Under the fan lay a card, and upon this was to keep his memory bright for three long years-But Mr. Desborough had no intention of al-lowing Margaret to droop and pine in lonely waiting for her true love. Looking upon her as a child, he was determined to allow her full opportunity for testing her own heart before taking so important a step in life as marriage, and for two years the young girl, with her father and governess, travelled in her own country, sojourning in many cities, meeting friends of her father, soeing society, yet keeping up her studies and improving a decided talent for drawing and painting. A Bold Resolve in a Dangerous Situation.—A remarkable instance of presence of mind on the part of the Captain of a man-of-war is related by the St. Petersburg papers. About the end of last month the Russian war frigate Olaf, which had accompanied the yatch of the Carewitch to Copenhagen, was lying at anchor among hundreds of other ships in the harbour when a fire was discovered in a coal cellar below, which was only a few feet from the powder magazine. There was no time to put out the fire before it could reach the the magazine, and an explosion of the large stores of cartridges and gunpowder contained in it would probably have destroyed not only the Olaf and the surrounding ships, but part of Copenhagen itself.

Captain Rehbinder, the commader of the Olaf saw at once that the only thing to be done to prevent a extastrophe was to sink the ship. After sending away the crew A BOLD RESOLVE IN A DANGEROUS SITU done to prevent a catastrophe was to sink the ship. After sending away the crew with the ship's papers, cash boxes, and most valuable instruments in boats, he married to morrow to Mr. Coleston, a most most valuable instruments in boats, he estimable gentleman, and the fan was intended for my bridal present."

The sweet face lighted with the radiance of the summer so long ago, and the little hand no longer struggled in the strong yet tender clasp detaining it.

Miss Demaisne never knew the history of the exquisite fan that was Preston's bridal gift, and the pretty blonde, who ame as Preston's bride to his father's home, told no tale of the dainty device that was painted with so many tears.

And if Preston read to the pretty Mrs. Coleston the meaning of the Oriental bouquet upon the white silk, what better could not officer to his step-sister than the tender wishes therein conveyed.

"To Vienna." "On business?" "No; to visit my daughter, who married an Austrian." "Is your son-in-law in good business?" "Well, tolerably good, but troublesome at times." "What is he?" "The Emperor." The tradesman was covered with confusion, and, notwithstanding the laughing protess Archduke Maximilian, of Bavaria, went and, notwithstanding the laughing protes-tations of the Archduke, he darted from the carriage at the very first stopping

THE LOYED ONES.—We lay our loved ones in their graves, with despairing grief, yet they await us in the glory and light. But knowing that to day or to-morrow may be the last time on earth that we shall hear some loved voice, how can we speak-harshly? How can we utter impatient words that our breaking hearts can never recall?—for only when the Golden Gates open to our longing souls, can we win that loving forgiveness from the dear eyes that death has closed.

the borrowed language of a gentleman of high colonial standing, and whose genius was of a type not easily found even among the elo British Government strongly urging in favour of France, he, who is now no more of this world burst out into an appeal angered by disappointment and the total abandonment of colonial interests by the Mother Government, and exclaimed, "Is there no lone island in the tranquil Pacific, or the long and distant shore Gambia and Africa, by which the rapacion maw of the Imperial Eagle might be satiated," &c. The debates on this question were care fully transmitted by Governor Darling to the Colonial office, where probably some of the Royal Colonial Institute may have had access to them among other interesting documents.

If the Morning Post and Globe seriously mea that Gambia is to pass to the French for the relinquishment of their claims and position in indland waters, they are wonderfully stray in their calculation.

CHARGE AGAINST A CAPTAIN .-- A British nevs court was held on board H. M. S. Daring, at Pabellon de Pica, on Aug. 2, for the trial of Carl Hjelmstrom, who was charged with un-lawfully taking command of the British ship "J. Walter Scammell, of St. John N. B.., his certificate at the time being suspended by sentence of a court held recently on board H: M. flag ship "Repulse," for six months. The court on board the "Daring" was composed of Commander J. G. J. Hammer, President; Lieut. Colebrook Manderville; Navigating Lieutenant James Veitch, and Paymester H. P. Kooystra, acting as clerk to the court. The court adjudged that Captain Hjelmstrom's ertificate be further suspended for the onths. On further inquiry the court orders that J. Fork, chief mate of the seammell," be discharged from the ship.
