Ma. Editor.—I would respectfully claim a small portion of your space to give expression to a few remarks relative to the Educational Establishment at Sackville, N. B. under the auspices of the Conference of Eastern British America. I am induced to do this because of the satisfaction experienced on a recent visit to these Institutions, the benefits of which are only to be understood to be properly appreciated.

world and of Christ. During the last five and twenty years, a great change has come over the civil and political condition of Wesleyan Methodists. New municipal and political rights and relations have been created. The way to public offices and honours has been opened. At the same time, the world's ambition and luxury, to the hardening and embittering influence of its pride, covetousness, and party-spirit. In these circumstances though we may lament, yet we cannot greatly wonder at the consequences which have here and there followed. Have not some parents, eager to found a house and home for their family, suffered that which is much more lamentable in its effects upon themselves and their descendants, than any loss of worldly estate, and the loss of their humility, simplicity, and godly love? Have not the children of such parents grown up too often vain and worldly, and alienated from the church of their fathers?

had entered the desolate field; and not the least among these evidences of sympathy was long and brotherly letter of welcome and encouragement, go forth of himself and his brethren, from the Rev. T. Hedder, General Superintendent of our Missions in India. But the dark cloud came up, and soon overcast our prospects. On Wednesday, the 14th of last month, the commanding officer of Bareilly sent his Adjutant over to our house to say, that such intelligence had reached him from the Lieutenant-Governor as made it prudent and necessary that he should request that all ladies and children, and indeed all non-combatants in general, should leave Bareilly immediately, and take refuge at the village, Nynce Tal. (a sanitarium in the Himalayas, seven thousand feet above Bareilly) under the crisis was past. This was startling advice. But, after seeking for divine guidance, we concluded not to go. We considered it our duty, even if there were danger, to remain at our post and trust God for the result. For three days in succession did our kind friends send to warn us to leave ere we consisted to go. At length, seeing most of the others gone, and the indications of insecurity becoming more marked, we concluded it might be more like tempting than trusting Providence to act against facts and advice any longer. We left on Monday night, having placed our house and property in charge of six men,—four of whom are native Christians,—and entertaining the hope that, in two or three weeks, we might return and resume our work. We were two days and three nights coming the seventy-four miles, and suffered much by a night exposure in the Terai, (a belt of jungle about twenty miles wide round the base of the mountains, infested with tigers and reeking with malaria), where our family caught the jungle fever, which laid us up under the doctor's care for ten or twelve days afterwards.

General Intelligence. Domestic. CITY ELECTIONS.—The elections for Mayor and Aldermen took place yesterday. The excitement was down to zero. Citizens take these affairs very coolly now days; whether the fact be creditable or the reverse depends on the kind of men chosen. A few of the voters elect the rest look on or keep away.—Why? With some cheerful memories of the recently terminated civic year, we hope for various improvements for that just commenced. Below we give the result of yesterday's election: For Mayor, H. THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1857.

Minutes of the British Conference.

By the kindness of the Book Steward we have been favoured with an opportunity of perusing this early a copy of the "Minutes of several conversations between the Methodist Ministers [in England] at their one hundred and fourteenth annual Conference." The statistics of British Methodism for the past year have been pretty fully placed before our readers in articles which we have prepared and correspondence which we have received. We therefore turn at once on opening this volume of three hundred and fifty pages to the Addresses, from the various sister and affiliated Conferences, which were this year presented and the replies which they have in turn elicited. If the glorified in Heaven receive accessions to their joy by contemplating the progress of events on earth resulting from the holy toils in which they engaged here, while with what hallowed delight (may we not conceive?) does the spirit of Wesley bend from his elevated sphere to mark the expanding career of Methodism, and the evidences of its unity displayed as its thousands or millions of members bear from the Southern and the Western worlds their tributes of affection to its ancient home! A thought like this must be present to the mind of every one who reads that portion of the Minutes to which we are now directing attention.

Rev. W. Butler's Letter. (Continued.) But it is time to come to something more personal and nearer home. It is known to your readers that the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States has felt herself called upon to devote a portion of those great resources with which God has endowed her, for the purpose of aiding in the evangelization of India. The writer was selected to found and superintend this Mission. We arrived in Calcutta last September, and after exploring for some months, we finally selected the province of Rohilund, and a part of the kingdom of Oude, as the most suitable field for the new Mission. The city of Bareilly, with a population of 112,000, was our head quarters for the present. The field was surveyed, a Report drawn up, and forwarded to our Committee in New York, and our work projected. Twenty-five Missionaries were sent out, to occupy the principal points in this great field.

Education in Holland. An Education Bill has lately passed both Houses in Holland, containing provisions not unlike what some would wish to see adopted in Nova Scotia. In order to please the Roman Catholics, who form two-fifths of the population of the country, the blessed word of God is forbidden; and in order to please the Jews, the name of Jesus is excluded from prayer, if prayer itself is permitted at all. This is the distressing end to a long and deplorable struggle. This struggle has been going on for the last nine years; and when at last the advocates of the Bible seemed on the very point of victory, they have been disgracefully abandoned by their trusted leader, and their cause is lost.—The former Government strained every nerve to carry an Education bill, discountenancing religion. They were supported by the aristocracy and the rationalistic clergy, but opposed by the middle classes of the people, on whose hearts vital religion seems to have laid a deeper hold. The opposition of these last brought about the resignation of the minister, and the offer of the portfolio to M. Van der Brugghen, one of the first lawyers of the country, and notoriously known as an opponent of religious schools and as a strong defender of Christian instruction.—M. Van der Brugghen however had no sooner seized the reins than he declared that "as a private Christian" he presented and carried a bill in the same spirit as the former had been.—And now, in the language of the Correspondent who records these facts, the poor Dutch people will henceforth have no other public school but such as are destitute of any Bible instruction and positive Christian teaching. The bill requires the schoolmaster shall forbear to teach, or do, or permit anything at variance with the respect due to the religious opinions of persons who differ from them. Consequently the poor man may not say a word against idolatry or mariolatry, in order not to offend the Roman Catholics. In the meantime he may not speak of the Lord's resurrection, in order not to offend the Jews. What most become of a generation which, in the most tender periods of their life, will spend the chief part of that day in such a school, where every object that can lead to the reverence or adoration of Christ is expressly avoided? Must we not expect that, if God does not graciously prevent, our nation with this law will finally be becoming entirely heathenish, without God and Christ in the world.

Recent Events in Austria. The London Christian Times gives the following statement of recent occurrences near Gray, the capital of the Province of Styria, which, it says, will serve to show how Protestants are treated in Austria, by the Roman Catholic priesthood. Last November a Prussian, with his wife and two children emigrated to Croatia. As the poor people did not get on in Croatia they resolved to return to their place, at Hirschberg, in Prussian Silesia. On their way back the woman fell and died. The corpse was conveyed for interment to Kirchdorf, near Bruck, but the priest refused to permit it to be laid on the pier in the canal house, the deceased being a Protestant. The body was eventually deposited in a barn belonging to an inn keeper. On the 8th of December the widower requested the sexton to dig a grave for his deceased wife outside the wall of the Catholic churchyard. The man commenced operations, but the priest again interposed and refused to allow him to prepare a grave for a heretic. The end of the matter was, that the ill-fated husband had to dig the grave himself. On the 9th of December the Prussian and his two children left Kirchdorf. The inn-keeper of the place was so indignant at what had occurred that he gave a piece of land to the Protestant community for a cemetery, and a wine merchant near Gray had on iron crucifix with a stone pedestal put upon the head of the poor woman's grave, with the following inscription, "Here lies Juliana Wache, of Hirschberg, in Prussian Silesia. This was erected to her memory by Joseph Pottinger, a Catholic." On the 5th April the Protestant burial ground was consecrated by an evangelical pastor, but on the 18th July the Roman Catholic priest desecrated it by pulling down the iron crucifix. An appeal has been made to the Stadtholder of the Province but no servant of the State can now with safety venture to ensure the conduct of a servant of the Church. The Vienna correspondent of the Times states that on August the 23rd a case was tried in that city, the details of which are carefully left from the knowledge of the public. A woman, a woman belonging to the lower classes of society, was arrested on the charge of having given offence to a Church rector by the State. When in a state of real or pretended "clarity," the woman ridiculed the dogma of the Immaculate Conception, denied the worship of the Holy Virgin and the saints to be idolatry, and urged the persons around her to remove from her rooms all images of saints. The Roman Catholic clergy would have an example made of such a dangerous offender, but the public prosecutor proposed that she should be examined by the physicians of the lunatic asylum before sentence was passed by the Court. The report returned by the medical men was such that any further judicial proceedings were quite out of the question.

Italy. Rome has witnessed the return of the Pope. His admirers speak of the progress through part of his dominions as satisfactory. In the capital of Italy the ludicrous pretensions of the "servant of servants" were followed by results which must have mortified his pride. He sat in the temple of God alone now but crowned saints to test with him at his table. The ambassadors in Florence were invited to dine with the Pontiff. Lord Normandy finding that he was not to be allowed the place at table which his rank as representative of Her Majesty demanded, declined going, and left Florence. Of the conduct of the Sardinian ambassador the Tablet thus speaks. We like our readers to see how these things are felt by Romanists in this country. "But there was no mistake about the Sardinian envoy, who maintained in his own person the character of a brawling, vulgar parrot, with all the spirit and success that has been shown by the petty state which he represents, and which acts that part so naturally as to become a European nuisance. The Sardinian envoy arrived at the palace, but when he found (what of course he knew beforehand) that he was not to dine at the Pope's table, he ordered his carriage and drove off. A thoroughly Sardinian exhibition. Others of the diplomatic corps did the same."—Christian Times.

Death of Rev James B. Finley. The pioneer Methodist preacher, familiarly known as "Old Chick," died at Eaton, Ohio, on a Monday, yesterday morning. His disease was a pleurisy. Mr. Finley was the son of a Presbyterian minister. He was born in North Carolina in the month of July, 1789, and was therefore at the time of his death over seventy-seven years old. His father removed to Kentucky in 1788, and in 1796 came to Ohio, and settled near where Chillicothe now stands. Finley's youth was spent amid the hardships, privations and exciting incidents of pioneer life. These he delineated most graphically in his autobiography, and they seem to have exerted a marked influence upon his character and

United States. THE MONEY PANIC.—The Baltimore Opinion of September 25, says:—A general state of bankruptcy, like that of 1837, seems, as a dark thunder cloud, to have settled all over the country. The alarm of speculators and stock gamblers, for a month or two past, has not been without meaning, nor the financial crash of long established firms in the east, a mere local stringency, not felt at a distance. The run upon the banks of New York by rash and imprudent depositors, it turns out was not only an annoyance to the bank officers but the nucleus of a panic which has spread like fire among stable Philadelphia soon realized the electrical shock, and on Friday her banks were compelled to close their doors, though one of them (the Pennsylvania) held the state funds, and another (the Girard) held the funds of a city.—The suspension of the latter is general, and in some instances the forfeiture of their charters.—On Saturday the Baltimore banks succumbed to the pressure also, and so the evil is extended.

THE TRAGIC DRAMA IN INDIA

The intelligence from India this week is of a mixed character—the extension of the mutiny to Bombay; a series of brilliant victories by General Havelock over the miscreants, the Sahib, more mutinies and massacres, the burning of Calcutta by the Governor-General's bodyguard.

The most brilliant feats of the campaign, so far, have been accomplished by General Havelock, an Indian officer, who appears fully equal to the emergency. The accounts are a good deal confused, but we gather from them that having advanced several miles from Cawnpore towards Lucknow, the British Commander came in contact with a force some of 10,000, others 13,000 men, under Nens Sahib.

In a stone court-yard, cluttered with two men and children, pitilessly slaughtered on the previous day by the fugitives from the last field of battle. The bodies, all stripped, had been thrown into a well in the compound where the unfortunate beings had been confined. Out of the whole number of captives three women escaped, who had been rescued and saved by a native.

The history of the world affords no parallel to the terrible massacres which during the last few months have desolated the land. Neither age, sex, nor condition has spared children have been compelled to eat the quivering flesh of their murdered parents, after which they were literally torn asunder by the laughing fiends who surrounded them.

Among the disjointed fragments by this overall Mail may be mentioned one that requires continuation—the rumoured death, by drowning, of the monster, Nina Sahib, after his defeat. This is a wretched, capricious, and treacherous creature, who has been recorded, and others of which he has been guilty, should have skulked out of existence in this pitiful manner.
