CITY OF LONDON ELECTION.

Polling on Friday, 26th February, From 9 a.m. Till 5 p.m.

C. S. HYMAN

The People's Candidate.

AT ITS OLD TRICKS.

The silliest charge brought against Mr. Hyman now is that his committees at last election did their work in the evenings, therefore the members were a set of bribing scoundrels. The same libeler published wholesale charges against most respected business men of London, and was compelled to retract and apologize and assert that there was no truth in the charges. Let it now name the responsible members of Mr. Hyman's committee that it slanders, and it will have to repeat the humiliating process that it went through a few days ago when it said, referring to the gentlemen then accused of bribery and corruption:

"The trial, at which the petitioners had an opportunity of proving, is now over, and during its progress it has not been shown that the gentlemen named were guilty of the charges mentioned in the particulars printed by the Free Press.

"It is, therefore, only fair to the gentlemen named to say that they are free from all personal corrupt practices.

"The Free Press is glad to be able to entirely exonerate them from complicity in the alleged wrongdoing, as it is satisfied that an error was made in placing these charges in the particulars."

The ADVERTISER does not desire to be a dividing but rather a uniting force in this community. The ADVERTISER's own preferences are for those questions that have to do with the social and moral well being and advancement of our common country, rather than for merely partisan disputations of any kind. We have often thought it a pity the best men of the country, irrespective of old political differences, could not in some way be brought together to give an Administration at Ottawa capable of lifting Canada out of that slough of corruption which has unfortunately attracted the attention of the whole civilized world. Let us not, however, despair of his country. There's light ahead.

God's in His heaven,
All's right with the world.
But the country needs a change.

WHY YOUNG MEN DON'T MARRY.

A high tax orator, speaking recently, explained to his fellow-citizens that the reason the population is not increasing is that the young men are too poor to marry. Who is to blame for this state of affairs but the men who heap taxes on the producers, and make it so expensive to keep house? They talk about having a surplus of $2,000,000 lying in the treasury at Ottawa. Where did that surplus come from? It did not fall from the clouds. It was not gathered in the streets. It did not grow on the trees. It was filched from the pockets of the hard-working men and women of this Dominion. Mr. Hyman is one of those who would let every cent possible remain in the pockets of the taxpayers. He will never countenance the heavy taxation of the people, and the hoarding up of money unnecessarily taken from them. If there had been fewer surpluses at Ottawa in recent years, there would have been less temptation for the Langevins, the Haggarts, the Chapleaus, the Arnoldis, to take a hand in getting away with the funds.

Mr. Cochrane, M.P., who put up public offices for sale in the constituency which he represents, and demanded [illegible] $100 and $200 [illegible] per office [illegible] expenses, has been working against Mr. M. C. Cameron in West Huron. This man Cochrane was whitewashed and defended by Mr. Carling's associates [illegible] altogether [illegible] with Mr. Haggart and others. This was one of the disgraceful episodes of the last session of Parliament.

A GOOD-HUMORED CONTEST.

We are glad to see Mr. Hyman's friends conducting the campaign in a manner yet thoroughly good-natured [illegible]. Life is but short, at best, and [illegible] worth while making the temporary differences of the hour too bitter. We all have to live together, and do business together, and build up the city together.

"THE MORAL EFFECT OF PIGS' FEET."

Our esteemed local contemporary devotes an additional column to the subject of pigs' feet and beer, with the ultimate moral, of course, that the electors of London should show their disapproval of pigs' feet and beer by voting for Mr. Carling.

We are hardly prepared to admit the logic that the best way to discourage the consumption of pigs' feet and beer is to send a brewer to Parliament. But that can be argued out later.

Our local contemporary's discourse is headed with the following extract from the Walkerville Mercury:

"The London Free Press makes an appeal to parents, and asks them to seriously consider the bad moral effect of pigs' feet and beer on the young and rising generation."

Walkerville? Walkerville? We must have heard the name before. Oh, yes! Walkerville is the seat of the great distillery. Can it be that the Walkerville philosopher considers the moral effect of good whisky better than the best beer? Is it a rivalry between the organs of different drinks?

Pardon for the digression and once again to the pigs' feet.

Our contemporary asks parents to seriously consider "the bad moral effect of pigs' feet and beer."

Let us divide our subject.

1. Pigs' feet.

Will our contemporary kindly explain wherein consists the bad moral effect of pigs' feet?

There are those who consider pigs' feet as a diet to be entirely neutral as to morals—their effect depending greatly on how they are cooked. If badly cooked we can well understand that pigs' feet might produce dyspepsia—dyspepsia produce quarrelsomeness of spirit—quarrelsomeness of spirit cause strife—strife lead to violence. Badly-cooked pigs' feet might lead on to all that.

But properly-cooked pigs' feet, never! Why, we have seen pigs' feet, daintily cooked, occupy a place of honor on the bills of fare of some of the finest hotels in the world.

We repeat, then, the moral effect of pigs' feet depends solely on the cooking.

2. Beer.

Let us, to shorten the argument, admit all our contemporary says concerning "the bad moral effect of" Mr. Carling's beer. How is that to be bettered by sending Mr. Carling to the House of Commons?

Will that deprive Mr. Carling's beer of its "bad moral effect?"

Parliament has a good deal of influence on some phases of the liquor traffic.

For instance, the question of Prohibition lies with the Dominion Parliament.

On the 12th of February, 1891, Mr. Carling, in a letter of reply to the London Temperance Union, said that "should any measure on the subject of Prohibition be introduced," he "would give the matter his best consideration." The conclusion a brewer would be apt to arrive at on a question directly affecting his own profit is not difficult to guess.

Mr. Hyman, in a letter of the same date, expressed his willingness and preference to have the subject of prohibition referred to a Dominion plebiscite, or vote by the people.

Mr. Carling is not in accord with the people of London on the question of the liquor traffic. Nor do we desire to blame him unfairly or unduly. Many another, were he also pecuniarily interested in the promotion of intemperance, would take the same attitude as Mr. Carling.

But the opinions of the mass of the people of London were expressed by a majority of over 700—which might easily have been made more—in the plebiscite vote on the reduction of licenses in January, 1891. In that triumphant majority were included Protestant and Catholic, Conservative and Liberal, total abstainer and moderate drinker, who all agreed at least thus far, that whatever they might think about absolute prohibition, there was no doubt in their minds that too many drinking places were worse than unnecessary.

On the occasion of that plebiscite, the Hon. John Carling, Mr. H. Carling and all the influences of Mr. Carling's brewery, threw themselves with their full force against the movement to reduce the number of licenses. But Mr. Carling was defeated on that occasion also by a majority of over 700 votes.

We must try our readers' pardon for detaining them so long, but we trust we have succeeded in (1) rescuing from undeserved obloquy that excellent viand—if properly cooked—pigs' feet; and (2) in demonstrating that the best way to neutralize any "bad moral effects" of Mr. Carling's beer can hardly be to send Mr. Carling to Parliament as representative of the sentiments of the citizens of London.

Over 300 men have been discharged from the Intercolonial Railway, which is under the control of the Dominion Government. The bye-elections are over, and the men who are so desperately fighting for their offices do not now care what comes of the workers. The worst of it is that some of the best mechanics have been discharged because of their independence of spirit and some of the worse kept because they are more [illegible] of the [illegible].

THE RECORDS OF MR. HYMAN AND MR. CARLING ON THE POPULAR VOTE.

Stuffed voters' lists did the work in East Elgin and North Victoria.—[Montreal Herald.

Yes, and stuffed voters' lists will beat those lacking both vigilance and money anywhere. But for the enormous labor of disinterested business men in this city, and their willingness to pay the large sum of money that had to be spent before justice could be assured, hundreds of the workingmen of London would be without votes today, and the friends of trade freedom would be hopelessly in the minority. No wonder that the young men of the city, on behalf of whom the effort was primarily made, are overwhelmingly in favor of Mr. Hyman, who is opposed to a measure so unfair in its incidence, and determined when he returns to Parliament to make such an exposure of its operations as shall aid in effecting a speedy reform.

Mr. Hyman is, by antecedents and training, a believer in the maintenance of popular rights. His views are that the man who pays the taxes and behaves himself, no matter how humble his origin or small his income, shall be entitled to a voice in the government of his country. Mr. Hyman has no faith in the present system, which is an insult to the manhood of the country. No one who attended the late Court of Revision at the City Hall can have any misgivings on this point.

What fair-minded man is there who can defend the operations of the Franchise Act as it now stands? Day after day, night after night, there was to be witnessed at that inquisition long and explicit examinations of the young men of the city in order to expose every item of their earnings and in many cases efforts were made to discover how they spent their money. Counsel specially hired by the trade restrictionist leaders submitted young man after young man to a system of humiliating badgering in order to discover what they did with their dirty clothes, whether they were washed at home or washed abroad, how they ate and how they drank, and how much they paid for their daily bread. There could be no dispute as to the fact that these young men were consumers of goods that paid heavy taxes, or that they were as good citizens as the owners' sons who got a vote without question, on the strength of their fathers' riches. The one desire was to kill their vote if possible, if they were known, as most young men are known, to be in favor of trade freedom. Some of these young men could prove that their clear earnings were within $1 or $2 of $300 a year; yet if by any expedient Mr. Essery and his companions could get them kept off the lists, off they went. If a man earned $1 every lawful day, but was sick or out of work for a couple of weeks in a year, off went his name. If, as was the case with an old and esteemed assistant of Mr. Mustill, blacksmith, a man got a broken leg through the kick of a horse, and was kept in bed for a month or so, off went his name, notwithstanding that he had lived and paid taxes in the city for over 30 years.

The law, both in regard to its expensiveness, vexatiousness and grossly class character, is a disgrace to the statute book, and Mr. Hyman should be sent back to aid in its repeal.

No help need be expected in this connection from Mr. Carling. In 1890, when the infamous character of the measure was brought before Parliament Mr. Carling voted for the act every time. He did so with his eyes wide open.

Mr. Brien at that time moved that all men who earned $200 a year should have votes. Mr. Carling voted against this fair proposition, the enactment of which would have given votes to hundreds of men disfranchised in London this year.

Then Mr. Brien moved that the yearly income necessary to obtain a vote should be $250 instead of $300.

Mr. Burns (Conservative) said every man now had a vote who deserves it.

This contention, Mr. Paterson, the able Liberal member for South Brant, who is himself a large employer of labor, denounced as undemocratic and a gross injustice to the bone and sinew of Canada. "What," asked Mr. Paterson, "does the honorable gentleman mean by such an expression as that every man has a vote who deserves it? Does he mean that in this country, where our revenue is based on indirect taxation, customs and excise in which the young men have to contribute to the revenue, and in case of war to go to the front, while others remain behind—those young men, because they do not earn $300 a year, are not worthy of giving a vote as free men in a free country?"

The answer to this question was a call for the vote of the members, when Mr. Carling and his associates carried the disfranchising motion. They refused to amend the measure; they were afraid of the young men.

Thus Mr. Carling is directly responsible for disfranchising the men of London who may have the misfortune to get out of work or to meet with an accident. Such a measure cannot too soon be repealed or radically amended. Mr. Carling has pledged himself again and again to stick to the disgracefully unfair enactment. Mr. Hyman, aided by the experiences of hundreds of his fellow-citizens at the City Hall inquisition, will go to Parliament pledged either to work and vote for the repeal of the act or for its amendment in the direction of one man one vote and residential suffrage, with a simple system of registration.

St. Thomas Journal: "One of the funniest sights of the campaign in London is the organ of the brewers when it is attacking Hyman on his temperance record." Yes, it is a [illegible] spectacle.

WHERE THE BOGUS VOTERS DWELL.

The owners of the 230 bogus names which the trade restriction bosses spent many hundreds of dollars to have retained on the voters' lists—without the consent of these men, by the way—live all over creation. An analysis of the facts brought out in the Court of Revision shows that Twenty-three live in South London, and have votes in South Middlesex.

Forty-nine live in the city, but were proved to have no legal qualifications, being under age, etc.

Sixteen live in Toronto.
Two live in England.
Two live in Byron.
Four live in St. Thomas.
Over twenty live in the United States.
Nine live in London West, and vote in East Middlesex.
Four live in Petrolea.
Three live in Nissouri.
Five live in Hamilton.
Fourteen live in East London, and vote in East Middlesex.
Three live in Montreal.
Three live in Chatham.
Six live in the Northwest and British Columbia.

And the remainder are to be found in Ridgetown, Ailsa Craig, Kingston, Dundas, Sarnia, Ingersoll, Dunnville, Simcoe, Seaforth, Longwood, Ottawa, Alvinston, Thamesford, St. Catharines, Walkerville, Port Rowan, Port Hope, Guelph, Woodstock, Dublin, Forest, and other places not yet discovered.

It was through this bogus list of 230 names that the opponents of Mr. Hyman hoped to beat him; but justice has prevailed.

WEST HURON ELECTION.

The bye-election in this constituency takes place on Tuesday next.

Mr. M. C. Cameron is again the candidate of trade freedom and honest government.

Mr. Patterson, of Windsor, who was defeated in North Essex less than a year ago by over 300 votes, is his opponent.

As between the two men and the policies they represent, our friends should have no difficulty in choosing their old and tried representative, Mr. Cameron.

A dead set is being made against him, because of the ability with which he exposed wrongdoing in last session of Parliament. That is one reason why he should be re-elected. Then his enemies have been hitting below the belt. They circulated while he was in the south for his health on the advice of his medical adviser, an infamous slander about the honorable gentleman. They have kept it going ever since, though they know it is utterly false. Mr. Cameron has challenged them to make the charge in public, but not one of them dare do so. They know they would at once be arrested for criminal libel.

When a man is attacked as Mr. Cameron has been he should have the support of all right thinking men in the riding. The ADVERTISER trusts that every voter who believes in freedom of trade, fair play, and righteous government will go to the polls on Tuesday next, and re-elect the old warhorse by a substantial majority.

The Toronto World (Conservative) says that the odds in the betting in that city is in favor of Mr. Hyman. The ADVERTISER does not believe in betting, but some people see in this an indication showing which way the contest wind is blowing. When the courts unanimously condemned the great voters' list steal, and threw off the 230 bogus voters attempted to be kept on by the trade restrictionist bosses, Mr. Carling's stock went away down below par. Our friends, however, should remember that votes win, not betting; overconfidence should be guarded against all along the line.

MR. A. F. JURY'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Jury's admirable address on the workingman aspect of the taxation question and also on immigration will be found on the fourth page of the present issue. The combine managers and their newspaper advocates do not have any love for this representative workingman; he knows their methods too well, and has too frequently exposed them. Mr. Jury is a true friend of the masses.

On the principle that Mr. Carling should not have everything, many a quiet vote of those not very keen on either side will be cast for Mr. Hyman. Mr. Carling has a life seat in the Senate, with $1,000 a year and nothing to do, and he ought not to want the earth.

THE RAILWAY VIEW.

According to the General Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, the unnecessary tariff cost that company $500,000 a year. This and other heavy levies on the great lines of railway decrease the amount available for wages, and is a distinct injury to every railway employe. Mr. Hyman will work and vote for a change.

There would be cheaper travel on the railways if the Langevins, the Chapleaus and the Haggarts did not have to be subsidized heavily by [illegible] collected from the earnings of the roads. No citizen is working in the interests of either the railway employes or the traveling public who votes for a continuance of the policy of trade restriction.

RECIPROCITY MADE A FARCE OF.

The restrictionist managers at Ottawa have now played their hand in the reciprocity deal—and lost.

This was what most men expected.

The old treaty of 1854 was brought to an end because the Government and people of the United States regarded it as a jug-handled measure. They complained that the Canadian Provinces were given access to the best markets of the continent with their grain, animals and animal products, lumber, minerals and fish, and that the hope of the Canadian markets being opened to American manufactures was blighted by the policy of high taxation put in force here two or three years after the treaty went into operation. Their protests against this action were made early and often, as the records show, but fruitlessly. At length, when the time to abrogate the treaty came, it was ended without ceremony.

The people of the United States, however, have never displayed an unwillingness to trade freely with us providing that this could be done upon acceptable terms, and they have always given it to be understood that free trade in all the products of both countries would be acceptable. The countries are so near to each other and their conditions are so much alike that in the opinion of many people a free interchange of commodities could take place without any important industry being made to suffer.

Disturbances must of necessity occur under tariff changes; there never has been a tariff rearrangement in Canada or the United States that did not affect some interest. But whatever might happen in this way in either county could not be very serious or lasting. All natural industries would speedily adapt themselves to the circumstances, and with the larger and freer markets opened to them, a greater prosperity would be assured than before. Possibly there are some manufacturers here as well as in the United States, who might suffer more or less severely. Concerns with small capital and little enterprise cannot help but suffer when brought into competition with more spirited rivals.

But the greatest good of the greatest number is the best motto for governments.

It matters little though one or two suffer inconvenience or loss if ten times their number are bettered by the change. And we are persuaded that a very large proportion of the people of both the United States and Canada will say without hesitation that with freedom of trade established on an enduring basis between the two countries all interests and industries would be placed on a surer footing than they now are. More money could be made, the cost of production would be lowered, prices and profits would rest on a more stable basis, the necessaries as well as the luxuries of life would be brought more within the reach of all classes, and an era of peace and good-will established between the two countries, under which the highest achievements of civilization might be realized.

But the failure of our Government to make any terms at Washington, puts these possibilities out of reach unless the Canadian people will now take the matter firmly into their own hands. It was clear enough from the first, to all who were not carried away by party zeal, that the Government had no chance of securing from the United States a treaty limited to natural products.

Indeed it was obvious to many from the outset that the Government had no sincere desire to succeed.

The premature dissolution of Parliament last year was only meant to defeat the movement, which the late leader of the Tory party perceived was growing rapidly in favor with the Canadian people, and especially in the rural districts.

Now that the leader is dead the old policy of restriction is adhered to as firmly as before, thinly disguised by an attempt to make the farmers believe that the securing for them of a larger and better market for their products is being sought after; but more desperately than ever before, we fear, the men who lead the Government are resorting to every conceivable device to keep their hold of power.

They have toyed with reciprocity until they can do so no longer, and they have come back from Washington exposed and humiliated, with not a rag of their remnant of a policy left to beguile the electors.

It is high time that this career of humbug was brought to a close.

The bye-elections yet to be held offer the only chance left for the present to procure reform.

Men of every party who recognize the worth of a reciprocity treaty to restore prosperity to the Dominion and arrest the tide of emigration from our coasts should make a final effort to drive our betrayers from power.

It is to the honor of scores upon scores of London Conservatives that they discountenanced the protest from the first, that they disapprove of the attempt to defeat Mr. Hyman by a stuffed voters' list, that they consider Mr. Carling should be satisfied with the seat he already has in the Senate branch of Parliament. These we know to be the views of many fair-playing Conservatives who will vote for Mr. Hyman on the 26th.

The Hamilton Spectator (Conservative) says it admires the manner in which the present political campaign is being conducted by the ADVERTISER. We appreciate the compliment. It is a pleasure to work for a good candidate and for a good cause.

THE VOTERS' LIST STEAL.

For months past the voters' lists manipulators have been asserting that they could cheat Mr. Hyman out of his seat by the agency of the 230 bogus names that they moved heaven and earth to have retained on the list.

They were quite sure, despite the outrageous character of the proposition, that they could have it so fixed that Judge Elliot would not order the list to be purged of the 230 bad names.

They trusted to the fearful and wonderful provisions of the Dominion Franchise Act to help them through with as disgraceful a piece of robbery of popular rights as has ever been attempted in a civilized country.

They hoped to so worry the friends of Mr. Hyman with trouble and expense that they would throw up the defense of the principle that there should be a fair voters' list.

The friends of Mr. Hyman are not made of that kind of material. They have been worried and put to enormous expense, not because they desired any advantage over those opposed to them, but because the men who have so unfairly forced on the present contest were determined to win a victory by dishonest means. But though Mr. Hyman's friends lost their time and money in preventing the great steal, they have the satisfaction, which is dear to all honest men, that their course is approved by every self-respecting citizen of London, while not one man can to-day be found who is prepared to defend or even to excuse the rascally attempt to defeat the popular verdict.

The gain is now all on the side of Mr. Hyman, and Mr. Carling, who knew all about the disgraceful proceedings and took no steps to discountenance them, must correspondingly suffer.

May such be the fate of all men who would tamper with the rights of freemen!

One of London's great interests is its wholesale trade. It is significant, therefore, that over 70 per cent. of the wholesale merchants and the overwhelming majority of their employes are supporting Mr. Hyman in the present contest.

A NEW DODGE.

Having failed to get 230 bad votes placed on the lists for the present election, by means of which alone they hoped to defeat Mr. Hyman, the promoters of Mr. Carling's interests have announced their intention to take a new tack. They will issue an alleged list of gains and losses through the last revision of the voters' list, and they will contend that by the operations of that court the opponents of Mr. Hyman gained a considerable number of votes.

The computation will be as worthless as the list of bogus votes that now lies in the hands of the Conservative secretary.

In the first place, unknown to them, the opponents of trade freedom obtained declarations, for admission to the voters' list, from high tax houses. The names embraced young men thoroughly in accord with Mr. Hyman's policy, and who will vote for him on Friday next, though for prudential reasons they keep quiet now. There were many such names handled by the Court of Revision, and to these, as a matter of course, the Liberals had no objections. Their votes will count for Mr. Hyman next Friday night, despite the fact that they are now placed among the indorsers of the bogus voters' list. There are others who gave in their names to the Conservative agents, and who last summer had leanings towards that party, but who now are supporting Mr. Hyman because they think he has been hardly dealt with in being made to fight the election over again, though he was unseated through no fault of his own.

Mr. Hyman will receive a large quiet vote from those who are not usually very strong on one side or the other, and there are hundreds of Conservatives who consider that Mr. Carling ought to be satisfied with his life seat in the Senate, $1,000 a year and nothing to do.

The Toronto Empire announced on Friday that Mr. Foster, Minister of Finance, was on his way to London, where he would speak to-night. The season has, so far, failed to connect. In one of his "moments of weakness" he must have got snowed in by the way.

BUY EARLY.

The movement in favor of the earlier closing of stores, especially on Saturdays, is now in progress in this city. It is a reform that we all can aid in. But the chief cause of long hours in stores is the habit of those people who insist in shopping in the evenings. The storekeepers will soon shorten their hours if the people will buy what they need during the day or in the early evening. Let us all resolve not to go buying after 7 or 8 o'clock on Saturday evenings, and not after 6 p.m. on other days, and the reform will be effected in a month.

The Belleville Ontario denounces that a score of industries have been killed off in the past ten years by the blighting influences of the policy of trade restriction.

The stove manufacturers who favor the combine system have been in secret conclave at Hamilton. They want to again raise the prices of their products.

REVELATIONS AT OTTAWA LAST SESSION.

The revelations of the general crookedness among Ministers of the Crown at Ottawa, their supporters in Parliament, and their civil service employes, include the following features:

Sir Hector Langevin proven to have favored contractors through whom he received large sums in testimonials and other cash payments, the transactions involving a loss of $1,000,000 to the taxpayers. He had to resign his position in the Ministry.

Secretary of State Chapleau proven to have signed a corrupt agreement under which a paper manufacturing firm were to pay toward reducing his indebtedness one-half the profits they received under contracts with the Government.

The Hon. Thomas McGreevy, Tory member of Parliament, proven to have undertaken to procure contracts, extras, and more favorable conditions from the Department of Works in consideration of tens of thousands of dollars paid him by the contractors; also proven to have paid $25,000 of this money to support a Tory newspaper, and to have received $12,000 a year in subsidy for his steamer, in violation of the Independence of Parliament Act; resigned his seat in the House.

Cochrane, another Conservative member, proven to have corruptly sold several appointments to offices in his constituency.

Henry F. Perley, chief engineer Public Works, resigned after having confessed to having received large gifts from contractors doing business with the department.

Arnoldi, chief mechanical engineer of the same department, proven to have corruptly received numerous gifts from contractors, including $1,800 worth of diamonds from Owen E. Murphy, formerly of New York and Tammany fame, and to have misappropriated the property of the department.

Lightfoot, a clerk in the same department, proven to have taken a loan from Owen E. Murphy, which was really a gift from a contractor doing business with the department.

Two other clerks in the same department proven to have paid for their private purchases with Government checks.

A. M. Burgess, Deputy Minister of the Interior Department, proven to have agreed to certify a check for $100 for extra work if the clerk would add $100 more to the account and pay the latter sum to him.

Miss Duhamel, of the same department, proven to have received a year's salary from the Government while traveling abroad.

Half a dozen other clerks of the Interior Department, including Parlaex, the secretary, proven to have unlawfully received payments in the name of other persons, and in some cases in the names of fictitious persons.

Senecal, superintendent of printing in the public printing bureau, proven to have received from $20,000 to $50,000 in commissions and gifts from persons supplying the bureau with printing plant and machinery. He was dismissed and has fled from justice.

Brownhill, superintendent of stationery in the same department, proven to have received several large sums in commissions and gifts from persons supplying stationery to the bureau.

Four Cabinet Ministers, two members of Parliament, five official chiefs, and at least a dozen subordinate clerks, male and female, have so far been caught in the four departments investigated. Here is a pretty large calendar of crime.

But there is more to come. The Section 8 [illegible], investigation into which was burked last session, and many other Governmental shortcomings are yet to be laid bare.

"A VERITABLE LIFE PRESERVER — I would not be without it for any money" — Rev. Miles Grant. We have published hundreds of letters to like effect; sold thousands; do not know of one dissatisfied purchaser. No other system has effected such positive cures of Consumption, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Catarrh, Kidney Diseases, Headache, Nervous Prostration and general and nervous debility, and certainly it has no equal in preventing or cutting short an attack of Typhoid or other fevers breaking up La Grippe, or ridding the system of its baneful effects; mitigating the severity of all acute and exhausting diseases, and vicious practices — such as sexual abuse. Simple and easy of application without previous training or skill, and does not interfere with either work or diet. We refer to the Wilford Hall "New Process" — as unfolded in our "Microcosmic Health Pamphlet." Dr. Hall still charges $4 for it, and certainly cheap to any family at $50, but we want to put the system within the reach of all, and will therefore continue our half-price offer through February, and will mail the enlarged edition of the Health Pamphlet to any address on receipt of $2, and will refund the money if not satisfactory after one month's trial, purchaser agreeing never again to use the treatment. Remember, the expense of any other system — especially drug treatment — has to be repeated, generally until the purse gives out or the patient dies, whereas the trifle of $2 paid for the "New Process" has never to be repeated, and completely does away with the need or use of any other medicine whatever. Eight-page paper, history, testimonials, etc., free. Save $2 by remitting to-day and register your letter at our risk. Address, THE SIMPSON PUBLISHING COMPANY, TORONTO. 68 bu eod

CONVERSAZIONE.

"When wealth and power have had their hour,
Comes for the weak the hour of God."

The Sand Storms of the Great American Desert.

As would be inferred from its temperature, the desert is a land of fearful winds. When that volume of hot air rises by its own lightness, other air from the surrounding world must rush in to take its place; and as the new ocean of atmosphere, greater than the Mediterranean, pours in enormous waves into its desert bed, such winds result as few in fertile lands ever dreamed of. The Arabian simoon is not deadlier than the sand-storm of the Colorado Desert (as the lower half of this region is generally called.) Express trains cannot make head against it to-day, sometimes they are even blown from the track! Upon the crests of some of the ranges are hundreds of acres buried deep in the fine, white sand that those fearful gales scoop up by carloads from the plain and lift on high to fling upon the scowling peaks thousands of feet above. There are no snow-drifts to blockade trains there; but it is frequently necessary to shovel through more troublesome drifts. Man or beast caught in one of those sand-laden tempests has little chance of escape. The man who will lie with his head tightly wrapped in coat or blanket and stifle there until the fury of the storm is spent, may survive; but woe to the poor brute whose swift feet cannot bear it betimes to a place of refuge. There is no facing or breathing that atmosphere of alkaline sand, whose lightest whiff inflames eyes, nose, and throat almost past endurance.—[C. F. Lummis, in February St. Nicholas.

Railways in Judea.

The oft-reported railway from Jaffa to Jerusalem is apparently about to become a materialistic fact. A French company has actually begun the construction, and the road is to be completed next spring. The company anticipates making large profits, and paying the shareholders a guaranteed interest of five per cent. It is stated that over 40,000 persons landed in Jaffa every year, in order to make a pilgrimage to Jerusalem and other spots celebrated in sacred history. The number of steamers and other vessels putting into the port of Jaffa is now upward of 800 a year, the destination of most of the passengers and merchandise they convey being the capital of Palestine. In evidence of the recent rapid growth of the traffic it may be mentioned that Jaffa has trebled its population within the last 30 years. Tourists will be able to take a return ticket from the port in question and Jerusalem for twenty francs, and, what is more, they will be able to do the journey in a far shorter time, with infinitely greater safety, than hitherto. The rush of tourists from all parts of the civilized world to Jerusalem will, if the expectations of the promoters are fulfilled, be something tremendous in the immediate future.

In Danger.

It is a prevailing impression that a majority of Englishmen drop their h's, but though no such sweeping statement can be made, the accusation does very well as an occasional missile in time of need. "Why, said a blunt Englishman to an American lady, "I didn't think you were an American. You don't talk through your nose." "And you," she responded, sweetly, "are not in the least like an Englishman. You don't drop your h's!"

When the Dean of Armah was summoned to Whitehall, to preach in the Chapel Royal, Doctor Knox rallied him on the precarious position involved. "Mr. Dean," said he, "you must be very careful when you get to Whitehall. Remember it was there that King Charles lost his head."

The Dean went to Whitehall, preached his sermon and returned, and then capped his brother prelate's little joke.

"My lord," said he, "I well-nigh suffered a worse fate than the king's. The verger in the Chapel Royal undertook to instruct me in the proper method of making my appearance. 'First,' said he, 'I takes the choir up to their places, and then, after they are seated, I returns for you, sir, and conducts you to the haltar.'"

Some Pleasant Things in San Francisco.

But now of the joys I speak of having experienced during my stay. They were too many for more than mere mention. In the first place, in 30 days I only saw half a dozen that were foggy; and as for the wind, when I found that San Francisco dresses, as we would say, "for winter" all the year round, I put on my heavy underclothes, and the cool breezes at once became delightful. Then there were the joys of the cable cars—a solution of the problem of surmounting hills that are so perfect that I believe no city in the world is better served with means of inter-transit. The cable cars were invented and first put in use in San Francisco. They usually run as a train, composed of a little open "dummy," or grip-car, and a closed car, like one of our horse-cars. A man who loves fresh air and open-air riding fancies that no king rides more gloriously than a San Francisco clerk may in a "dummy." He goes flying up the hills and coasting down them as if he were a tobogganer, having all the fun and none of the work. The cables run at seven miles an hour, which is faster than our "elevated," in my opinion, and nearly as fast as our bridge cars.

Then there are the flowers. They need a chapter as long as this article. They grow with an abundance past belief, and attain a size and glory of color we wot not of. You may buy your armful of cut flowers for "two bits," which is to say a quarter. And if the flowers demanded a chapter, the fruits would require a book. Say what any one will, they are quite as luscious as ours; not here—because they pick them green for shipment, and only a Bartlett pear undergoes that course with advantage—but out there, fresh off the trees. And they have fruits we know not of—green figs, for instance. Was there ever a greater delicacy than green figs sliced and served in cream? Apricots are more common there than with us; persimmons are cultivated, but not common. Strawberries, finer than any grown west of England, are to be had during half the year, and for half what we are charged when we think them cheap. Peaches, pears, and grapes were very plenty, and I am told that cherries are so at one season. Limes are plenty, and lemons scarce. Artichokes are a staple, and California is the land of salads. Those made of shrimps and alligator-pears are two delicacies worth going to San Francisco to enjoy.

But San Francisco is a gourmet's sixth heaven. It has a wonderous market, with fishes with which we are unfamiliar, with no refrigerated factory meats, and with an eclectic school of cookery to which China, Japan, Spain, Mexico, and Hawaii are contributors. There is no better restaurant in America than the "Poodle Dog," and business men in New York know no better luncheon place than "Ned's." The Palace Hotel restaurant would rank high here, and out there they have four or five as good.—[Julian Ralph, in Harper's Weekly.

WESTERN ONTARIO.

BRANT.

It is understood that the late C. H. Waterous, Brantford, left an estate valued at $250,000—$200,000 being represented in the engine works.

S. Frank Smith, auctioneer, St. George, has sold his farm to H. Sutton, Beverly, for about $8,000. The farm is an exceptionally good one.

ELGIN.

Dutton has agreed to pay $300 to a St. Thomas man who fell off the sidewalk there and sustained some injuries.

Squire John W. Gillett, Malahide, is dead, aged 76 years. Deceased was born on the farm on which he died, and after farming several years, retired to Aylmer, where he remained until he and his aged partner, who died last May, became so feeble as to require the care of others, and removed back to the old homestead to be with their daughter. Deceased was one of the first magistrates in that section, and discharged his duties fairly and impartially.

St. Thomas has decided to celebrate the Queen's birthday.

Wm. Lindsay, of Springfield, died the other day from the effects of la grippe. Deceased was born in Ireland, and emigrated to this country when but a boy. He came to Malahide when it was still a wilderness. He married Miss Catharine McMillan, who, with a family of seven children, survives.

The trustees of the Port Stanley circuit of the Methodist Church have disposed of the parsonage, barn and lot to Robert Elliott for $550 cash. The Board will erect a new parsonage on the church grounds, the cost not to exceed $1,050. A building committee, consisting of Rev. R. D. Hamilton and W. H. Gough and John Sutton, jun., will have charge of the work, which will be begun right away. The transfer to Mr. Elliott will be made in March, but the pastor, Rev. Mr. Hamilton, will occupy the present parsonage until the new one is ready.

N. Leeman, who was injured a few days ago in St. Thomas while unloading lumber on the M. C. R., is dead, aged 59 years.

Dr. Philip Nunn, of Bournemouth, Eng., brother of J. G. Nunn, of St. Thomas, has been tendered the nomination of the Gladstonites for the British House of Commons.

ESSEX.

Ellis & Ellis, Windsor, have probated the will of James Bell, of Tilbury West. The estate was valued at $3,200.

Spencer Daniels has protested the election of Reeve Mackenzie, of Leamington. Insufficient qualification is claimed.

Detective Campau and Officer Mahoney have returned from Anderdon with Philip Bondy and Frank Senisac, who are charged with assaulting a number of people at the Meloche party. Walter, Michael and Joseph Mahon, alleged to have been concerned, can not be found.

Rev. W. P. Crombie, evangelist, has been presented with a purse of $60 at Kingsville.

Dr. Remi H. Casgrain, of Windsor, was married in Detroit on Thursday to Miss Ella Fraser. Rev. Bishop Foley officiated. The newly married couple have gone to New York.

KENT.

Celax Bechard, Chatham has been fined $50 and costs for selling liquor without a license.

The children, grandchildren and many old friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hezekiah Wilcox, Raleigh, met at the old homestead the other evening to celebrate the 50th anniversary of their wedding. The gathering numbered about 80. After congratulations and good wishes to the old folks, supper was partaken of, and Sheriff McKellar, of Hamilton, was called upon, and gave many complimentary remarks as regarding the host and hostess.

LAMBTON.

In the action of the Courtright Salt Company, of Courtright, vs. the Producers' Oil Refining Company, of Petrolea, for damages for breach of contract in failing to supply petroleum tar, Judge Robinson, of Sarnia, has given judgment in favor of the Salt Company for $700 and costs.

MIDDLESEX.

Two old residents of Ekfrid are dead. John McCallum died on Sunday evening and was buried on Tuesday. He had hardly been laid in his grave before his partner in life also passed peacefully away. Mr. McCallum was in the 85th year of his age, and his wife had passed her 82nd year. The funeral of Mr. McCallum was one of the largest ever seen in that section.

The London Township Agricultural Society spring show will be held at Ilderton on Wednesday, April 20.

Gilbert Dickie is the cheese maker at the Delaware cheese factory, of which J. M. Kaiser is president and H. J. Smith is secretary.

OXFORD.

Richard Duckworth, an Ingersoll prisoner, broke jail in Woodstock, but was recaptured in Blandford by Turnkey Forbes after a hot chase. Duckworth was serving a sentence of 50 days for vagrancy, and at the time he made a dash for liberty was employed in the jail yard carrying in wood. Mr. Forbes laid an information against Duckworth, charging him with stealing a suit of clothes belonging to the county. He was sentenced to six months in the Central.

WELLINGTON.

Mrs. Henry Fields died a few days ago at Hespeler, aged 79 years.

Wm. Renwick, farmer, of Hespeler, has been fined $3 50 and costs, in all $8 50, for taking meat unfit for food on to Berlin market. The accused man brought a number of witnesses to testify that the ox had been healthy before it was butchered.

Dr. Savage, of Elora, has kept steadily improving during the past week and has taken a little nourishment. He is now in a fair way to recovery, but is very weak.

WENTWORTH.

The Heslop murder case is again absorbing attention. Mr. Heyd, Bartram's lawyer, is leaving no stone unturned, and remarked: "You can tell the people that they will be treated to some genuine surprises when the case comes on for hearing in Hamilton next month. I am confident that there has been a black conspiracy to drag an innocent man into this affair, and what is more, we are going to prove it." Mr. Heyd was in the reserve in Lewiston a day or so ago and, it is said, secured evidence that Douglas and Goosey were there at the time of the murder. It is asserted that he can conclusively prove that the two Indians were in Brant county at the time of the alleged Lewiston visit. Detective Greer is just as confident of conviction as the lawyer is of acquittal.

Jackson Sanford, eldest son of Senator Sanford in Hamilton, will, on Feb. 25, wed Miss Sanford, daughter of Col. Sanford, of Knoxville, Tenn. The young people are distant relatives. Col. Sanford is a millionaire railroad king. He is the president of two railroads and is also largely interested in oil, coal mines, etc. He is a veteran of the war of 1861-5, in which he served on the Northern side, and held the city of Knoxville for the Union during the early stages of the rebellion.

THE Toronto Telegram pertinently remarks: "Solemnly indeed does the London Free Press urge the temperance people to smite down Hyman and boost up a statesman whose name is writ large on a million pale ale and lager beer bottles."

Woman's Miseries!

Sore hands, raw fingers, cracked skin! What pain and misery many women suffer through the use of injurious soaps and powders! These troubles don't exist where "SUNLIGHT" SOAP is used. On the testimony of eminent scientists IT CANNOT INJURE THE MOST DELICATE SKIN.

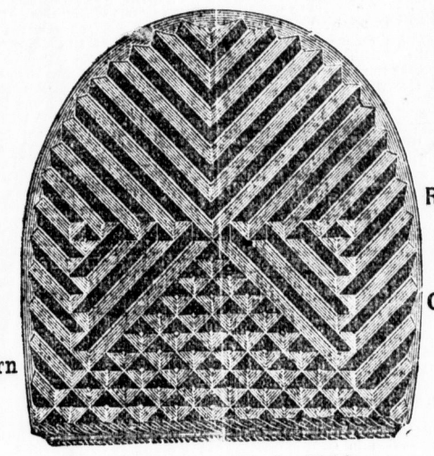

Soap which hurts the skin MUST HURT THE CLOTHES, hence it should be avoided. "SUNLIGHT" has been awarded six Gold Medals and other honors for purity and excellence.

Let this induce you to try it next washday, and for all domestic purposes.

A Trial by Jury

Presages the Success of Charles S. Hyman.

A Masterly Address to Workingmen by A. F. Jury.

Twenty Cents Per Pound for Donkey Meat the Effect of Protection in France.

Mr. Carling and the Assisted Immigration Business.

Striking Illustrations of the Injury Which the Present System of Government Inflicts Upon the Laboring Classes and the Farmers—British Opinion on Unrestricted Reciprocity—The Disloyalty and Annexation Cries Knocked in the Head.

The rally of electors in the Opera House on Thursday evening and the very enthusiastic reception given to the Liberal candidate presages a handsome victory next week for Mr. C. S. Hyman, whose address on that evening won for him the encomiums of many electors who had not before signified their intention to support him. His manly appeal to the electors for support has had an electrifying effect, and victory is now doubly assured.

The following are additional names of those who occupied positions on the platform: D. McIntyre, Joseph Young, John Kearns, Michael Mahoney, James Sweeney, John Dewar, J. Gartley.

MR. A. F. JURY,

On being introduced, said it was no small compliment for him to be asked to address a London audience a third time. The contest now on, he was assured, would end as the one had done a year ago. (Cheers.) Professor Foster had won his seat in the Government on account of his record as a temperance advocate and lecturer. No fault could be found with him then, but since he had in the House and would not even vote for his own motion, when he found that by so doing his action would injure the position of liquor manufacturers, stating that he had simply made a remark "in a moment of weakness," his position is not one that may be so highly commended. The London Free Press states that the young men who have votes should vote for the Conservative party, which gave them the right to vote. If those who have votes should use them for the party to whom they are indebted for those votes, the Liberal candidate will be supported by an overwhelming majority. The Ontario Provincial law practically gives to the people, and the principle of "one man one vote" is therein recognized. Even the files of the Free Press will show that it was the Liberal party that conferred the right of citizenship and the right to vote by ballot on the people, Conservatives fighting bitterly against manhood suffrage as we enjoy it to-day under our Provincial Government. It was Goldwin Smith who said the Tories of England had often stolen the clothes of the Liberals while they went in to bathe, and so it had been in Canada on more occasions than one. Tories here, as well as there, do what they believe to be necessary to keep them in power, regardless of principle, and to the Liberal party the workingmen owe allegiance for their elevation from a condition of serfship to that of citizenship in the greatest empire in the world. The workings of the iniquitous Dominion Franchise Act is in marked contrast to the Provincial law on voting, which confers on every municipality the right to compile its own voters' lists. Why has not the Ottawa Government the same confidence in the people? They pretend to confer the right to vote, but with one hand they withdraw the privileges they offer with the other, for are not by the votes of others who have no right to be placed on the lists conferring the right to vote?

FALSIFIED HIS RECORD,

MANHOOD SUFFRAGE

A great deal has been said about the London election trial, and he (the speaker) had been reminded of a story about an Israelite in England who was suffering with the pangs of hunger. He asked a farmer for food, and partook freely of the pork and cabbage offered him in his repast. Suddenly the sky darkened, and loud thunder and vivid lightning elicited from him the remark that it was

"A TERRIBLE ROW ABOUT A PIECE OF PORK."

[This reference to the endeavors of the Conservative party to make capital out of the recent election trial elicited round after round of applause.]

By his industry and thrift, Hon. Frank Smith, an estimable citizen of Toronto, had made for himself a name and position in Canada, but Conservatives in Toronto do not make the mistake of introducing him to an audience of workingmen to catch votes. It was he who compelled the employes of the Toronto Street Railway to sign away their liberty, and who had refused to employ any who would not agree not to become members of any workingman's society. Frank Smith said in his recent speech that he would be

ASHAMED TO VISIT IRELAND

and look his fellow countrymen in the face if he helped to put a prohibitory duty on their linen to keep it out of Canada, but it was the same Frank Smith who had assisted his Government at Ottawa to raise the duty on linen from 17½ per cent. to 35 per cent. (Cheers.)

Referring to the effect of the recent increase of duties in France, Mr. Jury then read from last Monday's Free Press the following extract:

"The rise in the price of beef and mutton in Paris, caused by the new tariff, has led to an enormous demand for horseflesh in Paris. According to a report of the police perfecture the horses, asses and mules now slaughtered represent over one-third of the whole quantity of meat consumed. Fillet of horse or donkey is retailed at 10 pence per pound, steak at 7 pence per pound, and inferior parts at 2 pence per pound. Worn out animals are rising in value, and are being brought up everywhere within a radius of 300 miles of Paris."

Continuing, Mr. Jury said that the effect of tariff regulations in Paris was that the people are compelled to pay and if the readers of Tory newspapers would only digest the news items published therein, they would find in almost every case that the editorials in those papers would be disproved thereby. A splendid antidote for Tory editorials on protection is the information published in the news columns of every paper about the effects of protection on workingmen everywhere. (Applause.) We have been told by Tory speakers from this platform that

TWENTY CENTS A POUND FOR DONKEY,

FREE TRADE WOULD RUIN CANADA,

yet the Ministers went from Ottawa to Washington, according to their own story, to accomplish the very thing they say would be baneful to the interests of farmers and workingmen. They say manufacturers in Canada would be unable to compete successfully with the manufacturers of the United States, yet scores of manufacturers do not hesitate to declare that this statement does them an injustice, inasmuch as they not only are

ABLE TO COMPETE SUCCESSFULLY

with United States manufacturers, but strongly desire to enter into competition with them at once on equal terms, and in as wide a field from which to secure trade. Such men as Waterous, of Brantford, Armstrong, of Guelph, Gurney, of Toronto, and others, give the lie to the assertions of Tory speakers by actually establishing manufacturing industries in the United States, where they have already succeeded even far beyond their own expectations. So also Canadian cotton manufacturers have been successful in competing with manufacturers in the United States and England, but Canadians are taxed in order that these manufacturers may be able to do this foreign trade. Protection on cotton goods alone has cost the people of Canada an immense sum of money. In 1881 Canada imported 16,018,000 pounds of raw cotton, and the manufactured cotton brought a sum of $3,759,000. In twelve years under the N. P. the raw cotton imported has been 287,164,592 pounds, and at the same rate as in 1881 the goods manufactured should be worth $67,390,000. The old rate of duty was 17 per cent., and computing the duty at that rate alone, the cost of protection to the people of Canada for cotton alone has been the enormous sum of $11,794,000.

EXPORTING COTTON TO CHINA

English capitalists to-day are buying American factories and breweries on every hand,

WHY DO THEY NOT PURCHASE CANADIAN INDUSTRIES?

The answer is because we have not the market in which they may sell the product of their factories. Let the customs barrier between the United States and Canada be wiped out, and millions of British capital would float into Canada for investment, and the labor and capital that is now building up the United States would be used to extend the trade of Canada and furnish merchandise for our ships and railways, and give more work to our mechanics, increased business to our tradesmen and more extended markets to our farmers. Conservatives say the farmers and workingmen do not pay a very large share of taxes, and according to the Finance Minister this is because nearly everything they consume is manufactured at home. What are the facts about this? It was a Conservative member of Parliament who during the last session said the changes made by the Government would cause a saving of $3,500,000 in duties alone every year. Now if it was not being paid before? How could the people be relieved from taxation if the burden had not already rested upon them? The duty that formerly existed on sugar has been partially removed, while the duty remains on cotton. Will Conservatives explain why farmers and workingmen do not pay heavy sums in duty on cotton as well as on sugar? If laborers and farmers do not pay taxes, so much the worse for the National Policy, which was introduced for the purpose of making these very people rich.

HOW COULD THIS AMOUNT BE SAVED

PROTECTION FOSTERS COMBINES,

and goods are manufactured a little above the demand that exists for them from time to time, the price being kept up as high as possible. When the demand is greater than the supply, the price is always increased; but while prices rule as high as they can be safely fixed, the wages of laborers employed in manufactories are kept down to the lowest notch. This is the

in any community. Gurney is worth about $2,000,000, and controls a stove combine, and those who purchase his goods are compelled to pay the price fixed by the combine. But Mr. Gurney can go to a foreign country and import workingmen when he wants to grind his men down and compel them to accept wages they know to be insufficient and unfair. The Ottawa Government imposes no duty on labor, and workingmen receive no protection at the hands of Tory politicians. Are the workingmen of London satisfied with such a policy as this? (Cries of "No, never!") There is no greater humbug on earth than the idea that men will continue to swallow such a doctrine forever. It is not just that manufacturers may bring foreign labor into Canada without restriction and drive good citizens out of Canada to seek a home elsewhere.

The effect of a prohibitory tariff has been

of Canada. Official figures show that while the tonnage of ships built in Canada had decreased in 1888 to an extent of 166,000 tons, that of the United States had increased from 297,000 tons in 1875 to 369,000 tons in 1891. Notwithstanding her faculties to build vessels, Canada in 1891 sold only $286,000 worth of ships to other countries, while in 1876, her sales amounted to $2,189,000, the trade being now almost entirely wiped out.

Referring further to the policy of protection as propounded by Sir John A. Macdonald in 1887, Mr. Jury read the following extract from an address delivered by the deceased Premier,

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD, IN 1877:

You are going to buy this policy, this false policy, and you are going to adopt the policy of the party who declare that they will keep Canada for the Canadians, that they will have a National Policy, that they are no longer going to kiss the foot of Uncle Sam or Brother Jonathan. They are going to say: We must either have a reciprocity of trade or a reciprocity of tariffs. We commenced to say if the United States told us they would keep out our produce we would do the same with them. We were in favor of reciprocity and free trade, we were in favor of an exchange across the border on equal terms, of the products of the two countries, but we said then and we say now the policy is this: If the United States will not grant us reciprocity of trade, let us have reciprocity of tariffs.

"The Toronto Mail, before the National Policy advent, used to say that the millions of dollars worth of goods then imported would under protection be made in Canada. In 1878, we were told that the Americans were slaughtering our markets with their goods; that they were giving us $1 worth for 50 cents (although I never saw a protectionist yet who wouldn't hunt for the place where he could drive the same bargain—(laughter)—yet in that year we imported $32,212,654, and paid in duty $6,387,777, while in 1890, under a high tariff, we imported $38,616,274, and paid $9,997,877 duty. (Cheers.) Now, I want to know if that is keeping

CANADA FOR THE CANADIANS?

(Cheers.) While we have sent more money out of the country for their manufactures, we have had to pay $3,600,000 more taxes upon these imports. (Cheers.) And yet they tell us that we were being ruined then, whereas now we actually import more manufactured goods. I think that the Free Press and Government orators, when they talk to the workingmen of this country in that strain, insult their intelligence. (Cheers.) And what have they done with the money they have wrung from you and me? They spent at the rate of $250,000 a year for the last ten years to import workingmen here from other countries to drive out our sons and daughters." (Hear, hear.) Sir John Macdonald had asked if it was fair for Mr. Mackenzie to put a tax on tea, although the latter only proposed to put a light duty on the workingman's tea and a heavier tax on the high-priced grades of the rich man. The speaker did not agree with Mr. Mackenzie there. But that was the only article of ordinary consumption that Mr. Mackenzie taxed, while Sir John had put a duty on ten times as many. "I find that $12,000,000 worth of goods are brought into this country free for the use of the manufacturer. Suppose the workingman wants to have his tools brought in free like the manufacturer—can he do so? No. The workingmen import $400,000 worth of tools and they have to pay $150,000 to do it, while the manufacturer can get $12,000,000 in free.

IS THAT FAIR PLAY?

(Cries of "No! no!") The fishermen of the Maritime Provinces import $428,000 worth of fish lines, nets, hooks, etc. The Government had to buy the support of these Provinces, and in order to catch the fishermen's vote the latter were allowed to bring their tools in free, while the Ontario mechanic had to pay taxes on his. Is that fair play? (No! no!) And then the Red Parlor manufacturers like to buy diamonds and precious stones for their wives, so last year they imported $170,000 worth of these free; while the laborer who worked on the streets has to pay a tax on his shovel. Is that fair play?" (No! no!) Mr. Jury exposed the since, in event of a reciprocity treaty, the sanction of the British Government was necessary, and the Imperial authorities in signing that treaty would, if Tory argument hold good, be guilty of disloyalty. He quoted the words of Joseph Chamberlain, the Liberal-Unionist leader in Britain, as follows: "Commercial union means free trade betweeen America and the Dominion and a protective tariff against the mother country. If Canada desires that,

FALLACY OF THE DISLOYALTY CRY,

CANADA CAN HAVE IT."

(Cheers.) Chamberlain's loyalty, though of a mistaken character, was above reproach as he left his grand old leader because he thought the later's policy was disloyal. Sir Alexander Galt, a good Conservative, had also declared "that her Majesty cannot be advised to disallow such acts unless her advisers are prepared to assume the administration of the affairs of the colony, irrespective of the views of the inhabitants." (Cheers.) The greatest paper in England, the London Times, which everybody knew was not Liberal, says: "It is at this very moment a matter of discussion in Canada whether a treaty of reciprocity should not be concluded with the United States, and the result of the deliberation may very possibly be an admission of the manufactures of New England into the Dominion under lighter duties than the manufactures of Great Britain. If the Canadian Ministry come to the conclusion that such an arrangement is for the benefit of the country will the Colonial Office advise the Crown to disallow the negotiations? Assuredly not." (Cheers.) You are no doubt sick of being told about annexation. When the present Premier of Canada

SIGNED AN ANNEXATION MANIFESTO

it was at a time like the present, when we were in a state of commercial stagnation. In 1854 we got reciprocity with the States and the popular desire for annexation disappeared. (Cheers.) And we claim to-day that if we had reciprocity that whatever desire there is for annexation in Canada would likewise disappear. (Cheers.) If free trade with the States brought ruin to the workingmen, to the farmers, to the manufacturers, to the fishermen, to the lumbermen and to all our industries wouldn't we want to give it up? (Cheers and cries of "Yes!") Then why do they say annexation would be the result of reciprocity, unless it is because they fear we should under that policy become so prosperous and conscious of its advantages that sooner than revert back to our present state we would cast our lot with our neighbors? (Loud cheers.) I say they are paying the

HIGHEST COMPLIMENT TO RECIPROCITY

when they urge its rejection upon such a ground. (Cheers.) The late John Macdonald, one of Canada's merchant princes, said he was opposed to free trade with the United States, because he thought the value of the money invested in manufactured goods, and the value of the goods on the merchants' shelves in Canada, would depreciate 33 per cent. Just fancy! In England the Canadian farmer has to meet the competition of the world, to accept the price determined by this most trying of markets (which, by the way, the Conservatives say is the best market for us); and, this being the case, is it fair to the American farmer that the manufacturer should have an artificial value—a fictitious value—given to his goods of 33 per cent.? (Cheers.) Why, if what Mr. Macdonald said is true, when you go into a drygoods store, ladies, to by a dollar's worth of something you get 67 cents worth of goods and

THIRTY-THREE CENTS' WORTH OF PROTECTION.

(Laughter and cheers.) I think if you are true wives, as I know you are, and desire to spend your husband's money rightly, you will go in for a policy that will give you 100 cents worth of goods for a dollar. (Cheers.)

We are told that Mr. Carling is a friend of the workingmen. I was sent to Ottawa a few sessions ago by the laboring men, who desired that some endeavor be made to reduce the grants for immigration. My attention was called to a Belgian named Wattullo, who had induced a lot of Belgian mechanics to come here, and when he got them here he deserted them in a heartless manner and left them in a pitiful condition. At my request Mr. Carling investigated the matter, and found our representations true. He said there was no help for it, because the agent had a written contract with the Government and had got a cash bonus for bringing the men here; but he (Mr. Carling) said he would see that Wattullo got no more. What do I find? This man is getting $5 a head now for every poor dupe he can bring out here. (Cries of "Shame!") I say with the workingmen of Canada. This agent should have been sent to prison; yet he is still being paid by the taxes of the workingmen to bring poor fellows, who can't speak a word of English, to starve on the streets of Montreal. ("Shame!")

Young Mr. Tupper referred to the boodle investigation at Ottawa; they don't refer to it often, and then they switch off in a hurry and point to the Province of Quebec. If there were two men charged with criminal offenses, and one fellow said to the judge: "You have no right to convict me; this other man is as big a thief as I am"—would anybody say he should be acquitted for that reason? (Laughter and cheers.) It is a subterfuge to say that because Mr. Mercier stole $100,000 at Quebec they are justified in stealing $500,000 at Ottawa. (Laughter and cheers.) Mr. Jury read some of the leading Conservative and Independent papers of England condemnatory of the gross corruption exposed at the capital. "I ask my fellow-workingmen to condemn ill-doing, whether at Ottawa or Quebec, and to redeem us in the opinion of the mother land, with whose capital we run great enterprises, and to whom we are supposed to be so loyal." (Cheers.)

Mr. Jury referred to the

and declared that if there were any traitors they were those who used, like the Tories at the last election, loaded dice, because the control of the franchise was in their power. They had been traitors to the great principles which had made England revered the world over, and to those principles of fair play and honesty in dealing with an enemy. (Cheers.)

"Our manufacturers say they want protection against the supposed superior skill of the rest of the world, but

WHAT PROTECTION HAS THE WORKINGMAN

against labor-saving machines? Suppose genius should invent a machine that would displace many of the workingmen of Canada. Would there be any outcry against the adoption of this improvement? But we are to be deprived of the great benefit of a market of 60,000,000 of people for our farmers, and from whom our consumers may buy, simply because some of our fearful manufacturers must be protected against the alleged superior skill of their brethren across the line. (Cheers.) When you vote for protection you are committing the same absurdity as our forefathers did when they struck against the introduction of labor-saving machinery. We have to spend some millions of dollars to build canals, tunnels and bridges in order to overcome the difficulties nature has placed between our country and the States and to facilitate communication; and are you going to vote to undo what you have spent millions of dollars to do? (Cheers.) Many a workingman while visiting the States, knows he has often bought some little present there—perhaps a watch—to delight the hearts of children and has been tempted to slip it into a side pocket when recrossing the line. Instead of doing that why cannot he wear it openly? (Cheers.) Such a policy is calculated to make us a nation of sneaks. I plead guilty to one or two offenses—(Laughter)—but I say no Government has a right to dictate to a man

HOW HE SHALL SPEND

his honestly earned money. (Cheers.) If the farmer had to send his goods 3,000 miles away to England why should he not have a right to buy everything he wants there at a cheaper price? (Cheers.) The speaker appealed to those like himself who had left their beloved mother country in the expectation of giving their children a higher standard of living not to vote to render their purpose fruitless. He would not be disloyal to those who had than Queen or country—his own family. (Cheers.) "Vote, fellow-workingmen," said Mr. Jury, in conclusion, "for the greatest good to the greatest number, and you will vote to leave the world behind you better than you found it, better for your children after you; and I think you cannot go about this better than by casting your votes on the 26th of February for Mr. Charles Hyman.

A hurricane of applause rewarded Mr. Jury for his masterly address. Mr. Hyman proposed three cheers for the Queen, which were given with a will. Three more for Mr. Hyman and Mr. Jury closed the monster meeting, and the big crowd filed out.

BRENER BROS.' NEW LEADER

The National Melodrama Brand, PATROL, Is Sure to Be a Winner.

Messrs. Brener Bros., the successful manufacturers of Nos. 182-190 Horton street, London, are in the field with a new leader, which has been happily named "THE PATROL." They intend to make this cigar popular wherever the Union Jack and Stars and Stripes float. It is a Cuban hand-made cigar, of which the filler is all Havana, mild and fragrant. The label, which is the design of the Patrol Co., is strikingly original. The words in which the names of the manufacturers occur at appropriate intervals. Nothing in the way of a label that is so simple, and at the same time so rich and attractive, has been originated, and it would be impossible to present to the trade a more elegant package. "The Patrol," cigar is certain to win instant recognition, and to increase largely the annual output of its manufacturers.

For sale at 182-190 Horton street, London; 63 College street, Montreal; 92 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.; 206 Lasalle street, Chicago.

THE TRIGGER.

LONDON CRACK SHOTS VS. WOODSTOCK CHAMPIONS.

It was announced some days ago that a match between John P. Evans and a choice of London crack shots was made against D. Miller and an unknown from Woodstock, for $100 a side at 100 live pigeons, 25 for each man from five unknown traps, 26 yards rise, gun below the elbow, the bird must be on the wing before the gun is put up to the shoulder; Daniel G. Revell, of Windsor, president of the Keystone Gun Club, to act as referee. A large crowd gathered on the gun club grounds at 2 o'clock to witness what was expected to be some fine shooting, and they were not disappointed; but, unfortunately for the London boys, and fortunately for Woodstock, the original match did not come off. Only about 50 birds could be procured, and for that reason the 100-bird race has been postponed till a later date. The shooters decided to shoot at twelve birds each for the price of the birds. Mr. Revell was on hand and acted as referee, to the satisfaction of all. The secretary of the St. Thomas Gun Club, Mr. Coley, and many others came from St. Thomas to see the sport. The Woodstock shooters were accompanied by Dr. Rice, James Sutherland, W. D. Karn and others. Mr. D. Miller and Joseph Thompson, of Woodstock, who are well known to be first-class shots, marched to the trap against John P. Evans and Redpath, who are known to be expert trap shots. Redpath seemed to have the full confidence of his side winning, and he succeeded in leading the score, killing 11 birds out of the possible 12, missing his sixth bird. Evans knocked down 10 in good form. The following is the score:

London won by 6 birds.

Thompson did not shoot at his last three birds, it being impossible for them to win. Bird marked * was considered out of bounds by the referee, but not measured, as it made no difference only in case of a tie. The Woodstock Club is composed of some of the best business men in the town, and they expect soon to get up a club after the style of the London Club, and then many friendly matches will be looked for. The 100 bird race is to come off before long.

The following regular Friday shoot took place, when Blackburn, in B class, won the club's first prize, killing 25 out of his possible 27. His shooting was much admired by the spectators and he broke his targets well. Williams, of Woodstock, in B class, won second prize, killing 23 out of his possible 27. Greener and Stanley shot well. Many of the shooters are improving, and since the new system of the fair handicap shooting a great interest is being taken in the club. Many new members are joining every day. A class shoots at 24, B class at 27, and C class at 30; 3 unknown traps. Score:

ATHLETICS.

Several hundred spectators paid $4 each for admittance to the rooms of the New Bedford (Mass.) Athletic Club Thursday to witness a fight between Ike Weir and Frank Steele, for a purse offered by the club. In twelve rounds Ike punished his opponent so badly that he laid down and could not get up for 32 seconds, and then the "Spider" won.

CURLING.

The final draw for the Miller cup was played on Thursday in Stouffville. Markham won, scoring 38 to Stouffville's 26.

In a medal match played Thursday between Oshawa and Scarboro, Oshawa won by 23 shots. Oshawa 55, Scarboro 32.

The Toronto-Galt Granite match for the district medal, begun a week ago in Galt, was concluded Thursday. Toronto won by two shots.

Two important curling matches took place Thursday at New York. Both were two-rink matches. Utica defeated American by 37 to 23. Yonkers beat Utica by 39 to 12.

Caustic Comments on Balfour's Abortive Bill—List of the Lost on the Tamerlane.

Snowed Under.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The most extraordinary snow storm which has visited England for a generation continues, and, if anything, is growing heavier. The snow fall in some places is several feet deep. Railway communication is stopped and the telegraph lines are down in every direction.

Russia Will Apologize.

LONDON, Feb. 19. — The St. James Gazette says: The negotiations which are being conducted between England and Russia in regard to the expulsion by some Russian officers in September last of Captain Younghusband from the Pamirs point to a settlement favorable to England. The Russian authorities have fully investigated the affair, and concluded that the Russian officers acted precipitately, and Russia now shows her full desire to make reparation for the acts of her officers.

List of the Lost.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Capt Howland and seventeen men were lost with the whaling bark Tamerlane, off Puna, Sandwich Islands, Feb. 2. The list of the lost is as follows: Capt. Walker Howland, New Bedford, Mass.; Charles Tucker, New Bedford, first mate; Wm. Oysterman, San Francisco, boat header; Allen Wilber, New Bedford, second mate; John Allen, boat steerer; Harry Solon, Minnesota, carpenter; Fred ——, (British) cook; Moses (Hawaiian), boat steerer; Henry Johnson (American); Michael Sullivan (American), boat steerer; Frank Hewitt, steward, Toronto; Frederick Musman (Swiss); Fred Kasper (Scandinavian); John Anderson (German); Ollie Anderson (Scandinavian), Boston, seaman; Jouvette, Boston, seaman; Geo. Knowles (American), San Francisco, seaman; John Smith (American).

An Extraordinary Production.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—In commenting on the Irish Local Government Bill, the Post says: The reception accorded the bill makes it highly probable that the Government will modify the safeguarding clauses before it is offered for second reading. Strong objections are offered to the trial councils, cumulative vote, the disfranchisement of illiterates and the control of capital expenditure.

The Daily News says: Nothing more extraordinary in the shape of an Irish bill was ever submitted to Parliament. Balfour's strongest opponents never imagined that he could have devised a so thoroughly bad and hopeless measure.

The Chronicle describes the bill as an "honest attempt, but as failing to please anybody."

The Standard understands that the Government has resolved to proceed with the bill and that it confidently anticipates that it will receive the support of the Liberal-Unionists.

The National Press of Dublin says: The bill is a beggardly account of meaningless provisions.

The Irish Daily Independent (Parnellite) says the Irish party was prepared to give the bill hearty support had it proved satisfactory, but the measure is a sham, a fraud, an insult. Not much was to be expected from a Unionist Ministry, but nothing so ridiculous as this bill was anticipated.

The Freeman's Journal, of Dublin, declares that the bill is a legislative joke. An appeal to the country on this legislative abortion would make Balfour and his colleagues the laughing stock of the country.

Whatever there be between the two nations to forget and forgive is forgotten and forgiven. If the two peoples which are one be true to their duty, who can doubt that the destinies of the world are in their hands? Let America and England march in the van of freedom and progress, showing the world not only a magnificent spectacle of human happiness, but a still more magnificent spectacle of two peoples united, loving righteousness and hating iniquity, inflexibly faithful to the principles of eternal justice, which are the unchanging law of God.—[Archdeacon Farrar, of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Eng.

Provincial Legislature.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt's Financial Statement.

The Substantial Surplus of $5,285,500 on Hand—Decrease in Estimated Expenditure—No Extras for Parliament Buildings.

[Special to the London ADVERTISER.]

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Hon. Mr. Harcourt delivered his financial statement this afternoon. He presented the following statement of the assets and liabilities of the Province:

ASSETS.

Direct investments	$ 729,154
Capital held on debts due by the Dominion to Ontario, bearing interest	4,547,788
Mortgage re Toronto Asylum lands sold	6,315
Bank balances	19,818
Total	$5,303,076

LIABILITIES.

Balance due to municipalities re surplus distribution	$ 1,291
Land improvement Fund	9,849
Quebec's share of collections by Ontario on account of common school lands	6,419
Total	$17,560
Surplus	$5,285,515

The receipts for 1891 amounted to $3,327,070, or, including sums derived from the sale of debentures, $4,128,589. The expenditure for 1891 was $4,163,563. The estimated receipts for 1892 were $3,266,572. In answer to the charge that they were wasting mining and timber resources in order to get funds to meet extravagant expenditures, he said that the total receipts from the Crown Lands Department for 1872 to 1891 amounted to $12,207,143. During the same period they had spent on public buildings $5,096,203; railways, $5,655,478; public works, $2,324,811, and on colonization roads, $2,145,792, making in all $15,223,374.

The end of the whole matter, therefore, is that they had substituted for a portion of the assets they had in lands and timber other assets more valuable and more productive. There has been no diminution or waste of assets. One class of assets indispensable and the most valuable of all conceivable assets has been substituted for another. In answer to some press criticisms arising out of complaints made by a few municipalities as to their share of the license fees, Mr. Harcourt said that he last year pointed out that the municipal revenue from licenses had, during recent years, been steadily increasing; that their percentage of increase had been more than double that of the Province. The Province took to itself control of the liquor licenses in 1876. Since that date it has received as net revenue from licenses $2,630,515, or $164,407 per year. It has paid to the municipalities during the same period $3,885,922, or $242,870 per year. The municipalities have, therefore, during the last sixteen years, received on an average $78,443 more per year than the Province from this source. Without question, in our larger cities licenses have become much more valuable to the holders year by year and it may be that the time has now come when we should consider the propriety of raising the fee and thereby increasing our revenue. The fees paid in some of the American cities are considerably larger than those we exact.

Regarding the new Parliament buildings, Mr. Harcourt said that $1,250,000 had been voted for them. They were now nearly completed and the total cost will be less than the sum voted and there will be no extras. There has been spent $802,297 on the new buildings.

The grants for educational purposes were $60,776 larger than ten years ago. Necessity for this increase is apparent when the work done is considered. As far as this Province is concerned, because of their interdependence and the symmetry of our system, the cause of the public school and of the high school is one, and our grants to the cause of higher education promote the efficiency of our public schools. It is hoped that our task in the matter of higher education will be lightened, as has happened elsewhere by the generosity of private citizens. Our university is even now much indebted to a few large-hearted, thoughtful men whose handsome donations to its coffers have helped on its work. While McGill College had received from private benefactors over $1,000,000 during the last five years, our Provincial University has received less than $15,000 in ten years. Mr. Harcourt said on a strictly commercial calculation they could claim assets as good as those of any commercial corporation on the continent to the amount of at least $6,500,000, and that the surplus was twice as large as it was ever claimed to be. Regarding the demands of other Provinces for better terms, Mr. Harcourt said this Province must insist that there should be a comprehensive settlement arrived at after careful study of the situation, altered as it is in so many regards since Confederation; that it should be a final settlement; that not another dollar from the federal treasury should thereafter be spent in special grants, or "better terms," and that it should be in all regards fair. We ask no more for our own Province. In this way only will the Provinces become self-reliant and make the most of their own resources.

The estimated expenditure for 1892 is $3,472,237, a decrease of $20,000 as compared with last year. The estimated receipts for 1892 are $3,226,572 and he was confident the actual receipts would exceed that sum.

Mr. Clancy was the financial critic for the Opposition, instead of Mr. H. E. Clarke, who is ill. He attacked the Government on the usual grounds that there was no surplus, and that the mineral and timber resources were wasted.

A LADY THIS TIME!

Her Statements Create Surprise!

She Thinks of the Past With Feelings of Horror.

Professor Johnston, in alluding to the custom of converting the human body into a frightful-looking mummy, or of attempting by various artificial processes to arrest its natural course of decomposition into kindred elements, remarks, as beautifully as truly: "Embalm the loved bodies and swathe them, as the old Egyptians did, in resinous cerements, and you but preserve them a little longer, that some wretched, plundering Arab may desecrate and scatter to the winds the residual dust. Or jealously, in regal tombs and pyramids, preserve the forms of venerated emperors or beauteous queens; still, some future conqueror, or more humble Belzoni, will rifle the most secure resting-place."

Many intelligent and thoughtful men and women of our time are often shocked and pained to see the suffering bodies of near and dear friends filled, day after day and week after week, with nauseous and worthless drugs and remedies. These drugs and patent remedies are generally administered in good faith; but in every case there is a terrible depth of ignorance as to the results. The great majority of the Christian world—men and women—are slaves to the dictates of the medical profession. The medical word of command has gone forth as follows: "Swallow all that your physician prescribes, and ask no questions." Strange to say, these imperative commands are most humbly obeyed, although no two physicians will prescribe alike for the same malady.

We have, therefore, two agencies constantly at work, vainly endeavoring to prolong human life with remedies in the form of liquids and pills—many of them highly poisonous and deleterious in their effects.

Our homes are constantly deluged with a class of poisoned literature bearing on the secret ills of both sexes, resulting from criminal and improper living. This literature, with its arrows of terror, is the lever that is expected to sell—to move off the vile and trashy nostrums, which are as numerous in our country as flies around the body of a dead animal in the heat of summer. This nitro-glycerine literature meets the eyes of our boys and girls on the public streets and in the press, and is usually warranted to cure from a pin-prick to consumption, and sufficiently powerful to enable the Ethiopian to change his skin and the leopard his spots. All this can be accomplished if we credit the statements of the majority of the manufacturers of Bitters, Nervines, Sarsaparillas and of White, Black, Pink and Green Pills for green people.

We hold that is a greater folly to charge the living body with the concoctions and preparations referred to, than it is to decently and carefully embalm the dead bodies of our friends. In the former case, disease is assisted in its work of destruction; in the latter, the dead body is for a time preserved from decay and putrefaction.

Fortunately science, with its true and mighty hand, has stepped into the breach to supply the needs of those who found neither relief or cure from doctors or from the ordinary patent medicines. This true and noble science has culled from the lap of nature all its elements of cure; it has drawn from the herbs of the field and trees of the forest those healing agencies which, in a concentrated form, are given in Paine's Celery Compound, nature's great restorer and builder.

The following recent testimonial is but another proof of the mighty curative power of Celery Compound; and shows conclusively that when doctors fail and the common advertised drugs and pills prove useless to arrest and eradicate disease, Paine's Celery Compound will, if taken hold of, restore the sick one to new life and perfect strength:

Dear Sirs,—After serious consideration I think it my duty to acknowledge the great good that I have derived from Paine's Celery Compound. No living mortal can imagine the terrible sufferings that I endured for four years, owing to liver and kidney troubles, headache and sore back. To give you, but more especially the thousands of my own sex, an idea of my condition and sufferings, before I found relief through your precious remedy—Celery Compound—I may say that, in addition to the dangerous ailments just mentioned, I was continually sick at my stomach, with a sour taste and mouth all furred and coated. I had an ill-smelling breath and could not relish food, although I always had a craving for it. If I did eat anything I was sure to be annoyed by a heavy weight on my stomach, and became so bad that I was obliged to apply mustard poultices to get relief.

I became very down-hearted and morose, and though I tried hard to keep up courage, I always felt I would have to give up. When I sat down to read or sew I would get sleepy, with a heavy feeling, and my feet would get very cold; and at such times piles would trouble me. I often felt those terrible bearing-down pains while standing or walking, and I was in a most dangerous condition. I at various times tried many patent medicines, and was under the treatment of doctors, but obtained no relief of any consequence, and the old troubles would come back worse than ever before. I thank God for having read of some wonderful cures through your Celery Compound. I thought when others received good that I also would be benefitted, and I at once procured your medicine and used it, and am happy to state that I have experienced a great change. No other remedy has ever given me such wonderful results in so short a time, and I now feel myself a new woman. I can now sleep well, enjoy my food, and I am gaining strength fast. God has certainly put in my hands the best remedy ever given to any suffering woman; and I feel that all should know what it is able to do in building up the broken-down system. I am sure no soul need despair while Paine's Celery Compound can be procured. I will always speak well of it and recommend it when I have the opportunity, and I trust that all who are suffering as I once did will commence without delay to use this surest and best of all remedies.

Yours very truly,
MRS. J. CURRIE,
289 Delaware avenue, Toronto.

We, the undersigned, gladly testify to the facts contained in Mrs. J. Currie's testimonial.

MRS. A. WILLIAMSON.
MRS. S. SOMERVILLE.

The above is an honest and strong testimonial from a well-known and most estimable lady. Remember, reader, this is only one out of thousands that can be published. The people who have used Paine's Celery Compound are obliged to speak truly as Mrs. Currie has done, because the remedy is an honest one, a strong one, a mighty one—one that always cures. Our Canadian people have made it their friend; they value it highly as a precious gift from a good and bountiful Providence. No other remedy has ever received such testimonials, and no other remedy has ever published so many honest testimonials for the benefit of sufferers. It does not touch the strings of one testimonial and harp on it from year to year; its testimony is always new, fresh and crisp, and comes from every quarter.

In conclusion we would ask each sufferer: "Are you satisfied with the proof that Paine's Celery Compound will do for you what it has done for others?" If you are, delay not its use, as time is short and precious, and you know not what a day may bring forth.

A Dinner Pill.—Many persons suffer excruciating agony after partaking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment it becomes a poison to the sytem. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and conver the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medicine to take if troubled with Indigestion or Dyspepsia.

CARTWRIGHT COMING.

Another great Liberal rally will be held in the Grand Opera House Wednesday evening, when Sir Richard Cartwright, the able advocate of trade freedom, is expected to address a mass meeting of the electors of London. It may be that Hon. Oliver Mowat, Premier of Ontario, will be present to speak in the interests of Mr. Hyman and the Liberal policy. Mr. Hyman himself will also be heard from.

THE SAME SAUCE ALL ROUND.

In the recent East Middlesex election campaign many voters in this city canvassed and voted for Mr. Marshall on the ground that as he had been unseated through no fault of his own, he should be permitted to serve out his full term.

In East Elgin the same view was propounded in favor of Mr. Ingram, and the Toronto Empire (Conservative) says that the argument obtained many Liberal votes for the unseated candidate.

As sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander, fair-minded Conservatives cannot do better than put in a quiet vote for Mr. Hyman on Friday next.

Canada would be better off if there were no graver impurities in its politics than those revealed at the London election trial.—[Toronto Telegram, Independent Conservative.

BRITISH FAIR PLAY.

By voting for Mr. Hyman you simply extend to a young townsman the British Fair Play of allowing him to fill out the Parliamentary term for which he was fairly elected. By voting for Mr. Hyman you do not thereby deprive Mr. Carling of a seat in Parliament, as Mr. Carling will be reappointed to the Senate immediately after Mr. Hyman's election on the 26th.

In the four bye-elections in Nova Scotia the Liberal popular vote has been increased 1,200 over that registered in the contests of March last. Where time and money have been spent on the voters' lists the Liberals have held their own handsomely.

THE MOLDERS' STRIKE.

The 'Tizer shifts its ground in regard to the Hamilton molders' trouble, and now says it is a struggle between the Gurneys and the union. The Free Press said this at the beginning. So where does the argument against the N. P. come in?—[London Free Press.

Right here. The bosses complain that they cannot pay the men the wages they have been paying them. That, in fact, they cannot afford to give them the wages they got during the Mackenzie regime. The men refuse to accept the reduction. They have longer idle spells than they had, and living is dearer than it was under Reform rule.—[Hamilton Times.

Of course, the ADVERTISER did not shift its ground, nevertheless our city contemporary is well answered by the Times. The fact is that while the stove manufacturers enjoy a "protective" tariff of 35 per cent. on stoves—equal to $7 on a stove worth $20—the Hamilton molders, in the place of all places that was expected to receive benefit to mechanics, assert that they earn only $1 38 per day the year round! When the "N. P." has brought skilled labor down to this low level, surely it is time for molders and all other wage earners to consider whether or not they have been imposed upon by the combines. The molders could not be worse off under trade freedom than they are under the restricted system which cuts down their wages and leaves them so small a sum with which to maintain their wives and families.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

Mr. Andrew Browes, Alma House, Dronfield, Derbyshire, Eng., writes: "For many years I had been sorely afflicted with rheumatic gout, some of the time so badly I had to get up stairs on my hands and knees. I could not walk or do any work. I had tried a great many remedies without obtaining any lasting benefits. I employed medical men, but they did not seem to do me any good. My feet were at times swollen to twice their natural size, and I suffered the greatest agony. I had about given up all hope of ever being well again, when my attention was directed to your infallible remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, which I applied with most marvelous effects. I was in a very short time free from pain, and I have in a large measure, regained the use of my feet and limbs."

THE GREAT ISSUE

Benefits of Freedom of Trade on This Continent.

Mr. Gibbons, Q.C., Answers the Free Press Queries.

Some Things for Thoughtful Men to Ponder Over.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

The Free Press reiterates several questions which it asks me to answer at our next meeting. As I may not have that opportunity before the election may I answer now:

1. Would discrimination against Great Britain be a good thing for Canada?

If freedom of trade of this continent is essential to our commercial success and development; if in no other way can we have shipping on our lakes and rivers; if our mineral wealth cannot be developed without the American market; if our farmers with mixed farming require that market as an essential to their success; if our manufacturers cannot get in any other way a market large enough to enable them to produce cheaply or in fact to manufacture on the line of the present age which requires specialization and large output; if these things cannot be had without discrimination against Great Britain, then I answer the question yes. It would be a good thing for Canada and a good thing for Great Britain also.

England sends about 2½ per cent. of her exports to Canada. It is neither here nor there to her. She finds in the growing and more prosperous country south of us a better customer. Her increased exports to that country every few years is greater than her total output to us. She not only sends to the United States many more goods, but she discriminates against us in the investment of her means in that country. She builds no factories in this country nor buys any. She invests no money in our mines, while hundreds of millions of her funds are being sent to the States. She discriminates in her investments of this character because no Englishman will invest his money in manufacturing in a country which does not afford a market sufficiently large to enable him to manufacture as he understands manufacturing. He will not invest his money in manufacturing in a country where it costs more than an ordinary profit to sell the goods.

He won't build or buy cotton mills when the only chance for a dividend is to shut up part of them and force up prices 20 to 30 per cent. higher than the real value of the product. He does not understand that illegitimate way of doing business and will have none of it.

What Great Britain wants us to do is to carry on our business to our own best advantage. The London Times, the other day, tells us plainly that what both Newfoundland and ourselves should do was to see if we could not settle our difficulties by a broad commercial arrangement with our neighbors, and that it would be time enough to see what the next best remedy would be when that failed.

England's most selfish interest in us is that we should enter into any arrangement that would mean growth and prosperity to us and peace and good will with the United States.

The growth and development of purchasing power would rapidly increase again our imports from Great Britain, and in even this narrow sense present discrimination would mean greater purchases from the mother country within a few years, and the settlement of questions always fraught with danger to peace and amicable feeling.

Questions 2 and 6 I take together, because the one answers the other. 2. Would it be a worse thing for Canada to surrender the control of her tariff to Washington? 6. Under unrestricted reciprocity would not our import duties be twice as high as now? The settlement of what the duties should be upon imports would have to be arranged upon some fair basis. The worst view of it is that we would have to increase our tariff so that it would be as high as that of our neighbors.

Well, we would have to have it as great as theirs, anyway. The removal of the tariff wall between us and the States would leave 85 per cent. of our trade wholly free.

On the other portion our imports from the rest of the world we would need a duty quite as high as the United States duty, because our debt and per capita expenditure is much greater than theirs.

What harm could it do us to agree to have our duties as high as we must necessarily make them?

A duty twice as high on the comparatively few goods imported would not be as the Free Press knows half as burdensome as a lower duty against the States as well. The average duties of the United States are higher than ours and yet the producer there gets his manufactured goods much cheaper, save imported woolens and a few other luxuries. Indeed, although the United States has this higher protection it produces so much cheaper than we do that it sends us $24,000,000 worth of manufactured goods a year, though it has the competition of Great Britain on even terms. That is the result of freedom of trade of this continent.

That, too, is the practical answer to the objection that it would hurt our manufacturers. It is not a matter of experiment. It has been settled by actual experience. Michigan, Ohio, New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts, with no greater natural advantages, but having the larger market, manufacture twice the amount per capita we do in Canada. The only reason that can be given why they have this great advantage over us is that they have this larger market.

The fact is that from every standpoint, that of the farmer, the miner, the ship owner, the lumberman, the manufacturer, our hope is in the removal of restriction to trade on this continent. This letter has grown so that I must ask space again to answer some of the other questions. Yours truly,

GEO. C. GIBBONS.

RALLY, CITIZENS, RALLY.

Canada, loved Canada, how fallen and disgraced,
The empire's brightest gem in her diadem defaced,
By rulers, arrant bribers, who glory in their shame,
As men and Canadians, where is your honored name?

The "Maple Leaf and Beaver," proud emblems of our birth,
Exalted and respected 'mongst nations of the earth,
Now made a scoff and byword across the watered mains,
When will the outraged masses wipe out the scandal stains?

Awake, brothers, awake, our national honor first,
Drive out the vilest creatures that e'er a country cursed,
With bloated greed abursting at rank corruption's trough,
Show by your solid vote how you turned the rascals off.

Then, rally comrades, rally, the battle has begun,
West Huron, Perth and London will make the "heelers" run,
Again the conq'ring yeoman, beneath their flag unfurl'd,
Will fight for upright rulers and honor in the world.

Forward, electors forward, the hour of triumph's come,
When "hirelings" of combinsters must to your power succumb;
Down with every "boodler," armed with the "reptile" fund,
Each one an arrant coward, by honest freemen shunned.

INCIDENTS OF INTEREST.

The News of the Day, Culled and Condensed.

John Shaw, the chief of the bucket shop dealers of England, died Friday.

New York Anarchists have held a mass meeting to protest against the garroting in Spain.

Henry W. Bates, the well-known English naturalist and author, has died from influenza.

Smallpox has become epidemic in Bombay, and there were 23 deaths during the past week.

The United States Senate has passed the bill extending the time for the first operation of the Chinese exclusion laws.

The second death among Hebrew immigrants suffering from typhus fever occurred on North Brothers island, New York, on Friday. Four new cases were discovered.

Mrs. Geo. E. Osborne, a reputable citizen of Windsor, Conn., who has been 26 years married and has seven children, has eloped with George Atkin, aged 20 years, a fellow of very unsavory reputation.

Thomas D. Jordan has been appointed comptroller of the Equitable Life Assurance Society to succeed John A. McCall, now president of the New York Life Insurance Company. Mr. Jordan is 47 years of age. He has been 33 years in the employ of the Equitable.

Anxiety is expressed in regard to the health of the Queen Regent, Marie Christina, mother of little King Alfonso XIII. The Queen Regent has been ill for some time past, and instead of improving it is admitted that the royal sufferer's sickness is increasing. The trouble is said to be the after effects of an attack of influenza.

Mr. Deacon, of Boston, who created a sensation at Cannes, France, by shooting a man named Abeille, whom he found in his wife's bedroom, appeared before the magistrate Friday. He told the story of the shooting and said he did not intend to kill the man—only to wound him. The wife's story was similar to her husband's. Deacon was held, bail being refused.

HEARD FROM AT ST. PAUL.

Rev. N. H. Martin Addresses a Letter to Miss Kitchen.

CHATHAM, Feb. 20.—A letter has been received from Rev. N. H. Martin. It was written on the note-paper of the Sherman House, St. Paul, Minn. The recipient is Miss M. E. Kitchen, to whom he presents a long recital of his troubles. He declares himself to have been the victim of a horde of vultures that have been preying on him for a long time. The missive is evidently the production of a man in intense grief and sore perplexity. There is no study of connection or of phraseology; no effort to indite elegantly rounded periods or to produce effect. He says:

"I was in the hands of a gang who were sweating me, and to whom I helplessly yielded. They bled me right and left. They persecuted me till life became a burden. I grew crazy by reason of their persistent attacks on me. No human being with a heart in his breast and moral consciousness in his being could tamely have stood it. They followed me everywhere and at all times. There was no peace or comfort or security for me. At last it came to a culmination. It came to a question of suicide or flight. I must either kill myself or quit the scene of my troubles. God only knows how the battle between the alternatives went on within my breast. I was undecided until the moment the train appeared at Dresden station and the signal was given: "All aboard for the west!" It was my full intention up to that instant to return and lay the whole wretched matter before you, and leave you to decide the issue. But, God help me, I hadn't the courage to face the foe and brave the dishonor on the spot!"

The letter gives no clue as to the secret of how the "gang" secured a pull on him, the gang referred to being, doubtless, the family of Miss Bonet. Nor does the letter speak of the third young lady to whom he was engaged. Mr. Martin has not placed himself in any better light in the estimation of those by whom he has heretofore been so highly esteemed.

Mr. Thomas McGreevy Retires from the Contest.

Probability that Mr. German's Ban of Disqualification Will Be Removed—Notes.

The Welland election appeal, which is made by Mr. German against the judgment of the lower court, was concluded in the Supreme Court yesterday. Judgment was reserved. The charge is that Mr. German promised a man named Wood employment prior to last election, which the court below held to be bribery. The sole evidence on which the charge is based was the unsupported testimony of Wood, who has since been arrested for perjury. Wood swore that on a certain evening at Port Robinson, Mr. German made him the promise referred to, while five witnesses swore to an alibi. The general opinion of those who heard the case, and judging from the remarks of the court, is that the ban of disqualification will be removed.

John Hearn and Arthur H. Murphy were nominated for Quebec West on Friday—the former in the interests of the Government and the latter as the Liberal candidate. Thomas McGreevy retired.

It is stated that Mr. McGreevy has given his very interesting documents in the hands of prominent Liberals.

The Little Minister.

By J. M Barrie,

AUTHOR OF "WINDOW IN THRUMS," "WHEN A MAN'S SINGLE," "MY LADY NICOTINE," ETC.

On that day, when a carriage brought Gavin to Thrums, he was as I am now; for may we not say that the pages lay before him on which he was to write his life? Yet he was not quite as I am. To me the pages are scarcely blank; it is as if I had only to write over with ink what he has written in pencil, and even now at the first chapter I know the last. Few can be merry at the beginning who know the end, and over these pages I already see a shadow stealing, the shadow of the Egyptian. Our life is a book to which we add daily, until suddenly we are finished, and then the manuscript is burned. In this diary we set out meaning to write one story, and write another. To turn back to the beginning is only to wonder and be sad, but to compare the second half of the volume as it is with what we vowed to make it, is to be lashed with nettles.

How often does a phantom woman draw the man from the way he meant to go. So was man created, to hunger for the ideal that is above himself, until one day there is magic in the air, and the eyes of a girl rest upon him. He does not know that it is he himself who crowned her, and thus the pure love of youths and maidens is the one form of idolatry that is now quite ignoble. It is the joining of two souls on their way to God. But if the woman is not good, the test of the man is when he wakens from his dream. The nobler his ideal the farther will he have been hurried down the wrong way, for those who only run after little things will not go far. Will he turn back? It was but weakness to follow the halo; it is sin to follow when he knows there is no halo. If he still follows, love sinks into passion, perhaps only to stain its wings and rise again, perhaps to drown.

And, Babbie, what shall I say to you who make me write these things? I am not your judge. Shall we not laugh at the student that chides the thrushes whose song comes between him and his books; the thrushes with whom, on that mad night you came into Gavin's life, you had more in common than with Auld Licht ministers? The gladness of living was in your step, your voice was melody, and he was wondering what love might be. You were the daughter of a summer night, born where all the birds were free, and the moon christened you with her soft light to glamor the eyes of man. Not our little minister alone was stricken by you into his second childhood. To look upon you was to rejoice that so fair a thing could be; to think of you is still to be young. Even those who called you a little devil, of whom I myself have been one, admitted that in the end you had a soul, though not that you were born with one. They said you stole it, and so made a woman of yourself. But again I say, I am not your judge, and when I picture you as Gavin saw you first, a bare-legged witch dancing up Windyghoul, a wreath of rowan berries in your black hair, and on your finger a jewel the little minister could not have bought with five years of toil, the shadows vanish from my pages, and I cannot wonder that Gavin loved you.

Often I say to myself that this is to be Gavin's story, not mine. Yet must it be mine, too, in a manner, and of myself I shall sometimes have to speak; not willingly, for it is time my little tragedy had died of old age. I have kept it to myself so long that now I would rather stand at its grave alone. It was true that when I found who was to be the new minister I hoped for a day that the life broken in Harvie might be mended in Thrums, but two minutes talk with Gavin showed me that Margaret had kept from him the secret that was hers and mine, and so knocked the bottom out of my foolish hopes. I did not blame her then, nor do I blame her now; but it was bitter to look at the white manse among the trees to which those loved ones were coming, and know that I must keep aloof. For Margaret's sake it had to be done, for her wishes must be mine, yet this new trial came upon me like the first one, hardly less terrible than death. I thought that in these eighteen years my passions had burned like a ship till they sank, but I suffered again as on that awful night at Harvie, when Adam Dishart came back, nearly killing Margaret and pulling up all my ambitions by the roots in a single hour. I waited in Thrums till I had looked again on Margaret, who thought me dead, and Gavin, who did not know that I had ever lived, and then I trudged back to the school-house. Something I heard of them from time to time during the winter, for in the gossip of Thrums I was well posted; but much of what is to be told here I only learned afterwards from those who knew it best. Gavin heard of me at times as the dominie in the glen who had ceased to attend the Auld Licht kirk, and Margaret did not even hear of me. It was all I could do for them.

CHAPTER II.

On the east coast of Scotland, hidden, as if in a quarry, at the foot of cliffs that may one day fall forward, is a village called Harvie. So has it shrunk since the day when I skulked from it that I hear of a traveler's asking lately at one of its doors how far he was from a village; yet Harvey throve once, and was celebrated even in distant Thrums for its fish. Most of our weavers would have thought it as unnatural not to buy harvies in the square on the Muckle Friday, as to let Saturday night pass without laying in a sufficient stock of halfpennies to go round the family twice.

Gavin was born in Harvie, but left it at such an early age that he could not recall thatched houses with nets drying on the roofs, and a sandy shore in which coarse grass grew. In the picture he could not pick out the house of his birth, though he might have been able to go to it had he ever returned to the village. Soon he learned that his mother did not like to speak of Harvie, and perhaps he thought that she had forgotten it too, all save one scene to which his memory still guided him. When his mind wandered to Harvie, Gavin saw the door of his home open and a fisherman enter, who scratched his head and then said, "Your man's drowned, missis." Gavin seemed to see many women crying, and his mother staring at them with a face suddenly painted white, and next to hear a voice that was his own saying, "Never mind, mother; I'll be a man to you now, and I'll get into breeks for the burial." But Adam required no funeral, for his body lay deep in the sea.

Gavin thought this was the tragedy of his mother's life, and the most memorable event of his own childhood. But it was neither. When Margaret, even after she came to Thrums, thought of Harvie, is was not at Adam's death she shuddered, but at the recollection of me.

It would ill become me to take a late revenge on Adam Dishart now by saying what is not true of him. Though he died a fisherman he was a sailor for a great part of his life, and doubtless his recklessness was washed into him on the high seas, where in his time men made a crony of death, and drank merrily over dodging it for another night. To me his roars of laughter without cause was as repellent as a boy's drum; yet many faces that were long in my company brightened at his coming, and women, with whom despite my learning, I was in no wise a favorite, ran to their doors to listen to him as readily as to the bell-man. Children scurried from him if his mood was savage, but to him at all other times, while me they merely disregarded. There was always a smell of the sea about him. He had a rolling gait, unless he was drunk, when he walked very straight, and before both sexes he boasted that any woman would take him for his beard alone. Of this beard he took prodigious care, though otherwise thinking little of his appearance, and I now see that he understood women better than I did, who had nevertheless reflected much about them. It cannot be said that he was vain, for though he thought that he attracted women strangely, that I maintain, is a weakness common to all men, and so no more to be marveled at than a stake in a fence. Foreign oaths were the nails with which he held his talk together, yet I doubt not that they were a curiosity gathered at sea, like his chains of shells, more for his own pleasure than for others' pain. His friends gave them no weight, and when he wanted to talk emphatically he kept them back, though they were then as troublesome so him as eggs to the bird-nesting boy who has to speak with his spoil in his mouth.

Adam was drowned on Gavin's fourth birthday; a year after I had to leave Harvie. He was blown off his smack in a storm, and could not reach the rope his partner flung him. "It's no go, lad," he shouted; "so long, Jim," and sank.

A month afterwards Margaret sold her share in the smack, which was all Adam left her, and the furniture of the house was rouped. She took Gavin to Glasgow, where her only brother needed a housekeeper, and there mother and son remained until Gavin got his call to Thrums. During these seventeen years I lost knowledge of them as completely as Margaret had lost sight of me. On hearing of Adam's death I went back to Harvie to try to trace her, but she had feared this, and so told no one where she was going.

Humorous Contributor—"Do you pay well for your fun?" Editor (with a towel about his head)—"Well, I should say I did. I went out with the boys last night, and I'm paying pretty well for my fun to-day."

A man's wife should always be the same especially to her husband; but if she is weak and nervous and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they will make her "feel like a different person," at least so they all say, and their husbands say so, too.

A Boston dancing teacher has made an assignment. He should know how to meet reverses.

Carter's Little Liver Pills must not be confounded with common Cathartic or Purgative Pills, as they are entirely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

It's mighty hard to know sometimes what to do in this world. A pretty girl is praised, but a young man is blamed, for being fresh.

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of and other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

WORDS THAT BURN.

WHITE ROSES.

There was a rose tree grew so high
And white with all its seven roses,
It seemed a cloud 'twixt earth and sky.

There was one rose among the seven
That grew alone on topmost bough,
Like a white star caught down from heaven.

I plucked it that it should not be Deflowered by rainy, wild west winds
In all its white virginity.

There was a little maiden dead
In a dark room in a lone place—
Two candles at her feet and head.

Her two hands crossed upon her breast,
Like frail rose petals, but more still—
Glad to be folded thus at rest.

—[Cora Fabbie.

BALLAD OF THE WINTER BEECH.

With outstretched arms I stand
On the mid winter land;
The herds of kine and sheep
Under my brown leaves sleep,
And the storm-blown, weary birds
I shelter above the herds.

At night, when the snow storm piles
Its gray, wide drifts for miles,
And the eastward hills gleam white,
I lean in the vague, dim light
And listen, and sometimes hear
The feet of God draw near.

I hear in the tangled brakes
The sigh of the dropping flakes,
The far off shriek and crash
Of the bleak, storm-burdened ash,
And the leaves that fall in schools
Into the freezing pools.

In summer I shade the weary;
In winter shelter the dreary;
Tent of His dumb, sad herds,
House of His homeless birds,
I bear the night-snow's rod,
Doing the will of God.

—[Charles J. O'Malley.

O, this dull, depressing headache,
That won't wear off;
This hawking and this spittin
And this hacking cough.
I've lost my sense of smelling,
And taste's going, too.
I know catarrh's what ails me,
But—what shall I do?
My hacking and my hawking
Keeps up a steady din;
I'm haunted by the fear that
Consumption may set in.
I feel supremely wretched;
No wonder I'm blue.
I know my health's failing,
But—what can I do?

Do? I'll tell you what to do, my friend, if you'll lend me your ear a minute. Go down to the drug store and buy Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and take it according to directions given, and you'll soon find that this miserable headache is a thing of the past; the hacking, hawking and spitting, so disagreeable to others as well as to yourself, will come to an end, and in a short time you will feel like a new man. A new man—think of that—and all for 50 cents, which is the price of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, the unfailing cure for this terrible disease.

Intuition.—Fangle—"What sort of a dress was that Mrs. Snooper wore to night?" Mrs. Fangle—"Demi-train." "That's precisely what Cumso said when he trod on it, but how did he know his name?"

A Pleasant Herb Drink.

The best cure we know of for Constipation and Headache is the pleasant herb drink called Lane's Family Medicine. It is said to be Oregon grape root, combined with simple herbs and is made for use by pouring boiling water onto the dried roots and herbs. It is remarkably efficacious in all blood disorders, and is now the sovereign remedy with ladies for clearing up the complexion. Druggists sell the packages at 50c and $1. ywt

"How to Cure All Skin Diseases."

Simply apply "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT." No internal medicine required. Cures tetter, eczema, itch, all eruptions on the face, hands, nose, etc., leaving the skin clear, white and healthy. Its great healing and curative powers are possessed by no other remedy. Ask your druggist for SWAYNE'S OINTMENT. Lyman, Sons & Co., Montreal wholesale agents. ywt Mudge—"What a paradox woman is!" Wickwire—"You—don't—say?" Mudge—"Consider her foot, for instance. The larger it is, the less it appears.

Why will you allow a cough to lacerate your throat or lungs and run the risk of filling a consumptive's grave, when by the timely use of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive syrup the pain can be allayed and the danger avoided? This Syrup is pleasant to the taste, and unsurpassed for relieving, healing and curing all affections of the throat and lungs, coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc.

Not likely.—Barrister—"What! you have the audacity to ask me to take you on as my servant after I have defended you in a case of robbery?" Rogue and Vagabond—"That's just the reason why, sir! You told the jury so many things about me, such as nobody else ever did, that, of course, I thought as how you would only be too pleased if I made you the offer."

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles

SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. Miss Von Grimp—"I wouldn't marry the best man living." Dr. Perkins—"No—ah—er—perhaps not, but—er—that is really no obstacle to your marriage with me."

Worms cause feverishness, moaning and restlessness during sleep. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant, sure and effectual. If your druggist has none in stock, get him to procure it for you.

Wipe flat irons on a cloth wet with coal-oil and they will not scorch the clothing.

Perverse Woman. — The girl who "wouldn't marry the best on earth" generally marries one of the worst.

Mr. Job Scales, of Toronto, writes: "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact, I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—W. A. Gunn, London, is registered at a Vancouver, B. C., hotel.

—Frank Kirchmer, of the Academy of Music, Toronto, is in the city.

—Wm. Ryan, first turnkey at the county jail, is a prisoner to la grippe.

—Eliza Barton was remanded until Feb. 26 at the Police Court this morning. She was charged with vagrancy.

—Rev. George Boyd, of this city, is announced to preach to-morrow in the Central Methodist Church in Sarnia.

—B. E. Badgley, teller of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Walkerville, has been transferred to London, and his place has been taken by W. L. Sutherland.

—A dispatch from Winnipeg says that the residence of Rev. Mr. Crews, pastor of Zion Church, formerly of London township, was badly damaged by fire Thursday.

—The Young Liberals to-night will give another free concert in the central rooms, Dundas street, near the Market Lane. There is lots of room in the place, and a big crowd should fill it up.

—Mr. A. C. Wallen, of Oil Springs, who returned recently from Austria, leaves Monday accompanied by Mr. Thomas Sanson, of Petrolea, for Australia, where they have entered into contract to bore for water.

—Thomas Alexander, who has been arrested nearly 100 times during the last fifteen years for drunkenness and vagrancy, was sent down for three months for the latter offense by the police magistrate this morning.

—Police Court Clerk John M. Keary is unable to attend at his office. He was arrested yesterday by the grip and is held a prisoner at his residence, Hyman street. P. C. Crawford is acting clerk.

—Michael Shea won $13 on his gravel contract in a suit against the city at a sitting of the First Division Court held before Judge Elliot yesterday. Frank Love appeared for Mr. Shea and T. G. Meredith for the city.

—Constable Ward last night arrested Chas. Wedge, of London West, charged with using profane and abusive language to pedestrians on the public streets. He was in the police station the previous night. Squire Lacey remanded him.

—Pedestrians, who have fallen recently on the sidewalks, will be pleased to hear that if the sidewalks in the business portion of the city, become as slippery again as they have been lately, the street commissioner has orders to dump a few loads of sand on them.

—James Glen, formerly of this city, and Mrs. Kate Cotton, charged by her husband, Frank C. Cotton, with undue familiarity, were tried in the Recorder's Court, Detroit, yesterday. The testimony of the complaining witness himself was such that the jury acquitted the couple without leaving the box.

—W. D. Willis has been granted the contract for 22,000 feet of white oak for replanking Wellington street and Victoria bridges, the price paid being $25 50 per 1,000 feet. H. & C. Colerick will repaint the City Hall closets for $18. The Board of Works got eight tenders for this job, the highest being $36.

—Many London people will learn with regret of the death of Mr. Thomas Cox which took place at Coronado, San Diego county, California, on Feb. 11. Deceased was the eldest son of the late Mr. T. W. Cox, one of the best known engineers on the G. T. R. He was 42 years of age and was employed for a number of years as a master machinist in the old Great Western shops.

—County Constables Washington Doxtator and Daniel McCaulay brought to jail last night an Indian named Baptist Powless, of the Oneida reserve. Squire John Kaiser committed him for trial on a charge of perjury in the trial of John Monteith, who was charged with taking horses out of a pound. Powless is a big, powerful, sulky man, and it was no safe and easy undertaking to bring him twelve miles after night in a one-horse sleigh.

—A largely attended meeting of the Progressive Literary Club was held last evening in the "Y" rooms. The next few meetings promise to be unusually lively and interesting. A mock parliament was inaugurated, with W. F. Jarvis leader of the government, and Will Slaght, leader of the opposition. An important bill will be introduced by H. Reason at the next sitting, Friday, March 4. The meetings are open to friends of the members.

—A pleasant event took place at the residence of Mr. John Carmichael, Lobo, on Wednesday, being the marriage of his daughter, Pheme L. and Mr. Duncan Gillies, of East Williams. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. M. Smith, of Poplar Hill, in the presence of immediate relatives, Mr. James F. Gillies, of Parkhill, acting as groomsman, while the bride's sister, Miss Bella A. E. Carmichael, waited upon the bride. After the wedding breakfast the happy couple left by the G. T. R. for the East.

At yesterday's meeting of the Provincial Board of Health the matter of the proposed system of intercepting the sewage of the city of London and for disposing of the sewage was laid before the board by the consulting engineer of the works and approved by them. The committee on epidemics were requested to consider the proper disinfectant of clothing, bedding, etc., belonging to patients who have had diphtheria and other contagious diseases, and report at next quarterly meeting.

—Rev. Charles Elliott, D.D., LL.D., died on Sunday, Feb. 14, at Easton, Pa., where he held the position of professor of Hebrew in Lafayette College. Deceased was about 77 years of age, and was a strong, vigorous man until shortly before his death. He had during his life been chiefly engaged in educational work, having at various times held professorships in the universities of Xenia, O., Pittsburg, Pa., and in Miami University, Oxford, O. After leaving Oxford he accepted an appointment in the Chicago Presbyterian Theological Seminary, where he remained a number of years. Deceased was born in Scotland, came to Canada when a young man, was educated in the United States, and principally resided there. Many of his relatives reside in the neighborhood of London.

Preston Club Ball.

Guests from Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Buffalo, Toronto, Hamilton, Woodstock, St. Thomas, Ingersoll, Strathroy and Aylmer were present at the Preston Club's third and last ball this season, in the City Hall last night. Red, white and blue decorations of bunting, and 200 happy and handsome young people on the floor made the scene one of life and gaiety. Those who had charge of the affair were complimented on every hand. They were: J. H. Ferguson, president; J. W. Butler, vice-president; J. S. Lester, treasurer; W. White, secretary; Dr. Balfour, A. A. Campbell, J. E. Bell, G. C. Davis, H. R. Abbott, W. H. Morgan, W. L. Fitzgerald, R. R. Bland.

A Pioneer Gardener's Demise.

Geo. McRae, gardener, formerly of Galt, died on Thursday. Deceased was born at Auchterararden, Perthshire, Scotland, on March 4, 1809. He became a professional gardener and florist, and spent several years in that capacity in England. During the years of his apprenticeship he lived in the historic town of Scone, famous as the coronation place of the Scottish kings. Many years ago he lived in Boston, where he carried on an extensive business in his line, and removed to Galt about the year 1860. On giving up business he removed to this city, and resided with a daughter up to the time of his death. Deceased was a widower, his surviving family being Mrs. James S. Elson and Miss Annie McRae, of this city, and one son, George, of Collingwood.

"The Private Secretary."

Very appreciative and of comfortable dimensions describes the audience at the Grand Opera House last night. "The Private Secretary" was on the boards; it is too well-known to need comment on the merits of the comedy itself, although Mr. Gillette's is a somewhat new version. The company do it justice. Mr. Wm. Fairbanks, as the secretary, looks and acts like a natural-born simpleton. Mr. H. Rees Davis as the rich uncle with a troublesome liver, also gives his part the necessary amount of ludicrity, and Edwin Travers, the director of the company, is a young actor of talent. Miss Charlotte Neilson and Miss Bertha Livingstone are sufficiently good looking and lively to interest their auditors. Everybody had a good laugh over the funny complications of the poor "Private Secretary."

High Class and First Class.

Perhaps the greatest dramatic event of the season in this city will be the appearance of the eminent tragedian, Mr. Thomas W. Keene, who presents Bulwer's historical "Richelieu" at the Grand Opera House Monday evening. Eleven years' service, constantly engaged in portraying the leading characters in the Shakespearean dramas, certainly gives Mr. Keene a strong claim to popularity and consideration, and wide recognition by the most eminent American critics secures for him a place in the dramatic history of the country among the most illustrious of tragic actors. It is years since he made his debut as a tragic actor, in "Richard III., and from that time he has verified the most sanguine prophecies made by his admirers. He secured public favor at once. He has done so by hard work and patient study. He has overcome the natural opposition to all new exponents of classic roles, and the admirers of his originality and vigor have swelled from hundreds into thousands in every city in America.

New Paper Firm in the City.

A 15-year-old lad named Charles Lancaster, better known as "Sloppy" Lancaster, living on Henry street, has been carrying on a retail trade in wrapping paper since the early morning edition of the ADVERTISER has been revived. He called on several grocers in the city, telling them that he represented an insolvent paper firm and that a carload of wrapping paper would arrive in the city in a few days. He always carried samples, and a number of merchants gave him orders for small amounts. One customer remarked that the paper was cheap enough to be stolen, but the lad replied: "Oh, no; our firm means business." Lancaster got a drayman to deliver the orders for him, and for each bundle of paper, costing the ADVERTISER and Free Press, from which offices it was stolen, $2 50, he received 50 cents. During the past few days it has been missed from these offices, and the police have collected it from the men who bought it. About $50 worth of it now lies in the police station. Lancaster has not yet been arrested, although the police are looking for him.

Early Closing Movement.

The joint committees of the Ministerial Association, Women's Christian Association and Women's Christian Temperance Union, co-operating in the matter of early closing, met Thursday afternoon in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. Ald. Moule reported that his committee had not succeeded in getting much encouragement from the grocers. They did not think the reform would be practicable in their business so long as a large section of their customers sent in their orders at a late hour, especially on Saturday evenings. The report from the ladies' committee after visiting the drygoods houses was much more encouraging, as a large majority of them were quite ready to fall in with the changes provided it was made binding upon all. In accordance with this the ladies' committee were asked to circulate a petition to the Council for such a bylaw as the Ontario Statute provided for, in the departments of drygoods, clothing, merchant tailors, gents' furnishings and boots and shoes, the hour named being 9 o'clock on Saturday evenings. Many of the storekeepers would have preferred an earlier hour, but to secure the widest concurrence the later hour was agreed upon. It was also agreed that a communication on the subject should be addressed to the Retail Grocers' Association.

The Company Still Exists.

In the Chancery Court, Thursday, re Ontario Express Company, judgment was given on petition of two shareholders under 52 Vic., ch. 32 (D), to have the company wound up for three reasons: (1) That the company is insolvent; (2) that the capital stock is impaired to the extent of 25 per centum; and (3) that it has become impossible for the company to carry out the object of its incorporation. One of the petitioners is in default in respect of calls upon his shares. What was relied upon by the petitioners as showing insolvency was a statement in writing submitted to a meeting of shareholders by the vice-president, and his oral explanations or admissions that unless certain things were done the company would be insolvent or would have to go into liquidation. Upon this point the chancellor holds that the meeting was not a regular one, and that the company cannot be affected by what was done and said at the meeting, and therefore the evidence failed to show that the company is insolvent. Upon the second point the chancellor holds that in ascertaining whether capital has been impaired regard must be had to the whole capital, whether nominal or paid up; and in the present case that no capital has been "lost" within the meaning of the Winding-up Act as amended; rather it had not been raised by actual subscription, which was another question. As to the third point, the chancellor holds that the evidence does not show any present or near prospective impossibility in the prosecution of the company's operations. Petition dismissed with costs.

Some tobaccos spurt up in the pipe while smoking, with little crackling explosions. This is caused by the addition of foreign matter to assist the combustion. When the purity of the tobacco is not tampered with and it has been properly taken care of, this combustible foreign matter is wholly unnecessary. For in that case it burns at a lower temperature than almost anything else. Nothing of this kind is seen in smoking the "Myrtle Navy." It burns with steady combustion throughout.

JAMES GRIFFIN'S DEATH.

Coroner Flock Empanels a Jury and Begins an Inquest.

The Wife of Deceased and a Neighbor Give Evidence—Business Worries Weighed on Deceased's Mind.

Coroner Flock yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock began the inquest on the body of James Griffin, who died rather suddenly at his home on Wellington street yesterday morning. The jury comprised the following gentlemen: John Mason (foreman), Thos. Gardner, Frank G. Gale, Hiram S. Albertson, Matthew H. Hunter, Richard Cullis, Wm. T. Parsons, Duncan Walker, Henry Powell, John Abraham, James Johnson, Richard J. Wood, John Johnson, Richard Parsons, Wm. H. Lindsay and John Watson.

Sarah Griffin, wife of deceased, said that her husband had been fretting bitterly all night. Continuing, she said, "He told me that he had been keeping something from me but that he could keep it no longer, and that he was embarrassed in his business. He told me that soon after we went to bed. He was not a man to break down; he always kept up. I have known him to cry at other times but he was not aware that I knew of it. About 7 o'clock this morning, he came out and kindled the fire and asked me to make him some gruel. When it was ready he could not take it. He then told me that he was going to the shop and that he would be back soon. It was after 8 o'clock when he returned and he was just about the same as when he went away. He said he did not feel very well. After he went to lie down he took one spoonful of the gruel. I then returned to the dining-room and soon heard him give such a groan. I asked him what was the matter, and he said; 'I have taken strychnine.'" Mrs. Griffin further said that she found the bottle under his pillow. She had never heard him say that he would take his life; but she had heard him say when some one was dead, that he wished it was him.

Elizabeth Beasley was the woman for whom the wife of the deceased had first gone. When she arrived "He was making a terrible noise; his arms and body were stiffened and his head was thrown back. The last words he said were 'O, Lord how long will I suffer this?' He was in great agony. I lately heard him say 'It would not make much difference if I were to go, it would be a good job.' This referred to his death. I never attached any importance to it."

The inquest was then adjourned until Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the Police Station.

The Doctors Have Arrived.

First three months free of charge. The staff of eminent physicians and surgeons have arrived and are permanently located at their residence, No. 456 Talbot street, London. All invalids who visit these eminent doctors before April 1 will receive services three months free of charge. The only favor desired is a recommendation from those whom they cure. The object in pursuing this course is to become rapidly and personally acquainted with the sick and afflicted.

The Doctors treat every variety of disease and deformity, but will not accept incurable diseases. If your malady is beyond hope they will frankly tell you so; also caution you against spending money for useless treatment.

One of the scholars in a country school, at Grayson, Ky., is a justice of the peace, aged 44 years.

Mr. J. R. Allen, upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered with Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

The great lung healer is found in the excellent medicine sold as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

Crescent Hydrant.

has two pipes, one covering the valve rod (dry pipe) and the one conveying the water to the spout (wet pipe). The rod in this hydrant is actuated by a brass screw and handle above, and raising plunger the smallest fraction of an inch, closes waste before any water can enter discharge pipe. With the valve open we have the full and unobstructed flow of water through the hydrant which can well be compared to a straight way valve or round-way cock. Closing the valve empties all water from wet pipe through dry hole. To repair hydrant or washer remove top cap or plate and withdraw plunger valve. It can be readily repaired without digging up.

Piano Warerooms.

SPECIAL BARGAINS

No other music house in the city has such a select stock.

No other house gives such liberal terms.

No other house gives such good bargains on second-hand pianos and organs.

We solicit especially the attention of all who are in any way interested in the purchase of pianos or organs, either new or second-hand.

Our prices are low and terms easy.

A visit to our warerooms will be very convincing.
