AYER'S PILLS.

THE LIVER IS THE GREAT BOWEL OF THE SYSTEM. If the liver is diseased, the bowels are constipated, or the stomach fails to perform its functions properly, use Ayer's Pills. They are invaluable.

For some years I was a victim to Liver Complaint, in consequence of which I suffered from General Debility and Indigestion. A box of Ayer's Pills restored me to perfect health.—W. T. Brightley, Henderson, W. Va.

Regulate

my bowels. These Pills are mild in action, and do their work thoroughly. I have used them with good effect, in cases of Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, and Dyspepsia.—G. F. Miller, Attleborough, Mass.

I was attacked with Bilious Fever, which was followed by a severe attack of Liver Complaint, from which I had suffered for years. I considered them the best pills made, and would not be without them.—Morris Gates, Downsville, N. Y.

Last spring I suffered greatly from a troublesome humor on my side. In spite of every effort to cure this eruption, it increased until the flesh became entirely raw. I was troubled, at the same time, with Indigestion, and distressing pains in the bowels.

By the advice of a friend I began taking Ayer's Pills. In a short time I was free from pain, my food digested properly, the eruption on my body commenced healing, and in less than one month, I was cured.

My wife and little girl, and I at once began giving them small doses of Ayer's Pills, thinking I would call a doctor, but in less than one month, I was cured.

A WIFE'S LESSON.

"George, we really must have new carpets this year. Look at Lizzie Moore's. Do you want your house to look worse than our neighbor's? Certainly you can afford the expense as well as Tom can."

"For that matter, my dear, I think I can afford it better than Tom can; for he is in debt, and I am not."

"There! What did I tell you? I knew you could afford it. And now we have the carpets. Don't be. Don't, for mercy's sake, let our rooms be a fright to everybody else's."

"Lidia, our rooms are, at this moment, far better than Lizzie's. Look at her carpets. They are old and worn, and far more inviting than were the rooms of our parents, which you and I, in our childhood, thought so grand. Carpets they had none. And, further, those carpets are not worn to look badly at all. Not a worn bit to be seen. In fact, they are as good and as serviceable as they were when first put down."

"Oh, all the color is faded from them. One thing you can depend upon; those things will come up, and they won't go down again."

"I don't know, and I don't care. If we can't have them, we can go without carpets. I can stand it if you can."

"Lidia," still calm and kindly, but with a mighty struggle for self-control, "you know Brussels carpeting is not a yard wide. Between thirty and forty pounds will be the expense. You know that I do not spare money. I have no expensive habits beyond the absolute necessities of life. Every shilling I can save will be put in the bank, there to remain and accumulate until a need not to be otherwise met shall demand its withdrawal. Really and truly, the money I would save for my loved ones; that is the one thought that influences me when I look to the regulation of my expense. So, my dear wife, it is not I alone who must pay for all the luxuries of our house; it comes from the bank account of the family. Don't say any more

A PEN PICTURE OF CANADA'S PREMIER.

A LEADER AMONG MEN AND WITHOUT A POLITICAL PEER.

(From the New York Times.)

OTTAWA, June 1.—The Premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, or as he is familiarly called, "the Old Man," stands in the same relation to the Dominion as Bismarck to Germany, and as Disraeli did to England.

Between him and Disraeli there are many points of similarity. Naturally aggressive as a politician he can be contenting to a degree that charms the enemy.

A leader among men, and as his most significant victory have been won by shaping his policy in accord with public sentiment rather than in creating sentiment to suit his ends. His plans, like those of Disraeli, are always tinged with a dash of conservatism, but at the same time the popular taste and arouses a spirit of loyalty that is apt to override party lines.

An optimist of the most pronounced type, he never grows a wrinkle on his brow; under the most adverse circumstances he is cheery and debonair, a tower of strength to his friends, a constant menace to his opponents. Straight as an ash, with the swinging gait and springy step of youth, his eyes bright, his ears sharp, and the cleanly shaven face smiling or stern as the occasion demands, but at all times indicative of power, his 73 years sit lightly upon him and the outward man gives no sign that his tremendous labors have had the slightest effect upon his physical or mental organization.

Sir John Macdonald is the linchpin of the Canadian nation, the brains, blood, and bones of the conservative party, and in his person is represented the Government of the Dominion. Without a political peer in a realm of 3,500,000 square miles of territory and a population of nearly 5,000,000, he sits so firmly entrenched to-day that there are none who entertain the hope of ousting him from power. He is stronger than his party, and in a political life of 40 years he has enabled to do so better than any other man in the history of the Dominion.

The difference between his political strength and that of his party can hardly be estimated. His personal magnetism within its smaller field is that of Blaine as the Falls of Niagara to the Chaudiere. The quality of his magnetism enables him to secure his object, while that of Blaine obtains him only second place in a race that only offers single prize.

All things to all men, in a political sense, he may be, but his enemies do not accuse him of having abused his opportunities to secure personal advantage. Unlike his colleagues in the Government, he manifests no repugnance in approaching a dangerous topic, nor does he shrink from doing his attempt to belittle its importance.

SOME STARTLING REVELATIONS.

Montreal Star: The reports that have been called from London from time to time concerning the disgraceful conduct of the British navy appear to have considerable foundation. Lord Randolph Churchill has been adding to his "revelations" and his statements are astounding.

In his recent speech at Wolverhampton, the late Chancellor of the Exchequer said: "After the bombardment of Alexandria the ironclads 'Sultan' and 'Alexandria' had not ten rounds of heavy shell left, and as there was no reserve at Malta they would have been utterly helpless. He also said that the French fleet, in the Khartoum expedition, the shells were too large for the guns, and were so badly made that they would not explode. During the critical state of Europe at the close of last year there was not a single cartridge in store for the machine guns. He heard from the highest authority that the 'Monsieur' had been utterly wrecked by the explosion of only seventy rounds in 1884. The Order Committee designed some forty-three guns, and asked the Armstrongs to construct fifteen of them. The Armstrongs protested that the design was bad, but they were told to mind their own business and make the guns. When they were made Capt. Noble refused to send them to sea, saying they would burst. He also was told to mind his own business. Four of the guns were put aboard the 'Collingwood,' and on the second round, firing half a charge, one of them burst. The whole were then condemned at a loss of $200,000. Worst of all, if there was a war, four of the guns were still held in reserve for the 'Collingwood.' Lord Randolph made numerous other revelations of inefficiency and badness in designs for new vessels for the fleet. He said: 'Perhaps you understand the sort of system of expending public money against which I dashed myself and utterly refused to be connected with for a day or an hour. It is a system which I deeply regret to say, the Premier and the Secretaries of the Army and Navy, being badly advised have handed themselves together to support. I rather pity than blame them. Finally we showed the sort of humbug which the official ring thinks good enough for public consumption.'

KINGS COUNTY ITEMS.

ARONAH, June 8.—A serious and painful accident occurred this afternoon in Ed's Abrams' mill. Samuel Scribner, while attempting to remove some shavings from the planing machine, had his right hand caught by the knives of the rapidly revolving cylinder, and cut off, leaving a small portion of the thumb. After the accident, he walked about a quarter of a mile, and afterward submitted with the same indifference to the pain of having the ragged wound trimmed and dressed. Dr. Johnson of Sussex was in attendance. Mr. Scribner is a young man, much liked in the village, and the accident has cast a gloom over our quiet community. He had intended, after holidays, to attend school, and ultimately to become a teacher.

A curious fact in connection with the affair is that several months ago Mr. Scribner dreamed that he lost his hand in the mill, and that he afterwards started down the street, past the Baptist church, to the bank of the river. This much of the dream he vividly remembered, and repeated it to his lady and gentleman with whom he then boarded, and also to others. In fact it so deeply impressed him that for several days he kept continually referring to the matter and confessed to a very unpleasant feeling with regard thereto. His dream was fulfilled to the letter; for after losing the hand he went down the street, past the Baptist church, to his brother's house on the bank of the river. This may be only a coincidence, or it may be a proof that in some cases "coming events cast their shadows before," but, however accounted for, it is a simple statement of fact. I give it as it was given me by the person to whom Mr. Scribner told his dream some months ago.—Times.

KENT COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

TO BE HELD IN BASS RIVER JUNE 27TH AND 28TH.

The executive committee of the Kent Co. Sunday school association met in Kingston, Feb. 22nd, Rev. Wm. Hamlin in the chair, when it was resolved that the convention be appointed to meet on the 27th and 28th of June. The discussion of the following topics will be an interesting and profitable part of the convention.

1. What are the qualifications of Sabbath school work?—Rev. J. D. Murray.

2. Of what help should teachers avail themselves in preparing the lessons? and how?—Ephraim Pine, Esq.

3. What class of literature should be disseminated among the scholars in Sunday schools?—Rev. S. James.

4. What relation should family training bear to the Sunday schools?—Rev. J. M. Cameron.

5. What relation ought the Sunday school to sustain to the temperance cause?—R. B. Noble, Esq.

We hope that S. S. superintendents, and others interested in the work of S. S. will take an active interest in the coming convention. It is desirable that each S. S. superintendent bring the matter before his school, and have delegates appointed to attend. Let no school in the county, however small, be without a representative at this convention.

Superintendents will confer a favor by sending a card to Rev. J. M. Cameron, of Bass River, giving the number of delegates that may be expected to attend from their schools and attention will be paid to their entertainment.

The first session of the convention will be opened at 2 o'clock, Monday, the 27th June. Let us have a large attendance and let the delegates be promptly on hand at hour of opening. The persons whose names are attached to the different topics, will be given ten minutes to open the discussion, after which any member of the convention will have the privilege of speaking on the topic.

JAS. W. TAIT, Secy. to Convention.

NEW SCHOOL HOUSE AT CHATHAM.

It is proposed to add two school rooms, with class rooms attached and the usual cloak rooms, halls, etc., to the present school-house, the property of the Highland Society of Chatham. The new rooms will give accommodation for 120 additional pupils, each room being 23x30 feet. The main hall is 20 feet wide, with the cloak rooms and stair case in it, and also the entrance vestibule and the teachers' room, etc., on the ground floor, and a class room on the second floor. At the junction between the old and the new buildings a bell-turret is carried up above the roof of the new building, and the roof over the hall has a pediment gable with dentel cornice, the same style of cornice being carried all around the new building. Each school room receives its main light of light through five windows on the left side of the pupil. On the right hand side of the pupil is a small window, and at the back two—all being placed high up in the wall and are intended more for ventilating and airing the room than for light. A cellar is provided for furnace and fuel, and the ventilation is arranged for from both floor and ceiling by metal pipes carried down in the round corners of the rooms and along under the ground floors into the brick flues.

The plans for these additions were made by Mr. J. T. C. McKean, architect of this city, who was employed by the Board of Education to prepare the general designs for school-houses for the rural districts throughout the Province, and which designs were lithographed and published by the Board of Education. Complete sets of detail drawings of each class of school-house, from a one-room building up to a three-room one-story building, with class room, were made at that time, and copies of which are supplied free of cost by the Board of Education upon proper application. The Victoria school-house in St. John, the Albert school-house in Colyton, the Winter Street school-house in Portland, and the Normal school building in Fredericton and other school-houses throughout the Province have been erected from designs by Mr. McKean.—Globe.

AN "EXECUTION" AT SEA.

[From the Pall Mall Gazette.]

The story of life on the high seas which came out at the Thames police court on Tuesday, was one of the most dramatic and peculiar that ever reached the public eye, and has ever produced. The Malay sailor Husin had made himself impossible on board the little bark "Lady Douglas," he set the carrying knife and himself in the forepeak, only uttering from time to time the Delphic remark, "If I kill one, I die." Nobody dared to go near him, for he wanted to die; imprisonment and intimidation were tried in vain; he possessed himself of lucifer matches, and it was feared he would fire the ship; so at last the captain and all the ship's crew agreed to kill him, "as it was too dangerous," so they flooded the forepeak with water to drive him out, then the carpenter made an enfilade, that penetrating him with a shot-gun, a sailor hooked Husin's clothes and drew him up on deck, another sailor blew him on his brains with a revolver, and they tried to throw him overboard, but he floated, and the police court for murder. In their defence the east it is the practice—and the perfectly wise and justifiable one—to kill at sight, like a mad dog, any fellow who runs amuck."
