Speaks in Defense of His Father, Who Sits as a Private Member -Free Trade Amendments.

London, Feb. 2. - When the House of Commons assembled for business today, the House was crowded and there was great animation. Joseph Chamberlain was warmly cheered by the bulk of the Conservatives. The Secretary of State for Home Affairs, Mr. Akers-Douglas, in the absence of Premier Balfour, temporarily assumed the duties of the House. The mover and seconder of the address in reply to the speech from the throne both referred with satisfaction to the settlement of the Alaskan dispute and paid tribute to the manner in which the award was received by Hardy (Conservative)

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the ed as auxiliary cruisers. Liberal leader in the House, followed. After expressing regret at the absence of the Premier, Sir Henry said he desired to question the Government with a new policy. The only way of dealing with the existing confusion, he added, was to appeal to the common sense of the electors of the country. Sir Henry severely arraigned the Government's attitude on the fiscal question, and announced that John Morley would in a few days introduce a more comprehensive amendment, involving the whole situation. Austen Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, defended the Government, whose fiscal policy, he said, had been clearly to stand by the and opened fire. The police agents Premier. All the Government asked for was freedom to negotiate, which denly realizing that they had stumbled door and freedom to trade.

THE DEBATE IN

Mr. Crawford occupied the attention of the house for an hour and a half, during which he took the Government to task for its attitude toward the demands of the temperance people, and for the position it took in connection with the live stock industry. Upon the temperance question his criticism was that the Government had used it to influence the independent Liberal candidate in North Oxford to retire from the campaign, on the promise of satisfactory legislation. The live stock industry, he said, had been sadly neglected, the dairying industry being promoted at its expense. With her wings and waving hair, And her bright-eyed, cherub brother-

A serene, angelic pair!
Glide around my wakeful pillow,
With their praise or mild reproof,
As I listen to the murmur

Then my little seraph sister,

Of the soft rain on the roof.

That her heart was all untrue:

In the spirit's pure, deep fountains,
Whence the holy passions well,
As that melody of Nature,
That subdued, subduing strain
Which is played upon the shingles
By the patter of the rain.

LONDON WEDNESDAY FEB. 3 A Portentous Session.

The session of the Imperial Parliawill directly challenge the Government on the fiscal question by movough-going free traders on the Ministerial benches may go into the Opposition lobby in suffcient numbers to wipe out Balfour's majority. Even if the Government is not defeated, it may be that it will owe its life to the Irish Nationalists. The Irish party under the brilliant leadership of Mr. Redmond, has regained the position it held the Globe. The Advertiser and other before the eclipse of Parnell. It stands chance. It cares nothing for the fiscal problem except in so far as it profits by the troubles which the tariff question has brought down on the head of the ministry. It will support the Government if the Government concedes its demands. It will support the Liberals if the Liberals will go the Government "one better." Not even on the home rule issue has there been such a tangle of party lines, such a riot of faction. There are protectionist Conservatives, who will stand by Chamberlain; free food Conservatives, who oppose Chamberlain but will suppublic morality. port Balfour's programme of retaliation; free trade Conservatives, who forswear both Chamberlain and Balfour: Liberal Imperialists, who take their leadership from Rosebery; Campbell-Bannerman Liberals; and the Nationalists, who are for Ireland first, last and all the time. If it is true, as political philosophers say, that the success of the British parliamentary the laws of the new comsystem has been owing to the absence of faction and the existence of party, the present state of affairs is not comforting. Among purely democratic not in this class—an illustration of the evils of faction is found in France, where the Chamber of Deputies is split into half a dozen or more political groups. Stable government is impossible, and cabinets, which can only be formed by a compromise of antagonistic principles, such as the present alliance of the Socialists and Moderate Republicans, are liable to be upset at any moment by a similar process-by the combination of two or more groups having nothing in common. In Great Britain there is the prospect that when and several presented themselves as the fiscal question is finally disposed of, the old party lines will form again.

British Army Reform.

The report on the British military system by the royal commission under the chairmanship of Lord Esher is a smashing document, which will gladden the hearts of the reformers and restore public confidence by showearnest. "The war office has no thinking department" is one of the palpable hits by the commission. It advises revolution in methods extending to every branch of the service. The one great achievement in the South African war, for which the war office can take credit, was the transportation of for itself. The latter holds the baltime without a break-down in the system. This feat could not be paralleled by any other power, and is a grand evidence of Great Britain's maritime supremacy. The fatal weakness of the British military organization was revealed in the unpreparedness for a campaign caused by the deficiency of the intelligence department. The strength and resources of the Boers were absurdly under-estimated; there were no adequate war maps; and as the report points out, a disastrous gap lady. existed between the political negotiations leading up to the war and the military preparations for it. The two facts may or may not be related as cause and effect. It was predicted that the wives and daughters of workingmen would vote and the women of other classes hold aloof, but the reports are that all classes swarmed to the polls. Women were eligible for membership in the Senate or the House of Representatives candidates, but failed of election. The only safe deduction that can be drawn from the experiment, and it is one favorable to female suffrage, is that women showed a general disposition to hand leg." avail themselves of the privilege of voting. This is an answer to the charge that women would not be sufficiently interested to poll their votes if they had the opportunity. It may be, however, that the novelty of the thing appealed to the feminine nature, and that one election is not a conclusive test. The limited experiments in the Western States have not thrown much light on the question. The political situation in Australia is very much complicated by the result of the election. The Ministerialists are for protection and preferential trade; the Opposition for free trade or a revenue tariff, and the labor party is ance of power in both Houses and is in a position to dictate to either party.

O CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY OF T H. C. Becher, broker, Bank of Commerce building, received the following by private wire from Bartlett, Frazier & arrington today: New York, Feb. 3-Noon.-Dullness, reakness in spots and a general reacionary tendency characterized this mornstock market, for a considerable period at least. Weak spots cropped out all over, and even the professional element were adverse to committing themselves definitely to any position. The uncertainty in the London market was reflected here. The cotton situation, with its demoralizing breaks, is exerting a bad influence. Pennsylvania had a depressing effect by reason if its heaviness. During the first hour more than a majority of the active stocks had not been quoted. There is a bullish influence evident in Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, which seems to be professional. The bulk of the soft coal used in the city comes over the Lake Erie and Detroit River Road, from Port Stanley and Rondeau, and over the Grand Trunk from the west. Very little comes from the east. The L. E. and D. R. R. A leading coal dealer of the city stated weeks. It has been impossible at times for it to move even a passenger train, and on other days the thought of moving a freight was never entertained. This affected a number of manufacturers, who have been using the coal shipped over the lake from

The chief criticism against the innovation was that it would require the teaching over again of a lot of horses which had been schooled to the new system of starting. One of the things most advanced in favor of the abolition of the recall flag was that, while it would work a hardship for a time against horses that had been accustomed to get any number of chances to break, it eventually would be better for all, since youngsters would be all trained to break the same way-in ing would be made easier. There was Cassidy introduced a further modification, but apparently it is not radical has desirable features which cause it to find favor with the turf rulers in the east. Whatever method may eventually be adopted, one point seems sure, and that is that, if possible, there should be a uniform method of start-

MEDS. VS. MEDS. The annual game of basketball between the junior and senior Meds. took place yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. The game was fast and turious, but the undergrads proved themselves more than a match for their senior brethren. Billy Gould strove gallantly to avert defeat, but Mars was with the freshies. MacKay and Bob Bucke did their best by yelling whenever their side made a goal, while Louis Thompson gave his attention to kicking the ball whenever it came his way. Allan Blackwell made a splendid defense for the juniors and George Leipsitt was specially good in shoot-ing the ball into the seniors' basket. P. C. Jack Robinson refereed the game to the satisfaction of everyone, the score standing 15 to 10 in favor of the undergrads. The line-up was as fol-

When Long left the Boston National League Club in the spring of 1903, and jumped to the New York Americans, he was signed to a two-year contract at well over $4,000 a year. He failed to make good with the speed expected, and New York traded him for the season to Detroit for Elberfield, the Detroit Club getting a $5,000 bonus. On his earning capacity of last year Long is not worth the money which his New York contract specifies. This accounts for the delay which has been in evidence in the closing of negotiations between the player and Detroit for 1904.

SALE OF THE BOSTONS.

While the report that the owners of the Boston National League Club wan to sell out and quit baseball is not verified, there appears to be some ground for crediting it. If it is true it only shows what an overwhelming victory the younger American League has scored over its old and proud rival Boston has been the oldest and stanch est member of the National League, having been uninterruptedly a member of that body for more than a quarter of a century. For a younger rival to crowd it to the wall, therefore, in three years seems remarkable. Natural auses, probably, can be assigned for the result, such as the parsimonious and out of date methods that handiyounger rival sprang into the breach. At the same time there will be a feeling of regret among many lovers of the national game over the retirement of the Boston triumvar—Soden, Conant and Billings-and of the Boston reds, even among those who prefer the en-terprise and spirit of the younger eague to the methods of its older rival. GRAND TRUNK AT WORLD'S FAIR.

The extensive and comprehensive exhibit which the Grand Trunk Railway system are arranging for the World's Fair, held at St. Louis during 1904, is now in course of preparation. The proposed pavilion which it is the intention of erecting is one combining elegance and artistic merit, and the designs submitted to the exposition authorities were greatly admired and accepted. The pavilion vil be erected in the "Fish and Game" of Corinthian and Doric architectural style, embellished with emblematic designs of fish and game, and it is claimed will be one of the handsomes! structures at the exposition. Canadian haunts will be the predominating feature of the display.

The mammoth palace that forms the main picture of this "World's Fair"the Foreign and State buildings and the "Pike" (Midway)—are at the present time much further advanced be fore the opening date than the buildings of any other of the great expositions that have been held in the past in fact, the installation of exhibits is now been proceeded with in many of the buildings.

One good feature of St. Louis is the Union Station, there being only this one, all trains from all points with the exception of excursion trains from a distance of one or two hundred miles of St. Louis will arrive and leave from the one depot, and as the street car lines pass the station visitors will have no trouble in reaching their hotels or boarding houses without difficulty and early after arrival. People who have seen the grounds for the first time marvel at the magnitude of this colossal undertaking, and do not hesitate in forming the opinion that it will be the greatest event from an instructive, educations and amusement point of view, that the world has ever seen.

Two hundred and fifty conventions have already signified their intention of visiting, and have completed arrangements for St. Louis during the

Each Member Sworn to Kill Somebody Within a Week.

Paris, Feb. 2.-The police have raided the headquarters of a large band of thieves which have been terrorizing the Belleville district.

The band resembled a secret society, having a constitution and bylaws, and requiring an applicant for membership to swear on a peculiarly-shaped dagger that he would kill the police and not betray his comrades, and requiring him to stab some person with the blade within

THE COMMITTEE'S JAUNT. Trustee MacRobert reported that the special committee had visited the Minister of Education about the proposed change in the board of educa-tion. The minister acquiesced in the committee's requests and added that a w would be passed putting the free library under the management of the board of education.

On motion of Trustee MacRobert it was decided to get the 'photos of the ex-chairmen since London was incorporated as a city, and of the board of 1904 for the secretary's room. Dr. Cl. T. Campbell was voted $15 for examining the Talbot street school. The board placed on record its regret at the retirement of Trustees Evans, Dromgole, Strong and Macpherson, and acknowledge their services at the board. Trustee Evans and Dromgole were present and thanked the board. The chair was taken at the close by Trustee Dromgole, and a vote of thanks passed to Chairman Hamilton, several

In my opinion, and in the opinion of this board, which has placed itself on record, the course of study in our schools is too heavy now, and no more subjects should be added. It will be time enough for the foard to take action for the foard to take action for the introduction of additional subjects when it becomes compulsary—that is, when the Minister of Education is willing to take the responsibility of forcing such upon the boards of trustees throughout the Province."

One pleasing feature of the evening's entertainment was the introduction of kaleidoscopic lights, thrown on the stage, giving to the scene every appearance of a moving picture.
