London special says that the stand taken by the lords has created widespread alarm through ministerial ranks. The ministry has only thirty-four majority, minus the speaker and Bradlaugh, over the combined Tory and home rule vote. In a general election this narrow majority would almost certainly disappear, while there is a probability that the Parnellites would return with a compact body of seventy-eight extremists. Parnell then would hold the balance of power in the house.

Several Irish Conservative peers have urged Salisbury to withdraw his opposition to the land bill, on the groundithat rejection of the bill will be followed by a renewal of the land agitation, which probably would entail upon them greater losses from non-payment of rent than they have yet sustained. Salisbury advised the peers at the meeting on Friday to adhere to all their amendments, on the ground that it would been caused here by an article in the Angsburg [Allgemeine Zeitung declaring that by ratifiying the appointment of Dr. Karumasa as Catholic bishop of Treves, the German

The track, which was torn up for 60 or 70 feet, is being promptly repaired. It was ready for the westward express at 1.47 p.m. on Saturday. The property damaged censists of an engine and tender, the mail and baggage, and the express cars, one second-class and three first-class cars.

Blood is threker than water, that is why the British people, being the lost ten tribes, have always sympathized with the Turks or Edomites, and it is why the Arabs, who are the sams of Ishmael, can always agree with the Turks when nobody else can. The 108th psalm declared that Constantinople would finally "go-into the hands of England, and he knew that would be the case. Col. CUMBERLAND was a railway diplomat as well as a railway manager, and was paid accordingly. Hereafter it is probable that the "diplomatic" part of the office will fall to Mr. Hendrie and other directors, while the administration of the road will be put in the hands of a good railway man. Such a man is to be had at a considerably less salary than was paid Mr. Cumberland.

DR. CANNIFF brought out a good idea in regard to the relations of a patient to his doctor. He said: I think it would be to engage by the year. Let it become the disease but to prevent it. By periodical visiting the physician can give such advice and instruction relating to personal, house, school, and I may say business hygiene, as will prevent no little sickness.

DR. CANNIFF, in his presidential addres to the Canada medical association at Halifax, took as his subject the code of medical ethics. He discussed it under three heads : "1. The duties of physicians to their pa-"tients, and the obligations of patients to "their physicians. 2. The duties of physician "to each other, and to the profession at "large. 3. The duties of the profession to "the public, and the obligations of the pub-" lie to the profession."

JOHN ROACH, the American shipbuilder, has no intention of resuming the Brazilian line of steamers, because he could not hope to succeed against the British line. One reason is that it costs money to take the trade away from an old-established line; another is that while money can be got in England at 3 per cent. it can't be got in the United States for less than 6: and a third is that labor is cheaper in England than in the United States. He says the United States pays $150,000,000 a year to foreign from an estimate he has been making he believes that the amount of money Amerithe surplus of trade in their favor.

For all this kind interest in their welfare the colonists will no doubt be duly thankful, but so far as Canada is concerned she does not appear to regret the estrangement which English statesmen and journalists now notice and comment upon. In fact Canadians seem to be pretty well convinced that their position in the world has been improved by the "estrangement," and that in some directions more of it would be ac-

The separation has gone on so noiselessly and imperceptibly as to be almost unnoticed. It has been a drifting process, but it has none the less been real, as any one may see who compares the position of Canada now with its position forty years ago. Some of the steps are noted in an able article by Mr. Norris in the last number of the Canadian Monthly.

Not to mention responsible government and confederation, there has been a dissolution of the religious bonds by the separation of the Episcopal, Methodist and Presbyterian churches from those of England. The authority of the governor-general has been largely curtailed, the legal connection has been severed, the Dominion flag has the commercial tie has been dissolved. In all these matters separation has already taken place, and who will say that we are any the worse or weaker for it?

Mr. Norris points out a few things in which British law is yet supreme in Canada -notably with respect to the naturalization of subjects of a foreign state, the law of copyright, the right of medical men, the navigation laws, and the power to make commercial treaties. It is Canada's interest that in all these matters the voice of her own parliament should be supreme. The naturalization act of last session is THE HOT AND DRY weather in Illinois dead letter, and so too is Mr. Blake's extradition act of three or four years ago,

THE IRISH LAND BILL.

The Irish land bill has now reached a critical stage. There is a dead-lock between the lords and the commons. The former have seen fit to change the bill in some of its essential features, and in spite of the protest of the commons there is a more extreme case Sandwich and Montreal tween the lords and the commons. The of the protest of the commons they insist that their changes shall be made. Both houses have given their reasons for the changes, and there for the present the matter stands. The position of the government less goods from Montreal at a distance of less goods from Montreal are in the same country, while Sandwich and Detroit, on opposite banks of a river, are in different countries; yet, if I properly interpret Mr. Phipps' doctrine, a citizen in Sandwich would be better off by getting less goods from Montreal are in the same country, while Sandwich and Montreal are in the same country, while Sandwich and Montreal are in the same country, while Sandwich and Montreal are in the same country, while Sandwich and Montreal are in the same country, while Sandwich and Montreal are in the same country, while Sandwich and Detroit, on opposite banks of a river, are in the same country, while Sandwich and Montreal are in the same country, while Sandwich and Montreal are in the same country, while Sandwich are in the same country, while Sandwich and Detroit, on opposite banks of a river, are in different countries; yet, if I properly interpret Mr. Phipps' doctrine, a citizen in Sandwich and Montreal are in the same country, while Sandwich ar will doubtless be stated when the house meets this afternoon. It is almost certain that no concession will be made; at any trust he will have patience with me, for he rate not until a conference has been held between the two houses.

The lords, as representatives of the landed nterest, are after all only pursuing a natural course in their attempt to mutilate the bill. They are making the law to suit themselves, or rather they are trying to keep it so, for the law in the old country has always childhood. He crosses the ocean and hitherto favored the landholders. But Mr. Gladstone and the large body o

Liberals at his back are too much in earnest as reformers of the land laws to be ed a spot where his relationship turned from their course by the action of mysteriously changed. The Sheffield cutler the peers. They mean to give the Irish offers him more for his bushel of wheat the peers. They mean to give the Irish tenant farmers a long-deferred justice, and what the lords will not do to-day they must than some man on this side that wonderful line. Shall he accept the tempting offer? If I understand protection, it says do to-morrow.

Mr. Gladstone will find a way or make it, as he has done several times before. CANADIANS AT HOME AND ABROAD

To the Editor of the Toronto World.

Sir,—Two years ago, in my first letter on Canadian independence, I said: "Both the Mail and Globe would veer round quickly if they saw a chance of making political capital. Immediately the song of independence becomes loud each will hasten to take up the retrain, and each will shout itself heaves to sain inhibit. to take up the retrain, and each will shout itself hearse to gain public favor. That brighter day is rapidly dawning, and the Globe discerns its shadow approaching, and begins to act accordingly. To continue stubbornly opposed to the inevitable would be veritable suicide on the part of that journal; therefore it slackens out by degrees its tight-laced jacket of loyalty, and admits that the more ample folds of democracy is more becoming, and, although plain and undecorated with gold-lace is plain and undecorated with gold-lace, is much more comfortable, and will in all probability some day be adopted as the national coatume of the people of this country. The speeches delivered by some Canadian statesmen in the mother-land do not harmonize with their utterances at home: noither are they characteristics of nome; neither are they characteristics of accuracy; they are simply made to suit the audience addressed. Therefore little or no reliance should be placed in what they give expression to, especially when they are on pleasure bent. Mr. Maceuracy is they are simply made to suit the audience addressed. Therefore it is the United States. Sold everywhere at 25 cents a bottle "EST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING "Brown's Household Panacea," has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and when they are on pleasure bent. Mr. Mackenzie, the other day, in a speech at Inverness, ventured the following: "If Britain should ever be in such difficulties as to require an armed force to maintain her position, Canada, as well as her Australian willing."

with what Mr. Mackenzie says. Only a few years ago, during the Turco-Russian war, the legislative assembly of New South Wales, with an overflowing treasury, and fully conscious of the fact that England might become a party to the war, declined to vote a sum of £160,000 for the purchase of an ironclad, which Sir William Jervis had reported necessary for the protection of the colony against hostile attack. This does not look like being ready and willing to buckle on the armor and risk their lives in England's behalf. And I think it extremely doubtful if Canadians would willingly respond to a call to arms and sacrifice their lives in England's interest upon the battle fields of Egypt or in any other foreign land. And, on the other hand, it is a mistake for Canadians to imagine that they have the right to expect that the army and navy of Great Britain will protect them in the time of peril, when will protect them in the time of peril, when they themselves do not contribute one cent towards the maintenance of that very ex-pensive burden upon the British people. For 20,000 men to rush to arms in the time for 20,000 men to rush to arms in the time of a threatened invasion is a very different thing to their helping England whenever their help may be required. One thing among others which this country should hasten to its consummation should hasten to its consummation is, the taking under her own control the management of her volunteer army, and no longer entrusting it to one whom England chooses to appoint to that honorable position—a position paramount of all others. Men whose conservatism renders them intolerant to all change will continue to cry: "Why disturb the status quo? we are satisfied." This is consistent with their principles. But the real benewith their principles. But the real bene-factor of mankind is he who readily acts upon the opposite principle, and endeavors to be constantly marching onward and up-ward. Without perfect freedom in all been substituted for the union jack, and things appertaining to the well-governing of a state, no people can arrive at that elevated position to which all nations aspire.

MR. PHIPPS AND PROTECTION.

To the Editor of the Toronto World. SIR, -I am very thankful to Mr. Phipps for his prompt reply and for the straightforward manner in which he explains this question, epecially so because I have found such difficulty in getting protectionists to answer such queries as in my previous letter. Still, as those parties had in all probability paid no such attention to the subject of state polity and civil government as Mr. Phipps has, it is not to be wondered at that they did not commit themselves to a decided

I have noticed that most controversie have arisen between different parties from a misunderstonding of each other's position, and it is to be deplored that in a country so blest as Canada we have two parties pull Then there is the question of conferring ing against each other instead of working in harmony. Having every confidence in the patriotism, lofty sentiments, and extensive erudition of Mr. Phipps, I feel that he has placed myself and the readers of you

Tories have finished their programme; and selling wheresoever we please according to our own sweet wills. Still, I do not eare about bandying about words. If I understand Mr. Phipps rightly, the profit of trade depends on the fact whether it crosses map—a line having no visible existence either on the earth or in the waters under the earth—or does not cross that line, for national boundaries are purely imaginary lines, just as meridians or other lines. lines, just as meridians or other lines.

Therefore, if I live on the Canadian side of the border, and I find that I can get certain goods more abundantly and with less labor in Ohio than I can in Nova Scotia, must know by this time that we cannot always see through any subject all at once and I am exceedingly desirous of arriving a the bottom of this subject. An Englishman leaves his home, his kindred, the land that he loves, in whose historic renown he is justly proud. There are buried the ashes of his ancestors ;he has and believes that he has not lefthis country, for he has the same gracious Queen; but emphatically, No, you must not.

A man wants his servant to produce some article; where shall he send him? To that spot in which the sunshine, the soil, the rain, the physical surroundings conspire to produce it in the greatest abundance? Protection, if I understand it, says, No; abundance must not be your guide, but a line placed by a historical accident. Should Mr. Phipps favor me with an explanation of any error I have fallen into I shall subscribe myself, his obedient servant,

Mothers: Methers! Mothers !! Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth, who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere a equal for relieving pain, both internal and or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago, and any kind of a pain or ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is won-derful." "Brown's Household Panacea," it should be done by promoting trade relations. Lord Kimberley is a friend of imperial feleration. Mr. Gladstone is firm for the maintenance of the union, but suggests no change in the present relations.

"How fortunate we chanced to meet!" seid Boisgibert, in a tone as destitute of emotion as is the creak of a door.

"It was indeed a happy chance," replied Prethibaut, with the inflection of a man who bids his creditor to come tomorrow.

And while their lips distilled honeyed words they were full of bitterness within Prethibaut's reflections were something like this:

"How in the fiend's name could Vaugiron be so idiotic as to invite this becurled popinjay to his house? I did not think him so stupid—so husband-like, so to speak—as that. "But will you follow it."

"Of course, since I ask it."

"But that does not follow, any more than you do. People are always asking advice; they rarely follow it. Last year, in advice; they rarely follow it. Last year, in this very month, and where we now sit, you asked my opinion as to whether you should marry. I advised you to live and die a bachelor. Well, three months after die a bachelor. Well, three months after that I had to pretend to be glad when I saw you hanged—I mean married."

Vaugiron viciously kicked a pebble on the gravel-walk before him.

"Well, what is it about?" said Prethibaut.

Vaugiron paused a while. "Well," said

he, reluctantly, "it's about my wife."
"What!" said Prethibaut, "already?"

And more particularly should he not invite a dandy who was her slave all last winter, who always had an orchestra seat when she was in her box. And yet Vaugiron—stupid but hospitable Vaugiron—he invites this fellow beneath his roof. Well, well!"

On the other hand, Boisgibert's brain was no less busy. His reflections ran something like this:

"I wonder why that old blockhead follows me so persistently? For the past year he seems to have exercised a sort of espionage on me. He seems to have divined my secret, too. And yet he is not a relative of Madame Vaugiron. Confound the old idiot! Someone told me he was in Switzerland, and here I find him on the way to Verrieres."

The two men scowled at each other, and then smoothed their faces into expression-lessness. The train rolled on. Boisgibert drew an immense cigar from his case and lighted it. Then, as if he had but just thought of it:

"Oh, excuse me. I believe tobacco is disagreeable to you."

At breakfast the next morning it was noticed that Maurice/Boisgibert was absent. The host found a note from him at his plate, however, which he read aloud:

"M. Boisgibert has received a letter which forces him to leave for Paris at once. Important business. He begs M. Vaugiron to receive his excuses, and much regrets that he cannot remain with the pleasant parts at the Chateau de Verrieres."

Mr. Ritchie pointed out that free trade had made no progress abroad, and at home there was a growing feeling that much of the present depression in trade was owing to the government's commercial policy. Though he held that protection was of no avail for our manufactures, he insisted that steps ought to be taken to save them from exclusion from foreign markets. Sir Charles Dilke opposed the motion, but repeated that the government would not be parties to anything prejudicial to British trade. He quoted statistics to show that the trade of the country was increasing, and in regard to the policy of retaliation he pointed out that a large portion of our imports from France were articles of food. Whatever might be the delusions abroad, the country could not tolerate the imposition of duties on food. After some discussion Mr. Ritchie's motion was negatived by 150 nays to 89 yeas. nan one year. ELMIRA, August 11, 1881.

WORLD REPORTER,—Will you please insert this in your paper and oblige an unfortunate lady: Last Tuesday night, the 9th, James Wheely of Stratford, Ont. Canada, and Amos Hanmer of Pine Grove, Schuyler county, N. Y., ran away from this city, where they had been engaged in the Dixon show card business, with $100 belonging to Hanmer's wife, whom he deserted in a shameful manner, leaving her quite destitute and without any meaus of support. I learned at the depot that they bought tickets to Stratford. If you can find out anything about these runaways, and will send me word through your paper or otherwise, I will come on to Canada and have Hanmer arrested for desertion and put in gaol, or he give bonds to support his put in gaol, or he give bonds to support his wife—that is the law here—and repay you for your trouble.
