At the Mouth of the Treacherous Pit

STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER XXXV.

"Because I have faith in him. I have looked for hours together at his photograph. His face is not that of a man who would be disloyal. People may say what they like; I do not believe that my father went away with you. Then a letter came from you, saying that you had had your revenge, and that my mother should never see my father again. Do you know how I interpret the letter? I found no proof in it of my father's guilt. I came to this conclusion, that whatever might have been my father's fate, it was known to you, and that you alone could solve the mystery. You may hate my mother because you found she was your rival; but you, even with those hard lines on your face, look too proud and pure to have spent your life as the world believes you to have done."

The pale lips quivered, and it seemed as though the elder woman's eyes were filled with tears; she held out her hands with a gesture of pain. "Do anything," she cried, "except be kind to me; that is the one thing I cannot bear."

"If kindness will win you, let me be kind," pleaded Gertrude. "Try to think that it is my father who is kneeling here, pleading to you, asking you to clear his name from a foul stain, to clear me, his innocent and loving child, from the shadow of guilt that is on me. I call upon you by the memory of the love you had for him to speak!"

With a bitter cry, Lola fell upon her knees. "You torture me," she said. "For Heaven's sake, let me alone!"

"I cannot," answered Gertrude. "Oh tell the truth! Tell me one thing. I pray, I beseech you? Is my father living or dead?"

Lola de Ferras was silent for a few moments. It seemed to her as though the words pierced her inmost soul, while the thought overwhelmed her that Karl's daughter, with Karl's blue eyes and clustering hair, with the well-remembered tones of his voice, was praying to know whether he was living or dead.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"I long for my father," said Gertrude to Lola de Ferras, who still kept silence. "My heart is thirsting for a look, a word for him. Ah, tell me, if you ever loved him, is he living or dead?"

"He is dead," replied Lola, in a low voice.

"Dead," repeated Gertrude, with a burst of bitter tears; "dead! Ah, then I shall never see him! Oh, my dear, dear father, I have longed for you, I have worked for you, and I have loved you; yet I shall never see you! But better a thousand times dead than living as they believed! Tell me one thing more. Did he go away with you?"

Mother and Her Baby Are Relieved of Eczema

Mrs. Peter A. Palmer, Salt Burn, Sask., writes: "Dr. Chase's Ointment has completely relieved me of eczema and piles. I also used this Ointment for my baby, who broke out in eczema. A few applications were all that was necessary in her case. Dr. Chase's Ointment has been worth a hundred dollars to me—before using it I had spent a great deal more than that in unsuccessful treatment from doctors. We have also used Dr. Chase's other medicines, the Nerve Food having restored my health after suffering from severe nerve trouble when a girl."

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT. GERALD S. DOYLE, Distributor.

"Yes, he is dead," said Lola, slowly. "You must not think that I am a repentant sinner, nor that, if my life could begin again, I should act differently. I am proud, after my own fashion, of what I did. Few women would have had the strength of mind to set as I did, to keep the silence that I kept. I have had my revenge!"

A touch from Gertrude's hand controlled her. She avoided looking at the pure, sweet face as she spoke; but her eyes were fixed on Lady Fielden.

"It will be no news to you," she said, "that Dolores robbed me of the only love of my life, Sir Karl—that she came between us and stole my life's happiness away. It is no secret either that I swore to have vengeance. I ought, perhaps, to feel ashamed of myself; but I do not. I loved Sir Karl with all the strength of my heart—a strength that your weaker natures do not even understand. I may have been blinded by my affection; but I certainly thought that I saw in him some sign that he loved me. It all ended when Dolores became a widow, and he married her. It was then that my blind, furious hate against her began, and I resolved upon revenging myself, cost whatsoever it might. I loved Sir Karl so well that, if he had asked my life, I would have given it to him without a sigh. From the day of the marriage I was like one mad. I had sworn to her and to him that I would be revenged—and I was! I persuaded my dear mother to leave Beaulieu and go to Germany. She did so, and she died there. I need not dwell on any of the details; but when she died I was alone in the world, my heart full of bitterness of disappointed love and of a fierce longing for revenge."

"I heard how happy Sir Karl and his wife were—that a little daughter had been born to them, that they were a model couple—she so tender, he so proud. In those days I had many correspondents in this neighborhood, and my brain was fired by these home-pictures. I felt that I must see him or die. I wanted to heap burning reproaches on him, to make him wretched by seeing my wretchedness, to show him my great misery, that the sight of it might chill his happiness. Let me be truthful. I hungered to touch his face, to hear his voice, to touch his hand! Never did thirty heart pant for living streams as I for one look at the man I loved!"

"Oh, blind, mad folly! As well might a hungry man try to eat stone! I thought that looking at him would slake the thirst of my fever, would cool the fire that burned my brain. I wrote to him, telling him that I had a favor to ask him. I begged that I might see him, pray and implore him to meet me. I told him that I would wait at the White Gate near the copple. I went to the carters, who had been instructed by a certain lighterage company to cart and ship the goods. None of these firms, of course, knew what the boxes contained. The vessel which was to take the goods, it was alleged, was a Dutch ship coming up the Thames to load these cases and convey them to Amsterdam."

But here the well-planned arrangements began to break down. The ten cases looked innocent enough, except that they were bound most thoroughly with iron bands. They were made of heavy wood, an inch thick, and lined with a heavy plating of zinc. The contents were plainly stated to be "steel castings" destination Amsterdam. They were to be shipped on a certain evening. But they never left the wharf. The ship was late! At this juncture the authorities came into the open. While the "steel castings" were lying on the wharf, securely packed against

Machine Guns For Russia.

Sensational Discovery in the Thames—An Amazing Story—Plot That Misgarried—How the Conspirators Were Fused—Naval Men on the Look-Out for Culpable Craft.

It was not very long ago that the Soviet Government approached the British Government for permission to acquire and export war munitions from this country to Russia. The permission was granted. Any country whose Government is officially recognized by the British Government can obtain this permission, provided that full details of all such transactions are passed to the Department charged with registering all such purchases. Having obtained this permission, the Soviet at once proceeded to place their orders, and, apparently, conducted the business in the spirit and letter of the agreement with the British Government. But soon after the arrival of the Soviet delegates in London the British authorities became aware of certain mysterious negotiations relative to armaments. There was nothing very definite to go upon. But enough was known to cause profound suspicion, and expert investigators were detailed to make inquiries. The plans had been laid with the greatest cunning, the negotiations were conducted with great secrecy. The best brains of the British Intelligence Service, though not named, were held up by the cunning of the conspirators. Then, dramatically, a little ray of light illumined a part of the plot. The plotters abandoned their leisurely tactics; they moved, and moved smartly, and it is reliably understood that they succeeded in sending one consignment of guns abroad the other day. They sent a ship out into the high seas, a pirate, without, of course, a proper license from the Board of Trade. Encouraged by the success, they sought to repeat it with startling rapidity. From a very peculiar and mysterious "garage" in Wanstated ten large cases were sent to the General Steam Navigation Company's wharf at Tower Bridge. They were taken there by a well known firm of carters, who had been instructed by a certain lighterage company to cart and ship the goods. None of these firms, of course, knew what the boxes contained. The vessel which was to take the goods, it was alleged, was a Dutch ship coming up the Thames to load these cases and convey them to Amsterdam.

But here the well-planned arrangements began to break down. The ten cases looked innocent enough, except that they were bound most thoroughly with iron bands. They were made of heavy wood, an inch thick, and lined with a heavy plating of zinc. The contents were plainly stated to be "steel castings" destination Amsterdam. They were to be shipped on a certain evening. But they never left the wharf. The ship was late! At this juncture the authorities came into the open. While the "steel castings" were lying on the wharf, securely packed against all danger of damage in transport, and while the mysterious ship was coming to take them aboard, a squad of Scotland Yard officers suddenly appeared and bluntly stated that the cases were to be opened. It was a difficult task owing to the secure manner in which the goods were packed. An urgent appeal was sent to an adjacent firm of export packers, and a set of special tools had to be requisitioned before the boxes could be opened to reveal two tons of machine-guns! The guns, of course, had not been put together. Barrels, locks, springs, bolts and all the other pieces had been scientifically packed in separate sections. The gun-runners' game was up, the goods had been seized. Meanwhile a vigilant watch is being kept for this mysterious ship. The question, of course, is being asked, Why should the Soviet, after obtaining permission to acquire and export munitions from this country, have recourse to these mysterious methods? The Soviet has shown signs of aggression lately. Militant dispositions have been reported. It is distinctly possible that this gun-running conspiracy revealed by Scotland Yard officers is but an incident in a greater plot involving much more serious issues. Where the matter will end it is impossible to forecast at this moment. The authorities take a very grave view of the affair. Special watch is being kept at other ports besides London, including Newcastle, in case any attempt is made to ship guns to Russia. The naval authorities are on the watch and are ready to stop any suspicious-looking vessel that might be concerned in gun-running. Startling developments are expected in a few days, when the police investigations will be completed and proceedings are taken against certain persons under the Firearms Act.

SOVIET MEMBER SURPRISED.

M. Jarosky, a member of the Russian Soviet Delegation, when interviewed in London, stated officially that the Delegation had heard nothing about the seizure of the arms, nor did they know of any arms being exported to Russia under license or otherwise. M. Jarosky expressed surprise at the suggestion that Russia should want to import arms. He explained that the defeat of "the rebels" Denikin and Kolchak had furnished quantities of munitions of war, and that Russia had one of the finest armament factories in the world at Tula.

Only Ten Cents

Nowadays very little can be purchased for a dime, and people have got into the habit of expecting to pay more for most articles. As an exception to the general rule, comes Pearline, the great washing Powder, which sells at any grocer's for ten cents, a big, generous package. It is cheaper than soap and easier to use, in either hot or cold water. Women who use Pearline, and there are millions of them, know what real satisfactory results are,—for this economical washing powder, produces wonderful results with little toil. Be sure to try Pearline. You will find it a good ten cent investment.—E

Our Dumb Animals.

Report of Chief Agent S.P.A. Mack ending August 8th, 1924.

Attended to the landing of 25 head cattle and 2 horses from the s.s. Lisgar County; also 15 horses from Western Canada, for Mr. McDonald, by train. Mr. McDonald is very much displeased at the way he was treated with his animals at the western section of the Nfld. Railway, the horses being 48 hours without water between Fort aux Basques and Bishop's Falls. At one station he had a chance to give some of them water, but the railroad officials would not delay the train until he had watered them all. At Bishop's Falls they got water. He says his next shipment will come by steamer. I am securing documentary evidence on this matter, and if railway men are guilty, the case must be pushed. I attended to two sales of cattle at the St. John's Abattoir Co. Four very lame horses have been sent off the street for a rest. My attention has been called to a horse in a field on the Southside, in a very weak condition. I have seen the owner and the horse has to be kept off the street. Paid particular attention to the horses on Regatta Day, the weather being very warm, but on the whole the teamsters were very kind to their horses and fed and watered them correctly. I received several complaints about boys driving small ponies. I try as far as possible to keep them in check. Received complaint from a municipal employee of young kittens being thrown in a hopper alive during the night. The employee humanely got a bucket of water and drowned them. It would be an easy matter for a person to do this instead of throwing them out alive. I count this a glaring case of cruelty, and if the persons are caught doing this they will be brought before the magistrate. The lame horse which was seen on Cochrane Street, was sent in as soon as it got the load off, as I was passing there at the time. I am very thankful to the gentleman who phoned my residence about it, but in future I would like for him to give his name. Put a dog to death (which was causing a lot of trouble) for a resident of the Southside. All complaints as far as I know have been attended to during the week, and anybody knowing of cruelty is asked to telephone No. 553.

War Debt Conference May Be Held in Paris

The King's Name Omitted From Anglo-Russian Treaty -- Germans Agree to Entire Programme of Declaration of Defaults.

A BESCO BULLETIN.
MONTREAL, Aug. 8. The British Empire Steel Corporation is prepared to continue working its iron mines in Newfoundland through the remainder of the year on its present wage basis of the 1890 workmen. It is announced here. A demand for higher wages it was said would result in a suspension of work. The margin of profit on the 750,000 tons being shipped this year to Germany, the only large market open, was too slight to permit an increase.

WAR DEBT CONFERENCE?
LONDON, Aug. 8. The Allied delegates to the International Conference this afternoon discussed the feasibility of holding a conference in Paris in the near future to discuss the question of inter-Allied war debts. The proposed conference would be entirely separate from the other Paris four parties, which will concern themselves with the allocation of the reparations payments. Observers at the International Conference believe it will be definitely decided to hold the debt discussions in Paris at an early date. It was reported that the American representatives at the Conference had been present at the discussion of the proposed debt conference but the Americans later denied that they had discussed the matter or had been present at such a discussion. The Americans declared that the question was entirely beyond their competence and they would not even remain in the conference room while such an issue was under discussion.

HERRIOT LEAVES FOR PARIS.
PARIS, Aug. 8. Premier Herriot is coming to Paris on Saturday afternoon, probably by airplane, according to a semi-official announcement from London, in order to confer with the cabinet at a special Sunday morning meeting regarding the final stand the French government should take at the London conference on the military evacuation of Ruhr, and the maintenance of the Franco-Belgian railroad men. It is noted that this sudden and unexpected consultation with the cabinet indicates there is a crisis in the London Conference.

KING'S NAME OMITTED.
LONDON, Aug. 8. The treaty and commercial agreement between Great Britain and Soviet Russia, which were negotiated after the Anglo-Russian conference apparently had abandoned its work as futile, and which have caused a furore in British political circles, will be signed at six o'clock this evening. Prime Minister MacDonald and Arthur Ponsonby, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs will sign for Great Britain and Northern Ireland while Adolph Joffe, Christian Rakovsky, Tomski and Sheinmann will sign for the Russian Government. Great Britain will not sign the treaty on behalf of the Dominions, so that no controversy can arise, as it did over the Lausanne Treaty. There will be a provision in the commercial agreement that the Dominions may participate in it if they desire. The treaty does not contain the name of King George, because the Russians have no titular head of their Government. Thus the Russians will sign for their Government as a whole and Britons only for their Government with no mention of the sovereign. This raises the question of whether succeeding British Governments will be bound by a treaty omitting the mention of the King.

TREATY SIGNED.
LONDON, Aug. 8. The general and commercial treaties between Great Britain and Soviet Russia, which were negotiated by the Anglo-Soviet Conference were signed at six o'clock this evening by representatives of the two nations.

THE INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL.
LONDON, Aug. 8. Such progress has been made in adjusting the differences between the Germans and Allies over the program for putting the Dawes Reparation Plan into effect that there is still hope, according to a British spokesman, that the International Conference may complete its labors within a day or two. Several outstanding problems remain to be settled, however, and several of the delegates declare that they see small chances of leaving London before the middle of next week. The Germans do not conceal their determination of accepting no settlement not putting an end to the presence of French and Belgian troops in the Ruhr, which they still insist is without the authority of the Treaty of Versailles. They want the troops withdrawn by the time the Dawes Plan becomes effective on October 15th, or earlier, if the transitional period is brought forward. The French, however, tenaciously refuse to consider this question, which they declare outside the purview of the present conference. The Germans have accepted a moral engagement to float a loan of £40,000,000, thus fulfilling one of the most important of the Reparation Commission's requirements for operation of the Dawes Plan, and also have agreed to the entire Allied programme of declarations of defaults.

U. S. FLIGHT MAY BE ABANDONED.
RAYKJAVIK, ICELAND, Aug. 8. The conference called by Rear-Admiral Thomas P. Magruder on the flagship Richmond, to-day decided to make a final effort to find a feasible landing place for the United States army world fliers on the east coast of Greenland before reaching a final decision as to whether or not the remainder of the flight for the present season would have to be called off. The cruiser Raleigh of the patrol flight has been ordered to leave tomorrow morning to investigate ice conditions on the Greenland coast and find a possible alternative for Augmas-sak, as a landing place, the supply steamer Gertrude, Rahs being ice-bound and fog bound in that vicinity.

THE BOSTON II FLIGHT.
BOSTON, Aug. 8. The Boston 2nd army aeroplane which left Langley Field, Virginia, yesterday for Pictou, reached the Naval Air Station at Squantum in Boston Harbor at 12:50 p.m. to-day.

BIRTHS DOUBLE DEATHS.
OTTAWA, Aug. 8. The number of births in Canada, exclusive of the Province of Quebec, last January was more than double the total number deaths, according to a preliminary report on vital statistics of Canada issued to-day by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

RACE SUICIDE.
TORONTO, Aug. 8. That the power of birth control will have an insidious influence on the future of the race and cause a decided falling off in the number of marriages rather than an increase, was the conviction strongly emphasized by Sir William Verelstree of London, England, in addressing the section of economics at the annual meeting of the British Association for the advancement of science this morning. The subject was treated by Sir William in dealing with the fall of fertility among European races, and he declared his investigations had suggested that the exploitation of new powers over nature, had been used, and are being used in many countries to-day to postpone or avoid marriage. Sir William is Vice-President of the Economics section of the Association.

THE CHICAGO MURDERERS.
CHICAGO, Aug. 8. Mrs. Albert H. Loeb, mother-in-law of Richard Loeb, will take the stand in an effort to gain mitigation of the penalty her son and Nathan Leopold Jr., must pay for kidnaping and killing Robert Franks according to the defence plans. Nathan Leopold, Sr., millionaire box manufacturer, also will testify, it was said.

TORNADO'S TOLL.
EAUCLAIRE, Wis., Aug. 8. Relief measures were under way to-day in three central Wisconsin counties struck last night by two tornadoes, which took toll of at least five dead and scores or more injured, and caused property damage which may reach a million dollars. Many farmers were left destitute as result of the storms.

REPORT DISCREDITED.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. Army air service officials declared to-day that no despatches had been received from the army advance party accompanying world fliers or from the naval convoy which indicated any necessity for abandoning the army's world flight. Latest official reports received here were decidedly optimistic and press despatches describing the conference called by Rear Admiral Magruder to discuss advisability of calling off the flight came as a complete surprise. Major Rader special air service aide in charge of the flight, declared our ships will come on just the same even if the Navy decided to withdraw the warships guarding the line of flight.

The Government As a Fur Buyer

The Auditor General's Report which was recently tabled in the House continues the story of waste of public funds, unnecessary and unbusinesslike transactions, unauthorized outlays, and schemes involving heavy expenditures by persons who appear to have been lacking in even an elementary knowledge of financial matters or who were devoid of any sense of their responsibilities.

The instances are many, but for the moment one will suffice to indicate that the statement made is no exaggeration of facts. A few years ago it was decided to permit the trapping of beaver as it was being found that during the "close season" they had considerably increased in numbers. For some reason which has never been satisfactorily explained the trapper was not permitted to dispose of his skins in the usual manner but was compelled to sell them to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries at a fixed price. At the time it was explained that the Treasury would benefit to a considerable extent by this arrangement and the prospective profits were even earmarked for a specific purpose.

The intention was no doubt estimable, but the results, as the following statement prepared by the Auditor General indicates, were lamentable.

Table with columns: Beaver Skins, Account for Year Ending Dec. 31st, 1922, Balance from 1921-22, Balance from sales, Cash from fines, Expenditure, Cash paid for Beaver Skins, Inc. expenses, services, etc.

We do not deny that this loss may have been due in part to fluctuating prices in the fur markets, but that does not exonerate those responsible for the loss. The fur buyer on the street is in touch with markets abroad and can make the necessary adjustments in prices to guard against such a contingency, but apparently the Government made no such provision. The manner of the disposal of the skins by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries also calls for criticism, but with that side of the question we shall deal on another occasion.

Glencoe Nearing Humbermouth

DIVER SENT OUT TO EXAMINE HULL. The steamer Glencoe, which was detained at Old Perceps yesterday on account of a heavy sea and dense fog, continued the run later in the evening and is making all ports of call coming south before arriving at Humbermouth. The management of the railway have decided to replace the Glencoe with the Sagona for the next trip. The latter ship will sail from here on Monday next, and passengers leaving by Tuesday's cross-country express will make connections at Humbermouth. The damage to the Glencoe as the result of her running ashore have not as yet been ascertained. A diver for this purpose was sent out by a freight train yesterday and as soon as the ship arrives at Humbermouth a temporary examination of her bottom will be made after which she will proceed on to St. John's and undergo a thorough examination.

Photos of Our Exhibits on View

On exhibition at the store of Mr. T. A. MacNab & Co. of a number of nicely framed, labelled and arranged photographs of the Newfoundland exhibit at Wembley are attracting much attention and evoking favorable comment. Some of the photos give a general view and others show particular exhibits, etc. The pictures shown are the Nfld. Pavilion, Job's Cod Liver Oil, local bottled fruits, jams and vegetables, Colonial Cordage manufactures, small game, Grand Falls exhibits of wood and its product, Caribou, Bell Island ores, copper ores, lead ores, eel grass, ropes and lines, the sealing industry, bank fishery, fishing village and the Humbermouth operations. Judging by the photographs the Exhibition Committee have succeeded in setting up an exhibit with the comparatively small amount of money at their disposal and from the amount of interest which it has aroused will undoubtedly prove of the greatest benefit industrially and financially.

Golden Wedding Day

Mr. and Mrs. George Buchanan are celebrating to-day the 50th anniversary of their wedding and are receiving congratulations from numerous friends. Mr. Buchanan, though past the allotted age is almost as active as he was thirty years ago, and is still attending to his duties as engineer at the Court House, a position which he has filled with entire satisfaction for the past twenty-two years. Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan were married by Rev. M. Johnson in the C. of E. Cathedral in the year 1874. The Telegram with their many friends joins in congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan on the golden anniversary and hope they will be spared for many years to come.

An Inhumanity

A case which calls for immediate action on the part of the S.P.A. has been reported by several people in Toppit. On the ridge at the back of the settlement is a horse that is in a dreadful condition as a result of which it is starving to death. Its hind legs are terribly swollen and a festering sore on the fore leg prevents it placing the foot on the ground. The animal should at once be destroyed in order to put it out of misery, and in order to prevent other animals grazing on the ridge becoming infected. It is surprising that the owner of the animal has not long ago been compelled to attend to the matter. This case was mentioned in the Report of the S.P.A. Secretary as long ago as July 26th when that official advised that the animal should be destroyed. According to the report, the Veterinarian who examined the horse was of the same opinion, but the owner dissented with their view. What we would ask is the object of the Society if its decisions can be disregarded by an individual?

You Make This Tobacco Experts' Test

The greatest tobacco experts in the world judge smoking tobacco by its odor. They first rub the tobacco briskly between the palms of their hands until the friction brings out the full aroma—then hold it up to the nose! That test shows which tobacco is best—Instantly—unquestionably! Try it with B. C. Slice Cut Plug—then with any other cut tobacco. Your nose will tell you B. C. Slice Cut Plug has a mild, fresh, delightful fragrance not found in any other tobacco. And the longer you smoke B. C. Slice Cut Plug the more your taste will prove your nose is right.

Department Investigating Forests, Pests

The Department of Agriculture is, we understand, taking up the matter of dealing with the "loper" epidemic which is spreading rapidly in the neighborhood of St. John's. The loper, popularly termed the Spruce Bud worm, did considerable damage to the fir trees in the vicinity of Magty's Hill. Reports from other sections of the country indicate that the pest is getting its deadly work on both spruce and hemlock. The destructive spruce bark beetle which was discovered last season on the Cowan property, Topsail Road, has not infested our woodlands to any great extent as far as is known. This pest was identified by Dr. Swain, Entomologist at Ottawa, who advised the Department here that if it had not spread far, an effective remedy was the cutting down of the infected trees and destroying them. This beetle breeds in the bark and emerges in June when the young begin their attack on other trees. It has been found that they generally confine their operations to mature trees. The Department has taken steps as advised by Dr. Swain, and on the Thomas Estate, Topsail Road, 100 infected trees have been felled. As far west as Dunscombe Lane and east as far as the Road de L'Arce, a few trees were found infested and were destroyed. East of Bowring Park the pest was also discovered, and the remedy applied. So far about 150 trees have been felled.

Magistrates Court

A taxi driver for a breach of the Street Traffic Regulations was convicted and fined $50 with the option of 30 days.

A young man arrested yesterday afternoon at the instance of a woman living on Burton's Pond Road, charged with assaulting her and doing malicious damage to property was convicted and fined $10 and costs.

The evidence showed that the defendant has been in the habit of terrorizing the neighbourhood when under the influence of liquor, and in this manner he obtained the complainant on two different occasions using threatening language and attempting to do her bodily harm.

He will be accompanied home by Minister of War Nollet and Finance Minister Clementel. The fact that the Premier arrived at this decision suddenly after having remained for two weeks in London without taking advantage of the opportunity which meantime had made possible his return to resume contact with his colleagues has caused some speculation in political circles. TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

ABSENCE OF KING'S SIGNATURE AROUSES COMMENT.

LONDON, Aug. 8. British and Soviet representatives signed the Anglo-Soviet Trade Agreement at six o'clock to-night in a small room at the Foreign Office. There was no ceremony, and only a few officials were present, as visitors and newspaper men were not admitted. Premier MacDonald and Christian Rakovsky, the Russian Charge D'Affaires in London, spoke briefly, both expressing gratification that the conditions had resulted in what they regarded as a decided step forward in the relations between the British and Russian Soviet Government. Premier MacDonald and Arthur Ponsonby, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, affixed their signatures for Great Britain, while Mr. Rakovsky, Adolph Joffe Tomski and M. Scheinman signed for the Soviets. Much discussion has been provoked by the fact that the name of the King is absent from the treaty. But to-night the likelihood was pointed out of the King signing the treaty if it is ratified, as the Constitution requires that this be done.

RESCUE EFFECTED, BUT RESCUERS PERISH.

MONTREAL, Aug. 8. Mrs. A. Jarry, her sister-in-law, Mrs. A. Beauchamp, Pauline Jarry, aged 12, and Claude Boucher, son of Dr. N. Boucher, all of this city, were drowned in the North River at Piedmont in the St. Lawrence this afternoon. The party was bathing and went to the rescue of some children who were playing on a raft. The children were saved but the two women, the boy and the girl were unable to get back to the shore and sank. All of them are from Montreal. A troop of Boy Scouts who were passing at the time went into the river in an effort to save the victims. They succeeded in aiding the children, who had fallen off the raft, but could not reach their would-be rescuers. The bodies had not been recovered to-night.

TEN YEARS DOMICILE GIVES BRITISH EQUAL RIGHTS.

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 8. Definite announcement is expected here soon by the immigration authorities to the effect that some relaxation will be shown toward British born subjects in Canada desiring to enter the United States. It has been proposed that all Britishers who have resided in Canada more than ten years may be allowed to enter the United States on the same status as a Canadian citizen. This would overcome the difficulties the United States immigration officials in Canada are experiencing with many enquiries from British subjects of long residence in Canada. Under the present system the British Government has allowed ten per cent. of its quota to British subjects in Canada.

EVERY FORTY-SECOND CHILD A TWIN.

OTTAWA, Aug. 9. Just about every forty-second child born in Canada, says January 1 is a twin. Vital statistics assembled from one province in Canada except Quebec shows that 47 pairs of twins—and one trio triplets were added to Canada's citizens in January, 1924. In the total birth registration of 12,224—one set of triplets occurred in Manitoba. Vital Statistics for Quebec are not available but the average probably holds.

FRICITION BETWEEN FRENCH PREMIER AND WAR MINISTER.

PARIS, Aug. 9. President Doumergue is coming back to Paris from France's summer White House at Rambouillet in order to preside over a special Sunday council of the Ministers which will be held this afternoon had been an entirely unforeseen contingency in connection with the International Conference in London. Premier Herriot in London decided suddenly to-day to come back to Paris Saturday evening for a conference with his Cabinet. He will be accompanied home by Minister of War Nollet and Finance Minister Clementel. TENSION IN INDIA SUBSIDED.

LONDON, Aug. 9. Despatches from India state that the tension between Hindus and Moslems which caused serious rioting in Delhi a fortnight ago, has partially subsided though the situation is being carefully watched by the authorities who are taking extra precautions to prevent a renewal of rioting on the occasion of the forthcoming Muharram Festival. Meanwhile a controversy has arisen in India as to whether the military were responsible for firing on the rioters and killing some of them in the Delhi affair. Two of the Vernacular papers (Tej and Argum at Delhi denounce the official statement that no rioters were killed by military fire.

AIRMEN OPPOSE ABANDONMENT OF FLIGHT.

REYKJAVIK, ICELAND, Aug. 9. World flight of the United States army aviators who already have completed 21,000 miles in their efforts to put a girde about the earth seemed in danger of being abandoned yesterday owing to ice conditions off Greenland which are declared to be the worst in twenty years. Lieut. Lowell H. Smith who is in command of the flight and Major Crumming of United States Army Air Force were called into consultation by Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder on board the cruiser Richmond. The conference was called to consider the question of calling off the flight for this season. Both Lieut. Smith and Major Crumming argued that there still were hopes for completing the projected hops from Iceland to Greenland and thence to Labrador.

Child Welfare

HEALTHY BABIES.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

To mothers in the West End. Good news! We are opening a new Welfare Centre next Friday afternoon at 2.30 at the Presbyterian School, Power St. (corner of Patrick St.) Lady Cross is very kindly coming to open it for us, and the heaviest baby that at term under 6 months of age is going to have a prize!

Do you know there are 5 sets of twins in the West End? It would be nice if we could see some of these down at the Clinic.

Anyway do bring along the wee babies and let us try to keep them well.

For mothers who are knitting. Here is a nice baby's vest. Required: 1 ounce 2 or 3 ply unshrunkable vest wool 2 Bone needles No. 8.

To Knit.—Cast on 60 stitches. Knit 40 rows i.e. 30 ridges plain knitting. X Cast on 25 more stitches for the arm. Knit back 50 stitches, and then back-wards and forwards, decreasing 1 stitch at the beginning of each needle until 40 stitches are left. Continue to knit these for 20 rows for the length of the sleeve. Then knit 15 rows ribbed, 2 plain, 2 purl, and cast off loosely. The sleeve is then complete.

Pick up the backs of the 25 stitches cast on for the arm, beginning at the shoulder, and knit 36 stitches left on the needle. Care must be taken not to twist the work when the 25 stitches are picked up.

There are now 60 stitches again on the needle for the back. Knit 70 rows and repeat from X for the second sleeve. Knit 60 rows for the front and cast off loosely. Sew up sleeves and about 1 1/2 inches for the shoulder. Crochet a little edging around the neck and run in a ribbon.

Gigantic Screen Spectacle at the Nickel

Monday's Attraction Somewhat Out of the Ordinary.

"A Royal Divorce," the big motion picture which right now is the sensation of England and every country in Europe, will have its first American run in Toronto next week.

"A Royal Divorce" is the story of Napoleon Bonaparte, the most fascinating personality in the world's history, and the picture, which tells the intimate, personal story of all the great figures in Napoleonic history, Napoleon, Wellington, Marie Louise, Josephine, and others, is announced as the greatest picture of all times.

Be that as it may, "A Royal Divorce," in its runs in England and other European countries, is certainly creating a sensation such as finds no parallel in previous motion pictures. "A Royal Divorce" is playing to tremendous runs in every country in Europe, in many places of which other big pictures, such as "The Birth of a Nation," "The Four Horsemen," and "Robin Hood" have never even been heard of.

The picture was made by an English producer, G. B. Samuelson, and was photographed in England, France, Russia and different European countries. The cast includes many famous English actors, headed by Glynn Evans, who plays Napoleon, and Gertrude McCoy, who takes the role of Josephine, the latter of which after her wonderful performance in "A Royal Divorce," is now the toast of the whole European continent.

The one feature which distinguishes "A Royal Divorce" from all previous big pictures is that although two million dollars was spent in staging the Burning of Moscow, the Retreat from Moscow, the return from Elba, the Battle of Waterloo, and other tremendous historical sights, the picture remains first and foremost an intimate personal romance, with the main part of the action given in fascinating close-up. And the acting is such as we seldom find in pictures made in America.

Venerable Lady Dies at Harbor Grace

At the venerable age of 102 years, there passed away at Harbor Grace yesterday a highly esteemed lady in the person of Mrs. Bridget Carthy nee of Innis, County Clare Ireland. In the year of 1860 Mrs. Carthy with her husband left Ireland intending to proceed to Australia. The passage was stormy and the vessel on which they were sailing was forced to put into St. John's. Mr. Carthy who was of a military turn of mind joined the police force and with several others was despatched to Harbor Grace. Since that time Mrs. Carthy has resided in Harbor Grace and up to about a year ago had enjoyed the best of health. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. O'Brien. Mr. Carthy passed away at Harbor Grace some years ago.

The Prohibition Issue

The Editor, Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—My attention has been called to some figures given in your paper of yesterday's date, comparing arrests for drunkenness in Ontario and Quebec to the detriment of so called "dry" Ontario. As you are aware figures are not always what they seem. For example to contrast "dry" Ontario with "wet" Quebec is not correct. Practically the larger part of Quebec is under Local Option, due largely to the efforts of the parish priests who have steadily resisted all efforts of the Quebec Liquor Commission to repeal the law. The cities and towns are wet. That is one fact which your quoted figures do not tell.

But there is another and more important fact still which the figures do not show, and that is that under the Ontario Temperance Act, the police must arrest anyone showing any signs of intoxication, while in the wet part of Quebec, the police only arrest persons who are violently drunk. Arrests for drunkenness are not very popular with police chiefs in Montreal, city for example, and the policeman governs himself accordingly. As a matter of fact the figures quoted, and the extract from the "Montreal Review" quoted in an editorial a few days ago, are part of a propaganda run by the Taschereau Government and its friends the brewers, to hide the ghastly failure of the Quebec Liquor Act—a failure which has brought protests from the press and clergy. The Wine and Beer Licensee, has not only not prevented the drinking of the stronger liquors, but has increased the facilities of such drinking. Bootlegging and Moonshine is so prevalent that the Catholic Bishops a few months ago denounced the same and urged their people to keep the law.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for the courtesy of your columns I am
Yours faithfully,
T. J. DARBY.

A New Wonder of the World

THE ROMANCE OF LIVERPOOL'S GREAT CATHEDRAL.

For twenty years Liverpool has been building a cathedral which will be one of the wonders of the world, and next week the first portion of it will be dedicated in the presence of the King and Queen. When completed it will be the second largest cathedral in existence, ranking next to St. Peter's at Rome.

The edifice will mark an epoch in the history of the Church of England, for it will be the first Anglican Cathedral dedicated in this country for over seven hundred years, and it is a striking tribute to the revival in religious belief that such a wonderful work can be carried out.

But there is something else which captures the fancy concerning Liverpool Cathedral, and this concerns the young man of twenty who designed the gigantic structure, and whose name will go down in history as one of Britain's greatest architects.

Designed in Spare Time.
He is Giles Gilbert Scott, R.A., and when the competition for the Cathedral design was announced, he was employed in an architect's office in Liverpool. His master decided to enter the competition, and so did the pupil—but without informing his employer. Scott carried out the immense drawings necessary during the short hours he was free from office work, and we are told that when his employer found it necessary to rebuke the young man for being late

NEW HAVEN AND BOSTON AND MAINE.

(From Boston News Bureau, August 1st, 1924.)
Master in Codman Suit Finds New Haven Not Attempting to Get Control of Boston and Maine.
Boston—That the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad is not attempting to get control of Boston and Maine, but is desirous only of having representation on the board of the latter to protect investment of the New Haven in Boston and Maine, is the finding of E. R. Anderson, appointed by the Supreme Court to hear the facts in suit by Edmund D. Codman alleging the New Haven was acting in violation of section 71 of chapter 160 of the General Laws, prohibiting a railroad from acquiring stock of another.

In the mornings he never for a moment imagined the cause was energy rather than sleep-headedness!

When the results were declared and Scott's designs were announced as the winning ones, his master was, perhaps, even more surprised than the fortunate young man himself. The choice has been proved, now that a portion of the building is complete, to have been a wise one, and experts are agreed that this structure will be far and away the most important building of our time. The cost of the whole building, it is estimated, will be about two million pounds, which is being raised by public subscription. Next to the structure itself, one of the chief beauties will be the windows, which will be as striking as it will be possible to make them. Some of these will commemorate the deeds of women notable for their good works. One of the most remarkable of the memorials will be that dedicated to the memory of Kitty Wilkinson, who, during the great cholera epidemic of 1832, played a noble part in helping the poor.

It has been arranged, too, that a book containing the names of the 32,000 men from the Liverpool district who gave their lives for their country in the war will be placed in the Cathedral.

Another interesting fact about the Cathedral is that it stands on one of the highest points in the city, and its dome will be to Liverpool what the dome of St. Paul's is to London. It will be a landmark visible out at sea, and will be the first building to strike the eye of passengers arriving in the Mersey from America.

A comparison of the Cathedral's dimensions as compared with those of other churches gives some idea of its size. It will be the biggest ecclesiastical building in Great Britain. At present this honour falls to York Minster, but Liverpool Cathedral will be half as large again. It will be 100 feet longer than St. Paul's, 80 feet longer than Canterbury Cathedral, and 111 feet longer than Westminster Abbey. Indeed, the Abbey might comfortably be placed within the structure and still leave room for another building of the same size!

It is interesting to recall, although this is the greatest undertaking the Church of England has attempted since the Reformation, the architect is himself a Roman Catholic.

OUTER COVE'S NOTE OF THANKS.
Editor "Realms of Sport."
Dear Sir—Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to make a few remarks concerning our Regatta and the way we were treated on that day. We rowed in the Cadet three years and on Regatta evening we were turned out of her and only for the kindness of Mr. Reid, we would be wiped out altogether. The coxswain and crew wish to thank Mr. Reid for getting us a boat to row on that day. Only for him we would have had no part in the races. Thanking you for space, I remain
Yours truly,
OUTER COVE.

LAST NIGHT'S FOOTBALL—B. L. S. THE VICTORS.
Last night's football match between the Felidians and B.L.S. team was attended by a fair gathering of fans, and resulted in a win for the B.L.S. by 2 goals to nil. The B.L.S. by their win are now safely perched in second place, and there is a possibility of them playing off with the Guards for the Championship. Owing to the high wind which prevailed good football was out of the question last night both teams being called upon alternately to play a defensive game. Nevertheless the tactics used saw many smart plays in evidence and those present felt pleased with the exhibition handed out. The Felidians defended the western goal in the first half, taking advantage of the strong wind. During the greater part of the period the ball was confined to B.L.S. territory, while the backs and Phelan in goal were given a busy time in keeping the leather out of danger. This they were successful in doing. The B.L.S. forwards managed to get the ball west on a few occasions, but were unable to land the spheroid in the desired spot.

Sad Hair.
Upon changing over the Felidians were called to play on the defensive, and frustrate the attacks of the B.L.S. forwards. Harold Hayward in goal was called upon again repeatedly to save the situation, and with the help of the backs the opposing forwards were kept at bay. The good work of the Felidians was marred a few minutes later, when the B.L.S. scored a fine goal. The ball was kicked across from the wing and hitting one of the Felidian backs, fooled the goal keeper and found its way into the net. The Felidian blues quite undaunted played harder than ever, and made several good attempts to score the equalizer, but luck appeared to be against them. The strong wind handicapped the team very much in their play and found the leather controlled almost at will by the B.L.S. forwards to the Eastern territory. The Irishmen continuing the attack kept blazing away at the Felidian goal, and shortly before full time were again rewarded when E. Phelan found the net which closed the scoring. A feature of the game was the excellent defensive work of both teams.

Referee—T. Delahunty.
Only two games now remain unplayed in the football fixtures, viz., C.E.I. vs. Guards, and C.E.I. vs. C.L.B. A win or a draw for the Guards in their game with the C.E.I. gives them the Championship. If, on the other hand they should be defeated, it will necessitate a play-off with the B.L.S. for the Championship. The remaining games will be played next week.

5 MILE TRACK RACE.
At a meeting of the Men's Committee Association held last night it was decided to hold the annual 5 mile race on August 21st. Rev. Bro. Ryan, Principal of St. Bon's College has again kindly consented to give over the use of the College Campus for this purpose, and judging by the keen interest manifested in the event last year, the forthcoming race promises to be doubly interesting. The course will be officially measured by Mr. Noel of the Surveyor's Department, and there should be no dispute in this connection. The prizes will be a splendid cup kindly donated by Lt. Col. Nangle, for first prize, and a gold medal for second. Competitors for this event are requested to forward their entry to Mr. C. J. Ellis, Water Street.

ST. BON'S ROWING CREW DINED.
Thursday evening a very pleasant function took place when a number of Old St. Bon's enthusiasts dined their rowing crew, which won the Amateur Regatta Day, at Bannocks. Mr. J. G. Higgins presided and a very interesting toast list was gone through. Amongst the guests were Hon. W. J. Higgins, the Attorney General, Hon. C. J. Fox, the Speaker of the House of Assembly, Mr. W. J. Ryan, the well-known coxswain of his day, whose son was one of the successful crew, Mr. Phil Brown, who so creditably trained and coached the crew and to whom the crew owes its success and Mr. P. McMullen from North Sydney. The "last" end of the programme was ably looked after by Mr. George Kearney.

Rev. F. S. Coffin, B.A., Pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, has resigned, and left on Saturday last en route to his home at Charlottetown, P. E. I. Rev. Coffin came to Harbor Grace some eighteen years ago, and with the exception of three years spent at his home through illness, has been pastor of the Kirk. The Rev. Gentleman always took a keen interest in the affairs of the town, and was especially interested in promoting the young life of our community. He organized the First Harbor Grace Troop of Boy Scouts, and acted in the capacity of Scout Master. Thus he has done a great deal for the jads of the Town—the effect, we feel sure, will be far-reaching. Rev. Coffin's host of friends here, while regretting his departure, wish him much happiness and success in the future.

Yesterday's Session Joint Committee

OF BILL "RESPECTING ALCOHOLIC LIQUORS."

OFFICIAL SYNOPSIS. The Joint Committee of the Legislature on the Bill "Respecting Alcoholic Liquors" met again yesterday afternoon with the Prime Minister, Hon. Mr. Murray in the chair.

The Bill was considered section by section, and various alterations suggested, discussed, and in some cases, adopted.

An attempt was made to define a hotel as an establishment with five or more bedrooms, but it being pointed out that most of the tourist resorts have only limited accommodation, it was agreed not to attempt any definition, but to leave the matter to the Board to be appointed under the Act.

It was decided to grant licenses to clubs where the serving of meals is a recognized feature of the establishment, such for instance, as the City Club, the Golf Club, and the Murray's Pond Fishing Club, etc. The argument was made that as most of the distinguished visitors who come to the country are entertained at these places, and as under the Bill they would be able to have wines and beers in their hotels, it was thought advisable to prevent club members and their guests from enjoying this facility in the same way.

Restaurants. The matter of granting a similar privilege to restaurants was considered, but in view of the liability to abuse, it was decided not to do so.

A correction is necessary here in yesterday's report, which indicated that liquors could be sold in hotels and on trains and steamers. Such is not the case. Only wines and beers can be sold in any of these places.

The Bill, as originally drafted, contained a provision whereby grocery stores might sell beer, and there was a suggestion that they might also sell wines, both of course, in bottles, for delivery to customers. This was favored on the ground that it would be an advantage to householders to order their stocks of these commodities as they would order anything else, but yesterday the Committee decided not to grant any concessions whatever to grocery stores, but to require everybody to obtain beer as well as wines from the Government Sale Rooms.

As workshops in the ports of the Colony would technically violate the Act by distributing spirits, wines or beers to the members of the crews, a section was included exempting workshops of any nation from the operation of the Act.

A long discussion took place on the tenure of office of the Board. As the Bill stands at present, the Chairman is to hold office during good behavior, and the other two members during pleasure. Several of the Committee were of opinion that the tenure of the three members should be alike, and that they should hold office during pleasure like every other civil servant except the Judges of the Supreme Court, the Clerk of the same tribunal, and the Auditor General. Ultimately the matter was allowed to stand over for further consideration.

A section was included making it an offence for parties purchasing liquors at the control establishment to open and consume the same in public places, such as on the streets or wharves, or in shops or stores; a reason being that a practice exists at present of parties bringing intoxicants into stores where "soft" drinks are sold, and consuming them there either directly or by mixing them with "soft" drinks. Another provision made was that wine and beer at banquets should not be sold after 11:30 at night.

The matter of how Sacramental Wines should be supplied in future was also discussed. First such wines were provided by the Controller, but because of dissatisfaction, the Act was amended so that the Churches could appoint their own agents. Later, it appears, owing to the coming to this country of adherents of religious bodies not known here until recent years, a condition has arisen where abuses may arise. It was agreed to that representative members of the Committee would get in touch with the heads of the different denominations and ascertain their views, and that a section to meet the same would then be inserted.

In regard to the provision for "black listing" parties who become habitual drunkards, the existing law leaves it optional with the Magistrate to send a "black list" notice to the Controller, but an amendment was made which will make it compulsory on the Magistrate to do so in future.

In cases where a man sells for beverage purposes liquor intended for medicinal purposes, it is provided that the party who purchases it from him also commits an offence which is punishable in the same way.

Was provision made for the making of moonshine, etc., were gone over very carefully, and a section was inserted providing that the possession of a still would be prima facie evidence of guilt, and that, unless the possessor of the same could satisfactorily account for it, he would be guilty of an offence punishable by imprisonment without the option of a fine.

At this stage the Committee rose with thirty sections of the Bill having been considered.

As arranged previously the Committee decided to meet again at 3 o'clock last evening to hear the views of the critics of the Bill, some of whom, it was assumed, would attend to give expression to their objections to the measure.

At 3 o'clock the Committee resumed. About twenty citizens were present, occupying seats outside the bar. The Chairman invited any person who might wish to address the Committee to do so, and Mr. Warwick Smith, who has written exhaustively on the Temperance question, responded.

Mr. Smith said he had come over the Bill and had seen some clauses which needed amendment, and suggested several amendments which were accepted as sound, the phraseology of the sections being changed accordingly. In response to a question, he admitted he saw little to change in the material features of the Bill, but he favored going slow with it so that it might be carefully scrutinized by the public and he made as perfect a Bill as possible. He thought the sections providing for hotel licenses so as to encourage tourist traffic might be enacted into law at the present session and the major portion of the Bill deferred until next session.

Mr. Edwin Murray, an old time Temperance worker, pleaded for a postponement of the Bill until next session. He thought that as the country had pronounced for Prohibition some years ago, it should be asked to express its opinion again now. He thought the real trouble was that the Prohibition Act had not been carried out, and before such a drastic change was made as this Bill embodied, the sentiment of the country ought to be registered. He thought the present time inopportune for this as many representative citizens were away, and thought little harm could come from delaying until next winter.

Captain A. Keen, another equally ardent Temperance worker, was the next speaker. He took a view diametrically opposite to that of Mr. Murray. He said to talk of Prohibition was absurd, but this had never been secured because a few years ago the then Finance Minister put in his Budget estimates $485,000 as revenue from the sale of liquor in one year. The wholesale issuing of scripts violated the principle of Prohibition, and made the thing a mockery. He had carefully considered the Bill, and he thought it was a step in the right direction. It provided a legal way for dealing with liquor, and restricted its sale. It would help to lessen smuggling and moonshining, and he thought it was entitled to trial for the next six months, and if it was not an improvement on existing conditions it would then be amended.

Mr. M.E. Gordon followed and briefly expressed himself as in favour of Government control of liquor with a provision for the needs of the community for restrictions against abuses.

Mr. Warwick Smith then said that after hearing Captain Keen's address he would withdraw his suggestion for delay in the enactment of the measure.

Hon. Mr. Murray, replying to Mr. Murray, pointed out that another publicist would cost $100,000, and it might result in the electorate declaring again for Prohibition, but four Attorney Generals in four or five years had publicly declared that the Prohibition Act as it now stood on the Statute Book was impossible to enforce, and there would then come a conflict between the public who might want Prohibition, and the Legislature which would be confronted with the condition that it could not be carried into effect. The proposed Bill really only made legal practices which were now pursued without warrant of law. Liquor was being sold every day without scripts, and in addition there was a lot of moonshining and still a greater lot of smuggling, and smuggling was killing out moonshining because better liquor was provided. The Bill would put an end to both, because it would enable those who wanted spirits in reasonable quantities to obtain the same at fair prices and without any of the risk attending the unlawful acquisition of it as at present. The Bill gave every safeguard and it insured the best form of Local Option the country had ever seen, because no branch store of the Liquor Control Board could be established in any district unless a majority of the people wanted it.

The clauses which made it possible for a hotel to sell wine and beer would enable a tourist to be initiated to develop our tourist resources, and this was considered highly desirable.

Hon. Mr. Higgins (Minister of Justice) followed, and took occasion to publicly state once more his conviction, both as a practising barrister, and as head of the Department of Justice, that it was physically impossible to enforce the Prohibition law. He pointed to the possibilities of smuggling liquor from St. Pierre and Cape Breton, and to the limitless opportunities for the manufacture of moonshine. He thought the present law would meet the requirements of the country, and he considered the restrictions provided in the Bill would make impossible the abuses that some people pretended to see in this new policy. He was convinced that the most surprised people in this country after the Bill was put into effect would be those who thought that it was turning the city into a public house. He believed the whole effect if it would be to make for the maintenance of law and order. He congratulated Captain Keen on the excellence of his speech and the grasp of the subject he showed, and spoke in equal flattering terms of Hon. Mr. Murray's labor in the preparation of the Bill, and of how Mr. Murray as a man of Prohibitionist sentiment had labored to safeguard the principles of Prohibition as far as possible in the drafting of the measure.

After this, the Chairman repeated his invitation for others in the gathering to express their opinions and invited them to ask any questions they might care to, but nobody responded. Then he said the Committee would be sitting again to-morrow afternoon, and he gave a public invitation to all who were then present or to anybody outside to attend at that sitting and give the Committee the benefit of their views.

The meeting was then adjourned until to-morrow afternoon.

It would help to lessen smuggling and moonshining, and he thought it was entitled to trial for the next six months, and if it was not an improvement on existing conditions it would then be amended.

TRINITY

THE ANNUAL COMMEMORATION AND FLOWER SERVICE IN THE CEMETERY.

Eight o'clock on Sunday morning last was the beginning of a quiet day, and at that hour the Mortuary Chapel in the G. of E. Cemetery was well filled with communicants who had come to the Lord's own and only service of Holy Eucharist, there to be made one with Him, and He one with them, and thus one with the souls in Paradise, through "this blessed Sacrament of Unity." Although this third thread of oneness is realized at every Eucharist, yet at this annual Service, in the midst of the resting place of the bodies of the holy dead, it is more fully realized than at any other time. There, in that Eucharist we not only "obtain remission of our sins," but we also share in "all the other benefits of the Saviour's passion." Surely it is there more than anywhere else, that we are thankful that those "other benefits of the Saviour's passion," are not limited to this world; not limited to the short life of the bodies that rest in the graves around us; not limited to this part of the life of the soul that never dies. Hence that realization (though the thought of it sometimes dims the eye) yet it fills the heart with loving thankfulness to know that:—

"Saints departed ever thus. Hold Communion still with us; Still with us beyond the veil Praying, pleading without fail."

Hence, at our annual Commemoration Service we dismiss all weak sentimentality, and we give them a definite place in our prayers, and we ask God to grant to them a share in every blessing that He has reserved for souls in His Paradise; that those souls may know, through Jesus Christ, that we are praying for them; that they are receiving blessings in answer to our prayers; and that they may pray for us; till we with them, and they with us, come into the immediate presence of God in Heaven, after the Judgement Day, and go no more out for ever. Such is the direct teaching of all our Commemoration Services. Such was the thread of Rev. E. P. Hiscock's address in the afternoon, during the beautiful Service out in the Cemetery. As such it ever brings comfort to those who mourn, and gives a new interest in those whom God has called from earth to the Paradise of waiting souls. The service closed with the usual procession to the graves of the first person who was buried in the Cemetery, and to that of the last person buried there. The grave of the first person was that of William Pittman, and that of the last was of Caroline Bartlett. At each grave a hymn was sung and a prayer was said. Thus ended another Commemoration Service that will long be remembered. Several of the graves were beautifully decorated with flowers, and the little Mortuary Chapel was also decorated with evergreens and white roses, etc. It was all very beautiful.

LOCAL ITEMS.

No Trinitarian is more lovingly welcomed to Trinity than Mrs. Arjanna House, the mother of Messrs. John and George House. She is always glad to get back to Trinity, and to the old home surroundings once a year, and we are all glad to see her in our midst.

Miss Louie Gardner and Edna Snow of St. John's are registered at the Garland, and have been enjoying the beautiful air and fine days of the recent past. Glad to see them.

Miss Edith House of St. John's is spending her holidays here. Her father and mother will follow next week and together they will have their usually delightful time in the old town surroundings. Stay as long as you can; we are glad to have you with us.

The Chairman of the Road Board has had the surface of the roads and lanes of the town cleaned up, and the result is a decided improvement. We should like to see this done once a month during the summer.

White of Catalina were in Trinity on Monday last. We were glad to see them. Come again.

Mr. G. A. Dandurand, representing Messrs. Davis & Lawrence of Montreal, registered at the Garland on Monday last.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Earle celebrated the fifty-fifth anniversary of their marriage on Monday last. Congratulations. Another five years, and then the diamonds.

Trinity East is known as an attractive place to spend a few days at, and every year some summer visitors come there and are well looked after by Mr. and Mrs. House. During the past week Miss Young, Misses Gwen Young, Miss Lacombe, and Miss Annie Giles, all of St. John's, have been registered there. They have investigated every place of local interest, and paid daily visits to Trinity. They admitted to the press representative that they had enjoyed every hour of their visit; that they have had the time of their lives; that the visit to Trinity has originated a green spot in memories' halls not soon to be obliterated, and that they will come again, for sure. Their happy, healthy appearance endorsed all they said about their enjoyment, and the fact that they read the Trinity Notes every week, indicates a taste for good literature! They will make some poor fellows' lives happy in the near future, and then grow up to good old women. So mote it be.

We are trying to get a cabinet photograph (or a wood-cut) of each of those men, who as priests, were once Incumbents of St. Paul's, Trinity, in order that we may frame them and put them on the walls of the vestry of St. Paul's Church, to perpetuate their memory. We have already placed there that of Rev. William Bullock, Rev. Benjamin Smith, and Rev. Hy. Dunfield. We should like to get one of Rev. Thomas Wood, Rev. John Clinch, Right Rev. Bishop Spencer, Rev. Bertram Jones, Rev. Canon Smart, Rev. Henry C. H. Johnson, Rev. William Weaver, Rev. Charles Foster, Rev. Charles Hollands, Rev. H. V. Whitehouse, Rev. Charles M. Strickland. There are several others whose names we will give later. If any person who reads this, has one to spare, will you kindly send it to Rev. E. P. Hiscock, Trinity, and be rewarded by our thanks.

DOCUMENTS OF A HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

A friend of mine has handed me for examination, two Bills of Exchange, dated 1818. One, dated October 24th, 1818, is for American goods sterling, payable to John Hayter, of Trinity, and drawn on Messrs. Sleat, and Read Merchants at Christ Church, Hants, England. It is signed by my grandfather—James Lockyer—who was Sleat and Read's Agent in Trinity at the time. Their business establishment was on the S. E. Shore of the Nadie facing the narrows, and just below where the old Spence Hotel stood at the time. John Hayter's mark in connection with his endorsement is witnessed by Richard Ash. The other Bill is for four pounds, eleven shillings, is dated May 9th, was issued at Port de Grave and made payable to Charles Tucker. It is drawn on Messrs. Lang, Baine & Co; Greenock and signed by Baine Johnston & Co; pro John Black, Charles Tucker's mark of endorsement is witnessed by P. MacPherson and T. and W. Pincet. Sleat and Read's paper is embellished in the margin with three circles and scroll work. In the first circle is a codfish split and cured, in the second circle are the initials of the firm, in monogram, and in the third circle are two barrels of merchandise. In the corresponding circles of Lang, Baine & Co's, paper is a vessel under full sail, the initial monogram of the firm, and a live fish respectively, each and all indicative of the things in which the firms were most deeply interested.

I am also in present possession of a formidable looking document that was drawn up in Trinity (just one hundred years ago, 1824). It is an agreement between George Garland & Sons, and seventy-eight men who were going to the sealfishery in four of Mr. Garland's vessels. There is not any requirement in this agreement embodied in such agreements down to the last of the sailing vessels that prosecuted the sealfishery. The owners, George Garland & Sons were to provide the vessel "with every requisite equipment for such an undertaking, and with sufficient customary allowance of diet for the crews. For such, the Garlands were to have one half the seals and profits of such voyage, together with a half share for the vessel, the remainder to be divided in shares to each man. The captain was to receive five guineas as a recompense for his services. To such of the crew as were never at the seal, each man was to pay twenty-five shillings for his berth. Old hands were to pay twenty shillings, and those in charge of punts were to have their berths free. (The word berth is spelled birth all through the document.) The four vessels were the Phoenix, Active, Dart and Arrow. Every one of the seventy-eight names brings back a tide of memories to the old people of to-day, and for their benefit I give a selection from each of the four vessels:

Phoenix—John Hart, master, Jacob Christian, second hand; James Grant, bow gunner; Matthew Evely, common hand; John Banister, bow gunner; Joseph Purchase, John Hodder, Edward Maher.

A FLY STORY.

This story has to do with trout fishing, but it is a fly story rather than a fish story. Rev. Henry Dunfield (God bless him) was the incumbent of Trinity just the year 1878. He was then, what he always was, an enthusiastic trout fly-fisherman. He had been looking forward for several weeks to 9 day's fishing in Salmon Cove Brook. At last after his regular monthly duties up the shore had been carefully attended to, he saw the way clear to make a date for fishing. He devoted all his spare hours to a day before to the careful examination of his flies, that were then most methodically arranged in his wonderful fly-book. On the morning of his fishing holiday he was up at daylight and off to Trinity East, where he had engaged a man to drive him to Salmon Cove Bridge, and to call there for him in the afternoon. It was an ideal morning, and he looked forward to a day of real sport. The driver deposited him and his outfit on the Salmon Cove Bridge, and Mr. Dunfield there and then began to get ready for work and pleasure. He put his rod together, arranged his line, attached the cast, and then was ready to put on the flies. He put his hand into his inside coat pocket where he usually carried his book of flies. It wasn't there, nor was it anywhere else on his person. At last he said: "Yes, I know where it is. It is on the mantle-piece in my room seven miles away in Trinity." He sat down to rest and to think. Just then an old cod fisherman who lived not far from the bridge came along. "Good morning, Parson," he said, "his spool 'to be a beautiful day for fishing, Parson, and the brook be full o' trout." To the man's surprise, Mr. Dunfield just grunted, as he searched his pockets again and again. "What be the matter, Parson," the old man asked. "Matter?" said Mr. Dunfield, "Matter enough! I've left all my flies in my room in Trinity." The old man just said, "Hiss" and then he left for home. About twenty minutes afterwards the old man returned. In the meantime, Mr. Dunfield had unjointed his rod and was having a smoke, preparatory to his leaving for home. The old man handed him a paper-bag full of something. "Here, Parson," said the old man, "there be a box full of the old fly that be of service to 's' sir." Mr. Dunfield took the bag and laughed one of his well known chuckling laughs. The dear old man had gone home and shut every door in his house; and then, with his cap as a weapon he had killed flies till he had a bag-full, and then he hurried back to Mr. Dunfield on the bridge. "Thank you, John," said Mr. Dunfield, who would not hurt the old man's feelings by any attempted explanation. "That's all right, Parson," said the old man, "there be lots more in the house, and if you say the word, I'll go back and fill another bag for 'e." Mr. Dunfield assured him that he would not need any more, and after the old man had gone home happy Mr. Dunfield leaned over the bridge and laughed, as he only could laugh. Then he put his rod together again. To put on an old bait-hook that some body had left in his basket and put one of the big house flies on his hook. It was not a very great success, but he caught a trout or two and then left to meet the carriage that was coming to take him home. He was satisfied with what the day had produced.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

S.W.—Your grandfather was born in Somerset, England, in 1760, and came to Trinity in the year 1775.

History.—Yes, Trinity was fortified in 1775. There was a fort with several guns mounted, at the Fort Point, and on Gun Hill; but the officers in charge had too much sense to fire on the four French warships, under Count de Hassenville, who were terror the Harbour in June of that year. In common with Bay Bulls, Carboneau Island and St. John's, Trinity surrendered without resistance.

Critik.—You have overlooked the fact that the novels you have read were not fiction; and that good fiction means possibilities. So long as a writer deals with possibilities he is well within the realm of good fiction. As soon, however, as he begins to record things that are impossible, he loses the interest of his readers.

Flying Under the Sea

Curious Channel Tunnel Schemes of the Past.

The idea of a tunnel linking England and France, a subject that is receiving renewed attention, is not a new one. The first man to propound a scheme for tunnelling the Channel was a French mining engineer named Mathieu, who impressed Napoleon with the idea at the beginning of last century. In 1803 another Frenchman, Tessier de Motray, suggested building a long iron tube and laying it at the bottom of the Straits of Dover, so that people could walk through it. This plan, however, was not seriously considered until J. A. Thome de Gamond, another French engineer, placed it on a practical basis and submitted it to the French Emperor in 1855.

It was Thome de Gamond who first tackled the question of cross-Channel transit with real determination. He put forward a number of proposals, among them ideas for various kinds of bridges, a steam ferry system plying between long piers, and a tunnel on the same lines as that now projected.

A Bridge on the Sea Floor! But although many schemes were proposed in the first half of the century it was not until 1867 that the idea of a tunnel captured the popular imagination. In that year Thome de Gamond and William Lowe, of Wrexham, jointly submitted plans for a tunnel to an international committee, which reported favourably on the project, without however, sanctioning the grant of money for which the inventors applied. This tunnel plan was the forerunner of many ingenious schemes discussed in following years.

A well-known engineer, Zerah Colburn, got out plans providing for the construction of an immense tube, built in 1,000ft. sections, which was to be sunk to the sea bottom and covered by concrete. Another idea which attracted attention was that of Thome de Gamond, the builder of Westminster Bridge, who proposed placing eight conical steel structures at intervals across the Channel and connecting them by long sections of tube lowered from ships.

Another plan, even more startling, had for its object the building of a great bridge under the water, with a single pair of rails over which an enclosed carriage was to be hauled by wire cables; while still another project was to consist of a number of water-tight chambers, like caissons, which were to be suspended from a great archway and whirled under the sea at high speed. The Channel Tunnel Company was formed in 1875 and was given permission by Parliament to undertake certain preliminary work near Deal. The same year a French company started operations at a cost of 2,000,000 francs, the net result of this expenditure being that 7,000 soundings were taken, 3,000 samples of the seabed were secured, and a shaft begun at Sangatte. For the rest, the tunnel remained what it still is—a pleasant dream to some and a nightmare to others! But although the whole project was shelved as a result of the adverse report of a Parliamentary committee which considered the question in 1885, inventive minds on both sides of the Channel did not rest.

Only thirty years ago an attempt was made to give effect to a plan which nowadays makes strange reading. Briefly, a moving platform, capable of accommodating a train, was to be built so that it could run along a submerged track supported on long steel legs.

The full story of the project reminds one of a conception of Jules Verne, as does the plan which provided for the construction of two huge chutes, by means of which passenger-could glide in specially constructed carriages to or from England.

Mothers Advise Their Daughters to Rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Keep Them in Health

A Mother's Advice Restores Mrs. Hall to Health
Lindsay, Ontario.—"I had very poor blood and back. I took kidney medicine for a while without success. I got pale, weak and nervous. My mother, who has used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a number of years with very good results, advised me to take it and I did. It did me worlds of good. I have gained twenty pounds and have not felt so well for a long time. You may use this letter as a testimonial to help others if you think it worth it."—Mrs. MARY E. HALL, R. R. 5, Lindsay, Ontario.

A Sickly Child
Mahoningtown, Pa.—"I would like to say a few words about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About a year ago I thought it would be necessary for me to take my daughter out of school. She was losing weight, was nervous, and when she would come home from school she would drop into a chair and cry, and say, 'Mamma, I don't believe I can go to school another day!' I gave her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now she is a healthy, happy, hearty, strong girl and weighs 120 pounds. She has no difficulty in doing her 'gym' work, and she works at home every night and morning, too. I am a mother who can certainly praise your medicine, and if it will be of any benefit to you, may use this letter as a reference."—Mrs. GEORGE E. WHITACRE, 621 W. Madison Avenue, Mahoningtown, Pa.

"Every girl wants to be healthy and strong, and every mother wants her daughter to do well in school and to enjoy herself at all times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for young girls just entering womanhood. Mothers may depend upon it. Remember it is prepared from roots and herbs, contains nothing that can injure, and tends to tone up and strengthen the organs concerned, so that they will work in a healthy and normal manner. For nearly fifty years it has been used by women of all ages, and these women know its great value. Let it help your daughter and yourself."

Motor-Car Prices.

REMOVAL OF MCKENNA DUTIES.
(By our Motoring Correspondent).
There appears to be a widespread misunderstanding among motorists and prospective car-owners about purchase prices, especially those of imported models. In the first place, it is assumed that directly the McKenna duties on foreign makes coming into this country are removed, on August 1 next, motors in general will come down in price; and again, that owing to the import duty of 33 1-3 per cent. being repealed, foreign cars will be reduced by a third in purchase price. Both suppositions are incorrect. Why? Because the possible "cuts" have already been made in the latest quotations of imported cars, home productions are not, in my opinion, likely to be sold at lower rates in the near future, and last but not least, the 33 1-3 per cent. tax does not apply to the cost of the complete imported car as catalogued and offered ready for the road in this country.

It is clear that if the importer had waited until the McKenna duties were actually repealed to lower the price of his car, no one in his senses would have bought a foreign model during the three best motoring months of the year. Consequently, definite reductions were announced as soon as possible, firms in most cases stating that no further cuts will be made during August. Thus the home buyer of a foreign make already pays a duty-free price. As to British cars, at first sight it might seem that these, too, would become cheaper—in fact, that makers here would have their hands forced, and through keener competition be brought into line, as some would have it. In certain cases there may well be slight reduction in prices; but the way does not appear clear for either substantial or general cuts, much less for both.

No Sensational Reduction.
British car manufacturers, especially those who are engaged upon the production of "popular" models, have already drawn the line fairly closely between profit and loss. In this case, bearing in mind that purchase price is naturally based largely upon factory output, it is likely that with increased competition, resulting, at any rate, in somewhat decreased sales, the home manufacturer will be able in the near future to lower his quotations? Personally, I do not think it is. Moreover, the cost of raw materials is increasing rather than diminishing. As to the question of imported cars being sold here at two-thirds of their former price, this is quite beyond the bounds of possibility, except, perhaps, in a few isolated cases where a maker wants to do some spade work, is in a big way of business, and can afford to undersell for a time. The duty does not come on the retail price of the complete machine as it is sold to the motorist in England, but on a very much smaller figure, for duty is charged on the factory cost, while freightage and duty-free tires all influence the ratio between taxable and retail figures. The possible reduction to the motorist owing to the removal of the duties is more like 10 per cent. than 33 per cent.

It will be seen, then, (1) that no startling and sensational occurrence in the prices of imported cars generally is likely to take place on August 1 next; (2) that the chances of the prices of British cars as a whole being reduced during the summer are sufficiently small to be left out of the general calculation; and (3) that the foreign car is already being sold at lower, i.e., duty-free, prices.—Times Weekly Ed.

SORROW AT HOME.

There is sorrow all around me, there is, in every street, and the waiting beggars hound me for some things to wear and eat. There are orphans in the alleys, there are widows in the parks, and I trust the gods keep tally while I hand them German marks. There are cripples sadly dragging shriveled limbs about the town, suffering a grief unflagging, and I cannot turn them down. There are men by fortune beaten, and they tell, while drifting by, of the weeks since they have eaten, of their longing for a pie. Oh, the blasted ones are screeching for a doughnut or a coat, and my hand is always reaching for a kopeck or a groat. Oft I hear of starving races, yearning for a can of peas, in the distant jump-off places far beyond the rolling seas. Oftentimes my good Aunt Dinah asks me for a round doubloon; there is want in Cochinchina, there is grief in the Gaboon. All along the Congo river people suffer, day and night, and she asks me to deliver some poor native from his plight. There are weeping gents and ladies, in the town of Timbuctoo, in the lower wards of Cadiz many people have the flu. But her pleas for my assistance leave me cold as frozen Nomes; why hunt trouble in the distance when we've loads of it at home? Since I cannot help the wailing from Spitzbergen to Johore, I will take a kippered graying to the man who walls next door.

The bloom of the rose and the green of the tree,
The flash of the wing of a bird flitting by,
The gold of the grain and the blue of the sky,
The clover below and the tall pines above,
Oh, there's something about us—the good Lord must love.
The Lord must have liked us, I say at the dawn
Where the waves like an army come into the land,
With the gulls riding high on the crest of the breeze
And the ducks flying north in their echelon V's,
The Lord must have liked us, I say as the sun
Oh, it's then the great love of the Lord I behold.
The Lord must have liked us, I say at the dawn
When the diamonds of dew gleam and glow on the lawn,
And the birds from their throats pour the red wine of song,
As if He held no burden of sorrow or wrong;
The Lord must have loved us, I whisper just then
To give such a world to the children or men.
The Lord must have liked us, I say as I pass
The nest of a meadow lark deep in the grass,
Oh hear in the distance the quail calling clear
And know that his mate and his babies are near;
Oh, I say to myself all His wonders I see
The Lord loves us all or this never would be.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

MAIDS AND VISITORS.

I heard one woman say of another the other day. "I should think she'd mind enter'ing a t all. She has a maid. If she had to do all the work herself she might talk."

The woman who was being criticized did not complain. She had simply explained the fact that she looked tired when someone had thoughtfully mentioned by saying that she had been entertaining almost steadily for a month.

Of course in many ways it is a great deal easier to entertain if you have help in the house.

And in other ways it's harder. Perhaps the woman who has never happened to have a maid in the house will think that's just talk.

Let her ask any doctor this question:

What Tires the Most.
Which wears people out the quickest, work or mental strain?
Or ask herself this question: Is there anything that tires you more than friction and irritability?
Visitors mean extra work to a maid. She knows the bus to expect a certain amount of it but she doesn't like it. Any more than a stenographer would like to have men come in from other offices to see her employer, and dictate to her, and make her put in over time doing their work. And when the maid gets more than a certain amount of extra work, she is pretty sure to show the strain in some way.

What is one to do about it? Give up having visitors?

A Fair Deal.
Certainly not, but I think the wise hostess will talk the matter over with her maids when she employs them.

make it plain that she expects to have a certain amount of company and that she expects pleasant service as part of the job. Also I think the plan of giving some extra compensation in such a case is fair and helpful. Or of promising to take on herself at such times certain tasks that generally go to the maid.

As for the visitor, he or she should also use tact and consideration in such ways as the following:
A guest in a home where a maid is kept should keep out of the kitchen, just as she would keep out of a business man's office.
If she wishes to offer to help in something such as wiping dishes (and that is a very nice thing to do) she should offer through the hostess.
Even if She is a Relative.
She should never, at the table or elsewhere, give any order to the maid except through the hostess.
She should take care of her own room.
A courteous thing to do when leaving (though not at all obligatory) is to ask the hostess if one is permitted to leave a small gratuity.
Of course it is the worst of form to be late for meals when one is visiting, maid or no maid, but I think it is a little more unforgivable when there is a maid.
These suggestions are meant for the home where there is just one helper.
When there is a staff of servants the situation, of course, would be changed.
