

TORY IRRECONCILABLES CAUSED VETO CONFERENCE FAILURE

Both Parties Are Clearing the Decks for the Big Fight.

ELECTION BEFORE DECEMBER 20

Balfour Is Said To Be Coming to Home Rule For Ireland.

London, Nov. 13.—It is now known by the leaders on both sides of politics that the veto conference ended in failure because of the action of the Tory irreconcilables. There is a split in the Unionist party.

I can state as an absolute fact that the council of eight were practically agreed on Tuesday last. Mr. Lloyd George had shown himself disposed to make concessions. Lord Crewe and Austen Chamberlain were amenable. Augustine Birrell was a steady supporter of Mr. Asquith. Lord Lansdowne was entirely Balfourian both in his estimate of the impotency of his own party and the tendency to accept real home rule. Earl Crawford stood for the old Tory guard, but not to the last ditch.

Mr. Balfour's Position. It is necessary to understand Mr. Balfour's position. He was entirely convinced that his party would be practically annihilated in a general election. He is justly well aware that the Lloyd George budget is very popular, and is now praised by a large section of the middle class who at first denounced it. He is impressed by the success of self-government in South Africa, and has come to agree with Lord Dunraven, that there is little real danger in a modified form of home rule for Ireland. Moreover, he realized that he had obtained from Messrs. Asquith and Lloyd George better terms for a continuance of the second chamber than he could get after another election and an overwhelming Radical victory. He understood that Mr. Asquith feared an increase in the power of the Labor party.

Wrecked the Boat. But the irreconcilables of the Tory party wrecked the boat. For a week past there had been continuous meetings between Sir Edward Carson, the irreconcilable Irish lawyer; Walter Long, a typical, stolid country squire; Henry Chaplin and Lord Lansdowne, one of the richest Tory peers. When Mr. Balfour came to consult his colleagues of former cabinets he found that Walter Long's counsel had carried the day, and he was told categorically that he could not get the consent of his party as a whole to the compromise. Mr. Balfour is bitterly disappointed and chagrined. He believes that the Tory party is absolutely doomed and is afraid that the future of England lies at the mercy of the extremists.

Unionists Likely to Lose Sixty Seats. Although the Tories are putting the best face possible on the matter, their caucus privately anticipates the loss of at least sixty seats in the general election. Mr. Balfour will not desert his party at this crucial time, but one of his closest friends believes that he will retire from the leadership at the most opportune moment after the general election.

Meanwhile the air is heavy with tumult and noise and shouting of captains heralding the approaching battle. At the time of sending this dispatch there is an idea that Mr. Asquith's visit to King George at Sandringham may portend an almost immediate dissolution, and the election in December. The Liberals are anxious to come to grips as early as possible, and the cabinet will, it is expected, go to the country on the Lords' veto policy without attempting to pass the budget.

Not Dictated To. This method would save the Government from the possibility of being turned out by the Irish vote, and at the same time would obviate the necessity of making any further pledges regarding home rule in order to obtain the Irish vote for the budget.

Several leading Liberals, by the way, keenly resent the way in which it has been represented that they are at the mercy of John Redmond. How, they ask, can the Government be said to be dictated to, when it is part of its well-defined policy to grant the Nationalists' desire?

Mr. Redmond's Return. It is a significant fact that the Daily Mail, with keen appreciation of the weakness of the Unionist programme, today fills several columns with a description of Mr. Redmond's return with American dollars, and appeals to the English electorate to save the British constitution from smash at the dictation of Irish-Americans.

The same note is struck by the Daily Telegraph, in a leader evidently from the pen of J. L. Garvin, who will have a hard task to lift the Unionist party out of the hole he considerably helped to put it in. Mr. Garvin, who is nothing if not enthusiastic, writes: "A conflict, as far transcending the budget struggle as that surpassed ordinary crises, is about to confront the English electorate. It will be the finest fighting cry it has known since it was founded."

Transatlantic Subsidies. "Mr. Redmond, with $200,000 in hand, returns to this country for the work of tearing down the British constitution with American money. Tell it in the counties. Tell it in the boroughs. Rub it in throughout the constituencies. Explain it wherever Englishmen are gathered together in public and private. Interpret it to the

TOLSTOI MAY SETTLE IN CANADIAN WEST.

London, Nov. 14.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says it is reported that after a brief stay in a monastery Tolstoy will proceed to Canada to join the Doukhobors, who are followers of his teachings.

Wants to Share Hardships of Life Famous Author Has Chosen.

STORY HAS LEAKED OUT

World Now Knows How He Came to His Peasant Cottage.

[Associated Press.] St. Petersburg, Nov. 13.—It is stated that Count Tolstoy's daughter Alexandra and a typewriter followed him to the convent of Koselsk, where the count's favorite sister has long been a nun.

His flight, despite its suddenness, was probably long contemplated. It is well known that since he made over his property to his wife, five years ago, there have been constant disagreements of their more worldly views of life and the management of the estate. The count was intensely grieved because of his inability to persuade them to place the peasants on the estate in equally comfortable circumstances as themselves.

His refusal to accept the Nobel prize for literature, which he had obtained from the academy, was another source of his works caused further friction. There was, however, no suggestion of a quarrel.

Count Tolstoy was simply unable to long endure the comfortable surroundings of his family and home and embraced an ascetic regime.

Allow Him to Remain. Tula, Russia, Nov. 14.—No effort will be made by his family to induce Count Tolstoy to abandon his self-imposed exile and return to the peasant life. Continued on Page Four.

Montrealer Declares That the Stanford Title Is His by Rights.

[By Associated Press.] Montreal, Que., Nov. 14.—John Parks Gray, who is in Montreal, claims to be the rightful heir to the Earldom of Stanford. He declares he was kidnapped many years ago and taken to Africa. He has been wandering on the face of the earth ever since, and is about to prosecute his claim.

STRIKING EXPRESSMEN GO BACK TO WORK

Four Thousand of Them On Duty Again and Wearing the Union Button.

[Associated Press.] New York, Nov. 14.—Four thousand striking expressmen went back to work today wearing their union buttons conspicuously. For the first time in two weeks the 1,100 teams of the Adams, Wells-Fargo, United States and American Express Companies, were travelling unhampered in all directions about Manhattan, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Hoboken. Slowly the great congestion of express packages was being relieved.

When the drivers, helpers and other employees of the express companies, who have been striking, reported for duty at the usual hour, the company officials objected at first to the wearing of the union buttons. The expressmen explained, however, that if they did not wear the buttons they would be taken for strikebreakers by teamsters and others belonging to other unions, and that trouble would undoubtedly result. The officials were promptly enrolled.

The only morning dispute took place on the Communipaw dock of the United States Express Company when the company objected to ten former employees. About 150 men are employed about the place, and the strikers announced that if those ten were not allowed to return to work no one formerly employed there would go back. As the ten men were not re-engaged the others refused to work, and everything was at a standstill. It was believed that the trouble would be adjusted.

BELLE ELMORE FOUND. St. Paul, Nov. 12.—A special from Alix, Alta., says: Great excitement has been caused here by the report that a woman who arrived in town Wednesday is Belle Elmore Crispin, for whose supposed death Dr. Hawley Crippen is under sentence to be hanged in London, on Nov. 23.

CANADA PLAY THIEF'S HAVEN SO SAYS A. J. SMALL, TORONTO

Companies Are Going Through the East and West Using Plays For Which They Have Not Paid the Author a Cent.

"The West of Canada will be a closed door to many of the biggest and best attractions so long as day-night companies are allowed to purloin plays and present them through the country without paying the author or owner for the privilege."

According to Mr. A. J. Small, of the A. J. Small Circuit, Toronto, and who owns the Grand Opera House in this city, Canada is coming even more into the limelight than ever as the haven of the play thief. No federal or provincial law exists today to prevent any one stealing a big United States success, and giving it in Canada without offering a penny for the profitable privilege.

Violations of Rights. "The flagrant violations of theatrical rights in the west of Canada and the Maritime Provinces have given Canada a thoroughly bad name," said Mr. Small, who recently returned from a trip through the Eastern States. It is an interesting fact that play pirates have been driven out of Ontario by Mr. Small's policy, but apparently the "iron hand" has not been used in other portions of the Dominion.

"The Old Homestead," a famous drama owned by Denison Thompson, who was born in Detroit.

The latest alleged steal to come to light is "The Old Homestead," a famous drama owned by Denison Thompson, who was born in Detroit. Last week it was trouped about the Maritime Provinces by a manager of an Eastern theatre, "Paid in Full," "The Eastest West," and a score of other big successes are now being given through the Canadian West without pretence of ownership. The culprits in such cases are beyond any possible law and are free to pilfer plays as far as they please.

The scheme by which they have been abolished in Ontario, namely a straight opposition on the part of the booking office at Toronto, seems impossible of applying in the west or the Maritime Provinces, for the reason that the theatres are unorganized and are left pretty much to shift for themselves.

Since the publication of the hydro domestic lighting figures by the water commissioners, the average citizen has been busy with pencil and paper. Bills of the London electric are carefully perused, and they are being compared with the probable cost under the new system.

At present the difficulty is the inside space measurement. According to the scheme of the commissioners, the fixed charges will be based on the area of the house. In a two-story building, with a basement 46 by 35, the fixed charges at 4 cents per 100 square feet would be $1.12. This does not include the measurements of the basement, attics and basements not being charged for.

The sum above mentioned must be reckoned the fixed charges the consumer must pay every month in the year. He cannot escape that, and although in the summer time, he may use but little light, he must pay that amount of money as a fixed charge.

Mayor's Comparisons. "I do not know what it will cost me on the new basis," said Mayor Beattie. "I am comparing my London Electric bills for the past year to discover how much power I used. When I have done that I will be in a position to state what it will cost me. At first sight, it does not appear to be as cheap as the price now being quoted by the company, 5 cents a kilowatt hour."

Chairman Pocock says that the schedule will work out most satisfactorily for the small consumer—the man in the cottage. He declares that when it is understood, and the uses to which power can be put, the citizens will find that Niagara power is the cheaper, and will prove most satisfactory to all concerned.

PARLIAMENT OPENS THURSDAY IMPORTANT LEGISLATION SLATED

Finance Minister Will Introduce a New Bill to Revise the Bank Act—Fishery Regulations Will Also Be Gone Into.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Nov. 14.—The third session of the eleventh Parliament of Canada, which opens on Thursday next, promises some new statutes and possibly something new in politics. It is difficult to predict what will transpire between opening and prorogation, as has been well demonstrated by Earl Grey, for, believing that his last word had come His Excellency's final words to the reporting lawmakers last spring were "It is not without many twinges of the heart that I realize that this is the last occasion on which I shall have the honor of meeting you officially."

In view of the fact that there will be an election two years hence, it is certain that the Opposition will endeavor to come to some sort of a harmonious understanding with the government, and that the government will strive to further entrench itself in the good opinion of the people in view of that event.

For the first time in the history of the Canadian Parliament it will find that the printing bureau has ready for its consideration the annual report of every department and the voluminous work of the auditor-general. The main estimates will be laid before Parliament soon after the opening so there will be no occasion for short sittings or idle moments before Christmas.

Revise Bank Act. The finance minister will have a bill to revise the bank act, which was promised last session. This it is understood will make few radical changes in the law under which the chartered banks operate.

The committee which considered the question of limiting to eight hours a day operations on Government works, and that the government will make its report, and this may be continued on Page Four.

POTATOES ALONE INDICATE A FAILURE THIS YEAR

Crop Report Issued By Dominion Government Is Very Satisfactory.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Ottawa, Nov. 14.—The census office issues today a bulletin on the crops of Canada, as prepared from reports made up to the end of October.

The closing months of the year give good reports for nearly all of the field crops of the Dominion. Potatoes alone indicate partial failure, and in all the provinces there are complaints of rot in the fields, and in the heaps for winter storage. The area is 503,262 acres, and the estimated yield 7,498,000 bushels, being an average of 14.9 bushels per acre, which is nearly uniform for all the provinces. The quality is 84.42 per cent. Turnips and other field roots show a quality of 83.57, a yield per acre of 402 bushels, and a total yield of 55,207,000 bushels for a crop of 236,622 acres. Hay and clover are computed for 8,515,400 acres and yield per acre 1.32 tons. The quality is 80.45 per cent, and the total yield 15,497,000 tons. Fodder corn has an estimated yield per acre of 9.38 tons, which upon an area of 571,900 acres gives a product of 5,351,000 tons. Sugar beets are grown most extensively in Ontario and Alberta, where they supply roots for three sugar factories. The area in crop this year is 16,000 acres, which is a substantial increase upon last year. The yield per acre is 9.69 tons, the total yield, 155,000 tons, and the quality, 93.15 per cent. The roots supplied to the factories are testing 17 per cent of sugar and at the Wallaceburg factory 16 per cent; but a product of 5,000 acres in Ontario is being shipped to factories in Michigan. The product of 6,200 acres in that province is marketed at Wallaceburg and Berlin, where the average price is about $5.85 per ton or better than $5.70 per ton. Computed at the average local prices the market value of potatoes this year is $3,446,000, of turnips and other roots $2,444,000, of hay and clover $14,716,000, of fodder corn $14,957,000, and of sugar beets $887,000. The report on fall wheat sown this year shows an area of 790,300 acres, whereof 625,500 acres in Ontario, and 167,800 acres in Alberta. ZOO HIPPOS REUNITED

Miss Murphy Couldn't Eat Until Her Son Was Restored.

New York, Nov. 14.—Miss Murphy and her son Caliph H. were put into separate tanks in the Central Park menagerie last week. Presumably Miss Murphy, whose normal appetite requires a dozen loaves of bread, half a bale of hay and a bushel of carrots at each meal, began to refuse her food. She passed the day in her tank in the water with her head resting on the stone platform and pointed toward the enclosure occupied by her son.

Whenever the young hippopotamus snorted the mother grunted, and then snorted in response. Then she waddled to the stone platform and listened intently at the dividing partition. Although the youngster appeared to be affected by the separation, it didn't strike him so hard as it did his mother.

Head Keeper Snyder said he never saw any animal in the menagerie take family separation so much to heart. Miss Murphy had other sons and daughters taken from her and made no fuss over it.

"But she had the old man to fall back on when the other children were taken away," explained Snyder. "She and Caliph were fond of each other, and she didn't mind it to lose her children. But now the old man is gone and all the affection of Miss Murphy is centred on that remaining son."

Miss Murphy's appetite dwindled and on Tuesday disappeared altogether. Again yesterday morning she would not eat and it was feared she would become seriously ill. Director Smith gave orders that the two be allowed to live together again. The heavy plank door that divided the enclosure was opened and the hippos scrambled up on the platform to meet each other. It was a joyous reunion that held the attention of the helpers and spectators. Miss Murphy grunted her pleasure as she kissed her son. They rubbed noses and talked in hippo language and were happy for the rest of the day. The mother recovered her appetite and paid her respects to a bale of hay and several loaves of bread.

SYSTEM TO HELP DEFECTIVE CHILDREN

Plan to Make Incompetents Develop Into Useful Citizens.

New York, Nov. 14.—The proper care and development of defective and backward children is one of the big problems of modern education. That problem is being faced today by those in charge of large school systems and by many an effort is being made to solve it.

In New York they think they have solved it, and the results they show certainly seem to justify their optimism. The accepted standard of defectives among children is 1 per cent, and this proportion is supported by experience in New York. An average of 1 per cent of all the pupils examined are found to be in some manner mentally defective, some to a pathetic degree, others just deficient in some one sense. All these pupils receive special attention and instruction, and the results attained astound the visitor.

New York's organization for the care of defectives consists, firstly, of the teachers and principals of all schools for the purpose of detecting the mentally defective; secondly, Dr. Smart, a lady medical doctor, with special qualifications for the treatment of mental defectives; and, lastly, and mostly, of Miss Elizabeth Farrell, a capable woman.

Miss Farrell is a psychologist; she is a woman with a heart open to all children's troubles; she is an organizer and an administrator. The 110 ungraded classes which accommodate the defective and backward children of America's metropolis are under her direct supervision and she alone is responsible for the results.

These ungraded classes are scattered throughout the schools of the city; the pupils are selected by the principals because of special qualities possessed by the pupils. The reason why these classes are not confined to special schools is well explained by Miss Farrell as follows:

"In England these schools are kept separate from the regular public schools. When I was over there I inquired the way to the school for defectives from a lashing delivery boy. At first I could not make him understand what I wanted, but after some explanations, he said: 'Oh, you mean the fool school.'"

Teachers Watch Pupils.
When the teacher in any of the regular classes notices a pupil who seems to be backward or deficient in some way, she reports that pupil to the principal, and the principal notifies Dr. Smart. Dr. Smart tests the child for mental ability, and if the test indicates a mental condition lower than the standard in any particular, the pupil is placed in one of the ungraded classes.

While the principal and the medical inspector may have a child placed in an ungraded class, it rests entirely with Miss Farrell to say whether the child shall remain there, and when it shall return to a regular class. Miss Farrell visits all these special classes and studies the children while they work or play in order to make her decision.

The care of defective children is not considered as part of the work of medical supervision of schools. It is part of the pedagogical course, and is a great mistake," continued the duchess, "in persuading Miss Morgan to marry Boni and representing him as an innocent victim. They may get a present when the marriage takes place, but they will soon be compelled to leave the house, for Boni does not like his wife to have any but pretty friends."

"I might add," concluded the duchess, "that I received confirmation of the engagement from a reliable quarter a week ago, but refrained from using it."

Miss Elsie De Wolfe and Miss Elizabeth Marbury, the duchess's great mistake," continued the duchess, "in persuading Miss Morgan to marry Boni and representing him as an innocent victim. They may get a present when the marriage takes place, but they will soon be compelled to leave the house, for Boni does not like his wife to have any but pretty friends."

BONI ENGAGED TO ANNE T. MORGAN?

Former Anna Gould Says She Received Confirmation of Report a Year Ago.

Paris, Nov. 3.—The Duchess de Talleyrand, formerly Anna Gould, in the interview given her side of the story about an application having been made to the Vatican for the annulment of her marriage to Count Boni de Castellane in order that she might marry "religiously" her present husband, Prince de Sagan. The duchess said:

"It is Boni who is seeking the annulment of the marriage. He applied for such annulment to the Vatican six months ago on the ground that I had made a mental reservation at the time of our marriage, as I was a Protestant. A few days ago he renewed the application, basing it on an alleged flaw in the ceremony, his object being to marry Miss Anne T. Morgan. All I have to say on the subject is that I advise Miss Morgan to get the details from my sister, Helen, concerning the purchase of land in Paris when Helen and my brother, George, were in France. If I can call anything mine in France it is due to my sister's lack of confidence in Boni. It is always best to take such an important step with one's eyes open."

May Not Annul Marriages.
The duke and duchess seemed to be certain that the present Pope never grant the annulment asked for by Count Boni.

"There was a time," said the duchess, "when I offered Boni $30,000 a year if he would obtain it, but I am glad now that he refused. 'Boni neglected no opportunity to annoy us,' continued the duchess. 'When the ground on which this house is built was bought he carried out the negotiations in his name. My guardians cut off his supplies until he signed a document transferring it to me. He is now seeking to upset that transaction, and has made several attempts to recover the furniture and other things on the ground that the bills therefor were made out in his name.'"

The Duke of Talleyrand seemed to feel confident of winning his suit in the German courts to establish his right to the dukedom and property of the great house of Talleyrand-Perigord, as he claims, his brother had not agreed to the nomination of Count Hatfield as extra guardian.

The duchess says she is positive that Count Boni de Castellane and Miss Morgan are engaged. She added:

Boni's Schemes.
"Boni used to take his creditors and money lenders to Versailles and hide them in the park there in order to let them see him walking with her. I suggested that this was a device to strengthen his credit of which Miss Morgan was ignorant."

The duchess did not believe, she said, that Count Boni went to see Miss Morgan off when she sailed for home.

"Miss Elsie De Wolfe and Miss Elizabeth Marbury," said the duchess, "in persuading Miss Morgan to marry Boni and representing him as an innocent victim. They may get a present when the marriage takes place, but they will soon be compelled to leave the house, for Boni does not like his wife to have any but pretty friends."

CRUSHING FINLAND
More Press Censors and Less Education Method Used by Russia.

London, Nov. 14.—More press censors and less education is the watchword of the Russian rulers of Finland. In the Finnish budget which has recently been ratified by the Diet a number of estimates for economic, educational and sanitary purposes have been struck out. The educational estimates depleted amount to $334,000 and include subsidies of $200,000 to the communes for elementary and adult schools, summer colonies for poor children, feeding and clothing poor school children, and other similar items.

The Russian government has also been struck out. On the other hand an increase of $6,400 annually has been made in the salaries of government officers and of 10,000 to those of the Russian official organ, Finlandskaya Gazeta, which was withdrawn after the Bobrikoff period, has been renewed. That the members of the chief press department are to have $400 a year more, and the head of the Governor-General's chancery also draws $800 more pay.

FALLING STONE KILLS TWO.
New York, Nov. 12.—A 1,500-pound stone came crashing down from a building in course of construction on Fifth avenue today, and instantly killed William Gourlay, a steamfitter, and Fred Neuberger, a 9-year-old boy.

Gourlay was on a scaffold and was hurled by the stone to the roof of the adjoining house.

Barnard concludes from his personal observations on cobras in Ceylon, says the Scientific American, that the serpent's traditional love for music is a pure fable, and that the only effect of music is to arouse the reptile's curiosity, which is excited by any loud and acute sound. The cobra protrudes its head from its burrow alike on hearing the snake charmer's music, the rattling of a chain or the sounds made by beating the drum. Barnard also confirmed in Ceylon the results of observations made in the London Zoological Garden on the supposed power of fascination exerted by serpents upon birds, and he concludes that this power of fascination is also purely imaginary.

LONDON, MONDAY, NOV. 14, 1910.

THE COST OF LIGHTING.

The local power situation has reached an interesting stage. This week the transmission lines from Niagara will be connected with the transforming station on the outskirts of the city. Here the power will be reduced, then carried to the distributing station at the corner of York and Ridout streets. The erection of the lines between the two stations will occupy only a few days. Unless there is some unforeseen delay, the current will be ready for distribution in the city by the end of the present month.

The water commissioners have anticipated by issuing a schedule of prices for domestic lighting. Householders who are now using electric light may easily figure out a comparison of their present charges with Niagara power rates. Instead of the London Electric's fixed charge of 25 cents a month, in the form of meter rent, they would pay for Niagara power a fixed monthly charge of 4 cents for every 100 square feet of floor space. Basements and attics will not be charged for; the measurement will include only the occupied rooms, and will be interior. In addition to this fixed charge the customer for Niagara power will pay for all the current used at a rate of 3 1/2 cents per kilowatt hour. If he has 2,000 square feet of floor space he would pay a fixed charge of 80 cents a month, and if he used 20 kilowatts a month he would pay, at 3 1/2 cents a kilowatt, 70 cents additional. His monthly bill would be $1.50, or, with 10 per cent discount, $1.35. A customer of the London Electric, using the same amount, would pay, at the present rate of 9 cents a kilowatt hour, $2.05, with no discount. Here is a difference of 70 cents in favor of Niagara power. If the customer had 4,000 square feet of floor space, and used only 20 kilowatt hours, he would pay $2.07 net for Niagara power, or about the same as the London Electric's charge. If he had 4,000 feet of floor space, and used 40 kilowatts monthly, he would pay $2.70 net for Niagara power. To the London Electric he would pay the regular fixed charge of 25 cents for meter rent and $3.60 for 40 kilowatts, or $3.85 in all. If the London Electric reduced its rate to 5 cents a kilowatt hour, he would pay for 40 kilowatts only $2.25, or 45 cents less than Niagara power.

It has been said from the platform that all the cottage homes of London will be lighted by Niagara power. Let us see how the cottager will fare. Hydro-electric engineers estimate that the average consumption for houses with 1,000 to 1,200 feet floor space will be 28 kilowatts a month, or between $1.24 and $1.33 net, including fixed charge for space. This would be decidedly cheaper electric lighting than at present, but there are hundreds of cottagers whose monthly gas bills for lighting and cooking average a dollar. It is only fair to point out, however, that the schedule issued by the water commissioners is not a final one. Necessarily the prices at present are experimental. The problem is not solved, but has to be worked out. One of the perplexing factors is the attitude of the London Electric. Its competition will have to be faced or removed by purchase. Citizens will soon know what either condition means.

THE PEACE RIVER COUNTRY.

Those who have visited the Peace River country recently are enthusiastic over the fertility of the soil of a vast portion of that region. Among the enthusiasts are the members of a party of press men, who not long ago ascended the Peace Valley by land from Vermilion. The Grande Prairie, east of British Columbia, one of the party says, cannot be surpassed as a farming country. It would be difficult to find a quarter section there that would not make a desirable homestead. The country lying south of the Peace River, and containing the Grande Prairie districts, contains about four million acres of good agricultural land. It is roughly estimated that twenty million acres of agricultural land lies tributary to the Peace River. At Fort Vermilion, which is in about 55 degrees of north latitude, about 500 miles north of the international boundary, an experimental farm has been established. Here wheat, barley and oats have proved highly productive, the first-named grain yielding 25 bushels to the acre. All kinds of vegetables, including tomatoes, vegetable marrow and cucumbers, which are a good test of the climate, thrive luxuriantly.

The story told by these recent visitors to the Peace River country serves to corroborate statements made by Professor Macoun many years ago. There was a disposition to discount his statement then, but the experience of settlers shows that he was right in this respect, as he was in many others. The Victoria Colonist recalls that when the professor first told a committee of the House of Commons that the region around Calgary would one day be a great cattle country he was laughed at. A comparatively recent years an attempt was made to convey the impression that he had been wrong about the Peace River lands, but time is demonstrating the accuracy of his observations.

There is one great need yet to be supplied the Peace River region, and that is transportation facilities. As the value of the country from an agricultural point of view is no longer a matter of dispute, it is reasonable to assume that it will not be long before the iron horse will penetrate it.

AN EXPLODED SCARE.

The German ship-building programme has been interrupted, with disastrous effects on the naval scare. The four Dreadnoughts, which were to have been laid down this year under the German naval law, have not been started. The cause of the delay is Germany's discovery that Great Britain is arming her new Dreadnoughts with a 13.5-inch gun, in place of the 12-inch gun with which all ships of the Dreadnought type have been hitherto equipped. Germany had only just begun to make a 12-inch gun, and is now pausing in her ship-building to face the new situation.

This intelligence, following Mr. Balfour's alarmist speech at Glasgow, has given the naval discussion a new turn. It is now impossible for Germany to have more than 17 Dreadnoughts in commission in 1913, and it is probable that she will have only 12. Great Britain will have not less than 25 at the same time. The London Daily Telegraph, a leading Unionist journal, which has been disposed to take the panicky view, now candidly admits that the situation has been radically altered. It says:

"It is now certain that Germany cannot possibly possess 21 units by April, 1913. The whole naval outlook has been changed by the dramatic appearance of the new British 13.5-inch gun of unparalleled power and with a 1,250-pound shell. The Dreadnought carries 12-inch weapons with an 850-pound shell, and it was assumed in Germany that this gun would be mounted in the later British vessels. The admiralty kept their secret so well that everyone was deceived. It was not until the early days of August that it became common knowledge that last year the admiralty placed orders for a number of 13.5-inch guns and gun-mountings. The new development had at once a surprising result in Germany. The ships ordered, but not laid down, in April were to have carried a 12.1 gun, whereas the earlier German Dreadnoughts had been supplied with an 11-inch weapon."

"Directly the news was received in Germany of the action of the British admiralty, the preparations for the construction of these four ships were suspended with a view to a reconstruction of their armament. The result is that not one of them has been begun, though we are now at the close of October. Instead of Germany having 17 ships built or in an advanced stage of construction she has only 12."

Moreover, adds the Telegraph, the whole of Germany's preparatory work, which had been practically completed in April last, will now have to be done afresh, and it is probable that a good deal of material in process of manufacture will have to be scrapped. Entirely new plans must now be drawn, and vessels of an absolutely new design laid down. The Telegraph estimates that Germany will have only 13 Dreadnoughts in commission in 1913. Mr. Burgoyne, the editor of the Navy League Annual, another conspicuous member of the anti-German chorus, puts the number at 17. "Mr. Balfour's guess in his Glasgow speech was 21. The Unionist leader spoke of course, before the announcement of Germany's change of plans. It is to be hoped his patriotism will be so comforted by the new proof of British naval supremacy as to compensate for his loss of such an election card as the navy scare."

The London Chronicle says the British elections will be over by Dec. 20. It will not be turkey for one party's Christmas dinner.

The Unionists who were prepared to accept "home rule all round" will now affect to believe that it is a dangerous thing in Ireland alone.

Twenty people died of typhus after drinking polluted water while attending the fall fair at the village of Orono, Durham County. There are too many small communities in Canada equally careless of their water supply.

An Ottawa clergyman told his congregation yesterday that a Canadian navy would be needed to keep Quebec in order. A foolish utterance in any case, and worse than foolish, in the mouth of a minister of the gospel.

Mr. George R. Sims, writing in the London Referee, says:

"For the colonial Dreadnoughts we are grateful, but their upkeep falls on England. I regret to hear the worst possible accounts of the personnel of the Australian navy. I am unable to quote chapter and verse or to give names, but I affirm that the evidence in my possession satisfies me that the navy Australia is providing for herself is useless either to the Commonwealth or to the empire in the event of a struggle with a great maritime power."

This reflection on the personnel of the Australian navy may be unwarranted, but it is true that the upkeep of the Australian and New Zealand Dreadnoughts falls largely on the mother country. Great Britain must pay $1,250,000 yearly toward the Australian navy and must pay the whole shot for New Zealand, the latter merely contributing $500,000 yearly as a bonus to the sailors. The Canadian fleet and the Canadian dockyards will cost Great Britain nothing. Agitators like Captain Wolley ignore these facts when they disparage Canada's contribution.

THE CRIPPLED TRIAL AS A POPULAR SPECTACLE.

I do not know on what system the tickets were allotted. I know that on Tuesday and on most of Wednesday the part of the court reserved for the public was nearly empty. I suppose the ticket-holders had not put in appearance. Yet it was impossible to get in without a ticket. Those who were waiting outside were told that the court was full. There was much shouting of "Red tickets this way!" and "Blue tickets over there!" The two houses-a-day system was inaugurated. All the appearances of the popular music hall were present.

You have mentioned the presence of fashionable ladies. Is it not an incongruous thing that while a man is being tried for his life there should sit on the bench on the right hand of the judge a musical comedy actress? The lady is, I am sure, charming and delightful, and as worthy of the position as any other of her sex, but her name is associated with lighter things of life than a murder trial, and her presence, I insist, detracted from the solemnity of the occasion.

In the favored positions of the court, too, were women displaying enormous hats and expensive furs, women chatting and exchanging smiles even while the jury was awaiting the verdict of the jury.

DISRAELI AND THE CABMAN.

(London Chronicle.)
To be recognized by a cabman sets the seal on fame. Disraeli was really and truly famous. Dorothy Nevill calls to mind a Beconsfield house. He was getting into a hansom when the driver opened the trap door. "I know who you are, sir," he said. "I have read all your books, bar 'Lothian.' It is a reverse to every medal. Beconsfield once suffered a setback. 'I walked with Gladstone on Tuesday,' wrote Lord Houghton, and when he left me a gentleman came up and said, 'Might I ask if that was Mr. Disraeli?' Such is fame."

HIP! HIP! FOR SARA!

(Port Huron Times.)
Sara Bernhardt attributes her remarkable resistance against the ravages of time to the liberal use of lemons. We want all the girls, young, aging and elderly, to sit up and notice Sara. "The Divine" is 65 years old. She is a great-grandmother, but looks like a bride of 20.

USE THESE BASKETS.

(Ottawa Free Press.)
Poor Goldthorpe stocked the Printing Bureau up with 1,500 waste paper baskets, enough to last ten years on the basis of those required for the printing of the House of Commons. Even that large quantity would not be enough to hold the manuscript of speeches not worth printing delivered in the House of Commons in one session. When casting about for a method of disposing of these waste paper baskets, the Government might well decide to turn them into graves for the unheeded dead samples of Parliamentary oratory.

(Ottawa Free Press.)
Why is the vote of thanks? We've been pondering it over in our minds for quite a while now, and the more thought that is bestowed on it the more it appears that the vote of thanks hasn't any excuse to live. True, it is a sort of tradition that has stuck to us since we wore knee trousers, or "pants," as we used to say at school, and perhaps goes back farther than that, but that is long enough for argument's sake. All of us who have gone to public meetings, and been fortunate enough to hear a learned discourse, or a stirring oration, or a speech in this commercial age—have been drawn under the spell of the speaker, have followed him point by point, have enjoyed his "flow" of words, and have listened with rapturous delight at his eloquent peroration, and then comes the anti-climax—the vote of thanks that gives us a jar, even while we're putting on our wraps. Hank Jones, with surpassing assurance, gets up and starts off with "how delighted we are all," and perhaps elaborates on the address of the evening. Then the motion is nervously seconded by Bill Brown, and "passed unanimously." By the time this ceremony is over the pleasant impression left by the speaker is almost entirely effaced. We say give the conje to the stereotyped vote of thanks, but so far that there will be no resurrection. It should be the duty of the chairman to not only give a few words of introduction to the speaker, but to enable him to carry on the work of deepening the results of the investigation which he conducted last session.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

copy the attention of the House in some way. Hon. Mr. Oliver will have a bill relating to timber land and water regulations in the railway belt of British Columbia, and another bill to facilitate the removal of Indians from lands which they occupy, and which are wanted for settlement, to equally good lands in other parts of the country. There will be another reference to the Indian schools.

Sir Richard Cartwright will probably have a bill dealing with the control of terminal grain elevators, and this will likely be based on the Minnesota act.

Hon. Mr. Aylesworth will have a bill relating to the establishment of a commission to look after fishery regulations under the terms of the recent Hague award. He will also have some amendments to the criminal code, and in this connection the moral reform association will probably have something to say again as to the further restriction of race track gambling.

Traffic Regulations.

Hon. Mr. Graham will probably introduce legislation respecting a commission to regulate rates on international traffic passing between Canada and the United States. He will also present to Parliament the report of the committee on the Intercolonial Railway with a view to their acquisition. He may ask Parliament to make an appropriation for the deepening of the Welland Canal, for the construction of the Quebec Bridge, and for the building of the Hudson Bay Railway. There will be no provision this year for the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux may have a bill for the control of cable rates, as he has been working out this problem in connection with the British postal authorities.

Hon. Mr. Murphy will have a bill for the reorganization of the printing bureau, and will lay before the House the results of the investigation which he conducted last session.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur will ask Parliament for appropriations to enable him to carry on the work of deepening the St. Lawrence to thirty-five feet.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley will ask for funds to enable him to continue the great work of developing water terminals at Fort William, Georgian Bay ports, St. John, and other Atlantic ports. He will also ask for drydock subsidy at Montreal and possibly at St. John and Lewis.

Militia Report.

Sir Frederick Borden will be able to give to Parliament the report of Sir John French on the Canadian militia, and may have a bill to enable the system of military commands to be substituted for the present system of military districts. If this bill is presented it will be necessary to make financial provision for the equipment of additional artillery and cavalry units for some of these commands.

Parliament will likely have something to say about the tariff, in view of the reciprocity negotiations with the United States, which will be completed at a date before Parliament before prorogation. There will also be some discussion on the Belgian and Italian trade agreements which were made since the last session.

A substantial appropriation will have to be made at the request of Hon. Sydney Fisher for the census which will be taken throughout Canada in June, 1911.

Representatives from the Maritime Provinces can be counted upon to bring up the question of an amendment to the British North America act which will act as a stay upon their diminishing parliamentary representation.

Contracts for cruisers and destroyers will be let before the session has far advanced, and there will have to be appropriation to provide for expenditure on that account.

We can imagine the infernal scene on a lonesome plain of Texas, among cowboys filled with anger and whiskey, showing the race prejudice which they feel towards us. We can see Rodriguez among those executioners, alone, tied, beaten and what no hope, being led to the place of execution and among the harsh phrases of the mob in a rabid and barbarous way we can hear the burning of the clothes, the bones and the muscles, without extorting from the victims so much as a cry.

"Take the American magazines—the American Magazine, Scribners, etc.—which have published in their columns everything that is prejudicial, exaggerated, malicious, intentional, and malicious, in order to discredit not only this country in its march of progress, political and economical, but also the cowardly assassins of an unarmed man. They stood by and were sprinkled with the blood of their victim, which also besmirched the escutcheon of their vaunted civilization."

TOLSTOY'S WIFE

ant hat at Yasnaya Polyana, which he secretly deserted last Thursday night, with the avowed purpose of spending the remainder of his days in solitude. His wishes are sacred to Tolstoy. There will also be a message to her husband, imploring that she be permitted to join him and share the hardships which he is determined to experience.

Tolstoy's Pilgrimage.

Little by little the story of the author's pilgrimage has become known. In company with his physician, Dr. Makovetsky, he went from Tula to the ancient cloister of Shamardin, in the Province of Kaluga, where he remained today the guest of his sister, Marie. The latter for many years has been a nun at the cloister, which was founded 500 years ago. The nuns mingle with the world, devoting themselves to good works. Tolstoy plans to stay one week as the guest of his sister, after which he proposes to resume his wanderings with Dr. Makovetsky. His destination he refuses to disclose. On the way to Shamardin, Count Tolstoy stopped over night at the monastery of Optina. Before entering the place he announced: "I am the excommunicated and anathema used by Tolstoy. Is there any objection to my stay here?"

The reply was: "It is both a duty and a pleasure to offer you shelter." Tolstoy spent the day in the discussion of religious subjects with an aged monk, whom he had met on a visit to the monastery seventeen years ago.

His Simple Life.

The following morning the count resumed his pilgrimage. He is clad in a peasant suit of rough material, and wears high boots. He carries no passport, and when he left home he took only $17 with him. However, his daughter Alexandra, who had learned her father's intentions, contrived to secure $15 in a pocket of Dr. Makovetsky's clothes, and if the count suffers for the necessities of life it will be because he elects to do so. Alexandra has since joined her father at Shamardin.

FLIGHT FROM SHIP TO SHORE PUT OFF

Accident Happens to Mars' Machine Few Moments Before Starting Time.

New York, Nov. 12.—J. C. (Bud) Mars, of the Curtiss staff, substituted for J. A. D. McCurdy, did not make the proposed 50-mile aeroplane flight from the deck of the Hamburg-American liner Pennsylvania today. An oil can, sucked into the propeller, put the craft out of commission just before the Pennsylvania left her pier but Mars' luck might have been worse, had it been so.

White squalls and black squalls and snow flurries played tag with each other across the lower harbor all afternoon, and as the sun went down the wind rose to 50 miles an hour. Either Mars would have risked his life against heavy odds or have confessed that his task was beyond him.

DOWN TOWN WALKS WERE NOT CLEANED

Snowfalls Should Have Been Used Yesterday, Say Many Citizens.

"There is general complaint over the fact that the snowfalls were not used on the downtown sidewalks yesterday. The winter weather is too uncertain and by the time summer comes again it is probable that the feet will have been proved possible or impossible one for all from the deck of a warship."

COTTON CROP IS WORTH MUCH MONEY

The Southern Growers Expect to Receive $900,000,000 For Output.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 14.—The South is now harvesting the most valuable cotton crop in its history. The total crop is estimated to be something like 11,500,000 bales, which is not a bumper crop by any means, but the advanced prices will make it the most valuable in history. The combined value of the cotton staple and seed is estimated at about $900,000,000. This money will pour into the Southern States in the next six months.

DOMESTIC HINTS

Promises to Children.

The promise you make to a child is just as sacred as the one you make to the most important of grown-ups. Nothing should allow you to break it; and it should be considered really a matter of honor to keep to your word here as elsewhere.

There is a story of a little boy whose parents had promised three separate times to take him out driving "the next time," and each time had lightly repudiated the promise. As they drove away on the third occasion, the youngster stood at the window and sobbed, "There go the two dearest ladies in the country!" And it is true. A broken promise is nothing but a lie, and the lie is no less an offence because it is told to a child.

About the House.

When putting away the silver tea or coffee pot which is not used every day, lay a little stick across the top under the cover. This will allow the fresh air to get in, and prevent mustiness.

Clean oilcloth with a wet towel, pinned over a stiff broom, and rub with long, sweeping strokes. To keep varnished wood looking fresh and bright rub it thoroughly with oil from time to time.

Paper Hints.

To straighten out paper that has been rolled, open it with the inner curve away from you, and run it over the sharp—not the curved or bevelled—edge of a table. It is flat immediately.

The sharp edge is good, too, for tearing paper; better than a paper cutter, in fact. Draw the paper to be cut straight and quickly across the edge, and there will be a clean tear, produced equally well in tissue or heavy paper.

It is not generally known that bread crumbs are the finest of cleansers for white paper. Rub an old crust of stale bread over the paper, and every sort of stain, finger marks, dust, water stains, will disappear like magic. It is safer to use on fine books and pictures than the softest of rubbers. Blow, do not rub, the crumbs off afterward.

For Bitter Medicine.

Nauseous medicine has been ere now disguised in fruit and jelly, covered with sugar, drowned in wine and coffee; but it remained for a western woman to discover the taking of cream as an alleviation of the bitter taste. She says a spoonful of cream in the mouth, before and after taking, makes the worst medicine harmless. Certainly it is worth trying, though whether the habit will wear away for the habitual taker, deponent sayeth not.

ALL AROUND THE HOME
[CYNTHIA GREY.]

Whip together the cuffs from worn-out shirts for stove-holders. These are already thick, and when whipped together and a brass ring sewed into the corner, they make excellent holders that are easily washed.

Should you forget to add flavoring to the cake batter, try sprinkling the required amount of flavoring over the cake as it stands in the pan before baking.

To clean windows and give them a bright polish use denatured alcohol. Moisten one cloth with the alcohol and polish immediately with a dry one. Windows can be cleaned in half the time with a fraction of the labor, and the glass is brilliant, never cloudy or smudgy. It also keeps the windows free from frost in cold weather. One pint will do twenty windows inside and out.

Classes in the faculties of arts and science in Edinburgh University were reopened Oct. 11.

After
La Grippe

"I had suffered several weeks with LaGrippe. Had pains in my head and eyes. It felt as though there was a heavy weight on the top of my head, until it seemed that my brain would burst. I was so nervous that I could not rest or sleep. When I dozed off I would awake with a sudden jerking of my whole body. Dr. Miles' Nerve, Heart Remedy and Nerve and Liver Pills cured me. A number of friends have since realized the same benefits."

MRS. ALVIN H. LOCKS, Seabrook, N. H.
The after effects of LaGrippe are often more serious than the disease, as it leaves the system in a weakened condition that invites more serious troubles, such as pneumonia, etc.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve should be taken for some time to thoroughly restore nerve strength.

DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Toronto.

A SON OF
THE IMMORTALSBY LOUIS TRACY.
Author of "The Stowaway," "The Message," "The Wife," "The Morning," Etc.

"Oh, they did, your Majesty," protested Soleski. "Your Majesty's own father brought me into the hall and kept me there nearly five minutes. He did not believe a word I said, and was very angry with me for bringing such an alarming story to the palace. At last, by good fortune, Monsieur Nesmit appeared; but even then I should have been taken away in custody if Monsieur Poluski had not spoken for me."

Despite its sinister significance, Alec could not choose but credit this amazing statement. He wondered why Felix had not told him the facts in detail before; but he knew that the hunchback's mind worked in strange grooves, and it was probable that his silence was dictated by some powerful motive. In any event, the incident was an unpleasant reminder of certain nebulous doubts that he had striven to crush, and it was better that the scared rabbit of a man should remain in the shadows than become the victim of some vendetta which might bring the whole odd story into prominence.

"You want to leave the city, I take it?" said he, after a thoughtful pause, in which he took a slow turn up and down the room.

I dare not remain here any longer, your Majesty. I came here tonight to give you money to take me to Warsaw."

I think," said Soleski, smiling, "I promised you, in my name, the wherewithal to buy a café."

I fear I did not mean my reward, your Majesty," stammered the other.

Are cafes dear in Warsaw?" said the King, unlocking a drawer and producing to the equivalent of five hundred dollars. "Here, this sum should give you a franchise."

All I ask in return is that you shall possess a still tongue about your recent share in local events."

Poor Soleski's gratitude grew incalculable when the King, with a gesture of his hand, ordered the attendant to bring him over to the care of the attendant.

With instructions that he was to be taken to the railway station and safeguarded there till the departure of the next train that crossed the frontier.

By that time the dinner hour was long past. Alec was disinclined for a heavy meal, so he went to his room, where he changed his clothes, contenting himself with some sandwiches, which he ate in a hurry and washed down with a glass of red wine.

Coming downstairs about an hour later, he passed the smoking room, where the door was open, and he saw that the men had already ended dinner. He was about to enter the music room when he saw his mother and Joan usually retired to the President's wife and daughter, when he Frenchwoman now appeared in the same marked nervousness in her dejected standing in the lobby.

"May I have a word with your Majesty in private?" he asked.

He was surprised, but again he believed she was probably bringing a message from Joan.

He threw open the door of his office. "Come in here," he said.

"What is it?"

She held out a letter, and he saw that her hand shook. "Mademoiselle asked me to give you this, your Majesty," she said.

"I was to take care that you were alone when you received it," she said.

"Something important, then," he said with a laugh.

Crossing the room to the table on which stood the lamp by whose light he had scribbled "Alexis R." on the papers, he opened the envelope and drew out the long, narrow slip of paper.

The dear One.—When Pauline gives you this, I shall have left you forever. I am going to Deigratz, and I shall never see you again. Let it be my last word to you—oh, my dear, my dear, I shall love you all my life! Try and forget me. I am acting for the best. Do not write to Paris or endeavor to find me. If I can scarcely see what I am writing, my tears. So good-by, my Alex! He came, try to forget our few days of happiness together. Yours ever, JOAN."

He stood there stricken almost paralyzed with the shock of the message, wondering dumbly why Joan's hand would have inflicted it. The frightened Frenchwoman dared not speak.

She watched him with that impersonal fear so readily aroused in one of her kind by the terrifying of a stranger, and he shot himself. He soon died. He had been forbidden to enter the house by the girl's parents, and the girl herself seemed to have rejected him.

"Don't shout," said he, seeing himself on the edge of the bed. "I am going to shoot myself."

He then walked to the door an shot himself in the head.

Had Severe Pains
In His Back.

Could Hardly Work.

Mr. Alfred E. Davis, Gorrie, Ont., writes: "For some years I suffered from severe pains in my back and could hardly work at all, and when I stooped down to pick up anything felt as if my back must break. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after taking two boxes I was entirely cured, and feel that I cannot speak too highly in their favor."

"This was nearly four years ago and I still remain cured."

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Weak, lame or aching back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages.

bidding farewell to her dream of happiness, deliberately torturing herself with a burden of misery. Even their parting kiss must have given her a twinge of sacrifice, for Joan was that she had made him the sport of a woman's caprice, whom he had driven from him! By whom? He had been driven from him! He thought of strangling with his hands the individual each person who, with the remotest chance, might be responsible for Joan's flight. But not only did his impatient heart yearn for the method of inquiry, but he realized that he was more likely to discover the truth by gathering instantly in his room all those persons whose self-interest pointed to undoing. Somehow, Soleski's disquieted mind was filled with a dreadful suspicion that was not to be quelled.

He summoned an attendant. "Ask Monsieur Beland to come here," he said. "Send to General Stange, and tell him that the King urgently desires to see him. Also, Monsieur Beland and Count Jules Marquis are in the smoking-room with Monsieur de la Roche. Ask those three gentlemen also to join me."

The attendant saluted and withdrew. Alec examined the door to make sure that the key was in the lock. He was conscious of his own purpose, he looked about for a weapon. In the place of a sword given him by his father in the war of 1870, he evoked bitter memories, the sight of which would have driven him to the window and staring out into the night. His brain seethed with strange imaginings, and in his breast was on fire. The sight of that ridiculous sword lying in its sheath of velvet and gold seemed to him the emblem of a life of tragedy, its real agony of tears.

Once the impulse seized him to look at the right steel, he saw a dagger lying on the floor. He picked it up, and it sprang across the room and took down the sword. The blade leaped forth at his clutch, and he knew that it was a frenzy.

The attendant saluted and withdrew. Alec examined the door to make sure that the key was in the lock. He was conscious of his own purpose, he looked about for a weapon. In the place of a sword given him by his father in the war of 1870, he evoked bitter memories, the sight of which would have driven him to the window and staring out into the night. His brain seethed with strange imaginings, and in his breast was on fire. The sight of that ridiculous sword lying in its sheath of velvet and gold seemed to him the emblem of a life of tragedy, its real agony of tears.

Once the impulse seized him to look at the right steel, he saw a dagger lying on the floor. He picked it up, and it sprang across the room and took down the sword. The blade leaped forth at his clutch, and he knew that it was a frenzy.

CABLE REDUCTION

Attempt to Combine English Companies Is Being Made.

[Associated Press.] New York, Nov. 12.—George Clapperton, vice-president of the Commercial Cable Company, being asked in regard to the interview with Colonel Clowry, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, relative to the announcement of the Commercial Cable Company of reduced cable rates on plain letter messages, said:

"Our five letter cable reduction plan is entirely new and entirely different from the old plan mentioned by Colonel Clowry, and his insinuation as to the Commercial Cable Company's attitude is incorrect. The whole history of the Commercial Cable Company is to the contrary. We are the ones who reduced cable rates from 50 cents to 25 cents a word, and after two years' and a half fight the Western Union was obliged to do the same."

Colonel Clowry omitted to state that the chief object of the trip to London of Mr. Hall, of the Western

HUGHES MAY BE MADE CHIEF JUSTICE OF U. S.

The Democratic Victor Has Put Senator Root Out of Running.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The Democratic victory in New York having removed the possibility of Senator Root becoming chief justice of the United States, it was reported here today that Associate Justice Hughes is now far more likely than ever before of succeeding to the highest seat in the American judiciary.

If Root should resign as senator, the Democratic Legislature in New York would name a Democrat to succeed him. With one Democratic senator from New York in a certainty, Root would not consider such a step, it is said.

Persons who are supposed to be in the confidence of the President, say that he has not made up his mind finally, but that Hughes now is the most favored candidate. There is strong support back of a movement to induce the President to name Presiding Justice Harlan, however.

Those who favor Harlan declare that the fact that he is 77 years of age is in his favor. It is certain that Harlan would not serve more than eight years as chief justice. It is pointed out that at the time of Harlan's retirement, in all likelihood, Taft might be eligible to succeed him, and that, it is freely said, is Taft's highest ambition. Hughes, on the other hand, would probably serve many years as chief justice if appointed now. The naming of Hughes would prevent the possibility of a Democratic President appointing a chief justice for a long time at least.

UNDER ARREST

Husband Says He Stole Jewels to Buy Medicine for Wife.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 14.—A couple who say they are Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Barr, of Windsor, Ont., are under arrest here on a charge of robbing the O. P. Nelson jewelry store in the city of $625 worth of jewels. The couple were caught in Chicago, being traced by a bracelet which Mrs. Barr was wearing.

Until the effects of Barr were examined the couple passed as Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dupont, of Chicago. Mrs. Barr is in delicate health, and since being placed in jail, has collapsed. She is 18 years old. Barr says he could not get work and that he robbed the jewelry store to secure medicine for his wife.

MAY REFUSE TO LET MISS LENEVE COME HERE

Government May Take Steps If She Comes to Canada.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—When the officials of the immigration department were asked as to whether Ethel Leneve, the paramour of the victim of Dr. Chipp, would be admitted to Canada if she were to attempt to come in, the reply was:

"We never attempt to cross a river until we come to it. Each case must be dealt with on its individual merits. It is quite possible that Miss Leneve would come under the operation of clause 3 of the immigration act, but we would have to look into the circumstances in which such a person's admission into Canada would be a source of danger to public morals."

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

A CURE FOR ALL.

Not a Patent Cure-All, Nor a Modern Miracle, But Simply a Rational Cure for Dyspepsia.

In these days of humbug and deception, the manufacturers of patent medicines, as a rule, seem to think their medicines will not sell unless they claim that it will cure every disease under the sun. And they never think of leaving out dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They are sure to claim that their nostrum is absolutely certain to cure every dyspeptic and he need look no further.

In the face of these absurd claims it is refreshing to note that the proprietors of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have carefully refrained from making any undue claims or false representations regarding the merits of this most excellent remedy for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They seem to have one claim for it, and that is, that for indigestion and various stomach troubles Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a radical cure. They go no farther than this, and say that any man or woman suffering from indigestion, chronic or nervous dyspepsia, who will give the remedy a trial will find that nothing is claimed for it that the facts will not fully sustain.

It is a modern discovery, composed of harmless vegetable ingredients acceptable to the weakest or most delicate stomach. Its great success in curing stomach troubles is due to the fact that the medicinal properties are such that it will digest whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach, no matter whether the stomach is in good working order or not. It really does the work of the stomach and replenishes the body, the blood, the nerves, creating a healthy appetite giving refreshing sleep and the blessings which always accompany a good digestion and proper assimilation of food.

In using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets no dieting is required. Simply eat plenty of wholesome food and take these Tablets at each meal, thus assisting and resting the stomach, which rapidly regains its proper digestive power, when the Tablets will be no longer required.

Nervous Dyspepsia is simply a condition in which some portion or portions of the nervous system are not properly nourished. Good digestion invigorates the nervous system and every organ in the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents per package.

TWO ALIMONY CASES FOR HIGH COURT

Plaintiffs in Both Suits Seek Similar Sums From Husbands.

Two alimony cases have been entered for trial in the local high court, the plaintiff in each case seeking $3 per week, and the same amount in interim alimony until the trial commences, the money to be paid to the solicitor each Friday in both cases. In one of them Mrs. William F. Bell charges her husband with extreme cruelty, and asks to be given the custody of their two children, William John, born in 1902, and a girl, born in 1905.

Mrs. Nelson Smith, wife of P. C. Nelson Smith, is the plaintiff in the other case, the charge against the policeman being of a different nature. Mr. Edmund Meredith, K. C., has been engaged by both Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Smith.

C. P. R. WAS FINED DIDN'T FEED ANIMALS

Muled $100 and Costs in Toronto—Health Certificate to Blame.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Why should these poor beasts have to suffer because somebody mislaid a health certificate? Crown Attorney Corley remarked in the police court this morning, referring to the last charge brought against the C. P. R. of "cruelty and unnecessarily ill-treating animals," by allowing them to go without food and water while in transit for a longer period than 28 hours.

"It's a lack of humanity to allow the animals to stand on a siding loaded after a long trip," he said. It was in connection with six carloads, 135 head of cattle, shipped from Winnipeg by Henry Murvey to Charles Maybee, cattle dealer. It was 4½ hours from the time of feeding at White River until they were unloaded at the Western cattle market.

"But the health certificate was mislaid at the Parkdale station," contended C. P. R. Counsel Spencer, "and Superintendent Walker refused to allow their unloading until called by that certificate. At Toronto they were only 5½ hours late, that delay occurred between Muskoka and Toronto, where there is no feeding station."

"Then some of your officials blundered," threw back Mr. Corley. "Why didn't you give them water at least?"

"The market superintendent would not allow them to be taken off. A mistake is never wilful."

Though regarding the mislaid paper as a regrettable fact, Magistrate Kingsford held that so long as the cattle were in the care of the railway that corporation was responsible. The fine was $100 and costs.

CORRESPONDENCE

Captain Wolley and the German Peril.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:—

Captain Wolley's address before the Canadian Club has been severely criticized by "Censor," whose letter appeared in last Monday's issue.

I did not hear the address, but a strange and peculiar one it must have been, for, according to "Censor," it was made up largely of "misstatements," "inconsistent" and "absurdities," whilst the lecturer was sincere, unreasonably and aggressively imperialistic; guilty of "staggering" bearing false witness; of making "treasonable" statements; and of indulging generally in "vampantly aggressive talk."

It is not my purpose to defend the "redoubtable" captain. I presume he is quite able to look after himself. First, if there is and has been no German peril, as he asserts, why did Russia and France form an alliance at the close of the Franco-Prussian war?

Secondly, why more recently did Great Britain and France form an alliance? and lastly, why have the lords of the admiralty, with the sanction and approval of a Liberal Government, concentrated the British fleet in home waters? There can be but one explanation of these remarkable events, namely, the fear of Germany. Is it possible, then, that "Censor" is right, and that the statesmen of France, Russia and Great Britain are wrong, and have no ground for their fear?

But we are told that Germany "with the most powerful army in Europe, has put it to no aggressive use for forty years." The Dual Alliance is a sufficient explanation of this. Germany knew quite well that to fight France she must needs fight Russia also, and this consideration gave her pause. We have not forgotten, however, the Kruger telegram; nor the fact that the German Government forced the resignation of the French secretary of foreign affairs for his attitude upon the Morocco question.

Since the formation of the Triple Alliance by Bismarck, the German peril has been a source of alarm to the other nations; and was never more menacing than at present. It is a real and constant factor in European and world politics. To her army (the most powerful in Europe), Germany has now added a navy second only to that of Great Britain's.

"On the British navy, under the good providence of God, the wealth, safety and strength of the kingdom chiefly depend." So spoke Sir Walter Raleigh, 300 years ago. Capt. Wolley made a somewhat similar observation. This especially roused the ire and resentment of "Censor." Let us see. On Thanksgiving Day our public men at Toronto and Ottawa gave thanks to an indulgent Providence for all the good they had received at his hands, and for his guidance and leading. A god for the province or Dominion is quite right and proper, but a god for the empire—anathema marathan—"Censor" will please supply further epithets, adjectives and adverbs.

We are asked to accept at its face value the word of the Germans when they say that their fleet is merely intended to defend their coast cities and merchant shipping. When a man—a possible robber and bandit—points a loaded double-barrelled gun at your heart, and offers some kind of Suffered for Years From Constipation and Sick Headache.

Headache seems habitual with many people; indeed, some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief. The most frequent of all are bilious or sick headaches, and are caused by some derangement of the stomach or bowels, or both.

Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the digestive and biliary organs, removes acidity of the stomach, improves digestion, regulates the constipated bowels, and promotes a perfect assimilation of pure blood to all parts of the body.

Mrs. C. Meadows, Clarkburg, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled with sick headache and dizziness, and was also constipated. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I only took three bottles of the medicine, and now feel like a new person as I am completely cured. I can truthfully testify that B.B.B. is the best medicine I have ever used."

Burdock Blood Bitters, has, during the last 35 years, built up an unrivalled reputation as a cure for all troubles arising from a constipated condition of the bowels.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Ottawa, Nov. 12.—Injury to Ottawa players and the fast work of McGill gave a game played on a slushy field to the Montreal men today, the final score being 24 to 6.

Billington's kick from 40 yards, which forced a rouge, resulted in the first score of the contest, but before the finish of the quarter the college took the lead by running the ball into touch.

Sheehy was forced to rouge, following one of Billington's punts at the beginning of the second quarter, while the latter dropped a goal from twenty yards out a couple of minutes later. Quilty, who had just been brought around after being knocked out, dropped the ball, and Dan Gilmore fell on it for a touch, which Murray converted. The score at the half was McGill 11, College 6.

College Captain Hurt.
Forbes, of McGill, collided with Kennedy, and the college man was compelled to go off. He was taken from the field in a hack, and was replaced by Jack Contway. When play was resumed Quilty kicked to the dead line. Murray ran out a great kick by Quilty, who followed up, and who was knocked out in tackling. The college captain was forced to retire, and was replaced by Egan. The light local team was unable to do anything with McGill, the finishing score being 24 to 6.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Toronto, Nov. 12.—Binkley kicked a ball to the dead line as the whistle blew for the finish in today's game, and the Argos copped from Hamilton by a score of 7 to 6.

The contest was marked by a number of fumbles and general poor playing, but provided a great deal of excitement for the three thousand fans. The score was tied three times, the tally by quarters being as follows: Argos, 2, 4, 4, 7; Hamilton, 0, 4, 6.

How They Scored.
Argos won the toss and kicked with the stiff wind. The game had scarcely started when Simpson was forced to rouge for Argos' first point. Honors were about even on an exchange of punts between Simpson and Binkley. McNelly attempted a running game and was compelled badly. Eccotone cleverly ran out one of Simpson's kicks. On a long kick by McNelly, Murphy rounded. Hamilton 6, Argos 0.

The Deciding Plays.
In the fourth quarter Moore again ran well for a good gain, and play was in Argos' territory. Hamilton failed to make yards on downs, and Argos secured. Grant and Kent made little gain on backs. Murphy fumbled one of McNelly's punts, but saved. Argos back division fumbled badly. Eccotone cleverly ran out one of Simpson's kicks. On a long kick by McNelly, Murphy rounded. Hamilton 6, Argos 0.

The Teams.
Hamilton—Full back, McNelly; halves, Moore, Simpson, Smith; quarter, Arty; scrum, Craig, Pfeiffer, Scott; wings, Marshall, McFarlane, Isbister, Potlarchy, Glassford, Lala.

in the Last Quarter.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Kingston, Nov. 12.—Queen's put up a whirlwind battle in the finishing quarter of today's game, but was beaten 9 to 5 by Toronto Varsity, the largest crowd of the season being in attendance.

Leckie, the locals' star full back, was the big attraction, his magnificent work keeping the Queen's crew in the game at all times.

The first scoring was done in the opening quarter, when Foulds bucked over for a try, which was not converted. The tally was made 6 to 0 when Galt kicked from half to Leckie behind the goal, where Kennedy forced a rouge.

Leckie the Star.
Leckie kicked over Varsity's line three times in the first five minutes of the second quarter, but Dixon ran the ball out on each occasion.

After Queen's had failed to buck over on being given the ball on the line, Leckie kicked over for a point. He ran outside his own goal two minutes before half-time.

Queen's showed up strong in the second half, but Macdonnell muffed Galt's punt behind the goal, scoring a touch-in-goal for Varsity.

Two Accidents.
In the last quarter Green had his shoulder hurt in the first scrimmage, and was replaced by Jones.

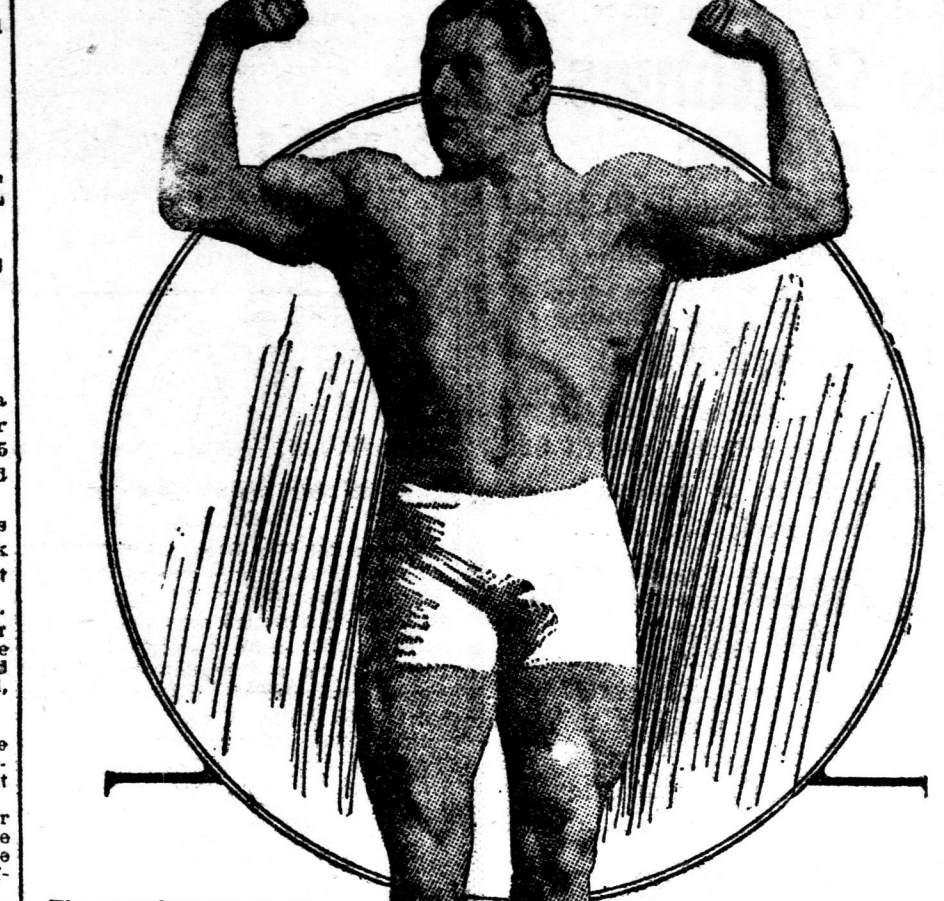

Macdonnell again was forced to rouge. Shortly after Leckie kicked, and Rodden, in tackling Galt, was hurt. His place was taken in the game by Cochran, as he was unable to continue. Macdonnell, after taking the ball on an onside kick, went over for a safety touch. Leckie followed a moment later with a kick to Varsity's dead line, the final score being 9 to 5.

The teams lined up as follows:
Queen's—Full back, Leckie; halves, Cooke, Dawson, Macdonnell; quarter, Moran; wings, Slater, Elliott, Kinsella, Young, Dowling, Smith; scrum, Smith, Rodden, Bruce.

Varsity—Full back, Dixon; halves, Maynard, Green, Galt; quarter, Poulis; wings, Rodden, Macdonnell, Kennedy; scrum, Corbeau, Bell, Carroll.

Officials—Marty Walsh, umpire; G. R. Dolan, referee.

"Russian Lion," Tamed By Gotch,
Here After Victims and Cash

The wrestlers are on us again. Headed by Jack Curly, of Chicago, the European invasion is in full blast, and the winter will witness the old game of cross and double cross with the public as has been the case for several seasons.

Curly's big attraction is George Hackenschmidt, who was the "Russian Lion" before Frank Gotch beat him in their championship match.

Hackenschmidt has been in Europe since he was him Gotch had gone to the farm for keeps.

It is probable Hackenschmidt can defeat all American wrestlers—if he is permitted to wrestle on the level. Just who promoters have in pickle for the big windup show, which will come along in February, or March, probably, is known only to themselves. The usual programme is to have foreigners beat everyone up to the big match, and then lose—which the betting public generally does at the same time—and the promoters get the pickings.

WAS BLOW DELIBERATE?

Umpire Testifies Against Sluggish at Coroner's Inquest—Warrant For Arrest Issued.

[Associated Press.]
Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 13.—A warrant formally charging Thomas McCoy, right end of the Bethany college football team, with homicide in connection with the death of Captain Rudolph Munk, of the West Virginia University team, was issued Sunday by Magistrate R. G. Hobbs. The action followed partial completion of the inquest by Coroner W. R. Rogers.

Munk sustained injuries in the game between the two teams Saturday from which he died within five hours without regaining consciousness.

The testimony on which the warrant was issued was furnished principally by Homer N. Young, a Pittsburgh attorney, who umpired the game. Mr. Young testified that Munk was struck in the head by a blow which was a deliberate interference and was a few yards in front of the scrimmage line, when McCoy came up to the West Virginia captain striking him in the head.

Munk fell to the ground unconscious, and Young ordered McCoy from the game.

Cause of Death.
The autopsy held at the coroner's office disclosed the fact that Munk's death was caused by a blood clot at the base of his brain and could not have been the result of a former injury.

The dead athlete's body was removed to his home at Connellsville, Pa.

McCoy, who is charged with causing the player's death, lives in Canton, Ohio. The warrant will be served Monday.

It was announced Sunday night that all the remaining games scheduled with West Virginia University will be cancelled, including the Thanksgiving date with Washington and Jefferson, which has been postponed one of the biggest games in this section.

Great Work of "Tiny" Sage Features
the Battle, But He Is Given Poor Support.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Petrolia, Nov. 12.—London played Petrolia in the first game of the Junior O. R. F. U. title series today, and gave the locals a hard battle. The visitors had a distinct advantage in the first quarter, when McMullen, Petrolia's star wing, was so badly injured that he had to be carried from the gridiron, but the locals came through with a 12 to 9 victory.

The weakened Petrolia's scrimmage for the remainder of the game, but in the second quarter the Oil Town men came back strong, and took the lead, which they held until the finish.

The game was somewhat rough, and the local rooters claimed that the officials were unable to handle the contest satisfactorily. They alleged that the Londoners repeatedly fouled the ball into play without first touching it to the ground.

"TINY" SAGE'S WORK.
"Tiny" Sage, of the London team, was the bright particular star, but he lacked support. Petrolia's scrimmage work as usual was fine. Robb, Thomas and the two Webbs starring.

McKellar, of the Toronto Parikades, acted as referee, and Leckie, of this place, as umpire.

Whittington, the ball behind Petrolia's line forcing Smith to rouge for the first score. Whittington's work was a feature. He caught and punted with great skill.

In the second quarter Petrolia bucked Webb over for a touch, which was converted. Petrolia 6, London 1.

Webb went over for the second touch, which was not converted, after about nine minutes work in the third quarter. Petrolia again having the wind at their backs, kicked at every opportunity. Whittington's punting was a feature. The following was the line-up:
London—Full, Whiting; halves, Leckie, Smithson, Sing; quarter, McGowan; scrum, Fitzgerald, Wright, Marshall; inside wings, Sage, Little; middle wings, Boyd, Chatto; outside wings, Rowlands, Crapper.

Petrolia—Full, Stretcher; halves, Pollard, McCrae, Deacon; quarter, McGowan; scrum, Webb, Thomas, Smith; inside wings, Robson, Webb; middle wings, McMullen, Rose; outside wings, Peat, Crapper.

CONLEY FIGHTS ABE
ATTELL TO A DRAWYoungster Carries Battle to Older
Opponent—Has Champ Guessing.

CROWD DISSATISFIED

Claim Conley Had Advantage—Pair

at Christmas.

[Associated Press.]
New Orleans, Nov. 13.—Abe Attell, the featherweight champion, and Frankie Conley, holder of the bantamweight title, fought fifteen rounds to a draw at the West Side Athletic Club today.

Conley did all of the leading, and had a shade the better of Attell in almost every round up to the thirteenth. Both were strong and aggressive at the finish. Attell weighed 125 pounds, and Conley 121. The battle was a close one.

The largest crowd that has attended a fight here in twenty years witnessed the contest, and most of the spectators thought that Conley should have had the decision. Attell conserved his forces, and until the concluding rounds did not extend himself. Conley, on the other hand, went at his man hammer and tongs, and forced the clever featherweight to respond in kind after weight champion's vicious onslaughts. While Conley landed the most blows, few of them were damaging. Nine-tenths of the blows landed by both fighters were jabs, or short-arm hooks in the clinches.

Conley's style was to cover his head and rush in with a series of swift blows to the face. Attell did not seem to mind this, and for the first five rounds played a waiting game, always guarding against body punches with his left arm. After the second round Conley rushed his opponent around the ring, and frequently landed on the ropes. Conley met Attell's occasional rushes with rapid, short punches to the head and ribs. Only once did Attell appear to have him worried.

Attell covered his stomach and extended his face for Conley to jab at, always looking for an opening for a swift body punch, but it never came.

Both fighters were willing. After the twelfth round Attell was fierce, with Conley rushing Attell to the ropes, but always finding the latter vigorous and swift at the in-fighting. In the fourteenth Conley landed often in the first half, but Attell let himself out in the round and fought with more vigor, fighting hard and fast at close range.

Neither man showed signs of distress when the going was hard. At the end of the round it was the fastest round of all, with both men trying hard for the decision, but Attell was the victor in the fight. Although fighting is limited to twenty rounds, an effort will be made to have the featherweight championship during the Christmas holidays.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE'S
EASY TIME IN JAILMrs. Schenk Has All the Luxuries of Her Home in Lockup.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 14.—A net of circumstances and suspicion is being woven about a doctor and a salesman in the mystery of the poisoning of John Schenk, millionaire pork packer of this city, who suffered a relapse during the night and his death is now expected.

Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, the wife, who is charged with trying to kill her husband, and is locked up in a cell in one of the embattled towers of the county jail, lacks none of the comforts of the mansion to which Schenk took her from the kitchen of John Schenk, millionaire pork packer of this city, who suffered a relapse during the night and his death is now expected.

The iron bars are concealed by tapestries taken from her fashionable island home. It is a cozy corner. She sleeps on an embroidered couch. She has a mahogany card table and plays solitaire during the day. Called from her home to the jail at midnight, she hastily gathered together the apparels of her dressing table—perfumes, powders, combs, and brushes.

She had her best clothes brought to the jail, and is dressed as she might be at home for an afternoon's recreation.

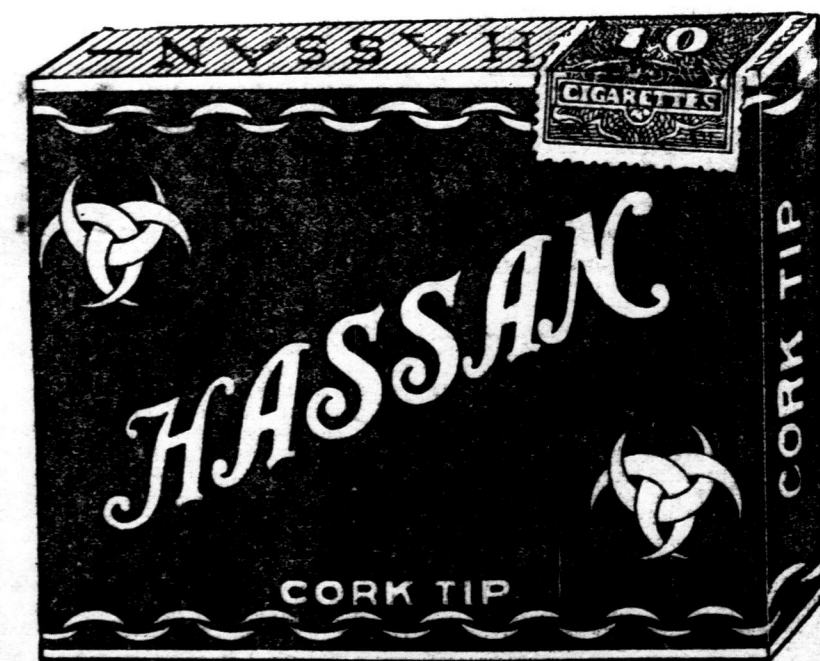

By advice of her lawyers, she says nothing—not even to the jailer.

The manner in which the axmen drivers are being alluded to in the Daily Mail. It is about time they were. The public will have to take a pretty firm stand with these gentry in the near future. They (and others) who serve the public might reasonably take example from the servants of the Great Western Railway, who to the humblest traveller are absolute models of courteous service and helpful attention. And, of course, it pays them, that goes without saying.

ROADS TO MARKET ARE IMPASSABLE

Big Demand For Hay and Very Little To Be Had.

OATS SCARCE: NO HOGS

Butter Prices Are Easing Up, But Eggs Remain Unchanged.

This morning's market was exceedingly quiet. The roads are still in bad condition, and there were only seven loads of hay. As the demand is very strong, the price was higher. The majority sold for $15 per ton, while a couple of inferior loads brought $14 and $14.50. If the roads continue in the present state, it will be very scarce this week, and as the supply last week was not large, prices will likely receive a big boost. It is impossible to draw a heavy load over the roads. Oats were scarce and the price remains unchanged. The demand is good. There were no live hogs. The price is lower than last Monday, however, and if the supply should increase it will take a further drop. The price today is $6.00 to $6.50 per cwt.

Dressed hog prices are unchanged. Butter prices show signs of easing up, but the scarcity of eggs at the present time will not permit of a reduction in the price of that product. Poultry prices are the same as last Monday, however, and if the supply should increase it will take a further drop. The price today is $6.00 to $6.50 per cwt.

NOTABLE ANNIVERSARY

Colborne Street Methodist Church Celebrates its 24th Birthday.

The 24th anniversary of Colborne Street Methodist Church was celebrated yesterday. Services were held both morning and evening by Rev. R. D. Hamilton, of Listowel, formerly pastor of Wellington Street Methodist Church.

Special collections were taken to be applied to the mortgage debt, $2,037 being realized. The full amount of the debt has been subscribed, and yesterday the first payment was taken. The mortgage will likely be lifted by the spring.

Rev. Mr. Hamilton preached a sermon to the young people in the evening, when the choir was augmented by 40 juvenile voices.

Tonight the choir, assisted by that of the First Methodist Church, will give a special song service.

Some ancient ships that rival even the celebrated American schooner Polly must be placed to the credit of Great Britain. First in order of age is the Jenny of Carnarvon, 123 years old. The next is the May of Whitehaven, sometimes called the Molly Ashcraft to distinguish her from other Mays. The May was built at Cowes in 1795, so that she is 115 years old, six years older than the Polly.

Imposter.

Rev. M. A. Lindsay, of Newbury, Ont., writes The Advertiser in regard to a certain individual, who is writing the ministers of this district, "plausibly" convincing recent strong religious conviction, etc., and incidentally appealing for alms and clothing. "During the past week," says Mr. Lindsay, "the Methodist minister in Newbury has received communications from ministers in London, Belmont and Florence, inquiring after the character of the man, and we would be grateful if you would be so good as to announce the imposture."

Case Settled.

At a meeting of the council of the town of Listowel was decided to settle with George T. Thomas, the Essex electrical engineer, who installed a power plant there, and who was unable to collect his account. The councillors were under the impression that about $500 worth of wire charged had not been used, but upon investigation found that everything was all right on that score. There was a difference over the time Mr. Thomas was engaged in the work, but a settlement was arrived at, the plaintiff being given $1,500. "This case was to have been heard at the non-jury sittings commencing Monday."

Choral Society.

Good progress is being made in the organization of the London Choral Society inaugurated some weeks ago in London, East. Mr. J. Cornelius states that the membership is over fifty and is increasing rapidly. It has been decided to limit it to one hundred members for this season. The use of the basement of Hyatt Avenue Methodist Church has been on so-called "try-out" for rehearsals. Mr. Cornelius has had considerable experience in choral work and expects to be ready to perform by February. It is his intention to use London talent only.

An Egg Record.

That the keeping of hens is a profitable hobby is the experience of Mr. Gillard, a Mill street resident. In November, 1909, he purchased three pullets of ordinary breed. On the first of March they started to lay and continued laying till Sept. 1. Then one of the hens molted. The three hens in the six months deposited four hundred and forty-two eggs. The other two kept on laying during September and October, giving ninety-nine eggs, making a total of five hundred and thirty-one eggs. The cost of grain was 25 cents per month. The value of the eggs ranged from 35 cents per dozen to 24 cents.

BISHOP FALLON ON EUCHARIST

"Read the Sixth Chapter of St. John," He Told His Congregation.

THE FIRST OF A SERIES

His Lordship Referred to the Great Congress in Montreal, and Gave the Reason for the Gathering.

"Go home and read the sixth chapter of St. John. Put yourself in the synagogue at Capernaum, and ask yourself where you are at—what you intend to do. Will you believe the words of Christ, or will you go with the Jews and apostate disciples? Will you leave him as they did, in the awful words of condemnation of the Bible: 'From that time many of his disciples went back and walked no more with him.'"

Thus spoke Bishop Fallon to his congregation in St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday morning, as he concluded his first sermon in that church, which was also the first of a series to be preached on the Eucharist. The cathedral was filled, there being many Protestants in the edifice, who had evidently been drawn by the bishop's lordship's fame as a preacher.

The bishop went straight to the doctrine of the real presence in the Eucharist.

Appeal to Reason.

"I want to reason with you today," said his lordship. "I want to put the question to you and square. At Montreal, two months ago, there was the most notable gathering which ever assembled on the soil of North America. There were there, from all parts of the civilized world, and the uncivilized world. Men do not cross the ocean and undergo the fatigues and trials and dangers of a journey to a far-away foreign land, especially when these men, or at least very many of them, have passed the allotted span of life, unless there is some reason. Why, I ask you, did they come? You will find the reason in the sixth chapter of St. John. 'I am the living bread which came down from heaven; if any man eateth of this bread, he shall live; and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I give for the life of the world.'"

The Reason.

"This is why the vast multitude assembled at Montreal—why the vast concourse of clergy were there, and why the lay people were there, and why Christ had spoken the words of the Eucharist in the synagogue at Capernaum centuries before, and the Eucharistic Congress had assembled to hear witness to the fact, and the belief in the doctrine of the real presence—their belief that the words of the priest 'This mass really and truly turn into the flesh and blood of Christ the bread and wine of the altar.'"

"But there were those who dissented in the synagogue of Capernaum, and there are those who in the Catholic Church dissented in the doctrine of the real presence is hard to believe, I will agree with you, but I did Jesus say to the dissenters? I am giving you the words of the Bible."

"The Jews therefore strove amongst themselves, saying: How can this man give us his flesh to eat?"

"Then Jesus said to them, 'Verily, verily, I say unto you, except you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood you have no faith in me.'"

"Whoso eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood hath eternal life; and I will raise him up on the last day. For my flesh is meat indeed and my blood is drink indeed. Whoso eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood dwelleth in me and I in him."

"An Hard Saying,"

"This is an hard saying," quoted the bishop, using the words of the Jews in the temple at Capernaum. "Today you hear Catholics say the same thing. These are what I call jelly-fish Catholics—without a spirit in them. You must either accept the words of Christ or reject them. Christ meant what he said, and said what he meant. You must either go with him or with the Jews? Which will you do? If you are afraid of this doctrine of the real presence you are an injury to your church, to Catholicism, and to the souls of men. The teachings of Jesus Christ, from the entire Bible, from Genesis to the Apocalypse, you will find no greater words of condemnation than these: 'They that are engaged in the work of Him no more.' Will you walk with Him no more?"

The Words of Jesus.

"Human nature might have dictated that Jesus should not say the words he spoke in the synagogue of Capernaum. God knows he created men to trouble. Blatant unbelief and doubt."

STROPPED SHORT.

Taking Tonics, and Built Up on Right Food.

The mistake is frequently made of trying to build up a worn-out nervous system on tonic-drugs.

New material from which to rebuild wasted nerve cells is what should be supplied, and this can be obtained only from proper food.

Two years ago I found myself on the verge of a complete nervous collapse, due to overwork and study, and to illness in the family," writes a Wisconsin woman.

"My friends became alarmed because I grew pale and thin and could not sleep nights. I took various tonics prescribed by physicians, but their effects were of short duration. I stopped taking them. My food did not seem to nourish me, and I gained no flesh nor blood.

Reading of Grape-Nuts, I determined to stop the tonic-drugs and have a change of diet would do. I ate Grape-Nuts four times a day, with cream and drank milk also, went to bed early after eating a dish of Grape-Nuts.

"In about two weeks I was sleeping soundly. In a short time I gained 20 pounds in weight and felt like a different woman. My little daughter who was obliged to sleep in the school last spring on account of chronic catarrh has changed from a thin, pale, nervous child, to a rosy, healthy girl and has gone back to school this fall.

wild-eyed infidelity followed his words. And yet, what right or reason had the Jews to reject his words? Did he not the day previously feed the multitude from the few fishes and the few loaves of bread? Had they not the simple proof of his powers, of his divinity? And yet we find the Jews, as we find many people today saying: "This is an hard saying; who can hear it?"

"I am a statesman; I am a literary; I am a scientist; say men; I cannot accept that doctrine! But who created science and literature, and the state? Was it not the same God who created the Eucharist? Some Catholics even whitewash this doctrine down until there is nothing left, but their Protestantism, only regard them as weak and their respect for them. You have the words of Christ to go by. In the name of God, I ask you to read the sixth chapter of the gospel of St. John. There you will find the words upon which the Catholic belief of the real presence rests."

DUNDAS AND RICHMOND MAY BE REPAVED

Would Be Cheaper Than Resurfacing Opinion Around City Hall.

That Dundas and Richmond streets will have to be repaved, rather than resurfaced, is said to be the opinion of the city engineers, and it is expected that the board of works will be instructed to that effect.

A contract for resurfacing the streets has been awarded to the Barber Asphalt Company, but as the underground work has changed matters considerably, it is now thought that new tenders will have to be called.

In many places, said one city hall official, "it was impossible to do the work unless the streets were cut into, and as a result they are not in good shape. The frost this winter is certain to 'heave' the pavement, and when the springs opens, these streets will be in bad shape. The London street railway will not undertake any more operations until the underground work settles."

"The better plan would be to repave. If the resurfacing as at present is carried out, the roads will be a mass of patchwork, and as the amount of cement to be used will be very large, repaving would not be much more expensive."

CALLED HIM A MASON FREE FIGHT FOLLOWED

Lively Rumpus in a Catholic Edifice in Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—Remarks by A. J. Lemieux, regarding the recent local trouble, started a hand-to-hand fight in St. Jean Baptiste Church last night. Lemieux started to explain some matters, and in the course of his address Mr. Lemieux accused Gustave Franeq of being a member of the local lodge of the St. Jean Baptiste Church, and of having been a member of the latter jumped up and demanded that he adduce proofs. Franeq got his answer when a number of Lemieux's supporters piled on him and started to punch and kick him, a regular melee ensuing. Franeq's supporters were not slow to answer, and for five or ten minutes the church hall was a scene of confusion.

Cure Aulais tried to secure order, but failed, and the fistio contest went merrily on. Calls were sent to the police, but they failed to respond, and the fighters got tired the cure dismissed the meeting.

Little damage was done save a few black eyes and bruises, while the women, who were in the majority, were not engaged.

When the cure dismissed the meeting Franeq called a counter demonstration in the street, which, however, was orderly, the frosty air cooling off the ardor of the pugilists.

FAREWELL SERMON OF CHRIST CHURCH RECTOR

Rev. Mr. Howard Says Good-Bye to Congregation—News of the Churches.

Rev. R. S. W. Howard, the retiring rector of Christ Church, delivered his farewell sermon last evening, and will assume charge of his new pastorate at Chatham this week. Mr. Howard referred to his successor, Rev. C. R. Gunne, of Clinton, in the highest terms, and expressed the hope that the congregation would rally to the support and encouragement of their new rector.

He emphasized the missionary obligation of the church. "It is indeed a narrow man," he declared, "who thinks only of himself. We must send the Word of God abroad, that it may cheer the hearts of the heathen as it has cheered our own."

His parting words were: "In the few years that have passed, I have been blessed and blessed by the kindness of the people of this parish. In my new work I will not forget Christ Church, nor its kindness, and the true friendships that have existed here."

SAYS RECIPROCITY WILL AID FARMERS

Canadian Agricultural Paper Starts Campaign Against Opposition.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—Opponents of reciprocity recently having been prominent in the advocates of closer trade relations are beginning to be heard from. Canadian Farm, the leading agricultural newspaper of the Dominion, has begun the publication of a series of articles on reciprocity. The first demonstrates that a big market for Canadian products would thereby be opened in the United States. Addressing himself to the bogey that reciprocity would be entering wedge of political union of Canada and the United States, the author says:

"When the reciprocity treaty of 1854, which embraces natural products only, was about to be abrogated by Congress, Sir John Macdonald sent an official note to the Imperial Government in which he said that it would be impossible to express in figures the extent to which the facilities of commercial intercourse brought about by the treaty have contributed to the wealth and prosperity of Canada and difficult to exaggerate the importance which the people of Canada attach to the continued enjoyment of these facilities."

"Sir John had in mind the movement of 1844, which embraces natural products only, was about to be abrogated by Congress, Sir John Macdonald sent an official note to the Imperial Government in which he said that it would be impossible to express in figures the extent to which the facilities of commercial intercourse brought about by the treaty have contributed to the wealth and prosperity of Canada and difficult to exaggerate the importance which the people of Canada attach to the continued enjoyment of these facilities."

ment of 1849 for annexation to the United States when he spoke in the same note of the connection which is usually found to exist between the material prosperity and the political contentment of a people and declared that, "largely owing to the unrestricted commerce with our nearest neighbors in the natural productions of the two countries, all agitation for organic changes has been almost entirely satisfied with existing political relations has wholly disappeared."

"I commend this last observation to the timid souls who are afraid that a new measure of reciprocity would pave the way to annexation. Manifestly it could do so only by augmenting the prosperity of our natural industries to such an extent that they would demand annexation as a crowning boon. But is not this rather a dangerous hypothesis for imperialists to advance?"

"It is surprising that the annexation cry should prevail with an intelligent person, for how an Ontario farmer's loyalty could be sapped through selling a carload of cattle at Buffalo free of duty, and bringing home free factory goods passes comprehension. He is marketing there every day as it is, only now he has to pay the duty both ways. Surely he would be just so much better off and just so much more contented if it was removed."

MANY ANOMALIES IN MARRIAGE LAWS

The Anglicans Heard Them at Ottawa From Mr. Lewis, Behind Closed Doors.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—Evidently fearing publicity in connection with the address on the subject, "The Law of Christian Marriage," given by Mr. Travers Lewis, K.C., at a session of the annual conference of the Deanery of Ottawa, members of the press were rigidly excluded. It was stated by one of the clergy earlier in the day that the action of Archbishop Bruchesi, of Montreal, in annulling marriages between Protestants and Roman Catholics would be discussed, and some action taken. Whether this was done, is a secret, however, and when queried, after the meeting, several of the clergy stated that the matter had not been taken up. It was, however, given out that Mr. Lewis informed the clerics that no person in Quebec under 21 years of age could marry without the consent of the parents, and the consent was not obtained, and the marriage was performed, the ceremony was null and void.

The information imparted to the clergymen was that a minister in Ontario could refuse to marry a couple, providing he had good grounds for his objection, and that an Ontario clergyman could not perform a marriage ceremony in Quebec, but that a cleric from Quebec, or any part of Canada could solemnize a marriage in this province.

At the evening session, Adam Short, M.A., spoke on social work in the church, and one of his statements was that the workmen should not be pampered, but severely criticised whenever necessary. He advocated arranging the social work to suit the local conditions.

SUGGESTS NAVY TO KEEP ORDER IN QUEBEC

Ottawa Pastor Makes Sensational Statements Regarding Sister Province.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—"The sooner we get a big navy to keep Quebec under the better for the Dominion," said Rev. Dr. A. A. Cameron in the course of his sermon in the First Baptist Church last night. "For some years past we have been hearing murmurs of disloyalty from Quebec. Then recently upon an election day there came lightning flash and the thunder clap, which revealed a startling condition of affairs."

Mr. Cameron deplored the fact that Quebec was not in harmony with the other provinces of Canada in their loyalty to Great Britain.

CANADIANS IN FAVOR OF HOME RULE FOR IRELAND

T. P. O'Connor Says Meetings Here Were the Largest Ever Held.

London, Nov. 12.—T. P. O'Connor, interviewed by the Canadian press, is entirely in favor of home rule for Ireland. The meetings were the largest ever held in Canada for the cause, and the sum collected the largest ever received except during Parnell's palmy days.

He referred to the fact that statesmen of the Dominion figured in the meetings, and emphatically endorsed the home rule proposals.

Joseph Chamberlain has suggested a tariff commission to ascertain on what lines inter-imperial trade can best be developed by a system of mutual preference. He thinks the report produced would be of great value to the next imperial conference if the commission immediately proceeds to carry out the suggestion.
