BUMPTIOUS BENNIE'S BLUFF.

TRIES TO MAKE CAPITAL AS A TAILOR.

It is his logic is good, then Canada can withdraw reciprocity in Canada and other matters. In fact the Washington Treaty might be considered as abandoned.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—Very little excitement is created among the politicians here in regard to the message of President Harrison to Congress in the matter of bonding privileges enjoyed by Canadian railways.

The substance of his recommendation is that the bonding rules ought to be made more stringent. But who is to do it? Certainly not the present Congress; for it would be impossible to get such legislation through before the new administration comes in and the Democrats, if they consider there is any credit in taking the bonding privileges away, will claim it for themselves and pass the necessary legislation.

The whole message is merely done for the purpose of showing President Harrison to put himself on record as being anti-British and allow his party to reap any benefit therefrom from some year after.

It is held here that if the President's logic is good, the whole treaty is abandoned and that Canada is under no obligation to grant reciprocity in Canada and other things provided for in the Washington Treaty.

The tariff to be kept up. The effort of the Reformers to create an idea that tariff changes were imminent this session has had the effect of causing a monetary excitement in manufacturing circles in Montreal, Toronto and other points, and assurances have already been given in these directions that there is to be no substantial or important change in the tariff this session.

The facts that have come out in the last few days very clearly show that any attempt to change the tariff in two directions would involve unlooked-for consequences, and as a result tariff revision can only be on a well-considered line and after a thorough investigation of all the interests involved.

Manufacturers and manufacturers concerned may put it down for a certainty that few or no changes will be made this session.

A FUNNY YERDICK.

This Man Acted Properly, But He Ought to be Fined. The case of Thorne v. Huber, the suit from Waterloo county for malicious arrest, brought in a verdict at the sittings yesterday stating that the defendant had certainly thought that the plaintiff was not to leave the county, but that he had sufficient grounds to justify him in arriving at that conclusion. They accordingly awarded the plaintiff $100, but the court was a puzzle to his lawyer, who pointed out that according to their finding he must give verdict for the defendant, which case.

BANDITS IN NEW YORK.

Hold a Young Woman Under $5000.

New York, Feb. 4.—The mysterious disappearance some time ago of Miss Moore, the 23-year-old Kentucky girl, from the home of her brother-in-law, William W. Cornell, at No. 133 West 133rd-street, is still far from solution. Mr. Cornell advised a reward of $250 for information about Miss Moore's whereabouts. This he raised a few days ago to $500. On Monday Mr. Cornell received the following letter:

"The advance from $250 to $500 is too trivial for us to consider. Not a cent less than $2000 will ever be attempted by us, and must be correspondingly profitable. Up to this time not a hair of her head has been harmed, but unless something happens soon my influence to protect her life and honor will lose its power, I will not be responsible for results. One more week in it will be done, and remember that this is a life and death game. Treachery means certain death. (Signed) N.Y.B.W."

Mr. Cornell replied with a newspaper person's reply, asking for a large amount of money to go into the matter. He received another note, signed with the initials as follows:

"Proposition submitted to you is ultimate. The notes are carefully printed with a fine pen. The envelope bears the stamp of the General Postoffice.

And a Snow-Flow Dashed into a Freight Train.

Rome, N.Y., Feb. 4.—Between 5 and 6 o'clock a freight train left this city for the north on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg Railway followed by a snowplow. The snowplow was damaged and the freight train was delayed. The cause of the collision was so great that three several cars at the top of the snowplow were crushed.

George Aiken and Thomas Kearney, who were on the train, were not injured. The conductor and the engineer were also on the train. The snowplow was driven by a man named John Smith. PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 3.—Andrew Carnegie's intention to purchase the Homestead works on an inspection tour of the plant, has caused a great deal of excitement. The purchase of the plant would give Carnegie a great deal of power in the steel industry. It is believed that Carnegie's intention to purchase the plant is a move towards a monopoly in the steel industry. This has caused a great deal of concern among the workers at the plant. They are afraid that Carnegie will use his power to suppress their demands for better wages and working conditions.

ANOTHER GOOD DAY'S WORK.

LARGE NUMBER OF ITEMS IN SUPPLY PASSED.

The Opposition Not Obstructing Progress.—Mr. Foster in General Mood.—The House Today.—The Senate Today.—The Opposition Today.—The House Today.—The Senate Today.—The Opposition Today.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—Another good day's work is to be accorded to the credits of the House, which has been almost the whole afternoon and evening in supply, and passed quite a large number of bills.

The Opposition appears to be in excellent temper this session, and the votes roll along easily with only a much inquiry and investigation as shows a praiseworthy desire on their part to see that the Government expend the public money wisely and well.

Mr. Foster is also in good temper, and gives all the information asked for cheerfully and promptly, so that there have been no "apats" so far on the estimates.

Previous to going to supply Mr. Miller wanted to know about the debts of the county of Pontiac, and whether Mr. B. Ryan, the member for that county, had promised the Government that county, had promised the county of its railway indebtedness in connection with the Pontiac Pacific Railway.

The story of the Pontiac bonds is briefly this: Some years ago when the Pontiac Pacific Railway was projected this county, in a fit of generosity, voted a bonus of $100,000, but has never paid any interest on the bonds or made any provision for paying them.

The county was used by the executors of the Rose estate, but it was not until the judgment was obtained, and only a short time ago the curious spectacle was presented of the whole county being seized by the sheriff. This difficulty has, however, been got over by the county promising to pay the interest and make provision for redeeming the bonds.

During the last election in Pontiac the bond question was made the issue, and it was voted to issue the bonds. The county was elected the Dominion Government would come to the rescue of the county.

In the debate this afternoon Mr. Ryan emphatically denied that he had ever made any promise on the platforms or elsewhere that the Government would help the county if he was elected.

In the course of the debate Mr. Devlin read some extracts from the Conservative papers of the country and Mr. Ryan, Shawville, and endeavored to hold Mr. Ryan responsible for the utterances of the paper.

This gave occasion for Mr. Maclean to say against the unfairness of trying to hold the Minister responsible for the utterances of newspapers known to be generally favorable to them, or to hold newspapers responsible for the utterances of their editors, which he quoted with approval from an editorial in The Globe on the same subject.

Mr. Foster to-day introduced his bill respecting Government civil service insurance, and in doing so explained that this bill was to be taken in connection with another bill which he had given notice referring to superannuation.

Briefly summarized, his statement was that the superannuation fund as at present constituted, but one-third of the total drain on the consolidated fund, and the revenue and expenditure under it were getting further and further out of hand. He proposed to institute a system of cheap Government insurances which would provide for the families of deceased civil servants.

Mr. Foster explained that the contribution to the Government to both the superannuation and insurance schemes would be very much less than the contribution at present made to the superannuation fund. He said that the two schemes together would be working for about 20 years the contribution of the Government to both would have reached its maximum, which would be about $30,000 a year.

FIRE IN PORT HOPE.

The Town Hall Destroyed—Town Papers Saved.

PORT HOPE, Feb. 3.—About 5 o'clock this morning an alarm of fire was sounded, and it was discovered that the Town Hall, a large isolated two-story brick building, situated a little to the south of the centre of the town, was on fire.

The fire originated in a butcher stall in the north end of the building, and although the fire was promptly extinguished, the town papers, market clerk's office, and a residence and butcher stall occupied by J. Elliott, B. Smith, who were the market clerk and butcher, who, upon being liberated, promptly saved their heads.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

Labry Discusses the Foreign Policy—Dr. Gallinger is Not Injured Through Jail Treatment.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. Labry discussed the foreign policy of the Government, and the dynamite to the statement of Callan, the dynamite who was recently released from Portland Prison, that Dr. Gallinger, who is still confined in the prison, had been made insane through bad treatment. He said that he would ask if Mr. Asquith, the Home Secretary, would sanction such an independent inquiry to be made in the case of Dr. Gallinger, and if not, why not.

Mr. Asquith declined to permit an independent inquiry. He added that he had already caused a careful enquiry to be made into the matter of Dr. Gallinger, and he was satisfied that the prisoner was perfectly sane. The statement by Callan was absolutely without foundation.

Secretary White of the American Legation has delivered to Lord Rothes three dispatches containing the American case in the matter of the Bohring Sea arbitration. He said that the American case in the matter of the Bohring Sea arbitration was a very important one, and that it was a matter of great interest to the American people.

The debate on the Address proceeded monotonously until Henry Labouchere proposed an amendment in favor of the resignation of the Government. He said that the Government had been in office for a long time, and that it was time for them to resign. He said that the Government had not done anything to improve the country, and that it was time for them to go.

After vindicating the right of the House of Commons to control the Government's foreign policy, Mr. Labouchere addressed himself to the question of the Bohring

Mr. Mulock's Motion.

Such motions as that introduced at the opening of Parliament by the law-practising farmer who represents North York, who "habbles of green fields," and talks of agriculture from experience gained in his summer rations, ought not to be allowed. The House should not tolerate its time being wasted on motions that cannot be thoroughly discussed or practically dealt with until the time arrives when they are germane to the business before Parliament.

The duty on binder twine is part of the tariff question. The Government has announced that this matter will come up for debate in the usual way during this session. They could not enter upon its discussion until the House has passed a resolution in the order of Parliamentary procedure. Mr. Mulock was like an unmanly guest at a formal dinner, calling out for the joints to be brought on before soup and fish. It is this way the House has been misled. It is desirable that the Government should make a declaration of its policy about binder twine for the guidance of dealers and farmers. But there is no hurry; the tariff will be discussed and its changes decided upon months ahead of the time when binder twine will be wanted; so that we must conclude that all Mr. Mulock wanted was the chance to pose as the farmer's friend by a most untimely speech, which he will have to repeat when the question is raised during the tariff debate. When that time comes we trust he will content himself with rising in his place, in a few words directing the attention of the House to his speech in the current Hansard, and then taking his seat.

There is one point about this article which presents to us a difficulty in accepting Mr. Mulock's figures. He complained that binder twine is raised in price 25 per cent. by the duty. He also stated that the manufacturers of it reap 10 per cent. profit. Now a profit of 10 per cent. is regarded as a very moderate one. Indeed, our columns have recently announced that any person who wishes may take stock in the company that makes this article at par. This would not be a very profitable investment, as, were that the case, the stock would be offered at a premium. We fail to see how an article is sold for 25 per cent. in excess of what is a fair price, when Mr. Mulock says the case with binder twine, while the makers of it reap 10 per cent. profit on their industry. We are not now either defending or opposing the duty of binder twine, but simply pointing out that Mr. Mulock's figures are destructive, the one of the other.

If the binder twine makers only make 10 per cent. then, if they took off 25 per cent. from their prices, they would be selling their product at a loss exceeding 15 per cent. The lack of data relevant to the topic in hand was marked in our previous article. We were not informed at what price binder twine could be sold in Canada if imported free. That is the most vital point in the argument without that information any discussion must be a beating about the bush.

As delay in Parliamentary business and printing speeches that will be repeated once a large sum of public money the House would do well to get to its work without such time-wasting proceedings as have already cost several sessions of the House to the expense of the session, without doing a particle of good, except relieving a few members of speeches that were already so stale that they would keep sweet no longer.

The Debate On The Address.

There is one custom which Parliament has adopted styled "The Debate on the Address," that is more honored in the breach than the observance.

There may arise crises when it is desirable for the Opposition to test the strength of the Government so as to bring its life to an end as early as possible. It does not command the confidence of the House.

No such crisis existed when this session opened, except the urgency for commencing practical work as quickly as possible. To seize the opportunity afforded by the mere formality of voting an address in reply to that of the Governor-General, for the purpose of repeating long stump speeches of a strong chestnut flavor, was a mere waste of time.

The old style of grand oratory required the work to be preceded by an elaborate overture, throughout which there were scattered strains of coming melodies and fore-shadowings of the general character of the composition. That is very old-fashioned. It seems, however, to have been the precedent on which Messrs. Laurier and Cartwright proceeded at the opening of the Parliamentary drama. They blew their horns and beat the party drum, for no conceivable purpose except to give a forecast of the discussion to be expected as the work of the session unfolds. Both performances, the late-like solo of Mr. Laurier and the brass drum one of Cartwright, all wind and rattle, could have been given as well by any member of the press gallery, who have heard them often enough to have them off by heart, and the public generally is sick of the themes that were dilated on by the Opposition leaders as they are of "Annie Laurier" or "The no-boom-dee-dee."

Editorial World: Yesterday and to-day corporation officials have been carrying the custom is based on English precedent, but that is no excuse for wasting the time of a Canadian Parliament, nor squandering Canadian money. This country is quite able to make its own precedents, and has set excellent ones for an example to countries hide-bound by useless traditions.

Mr. N. F. Davis stated in the House of Commons on the last inst. that "before Mr. Morris of Montreal, vice-president of the Consumers' Company, ran for the Quebec Legislature he had to go to New York to ask permission from the United States Government." The statement has no foundation. Mr. Morris was selected as a Montreal Conservative candidate because of his high personal character, his business talent and the marked capacity he has shown for public life in a local council. When invited to stand he promptly accepted, the story of his running to New York to ask permission is a what is the Parliamentary term? Mr. Davis should confine his statements to matters which he knows, or verifiable. His attack on Mr. Morris was unprovoked, altogether uncalled for and spiteful. It would be well

BANKERS AND BUSINESS MEN

Talk on the Question of Protection.

UNANIMOUS OPINION IN FAVOR OF IT

One of the live topics of the day is "Protection." We believe in it, as our readers are well aware. The following opinions of prominent citizens are to the point and just at this particular time, when our places of business seem to require more than usual protection from business efforts, with no of special interest.

The Company referred to seem to be high up in the estimate of leading business and business men, and many new names are being added to the already large list of subscribers.

The Holmes Electric Protection appears to work quite satisfactorily. C. BRIDGES, Manager Bank of Montreal, Toronto, Feb. 3, 1893.

Mr. Galbraith is well known and is entirely trustworthy. With a staff of well-qualified teachers in all the branches of art, such an academy could serve a good purpose.
