SHELL-TORN HIGHWAY IN FLANDERS, THIS MORNING

Auto Traffic Over Week-End Got In Much "Dirty Work"-City Engineer Recipient of Many Complaints On Part of Residents-Many Stones From Street Railway Allowance Bedded in Pavement.

Many complaints regarding the state the street, the car track allowance of which the London Street Railway Company has refused to pave, were re Street Railway ceived by City Engineer H. A. Brazier

In company with an Advertiser reporter Engineer Brazier inspected the cause of complaint this morning. The entire stretch of pavement was dotted with stones of various sizes pulled from the track allowance to either side. Some of these stones were imbedded into the pavement, and when dug out by the city engineer left depressions varying in size up to that of a baseball. He admitted to the reporter that if such a state of conditions continues the life of the road will be greatly shortened. Stones were noticed also along the Stanley street boulevards thrown up by passing vehicles.

shortened. Stones were holiced along the Stanley street boulevards thrown up by passing vehicles.

To pass an auto standing on this narrow street, motorists must drive over the track allowance, which acts greatly in spreading the pebbles. City Engineer Brazier has instructed that an employee gather up the large stones from the track allowance to prevent further distribution. His services will be charged up to the general tax rate, and it is interesting to note that those aldermen who opposed city paving of the track allowance did so on the ground that the citizens' money should not be used in this way.

City Engineer Brazier informed The Advertiser that the best solution for the continuous anything about it and have nothing to say." Ald. Wilson opposed paving of the car tracks being done by the city.

"We have one state institution," he replied, "financed by the province. We will never in our time be called upon to confront a thing like the Ontario situation. Universities will become re-gional in our country some time, but we will not see it. When our univercity becomes too large, then we will consider it. One institution, built up efficiently, is our present desire."

Asked regarding the railway situation in the West Premier Martin said: "There is a big discrepancy between the freight rates of the west and the east. They are 15 to 17 per cent higher out there for one thing, and we are trying to get this difference removed by the Dominion railway board. It is a general question and the rates are too high from the standpoint of production, undoubtedly too high. Grain rates are 60 to 80 per cent higher than two years ago and this is a tremendous toll on the crops. The increase last year was from ten to welve million dollars on the wheat of

The talk then drifted to crops and the Western premier continued: "Prospects have not been better for a num-ber of years. There has been plenty of

In the roundary and Rectory streets, and the responsibility rests upon a large bulldog owned by a resident of the vicinity. The trouble started when Mr. Buildog, an interested spectator of the parade, returning from the Centennial Methodist Church became too interested in the activities of a member of the fife and drum band.

Apparently he did not take kindly to the manner in which this member was beating his snare drum, and he announced the fact by rushing from the curb to the road, and attempting to obtain a "buildog" grip on the bandsman's white trousered leg.

The object of the attack launched a kick at the aggressor at the same time trying to maintain the dignity of the parade. Finally with the assistance of two male and one female pedestrians, the buildog's attention was momentarily distracted while the drummer beat a tattoo with his drum sticks upon the dog's head, taking all the fight out of him.

A constable on duty near by provided the grand finale by chasing the buildog down the street, and the bandsman continued his march uninjured by the attack.

The gain to be derived by a co-operative dairy is two-fold, the producers point out. By maintaining their own receiving and distributing depot in the city they would be able they aver to supply any number of citizens with the best quality of milk at the best possible price to the consumer and incidentally reaping the best reasonable profit themselves. Elimination of the middleman, they assert would follow, thereby cutting the present price considerably.

"People of the city do not realize," a member of the executive asserted, "that the distributor is the one responsible for keeping the price where it is today. Even after the recent drop in milk the latter was not losing anything. He did not bear the burden of the cut. In fact his profit was even greater than previously."

BURNS AND THE O. T. A.

In these days of the O. T. A. and the employment of "spotters" for the purpose of detecting infringements of the act, it is interesting to turn back for about a century and a half and see what was done in Great Britain in those days to checkmate the smug gler and the "bootlegger." Although the pursuit of those law-breakers was often exciting in the extreme, and now and then very dangerous, there is, as a rule more truth than poetry in the accounts given of these ventures and the raids which usually followed And yet, what may be literally called "poetic was meted out to the delinquents in one part of the United Kingdom, at least, the officer of the law on this occasion being none other than the poet Robert

Most of the poets admirers must be familiar with "The dell's awa wi' the exciseman," a highly humorous the public attitude towards the "gauger," and the piquancy of the sly hits in this work are in no wise diminished by the fact that Burns himself was an

It is recorded that on July 28, 1790, Burns was pro moted to the Dumfries third division, and in this sta tion his duties principally consisted in the survey of the tobacco traffic. His next appointment was to Dumtries first division, and this was his last post. On January 27, 1791, he had been entered by the excise commissioners on the list for promotion to the rank of supervisor, and he remained in this list until his

The men and women who were contemporaries of Burns, and were of such an age as to remember him discharging duty as an exciseman, have, of course, all died out, but there are people still living who have talked to those who knew the poet.

One of the most intelligent of those who were acquainted with Burns in the days when he acted as "gauger," was Mrs. Bennett, Moniaive, Dumfriesshire, who died in 1874, in the 98th year of her age. She was the daughter of a blacksmith of the name of Kirk, who lived in the village of Carronbridge, and who would appear to have connived at, or carried on a traffic in liquor that caused him to be occasionally visited by lightning. But of course a fire chief's car is allowed to go like has qualities in which as a nation Canadians as their new governor-general because he has qualities in which as a nation Canadians excel, and which they admire. To the mills of those desirous his inappear to have conflived at, or coarsionally visited by lightning. But, of course, a fire chief's car has always He has shown himself in the war a man of resource and courage in action. Anti- To begin bire bore 10 or 11 years of age, and was consequently able to notice how Burns did his work.

Mrs. Bennett, in some reminiscences related to a local newspaper stated that a man named Matthew Milligan left a considerable quantity of smuggled brandy in a "greybeard," or stoneware jar, at the of his results as quoted in Good Health (Battle Creek, blacksmith's house. It was concealed in a pocket blacksmith and his wife "press," or cupboard, and the blacksmith and his wife having to go to sheep shearing, and dreading a visit series of laboratory diet tests on monkeys, the results were for so excellent a member shearing to go to sheep shearing, and dreading a visit series of laboratory diet tests on monkeys the results were for so excellent a member shouse is a gift that even an uppish Dohouse is a gift that even an uppish Dohou the supervisor arrived, and the latter had evidently got cent of the smuggled brandy, for he plied the girle with questions on the subject, and was particularly desirous to see the inside of the press. In this, it appears be could not be accommodated; and then he deanded that dts contents should be described to him, which was done with considerable facility, but with no mention of the "greybeard."

Meanwhile the poet looked anxious and concerned lest the press should be opened, as he evidently guessed what it contained, and knew well how serious penalty would fall on his friend the blacksmith in the event of the brandy being discovered. "At one time," said Mrs. Bennett, "he winked hard at me over the supervisor's shoulder to be sure not to let on." The result was that the supervisor was baffled, and the brandy was undetected. On another occasion, when Burns was leaving the house, after an official visit, Mrs. Bennett heard him say to her father: "Well, well, smith, so long as you take care of yourself and take care of the bairns. I will never murt you."

These anecdotes are quite in harmony with the institutions. theory of Dr. Robert Chambers, on of Burns's war, her wealth has been shuffled so that she has mor biographers, that "inspired with a just view of the contraband trade as an infraction and disturbance of Germany never has been able to realize, not even to this the rights of the fair trader, he was disposed to be severe with the regular smugglers; but in petty matters of inaccuracy, or even something worse, among the country brewsters and retailers, he tempered jus-

One wonders how Burns would act at the present Would kindness of heart lead him to "wink" at some of the minor breaches of the O. T. A., which constitute such large proportion of the cases dealt with by the officers of the law at this time? Let us answer this question in the words of a writer in an old number of Chamber's Journal: "That same infinite tenderness which was the essence of his strength and his weakness, and made him not only feel for all mankind, peccadilloes of the Carronbridge smith, provided he at tended to his 'bairns.' "

NOT SO VERY MAD.

Some time ago it was announced that spinach, THE GREATEST "HORROR STORY. dried and then powdered, was a splendid thing to make babies grow strong and healthy, and now it is stated that the juices of the alfalfa and clover are

This discovery of Dr. Lischner suggests that the idea which has existed for many generations that honey has a soothing and healing influence on the lungs may be a perfectly sound one, for, as every beekeeper knows, clover bloom is the most fertile and best source of nectar. Clover honey invariably takes the first place in the market, and its color and flavor are considered the most attractive.

It is therefore quite feasible that the juices of the plants from which such nectar springs possess the virtues ascribed to them in the combating of the white plague. It will be observed that Dr. Lischner does not claim that those juices are a cure for this disease but merely that they are efficacious in helping to destroy the tuberculosis germ. This in itself is a valuable discovery

But perhaps the discovery is not so new as one may imagine, for we read in the Scriptures that Nebuchadnezzar went into the fields and ate grass. This at that time was taken as evidence of the insanity of the monarch, but perhaps he was not so very mad.

PIG MILLIONAIRES.

[New York Evening Post.] Extreme financial embarrassmen has overtaken the Goethe Museum in Frankfort, Germany, but the new republic attends tardily to such needs. To secure contributions other than those that come in through the regular channels, the administration recently addressed a circular letter to the 75 richest men in Germany asking them for help. Some made no response whatever, other declined for reasons that occur most readily to the phraseologist, while one sent in 100 marks. Such help as has thus far been received has come from the new poor—that is, the cultured middle class.

JOAN OF ARC.

Steps are being taken to have a memorial to Joan of Arc erected in Winchester Cathedral, and a design has been prepared by Mr. J. Ninian Comper. It consists of a figure of the Maid, following closely in details the famous statue at Rheims, with pedestal and canopy.

In the course of the appeal for support it is stated that the actual tribunal which condemned Joan of Arc to death "was composed of her own countrymen, but England shares in the guilt, for it was the English Regent who initiated the trial, and English soldiers guarded the place of execu-tion. An English bishop, too, Cardinal Beaufort, Bishop of Winchester, sat on at least one occasion among the judge who finally sent her to the stake; and it is, therefore proposed to erect near his tomb in the cathedral a memoria but even for the Daisy and the Mouse, and which made an earnest that we in England join in the admiration and as a silve 'slices of his constitution' to people little worthy of such gifts, constrained him to wink at the trusted friend and heroic ally."

is stated that the juices of the alfalfa and clover are aiding to destroy the tuberculosis germ. This declaration was made by Dr. Hyman Lischner of San Diego, Cal., at the convention of the American Institute of Homeopathy in Washington. Dr. Lischner asserted that the use of the juices of these grasses has aided materially the progress which has been made against the dread disease.

BENEDICT VS. BACHELOR [Exchange.]

A Newton, Mass., doctor said before a meeting of industrial physicians that unmarried men are more dependable workers than married men.

Married men do not believe it.

Bachelors know it's fiction.

You are an employer of labor. Two men come to you for employment. One is a bachelor and the other is married. All things being equal, you hire the married man if you need but one. Why? Because the married man feels his reponsibility to his family. He knows he has more mouths than his own to feed. He realizes that he must be steady to hold his job. He wants to hold it, and in order to hold it he gives

But there is one point which always seems to be overlooked about them, and that is what were the after-effects upon the contestants? It is not at all likely they were good; and a proper contest should have the proviso made in it that the champion should show no ill-effects from the orgy. If this rule were made, it would probably make a few people inclined to compete.

ABOUT FIGHTING MEN.

The feeling on the other side is growing that Jack Dempsey is not quite the man to be placed on the pedestal as a public idol.

Representative Gallivan of Massachusetts has broken into print with the charge that the muscular Jack is a "bum and a draft dodger." He declares "bum and a draft dodger." He declares that when Les Darcy, an Australian, came to the States to fight some years ago, he was forbidden to enter the prize ring because some people in the United states said he was a slacker.

The representative does not quite see why Dempsey should be honored by a country that turned down Darcy.

In spite of several crude attempts at the Dempsey did not show up to any great advantage in the world war. His valor was all displayed in the squared circle While other husky American boys were learning the art of bayonet fighting, the champion was practicing short arm jabs to win the big prizes. While Dempsey was lounging about in his training camp, many of his compatriots were taking the count of ten in France.

The champion fighter of the world was somewhere else when the greater fight of all history was going on.

On the other hand, Georges Carpentier was at home when the French Government called. He was one of the first to offer his services to his country and he never hung behind when the bell rang for a round with the German. SPANISH DOUBLOONS

Furiously I flung the sand aside until | hoard at last? the chest stood free for half its depthwhich is roughly three feet. It has handles at the ends, great handwrought loops of metal. I tugged my hardest, but the chest seemed fast in its place as the native rock. I laughed exultantly. The weight meant goldgold! I had hammer and chisel with me, and with these I forced the massive ancient locks. There were three of

It is of very quaint old workmanship, and badly tarnished compared to the same bulk of golden gold. coins. I think it must have had some special character of sacredness which led to its preservation here. It is strange to find such a relic among a treasure so stained by blood and crime. Personal Health Service

(By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D., Noted Physician and Author.)

For Parents Only These are brief extracts from letters about, or even to any young woman

The same thing has featured scores upon scores of letters from young wo-men, young women of fair intelligence or more than average intelligence, as heir letters indicate, and not the moron or high grade imbecile type that may be so easily recognized as wearing skirts a little too short, shoes a little too stagy, complexion a little too ob-vious, and clothing a little too noisy. These letters come from good average

The unpleasant truth is that a considerable percentage of our "nice" young men today are untrustworthy in their moral conduct, and some of them, notwithstanding their "nice" appearance, manners or family connections, have venereal disease in a more or less incurable or rather uncured form. It is these "nice" young men who take advantage of every opportunity to break down the moral barrier and rob any girl—any girl, no matter who or what she may be—of the thing which is indeed of more importance to her than anything else in the world.

The philander holds forth wherever young women foregather to have fun.
This subject is not a pleasant one to write about. I'd rather discuss funerals, for in a quiet, sly way one may find considerable humor in a good fu-neral to relieve the solemnity of the event. There is no chance for humor in the subject I am trying to present or young women who may happen to pass by. This is but one of a thousand obvious weaknesses of the enforcement—the winking of the police at the practice of loitering on the streets or about pool rooms, cigar stands and barber shops of a low class. Just as one driver, spe through a city street at 25 to 35 an hour without fear of police interference drags down the moral standard for all drivers and increases the peril for all pedestrians, so one young male moral slacker holding public place is a menace to the moral tandard of the community. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

PINTO BESTS SCHWARTZE AND ACES PULL A BLANK

1--O Score of Closest Game On Local Lot This Season-Thirty Men Only Faced Pinto-Two Singles in Third, With Double Steal, Does It.

Pinto and Herman Schwartje engaged in the tightest hurling duel of the season, locally at least, on Saturday; the Tees stringing along on the one lone run they achieved in the third brush, for a 1-0 brush of the whole series with

The blonde recruit is credited with permitting one more hit than Mr. Schwartje, but as a matter of fact, one of these hits struck the umps on the lines of communication, as he was looking at second base in the seventh, and it went down as a hit. It wouldn't have been a hit, not in this world, as it was on its way to second, and Walter Malmquest was there waiting for it and the double play that was sure as rain, because Red McKee was on his way to second too.

Both hurlers received airtight support from their supporting casts, except little Ace boot that cropped up in the very first that didn't matter as far as runs were concerned.

Schwartje has lost none of his old cunning and marksmanship with the small assortment he carries, and he had the old plate divided into inch squares and the key to the board as well.

Only 30 men faced Pinto, who showed a big change of form in his delivery, and with fine results. He never changed color except to blush once in a while at what he was doing to the Aces. Only seven balls went out of the infield, so that the Aces didn't get cross-eyed looking at the seams in the

Two Hits Enough.
Two hits to center field in the third, with a double steal and Stutz coming in on Calbert's well-placed infield out, spiked the Big Bertha effectively for "Holman" must have had his mind on a big, cool stein just at that point, for after this the Londoners couldn't lift anything out beyond the Aces' infield works, though Malm-quest had one ticketed for left field, but Petty knocked it down on the edge of the grass.

There weren't any howling features to the contest—just machine-like fielding. The double steal worked by Stutz and Vandyke in the third, which put Stutz on third and in position to dash in with the victory counter. A snappy pick-up of a fast one right at his shoe tops by Shay in the ninth, and two double killings, in each of which Shay and Malmquest only gave Kuhn the finishing touches to do, probably stood out more than the rest of the perspiration and effort.

ST. THOMAS, June 25 .- The local St. John's Rovers beat Sarnia Imperials in a semi-final game for London and district honors, and won the right to meet Public Utilities for the association title The game started off slowly, with the sitors having the best of the play for the first thirty minutes. W. Robinson opened the scoring after this for the Rovers with a well-played shot on the Sarnia goal. Sarnia scored three min tes later on a penalty kick.

Rovers were having the best of the play when Paull got in past, centering to Jacques, who scored, making the half tally 2-1 for Rovers. The last half play went almost entirely to Rovers, Latham scoring one on Farr got Rovers' fourth penalty.

President Lewis and R. Sim of the London and district council, acted as linesmen. The lineups: Robers — Lunn, goal; Latham, Allman, backs; S. Robinson, W. Robertyanked from the box in favor of McMilan, who was batted hard by the visitors in the two frames he toiled. VanDyke, the reputed base line runner of the Londons, was not much in evidence on the paths, being caught flat footed four feet off third while trying to pilfer. Selferge. Noble. Referee-Noble.

WILL CARPENTIER'S HEAVY CALVES BE AN AID OR HANDICAP IN FIGHT?

Manhasset, N. Y.. June 27.—Training at the camp of Georges Carpentier took on the mysterious aspect again this morning. Soon after Georges came in from the woods the police guards were thrown about the camp and things began to hum behind the barn. Manager Descamps, as usual, refused to tell what was happening. He said, however, that Carpentier was working hard, and had been let loose. His sparring session was on the afternoon's sparring session was on the afternoon's program, and it was announced that the heavyewights who should have ar-him well or prove a manufacture battle with Dempsey.

For a man weighing not more than 172 pounds heavy calves are somewhat rare and seldom have been noted on processful heavyweights. Excepting rare and seldom have been noted on successful heavyweights. Excepting one or two champions it will be recalled, that almost all of them did not have large legs. A size-up of the present champion shows his calves to be much smaller than those of Carpentier. These experts who have followed pugilism for years always have contended that heavy calves were a handicap to heavyweights. It is their argument that such legs slow their footwork. Others, however, argue that work. Others, however, argue that heavy underpinnings will help him hold his feet in a heavy bombardment of Demosey's punches.

Larger Appropriation From the Council Will Be Necessary.

St. Thomas, June 26.—After September 1 the monthly fees charged to Collegiate pupils will be abolished, the sum now charged being $1 a pupil.

Their elimination will mean so much more of an appropriation from the council for educational purposes. It has been charged that the Collegiate is the nursery of profesional graduates, and that the pupils are mainly the children of the wealthier class, and may a small householder has urged that the collegiate should pay for the privilege. The repeal of the regulation will mean a further increase in the taxes for school purposes, a fact that will not be agreeable to the already overburdened property holder in St. Thomass.

PREMIERS' DECISIONS WILL MAKE HISTORY

Turning Point in International Negotiations Will Probably Be Reached.

London, June 26.—By Grattan O'Leary Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press.—With the coming week the conference of prime ministers week the conference of prime ministers faces its crucial test. Indeed, in the opinion of most competent observers here, the decision which the assembled heads of the Empire take within the next few days may well mark the turning point in the course of international affairs. This view is held particularly by opponents of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. They contend that their voice appears to grow steadily in strength, that the one great hope for progress toward disarmament is an Anglo-American-Japanese understanding, rather than a special Anglo-Japanese alliance.

In support of their views they de-clare it to be inconceivable that the United States, faced with an Anglo-United States, faced with an Anglo-Japanese treaty, will do other than carry out a stupendous naval pro-gram, such as some of its leaders have proposed, this, in turn, compelling Brit-proposed, this, in turn, compelling Britproposed, this, in turn, compelling Brit-ain and Japan to enter upon a madder race for naval supremacy.

Nor is this school impressed by the claim put forward by Premier Hughes of Australia and others that it would

Whether these views are sufficiently weighty to sway the premiers remains to be seen. They will be presented with force by Premiers Smuts and Meighen, but while there are reasons for stating that the British Government, or at least an influential section of it, hold similar opinions, there is no doubt that the cause of the alliance has many powerful friends.
