RECOGNITION.

The care of the teeth is now recognized as a necessity. In fact the large hospitals all over the world examine the patients' teeth and where it is possible put them in good condition before attempting a surgical operation. Experience has shown that the patient has a better chance for recovery with a clean healthy mouth than without it. This ought to convince the most skeptical that care of the teeth is requisite to health.

Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XVII.

The glorious summer sky had clouded over when Philip started for the Dennisons. There was a distant rumble of thunder, and now and then large drops of rain pattered down on the hood of the car.

Philip was in evening dress, and had not troubled to put on an overcoat.

"I shan't be gone half an hour," he objected, when his father asked where he was off to. "I'm only going to fetch Eva. I promised I would."

He drove fast, but the rain was coming down in torrents by the time he reached the Dennisons' house. From the window Eva saw the car swing in at the open gate, and her heart gave a little excited thrill.

She was quite ready to go—it never occurred to her, as it would have done to Kitty Arlington, to leave Philip to cool his heels for ten minutes or so. She came out into the hall to meet him, conscious that she was looking her best.

She was wearing one of her new dinner frocks, made of soft flimsy white tulle, and her sole ornament was a little diamond pendant which Philip had given her. She had taken great pains with her appearance; she was so sure that Philip would notice what she wore to-night.

He smiled faintly as he saw her.

"Ready! Thank goodness you're not one of those who keep people waiting." He took her cloak from her. "Let me help you."

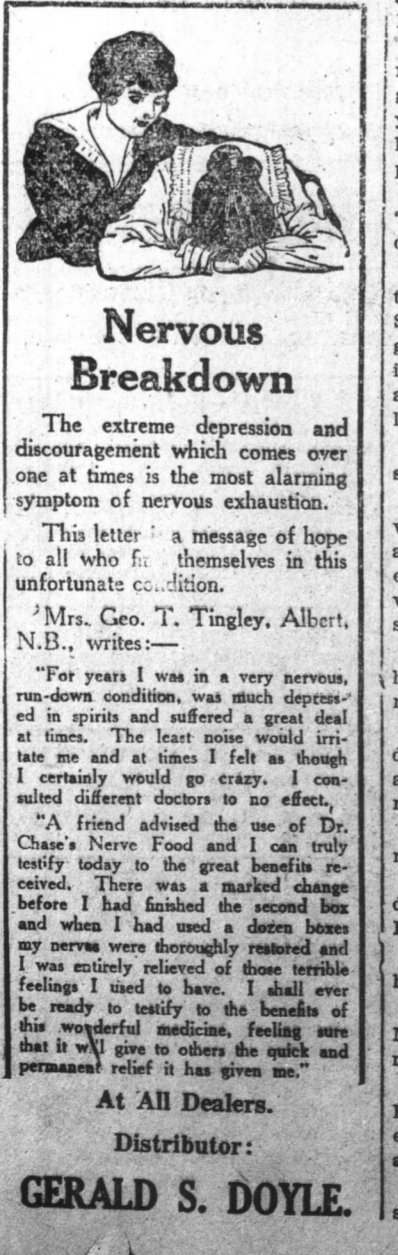

He had not noticed the frock! She tried hard to hide her disappointment. "I think we're going to have a storm," Philip said. He got in beside her and tucked the rug round her knees.

"There was a wire from Calligan this afternoon. He is coming down on the 5.45. You wouldn't care to go round that way and pick him up, I suppose?"

For the barest second Eva did not speak. She felt a sort of bleak disappointment. What had she hoped for from this drive together? She hardly knew. She turned a smiling face to him.

"I should love to! I'm longing to see him."

"Good!" Philip looked pleased. He had forgotten that he had proposed this drive together because he wanted

Nervous Breakdown

The extreme depression and discouragement which comes over one at times is the most alarming symptom of nervous exhaustion.

This letter is a message of hope to all who fit themselves in this unfortunate condition.

Mrs. Geo. T. Tingley, Albert, N.B., writes:—

"For years I was in a very nervous, run-down condition, was much depressed in spirits and suffered a great deal at times. The least noise would irritate me and at times I felt as though I certainly would go crazy. I consulted different doctors to no effect.

"A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and I can truly testify today to the great benefits received. There was a marked change before I had finished the second box and when I had used a dozen boxes my nerves were thoroughly relaxed and I was entirely relieved of those terrible feelings I used to have. I shall ever be ready to testify to the benefits of this wonderful medicine, feeling sure that it will give to others the quick and permanent relief it has given me."

to have her to himself for a few moments.

He looked much more cheerful as they drove off. It was still raining heavily. The wheels of the car sent a little squasy stream of muddy water in their rear.

"Warm enough?" Philip asked. He stretched an arm in front of her and tucked the rug in more securely. "You'll want a warmer one than this when we come back to-night."

Her eyes brightened. "Are you going to drive me home?" she asked.

"Of course," he laughed. "If you'll trust yourself to me after all the champagne I dare say I shall have to drink before the night's over."

"I'm not afraid," he looked away from her.

There was a little silence. "What were you wishing that night when I saw you talking to the moon?" young Winterdick asked suddenly.

She flushed sensitively. "I can't tell you now—some day, perhaps . . ."

"When we're married?" he asked.

She did not answer. They were in sight of the station.

"I hope you'll like Calligan," Philip said. He was peering eagerly ahead of him. "The train's in, I think . . . There's Banks with the runabout."

"I'll take Mr. Calligan—you see to his baggage." He stopped the car and got out.

Several people stared at him interestedly. He looked a fine figure of a man, and Eva's eyes followed him with wistful pride as he went on and into the station.

She was glad to do as he wished, and pleased to meet the much-talked-of Calligan, but she had looked forward—oh, so much—to this little while alone with him. She had thought . . . she was half ashamed of her thoughts now as she sat there alone, with the rain beating down on the hood of the car.

And all in another two days she would have him to herself. She need not be selfish and grudge him his friends, but he might have said something about her frock, she thought.

Philip was already coming back. He was followed by a square-shouldered man in a long coat, who was laughing a great deal. She could hear his cheery voice. He was chipping Philip, she was sure.

"Here we are," Philip said. "Eva, this is Tom—hom, let me introduce you to Miss Dennison."

"Delighted!" Calligan hastily swept off the soft felt hat he wore. He looked at Eva with undisguised eagerness. He held out a hearty hand.

"Delighted!" he said. "I'm going to reverse the order of things and congratulate you. Phil's my best friend, you know." His eyes twinkled. "Perhaps, later on, I shall be able to sympathize with you, but now . . ."

Philip gave him a playful kick. "Dry up, you old idiot, and get in. And don't crush Eva's frock . . ."

Eva laughed. She moved up closer to Philip to make room for Calligan. She looked at him interestedly. Not good-looking, not nearly so good-looking as Philip, but she liked his face, and she knew that she was going to like the man himself.

"I've heard such a lot about you," she said.

"Really! I only heard about you when I got the invite to the dinner and wedding." His brown eyes searched her face critically. "Phil was always a lucky dog," he said, with a sort of irrelevance.

They were laughing and talking happily together by the time they reached the Highway House.

There was a strip of carpet laid down to the gravel walk and a striped awning overhead. The footman hurried out when he saw the car.

Eva's heart gave a little thump of nervousness.

This was the beginning of her ordeal. She hesitated and looked at Philip.

He smiled, meeting her eyes. He held out his hand.

"They went into the house together. Mrs. Winterdick came into the hall to meet them.

"My dear boy—you haven't brought Eva through all this rain in that open car—and Tom, too! How did you all manage to squeeze in?"

Eva laughed. "It was great fun," she said. She looked back at Philip, but he had already moved off with Calligan.

"I've always said you were a lucky dog," Calligan said when they were out of earshot. "But I've never really felt vitally envious of you until to-night."

Philip raised his brows. "Because I'm getting married?" he asked with faint irony.

"No! Because you've found the girl I've been looking for all my life," said Calligan.

Philip stared. "You like her?" he asked.

"Like her! I'll tell you one thing already, you old stoic, you," Calligan said, "and that is that she's a thundering sight too good for you."

Young Winterdick laughed.

"I'm not denying it," he said somberly.

CHAPTER XIII.

Afterwards, looking back on that evening, it all seemed to Eva like a panorama of light and colour at which she had only looked on and in which she had never really participated.

There were so many speeches—so many toasts to drink—so much laughter and popping of corks—so many good wishes, so many pretty women—she felt herself lost in a sea of noise and excitement.

She sat between Philip and Tom Calligan at the head of the table, and if she had been asked afterwards she would probably have said that Tom talked a great deal and Philip hardly at all, but she could never be sure.

She knew that her father made a long and rather boring speech, in which he gratuitously dropped some hints and made the fact more noticeable by his frantic endeavours to recover them. She knew that her mother was intended to be thankful because she thought it was the right thing to do. But nothing was real, though here and there a little cameo picture seemed to stand out clear-cut against the confused background.

Philip—first of all—he looked so flushed and excited, and when he spoke his voice was rather loud, as if he were not enjoying himself quite as much as he felt people expected him to be and was anxious to hide the fact. He had never looked more handsome, she thought. She was so proud of him. Her whole heart was full of love and gratitude to him for caring for her.

Then there was Peter—Peter, who drank a little too much champagne and who looked at Kitty Arlington the whole evening, and Kitty herself, very young and pretty in her blue frock and with a white rose in her dusty hair.

Philip seemed to avoid Kitty. Eva noticed that fact, and somehow it did not please her.

Then there was Mrs. Winterdick, smiling steadily, but often with the tears in her eyes as she looked at her son—and Mr. Winterdick, handsome and dignified, who called her "My dear" whenever he spoke to her, and did his utmost to make her feel at ease.

But the worst moment of all was when somebody called for a speech from Philip, and he rose reluctantly in his chair and a sudden hush fell on the noisy room.

Eva looked round at the many faces. At the back of the room the menseservants were standing in a solemn row, and beyond them again the grim, unsmiling portraits of dead and gone Winterdicks, and round the table there were the guests—her own father and mother, and Philip's, and many people whom she did not know, though she had been introduced to them all and had shaken hands with them, and there was Kitty Arlington and Peter . . . It was odd how Kitty's little face somehow fascinated Eva and drew her attention again and again.

She did not want to look at her. She knew that she had never really liked her; and now, in the place of her old jealousy of Philip and Kitty was a growing jealousy of Peter and Kitty.

Peter was too good for Kitty—too honest and sincere. She looked again at Philip. He was standing up very straight and stiff, his fingers clasped round the stem of his wingless. She heard him say that he was delighted to see all his friends present—that it was the most memorable occasion of his life. Perhaps he ought to say the happiest—"So far," he added.

There was a chuckle from Calligan, and the rest of the table took up the laugh.

When it had died down Philip went on.

"I should like to thank you all—for myself . . . and . . ." He half turned and looked down at Eva. "And for my future wife . . ." He stumbled a little over the unaccustomed words, and Eva raised her head suddenly and their eyes met.

Two Famous Paintings.

Duven Brothers, picture dealers of New York, recently bought from the Duke of Westminster two of the world's most famous paintings, one "The Tragic Muse," by Sir Joseph Reynolds, and the other "The Blue Boy" by Gainsborough, for £200,000, the nominally nearly one million dollars. picture. The pictures have not yet been offered to any buyer and will not be until after the exhibitions.

IRISH PEACE TREATY RATIFIED.

Dail Records Majority of Seven in Favor--De Valera Will Fight Provisional Government--South Africa Has Miner's Strike on Hand.

TREATY RATIFIED.
DUBLIN, Jan. 8. Dail Eireann to-night voted for ratification of the Treaty creating an Irish Free State by a vote of sixty-four to fifty-seven.

A MOMENTOUS OCCASION.
DUBLIN, Jan. 8. By vote of 64 to 57 Dail gave its approval Saturday to the document signed by its delegation in London pending for the creation of the Irish Free State. The news was received with greatest enthusiasm, and the patient crowds which waited for hours outside the university building burst into cheering even before the official figures were announced. A tense, strained silence prevailed while the vote was being taken, and a gasp of relief went from the supporters of the Treaty when the result was announced. A dramatic scene ensued when De Valera stood up and in a broken voice which vibrated with emotion declared the Republic must be carried on. Eventually he broke down so completely that he was unable to proceed. Dail Eireann with second applause and cheered him. Michael Collins in quiet tones followed De Valera. He said he did not regard the result in any spirit of triumph. He asked that the men who would take over the Irish Government be given a fair chance, and appealed to the other side to agree to the appointment of a joint committee of both sides to carry on the Government. What mattered was the maintenance of public order.

STILL CAUSE FOR ANXIETY.
DUBLIN, Jan. 8. The Irish Peace Treaty has been ratified and prayers of thanksgiving went up from people in all churches to-day, but Ireland continues to face internal disorganization giving rise to greatest anxiety. The split in Dail has been intensified by the vote on the Treaty, and the future was never more obscure. At different hours today the two factions held meetings in the Mansion House. It has become apparent that De Valera's resignation as President of the Irish Republic did not take official form, and the outstanding question to-night is whether he will make effective his expressed intention to resign and what will become of Dail. Many believe the opponents of the Treaty plan to keep the Sinn Fein Parliament in being, while supporters of the Treaty endeavour to establish a Provisional Government and carry out the terms of the Peace Agreement. To-day De Valera delivered a speech clearly indicating intention to continue the fight, apparently not against the British Government, but against the Provisional Government of the Irish Free State which he said, he regarded as a usurpation and to which his chief objection is that it derives its authority from the British Parliament. The task of the Provisional Government, faced by the opposition of the old Republican colleagues will be extremely difficult, some deputies, including Miss MacSweeney, having declared their intention to act as rebels against the Provisional Government. De Valera will resign only when he has considered the Republic position, declared to-night Art O'Brien, President of the Self-Determination League of Great Britain, and a close associate of the Republican leader.

DE VALERA WILL FIGHT.

DUBLIN, Jan. 8.
To-day in his drawing room in the Mansion House, De Valera received an illuminated address voted him by a Convention representing 50,000 of the Hibernian Catholics Benefit Society in Australia. The presentation was made by Rev. O'Reilly, who said the feeling in Australia was that Ireland should be an untrammelled Republic. Replying De Valera declared the Irish people had not self-determined themselves within the British Empire as British subjects. He said he had worked hard to find a solution of the problem of reconciling the two peoples consistent with the Irish people's desire to maintain a distinct nationality and Sovereign State, but that had been turned down and the fight must go on. "The Republic of Ireland still exists," De Valera declared. "Its Sovereign Parliament still exists. The resolution recommending approval of a certain treaty is not ratification and is not a loyal act. That will not be effected until the Irish have disestablished the Republic which they set up of their own will. As far as human brains and hearts can achieve it the self-determination of the Irish people will be forged and by men and women of Ireland of this generation. They are not going to give up now." De Valera and his supporters then went into private session.

MILITARY REGARD WORK FINISHED.

DUBLIN, Jan. 8.
Military authorities here evidently consider the vote in favor of the Peace Treaty by Dail Eireann Saturday as the final decision on the Irish situation. To-day soldiers began clearing away the barbed wire entanglements which have surrounded Dublin City Hall ever since it was commandeered by the military.

POISON OUTLAWED.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.
Poison as an instrument of warfare, was outlawed to-day by Great Britain, Japan, France, Italy and the United States through their representatives in the Washington Conference, who approved of the proposal to prohibit its use.

BRITAIN AND POISON GAS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.
At the Arms Conference on Saturday Balfour, in expressing assent for the British delegation to the resolution prohibiting the use of poison gas in war, was understood to have stated that Britain, while agreeable to prohibiting the use of that weapon, must, however, keep in touch with developments in chemical warfare so as to be prepared should war arise with any nations not represented at the Washington Conference.

SOUTH AFRICAN STRIKE SITUATION GRAVE.

LONDON, Jan. 8.
The strike situation in South Africa is very grave, according to Reuter's despatch from Johannesburg. Premier Smuts conferred on Saturday with the industrial federation, and asked that coal mined by non-union workmen be allowed the Vereefing power station, but the Federation refused. Since the miners went out on January 1st, the Federation has been organizing other trades for a sympathetic strike if necessary.

CANADIAN TRADE PROSPECTS.

OTTAWA, Jan. 8.
Prospects for Canadian trade overseas are more hopeful, according to the Commercial Intelligence Journal.

GERMANY TO BE CALLED IN.

CANNES, Jan. 8.
Representatives of Germany some time next week will come here to discuss with the Supreme Council the reparations proposals to be prepared by the Allied statesmen, it was decided yesterday.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION IN ONTARIO.

TORONTO, Jan. 8.
The propaganda carried on by the Roman Catholic Church and Schools in Ontario looking to changes in the assessment act, which will give the Catholic Schools a larger proportion of revenues through readjustment and the right to establish separate high schools, is provoking organization by public school supporters to combat any alteration in the present system.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHY NOT MORE SYMPATHY FOR DEAFNESS?

Why is it that the people who are hard of hearing receive so much less sympathy than those with a failing sight? That is a question one often hears asked and the answer almost invariably given is that blindness seems so much more tragic than deafness and that it awakens acuter sympathy and compassion.

That is true enough but here are two other answers.

One is that while the groping of the blind is purely pathetic, the mistakes of the deaf often have a ridiculous side to them.

Sympathize More Readily With Blindness.

The other answer was suggested to me by an authority on lip reading, and is a striking and enlightening thought. We know more about blindness than we do about deafness, said this authority, because we are all blind when it is dark. Hence we realize the difficulties and deprivations of the blind as we cannot realize those of the deaf. If we all were deprived at times of our ears as automatically as the darkness deprives us of our eyes we should understand deafness much more fully and should be much more sympathetic.

And though that might not be a blessing for us, it would certainly be a blessing for those who walk among us forever in the shadow of the silence and loneliness enforced by that affliction.

Is Your Hearing Perfect? Perhaps if we realized our own chances of joining those whose joys are thus curtailed, we might be more considerate. In an article on the subject I saw the other day that one in ten is to some extent hard of hearing and that the proportion increases every year. Many people who are somewhat deaf in one ear do not realize it until something affects the hearing in the other ear.

Of course no one who has any decency at all deliberately makes fun of the hard of hearing, but there are many ways of being considerate besides refraining from such obvious brutality.

One can mitigate that left-out-feeling by drawing the deaf person into the conversation by addressing a word or two to him that will give him the key note and help him to follow.

Arab Robin Hood.

Al Ikbal, an Arabic newspaper, reports the escape from Ceylon, whither he was expelled by the British Government from Mesopotamia, of the notorious Sayid Taleb claimant to the throne of Irak, and known from Basra to Bagdad as the Arab Robin Hood. He is stated to be seeking a refuge in the country of Ibn Saud, the Sultan of Nudj, who, according to Moslem law, will be compelled to offer him hospitality. No news of Taleb's escape, however, has reached official circles in London where it is declared that Ibn Saud, who is in receipt of a subsidy of £60,000 a year from the British Government, will doubtless inform the High Commissioner of Mesopotamia of the arrival of his unwelcome guest. Sayid Taleb attempted to influence the recent royal election in Mesopotamia in his favor by corruption and bribery and he was about to declare war on the British Government with a handful of followers when he was expelled.

The Humber Proposition.

On page 5 to-day we publish an outline of the development ideas embodied in the Humber Valley proposition, and would ask our readers to study carefully the data given. Other articles of similar nature will follow the present, in order that all the information available may be laid before the public, who in the main must themselves constitute the judges, and submit their approval or disapproval of this development project. In the article mentioned, which has been specially prepared for the Telegram the promoters lay their cards face upwards on the table. They offer for the open examination of the people the internal and external economy of their contemplated industry in Newfoundland. There is nothing apparently concealed, because it would not pay to hide anything having any bearing upon the proposition. Moreover the promoters' one desire is to gain the implicit confidence of the people and to show them that they mean business, and that the natural resources of forest, soil and water of this colony are going to be exploited to the limit, turning the same to the valuable and successful advantage of the whole population. We need not to-day offer any lengthy comment on the Humber Valley proposal. The main features of it are indicated clearly and concisely in the article which we publish, and we appeal to the reason of the electorate to consider it in detail by itself. We see no reason to quote statistics at the moment. Figures may be interesting but they are not always convincing. Skillful mathematical manipulation can make numerals do anything required, hence we would wish for Newfoundlanders of all classes to judge the Humber proposition on its merits. Everybody today is beginning to realize that our entire support cannot be guaranteed from the fisheries. The estimated revenue of the Colony for the year to end on June 30th next far exceeds the total value of the returns from our main industry—the cod-fishery. If other avenues of employment are not found, how then will this revenue be realised. Interior development is as necessary to the life of the country as the provisions we import from Canada and United States. More labor is required in order that the fisheries may not be overworked. Are we then going to permit the whole interior of Newfoundland to remain a terra incognita for ever, because of a fear that prospective development may cost us too much in the way of concessions? Of what value is land and forest and water and mine, when it lies idle? We are not by any means progressive if we do not encourage outside wealth to introduce itself. And it is only through and by inducing capitalists from abroad to come in that we can hope to make any future progress along the lines laid down in the Humber Valley proposal. We stand in our own light if this should happen to be turned down or sandbagged either by prejudice or fear. The one outstanding vital aspect of the situation in Newfoundland at the moment is that the people want extra work. The fisheries are inadequate to sustain all. Therefore the duty of the present is to see that ample employment is provided in order that the country shall recover.

Twenty Years Ago To-Day.

(Evening Telegram Jan. 9th, 1902.) An item states that the weather prevailing since the winter months set in is unprecedented. Trade and commerce is going on with Northern ports over the water as in the month of October, and every day small schooners may be seen passing in and out of the narrows.

Boats from Bell Island were at Broad Cove and other sections looking for men to work in the mines. They were offering 12 cents per hour, and very few men could be had "even at this figure," says the item.

"Cape Race" at Sydney.

The scho. Cape Race arrived at Sydney on Saturday, after a very boisterous passage of 12 days from this port. Capt. Burke says that the trip was the most stormy in his experience, and the news of his arrival at his destination will be hailed with satisfaction by his many friends in the city, as well as by the relatives of the crew, whose anxiety was very great indeed. Capt. Burke says that the Cape Race is a great seaboat and came through the trying experience with little or no damage.

The Model School, Synod Building.

By the last "Rosallid" there returned to the City, Miss Muriel Purchase, who has been away for the last twelve months studying her chosen profession at New York University. She returns to the City to take charge of the Model School again, and brings with her the Kindergarten Diploma, and the experience that Miss Purchase has had in New York City will prove of great value to her. She resumed charge of the Model School this morning. During her absence, the school has been considerably enlarged and will now be one of the finest elementary schools in the City. While Miss Purchase has been away, Miss Colton has had charge of the school and has performed her duties in a most satisfactory manner.

Bishop Spencer College.

The Principal, Miss Richards, has been fortunate enough to secure the services of Miss Hazel White to succeed Miss Mackay on the staff of Bp. Spencer College. Miss White is a graduate of Dalhousie in Mathematics and is now studying for the M.A. degree in Mathematics. She has likewise taken one year's Engineering Course, and has been trained at Truro. She will take charge of the advanced Mathematics at the College. Miss White is also a Pen and Ink artist. Altogether, she is likely to prove a valuable addition to the staff of the College.

Horsemen's Annual Meeting.

PRIZE PRESENTATION. The Newfoundland Horsemen's Association are meeting this afternoon in the Board of Trade Rooms for the purpose of submitting reports and accounts for the past year's work. Messrs. John O'Driscoll, owner and driver of "Sweet Echo," and Joseph Judge, owner and driver of "May Taunton," will be presented with the handsome silver cups won at last winter's meet. This is the third annual assembly of the Horsemen's Association, and the members are anticipating a large gathering.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC REPEATED.

A very large congregation assembled last evening when the Rev. E. W. Forbes, M.A., B.D., of Gower Street Church, preached a most helpful and practical sermon in relation to the Peace and Goodwill that should exist, emphasizing that we should be careful in regard to the little things of life. The Christmas music was repeated by the full choir, which surpassed its work at Christmas time, though that was good. The three choruses from Messiah "Oh Thou That Teltest," "For Unto Us a Child is Born," and "The Hallelujah Chorus" were splendidly given, and the brightness and the joy of "For Unto Us" was well expressed, the different parts taking the form of a "Hallelujah Chorus" was sung most joyfully, interpreting well the character of the music. The soloists excelled themselves. Miss Herder sang the solo "Oh Thou That Teltest," and her beautiful voice was heard to great advantage, the accompaniment, with varying tones of flute, string and clarinet contrasting beautifully and softly. The accompaniments right through were of an orchestral character, and were designed so that the voices would come out clearly, not being overpowered by organ tone. Miss Vincent's solo in the Carol "Ave Jue" was most sweetly and clearly given. Miss Vincent's voice is particularly suited to work of this character, and her sympathetic rendition delighted the congregation. The organist and choir are certainly to be congratulated, and not the least praise is due them for the unaccompanied singing, which occurred in various parts of the service. This was done exceedingly well, and such work is really the best test of any choir's ability. The congregational singing was most general and hearty.

HIS DIARY. January 7th.—By news out of Ireland, I find that there is great uproar over the resignation of De Valera, and he is said to be a vain, selfish man, and one that doth care for his own personal vanity, more than for his country. On going to the office, I find there many accounts which tradesmen did send me, and I, therefore, brought to realize what truth there is in the saying, "Be sure your bills will find you out." And it seems how I had better attend more to my accounts or I shall, indeed, be in a bad way. My house is as clean as I never saw it, or any other house, in my life, albeit, I fear, it will not long remain so. After tea, to the writing of many letters, and so to bed, but after nine of the clock, which is earlier than I have gone these many months.

Our Book Review.

"Through the Russian Revolution." By Albert Rhys Williams. It is perhaps, only natural that one should take up a book dealing with the Russian Revolution from the Bolshevik viewpoint, with a certain amount of prejudice. Nor, is it possible to entirely free one's mind from this prejudice, even at the realization that a reviewer should preserve an impartial view of any book which comes into his hands until he is fully acquainted with its contents and in a position to pass judgement. Mr. Albert Rhys Williams, the author of "Through the Russian Revolution," is avowedly a socialist, and to a great extent his vision is narrowed by his sympathies. In spite of this, he has produced a book which the publishers truly describe as "a terse, thrilling, authentic story." The author participated in many of the most important events of the Revolution, and is in a position to lay the evidence of his own eyes before his readers. He tells of the formation of the Soviet Government, of the fall of the Provisional Government, of the attempts of the Whites and the bourgeoisie to defeat the Bolsheviks, in a manner which cannot fail to grip the attention of the reader. This is how Mr. Williams describes the fall of the Provisional Government. "Finally stung to fury, Abramovitch cries out, 'We cannot remain here and be responsible for these crimes. We invite all delegates to leave this congress. With a dramatic gesture he steps from the platform and stalks towards the door. About eight delegates rise from their seats and push their way after him. 'Let them go,' cries Trotsky, 'let them go! They are just so much refuse that will be swept into the garbage-heap of history.' In a storm of hoots, jeers, and taunts of 'Renegades! Traitors!' from the proletarians, the intelligentsia pass out of the hall and out of the Revolution. A supreme tragedy!"

French Schooner Abandoned.

Hon. Tasker Cook received a message this morning stating that the schooner Rene de Mere had been abandoned at sea and the crew rescued by the S.S. Hudson. It is supposed that the vessel is one which left St. Pierre a short while ago with a cargo of fish bound to France.

First Hockey Practice.

The Faldians had their first try-out on the ice on Saturday night. Over twenty men turned out. The ice was in good condition and the practice was a very satisfactory one. Later in the evening the Terra Novas had a practice. One or two new men were to be seen in their ranks. Len Stick will not be playing for the Terras this year, and his loss will be a severe one to the team.

Making Harbor at Flatrock.

MUCH NEEDED IMPROVEMENT. Through the efforts of the members of the District of St. John's East the settlement of Flat Rock is to have a harbor, wherein fishing boats may shelter. Both this place and Pouch Cove are exposed to the sea, making them dangerous places out of which to fish. The present undertaking will make a safe shelter for the motor boats of the adjacent places to run in the event of storms. So eager are the fishermen of the place to have the improvement made that they are working at it for one dollar per day, and some have offered their services free. The work is a big undertaking and includes digging out a pond which now filled with single, from this place a canal is being cut to the salt water. Breast-works on either side are to be built to prevent the sea from doing damage. Construction is under the supervision of Engineer Hall and Mr. Robinson of the Engineer's Department. They are at the scene to-day superintending the work.

Discriminating Against Local Tonnage.

Thursday's public message states that two steamers are about to load with fish for the Mediterranean market. The chartering of outside steamers for this trade when there are vessels tied up in St. John's unable to secure freight, seems to be unreasonable and contrary to sound commercial business. The reason, however, is given that owing to the many heavy losses in the mercantile marine during the past year, the insurance on such risks has so increased that it is said it stands at fourteen per cent on cargoes in sailing vessels, while the risks in steamers are taken at normal rates. And so the local vessels have to remain idle and our sea-faring men are out of employment.—Hr. Grace Standard.

Supreme Court.

(Before Full Bench.)

The Grand Jury were present and were sworn in as follows: Edwin Murray, Wm. H. Frost, Heber Hartnett, Fred Maundor, John Henley, Benj. Edgecombe, Wm. Whitemarsh, Thos. Byrne, John Hunt, John Fardale, Wm. J. Malone, Geo. Furse, George Hennebury, Samuel Frellick, Thorburn McNab, Albert Faulkner, Michael Blackler, Richard Buckley, A. Radford, Frederick Hann. Mr. Edwin Murray sworn as foreman.

IN ADMIRALTY.

Between the owners of the s.s. Karma, plaintiff, and The Wld. Shipping Co., Ltd., deft.—Howley, K.C., for the plaintiff; L. E. Emerson, for defendant. H. A. Winter for A. H. Murray & Co.; Mr. Bradley for A. E. Hickman & Co. Several witnesses were examined after which court took recess until 2.30 this afternoon.

With the Airmen.

Major Cotton is now at Botwood preparing his big Westland machine for the Halifax flight. This "plane" is a seven-passenger machine and is rather heavy for the proposed flight. The Martinsyde is badly damaged and a new undercarriage will have to be imported. Capt. Bennett is now at Deer Lake looking after the De Havilland 9, and he will probably bring that machine to Botwood. The aviators are still optimistic, despite the difficulties in their way and the trials they have experienced.

Row on Water Street.

This morning a row which caused a large number of people to gather, started near the Millin Building. The pugilists were J. Teens and another labourer named Sheam. Sergeant Furlong and several Constables appeared on the scene and arrested Teens, who seemed to be the aggressor. Teens kicked out and struck Sergeant Furlong, but he was nevertheless brought to the cooler in quick time. It is said that the row started over the origin of the fire at the L.S. P.U. Hall.

Shipping Notes.

Schr. Elizabeth Moore left Gibraltar yesterday for this port. Schr. Winifred Lee has arrived at Grand Bank, salt laden from Santa Pola. Schr. Behemia has arrived to St. Harris, Ltd., Grand Bank, with a load of provisions from Boston. Schr. Thorndyke has arrived at Burin, salt laden to Patten & Forsey. Schr. Cecil Jr. has cleared from Twillingate with 3,708 qts. Labrador and 1,050 qts. Shore fish. Schr. Little Stephen has cleared from Twillingate with 3,827 qts. Labrador and 200 qts. Shore fish. Both the Cecil Jr. and Little Stephen were loaded by W. Ashbourne, and sail at the first favourable opportunity for Gibraltar.

Cabot Auctioned.

SIR M. P. CASHIN THE PURCHASER. S.S. Cabot, owned by the Newfoundland Produce Co., was sold at auction to-day at the Board of Trade Rooms by Mr. Canning, of A. S. Rendell & Co. Sir Michael Cashin was the purchaser. There were a large number of people present and bidding started at $2,000. This was followed in $100 bids up to $5,000 when the offers dropped to $50 and then to $25. Finally the ship was knocked down for $5,100. The Cabot was built in Norway in 1889 and it is said cost about $30,000. She has a net tonnage of 39; the ship is fitted ready for sea and sails this evening for Trinity towing down a vessel.

Personal.

Mr. J. G. Stone left for Halifax by the Rosallid on a business trip. His many friends will regret to learn that Capt. John Lewis, M.H.A., Harbor Main, is at present in Hospital in Naples undergoing treatment. Although very ill, his recovery is looked for in a short while.

HELP THE NEEDY.—St. Mary's Women's Association will have an Informal Social Afternoon and Evening (4 o'clock to 10 o'clock) on Tuesday, January 10th, in the Parish Hall, Teas 30c. Come with your friends and help the Parish Poor Fund. Jan. 9.

They arrived here on the Metagama. Their names are Captain D. Burden, Mate W. Burden, John Frieze, John Burden and James Crocker all of Carbonara.

FINAL RESIGNATION.

DUBLIN, Jan. 9. As soon as Dall Eireann was convened this morning, Eamonn De Valera arose and placed his resignation as President of the Irish Republic formally before the House.

LONDON PRESS COMMENT.

LONDON, Jan. 9. The majority of London newspapers to-day editorially express relief and satisfaction over vote of Dall Eireann on the Peace Treaty. While recognizing the difficulties ahead, owing to hostility of irreconcilables, they profess confidence that all trouble will be surmounted and that peace will eventually be restored. The Times says "if only this country will understand that Ireland is entitled to the spirit as well as the letter of her liberties, there is little fear for the future of relationship between these islands." The Daily Chronicle writes "the near future will show whether Irishmen can so abate their inmemorial habit of dissension, as build up a united people on the basis of a new charter, or whether Valera's way will persist until it has dragged Ireland's politics down to the level of Portugal's or even Mexico's." The Daily News says, "with a record behind us of English misgovernment, we are not entitled to resent passionate resistance to reconciliation, which extremists put up. What we care about is the fact of the establishment of peace on terms honorable to both sides." The Morning Post, with customary frank hostility, comments "the bewildered British public will find gloomy satisfaction in reflecting that the Irish will now be content to shoot one another, instead of hiring assassins to murder the King's servants."

Origin of Fire Unknown. NIGHT WATCHMAN WARNED HOUSEHOLDERS. The origin of this morning's fire at the L. S. P. U. Hall is unknown. It was first seen in the region of the boiler room and it is likely that the fire first occurred there. Mr. E. Skiffington, the night watchman, deserves great credit for his promptitude in sending in the alarm. He noticed the glare of the flames in the sky and immediately ran to the box at the foot of Prescott Street and sounded the alarm. He then proceeded to wake the porter of the Crosbie Hotel and have the guests warned, and he next went to all the houses in the neighborhood and warned the occupants. It was a very fortunate thing that Mr. Skiffington saw the blaze when he did, as a delay of even a few minutes in ringing in an alarm might have been attended by disastrous results.

HUMBER VALLEY DEVELOPMENT.

The Case for the Proposition.

Messrs. Sir W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth & Company have been asked by the Directors of the Newfoundland Products Corporation and Mines and Forests (Newfoundland) Limited, the owners of the Humber River water-power rights, certain lands adjacent to the river and certain timber limits, to act as their technical advisers in the development of the natural resources of their properties and to co-operate with them in the management of the industries to be established, and an agreement has been entered into, whereby, Messrs. Armstrong, Whitworth & Company undertake to act in this capacity.

During the past season, the new scheme for the development of the Humber River has been surveyed by the staff of the Newfoundland Products Corporation and Mines and Forests. The development consists of 100,000 H.P. from the Junction Brook flow. A further development of 60,000 H.P. can be added at the same site, by using the waters of the Upper Humber. And a further quantity of 25,000 H.P. can be developed from smaller streams in the immediate vicinity, and transmitted to this site at the head of Deer Lake, making a total possible development of 285,000 H.P.

Hydro Electric Power Cheapest. Cheap electrical power is now considered one of the best and safest investments. The estimated average cost of this whole development will not exceed $60.00 per H.P. This is a remarkably low figure, as is shown by comparing it with other similar undertakings, the cost of which is as high as $80.00 per H.P. The average for all Hydro-Electric concerns in Canada is $217.00 per H.P. The various industries for which cheap power is either essential, or of great importance, are: (1) The pulp and paper industry, (2) The local conditions and the resources of the country. As a result of this study it was found that the pulp and paper business would be the most suitable for the first industry, and a very thorough study of this was made in co-operation with the technical Directors of Messrs. Chas. W. Armstrong & Co., of Bury, Lancashire, England, one of the best known paper works of Great Britain and with a world wide experience in paper making.

The construction of a pulp and paper mill, utilizing about 85,000 H.P. and producing 400 tons of newspaper per day, has been decided upon. Of this power 25,000 H.P. will be required by the pulp grinders and paper making machinery, and 60,000 H.P. will be used for raising the necessary steam for drying the paper, producing sulphite pulp and heating. This method of operation will be cheaper than coal, and at the same time will make the mill independent of all supplies of outside coal. The timber limits have been carefully cruised by competent men, under the direction of Mr. J. P. Powell. The amount of wood available is estimated to be 10,500,000 cubic feet, and the quantity required is 220,000 cords per annum, there is enough wood on these limits to supply the mill at the proposed capacity, for 50 years, without considering natural growth during this period. This only represents about one-third of the timber available on the West Coast, so that the supply of timber is beyond question.

$20,000,000 to be Expended. Messrs. Armstrong, Whitworth & Company will take a contract to supply all the machinery and equipment for the whole power development and the pulp and paper mill at a firm price; execute the work on the site, construct and erect on a cost, plus percentage basis, so that the undertaking benefit from any reduction in the prices of all materials used in the construction as the work progresses.

On this basis, it is estimated that the cost of the whole development, including working capital, will not exceed $4,000,000. The estimated capital cost for the first 85,000 H.P. to be used for the purpose of manufacturing paper, worked out at the rate of $77.00 per H.P., which is a very low figure. Included in this figure is the cost of storage dams, canal, controlling and intake dams for the whole development, which reduces the cost of the balance of the power development of this project to $44.00 per H.P. The estimated cost of producing paper at this plant is $40.00 per ton, with rough wood costing $6.00 per cord at the mill. This cost of making paper is based on the most reliable and recent information in the most up-to-date Canadian Mills, where conditions most nearly approximate those of the proposed new undertaking. This figure will prove to be a conservative estimate. It is figured that the paper project can be carried out in two years time, provided financial arrangements can be made within the next few weeks, so that plant, equipment and material can be provided and assembled to make a very early start this coming Spring.

The Financial Side. All of the foregoing, however, is but one side of the problem, and the other part, the financial side, is one in which Messrs. Armstrong, Whitworth & Company have an equally important part. There are many good industrial projects all over the world, and one of the principal difficulties which prevents them from being carried out, is the difficulty of finding the necessary finances at the present time. Messrs. Armstrong, Whitworth & Company, owing to their reputation as a great engineering firm and their close association with strong financial groups, who have financed other undertakings with them, are in a position to obtain the necessary capital for this undertaking.

It will be necessary to issue bonds to the value of $3,000,000 at the start, but to have an authorized issue of $4,000,000, the balance of which could be used if and when required. During the construction period, that is, until the mill is in operation, the interest and sinking fund will be charged against the cost of construction, and paid out of the money raised by the issue of the bonds. The money markets, in which such undertakings have to be financed, are subject to the same laws of supply and demand as any other business. The financiers, who undertake such an issue, must be reasonably certain that it is such that the investing public will, within a reasonable time, take a large part of the bond issue of their hands. At the present time the amount of money available for investment is greatly reduced, owing to the general depression in trade, heavy taxation and the competition of Government borrowing. There are also two other kinds of competition which seriously affect such an issue; these are, the debenture issues of old firms and colonial issues. Taking them in order: Many old firms, requiring increased working capital, are in a position to show their balance sheets and a record of earnings over a period of many years, to their investors, which is a very good indication of their earning power. Secondly the colonial and other Governments all require more money for developments which have been deferred during the War and many of them have, recently, and are now, coming out with large issues. A new company, however attractive and sound it may be, is not in the position of an old established good concern or a Government. Under these circumstances the financiers stated definitely that it would be absolutely impossible for the money to be obtained at present, unless the Government of Newfoundland, out of a desire to see the natural resources of the country developed and employment found for its people, were willing to undertake to guarantee the interest and sinking fund on these bonds, so as to place them in the same class as the other gilt-edged issues being offered to the public. The net profits of the paper mills alone are calculated at $25.00 per ton on an output of 120,000 tons per annum, or a gross profit of $3,000,000 per annum. The fixed charges, interest and sinking fund, at 6% and 1% respectively come to $1,350,000, provided that the full $4,000,000 be issued (taking the pound at $4.50), so that the earnings, conservatively estimated, more than twice cover the fixed charges. Further, to safeguard the Government, a special reserve fund of $250,000 per annum will be set aside, until the whole amount is $1,500,000, and this will be put in the hands of trustees for the Government, and be available to meet any deficit caused by strikes or unfavourable operating conditions, before the Government would be called upon to pay anything.

Cheaper Newspaper. At present the selling price of paper, as set by the Newspaper Manufacturers Association, is $75.00 per ton; but in calculating profits this has been reduced to $65.00, so as to be on the safe side. It is impossible for paper to fall below a selling price of $55.00 per ton, because the actual manufacturing costs in many of the mills in the United States (the largest consumers of paper in the world) are as high and higher than this figure, owing to the high cost of getting the wood, long drive, cost of power, etc., and should the price ever fall so low, these mills would have to cease operations, and reduction of output would, of necessity, force up the price again.

In order to pay the fixed charges and make it certain that the Government will not have to pay anything under the guarantee, it is only necessary for the mills to sell paper at a profit of just over $11.00 per ton, or $51.00 per ton, and it is quite impossible for paper to fall to this price, unless the cost of living and materials both fall.

There is, therefore, no likelihood of the Government of Newfoundland ever being called upon for any payments under the guarantee.

Labor Will Benefit. The construction work will mean the spending of $7,000,000 in Newfoundland on labor and local material in two years. At least 50% of the cost of production of a ton of paper is paid in labor. $20.00 per ton, on a production of 120,000 tons, would be $2,500,000 paid annually in labor. Added to this will be the earnings of the people, in and around the town, who will not be in the direct pay of the Paper Company. The Paper Town will be situated at the head of Deer Lake, surrounded by the largest area of the best agricultural land in Newfoundland, which eventually should be producing meat and vegetables enough to supply the town demand. These three items combined will make the labor figure paid, directly and indirectly by this project, not less than $2,000,000 annually.

Dividends From Earnings Only. The Shareholders of the Products Corporation and Mines and Forests (Newfoundland) Limited are putting in, without payment, their lands and water powers, which will be mortgaged to secure payment of the bonds; and the interest and sinking fund are a first charge on the profits of the business; so that the shareholders can get nothing for their properties except from the earnings of the Company, and not through the interest and sinking fund have been paid and the special reserve fund provided as mentioned above. As regards the company which shall operate the undertakings, it was decided that the existing company, known as the Newfoundland Products Corporation should be enlarged and altered to meet the requirements, and under the new name of the Newfoundland Electric Power and Products Corporation, Limited, should be the Company to put this through. As Messrs. Armstrong, Whitworth & Company are to co-operate in the technical questions of the management, it was arranged that they should be represented by a Director on the Board, as will also the financiers.

Other Industries Contemplated. With a surplus of cheap power to dispose of, other electro-chemical industries will grow up around this centre, as in the case of Niagara and Shawinigan, and Deer Lake should become quite an important industrial centre, and the whole of Newfoundland would benefit either directly or indirectly by such a development. The paper industry is one of the great sound industries, and one which is growing in importance each year, and the value of water power is steadily increasing. A water power development is like a perpetual coal mine, and is as nearly a permanent asset as it is possible to create. In a commercial project there is inevitably an element of risk, but the very low cost of developing the power, and the favourable situation of the paper mill in the centre of a heavily timbered area, and the geographical position of Newfoundland makes the risk in this case an absolute minimum. The fact that the shareholders will derive no profit from the undertaking, until all the fixed charges covered by the guarantee have been met, is the strongest incentive to an efficient and careful administration, which is all that is needed to make the industry a success.

Household Notes. Add a cupful of cottage cheese to an apple custard mixture. Bake in an uncovered crust. When making peach short-cake butter the biscuit dough well before spreading with the fruit. One-half teaspoonful vinegar added to the cold water when mixing pie-crust will make it flaky. Never pour boiling water over fish in kettle, as it breaks the skin; lower the fish into the water. Doughnuts and crullers are very indigestible and should be eaten only by people who are exercising. Cream-cake shells are delicious filled with vanilla ice cream and served with thin chocolate sauce. To destroy a "scorched" taste in any vegetable or meat you are cooking, drop in a small piece of charcoal. An old coffee or cocoa tin makes a good flour or sugar dredger. If a few holes are bored in the bottom of the tin. Over a pint of potato salad, pour one pint of hot bouillon in which one tablespoon of gelatine has been dissolved. Chill. FIRE DESTROYS L. S. P. U. HALL.

Another Early Morning Conflagration--Neighbouring Houses in Great Danger.

The L.S.P.U. Hall on Victoria Street was completely destroyed by fire this morning. The splendid work of the firemen saved the houses in close proximity to the blazing hall. The building is insured. This is the second disastrous fire to occur in the early morning, within the past four days.

DISCOVERED BY WATCHMAN.

The fire was discovered by night watchman E. Skiffington at 3 a.m. He was making his usual rounds and upon finding the place ablaze, he immediately sent in an alarm. The Central and Western Fire Companies quickly responded, but upon their arrival the hall was a mass of flames and it was evident that the structure was doomed. Several streams of water were soon applied to the blaze but the efforts of the firemen were chiefly confined to saving the houses in the danger zone. These included the residences of Capt. Joy, Messrs. Freeman and Bragg on Victoria Street and Dr. T. Anderson, Mrs. G. A. Pippy and Mr. J. A. Paddon on Duckworth Street. Bowden's printing office which lies just below the hall was also in danger from the flames. Buildings some little distance away from the burning hall were threatened by flying embers which were falling constantly from the burning building.

ROOF COLLAPSES.

The firemen worked hard, careless of the danger which threatened them. It was not long before the roof, a blazing mass, fell in and the floors all gave way. Shortly after 4 a.m. the southern wall fell, dropping below into the backyards of Dr. Anderson's house and Bowden's printing office, tearing with it, a gable of Dr. Anderson's house, breaking several windows and doors, and doing other damage. The firemen were now called upon to make superhuman efforts to prevent the flames from spreading and despite the difficulty of their work, they were finally successful. About two hours after the first alarm had been rung in, the fire was placed under control. All through the morning, however, the firemen were compelled to remain on the scene, keeping streams of water directed on the dying flames.

STILL SMOULDERING.

The ruins were still smouldering at 9 o'clock, and a few minutes later, flames were again seen to shoot up from the tower. A stream of water was immediately turned on these and they were soon extinguished. The presence of some of the firemen was required until after noon.

The Hall was built after the fire of 1892, and was used for some time by the Sons of Temperance. It was later purchased by the late Campbell Macpherson and subsequently became the property of the L.S.P.U. whose meeting hall it was. A large quantity of crockeryware, the property of the Royal Stores Ltd., was stored in the basement and suffered considerable damage.

tion in the sky, and caused the immediate vicinity to become as bright as day; while sparks and burning wood flew everywhere, to the danger of fire fighters and spectators. Windows in nearby houses cracked from the excessive heat, and water penetrated other buildings doing some slight damage.

Judgment for Plaintiff.

BURNSTEIN CHEQUE CASE. Saturday evening Mr. Justice Johnson delivered judgment in the matter of J. Burnstein vs. The Canadian Bank of Commerce. The case was a lengthy one and occupied many sittings of the court. Judgment was given for the plaintiff and in substance is: That the defendant was not authorized to debit against the plaintiff the sum sued for viz. $140, paid by the Bank on Christmas Eve, 1920 on a cheque for that amount, filled in by the plaintiff. Plaintiff repudiated the cheque, as soon as it was handed to him by the Bank. The paper bore no date, but 1920, and the two cent stamp was defaced by the Bank. The cheque also had no endorsement. Mrs. Burnstein swore that the J. Burnstein was not written by her husband. Five bank officials agreed, however, in thinking that the signature was the same as that on 24 other cheques placed in evidence, which plaintiff admitted. Two girl clerks of plaintiff's also thought the signature was plaintiff's, but no witness could recognize the filling in. The Bank could not identify the person to whom it paid the money. Burnstein declared that he did not owe such a sum to any person, and therefore signed no such cheque. In the matter of expenses, the judgment was that each party should pay their own costs in the case. Mr. J. J. McGrath for the plaintiff; Mr. H. Knight for defendant.

UNCHANGEABLE MOTHER.

Mother's never change, I guess, in their tender thoughtfulness. Makes no difference that you grow up to forty years or so. Once you cough, you'll find that she sees you as you used to be. An' she wants to tell to you. All the things that you must do.

Just show symptoms of a cold. She'll forget that you've grown old. Though there's silver in your hair, still you need a mother's care. An' she'll ask you things like these: "You still wearing your old hat? Summer days have long since gone. You should have your flannels on."

Grown and married an' maybe Father of a family. But to mother you are still just her boy when you are ill. Just the lad that used to need Plasters made of mustard seed. An' she thinks she has to see. That you get your fussed tea.

Mother's never change, I guess, in their tender thoughtfulness. All her gentle long life through she is bent on nursing you; An' although you may be grown. She still claims you for her own. An' to her you'll always be. Just a youngster at her knee.

TRAIN SCHEDULE ALTERED.

After to-day there will be only one train the 8.45 a.m. running daily on the Carboner branch, except Saturdays when the six o'clock evening train will leave St. John's.

Star of the Sea Association.

ANNUAL CHURCH PARADE - A SPLENDID TURNOUT.

The annual church parade of the Star of the Sea Association took place yesterday. At 10 o'clock ranks were formed and via New Gower and Hamilton Streets St. Patrick's Church was reached. The C.C.C. and Empire Bands, which accompanied the Society, discarding lively music on the route. The old members of the Society drove in carriages at the head of the parade, which was led by the colors drawn by a pair of horses. High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. St. John. His Grace Archbishop Roche, on the throne, was attended by Monsgr. McDermott, V.G., Rev. Dr. Kitchin, P.P. of St. Patrick's, and Rev. Fr. Nangle. Rev. Fr. Sheehan assisted the celebrant as deacon with Rev. Fr. Leamy as sub-deacon. After Mass the Society paraded down Water Street and to the new hall via Henry Street. Here the members assembled grouped and were photographed by Mr. J. C. Parsons, afterwards assembling in the Theatre flat of the building. The large auditorium was practically filled. President J. T. Martin, after a brief outline of the efforts of the Society to rebuild their hall, congratulated the members on their day's turnout. After expressing the hope that the membership would increase by some hundreds during the coming year, he called on His Grace to address the gathering. The Archbishop spoke briefly, referring to the distressing circumstances under which the Society suffered last year. He said he realized the many difficulties they had to contend with, but which he believed they would surmount. He was happy to see that his hopes had more than realized. The splendid building which supplanted that destroyed by fire but one year ago was adequate testimony of the Society's recuperative power. In conclusion His Grace wished the Society prosperity and a greatly increased membership during the coming year. Cheers were then given and the C.C.C. Band rendered "The Pope's March."

Rev. Father Nangle being called on spoke encouragingly of the Society's extension. He had helped form a branch at Kelligrews, and other branches were in the outports, but he said being essentially a fisherman's society there was no reason why it should not exist in every part of the island where there was a Catholic Church. He suggested that there should be some form of ritual so that members could recognize one another. This splendid new hall showed what could be accomplished in 12 months, he said. With the same energy your membership in St. John's could be increased to 2,000 before the second spring of your rebirth has passed, he concluded.

Rev. Dr. Greene, Spiritual Director, following urged for increased membership. He said he was proud to be Chaplain of a society filling such a useful sphere. He complimented the members on the splendid turnout, and said that he hoped next year's parade would be the largest in the history of the Society. Before dismissing the meeting, President Martin announced that messages of congratulation had been received from Rev. D. O'Callaghan, P.P. St. Francis and former spiritual director, and also from the various branches of the Society in the outports. Nearly 300 members of the Society turned out for the parade.

Prospero Due Wednesday.

S.S. Prospero left Tilt Cove Saturday, coming this way, and is due here on Wednesday. Capt. Field reports very frosty weather North, with considerable heavy sleet along the coast. Owing to the ice conditions the Prospero was unable to call at any of the ports in White Bay coming South, and came direct to Tilt Cove from Conche. The ship made all ports of call going North, and had considerable freight for this section, it being her last trip north of La Scie.

Addressed Bible Class.

Mr. C. E. Hunt addressed the Wesley Church Adult Bible Class yesterday afternoon, taking as his subject, "In the Waiting Room." There was a full attendance of the class while several visiting friends were also present. Mr. Hunt's address was a most interesting one and was listened to with rapt attention. He referred to many matters in the community which required improvement and he showed how they could be improved. The address was greatly appreciated by all Mr. Hunt's hearers.

Mails on Incoming Express.

The express which arrived on Saturday did not bring any mail, owing to a tie-up of trains at Sydney, which was not relieved when the Kyle left on Friday last. Crossing again yesterday the Kyle brought the delayed mail, and some 300 bags are on the incoming express due in the city tonight.

Woman Declares She Just Dreaded To Eat Anything

Miss McCawley Is Now As Well And Strong As She Ever Was Before.

"I have been thankful a thousand times that I tried Tanlac, for I was weak and miserable a short time ago and now I am as well and strong as ever in my life. For over a year I was subject to acute attacks of indigestion, and only those who have had this trouble know what I suffered. I actually got to the place where I dreaded even the thought of eating; finally my nerves gave way and I was able to get little rest either day or night. Tanlac proved to me and I now feel better in every way. My digestion is perfect, my nerves are quiet and steady and my sleep is sound and refreshing. Why, I am just like a different person."

The above statement was made by Miss Alice McCawley, 466 Qu'Appelle Ave., Winnipeg, Man. Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

N. T. A. Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Executive of the Nrd. Teachers' Association was held at the Board of Trade on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 7th. The following were present: R. Dwyer, Esq., J.P., President; R. R. Wood, Esq., B.A., 1st Vice-Pres.; Rev. Bro. P. V. Strapp, 2nd V.P.; I. J. Sampson, Esq., Treas.; W. M. Butt, Esq., Secy.; Miss R. Bradbury, Rev. Bros. J. E. Ryan and J. B. Ryan, S. T. Harrington, Esq., M.A., S. P. White-way, Esq., LL. Colley, Esq., A. J. Goodland, Esq., James Norman, Esq., W. J. Guilford, Esq. The different reports were received and upon motion adopted. These will be published in detail in the Teachers' Journal.

As a very important matter in connection with the Pension Fund was to be considered, it was decided to have the election of officers for 1922 proceeded with at once. This resulted in the following officers being elected for 1922: President—E. Dwyer, Esq., J.P. 1st V.P.—R. R. Wood, Esq., B.A. 2nd V.P.—S. P. White-way, Esq. Treasurer—L. Colley, Esq. Secretary—W. M. Butt, Esq.

A long discussion then took place on the Pension Fund. As several of the outport members had to return home on the 6 o'clock express, the whole matter was referred to a committee to re-consider the matter and deal with it as they thought best. The meeting adjourned at 5.30. A full and detailed report of this meeting will be published in the January issue of the Journal.

Obituary.

MRS. RICHARD HAYDEN.

The sad news was recently received in Harbor Grace from Boston, announcing the death of Margaret, the beloved wife of Mr. Richard Hayden. The deceased lady was the daughter of the late Luke Fallon, who was retired from the British Army with the rank of Sergeant, having carried out his full term of active service in his regiment in various parts of the world, and subsequently, for many years, was Chief of Police in Harbor Grace. Mrs. Hayden was born in St. John's sixty-three years ago, but lived in Harbor Grace from childhood until a short time ago, when she proceeded to Boston. Deceased had been in poor health for some time past, but was able to be around as usual until few months ago. She had a host of friends, and was a woman of splendid personality, highly educated, and ever ready to extend a helping hand to the poor and needy. A commendable trait in her character was her love for home and family, for they were always first in her thoughts. Her illness she bore with Christian patience and fortitude, and after receiving the rites of the Catholic Church she peacefully passed away in Boston on Wednesday last, January 4th. The soldierly instinct is certainly hereditary in the Fallon family, because there were at least four of the descendants of the old soldier chief of police, their grandfather, fought in the Great War—the sons of the deceased and her nephews. She leaves to mourn their sad loss husband, four sons and four daughters, viz. Timothy, in Boston; Luke and Lawrence, in Harbor Grace; Ronald in Cape Broyle, Sadie, May and Rita in Boston and Josie in Hr. Grace; also two brothers and two sisters, John in Harbor Grace (a pensioner from the British Government, having saved the flag and thereby the battle, although wounded, during a revolution in the South American Republic); Christopher, holding a highly responsible position in Kansas City, Mo., U.S.A., and Mary and Mille in New York. Requiescat in pace.—Com.

Wedding Bells.

PENNY-WELLS.

Seldom, or ever, has English Harbor, T.B., witnessed such a pretty wedding as that solemnized in All Saints Church at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 31st. The contracting parties were Miss Miriam Penny, only daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. Alex Penny and Mr. Mark Wells, son of Mr. and the late Mrs. Robert Wells, both of this place. The Rev. Canon Lockyer, the famous historian of Trinity, conducted the ceremony, while Mr. G. Penny, C. of E. Teacher, presided at the organ and rendered the music appropriate to the occasion. The bride, who was tastefully attired in ivory satin, with pearl trimming, and veil with wreath of orange blossoms, and carrying a magnificent shower bouquet of white chrysanthemum looked charming as she entered the church leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. Nicholas Penny, who acted as father-giver. The bride was assisted by Mrs. Garland Penny who did the duties of matron of honour, being dressed in shell pink crepe de chene with hat to match. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. Warwick Wells. After the ceremony the guests, numbering about 200, were entertained at the home of the groom, where an enjoyable supper was partaken of, and a very pleasant evening spent. The bride is one of the most popular young ladies of English Harbour, and has only recently returned from Boston where she worked for two years. The groom is also popular in English Harbor, having spent eight years in Western Canada, returning about 2 years ago, and subsequently started business on his own account. The groom's present to the bride was a very substantial cheque. The presents from the bride's friends were also numerous and very valuable, thus testifying to the popularity of the happy couple. That Mr. and Mrs. Wells will have a pleasant voyage over the matrimonial sea is the sincere wish of all.—Com.

Conception Bay British Society.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers of the Conception Bay British Society was held in the Society's Hall on Monday evening last says the Hr. Grace Standard of January 6th. Past President Albert Rogers conducted the election of officers, and the following are office bearers for the coming year: President—P. Higgins, re-elected. Vice Pres.—R. Tetford, sr., re-elected. Treasurer—L. Sheppard, re-elected. Committee—James Parmiter, Geo. French, Fred Snow, Selby Noseworthy, John Martin, Austin Parsons, Jas. Garland, Eugene James and John Webster. Marshal—Albert Wells. Hallkeeper—Moses Shat. The Railway and the "Rise."

(With apologies to Phoebe and Jerry) It was rumored round the town. That the road was closing down. The track that leads to Giam Cove That for wrecks hath won renown. And that people ever were plunged in deep despair They could not pack our Cognac With expedition here Our well loved Cognac and dear.

Oh Jerry! It was horrid very, How did you accomplish their desire? I just had the chairman sacked And 'Trepassey's train retracked For I'm Mr. Jeremiah Esquire. Another thing we'll do Some uppish folks to match No, for if a hen can't be aeroplane For purpose of despatch (?) Our unique stamps I'm sure Will beat a hundred quills. Or well regret we ever bet A copper on this flight; This hard luck venture called a flight. Oh, Jerry ain't it thrilling very To such dizzy heights to aspire? No, for if a hen can't be aeroplane Some air flyers in a heat, You may call your Jeremiah a liar! Jan. 5, 1922. D. C.

Wedding Bells.

PENNY-WELLS.

Seldom, or ever, has English Harbor, T.B., witnessed such a pretty wedding as that solemnized in All Saints Church at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 31st. The contracting parties were Miss Miriam Penny, only daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. Alex Penny and Mr. Mark Wells, son of Mr. and the late Mrs. Robert Wells, both of this place. The Rev. Canon Lockyer, the famous historian of Trinity, conducted the ceremony, while Mr. G. Penny, C. of E. Teacher, presided at the organ and rendered the music appropriate to the occasion. The bride, who was tastefully attired in ivory satin, with pearl trimming, and veil with wreath of orange blossoms, and carrying a magnificent shower bouquet of white chrysanthemum looked charming as she entered the church leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. Nicholas Penny, who acted as father-giver. The bride was assisted by Mrs. Garland Penny who did the duties of matron of honour, being dressed in shell pink crepe de chene with hat to match. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. Warwick Wells. After the ceremony the guests, numbering about 200, were entertained at the home of the groom, where an enjoyable supper was partaken of, and a very pleasant evening spent. The bride is one of the most popular young ladies of English Harbour, and has only recently returned from Boston where she worked for two years. The groom is also popular in English Harbor, having spent eight years in Western Canada, returning about 2 years ago, and subsequently started business on his own account. The groom's present to the bride was a very substantial cheque. The presents from the bride's friends were also numerous and very valuable, thus testifying to the popularity of the happy couple. That Mr. and Mrs. Wells will have a pleasant voyage over the matrimonial sea is the sincere wish of all.—Com.

'All You Big Steamers.'

The Story of British Shipbuilding.

(By SIR ANDREW R. DUNCAN, in the January London Magazine.)

"Oh, where are you going to, all you big steamers; where England's own coal, oil and iron are going to fetch your bread and your butter. Your beef, pork, and mutton, eggs, apples and cheese."—Kipling.

Today, in the midst of the greatest depression ever known, the story of the supremacy of British shipbuilding does not lose its interest. It is naturally a story with many chapters, but at the very foundation of it, I put the historical love of the Britisher for the sea—his glorious traditions, other factors there are, but this comes first, and remains first. The Britisher has wooed and won the sea from time immemorial. For one reason or another, without arrestation has disputed with us the possession of the sea. They have lost her because they did not love her. In the sixteenth century the Spaniard loved and hated the sea. We drove him off it. The Dutchman, in the seventeenth century, loved profits, and coveted the sea to win them. As the old gibe ran:

"In matters of commerce the fault of the Dutch is giving too little and asking too much."

The sea is not to be kept on those terms. She must be loved and served for what she is, not for what she becomes. The bargain-driving Dutchman valued his flag before the adventure-loving Englishman. And again, in my own day, the German loved power and brought the sea to grant it to him. And again the romantic sea would have none of him. His sailing may be at the bottom of Neptune's play; his merchant ships are allied ports. The Briton has gone down to the sea in ships on his necessary occasions. He, too, has sought profit and found it, but through it all he has loved the sea. He has swept her free of pirates and slavers, and wherever he has taken could, of the second sort, we did 83 per cent; of the third sort, trade from one foreign port to another, and notwithstanding open and secret discrimination against our flag in favor of nationals, we did no less than 80 per cent. British ships sailed every sea and carried every conceivable kind of cargo. The British flag was familiar to every race under the sun. Every port, from the Golden Gate to Suez and on to Singapore and Canton was filled with the characteristic speech of the British sailorman.

THE HUB OF THE UNIVERSE.

Now shut one eye and look at the globe again, holding it exactly in front of the other eye. You see just half of it, as a circle with its centre plum in a line with your eye. Any spot on the map can be taken as the centre of this circle. Turn the globe so that its centre is London, and then observe the delectively-important fact that you can see nearly all the land on the earth—the whole of Europe, of Asia, of Africa, of North America, and most of South Africa. London is literally the Hub of the Universe, and in its geographical situation was just as favorably situated for the limited commercial range of the late Middle Ages as it is for the world-wide range of to-day. Trace out on the map the continuous range of mountains that cuts Europe into two halves—the Balkans, the Carpathians, the Alps, and the Pyrenees. The natural products of these two halves differ greatly, and it is diversity of necessary commodities that brings trade into being. But mountains are barriers to trade, and so was the sea until the compass was perfected. When long voyages became easy and safe, the natural meeting-place for ships carrying the products of Europe north of the mountain barrier and ships carrying those of the south, was the narrow Seas. Amsterdam and Antwerp were the great ports of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, but they were in "the cock-pit of Europe." London, safe and snug in its island home, entered on their heritage, and has never lost it. So that, whether one considers medieval or modern conditions, the geographical position of the British Islands has been unrivalled.

THE FIRST TRANSATLANTIC NAVIGATOR.

Unless one either reflects or knows, the word that seems to go best with the noun "sea" is the adjective "trackless." And so it was for centuries. The Athenes of Pericles was a great naval power, with a fine fighting fleet and a large mercantile marine, but the Athenian seamen hugged the shore, following its deviations even when they cost him weary weeks rather than venture out into the trackless sea. It was Columbus who first deliberately dared the unknown by leaving the shore hundreds of leagues behind him. On August 12th, 1492, he sailed from Palos in the Santa Maria into the Atlantic, sighting land again on October 11th. In 1493 an interesting experiment was made. Spanish workmen built for the Chicago Exhibition a replica of the Santa Maria, and Spanish seamen took her under her own sail over the route followed by Columbus. She took thirty-nine and a half days to make the voyage. The trackless deep is now the ocean highway. A glance at the map will show that ocean routes diverge from Liverpool just as the railways do, and steamers follow the one as regularly, as punctually, and as securely as trains run on the other. A Liverpool man, when the occasion demands, takes a ticket for New York or London, and the one gives him no more pause or concern than the other. The Santa Maria has given place to the Aquitania, the unknown deep to the chartered ocean across which the Aquitania speeds on her way, straight as an arrow from the bow, from the Bar Lightship to the Statue of Liberty. Love has never won a greater victory. It is the secular romance of the centuries.

THE NEED FOR THE LINE.

Nearly every great port in the world is made what it is because it has behind it what I may call a great economic hinterland. There are exceptions, such as Singapore, which is a great clearing-house. Contrast, for example, Galway and Liverpool. So far as natural advantages are concerned, Galway lies on one of the finest harbors in the world, and in the seventeenth century, when its trade was on a comparatively small scale, Galway was a port of some consequence as ports went then. But it has no economic hinterland. Nothing lies at the back of it to feed it with outward passengers and freight, and to draw them to it from across the sea. Now consider Glasgow, with the industrial Clyde behind it; Liverpool, the outlet for the most important industrial area in the world; and Hull, the ocean gateway to the West Riding. It is just the same with the great ports all over the world—Hamburg, New York, Buenos Ayres, Melbourne, and many another. There is always in each of these ports, passengers by the hundred, and freight by the shipload. Hence, the largest ship can be sure of a complement of passengers, and freight which is small in bulk in proportion to its value, and requires quick transport. To meet these two needs the great modern liner was developed. But the great ports, important as they are do not provide anything like the whole of the seaborne traffic of the world. Wherever there is a port there is a cargo inward or outward, both, and there are small ports by the thousand on the sea coasts of the world. Not one of them by itself could maintain its own steamer, but it can always provide, or is likely to provide, a parcel of cargo. To collect and drop these parcels at all the ports of the world is the function of the tramp.

Moreover, cargo in bulk is available at different times in different parts of the world. The wheat crop of Canada is available at one time and that of Russia in the days when there was one, at another. There is the Australian wool clip at one time, the Indian tea crop at another, and the American cotton at a third. A ship would be idle a good part of the year if it restricted itself to one of these trades, so the tramp goes everywhere, nosing about the sea of the world in search of cargo, and running in ballast when it cannot find it. The liner is bound to a definite route and a schedule of sailings. As for the tramp, a sea is hers to use as best she can for the profit of her owners.

Stafford's Phorotone for sale at Knowling's Stores, East, West and Central.—Jan. 4.

NEW YEAR VOW.

Of pledges I have made no string; just one resolve I've sworn: This year I won't buy anything that I can't well afford. In bygone years I blew my cash for junk and gilded brick; I'd buy up any kind of trash that I could get on tick. Henceforth I'll pay for this and that before I take it home, and if I can't afford that, I'll have a naked dome. For let's better far to walk and have a painful corn, than drive a motor round a block, and toot a costly horn, and know you owe for oil and gas, for tires you run all day, and that the citizens you pass are waiting for their pay. I've depked myself in brave attire, in silken sox and shirts, and anything I might desire I'd buy—and now it hurts; for merchant princes stare at me, their aspect daunts and chills; I hear them say, "You owe me three—why don't you pay your bills?" And letters come to my abode, stern documents that say, "Some seven bones you long have owed—why not come in and pay?" A long, long time I have endured rebuffs at every store, and now such troubles must be cured—'I'll buy on tick no more. Like prudent lads I will behave, my wages I won't blow; and if I can't afford shave I'll let my whiskers grow.

Rich and gorgeous materials are used for evening gowns and wraps.

Produce and Provisions.

(From Saturday's Trade Review.)

Codfish—Consumption fell off over 100 per cent in Oporto last week where the Newfoundland stocks at New Year were 73,148 quintals. The figures are expected to improve from this time forward, as there is always a lull between Christmas and New Year up to January 15th. The exports for the week were very low and totalled only 11,948 quintals as follows:—

By Jean Dundonald Duff, 6,857 qtls. to Bahia from the Newfoundland Produce Co.; by the schooner Evelyne, 4,571 quintals to Bahia from Job Bros. & Co., and by the S.S. Sabie 1, 620 quintals to West Indies from Messrs. Job Bros. & Co., and James Baird, Ltd.

Cod Oil—The shipments of Cod Oil to New York this week were quite heavy and amounted to 23,987 gallons. The local holdings are being fast depleted the past two months, and there is not much in hand now as compared with other seasons at the turn of the year. Any improvement in price is contingent on business revival in Great Britain and the United States, especially the leather manufacturers the coming spring. As better business is predicted by the United States Trade Journals in the near future, we should be justified in looking for an improvement in cod oil prices the coming spring. Much will depend, of course, on the size of the Norwegian fishery.

Cod Liver Oil—There is a dead feeling still hanging over the Cod Liver Oil market, and there has been no local transactions in this product for several weeks. Only a few desultory small shipments have been made since last October. A matter of fact, there was very little to go forward this season compared with previous years, simply because it was not manufactured. The quantity left in the local market is now negligible and held by only two or three firms who do not want to let it go at a price less than the cost of production. It is believed that the price will be considerably more attractive by April.

Flour—Until about ten days ago there was a gradual strengthening in the wheat market from the first week of December. This has been followed this week by decline from 112 to 108 limit. The recent change is attributed to the belief that the yield was larger than the crop reports indicated, together with the knowledge of the large stocks on hand in spite of the heavy exports. A final report issued recently confirmed this impression, which adds fifty-two million bushels to the United States crop. On this being announced a decline immediately took place again. St. John's quotations for first grade are $2.90, second grades $3.00 to $3.40. 3,000 barrels were imported by the Rosalind this week.

Pork—The strike in the Packing Houses out West is gradually subsiding, and the men are turning back to work, so that trade will assume its normal flow again. Hogs are selling at somewhat higher rates than a month ago, and the pork market is a little stronger and dressed hogs are quoted at $15.50 per 100 lbs., as against $15.00 before. Xmas, St. John's prices for barrelled pork are holding about the same, but may stiffen up on the next imports. The quotations to-day for stocks on hand are, Mess, $29.00; Fat Back, $28.50; Ham Butt, $32.50; Morris Family, $32.00; Spare Ribs, $24.00, and Grocers Family Mess, $50.00 per barrel, wholesale. 27 barrels were imported by the Rosalind this week.

Beef—The salt beef market is featureless this week, and the demand has been at a low ebb since the second week of December, when the last imports of this commodity came in from New York on the "Rosalind." The quotations are keeping at the low level that prevailed all the past autumn, and are not expected to undergo any material change throughout the winter. The St. John's wholesale prices to-day are, $26.00 per barrel for Box, $26.50 for Box Packer, $21.00 for Special Family, and $21.25 for Boneless. A further shipment of 765 barrels were landed from the Rosalind this week.

Molasses—There are practically no transactions in Molasses these days, the output dealers having all taken their winter supplies. Fancy is still quoted here at 85 cents per gallon, wholesale, and 90 cents and 95 cents for smaller packages. There is an easier feeling in Barbados as to raw sugar prices, owing to the favorable reports of the sugar field, and consequently, next spring prices are likely to be lower. The supply on hand here will be barely enough for the requirements till April, but the "Cearian" is at Barbados now loading old and new molasses and will be ready in February, and the first cargo should arrive here about the middle of March.

Sugar—Local sugar sales were exceptionally good the past three weeks, and stocks are again running low accordingly. Advice from New York is to the effect that there is nothing of any consequence to report in raw sugar outside of the usual speculation. Sales of refined sugar were made there in the Christmas week at $7.00 per 100 lbs. white American granulated and full contents. Dealers express the opinion that there will not be any change for some time in refined grades. There is still a large percentage of old Cuban crop on hand which it is thought, will keep the price down near the 2 cent limit for was throughout January, now that the Cuban Sugar Control Committee has gone out of business, 600 barrels were brought in by the Rosalind this week.

Potatoes—There are none being imported worth mentioning these days; home-grown are so far supplying all requirements. The recent mild spurt of weather has been favorable for forwarding the local potatoes from the outports, which are selling at $3.50 to $3.80 per barrel, according to quality. In the outports the sales are being made at $3.00 per barrel, wholesale, and $3.20 for single barrels, as against $2.50 and $2.70 last month.

Oats—The imports this week were 34,000 bags from Halifax by the S.S. Canadian Sapper. White oats are still quoted at $3.80 and Mixed at $3.70 per sack in wholesale lots, and $3.00 and $3.80 for these qualities respectively in smaller lots. There is still a good supply available in Canada, and holders are quite satisfied to let go at the December prices. The opinion amongst dealers here is, that prices will keep down $4.00 per sack all the winter.
