Pal" was shown and evoked rounds of laughter.

WERNER HORNE SAYS HE IS A SON OF WILHELM
(Canadian Press Despatch.)
Montreal, Aug. 8.—Captain Werner Horne, the German spy, who is at present confined in the immigration building, will be deported on Wednesday on the steamship Poland, for Hamburg. Horne has now been pronounced insane after serving six of the ten years imprisonment in the Dorchester penitentiary to which he was sentenced after attempting to wreck the Vancouver bridge during the early part of the war.

Today he was visited by a passport agent with a view to obtaining passport particulars. The agent said that Horne kept continually talking about dikes and piers, the millions he has in the bank, and last but not least of his being the son of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, and of other prominent personages. In the end the agent was unable to get any case information from Horne and he came away convinced that he was demented.

Still See Need of Great Caution in Westfield Area

Yesterday's Rain Not Sufficient to Guarantee Safety—General Inclination of Sufferers Is to Rebuild—Some Insurance Losses.

The fire situation in the Westfield district showed little change last night. The rain which began falling yesterday morning about 8 o'clock died out about one o'clock yesterday afternoon without enough having fallen to do more than curb the anger of the flames for the time being. The sun came out in the afternoon and last evening was clear and cool. On the lower end of the fire-line fifty men were engaged in beating out the smouldering embers and along the Nerepis front six scouts were ranging all day yesterday making a survey of the situation. G. H. Prince, chief forester of New Brunswick, said last night that the area covered by the fire was so great that he was unable to send men into the regions to surround it. The great need is men and more men. The fire is still smouldering in some districts, and here and there the smoke may be seen lying low on the brushwood. So far as the sufferers by the fire are concerned the general disposition is to rebuild. Ways and means are being devised by which some of those burned at will stay on their property and attend to the rebuilding. It was said that no interest in the Westfield Country Club would be maintained, and its various activities carried on. As there was a loss of life there really seems to be a reason why the club should be allowed to fall into disuse. As a matter of fact it might be put to some very good use until things are back to normal. Several cases of petty pilfering were reported.

Local insurance men said yesterday that the loss would approximate half a million dollars with only about 100,000 covered. Of the local companies Machum and Foster were the hardest hit as they had $45,000 in risks in the burnt buildings, as follows: F. G. Spencer, $3,000; R. D. Smith, $2,300; J. Villard Smith, $3,600; Macaulay Estate, 1,507; E. R. Machum, $8,800; Arthur Kirkpatrick, $2,400; J. W. Ryan, $4,500; Miss Ballantyne, $1,200; Rev. Robert Mart, $1,000; Methodist church, $1,000; Methodist parsonage, $1,800; Clara Ames, $3,000.

The Weston property at Upper Gage was insured for $2,000 with Machum and Foster. J. A. Hoyt was insured with the London and Lancashire Co. for 750. The following were insured with Lockhart and Ritchie: F. G. Spencer, 7,600; Charles S. Holder, $1,100; W. H. Humphrey, $1,000.

Raymond Finlay was insured through J. B. Tennant for $1,250.

Insurance lossers: W. E. Golding, $600; E. G. Ikin, $2,800; Mrs. Corbett, $2,000; W. Humphrey, $500.

CHANGE OF WATER WAS THE CAUSE OF DIARRHOEA

People moving from place to place are very much subject to diarrhoea on account of the change of water, climate, diet, etc. Prompt treatment with such cases relieve the pain, check the diarrhoea, and thus do away with the suffering, the weakness and often the collapse associated with an attack of this kind. It does this by checking the too frequent and irritating stools, settling the stomach and bracing up the weakened system, thus restoring it to a peer for the treatment of all complaints of both old and young.

Ernest S. Beaton, Grayburn, writes: "Coming out here from East, my two little girls took very ill, the change of water, etc., giving them diarrhoea. They were so pale, and I tried to do anything to help them, so I finally got a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I must say it certainly helped them. I have also used it when my children are teething and it all they claim for."

Seventy-six years' reputation stands behind this remedy. Price, 25c a bottle, at all drug stores.

The rash would often keep me awake at night. I tried some remedies, which failed, and then thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It was not long till the rash began to disappear, and I used three cakes of Soap and four boxes of Ointment, which healed me." (Signed) W. M. Hymers, Paris, Ont., Sept. 12, 1919.

FIVE ARE FINED ON CHARGES OF INTIMIDATION

A Stern Warning Issued by Magistrate Ritchie.

Lays Down Law, Pointing Out That Picketing is Unlawful and Penalties are Severe.

The magistrate rendered judgment yesterday afternoon in the local police court in connection with the five men, Ernest M. Elliott, John Short, John Maher, J. Douglas and James Mayes, who were up for various infractions of the Dominion Intimidation Act. The magistrate found the five guilty of violation of some-section of the act. He said that he would only find them guilty of a technical violation and impose a fine of $20 on each individual. The fines were paid in each instance and the accused were allowed to go.

The Magistrate's Finding.

The finding of Magistrate Ritchie was as follows:

"These cases of intimidation at this particular time give rise to questions which are not unimportant. The section, No. 501, under the caption 'Intimidation' with its numerous subsections, is quite comprehensive. Under sub-section 'F' picketing, that is, watching or besetting a person's place with a view to compelling him to abstain from doing what he has a right to do, or to compel him to do what he has a right to abstain from doing, is unlawful. It is said that the word 'place' means any place in which he has been habitually or is intended to be habitually present.

As shown by an English case, Judge vs. Bennett, it has been declared illegal for an officer of a trade union to watch or beset a sub-manufacturer's premises for the purpose of persuading him to cease working for the manufacturer.

"In a period such as we are now passing through we may learn something important in reading a case decided in England twenty-two years ago, viz., Chambers vs. Court. It was held in this case that nothing in the Imperial act, which corresponds to section F of our act, defined the restriction of the watching or besetting. On the contrary, it may be for a short time and yet be an offense. The words 'place' meaning any place, included public places, such as railway stations, landing stages or anywhere where a workman happened to be, however casually.

"A celebrated case in England was that of Parmer vs. Wilson. In this case the shipowners employed men to work for wages on the Depot Ship, although they had no license to engage seamen. The defendants watched and beset the ship to prevent the men from working, and it was held by the court that they ought to be convicted inasmuch as their intent was to deprive the master and servant of their right to work.

"Then, again, a strange case might be mentioned against a crowd who followed a man. This crowd followed him, throwing eggs at him. These eggs were hurled at him because he was working at the motor works. Some of the defendants were not proved to have thrown eggs, but it was held by an English court that all were rightly convicted, although only two of them threw eggs at the complainant.

"In considering these cases we have to remember that strikes are now lawful, however inconvenient and irritating they may be. I have stated now what the law is in regard to strikes and, while it may not be an unlawful act for men to strike, yet the men and their followers must be careful not to use any violence on other men who have taken their places, nor can they lawfully intimidate a man who takes their position, nor can they intimidate his wife or his children, nor can they hide his tools, etc., nor can they watch or beset or follow such workmen.

"We must not forget that picketing is an unlawful act. In looking over the testimony against these five men, I find that there is evidence under one subsection or another to declare them all guilty under the intimidation Act. The five before me appear to be respectable men, and I do not wish to be too severe on them. Considering the extent of the strike and the amount of unemployment in the city, we have reason to be thankful that so far nothing very serious has occurred. I feel sure that no motorman or conductor, who is not working for the Power Company had anything to do with the disgraceful scene that Sunday afternoon at Haymarket Square. But, when one considers the number of people who have been on the streets during the evening of the labor parades, we have reason to be proud of our citizens that no great disturbance occurred. Since the strike I have again and again sounded a note of warning and called attention to the strike a few years ago, which unfortunately had a climax in the killing of that young man in Rockland Road.

"There is no desire on my part to take large fines from respectable, industrious citizens. The maximum fine in such cases is $200. I do not intend in finding you guilty to inflict this large penalty, but I intend treating you as guilty of a technical violation in connection with the offense with which you are charged and will fine you only $20 or twenty days in jail."

Kipling's "Amcera," the Hindu Girl from Lahore, impersonated by Miss Virginia Brown Faire.

By Curtis Dunham

IT IS of interest to the multitude of newspaper readers that the present highly developed resources of motion picture art are solving its most embarrassing problem—how to overcome the prejudices of the world's masters of creative literature. For the picture screen, no less than the printing press and the stage, requires a constant supply of fiction as a basis for its finished product. In the exercise of its purely entertainment function it is dependent upon the storyteller—and the better the story the more successful the motion picture form of transmission to the public.

Now, story-telling is a very ancient art, while that of the motion picture is so new that it seems a wonder that it is recognized at all. While they serve the same general purpose, their symbols of expression and their technique are violently opposed; where the one transmits its message wholly by means of written words, the other's ideal is to discard words altogether. Therefore, the writer of stories for picture interpretation must forego much of the finest expression belonging to his art—the verbal graces, the happy phrase, the glowing description, the animated dialogue with its unrivaled power of establishing character. These are of no value in connection with his task of enabling the scene-actors and the photographers to present his creation to the public. He is still the creative genius of the completed photoplay, but he has sacrificed his old and cherished direct communication with his audience. Besides—unless he is on hand to supervise in detail the whole process of picturization—he and his creation are wholly at the mercy of the producing organization.

"No," said Rudyard Kipling. For at least a dozen years the English master of vigorous poetry and prose had answered "No" to all suggestions and temptations designed to win him over to motion picture authorship. The fundamental reasons influencing himself and other established authors of the first rank were, in effect, those set forth above. Kipling held out longer than any of them. He objected to his published works being "adapted" by anybody else for the picture screen, and he did not feel tempted to do it himself. Candidly, he had little faith in the picturization process. He was not impressed with the usefulness of the motion picture as a literary medium, anyway.

Turns Down Million Dollar Offer

The surest and speediest way of bringing out that uncompromising negative was to "talk money" to Mr. Kipling. At least one choice illustration is on record. A certain rich and commercially successful picture concern retained a celebrated lawyer noted for his impressive speech and manner to go to England and "bring back a Kipling contract." By dint of much wire-pulling in literary and publishing circles the lawyer managed to obtain an interview with the novelist in London. The short scene between them is thus described:

"Having opened the subject in a few well-

clashed his hands under his coat-tails, took two impressive turns about the room, and said:

"As to what my proposition means to you, Mr. Kipling, I have full authority to state that seven figures—not less than one million dollars—"

"Amazement at Mr. Kipling's unaccountable behavior appeared to paralyze the lawyer's vocal apparatus. On the word 'million' the novelist had seized his hat. On 'dollars,' the door slammed with Mr. Kipling outside. Finis."

Incidents so picturesque as this one find a speedy and wide circulation in the world of moving picture production. For quite some time thereafter Rudyard Kipling pursued his ordinary literary course undisturbed at "Batemans," his delightful country home in Sussex. Meanwhile magazines and newspapers more and more were printing articles setting forth the great strides motion picture production was making in the direction of more faithful and truly artistic transference to the screen of the works of the world's master story-tellers. Maybe Mr. Kipling was keeping track of this tendency, but there was no evidence of it—at least outside of his own intimate circle.

Suddenly, a few months ago, was published the authoritative announcement that Rudyard Kipling shortly would make his debut as a screen author. He was rewriting his affecting tale, "Without Benefit of Clergy," in terms, not of the printing press, but of the motion picture screen, and the filmed result would bear the imprint of

Provided with Technical Assistant

Mr. Kipling was prepared to agree that all this probably was true. But he was not familiar with the screen author's technique—which must consider all the elements entering into the process of picturization. To overcome this obstacle, Mr. Brunet agreed to provide Mr. Kipling, for the period found necessary, with a competent technical assistant, who also would act as the au-

How They Coaxed Kipling Into the Movies

"Not for a Million Dollars!" Roared the Great Novelist, When He Was Asked to Write a Scenario--and Why He Changed His Mind.

Rudyard Kipling.

Kipling that exact duplicates of those Lahore streets and interiors built on the "Brunton lot" near Los Angeles was the right and efficient way of going about it? Well, that was part of Mr. Lewis's job—and Mr. Kipling was expecting his arrival in England shortly!

To his enormous surprise, the technical expert found Mr. Kipling entirely up-to-date regarding the main essentials of producing realistic effects in motion pictures. There was no objection to reproducing Indian scenes on the "Brunton lot," and Mr. Kipling himself would furnish authentic designs, specifications, native utensils and fabrics, with the fullest descriptions

Author Furnishes Copious Notes

During the progress of writing the first continuity—"Without Benefit of Clergy"—Mr. Kipling went ahead with plans in detail for the "movie" city of Lahore with all the native objects belonging to the street, the bazaars, the courtyard of the "House of Love," and the domestic interiors where Amcera and Hold lived their happy but ill-fated romance. If Rudyard Kipling's own materials and memory happened to be uncertain about any detail, he had only to refer to the comprehensive J. Lockwood Kipling collection in the Kensington Museum London. For his father, celebrated painter and art collector, was the leading authority on India and the native life of that country.

When the continuity of "Without Benefit of Clergy" was finished, Mr. Kipling added several pages of minute directions about the manner acting the part of the Hindu heroine, Amcera. So it will be seen that not only for the building of the "sets" in which to photograph the acts of the story, but for the costuming and acting in the drama, the author's materials, designs and written information were exhaustive. After many camera tests in the scenes built for the filming of "Without Benefit of Clergy," graceful Virginia Brown Faire was engaged to play the part of Amcera. By the same process of elimination, Thomas Holding was chosen for the hero part, the British structural engineer, John Holden. All of the other parts were filled with equal care. For "extras," the Hindu colony of Los Angeles was drawn upon.

BIG ANNUAL FAIR Sept 3-10

How would you like to go up, straight up, nearly one mile in the air, hanging by your teeth alone to a trapeze, suspended from a balloon by a vicious looking bomb?

How would you like to have that bomb explode with an ear-splitting roar and be cut suddenly loose from the sustaining balloon?

How would you like to take your chances on the parachute concealed in that bomb opening its wings in the smoke-bellclouded air, in time to check your descent to the waiting earth?

Too many thrills all at once, you say. But you will see all these and more at the big free, out-door show at the St. John Exhibition which opens its doors September 3, only a few weeks hence.

Bonette Brothers, great aerial artists, will perform daily this daring feat which surpasses any acroplane act ever seen. Also at the Exhibition will be the educated Baboon family, the Malia-Barte troupe of comedy artists, high-wire walkers and trick bicycle riders—a real circus within an Exhibition.

Industrial and Live Stock exhibits promise to surpass all previous records at this fair. Excursion rates are again in force on all railways and the general interest in the Exhibition is evidence that St. John, this year, is to see a great influx of visitors.
