JURY FINDS BOWMAN OF SOUND MIND

Former Londoner Must Face
Trial on Charge of Killing Wife.

CONFESSION READ

Dr. English of Hamilton Institution Testified He Believed Prisoner Insane.

Canadian Press Despatch.
London, Sept. 23.—Lorne Bowman of Elmira, charged with the brutal murder of his wife on June 30, at her mother's home in Elmira, after she had returned from singing in the church choir, is fit for trial. This was the decision reached by the jury and returned at about 11 o'clock after three hours of deliberation. Thus the crown won the first skirmish in the battle despite medical evidence that the prisoner was mentally unbalanced.

Court had just re-convened for the afternoon session when the jury filed in.
"Is he fit or unfit?" asked the clerk of the court, amid a tense silence.
"We find him fit," said Foreman J. C. McKay.

The decision simply means that the jury believes that Bowman is sane now. In the murder trial which must now follow it is likely that the defence will endeavor to prove Bowman was insane at the time the deed was committed.

The trial is expected to commence late today or at the latest, tomorrow morning.
Both the crown and the defence concluded evidence touching upon the mental condition of the prisoner. The charge to the jury by Justice Wright drew attention to the fact that it was for them to determine if the man was in fit mental condition to be tried. The jury was called to the court room at noon, but reported they had not succeeded in reaching a decision. Court adjourned until 2 o'clock.

Tells of Confession.
The evidence touching upon the mental condition of Bowman was begun this morning by the calling of Patrick Stiles, chief constable of Elmira, who arrested Bowman immediately after the killing. Stiles was examined by H. J. Sims, K.C., crown prosecutor. Witness stated that following the arrest, Bowman had remarked: "I suppose the people are very bitter and sore against me for what I have done." Questioned by the crown with regard to an alleged confession by Bowman, Constable Stiles declared he had taken down the confession on paper as it was dictated to him by Bowman. He stated that Bowman styles his act as a willful, premeditated murder. It goes on to say: "I had an argument with my wife some time before because I objected to her wearing a ring she got from another man before she married me. She said she got it from a better man than me. I struck her down. She was facing the bed."

Governor Cook was examined by Crown Prosecutor Sims. Asked if he conversed with the prisoner from time to time, he answered in the affirmative. He stated that he had not often spoken to the prisoner, but on the few occasions he had found him sane. Please See Page 7, Columns 2 and 3.

The Weather

FORECASTS.

Today — Light winds; fine, light local frosts to-night.
Wednesday — Southerly winds; fine.

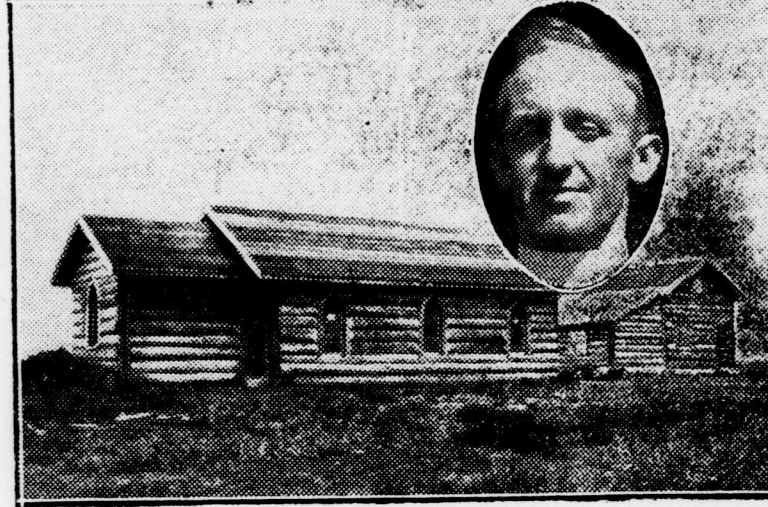

The deep depression which was in Northern Ontario yesterday has passed with diminishing energy to the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the pressure is now decidedly high over the Great Lakes and middle states. The weather continues fair and mild in the western provinces.

Here is the most northerly Anglican Church in the world and (inset) its rector, Rev. W. A. Geddes. St. John's Shingle Point is the last of the northern outposts in the diocese of Yukon and under the control of Bishop Stringer of the Yukon. At the back of the church is the rector's house, where he "keeps back," makes his own bread, is his own housekeeper and his own valet. Mr. Geddes is forced to rely for his friendships on Eskimos and books. He says he enjoys the work and is going back for another four-year term this fall.

Berlin, Sept. 23.—Germany will, in the near future, make an effort to enter the League of Nations on an equal footing with the great powers. It was announced officially today in a communiqué issued at the close of a cabinet meeting.

REGISTRATION JAM HITS WESTERN "U"

Opening Rush Makes Accurate Calculation of Attendance Impossible.

With lectures starting tomorrow, the offices of the registrar of the University of Western Ontario were besieged with students today. Tomorrow the rush will be even greater. The registrar's office is now a scene of confusion. The registrar, Mr. J. H. Sims, K.C., crown prosecutor, was examined by H. J. Sims, K.C., crown prosecutor. Witness stated that following the arrest, Bowman had remarked: "I suppose the people are very bitter and sore against me for what I have done." JUDGE HALTS ARGUMENT OF SYMINGTON

Chairman of Railway Commission Declines To Have English Cases Cited.

HEARING PROCEEDS

Vital Points Are Advanced in Crow's Nest Pass Rates Probe.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Sept. 23.—The hearing of part at least of the argument of H. J. Symington, K.C., for the prairie provinces' counsel in the Crow's Nest Pass case, was admitted before the railway commission this morning. Mr. Symington had reiterated that the railway position involved of necessity the reversal of previous decisions of the board, and then was proceeding to argue that the practice and recognized principles of jurisprudence demanded that the board should not reverse its own decisions. He had quoted several English cases (in one of which a judge followed a previous decision though he thought it mistaken) in support of his claim, and was going to cite further authorities, when the chairman, Hon. H. A. McKeown, intervened, and after a consultation with his colleagues informed Mr. Symington that it was unnecessary for him to argue that point further.

Further, the praise counsel, the binding character of the board's findings on itself being granted, next reviewed the history of the last ten years to show that the board's decision, that its powers to raise rates were limited by the Crow's Nest Pass agreement, had been recognized by parliament itself. If this principle had not been accepted, the board would not have been necessary. It would not have been necessary to invoke the war measures act to grant the 15 per cent increase in 1917, and that it was not necessary to suspend the Crow's Nest agreement in 1922. That opinion by the board had been the basis, further, of the act of 1922 continuing the suspension of the Crow's Nest agreement in part, it had been the reason for the application of the railways to the privy council in June last to have parliament continue the suspension of the agreement in part or in whole.

Ottawa Planning For Prince's Visit

Will Be Entertained at Government House October 17.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—The Prince of Wales will be the guest of honor at ball given at Government House by His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Byng Friday night, Oct. 17. The prince will spend three days in Ottawa on his way back home, arriving here on Oct. 16 and leaving on Oct. 18. The prince, it is of Wales, not as Baron Renfrew, his announced, will appear as the Prince in the United States, during the last three weeks. During his stay here in October, the prince is expected to attend a number of functions, official and non-official, including a public reception on Parliament Hill and a state dinner on Oct. 16, when he will meet members of the government, opposition and state dignitaries.

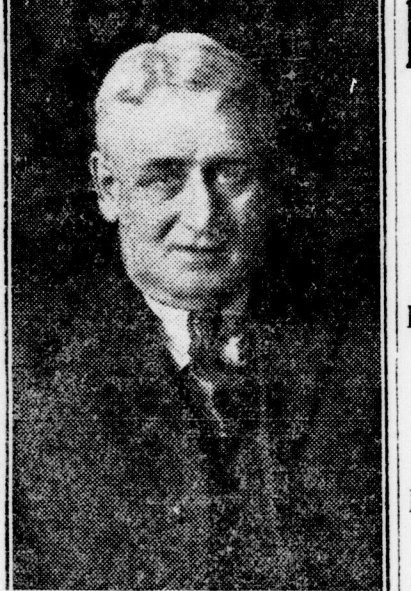

Father Missing For Week Family Facing Starvation

Wife of Robert H. Power Fears He Has Met With Accident.

RECEIVED PENSION

Signature of Husband Necessary To Secure Any Money.

Unless Robert H. Power, missing from his home in Manor Park for the past ten days, returns soon, his wife and two baby children will be left destitute, with neither money nor food.
Power, who is a returned soldier, left his home at 339 Forbes street, Manor Park, a week ago Saturday. His wife, who believed he had left for Mount Brydges, sought the aid of city and county police in an effort to locate him, but as yet no word of the missing man has been received.
A pension which Power received from the D. S. C. R. for his services during the war has been the only maintenance of the family. The checks made out for installments are worthless unless Power's signature is attached, and although the D. S. C. R. allowed Mrs. Power a small sum of money, it is not enough to live on.

SECRECY VEILS CABINET SESSION

But Anglo-Russian Treaty Is Declared To Have Featured Long Parley.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Sept. 23.—Although the government when it took office promised fuller accounts of the cabinet meetings than the public had ever been previously allowed, nothing was given out officially regarding yesterday's discussions except that they had the quite unusual duration of nearly four hours, and were occupied with "miscellaneous business." The political news writers, however, are less reticent, and serve their papers with lengthy and various reports of the proceedings.
The opinion is general that the Anglo-Russian treaty was one of the chief topics under consideration, especially with reference to Mr. Asquith's emphatic repudiation of the loan proposals and it is mostly agreed that the ministers feel themselves in an awkward position in view of the impossibility of carrying out the proposals in the face of a virtually united opposition.
It is suggested that the government may attempt to escape the difficulty by accepting amendments to the treaty, but this idea is repudiated in those ministerial quarters where the treaty is most strongly advocated, and where it is insisted that no amendment tending to alter the principle of the pact is admissible.

WOMAN NOT EXPECTED TO LOSE HER EYESIGHT

Condition of Mrs. Ensign Shows Some Improvement—Doctors Hopeful.

Physicians at Victoria Hospital believe that the eyesight of Mrs. Sylvanus Ensign, 1024 King street, who was yesterday brought to that institution suffering from severe muriatic acid burns about the face and eyes, will be saved.
In reaching to take some articles from a shelf at her home, Mrs. Ensign upset the muriatic acid bottle. It toppled over and in hitting the shelf broke, splashing the strong acid into her face and eyes.
When she was admitted to Victoria Hospital yesterday morning, physicians feared that the sight of both eyes would be lost, but this afternoon her condition was reported to be slightly improved.
It was stated at the hospital today that, although the burns are deep and had been exposed to the air for some time, it is thought that Mrs. Ensign's eyesight will not be lost.

Rambouillet, France, Sept. 23.—The French cabinet has approved the list of the negotiators and experts who, with Minister of Commerce Raymond, will meet the Germans in Paris in October to draft the proposed Franco-German commercial treaty.
Raymond and his staff, with the aid of a large commission of industrialists, have been at work for some time gathering data and formulating ideas in preparation for making the treaty.

PROTOCOL BELIEVED GUARANTEE

League Delegates Claim Document Involves Watertight Plan Against War.

BRITAIN'S STAND

Henderson Declares Fleet Cannot Be Used To Enforce Sanctions of League.

Associated Press Despatch.
Geneva, Sept. 23.—A watertight system against the outbreak of war is the way many delegates today characterized the draft protocol on arbitration and security which is now being studied by the disarmament commission of the League of Nations. This document is now generally known as the masterpiece of the "twelve apostles of peace," the title given by Paul Boncour of France to the conference leaders who struggled valiantly through a week of revision of the original draft submitted by Foreign Minister Benes of Czechoslovakia.
Several points seemed particularly to strike the delegates as they had more leisure today to examine the text. One is the clause providing that consultation with the world court of justice be required if, during arbitration procedure, either party to a dispute contended that the difficulty was a purely domestic matter. If the court decided it was an internal question, then the arbitral court could not deal with it. Thus it is the court which differentiates between an internal and an external question.
One of the points approved by many of the delegates is the cryptic definition of an aggressor as one who refuses to arbitrate and who refuses also to carry out the preliminary measures ordered by the council before a dispute has reached its most acute phase in order to prevent the outbreak of armed conflict.

The clear and precise statement of Arthur Henderson, British home secretary, here yesterday as to the attitude of the British delegation on the question of the use of the British fleet in enforcing sanctions against aggressive nations it is believed will dispel any misgivings that may have been entertained in connection with the matter in the earlier stages of the discussion by the committee on disarmament.

WOMAN CONFESSES TO AIDING PASTOR IN POISONING PLOT

Mrs. Elsie Sweetin of Mount Elgin, Ill., Breaks Down After All-Night Vigil.

SIGNS STATEMENT

Tells How Three Doses Were Necessary To Put End To Husband.

Associated Press Despatch.
Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 23.—After an all-night vigil, Mrs. Elsie Sweetin confessed this morning that she was implicated with the Rev. Lawrence Hight of Ina in the plot to poison her husband and Mrs. Hight in order that she and the minister could be married, thus continuing the life of the same cell with the minister, with State Attorney Thompson.
Arrested yesterday at her home in Ina, near here, Mrs. Sweetin declared that she had been admitted by the minister, but broke down this morning after being closeted in the same cell with the minister, with State Attorney Thompson.
The text of the confession signed by Mrs. Sweetin follows:
"The first time that I noticed that Lawrence H. Hight had any feeling of affection for me was in April, 1924. My husband for some time had treated me without affection. I was a devoted wife and I finally discovered that I returned his affections. About three months ago he suggested that he give me some poison to give to my husband and he would do the same to his wife.
At first I was horrified, but he talked so plausibly and I had such confidence in him that it seemed to me to be right to do it. We then finally agreed that I was to administer the poison to my husband. I, Wilford Sweetin, and he was to administer to his wife, Anna Hight. And when a week or two later my husband was hurt, I was the mine, Lawrence Hight gave me a paper package which he told me contained poison, and he told me to give some of it to Wilford in anything.
Wilford was hurt in the mine on the night of July 16, and the following day we went to Benton and went to a drug store and got some ice cream and soda water, and on the way home I gave Wilford, my husband, some chocolate candy in which

Dr. D. L. McCrae, Well-Known City Clergyman, in Serious Condition.

Dr. D. L. McCrae, well-known retired Presbyterian minister of this city, was stricken with a paralytic stroke while he was conducting church services at Rodney on Sunday.
Dr. McCrae managed to get to his home at 13 Hyatt avenue unassisted, but his right side is completely paralyzed and he has lost the power of speech. His condition is reported to be serious, but hope is held that his speech may be restored within a few weeks.
Dr. McCrae is one of the best known ministers in London. Although he retired from the service several years ago, he has been actively engaged in church work in London recently, having preached at the First Presbyterian Church and at St. Andrew's Church throughout the summer.
At his home on Hyatt avenue where he has been confined, his condition was reported this afternoon to be unchanged.

FIRE SWEEPS SECOND TOWN IN QUEBEC

St. Urbain, 25 Miles From Montreal, in Danger of Hotel Destruction.

150 ARE HOMELESS

Lack of Fire-Fighting Equipment Allows Flames To Gain Headway.

Associated Press Despatch.
Montreal, Sept. 23.—More than twenty buildings have been destroyed and 150 people are homeless as the result of a fire which broke out early this morning in the village of St. Urbain, about 25 miles from Montreal, and at last advised the fire was still burning and threatening the entire village.
St. Urbain is within a few miles of St. Constant, practically destroyed by fire yesterday.
The fire is reported to have begun in the home of J. Dubuc, and to have spread through the neighboring part of the village with great rapidity. The villagers were aroused from their slumbers in the middle of the night by the clanging of the church bells sounding an alarm.
A volunteer fire brigade was at once organized, but owing to the fire-fighting apparatus available being of a very crude character and the water supply being low, it was of little use. It was thought the church and presbytery were safe as they were a little removed from the village.
The blaze is believed to have originated in a stable in the rear of a hotel, where a negligent tramp had apparently dropped a lighted match on a cigarette butt. The damage done is estimated at $150,000. This is the second disastrous fire within two days in the vicinity of the village of St. Urbain, being practically wiped out yesterday. The chief losses are two general stores, the hotel of J. Dubuc, a carriage factory and a number of houses.

HEAVY FROST TONIGHT MAY HIT GRAPE CROP

Weatherman's Predictions Cause Flurry Among the District Growers.

The weatherman predicts frosts for London and district tonight which means that city floriculture experts would be well advised to cover their flower beds with papers or canvas.
Fruit and vegetable growers have been quite elated over the warm weather which prevailed last week, as late vegetables, such as cauliflower, cabbages and tomatoes needed the sunshine in the worst way.
Fruit growers, who had given up hope of a good crop, are now more optimistic, but frosts tonight, if they are at all heavy, will be a severe setback to them, as they mean a loss of thousands of dollars.

VESSELS RUSH TO AID OF STRICKEN STEAMER

Cranford Sends Out S. O. S. Calls Off Coast of Spain.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Sept. 23.—An S.O.S. message from a steamship giving her name as the Cranford, and her position as about 50 miles off the north-west tip of Spain, received yesterday evening, caused the British steamers Orsova and Letrim, bound from Australia to London, to rush to her assistance.
The distress signal came from 43°40 north latitude, 9°55 west longitude, which is northwest of La Coruna, Spain, and about 25 miles north of the regular steamship line from the United Kingdom to Havana. The Orsova reported last night that at 11 o'clock she was 47 miles from the Cranford, and that the Letrim was 39 miles from the point indicated in the S.O.S.
It was at first believed that the Cranford was the U. S. Shipping Board vessel of that name which left New Orleans Aug. 31, for Bremen, but later it was learned that she had arrived at her destination. The only other steamer Cranford listed in shipping registers is a British ship of 1,710 tons gross, whose recent movements had not been recorded.

Bishop's Wife Journeys On Foot Through Great Canadian Wilderness

Mrs. I. O. Stringer, Now in London, Is Pioneer of Most Courageous Type.

VISITS FAR NORTH

Trip to Herschel Island Is But a Holiday Jaunt for Intrepid Missionaries.

Over swamp and rocky mountain trail, through the farthest reaches at the Yukon even to Herschel Island in the Arctic Sea. Travelling by boat and on foot with Indian packers and dogs. Such is the remarkable story of Mrs. I. O. Stringer, wife of the bishop of the Yukon. And yet to her, pioneer mother of the northland, it is but a summer's outing. She who gave birth to her first child on Herschel Island, 250 miles from a white woman and 2,000 miles from a doctor, looks upon a trek across the Canadian wilderness, in the same light as we, the pampered children of Ontario, look upon a motor trip to Niagara Falls.

Mrs. Pringle, dark-eyed and dark-haired, has the stocky figure which betokens strength. Like a little Shetland pony she stands ever ready to pull the bishop who has an enormous responsibility in his great diocese of the Yukon. She is the mother of five children. She has a home to keep going in Dawson. And yet she has time to accompany her husband on his roughest trips. This year's journey included a hundred mile portage on foot from La Plante's House in the Yukon to Fort McPherson in the Mackenzie River district the worst ever travelled by the bishop and one never before travelled by a white woman.

Looks After the Bishop. On this same trail the bishop nearly lost his life fifteen years ago. And his wife went along this time to see that the Indians didn't travel too fast for him. Three Indians and dogs made up the party, making the trip on foot.

Most of the way they were travelling over Nigger-Head Swamp. Here the walking is very difficult because of the little tufts of grass or nigger-heads growing out of small lumps of earth reaching up out of the swamp.

If we stepped on the nigger-heads, we were liable to slip off and twist our ankles; so at a certain point we stepped over them and sank into the deep mud between," said Mrs. Stringer describing the journey over this Rocky Mountain Portage, as it is called.

"It is most difficult walking. Part of the way is thick with willows through which we had to work our way. Swift streams had to be forded, mountains to be climbed and rocky places traversed. Some of the way is altogether swamp and when we stopped to camp at night, we would be wet to the waist. However, the journey was made without mishap—one hundred miles on foot in eight days."

Here For Synod. But this portage was a very small part of a trip which began at Dawson on June 5 and ended in Edmonton on August 22. From Edmonton the bishop and Mrs. Stringer proceeded east and are now at the Belvedere Hotel, this city, during the sessions of the General Synod.

Many and interesting are the experiences which the bishop and Mrs. Stringer have to tell of their nomadic life this summer. Everywhere they were received with enthusiasm by Indians and Eskimoes who were eager for Christian services.

On one occasion the bishop and Mrs. Stringer had struck camp for the night and retired into their tent and to bed. Neighboring Eskimoes had seen their arrival, however, and came to the tent for admittance. They were told to enter and while the bishop and Mrs. Stringer remained in bed, wearied by their difficult of Glenora, Ont., who before her marriage on Wednesday last, was Miss Olive Watts. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Watts of Glenora.

On the way to Herschel Island the Eskimoes desired which the bishop never before did a bishop speak from so lowly a pulpit. Yet the spirit of worship burned as brightly as if from a Cathedral altar.

Meets Young and Party. The way to Herschel Island the bishop and Mrs. Stringer met Lieut. Young and his party, who had been sent there to install a wireless station. They had failed to reach the island, however, on account of the wreck of the S. S. Lady Kindersley.

It was to Herschel Island that this intrepid missionary brought Mrs. Stringer as a bride 28 years ago. Here in a sod house her first child was born and named Herschel, having been born farther north than any other British child. He is now a student of medicine at Toronto University. The bishop and Mrs. Stringer were the first missionaries who took up permanent residence on Herschel Island. Others had been there before them for short periods of time but had been forced to flee for their lives before the treacherous Eskimoes. Now those Eskimoes, Christianized, are a happy, jolly, kind-hearted people, enjoying many of the privileges of civilization.

Mrs. Stringer is the president of the Yukon branch of the Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church and goes to Hamilton on Saturday to be present at the Dominion meeting there.

WOMEN and THE HOME

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

A Heart-to-Heart Talk to Husbands and Wives About Opening Each Other's Mail—Shall She Marry Her Tightwad Sweetheart?—The Girl Who Broke Her Engagement Because of Her Fiance's Mother.

Dear Miss Dix—Has a wife a right to open her husband's letters and read them? MRS. R. W. A.

Answer:

Certainly not. Neither has a husband a right to open and read his wife's letters without her express permission. For either husband or wife to open the other's letters is a violation of the ethics of good taste and an exhibition of prying curiosity and suspicion that is an insult to the one whose mail has been tampered with.

A letter is an intensely personal thing, intended just for the one to whom it is written, and neither a husband nor wife should feel that he or she has a right to supervise the other's correspondence.

A man's wife has no right to know many of the private affairs of his sisters and brothers that they might like to consult him about, nor has a husband any right to hear every detail of the troubles of his wife's family that they tell her in their letters. Both men and women have old friends who write them things that are intended for the friend's eyes only, not for the callous and critical reading of strangers.

So real delicacy of feeling would prompt husbands and wives not to ask to see the letters that are written to their mates. Certainly, a man or woman who can't be trusted to get a letter is so poor and miserable a creature that he or she is not worth watching, nor is any system of espionage successful. If a husband or a wife desires to carry on a compromising correspondence with anyone there are plenty of ways to do it.

Married people often think that they are under no obligation to observe the decencies of life with each other, or to respect each other's privacy and individuality. Never was there a greater mistake. Just because husbands and wives are thrown into the intimate contact of daily life; just because they are so much in each other's power, it is the more necessary for them to use every courtesy and nice observation toward each other, if they are to keep any illusions whatever regarding each other.

Married couples soon get on each other's nerves if they never grant each other any liberty, and if each has to render an account to the other for every thought and word and furnish an alibi for every hour of the day and night. You cannot make a prison-house of matrimony and expect either a man or woman to love it. The things that count in marriage are the free granting of each to the other of some personal life of his or her own on which the other does not intrude—the right to gratify a fad, to go into a room and shut the door and be alone, to have one's own individual clothes and toilet articles that no one else uses, to get one's letters unopened.

Believe me, many a marriage that goes on the rocks could have been saved by a husband or a wife respecting the privacy of the other. For familiarity not only breeds distrust, it is the mother of hatred. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young girl twenty years of age, and for two years I have been going with a young man. He is a very nice chap, well educated and has a good position. He comes to my house every week, but he has never taken me to any place of amusement or spent any money on me. He even goes to the theatre and movies by himself all the time. This man wants to marry me. Do you think I would be happy with him? ANXIOUS.

Answer:

I certainly do not. Of all the husbands in the category of men whom it is dangerous to marry, the very worst is the tightwad. An open-handed spender, or even a drunkard, is a less aggravating life partner than one who does out the pennies and who always asks his wife what she did with the quarter he gave her week before last.

This man has given you a taste of his quality. He has shown you that he has no care for your happiness or pleasure, and that he is utterly selfish. If a man treats his sweetheart that way when he is courting her, he will display those qualities intensified a thousand times when he is married. If he never takes you anywhere now nor gives you a good time, be sure that he will think that cooking and washing are amusement enough for you after marriage, and you will never again see another picture or a show unless somebody else takes you.

If he is selfish enough to go to the theatre alone now, he will have all the good clothes and step out alone after marriage and leave you alone with the babies.

And your miser husband will make your life a burden to you because he will always be snooping around the icechest and the garbage can, demanding to know why you didn't peel the potatoes a little thinner and why you threw away a bread crust. And on the days when the bills come in you will be terrified of your life, he will raise such ructions over them.

Don't marry a stingy man, for the man who has a padlock on his pocket before marriage will keep his purse in a steel safe after marriage, and you will never be able to jimmy into it. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I have just broken my engagement on account of the following situation: Jack's mother is extremely devoted to her son. Also, she is fanatically religious, and she has always been upset over our engagement merely because I am not affiliated with any such. For two years the obsession has been gathering momentum, and she has finally become a nervous wreck over worrying about the matter, until lately the doctors have decided that for us to marry would either mean death or mental derangement for the old lady. When this was put before me by my embarrassed sweetheart I saw no alternative but to free him and put an end to the misery I was causing.

We still love each other—perhaps more than ever—and can only trust in God to work a change of some sort in the situation, so that some day we may find ourselves free to marry. I feel sure of Jack's love—he was terribly cut up over the realization that there was no other way out than to call it off, yet I don't want to be fatuously credulous. What do you think? M. P. C.

Answer:

I think you did the fine and altruistic thing. You could not have taken your happiness at the price of a half-demented old woman's life. Also I think that if you had married her son she would have nagged you to destruction.

Perhaps the woman who thinks herself so good will some day become a Christian herself and see what a wicked thing she is doing in destroying the happiness of two young people in order to try to force her own ideas upon them, and how un-Christlike is her attitude, how unlike Him who said even to the Magdalene, "Neither do I condemn thee."

MOTHERS' CLUBS
MARK BIRTHDAY

Union Executive Plans an Important Meeting For 20th Anniversary, Nov. 5.

The Union Mothers' Club of the city will mark its twentieth anniversary on Nov. 5 by the holding of a special birthday meeting, plans for which were made at last night's meeting of the Union Club executive held in the Technical School. When the Mothers' Club movement was begun twenty years ago this autumn, there was but one club, made up of mothers of kindergarten pupils from all parts of the city. Later the club was subdivided into school clubs. As a special guest at the November meeting will be Mrs. Frank Irwin of Toronto, the first president of the London Union Mothers' Club, and Mrs. Becker, also of Toronto, organizing secretary of the Home and School Federation.

After an address by E. E. Reid on the coming plebiscite on the O. T. A., the Union Club executive voted $35 from the treasury towards the campaign for preservation of the O. T. A. Mr. Reid, as he urged the members to support the O. T. A., stated that he had accepted the presidency of the London temperance campaign committee, because he believed that he had seen more of the workings of government control in the other provinces than the average citizen. His business necessitated that he travel once a year through all of the provinces. And he believed that whatever a person's temperance views might be, if they had seen what he had seen and was an average decent citizen, he would not want government control in Ontario.

"Whenever you put the sale of liquor into the hands of the government," he said, "they sell as long as much as they can. I saw more drunken men on the streets of Montreal one day last week than I have seen in the past six years in Ontario."

Subjects for discussion during the coming year were brought before the executive meeting and were given

THE SEA HAWK

By RAFAEL SABATINI.

With the servants who met them in the hall they dealt in the same swift, silent fashion as they had dealt with the gatekeeper, and such was the speed and caution of their movements that Sir John and his company had no suspicion of their presence until the door of the dining-room crashed open before their eyes.

The sight which they beheld was one that for some moments left them amazed and bewildered. They imagined that here was some mummer, some surprise prepared for the bridal couple by Sir John's tenants or the folk of Smithwick and Penny-cumwick, and were encouraged in this belief by the circumstance that not a single weapon gleamed in all that horde of outlandish intruders. Although they came full-armoured against any eventualities, yet by Sir John's orders not a blade was to be drawn. What was to do was to be done with their naked hands alone and without bloodshed. Such were the orders of Sakr-el-Bahr, and Sakr-el-Bahr's were not orders to be disregarded.

Himself he stood forward at the head of that legion of brown-skinned men arrayed in all the colors of the rainbow, their heads swathed in turbans of every hue. He considered their leader in grim silence, and the company in amazement considered this turbaned giant with the masterful face that was tanned to the color of mahogany, the black worked beard, and those singularly light eyes glittering like steel under his black brows.

Thus a little while in silence, then with a sudden gasp Lionel Tressilian sank back in his tall chair as if bereft of strength.

The agate eyes flashed upon him, smiling cruelly.

"I see that you, at least, recognize me," said Sakr-el-Bahr in his deep voice. "I was assured I could depend upon the eyes of brotherly love to pierce the change that time and stress have wrought in me."

Sir John was on his feet, his lean, swarthy face flushing darkly, an oath on his lips. Rosamund sat on as if frozen with horror, considering Sir Oliver with dilating eyes, whilst her hands clanked the table before her. They, too, recognized him now and realized that there was no mummery, that something sinister was intended.

Sir John could not for a moment doubt. But of what that something might be he could form no notion. He was the first time that Barbary rovers were seen in England. That famous raid of theirs upon Baltimore in Ireland did not take place until some thirty years after this date.

"Sir Oliver Tressilian!" Killigrew gasped, and—

"Sir Oliver Tressilian!" echoed Lord Henry Goode.

"Not Sir Oliver Tressilian," came the answer, "but Sakr-el-Bahr, the scourge of the sea, the terror of Christendom, the desperate corsair, your lies, cupidity and false heartedness have fashioned out of a some time Cornish gentleman."

He embraced them all in his denunciatory gesture. "Behold me here with my cry that was entirely inarticulate, sea-hawks to present reckoning long overdue."

Sir John leapt to snatch a weapon from the armored walls.

Sakr-el-Bahr barked out a single word in Arabic, and at that word half dozen of his supple blackamoors sprang upon a hare and bore him writhing to the ground.

Rosamund, white to the lips, continued to look on, whilst Lionel, overcome covered his face with his hands in horror. One and all of them expected to see some ghastly deed of blood performed there, coldly and opened and Lionel was swallowed up in the sea.

He laughed.

"I have a mind to gratify myself. I will not separate you—not just yet."

He advanced upon her, "Come," he commanded, and held out his hand.

Face to face stood now Sir Oliver with Rosamund—face to face after five long years, and he realized that in every moment of that time the certainty had never departed from him of some such parting meeting.

"Come lady," he bade her sternly.

A moment she looked at him with hate and loathing in the clear depths of her blue eyes. Then swiftly as lightning she snatched a knife from the board and drove it at his heart.

But his hand moved as swiftly to seize her wrist, and the knife clattered to the ground, unfulfilled.

A shuddering sob escaped her then to express at once her horror of her own attempt and of the man who held her. That horror mounting until it overpowered her, she sank suddenly against him in a swoon.

Instinctively his arms went round her, and a moment he held her thus, recalling the last occasion on which she had lain against his breast, on an evening five years and more ago under the grey wall of Godolphin Court above the river.

He shifted his grip to her waist, heaved her to his mighty shoulder as though she was a sack of grain and swung about, his business Arvenack accomplished—indeed, more of it accomplished than had been his intent, and also something less.

"Away, away!" he cried to his rovers, and away they sped as fleetly and silently as they had come, no man raising now so much as a voice to hinder them.

calously as the wringing of a capon's neck. But no such thing took place. The corsairs merely turned Sir John upon his face, dragging his wrists behind him to make them fast, and having performed that duty with a speedy, silent dexterity they abandoned him.

Sakr-el-Bahr watched their performance with those grimly smiling eyes of his. When it was done he spoke again and pointed to Lionel, who leaped up in sudden terror with a cry that was entirely inarticulate. Little brown arms encircled him like a legion of snakes. Powerless, he was lifted in the air and borne swiftly away. For an instant he found himself held face to face with his turbaned brother, into that pallid, terror-stricken human mask the renegade's eyes stabbed like two daggers. Then deliberately and after the fashion of the Moslem he became he spat upon it.

"Away!" he growled, and through the press of corsairs that thronged the hall behind him a lane was swiftly opened and Lionel was swallowed up in the sea.

He laughed.

Reddy Fox Sees Farmer Brown's Boy Carrying Unc' Billy to the Barnyard

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

It just happened that Reddy Fox was over near the end of the Long Lane when Farmer Brown's Boy and Bowser the Hound entered it from the cornfield on their way home. It was bright moonlight, and Reddy could see them almost as clearly as if it had been daylight. But they didn't see Reddy. You see Reddy was standing in the Black Shadows, looking pleased over it. Yes sir, he actually looks pleased. I must find out more about this.

So when Farmer Brown's Boy and Bowser the Hound and Unc' Billy Possum went up the Long Lane some one else went up the Long Lane. It was Reddy Fox. He heard him tell Bowser the Hound to watch him. He saw Bowser sit down beside Unc' Billy and Farmer Brown's Boy go into the barn. The instant Farmer Brown's Boy disappeared Reddy moved over a little nearer to Bowser and Unc' Billy Possum. He still kept in the Black Shadows. Reddy was thinking hard and fast.

"If I can get Bowser away from Unc' Billy Possum perhaps I'll have a chance to get Unc' Billy myself."

He thought he "It is worth trying anyway."

Reddy Fox trotted along softly in the Black Shadows at one side.

around awhile, and see what Farmer Brown's Boy does with him. MY, how fat Unc' Billy looks! Just looking at him makes me hungry."

So Reddy hid where he could see all he had to do was to keep watch. That wasn't very difficult, in the Black Shadows. He saw Farmer Brown's Boy stretch Unc' Billy on the ground and heard him tell Bowser the Hound to watch him. He saw Bowser sit down beside Unc' Billy and Farmer Brown's Boy go into the barn. The instant Farmer Brown's Boy disappeared Reddy moved over a little nearer to Bowser and Unc' Billy Possum. He still kept in the Black Shadows. Reddy was thinking hard and fast.

GUELPH MAN SUICIDES AS EMPLOYMENT FAILS

Richard Hulme, 30 Years Old, Drowns Self in Speed River.

Special to The Advertiser. Guelph, Sept. 22.—Depressed and discouraged owing to the fact that he was unable to obtain employment, Richard Hulme, a young Englishman, 30 years old, drowned himself in the Speed River. Before committing the rash act, Hulme placed his sweater about him and on a pile on the bank of the river. He then stepped into the river. A little girl in passing noticed the man's clothing, and on further investigation discovered the body in about four feet of water. She told her father, who in turn notified the police. Hulme had been out of work for over a month, and had unable to secure a job. He leaves a wife and two children at Leith, England. He had only been in Canada six months. Coroner Dr. A. MacKinnon investigated the circumstances, and decided an inquest was unnecessary.

COULD NOT SLEEP NIGHTS

Pains and Headaches Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dublin, Ontario.—"I was weak and irregular, with pains and headaches, and could not sleep nights. I learned about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by reading the letters in the newspapers and tried it because I wanted to get better. I have got good results from it as I feel a lot stronger and am no longer troubled with such bad headaches as I used to be and am more regular. I am gaining weight all the time and I tell my friends what kind of medicine I am taking. You may use my letter as a help to others." Mrs. JAMES RACHO, Box 12, Dublin, Ontario.

Halifax Nurse Recommends

Halifax, N.S.—"I am a maternity nurse and have recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to many women who need a good tonic, also to women who have children, I am English and my husband is American, and he told me of Lydia E. Pinkham while in England. I would appreciate a copy or two of your little books on women's ailments. I have one which I keep to lend. I will willingly answer letters from any woman asking about the Vegetable Compound." Mrs. S. M. COLEMAN, 24 Uniacke St., Halifax, Nova Scotia.

MAGNESIA FINE FOR ACID STOMACH

Quickly Neutralizes Acidity, Stops Fermentation, Sweetens the Stomach.

Nine people in ten, when food upsets the stomach causing distress, think they have indigestion. In reality they are suffering from "acid stomach." An excess of acid in the stomach causes gas, heartburn, bloating and sourness. To have a strong healthy stomach capable of easily and normally digesting three hearty meals a day you simply must keep these stomach acids neutralized and the stomach contents sweet. No artificial digestants are necessary. Just get a few ounces of Bisulphate of Magnesia from any good drug store and take a teaspoonful of the powder or two tablets in a half glass of water right after eating or whenever the slightest pain is felt. The result is amazing and you will be delighted with the almost instant relief it brings. This famous stomach sweetener combines Magnesia and Bisulphate in desirable proportions and is not only splendidly effective, but perfectly harmless. Its regular use keeps the stomach sweet, strong and healthy all the time. Bisulphate of Magnesia is well known to druggists everywhere and is used annually by more than a half million people who now eat as they please, in reason, with no more fear of indigestion.—Adv.

GRAND PRESENTS MINSTREL SHOW

Combined Companies of Gus Hill and "Honey Boy" Evans Please Crowd.

SINGING SPLENDID

The unusual spectacle of two great minstrel shows combined was one that proved exceptionally popular when Gus Hill's "Honey Boy" Evans Minstrels appeared at the Grand Theatre last night.

This minstrel show is one which runs the gamut of everything productive of hilarity. New ideas, innovations featured with comedy and song constitute a show of merit throughout.

In the "Honey Boy" minstrel, Gus Hill has produced a show which ranks with the best offered in days gone by when the inimitable "Honey Boy" Evans himself held sway. The old and modern school of minstrelsy are blended. The ever-popular old-time songs are there, but with them a dash of jazz which adds a flavor of modernism.

The first act is typically minstrel, with six endmen, talented students of the burnt-cork role, engaging in a continual line of patter. The act is bolstered by travesties, songs and dances.

The second act, a series of vaudeville skits, is even better than the first, with many original scenes and effects. A jazz orchestra, which plays many of the most popular American songs, forms a pleasing feature.

There is much talent in Gus Hill's minstrel. The singing is of the highest calibre, and the show itself is versatile. Music of all kinds, varieties of dance and side-splitting black-face comedy held first-nighters until the final curtain.

"Honey Boy" Evans was one of the most popular colored comedians on the American minstrel stage, and his Hill's revue is worthy of bearing his name.

ASQUITH CONDEMNS ANGLO-SOVIET PACT

Liberals Expect Change in Treaty Rather Than Election.

Canadian Press Despatch. London, Sept. 22.—The letter of H. H. Asquith, Liberal leader, to a correspondent, condemning the Anglo-Soviet treaty, especially the protested loan and referring "Rude experiment in measuring diplomacy," feels the position so far as the orthodox Liberals are concerned. The Labor government is now confronted by the fact that with possibly one or two exceptions Liberals are pledged to oppose the loan to Russia. No section of representative Liberal opinion, however, appears to believe that there will be an immediate general election. The feeling now is that the government before the issue reaches a crucial stage in the House of Commons will have an opportunity to revise its plans of settlement with Russia or elaborate the present proposals. If the former course is adopted it is suggested in Liberal circles that negotiations between British ministers and Soviet representatives from Moscow must be resumed. They will have an opportunity with which the MacDonald government is faced.

HURON TOWNSHIP FARMER BREAKS LEGS IN 30-FT. FALL

Special to The Advertiser. Ripley, Sept. 22.—Jack Funston, a farmer living on concession line in Huron Township, had both legs broken when he fell 30 feet from the roof of his barn.

It appears that Funston was cleaning his shaft, which had accumulated during a recent threshing, from the roof of the barn, when he slipped and fell to the ground.

AGED BRUSSELS WOMAN FOUND DEAD AT HER HOME

Special to The Advertiser. Brussels, Sept. 22.—Mrs. Duncan Livingston, an old resident of this locality, who had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Yull, was found dead at her home when Mr. and Mrs. Yull returned home after spending an evening with friends.

A neighbor had been to the home at 9 o'clock and had seen Mrs. Livingston safely to bed. She was past 80 years of age.

HONORED BY CHOIR

Special to The Advertiser. Wallaceburg, Sept. 22.—After the regular choir practice at St. James Anglican Church, on Thursday evening, the members adjourned to the rectory to bid farewell to James Fish, who left today for London. A pleasant hour was spent in music and a social chat and refreshments were served by Mrs. (Rev.) F. V. Vair.

Gems Were Real But Fried So Dreams of Riches Faded

Because H. R. Shook of Toronto preferred his oysters fried, rather than raw, it cost him $300. While eating oysters at the Griggs House Cafe last night, seven beautiful pearls rolled into his mouth. Mr. Shook thought for a while that fortune was smiling upon him, but disappointment awaited him. On finishing his dinner he took the pearls to a well-known Dundas street jeweler to discover their value. The jeweler declared that while they were real pearls of excellent quality originally, they had lost all value because they had been affected by heat. If they had not been sub-

CITY COUNCIL TO END AGREEMENT WITH C. OF C.

Officials of Organization Will Confer With Number 1 Committee.

VERBAL BATTLE

Aldermen Declare the City Hall Should House the Publicity Dept.

Urging that the city's publicity headquarters be in the city hall and not at the chamber of commerce, Ald. Allan Towe and Ald. Gordon Drake last evening sponsored a resolution in council to terminate the agreement between the chamber of commerce and number one committee. It was agreed, following an amendment by Ald. Greer, that the publicity department be moved to the city hall.

Ald. Towe's move brought on the most vigorous cross-fire of the 70-minute session, from which only Ald. Frank McKay was absent. Ald. Towe asked that three months' notice be given. He said it was a matter of $2,500 a year. Ald. Drake declared that the right place for the publicity department was in the city hall and not at the chamber of commerce headquarters.

Ald. Greer, Ald. Hayden and the mayor proved staunch supporters of the chamber of commerce. Ald. Greer declared that the body raised $20,000 a year among its 800 members and spent half that sum on town planning and other useful civic developments. "I think there's a lack of knowledge on the part of this council when they talk like this of the Chamber of Commerce," said Ald. Hayden. "I should think it was poor business to antagonize 800 businessmen of the city of London."

Ald. Anderson believed that the city should have a publicity department, but that it should be in the city hall and the city publicity agent attend the meetings of the council and keep himself well acquainted with the city business. Ald. Greer's motion to discuss the matter with the industrial commissioners finally passed.

Ald. Greer and Ald. Douglas were appointed a special committee to go to Toronto to interview Attorney-General W. P. Nixson, K.C., regarding the London juvenile court. Ald. Greer brought up the matter and moved that the Children's Aid Society take over the operation of the work, and Police Magistrate Graydon to handle the juvenile court cases.

"Windsor's juvenile court costs $45 and St. Catharines $25 each year. There's a dozen of them like that," declared Ald. Greer. He pointed to court salaries as being far in excess of the departmental wage bills. If the present figure were paid a salary of $10,000 would run to $10,000.

Ald. Towe moved for a regulation in the fire bylaw to provide for regular police protection at all fires. Ald. Smith asked that No. 1 committee consider the publication of the assessment roll, as was done in 1916. On the motion of no permits for advertising streamers across city streets be granted after October 15.

Ald. Douglas moved to have the case of Relief Inspector MacCallum re-opened. He lost on a vote of 7 to 5, but declared he would bring the case up again at the next council session.

PENNY POSTAGE DECLARED IMPOSSIBLE IN AUSTRALIA

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 22.—Hon. W. E. Gibson, the Commonwealth postmaster-general, when interviewed here on his arrival from England today, said penny postage in Australia was impossible owing to the heavy expense of transporting mail long distances.

Mr. Gibson advocated the establishment in Europe of a representative of the Commonwealth government.

"I Suffered Terribly With Sore, Aching Back"

Mrs. Roland Ferguson, 194 Lake St., Peterboro, Ont., writes:

"For over two years I suffered terribly with sore back. I was almost mad with the pain, and had doctored with it until I was discouraged. Then my father, who is a firm believer in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I followed his advice, and am glad to say I was completely relieved of that torturing pain in my back. It is over a year since I used these pills, and I have had no return of the trouble, but always keep them in the house."

The architect at the present time is in charge of building a flawless city in his own country, which will be the capital, and is making a tour of the American continent investigating the civic government systems.

MAJESTIC SHOWS REAL BURLESQUE

Billy Gilbert and His "Whiz Bang Babies" Prove Entertaining.

Heading his own production designed and conceived by himself, Billy Gilbert has come to the Majestic Theatre for the entire week. The entertainment merits a successful run, for, in our opinion, it is the best burlesque offering that has been seen here this season.

The "Whiz Bang Babies" is the title of the show. In the program, Mr. Gilbert modestly states that it is a delightful excursion in two acts and seven scenes. It is a conservative statement, for the bill is only delightful, it is screamingly funny, and has a splendid cast of principals, with a clean-cut chorus to back up the humor.

Billy Gilbert is a portly gentleman who reminds one of George Robey. He possesses many of the little touches which have made Robey one of the premier entertainers of the varieties in England.

To see Billy Gilbert in one of his sneezing spasms is to see how feverish the golden rod plague are, strongly advised to see Mr. Gilbert in action. He has undoubtedly got the worst case on record, and the first night audience enjoyed the original treatment of new comedy lines.

Sam Bo Cohen as "Bones" snarles the funny stuff with the star. Alice Carmen, a girl of pleasing personality and a taste for music, underlines the comedy in a most effective way. These boys have a snappy way of working, and appeared to take advantage in their musical offerings.

Besides a well-balanced chorus plentifully supplied with gowns, the company carries its own orchestra. A lot of comedy is injected into the playing. It went over big. It was extremely funny, but for our own part we would like to have seen it finished off with one or two popular numbers played without the humorous discards.

However, there was lots of music, dancing, pictures and scenes, and clean humor to make the production considerably above the average.

TRIVITT MEMORIAL CHURCH HOLDS HARVEST FESTIVAL

Special to The Advertiser. Exeter, Sept. 22.—Trivitt Memorial congregation held its annual harvest festival on Sunday morning and evening. Bishop Thomas of Brandon delivered appropriate addresses at both services.

The church was well decorated. Caven Church withdrew its evening service in order to attend. Caven Presbyterian congregation held its communion service on Sunday morning. The church was well filled. Dr. P. Strang of Saskatchewan spoke briefly at the close of the service. The session was assisted by D. Love, a former elder of Natran.

BILL AT LOEW'S EVENLY BALANCED

Viola Dana Stars in "Don't Doubt Your Husband"—Pictures of Prince.

VERSATILE ACTING

With three acts of vaudeville, every one good, and the last especially good, Viola Dana in a splendid picture of married life, entitled "Don't Doubt Your Husband," a Snub Pollard comedy, and the usual Pathé news, Loew's for the first half of this week is distinctly worth while. Everyone who is married or who thinks of getting married should see this merry satire on the suspicious wife who is always leaping at conclusions and keeping the matrimonial ship in a turmoil. It's clean, wholesome fun, spiced with the paprika of smartness and sizzling with tense situations.

Miss Dana, as the pretty little suburban wife, whose intensity of affection for her husband takes the form of wanting to supervise all of his actions, never looked more fashionable in her array of fashionable gowns and never romped through a role with more fascinating humor.

It is a photoplay that affords top-notch entertainment from the start, where Miss Dana, travelling the bumpy road of first year matrimony takes the wheel of their motor car from her husband and speeds to arrest, to the finish where she submits to a playful spanking for her tumultuous jealousy.

Heading the vaudeville list is Dan Jarrett and Company in a clever little husband and wife comedy, revolving round a friend whom the husband has invited to dinner and whom the wife does not want owing to an almost empty ice-box, and the fact that "she never liked that man anyway."

"That skit is absolutely true to life," chuckled the fact man who sat next to us. "I've had the same thing happen right in my own family."

The Four Perezoffs have a juggling act that drew a lot of applause, the male member of the foursome getting away with some snappy slapstick comedy that made a hit with the audience.

Harry Reed and Perry Mayo put over some fast footwork and have a few new jokes. They also do a little singing.

BRITISH WOMAN M. P. ARRIVES AT OTTAWA

Miss Margaret Bondfield, Labor Secretary, To Make Tour of Canada.

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Sept. 22.—Miss Margaret Bondfield, M.P., parliamentary secretary for Labor in the British House of Commons, arrived in Ottawa early this afternoon on her way across Canada. While in this country Miss Bondfield will carry on investigation work into conditions here for the information of the overseas settlement board.

Miss Bondfield, who is the first woman to sit on the treasury benches in the British House of Commons, will address the Women's Canadian Club and the Canadian Club of Ottawa on Tuesday evening.

Two secretaries, representing the British Overseas Settlement Board, are with Miss Bondfield's party.

Miss Bondfield, who has been prominently identified with the Labor movement for a number of years, has represented the party at international conferences at Geneva, Paris, Washington and Moscow. Mrs. Harrison Bell, a leader in the women's trade union movement, who is accompanying Miss Bondfield, was formerly representative of Labor on the overseas settlement board.

TWO OF CREW INJURED IN OIL TANKER EXPLOSION

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 22.—Advices received here today from the steamer Lithuania, carrying the crew of the oil tanker Ivor, reported on the last evening off Sable Island, and abandoned by officers and crew, stated that two of the Ivor's crew had been seriously injured by an explosion aboard the oil tanker.

Arrangements are being made to have the injured men conveyed to a hospital on their arrival here tomorrow morning.

Is Our Conscience Growing Dormant?

Hon. George P. Graham, acting minister of national defence, has made a frank statement about an investigation that has been under way for some weeks, looking into the purchasing of coal for buildings used by the militia department in Western Canada. The investigation covers a period of time between 1918 and the present, and there is enough in Mr. Graham's statement to warrant the belief that his auditor has found conditions that call for the use of that nasty word, "scandal." One sentence is very significant: "The commissioner finds that grave irregularities have occurred in respect to these contracts, both as to the quality of the coal delivered and the quantities involved."

It is evident that there were some parties who saw in the acceptance of office where public business was to be transacted, not an opportunity to be of service to the taxpayers who paid their salaries, but rather a chance to gouge these ratepayers for their own personal advantage. In Hamilton today the public are asking for the names of citizens who are alleged to have been conniving with employees of the tax collection department to secure a reduction in their share of the common burden. It serves no good purpose to enter upon a discussion as to which is the more guilty—an official who will use his office to defraud the municipality or the man who enters the conspiracy with him in order that he may reap benefit. Both are guilty of the common crime of failing to measure up to the trust that was theirs.

The Home Bank case has been before the public for over a year. Today it goes on before the court at Toronto, and about the only bright spot it has revealed was the record of one man who was dismissed because he refused to sign a statement he knew to be false. The whole story is a recital of the work of men who failed to meet the trust of the people who came in good faith to do business with them.

These three cases are cited here because they are gathered around one common point—disregard for the principles of old-fashioned honesty. They are significant because one of them represents a bank, with its nation-wide ramifications, through which it reached out and met the public; another because it represents a department of a government to which the people of the whole country pay levy, and the third because it represents the same unwholesome trait in a municipality, the expenses of which are carried by the people according to their ability to pay. Does it not give the Canadian people as a whole, and as individuals, something to consider? Have we a national and a personal conscience that turns from a wrong act as though it were a viper? Or can it be that we are lapsing, drifting, until the stage is reached where wrongdoing and grafting are all right, and the only sin in them that of being found out?

These are not the standards that guided the men who made Canada. They are not the moral ethics of the pioneers who came in here, invested their lives, and raised families who can look back and say "their word was as good as their bond."

It is a matter not to be passed over easily, nor one to be cured by the sitting of a court and the handing out of sentences suited to the various shortcomings. It is a force that bends the knee to the almighty dollar; it is a passion that spells success in terms of gains that must be taken in a dark room and counted with the blinds pulled down.

Canada can be no greater than the quality of her citizenship, and there is no one thing in this quality finer than a conscience—private and public—that instinctively rebels at a suggestion that is not right, or that abhors the mention of graft. We need a great spiritual awakening, and a recharging of our manhood with the rugged honesty that we so admire in the men who first gave form and being to our young nation.

Government Control In B. C.

Ontario has the choice on October 23 of deciding between our present law regarding the liquor traffic or that of sale by government shops. It is well that government sale elsewhere should be considered. Is it a better thing than we have today? If it is, the people of Ontario should vote for it—if it is not they should turn against it in a very emphatic way.

British Columbia has government control, and we already have the echoes of it in the Ontario campaign. Ontario people have been in the coast province, many of them, and they bring back varying reports on what they have seen. These impressions do not form the most reliable documents on which to form a conclusion, because they touch only at various points; the trips were mostly of short duration, and for that reason preclude a well-grounded review of conditions as they actually exist.

A safer way is to take the evidence of men in British Columbia, regardless of politics or other interests. If they are reliable and in a position to pass an opinion on government control as they have it in British Columbia, their evidence is worth considering.

The first man of any province is its premier. Hon. John Oliver, premier of British Columbia, and leader of the Liberal party there, says: "Conditions in Vancouver, so far as the sale of beer is concerned, are as wide open as they could be. When I was in Vancouver last week I saw welcome signs on the entrance to beer clubs. Nothing could be much more open than that. No matter what legislation we pass, certain interests will endeavor to weaken its effect."

Hon. H. H. Stevens, M.P. for Vancouver, who was minister of trade and commerce in the Meighen government, has carried on business in Vancouver for years. He knows that province in thorough, and has taken an active part in its public affairs. Mr. Stevens' opinion of government control in British Columbia is as follows: "Never in the history of the country was bootlegging comparable in magnitude and murderous results to what it is today."

Mayor C. E. Tindall of Vancouver, in his position as chief magistrate of the leading business center on the Pacific coast of Canada, should be in a position to size up the situation. He has seen British Columbia under prohibition and under government control. His opinion of present conditions is:

"We must do something at once. Conditions are deplorable. In every mail I get letters from wives complaining that their husbands are coming home drunk after they have spent their wages at the clubs."

Dr. Ernest Hall, police commissioner of Vancouver, is an official who should have a splendid chance of seeing government control in operation, and judging if it is a good thing from the standpoint of the sobriety of the people. Dr. Hall's views are:

"The government has set out upon a policy of alcoholizing our people for profit; a policy of saturation rather than of control. The encouragement of liquor drinking means the lowering of stamina, the pauperizing of the public and the encouragement of lawlessness and crime, but never in the history of British Columbia has liquor been so extensively advertised as it has been in the last three years under government control; never has there been such a persistent attempt to debauch the public, to entice people to drink, to create an appetite for alcohol."

Drunkenness, according to police records, has decreased in Ontario under the O. T. A. by at least 40 per cent, while British Columbia under government "control" furnishes the following facts:

An increase in the amount of liquor sold of 500 per cent; 70 per cent increase in police costs, 87 per cent increase in the cost of administering justice, and 200 per cent increase in prison population.

On that showing Ontario does not want government sale. In our present law we know what we have, and we know it can be strengthened and made more effective. Ontario does not want a system that is publicly denounced by the leading men of British Columbia, who have an excellent opportunity to observe the fallacies of government control.

The Old and New Germany.

Despatches from Berlin indicate a state of affairs between the German government and the Hohenzollerns, a condition not generally understood. The former reigning house of Germany still retains estates valued at $300,000,000.

Movements on the part of the state to take over these properties have invariably been unsuccessful because the cases have come before judges who had been put into office by the Hohenzollerns. The state has reason to fear that if the family continues to hold the properties, consisting of estates, castles and villas, that either by transfer or manipulation it will be rendered powerless to secure them.

There is a new Germany and an old Germany. The old Germany was that of the Hohenzollerns, with all its military swank, its building up of the few at the expense of the many. It worshipped at the shrine of war, and it made men fodder for cannons. The new Germany is struggling to get its feet on a path where there is equality in citizenship; in this move it is being financed by other nations whose only desire is that after the birth pains of years the new Germany shall be a nation in every sense of the word.

Between these two forces there may be an understanding, but there can be no compromise. The new Germany must swallow the old, and until this is done the old Germany is going to hold on to just as much as it can possibly sprawl its form across.

And where do these $300,000,000 holdings stand in regard to reparations? Is it possible that the Hohenzollerns, who wrecked Germany, can continue to hold possession of their hundreds of millions, while the mass of the people in Germany have wondered for years past where the meals for the next day were coming from?

The new Germany must come clear of the old entanglements and do it quickly. To continue allowing the Hohenzollerns to hold these enormous estates is tying a chain and ball to the foot of the new nation.

Note and Comment.

One fine thing about autumn is that the weeds die a natural death.

As one exchange aptly puts it: Britain and Russia have decided to be friends until debt do them part.

You may be a very ardent supporter of the O. T. A., but if your name is not on the voters' list, you can't vote.

Visitors to Moscow have to pay $50 tourist fees, and the Montreal Gazette does not believe the show is worth the price.

People who object to paying for their paper a year in advance can easily overcome that objection by paying two or three years at once.

La Follette, leader of the third party in United States, is drawing fire from both the old parties, all of which indicates that he will poll a good vote.

After spending some weeks in New York the Prince of Wales stopped 15 minutes on the way through Montreal. Any comment to be filled in by the Montreal papers.

There's just one thing wrong with those bathing beauties that are stuck on auto windshields. They are shown in the act of diving, whereas in real life they only sit on the beach.

The shoe dealers may be responsible for the literature that is being put out showing the advantage of walking. The taxi drivers deny that they had anything to do with it.

Rarebits By Rex

CULTURE UNAPPRECIATED.
I was told, not in vain, that the best way to gain any pretty young maid's adoration was to make her realize I am wonderfully wise. By affecting high-brow conversation; So I studied enough philosophical stuff To write out a second rate thesis, And I learned (what a bore!) so much classical lore That I nearly got mental paresis.

Then armed from the ground with a wisdom profound, I called on a wealthy young siren, And started to quote all the stuff Browning wrote, As well as Defoe, Kant and Byron. On old Schopenhauer I spoke for an hour, And I thought as she sat on the chesterfield that Her eyes showed intense admiration.

Then abruptly she rose and my blood nearly froze As she yelled to her sister: "Oh, Daisy! Come down to me quick for I'm nearly scared sick— There's a guy in this house that's gone crazy!"

Fickle Things

Away last spring we took a barrel and in it sat a speckled hen, we handed her a dozen eggs and from that lot she hatched out ten. She tended them as best she could, she scratched holes in the onion bed, she strangled fish worms by the neck to keep her family fat and fed.

The birds grew up as all birds do. I looked at them each passin' day, and tried to figure out how soon the new hatched birds would start to lay.

Ah, there was one, a goodly chick, the pick of all that hen's old flock. I knew that bird would be a peach, descendin' from good layin' stock.

But just today when I was out a-wonderin' if they ceased to grow, this bloomin' thing he flapped a wing and showed me how he'd learned to crow.

Yes I had planned by winter time them birds would lay a egg each day, and I would feed them buckwheat cakes and nest 'em in the finest hay, but from the ten inside the coop, I heard 'em and I ought to know, there's eight who think their job in life is showing just how well they crow.

No matter what the words I say, nor how I stearn, nor yet how cruel, they're bent on makin' of that coop a sort of rooster crowin' school. This barnyard rumpus grates my ear, these chicks what ain't but six months born, they're crowin' all the afternoon, they're crowin' in the early morn.

It was a measly trick to do, that speckled hen she was a fraud, she handed me a lump of clay when I had wished for sun cured cod.

We'll swing the axe around, by heck, on wish-bones chant our hymn of hate, but then we'll have to go again and buy stale eggs from out a crate.—ARK.

Charles Crasheim caught Clarence Coldest courting Constance Cuddley. Charles coughed clamorously, causing chaotic confusion. Constance's cheeks chalked. Charles called conflict. Clarence cheerlessly consented. Combatants circled cautiously. Charles caught Clarence couple crushing cuffs. Clarence, colliding chair, collapsed convulsively. Cool, collected, Charles east cowardly, cringing Clarence convenient clothes closet. Charles' countenance conveyed crustiness. Constance cried coyly. Confided, convincingly, cause commotion. Cupid cunningly captured Charles. Constance's consternation ceased. Consolated, continued Charles' captivity. Charles capitulated. Catastrophe collapsed. Conclusion: Chimes, church, cottage containing contented couple.

The Aeroplane and the Future

There is little doubt that the means of rapid communication in the future will be the aeroplane.

Recently a thirty-three-hour service began between New York and San Francisco. This cuts the time by rail, sixty-three hours.

Most of the pioneer work has been done by the government and the army, which is but natural, as the railroads, who should have done this, are too conservative to undertake such enterprise.

It is not unreasonable to believe that in time to come the aeroplane will be as common as the automobile.

There are very many persons already in the United States who are running automobiles and who are familiar with their machinery. These can easily become drivers of aeroplanes.

For national defense, the aeroplane is a more sensible means than anything else. Keeping up great battleships, which have no use in commerce, costs a great deal. We need something which can be used in time of peace and can be easily transferred to the army in time of war.

This is the aeroplane. And a nation that can summon fifty or a hundred thousand aeroplanes at a moment's notice will be invincible.

The command of the air, therefore, if it can be made useful for commerce and transportation, can also be made useful for attack and defense.

It is always interesting to look into the future and see what will happen or what is likely to happen. We may depend upon the future being a development of those tendencies at present in operation.

It is reasonable to suppose that the predominating forces of the future will be in the air and that nation will command the future which shall command the air. Communication by radio is being rapidly developed and radio will undoubtedly become a unit. If the aeroplane keeps pace with this, and if it continues to develop as a practical machine, we may look forward to its future with interest.

The attempt to unite all nations in a common government, and to induce each nation to give up such portion of its sovereignty as shall be necessary to that common government, was made at the close of the last war, but it does not seem entirely successful. We have chosen to fall back to the old order, which consists in making each nation impregnable to the other and, at least so long as we continue to be of this opinion, it shall be necessary to develop the internal resources of every country to resist attack by the others.

Protect your gums and save your teeth

Just as a ship needs the closest attention under the water-line, so do your teeth under the gum-line. If the gums shrink, serious dangers result. The teeth are loosened. They are exposed to tooth-base decay. The gums themselves become tender and bleed easily. They form sacs which become the doorways of organic disease for the whole system. They often disfigure the mouth as they recede. If used in time and used consistently, Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. Forhan's is safe, efficient and pleasant-tasting. It preserves gum health, corrects tender gum spots, hardens gum tissues so they will offer proper support to the teeth, and keeps your mouth fresh and healthy.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Edmonton Lady Thinks Everyone Should Know About Drego and the Wonderful Work It Is Doing for Those Who Suffer From Digestive and Kindred Ailments.

"Through the advice of my daughter I began taking Drego, and although I have only taken one bottle, it is truly astonishing the way I have improved," says Mrs. Geo. Cowey, of 12050 111th Ave., Edmonton.

"My stomach had been out of order for some time, causing gas formations and shortness of breath. I would have a burning feeling in the pit of my stomach, accompanied by heartburn and acid risings. I was chronically constipated and had severe dizzy spells and terrible headaches that would last for several days."

CAMLACHIE BOY BURNED WHEN TEAPOT BREAKS

Special to The Advertiser. Camlachie, Sept. 22.—Alvin Wilkinson, aged 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Finlay Wilkinson of the 10th line, Plympton, received severe burns from boiling tea on Sunday afternoon.

He was at the home of his uncle, David McKinley, and when Mrs. McKinley was carrying the teapot to the table, he dodged under it, striking the bottom and breaking it out with his head. The boiling tea ran down his neck, back and face, and even his feet were burned. First aid was applied immediately, and medical aid summoned. Some of the burns are quite deep.

PREACHER ADMITS POISONING TWO

Breaks Down Under Grilling and Confesses To Crime—Escapes Hanging.

Special to The Advertiser.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 22.—A complete confession that he poisoned his wife and William Sweetin "because they were suffering and he wanted to put them out of their misery" was made today by Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, Ina Methodist pastor, after a night of grilling at the hands of State's Attorney Frank Thompson.

The minister broke under the strain of the fire of questions shortly before dawn after he had been confronted with the testimony of a coroner's chemist that arsenic also had been found in the vital organs of Sweetin.

For the confessed murders there will be no demand for the death penalty, Thompson said. "I will not ask the death penalty," he said, "I will ask that you take the man who confessed to the crime. I will demand life imprisonment on both charges. That should suffice."

TILLSONBURG ALARMED OVER PETTY THEIVING

Board of Trade Calls Special Meeting To Cope With Situation.

Tillsonburg, Sept. 22.—So serious has petty thieving become in town during the past week that G. H. Hollier, president of the board of trade, has called a special meeting this evening at 7:30 to cope with the situation.

Last night the office of M. Burwell, lumber merchant, was entered and the knob cut out of the safe with a hack saw, but the thieves failed to gain access and took the knob away with them. Next door, Landman's coal office was entered, the till broken, but nothing was missing today.

Directly across the street a top windowpane in Hollier & Son's coal office was removed, the office ran sacked, but nothing was found missing. Chief Carter obtained some excellent fingerprints at the White Star grocery, where N. McCrackin, Mrs. McCrackin, and every effort is being made to detect the guilty parties.

ST. THOMAS DRY WORKERS COMPLETE ORGANIZATION

St. Thomas, Sept. 22.—A stirring meeting of the temperance workers was held in the Y. M. C. A. this evening for the purpose of organizing committees and drawing up a plan of campaign.

The work in the city will be presided over by an executive committee composed of the president, vice-presidents, secretary and treasurer, with the heads of each of the various committees. R. D. Ramsay accepted the chairmanship on condition that he be given the hearty support of all those who believe in temperance in St. Thomas.

Other officers and committees were: Vice-presidents, H. Wing and Rev. D. Rogers; secretary, Mr. Whitworth; treasurer, S. Graham; publicity committee, Rev. Wilfred Gaetz, chairman; L. Burger, R. M. Anderson, the ministers of the city, and the captain of the Salvation Army; finance committee, C. E. Raven, chairman; R. M. Anderson, E. J. McCready, E. Cutler, captain of the Salvation Army; A. Bloye, Dr. C. C. Lumley, W. G. Rogers, P. W. Sutherland, R. McDermid, Rev. Geer; voters' list committee, S. Chant, chairman; P. A. Lemon, J. Handford, A. McCrimmon, William McIntyre, W. H. May, F. W. APPOINT COLBERT TO HOUSING BODY

Council Makes Ex-Alderman a Member of Housing Commission.

TO FILL VACANCY

John Colbert, 632 Queen's avenue, conductor on the London Street Railway, was last evening appointed a member of the housing commission. The housing commission was unable to hold any other than a minority meeting, only ex-Ald. J. Ashton and R. H. Haskett putting in an appearance. The mayor was at the council meeting and another member, D. J. Tallant, was reported as having removed to a new residence in Michigan.

Unable to proceed with their business and finding it impossible to insure the presence of a quorum unless a new member were appointed, the commissioners took their troubles aside other business in hand for a few moments while Ald. Greer moved to repeal the bylaw which made the mid-year appointment of a new commissioner out of order. "We haven't a housing commission now," put in Ald. Douglass. "I move we do away with it."

He said, however, support Ald. Drake in a motion to appoint Mr. Colbert as a new member of the commission. It was stated that Mr. Colbert would take the motion and be ready to assume duties immediately.

ASSOCIATION ASKS EARLY UNION VOTE

Presbyterian Congregations Are Asked To Take Early Ballot On Question.

The Presbyterian Association held an organization meeting at the Builders Exchange last night and passed a resolution recommending that all congregations should take an early vote to decide whether they are in favor of entering the proposed United Church of Canada.

It is necessary that a vote be taken before June 10 to comply with the regulations of parliament, and to take a vote it is necessary that the congregations petition the members in good standing in their parish, and as this will take a considerable length of time they are urged to act immediately.

All congregations will be requested to present the following petition to their session: "We the undersigned members in good standing (name of congregation in full) request the session to call a congregational meeting on (give date desired for the meeting) to arrange for a vote on the question whether our congregation desires to enter the United Church of Canada."

A vote may be secured by congregations by presenting a written petition to a session of ten members in good standing in a congregation of 100 members, 25 in congregations of from 100 to 500 members, 50 in congregations of 500 to 1,000 members, and 100 in congregations with over 1,000 members.

The meeting was attended by a large number of clergymen and laymen from the London district. Rev. Harry Hiner of Toronto gave a forceful address on "Organization."

ST. THOMAS TREASURER FIFTY YEARS MARRIED

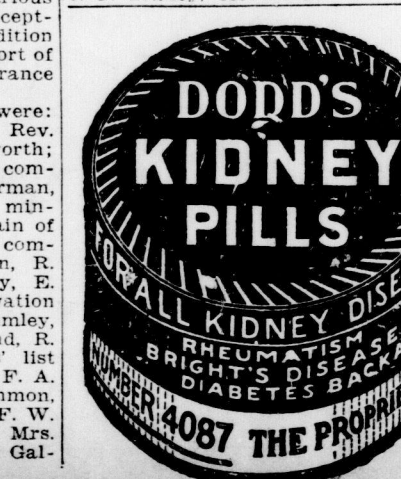

Family and Friends Will Join Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Perry in Celebration.

St. Thomas, Sept. 22.—City Treasurer S. O. Perry and Mrs. Perry celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding at their home, 4 Scott street, on Tuesday, Oct. 22, 1874, in the North Street Methodist Church. Miss Edna Slight and Stephen O. Perry were married by the late Rev. Dr. Ure and, with a happy gathering of their children and friends, will commemorate the event tomorrow.

At the time of his marriage, Mr. Perry was employed by the American Express Company in Goderich, and was shortly promoted chief of the St. Thomas office of the express company. In March, 1884, he was appointed treasurer for this city.

Mrs. Perry was born in Kingston, but moved to Goderich at an early age with her parents. Mr. Perry was an Oxford County boy, son of the late Sheriff Perry. Mr. Perry's father represented North Oxford in the Ontario legislature, resigning in favor of the late Sir Oliver Mowat, when that great exponent of Liberalism came to Ontario.

Six children and eleven grandchildren are expected to attend the reunion. The children are: Mrs. H. F. Spencer, Toronto; Mrs. Maude P. Bowron, Chicago; Frank O. Perry, Chicago; Mrs. W. J. Riley, Detroit; G. S. Perry, St. Catharines, and Mrs. J. G. Graney, Cleveland.

Your Silent Partner

A silent partner, with money, wishes to take a place in your organization but does not ask for voting power or any voice in control.

He will agree to 'team-up' with any valued official, or other person, ready to compensate in cash for the loss of this person to your firm through death.

This will maintain your credit and get you over the readjustment period when the shock comes. If you should estimate the loss at $35,000 and your official is age 42, the salary demanded by the 'silent partner' is only $1,000 a year,—to be reduced substantially year by year.

VARIETY SPICES BOYS' PROGRAM

Education, Bible Study, Hikes, Trips, Clubs, etc., Among
"Y" Pursuits.

An extensive program covering the boys' work of the Y. M. C. A. for the next seven months has been announced by W. H. Spearman, boys' secretary.

The details take in education, Bible study, hikes, observation trips, stamp clubs, monthly tournaments, bicycle club, skating races and world brotherhood.

The activities will be varied. The "preps," the junior school and the night juniors will engage in the above work as well as have their gym, classes and weekly swims.

The Bible study will occupy eight weeks and the educational courses will take a month's study. The latter will be divided into four parts, association history, health, first aid, and the biographies of four of the world's greatest men.

There will be a monthly supper, at which sing-songs, group games, stunts, debates and movies will be the features.

The intermediate and senior school boys, in addition to the athletics, will have Bible study groups and monthly suppers if possible.

The senior employed boys are to be organized. They will be known as the Adanac Club. They will meet weekly, taking the course of the life problem group. A special effort will be made this year to accommodate the employed boys, said the secretary today.

The newboys will meet once a week for gymnasium, swim and other group activities. The Kyo boys will take their physical work with the junior employed boys and will meet once a week for supper and group programs.

Dear Dolly:
Here's a first-class tip.
To help you many bumps to skip.
A girl like you with care should weigh
Her words and actions every day.

Bow-Wow!

Four-year-old Ronald had heard his brother and sister say they would buy 'hot dogs' for lunch at school. He had never seen one, but the name did not sound very reassuring to him.

The next time he saw his mother give the children money for lunch, he said to them: 'Please don't buy any old 'hot dogs' with your money.'
Well, what else can we get?' asked his sister.
'Haven't they any 'cold puppies' to sell as well?'

The Incentive.

Bess: 'Mildred married a man almost three times her own age.'
Nell: 'Oh, well, she always wanted a limousine.'

Diplomacy.

Mrs. Blackstone: 'Do you ask your husband's opinion on household matters, my dear?'
Mrs. Webster: 'Why, of course. It makes him feel so important. But I never follow it.'

Slave of Environment.

The tramp stood at the back door. His clothes were tattered, his hair unkempt, and his face unshaven. 'Did you ever work in your life?' asked the old lady, peering over the steel rims of her glasses.
'Oh yes, mum; but I was dismissed for laying down on the job.'
'What was your job?'
'Makin' beds.'
She slammed the door in his face.

Faint heart never won fair lady, but fair lady has often won faint heart.

Forgot Himself.

Dick—'I never saw Jones look so cheerful and self-confident as he does today. I wonder what caused the change?'
Charles—'He told me a book agent asked to see the head of the house last night, and he ate and drank him.'

ECZEMA IN RASH ON HANDS
Itched and Burned.
Cuticura Healed.

"Eczema broke out on my hands in a rash of red pimples. It itched and burned causing me to scratch. I could not put my hands in water, and I could not do my work very well. The trouble lasted about two months. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. After using it I got relief so purchased more, which completely healed me." Disease Germs Doomed

Many have lost terrors for the Scientist

The progress of recent years in medical research is little short of marvellous. Daily, science kills germs by the million. Daily, new ones are being discovered, isolated and exterminated by the march of medicine.

Science is winning. What were once regarded as serious diseases are now laughed out of countenance by the doctors. Fearlessly they plunge naked hands into swarms of them, their only precaution being to rise their hands afterwards with a reliable germicidal preparation. We are witnessing the birth of an era when the world will have little to fear from microbes.

Absorbine Jr., besides being the all-purpose liniment that removes pain and soreness, and hastens healing, is a powerful antiseptic that is death to the microbe world.

Absorbine Jr., is just what is needed in the house in case of accidents and to correct the many little household hurts that constantly occur. $1.25, at your druggist.

Featuring Men's and Women's Apparel at Lower Prices

The clothing described on this page today for both men and women at $25 and $35, which are being featured this week, will demonstrate that smart styles and good quality may be obtained at much lower prices than heretofore. The qualities we are able to offer at these popular prices in both men's and women's apparel is surprising when compared with previous seasons' values. We invite your inspection this week of these $25 and $35 groups.

Coats That Are Smart Can Still Be Serviceable

And especially so, when they're made of hardy plaid back coating with raccoon collars.

Choose From This $35 Collection

A distinguished group of smart models developed in Zibeline and Bolivia cloths. Each is a masterpiece of graceful design and finished workmanship. A smart fur collar to complete their beauty.

Coats which answer this description have large patch pockets and are made in heather, green or gray, at $35.00

To be equally smart, a scarf may take the place of the fur collar. It does so in a coat of tan Zibeline, full-lined and bound at the edges with Pekin blue. The capacious pockets are cleverly concealed under a strap. And the coat has the new one-button closing, at $35.00

A coat of tan Bolivia cloth has a collar modishly banded with Moufflon, and pockets and sides are attractively trimmed with embroidery; full-lined, at $35.00

The Fall Season and the Need For New Frocks Arrive Simultaneously

$35 FROCKS

—A PERFECT JOY—

Exceptionally smart in line and fabric are these frocks that satisfyingly fulfill all of Paris demands for autumn. In this lovely collection will be found slender, straight-line frocks with classic simplicity of trimming, frocks with pleats, tucks, graceful flares and flowers, all of them just a bit different.

To their own description, these warm frocks add serviceable wearing qualities. You'll find them among the most useful garments of your new season's wardrobe.

DRESSES OF NAVY or BLACK TRICOTINE

—at $25—

A smart model of Navy Tricotine is formed on the new straight lines, and long sleeves are a practical touch. Pouch pockets of tan suederine are modishly added to the skirt, and drip buttons trim the sleeves, at $25.00

Brown Tricotine forms a slipover model with a long apron-panel front, and a vestee of sand crepe. Edges of panel and sleeves are embroidered in sand, at $25.00

A Navy Tricotine straight-line model has long sleeves and Peter Pan collar, trimmed with braid and fur; three narrow frills, their edges bound with braid, trim the skirt, at $25.00

A dress of Nigger Brown Charmaine has a vest of sand crepe, buttons and embroidery trimming the long tailored sleeves, collar and waist, and the smart apron front, at $25.00

The BREATH of the AVENUE

AT THE RACES WITH THE PRINCE

FASHIONS THAT FOLLOW EDWARD ALBERT ACROSS THE BELMONT PADDOCK.

The Prince, at the races, leans against the railing of the judge's stand, silhouetted against a blue and lather-white sky. A crowd of twenty thousand watch him through leveled field glasses.

He climbs down from the platform and starts across the paddock to the clubhouse. And the fashionable crowd surge down from the grandstand and follow him—just as all fashion is following his lead these days.

Across the paddock, strolling slowly, go three members of the royal party, The Breath of the Avenue—and the Prince. After them, the thousands, following quietly, pleased with the Prince because in his finely checked suit, his blue shirt and gray felt hat with its unbound brim he looks for all the world like an illustration from an American college story.

At the clubhouse grounds, he leaves them behind. Soon he is out of sight—but his fashions are not. For as the crowd breaks up, there are many gray hats and blue shirts like the Prince's own going back to the track.

There are any number of guardsman ties, maroon and navy diagonally striped like the Prince's tie. And his maroon and navy grenadier handkerchief sees its replica in many breast pockets.

PLAID—FIRST IN FEMININE FASHIONS

The women who stroll about the paddock or go through into the club grounds show their approval of another favorite of the British Isles—Scotch plaids for dresses, coats and trimming touches come in first among feminine fashions.

Among the small groups chatting inside the club grounds as His Royal Highness goes through, plaid is an outstanding fashion note. And the only woman acquaintance the Prince sees on his way to the clubhouse is wearing a green and blue plaid dress. He raises his hat to a vivid young person who wears a silver fox scarf across her shoulders and a bright green scarf about her throat to carry the green of her green and blue plaid dress up to the green of her green felt hat.

SUITS

The new "Fair Isle" weaves that bespeak their British heritage—powder blues and kindred tints, new stripes in outstanding effects, deep-striped blue. All these and many other new features will be found in these two super-value groups. Many have two pairs of trousers.

$25 and $35

Topcoats and Overcoats

Aside from the smart lines of the new Fall and Winter Coats it is the distinctive fabric weaves that will impress you. Most of them are English and look the part, and they are fashioned to the Prince's taste and yours. The new "guard" models, in deep blues, long four-button models, slip-ons. Almost every new color tone is featured in these two groups.
