chancs, the lofry Pike of Teneriff by all the Men that ufe the Sea: The Pitch which theie illes afford is no new thing to the Sailors neither, and 'ris remarkable for that Property, that the heat of the Sun won't meltit. The Corn that grows here is very good, buc thereic 2 fors of worm thar brecds in it, which eats our all the Subfance, and leaves the Hufk entirc. Between the Ifes Forreventure and Lanceroca (which are twoof the feven Canaries) is a rery good Sound, and fit for the meeting of a whole Flect, cfeecially too upon the account of the fecurc Anchorage, and theabundance of Fifi fhere to be mer with.

But the greatert Ranity of all thefe Ilandst is the Trec in the Ille Fierroy whofe Leaves continually diftil The woode pure warct, and fofficierry toch for the fervice of Man full wrex in and Beaft there : It ftainds upon the Declivity of a Hill, we fie and is shaded about with a malticude of ftately Pines, that defend it from the fcorching San: It is of the bignefs of a middle-fiz'd Oak, and fix or feren Yards high; the Bark is white like Hardbeame, the Boughs are very ragged, the Ieaf like thar of the Bay; white on one fide and green on the other, but it bears neither Fruit nor Flower. In. the Night cime a thick Clood or Mift always hangs abour it, and the warer drops of: from the Leaves very faft and in grear quanricies. The Inhabicants have laid Pipes of Lead from the Tree roa greas Pond in the Valley, to that all the VVarer difcharges it felf inthere: This Pond is handfomly pav'd with Srone, and hoids 20000 Tun of VVater, bur notwithitanding the largenefs of it, it will be fill'd in the frace of a Chip. X. Sir Richard Hawkins's Voyage into the Soutb Sea;

Warer f:
the
til:

Nire for where the Sundlunes. This violent heat fatuoues Pcople at thatrate, that they are greedy of any fort of Conling whatfocrer, and apt incautioully to. cxpofe themiclves to it whenfocver it comes. Thus the N. E. Wind that gencrally blows every Afremocn at four a clock, comes rerycool and freth and ther confiderin nothing but the pleafure and cafe of being deliyer'd from a burdenfome hear, lay themfelves open to it, and confequently to many very difmal Diforders by that means. 'Tis not Arange that a Flux or a Fcavour thou'd follow upor 6 fudden a murting up of all we Porc con of texking coluby the Be put in tumulruous Mocions, when what was fairly going out thro" thofe Vents in fo large quanticies, is violently repealed and forc'd back again. Strangers who are moreliablic to there Inconveniencies than the Natives havenow learn'd this way of prevention of them; they Rmoly ufed defend their Heads and Bodies with as many Coverings weara can almoft endure on; upon the former they and upon the latter a Suir of thick Clorh; and over thar 2 Gownfurr'd or lin'd with Corron or Bays; in thort rhey arm themfelves againft the Hear, as the People in Noosa - Zembla would againft thecold, and by chis micans they not only feel lets of it, but alfo are more our of danger of catching cold by the Breezcs. They find allo by many and common Expericnces, that the Moon has here very fenfible bút chofe pernicious Effects upon humane Bodies, that are expos'd to the Rays of it; and therefore they take carc nescr to lleep in the open Air

prician

 or in a Houfe with the Windows open, thro' which herbeams can come. Sir Richerd Harkins had in this matter the Experience of a very credibic Perfon, who fleeping one Night in his Cabin trich the Moon mining in up on him, had focxtraordinary a pain, ácompanicd with a violent burning in that Shoulder, thar for more than zo Hours he was like a Mandown-right difuracted ; and "rwas not withour a great many Applicarions (befides a world of cormenic and pain that it coft him l) chat he was freed from it ar:laft. This Accident happen'd upon the Coaft of Grinex, in which Country the bad Eficets of this Planet are very commonly felt this way.

The Cape de Verd Ines, which are fix in number, belong to the Crown of Porfugal, as the Canarics do to *) that of Spain. The chief of thern all is Sc. Frgo, well known so the Englifh, as having been fack'd twice by motharime wisure Sir Anthony Sherley, in A. D, 1596, as it had alfo bexetice before, in A. D. 1582, by Ma nucl Serades, a Ropitygeñ, with a Fleet of French: And the Ille del Fogo "fycrown to all the VVorld for its burning Mountain, the Flames of which are feen in the Night time 20 Leagues off at Sea. The beft watering place in any of them is on the VVeft part of the In Brono, where there is a grear River; but then the Anchoring is bad, as 'cis for the moft parr all about thefe Incs. The Cinaries have much the advanuge of the Crope de Verds, for Corn and VVine, Iron, Pirch, and fome other Commodities perhaps; but thefe latter pretend to Ambergrice, Civet, Elephants. Teeth, Gold, (which they havic from the Main of Guinea) Sals, Rice,

Cotron-wool and Corton-cloth, Spunges and Pumice flones; as for Sugars, hoth the one and the otherhave good ftore of them: Neither arethetwo Mredero Illcs infrriour to cither of them in this refpect; they are known to produce crecllene Sugars, rich VVines, and finc Swect-woods.
The Flect having paft all thefe Incs, and being now within five Degrecs of the Equinoctial, was in no fina? danger by realon of the Shoals, as they apprchended. They obferved the colour of the water to change, and be much whirer than it cuer is known to be where there's any thing confidcrable of depth: And accordingly haz ing made the Experiment with their Lcad, ar 14 Farhors: they found Ground; but at the fame time fending fome up to the top of the Ship, shey frefently difsover'd the main land of Guincs. Now the Reckonings of all the Ships agreed in this, that they wcre at lealt 70 (fome faid 80) Lcagues from the Land, which notorious tirrour thercfore immediately forcd them to conclude fome Atrong Current fetting to the Eaftward had been the caule of it. And this Errour was no other, than what all mult unaroidably fall into, that come within the reach of Currents, while there is no infallible rule for finding the Longitud.

The Current from the Equinotial to 20 Degrees Norch, is very frong, and fets very nearly Eaft, direct. ly upon the Guinern Shoar, as they found by experienes to their no litule danger; but what particular Shifting: and Variations is may have, shey are able to give n! Rules as to chat: So alfo the Curreats that is mer wat: berwcen Niemfoundland and Spain, fers nearl; Eaft and Weft, and did a long time impofe upon the Marines: and pur them our in their Reckonings: And Sir Richrr.! tells us, that he has feen in fome Sca Charts the diffet. ence of above :3c Leagues between the Ille Tercerc amil the Main: That fome have affured him, that coming from the Indics, and looking out for the ATores, the 3 bave got fight of Spain; and others looking out for srain, have had Gighr of the Aious. There's the fame Current in the Lewnt; but it runs trade betwixt the Mains, and changes fometimes to the Eaftward, and ochertimes to the Weftward. Upon the Brefilicn Coaft and the South Sca, the Currenr is likewife changcable, but it cver rans along the Coaft, keeping company with the Wind; and it is an infallible Rulc, what 12 or 24 Hours before the Wind alters, the Current begins to change. In the more Northerly parts of the Wth-In dics, the Cument is found to run cominually one way, and fcts along the Coaft from the Equinoctial to the North, and in this cale when it Cers North or Sourh, the Effects of ic are cafly difcoverd; but how to know cruly the ferting of a Current from Eaft to Wcft, and in the openSea too, is difficult, beyond the rcach of any Ruleshitherto givento account for"t. When they came within three of four Degrecs of the line, the Cortpany began to be milerably afticted wich the Scurvy, abundance of 'em died, and the reft were fo frighrened and difcouraged with it, that they grew uneafic, winh'd the Voyage were ar an end, or that the Admiral wou'd make ic be fo, and fail homewards. The Winds alfo hac been concrary, and continued fo for a good while after they had pals'd the Line, and as they approached the Coaft of Brefile, it recred to the Eaftward. About the middle of Oflober is grew large and fair for them, fo that in few days they.got thwart Cape St. Augufine, and near the latter end chey werc in founding of the great Shoalds, which lie along the Coalt betwixt the Bay of Todos Sandos, and the Pors of Sansos, otherwife calld Nueftra Senora de ViAloria, between 17 and 18 Degrees South Latitude. Thefe Shoals are difcover'd by the meltitudes of fmall Birds thar live uponithe Rocks and oroken Lands about them, and are ordinarily met with many Leagues before 2 Ship comes in any danger of them.
Amongt the Accounts given of fome Fithes, as Dolphins, Bomiroes, Sharks, Swordfithes, Thriffers, and the like, which have been defcrib'd in other places; the Auchor tells us one thing of the Dolphins, which is Comewhat remarkable. It was an old Story of this Filh, a story of that it is a mighty Lover of Mankind, and lov'd to fol-che Dolphins low Shipsuponthar account: Now as for their following of Ships, Sir Richard Hawkins afferts that so be a Iruth upon his own knowledge, for he fays, char feming out from the Weft-Indies in 1583 , We:g, weygurfinde which is ncar 1000 Leagues y whentine patall doubr that they were fome oforint the very fatie Dol phins that attended the Shirtuthifthhestys thitethe Bailors had madk'd feveral of wemp Back, anthernethe Tail and and then it thole that had fo bad entertainmentiom them by leine thus wounded，would not for all that forfake the Shif，tis eff probable that the others who had mo firth cute bliculd do it．Bur the reaton of thes he dow wes afritic to any fuch Affectua w Matakind as is alk d of，kut a love to their own Bellices．for they get a prute t：any Seraps of Provifion one of a ship；the Seanen throw sut ko keav cemalnament int the sea，and the Dophess ل inatind in that hey are liangers on to a Ship upun mo other fowe，th．u a Company of liegors are to a youd other fere，thina Company of Beggers are to a youd Honfe，where they evir now and then meet with a bil yiul．

I he Searenen the Vouse had a prear dalof Paftime

 Go the had ro ：hery as all upunthem，bue fudicd sokd bike ald en and cot han alwimmins．fom a third they whel prick o，the bye，that he inght never fee to an mene minhet；another＇s Bedy they would rip unat thow him mot the Water with all his Guts fure ioln reat，whenevery one of his Fellows woud be fure where anath at；bonetmes they wruld rake two emincher or pataterwards as well as they cou＇d in the O：ean．And the Reaton why they made chis horrid hirieck ammelt the Sharks was partly becaufe they de－ privil them of the picafure of fivimming and wathing tanfelves，which a siandares no：as long as a Shark is in ：he way；bur Supcritition perhaps had fome hand in irtoo，for rice Scamen look upon it as a bad Omen to haw：thelc Fikes arcending about a Ship；ic looks as it Finue f then were nortly to die，and the Sharks were wine atrady in cxpectation of cheir Carkafes：And ther whe are aitosecher for a iolly life，don＇t cate to ince wh of the melancholy $\Gamma$ relages abouf them；it ant necds be a difterbarce over a Bowl of Punch for a Minn to fice reie ri thefe Devourers hankering about Hin，anathewing himhis Cosina and Grave both at the Sunctanc．
The Shasks den＇t frawn as mort other Fin do，but whelp like Terreftrial Animals，and their young ones up－ onoccalion，so in and out of their Mouths very fre－ quanly，till they are of a contiderabie bignets；as fup－ rote there wete a Storm，or any other danger that tonchand the old Shark immediately feceives them in to becir bheler，where thicy areous of harm＇s way：And Sir dever！heinh ins fais，that he has ien them do thus when chey lave been more than a Foot and a half long， ant，atier the killing of the Dam，the young ones have Leci ail found in hes Belly or Pouch． Thoie chat zo to Sea coo very often，fpeak of the for－ mable Eactles between the Whales and his two grand our Auther rells us，that he has heard the found of the mighty Seriaks the Threlice gives，at leait rwo Leagues． mighy Seriaks the Threfler gives，at latit rwo Leagues． Has c becn heard muph farther；＇ris with the Tail thas Fin havs on at this rate uron the Head of the Wihale， and iafued conthuerine how hard he habours，he well de－ Binestine name of a Threflacr．

Conserning the Winks，lie gives us thefe Obfervari－ ons farbiber ton；that from the North Tropick to three or four Degrees from the Equinoctial；the Brecze（which is the $\widehat{X}$ ．E．Wind）－abrains gencrally throughout the Ycar，only near the Shoar it＇s variabie：That in chrce erfire Degees of the Line，cither North or Souch，the Win！hangs Southeriy；the Months of $\mathrm{Ful}^{\text {uly }}$ ，infust， from tiae Cape of Gand Mon wo the Arores，you find the friceze sontimaily：That the beft of all cimes to crofs the hanc From North to South，is in the Months of camai：alio in spromber，Octuler，and Ninember；yet vare for fure asin the former．When they had made be－ the trcitulefume Wends and the Djffempers of the Come Pany，made them sefolve rolook our for the Shoat：And that which firttoficr＇d iticle to their fight，was the Port of Sameos，or Nueffra Senore de Vicinria，which is cafily known by theygrar higin Hill orer the Port，which rifes in the formgofa Ball，and coming near the Shoar， 3 whice Tower otzervisfeen，which thands upon the top of a Hillower the Hartoore Entring che Port within of 2 Hillover the Harbours：Entring the Porr，within 2 quarter of a Mile is a Implf Villase，and three Leagues bigher－up is thectisefy Town，where they have two Forts， onetyg eitber fude the Harbour，and within them ride $\qquad$ Sulders，part whet wath there，and the oth are in the whate Twer upon the rep of the the whis onmands it．Put their Fexpectanous fiom tha place
 heffer hat expref Orders from his Majctiy of Spein to hatfer no limath Shigs to come there，atd therfore te－ firied tha to depart the Pont in threc dajes：All the comfor was，that they got two or three hundred Oian－ ges and limens alhoity，which was no bites be＇p to rhem that were down with Scorbutick Difenters，there being hardiy any Remedy in the Wortd kam wn to be comparable to ：his Fruit，for all that contract these fort of the Cece at Sea．leme ubired to ronform thenfolves to the Coveraour＇s Oricrs（ for thy y were too weak in all Sences to precend in furce any better Treatrent trom han；they fet fall and hed a W．S．W．Courf．
And here l＇ruvitence，whehbuta licte icf ry hanecly pocerved them from the horille Effets of Anomat： fre in their Ships，row as womberf！！！y dhacrid them that ticy hat te nall hat betore they ron＇thave had tic leaft Cince of their Datect，if a ftrarge arcident had nor revented if．The Mafter of the Ship（who was pore to flecp）had conmitsed the ente of the Stecrage to one of hos Mates，and lie cither bein？dre uzie，or orer con－ fident of the flill of the Man that managid the Helon， nuplected the overlight of him，and lefthimeoftecren－ tircly according to lais own mind：And in thort be fiecr＇d fo，that they were now e＇en almoft uron the Shoar，and netither the Mate nor Helme－man difcorcid any thing of the marter ：But the Mafter vio was fallen into a wry dece flecf，by reation of his I abours and long Warchangs letiore，all of a：fudden waked our of is in a cerrible fright；he knew no reafon why he hioud be To difomposid，there was no noife nor alarm in the Ship，the Wisds and Sca were bath very ffill and guiet， and itwas a fine clear Nighe；be endeavourd tuiont－ pofe himfelf and go on with his ilecp，but he cou＇d not conquer hisoncafincfs，nor forbear yielding to a pow－ crful Indination to rifeand fo upon Deck，and this he had no fooncr done，than be raw the Ship juft as it were running aground，but fiere being time cnough yer to give a command，he made him at the Helm im－ mediarely pur clofe a Sccrloard añd fo cdge her oft，and prefently founding their depth，they found hardly three Fathom water，by which they more cleariy faw in how good time thisturn was given to the Ship，and the won－ derfulncfs of their Deliverance from 2 Danger that had The next day they cance．
The next day they came arhwart Cape Blance，which C p＝Bimme is very low fandy Land，and cxtreamly dangerous；for， for a matrer of four it cagucs into the Sca（acrofs ir） lie Panks of Sand which have a litele water over them； and here by fendirg out their Boas and Shallop to found， Froberved their deptts and fo kept clear of them． （as others call them）of $\mathrm{SE} A: n_{r}$ where they purpos＇d ann to refreth cheirfick Company．Thefe lacs are two in oumberth their fick Company．Thele lincs are two in numiece，and lic 22 Deg．and a half Sourh Lat．the Air of them is good（as many of the fick Pcople found no theix bencite ；but the Water very bad；for in one of them，what Water there is，is a mecer pool，and a filthy one soo，fulh of ugly Worms and Serpents；and char of the other，tho＇it be a running one，yet paling．atong by the Roors of cercain．Trees，which have a ftrong rank feens like Garlick almoft，contratts fuch a hogo from thence，that＇tis not to be drunk．Befides，they furpect－ ed it to have fome pernicious quality，for fome of their Men died here with a frange fivelling of their Bellics． which they could not atraibutc to any thing clic，but the drinking of this Water．
The Fruirs the lincs afforded were a fort of Cherry，Eruits grow． or 2 Fruir to，whish they gave that name for its re－ing ther． remblance to our Cherry in colour and refpect of the Stonc，butit difficid from them in thagesfor it was not round but oblong，and fomcthing suted abour，bow－ cver of a very pleafing and grarctul mitte．

They found allo Palmiro－Trecs，the Fruit of which was cxactly like a Coco，but no bigger than 2．Walnut； and a Fruit growing in Cods very like Beans，hoch as to the thing ir felf and the Cod whercin＇twas inclofed；but the Effects of them were not very pleafing，for they madetbofe that cat them evacuate borh ripwards and downwards． Another Fruit they mer with here，was the Prick－ pear，as the Sailors call them；it grows fomeching like an Artichoke；but lefs，and in the out－fidered，white with－ in，and compalsd abour with Pricklcs：I bcFruit grows samenr role hy thininnd．
upon the fide of the leaf, and is of fo good a cafte, that iectired, made hatte to their Boats and gor away, but hathey fay the Indice hardly affords any of a letter. The ving rowed aboin to the uluallanding-place, the came Bitds, and other Creatures, fund them out as fatt as they ripen, for they love them mightily, which our Scamen coud find by the marks thicy had Iefe of their cating ond hisd by the marks they had ler of the co be, judging what Fruits chicy Mall cat, and what they Inall Ier alone, when they lighe of thofe they are nor acquainted with: they look to fee whether the Birds or the Cattle have been beforchand with them or no at the fame ; if they have, they think they may fall ouboldly for chey conclude chey wou'd not cat it if 'rwas poifm, and what is good and healthfil for thofe Animals, they conclude is likewife fo for themflics. Eur this Rule may chance to deceive them, for is will by to menns follow, that that which does not kill a Horke or a Dog, Thall nor do a Man any harm; 'tis well en ugh known, - that fome Creacurcs have their peculiaritics on this kind, and whar's Meas or Thy fick on onc, is astaters poifon to 2 another. Theresandoubt, but as fome of our Vomits and Purges would kill a great many other Animals, in abundane of thofe thinost that are falutary and benelicial to them, Woud make fad work in our Boties, if not quite unhinge them. Befides, when one fecs a Fruit that fome Creatare has been nibbling at, who knows what cffects it has had, and how dear the Animal has paid for tafting ? So that if one can't make trials, a body had betrer ufe onc's Reafon and Judgment, than follow the condenct of the Brutes in this matrer.

Two Rocks
Adjoining to thefe IRands are two great Rocks, about which they light of great fore of young Ganne:s in their: Nefts, the brosh of which shey found did their fick Pecple fervice; as alfo the Purflane which they met with abour chofe Rocks, which boild and caten for a Saller about thofe Rocks, which boild and caten for a Saller, was'very grateful to their weak Sromachs, and renew'd was very frateful to their weak Stomachs, and rencw'd
2 languifhing Appcite. In thefe Illands are abundance rencmous Crcatures, as Adders, Scorpions, and reral other forts. The chicf of the Fowl they obfery were Parrots, and a kind of Phefants, bur much bigse than thofe with us. The water highs and falls licre about 5 or 6 foor, apd but onec in 22 hours, as ${ }^{\text {tis }}$ in all this Coalt, and in many other Parts of the UTCR-Iutics, as upon the Coaft of Peru and Ciniti, execpe where there are great Bays or Nidraughts, and there the Tides kecp their ordinary courfe of twice cvery 24 hours. In the loffer of the llands is a Core for a mall Sbip ro ride in, Land-lock'd, and hie may Moor her felf to the Trees on either fide ; so this they gave the rame of Palmit, Ifland, for the plenty is has of the larger for of thofe Trecs. All abour chis Coaft the Portuguj: kecp frict Watch and making P, and oltentimes (ur that Feat be not to be done, fand nicely upon their guard to prevent them. They make grear ufe of the [nilie:s for theie thievin furpoles, for they are gencrally zecar Maters of all the Arss of Treachery and Surprize, and hare their Canocs always: ready by them to carry them where any fuch work is to bedonc.

Sereral of our Enslifb Commanders have found this to their coft, and Admiral Canlifa parkicularly loft 80 Mcn by them, tenctice with his Boar, at the Illand of S.S:b.afiant, which was one (and not an inconfidcrable) ftep towards the overthrow of his Voyage. Sir Richard Harikins being aware of this, and the beft part of his Cornpany lying aftore, he had fiven them a particular charge not to neglect their Warch, but to kecp themfelves 2lways in 2 duc pofture of defence. And to rry whether his Orders werc obferv'd or no, as alfo to make them warchful from 2 more lively principle of fear for the time to come, himfelf, with a few Soldicis, camc over from the Ships, and landed ar a confaderable diftance from the place where the Booths were cretted for the company that was afthore. 'They march'd as filently along as they cou'd, and did their cndeavours to furprize aflore in all hafte, and march'd up to chem, as if they had been iuft come from the Ship on purpofe to a tiit hem. The Defendants told them, if they bad cone a litele fooner cheir ompany might have denc rhern iume iervice, but the aftion was now over, and the cacmy quite gone away. They faid the Indians (who thought: to furprize them) had afliulted their litele Camp with a wonderful cieal of fury; bu: finding them berser provided than the; expected, and hearing that the bhip had taken the alarm, they run away to their Cano's as fatt as they coud. And to put the Admiral out of all dutir tin: pave: that they were Indians, fome faid shey fave their Cano's, nf dafimen others their Bows and Arrow"; nay, there were chem tis that fwore they plainly law theis long fhagey harr, and the very paim upentheir skins. Neither dhe Sir R:bhard go about then to undecive them, bue lee then alore in the miftake, and left the fan $y$ of the long hair and painted skins t. wotk ifs utmoft cücts upon them, in making them wathfal arant the time wime fechangs thou't come in reaiity. Had the liland hat tie it reputation of being haunted, thele Men co desw.: have fancica Dcvils as Inciinus, and defribd che ir If ere and Tails, and flaming Eyes; 'ris an calic marer 1 i $r:$ Man when te is prepoficfsd, to fee all there lis:res with his Fyes which his difturbd Imagination daces, atit to deSeribe them to other Pcopic in great oden to
Some time after they were gone from thi wergetous place, and out at Sca, where it cond do roharmeorecal the Plor, Sir Richard, for the Jeft's ithe, toid them ow he had fery'd chem; but 'twas all one, the moft of then held in the fame opinion, and the ficture of the Indirns was fank fo decp inro their heads, and fo iively figurd there, thar all that could be fad cond ncitior them a grear deal of good, for ther were wonderfully $-2=\mathrm{ta}$. carefuland vigilane cuer afer, in all phecs where they wercobnoxious. The fick company was to well refrefit here, that there was but few of them that coutinucd to be foat their going away ; the whole time of their fiay was abouc a month, and from this place they ;ald to Cape Fio, and fo to Mhe G:and. They comemend the Harbour of this Inand, irs Bays, and excelicer Warer Bur as there are abundance of other frmaller Tilanus for ir is it felf 8 or to Lcazucs lonst that lic within it o there is one parriculatly, which for iss ferility and fiaceris
 This is Peopled, but all the other lie defert ; it affords Plantancs, lincs, Potatocs, Sugar-cancs and Hens, with Ward, furprizing many Ships when their Companics all which our company fored themfilves. them, bue by that time they were come within 40 Paces of them they were difcover'd, and all the well and the fick together came out to oppofe them, and fighe for their lives. Here were Men that had not ftirrid out of their Beds bur by the help of orhers for many months, that now bufticd and beftitr'd themelers; they con'd not move their dull S:orbutick Limbs before, but this Alarm pet Arcngth and Cpirits inro them; and the arprehenfion of the Indiens being come to knock them all o'th' head, fufpended their pains for the prefent. The other Party came upon them with a horrible noile; (as the Indiars alwizys do in their affuits) and thefe receird themas briskiy; bue having juft begun a Skimmif (in which there was no damiage done on cither fide) upon the report of 2 Gun from one of the Ships the aggreflors

As for Itlac Grand, they fay tis a mecr Wikiemefs, co- tha Ex-s. rerd to thick with Tress and Shrubs, that a Man can hardly find a place there, if he paffer, he is rot in danger of leavitg fome of his Skin behind him. Thefe Woocis are futl of wild beath coo, that are cone:nually rowling day and night; and there arc fomany diverfties of tones and voice, that 'tis a very difturbier mufiek to chem that lic ehereatonts. The greaseft curiolicy it affords are the delicate Shelis found upon the hore, like thofe of the Mother of Pearl, which arebroughr our of the Eaf-Indis; to make ilanding Cups; but theie are vaftly begond the others for fine narurai Works, infomuch that thes are commended by our Traveilers for fome of tbe greateft ratitics they cret fat.
From hence they fer fail for the Niageinarick Strcights, Sult for the in their way to which they rock a Pcrrugufe Shipladen Streigho. with C. Jitn: Meal and Sugars; fhe was bound for $A x$ gria, and there to be laden with Negroes for the River trace of of Plate, which is 2 mighy greas Trade and very Shers of piate much ufed. The Negroes are carricd from the bead of the River of Plate ro Pato/2 to work in the Whine; and ris a very forry Slave thar is not wortio chere s or 600 Pieces, every piece of 10 Rials; all which Mancy they pay and receive in Rials of Plate, for there is ro other current thereabouts.
About the heighth of the River of Rlate, and 50 Leagues from the Coaft, a violenr fiom orcricok them, and in thelic the * Caprain of dic other Ship took the ${ }^{*}$ nemen opportunity to flip away for Englond, and tiocreby ef was Tiration fectually fruttrated all the defign of the Voyage, and fie fime pe: laid them open to all thofe difafters thas aferwards be-like mazbefel them, as vill plainly appear in che followine relation. Sblated While this flom lafted, there were abundance of Fowl dimbs cant as large and big asSwans, that came hovering about the voyge. Ship, and as the Wind calm'd they fected themfelver in the Sea, and fod apon the fweepings of the Ship. Being cherefore defirous to sec twhiar they wete, they threws out 2 line and took, which one of thefe gaverous Fowl prefently feized, but fwallowing the bair was himafelf taरéz.

Hhhhh

A seefowle taken, but the Men that went to lay hold of him were foundly pad for their attempt, for the Birdlaid on fo faft and fo hard upon their Fingers, that they both let go their hold, and came off, ihewing rhcir hands fil black and bluc. After this manner they timid up leveral ochers, but were fored to faften a Cord about theit necks, and fo drew them up into the Ship, for they were : no ticrece and furious to be handled. They prow'd very pood Mear, tender, and of kindly nourimment; they were of ewo en'ours, fome whte, and others grey, there bak was more crooked than that of a Falcon; in eath Wing they hat threc joints, and borh Wings being extended so their thit aresch, from the extrenity of one to :har of the other was more thantwo firthom.
An manem
Huldiat on thers unf: fir the Sercights, in the Iati-Cosify we of leween $26 &+$ degres, they diticorcrid land, but were uterly ignorant what land it thoud be, for no Plat nor S d-Chart nate mention of any which lay in tiat a anner, and dione that heighth: "i was a gondly Champon Ccunry, and wen Pcople, as they law by the mabitules of Fires uron the Coaft, but they could wit iome near cnough en focik to any of them, wanting their Pume to dicoee the thore before thern. It had abundane of frefl Rivers, and the out-1hoots of them difeolourd the Sea in many places as they palsid akong.
The Sircights of Mratellim are well known, and have betn defertbid alecady, uron which account there needs un inferting of eheir relation of them; and to alto of the pexp: in llands, which are jut by : But as thofe King doms are intited by mott Scataring-men that come this way, r, So did our Company make a Itep thitber too for the Same refrechament.
This Fowldwells and feeds in both Elements; at Sca it lises upon Finh, and at Land upon Grafs and Weeds ain Gooiedoes, which it refembles in its proportions, tho it has no feathers, but only a fort of down all over the bolly: but Nature, that has not furnithd them for Al) ir:s, has in fone necafure made it up by fwift running, and they are able to move that way as falt as moft Men. They hartour themelves under-ground in deep Burrows, in which eliey hatch their young, and the bigger mand is all over undermind by them, exeept one Valley only which they have referid to feed in. The Seamen here had one day a Colemn bout of Penguin-hurting; their way was to caft themielvesinto a Ring, and io encloning the Fowl, with Sticks and S:aves to knock them down. They are nor to be taken withour fome fuch Scratagem as whis, and the affiftance of a preat many hands; nay, they open Fiedd, and then there was no litsle fport in the following of them, for the ground being all hollow'd and undermind, the purfuers in the middle of their running flipt into thofe holes: one perhaps leapd to cicape a hole sefore hiun, and lighring upon talie ground rumbled into a worfe; another lifring up his Arm to celiver ablow upon 2 l'erguins head, funk up to the Arm-pirs, and had need of help to draw him our, however they made a bitter daughter amongt the poor Priguins, and they were fo afraid of coming into their hands, that they woud rim down Rocks and Precipices, or any thing to avoid them; a Man woud have thought they hou d bave kill'd themfelves with fuch falls, bue yer thev fay tirey. woud prefendije run away to the Sea, and be as brisk and lively as ever. They are good Meat cither ronited, bak'd or boil'd, but beft the former way, tho Which way focyer they are dreffed chey m "the Scamen pouder them up in Hogiteads.
The fame place afforded them good ftore of Galls and Gaerets too, tho not fo plentifully as Penguins; but They $n \mathrm{~mm}$ end the Gults for moft delicate Food. The Duse fogere Meat. They had one part of the linand peculiar rou. and taken up only by chemedves, which was the higheft 1 ? 11 in it, and more than 2 Musket-morover. The Art and Order which thefe Crearures hew d in builaing and dilyofing their Nefts was plainly wonderful; chey are made of the leif fame Mould that all the hul into 2 coñyenient Figure, they ferch water in their beaks and moiften it, till they bave made a fort of Clay on't that they can manage. They are as regularly made as if done by Mathermatical Riles, being a kind of Cylinders, the top and botom abeur a foor over, and the heigh: 8 inches. They are fo exact in this matter, that vou can's find any Nefts that differ from one another in any of their dimenforss, and as they are all of the fame bale, and beighth and depth of the infide hollow, to they are placi at the fame diftanccs from onfe another, and their pofitions are fo arificial, that 2 Man word be

The antrot Blectrof
anacisits.
puzaled to find a place for another Neft to fland in, cx epting only thoic little paths that are left hetween the rows tor the Ducks themfelves wo pafs aiong. And had fescral Rirooms beon here to fweep all abont the Hitl, it cond nor lie more neat and cean than irs kepe by theic Birds; there was not a ftick, a Itraw, a feather, a bitot dung to be. leen any where, and the Niets themfle were as clean in the inlide as thole liete Walks and Arenies wi re mine outfide.
Another burt of Animals that gave them fine diver-sea: Gunhere were the Seals orsea-: we, as fome wall ciem One of the Mariners be chance fried a compuy uf dece lyieg atleer, with their belhes tonting agamf the Sum and went to call the rett of hencompdin, who thenghe to ftal upen them unawate and furprize thea, but thefe Creanmes alwags provis: aganit that, and fer a Wiech. One of the number thats bentanel whate the lane risere others necp, and at the deproach of any danger gile versatut then wamens; and by the y yitanee of theirs, it came ${ }^{n}$ ze to pals that the Seamen were diappoined of that fpor: for as fion as ever the Sentinel dicoocrid them, he be up a great howi and watid the reft, and they all prefencly fella runmug twards the Sea. Some of the Mariners got bewixt then and the water, thinking to cut off theis recreat, but the Scels run aganft them with fuch a force that they thmbled them all down; and tho' they dialt a few blow's amongit them, yet they could not fop them in their arect, a Sword won't pierec theirghick Hides. and to cire them a blow with a fick is to benturpat Rock, theres no way fort bat to frike them uior the Snout, if pollitle, which makes them fall down dead pretently.

This Fifh is like a Calf, it has 4 legs, but thofe not 0 .fip above a fan long cach, and the skin of is is very well $\%$ the set known in Earcefefor its manifold ufes, bur there spen Pinguin liland, our suthors fays were different fiom all they crer law, not only that they were of a fize fo much larger, but in their foreparts had to much refemblanee to a hon, their hair very long and nhaggy, and betides they had Multachoes
The troublefomnefs of failing through the Napitenich Stringes, is icry well known to all thote that have made che experiment; there are lo many turnitigs and windug. To many Nooks, Points and Reaches, thas the wind thas ferves ar chis place will perhaps be contrary to a Man 2 few Leagucs otf, tho is kecps fill in the fame Roint Tbis was one caufe why they made but a flow progrefs, they were driven to and fro by the Winds, and having gor a confiderable way our of a Harbour, were many rimes forc'd back into the fame again.
While they thus loiter d up and down in the Streigits they mended their Ships, and repaired as well as they con'd the damages done to their Casks by thofe peftilent Worms which the Spanicrds call Brom.t, and the Eigi:ifh Arsers: Thefe Vermin are a fad piague to Ships, and Ti: worm when once they have work'd chemfclves into the Planks, Bremeretm: will bring all in danger in a lirtle cime uniefs the Ships ce: hepla be theathed. They cmer ar firft no bigger than a needle, but by degrees grow to be as large as a Man's litilefinger, and the Planks look like Honey-combs by the holes they cat in them: In order to prevent this inconvenience, Sir Richard propoles his Father Sir Fotn Hamkin's mechod of theathing Ships, which he affirms to be vaftly berter than all the ways formerly ufed, and indeed fufficient for the pirpole, which noric of chem can be allowed ro be; and that is, before che Sheathing-board is nail'd on, to fmear it all over with Tar half a finger freat writh in chick, and upon the Tar to lay another Stratum of hair sbiph fuch as the White-Limers ufe, as thick as che former, over all which the fleaching is laid and nail'd on Eaft, the nails ftanding very clofe to each other, the thicker and clofer the berter. Experience has prov'd that this way docs effectually defend a Ship againtt thefe Worms; bur befides, it has this farther ro recommend it, that tis of all other the cheapeft. It has been the cornmon Opinion, that thefe Worms arc bred in the freeh Water, and carry'd along with their ftreams into the Sca; but Ex perience has raughe the concrary, and affurss us thas they breed in the great Ocean, and that in all Climates, but efpecially near the Equinoctial.

In patting along the Strighers they Eaw bixt very ferw forts of Animals, and fewce of the humane kind; fom of their Habitations indeed they faw fometimes at a di ftance, but thefe Pcople come down and live by the Sed Coafts in the Summer-time, and then retire up into the Councry, where they have warmer helters, when dhe Winter forms come upon them.
The Tree which affords that Bark calld by fome Cormere tex Winteranus they met with here, the laf is of a winith B : green, and in form nor unlike the $A f_{p}$ eni ; the Fruit, which is green, grows in clufters, each Betry being of ine bignets of 2 pepper-corn, and containing within it 4 or 5 grains rwice as Big as a Muftard-feed, and being broken is white within-fide, and has a hor biting tafte like Pepper, but is rathermore. afflictive to the Tongue than that. The Bark is a kind of univerfal Spice, for it has the taife of all rogethef; 'tis very comfortable to the Stomach, and preferrd by many to any Spice whatfocrer.

They found likewite atundance of Mufles, which were very good, and no fmall part of their refechnnent here ; they had moftof them fome Pearl in them, but not very large, nod fhewing any thing of that brigh Orient colour which is fo defirable in them, and is found in the Oytter-Pearl! Luts fome Murcles had no lefs than 20 or 30 Pcarl in thicm, which lay difpers'd up and down in feveral parts of the Firh.
Twas with sto little trouble that our Ship, after fo long labouring up and down in the Streiphts of Marellan pot het felf frec, and came to have the open profpect of the grear South Sca; , bowever being out, they thapd their Courfe for the Ithand of Mocta, pafing along by Belinian, which was then in the hands of the Spamicrds, bur afterwards (rogether with the Conieption) taken from them by the Indians, and were the two principai places they had in thas Kingdom, and hoth Ports.
Baldimin ftands in $4^{\circ}$ degr. S.L. in 2 fine woody Country; it has a plealant River, and navigable, fothat a Ship of good burthen may go up as high as the City.
Some degrees to the Southward, belore one concs to Baldinia, lics the Illand Chutc, which accoriding to the Information given by fome Spaniards, is not cailily to be diffinguifid from the Main, and it.lies fo, that thofe that pals by it are ape to think tis a part of the Main; it's rich in Gold, and therefore inhabited by the spariards, who as certainly flock to all fuch place, as Eagics and Vulcurss do about thoff that are full of Carrion. eld Company made no difcorery of this Mand, but tede on their Courre and came to the lland of Macims. It ies inn 39 degr. Si L and is abour fome 4 Leagues over ir is moitly a high mountainous ground, but round an bort the foor of it, at half a Leaguic diftance from thic Ihore, it's Champion, well cultivated, and ftock'd with Inlibitants. They had fome Commerce here with the People, bur forcid to be yery wary, and always to ftand upon their guard while they did fo, for thefe. Indians arc wonderfully fly and fubtle, and fuch mortal Encmics to the Spaniards, that they are jealous of 211 Foreigners upon their account, and fufpect them to be cither Spaniords themfelves, or to come ampngt them with fuch defignis, and for fuich purpofes as the speniztrds did. Twas for this rexton that they deale fo inhofpitably with Sir Frencin Dreke, and deceivd him with fo fine a trcachery; the refuic of which was the killing of wounding all his Company, and grievoufy hurting Emaciff into the bargain. He had fewer wounds than any of his Men but yet be had three, and two of them upon his Head. Sir Richerd Havpins, whio had this example before his Eyes, cnideavourd to manage matrers in with chem as not to be made a Second himelelf, bur yet they had very near been too hard for him with aill his care and yighlance, and he was forcid to deal roughly with fome of them ro prevent their doing him 2 mifchief.
Thefe Indiens, fot their Manners and Cutoms, are pretty near akin to them of Arawka, which bave the reputation of the moft valiant and hardy Soldiers in al minh :a thas part of the Indics : They are all Cloathid in Woollen, their Caffocks aric made like a Sack, fquarc, with two holes for the Arms, and one for the Head, bar hlay are all open below, withour Lining, or any other $A \pi$ to be found in che compofure of them. Theit Hoates are built toond like our Pigeon-houfes, with a fort of a Funnel (which ferres for a Chimney) sat the top to difcharge the fmoke. As for the Pecople them relves, they are generally tall, ftrong mad well mate, of very grear agility and dexteriry in the ufe of their Arms, or any fort of Exercifes; they have much betier Countenances than moft of the Indiams in ocher Parts, and thofe becter Faces in them areche Companions of much betrer Senfe, and more Ingenuity too." They uife the common Weapons of the barbarous Countries, but nor after the common and barbarous manner, for chey are skilful and raliant Soldiers, and capable of makirg an Adverfary tremble that has to do with chem. The Iland affords excellent Stecp, but the Pcople were not willing to pan with any of them, fo tha: they only juft tatted the Mutton to be extraordinary good; but could not purchate any fore of it upon any rerms whatfoever. There's no doubr, but thofe that had come hither before fuch things as Spenizerds were krown amongit thefe Peopls, migh:
, have found very good Enterraitiment; for as the Coun-michore of
 be naturally fo ill-difpoftion'd as they wew'd themfelves of therediom. to be, bur rather to be fourd by ill alage, and provok'd into fuch a ficree and froward remper by the Ciucitics and Barbarities that have teen pradtis'd amonef them. As fir our Mcn, they plainly faw thate there nis no good to be done here, nor no way to periwade the lodicms into a good opinion of them, for the gade great fres upon che ifland and upon the Main, which was cvidently to give notice to one another to be ina readinefs cither to refift or attempe fomething, and cither way was proof enough that they defign'd to have nothing to do with them; and therefore they derermind noc to feend any morcrime a courting of their Friend fhip, bur having well refrefhit themfelyes fer fail.
On the $S$. W. of this llland lics a grear ledge of Rocks itce which are tery dangerous, and 'tis geo', to be careful how oive approaches with a Ship to the liand on any fide. Over againt this Iland of Mneim lies the City imporiai Imperial, 3 nor to leagues op in the Country $;$ and alt along the Sca-coaf from Baldinia to 30 degr. the the dians have in a manner rid their hands of the sueri.irds.
They held their Courfe now for land S: , ary, which st. Mreit lies in 37 degr. 40 min. which istittle and how, but fer tile and well peopied. Some 10 l eagues to the Niorthvard of this Inand lies the City Caticepin", whith has a very good Port; from whence they Contad along tall they came in 33 degr .40 min . abour whish licin: ict the Inands of Funt Fernender, betwixt 60 and jo Levines from the thore; known for the plente of Fuht shey yided, and the fond refrefimene to le had there. Sir $R i$ ise is Herhins's defign was nor to difoover himfelf upon this Coaft till he was gor paft the grear Port of 1 imne, and there were many weighey Reafors thac indimid him thereto; but his head-ttrong company wou!d nes ticat of this; their minds were fet upon Spoil and llunder, and and they were for raking the firft they met wish, whethe: it exposd them to the Spanierds notice or no. To com- Pervers ply with their humour, therefore he hald the Conte erimporvo aboard, and difooverd that Evening the Pare of Verna-d werl: 2 :ire which ferves thic City of So Fon Razino form em:
 OLeagues into the Country; in this Habbora they found ${ }_{4}$ Ships, who no looner faw shem coming, bit wowe hat were aboard them turnd in, and ruanatiote with that littic they con'd lave, leaving them the rett, and the rifting allo of all the Store-houfes upon the fiore. The Pillage of chefe Ships was more for the Edily than the Pocker, conffing of Wines, Hens, Becf, Bacon, Wax, Tallow, and other Commodities; Fefides which, fhere wsce Planks, Spars and Timber, for Lyma and the Vallers, which is a very rich Trade, fince they have to Tinnter bur what is broughe from orher places. Bus noother Ship that came into the fame Port while they were rhere, fupplied the defects of the others, and brought them a pretry good quancity of Gold which the had brought from Ballinie, Conception, and fome of thofe places : and chen the Owners of the other Ships coming to terms with them, for the redemprion of the bett pars of their Goods there was Moncy corning in that may allo, to chat whar with ane and the other the booty was nor inconfiderable; but then a pars of the Eatables, and other ulful Commodities, weite referved for the nfe of their own Ship, fo that apon all thefe accounts they were as well furnifid with Provinoms; and orher Neceflaries, as at cheir fift fering ous of England.
This Harbour of Walpritia is good for all Winds, cx-Pifariod cept thofe that blow from fome poin: to the North, for handeur: is sars up S.& by W'. and S.S. W. bue 'ris to be confider'd rhat it has abundance of foul ground. A League to the Southward, or better, before a Man dícurer this Bay, there lies. 2 great Rock or fmail liland near the fhore, under which a Ship may ride: It is a rood mark, and a fure fign of the Port; and when the Bay is difcover'd, a Man mutf give a good bitth to the Harbour, for there are dangerous Rocks lying a good dittance off. Therc is neither in this Port, nos any other phace sill you come to Guayoquill, any thing of flux or tellux ; whici Gurgaquill is in 3 degr.S. L.
Abour io Leagues to the Northward of this Harbour gamerna is the Bay of Quintere, which is vary open, and afords good anchoring. Here 'rwas that Admiral Candifh was berray'd, and leveral of his Men murderd and raken by the treachery of a raleally Spenierd, whom he had brougnt our of the midft of a hundred Deaths at the Megcllanick Sireigbts, and maineainid, 'rogecher with his Company, who muft all haveftary'd elfe) till he bad fet himdown heft.
From Vilpariño they fuild to Coquinbo, which is in Conginato an degr. 'This is on the eft Harbours in the whole $S$ adminbie so degr.. This is one of the ect Harbours in the whole S. parm

744

Sca, is is Land-lock'd for all Winds, and capable of holding a great many Ships; burt che ordinary place where Shipstade and unlade is between a Rock and the Main, on the Weft-fide, abour half a League up within, she entrance of the Yort, which lies S. &SS. by E. In the Diration 10 Country directly over the Port is a round piked Hill tike a Sugar-loaf, and before the entrance on the S. point of the Port, coming in out of the Sea, is a great Rock,-a goed birnh from the thore; and thefe are the beft marks to know the Port by, . . While Bathinia and Arawea were in Pace, and free from the troubles and combuftions of the War, that is, before the raking Spaniards got thither, the molt plenty of Gold was reckoned to te there, and perhaps is fill ; howerer, the Mines: of Coguiinbo have lince got the xeputation. But this Country is not only wy nt co. ry to P Muncs of Gold but Copper allo, which they cax guni. Ite cequi, bo as feldom rains but a fhower proves a golden Guld. once to them, for the violence of the water'wathes the Gold off from the Mountains, and befides furnifhes them with water for the ferfing their Engines a work. It a sorts a great deal of Linen and Woollen Cloth, and grear ftere of Indi, Manilss, with which they furnith orthex Parts, but 'tis t'ery courfe Stuff. They have no Iron'mor Pewter, as alio no Silk nor finctinens, and therefore alt thefe are mightily eftecm'd; and fo are all Haberdafhers Ware, Edsc-tools, Arms and Ammunition, and the like.
From the Port of Corquinvo they map'd their courfe for Arapes, one of the finelt Countries' that the Sun nines upon, for the temperate and wholfome Conftitution of the Climate, and the abundance of all things.fervictable in life, cither for Pleafure or Necefiry. The
An c"c.ll inco of Gold and Copper are innumerable, and an irianince of Provifions are fo plentiful, that the meaneft of the lihabitanes have their Houfes always furnithed with Bread, Wine, Flen and Fruiss; and out of their Soores, or rather Superfluities, they rapply the neigh bowring Parss. 'The Spinima's brought in the Country at Fruise and firft Eurcpean Horles, Oxen and Giats, which took fo Animath. twell, and multiplied to that degree, that they are to be feen thoufands of them together: in Droves and Herds, wild, and without any Owner; bur befides rhefe; there are thofe which arc bred in the Country, and common to moft Parts of America, in valt numbers too. Amongit thafe kinds of Animals, the greateft curiofity is the Cbitrchill.r, a little Beaft like a Squirel, but grey, and its Fars the mon fuft and delicate of any thats known, for which reafen all the Princes and Noblemen are very fond of them. and buy them almont at any rates. They have all the Fruits that are to be found in Spain, cxcept Plumbs, Cherries and Almonds, befides thofe that are of the peculiar growth of the Country; but as for them three forts of 'ruites', our Travellers-tell' us they never cbferv'd any of them in thefe Pants of the Indics. Their

Gold strcy gor tivo feveral ways, one by walhing away Fold on: of the Earth and Drofs from it in great Trays of Wood and from the which requires no litule Air and Care, : and the other by mountains drawing it out of the Mines, which is much more labo and Rivers. rious; not only in the procuring the very Ore, bac fe-parating and putifying the Gold afterwards. Anocher Comundity they have allo, which fome Europenns have made almolt as valuable as Gold, which is very sine and large Bezoar Stones; thofe they have great plemy of for the Aninals that afford them are far from being rarities amongt"them. The People'are very Induitrious Qualinice of the yeople, and Ingenious, of great ftrength and invincible Courage This is fufficiently prov'd by their fuftaining a violent War againit the Spaniards for above 40 Years rogether and maintaning their Liberty inviolare ar laft, for the Sponiards could not by any means conquer and enilave then as they had done by the reft of the Americins; and: tis certain thar they never did meet with fo vigorous an oppotion, and fo rough a treatment any where take It all over the LTC-Indies', as they did here. They fight either on foot or a Horfeback : thofe that ufe Hor Ces, are arm'd with no fouter A fonoir than a Beafts Hide, which they put on apon their own backs juft as it comes off from the orhers, green and raw, with out any facther drefing, or preparation $;$ and if it be wet at firft, chey wear is till its dry, if foft and pliable, the heat of their Bodies will make it hard and fiff; and. Jit Iike a Coat of Mail. Norwithftanding one Aratocan, in this leathern Suce, lee him have but"A Lance Cinuge of che drate

Ways to be oric of the forwardeft to underake or ences: prize any thing that tended ro the frecing his Countrfrom the Tyranny of dich cruel enemies; bur ar hat, twas his hard fortune to fall into their hands, and thes very well knowing hin, and his parricular fplecn againtr them, refolved to prevent his fighting for the fucure, and for that end cut off both his hands. They were fure now indeed never to fall inte his, bur, he had a pair of fumps yet left to plague them, and a heare as full of courage as ever; and thercfore to have made themfelyes Cecure, they ought not to have crifted this bold $A_{\text {ratican }}$ with a Head upon bis mouiders, bur bave takenthar ino their keeping too as well as his hands. However it was, whether by policy te made hits own efape, or the A Sing panimerds defpifing his (now) imporent rage and fury, font Coptain him back into his own Counrry, yet home he came, and inftead of being baulk'd at fuch a lofs ks. helhad fuftainid or fitting fill as a Man that had no more to do with the concerns of War, he beftirr'd himfelf more vigoroully than ever, aggravating the barbarities commitredby th paniards, and doing all that cou'd be to provoke his Countrymen to a fevere revenge; and they who needed but litele perfwafion to fighr with the Spaniards, were now incens"d to the higheft degree to fee one' of their principal Leaders shus ferv'd by them. In the firceced ing Battel this brave Arapcan, who cou'd not fighe, dif charg d the Office of a Gencrial; he was continually gohearten the Soldiers, and to another, to encourage and hearten the Soldiers, and having loaded his trou tump with bundics of Arrows, he fupplied thofe dhat wanted with frell; as faft as they fpent upon the Enemy- In a word, whar with his Prefence and. Soldier-like exhortations, he did as much fervice withour ftriking a ftrokc, as a part of the Army did with fighting ; and tho the particulars of the Batule are not told us, yer there's.tica on to believe the Spaniards had caufe to wifh ther had aken his Head the fame time they did bis Hands:
As for the Town of Aramoca, is ftands in a great large Arimen Bay, in about iS degr. S. L. before you come ro it, 2 Lcague to the Southward of the Town and Roadits a high round Hill, much higher chan the reft of the land of the Bay about the Town. When our Ship came to an Anchor here, they met with a Bark laden with Finh rom Marnorenc, 2 high Hcad-land berween 24 and 25 degr. S. L. whether the Eoatsordinarily go a fiffing cve y Year. Our Englifh were much beholding to thece The ration Moormorenians 5 Stis trive they were their Captives, bur reound he hey complimented them excedingly, and gave them Nindocfito parcicular marks of their friendhip and eftecion: They the ked call'd the Englifomen Brothers, and wicre themelves the reatef Brutes in the World, and had hardly any thing Mcn except the thape; they wcre, to fpeak properly, rather Fifh thain Mcn, for they liv'd as natumally hn or onder the water, as in the.open air, and wou'd dive as well as if they had beenfpawnd in that Elemenc: Their Country is barren, and affords rhem litule or to fortenance, and therefore they go into the water for 5 whice if they meer with a live Fith they (wallow him preferidy, and ear without the Cercmonies of Sawce and Drefing, as other Sharks do. The Spaniards make their Markees The Spesi f them, and ufe chem as they would Otress in the wa- ird kintin ter to catch Fifh, or Affes upot the Land to carry Burdens: they give them neither Food nor Wages, bur leave them to inift for themfelves; their other Slaves. they ufe Iike Men, in refpect of the Body, but thefe they ule like Beafts, taking care neither for Body nor Soul. But one A fir in woud nor expect much care for the Souls of Menfrom fruter uch, one of whofe Intructors of a Town of Indians, rad no more to teach them than this, To fay per figning entir cruces ; a profound Doctor, and who ought ro have carn'd Grammar along with hise Catechize.
From the Town before-mentiond, they continud ${ }^{2} y$ of $p$ in cheir courfe along the Coat titt they came athuait the Baygof Pifor "which lies in Is degr. 15 min. SiL affer wide being clear of Cape Sangatesin with its Thand Cpe ofsem bey Anchor'd two days ath wrart of chilons Bur now the gite Vengeance they had pull'd down upontheir heads by fail ing upor thefe Coafts began to purfue them, a formidable Armadotwas riggd out and in queft of them: Ad vice had been given by Sea and Land, and the Viceroy of Pere had bad more than fufficient Informarion thar uch Enemies were beacing abour upon the Coaft. In order thercforeto put an end to their Piracies, he fittod $S p$ min A order thereforeto put anend to their Piracies, he fitted mando conte out 6. Warlike Ships, furnifhd with 2000 Men, and all other Neceffarics, under the command of one of his Relations ; and our Shiphad gone but a litele way from the Port of clitico before he difcover'd them. The Spa niards and they being in fighr of one another, great preparations were made of both fides for a fighr, but the Wind inerposid, and fought fo well onour Mens behalf, Chap. X, Sir Richard Hawkins's Voyaze into tie Soutt Jea.

that the unweildy Ships of the Spaniards came off with Inand to Pathama they keep the ortinaty regular Courfe. broken Malts and thatterd Tackling by the bargain. The Admimal fappr har Main-maft afunder, and fo be-Thair ships.

San to lagg a-ftern, and with him two ocher Ships. The Vie-Admiral Splic her Main- Gail, and the Rcar-Admiral crack'd her Main-yard, and onc onily of the Armado (that was gotten to the Windward of them, and had none of thefe aftictions) was as leifure io fight, but the had no flomach to it, and durf not begin the Actack: Thus they lay fora whole day viewing onc another; but as uight canze on, Sir Richard begari to confult with his Officers what courfe was beft to take, they were in a manner furrounded, for the $S_{i n}$ inifh Admiral, with two more, were a-tern of chem, the Rear-Admiral sight a-head, the Vicc-Admiral to the lcoward, and one upon a-head, the Vicc-Admiral to the lcoward, and one uron miany debarcs, 'twas concluded that they thou'd bear up Defore the Wind, and cndeavour to maine their ceape betwen the Admiral and Vice-Admiral, which they according iy pat in excution (before the Moon was up) and very happily perform'd, ilhaping their courfe for che Day of affacames; where they intended to take in Necelfaries, and to purfuc rheir Voyage. Inftead of bcing punilh'd by the Spanicids for what they had already done, they ware now going on to do more, and an opportunicy . fhortly cfferd ic iclf, which was a good Ship coming in their way abour so Leagues to the Northward of Lyma, and in fight of the Town of Mingen; fie was laden with Whear, Sugar, Cordovan Skins, and Micle de Canas, of all which they took what they bad a mind to, and fo burxt her, bur the company they fer afhore.
Ir's ftrange to fee with how few Men they'll manage a Siling with SW Men in the Soutb-the South-

Sen, and th Ser, and the rafons of it. Ship, in the Jourth Sea, for in inhis Prize, which was abovc 1o. Cun, there werc. but 8 Men, and they don's ule to bectow above 14 or If in a nore thanthar, tris credibly y reopred d that Shlip hasbeca faild from Guavequilt to Lima, which is above 200 Leagucs, by 14 Men only, and yer dece toaden too. But then the butionects is, they are forc'd to gain their Voyage by curning to Wind wards, which is ste gracect toil nad navery the Marinecs havec, and theyy fail act a very fow ratc in all thefc forrof Yoyages, iufomuch chas they arc buit they are precty fecruce. .nit that Sea from Storms and have afurance of a neverfailing Breeze, which is the reafon that every $S$ caman frains bimfelf to the utcermoft to do the work of f wo Men.
They held on their courfic till they came thwart. the Port of Malabigo, which is in $7 \mathrm{degr.S}$. L. In all this Coaft the curxent runs with a very great force; but never obferving any ftated Courfe, excepr that fomerimes is runs along the Coaft to the Southward, and at other times to the Northward. As for inftance, at this time the Courfe of: it was to the Northward, and it fored chem So violently to the Landwards, that without efpecial Providence calnuing the Wind; they had there had a miierable end put to their Voyage. 'Twas about the Poinr of $A g u l$ a that they were in this imminent danger (which diey note thus particularly, that others may be aware of the (ame when they come chereabouts.). Thware of this Tointlie two Defert Illands called nlltas de Lolios, for the multitudes of Seals that haunt the fhore; in the bigger of them is yery good and fecure Harbour, and chey both lic in $6 \mathrm{dcgr}, 30 \mathrm{~min}$. S. L. or near thercabours.

After this they concinued their Courfe along the fhore and came athwart rhe River of Guayaquill, this has rwo Inands in the mourth of ir, the Sourherly and biggeft call'd Puma, in 3 degr. S. L. and the Northerly calld Smima Chira. Puma is inhabited, and 'tis here that the Spaniards build cheir principalShips, becaufe of the vait quancities of Timber hereabouts; for from this River, both Lima, and all the Valleys, are furnith'd wish Timber, and they have nonc but what is brought from hence or from Chitio By this River alfo paffes all the chief Trade of the Kingdom of Quito; ir's Navigable feveral Lcagues into the land, and is all along well-ftock'd with "Tiniber. 'The water of is is found by expericnce to be good for all aches of the Boncs, and for the Srone and Srangury; the reafon of "wich, fome will ferch from the Vertues of the Sarlaparilla, with which 'tis impreg natcd, all the Banks and Low-lands adjoining being aBundandy replenifh'd therewith, but how wifely or truly the Philolophers ana Phyficians muft judge. Another thing the River affords, which ten to one cures all diftenipers if a Man happens to light on'r, and that's a very fierce and ravenous Alligaror; many poor Indians and Spaniards have had their Bones cruftid by theic, and they are fo numerous too, that shey are feen here in whole inoals together, as Fifh are in other Rivers.
In Puma the Tide rifes 15 or 16 foor, and from this

Some 5 or 6 Leagues to the Northward of loma is' Pmea de Semn Eicna, under which is good Anchorirg, and very clean ground. Haviag parsid thi Poiat, they madeche inand cte P/ater in $=$ degr. and Purtro Fcio in 2 derr. 10 min. and Cape t'aphers which lic, diecetly under che Equinoctial. Sume 3 L Leasues to the Wettward of this Cape liss a heap of lllands, callid liy the spmant: rims do ios Cchitpertos, which are defore, and alford no manner of refrehment. Erom Cape Paifans they directed their Courfe to Cape S:. Framijer, which is plac' $\pm$ in i degr. N. L. 'cis renarkalle canough roo ont: fior irs hcighth, bur being all cover'! with Iree, as is alfo th: I amt uver the Cape, and all the Coatt firm hence to thminn. From the Magcllanick Strciplits to this Cate St. Finncifco, in all the Coant from Flicadland to Headiand. the Courfes lie betwixs the N. \& N. by W. and ivnerimes more W. sho' that bue feldom. It's a beld Crait, and ruc listle fubject to ful Weather, or alteration of Winds, for the Brecze (which is here the Sourherly $V$ Vind) 'blows conimally from Valpeizo ro Cape S: Firncifor, extept it be a great chance indecd.
The Bay of ifacimos (which they had proposid so come to) lies about 7 Leagues from the Cape; in the midway, fome Lengues from the note, you naecr with a a Bank of Sand, to avoid which, fome care nualt be ra$\mathrm{Fen}_{2}$ for in Sereral parts of it there's ber Ineev Vater. This Eny appars like an Inand, and in icg! Springs'ts believ'd that the Sea goes quite round abcit it." To the Eantwardir has a high fandy Clif, and in the madft of the Bay, a fair Birth from the thore, lies a big black Rock abore water, from which to the fand Cliff is a drown'd Marfly ground, and a River which is b:oad, but has no depa. The Bay of fiscome is in 1 deg.N.L. the faral place in which the Voyage was termanated, and all thicer defigns ruin'd. But for a clear account how this came abour we muft know, Thar atec Sia Richerditempins, with his Ship and. Pinnace, had gor thro the Armado, they being difappointed of cheir hopes, returnd back again to Lime; bue here th $\because$ were inult miiferably infolted and mock'd for their fruit fo topedition. The Womein, to abufe them the more feribibly, put on Swords, and rook Firc-Arms in their hants, and demanded of the Viceroy that they miphe be wifpat hid to fight with the Englift Ship. This weas to near the heares of thefe gallant Soldices, and belides pro ok'd the Viccroy fo far, that he commanded the: Armado forth again, making theniftronger than they wore before; fo that chefe butic Golips were the casfe of ali the mifchicf, if they could bur have lield their Tonguis, auid been contented to have fate down with the difgrace as well as the Man, (who were more concerned in is than they) our Eatifh might have preleciv'd theirSh:pand their Liberty; bur chey muft be palfing their Jefts upon the Soldicrs, and putring Swords by their fides forfooth, as if they knew how to manage them as well as Ladles, Pokers and Firc-pans, their own proper weapons. They were very angry no Englifh Prifoners were brought home, (which we miuf fuppofe they expecied) and therefore wou'd not, or cou'd not be quies, sill they had fens the Armado abroad again to ger fome. VVell ; it was they fee the in the Bay of Atacames chat our l'cople firft fipied the cunc- Skanijp Fkece my approaching, and as foon as they knew who they were, they gricfs ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{d}$ withour much trouble whar they came for. The Mariners were all in sencral very uppif upon this Occafion; there was nothing but hectoring voic and and bonncing among it them, and no noife cou'd be heard mineftitic bur the Proclamations of the great Actions hey wou'd Seanita do. One promis'd to cur down the Admiral's Main-yard, another to take his Flag; and the Gunner, for his part engaged, that with the very firtt tire of hor he would lay one of chem in the Suds.. Ochers wilth they had never come out of their Country to be fo difaraced, becaufe Sir Ricliard Hantins made fome demur abour tighsing this Ampado, to well provided as it was, and io mech fuperiour in number. Duc as commonly is happans) thefe very bluttering Pcople were as much cool'd when they came to the trial; they did litrie or nothing of cha many mighty things they had talkd of and the Gunner; for his pare, was like a Man without life and foul. Butchere were flarew'd fufpicions of his fillentefer and treathery; and if the were nor a Villain, he was the cunct. Likeft to one that ever food in fucha a Pof, for all his Lumplements were our of order, fooild and not fir for uif ; and he was cicher fuch a Coward, or fo greir a Rafcal, that he himfelf itcod as ufelefs as at prear inany of his Tools. Notwithtanding this, the foght was long and redious, and (there being fome goge hartse and diliecne bands on both fides) brill and fluap 100 ; they fought, and then breathid, as is were by con!cor, and then fell to it again, and held it ar this race for three days, and almoft all the nighrs too. The Spaniards, for the moft part of that time, kepr pouring int the great and fmall Shot, which could not be anfwered to watmly by the Englifb, as wanting both matcrials and hiands to manage it. But they werefo civil too, as cver now and then to call upon the $E$ ntitif to furrender, promifing them good Quarcer uponıthar condition; and this she company were fond of fubmisting to, and importun'd Sir Richard Hapkins to take pity of cheir diftrefled Cale, and not make them all Sacrifices or Slaves to the Spaniards, whofe firy twas, inpofible for them now to efcape. Bur this thought of yiclding (tho' of a fingle Ship to a whole Armado) won'd nor down with him, and thercfore he commanded them all to their refpective Stations again ; yet he was now fo wounded and weak himecelf, chat hic had little reafon to expect to 'fee the iffue of the matrer, and was befides obliged to undertake the difcharge of the hazardous and laborious Office of a Gunner. In fort, they maintain'd the fighe till the 3 d day in the Afrernoon, and then is appeard to be impoffible to do to any longer, for all thic Sails were torn, the Mafts flatererd, the Pumps fhos to pieces, the Ship all over mangled, with the beft parc of the Men kill'd, and 7 or 8 foot of water Enctith yed, in the Hold. Bcing therefore in this finking condition, Tre was no carther time to difpute whetact the span rads Offer fhou'd be accepted or no ; and thercfore Sir Richard order'd a certain Spanif Pilot," which be had Prifoucr aboard, to go in his Name to Don Betrant de Caftro the Spanifl Admiral, and tell him, That if he woud give his Word and Oath (as the Kings Officer) to reccive then all a buene querra, to give them Life and Liberty, and Paffage as foon as might be into England: And farthicr, to fend alfo funte certain Pledge for the contirmation of all this, that then he wou'd fuarender his Ship; but if he would not engage to do thus much, he thou'd neverennioy any of the Fruirs of his Victory, fince they were all refolv'd to perifh with their Ship, $x 2$ ther than endure any manner of all trcatmenc. from the Engijb make Spaniards.. And really, by their Dcmands, one woutd theit tecrms. not have thought they' were in much danger of any, or that they muft the next hour, by an unavoidable nececlity, be cither fwallow'd up of the Sca , or fall into the hands of the Spanicrds without anyiticross at all. And 'ris no frall wonder that the Spaniards," under fuch circumftances of advantage, fhou'd tand to argue Proand Con about the matrer, and not tather purfue what they bad begun, and accomplifif the fate of the crazy Ship, and its as weak Defendaniss. Bur whatever werc thexea: fons, 'tis certain they did orherwife; 'the Admiral fwore by his Maker, and by his Knighthood; (to bind rhe bargain more firmy y that he wou'd reccive them all to fair Quarter, and grant cyery thing clle they demanded, and in token of this he drew off his Glove, and fent it for a Plidge. Upon this the Speniards enter'd the Ship, crying buena gucrra assthey came; neithex was there any fort of Ourage or Infolence cominitted by them. And which was a parricular mark of the Admiral's civility to Sir Richard Hawpkins, he fear for him inno hisown Ship, that he might be fure to be our of all harmis way when the muluitude came aboard. The kind and honourable wage he had from that generous Spaniard, as it was hardly to be expected from an Enemy whofe pa-

Dradful

The kind
utare of Sir althe ent her did his Humaniry and Courcefic ftop there, but exby the Spe-

Cuftorn amonget the Cpariords.
liberty, for in the Spenifo Armados the Cuftom obtains thus : If thicre be an abiolute Admiral, the roch part of all Spoil and Plunder belongs to him, and he has is by Lotr; and as it happens to fall to his thare, but by Choice, for fic rakes whar he pleafes himfelf; in the rame manner he proceeds if there be ever fo many fo few Ships of the encmy taken, but if chere be but one, The is enircly at the Admiral's difpofal, and to are the Fortunes ind Libertics of all that areaboard her
With this hope and expectation, our Englifh went away with rhasinifs Flece towards Panama: In this Courfe they canc by the famous $P$ cat-Ifland, which lie Pear.mand along she Coaft, beginuing Kome- 8 Lcagucs W.S.W. rom Panama, and run to the Southward near 30 Leagues. There are feyeral of them, and mont of them inhiabited by Spaniards, and Negroes which are their Slaves, and kepr only to fifh for Pearl. The Pcarl lic in tanks in the uttermoft part of the Oyfter which is call'd its Ruff, and the biggeft are generally found next to the end or joint of the Oyfer. Thofe in the Enft-Indics have commonly tre Character of the beft and fineft, tho' the Wreft-Indics (in the judgment of our Author) do produce is good; and perhaps one of the laxgeft in the VVorld was found A Aroul in there Pcarl Illands, it was as big as the Pommel of a Ponyard, and was given by King Plisitip the Sciond of Spcin to his Daughter Elizabcth, Wife to alberfus Archduke of Aufric. Within the Pearl Ifand lies a fmall Ifland which they call LaPacbetc, which conrains not a League of ground, but is a moft fruifful foor; is be long'd to a privare Man, who by his own and his Slaves induftry, made is bring him the value of 50 or 60 pound every Week in Fruit, which he conftantly fenr to the Marker at Panama
In their Courfe to Panama, whey Kail'd betwesn the Diretion in fland and the Main, - where there is a very good Chann filing to $\mathrm{p}_{\mathrm{A}}$ nel of 3 or 4 Leagues broad, and withour any danger axcept a Man come too near the hore on any fide er this is thought the betrer Courfe than to go a Seaboard of the Inanid, becaufe of the fwife running of the Tides, and thic advantage to fop ar Ebb ; as allo for Succour and Affiftance, if a Man foou'd happen to be calm'd, which may happen here fomerimis.
At latt they came to an Anchor under Perico; there Price, ite are two litule Ilands which make the Pori of Pansme Port which is abour two Leagues W. N. W. from the City, yet the City has alfo a Port for froll Barks at full Sca having then abour 7 foor water, but as cbb 'tis quite dry.

News being fent to Panema of the fuccefs of the Joy amens: Expedition, there was grear rejoycing thexe, exprefs'd the aspani: by the difcharge of all their Artillery, and the prodi- ard. gious Illuminarions; which made the City at a diffance look as if is had becr all of a blaze. The Armado alfo came thundering on with their Artillery, and the Triumph wou'd have berter befitted the Conqueft of another Armado, than one poor Ship, which was yer all they had to flew for it.
As to the particulars of SiroRicbard's Entertainweng Detainure chere, Liberty and .Travels homewards, we bave no account of them, for here his Relation breaks off, tho' he promifes a fecond Paxt, wherein thefe feveral Paffages thou'd be largely handled.
Ingeneral, we find by what is occafionally dropr, The refor har atecr being fome time at Paname, where he was ve- ${ }_{\text {Adrectinat }}$ זy civilly entertain'd by the fame Don Beteran de Caftro the was fear into Peru; and refided borh ar lima and Cuf fo, the two moft celcbrated Cities of that glorious Em pire. That he was a Prifoner here is paft all doubr, but that he was treated by the Vice-Roy, and all the Noblemen of the Councry, more like a Prince than a Prifoner, is alfo moft certain. How 'rwas with him at the Illand of Tercera, at Madiod and Scoil, (for ar thefe pla ces he was alfo conin'd) and what accidents"befel him there, the fecond Part which he promifed muft difeover. This mult be faid, that he no where difcovers the lealt degree of fufpicion of any treachery in the Spaniards, nor complains of any hard ufage; and his company were every where as cafie as himiclf.
One thing is to be obferv'd, thar Don Beltran de Caftro. new'd him a Letter from the King of Spain to the ViceRoy of Pery, whercin was given an account of his Voyage, the Ships, their Number, their Burden, their Ame munition, and whirther they intended to go ; addint withal, Xois may fee (fays he) by this, wherlicr the King my Mafter bas nor forie good Frient's in England. To thist Sir Richard reply'd, That' 'twies'no monder bis Mafter brad So many Friends every where, fince be Bad fo much; Gold and Silver; and 'swas no uncommonstaing to fer tham make Pect ple tell' Tales out of School, and orit of Country 100." And th crusto of it is, the Spaniards ought not to be blam ${ }^{2} d$ in thd cafe for getring Advice; but the bafe and perfdigus Engliz |for giving it.

Chap. XI.

An. Account of the taking of St. Vincent, and Fuerto Bello, in the Weft-Iadies, by Captain William Parker of 1 limouth

THE Flect which did thefe great Exploits was but fmall, confinting of no more than two Ships, one Pinnace and rwo Shallops. The Prudence, Admical, was but of 100 Tun, and liad about 130 Mcn aboardher; the Pearl, Vice-Admiral, was of 60 Tun and 60 Men ; the Pimace of 20 Tun and 18 Men . The Perfons that fignaliz'd themelelves in this Action, and had a part of the Command, were theie that follow: Captain Gilcs Capt Ward, Capt Fugars Cape Loriman, Capt Abke, with Some other Gentlemen as Volunteers. In their paffing by the Cape of St. Vincens in Spain, com monly calld the South Cape, they met with fuch a violent Tomado, or guft of tempentuous Wind, that their Pinnace, with all her Men bur threc, were loft with it and glad to come off themfelves without any more da magc.
Dirccting their Courfe from thence to the Iflands of Cape $a r d$, immediatcly upon their arrival there the Ser upon St. Vincent, which is one of them, and took the liland and the Town; the Spoil of which was given to ${ }^{\circ}$ the Soldiers, and the Town in felf after thar to the Flames.
Hence they halcd over to the Coaft of Terra Firma and coming to the Rencheric, or Pearl-Fiflucry in the fmall Inand of Cubagna, they found the Governour of Cumann there with a Company of Soldiers; notwith fanding which they landed their Men, and were receiv'd with great warmch and brisknefs by the Enemics however at laft they got the better on them, rook the for the Ranfotm of all, which, Capt. Parker had 5001 in Pearl paid him.

This done they proceeded with their Yoyage, failing directly for Cape de la Vela, where they mer with a great Portugucfe Ship laden with Negro's from Congo and $A n$ gota, and bound for Carchagene, from whence thole wretches were to be fent to the Mines, This Prize, wich very litrle trouble and refiftance, came into their hands and the Redemprion of thefe Slaves came ro sool. more; "tis truc they had no benefic by it, being atill where they were before, (and 'tis certain are Men that can'r alter their condition, being every where doom'd to Slavery) but the Seamen had tome benefit by it, and tho" "twas nor much, yet 'rwas berter than lying fill upon the water and doing noching.
After this they went ro the Ifland Cabecoss, where they embark'd 150 of their Men in two fmall Pinnaces and two Shallops, and then fail'd to the Ifland Dos Baftimentos, where they pick'd up fome Negroes for cheir Guides, and fo with their Boats and Pinnaces prefentiy enrerid the mouth of the River of Porto Bello; it was mighr, but they bad a brighr Moon fhining upon chem, by the help of whofe light the Watch had quickly difooverd them. At cheir very firft entrance into the Haven (which is by the way above twelve feore over, and very deep at the mouth, and a good way upwards) they were haled by the ftrong Cafte of Sf. Phitip. Here is always 35 good Brafs Pieces ready mounted to bid an Encmy welcome, and Soldiers enough to manage them: Thefe, as was faid, haled our Pinmaces, and ask'd whence they were
*. io which they (having fome Spanifh Tongues aboarc them for that purpore) immediately anfwerd that they came from Carthagenci. Upon chis, theon to come to an Anchor, which they did; but a-

oftay, rumning after him alons che thore; but he negected their ourcrics, Went on directly to the Town of riant, and lanted his 30 Men, (for he had no more with him upon this defign) and in a trice, thn' the alarm was given, fet it on fire, and leaving is burning, march'd nto the great and rich Town of Parta Bello, 50 which Titiona was as it were an inler. Being entred here, he Triana tuker directed his march immediarely to the King's TreafureHoufe, where he found a Squadron of Soldiers drawn up to receive him, with two Brals Fiedd-picees well mounton on their Carriages. The fight that fuccesced was the fer: in harp and long, and Capr. Parker had lof the bell part of "rro bicho. his 30 Mch , when thofe which commanded the Pimazecs hearing the alarm, and finding 'twas high time to adsance, timely came into his relicf wittr 120 frefh Men , which affiftance turn'd the Scalc, and quickly put an end to the contlict, for the Spaniards now begin to fecure hemfelves by flighe, and a good number of then got into the King's Honfe, where they defended themfelves very rcfolurcly. The befieging of this took up at lean four or five hours, all which time they centinued in fome Action or other with the Defendants; but at laft the Englifh made their way in, and became Mafters of it, as they were alfo of the whole Town entirely. Amonglt The Town the Prifoners of Quality werc the Govicrror, and ther then and Scrivano; as for the Alcede, he was run our of Town, par'd by the and had takcon care to have the company of a grear gold Englit. Chain along wich him, which he Alted with abour his neck. As tor the Treafure found in the Treafure-Houfe, it was nothing to what they expected, for this place is the Repoficory ar one time of the Year, of all the Treafure that comes from Peru and Cbili, which fomerimes amounts to more than 6 Millions of Ducats. They, for cheir parts, now'mer with no more than 10000 at this ime, but if they had come 7 days fooncr had got a Boory of 120000 , which were gonc in two Frigats for Carthascna. The Spoil of the Town otherwife, in Money, Plate, and Mcrehandize, was nor inconfiderable, and was all given to the Soldiers, to their no litrle fatifaction. They did not chink fir to make a Penny of the rifoners that wers taken, bat rather by fetting them rece withour Ranfoms, to give the Spanincds an cxample of civil and generous Deportment rowards theirEnemics. This Town had two goodly Charches, 6 or 7 fine Streers, 3 fmall Forts on the one fide, befides the grear Caftle of Sr. Pbilip on the ocher; and the Englifo were fo kind as to fpare all thefe Buildings too, when it was in their power to have demolin'd. them all, and lefr nothing but Ruins behind them.
In a word, they ftaid in the Town for a day or two, The spani. o Thew that they werc abrolute Mafters of it ; in allards donit $\mathrm{d}_{\mathrm{i}}$ which rime they had nor the leaft difturbance from $2 \pi y$ in the them rallied Forces of the Spaniards, nor no alarm given, only fefion of ir. as they were failing awnay again the Encmy begata to appear, and make fome litule itir, but twas only the exchanging of a few bullets, and taking leave of each other parting nut of the mouths of their great Guns.
This Action of the raking a Town of fuch great They feare trength with fo few Men, bred fuch an Idea of the ic. Englifh Valour in fome of the Spaniards, that the Go* varnor of Carthagena particularly, fwore he would give a Mules lading of Silver to have a fight of Captain Parer and his Company; and had they been fure he would have parted with what he had upon fo calie terms as they at Porro Bello did, 'ris very likely chey might have fold him thar favour, but his ftrengeh being uncertain as well as his pay, they did not think fic to atrempt him
The little Elcer came fafely into Plimouth Harbour gazin, having had the Honour of taking with a few Men, in a littic cime, and an inconfiderable lofs, one bout ăh hóur afterwards, Capr. Parker took his opportunity to go up the River with his two Shallops, leaving the Pinnaces there at And lip. Bur as there is anoth lefs Fort che Catte of

Some Notes relating to the General Hiftory of that Parr of the WeftIndies under the Dominion of the Spaniards : ColleEed_from the broken Obfervations of Alexandro Urfino, a Roman, mbo lived in Peru and Chili 34 Years; of Pedro Ordonnes de Cevallos, a Spanift Prieft; of Lopez Vez, a Portuguefe, taken by Captain Withrington at the River of Plate, woitb bis American Notes about bim.

A5 to what concerns the Hifory of Nature, the Civil Policy, Cuftoms and Government of therc noble Countrics, we flall afcerwards producs and thefe things in a lange and particular Accounc by it Kelf; whercin the Hiftories of the twa Celcbratcid Empires', Mcxico and Peru, thall be trac'd in all the moft valuable Heads, and whatfocyer we can pick out of Aurhors of any Character writing upon chore Subjects, thaill be precenred to the Readers piew. What is offer d now, is only a Collection of fome loore Notss relating more to the Geography of fome particular Parrs and Places, than of the general Heads that will allow them to come in fairly afterwards; they were thoughr to becof fome ufe by their Authors, and thercfore by them thit gently preferved and tranfmitted to us. But as things of this kind (being independani upon one anocher) woricrion on (as other relations have donc) in a continucctwninterxupted Story, fo the Reader muft be contented to rake them in picces and parcels, as thcir Authors have dcliver'd chem, and the nature of the thing admits of The Country of Ncm Spain has feveral rery excellen Pors both on the North and the South fide : The principal of them on the Noxth is St. Junn de Lua, ar which place all the Armadoce that come from Spain are dip charg a, and the Merchandizes are carried to are hes upon the Sourh Sea, from whence they trade with Peru, Paramna, the Pbobilippinc ©IIands, the Moluccas and Chine. The firft pars of the Country (reckoning asyou proceced along the Coaft) that is inhabitect by the Spaniards is V/G- gro, the richeft periapps of Gold in the whoice Indices, but air is very hor and fulcry, yer not clear and ferenc withal, bur thick, and always full of rainy Clouds. Ir yiclds litde or no Fruir neither, and moft of the Suftenance of theInfiabianants comes from other places; and yer all there inconveniences do the Spanicreds endurc for the fake of the belored Gold, and wont quica a place that has to many contraxiecres to nature, for one thing that makes it agresable to $a$ fordid corctous humbur. There is no more than 4 Leagues betwecn the River de Carinas. (which fifues from the Lake of Nïcrargur) and the South Sca, and to bring thefc two together, and open a communication bexween both fides of the Ammican World by chis means, is thought by our Authors to be a much lef́s difficult work than fome of thore of the like mature, that were proje $\{$ ed formerly by the Egypians and Romans.
From chis uract of Vcraytá unto the Inand of Margereta, the Coaft along is calld Terra Eirm. ; the Spaniards gave it that name, becaule twas the firth firm land they conquer'd afeer they had pas'sd che I位ds. This is allo hot, wet and unhealthy, like the former. Particulaxly upon chis account $;$ ' 'ris the firit place inhabited after you have paffed Veragur, and were is not for a convenience, the air of ir cerrainly woud never have recommended it to have been inhabited at all. But it has a good Porr, and 'ris the way by Land to the South Sce, and the trade of Rerry; and then over againft it (as in werc) on the South Sca Coaft, ftunds the weil-known City of Paname, which is not above is Leagues from Nombre de Dios. To Carrige of comown of Nombre de Doos does the Spani/h. Shipping in and unade, the Goods being carried from hance of Crofess, and from thence upon Mules by Land to Paname, which is but 7.Leagues from that foremention'd Houpe s and this Carriage is very laborions and chargeable to then, becaufe of the great Rains, and the uncyen mountainous rugged ways.

From Nombre de Dios you proceed to Carthagenn, the Garthaten he Country abous which is much more healithy, and fuller of Provifion; the Town is folf alfo is larger and airer by much, and has a Rort whîch far furpaffes all the cet. If the Trade of Spein has made Nombre de Dise xich place, thase and ochers have done much more for artbagceua, for here the Ships alwaysytay when they go and come from Spain; and if they chance to Winter beOre ithey go home, chey are fure to lie $\pi$ C Cartbagene Befides, therc's abundance of Goods and Merchandize Grear Trade difcharged here to be carricd into the King dom of Nepp Grancda, and greac quantities of Gold come from that grold foom Kingdom hicher. But there is no Land-carriaz ze of Mier-Cratenctur chandizc from Carthasena into Grancda, not only in thas this lies 200 Leagues within the Land, but there are vaf unpaffable Mountains, and ftandiding Waters in the way fo that thcy carry all up the greas River Magg diticr. This Catrige of River, tho ic be both large and very dece, yet they can Gont: in nor go with thcir Barks above 20 Leagucs up ir, bcenufc ciranaticuan Goods int current; 10 thar the Earks dircharge all :hei Goods into finall Canocs, which xow clofe alung by the Therc is a paffage by the new Kingdom and Prpayan pafreci:o from Carfoagerna to Prru, which is in all abour suo ${ }^{\text {licm }}$ Leagucs; fo that taking the 200 Leagues which they go up the River, the other 300 are thro' a Country well inhabired, and where there is good and quicr travecling The Pofts do offen pafs to and fro this way, bur Ijecaulc ris very long and redious, the Merchants don't ufe it but when they are conftrained to it.
 along the fame Coaft; "cis but a poor Town in refpect of Trade or Building, yer. greas quantities of very finc Gold arc faid to be gatherd up her:abours, which one wou'd think flould alter the Character of the place. Here begins the great tract of Mountains whofe tops ith : :\% are coverd with Snow, that run thro' the whole Conti- citis ncrra almoft to the M.trcllenick Streimhes, and are catie to be feen by their whire heads above & licagues into the Sca. Adjoining to them there is a Vallcy calld Tegroche, vice ofth the richect place yet known; bur the Inhabicants arce yonsme ry numerous, and a valiant courageous Pcople too, and ufe fuch artifices in poifoing their Aspows, that they have lived hisherto prety free from invalions and difturbances by Foreigners. The Speniards have iniecd made fome atcempes upon them, but ther have as often been baficd and defcated, and the Vallcy lics ntill unconqucr'd.
Omitting the Intands xyon the Coaft of Teria Fima which are above 70 in number, our Authors proceced with the Porr Towns along the Coaft of the Main-tand there are nonc inhabired by Sprasiarids till you come to Fernambuco on the Coatt of Brafic. Berween this Ihand and Eernambuco "is the River of * Marcti.jn, one of the - The cri: greareft in the World, and firft found when the Spaniards sails man, were fecking our the other Coaft. 'Tis impolfible to en-the mierer ecr this River, becaule of the miefty current that cormes downr; and withal, therc araimany fandy felves. lying about the mouth of it, upond hich gecount it canie to pas's that' 'twas a long time b borctitic Ricles, which the River affords, couldibe known. It was not till the time pififorer of that Peru was conguer'd that his difcovery was made, the River of buc it was then donc by Gorfatipititiric: for travelling Amern raxy the Natives in thcir $C$ change with the $S_{p a n i z a r i t i s . ~}^{\text {. }}$ to fec the end of thisRiver, St bringing Gold to exWhing this, he was defirou Whaild not rravel by Land becance

Chap. KII. Of the Weft-Indies, inder the Dominion of the paniards. 749

becaufe of the Mountains, and for that xcafon he made/mage to him as fuch. All which they did, and to bind

- a fmall Pinnace, and Kent Orillana, one of his Captains with 30 Mcn, who went down rhe River: But they cou'd not polfibly return again, becaufe of the violent current that was againet them, and forcid them quite our into the Sca, fo that they came to the Mland of Margarefa, however they were very ncar a Xear and half upon the River, for is has abtandance of rurnings and windings; which make a long paffage on'r; but they never durft go athore, fecing fuch a multitude of People inhabicing abour in, and nor knowing how they wou'd wiches of it. entertain them. Buc thus far they obrain'd their decign that they were fully aflured' the River was a wery rich one in Gold, and had fome of it to thew for undenia ble proofs ; which they did not think fit to return with and fhew to their General Pizano, but, in floort, went home into Spain, and preiented is to the King. And this fams Captain his Majefty dilpatch"d back again with a Hlece of Ships, and 600 Ment, to take poffellign. of the rich River; but the Project came to nothing, for the Captain himfelf died, with many of his Men, by the unhealthiness of the Country, and thore that remainid difpos'd of themfelves as they thought fir, every Man ver and its Riches being mightily fpread abroad, and xinging particularly ia the Court of Rorsugal, a cerrain parturuef: Gendeman, Lcus de Mclo oy Name, ask' Lcave of King Jobn the Third to go upon this Expedition; for 'ris to be nored, that that part of dmerica, from the mouth of this River to the mouth of the River of Platc, is held by the Kings of Portugal, according to the Treary of Partition made berween them and the Kings of Spain. This Perfon had to Ships and 800 Men, but coming to the mouth of the River, he loft all his Ships bur two; and as for the Men, tho' the moft patr of them were faxcd, and got athore, yer they did not proferute the Difoovery, but went to the Illand Mergareta, and from thence were difpers'd all over the indies. This bad forrune of two Flects decerr'd ochers from making the attempt; yet two or chree Captans from the Kingdom of Nicp Granada did afterwards endeavour to difcover ir by Iand. Yer none had any confiderable fuccefs, till fome ycars afrer one Rcdrode Oruza, a Native of Naverr, bur in che SpanibScrvice, came so the head of this grear River, with at leaft 700 Men our of Peru. Fere he made Pinnaces and Canoes, in which he caxried above 2000 indians along with him, to be ferviceable to him in his defigns, together with a great many Prme down neceflity to be carried by water, for there's no doing it whe River. by Land, not only becaule of the Mountains, but allo
the many Rivers which run berween them, and com-Foundatio municare with the great one of Meranom. They went own the River with their whole Company and Cargo lay the foundations of 2 Town, but being mont of them Men not ufed to fuch forts of Labours, and withal tixed with the hor and rainy Seafons, they quickly laid it down again, and haviug nothing elfe to do, began to murmur at their Captain, and wifh rhemfelves at home in Peruagain; not bur that the Country where they were afforded Provifions enough, and belides was capable (one woud have thoughr) to have charm'd them into good humour, with the profpect of Gold which it gave them. Bur their 位itious Minds were nor to be quieted with any thing, and there was 2 certain Fcllow amonget them (one Lopez de Agira a Bifcaian) that made it his bufinefs to blow up the coals, and by his cunning infinuarions to heighten the difconcent they had already receiv'd. He had been an old Murineer in Peru, and had had his hand in many fuch bufinefles as chis, and therefore finding now a fair occation woud not trick to lay hold on't, but fell to his old way of practifing againft his Officers. In a word, by his means they were work'd into istra, a f the humour and defignof making away with theirCaprain, which they did, ftabbing him in his fleep, and murder ditious Fel. ing at the fame time all his Friends; and yet there faetious Fellows muft needs be Loyal and Dutiful to theirKing roo, they wou'd huzza, and cry our, God fave the King, at the fance time thar they were cutting the throats of his Officcrs. But they did not fop here, for now Loper falls to making Orations to them ; and, in fhorr, harangues them fo long, rill he had perfwaded them to make a certain Creature of his their Supreme Head, and himfelf their Caprain, to manage the Affairs of War. And baving gane chus far, he thought he had e'en as good carry them one ftep farther, and chat was, ro change this Title of Head into King, and renouncing all Allegiance to the King of Spasn, to acknowledge this mage to hum as fuch., All which they did, and to bind che barginn with fomerling more than ordinary folemniw, the Rogues buils an Altar, and upon that forfwore all Duty and Obedience to the $K$. of Spani for civer, and cugaed their Allegiance to the Upfart, the new created King Fermando de Gofiman. Bur his Majeftics reign was And kilod but thorr, for Loter, who had a mind to his Place and by leferem Title, within 20 days took an occifion to difparch him Aus he did with his own hand 500 , to mew that he had Authority 10 make aph depofe, or niurder Kings, Cap ains, Generals, of who elfe he pleas'd. And now he Leper, king had his defire, and svas King himfeif, but for ali that bingect: heing no Genticman, he was relolv'd to rid his hands of all them whofe betrer and more deferving Blood mighe reproach his bare Pedigrec, or whore Verrue mighr be any way $2 n$ impedimenr to his defigns. And therefore, one of the firtt chings he did was to cur the tbroats of all the Gentemen, and thofe that were of any confiderable degree; in order to effect which, and fuch like defigns. he chole him our of the whok゙Aumy a felect number of Ruffians,'s which he alway's kepr abour his Perfon, and were his Tools to do any of the bloody work his barba rous Mind projected. Bur as is commonly happens, thar a great deal of Guilc and. Impiery brings horrid fears and lufpicions along with it and thofe chat are confcious of crildefigns and practices againft others, are as apr to be afradd of the lame from others; fo it was here this Mifereant cou'd not enjoy himkelf with his new Dighiry the Title of King was no care and fecurity to him, and he was jcalous that every one whould be as xcady no vio- Jcatus of ill lare the refpeet owing to the Character as he had been pratioce a himielf. If be had bur feen two Men alle was a cercain fign of a Plot epainft his Ifs and con equendy to prevent che execuition of it, they muft lofe theirs. As this ratc. heoryatiniz'd over thềmultitude which by fuch merhods Wresteducid to axnunfter that cou'd by no theans deferie that name; anid for the con-Lopra leaves clution of all, at his going àway from the Cotuntry, tee ite fick left all the Women: and the Geck Men behind him for a prey to the Natives, or the wild Beafls, which come tirit. And thefe were no inconfideraible number, for the Climate being fomething intemperate, (ar lealt the Sca(on was fo) ir bred many difcafes amongft them.
During their ftay here, they rook a great many Ca noes of the People of the Country, in which they found flore of Gold; and in horr, by one way or another, parrly upon the Water, and parcly upon the Land, onrichd themfelyes to a confiderable degres. $\because$ Here'rwas alfo that they faw thofe warlike Women which have gi ven an occafion to fome to 'raife a Story of amazons dwelling hereabours, and the River has been Chriftend by tbat name upon this yery account. The bufincts was only this, that the Spanierds fighting with fome of the Natives, the Women came and fell on too, their Husbands they thought werc in danger, and they canac oo help rhem, like truly tender and loving Wives. And they fay; that chey foughr more valians than the Men; what weapons they ufed they don'c tell us, but 'tis prety certain'twas not their nails. The Spcriards, it feems were fomerhing ruggedly dealt with by them, and talk as if they had racher bave foughr with che Hnsbands than the Wives, if chey had been to chufe one of the two. So that all The Storics of thofe warlike Heroins, the one breafted Ladies, that call Men out of the next Coünitry whenthey have occafion for their Service; that fend the Boys back to their Fathers, and keep the Giris to breed them up to the War, and arc, in fhorr, an entire Society of Females. This, I fay, all vanimes into this one point of fact, Thar there were a parcel of honeit Women thas had to much courage and love to their Husbands, that when they faw them allaulted, wou'd chufe rather to run the hazards of the Battel, than ctand by and fee them knock'd on the head.
But to procced : Lopsi with his company faild down the grear kiver of the $A m a z o n s$, and came to the tiand Margareta, by which time his number was reduced to 230 Men. The Governor thinking him to be ore of che Lopes's rreat King's Officers (but little imagining the was King himn-cifury, and ithe (elf) receiv'd him handfomly, and for his reward the coumery ac Villain kill'd him; and laving landed upon the Ifland, gaitil aitiand rummag'd about there, he went off again to the main Land, forcing fome few Soldiers along with him. And now he was for conquering the whole Indics, for he was fo vain as to tell himfelf, that as he march'd, all wou'd rum to his lide; bur he was deceivid forche alarm having fpread abour the Country, the Governor of New Granale raisd an Army, and followd him inrophe Continent. And whercas he fed himielf up with hapes: bat the King's Army wou'd run over to him whets. it came ro d.e trial, he was fadly cozen'd in that too, for his Army tun over to the Kings. Thus every way forfiken, and out of all hepes of ever retricving his Aftairs, and fure belides, if taken, to be made an example, to the error of all an bituers Traiters int the World, he refolved to prevers that, and be his own Executioncr. In order to this, he li:t gave his Daughter a mortal Stab, (that the might never have the reproach of his infamous aetions) intenting aleerwards to do the like to himelf; but in the interim, the King's Soldiers broke in upon him ant hackid hum to picees. This was the fate of Lopen de sioit, that of a common Soldier became a Captaint of a Capraina Gencral, and of a General a King; and for his late Preferment would have been his own Hangman, but cou'inot.

Erafic ditico-
The Kiyer of the Amazons, which we had occafion to mention, has engnged us in this Difcourfe of its Difon very; which finillid, we proceed with the general Account of the reft of the Continent.
All the Coaft between this great River and the River of Plate, is properly the Coaft of Brafice and as has leen faid, belorge to the Kings of Porrugnt; by vertuc of the Treaty between them and the Crown of Cafile.
Brafic was firlt found by-Don Pedro sinnales Cabrell, the fecond tume that the king of Pootegel Kent his Ships to the In!i-Indies, and was then taken poffefion of in his Name.
The'River of Plete was difcover'd by Solis firt of all; next by Selantian Caior, who went up it 150 Leagues and buils.a Fort; afferwards by Don Pedro de Mendõa himfelf, bur letis a confiderable number. of Spanictids be hind hum. Thefe Men gor Boars and went up the River, and leaving ar a cercain place, where they werc, three Mares and tlorfes, they mulcip.y.d to that degre in the pace of 40 Years, that for 20 L Leagucs together the Country was crouded almoft with finofe Creatures.
Che Spamials yenturd at leaft 300 l cagues up the River, and found the Counrry very fuli of thabiants and well provided with the Necemarics of lifers and the Indians proving very kind and friendly to them, they fededier with them in a lown on the North-fid of the Kuver, which they gave the Name of ificnfion in Sonin kncw ang hived bere full 20 Xcars, berothor miral Mendoza loit mott parr of his Ships, and died himfeif in the way homewards:- But they now growing old, and doubting their Children, born and brought up in this heathenith Country, (for the Sprtinitds here rook rbdinn Wives) woud become at laft one. Pcople with the Natives, and quite lofe their Chriftianity, for this reafon fent into Spain to give the King notice of their Affairs ; who, thercupon, difparch'd two or thrce Ships with more Men and Women for the good of the Plan- the , and a bihop, Pricits and Fins, for her Mupportion the Corittian Religion anongit them. When this Reief was come, they planted two places more on the North of the River, and travell'd 300 Leagues beyond the Town of Afcenfion; but finding no Gold nor Silver to invite them to fettle there, they return'd to the place from whence chey came. This Town by degrees grew fo populous that 'twas inlarg'd inro a City, and from a City became one of the molt conliderable in the whole Wr. fi-Incies. The Country about is is fruifful, and yields plenty of all ferts of Provifion; and as for Trade, the rwo principal Commoditics are Sugar and Corton. The Coaitalong from this River of Piare to the Mayel-Lanich-Sercights has been very little difcover'd either by Sea or Land, only fome Rorss have been taken nonice of by Ships going to the Strigites.

As for the land that lies from the Mereflanick-Streigtres to the Coaft of Clizli its little known, becauic of the great Mountains of Snow that hinder travelling b: land; and the Shoals, and the multituce of littie Iltands that lie off the Main, have alfo hindred any exact Difcoreries to be made by Sca.

The firt known Country on the Coaft of Chit: (coming from the Sercigits) is that of C.t'ter ; 'is the worft of all thercabouts, becaufe chere's very litele Gold, and as lircle Provifion, and then "tis excelively coldt." The whole Councry of thili is above 100 Leagucs long N.&S. burnor more than 251 eagues in breadth. There man from the high Mountains into the Sea a great number of Rirers, which make it cne of the pleafaneft Countrics in the World, and chat 'ris as fruitful and xich too is paft all doube:

The Province of arazco is not above 20 Leagues long,
valiant Araucans fo ofien, that is becance a poordecayd place upon'r.
Sc. Firgo (which ftands 2 e Icagues up in the Country) $s$ weral facceeded La cunception in the charaster of the princ $1-$ Turan. pal City, which it has kept; and is a confiderable place. The Port of Vilfarijo upon this Coalt, is chat whuthes all the Ships come from Lima and unhade their Goods. Next to Caquinbo (which is the neat Town be the Seafide beyond Valparizes is Copinp: a Porr lown, hue inure remarkable for being the umoth Boundary of the Cesurry of Crisit; when you are pafid this, you come into a Howi, o: Councry that leads you to Peru. The tract of Land be• ween Crapigo, and Peru is near 160 Icagues, but it lies delolate tris fo rugged and monntainous. Poir is at leaft ferm. 800 l. cagues from North to South : upon above 003 of which ris laid thar no Rain $\hat{c}$ er falls, and yet the inofl wanton and luxurious appetics in the Worid can crave for nothing which this Country will not yichl. The reafon of which, fome attribute to the vaft ridge of hich Mouncains that runs alongupon the Wett fronticr, which defends thore fivect Valleys of fectu from the raint Clouds dat wou'd otherwife water them. Bur however, frum No min. thefe Mountains there iffuc one abundance co Riters which difcharge themfelves into the South Sca, and as chey run along cheir warers are drawn off by Slecesand Channels cut for that putpore, by which the Vincyatds and Corn-ficlds are dufficienty refreth'd, and the whole Connery made exceeding fruitful. Berwixt thefe Mownains and the Mountains of C ilit, that ftretch to the idagellanick Sircights, there lies a mighty Plain of 60 leagucs over, which is fo cold, thas ic is untit for the production of Corn, bur yer is very fruitful as so feveral ocher forts of neceffaries. Behind the ridge of frowy Diountains ies the Province of Tacumen, wherein che Sprainuds Powneso have fome Towns; the laft of then is called Cordow, from inhence to Sauta Fec, upon the River of Plate, is suantru. abour 70 leagucs; whi.h Town of Sans, $F$ es was buit in that place to favour the defign of fecking a way to Pcru by the River of Plate. The firt Town in pery, as rou conc from ceisi, is called stacem, and from hence to Arica all the Conat is inhabiect by fndiens, that asknowledge the Spenifh Authority. From hence you go cimans to Camena (the nexr Port Town) and to to decri, fa-dud mous fert the bett and grearelt quantiry of Wine made in all.Peru; from thence along the Coait to Caia, the well known Port of Lima.
Procecding filll Normward, you come to the rich City Truxillo, which is one of the principal ons of Eer'u; the next to which of note is Gurgagkill, which ftands to Cu ang is cagues up into a great Bay or Raver, ar the entrance of which ftands Tombair an Indian Town. Ciuayonuili is remarkable for the quantities of Saliaparilla they zather Tinheranal here, and the ftore of Timber it antor,'s for the buidding solliputh.. Ships, bur mor mor fors being the firt pace in Ships, bur much more for its being the firft place in Pert where it rains, for all berween stacema and Gacygquill there is nonc.
From "hence you go-along the Coaft to Puerto Vick, Fnerath, a formerly a moted place for Emeraulds, but it feems the plenty and commonnefs of thefe Stones have fo funk the value of them, that the trade is decayd, and the Town but has a fine plain Countre which lics juft over againut the Lland of Mocbe.

The chief Ciry of all Cbili (and the richeft too) was La Cinception, but is has been plunderid and bunat by the grown poor; by the way; 'cis much more likely that thefe thou'd nos be crue Emeraulds, than chas a Town which had plenty of luch noble Jewels thou'd cyer go o decay.
Within the Main, fome 50 or 60 leagues from hence, tands Popaiaz, a place of foume crade; bur from chence, Pequim, as far as Panamm, you meer with no Town at all, for the Country is very mounrainous, full of Rivers, and nuwholfome too. Abour this Conntry dwell the Symma- The Symas ons, a.company of fugirive Ncgroes, that being run away ${ }^{2}$ an. rom their Spirifif Mafters, here eftablithed therniflycs ino a Commanity. The reafon of this Revolt was the bard ufage they bad from their Mafters, and tha', there were fereral arrer.pts made to reduce them to their tormex Obedience, yet they all provid unfuccelfful; the Negroes dtourly defended their Liberty, anid very ofren made the Spaniorids feel the effects of their indignation and refenment. At lait they came to a fors of a Compofition, and becaufe the Spanierds coid make no berter terms, they yielded the Negroes fioved bave their liberty, and live in a place by themflyes, provided they wou d be quiet. Their prinapal place is Sr. Fago de les their taltNegros, not far from Pancma; white they haveall.Off tation neat cers of their own, only i Spanifl Governor refiderac a- Amama.
 and Noore Efpamers, is call'd Coftan Rice; neat to which is a cofa Ris. mountainous Country calid Cofla-di Nïcarafut, inhabi- zictrone ted by the Spmiards, and containing feveral good Ports, so which great fore, and many varietice of Mexchandize are brougir.: Thus baye we gooc acunu rhis whole great Convincurs, Coninent, and leen the Coals of borh rides of it; it re Authors.

The Town of triufo, in the Kingdom of Granedh, has the beft Emeraulds known in all the Indies, and are taken out of a Rock, which is is felf an inexhauftible Treafury of that fort of Riches. A certain Indiam found hexe a Srone which was fent to King Ploilip of Spain, the value of which was not to be fix'd, and all the Jewellers were puzzell'd to fay what'swas worth.
The great Mountain in Poroff, where the Mines are,

he pivays a Cloud hanging over the rop of it, cyen in the pureft and cleareft weather; As the foor ftands the City, bur there's no fuch ching as Grafs or Rafture within 6 leagues all about. The entrance into the Mine-works, and the working there, are fo dangerous, that they which go upon that defign ufe to take the Sacrament of the Altar, expecting never to return morc. The Metals lie at 2 vait deprh in the Earth, at leaft 200 rimes 2 Man's heighth: Rain is very neceflary for thefe Works in the Mines fometimes, and this chey ufually have about riner of Cbriftmafs. In Februery the Silver comes from Potofi and curring the Porco to Lime, and about the fame cime the Ships come with Gold from chili to the fame place, and this amounts to near 3 Millions, half of which is the King's, but in all, both Gold and Silver, tis about 12 Millions. From Lima it goes to Panama, in che Month of April; from Panama by Land to Nombre de Diar, and from rhence by Sea to Carthagena. The Gold that comes out of the Kingdom of Granadr, and the Province of Johm de Sali$n$, is alfo brought by a River to Carthagenn, fo that at that place there's a good Booty to be met with evcry Year, if fome well-laid project were as well puc in execution.The Mincs of Oruto are given over through the de-failure of the Quickfilver; and the rich Silver Mines of have haine

To conclude there Remarks, they tell us that, two chings are excefively. fearce and dear, confequently in the grear City of Quito, and thofe are Wineand Affes. Lama, but 12 if it comes from Spain. The latter are fuch raxities, that one has been fold for 1500 Pezo's; and 'ris a fort of Proverbial Queftion in the Conntry, Whats deareft at ouito? To which the Anfwer is, An Afs. Bur they were alwayedrecon'd a very fenfible ingenious. People, and tis butagreeable to their Charactex to have few of thefe Animals amongft them.
the ditcove It may nor be amifs to add to this, the Atcount they ry of Sola: give us of the firf Difcovery of the Illangi of Solomon. mais timds. The SpartifiVice-Roys in this part of the World, to in gratiace thernfelves the more with the King their MaAcer, and keep his favour, that they may the longer kecp thefe profirable Pofts, ufe to fer themiclves to make new Difcoverics. Thus Don Luis de Velafon, Vice-Roy of New Spuin, fent out a Flect and difcoycr'd the Philippine llands. After the fame manner one Caftro, Viec-Roy of Pcru, fent out a Flect from Lima, 2 principal Commander in which was Redro Sarmiento, a famsus fearches of the Magellamick Sersighos. They fail'd 800 leagucs to the Weft of the Coaft of Peru, and in ix degr. S. L. they found Ceveral Illands inhabited with People of a tawny complexion, and quite naked. Thefe illands afforded spice? Ginger, Cloves and Cimamon, tho' not the very beft chere was alfo fome appearance of Gold. Between Gote. 9 and is degr. S. L. they difcover'd is grear lanads, the largett of which had its Name Gurdalsamal from the finft Oblerver, and upon the Coaft of this they fail'd $15^{\circ}$ leagucs, before they coud know whether.'twere an Illand or part of the Main-land; nay, they cou'd nor as lant find the end of it, fo that they concluded it mighr polfibly be part of a Continene firetching to the Magellanich Streighes. However, thefe were thofe afterwards calld Store of P:o: Solomon's Iliands, and they afforded excellent Victuals of rifions. all forts; fo that they are the moft convenient refrehhing places thar can be as a Ship fails from the Coaft of chili, Peru; or the Magellanick, tor the Molucses. Herc is alfo Gold to be had, which the Natives will give in truck for other Commoditics. The Spaniards did not think of finding Gold hereabouts, but yet they brought: fome to the value of 40000 Pezo's, and good ftore of Spiccs too. The Natives were very four Men, and fought continually againft the Spaniards, fo that they got no morc Spoil of one fort nor another, shan whar they gor by main force. They were ar leaft 14 Months in difcovering thefe llands from one to another; ar the end of which hey return'd home failing to the North of the line, and to falling with the Coaft of New Spain.
That the Spaniards might be encoiraged to go and The reiten Plant thefe Ifands, the Difooverers nolit: ickly gave them of their the Name of Solomon's Iflands, as if they oughr to fuppofe thefe were the very Illands thar Prince ferch'd all his Gold. from to adorn the Temple at $\mathfrak{F}$ erufalcm. This was a good contrivance to fend fome away, and fo make more room for the reft in the rich and delicious Country of Peru. And the rrick took fo far, thar Colonies were actually going to be fent thicher; but at the fame time they had notice that Sir Francis. Drake was gone into the South Sea : upon which, Orders were fent that they fhou'd not be inhabited, to the end that the Englifh, and all other Nations paffing ihat way to the Moluceas, might meet with no orher reffellument there than what they cou'd get from the Natives, who are not very forward

$\qquad$

Chari XIIL.

The Natural Hiffory of the Spanifh Indies in general.

WE are here to tun over thofe things chat xelare to the Hifory of Nature in rhis part of the Wordd, and therefore fhall make no difcourfe of Long. and Lar. of length and fhornefs of Lays, of Shadows, Twilights, and other things of Mathematical confideration. For thefe chings we mult go to oar Globes; cill we find them determin'd by infallible Oblervarions made in the Country. In the mean time, we may furvey with pleafure the Land, Rivers and Springs; the Mornmins Nieadows, and froitful Valleys; Animals, anid all the rich Products of che Earth ; amongt which variety of Subjetts, we fhall mect with fome that will poffibly entertainus.
What the guality and temper of the xir for the moft The remper of too clir ally roafting; thas'ris in Etbiopia, and almoft all Parts of, Africk; in fome Parts of the Eaff-Indies, and many orhers of $A$ fia $;$ and to in part of Brafile, and ochers for the Annerican World. But yer in the lame Zone, in other place's' 'ris quite ortherwife; the air is cool and tempe- Difference of ate and the Sun tho? he comes directly over the heads in and coll of the Intabimits yet does ior torment them ar that ingzone. rate with his heac. At luiso in Reru, the heat is very gerite ind moderate, and fo'tis generally upon the Plains of that Connty, but abour Potof $\mathrm{z}^{\prime}$ tis downright cold, and by thie barc feeling of the temper of the air thereaboirs, a Man wou'd guefs that he were much farther removed fromi the Equinoctial than he is. And 'is the fame roo moftly in the Kingdom of New Grancida, which enjoys a pleafant temperare air, racher inclining to cold than hear, as is very well feen in the skins and complexions of the Inhabitants. But this difference is Difference of nor only obfervable by Land but at Sca 500 ; for as a-bear andco boor all the Sea of Pancm, and the Coaft of Brafie upon the. bout all the Sea of Panaly, and you have violent and hardly tolerable heats, 10 upon the scas. Peruvian Sea it has been taken notice, that cven whenthe Sun has been directly over the heads of thofe that have failid along, they have had as much cold as they card

752

tine influence for. 'Ti pat all doubt, that the Winds and Breezes are in the wind that er, the principal causes of this difference, and rho' we can mid the Life: give no particular account of the various Laws obfery'd rene be. tween the lame winds things, which pretty constant experience has juftify'd, whole pats are to be woken police of In Europe we find that in and Errors. the Summer time our molt cool and pleating Scafons are in the Morning, the Evenings being more frequently (if compared with chem) hot and fulery. Concrariwife in Peru (and it holds too in many places in the middle Zone) they feel forme of their greatest heats in the Morn ing, because at that time the froth Winds from the Sea done blow upon them, but towards the middle of the Day thofe Winds (with their constant and fared course) return and make the air cool and plealans. Again, the North Winds which with us are tarp and piercing, yes differ les Mitts and Clouds, and clears the air, is in many Pares of Peru croubleforte add unwhollome, darken the air, and brings Rain along with-it very frequently Fife t. of the On the other hand their South Winds are healthy and retrething, and make very bright and platens wreathe alone the Plains and Coat of that Country; and yet neither of thee Roles will hold universally, for the have there exerencly cold and dry North Winds, and their Kain wet South ones, as is well known in dome of be ex mountainous Parrs of Pori and Chili Again, our Sols heal chart Wind, is reckon'd far left mild, kindly arid colmul, than the zephyrus is; bur here (and to cis all Torrid Zone, the Eatery wind, which the call the Brecze, bows nor only pleasure and refreshment tut health and advantage to the Body a One cants fay is dee more lo than the Wefterly does, because char Wind that is the full WeRt, feldom or hardly blows at all be She wit and coven the Tropicks.) As for the order and consequence dry Sextons. of the dry and wee Scafons one upon another, the Rule cterains here that is eftablith'd by univerfal Experience c: cry whereto the Torrid Zone, that when the Sun is fartheft from them they have their fairest and dryeft ingather, and the contrary when he returns and comes a sw their heads again. Thus in Peru, when the Sun manes his courfe towards the Trepick of Cancer, the ais is very clear and calm; they have nothing of Rain or Snow, all their Rivers fall, and rome are quite dried up On the other hand, as the Sun approaches to them, and comes to line with more direct and forcible beams uponthem; the Rain and Snows come on roo, and the Rivers well and overflow their Banks. The fame Law is observed in proportion in the Coat of New Spain, the Inands of Hifpamiola, Cube, and St. Foin de lotto Rico, and uniterfally on the North-fide of the line, with reference to the Sun's accefs to the Tropick of Capricorn, as Defence on the South-fide with reSpect to that of Cancer. But erweenthe this law this well known) holds only in the Torrid Torridond Zone, for all the Regions without the Tropicks base tomperetes in Rain and Snow, and all that foul weather when the Sun pontor'wes. is farthest from them, and together with the return of ter. that Luminary, not only their great heat, but cleared sky and deicft weather too. This Rule is fo well confirmed by Observations throughout the World, that 't is not to be in the leapt queftion'd.
The romper and constitution of the Land is to be confiderdigith respect either to the low, the high, or the Conntixyion middedands. In general, the low parts towards the and D.valon Sca-Coaft are hor and moift, and not fo fir to be anhabiof the Lond. ted, nor near fo healthy as ochers are. There are forme of them that are plainly uninhabitable, not only by tea Son of the Sands which lis in vat mountains in many marly grounds.

Sands and
mature and afire
Mass. places; bur the warty plant Grounds, which is che other extreme; for the warts that fall from the Mountains, finding no outlet in che fe flat and low Lands do perfectMy drown them, and render them unfit for living in. and what by one and the other of there, especially the latter, the greateft part of the Coat of this Empire, particulariy that upon the South Sea, is made a very ill form of a Hatiationt. Only cis to be fad, that this admits of an exception. with respect to fore Parts of Peru, where the low Lands are cool, fertile and healthy.: The high Lands are cold and dry, very healthy, bat not very fruitful nor pleasant; yer there are Pafture Grounds, and good fore of Cartel, our of which they fupply their want of Corm and Grain, but then they have the advantage of having the rich Mines amongst them, and all things we know obey gore and Silver. There two advan: ages- of Pasture and Mines in the high Lands, do connciriut the ether two of Trade, and abundance of Wines which are found in the lower along the Sea-Coaft. The middle lands are moderate in temper as: well as fituation, they have not the hot muggy air of the one, ny forts of Grain, as Wheat, Barley and Maize, which grows not at all in the high Countries, but pretty wall in the lower. There's alto delicate Ralturc-Grounds, Fields full of Cartel, Orchards and Gardens of Fruit, and an admirable mixture of Woods and Forclts. This is the part of the Country that is best form'd for Health and Pleasure; and 'is the mot crouded and thronged with Inhabitants, who live here a forts of Paradifiacal life.
But for a more particular Account of the Nature and Nature of Quality of the Land, we may confider how it is in the the Lard two well-known Parts of this vat Empire the Countries Alecto of Mexico and Perry. As to the former, 'is observed that what way focver you enter is you are upon the atcent, and having mounted a good height you begin to fall again, tho' but a very little. All the Land about Nim Sperm and Mexico is of this nature, not bur that there are high Mountains and deep Valleys; bur the bufines jos, that the main of the Country lies thus confiderably elevated above that which runs along the SeaCoat. Pera is no be confider'd as divided into three Tie Lan lin Parts, which are called by the Spaniards the Lemon, the Pars. Sicrins, and the Andes. The Limos runs along the Sca-Lino, ser Coast, the Sierras be all Hills with rome Valleys, the Andes are hep and craggy Mountains. The Lanes takes up forme to leagues in breadth, in Come Parts Ifs, and in others a little more; the Sierras run tome 20 leagues in: breadth, the Andes as much, fometimos more and sometimes lefts. Ir never rains upon all the f.anos or SeaCoat, bur fomeciunes there falls a finall dew; to defend themselves from which the Inhabitants need no more than coverings of Mats; with a little Earth upon chem. Upon the Andes it rains almoft continually, tho' sometimes the Seafons vary there as to more and less. In the Seras, which lies betwixt both the Extremes, the Rains obcave the fame Salons that they do in Spain. The Sitr-Goumand as abounds with a fort of wild Goats and Sheep, and Sheep. their Valleys are very pleafant and full of Fruits. The Andes afford great numbers of Apes and Parrots; and Parsons. here alpo they find the Plant Coca, which is fo greatly plant coca efteemed of the Indians, and of the Trade of which they make fo much Money. The Andes and Sierras run along for above 1000 leagues in view with one another, and aloof parallel too. Beyond the Royal City of $\mathrm{Cu} / \mathrm{co}$ Great Chamthey open from one another; and form a large and fa pion cious Champion, replenith'd with abundance of fine Ri verse and flourithing Pastures. It is a healthful Soil, the belt Peopled, and the richeft of all the Indies for all kinds's of Provitions, Corn only excepted; bur they have all the Carrel of Europe, befides thofe that are peculiar to the Country, and excellent Fowl, particularly fore of Fowl. Partridges. This is call the Province of Call os; s the Province next to which, namely charcas, has abundance of very colas. fruitful Valleys, and Mountains that afford che richer Fruit in the World, which is the charming Metals of Gold and Silver.
There are feveral very great takes in this Country : Lakes. The Lake of Titicaca, in the Province of Callao, (just of Frat Lake now mention'd) is full 35 leagues in length, and 15 in of Thisca. breadth at the wideft place, and there are io or 12 great Rivers that empty themselves into it. The water great alt nor brackinh like that of the Sea, but has fo many ill qualities that 'ri nor fir to be drunk; there are feveral lands in is which formerly were inhabited and cultirared but now lie waste, but for all char Lake is incabred fill, and you may fee a great many Villages of In- Flowing rit diann floating in it. For this to be noted, thar there grows here a fort of Reed which they call Tortore, of which they make 2 fort of Boats, and then crying a good number of there all together they compote a Village, which removes from place to place according as their Occations lead them. The Lake is well replenish with kina and Fill and wild Fowl, which are the things thee widianj Fowl mainly depend upon for their livelihood. Tho' it receives fo great quantities of water, yer is has but one vent only, which running in 2 current for at leapt $5^{\circ}$ leagues, forms at lat another Lase; this is left than che Original one, bur yer very large in it felt, and upon the Banks of it feed abundance of Cartel thar grow very at with the fine Patturage they meet with there. At the end of the Valley of Tarapaya, near Potofi, there's a Lake o round in iss circumference, that it Gems as if is had. been defcrib'd by Compass. Bur'tis Arranger fill, for the quality of its water ; in the middle it boils up like boiling Luke a lot for at least 20 foot square, which is the very riing of the Spring, and 'is to hot, that that companion is ut enoughalfo upon thisaccounc. They very frequenty bathe in it cowards che outward Parts, and near the Banks, but going farther this fo hor chat is not to be enedared. They have cur a great Channel which draws of a congderable tram of water from the lake, (for the

oath endpps and

$\qquad$ Flowing vil$\square$Fig and Fowl.
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
asur昰 Inland, which has feveral Baths of hot water, very wholfome and modicinal, and much us'd unon that fcore. The quanticies of Fiih it-affords are fo great, that the Revenuc of the Lake is ordinarily rcckon'd at 300000 Sonin, and Mcchoncan particularly are very full of Fifh; and as there are nor a.few, of them fo ris plain that the Inhabicanes can's wane that fort of Provifion.

This Country is admirably well watcr'd with Riyers, and fome of the greatef in the World have their rifc from fome parts of it. The River of Alviarado in Ncip Spain is a very confidcrable one; and thax of Magdalen, which falls into the Sea betwixt St, Mation and Corticgent, runs with a ftream of above two leagues breadch into the Occan, which it does with fuch a force, that for above 10 leagues it preferves ic felf dittinct and unmixt with the Sale water. Bur the great River of the oimazons, and that of Plate, are ftill more wonderful for their largences, velocity, and the grear quancities of water they pour into the Ocean. They both rife out of the Mountains of Peru, where they receive confiderable additions from the Rains, and other lirtle Rivers, The former opens into the Sca with 10 wide a mouth, that tis almoft incredible; a Man fees only Sky and Water there, and 'tis jutt as if he were in the great Occan "ris much abour or near the Line thar is thus communicates with theSca. Someallow it $70^{\circ}$ leagues of breadrh in that place, orhers nos fo much, but all agree 'tis the greatect River known in the World, and neither the Danube, Nilk, Volta or Ganges, are comparable to it. The Tides flow almoft 100 leagues up the River, in which refpect alio ic may claim precedency of all the Rivers in the World char have been yee difcover'd. The River of Plate runs into the Sen in abour 35 degr. S.L. and fometimes' tis fo overcharg'd with waters, that it drowns all this Dcluge holds for a matter of 3 Milics, and then the River returns to its ordinary Courfe or Bounds again. The Natives, when they find this coming upon them, they quit their Habitations, and retire with all theis Goods into their Canoes, and fo floar up and down till the fwelling River fanks again, and makes way for them to return to their Hourcs. On the South-hide of the Mountains of Pcru the Rivers are not ufually fo great, becaufe their Currents are not long, and many warers cannot join their forces together; burthen they are tery 反wift in their defcent from the Mountains, and have fudden falls, upon which account they are very dangerous, and many have loft their lives in attempting to Divers ways pats them. The methods that the Indians have to help People over their Rivers are various, and fuch, as they that cry them had need be above the fears of drowning In fome places they make ufe of a long Rope that reaches from one Bank to the orher, on so which is faften'd a Basket, and in that the Party that is to pais over purs himielf; to then the Indians that undertake the bufincls fwimming over to the other fide, they drag him by the Rope along to them. In orher places they ride aftride upon a wadd of fome lighr ftuff or other, and mount the Paffenger behind them, and fo with a piece of board, inftead of an Oar, they row themfelves over. Others of them again, do compofe a kind of a Floar of Gourds or Pompions faften'd together, upon which they place all the People, and their feveral things that are to go over ; on to this Float they fix certain Cords, which the Indirns that go fwimming before do pull, and fo tow along the whole Machine, while ar the fame rime others come behind, and do that feivice by thrufting which the others before do by pulling. Sometimes they have undertaken to carry Men over Rivers upon a Table-board, which they have born upon their thoulders, and this without any manner of fear or concern; and the lcarned Jefuic Acofta pals'd the Alvarado in Neip Spain after this manner, and tho 'rwas in a thallow part of the River, yet fometimes the Indians were many rimes our of their depth and loft their fooring, and then when 'rwas fo they prefently fell to dabbling and trading the water; fo that botrom or no bnetom, lefs floating ones made of Hair and Srraw fomerimes ina wide the Spamiards, tis true, have buit Bridges of Srone ovis foma Rivers, and the Indians may ufe them tis pofible when they lie in their way ; that is, if they have nor Gourds or Pompions at hand to make a Float of, or a wadd of Scraw, or fome fuch conveniency, which is much better chan a Bridge, which may rumble down into the water while a Man is going over it. In thore, there's no need of Bridges for l'cople that are as fafcin the water as upon the dry land, and in no more danger of drowning than the Fithes themfelves.

There are Springs and Fountains in this Country that Springeand have fomeching rare and wonderful in them. In Gunn-kountains. catelien in Pery, there's one that fends out hot watex, which as runs along pecrifics and tuxns to perfect Rock. $A$ perrifying It's true, this ftrange fort of Srone is fofr, light and cafie water. to cur, but yet tisitrons and lafting, and to fir for ufe that almoft all the Houies of the adjoining Village are built of it. They fay alfo, that 'ris very fatal for Mcn or leafts to drink of this watcr, and chere's no doubr to be made on'r, if it rurns to forre in their Bellies; to be fore 'tis no good Diuretick, and wont pafs quire fo well as a Chalybeat. But by means of this petrifying qualicy of the water, it comes to pafs that the Fountain blocks up is own way, and fo neceflarily changes iss Courfe, and is continually forcing it felf new parfages. As the Baths Incit Brts which they call the Ince's Baths, there are fome fireams which come almoft boiling hor out of the fround, and cloic by thele are orhers that are as cold as lce. In the Province of Ciarcas efpecially, there are a vat numiber of thefe hot Springs; and the Spaniards, who meafur'd Time by Ave-Meries, won and loft Wagers abour holding their fingers in the water while thofe fhorr Devorions pals'd, but a Devotion as warm as the water, wou'd havemade them find out fome other way to meafure the Time, while they were playing the fuol thus with one another; a Man can't well burn his finger to purpofe without crying oh! for's, and that's very pretry iport in the middle of a Prayer. Near cufeo there's a Fountain a Fourrain that has its waters impregnated with a Salr very whire tnict piclde and good, which it leaves behind as it runs along, and s.le. that in fuch quantities, that if the Pcople rhought it worth their while chey might make it tura to fome good account; bur they have fo much of this Commodity thercabouts that they altogether neglect ic. The waters medicinal which run in Guayaquill in Peru near the Lig, are rec-w.efr. kon'd good for the French Difeafe, and many orher cafes of the like nature; for which realon they are rifared by Pcople that live at a great diftance all round abous, and they talk of very great cures that are wrought by them. They amribute the vertue of thefe watcrs to the Saffaparilla, thar the Country is known: to abouad with. Out of the Mountain Bilcmofa in 'Peru' there iffues a Spring, the water of.which, as it comes juft from the Rock, is of an Afh-colonr; and looks like Lye; befides ir calts a fume from ir like a thing that's on fire: it continues af-Smoking wa er this manner for a grear way, till the ftream has fo ${ }^{\text {ter }}$ many other waters.mix'd with it, that all the heat and fuming is quite gone. There are allo Springs, the wa- Waters of ra ers of which are of very odd colours; -thus in New Spain, rioun sionur there's one, whofe-water is blue and in Peru another of a blood red colour, the ftream of which the Inhabicants call the Red River; but as to the Vercues and Rroperties of cither of thefe, we can give no account.
If we Survey thefe Parts of the World, we fhall find votemont two burning Mountains and Vokeanoes, no lefs terrible than thofe famous ones of , Xfrne and $V \subset \subset$ fovius in Europe. That of Mcxice, which is near the Village of Angels, is A greas one a very confiderable one, and takes up fo much ground, by Acxist. that they go ruming and winding abour it in $x$ he afcent a matter of 30 leagues. There has been, no fire obferv'd yer breaking out of ic, but thick Clouds of fmoke are very common, and feen almoft every day; and fometimes it throws out grear quantities of Ahes and Cinders" too. Thefe Paroxyfors are ordinacily in the Morning and the Evening, tho?' Acofta cells us he has oblerv'd them at other rimes of theiday. That of Arequippa is alfo vaftly Tharof its. high, and the Mountains is all orer nothing but Sand ${ }^{-1 \text { quippa. }}$. ir has never flam'd vifibly, tho the effects of an inward fire are difcernible enough in the fmoke which ar certain rimes it fends out. Thofe of Guctimalle are more re. Thofe orima markable ftill, as well for their heighth and greatnefs; in in the $\$$ strith as the horrible flames that are feen to afcend out of them; sea, this Phenomena is often difcoverd by chofe that fail a great way off in the South Sea, they can fee at thar ditance, by the vaft Columns of fmoire and flame, when the Volcanoes are in their raging firs. ..The Country abour Quito has a confiderable hare in this fort of Calamity

754

 The Natural Hiftory of the Spanifh Indies in general.thathy2wite too; there's one in that neighbourbood that throws out in fren. Aftes and Cinders for inany leagues alour, and fomeAfhes and Cinders for many leagues alour, and fomedarken'd, and therc's litrle difference between Day and Night while thar combution lafts: " And the forementioned Author tells us, that he was in the City of Quire at a certain time when the Yodcano raged, and threw put fuch a prodigious quanticy of Afhes, chat the Reople were not able to walk the Strects for't.
Perthquikes. To the Volcanoss we may not improperly add Earth quakes, which are another, tho' a very formidable head of the Natural Hittory of this Gountry. The Empires of Mexico and Peru are both liable wo them, bur efpecially the latcer, which if it were not for this inconvenience trou'd be above objection in every poins, and comparifon in moft; but is muft be acknowledg'd that 'tis fubject to there direful concuffions, and its neighbour chili is cqually expos'd to the fame calamity too. It was but City of $G$ me fimainde.

Mrgquippa
A flock from Culti fogmits.
Drendful
in Gitio. n A. D. 1586. that the City of Gmatimala was almont all no there had then becn yomiting out whole torene o fire for fix mondhs ropecher, without any confiderable intcrinifition by day or by night. The fame was the fare of the City of Arcquippa about three years before that A listle before that chere was an Earthquake that as were, run along from Cbili as far as luito, which is aher roo leagues; but this was not lo terrible as anoof Chili, which entirely demolifh'd feveral Towns, over turn'd grcat Mountains, which tumbling down into Rivers itopt the Courfes of them, and converted chem into Lakes;' the Sea at the fame time was in a fearful com motion, and relinquilhing the Channel, the Ships in fereral places were left upon dry ground.
In the formentioned Year :586, or thereabouns, there was the like confulion as the Citr of Kimes in Pcru, and the adjoining Country ; ris rrue there were not many lives loft ar that rime, for the People were warn'd of the approaching mifchief by a difmal grumbling noife in the Bowels of the Earth, upon which they left their Houle and Gardens, and betook themfelves to the open Fields Bur a grear part of the City was ruin'd, and the Inhabitanes themfelves muft hare been deftroy'd too, if they had not retir'd farther up into the Country for by the convulfion the Sea was furioully thrown out of its Bounds, and carried near two leagues up inmo the land, the warer rifing above 14 Fathom, fo that che Country was perfectly delug'd for that diftance, and chere was no liying there bus in Boars or very high. Trees.
Lefin piolar
in Mexice.
aer are has io mare of Mife Misfortunes, but they are not near to violent there as in Prru and Conit tions of the airy Region, the frighrful Thunders and Lightnings that many other places have; but inftead of that, they are paid off with Earthquakes, which fort of Commotion is the more formidable of the rwo, and moft commonly atrended with the greater mifchiefs.
This part of the World has had the name for wonde ful Riches ever fince 'twasdifcover'd; and nor. without juft reafon, for none all ovex the Globe can pretend to fo great Treafures as it, if we reftrain the word to Gold and Silver, not but that there are Jewels and Pearl to befound here 50 in no fmall plenty in many places; bur perhaps the WcfIrdies will give the precedency to the Eaft in this marrer and acknowledge its own Pearl and Jewels lefs beaurifur and valuable than thofe of the orber. As for their Gold ning Gold Stone, in fome pieces of which you flall fee the Stome incermix'd and foreak'd as it were with gold, in others you fhall have half Gold and half Srone: And this Stone runs in a perfect Vein in the Mine as Silver does, as Acofta tells us, he was an Eye-wituefs in the Mines of - Curums in this Counry:

The fineft Gold is reckon'd to be that of Caranaves in Peru, and of Baldivia in Cbili; and next to this the Gold of Verogua. The Gold is commonly found mix'd with Silver or. Copper. but thar which is found mix'd with Silver is, generally fpeaking, of fewer Carrars than chat mix'd with Copper. What abundance of this rich they find it one of thefe three ways; either in Grains which is always pure, without any manner of mirure, and needs no melcing nor refining in the Fire; or in Duft, which is found about Rivers and Places where much water hath pals'd, and is to be Ceparated by wafhing away the Sand and Earth that contains it 3 . or elfe in Veins in a kind of Stone which comes our of Pirs and Mines, and requires much labour ro dig if our of the Earth ar firt, and refine ic in the Fire afterwards. The firft fort is not fo plentiful as the fecond and third, but is the fecond fort chat they get the larget quanuite in the Indies; tho ${ }^{2}$ there are Mincs that afford the Metal thefe Rrovinces yielded may be guefs'd by this, that the Incas of Perm had almoft all their Houmold Macerisls, and other Urenfils, made of it. They did nor nichen of se content themfelves with fmaller Veffels of Gold, as Pots, incat. Cups, Goblers, Flaggons, nor with she larger oncs, as great Kowles, and others of that fort, bur had even rheir Chairs of State, and Litters of Maffy-gold. And "tis certain alfo, that as Mexico she Spaniards found in che Tcmples Images of various forms, and of a very greas magnitude too, all of the fame folid Metal. As for Sil-silvar Minc. ver, the chief Places from whence chey draw that are the Mincs of Ncp Spain and Peru, bur thole of Peru do vafty fuxpals the others; and amongt all thefe, the Mincs Of forofs are the molt admirable. Tis true thoic of Pom which are 6 leagues difanc from Potof were difco a lo.Mimen ver'd long before chem, being open long before the-Spa- open. niards cyer faw the Councry; but cho' the Meral there be very good and rich yet by rafon of Comic obftructions ${ }^{\circ}$ chey have left off to dig there, 'Twas at leaft 12 Xears nerfi-Mines after the Spaniards had en'-ed the Country that the how dio Nines of poroff were difcovertd, which was.brought $2-{ }^{-1}$ verd. bout by this accident: A cermin Indian of the Province of Cufco (whofe Name Gualpa, for this. Difcoveries fake, we oughr to mention) being one day a Hunting, his Game running up fome parti of this great Mountann of Pofofi, where the way was very full of Buthes and Shrubs, he, to help himfelf along, carchid hold of a branciz or twig of fome Buth, and by that means pull'd it quite up; but happening to obferve che Earth about the roor of it, he faw the SilverOre, which he prefendy knew to be very good, having had confiderable Experience in thofe Matters by artending the Mines atheorco. At the fame rima allo, fearching 2 lictle farther, lif found Several pieces of Metal which lay difpers'd abour the ground near the place where he had piercd this Vein. Being thus fecure of his good fortune, he came feveral. rimes, and drew Silver our of chis valt Trealury, never giving the leaft hine to any body. Ar laft another Indicn his Neighbour (Guanca by Name) obicry'd nor only that his way of living was alter'd mightily for the berrer, and bo fpent at a very grear rate, (as a Man might well do that had the Mines of porofi to bear him our in't) buralfo that the Silver which he refin'd was guire different from that of Porco; this gave him a fulpicion of the truch, and he never lefr working rill he had work'd is quite out, and Gaelpaconfers'd the whole marrer to him; nay, more than that, went and hew'd him the place whence he had all his Riches. And now thele two Men agreed to fhare this glorious Mouncain bersveen shem; Graipn, forhis part, kepe the Veinhehad firt difcoverd, and Guance, for his, had another rich Vein very near the former. A very comfortable Subfiftence this was for each of them, and a fine Inheritance to be lefi to 2 Son, and chis, 'tis very probable, they mighs have cnjoy'd a long rime, if they had not clafi'd and fell out with one anocher ; but as Difcord helps to bring a grear many things to light, fo 'twas here. Guancas Vcin was very fine and rich, but'rwas harder to woik than Gualpas was, and therefore he wou'd fain have come in a tharer with his Comrade in che Profirs of his; bur che other nor being willing to admir of this, they fell out abont it, and Gance pretencly. went and difcover'd the Sccrer to his Mafter Villarocl a Spanirrd: 'And he having affur'd limmfelf, by Ocular Demomitation, of the truth of whar wat sold him, ofen'd the bufinefs to the Governor; and fo, according to the Law, he and his Servanr Gucica remain'd Lords of the Mine, to dig and draw forth the Silver as their own, paving only the King's. Dury, which is a fifth part. For tis to be nored, that thofe that difcover a Mine have the Profics of ic granted to them, and their Names are Regiftred in the King's Books, with the Place' and Time o difcovery.

Quickly after t'is, there were awo Veins more difro-More Vins ver'd in the lame Mountain of Posof, fo that there are difcovci'd. four in all chat they draw Silver out of; but the firft was the beft and. richeft, being halfSilver; and befides that wonderful frequency of it, if went on at thar rate for so or 60 Stades, which is fo many cimes 2 Man's heighth, but there it fail'd. All thetc. Veins lie of the Eaft-ade of the Mountion, neicher isthere any fuch thing to be difcover'd on, the Weft-fide. They run in very it- the odd firegulair forms, divers orther leffer ones fhoocing out of gure and hem 25 fo many branches ont of che arm of 2 grear we veins, Tree; in the widef parc they have 6 foot, and in the narroweft a fpan breadch. Every Vein has feveral difrinct Mines, which are parts and portions of the fame, and are divided berween feveral Proprietors' whofe Nanes they allo bear. The largelt of chele conmins abour 80 Yards, neither may in be more by the Law, and the leaft about 4 or 5. By consinual morking and drawing fuch valt quanticies of Ore out of the Bowels of koning that which came for Merchants and private Men, them they are become very deep, and in the rich Mine they reckon the depth in fome places to be. 200 Stades; 'ris true this is the greatuft deyth, bue they have gone in many other places, both of that and the other Mines, to 60,70 , and 80 Stades. To remedy the inconveniencics ariling from hence, they have made certain Mines or Paffages Horizontal ways from the lower parts of the Mountain, which running acrofs, nucer with the Vcins at laft ; and by this means, they work with.much lefs ancon Soccabones, and they makc tham a mater of 8 foo broad, and a Stade in heighth, having Doors to fhur and open them as they pleafe. They coft no little charge and troubic to fininh, and one omly of them was 29 Xears a making; but there are feveral of them, and the Propricrors of cvery Soccabonc have this advantage allow'd thein, that che 5 th part of all the Metal drawn forth is theirs. But the Mcn that do all the work of the Mines, that labour at drawing out the Silver, arcSlaves indeed. They work in conrinual darknefs, withous

Chap. XIl. Of the Wett-Indies, under the Dominion of the Spaniards. 755

The hard hut work in wowledge or daftinction of Day and. Night. Tbey be mines, lick fuencs and vaporis, which breed horible Dircal and make them tery fick. They have the faw fuell of the Earth continually in their Noftrils, and are exposid to all the damps that cifc, which many tumes are attended with fatal coniequences. Bur then the dangers of being cruth'd with che falling Earth, or thicir own falling from fuch heighths, they are fore'd to mount soo in carrying up the Silver; as they ane very grear, fo they are continual, and it can never be faid char chey live one momens in faftry while they are in chofendifmal Caverns. They carry up all the Meral upon their fioulders, from the lowece depths of the Mine, perhaps $1 \% 0$ Stades high where they deliver it. For which purpofe chacy have pendulous Ladders made of twifted leather, and crots'd with Staves of wood, by which they are concinually af cending and defcending with their burdens upon the Backs. Ar the end of each of thele Ladders, there are Platforms of Wood rais'd with Scats for the poor La bourers to fin and breathe themfelves. And 'tis a valt deal of pains they take in hewing out the Mctal at the botrom of the Mines, for'ris commonly very bard, and they are forc'd to ure great hammers to overcome it they weary themfelves with frong and theavy blows apon tize bard and untractable Roch, "and get no mor ground many times than by working uponcio much Flint.
What Pliny has faid of the workers in Ninites at that rim's Ac: time, agrecs very well with the cafe of thete poor Labourers at Poe-f : Whe enter cuen into the very Boprels of she Earth; 'fays he) and go bunting aftar Riches ro tje phace of the Damed. Tbofs chat feek for Metals performbforks mor thanGiants, making Helcs and Caves in sbedepths of ihe Earth, and prercing Mountains by the lighs of Candles, ppere Day and Nighe are all aitike, and tue fec no ligho of tie Sum for meny Months. With beary Wedges and Hammers chey picrec the bard Rock, and brenk the Fints bowp frong foeser for the hunger of Gold is yce wore harp and fiong. Thas that Author, who ralks as if the Mines of Potofi hac becin difoorcr'd in his rime, and he had ftood by and feen the Workmen in all their toil and drudgery. Bu Gowever it comes to pals dhat the Spaniards are come a broad into the New World to ferch Gold and Silver, 'ris certdin fromi the foremention'd Author that they had it in no fmall plenty wichin cheir own: Territorics. He reports that Spain, above all ocher Councries of the World (that is which were known anid under the Roman Jurifdiction) did abound with Gold and Silver efpeciaily Galicia and Portugal, and above all the $i f f$ turias, whene
 (he fays') they brought every Xcar 20000 pounds of Gold and that they did not find fo grear plenty in any othe place. Particularly lie rells us; thar the lits or Holcs o thofe Mines in Spain, which they began to dig in EFannibul's cime, were remaining in his time, and beld til then the Names of their Difcoverers. Amongft rhere, that which Bebello difeover'd was very fampus, and kept that Name in Pliny's time, and was then allo dug to the depth of 1500 paces invo the Mountain, which they having contiuraed to labour in it from the cime of Hannibal til hen. But the advantages which that'great Carthaginian -. made of ir were very confrdexable, for according to the account of our Hiftorian, thes brought every day $300 /$ Richesof the weight of. Silver out of it; yet is all this in a manner inMine of $B_{5-}$ confiderable to the Riches brouglat out of the Amarican wailo. Wurld, for Aceffa rells us, that the Flect in which he came from thofeParrs, brought 12 Caifons of Gold, every one of which was 1001 . weight, befides a vaft deal more in Bass, all which was the King's fiare, not reckoning that which came for Mcrchants and privatc Mcn, which Was all Regiftred, and much lefs fitl that which was not Regiftred, which amounted to a greater Stum yec. At the fame time there were above 11000000 of the rast Silver tranfported in the two Flects of Mixcxico and Peru, quantivie of and very near half of it was for the King. In whore, it Silver sha appears by the Regifter-Books for the Province of Por-arce brouph afi, that they did every Saturday enter fometimes is 0000 , from Amt Conctimes 200000 Pieces into the Books, whercof the Ming's fifth Part amounted to 30000 or 40000 Picces; To that cuery day they drew frum this Mine to the valuc of 30000 Pieces, (every Picce worth 13 Rials and half) and the Kings daily thare was at leaft 6000 Picces.
At this rate have the Mincs of Americe poured ous their Riches to the $5 p, s m i n r d f$, which will appear vafly greater yet, if it be confider'd that the doft part of the Silver, which the lorfi Mines have afforded, was never Cuftom'd, which notwithftanding went about amongit the Indians and Spaniards; nay, if we may depend upon the credit of $A e j$ jta in this matter, not the one third Part no not half of the Silver of Paref, ever was Cuftom'd, or came into the open light.
The work gocs on fo much the cafice in the Mines of wo wate: : Porff, becaufe they never yet have met with any waterthemane to ftop them in all sheir diggings ; and tis the harpinef Serof (one may fay the wonder) of this Mountain, that they have gone to the depth of 200 Stades, and never had any hinderance upon that feor:. But as this is a very common impediment in Mincs, fo perhaps 'twas pardy owing to this that they made no more progrefs formerly in thofe in Spain, or that they did not think fir to continuc working in them: For fliny reports, that the famis Mine of Bebello was very full of water ("twas even like a River coming in upon the Labourers) and thercfore that the Geffoignes, who were cmoploy'd to work int it, befdes all their roil of hewing and hammering out the Meral; were incredibly farigu'd with drawing out and emprying the water: till which was done they were not able to woik, at leaft with any manner of cafe and quiet and this was alfo the cafe of the Mines of Porco in Peru.
As for the quality of the Silver they got ar Potof $\bar{i}$ tis Qualitites of very diffucne, for in one and the fame Vein you fall the silver. meer both with very rich and very poor Ore, Come of it is red, another forr anh-colour, and foof divers colours; but the richeft of all is of the colour of Amber, and the next to thac inclines to a black. They baveufually drawnout of one Quintat of Ore, 30, 40 and 50 Pieces of Silver, but our of the fineft 200, and 250 ; the pooreft of all is that which yields 3,$4 ;$; or 6 Pieces
Their way of refining the Silver was firft of all by Method of melting, and diffolving the Mals over the fire, and ingreining by hat ifatc of liquefaction the Drofs, and all hecerogencous fire out of Mixtures, were calt of b, themfelves. For chas purpofe they buile abundance of frial Furnaces all abour the Mouncain of Pooff, (chere were above 000 of them) where wirh Wood and Coal-fires they carry'd can ahis Work ; bur becaufe ir confum'd valt quanticies efyood to do fo, one who it feems fer himfelf to concrive a way how to fave thar charge, and yet do the work roo", found our che way of ufing a fort of Straw intiead of Wood and Coal. It is a thing almoit like a Reed, and ches call ir $X$ chor ; bur 'ris wonderful to fee what an infucnec the flame of it has to diffolve there Merals, and how much berrer is does than any other fart of fucl. Then therc's this conveniency too, that there's great plenty of it throughont almoft all the Mountains of $x$ eras: And this is agreeable to whar Pliny tells us upon this Head thas there is Gold which melts more cafily with the Giune of Straw than with hor burning Coals.
In fome of there Furnaces they ufe thennacural; in A Aruge ochurs an artificial Wind from Bellows; and 'ris worthore obfervation what has been connirm'd by long Experience, that the Metal of the Porco Mines is catily xetin'd with Bellows, and that of Porofi cannor be but by the natural air from the Mountains; bur of later Years they have for the moft part lefr off their Furnaces, and make ufe of Mercury for the refining of cheir Sitver.
In order to this, they beat and grind thic Silver-Roneminested of or Ore very finall in the firt place; after which they eftifety. rearch in, reducing it ro as fine a Rowder as they can. This Powder they piut inco Veffels over the fire, mizing a good quantity of Sale with it; which promotes the defign of feparation of the Impurities; the common proporion is 5 Quintals of Salt to 50 of the Mertlick Pown der. Then they frain the Quickfilver into the Veffer, ftrring it about well that all may incorporate together. And whereas they at firf us'd to do ah this off fron the fire, mingling their Silycr and Mercury ingreat Troughs. and foftirring and letting it fercle feveral timies one afice another, which roni up almolt a Montr to accome.

756 The Natural Hifory of the Spanifh Indies in general.

plif, they have fince made ufe of fire, which mightily, this difcovery the Mines began to be opence, and valt promotes the work and thortens the time, fo as that in quantities of Quickfilver were tranfported to Mexiec, the fpace of 5 or 6 days the Mercury is fufticiently in- where they firft began to refinc their Silver with ir ; and corporated with the Silver. After this union of the two from thence the merhod was brought to Porffi, where Bodics, the great work is to feparate them again, which they us'd ir cver afterwards. The largelt of all thefe separnion of they do in this manner: They pour the whole mixture the Silver mod into water, and ttir it about well, by which means all Mercaly.
the Earth and Drofs is clear of the Mercury and Silver, which being by far the more ponderous, take their places at the bottom accordingly. This operation they re peat feveral times, till they have perfectly eleanfed it from all che feculencics. When che Silver and Mercury are clean and begin to fhinc, they pur all into a Cloth and frain it pretty forcibly, fo that all the Quickfilver funs our and leaves the Silver behind. Bur becaufe there is fome of the Mctal that Mips awzy with the Earth and Drofs (which they call the wamings) they thercfore walh Difference of this over again, and draw out the remainder. The Sil the Oress ro acr Ore differs much as to the proportion of Mercury it zis Mercury confumes, and the quancity of pure Metal is yields, for is cuks
fome yiclds a greatdeal of Silver, and waftes but litale Quickfilver: Anvther again confumes a deal of QuickGalver, and yields little Silyer; a chird fort confumes much Quickfilver, and at the fame cime brings a great deal of Silver; and a fourrh, as it xequires bur litre $\qquad$ Quickfilver, fo it affords but litele Silver. Bur yer 'ris obfervid, for the moft part, that the richeft Ore, as it gives the moft pure Metal, fo it confumes the moft Mercury, and the quite contrary in that which is foor and Rexining by thin. The Silver drawn with Mexcury is to finc, that mercury ur. the Workmen are forced to allay ir with fome mixrure; ancients butchis Art of refining, as ufeful as it is, there is fome good reafon to believe rwas unknown to the Ancients in Pliny's time at leaft, fince when he makes mention of the refining of Siltcr, he fpeaks only of melcing, and fays in ene place plainly, that Mercary will afforiate it felf with no metal but Gold alone, which this way of re fining is a fufficient confutation of Having had occafion to lipeak of the Ufes of Mercury it mayn's be amifs to go a litule farther into the Hiftory of this wonderful Metal: The Country we are rreating of affords it in abundance, efpecially the Mouncains of Quickrilver Guancavilica, near the Cary of Guartiangua in Perk; ther Minssof cim is the valt Treafury of this Meral, $2 s$ in che Mounrains. Pata/f is of Silver. The Indicms have had indeed Mines fore the fo of open amongt enem for many Ages be nor for the fake of the Quickfilver (for they knew niot what it was till the spaniards came amongft them) bur for che fake of the Vermilion which is incorporated with is; for we muft know that Quickfiliver is found in a fort of Stone, which likervife yields che Vermilion, or Minium, asthe Ancients calld it. The Indicns give it the name of Limpi, and having a very great eftcem for it, they took abundance of pains to open che Earth, and

The urifa
rome othor
faniols put
Savio $1 \times$ pus Of no. an or the deepeft Mines: and the principal ure they made on'r was, to painr and colour chemfeltes with ir, efpecially when they went to the Wars; as alfo now a-days, upon all Publick Solcmnities, Fcaltings, Dancings, and the like. Neither is it amongit thefe Pcople alone that this Mineral has been in fuch efteem; for Pliny reports that both che Romians and Ethiopians were very fond of it, for chefe and fuch like purpoles; thar the former were accuftoh'd to paint the face of fupiter with ir, and the latter not only the faces and bodies of their Idols, bur allo their own; and that the Romans fometimes did this too as well as they. That all the Vermilion was brought to Reme from Spain, where they-had a grear many Pits and Mines of Quickflver, and that the Romans wou'd nor fuffer it to be refin'd in Spain for fear they loou'd fteal fome of ir, bur had ir all broughr to Reme feal'd up juft as it came out of the Mine, and fo refind it there. In a word, that they brought every Year from Spain, efpecially from Andalufia, a matier of 10000 weight; and this, he fays, the Romans valued as an infinite Treafure. This Mineral however (as was faid before) the Indians had known of a long.ime, bur knew nothing of the Narure and Ules of the Quickfilver which is to be drawn ont of the fame Mals. And the Spanizrds themelves bad been in the Country a confiderable while before they knew of any of there Mines; and the firf difcovery, as it was of the Mines of Guancavelica, fo is was purely accidenral like that of theSilver at Patrf $\hat{1}$. For a certain Portuguefe (Herrique Gürrces by Name) having a piece of this Limpi which the Indians ufed, obferving it well, found that it muit needs be the very fame thing wirh that which they calld Vernilion in Caftile, and Welt, found that it muit needs be the very fame thing wirh that which they calld Vermilion in Caftile, and knowing that this and Mercary were lodg'd together, he went to the place whenice they drew their Limpi to make trial of its and found is to be fo. Immediarely upon werct:
wurd

Mines cxicnds above 80 yards in lengeh, and 40 in breadth, in which they have made. feveral Pirs and Ditches of 70 Srades deep, to that at lealt 300 Mcn may very well work altogether init.
The way ofdrawing our che $Q$
Sone and bear is well and then fer it in is to take the How they lofe luted, occe the fire 0 mer iet it in Earthen-pors, , draw hick Mofe luted, otcr the fire so melr, by which means the Mercury is feparated into a body by is felf; for mounring up in fumes it ericouncers the Veffil, and fo falls down again congeal'd. When 'tis thus drawn they put it into Skins, and lay it up in the King's Store-houlc rom whence is goes by Sea to Ariqua, and from thence by Land upon their Sheeps back to the Mines at Rosofi Twill be of lirtle ufe here to ftand to deferibe their En- Engines for tines and Mills for grinding theSilver Ore, to prepare in trindung th or the receiving of the Mercury; 'tis enough to fay in eneral, that in frome of them they ufe the ftrenerh of Hories, in others the force of Water to fer them awork and this water being for the moft patt Rain, they biave Ponds and made 7 Ponds for this receiving of it, which are three srades deep, and 1600 Rods in compafs, and each pro vided with their proper Sluses; fo as chat when they have need of any water, they open a Sluce, and let out Itream of water as much as chey have occation for : but becaufe for the moft part they have little Rain, exepr in the Monchs of Dccember, Fanuary and Februar and then if they come plentifully, their Ponds are well fill'd, and the grinding holds for 6 or 7 Months; for his reafon, all about Poofof, they pray for Rain for the ake of the Silver, as they doin other places forBread-corn Afrer the Silver is melted and caft into Bars, the nexr work is so give it the Alloy; for which 'tis carried to the Affay-mafter, whofe bufinefs we will leave to himfelf and nor dive into it. Having been thus long in the Mine, twou'd be unpleafant to detain the Reader any longer in the Mint; we thall only obferve a litrle farther concerning the Mountain of Potofi, that the Air abour it is very cold, the Soil dry and barren, the Ways very rough Fruin uneven. There grows neither Grafs, Grain nor The MounFruir, and what thro' the infertility of the Earth, and the tain of foref intemperature of the Climate, 'rwou'd be utterly void of and dimenco Inhabitants, if the charms of Silver did not draw them fions, $仑$.. thither. But the ourward Poverty of the Mountains is not valued, fince 'ris to extravagantly rich within ; co yctoufnefs bas made People overlook all thofe defects and inconveniencies, to rhat'ris more plentifuly fock'd with Inhabitanes chan any other place in all the Kingdom of Peru. You may have rhere all forss of Meats, Wines, yea, the moft exquifite Daincies whalfever, tho" the place ir felf is hardly able to keep a Man or a Horfe from ftarving for one Night. The Mountain is vantly higher than all others abour ir, 'tis reckon'd from the rop to the botrom 1680 yards, and 'ris a league in circuit ar the botrom.
The other part of the Riches of this Country lies in $\begin{gathered}\text { pearl in the }\end{gathered}$ Pcarl and Emeraulds. Of the former we have fpoken North Sina up and down already, fo chat we fhall need to fay no wcllas ihs more here; only taking notice, thar whereas the grevteft ${ }^{\text {South }}$ plenty of them has been cormmonly faid to be at the Pearthands in the South-Sea, near Panama, Acofta relates that the beft and greateft fore were found ar the time of his being in the Indies in the North-Sea, neap the River of Hotch. But to fpeak the truth, the Pefrrl-I/ands ceem to hare been difcover'd fince that time, fo that the North-Sea might afford the moft and beft then, and the Sourh-Sea have the repuration afrerwards. As to the Emerxulds. Emeraulds, the greareft ftore of them is found in the Kingdom of Nem.Granada, and in Peru near Manta and Port-Visl, according to the accounts of the fame Autbor. He tells usalro, thar rowards thar place there is a cer- The King. tain happy Soil which bears the Name of the Land of dom of Eim Emeraulds, for che abundance of themi which are found there; but the Spaniards had not been able no reduce that Couniry, and miake themfelves Mafters of the Emcraudds in his time. Thefe Jewels grow in Stones like Crytal, and: (as he rells upon his own Obfervation and texperience) appear fathion'd like a Vein in the fame. There's pifferences a vaft differcice amongtt chem as to the perfection of co- betwect lour, and the diffution of the green tincture chro the body of the Jewel; for fome are half white and half green, others vcry near all white, others 'very perfect and tinctur'd with the true noble green all over. Their fizes are as different roo as their colours, and tho' there lizes are as different too as meir colours, and tho thicre are fome reported to be of a vaft magnimule inlecd, yes the forementiond Aurhor sever pretends to have feen

```
            Slxy:
```

$\square$

$\qquad$
$\qquad$

[^0]

$\qquad$ well as ths
South.
$\qquad$

$\qquad$

$\qquad$
The King
ther. ..... them.量

(hap. XIll l be Natwal Hiftory of the spanilh Indies in general.
any larger than a good Nur. Both Pcarl and Eitheraulds are litele efteem'd in the Indics, in comparifon to what they are in Errope; and there is no orther rcalon for't but only this, That things that People converfe with very familiaxly and frequently (whatever they are) ar laft become litule and vulgar to them: Even Diamorids themfelives wou'd not be exempred from this common fate of lofing their repuration, if they came abroad it the World a as much as many other things that do. It was perhaps ving an admirable Emerauld, thew id it the Itealian, and ask'd him the valuc of it, who rold him he priz"d in at 100 Ducats; upon which he fhewid him a larger than the former, and that the lenlian valued at 300 Ducats. The Spaniard quite dxunk with shis difcourle, carries his Lapidary home to his Lodging, and fhews him a whole Calket full of the fame Jewcis, defiring his opinion of them: Oh, Sir, (fays the Italian) they are very good Stones, and cake them one with another they are worth a Crownapicce. :'Tis pretry likely he had fome defign upon a bargain, bur whether the Spaniard let him hiave is or no is uncerrain.

We have done now with the Riches that are buricd under the Earth, or hidden in the Waters, and if follows nexr to take a listle furvey of thofe upon the furface, the Plants and Animals, which are more ufeful to humane life by far thay the former. Bur here we thall cin which are take care, thate thofe, Animals or Vegetables Parts. which have been already deferib'd, fhall thofe omitred, at leaft as far as the varicries and ambiguitic of Names will allow us to make a judgment of them.
The moft noted Grain in this part of America is che Maize; of which the Indimns make borh Bread, and a very frong furt of Liquor; which inroxicates the drinker fooner than the juice of the Grape. If is thoughr to be no way inferior to our Whear in ftrength and fubitance, only the eating much of ir, where a Man has nor been accufom'd to it, is faid to incline him to Scabs and Swellings. This Grain grows upon Canes or Reeds, every one of which bears one or two bunches or clutters, in each of which rhere mall fomerimes be 600 or 700 grains: They fow the grains one by one and not very thick nor clofe rogether; ir requires a Soil both hot and moilt, and where it meets with inch a one it thrives wonMaize is vcr and when 'ris dey it ferves them inftead of Straw: and to give them the Grain it felf, they eftecm much betrex than the giving them fo much Barley, becaule of the goodness of the nourihment it affords; only they obferve this Rulc always, to water them before they feed them trith this, becaufe tis of fo fwelling a nature. -The Spac nicrds.and Indians eat che Maize both boil'd and roafted and the buds of it being very far and oily, do ferve chem marnof preinftead of Butcer. As for the ways of making Liquor of pang is in onder ro ma-
it, fome fteep the grain till it breaks, and then they boil onver to mad
king drink. arin a degree of ftrength, that 2 little will overturn 2 Man . Others go i more cleanly way to work; which is -firft of all to chaw and dquecze is well in their mouths, and So making'a kind of a Iicven of it, to boil it well afrerwards : Nay, fome of the Indians are of opinion, that to make good Leven it muft be chaw'd by Old Women, Whichif they drivel fubttancially, may withour all doubr put fome verrue in it. This Drink is commended for the fervice in does to the Back and Kidneys, and for eafing pains in thofe Parts: one wou'd rather think (as the Old Women prepar'd it) it Shou'd Cerve for a Vomit, and white it cured one illnefs in the Back, chou'd bring another in the Stomach. Tis remarkable, that neither this Grain nor whear will grow to as to come to any perfretion in any of the Spaniblllands, as Hifpaniolc, Cubriz Porot-Rice, and, St. Domingo, tho' there has been nor 2 little care nor pains raken to bring ir to paits. For when they have beenf fown (for inftance Whear) it comes up well 'tis true, and is green-prefently, but fo unequally that it-comes to nothing; for $2 t$ one and the fame time fome is fpindled, fome is in the car, and fome does bur bud, here 'ris great and there fmall, in one place in the grafs, and in another in the grain. And finch is the quality of the Soil, that mo Arc nor Tillage cou'd ever cure this diftemper of it. The fame thing is obferv'd in fome parts of the Continent, as on the heights of the Sierras of Pery; and the Provinces of Coba, mone of this Grain will grow there, tho the caufe of, ity in, thefe Parts is the great drought and coldnefs of the Region, contrary to what is is in the forementiond places, where the fame effeet proceeds from too grear hear and moiftwre; Forwant of Wheat and Maize in thofe Parts of Peru, the Papa Roose Natives ofe a fort of Roors to make their Bread of, which they call Papers; they are likeGround-Nuts, very finall, and fond out a grear many leafs. They dig up thice Roots and dry them. well in the Sun, afrer which they bear them, and make them into a kind of Bread, which is not noly car privarely in their Houfes, bur grcar quan titics of it alfo are carcied to the Mines of Potefi.

Oberruation

This is; in hort, the chief of all their Roots for Breat, and tis of the fame ufe and fignificancy for that purpole in there Parts of the Country, that the Coffimi Roor is in thers. The Caffin is alfo found here, and a great many othicrs, which ferve partly as common Food, and partly as-Dainties, which we hall nos ftand here to recire the Namies of, fince we know limle more of them than "chat comesto." They have feveral ferts of pulfe a-s mongf them anfwering to our Lentils, Beans and Tares; but 8 coffa is of opinion, that none of thefe were in the Country before the Speniards cainc, who broughe them out of Europe hither, where they grow and increale to a woinderful degree. And there is hardly, any fort of Difiectace at Plant brought out of the European' Countrics in:o theff dred Endinntrent Parts, but what meets with a Soil fomewhere or other soils. that fuits it as well as the namu"al; tho' on the.other hand, thofe chat go from the Indies into Spain' or 'Portugal, ery feldom thrive and do well: In fhorr,' "tis hatid to kruis of the think of any fort of Europtan Grain, Pulfe, common Gar- Endics, den Herb, or Fruit-ace; bur what the Spaniaids la:e brought into America, and grows shere as well as can be defird. There it only an excepion as to Cherries, which-đon't profper fo weill : Medlars and Setviccs are aor very common neithet, as alfo Nuts and Filberd's. Oranges, Limons and Citrons, do grow and multiply moft extravagancly, and of the former efpecially, 2 Man may fee whole Woods and Forefts. The fame is to bo obrcrid (in proporion)' of Apricocks, Peaches ant Fiss; as for Apples, Pcars and Plumbs, tho they are to le nics with, yet they are not to very plentiful as the former, but none of thefe defects are perthaps to be impured to the Soil, but rather to the negligence or unskilful management of the People: :The indian Melons and Pompions yaf meto grow to fuch a monftrous bigners, that tis almoft incre-and pom. dible. The Valley of Yocir in Perü, is particularly fa-pions. mous for the former of chefe; ; the Roor coritinues feveral Years in the ground, and brings Mclons every Ycar, and they trim and drefs it as chey wou'd a Tree. Therince Pine-apples are of the fame form and faghion with there of Spain; but otherwife they differ, having nothing of a rcale, but are all one entire pulp as it were, fir co be caten when the skin is pulld off. 'Tis an cacellene Fruir borh for fmell and ratte, and the way thar they drefs is is to cut it in pieces, and fteep it a while in Salr and Water. They grow one by one upon a Cane or Sralk, which rifes up amonght a great many leaves like a Lilly, bur bigger. The Apple is on the top of every Cane, and ir grows only in hor moift ground. We muff note, with reference to this and fercral other Fruits; (and not only them, bur various other vegerable Productions; and Animals too) that the Spaniards at their firfe coming over gave thofe Europenn Names to things they found here, which refembled any way what they had convers'd with in Europe, and were calld by thore names therc. Thus, I fay, they call thefe Pine-apples, upon the fcore of a bare refemblance in one parcicular refpect as to the form ; and fo likewife 'tis the tame by thefe that follow. The Indian Cucumbers are fo call'd, becaufe (for the moft part) in length and roundnefs they refemble the Spanifh; but they are not green, but of feyeral colours, as violet, yellow and white. They are very plearantly tafted, full of liquor, eafic of digettion and very refrelhing in hor wefther. The Mar doss not tafte quite fortharp.as that of the Pinc-apple, and the ourfide is not at all rough and prickly, bur very fmooth and event. They require temperate Soil, and muft have pretty minuch watering. Thar which they call the little Fruit of Cbili is of a very pleafant tafte, nearer that of a Cher- Litele Frui ry than àny other Europern Fruir, but in colour and grairs refembles a Mulberry not ripe, tho' more rough and bigger than that: - The Plant ir felf is very litrle and The pant: low, Lpreading, in felf upon the Earth, and grows naturally $u p$ and dowrin the Fields of Cbilis $\because$ Of the Fruit which they call Prunes there are divers forts; thofenures of. call'd the Prunes of Nicaragua: are, very red and foraill and have little Meat upon the Stone, but that little is of an admirably pleafant tafte, and 'tis given to fick People o. provoke an apperite There are others which are very large, and of 2 dark colour, and have: each two tor three ftones apiece, bur fardly of any tafte at all. The Capolic is a Fruit fol like a Cherry in form and rafte only. 'tis fomething bigget) that it may well pals for the Kkkkk Cheriq capore.

758  The Natural Hiftory of the Spanifh Indies in general. Libs iV

Chicecppore
the Marme
lade Fruits.

Cherry of this parr of the World. The Capote and clicocapore, are calld the Marmelade Fruirs by fome, in that their tafte and colour do both come pretry near to that of this Sweer-meat ; there is but little difference between them, and boch are cried up by fome Peaple for stancimansar an cx-
celcars Fruis. celcnt Fruit the moft excellent Fruir of the Indics. Others give this titic to the Blankwanger, which is reported to tafte. like 2 mixrure of Almonds and Crearn. The form of it is like a Pcar; the Mcat within is whise, tender and foft, like Butrer or Crcann, and concains feveral black kernel.
AKimp. in it. The Mamsy is like a Peach, bur bigger; they hasc one or two ftones, and the meat and rind both very bard; the Fruie is but indifferent, but the Conferves made of it are like Marmelade. The Tree is large, well-fanion'd, and bears'a pretry broad leaf. The Fruir of Giunyos-Trees are like litrle Apples, bur ill raned, and full of lourc kernels, and hardy whollome Upon this account neither Man nor Bealt eats 25, and therefore the Trees are infinitely mulciplied, for the Fruit falling down, and recciv'd upon the hor moif Soil, fprings up inro a new Tree; and to che multipli cat:on procecas. In Peru the Guayoos diffor from others in that the fruit is not red but white, neicier has it any ill rafte, bur is altogether as good as the beft of chofe in Spcin, and paffes for a Fruit reafonably wholfome and agrecable to the fomach. The Patco is a Fruir like oux Pcars in form, bur in the infide very different, for it has a large ftone, and the ncar is fo fofr, that when they are full ripe 'tis of the confitence of Butter, and has a very delicare rafte. In Peru this Fruit is very large, and has a hard tough fcalc, which may be taken off whole in Aicxico it has a very thin skin, which may be peel'd off like that of an Apple. As for Coco's and Plantare, on Plantene-Trees, with their refpective Fruirs, they have been deferib'd in the relarions of other Parts; they are very common here in the Indies, and of both rhere are vatious forts. Altho there are excellent Almonds in Spain yet this Country affords a fort, that far exceeds them; they call them the Almonds of Chachapoys, and befides ther pleafing delicate tafte, the Phylicians have pro nounced in favour of them, that they are the wholfoment Fruir in tha Indics. 'Tis known that the Coco yiclds a Frr: of an Almond, and there is abundance of them brought out of the Andes of Peru; but as thefe are fat cer and richer than thofe of Spain, fo the Almonds of Cha chapoges are much richer than them of the Andes, tho they both come out of the fame Country, namely Peru. They grow upon very bigh Trees bearing great leaves chey are inclosd not in a hell, bur a forr of a husk fomething like thas of a Chefnut, bur befet with prickles.
Cramomight:
y eiterenid
two or three Picces ; in thort, all the Markets.and Fairs almoft depend upon it, and 'ris a forr of univerfal Mer chandize. It grows ina the Andes and Vaileys of Pa;, Diffeiry of where chere is an extreme and abundance of kain; and manging the abundance of poor Indians, thar come out of other Parts'ses. to labour abour the cultivaring of chis Plant, do here lofe their lives, what with the hardnefs of the work and the inter forratenefo of the weather, for "tis a very nice tender fort of a Vegetable, and fince it coft the lives of fo many Mcn to manage ir, the Spaniß Doctors fell into ho Difputes whether is mould not thanuire deftroy'd or no, howeicr at laft they agreed thar they thou'd ftand.
 ders are written; and to fum up the character of it in The Mante. hort, it jiclds Water, Wine, OHi- Vinegar, Honey, Neculles and Thread, and they far a grear many other hings befides. It is moftly a Nadive of Nici Spain, where the Indians efteem it at a great rate, and commonly have one of them abour their Houfes to furnim them with thefe. Neceflaries. At the end of the leaf which is very large) there comes out a ftrong and tharp point or prickle, which ferves for a Needle, and the leaf if felf is to be drawn oue into a kind of thread. The body of the Tree being cur, affords a Liquor very (weer and frelh, which they drink like water:- this Liquor boild becomes a Wine, and thar fulfer'd to ftand pen a while, foures and rurns to Vinegar; and the tame Winc-boil'd for a confiderable cime longer, thickens into the confiftency of a honey. The wood of this Tree being very light and fofr iseeps fire a long time, and exves for a lort of Touch-wood; the Indians thar have Guns ufe ir inftead of March
The Tunal is anocher nored Tree in New Spain, but The Thnta tis the moft deform'd and irregular of all Trecs, and more properly to be calld a confufed heap of Lcaves than a Tree. For firft, one leaf comes out of the ground, then another upon that, and fo they concinue upwards, bur as they grow up? thofe below become fo large that hey almott lofe the form and quality of leaves, and are rather grear braniches, but of yery odd figures and ikapes, and befides fo tharp and prickty, that the Plane has : in many places the name of a Thiftle upon this foore. There are fome of thefe Tunals that bear Fruir much eteemid amongft the Indinns; they are bigger than Plumbs, and have a fort of a hell, within which is the mear which is very like thar of a Fig. There are two kinds of them, the white and the red; the former of which are by much cle beft, bork for fweet tante and ane fragrant froell
As for Quinces and Pomrgranates, they abound in all anincts and parts of this Councry, only of the latrer tis to be ob- Pemsercrenme ferv'd, that rhey are all very fweer; neither do they value thofe that have any thing of blarpnefs, to that chere's none of that kind to be found Here's great plenty alfo of thofe cwo molt ufeful and $G_{r a f a}$ end erviceable Fruits, Olives and Grapes; each of which af-olimen. fords a Liquor, the benefir of which all Mankind is aciquainsed with. The Indians don'r much crouble themkelves with making 'Oil of their Olives, bur think is much better to car the Froit in felf; neither do the Spaniards follow this Trade much, but content chemfelves with the Oil they bring from Spain. The Grapes grow in all Parts of rhe Spanifh Dominions, Hands and all, buc they don't thrive any where fo well as in Reru; neither do they make any quantities of Wine comparable to what is made inthat Councry. The truch is, the Grapes plensy of don'r xipen fo kindly, the exceffive Rains thar fall keep Wins. them from coming to that perfection and maturity that Wine requires; and therefore they bring. Wine from Spain and the Canaries to all the Parts of the Endies, Peru. and Chili only excepred; which need no fupplies. from thofe Councries in this cafe. The Vines of Perm are vine of commonly in very hot Valleys, where there are Waters Pr running along for the refreftment of them; and they are forc'd to make ufe of thar ta water their Vines, for the Heavens there afford no Rain:- Bur jet there are fome places, where the Vines are neither watered by the Clouds nor from the Rivers, and for all that they bring forth in abundance; but they generaliy fay (ro account for this) that the Soil is well moiftned by the waters that fall from the adjoining Mountains, and that this kecps the Vines in beart, and is the reafon why they are fo fruinful under fo vifible a want of water. The molt fercile Valleys for Vines areVitior near Arequippra; yca, in the Texritory of Lima, and Caraguato in the Country of Chuquiavo; and from all thefe rogether are:drawn fuch ftore of Wines, that the Revenue is very confiderable. Tis remarkable; that in the City of $\epsilon_{u f t c}$, and feveral Valleys befides, there areripeGrapes to be met with iall. the Year round: Buc 'cis franger fill whas Acnfta trelates of fome Trecs in Perr, one part of which yiclds is indecd a fors which is nor at all difpleafing on the tafte, Frait for one half of the Xear, and the other part for and may be very well eaten alone as other Fruits are : the orther half; and he gives a particular inftanec of this but as for che common forts, they have no little thare of Vegerab. Cochinilc, tho not a Vegcrable, or part of a Vegerabler ell, yer being a fort of an Appendix to a fects which we give this name to (for Cocizini/c is no other than a dried Inlect) are found breeding in zrear numbers upon the leaves of one of the kinds of the Tunattrees; that Tree, 'ris rrue, bears no Fruir of its own, but the Cochinile is to valuable a one that the Tree is excus'd, and not only to, but mightily priz'd, tho otherwire barren. Silk is an Animal production too, but the Mulberry-rrees (thar maintain thofe ufeful lirtle Animals that make it) will allow it a place here. Originally there were no Mulberry-trees in the Indics, and confequently no Silk-worms. nor Silk, bur, the Spaniards fertling here, brought thefe out of Europe, where they thrive incomparably well; they make abundance of good Taffara's in the Country, but in Acoffa's time were nor come to the making of either Damasks, Sartins or Velvers.
We fhall nor trouble the Reader with a long Catalogue of Names of other fort of Trees; after we have been thus long upon the more ufeful ones, which by their Fruit, or fome production or other, are ferviceable to the Neceffities of Mankind. Oaks, Cedars, Pines, Firrs, Palms, Ebcny, are the moft common and well-known, as well as the moft profitable ones of the Country, for all the ufes of Life. The Molle is a Tree from whence the Indians draw a forr of Wine; it came originally from Perv, and ir has the name of che Periroian-crec at Mexico, but they do much better there than in their own narive Country. It mayn'r be amifs here to take notice of a vaftly great Cedar (as 'rwas reported to be) abour 3 leagues. from Guagaca in New Spain; this Tree was truck with Lightning from rop to bortom, and fo ftrangey too, that 'twas by that means all hollow'd in the infide. Being meafur'd within, is was found to be 9 fathom in circumference, and withour, near the Roor, it was 16 fathom, and a little higher 12. The Reople of the Country fay, that before the Lighrning Mhatterd it it was able to. fhelter 1000 Men , who mighr very well ftand under the fhadow of it; and 'tis pretry certain char they did ufe to come and dance, and perform feveral of rheir fuperfitious Ceremonies under it. All that remains of it now befides the ftock, is only fome of the great branches, which renew their verdure with the Spring fill;' and fhew fomething (tho' bur very litule) of the ancient beauty and majefty of the Tree. Thofe thar think this ftonge may remember what $P$ liny reports of of the Plantane-cree of Lidia, the hollow of which was 81 foor, its valt boughs made: ir appear more like a Wood than one Tree, and the fhadow of is coverd a grear part of the Field where it ftood.But we Mall quir this Difcourfe of the Trees, and take a hort view of the Spices, Gums, and other valuable and ufeful Drugs. Tis true this Soil is not to hap--py as to produce the noble Spices of Cloves, Cimnamon and Nutmegs; neither is Ginger natural to it, tho valt quantities of that Spice have been cranlported from fome Parts of the WGA-Indies into Spain, particularly from $H i j$ peniolr, whither it was firt brought from the Eaft-Indics, and where it chrives fo well, that it grew to be an in-Uxit, or Tra cumbrance ar laft. But the narural Spice of the $W$ Tcf dim Pepper. ufed generally of Pepper which they call $A x i$, and is teft Valleys, and is of feveral forts: Come green, fome red, fome yellow and of a burning colour, which latter they call caribe, and is extremely hot and biting. There but as for the common forts, they have no little thare of the ftrength and fire of PPFper, and are us'd by thicin in Sauces for thar purpofe. Tocorrett chis $\lambda x i$, aned ren- The ufis of der is moseremperate and fit for $u f$ c, ther mix it wish ${ }^{\text {is }}$ Salt, and fometimes with a fort of Grain call'd Tomates, which is very cool and full of juice, and gives a very pleafing telim to any Sauce 'tis an ingredient in. Ace/ta fays, that feyeral of the Spaniaris have been of the opinion that chis Indian Pepper was sold in its nature, bus the moft do fay chat is burns in their mouths and ftomachsat a ftrange race, and befides thar'tis a ftrong provocative to Venety, if any' thing libcrally takea; fo that thofe Men that will have a ching that produces these effects to be of a cold nature, may porfibly come in time to difpute whether fire it felf bentr fo or no. This excellemi Country has furnin'd feveral cxcellcmt Gums for the in-Gums, and creafe of the Meteria Medicc. Here's che famous Gum ocher Drus. Animi, the Thcamabace $a$, Caramm, and Stainx ; the ufcs of which are well known in Mcdicire. Hect's alfo the Cafia, Fifuln, Mcelsoncern, Guciacum and Saffaparilla, alt in vaft plenty, bur che former comes for the moft fars from the laand of Sf. Dominick.

Another a .

To chefe alfo may be added Liquid Amber, Copal, and Oil of Afpick, which the Phyficians and Painsers borh make ufe of, the one for Plaiters, and the ochers as a Varnifh for their Pictures; bur the moft celebrated of all is the rich Balm, which is an admirable Pcrfume and Medicine too. The Tree thar affords is is as big as a minin bulm. Pomegranate-tree, and not much unlike it in falition. The Balm is of various colours, white, red, grecnifh and dark-colour'd, of which the firft is commonly mott efteemed. The pureft of all is that which diftils of its Two fors: own accord upon the incifion of the Bark, and this is calldopobalfomum; the ocher is drawn from the leaves and bark builld and ftrain'd, which has the name of yylebalf amum , and that very properly. Although it bero be had in many places up and down in this frations Country, yer that which comes from To'm (no: far from $\mathrm{Ca}_{\text {aim }}$ thagena) bears the bett Character. The Spaniards and Indians, tho they eftecm it, yet don't value it as that rate that we do; the Balm has the fortunc of abundance other rich things, not to be much minaded becaule they are common and eafie to be had. However, among? jte ofis in the Spaniards, a grear deal of it. goes off upen Spixitual the Churith Occafions, and in the Service of che Church; for they had leave from the Apoftolick See to ufe chis Balm inftcad of Cream in their Unetions, and orher da laing Ceremonies. How much this Wiff-Indien Balin-trece Obfirvaim differs from that of Paleftine, which yielded the noble ${ }^{\text {of the Buan }}$ Balm of Gilend, as 'ris vulgarly call'd, is crident from all the accounts that both Autiquiry and Modern 'Travellers bave given of thar Trec. Piois; who kad feen it himfelf, fays twas a mall Tree, and fathion'd like a Vine; and thofe that have vificed thofe Parts of the Earf where ir grows fay much the fame thing. Norwithftanding rhis, Serabo affirms that thic ancient Balin-tree was of the bignefs of a Pomegranate-trec, which very well agrees to the defctiption of the Amarican Balmtree, bur not at all to that of juder.
And thus we have done with the Yegetables of this Country ; we are next to confider the Animals. As for Animais. the Quadrupeds, we may confider chree Clafes of them, either fuch as were carried by the Spaniards inio the Country, or fuch as were found there by them of the fame kinds with the European; or Jaftly, fuch as are peculiar to thedndies, and notknown on this fide the Globe. Of the firt fort are Slieep, Kine, Goars, Swine, Horfes, Fourfoomd Dogs, Cats, and feveral others ; for of all rhefe there is very grear plenty. The frnaller forr of Cartle, Sheep Grear fore efpecially, have mulciplicd here to a very gricat degrec, of Shrturage and and if they thought it worth while to make profit of Perme their Wooll by fending in into Eurspe, there's no doube bur it would be a very rich Trade'; for the Srocks of thefe Animals, that are in the Country, are hardly to be imagin'd, and there is ordinarily fo muchi Pafturage for them, that they can hiardly goany wherchur they'll find it. In Peru there is fo much, that they don't trouble themfelves to bound and limit, to fence and hedge it in; no Man has any proper ronhiimfelf, but fends his Flocks roving about where they will, to pick and chife thair own fecding. There are fome that are Mafters of 60 , vafinuber: 80, nay 100000 Sheep a-piece, as $A c c f=$ cells us he knew of Shesp: of a certainty in his yivie, and yot with all thefe viat Flocks chey are pur to no fiffesto find feeding for them, fo fruitfulis the Councry in Grafs and Pafturage. Some listle ufe they have made of theirown Wooll both in $P c_{-}$. ru and New Spain, in both which there are a great many woolf and Clothiers, (efpecially in the latter) and tho the Cloth c'oothoin Kkkkk 2 which they make icryes the poorex People of the Counrry, yet they donirmuch value it themfelves, but are very defirous of the Cloths that come from Spain, which gencrally bear a very grear price. 'Tis certain that they sencrally beax a, the Wooll is fincr, or the Workmen more expert ; or from both thefe reafons rogether. As for Kine, there are no fmaller numbers of them than of the Sheep in comparifon, and they are of two forts. Some are tame, (as the: may be calld) and feed rogether in Herds in the laftures, of which they make confiderable profir, partly by their Flelh, and partly by the Milk, Butter and Cheefe that comes from chemn; neither are they of litrle wie to them in their Country Labours, as Tilling the groand; and the like. The other fort is altogecher wild, and live ar liberty in the Mountains and Forefts, withour Cwners or Governmens. He that firt takes or kills any of them is their Matter, for they mear them in this refpect as they do any other wild Beafts. There are fuch multitudes of them, that fome Parts of the $I n$ dics are quite over-run; in Sante Domingo they are ro be feen by thoufands in the Fields and Woods, and 'ris a Solemn Excrcife with the People to mount on Horic-

UFe of the back on purpoic to Cource and kill them. They do chis oniy for the fake of the Hides, which are a good Commodity; for as to the Flefh they never meddle with it, bur having ficad off. the Skin, they leave the other for mear to orher Animals that may be glad on't. There are alfo grear numbers of Goars, the chief protic of which is their Tallow, uled by almoft all forts of Reole to make Liphrs of. the Skins they ufc for Shoes ored multiplicd in the Country excecdingly, and in many places there are found as good as the beft in Sprin, cither for Pomp or for Service. Affes and Caanclsare toth very fearce; of the latter there were fome brought into Pcru from the Canary flands, but they have not maltiplied very much : but one thing is; they ufe anocher fort of Animal for carrying Burdens, which is their Shecp, of which we thall fee more by and by. The Indians had no Dogs amongit them; till the Spaniard brought them from Earope; "a litule Crearure chey had Name. Of this Animal they were fo exceffively fond, thar they wou'd fpare the Meat out of cheir own bellies to fecd is, and when they rravell'd always carry'd chefe along with them for Companions, either in their bofoms or upon their fhoulders. But fincè the Conqueft, Dogs have been no rarities in the Indies, in the llands epecially; and particularly at St. Domingo; at chis IOand they have been an affiction and a plague to the People, for they $g \circ$ about in troops and devour the Sheep, fo that they were forc'd to endearone che cxirpation of them, by propofing rewards to them that killid a Dog, as they do to them thar kill Wolves in Spain. Lions, , Bears, boars and Foxes, are to be found in greaz numbers in the Woods, and were Inhabitants of chore wild places before the Spaniards came to be Inhabitants of any. Stags and Deer are alfo very numerous in the Forefts; bur amongit thefe, the mof common are a fort of Decr without Horms, like the Corcos. The wild Hogs go in gicat Herds in the Woods, and are of a very fmall fize, bus extremely fierce; and are ready to affault any that haunt them iff they don't fecure themfelves in the Trees; and therefore their way is to climb for' r , and to while the Hogs are biting and grawing the Tree below, to dart down their Lances at them and kill them. The fleth of them is very white and render, and when they fat them with Maize, their greefe palles amongft the Indians infeidgof Oil. The Name they go by in the Indics is Satnos, and had they no Name ar all they wou'd on tho back be remarkable enough, if 'rwere only for that one odd mark which Narure has fet upon them in cheir formation, which is, to have a Navel upon the ridge of their backs; this is exprelly whar thofe who pretend to have feen them declare of them. There is another fmall Creature which feems to be fomenhing of the fame nature with this, which they call Guadarinias, and are reckon'd very good meat. And as the Scinos refemble Swine in all other points but that laft mention'd, fo do the Dantes come as near to finall Kine, the furniture of the horns only excepted, which theie Creatures want. That which is moft eiteem'd of them is their Hides, which they makë Jerkins and other Corerings of; and it has this property, to be fo hard and fout as to be a good defence againt any blows whatfoever: The Cbinctille is'a fmall Chinwitle. Peaf like a Squirel having a wonderful fmoorh fof
warmikin skin, which they ufe very frequently to wear next their fomachs, reckoning it very whollome ; of the hair they anakc Russ, and fevcral other forts of Coverings.

The Hares and Conics, which are very plentiful in the Country, need no defcription; as alco ncither the AnrBears, Armadilloes and Monkiss, with many others which have been mention'd before in the other accounts of America. Only as to the Monkies, we may note Yarionsothe that there are fome of them in there Parts of the Indies, Animals very excraordinary both as to their fize and their colours too, for befides black, grey and bay-colour'd, chere are lome chat are fpotted aftex a very curious manner. But Sirmpo:97 fome things axe yer more wonderful in them than all that can be imagind in their make, and that is their agiliry, their fubtilty, and their fence. Acofa fays he law aMonkey leap from one Trec to another which ftood tpon the other fide of a River; he docs not fay what the River was, or how broad, bur ro be fure'twas not the great River of che Amazons. The fame Author rells us of 2 Monkey of his acquaintance that belong'd to the Governor of Carthegenn, which had abundance of very clever tricks with him; bur if the Reader thinks they argue too much fenee for fuck an Animal, and that we make a Man of a Monkey, he is defired to remember chat the Story is nor ours.a This Animal wou'd very or- of tration derly go to the Taverun for Winc, carrying his Pot in of a Mankey one hand, and the Money in t'other ; neither wou'd hesena. give the Reople the Money before he had his Por full of Wine. Sometimes, when he was difpatch'd upon thefe Errands, the Boys wou'd affault him in the Sereets, and throw Stones at him, bur I'ug (who wou'd rake no affronts from chem) in that cafe always fer down his Pot, and pick'd up Stones and pelted the Boys again; and 6 o' when he had clear'd the way march'd home with his Wine. And tho he lov"d chis Liquor enrirely (tor $\operatorname{Aconfta}$ fays he has feen him drink luftily feveral times) yer he wou'd never rouich a drop till his Mafter had given him leave. If he faw any Woman parch'd', he wou'd exprefs a grear deal of indignation, and not only chatter and make faces, but if he cou'd come as her wou'd have lefr the prine of his ceech behind him. Mankind have born their teftimony againft chis vanity a long, kime ago, burnow ir feems the very Monkies rake notice of it, and rebuke the pride and folly of that Sex. The Ladies had betrer pull off their patches themiclves, than have Apes and Monkies , cratch them off, for this wou'd be the way to have occafion for patches in good carneft.
But there is anocher Beaft, of which Oviedo gives us an The Slow: account, that deferves a parricular notice. The Spa-Dog, niards, by the rule of contraries, call it Cagnuolo Leggiero, or rheLight-Dog, whereas 'tis one of the heavieft dulleft Animals in the World ; 'tis fo dow in its motion that it can't go above $5^{\circ}$ paces in a day. They are as odd fhap'd as can well be imagin'd; about rwo fpan in length, their feet amn'd with long claws like Birds, and their bellies trailing upon the ground, for their legs are nor able to fupport them. One can'r fay wherher the face be more like that of an Owl or a Baboon, for it has fomething of the beauties of both there Creatures; the fmall eycs and noftrils thou'd belong to the Baboon, and the wery round face to the Owl = but befides this, it has a very little mouth, and a ftrait high neck, every where of a bignels, and is like 2 Cylindxick Rouling-pin. By the belp of thore long nails, which Narure has furnin'd them with, they eafily climb Trees, which is their grear delighr; and they are moft commonly found up in fome Tree or ocher. Their colour is moft like that of a Weafel, and they have this oblervable mark over and above, to be wholly without a tail: ${ }^{\circ}$. Bat the ftrangeft thing of all is the Mufick they make; Oviedo fays that they have is more. ix notes yery clear and diftinct from one another, and are beard finging them always in the night. This Auchor declares he has kept them in his Houfe, and cou'd never difcover what fort of food'twas thar they liv'd upon, for they were never feen by any to ear, only they frequently open'd their mouths, and fuck'd in the frefh air or wind. They are no way harmful or mifchievous, but a dull lumpilh unprofirable Creature, that rakes no orher pleafure it felf, (nor affords none to Mankind) But only that of crawling up into a Tree, and making that noife in the night.

The fame Author defcribes a fort of Beafts which be sardat calls. Bardato, which he fays refembles a: barbed Horfe that is, 2 Horfecover d with Armour for the Wars. : But by the particulars of this defcriprion, this Creature fhou'd be no other than the Armadillo; which we have given an account of before; and the rather, becaufe te recommends them for to good meat, which che Armadilloes are generally xeported to be.
Before we leave the Quadrupeds, we maft fpeak a little more particularly of the Indian Sheep and Goats, which we have hithetro only mentiond by the by. Thofe Beafts which we here call Goats,' are call'd Vicugnes in the lumges or Country, and we give them the name of Goats only for this reafon, that they have more refemblance to a Goat rhan any orher Arima!. They have no horns, and are fomething larger thaia common Goats; they feed upon the highef tops of the Mountains, and are fo far from being offended with Froft or Snow, that they fem to de lighe in ir. They ufe to Shear thefe Creatures, and o their ficece or hair' to make feveral forts of Coverings and whatever they make on't 'ris very fine and durat: 1 and fo is the colouralfo, for they never Dye it, bur ule the nazural colour, which is like that of dried Rofes and has this good property never to fade nor chang The fleth of the-Vicugnes is no good ment, tho' the Indinn fpend pretry much of it; they affemble in grear companics, to the number of 1000 or 2000 Men, on purpof to hunt them, taking 300 or 400 at a time, out of which they chule what is fir for their rurn, and let go the reft. But yet they are no extraordinary Brecders, and for that reatou the Incas of Peru did formerly forbid tha caking any of them unlefs it were by their fpecial comA gool me-mandment. The greateft ufe of this felh is in Phyfick dkive fur the and 'tis reported to be a certain remedy for weak and t) . Sore eyes. Acofla tells us the made the Experiment himfelf: He had one time traycll'd a long way through the Snow, which difturbd hiscyes ar thar race, that he vas afraid he fhou'd have loft the ufe of them, buc coming into an Inn, an Old Woman rold him of this remedy and promifed him relicf if he woud but rry it; to piece of the flefh of one of the $\sqrt{s}$ cugnes, $j u f t$ kill'd and all bloody, was applied to his eyes, which accordingly per fectly cured him. But the mofi profitable Beaft in all the Country (all things confider'd) is che Sheep; of this therr are two forts, one that they call the Paco, and the othe the Guanaco, the main difference between them being this, chat the former have a pretty good fleece of Wooll upon their backs, and the latrer are almoft bare. Thele Creatures ferve not only for Food, bur Bealts of Bux den: they are their Horfes, their Afes, and cheir Ca mels; the moft part of the Silver that comes out of th Mines of Potofi goes upon their backs to Arica, which i Arrobes of Silier Bars tho" when they have a very lon Journcy indecd, chey don'r drive them above 4 leagues day. And 'ris a ftrange thing to fee with how flender 2 Guaid the Spaniards fend along 2 valt Treafure of Sil ver upon the backs of chere Crearures; you thall meer a troop, of them laded with as much as cames to 400000 Ducars, and no more than a few Indians ot Spaniard perhaps to drive them along, and there fellows fome times fhall lie down to fleep in the midat of the open Fields, and leave the Sheep to take care of themelives The Paces and Guanacos both are of fereral colours, fome white, lome black, others grey or fpotted, and they dye the Wooll they get from the Pacos of as many letera colours as the Anlmals themfclves are; but the Guancios as was faid fupply them with no Wooll; tho they 1 generally the fitreft for burden.

Country
This forr of Cattel delights in 2 cool frefh air, for which reafon they live and do well upon the Sierras, and die in the Lanos becaufe of the heat; nay, in all the ex uremities of the weather, and when they are cover dave with Ice and Froft, they consinue very found and well They fometimes make a great deal of fport to the Be holder's by a motion they have, which is indecd fomething pleafant; for as they are going upon the Road they'll ftop all of a fudden, and raife up cheir long Necke, looking very wiftly upon every one thar ftands abou them, which to be fure has fomerhing very fignificint, and expreflive of a concern the Animal is under, if ome cou'd interpret their meaning, and know whar. But then they have fome very ugly tricks, at leaft thole chat drive them have reafon to fay fo; for without any apparent xeafon, they'll fometimes fet a running as in chey were mad, and run up Mountains or Rocks, or whatever lies in the way, fo that very ofren they are forc'd to thoot them dead as foon: as they can, that the Silver Bars they carry may nor be loft. Again, at other times, they fhall grow refty and lie down under thein burdens; and when this humour takes them, theyl endure racher to be cur in pieces than rife and go on the Journey. The only remedy the Driver has in this cafe is patience, he mult c'en fubmit to the Crcatures ha mour; he mult froak him, and make much of him, and fo by fair and gentle methods entice him out o his fallennefs, and bring him to the ufe of his legs a gain. Notwithftanding this, 'ris many times a long and a tedious work to make them ger up; and whatever weather there be, the poor Drivers are forc'd to fpend many hours in't in the open Fields, meerly atten ding upon thefe perverfe Animals. Bur we are farther ed with when he comes: And the Pais being thus guardding upon thefe perverfe Animals. But we are farther led with fo fharp a weapon, is commonly yery fecurely
kep5,
kept; the Cats dare not come within reach of it, and are forc'd to go away difappointed of thcir prey.
The Marfi axe a fort of Birds fomerthing bigger chan our Thrufhes, almoft all black, only they have fome few whice feathers in their neeks: They fhew no lefs cunning and concrivance than the formor in the defence of their young; for becaufe the wild Cats are very good at jumping, and will eafily throw theinfelves from one Tree to anocher, unlefs chey are fo far afunder as to be beyond their lcap, thercfore thefe Birds always build their Nefts Another pro-in Trees that have no others near them. And if they vilimazaint ihou'd climb up into thole Trees where their Nefts are, the wilacats they furm them after fuch a manner that there's no enrrance; for they make them very large and wide at the botcom, but growing narrower and narrower ftill towardsthe month, fo that the hole by which they enter is juth big coough to receive theriti, and no more. Befides, hey dicnd them with tharp and ftrong thorns, which hey fick in of all tides of them, and are lo cumningly thitend abour them, that no humane Art can do any think likeit; and the Cats tain by no means come at the hole to thruft their paws in to do the young ones any harm, as well upon this account of the thorns, as alfo that the Nefts are made to deep, that they cond never reach then iunlefs they feratch'd them to picces. Another thing they oblerve, is for a great many of them to make their Nefts together in the fame Tree; which iccms nor to be fo much for Socicry as mutual Defcnce and Prefervarion, for always whicn the Cats come they make a moft fearful noife and chattering, and the others gencrally ruin away as foon as they hear them begin to grow fo clamorous.

The like Policiss are obferv'd in the $\mathrm{Can}_{\text {an }}$ uolit, which are bigger than Stares, all over black, and have their tails wery long, and beaks refembling thofe of the Popingayes.
The Pimsadelli have a mixture of fevcral colours in their feathers, and they go quite another way to work to defend their Nefts from the wild Cats; for they build always in Trees chat hang over the water, and in the sery utmoft parts of the boughs too, fo that Cat or Dog that comes there muft expect to rumble into the warer, Bur che wild Cats, they fay, do feldom venture as thefe, for they never care for coming ncar the water ; and o all the Land-Animals known, they are the only ones almoft, that can'r by fwimming preferve themelves from drowning. The Birds indeed don'r know this natural klefect of the Cats, but as thefe are the moft hungry devouring Creatures that can be, and will let no Animals live in peace about them that are but within their seach, fo Niture has taught the Pintradelli this way of avoiding them.
The I'icusi have tharp long bills to bore holes in the Tres so lay chcir young ones there in fafety $;$ and the Mafri build very deep hollow Netts, and foriufy them with a Crown-work of thorns; and the fame Wifdom has taughr the piatiadclit auiuther artifice, which is to make their Nefts in Trees over the water, where their Perfécucoss can never come.
Strens and The other Fowl, Fifhis, Repriles and Infects, are fuch as have been defcrib'd in other places up and down: O viedo tells us of Dragons in the $W_{C f f} f$-Indies, and of a formidable for of Serpent call'd a Fuanna, which he makes to te an amphibious Creature, and no certain Inhabitane cither of the Land or the Warer.

As frir his Dragons, we belicve he means no other chan fome fort of very grear Serpent, of which we know there are abundance in thofe Parts of the World, and not a Creature wish a fpiral Tail, grear flaggy Wings, and 2 crooked Snour, fuch as St. George is pictur'd trampling under his Horfes feet.

As for the: fumma, he fays ic has four feer, and very long clavs, a fer of very harp teeth, a fuotted skin, thar ir makes no noife, nor difoovers any thing of a voice, that it will faft for many days together, and is very good mear, even preferable ro any Concy; in 2 word, as to the fize of it, he fays ris as big as a Concy, and fometimes as an Otrer. After all, 'ris not impofible that this may be fome kind of $L_{i}$ ard or Facare, to which nany of thefc Characters agref; efpecially fince he alfo adds that the tail of in is very like char Creature.
Fist hartut

- تрретs.
ffect of whofe biting is a füdden and fpeedy coagulation of the whole Mars of the Blood; and of this he gives fomes inftapces of his own knowledge.
Biery Adder. Nie Adder that is as red as Blood, and appears ar Nightlike a burning Coal almont, he fays is 7 or 8 foot long bur nor fo daingerous as the Viper before-mention'd; but thar it does appear with that fiery afpect at night, he gives us his own experience.
Toots.
There are a fort of very grear Toads which agree with the Brafilian oncs, in this x fecct that they are not poiffnous, bur he fpcaks of their having bones, and thofe fo large, thar a. Man wou'd think them to be the bones of Cats or: Dogs.
There are Spiders of a prodigious bignefs too; and sernges $s_{p}$. chat Author declares he. faw one that was larger than a det Man's Hand, and another the Eycs of which were as biz as chofe of a Sparrow. Thefe Crcafures, as well as the formex, are of various coliosers; and we may cafily belicye our Auchor, when he fays that they are both of them very ugly zand difagrecable fights.
But 'tis very remarkable what he fays of the Ants, waisnon which are fo milerably prefecured and devourcd by the the suis, Ant-Bear, as it is calld upon that very fcore: Theic Creatures (which for many actions of theirs have deiervedly becn ftild wife and prudent) in many places work chemfelvcs up great hillocks of a Man's heighth, but of fo hard and itubborn a fors of Earth in the ourfide, that tis like a defence of Lime or Stonc, for Experiments fake, he made fome of them be broken open, but they wou'd hardly yicld to pikes of Iron they were fo denfe and compact. Under this hard thell lic the Ants in infinire nuumbers, very well skrecn'd by rhis means from the fearching Tongue of their cnemy. Ir may nor be wholly improper to add an accounc of two or three remarkable things in Nature, tho' fome of chem perkaps out of their due place.
The main thiny the Itdians ufe to poifon their Arrows Poirinous withal is a fort of Fruit, which in form and fize refcm- Fruit. bles the Mufcadel-Pear of Sicily and Naples; 'ris ftain'd with red fors up and down in many places, and is of a moft fwect and pleafant tafte. The Tree that bears it has a leaf like that of a Pear-tree, only fomething lefs and rounder, and is never found but near the Sea. The Fruit is felf is of fo alluring and inviting an afpeet, that 2 Man can hardly fee it withour having at the fame time a ftrong defire to tafte; the doing of which woudd infallibly be attended with forme faral confequences, for the mifchievous mature of it is hardly to be defribed : And tis credibly reported, that if a Man does bur lie down Danger of it colleep under the Tree, he will find his Head and Eyes swollcn when he awakes again, and 'twou'd be little lefs than the lofs of fight, to have a drop of the dew hat falls from it come into the Eye. One ching farther is obfervable concerning it, namely, that the Wood of Woord. thefe Trees, when burne, makes fo horrible a fitink thar no Man can endure ir, and the malignant fumes that ifue fromit do caufe a violent pain in the Head. The Indianis ufe this defperate poifon about cheir Arrows, fometionesalone, and fometimes mix'd with that of feveral venemous Animals; bur cither is fufficient to anfwer the end and purpofe of their ufing it, which is to deftroy chem thar are fo unfortunate as to be wounded by chofe Arrows.
The Tree Xagma is a very tall, ftrait and well-made Trect $x_{a z n a}$. onc,"nd of it the Indianis mjake all their Darts, Pikes and Jaivelins: It bears a large Fruir almof like the head of the great Poppey, and very good for eating; but out of ir they ger a watcr which is an admirable remedy for $A$ Medicinel weak, faint and weary Limbs; it renews their ftrengeh water from and vigour, and makes thic flefh which was beforeloofe and foft, to become found and firm faidy and all this only by wanting the Part with it. CPertr hias this ill quality, that is does the skin almoft as much farm by blacking it, as ir does the flelh good other ways; it leayes fo thorough and deep a black, that 'ris a hard martcr to get it out again. And the fame good effects, as to the Fleh and Limbs, the Bark or Rind of the Tree Hobi is known by. cxperience to have, if it be boild in water, and the Parts wan'd with it. This Fruir is fmall and yellow, of a very good tafte, and in form nor unlike a Damfon.

The Deform'd Trec, which grows moft frequendy in the $D c$ : Hifprniola, is yet more remarkable in every refpect : formistree Tis fo confus' a beap of leaves and thoms, that noching but 2 Painter's Pencil can defcribe it; be with all this irregularity of hape, chere goes along a nobic vertue and healing property, which render there leay cs the moft complear. remedy for broken Limbs that perhaps is known. They only take the leaves well ftamp'd and Remedypor fpread upon a Cloth like a Plaifter, and apply this to broken the broken Member;" it flicks of ir felf $\mathrm{ro}^{\circ}$ very faft bones. that 'ris difficulr to puil it of before the bufionfs is done but when once the Part is throughly foder'd and heald, it drops off without any help, and the doing fo is a fign that the Cure is finif'd, and this is commonly about 15 daysa performing. Gonizalus Ferdinandus Ovicdo, Governor in the $W^{T}$-ff-Indies for the EmperorChatles V. affirms (in a Difcourfe of the Country which he Cent to that Prince) that he himfelf (as well as feveral others of his knowledge) knowledge) had made rrial of the loveraign vertue of this Plant, and that ic has really that property of clea ving fo falt to the Part, and then falling off its own ac cord when it has done the work it was laid on for.

Chap.XIV. Tbe Givil and Moral Hifory of the Spanifh Weft-Indies.

There is a Plant which is like a yellowLilly, abour the plant which leaves of which there grow and creep along certain String Throded Threeds fo cutring from or little Cords, that are of very great ule to the indians apon many accounts. Thereare two forts of there Cords 2 thicker and groffer, almoft like the wiek or twift of Hemp in comparifon to the other, and this they call Calbuia : The finer fort is like Flax, and they give it the name of Henequers; but both one and the othet are of the fame colour, which is between white and yellow, and tome quite white. Of thefe the indians make very trong and Cubetantial Cords, by which they hang up their Hammocks, and they, put them to all ufes wherein any thing of a tout ligament is wancing. Bur 'ris ftranget Atill, that by the help of the fine threads of the Henequen they fhou'd be able to overcome the ftubbornnefs and Irength of Iron, and to faw afinder Fetters, Chains, or Iron Bars;as they caneafily do,and often practife it. When they woud perform any of thefe operations, they take 2 thread of the Henequen, and draw is this way and chat way upon the Iron in the manncr of fa wing.' parcing ever now and then a fmall matter of very fine Sand upon the Thiread, or upon the lron; and when the thread, by continual rubbing, is worn and grown feeble, they take a frefh one, and go on with the work, till the lron is quite parted in two. And thofe that have feen the Indians at this work, fay that they do it with a grear deal of eale and dexterity $;$ and that Iron, tho' ever $\frac{1}{}$ big and ftrong, is with little trouble conquer'd by this means.

After this little vicw of Nature in this Country, we come ro confider the Cuftoms, Government and Dolicy of the fame, and this diftinctly for each of the two famous Kingdoms of Mcxico and Pcru.

C н a pi XIV.

$\%$  The Civil and Moral Hiftory of the Spanilh Weft-Indies.

WE. will begin with the Account of Mexico, as Deity known what he was, and what he prefided over being the fifft of the rwo Kingdoms iaid operi govern'd or had care of, by fome Devices of Painting, to the knowledge of Europe by the Spani $\beta$ " $33^{*}{ }^{\circ}$ Conqueft. The People of chis Counrry, tho' much (uperiour to many other of the Nations upon the fame Comrinent, boch in refpect of Civil Politenefs and Natural Endowments, yet ftand upon the fame level, with them all as to Matters of Religion. They are Idolaters as well as she moft Savage and moft Barbarous, 'tho'. per haps it may be allow'd them to have made theirIdolatry more fine and pompous, as well as more folemn and ce he Mexicunsemonious than many ochers of them have done. Nor ad Notions withftanding this, fome there are thar fay the Mcxican Maker and Preferver of all things, and that the Sproniard at firf found lirrle or no difficulty to convince them o this Truth, their own natural Norions, tho' blind and confus't, Certing in with the Arguments urg upon chem kind, 'tis cerrain that all their vifible Services and Adorations were paid toIdols; and tho' they had akith ve neration for the Sun, as the Fountain of Light, anid fo many other Bleffings to che World, yer we can't find that cver they honour'd him with any formal Worthip. Wha the Peruvians did we hall fee atterwards, but the Mexi cans feem not to bave donc any thing of chis nature. As tde's. compor, theirDeities were all of a grois and rerrettrial componion; they dug the materials of then our of ref Mines and. quarics, or cur chem our of retts and Woods, and of the many bundreds they had rome were Gold, or other bafer Metal, others Wood os Stone, or what pleas'd their own extravagant fancies The mont celebrared of all this number was an Idol which tiey calld Vitziliputzli; what they imagin'd it the re prefentative of is uncertain, but they filld it the mof PuiffantLord of all things, and erected a Temple in Honour of it, thar was by far the proudelt and molt fumpnous in Country. The Image is felf was made of no finer Matter than Wood, bur infinirely adorn'd with no finer Matter than Wood, bur infinitely adornd with Gold, Jewels and Feathers. It was in the form of a Man, his Head coverd with a Crowx; in his Righr Hand he held an Azzre-colourd Staff, and in his Lefer 2 white Target, and it his Sides were ftuck 4 Darts. It was fer upona-Stool mounted upon a high Altar, with a rich Curain always drawn before is, to make all appear more Venerable and Sacred.
lt would be ro no purpofe to defcribe even all the principal Idols they had amongt them, with the pariculars of their Furnirure and Decking, and the leveral odd Notions the Mexicans had of rhem; cis fufficientro the midft of cige Cawleys that run thus 2 -crows, in fay, that they had oine more which ftood in an Apart- fands, and at the end of each Cawfy is a handfome ment of the fame Temple adjoining to the former, Portal or Entry, which faces directly fome Gare of the which they made almoft equal in Dignity and Power Temple: And to render the appearance every way the wich Vitziliputzli. more grear and awful, they placid an Idol upon every As for the reft, they allow'd them their feveral pect- one of thefe Portals, with the facc turn'd to the Cawfey, liar Offices and Provinces, and accordingly made their that fo all chat adyancd towards the Temple might have applications to them: And they always made every them infull view. Before the great Court of the Tem-

764 The Civiland Moral Hiltory of the Spanilith Weftindies Iib V.

Wilk of ple (at Come diftance from it) was and alcent. of zo Steps Tract. upon the top of which was a Walk 30 foot broad. Thro the middle of chis Walk run a Palifadoe of very high Trecs, planted in order at a fathom diftance from one anocher: The Trees were all piere'd with fmall holes from top to botrom, thro' which run a vaft number of Rods from Tree to Trec, and thefe were all hung with the Skulls of thofe humane Victims that had been of fer'd to the grear Idol. Thefe Objects ftruck a deal of horiour into a Beholder ; the mournful fighe made the place appear lefs lovely and pleafant, tho perhaps it matitude of contributed not a litule to the Religion of it. As to Serilices as the bufincts of Sacrifices, no People in the Wcrild pcr: haps have imbrued their hands in more Blood than the Mixic:ans, and thar the Blood of Mankind roo; only this is to be faid, that the Perrivians have outdone them in fome particular circumftances of thefe Sacrifices, thedding that blood which the orhers never pretended to The Mexicans, as far as we can find, never offer'd any Victims of this narure, bur what the fortune of Was put into their hands; they were always Caprives and Prifoncrs that were deale thus with, and their Gods were frry'd only with what the Sword had left undevourd.
P:ifoners on- Indeed, this was one of the great Defigns of their making ly secrifid. War; they feldom fought for any thing bur Victims for their Alars, and thexefore rook care to kill as few as was polible when they were engag'd in Battel, bur made Difourfion it thear chicf bufinefs to ger Prifoners. The Great Mor shenscrunn.4 cerumb; in a Difcourle with a Spenifh Noblcman, chat had und a Sout allifted at the Conqueft of stexica, lignified as much as this came to. The Spmiard ask'd him how it came about, that being fo great as he was, and abfolute Sovejcign of a!l the reft of the Kingdoms about him, he had not conquerid the Province of Thffcalla, which was juft by him? The Prince told dim that there were rwo things that indue'd him to leave that Province unconquer'd one was to keep his Soldicrs in cxercife, and prevent theix giowing' idle, lazy and unapt for the Wars; but the orher. and the prinicipal one, was, to have a contant Supply of Captives for Sacrifices to his Gods. And there were abundance of Ceremonies us'd in the doing of this Kolemn Work: There were fix Perfons particularly employ'd in ir, who had each his peculiar Part.and Office in the Bloody pexformance; two were appointed to hold the Hands, and as many the Legs of the Victim another to hold his Head, and the laft to open his Sto mach, and pull our his Heart. The Name they gave there Perfons was Chachalmuns, which fignifies as much as the Minifters of holy Things; and that Office was very highly efteem'd, and pafs'd from one ro another by Inhcritance. It was che bufinefs of the chief of chem all (of bim that was as it were a Bilhop in comparifon with the reft) to give the fatal ftroke, and do the whole of the frebiss of the Execution. The Name he went by was that of Tothe prictas at pilzin; his Habir was a red Robe with Taffels benearh, ubeSacrifice: a Crown of the richeft Feathers upon his Head, and Pendants in his Ears. The others were attir'd in whire Robes wrought with black-no Crowns upon theirkicads, bur their hair bound $\mathfrak{u p}$, and circles of Paper painted with Keveral co'ours ftuck upon their Foreheads: When the Arch-Prieft had opened the breaft of the poor Vietim, and taken out his Heart, he held it up reeking in its Blood to the Sun, and then prefently turning towards the Idol he threw it in the face of him; a coarfe Compliment to a Deiry, and an odd way of making him an Offering. After this the dead Body was tumbled down the Temple Staits, and thofe that had the beft Title to rhem took chem up, and divided them amongft. themfelves, and fo went to feafting upon them. Thus were allthe Caprives feryid one after anorher, for the mont part 40 or 50 together; for they reckon'd ir mo honour to their Idol to offer him a fimall number. The Idol thar ftood by them at this Ceremony, was one which the Arch-Prieft always broughe with him from the nop of the Temple ; it was made neither of Wood, Stone nor Me tal, but Pafte of Whear and Maize mingled with Honey And eter before the Ceremony begun, the fame Chicf Prieftmounting up the Terrafs in the middle of the Count the People, and bidding them behold their Deity. This was a fort of excirement to the cruel Work that follow'd and the People faw with lefs tendernefs' and compafion the miferable farc of the Sacrifices,' when they were thus prepar'd by the fight of their Idol, and chofe addreffes of Captive fight his chief Minifter. But the Mexicems fometimes gave a and cheir.
lour coud do any good. Howeycr, if the Captire got whe betrer of: his Adicrfary they, lee bim liye, and leve with Glory, for ever afrer thar lie bad olle Repuratien and Dignity of a brave Caprain, but if he was woffted he was condemn'd to die, and the fame hand that overame mult alfo Sacrifice him:
But they have alfo' a fore of a Sacrifice amongt them, before which they treat the Slave that is to dic After the mott honourable mainer in the Worls, and do all that can be to make him far againt the Day of Slaugher.
They piik out a cerrain. Slave whom thicy wilh, and de-A Shes b . liver him to the Pricft's Cuftody, calling himar the fame nourof with time the lmage and Reprefencation of their Idol. Mor the rimit than that, he went for the future by the very Name of wants. the ldol, and was honour'd and refpected in a maniner like the dol it felf. At his firt encrance intorthis Dignity he was wafl'd; and cover'd with the facied Robes and Ornaments, and had the nobleft Manfion in the whole Temple affign'd to him; bue yee a Guard fer upon him too, that he might not rim away: He was fervid by all the chief Minifiers, and bad none bur great PerCons abour him; and as for his. Food, it was of the richctt that cou'd be provided. When lae pass'd through the Strects a crain of the Nobility follow'd him, and all the Pcople came out of their Houfcs to fec him; the Women particularly, wou'd come and prefent their Children to him to havs his Bencdiction. In fhorr, for a Twelvemonths face, he lived at this tate honourd and fervid as fomething. more than Humane, and then his Heart was alfo ficwid to the Sun: They facrificid and cat him up as they did the reft; they firf dulbid him a Dcity, and then made Stakes and Rallers of him afterwards. If this Perfon happen'd to make his efiape, the principal Man of his Giard fuccecded him in his Hononr, and aftervards had his fate. This akominable effulion of Humane Blood, as is was firf of all imroduc'd by the frients min. Priefts, fo the Cuftom was continnally held up by their cuntrich artifices, and improv'd to fuch a degrec, thar fome Feftival days no lefs than 4000 or 5000 have been facrific'd. Thofe wretched Men having the Ear of the Princes alsways open to them, would infinuate ineo them a beticf of the pleafure and delight the Gods took in thofe Sacrifices: They wou'd tell them the Gods, at fuch a time demanded fuch a number, and wou'd be difplcas'd if a fpeedy fatisfaction were nor given them. And then War muft be madeour of hand, right or wrong; fome neiphifouring Province or other muft be invaded to get Captives for the Priefts to burcher.- Tis matter of no limile admiration, that Humane Nature fhov'd ever ftoop to fo intolcrable a Scrvitude as this,and fo peaceably wear the Fetters of a parcel of Men, whofe only bufinefs and defign was to tyramize and gorcrn all the World abour chem. Some of the Spenicrds indeed fay, that the IndiansIndime were weary of the Yoke impos'd upon them by thecroant, unPricts, and were glad of the Occafion of a new Religion of the choke appearing amongt thein (which was all full of Mildnef $\mathrm{f}_{\mathrm{dage}}$ of and Goodne(s) to throw ir off: But there may be fome reafon to fufpect partiality in their Accounts of the Mattic, tho ir benot at all ftrange either that they thou'd be tired with the Crivelties and Slaveries of their own Law, or invited and allured by the fweetnefs of the Chriftian. Ferdinando Corres, in his Letter to the Emperor Charles V. aflures him; that afeer the Conqueft of Mexice, there came an Embafly ro him out of the Prorince of Meshcachan; the defign of which was, to defire fome information in the Nature of the Chriftian Law, and to let him know that they had no very good opinion of their own, and intended to leave ir. This requef Cortcs granted, and Acefta fays that the Meclionerns made the belt Chriftians in all New Spain; which is potithle, tho: if they were no berrer than a grear many of their Teachers, one might conclude, withour breach of Chaxity, that they were not very good ones.
$\therefore$ But to retuin to the Priefts: Thicfe Men were highly honour'd and efteem'd by the People, and had very great Offerings made them, befides their ftated Revenues which their own ambition, and the blind fondnefs of the People, had made very condiderable.: The lrielts of the offic and Grand Idol Vitytilipuialic had their Offices by Inberitance, Durics of but thofe of the Interiour ones by Election, at leaft they to rieft. were dedicated to the Service in their Infancy, and were along brought up in the Temple. Their moft conftant Work was toIncenfe the Idols, whichthey did four times a day ; at Day-break, ar Noon, at Sun-fet, and at Midrighr. The laft of thefe Exercifes was the mof folemn tie ecrformance was artended with the Mufick of Trumpets, Comes and Flures, and afrer the Offering of the Incenfe, they all went into a Chapel to do one of the fevereft Penances imaginable. Each of them, with an Awlora Boakin, pietcd the Calves of their Legs thro

Chap.XIV The Civil and Moral Hiftoryof the SpanifinWelt-Indies 765

What the What ine uy firtiter of their Relim their Rel gion. nhire of nhemsilycs. sion.
very careful afrerwards to ler the People know their Suf ferings. Befides this Mortification, thev obliged themfelves to another, which was a rigorous Faft for at leaft a Week cogecher, and this always before any of cheir great Feafts. At thefe times chey took no more Food than jult was necelfary to keep them alive; they drank no Wine, they hardly allowed themfelves any Sleep; and to make the Faft univerfal, they denied rbemfelves all Converfation with their Wives. And as if all this were nor enough, they wou'd difcipline their fleth with mof unmerciful' Whips, and give themfelves lalhes firrer to be born by Horfes than Mert ; which trick the People learnt of them roo, and practis'd at the Feaft of the God of Repentance.
Some of the Spanif Writers here go on, and carry the bufimels of the Mexicans Religion much farther yet They tell us of Confeffors and Confeftions, of Unctions and Baptifims, and Reprefentations of the Eucharift amongit chefe People. In thorr, they raice out very near all the Sacramens, and make Popery to have been in the Country before they came to bring it thither. 'Tis true this is a good ftroke enough, but a Man has no need of yery nice Speetacles to fee what lies at the bottom of fuch Infinuations as thefe are. They fay the Devil has always been very bufie to form his Church like that of Chiff's; to caft his Worlhip in the fameMould as neaz as can be, and dresf it up with refembling Rites and Ccremonics. But if the Worthip of the Indians befuch as they defcribe ir, pray whofe Innage and Supetfcriprion is they dercibe ir, pray whore limage and Supenterpion is upon in ? To what Church doss the Character of leven niards cop. Church lik cering the Church like that of Jefus Chrift, and has form'd that in the Indies after fuch a manner as he has, we may underftand from hence what the true Church is, and where'tis to be found; "tis the Original that anfwers to this Picture, and that can be no ocher than the Church of Roms..
Now if thefe things of the Indians be punctually true, cis an odd way enough to alledge the Devil's practife, in order to the infinuating a belief of the Churches Authority; but if they are falfe, 'tis fill worke to tell Lyes of him for the fame purpofe, and make the World believe he has been fo bufie in Amcrica, that he has had no time to do work in Europe. We mall not rrouble the Reader therefore with the Accounts of thefe Confeffions, and the Penances enjoyn'd upon the Confefing Sinners; the Unctions, and the numbers of venomous Ingredients in the Matter of them; the Ceremonies of their Preparation, nor thofe of cheir Application. As alfo neither with any Stories of the Witcherafts, Sorcexies and Enchantments perform'd by their Priefts, nor the Delufrons and Jugglings of the Fortune-rellers, both thefe agreeing together to chear the People of their Money; and which is worfe, of their Urderftanding too We hall only obrerve, that to make the Reprefentation the Natural Religion of the Mexicans yet more Romanifh, Acofta has found our a Pope amongit them roo for he fays, that in the ancient Tongue of the People, the High Prieft was call'd Papa, which no doubr was of the Devil's inventing, for the fake of the imitation of him in the true Church of Church.
The Mexicans, in the Month of May, Celebrated the Ohter Relin.
plow Men. great and folemn Feaft of their Idol Vittuiliputzli: For the clearer account of which Cercmony, we mult underftand that befides che feveral Orders of Priefts, who had their Manfions and Aparments in the Temple, there ware alfo (according to the accounc of the foremention'd Auchors) two other forts of Religions, the one Men, and the ocher young Women, and each fhut up in their feveral Cloytters, within the Circuir of the great Tcmple, and under their peculiar Governors and Governeftes; the former Miniftred to the Priefts, Cwept and made clean the Holy Places, and kept the Fire perperually burning upon the Alitar. They lived in extreme Continency and Modefty, wou'd not dare to look upon a Woman if they met hier in the Streets, and were perfectly obedient to their Superiors. They had no Incomes nor Revenues, but lived upon the Alms and Chariry of the People; they Sufferd their hair behind to grow long, and tied it up in treffes; but were fhaved upon the crown: that is, they were faint refemblances of Monks and Friers; differing chiefly.in this; that thefe Mexicans were not condemned to perperual Slavery and Poverty, to drudge in che Temple and beg all their lives long, but came out of it at the end of 2 Year, $2 \tau$ which time a new Sett was brought in in their room: The young Women likewife lived moit chaftly and regularly, as Virgins devoted to the Service of their God; they rofe at Midnight, as well as the Mern to the worfip of the Idol, and perform'd al
the fame Exercifes as the Religious of the otherSex, even to the fhedding of their Blood. Their bufinefs was to prepare Mear fot the Idol and his Minitters, and do other Offices peculiar to ineir Séx. The leaft indiferction', as to any Converfation wich Men, coft them their lives, and they died many times uponbare fufpicion, grounded only upon fome of thefe prepofterous Omens and Signs which that Reople had a worhl of and were mightily govern'd by. Bur when the term of a Year was expired, they had the famc Privilege with the Mcn, and wont out of this-Houfe of Bondage iuto the Comforss of Marrimony:
In order to the Feaft of Vitxilipurzli, thefe Virginstwu 2 ne sal: days before made the Reprefentation of the Idol in Patte,, incuppurf. compofed of Maize and the Secds of Betts mix'd with Honcy ; it was coverd with a rich Robe, and mounred in a Chair (which was placed in a Litter) in a pofture ready to be carry'd abroad. The Morning of the Fcait being come, the Maids were drefs'd all in white, and appear'd with Garlands of Maize upon their Heads ? their Cheeks painted with Vermilion, and their Armi (from the Elbow to the Wrilt) sover'd with Parrots fcahers of the fame colour. They brought out the Idol of afte into the grear Court with all imaginable Solemnity, where the Religious young Mca reseiv'd it, delivexing them from the burden, and raking the Litcer upon their own fhoulders; thefe were drefs'd in red, and had Garlands upon their Heads too. After this they carry'd it abroad to feveral places without the City, a alt multitude of Pcople artending ir. Ar their tewn they had Humane Sacrificcs, and a greater number that day than any other; the Sacrifices were fucseeded with olemn Dances in the great Court of the Temple, the Rcigious dancing in the middle, and the Nobility making one great Circle about them.
The Romilh Fatbers will have is, that afrex this, thelefis make Idol of Pafte being confecrated by the Priefts, was de the counnerliver'd to be caten by the Pcoplc, and receiv'd with the Exer thathe of greateft reverence by them, yea, they call'd it the Fleth ic. and Bones of their Idol, and look'd no more on it as common Pafte. The fick alfo had the benefir of it, as well as the healthy and well, and nwas carried to them wich no little ceremony; but "tis plain whither all this tends, here's Tranfubftantiation added on to the reft, bur we want Purgatory ftill.

Next to this Feaft came that of Tezocllipuca, the God Eeff of Tim of Repentance; this fell in the fame Mondh with the ${ }^{\text {culipuca }}$ former, and lafted 9 or ro days. The Idol upon this Occafion was adom'd with a new Robe, and fevcral Devices of feathers, and other fine things; and being thus. trimm'd up, the Veil or Cuxtain was drawn from before his Manfion door, that he mighr be feen of the whole Aftmbly, Upon this, one of the Officers of the Temple founded a Mufical Inftrument, ruming to the four quarters of the Heaven, incimating chereby that all muft hear him. Afterwards he gatherd up Earth, and put ir into hisMouth, eating it in token of Adoration. The Humiliations mulcitude there prefent follow'd his Example, and after- and Brayers. wards proftraced chemfilves upon rhe ground, invoking the Idol, and fhewing all the figns of Sorrow and Contrition for their Offences. This Exercife lafted for feveral days together, and then the Idol it 恠f was folemaly carxied about the circumference of the great Courc, which was all ftrew'd with Flowers, Boughs and Garlands. All forts of People made Offerings according to their qualicy and ability ; fome brought Gold and Jewels, orhers excellens Mieats and Fruits, which the Priefts firlt laid. as the foot of the Altar, and then carried to their Chambers 1 The next part of this Solemnity was a Hu mane Sactifice according to the ufual manner, and theri all concluded with Dancing, Mufick and Feafting.. The. Perfon facrificid as this time was he that had born the Character of the Idol for a Twelve-monith before, according to the former Accounts; every three Years there was no more Humane Blood but thar of this Perfononly thed at this Fcatt, but the fourth Year they had Ceveral others to bear him company, for the Solemniry was every way much greater at that time, and the Religion of ir heightned.
Not müch unlike to this was the Fealt of Merchants, Feat of celebrated in Honour of ouetzacoult, the God of Tradegeetzxomif. and Riches. The Sacrifice here Keprefented the Deity or of the allo, and was highly carefs'd by che Merthants; but his Reign was but fort, and he had no more than 40 days allow'd him to enjoy his Eare, and take all this Pleadure. They had this Cuftom in particular, to give him a folemn warning of his approaching Death, which was done two of the Ancients of the Temple in a moft humble and refpectful manner. And they took a grear deal f notice how he receiv'd ir, whecher he wias fad and melanchoilly;

LILIL
lancholly, or appear'd assbriskiand gay as he us'd to be; if the former, they toncluded! it antill Omen, and the Heurt offera Mcrchants fear'di ill Surcefs in their Trade. When his sotic Meon. Heart was taken ont of his: Body, 'rwas offer'd to the Moon, and not to the Sum;' and the Carkals it. Celf, was drefidd up with very tine Sawees, and made a Banquet for the Metchants. This fort of Men wook it in their turn to find one of thele Sacrifices for every returning Year, ncither conid any one that araded much be la wfully crous'd from is. The Mexicans gave Virzilipurtit the Tide of their moft Puiffant Lord, but in Nhort they honour'd $Q$ ecracoult as much as he; his Temple was much. frequented, and his Rites punctually obfervid, fo dilipenc a thing is Religion where there is Intereft too. This Idol was more in ettecm at Choluia, the Capital City of a Mrxican Province, than ar Mexi:o is felf, and 'twas the Cuthom there to have one principal Prieft to officiate every Weck. And one grear part of his Work was to bear up a Drum at Sur-fer and ar Day-brcak, for at Night, upon the found of it, all Peoplequitted Publick bulinels abroad and retired to their Houfes; fo that there was a profound Suleme all through che Towa; and in the Morning, upon this Alarm, all Travcllers and Strangers began their Journeys, neither was it permitted them to ftir before they heard it. The Temple had an afcemt of 60 Sters to it, and a fine fpacious Court, int which wasa 7 hearre of 30 foor fquare for publick Dances, l'iays, and other Uiverfions, which alwaystollow'd the Celel ration of the Feat.
The T.atiantinis (the Neighbours, but moft inveterate Enc:nies of the Micuic.zns) had their principal Sacrifice of Stags, and other Animals of the Woodsand Forefts; fer they were grear Hunters thenfelves, and he whom they honrurd as a Deiry was a mighty Hanter roo, and their Country the molt tit for all thofeS Sports of any in the whole Empire of Nes Spatin. When the time of their Ercat Feaft came, they wcur abroad into the open light to do what they did ; they did not thut themetves ap in Temples, nor make ule of arificial lighes no perform their Matters by, but look'd the Sun in the face, and made him a Witnes of their Actions. They ereated an Altar upon the top of a high Mountain, and upon thar they feated their ldol. Then a valt multitade of them march $d$ out of the City with 2ll Lorts of Mulick in une amongt them, and encompals'd the Mountain of all Surs and out of therr out of th
Gows hurnt
botis. fides. In thort, they fer fire to the Trees and Bufhes all round, and burne the Stags, Hares, Coneys, Wolves and Foxes, out of their feveral thelers and rerirements, which thereupon made up to the higher parts of the Mountain in fuch crouds, that they heap'd upon one anothers backs, and the Peoples too. The Hunters following of them hither, did here begin the Maffacre ; they kill'd grcat numbers of them, and pulld out their Hearrs before the luoh, and then retired laden with all there Spoils to the City again, where they made their Feaft and concluded it with Dances, and feveral forts of Theatrical Reprefentations.
Euncrulis.
As to the point of Funerals, and the Obfequies of the Dead, the Mrxicms were not Supertitious and Ceremonious than in their Sacrifices. Amongft fome of them the-dead Eodies were buried whole and entire, amongft others they were burne to allhes; and thofe remainder aftervards commiited to the ground in Urns. The former were gencrally buried in their Gardens and the Courts of their Houfss; the latter in their Temples, or fome Dormitories adjoining to thofe Sacred Places. But whether one way or the other, 'twas ftill the Cuftom for a dead Man, before lie was Interrd, to be faluted by all his Friends and Kindred as if he was living. They brought him (if a Prince on a Nobleman) Prefents of Goted and Jewels, and fine works, and buried a grear Treafure alont with him, for his Expences in the other Woud. Upon the fame fcore, feveral of bis Domefticks vere obliged to ateend him; and die to continue their Service to hifi in that other ftare. His Cook, his Butler, his 'Yrich, his Dwarfs and common Slaves, all wemt af ter him to do their fereral Offices there. Yea, fometimes fome of the Kindred and Relations underwent this fate; for anuongt the Nobility 'twas look'd upon as a point of State to ko fer d by thofe of their Blood. The Martial-men had particular Trophees and Marks of Honow, to didinguif them as therr Funcrals from orher Men. Theirstes werc caried along to the place of Interment betite the Body, and whatever Heroical Actions the deuess"d had dene in his Life-time, they were ceractit by 2 : Fort of Blazonty, fo that all the Af ferilly might be fret koknow them. The Ceremony of Inermenr was perfornid by the Priefts with a world of ridiculnusations and gettures; yea; they were fometimes drefid fo frightfilly upon thele Occafions s, that the very fight of them was alpaoft enough to have made more Funerals Geqy fritty !
Marriage: among thefe Popple was cyen in the literal Marriafcs When 2 Couple trgecher of a Man and a Woman: When 2 Copple came before the Prieft to be thus united after having declar'd their mutual Confent, he took the. The M.n and corner of the Woman's Veih and the skirt of the Man's fifen'd by Gown, and tied them rogether in a knot, and fol led hnot. them thus join'd away to the Bridegroom's Houfc. Here a fire was prefcntly kindlod, and the Pricit led Miftrefs Bricte feven dimes round the Hearth, which was the Confummation of the Ceremony, and left them actually Mranand Wafe. The Trxicians being very jealous Divorcs. of the Integrity of their Wives, do many times part with them, when perhaps the Women have given no juft Occafion cither for the Divorce, or the Jealoufic that is the caufe of it. In this cafe, when it comes to fuch an ex- Divifion of remity, they divide their Goods, and the whole Soock, Goods. ascoruing to what each of them had when they cane to crher; the Man has his Parr; and the Woman bers, and To fhe has no more dependance upon him, nor concern with him; and that theys may be exact and punctual in thefe Divigons, they have Inventories always drawn up at Marriage, which the Fathers of borh fides kecp in their hands, and bring forth upon thefe Occafions. The Children are divided too as well as the Goods; the Daughters follow the Mother, and the Sons the Father And the knor of the Veil and the Gown being now perfectly uncied, the Man and Woman are borth at liberty Marrey of o go and tie ir again where they pleafe; only they mult cerwatd. never do it with one another again by the Law, for if hey die for't ; and let them-xepent or change their Minds, or wifh and defire as much as they will, 'tis all one; the Separation muft be erernal. If a Man and his Wife lives eafily and pleafandly rogether, withourany manner of Jealanfiges and Sufpicions; there's old Fealting and Rejoycing of both fides; the Man treats and prefencs the Kindred of fo good a Wife, yca, expreffes his graritude to the Gods too, by vcry great Offerings upon the ame account. The Children of Princes and Noblemen, ceremony at when born, wete wafh'd by the Prieft, and a littie che birant of Sword pur into the Righe Hand, and as.fmall a Tanget chidern. nro the Left. The Children of the Vulgar had fome Inftuments of their Callings put into their Hands; and be Daughters particnlarly, thofe for Spinning, Kniring, and orher, Employments, of the Women. This Ceremony was continued for four Days fucceffively, and al ways pexform'd before fome Idol:

- The Mexicans had allo their Books and their Learn-Their Lcant. ing too tho both much Mort of what the Europerws cou'd ing and pretend to thew them. Their Buoks were the leaves of ${ }^{\text {Books. }}$ cratain Trses folded into 2 convenient form, bur they had no fuch things as letrers in ufe amongit them, but did all by Images; Symbols, and Hieroglyphick Characters. Where chey intended ehings that cou'd be reprefented by their own proper parufal lmages, they made ufe of thofe Images. but where thofe were wancing, they exprefsd shem by other arbitrary Characters which they invented themfelves. The Mexicans worite Way of: ncither like the Europeans, iffricans or Affaticks, but have Wring. a way by themflives; their way is the Inverfe of the Chinefe, for whereas they write from the top to the botom, the others $g 0$ apwards from the bottom to the top. Their computation of Time was very different from the Countingof Europsan; they divided their Yearinto $\$ 8$ Months, each of which contain'd 20 Days, and fo made up 360. The other 5 Days that compleated the number of 365 , were enurely lefs out of the Account of the Year, they recson'd them apart by themfelves, and called them the Days of Nothing, and this with very good reafon too or during thofe Days they did nothing; that is, nothing of bufinels. for themfelves, nor fervice to their Gods The Temples were thut up, and the Sacifices.ceas'd, and hey fpent the whole time in vifiring one anotier. Then thofe Days. were pait they began the Account of the Month and Year; and Acofta, who precends to bave look'd over Mans. cheir Kalendars, lays the firt Day of the Year fell in with our 26 of Eebrumg. . In the Kalendar, each of the 8 Months had its proper Name and Pieture both which always related to fome Feaft or other Accident of the Month, or pertaps to fome Change or Diverfity of the Seafon of the Xear then coming on.: Their Weeks confirted of 13 Days, and each of thefe was mark'd in he Kalendar with a Cypher. But befides Weeks of Weeks of Days, they had atho Weeks of Years in their compuran yerr ion ; each of which took in' 13 Years, and 4 of them Weeks being 52 Years, made up what the Mexicans catld an Age. For cevery Age they had a Wheel, upof ags which all the leffer Divitions of Time were laid out in everal.Colours. In the Centre of the Wheel was pain-

Ag:

No Lemers.

Way of: Fring. ounting of

$\qquad$
$\qquad$

$\qquad$ Thcir Days, Month and $\qquad$
$\qquad$

Weeks of yers. ted.

Chap.XIV Che Civil and Mora! Hiftory of the Spanilh Welt-Indies. 767

ted a Suni, from which pals'd out four Rays, dividing. the whole Circumference inio four equal Parrs, each of which reprefenting a great Weck of that Age, was again divided into is Parts or Years mote; and fo the Divifion of the Age were compleated. Every Xear alfo had 2 cersain Picture belonging to is, cither of a Houfe, 2 Concy, a Reed, or a Flint; they had no more varieties than chefe four, and every Year had one or other of them. Along with this Pifture they drew alfo any remarkable thing that happend that Year: Thus, to reprefent the Conquent of their Country by the Spaniands, they painted a Man in a Hat and a red Jerkin, which was the Habit of the firtt Spanierd that Cortes fent to Mexico. So that to denote the time of any event, they exprefs themfelves after this maincr; at fuch a Houfe, or fuch a Recd, in fuch a Wheel, happened fuch or fuch 2 ching.
Ftuation of Thefe People take care to give their Chidtren a hadable and good Education, according to the Cuftom of their Ccuntry. For this plarpofe they have in their Tamples Schools and Scminarics, where they teach them to Sing, to Lcap, Vaule and Tumble, and to handle Arms; uje them to Excrcifes for the increafing bath Strength and Courage ; teach them the Hittory and Cuftoms of their Country, and particularly make them Learn Ey heart and Dialogucs and Verices made by fomic of their molt cloquent and learned Men, and which their Miafters. rehearfe over to them. Thus they fit them up for the Court, the Tempic, or the Ficld, into the feveral Pofts and Offices, of which they arc remov'd as fatt as chey are qualified for thicm. One thing efpecially is yery comanendable in them, that they endcavour, as foon as may be, to draw off their Children from all the litule foolith Sports and Recreations that age is fo fond of, and to tix their Minds upon more profirable and folid Diverfions which may be of fome fervice to them in the World.

The Mcxicans perhaps have outdone all the reft of the People of chat fide the Globe, as to the pomp and varicty of their Dances. The moft nored and folemn of all was tiat which was calld the Mirsore, in which the Mexican Emperors themfelves fometimes aflifted and bore a parr; of fo high and honourable a Character was it amongtt them. Their Mufick was of feveral kinds, fome refembling Drums, others like Flutes and Cornets but together with thefe ethey hat Vocal Mufick alfo, and thar not ungrateful to the Ear; they kepr Time fo nicely with che Initruments in all their mocions, that that harmony was allo very pleating to the Senfe. Tbele Drinces were held cither in the grear Courts of the Palaces of the Emperors, or thofe of the Temples of the Gods, tho mott commonly in the latter. The Mufick food in the mîdule ; round them was a Circle of the Nobility, who manag'd the Dance with much more Nownets and gravity, and fung with a more ftazely air than the reft. This Cir cle was excompals'd wich anorher of the Common People who difcover'd a grear deal of brisknets and jollity, a vell in their finging as their light and quick motions.
There Dances, tis true, werc in fome meafure brough into their Religion, and made as it wexe a part of it but being origitally of another defign, and only: bor row'd by the other for the fake of Pomp and Solemnity the Spanif Fatherts thought good to tolerate the Mexican in the ufe of them, only taking care that they did not mingle their Superftitions with them

The Mexicrn Empire has been all along, from its firf
The nature of their Go

 changed: Ar firt the Power of chang lay in the Commons, brit afterwards' 'twas transferr'd to the Nobility, and they contitated firs Electors, four of whom wer Grandees of Mexico, and theother two Princes char wer Subjects to that Crown, the King of Tcfouco; and the King of Tucube. In the Election, the main qualifications they required were a Martial temper, love of Glorf, and fome ability in managing Warlike Affairs. When the Election was made, there was a fplendid Feaft at che Prince's firtt taking poffeftion of the Throne; abundance of Orations and Speeches were made ro him, aind Sacritices offerd upon the Occafion. At the Coronation there was ever another as fumptuous and magnificent as the former ; but then, before this' Ceremony was perfurm'd, fomething was' to be done on the King's Pare The Imperial Crown was not to be fer upon his Head broughr home a grear number of Captives. to be offer'd to the Ido's: This done, thar Enfign of Honour and Dignicy was added to him, the Crown was fer on; ath 'twas the King of Tefruce's Place ando-Office to do it. rhey were never known to bave their hands in any Plots or Trcalons, or to cheridh any Factions or intentinc Difcords amongit themfelves. Their Grandecs have appear'd fo free from Ambition and finifter Decigin, and porfersd with fo generous and untained a love to ther Country, that they have forte of them put away the imprrial Crown when is has been otfer'd rhem, pircly upon this confiderition, thar 'twou'd be more prutitabic or the Communisy to have it placid upon fome ocher Head. The Government was m all Poinrs regulated and difpored very well, and wharever fome of their ke igious Cuftoms ivere, their Politicks were far from be ing barbarous. There were four principal Degrecs or 5 witira Dignities amongt the Noblemen ; rhat of the Electors puyples. Was firf, and they 1 ere moft commonly Princes of che Blood. Belides thefe there were three more, and out of thefe four Orders the Grind Council of the Einpire was made uf. But then chere were a great many other cour ubordinarc Councils, Courts of Audience, Tribunals Trturni, ce. and Jutiductions, which for Number, Order and regular Dependance upon one another, are faid by fome yo 0 be ar all inferiour to thofe in Spain. And there was as good a Policy cftabliflid for the gathering in the Re vanues of the Crown, our of all the many Provinces of this grear Empire. There were Collectors, Reccivere Trafirem, and Treafurers, ini every Province ; and all the Tributes Packevo, wcre conftatrly renim'd into the Royal. Treafury at Mexica every Month.

The higheft Honburs and Preferments in this Country, Filine ved cricrally fell to the thare of the Men of Arms. Indeed theNobility were Coriginally; only the bent Snldicrs, and always thofe that coud perform noble Deeds in the Ficld, had their reward in furable Honours and Tirles at Court. They enioy' ${ }^{\circ}$ Privileges that none elfe sou'd pretend to, and if the Princes were ever prodigal of their favours, it was to thofe Men that had thewn him by fome good proofs, they had Military Verrues worth his taking notice of. They had ahree Orderser Knighthood inftituted amonget them, for the encouragement of Yalour and Bravery : The firf and moft honourable of Order of all had their hair tied up with a red Rimand, and a ${ }^{\text {Krights }}$ rich Plume of Feathers fipreading upin their-lhculders; efides 'twas allow'd them, as a parti ular dimempilhing maik, to wear cerrain rouls of Feachers, and char as maay as they had perforind remarkable Actions in War. The nexr to thefe wore call'd the Licns and T:gers, as bcing generally the moft rough and hardy Soldiers of all, and put upno the moth defperare Services; their mark was to be compleatly Atm'd, but without rhofe gaudy Accourrements which the former had. The late of all were the Grey Knigbes; which had their hair cu: round about the Ear, and were never Arm'd bur half way. All Knights were allow'd to carry Emhelifihmenes of Gold and Silver, to wear xich Coctons, to nfe gile and painced Veffels; and to have Shoes made after the Moxican fahion ; the Common People were denied all theic, and incurr'd a Penalry by pretending to them. The Knights had alfo their Apartments and Lodgings in the Palace, mark'd with the feveral proper marks of their Order; under them were the Lodgings of the inferiour Officers, who wexe under fo ftrict Kules, that if any one of them Lodged out of his Place, he did nor forfeis that, but his Life.
Having thus given fome account of the principaloriginal of Cuftoms and Policies of this Empire, it remains thar we cha Empire. touch upon the Rife and Foundation of ir; and.fome of the moft remarkable paffages of iss Hiftory. Thoferhat have fearch'd into the kecords and Tradicions of the Mexicms, do generally agree chiar they wers nor the ancient Inhabirants of the Country they now poffers, and have donc for feveràl Ages, buc were Foreigners that left their native Seats'and planted themfelves here. The zine chistioid Inhabicants were calld Cbichimecas, a Barbarous and mocams. Savage People, that liv'd altogether upon Rapine like the wild Beafts themfelves. They had no Order nor Government, no Worthip nor Ceremonies amoing them; neither did they live in Societies rogether, bur'difpers'd up and down in Caves and Woods, where they cou'd and the mott agreeable thelters. They did neither Till Their barb he ground, Plant or Sow, or undertake any forr of $\mathrm{La}{ }^{\text {ro.sMana }}$ th bour, but fent their time in Hunting their Fellow Bruces ip and down the Mounrains and Forefts. Their Food was any raw Flefh they carch'd, and wild Herb Roos or:Frait, that came to their hands; there was no more of Art in their Diet and Drefling, than in the reft of the circumptances of their living. . Tis reported thar not to be there are yet fome remainders of chem fcatter'd $u p$ and conquerid $b y$ down in New Spain; that maintain themfelves by Spoil'the Span and Robbery, and live much after the old rase. The niard. Spaniards cou'd never reduce them by fair means, and to have made ule of force had been the lame thing as deataring

Lllll2
claring War againt the wild Beafts, that can cover and hide themfelves in the Labyrinths of Caves and chick Woods from all the Armics in the World. According to the Compurations of the Mexican Regifters and Kalendars, 'rwas in that Year which is co-incident with Our A.D. 72 o , that checir Anceftors firtt lefr their own Coming of Councry and came into this. That Country is fome one the sut rate of them that lic liar to the Northwarl, and the Pcople ivere calld Neuntatc:. This was' a gencral Name that comprehended all ther Tribes; for we mut know, they contifted of fei cin diftinct Nations or Tribes, all of which were much more Polite and Civilizd every way than the Cbicbimeces, where Counrry they came ro polfels. tiair Truses. Tis farther to be obferv'd, that all thefe feven Tribes did at tix fame time; bur firft one, and then fome time ation anctiner, and latt of all the $N$ iesicans, which was an lenft 300 Years after the firt Tribe fer our, according to the A cecuits of their Hittorics. Of the fe Tribes that came Tinir than- lint ome pianted rhenfalves about the great lake (now ati un. aboad intoorter Parse of the Country, where they mer w.th the bett acoumbdateons to invire them to a Setthenme. They quickly afterlicgan to buid Towns and Citice, the nolt remarkable of which were Aicupuint-Hitow. As for the Nate es of the Soil, the chichermecans, whion thefe Forvigners tirft intruded themfelives upon then, they made no reliftance, bur cen quitied their Conatry to them, and betook themfelies to the fecureft Yeiter their Mountains andiDens coudafford them:
Yerer a whilc, they recolleeted themfelucs and Gave fentic of the Invaders fome rrouble; the Tlafollans vere frequenty vex'd with their Inroads, and were tosed de laft 10 make ufe of a treacherous Policy co procure theirown quet. They invited them to a Banguex, is, time fo: made them all drunk, difarm'd them; that Weanens, and then fer upon then. This aticrwards producds a ficree Bartel, in The Tafchi. whech the i! . frathens (having the advantage of Anms, and Cistime- 'ruach better Dikipline than rheir Encmics) carried the Victory; the conlequence of which was, that the chichimecans let them ilone for the time to come. But then fecing alfo how amicibly and fociably thefe Foreigners liv'd with ánother, (for all.the fix Tribes, maintain'd an inviolable Fricndthip) and how much better is was to live in fome Order, and under Government as they did, then like themfelves to run wild abour the Woods, and be under no Rules nor Laws, but chore which a Sayage $\therefore$ rcimecs, mp apprite prefcribed, they began to thintk- of conforming witceci- to their Example ; they built dhem Cöriages, put on Apparel, and had a fhadow of Go: eminent and Sociecy. thing like Humane Nature began to difcovercit comemongit chem ; yet they would always !ive in the Mountains apart from the reft, hardly knowing how to take Mankind for their Companions. 'Twas acleaft 300 Year aricr the firft 6 Tribes of the A tisatalcas came hither (as was hinted before) that the laft Tribe which rook the name of Mexicans, from their chief Caprain Mcxi, follow d diem, and came into the Country too. They pretend to have had Inftruations from their ldol relacing of the $\mathcal{A c x i}$. to their Journcy; that he commanded them firft to go into that Country, deferib'd to them the place of their Sctulement by infallible Marks and Signs, and gave them àll a'ong counfel and directions how to manage their Affairs. Bur leaving thefe fuggeftions, it is more credibly reported of them that they made a great many halts by the way, met with many letrs and hindrances from Enemies, and were weaken'd by swo or three Dirifions amongt themfelues, in which fome confuderable numbers of cheir body went off from them, and manaed in other places: fo that 'rwas no lixtle time they indabit, even as thrir Fiftorics report of the 6 Tribes, that they wers 80 Years making cheir Joumey, for they Abuile them Villages, cultivated the Grounds, and fow'd Conn in abundance of piares as they came along; fo that tho' thet fer our from their own Counsry, A.D.720. ycs they made it A.D. 902 before chey entred that of Riow Spitin. However, the Tribe we are now fpeaking of being come ar laft as far as the great Lake; they concluded to fertc there; for the: adjoining Country was dich and fruitfil, and the Eake it felf afforded them all that they coud defire of Fin :and Fowl. They sell a thomfand Storics of the marks cheir God tradar ore gave by. Revelation to the Prients, of whe very place in wherecte the ake where they mou'd lay the foundation of a City Cis was se thitr hou'd be Sovercign Mittrefs of all the reftabout it, and become famous throngh the World. That they Thould find a Tunal-crec growinti upon a Stone, and an Eagle ftanding upon it, with difplay'd Vings, devouring other fimall Birds, which they fay came to tafs, (and one other fimall Birds, which they fay came to tals, (and one may venture to receive it as a thing no ways impolible) upon which account chey add, that chey ftill carry in their Arms anEagle with one foot upon a Tuntt, and the other lifeed up, holding a liecle bird in the tallon; and this "fort panes was a Symbol of the future Glory and Grandcur of che Ciry. Upon this frore alfo they gave is the name of TcCity. pon this fore allo they gave it which fignitics as mach as a Tund upon a Sronc, thei the anme chat grew into common ufe was In onder to the building of this, the Mexicans were Mrxturf forced to go to trafficking with their Neighbours, and trate win this chey coud the more cafily do, beciaule having had bouts. ocialinn in their march hitherwards to nake Come of them fecl the effeets of their Valour, they had ftruck a kind of terror into them, fo that they were sycn forc'd kind of terrorinto them, to that they were cyen fored tho' cyer fo much againft their intereft. To their Ncighbours thereforc the Mcxicans broughe all forts of Fith and Fowl thar the lake yielded, and had of them in exchange Srone, Lime and Timber, for their building. They fithd up alfo a part of the lake wich Rubbiĥ, Quarrers of made rhe Cawles s, and dividechic City into four quarress, which now at this day bedr the namerof the Quar-ba/tian. They had but juft feared thenfelbes in this now Neft, and were nor yet warm in is, kefore annther Divifion hapnend, to the weakning of their yit young, wion happend, to the weakning of their, yt young, bur growing Power. The difconrented Paryenthat made this buftc, was angry ar the method taken in the divifion of the Ciry, looking upon themfelves not to be ceale with thercin ascording to theix Merir. There therefor A Theitents remov'd, and went and fixt uponarosiner picce of grocind in the lake, where they brile a Ciry, and gane is the name of Tunellule, becaufe the ground refembled a Tir rats. This Cicy was the Liatghect of Metice, being fping as is were ous of the very bowe's of is; bur it provid a very unnatural and rebelions one, cncicavouring which yer notwidnable the deftruction of her Moe was never able to accom: plifh. Howerer; the fear of fo many growing enemics abour them, made the Mexicans think of eftablithing their Government upon che furct foundarions, and cafting themfelves inoo fuch 2 form as hu'd leave them the lealt liable 10 any attacks. They thercfore thought good to Mexiant chufe a King, and becaure they wou'd prevent all pri- ciule akins. vate Fcuds and Animofities amongt themfelves, as alfo to oblige a neighbour Prince, whofe Predeceffor they hat grievoully offended, they unanimouly agreed to offer him their Crown. This was the Son of the King of $C_{u}$ :buacan's Daugheer by a Mexican Prince, his Name was Acamapixtli; him they requefted for cheir King, and him they had, his Grandfather thinking it no umprotirable ching to have an Alliance with fo Valians and Polite a People as the Mexicans were. This Prince fpent his the ciry whole long Reign in Peace and Quiernels; he adorn'd adomid. she Ciry with fine Buildings, large Streets and Conduirs, and was a zealous promoter of the good of his Country. All his time the Mexicans groan'd under the Tyrannical Impofitious of their Neighbours (and one of their own Tribes originally too) the Tapanecans, whofe Merropolis was $A$ zcapuataco. There Pcople covied the riling Grandeur of the Maxicrms, and befides fearid to have thenn fome time or orher bccome roublefome Enemies ra them, chey loaded them with heavy burdens of Tribute, and exacted even things next to Impolible of them. Neither did the Mcxicaus, in this Prince's Reign, make ary Efforts towards their own Fucedom, bur paticnely endured the Opprefion.
 favour and cheice of the whole Community. This bhe Nercer, fuch an Alliance. And this was the happy confequence of it, for when the new Queen of Mexica had broughr. a Son inro the World, her Father pleas'd ar that, difcharg'd the Mexicans from all thofe intolerable Tributes, and contenced himfelf only with fome Cinall acknow-" ledgment, as a token that they were at his difpofal, and livd in his Land. But chofe days of tranquility lafted not long, for both the Mexicen King and Queen fortly after died, leaving a tictle Son of ten years old. This Prince's Name was Climmafopoca, and as young as he was. he was choten to fucceed his Facher, and crownid witi allibe ufual Ceremonics. The Mexicans having a Prince. who was Grandion to their grear Enemy, grew a lirtic bold under his Procetion, and began to make Demands.

Chap.XIV. The Civil and Moral Hiftory of tbe SpanifhWelt-Indies. 769

Mexiems de. They wanted good water (that of the Lake being very mund watr., chick and muday) and therefore made their King be $B$ Leave of his Grandfacher ro bring the water to Mexiec from a Mountain about a Lcaque off. This he granted and they made a fort of an Agueduct of Faggots, Reed and Flagss; but that not ferving the ruxn, they fent "ro the King of $A$ zanpuzzacn, to require him to provide them boch Workmen and Materials, that they might have an Agucduct of Stone co rupply their Ciry with water This Dernand (fo lierle becoming the fervile fate and condicion of chofe that made it) dificeasd the King, bus highly incens'd his Council, and made them take uplero-

Tlactellec had not pur a foron to shele proceediniss He, by his Courage and good Advice, preventere this baic fubmuinon, and the overthrow of the Government he went alone, and gave a bold defiance to the Adyerfary King in his Palace proclaimed the War:openly to his Guards, and had like ro hare been cut in pieces for fo doing: The Commons of Mexico were like to be in a thmuls upon this; they were ready to hayc broke up in con fufion, left the City and King both, and gone to find Come places of Rerrear for themeives and their Families

Bargain bé
twoen abc
Moblea and Commore
abour the $r$ f was.
potent Ciry that now rccciv'd Taws from ir, and fubinitred to its Yoke. And the good forcunc dif the Mcxicams Oher $D, \pi$ : increas'd every day, Viftorices and Triumphs came came nona arito. bling in upon them apace: For quickly after this, the little Governments of Tucula and cilyonenn, (which wert parts of the Kingdom of the Tapanresm, of which as caproalco was the chice City) thefe I firy were fwaliow up by the fame growing Power, From thefe Citics ther was a valt deal of rich Plunder, Gold, Silver and Jem cis, carry'd away to Mexice, which now befan to put on fomething of an Imperial face, and herPrince to appeat like a great Monarch. Thele Tepanceatis were the Polt:rity of one of the Tribes that came out of the Nur:h: inhabir this Country, and were conlequenty (originall: Countrymen to the Mexicans: however, wew they wer their Slaves, and thertly afcer another of the Iriles, tiat Suchimilcos, were to roo; and being entircly defanter by Tiacnellec, prefented their Crown to Kung Iatherlt. . The acrt Conquef was thar of the Ciry of cuis arose when ous. ftood in the Lake of -Mexico. Thecefllecis Name was to formidable intall that Pars of the World, that he himfe: was almoft *Army enough to have-done the lufinel; However, to affront the Enemy morc, he carry'd an Ar my of Boys along with him, and having aliaulted she Ci5y, he profs'd it fo clofely with his young Soldicis, that the Detenkants (who to be fure did rot do much, and were conquer'd by the very. Famte and. Character of the Gencral) quitted their Pofts, and refigned the Ciry: him. This made to much noif, that the King of Te- T'mo for cusa concluded he drould nor be able to defera lumic? long from the Power of Arms, fo forewate as timien: the Mirxicans, and therefors by the Adv:ce ami Conlem of his Conncil, he fent his Ambaliadors to ctire his Sini-: m:fion to King /rochootr ton, who Ly this means ind an:ther Crown added to what he had betore. Als tont nate Prince having enioy'd theic Crowas a white, cu and made way for a Succeffor to pur them on; leaters (befides his many Conquefts; this !tarding Me:monal if himfelf, namely, the great Caw:cy exiendag aio: the Lakefrom Niexico to Samilcir, which was till trou Leagues, a Work of no kets ufefuln. istuinch Ctcs , $1 \%$ on the acconnt of Commerce and Trade, than it was of Coft and Labour. The next Choice fell gron Monsen$m . t$, the firft of that Name, who was Neplew to the fiz mous Gencral Tiacnellec, as this latter was aifo to the laft King İzhoolt. This Prince was a mighty Conqucror Cluese fub too, he mbdued the Province of Ciaco, and paing the cisch Mountain Menede; he conguced on to the North Sea: from thence returning towardsthe South Sca, he fubducd feveral ocher Provinces, and by the furpaling Valo:r and Glory of his Unkle Thacalltcr; rais'd the Mantersi, Name and Glory to a yery high pitch. He built the famous Tcmple of the Idol tristilipur the Grandeur of the Imperial Palace, by appointing greater numbers of Officers and Minifters than cris were us'd by any of his Predeceliñs. 'Twas he alfo that Reve the firt fer 2-foor the Cuftom of the King's going in Parion Cuntan: to the Wars, to fetch in Captives for the Sacrifices of ta : Covuma heir Coronation Solemnitics. He was crownd with un more pomp and ceremony than any Prince before him bad been, and the publick Sliciws upon thar Occation were much more numerous and itarely. He being dead, Generoins the Crown was offer'd ti) Thecasllec, in confideration of A:timi. his grear Merir; but he as gencroully anfus'd it, and gate his Vote for Ticocic, the deceas'd montizuma's Son. This Prince was directly the Reverfe of his Farher; he was a Coward, weak and indifpos'd to Action. The Mexicans (the moft dutiful Subjeets in the World) cou'd nor bear him, and therefore poifon"d him out of thic way and made room for a more worthy Succettor. This was Axsyca, another of the Sons of the Gieat Manterismit and brought into the Throne likewife by the tateretit of Tiacactlec; that brave General did act live io fee this fecond King (which he had made) crown'd, but expirei worn our with old Age, and the toil of bulincls. Tle whole Empire was decply afflicted at his Death, and they bury'd him with a Solemnity becoming the Qualiy of the ereatet of their Princes; nc lels than this wa due to the Founder of their Empire, and the grease? Man in that part of the World, as all agree he was. Axayca was $a$ very fucceffful Prince in all his Undertakings and the moft valiant the Mexicanse ever had. He andded tionanecos to the Empire the Province of Tequintrepe, . which lies i..iducd. 200 Leagues from Mexico, and carry d his Conquefts as far 2s Guatuleo, a well-known Port in the South Sea. He reducd the Government of Tintelulco to the Obedience of Mexico likewife, and made that Sedirious Parts, which had feparated it felf from the main Body, unite again and become one People with them. The Tratetitcam: re-Treel he fus'd to do it by fair means, and their Prince, inflead cenquéd

770 $T$ be Civiland Moral Hiftory of the Spanifh Weft-Indies.

Duet be- of acknowled sing Axajea for his Sovercign, fens him: a ween the Challenge to fighe Hand to Hand with him. They had Mreter mod both of them their Armics ready drawn up, bus they Mheternd commanded all to ftand toll till the Controverfic was decided lecwixt them two. The effect of is was, that the Prinec of ristrifilo not abie long to endure the furious blows of the Mcx:cin Eifiperor, turn'd abour and run away rowards the City, arnd his own Men fecing him run, touk their lacels and run after him, and both were follow'd by the $M$-xi.,iss, who purfued them very clofe. The Priace of Thathice got into the Tomb, and to fitye himlelf, run up to the top of a Tcmple, bur Axayca be ing all this while in chafeo him, cnecrd the Temple almont as tion asta, and laying hold of him, he dragg' him along, ans threw him from the ton of that lots liuilding to the very botron. The Mexicen Gencral (he frand mearis Som lad in the mean time entirely ©cicatad tie Forcess of the Tifeclulcane, fo chat this City wha alfo :own forced to acompany a great manjo others in their fertune, and do thomage to Ai xtict.
duas Prince was lucceded by another who was one uni of the lictors, and his Name was $A$ utot : He fubdued ated çuicted the Retellinus Q Quacellaticns, who inhabiced one of the chicfett Provinces of Ner Sp.zin; in order to come at then, for there was a lietle Arm of thes-seain dis way. licune a-flomm: lant of Eath, Faggots Needs. Cance, and diver; offer Materials, upon which lic placed himetet and his Army, and fo got to the Ene$\qquad$ my. He extented the Limes of his Empite as far as

$\stackrel{3}{\mathrm{~m}} \mathrm{~d}$ Guatimeti, which is 300 Leagues from Mexico; but while be was aurmenting the Suildings and Beauties of $M$ xito, he hat like to have quite laid it under warer, and that by bengine a migity Warer-courfe to the City, which ruind a gond patt of it, and had well-nigh crewn'd the whete. Eut he quickly drew off that Flood again, and repaited the Streets that had fifferd, and lefthe City muth more nine than cver, and encompais'd with ware like anteher tenie
This Prince dying mate way for Monrezuma the fecond of that Name to come upont the Throne. And Pite ; bath the Monarch and the Monarchy it fulf owere the meft Glericus that was ever. This Prince was he cinat fave the fatal perind of ali this Grandecur, and an Rmbire that hat been fo mary Yeare growing Greas and Rich, frailowd up in one or two by a Forcign Power. Fut tecoule his Story conains more varicty in it, and Matters that bave hern more talk'd of in the World, we that be a litele more partiction in this than in the former ones.

Sis crechla " $\lambda 1$ nter ${ }^{r}$, 1 a was a Perion of excellent Endowmence and for his Wifdom aind Graviry wonderfully refpected in the Emperpr's Privy Council, of which he was 2 Menber. He was alro Cuming and Politick in the highet degree, and underfood all the Ares of Diflimu iation and Intrigue as well as he did thofe of War: None had more Courage for the Fireld, nor more Wir and Managemenefor the Court thain he. And to poffefs the Pcople with No:ions of his grear Piety and Reverence of the Gods (which was one, and not an unlikely way of gecting cheir Affections) he usid frequently to rexire hinifeif into a privace Chapel in the grear Tomple, where he was sery bufie in performing the Rites of his Keligion. Upon alt thefe accounts his Election was fhort and cafic, the Eyes of all Men were rurn'd upon him as the fitrelt Perfon to be Incrufted with the Charge of the Empire. When he had Intelligence thas he was cholen, he hid himfelf in the Temple, and feem'd very unwilling to aceept the Honour; and the Londs were forc'd to come and ferch him our, and place him in the Throne as is were by violence. The Ceremony of bis Inftalicient was artented with more Supertitions than wicre ulinall; practis' frir his Predeceftors; he drew B1:ou himfeif from his Ears and the Calves of his Legs, and had the grittle of his Noic picre'd, and a rich Emerauld hing thectat. And as wevas always the Cuftom upon ain Eicction, for fome of the Grear Mcn to make Speednes io the Prince cested, fo hardy was any Prince crer fo harangu'd as he, and fo much rapoure exprefe'd Pithen Trim upon fuct an Qecation. The lite cxecfes were ado anyis is the obleryakle at his Coronarion; the Feiafts, the Strews saration" the Plays, the Dances, the Sacrifices, the Illumifacions, and, in 3 wort, the whole Pomp of the thing was every way extravagiat.

Amongt the crou's of Strangers that came to Mexice to tee the Solcminty, there wext fome of the Tinfoatian's and Vickoncans, the moft invcterate Enemies of the Mrexicen, whom when Montcrama lind difcover'd, he ticated with ait the kindnces and gerierolity in the World, an ordecd all his Siligetsto do the like: Butneyer was any of thote Amcrican Princes (or perhaps handly any orhcr) fo high and fately as he; all Plebeians were turn'd out of his Palace, and nor fufferid to bear, any Office about him ; he was ferv'd only by his Noblemen, and no other darcd ever to come into his Prefence; if a Picbecian lonk'd bim in the face he was punibid with Death. He nerer wore any Garment, or eat or drunk out of any Veffel more than once. When he went abroad, the Noblemen carried hinn in a Chair of State upon their nooulders; he never fet his foot upon the hare ground, bus if he lighted ac any time there were rich Carpers fpread for him to walk upon. And always in his Prngretres, he and his Nobles were enclos'd by themfelves, and all the reft of the rain kept without thofe Bounds, none daxing to ftep withinchem. He was a mott exact and impartial Difpenfer of Juftice, never akarcd an ace of the xigour of his I aws, and 'twas a woful Cafe that Man was in whom he found any way fricty ind the difcharge of his Dury. To kecp a more frict and warchful cye over his People, he woùd pry nto their actions himelf, and not rely altogether upon the Reports of other Men. 'Twas nor uncommon with juntice and him to chrow off the King, and go-apand down in a Juticoundic ove Difguife, taife- who were truaty and diligent in thcir his People. Offices and who were nor.: Particularly be wou'd vifir his Judges, and try cheir loregrity, by affering them Fccs and Bribes, which if any of them rook, he corrainly Execured them. for it afterwards; and he made no differeace berween Nobles and vulgar Men, 申etween Strangers and Kindred, yea, the neareft of his Blood, if he found them tardy in the performance of their Duty.
This great Rrince had Spent about 14 Years in all this Glory and Felicity, when the Spaniards came ro thruft him out of it. The Story fays, that there were abundance Prodigies that forcrold this mighry change. Comets prodigicand Atrange unaccountable Lighiss in the Air, Voices and Manfters. In a word, fome Scupendious Signs or ocher in ath the Elements, which together with the Predictions of the Magical People among thicm, made the Emperor excetively melancholy, and confus'd the whole ountr.
We thall nor trouble the Reader wich the recital of hefe; becaufe a grear part of them perhaps were owing to the Supertitious fancies and conceits of the Mexicans; and on the other hand, we don't fuppofe burthat fome cxrraordinary things might happen:beforcfor remarkable a Cataftrophe as this was, and the fate of to mighry an Empire be uller'd in with Events and Appearances very Gurprizing, as credible Hiftoriés affure us concerning fome oriner Parts of the World. Bur chen this is to be added too, that the Indians are fo very full of whimfical fupertitious Notions, that they are ready to make Miracles and Prodigies of every thing they don'r underfand the reatun of; and fo 'tis with refpect to Omens and Prefages, a Bird can hardly fly in the Air, or a Beaif move upon he Ground, bur shey'll fund. Comeching or ocher of an' Omenin't. However, in A.D. I 5 17. the Calamitics they fear'd began to come nearer in view, for Some time fritt chere appear'd in che North Sca certain huge Bodies mo-ime to to fres ving along upon the water, and the Indians upon the nocice of th thore were under fome concern to know. what fort of Animals they werc. We in. Europe call thefe things Ships, but they took then to be Whales, or fomeotier Monfters of the Sea. Bur they were much more afto- Indian no nifthd and frighred when the $y$ faw them draw near to the nions of she more, and living Men come:out of the Bellics of them, Shipa and ${ }_{1}$ and Men with long Beards and Muitachocs too and in afrange Gath, they believed thefe to be of the fame Species of Animals with themfelves, becaufe they faw them go erect, and heard them salk, but thofe Beards and Whiskers were very puzzling circumftances, and made the Marter a little doubtful to chiem. The Spa micrds however created them well, and pleas'd them with fome Europ:am Toys, informing themfelves at the fame time of the Greatnels of the Prince, and the Riches of the Country. Having gor this notice they difmifs'd the Indians, and thefe latter prefently fent tidings to News fent 0 : Court of what they had feen, and to gether with that Court the Pictures of the Spaniards, their Habits and Ships drawn upon Cloth, and the rifies chey hadgiven them All this went fpeedily to Courr, and miferably confounded both the Emperor and his: Council; hercupon he gave Orders thar Warches hou'd be fet uponalliche SeaCoafts, to give norice when thefe ftrange things appearid again. And this was no longer than till the next Year, for then they difoover'd the Spani/h Flect which come te had Cortes and his Men aboard. The Council now (to cond time. encourage the Emperor, or eife out of a blind belief of whar the Priefts told them) affird him thar this was onIy their great Lord Quezetilicosl come agiin to them,

Spaniands retrific the

$$
\begin{aligned} & \text { Tisfatiams } \\ & \text { join with a } \\ & \because \end{aligned}
$$

Momizama

Chap.XIV. Tbe Civil and Moral Hiftory of the Spanith Wett-Indies. 771

who had been for fome Ages in the European World, and [aponeither Party, or carxying on any other Defign chan Wis now retum'd into the. Weft according to his Pro Eabarty fert mife: Upon this Monteruma Cert 2 (plendid Embaffy to late ' late bisarivals; to rell him alfo, that he knew he was his'Lord Questanitoaiti, and thercfore acknowledg'd himfelf his Servant, and that he held his Country only in his Name; and as his Reprefentative. This was no lit cle advantage to Cortes, and therefore be humour'd the bufinefs accordingly; pretending he was that very Per fon they expected; and made the beft figure polible a the reception of the Ambalfadors, who (poro wretches) paid him even Divinetionours and Reverence.
Corites and his Officers now comferr'd rogether upon this Matrer, and concluded that they ought not let tlip this opportumity of making an entrance into the Country; in order to this, to give the Indians the greateft Notion of them and their Valour ponible, and to appear in al
the terrors of a Wadike figure before them. Chis refo Spaniards
perific the Titudificinti. lution being follow'thery accordingly hew d them al their European Arms; and made the Attillery be difchargid from all theShips; the roaring noife of which aftonifh'd the' Mexicans, as much as if they had feen the Heavens fall before them.
In'a word, the Embaffadors went home with quite another opinion of Corres than they had at firft ; they faid they were furc-their Iord was not come in,that Troop, but as for thefe, they were fome Pbwers chat were their Enemies, and came only to deftroy them:
Monteruma receiv'd thefe Embafiadors with abundance of Sinperftitious Ceremomies in his Palace of Audience where he always late upon fucts Occafions as thefe There were a great number of Humane Sacrifices prepar'd, the Blood of which was fprinkled upon them as they wear into the Emperor. However, theN News they brought was to perplexing to him, that now he was almont becides himfelf; and to omit all the Stories of his confulting the Sorcerers and Magicians, to put a ftopto rthe progrefs of thefe Foreigniers by cheir pernicious Arts, as alfo the fruitlefs attempts they were xeported to have made for thar purpofe, ris more credible thar he went another way to work, and that was to endeavone to foften his Enemics by fhews of Humility and Submifion, whom he defpair'd of overcoming by open Force.

For this end; he fenc Orders to the Provinces all about to reccive the Spaniards, as Men fent from Heaven, and to ferye them with all the rcfpect imagimable; and indced, the confternationiand fear the whole Councry was in, as well as their Emperor's pofrtive Commands, dif posid them well enough to this tame and quict fabminfion to the Spaniards.
In the mean time, Cortes had been joyn'd by the Tlaf-T. fatuant
join with the Spaniardj. callans, (the old Encmics of Mcxico) who were 2 very grear help to him, and wirhout whom he could never probably have donc any thing to the puipofe. For they inform'd him of all things neceffery for a Forcigner to know, that was come to Invade anothers Country.; they thew'd him all the beft and fafeft ways, and, in a word, conducted bis march to Mexico.
Morteruma hearing that the Spanierds were advancing afuifen of dy, towards him, with the Tlafcalloms in his company, tefolvid to make a Verrue of Neceffity, and go forth to meet them ; for he defpis'd the mean:and cowardity Advice of fome of his Sages, to gothide himetf, and lie fecure ous of the reach' of his Enemics; on the other hand, he counfell'd his People to mfe all methods for their own Kafety, burfor his own pär, he determin'ds to meet his fare with 2 grearnefs. of. Mind worthy of thimfelf.
He goces ro In purfuance of this.Defign, he was catried apon the thoulders of his Noblemen in a rich Chair of State, three or four Leagues our of Mexico, where he met with Cortes, At that Interview this grear Prince alighted from his Chair, (che firft time he ever did fo to any Mortal) and Atuted Cortes very civilly. The Spaniard, after thole Sa1 frations were over, told him he ihould banifi all manner of fear and care, for he had no Defign upon his Counrry, nor ar all to leffen any thing of this Authority; fo they march'd a 11 away to Mexico together, where Cortes and b'is Companions were Lodg'd in the Royal Palace, 'Montciuma humidelf retiring into anether.
The next:day, Corses made the Emperor and all the Nobility afemble togeticr. in the grear Hall of the Palace, where he let thein know, that he was fent by a Migbty Prince into thofe Parts of the World," not to make Conquefts, but to do Offees of Kindnels and Frieudnip ; and herefore Gace the Mexicans and $T 1, f$ f callans were fo anuch ar adds with onc another, he wou'd incerpole his Mediarion to make them Friends again; but in the mean time, Bie and his Company woad ftay stere in the Country, writhout injuring or encroaching aponeither Party, or carrying on any orher Decign than thase of promoting the Common Peace and Tranquility of the Empine.: This wheedling Declaration wondegrfully pleas'd aill chem nhas heard it, and both Montriuma and his Lords exprefs'd a great deal of Satisfaction and Ealinefs upon it. The Spaniards were caref'd with all the Delights and Entertainments that that pompous Court coud afford, and the Emperor was notíparing of his Prefents to Coress and his Officers.
However this calm lafted nor long, and the Mrxi- Sp,tnithtane ans sood not be fo blind, bur they muit nceds Re prxican, chrough thefe precences; fo thar Jcaloufies and Diftrufts grew of boch fides; and both Spceniards and ,hexicaus were uneafic.
Cortes finding thefe Diforiers to intreafe daily, thought oo makc one fure ftroke ro keep the Mcosicans in awe, and prevent their taking Arms in their own Defence, and that by fcizing Montčama himself,-whefe Refence trighti ancourage them to it. This was pur in practice; and the Emperor that grear Prince made a clofe Prifoner, and pur under a made a PriSpan ifh Guard'; tho' the fuccers was nor at all anfwerable ${ }^{\text {fo }}$ o the defign, and the Mexicens were but the more incens'd for fuch an Outrage as this upon the Rerfon of their Emperor.
In the midft of thefe croubles, Cortes was forcid to go away from Mexico, and that upon the account of tome Diforders in the Country, occafion'd by the arrival of another Spaniff Commander Pamphilio Niarvars, who, probably, unwilling that Corses thou'd have all the Gio: ry and Profir of fuch a Conqueft, was come to pur in for 2 flare;' and 'ris a fign he was an Adycrfary not to be neglected or defpis'd, becaufe corres, to quict him, went away and left his Affairs at Mcxico in fo ill a polture.

When he was gone, his Liearenant manag'd things mexican No. with fo much Imprudence and Violcace, that he quickly bes rnur brought all to Extremities: He made his Soldiers tall der'L. upon the Nobility at their Publick Ball in the Palace, Martacring a grear mumber of them, which bartarons Action incensid the Mexicans to the highelt degnee, and made them run to Arms with a futy which nothing but the Blood of the Spanierds conld quench the fire of.
The Spaniards were now clofely befieg'd in:the Ralace, spmiandibe. and all their great Guns could roo terrify the Mexicanstrig in the from making Approaches to affault them. They did althatere: they: could to cur of Supplics of Prorifion from coming to them; and, in horr, prefs'd them fo clone ceery way, that the Sprniards were fain one day; in the midft of a fu: rious Batrel, to expofe Montezuma to their view, ferting him upon the Batrelments of the Palace, that they misht fee he was alive, and be fomething pacify'd thereby. The Mexicmons, as foon as ever chey' faw their Lord, were transformid in that moment from mging Lions to meck and gentle Lambs; they laid down their Arms, and kepe a profound filence while he ipoke to xhem . Morreiuma for his part adrisa them to be quier and nor minn fight with the $$_{\text {pamireds }}$ fince all their ftirs.conid do him own Reopie: litcle fervice, being a clofe Prifoner in their tands; but be cou'd not carry-On his Speech far for the Reproacties of his People., One particulaily (a bold young Man nam'd Quncuxtemoc, and whom strey afenwiads made Emperor) gave him the foul Names of Coward and Traitor to his Coumtry ; revild himi for his bale and tame fubmiffion to ine Spaniards, and rold him, That fince he had betray'd himfelf ro weakly, 'the Mexicans were no longer bound to obey him. With that he began to draw his Bow to throt at him, and feveral of them followid his Example, and pelred the miferable Prince woith frones; however, they were fo far from taking his Counfl, that they fell in upon the Spaniards again wich more fury than before. And now the belieged were fo diftrefs'd, thar they were forcd to fend privacely away to Corres to come with all Speed to their Relief.
Cortes having by this time quieted the rumults rais'd contris Reby Narvacs, and fetled the Peace of that part of the dirm. Country, came to Mexico with as good a force of Men as he cond make; and raking the opportunity of the Mexicans Refting-day, (for 'tis their Cuftom in War to hic iftill every fourch day) he broke through, and gor with his Supplies into the Palace.
Notwithtianding this addition to their Stretgrh, and the Prefence of their General, the fury and refolurion of the Mexicans ftill increas'd, which Cortes finding, and concluding 'rwor'd be impoffible to bold our long in that place, herelotvd to give them che nip; and manch off his Men in the dead rime of the Night. In order to The Spa chis, he was fored to lay a couple of bridges over stronledefy: very dangerous Paffes, and the 'Spaniards had march'd over the fiff of them; and were uponthe fecond, whien an Indinn VVoman (pied them, and gave the Alarm to

772

The Civil and Moral Hiftory of the Spanifh Weft-Indies. Lib. V.
Mexicane the City: Upon this all was prefently in an uproar, and

purfice them

 "che Mexicans fell with fo hearty and well govern'd a rage upon the Spaniards, that above 300 of their fmall Army were loft before they coudd get over that fecond Bridge. Many of them too, ftaying to fecure their Gold and Jewels, were taken by the Mexicans, and Sacrific'd with all the cruelty imaginable to cheir ldols. The Mexicans purfued them for two or three days, and differs'd them at that rate with continual Affaults and Alarims, that they were almoft quite fpent and xired our as well tor want of Reft as of Provinon. However, a laft, they gor into the Territories of the Tlafcallans, their Friends and Allies, where they made Provifion in good carneft for the-Conqueft of Mexiso.How the great Montczuma died is uncerrain; the Sprniards tell one Story, and the Mcxicans another. Some fay that he dicd of a wound he receiv'd with a Stone or a Dair in that rumult when his own Subjects fell upon him. Cortes himelf tells the Emperor Charles V. that the Mexicans Sacrific'd him nogether with one of his Sons, that Night die Spaniards fled away. On the other hand, the Mexicans fay they found Monteituma dead, and coverd with wounds given by Spaniff Ponyards. Which way focver 'twas, tis cerranin that unfortunate Prince met with his fate ar that time, and was one of the great of infiances of the changeablenefs and uncertainty of all worldly Greatnefs and Fcliciry.
Afrer his death, the Mexicans fubftituted Quicuxtemoc in his room, who did not fir cafie in his Throne perhaps at all, and not quice bue a very litele while. Cortes haing made grear Preparations for the W.ar, both in Land Forces, and Boats and-Brigantines, to fight in the Lake, bcing join'd allo. by the Tiffallon Army, returnd to Min:c, which after above 60 dangerous Battels, wich much ado be conquerd at laft. Quicuxicmos having retolurcly mainrain'd the lant fight a grear while, was taken Prifoner and led to Cortes, together with several others of the Mcxican Niobles- when he came into the Spaniara's Prefence be drew bis Dagger, and advancing towards him, Unfil.tbis Dey (fays he) bric I dome my beft Endcatour for the Defence of my Pcople, and now I-baze no mire ta do, hut co give thee shiss Dagger to kill me with Cortes told him be had ne defign upon bis Life, and gave Orders that he thou'd be treated and attended an fome meafure furable to hisDiguity. Thus came that mighry Empire into the hands of the Spaniards, and the Glory of the Mexican Princes, chat had thin'd. fo long and fo brighr, to be quite extinct.

From the Hiftory of Mexito we go on toxthat of Perre, wherein, befides the other Authors which we have had occafion to confult, (who yer were moft of them fuch as bad been upon the frot, and feen thofe Councries themfelves) we lhall here make ufe of a Native of the Councry; one of the Eamily of the Incas, and who may realonably be prefumid to be perfeetly well acquainted with the Guftoms and Policies of his own Nation.:
The Auchor we novi fpeak of was bom at $\mathrm{Cu} / \mathrm{sc}$, the Capiral City of Pert, his Father was a Spaniard, and his Mocher related to the Incas; and he declares that whar he relates of his Country, was from his own KnowJedge and Expericnce, and the Tradicions of his Family. Hetellsus, thar while his Mocher refided at $\mathrm{Cr} / \mathrm{cco}^{\circ}$ thore ther Relarions thar had ctap'd the cruel hands of the Emperor Afabalipa, us'd to come thither every: Week to vifit her, and their Difcourfe was always of the Original, Cuftoms and Laws of their Empire, which they were mighty careful of conveying an exact account of to all the younger ones about them, that they might preferve the memory of them to Pofterity.
The Notions of the Perusians about one Supreme Being, the firf Caule of all chings, feem to have been much more clear and diftinct than thofe of the Mexicans. 'Tis certain alfo, that they had a proper Name in their Tongue to exprefs the Deity by, which was the word Pachacomac the meaning of which is as much as the Quickner of the Univerfe, or as ochers wou'd call ir, the great Soul of the World. This Name was fo very Sacred and Venerable amongtt them, thar they never mention'd it but apon extreme neceffity, and then nor without all the figns of Devotion imaginable, as bowing the Body and Head, lifining up the Eyes to Heaven, and fpreading out the Hands. They call'd him the Invifible and Unknown Being, and for thar reafon offerd no Sacrifices to him, norbaik him ordinarily no Temples, but paid ham only an internal Wornip and Reverence.in cheis in abundance, and the Incas making this the mair point of the Glory of their Onginal, that they were the OffIpring of the Sun, and confequently (in their Norion) of a Divine Race. Befides this, feveral other Dcities have been brought in for a thare of dheit Wormip too, by Acoftn and the Spanifo Writers; the Moon and the Stars have been mention'd, the Earth, the Sea, the Meteors of the airy Region, the Springs and Rivers, and orher meaner Objects upon the furface. But our Inca denies all this, and impures it to their ignorance partly of the Rerruian Rites and Ceremonies, and partly of the Language, which agrees with the Chinefe in chis refpet, that one and the lame word having a mulcitude of fig. nifications, is to be determin'd to this or that pärticular fignification by the tone and aceent.
An inftance of this he gives in the word Hunco, the various Sences and Pronunciations of which being nor underftood by the Spaniards, was the occafion of their making many and grofs miftakes in thefe Matters. The aft Syilable of this word pronounc'd high in the roof of the mouth, determines it to fignify an Idol for the moft part, tho' 'tis alfo frequendy us'd ro fignify Confecrated things in general, as Alcars, Temples; Offerings, and the like. It alfo denoted all things that were rare and cxuraordinary in their kind, or that werc out of the common courfe, and any way prodigious; thus the montrous Snakes, that were 25 or 30 foot long, were calid fluace, and the Sheep that bore Twins had the fame Name, thofe Crcatures for the moft part bringing but one.
The fame word Hucca pronounc'd with the laft Syllable in the inner part of the Throat, had allo different and peculiar fignifications:; and chus.twas in abundance of other words in the fame Language. The Spanicrds therefore might eafily miftake, and make the peruvians fem ra be guilty of fouler and grofor ldolatrics than really they werc. And char they acknowledg'd a Being fupcriour in Power and Majenty to the Sun (to which the mont of their Temples were crected) is clear from the account the laft Emperor dechalipe gave of his Faith to the Friar Voncent do Vall. Vitidi, who came to Catechize him : Ihold (fays the Prince' tric Sun for God, the Een th A Relatarion of for Mother, and Pachacamac for Creator of all. But there Relation of the was a paffage of one of his Predeceffors (the Inca Huyana Emperofin Cepac) to this purpofe, which oughr nor to be forgotten. This Prince one day looking up to the Sun, (which they held to be unlawtul to do) the High Prieft, who was by him, reprov'd him for's ; bur he fill perfifting in his view, and the Prieft in his reproof of him, at laft he turn'd to the Pricat with this Queftion, 25, isich of you cill (Fays he) dares bid me, who am your Sovereign Lord, rife up and go a long Fourney? The Pricft reply'd, Nonc woul'd befo mad as to do Jo. But (continues he) if Icommend the greateft of my Princes to go from bence so Chill, will be not do is? To this the other return'd, That none durft Difober bim. Way then, I sonclude (fays the Incn) that our Father tbe Siun muft needis breve a miglotier Lord then binfrlf, that commends hime every Day to sake Juch a Long. Fourncy; for if be mare a Suprcme Lord, be woud sertainly fome sime or otber licfilland reft bimflif. The Emperor fopoke incomparably weil; tho' had Nicolas Copernicus been in his Courr, he wou'd have told him his Argumenr for a Dower Superious to the Sun was of no force nor efficacy, fince he never makes any Journeys at all, and does nothing elfe but take his Reft;

The Perurian's divided the Univerfe into two Worlds Belicf of a more befides this: the high World, whither they faid fuure sur gope Hen went after Death to be rewarded for cheir Ye, and the Center of the Earth, or the Houfe of the eisil, where thofe that were Lewd and Vicious had a juUE Recompence for their Enormities. This Earth they calld the World below, and faid it participated of the ot her two ; of the Reft and Sarisfaction of the one, and the Sorrows and Difcontents of the other.
They had a Notion of their returning to live here in Superfitious tis World again after 2 long fpace of time : For which kefping their reafon. (fince they coud preferie nothing elfe of themclves) they were yery curious in preferving their Hair againft that time; and this, that when their Souls came to fet all things together again thar belong'd to them, they might not be troubled ro look and fearch about for their Hair, but have ir ready ar hand; for the quicker difpatch, efpecially fince (as the Inca fays they believe) chere will be fach hurly-burlies and confufions ar that time. Uponthis accourar, wheneyer they Poll'd or did but Comb their Heads, thigy laid up their Hair like 2 Jewel. If they were abrotd and did it, they won'd thruft it into 2 Tree, or the hole of a Wall $;$ and if another faw it fall out of its plice at any time, he wou'd rake it up, and very carefully lay it in again.

Chap.
Supplying thc Dcad the Dad with firos.
forsi. T
belic wions. of nced find

$\qquad$$\stackrel{\rightharpoonup}{*}$

Men kint d

grcat Reti
they neral
of $A t$ pany
The pleafaus $\underset{\text { Wious }}{\text { W }}$ Sancy of a nuous upon olive his Prifo othex othex
of $t h$ Wor of hi
Maft Maft
Recin Recin
kindr room ceas' King Kinfr
ther

Ats of Pre.

Ther
by th ycars
ycars
and

Chap.XIV.T be Civil and Moral Hiftory of the SpanilhWeitt-Indies

Their Notions of a Future State were fuch, that they beliey'd thofe that were gone from this World, had yct need of the Comforts and Conveniences of ir; therefore, fome fay, they us'd to Cloath the dead Bodies with new Apparel, and to otuff chcir Hands and Mouths with Gold and Silver. 'Twas nor uncommon neither for them to lay in good ftores of Provifion, both Mear and Drink, into the Graves, that they may 能isty chofe Appetires when they pleafe. Efpecially, they concluded that all great Men wou'd have occafion for their Trains and Recinues of Servants in the orher World, and thercfore they took care to fend chem after them in great numbers; that is, they were Sacrific'd at their Mafters Funerals. Thus when the Emperor Guanalapa, the Father of Arabalipa, died, there were above 1000, and thofe of all Ages and Conditions, that went away to accompany him.
The pleafant
Sancy of Pmtugnoe to fave his Lif.
We cant in this place omit taking notice of the ingenious thoughr of a certain Portuguezs, to fave his life upon fuch an Occafion. This Man baving been raken Prifoner, and made the Servant of fome Nobleman or other, when his lord died they fixid upon him for one of the number that thou'd go to atrend him in the other World ; bur he having becn in she Wars, and loft one of his Eyes, told them 'rwou'd be a difgrace to -his Mafter in that World to have a onc-ey'd Scrvant in his Recinue, and that therefore to avoid doing him that difkindnefs, ${ }^{\circ}$ they had becter by half fend another in his room that had both Eyes. The Relations of the De ceas'd confder'd what the Portuguciechad faid, and finding fome Reafon in'r, and loth alfo ro difcredir their Kinfman there, they excus'd him, and fubftituted -ano ther in his place.

Tby are mighty curious in their Arts of Preferving Dead thing of ill icent or putrefaction, for Cerid the Boer of Ycars; and in this manner they Bodies of all their Emperors and Noblemen from their Dormitories in Cufca , and broughr to Lim by the Spaniards, which having lain therefor \{o many ycars, made every body admire to fee the Bodics fo fair And found. Bur befides this, ro Preferve the remembrance of them more perfectly, they made the Figure or Image of every Inct in his Life-rime; , and tho Acofia, with fome of his Tribe, fay that the Reruvians perform'd an Idolarrous fort of Worthip, both to the Embalmid Bodies of their Incas, and thefe Images too, yet our Per ruvicn Auchor acknowledges nothing of chis nature, and he does not fecm ro be at all partial to, or criminally fond of his Country.
As for the Sacrifices us'd to be made in this Country, the Spaniards tell us of Men, Women and Children,-befides all other forts of Animals; and particularly, as to Children, that no Nation under Heaven thed Such valt quantities of that innocent Blood as the Perverians; did. Our Hiftorian Ince agrees to this Account thus far, that in feveral Provinces which the Emperors of Peru fubdued by their Arms, (and fo fell within the Limits of .xheir Empire) they did offer HumaneSacrifices, and that plentifully too, to cheir Idols;' but thar the Perzivians themfelves, the genuine Subjects of the Incas, did fo, he utterly denies. And as there were no Sacrifices offerid to any Being except the Sun alone, (for the Inviable Pa chacamac was honour'd with another Cort of Devorion) To thofe ctarat were offerd were only common Animals, as Ewes, Rams, Lambs, Coneys, and all Birds tha were fir for Mankind to cat of. Somerimes alio fine Garments werc burne upon the fame fore; Corn, Eruies, and ftrong Liquors, were nor uncommon Offerings neither:

As to the buffines of Liquors, che ceremony was firf
 ing therear, they by that action fignify they offer itto the Sun; ; after which, having made lome inotions with their Lips a little, chey drink is of without any more ado.
Our Peruoian Author does nor feruple ar all to charge his Countrymen with a great deal of Idolarry in their Rites and Ceremonies $i$ nay, he goes farther, and tells us of Sorcerers and. Witches amonght them, and of their Converfations with the Unclean Spirit. The like alfo does Acefta; according to wham, thofe forts of People are very numerous all over the Weft-Indies, but funce ncither the one nor the orher gives us any paricular Relations of this matter, which they car pretend to offer as infallible Truths, we Mall not trouble the Rcader with bare Surmifes or Tradicions.
The Peruvinns had no Idols in any of their Temples, and a grand one roo, being refpected as Sacred and Dí- mot. vine, in that 'twas founded by the Grear Manco Capre, who was the immediate Off-fpring of the Sunaccording to their Tradition, and lias all along been the Refidence of the Incas his Dcfeendants. Upon this fcorc, any thing that came from C /foo was valucd at a higher tare than a thing of the fame kind and of equal goodnefs any where elfe; yea, 2 Man that came from Cufio had a icSpect paid him by others upon the Road that were in Quality as good as himfe'f, nouch more if he were a Native or a Citizen of thar place.
The great and fplendid Tcmple of the Sunint this Ci- Clorm: ty deferves a particular rema-k: The moft glorious part the s: of is was the Chapel or Shrine of the Sun, which was: wrought of polin'd Srone, and in figure four fquare: Every Wall was cover'd from top to botrom with Plarce of Malfie Gold, and upon the Eaftern-fide 1tood thic mage of the Sun made with a Humane face, and ras: darting our of every fade. The rarity of it was, that twas made our of one cntire Plate of Gold, and jet it tock up all shat end from one VVall to the orber.
As the Riffing of rhis rich Ciry and Temple by theinige c.: :ie Spanitrds, the Image of the Sun fell by Lott to one par. Sun. ticular Officers thare, and thar exrravagant Man hazardcd it ar a certain Game, and loft ic all in one Night; from whence ir came to be a Proverb there of a prodigal Gametter, He bas plaid anecy the Sun before lis Rifing. On Badis oftre the one and the other fide of the Image of the Sun, were tran. the Bodies of the Dccealed Empero's placid according to their Anciquity, and fo finely preferv'd, that they look'd as if they were alive: They were fee on Seats of Gold rais'd on Supporters of the fame Mctal, with thers faces towards the People that entred; only Hu;a•aC pac was, fer with his face rowards the Sun, as being in their Opinions the Favourite Son of the Heavenly Luminary. All the Doors of this mont magnificenr Tcmp.e was coverd with golden Plates, and in che outfide upon the top of the Walls, which girt it round, there ran along a chamficd work of Gollel in the form of a Crown which was aboye a yard broad. The People bid miolt pars of thefe Royal Bodies, with a prod:ginus cuantiry of the Treafures, fo that the Spanierds cou'd never be Mafters of them ; tho what they had was furprizing, and fome of the Corps were found, wiz three of the Empexors, and two of the Empreffes, and brought to Lima, as was before hinied. Beyond the Temple was carfe Cloia Cloifter confifting of four large Squares, round abour fer, with the rops of which were Crowns of chamfred Gold afer oitiot Chapsie the manner of the Temple; and to thele Squares werd and Siriocs. adjoining feveral delicate Chapels. The firt of thefe was dedicared to the Moon, in which was her Image made of a vaft Plate of Silver, and all che Doors were cover'd with Plates of the Same Meral. Hither they came to recommend themfolves to her good linfuences, as being the Wife and Sifter of the Sun, and Morher of the Incas, but they offer'd no Sacritices to her as they did o the golden Luminary. On each fide of the Moons Chapedof mage were rank'd the Bodies of the deceas'd Empreffes the Moon, according to the order of their time and juft before it fáce to face, food the Mother of flugne $C_{n j a c}$, who had that Dignity conferrd on her for bringing fuch a Son into the Worid. The next was dedicated to $V$ enus, and che Planets in general ; all of which they held to be the Servants of the Moon, and cherefore placid near ar hand by cheir Sovereign Miftrefs. That which fucceeded to this was the Chapel of the fixid Scars, the Roof of which was adorn'd with Stars finall and great, and had the refemblance ofa Firmament. This and the former were both coverd with Silver Plates like that of the Moon, to reprefent the paler light and fainerer luftre of the Bodies they were confecrated to. Afrer thefo came the Chapels of the Thunder and Lightning, and f the Rainbow, which were both ganinid with Gold; and upon the golden Walls of the larter was drawn. 2 large Rainbow. Laft of all was a ftately Manfion for the Priefts, which was alfo covcr'd with Gold from rop to bottom. In this great Cloifter.before-mention'd there were various other Apartments, Shrines and Tabernacles, which were comparable to any of the former for extravagant Pomp and Riches." Befides Gold and Silver, eve-niches of ite y place ftone with Jewds too', fuch as the Country af-Strines orded ; thée are principally Turquoites and Emeraulds, forDiamonds-and Rubies chey have none. Upon the whole, no-Princes in the whole World have ever adorn'd their Temples and Places of V Vorhip fo as the Incas of Perui have done. For feveral forts of Sacrifices they had Ceveral ${ }^{2}$ Rooms fer apart, fome for one; and others for Reveral anotber fort; but one wou'd hardly ar fight have ima- Reomera for fac, gin'd, that a Houfe fo glorions as this thon'd have beentices.

Mmmmm
devoted
devored to Butchery and thedding of Blood．If there Maingerance like thrm from the Irca，and the Furni－ were fome Pillars of Stone，there were othets of Gold，rutce ó their Houfes no kefs rich and noble chan the for－ and Silver，nor maffie；bur hollow；and the very Pipes of the Fountains，that brought watct to ferve the Oc－ cafions of the Pricts，were of no bafer Metal．Bur it almolt gocs beyond all belief what is reported of the Garden of the＇lemple，that there were the refemblanees of a vaft number of Animals and Vegetables wrought in purc Gold and Silver；Quadrupeds，Birds and Reptiles， Flowers，Herbs，Trees with the Frait on them，all done to the life，and difpos＇d up and down in noolt natural Order．Befides thele，they had Humane Bodies in Effigie， both Men and Women；and，in flrort，hardly any thing of this mature wanting，that exquifire Art cou d contrive and male，and ftarely Power（like that of the fichs of and mal：e，and ftarely Power（like that of the fiens of Perii）command to be done．As for the Yeffels and Utenfi＇s of Utenfils belonging to the Temple Service，they were none of them bencath the Metals before－mentiond and twas the fanc as to the Inftruncrits that related to the Garden，cern the very Spades and Pich－axes were of the Game valuable Marerials．And twas not the Tem－ ple of Cufo alone cliar was thus Divinely embelliin＇d and fer forth，thete were feveral orhets in the Empite that were not much infrriour to it，bur that which came near－ eft，and，as fome fay，mighe pretent to rival if not oundo ir，was the Temple of Titicast，which hands in an lanad in the midft of a Lake that bears the fame Namc．That which occafion＇d fuch a prodigious Mafs of Trearure to be broughe hither，was a fond conceir of the peravians，rhar after the Deluge the Sun flined up－ on this fpo：before any other upon the Globe；and there－ fure，to acknowledga this beneit of their Father the Sun， they buils him here a Tcmple，and all rhe Provinces of the Empire did make their Annual Offerings of Gold， Siiver，and precious Stones．The Perwoians themfelves have faid，that there was Gold chough in that Inand （befides what was wroughe into fine Shapes and Figures） to have buils another Temple from the foundation，but all went into the take when the spomiarts came into the Country，and 10 did a good part of the Treafure of cuff co go inro the fame fure Repofitory under water． quality of
The Pricfts of the Shrine of the Sun at $c_{\mu / c o ~ w e r e a l l ~}^{\text {w }}$ of them of the Blood Royal of the Incas，and had conie－ quendy the Title of Incas themfelves；as for the ocher Scrvices of the Tcmple，there were Incas nor by Birth； bur fuch as wete faid to be fo by Privilege．The High Pitielt was commonly either Unkle or Brocher to the Em－ peror，he mult ar leait be Legitimate of the Blood，or the was uttctly uncapable of Diccharging that Function．In the other Provinces，the $\operatorname{lnferiour}$ Priefts were the Kin－ dred of the Noblemen of thofe Countries，and the chicf Prief alone an tica，for that Dignity muft be ar thíc head of all the greareft Offices，both Sacred，Civil and Military．The Priefts（which is much）had no peculiat Veltments；they Ferva their Courfes in the Temple bi Weeks，in which time they did not ftir out of it Da nor Night．
Religious
Bur befdes thefe Religious，the Pmatiens fiad alto fome of the other Sex Women indos in certam Houles，and living chere the Lives of Nuas under ifie Governmane of cheir Superiours；chefe ivere to be all of them of the Royal Blood，withour mixtate on ciether fide．They lived in perpetial recrirement to their dying kay，neither might they fee or \｛peak with any Perfon bur thofe that betong＇d＇to their own Houfe．Twas Death for any Man to enter the fecond Gate of their Houfe，as no Woman might cnter that of the Priefts；onty the Emprefs her felf，and her Daughter，＂iad the liberty of going in and conferriog with them：
xhre：－Work．They had multitudes of noble Attentants 0 ftheir öw Sex to do ail inferiour Works and Offices for them；as for their own parts，the did only exercife themelves in the fine works－of Spinning，Weating atrd Sewing，and making the fplendid Roies that the Empector or Emprets did wear，as well as thofe which were offer to the Sum． They made alfo the Bread For the Sacrifices to the Suniat the great Fcafts，and the Driok which Itrec dratik at that time，All the Utenfils of theit Poufes were ts tich as thole of the Priefts In che Houfe of the Sant，and they had a Garden allo adorn＇s with the fitite golden varie－ ties．Theit Manfion＇s were not：itr ，the Tentple of the Gutronit che Sun，but diftart from it By a whole Sutet Like rhis
Etomser．at $\mathrm{C} u f 0$ were feveral othe＇sini other Parts of the Empire in which the Pame a batements wefe made as to the con－ dition and quality of the per ons admitted fota tiem，as was obleryd concerning the Priefts ：for fiefe，thio the Governefs muft be of the Blood Royal，yet that of the Nobilityr by fpecial favoux，was admitted to the Ho our of growing old and cold an this recited Serfice Their Enployments were tufh as thofe at Cufor，and their mer，ar leaft as to the qualiry of the Matcrials，for the Pernvint fcom＇d to ufe any thing below Gold and Sil－ ver（where it might be us＇d）in the bufinefs of their Ke－ igion．Bat sthere was a Privilege which belong＇d to Cnmbres hefe Country Numnerics which that in Ciffo never talt－ ed of，and that was，that fome of the Mernbers of them might be difharged trom their Prifon upon the Inces pe culiar fancy and liking to be his Bedfellows．After that rece of Hononr done them，they never reand to their ormer fecluded lives in the Nunperies again，bus either vent into the Service of the Emprefs，or into their own Countrics，where they pais＇d muder no litrle Character Thofe shar were grown old in the Service teo，might have the tame liberty of retining to their refpective Homes；bur as there was no greas danger of thefe for becoming Wives afierwards，fo thote that were young， and had been called our for the ficas Pleafure，might never afferwards beftow themfelves upon other Mes，for twas reckon＇d 2 fort of putrefaction of the CharaEter． Yea，the Women themfelyes combonly were too proud on＇t to lofe it in any hafte，fince to be Miftrefs to the Incn was a greater Glory than to be Wife to the greazef Lord in the Empire．
Thete was another fort of thefe Religious Women Other Nums． which liv＇d recired only in their own Houfes，and took he liberry of going abroad upon very urgent and prelling Occafions，Their greatef mortification was a Vow of perperual Virginity，which they commonly kept invio－ lable．The penalty inflicted upon any Man that was puninment guilry of fo flaming a crime，as to offer violence to any of tiolared th： of all thefe confecrated Virgins，was Doath in the crueleft Clasfity． manner，and＂twas not only his own fare to die，but his Wife，Children，and all his Kindred，were inrolv＇d in the fame punifhment；this was che Law，bur＇rwas＇fel－ domor never executed，there being hardly any fuch thing a an Offence of this nature known to be perpetrated． If the $V$ Vomen themfelves loft their own Chatticy，they were either bury＇d quick，burn＇d，or thrown to the ions．
The moit Solemn of all the Feafts celebrated in this Fent orithe raft Empire was that of the Rammi，or rather of the Sun，and it wis ro．acknowledge the Suns Deity，and to commemorate the happy Defcenr of their firt Inca from bimis．All grear Men in 1N Pofts wharfoever were obli－ ged to be at it，bir if Age，Sickneff，or the ltras bufi－ nefs detaind then，they fent their Reprefentarives，ci－ ther theit Sons or Btethrten．And ar this rime，all en－ deavour＇d to make the brighteft Figure poffible，and wo flew：the atmeft of their Portp，and that in Pexfonal Ornaments，as ：well as Equipages and Rerinues．The People of every Province camie with the feveral forts of Afons they us＇d in fighs；and bore along with them theit eictal Devices dind the Pictures of Egrir warlife Ex

This great Soleminity is inctoduc＇d by a tigdfous Faft eaf of three Days，all which time thiey earnoinimglarta late at Maize，of a feiv Hetbs；they kindle no fre for an he Gitiy of Ciffo，tor feep company with their VVives during this preparation：The Night before they thate preaty quantifies of Dough of their Maize，whithisito efve at the Fealt；and ：they nevet do make that Grain itro Dough but at this Feat，and one more．Eatly in the Morning the Ince himferf artended；with all the ref Ithe Incas，（ot Princes of the Blood）goes barefart inthe the priticipal street of che City；and thete wait for the Rifinits Sun ：As foon as they Ce tim peep forth，they Adoration of Eall intio 1 poffure of Adotaion，and cover their Fazes suin Rifing with their Hands；the Nobles are all this white：tin＇ sten ind his Tarily does here：Neither is this Coftền seciliar to the Pertrofins，all the Peeple of the V Vofld orficp the Rifing Surizs well as they，tho ethe crienti－ $y$＂of doing it be Ootifething different：This Devotion Gold full of Liquor，one in each Hand；that in bis Rght Fland he pours infor Godsen Pipe，by which is is bived to the Tempte of the Stan，affels as it were： Hraug fre confectared＇to that Cumitiafy．：Then he drinks ＂part of that in his Lefrehand，tha：fo gives it to the eft of the Incis，who all this white continue in that amble pofture they dit firfe＇pate theminelves intos the of arinkint that the Roylar $F$ manly does．$\therefore$ After this the whole Trdin join＇d，aha veint évaly in great order fó－Their match wiards the Temple of the Sutr．The Nobility fopt hrorito the Tem－ ar a confiderable diftance from the great Gate，and onty ple the Inea＇s－tflefifelites＇trem on and encer＇d that Sacred Plate，where they fell groftate befote the gleat Goter．

Chap．

Offring． or the has．

．

iolared the

Chap.XIV. The Civil and Moral Hiftory of the SpanifhWelt-Indies 775

Image of the Sun, and chen made every one his Offer-1 ing of golden Veffels; the Supreme, or as they call him the Cepa Inca, with his uwn hands offer'd thofe to the Sun that he drank to him in before, bur all the reft gave theirs to the Pricfls to offer for them, thar is, thole of them that were nor Invefted in sbe Prieftly Office, for if they were they might perform this ceremony, orherwife no degree of Dignity cou'd make ic lawful. The Pricts haviny difposid of thefe Offerings of the fncra 's, went out to receive thofe of the petry Princes or Caracas (as they call them) who prefenred them in order according to their Antiquity, and the time they had been fub- ing fininid, they returnd in the fame order to the Streets again, where they had placd themelves betore, and the uext performance that came on was that of the Sacrifices the principal of all which was a black Lamb:
Prognofica-
es ; the $b$ fley had a world of Auguries and Prefa tion af beft lign was, if the lungs dilcoverd any mowort if dicy were taken our of the Body, and the ger loofe fiom them that held it, and food uprighr on its Legs. If one prov'd unlucky, they laid thar afide and rried another ; and if all were fo rhey gave over the Feaft, raying the Sun was angry for fome crime or other, and expected nothing bur Wars, Famine, Peftilence, and all manner of Calamitics.

The fire they usd upon thete Occafions was Sacred Erit and Celeflial too, fetch'd down from their Father the Sun by the help of a Burning glafs (or a. Jewcl) which the High-Prieft us'd for that purpore; with this they did the Service of the Day, and keps fire in the Temple all the Xear round. If the Sun did not lhine they itruck fire, for they munt bave it de nove tor this exrraordinary Ufe; bur then this refufal of the Sun to afford his Bcams, was look'd upon as a thing of very ill figuification.

The Sacrifices were all Roalted, and eaten openly in

Sacrifics
wated and Git in the

| Sutret. |
| :--- |

Cercmony
driaking to ings here, for the hiser to drink to lonic of che principal Grandees and Men of War, and fend the Cup Lnca which Inca fonds broughe the Liquor usd this form, Tise Capa to shes in bis Name; and 'rwas receiv'd with Eycs lificd op to the Sun, and devout thanks for the favour, and even the Cups were efteem'd as Sacred things, fince the Inca's Lips had touch'd thicm. As for the reet, who were nor thus honour'd, the Inca's of the Blood drank to them in their own Names, and nor in the Emperors.
From what has been reprefented hitherro of rhe Riches and Splendor of this Empire, tis not hard to guels how the Princes liy'd, and in what manner chey were ferr'd. Their Palaces tvere built of Stone finely wrought and cary'd, bit 'ris in vain to precend to rell how much Silver and Gold went to the adorning of chem; "tis enough to fay, that all things that coud be of thofe Mecals were Co ; and cou'd golden Servants have attended them and done their Work, no doube they had bàd their Domefticks and Retinue of the fame. Yer had they in their Palaces and Gardens an Epitome of the Crearion in Gold and Silver, having Men and Women in Eftigie, all the Animals and Vegetables of the Country in their exact Shapes and Proportions. Is neediets anter this to say of what Marerials che Veltels and Utenfids of cont mon Service abour their Houles were.
The ${ }^{\text {Inca }}$ never wore any Garment (tho' the richen) rwice, but gave them to his kindred; and we may fipfore he had lefs need of this lort of change than that of the Furniture of whole Palaces, which, as our Author affures, wis never remoy'd from one Palace to another, but.was new and frelh in every one throughour all the Provinces.
As forall forts of Domeftick Servants and Officers, they were not a few particular Perions raken in uncertainly to fuch or fuch a Place or Office, bur there were whole Towns anlign'd and laid our for thofe purpofes and 'rwaṣ theis bulinefs io furnilh out Men of ability and fitnefs for thofe Trufts, and after they had rerv'd their appounted Times and Courles, to fend ochers in their rooin.
Hantings The Incris had ac cerrain times of the Year their Set Hunrings, but they alwiays weric with a fweeping Train feidom lefs than 30000 Men attenided them upon thefe Occafions, half of which werit upon onc hand, and che cther upon the other, compalling in 20 or 30 Leagues, and fo taking all forts of wild Bcalts in. great numbers, of which, when they had kill'd what they wou'd, they difmist'd the reft
For quick Difhatch and Advertifement of all manuer of Occurrences; they had their Yofts planred up and down at 4 Leagues diftance throughout all the parts of the Empire likely to afford any News; neither was there any thing remarkable that pafid, bur what was pritentThe broughe to the lica's carat cifco.
The inca's, as they perform'd the Office of Chicf ticisitiary Pricts at the Fcaft of the Sun, (they bexig the tirt So- thred x emnizers and Beginners of the Cercmony; fo did they do the Work of common Priells in the Lutinets of Mar riage to all of their own Lineage, andithat ence crey Xear or two.
The fnca himfelf having affimbled then before him, zarn:r ree did call our the Couples, and join their hands; after tio: "tomicewhich he deliverid them to ther Farents, who folernniz'd the Wedding with a Fcalt of four, hive ca li: Days.

The Curacus, in the Provinces, did the like Ofices for The - onee he young Men and Maidens within their refpecitive Ju-rifdictions, as the Lnea's did ar Cafto to thofe of cheirown Blood. Every Man was free to make h.s own Choice, how and where he pleas'd, bur having done if, the woman he had chofen culd nor be his lawful Wife cill the Civil Power (nor che Erclefiaftical) had by dhar Cexeaco ny made her fo. When the bulinels was tobe done, ticu way was for the Bridegroom to go to the Bride's Howic. and having pur a Shoe on upon her foot, to lad her away to the place where either the fice or the Citrace of the Province perform'd the Ceremony of Marriage.
Befides this Wife, the Law and Cuftom of the Cour ry allow'd a varicty of other Wonen, who wire tak: :1 withour any thing of the formality and p:bl.ck notice; neither did the Magiftrate at all concem hiniccif in thofe Matters.
If the Lawful Wife difhonourd her Rusbard's Bud, Ly antmon admitting any other inco is chan himfe:f, beth he and the Cuckold-maker wers puninid with Ueath ; thas is, n cale the Husband obftinately iufitied upon thaving Juftice done him, and won'd not give his Pardon. Or: the other band, fuppoting he was kind and compallionate, and by his forgivenefs fand their lives, yet the law wou'dnot lec dhem go withour tome marks of its Severity, and therefore they warefure to be punith'd, tho by the Indulgence and Gcodnels of the injurht N:an they capid the facal tatruke. The Concubines were not liable: o thefe rigours of the law, they might ufe the liberry of converfing with other Men witheur being thought guilty of any grear crime.
The Rerrvicns allow'd no Marriages wich thisfe that were near in Blood; and cvers the hac.a's thenfelves did not vensure upon ie till sowards the lattor end of that Monarchy, as Acofia Kays. The Cuitom of matriag sainag:s Sitters wasindt brought in, according to chat Audhor, by the Inca Kupangui, the Grandfather of atrabalipa, who authoriz'd it both by Preceps and bis own Practire. He married his Silter by the Fathers file, and decrect is lawful for the Ince's his Succeitors to to do ; nay, ar hit, Death, he commanted his Chidiren to follow his Example, and the Emperor Atcbalipe was the fruit of one of thefe laceftuons conjunctions. On the ocher hand, Garcilafe Diergo fays, without reftriction of time, or any other circumftance, that the Luca's had the Xrivilege of marrying thcir Sifters, and did often do fo; and she ruth on $t$ is, it fecous prebable cuough that the Cuftom was much ancicater than derfa will have it to be, and perhaps as old as the Empire it felf. For according to the Perivian Antiquitics (as we hall foe in iss place) the firt Inca, Manco Capac, and his Cona or Emprefs, were Brother and Sifter, being, as they fisn'd, the Childrein of the Sun, which Example in the Founder of the Empirc, and the moft immediare Off-firing of thicir Deity, was fufficient to introduce the like practife amonght his Succelors. In common Marriages, thofe of one Province 1 mes, muight not marry with them of another, but all withan miringe and amongft themfelves. Neither might they go to live our of the Provinces 2nd Towns where their Habitations were at firft Tetled; and if any did fo; 'twas by ftcialch or parricular favour
The Peruitan Monarchy was from the firt Eftablim- The cattm ment of it Heredicary ; neither was there cter any fuch ve tha thing known as an lnea chofen amongft chem. Ant the reafon of this Conftitucion is cclear nough, for the firt inca (as we thall fee afterwards in the accounc of their Pedigrees and Succeffions) giving himfelf out for the Son of the Sun, his Off-fpring were accordingly in the Opiion of the People of the fame Divine Race; fo that chis high Defcent, this Relation to the Sun, (of all vilible Beings the moft adord amongtt them) muft of necellity seep the Imperial Crown upon the Head of that Family: The Inca's, befides their multirudes of VVomen, had one which bore the Character of Wife and Coya, that is, Mmanma

Soivercigrt

776

The Civil and Moral Hiftory of the Spanilh Weft－Indies，Lib．V
Sovercign Queen or Emprefy，and in cafe of defect of Children by her，the Succellion was devolv＇d to the next of the Legitimate Blood，the Baftards being totally ex－ cluded from all intereft or concern in it．The mark of Inveftiture in the Supreme Power，was a Roul of fire red Wooll banging upion the Forchcad．This Enfign was peculiar to the Incalapn，and as unuch his（pecial Orna－ ment as a Crown of Gold is thar of other Princes；the Princes of the Blood might wear is indeed on one fide， near the Ear，bur the Inca only upon the Forehcad．At this Ceremony rhere were grear numbers of Sacrifices of fer＇d，and rich Oblations made，and an infinire throng of Pcople from all Parts of the Empirc．Acsite lpeaks of folcmn lnvocation of the Deity by the Chict Prieft and a．fort of Prayer made in the Prublick Affembly for the new lnca and the Empirs in gencral；but we don＇t find Diacra takss any notice of ir，who，＂cis probable woud not have omitred fuch a thing had it been for
All their laws，both Civil and Sacred，were arrribu－ ed to Menco Capa the firltinea，who recsiva Peone a his Father the Sun；thus he gave our wo Reople，ac cording to the Policy usid by Numa，and Ceveral orher ding that feveral of the Incris made a great many excel－ cnt Laws chemelyes，yet all went by the Name of Man－ 0 Cepris Laws，to give the more force and authority to hem
Poicices of The Policies of the Inch＇s in their Government ${ }_{2}$ ．were many perhaps may mimitac．
They always placd an fuce of their Blood as Supreme ongers in Goycrnor in cycry Province，to whom all Caules chere prive welfere were ulcimately referr＇d，and who had a Ycarly Ac－ count from all the lnferiour Governors of all that pafs＇d of all that were Born or Dead，of the ftate of all the Troops of that Province；of the Corn，and other profi－ table Commodities．Wheneyer a new Province was con－ quer＇d，the Inhabitants were reduc＇d into certain Bands and Commonaltics，and committed to the charge and care of Officers who had the infpection，fome of 10 ， others of xcO ，orhers of 1000 ；and rome，（which was the higheft Charge of all）of 10000 ．This according to Acofta＇s account，tho＇ont Perurian Author tells us that they wene no higher than 1000 ．Thefe Perfons

Their Dary
ard Bufinefs． ceffaxics of Life，to give an account to the Superiour Governors or Judges of their way and manner of Li － ving，that＇rwas＇regular，and according to the Inca＇s Laws；to fee th；there were no idle Vagabond Perfons amongft them，and efpecially to take care about the Edu－ cation of their Children．If thele mipectors neglected their Duty，the faults that were committed were the own，and they punillid accoruingly．
EveryTown in the Empire had a Judge appointed to lefs moment，and thefeconftanty fent in their Sentences and Dererminations to the Superiuur fudges in the $C_{2-}$ pital Ciry of the Province every Month．Neither did the Matrer reft there，but went on from thele to the more Superiour ones at Court，and if there was any thing of Injuftice or partiality found in any of their Sentences，they were fure to be leverely punilhd．
As the Empire was divided into four Gencral Parts， （which chey vain－gloriouny calld the four Quarters of the World，and were reckon＇d E．W．N．\＆S．as they lay from Cufce，which was the Centre of all）fo the Vice Roys or Prefidents of there Quarters，were the Supreme Minifters in the Góvernment，and had the lant Determi－ nation of Matrers，the next remore being to the Inca Capat himalf．If any Provincial Controverne cond not be decided either by the ordinary Minifters there，or by any Depuration from Court for that purpore，＇rwas ful pended cill the Inca vifited chofe Parts in his Progrefs and was to be bronght to an infuc by a Sentence from his own Mouth．
Goutcil of Stact．
The four grear Vice－Roys before－mention＇a，and they alone，composd the Grand Council of Stare；with thefe the Thea adris＇d about his Affairs，and they made Re－ Forts of all Matters to him．
The way of fending théfe Reports out of the Pro
Way of mas－
0 ns Repors vinces（fince they had not the ofe of Letters）was by the Courn Lines that had feveral knots made in them ：Thofe knots were of various colours，and fhew＇d what crime or tref－ pafs was＇intended；and then certain threads of feveral colours roo，faltned to the Lines，declard whar punith－ ments were due according to the Law：The fameOrder and Subordinatioin of Courts and Officers were efta－ blined for Milirary Affairs；as for Civil，the fame varie－ $t y$ ，and the fane trietnefs of Difcipline，every where obferv＇d．Another piece of Policy practis＇d by the In－ en＇s，was always when a Province was conquer＇d，to dir－ pofe of the greareft part of the Inhabitants into other Provinces up and down，thercby taking away from them all manner of opportunitics and advantages for Revolts or Confpiracies．Then no Towns that were taken by force ar any time，were cyer Sack＇d or Plunder＇d，or any Gentennf w fort of violence offer＇d to the Inhabitants，but on the con－the cond－ trary，they had all manner of good treatment，and by cafie and gentle methods they were broughe no fubmit quietly and peaceably to the Inca＇s Govcriment．And becaule they hele is for a furc Maxim，thar＇swas the beet and fafeft courfe to keep theirSubjects always in action， and well employ＇d，therefore they pur them upon works of long time and great labour；part of which were the large Cawfeys made up and downin feveral parts of the Country，befides fone other more ftupendious ones， which we frall afterwards give the－Reader an accouns of． Farther，when a Country was reduc＇d so the Obedi－oficers in ence of the Inca，Officers were prefently fent to furvey providete． the Lands，and mark out what was fit for the producti－ on of Maize，or other ufeful Grain ；to improve and culdivate what was barren，and to order the concyance of water to places which wanced．When the Land was thus furvey＇d and made improveable，che；divided it； allorting to each Town its proper thare，that is，fo much for the Ufe and Service of thelnhabitants；befides which， there were two lhares more，one for che Revenues of thic Sun，and another for the fucs himfelf，and each of thefe： equal to that which was allow＇d to the People．

But provifion was always made，thar the Inhabitants D＇vifon or Moud not be ftraitned，and therefore if rheir numbers Lands． encreas＇d very faft，there was fome taken our of the fhares of the $i n c=$ and che Sun，to make up the defici－ encies of the other；in ihorr，every Man had a portion affign＇d him according to the greacnés of his Family；if he werc 2 poor Man，or his Occafions and Expences，if he were a Curaca or fome Officer of theState．The Order obferv＇d in the Tillageand Husbandry of thele lands was this；in the firft place they did thofe that belong＇d o the $S$ un，this was a piece of Religious refect，and they concluded they oughe to ferve theis Deity beforc hemfelyes．
Next to thefe they took care of the Lands of Widows nd Orphans，of old and fick Prople，and of allthe Yoor Widows in general；of them that，were in the Wars，whofe Ophans． Wives they look＇d upon at chat time as．Widows，and particularly of thofe that were really ro，and had actu－ ally lont their Husbands in the Incris Service．Of all thefe there was fpecial care taken，and they were far－ thex allowd（if at any time they wanted Corn or Seed） to have is out of the Publick Store－houfes．There were parricular Officers appointed for managing the Lands of all thefe forts of People，and they were oblig＇d to ferve them fint，before they did any thing for themfelves．In the time of the Inca Hirgna，there was one of the Officers hang＇d for Tilling the Land of a certain Curaca bis Kinf－ man，before he had done that of the Widows and Or－ phans；and to make it the more exemplary，the Gal－ lows were fer up，and the Exccurion done，upon chat Noblemans Land where the law bad been rranigxefs＇d． Laft of all the Inca＇s Lands werc look＇d after，chofe Princes building their own Profperity upon that of their People，and endeayouring in the finft place to ren－ der them cafie and happy．When the Lands of the Sun and the Inca were Tilled，there was a grear deal of pomp and folemnity in the bufinefs，they appear＇d in their beft Accourrements，and broke up the ground with Songs of Joy and Triumph．
Nay，the firft piece of ground that was dedicated to Cermony a the Sun near Culco was rurn＇d up by Inca＇s and Pallas Tilling the the Princes and Princeffes of the Blood Royal）in all their inco． beft Robes and Jewels．The Spades they us＇d were of Wood，and about a Yard long，plain beforeand poinred， bur round behind，and near four fingers thick；abour half a Yard from the point was faftened a contrivance of wood like aStirrop，for them to fet their feet upon while tliey thruft them into the groand．They had their Attendants by them to cafe them of 2 part of che burden， and lift up the Turfs of Eaxh for them；and to refrelh them alfo with chearful Songs，while rhey were engag＇d in this hard work．
The Government of the Inca＇s was very mild and thexribuce cafie too，in refpect of the Tributes demanded of their Subjects．＇Tis true，their Power was Ablolute and Uncontroulable，and had no manner of Bounds but what were prefcrib＇d and fet by their own Wills，fo that all the Formnes of theSubject were entirely in their hands and at their difpofal．Notwithftanding this，they did not impofe any heavy pinching Yokes upon them，nor by cruel and rigid Exations, empty their Subjects Coffers to fill their own. This perhaps might have been rpected in a Councry where fuch a Cuitom was ob fervid, for every Prince, as he came to the Throne, to furnifh his own Palace with fuch prodigious Treafurcs of Gold and Silver as the Inca's of Perrualways had in theiss And this is faid to have been their way; no Iner inherited the Domettick Riches of his Predeceffor, but gather 4 his own Treafure himfelf, that of the Deceasd bang the moft part beftow'd anong of his Family, and pars hide not upon his Chapel orSlurine: and other fuch Occa fions, after his Death. And this was ope reafon of the heaping up fuch extravagant Treafutes amonget thofe Princes, for there being an incxhauttible Fund of. Gold and Silver in the Country, cvery one made ir his buines. oourdo his Predeceffor in the Glory and Riches of his Palace. Now this fuppos'd, it was politible that the in a's mighs have had occafion to drain their Subjects, and lay very heavy Taxes and Triburss uron them that all thefe valt quantitics of Treafure might be fupplied. But they have cier gone"another way to work or they always kept the Mincs in theit own hands, and tho' they paid them very well that did and took care of the work, yet they kept an cxact account of all the Profits that were made of them, and the Gold and Sil vermitopt no where after 'twas out of the Mine, till i everal bid canie into the emperial Trealuries at culce. As for Tri of triture bne it was paid chicfly in Work and Labour, in Drel fing and Tilling che Lnce's Lands, and thofe of the Sun in making Arms and Clorhes, for which they had Woull and Cotron allow'd our of the fame Revenues.
$\qquad$

Chap.XIV: Tbe Civil and Moral Hiftory of the SpanifhWeft-Indies. 777

In gencral, had the lrica a mind to the Products of any particular Province they icue ir him for Iribute, what and in what quantity he demanded is; but no Man ever paid any thing our of his own private thare of cand. Sometimes perhaps a Serr of fine Dancers, or Muficians pats'd for Tribute, or fome choice Virgins for the Incris own Entertainment. And if we may credir the fnere our Hiftorian, all the foor Pcople paid a Tribute, which rwas more advantage by far to them to be rid of, than to the Emperor or any of his Minifters to receive, and that was fuch a quanrity of Lice. The chief delign of olucs bringing fon and wholome, and at the fame time by ledec their fubjection. Certainly no Prince zvas eve fo kind to his Subicets as thefe fnce?'s were to theirs for his was a for of Tribute which (being in Nature a very multiplying thing) the Poor perhaps avere always in a condition of paying, and 'rwas no hard matrer for them to frape together their feveral Quota's; every Man onr of his abundance helping his Neighbourthat might have occafinn to borrow.

But che liwa's were kind to their poor Subjects, nor only by taking'away thefe Cattel from them, bur not when their neceflisics required fuch a Supply and when the Scions prov'd unkindly, and Coly; and then wrer ferce, 1 and thofe things to them our of his $G$ miourion made of houfes, of which there were many in crery Province
As for all thofe of the Royal Blood, all Prictts, Judges, Curaci's, Captains as far as Cenrurions, they were Tri-butc-free: So were all Soldiers in time of War, "young Men under 25, and old Men above 50 ; and is general all Females, whecher married Women or Virgins, had che fame exemption.
As the Celebration of the principal Feafts (cfeccially that of the Sun) all the Curcce's and Governors came to $\mathrm{Cu} / \mathrm{Ce}$ with the Tribute of the whole Empire; befides which, they always brought their Prefents for the Ince aiong with them, which werc any Racitics or Curiofitics whatfoever, or any thing that mighr be ufeful and ferviceable to him in his Buildings, or ocher ftately Works.
The Government of the Inca's was not only very indulgent and favourable to the Subjects, but had alfo a grear regard to all Strangers and Travellexs that came within the Verge of is : All fuch Perfons werc treared with the greareft humanity and kindnefs, and allow'd all the decear liberties imaginable.
There were Publich Houfs built on purpofe for their

lnass and

Hofpitals. Reception and Enecrtanment, and they had all necefta Tucs nar free-coft upori the Road, being furning at the were not left expos'd without Care and Atrendance to all Hacards and Uncertainties, bur taken into conve gient Lodgings, where they were furnillid with all thofe thinges their condition requir'd.
Runilhments
enly Coipo unly $\cot 0$
niflunents, for all Offences, whatfoever; there was no fuch thing as a Mulct, fince a Confilcation of Eltareos Goods, for the Peruvians were of this Opinion, Thas all punifhemens that tended to impoverim the Criminal, and ruine his Fortunes in the World, did bir make him ro much che worfe, and incline him to be more defperate in doing evil. Neither did the puniniment of Treafon and Rebellion extend any farther than the Rerfons of chofe that commaited them; their Childucri and Families did not fuffer any ways for their Crimes, hut enjoyd all their Privileges and Libertics as befor:-
But there was hardly ans Crime more harply punih'd severiy in han that of Lying ; and if 'rwere in a matrer of impor- Eant Lyws. tance, it procceded to che lofs of Life it felf. As for way of masPcrjury, there was no fuch thing among it them, furthere naphy wi: was no Swearing or taking of an Oath ; all they did to come by the Truth. in weighry Cafes, was for the Judge, by 2 folemn Demand, to pur the Witneffes upon Ipcaking their Confciences, Duflt slou promi/f in this Matrer in cill she Truth to she Inca? And woe be co thein if they wace found nor to do fo, for arcording to the Notions of the Conntry, they did not Lje to the Jutge but to the Inct, who, like the Heavenly Sun his Hather, had a fort of Univerfal Prefence through the Empire. And in abundance of orther Cafes relating to Points of Common Juftice and Honefty, the Tranigacflors ware call'd to a (ievere account; the Innocent and Oppreficd were relicyid, and Juttice, when demanded, ipectily donc. Now tho' the Laws were ftriot, and even armallofnce was often punith'd with Death. yet all this Rigour :vas temper'd with fo much Mercy and Gentenefs, that the whole Empire (extending near ryoo leengues, and confifting of fo many differcat furts of Pcople was governid by onclaw with as much cafc as if they had becn all but one Hourc. Bur it mult be confeds d, the Cpatoni Reafonme cire Sacred and Divine Original of thooc Liws, con summ thon ributed not a litele to this Univeral Revernase and Submisfion; they belicy'd they all came from the Sun, and were his Ordinances, by the Inca's, and therefore the fear of breaking them was to much the greater, in har they thought their Deisy, as well as their Prince; concen'd in the punifhmene of Offenders.
The Titles of Honour us'd in this Country, may de- Tites of crve to be a litule explain'd, tho', many of them have Honout: been Occafionally mention'd up and down alteady. That of Inca was peculiar to the Royal Families, and becauke all of the Blood by the Male Line had the Tinke of Iim in as well as the Sovereign himecif, therefore by way of Eminence and Diftinction he was calld Inca Cape, that is, the only Lord or Sovercign. The young Princes of the Biood were call'd Tatip Cijarin, that is, Children of the Sun, till they came to be marricd, and then they had the Tithe of Ince's. The Sovereign's principal Wife was termed Coyn, and all her Daughrers had the fame $\mathrm{T}_{i-}$ de; other Wives and Concubincs of the Blond were called Palla. Concubines nor of the Inica's Family were called Mamatuna, that is Mocher, by which chey were difinguifh'd from the Coya, who was fomecimes call'd Memanchic, that is, our Mochcr. The Royal Daughters were alfocalld $\lambda u f t$, that is Nymph; and it nor born of Royal Mothers, for diftinctions fake was added the Name of fome particular Province for a Title, as Collaz Nuftas, Quiru Nufta. This general Title of Nifta continued till they were married, and then chey cxchang'd it for that of Palla. Curaca was a Eurm of Honour kelonging to the Noble or Princely Subjects not of the Blood, as Vise-Roys, Vatfal Princes, and the like; but the mont confiderable degree of Honour, upon many accounts, was that of their kinghthood. For chis, nonce nr:ghetood bur young Men of the Incr's Blood cou'd ftand Candidates, or prevend ro pur inro the Election. The defigan of it was, tharchere thould be a Sctr of Princes fin and able to bear the weight of fo grear a Monarichy, and to do Actions worchy of their hugh Original; that they thou'd be accomplifh'd and qualify'd with all thofe Excellencies which Princes appear Grear and Heroical in their Councries. In order to this, they had the bett Mafters that cou'd be found to intruct thern, and eyery Year or two they pafs'd a ftrict Examination by them.

They generally began to try their. Conitancy in the Exeruifs and point of Abftinence and Fafting, making them tor feven Tralo prepa days rogecher keep to an Allowance of raw Corn and ratory. Warer, and that a very fmall quancity of both too. Thore that cou'd nor hold out in this were guire laid afide, as unfit for any farther Experiments to be made upon them. When they had gone through this Courfe of Mortification, they hearmed chem up with xich Food 2gain, to render them fit for fucceeding trials of Scrength and Activity: Being divided into two Bodies, one of them was ro kecp and defend a Fort, while the ochef:
befieg'd and iffauled it; and this they did with fo much cagernes, that forgetring they were in jeft they firr'd one anothers Bloot and came to carneft, and the ludicrous War fometimes coft fome of chem-their lives. Then follow'd Wrefting, Leaping, Vaulcing, throwing and flingins grant Sroncs, cafting Darrs and Lances. They ried how they could do the Duries of Centincls, and put shem uron the Watch for fereral Nights rogether; and if they were furprizid Napping, they were punig'd with thatine and reproaches. And to fec whether they cun'd endure Kain as well as Hunger and Watching, they lathd them over the Arms and legs with wands: and if they made any figns that they were not able to kear it, the queftion was prefently put to them, If you can't bear this, how will ynu endure the wearons of your Enemies? In a word, the: were obligid to he above fence and fecling or clic they ceud ligd to he alove fence and fecing, or chic whey ceud be no Kinghts; and how many woud curic that Knght trood that anuft be had upon fuch conditions? Bur the inoft vireafomble crial of all, was for thefe young Candidates (for' Knighthood) to be expos'd to all the tricks and poftures of Fencers. Herechey mult tand, while thofe Fellous pretended to make their dhruits at them, thole Fellous pretended to mome a puth lere and there, and fometimes of a fudrien making as if they wou'd itrike them a blow, and if they offer: in the leaft to fart or flinch, or by any l.tele motion of their Bodics fecmid as if chey wou'd avoid a itroke of a thrutt, then they had not courage and refoltrrion coough, and conequently were not fir for this Honour. Nitither did theyleave them here, but tricd alio if they had Art and lugenuity cnough to make their own Shoes and Arms ; ner that they were always to be put upon this, but they thought it requifite for tuch Men to be able to know how to kerte themelves of every thing they necded. When they had gone through all thefe crials, the Mafters inftructed them in the poines of cheir Delicent and Pedigres, and related to them the noble Acts of their Anceftors, to raife in them the fame palion for Glory, and fpur them on to follow their Examples. They tanght them alfo the Duties of Morality, and pur them upon the practife of Juftice, Trugh, Clemency and Mildnels, to all Men. During the whole time that thefo Exercifes lafted, which was a Month, chey laid afide all their Princely Attire, and went in a vile and fordid Habit, to learn Humility, and how to pity the Poor and Miferable, that wers fore'd to go fo meanly Cloath'd. Even the Heir Apparent, of the Empire fubmitred to this, and all the reft, to the urmott rigour; one onl: excepted; which was the Exercife of running for a Banner. Afferwards, when their Maßters gave an account to the Inct Capre, he attended in Perfon, and made a Spech to them; and then each of the Candidates, on his knees, recely'd the firt mark of the Honour, which was to have a hole bor'd in his Ear. The new Knight then kifs'd the Incris Hand, and the Perfon thas ftood unext him pull'd off his Shocs, and pur him on another fors made of Wooll, which he was nor rill then allow'd to wear. After this he is led to another place, where the other Inca's put him on Breeches, (a piece of Apparel prohibited before) and adorn'd his Head, with a Coronet of Flowers. The Princes Royal had the fame Enfigns, only for a mark of diftinction; after his tirft rrial he was allowd to wear a Fringe of yellow Wooll, and to carry an Ax, and a Javelin, which weapon, when put inro his Hand, they call'd a weapon for Tyrants and Traytors. After this Cercniony of Knighthood, all the reft of the Royal Blood ador'd him as their Prince.

The Pcrucians had no fuch thing amongft chem as Trade and Commerce with Foreign Councites, having all things within themfelves, and no occafion to feek the acquaintance of other Pcople upon that foore. Neither, tho they wereMafters of to much Gold or Silver, had they any thing of Coin or Money, for thofe Metals ferv'd entirely for Pomp and Ornament, and they had no notion of any fuch Ufes of them as the Europeans put them to. Their way of Dcaling was to Truck and Barter one thing for another, which they did in all their greateft Fairs and Marts, for every Man knew very well what Commodities he thould have in exchange for thofe he broughs. Indecd they had a thing amongit foce judin thole he broughi. lindecd a high rate, and with which they coud purchafe any thing as we do with Money, it was only the Leaf Coca, which the Peruvians fer as much by as the Mexicans did by their Caccor, a little Fruit priz d at the fame rate, and us'd for the fame purpofes by their People; but the Spaniards, who brought the love of Money along with them, have fince broughs the love of Money along with them, have find wife of it alfo into both thefe Counries.
ife of it alfo into both thele Councries.
The Perreian Language has peculiar
The Permeian Language has peculiar difficulies in it one and the fame word, each of which changes the fignification; for they lay the ftrefs of the pronuaciation cither upon the Iips, the Palate, or the Throat. The accent is moft commonly in the laft Syllable but onc. eldom in the Syllable before that, and never in the latt of all. The Cufco Dialect wants the following Lecters of the Alphaber, wiz. $6, d, f, g$; i confonant, the fangle 1, $x$. Intcad of the fingle / dhey always ute the double, and on the other fade they never pronounce the double; for which reaion there are abundance of words in the Spanifh Tongue chat they cond never be broughr to pronounce well. This variery of pronunciation will cafily mithener of be allow'd to involve and render the Language difficult thespumsid and together with the hecdlefness and blunders of the ipanionds, has contributed to the falfe naming of abundance of thangs. They feldom minded any more than the noife and found a word made in their Ears, and took up widh the firt they heard, withour taking pains to cnquire into it afterwards. Thus the Counery is torrupty call'd Pcou, and it owss that Nante to the Spate niards, who Chrilten'd it fo by miltake. As for the Natives, there's no fuct word among them, and out of very difdain they would never fo mnch as ipeak it, sven when they were talking to the Staninis thempelves. They had no proper Name fur the Fmpire raken in ge-part of the World.
But the bufinefs was thus: The firf Spanineds that ${ }_{\text {Hiwe }}$ the came upon the Coalt furpricid an Lidian Filherman, Counry who having foicd their Ship, was fallen into a decp won- came by the der what fort of thing it wou'd prove to be as laft, and in the midft of his mulings upon the matter, he was frapt by them and brought alioard. When the Indien had rccoverd, and was able to ficak again, they ask'il him by figns and werds teo what the Name of the Countiy was, but he not knowing what they meane ceplicd Bo,u Pcith, that is, his Name was Bror, and if they wou'd know from whence he came, it was out of the River, Pelu being a common Name fir a River in thar Language. From benec it was fpread abrcad, hat the Name of the Country was Peik, they concluding the Lid cm had undertond them, which he mast have been a Witch if he had done. The like carclefs miftate procur'd that Country (they now call Tucater) its Name; the firft Difeoverers ask'd an Lintian what the Country was calld, and he (knowing as litcle Spanifla as a Man miay Ee fupposid io do that never heard of fuch a 1 angiage or P(cople) anfwer'd Tctictan, Tecteritu; that is, I don runderftand you. But they, it fecms, were as well fatisf:d with the Indian's anfwer as if they had underfood it, and fo turning chis Tictecen inro Xucaten (by che figure call'd Metamorphofis) they pafs'd thar about for the true Name of the Country.
Bur to temon from this digrefion; the Rerusianis, as wo Leter. Polite as they were in ocher xerpeets, had no Letrers at all, nay, nor Symbols and Characters as their Néishbours the Mexicrushad, by which they fervid chemafelios (in the wann of Letcers) with admirable Ant and Ingenuity. Yet the comtrivance of the Peruvians to fupply this defect was very fine and pretry; and fuppofing the abrence of Letrers, Symbols, and the like, perhaps nor eafly to be mended. We did before give a hint of this matcer, when we thew'd how the Reports of the Courcs. of Judicarure, in the Provinces, were convey'd to Cifor. In hort, all-their Reeifters, Memorials, and Accounts, were made up of thefe ftrings and knors, in theie were were made up of thefe ftrings and knots; in theie were accounso. contain'd their Hiftories, Circmonics, Laws, and the whole Syftem of their Affairs. They call'd shele conwhivances Quippes, e: ery one of which was a complex ${ }^{\text {By Know. }}$ of fo many knors and ftrings of feveral colours, and as we derise an infinite number of words from the various combinations of the 24 Letters, fo did chey draw a complear Srory or an Account from thofe varietics of knots and colours. And they manage this fort of computation with fo much exactnefs, that they are no more to be cheated and impos'd upon in it, chan we are in an Arichmetick.

Acffic fays he knew a Woman thar had a General Confefion of all her Life done in knoss and chreads, and he declares 'rwas fo nice, that it cou'd nor have been berter if written or printed upon paper.
The fame Author fays (and bercin the Ince agrees with By Sronct him too) that they computed fometimes by fmall Stones and grime of and grains of Maize, which were rangd and difpos'd nise, upon Wheels in fucl an ordex, that they wou'd rhicreby calculate or exprefs any thing with the greateft feadinefs imaginable.. Upon thefe the Chrittian Conyerts drew our the Creed, the Pater Noffer, the Ave Maris, and con'd repeat them as perfectly from thence, as the Spacoud repeat them as perfecty nirrds coud from their Books.

Notions of $\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
9

Chap:XIV. The Givil and Moral Hiforiy of the SpanifhWelt-Indies. 779

Compuration In their Compurations of Time, they were thort of other. others. Ther had not cuch particular forms and uivi hions of Trme as the Mexicms had, but what they did was more exact and agrecable to the Courles and Mo rions of the Heavenly bodies. Their Year confited of the fame number of Days rhar ours does, and 'rwas divided into as many Moniths. But for wans of ocher Methods of Obfervation, they made ufe of one fomerhing rude and imperfeet to determine thic feveral parss of the Year, and that was by the Sun's coming to certain PiLlars at the time of his Rifing and Scting, Thefe Pillars were tweive in number, and they tood in order upon the Mountains about Cu/ce, and 'twas by the means of thefe thar they diftinguifh'd the Months.
They had no knowledge at all in Aftronomy, and attributed the Eclipfes of the Moon to herfickiefs, belicving that fometime or other, when the was very ill in thole Fits, The would dic and fall from Heaven' and kill all here below; and the truth on's is, when the Moon tumbles, woe bs to them thar ftand in the way. Bur the Sun ; so whom they durft nor atribute any fickneff or inficmity) was eclips'd becaule he was angry, and that hideng of his face at that time was the effect of his refenmeur of their Offences. When the Moon was in that fatc of illnefs, and look'd with fo dark a face upon them, they were all in a horrible concern rill the got well again, and recover'd her former luftre. They founded all Corts of Mufical Inftruments, and fer their Dogs- 2 howling, believing thofe noiles would help to xecover her if any thing wou'd - for as 'rwas faid before, they thoughr fone fuch bout or other wou'd make an end of her at fome time, and they did nor know but ceery Eclipfe that happend might be the fatal one. And therefore, when the fad time is over, (during which the Men and Women howl too as well as the Dogs) they give thanks to the Invifible Prchacamac, that he has curd and broughs her our of thofeDiforders, and thereby coni nued the happinefs and comforr of the World fo foolith and ridiculous as thefe, one would wonder at in a Reople etery other way fo fenfible; but their Neighbours the Mexicans can's hit them in the teeth of it, being themielves not much wifer in a cextain Cuftom which they repeated as the end of every Age.
odd Cufton: That very Night when the Age was expired, they put out all their fire, extinguin'd the Lights:every where, and broke all the Veffels abour their Houles; and for what tealon was all this hayock made? Why, the World muit cerramly come to an end fome time or other, and 'rwas cheir opinion, that that general fare wou'd be ar the end of ofte of their Ages, and they did nor know but is might come on with the conclufion of that very Age and if che. World hould end char Nighs, what need thou'd they have of Fire or Houhhold-ltuff next Morning? There wou'd be no drelling of Victuals, and therefore no farcher ufe of Pors and Pans, and Spics, and lo they had e'cn as good break them all beforchand. Bur cou'd not the Fools have had a listle parience, and ftaind till next Motning came? What nced they have been fo halty, and broughe the World to an end within doors, before they faw 'twas fo withour? For the fame rearon thsy ought to have fer all their Houfes and Townsa fire ar the end of every Age, for when the World was dif folv'd they wou'd have no morc occation for them than the 'Furniture of them. Hewever, they warch'd very diligendy all thar Night, and when they faw Ray-light appear netr Morning, they bid it.welcome with Mulick, Shouring, Drunming; and, in a word, with:inezprefGible Joy, and gave thanks for in in their Temples accordingly. The Peruvighs diftrefs about the Moon in an Ecliple, and the Mexicans about the end of the World, are equally pleafant and comical.

There Pcople had a lictle more Skill in Geography than they had in Aftronemy, for they made a lort of Maps and Plars of the Provinces of the Empire. Their Geomerry confifted oniy in that practife which anfwers to the Etimology of the World, they parted and meaSur'd their Grounds by is, and never zroubled themfelves with any Speculations., Mutick they had alio reducd to fome Rules, and divers forts of Infruments; and iwas cotinmon amongit them to have. Conforts of chele and good Voices join't togecher.
Postry and Their Poecry was only Dramatick, and extended no farther than the compofing fome Tragedies and Comedies. The fubjet Matter of the former was fomething or orher Great and Mensorable done by their Royal Anceftors, and the Actors were mo mean interiour Perfons, but fome of the Ince's chomrelves, and the beft of the Nöbility. In their Verfes they obferved exact meafure, bue pever made them Rhiming; they were always very clean and free from frout, neither did their Poets ever fo much as touch or glance ar any thing immodelt or inidecent even in their moft lighit and airy Compofurcs.
For Mechanick Arts, they were not very well fur- m. chnick nith'd; they had nol fuch things as Anvils, Files, Chizcls Aits. nor Beilows, no Saw, no Augre, no Plainer, nor Nails. nftead of Antils they us'd cerain grear hard Stones, $N$ Timis which they: made very finoorh by rubbing one againft another ; and for Hammers, they had a Mals of Copper in form of a Die, wichour any Handle, which they grafp'd in their hands to if rike with as one woid with aSrone. To fupply the vant of Nails, they faften'd cvery thing that was to be fatten'd with Lines and Cords. Bur for all this defect as to the poine of Tools, what wonderful Monuments of Ars have they left for thic World to admire? What dately Buildiangs both in Wood and Srone, and yer Carpenters and Malons fo poonly furnifh'd?' The Forrefs of $\mathrm{Cu} / \mathrm{co}$, in its prittine Grandeur, Admirahio woud have firrpriz'd a Man thar had look'd o'r all the torticio of Wonders of the World The Equpticn Pyramids or ciffe Plerraot's she Wrilly of Babyion or the Tcmple of Dian were all wonderful to the laft degree, bur chicn 'rwas cafic to account for theix making, for they were buile by Pcople that had not only the belt Art and Skil!. bur all manner of Tcolsalfo fit to do fuch Works withal. But how the Fortrels of C afco came together into that form, rwou'd puzzle any Man to lamagine; and to uic our li:cn's own expreflion, is may feein rather a Work of Devils ${ }^{\circ}$ than Men. The Srones, or rather the diocks of Surne Cur which it confints, being fo grear, and the hallins having sume neither Iron nor Sreel no cut and work them, nor no Cares or other Carriages to draw them along, but all done by meer force of Men pulling with great Ropes, and that through rough uneven mouncainous Ways, for 10, 12, and 15 lcagues togecher, 'tis aftonifhing to concive fuch difficulties as thefe conquerd by Humane force. There was one Srone particularly which the The Some infinite Labour and Toil ir coft them to bring it along. There were 20000 Men enfloy'd about it, drawing with great Cables, and in one rugged place i: kill'd acar 4000 Men. 'Twas full is Leagues chat this huge Mounrain of Srone, this Rock, was brought; bur which was Aranger ftill, in the way they werc oblig'd to crols 2 cerrain River not much lefs than the Gucdalquivir in Spain, and what hort of concrivance they had to waft it over this River one wou'd be glad to know, the Stone to be fure did nor fwim over of its felf, and what Veffel con'd be form'd to do it is uncoñetiv cable. But then the fetting of: all the parts of the Building together is not a much lers Wonder thann any of the former, for they had no Rule nor Square, nor no Cranes or Engines to life up the Srones; inftcad of Mortar chey us'd a lort of Clay, and by the means of this cement alone the made all fo clofe and compact, thar the Jun tures cou'd hardly be difcerned. $\rightarrow$ A cerrain Prieft who went to take a nice furvey of this Prodigy of a Building, told the Inca Garcilafo di Vega, that his Opinion was, the Devil was the principal Archirect, and he cou'd nor fee how ail the Art and Force of Marr cou'd ever lay fuch-unweildy things together in that polture that they lay; and tho we are not of his. Opinion, yet we can't but admixe the niighty Paticnce, Labour and Indultry of the Indians, to go through with difficulcies thar appear fo lnvincible to In thore that condider thein.
This Edifice ftood upon a Hill on the North -fide of the siruation and Ciry; and a Hill fo fteep, that thete was no polible aif-Parts of cthe taulting it that way, and therefore there 'rwas defendeti Eortes. with one Wall only about 200 Fathoms long. On the other part of it there were three Walls, on inclonng the other, each in the form of a Crefcent, and of greater length than the former. The fpace betwixt them was abour 30 foor, and every Wall had in the midft of is a Gate, which had one Stone elevated the full breadth and height of it. Wichin thefe Walls were three Forts, the vaithand middle-moft round, and the other two fquare ; all which Libyrin:th had Vaults and Subrerranean Paflages from one to the other, perfett Labyrinthisthcy were, with fo many turnings and windings, thar there was no getcing our bur by the direction of 2 Clue. In the round Forr was a Con: duit of excellent Waré broughr $x$ valt way under, ground, but where or from whence was a Secrer, and known onto the Ince Cape, and fome of his chief Minitters Tyras here atfo thar the Inca's rook up their Quarters when they came to vific the Fortrefs, and 'rwias adom'd accordingly wish all the Beauties of Gold añd Silvery, the Efigies of Plants and Ainimals in thofe Metals being enchas'd therein.: The Goveinor of the Forrrefs was al- Governme: ways to be of the Royal Blood legicimate, and rwas not of ir. awful for any but' Inca's to come into it'; for this west the Houfe of the Sun for War, as the Temple was for Devotion.

780 The Civil and Moral Hiftory of the Spanifh Weft-Indies. Lib. V.

Notithe Sow
The spaniards, inttead of repaixing this aúgut Building, pull it down as fait as they can, to build their own private kloufes; and they have made fuch ure of it for that purpofe, that moft of the Houfes of cufco have fome Ornamens or ocher belonging to che Fortrefs in chem. By doing thus, they have defacid the greateft fices of Majefty in the Univerfe, and a ching that any Prince upon Earth wou'd have been proud of che poorelt Ruines of. The beft of the three Walls were ftanding in oir Incis's time, tut the teafon was becaufe they were roo fout and frong to be pulld down; yet he fays they had begun to make fome impreflion upon them, and that for the luere of a great Gold Chain, which the Inc.i Hiyene Caprec caus'd to te made, and being hidden fonswhere, thicy hopid to find ir here. Here the old Proratb fars chat Hunger will break through Sconc Walls, and is fecms that Coretoufnels will do the fane too; and the truth on't is, the Walls of the Fortrefs of Cufco were capable of making a ftubborn oppofition to cither of thole grecdy dippetites. But thefe forts of Buildings, as Palaces, Cabtes and Forteffes, were the chicf of what they had; they had none of thofe other varictics which the European World cou'd have fhewn, even many Ages betires the foundation of their Empire.
Bridges, Arfmals, Towers, Columns, Arches, were things unknown amongit them; and as to the larter, they rook the doing of it to be the cttest of a Power and Wifdom above that of common Mcn. When they faw Arches of Wood rais'd over the River Xiaure, they were downrighe aftonifh'd, but when the Bridge was finith'd, and all the Wood-work taken away, they all began to run for't, expecting that the Bridge is felf wou'd fall down ino the River; but fecing is fland firm, and, as they thought, fupportud by fome extraordinary Powci) in the Air, they then concluded 'twas very reafomable they thou'd be Scrvants to the Spanimis, for withont ail duabt (hat they) thele Mon muft nceds be the Clithren of the Sun: But is may be they had Reafons cnough afterwards, to alter that Opinion of the Divine Original and Exrraction of their Conguexors, and rhink it Honour cnorgh to allow them to be Mcn.

We may now take a fhort vicw of the Hiftory of this Empire, the Origine, Succelion and Conquefts of the Fnca's, and the vario:s fteps they made towards that heighth of Rower and Command rhey were rifen to when been ofen hinced atrondy) derived their Pedigree from the Suin, which pretenfion of theirs was of the greatelt ufe and fervice to them in the Eftablifhment of their Monarch'y. This made the Pcople honour them almoft like Deitics, and yicid a blind and undifpured Obedience to all their Laws and Impofitions. They gave out, that their Father the Sun taking pity of the miferable barbarous Inhabitants of the Councry, and willing to reform them to a more Civil and Polite way of living, fent down a Son and a Daughter of his own to be their Inftructors, and gave them a Pattern of moft excellent Laws to govern all thofe Nations by. And having withal given them a moft abfolute Sovereiga Auchoriry orer all they coud came and civilize, but a Sovereignry to be mix'd with fo much Mercy, Joftice and Beneficonce, as, like the heavenly Sun their Father, to refrem and do good to all about them; together with this he Ordain'd the Founding of an Imperial City, where the Majefty of the Incn's (his Race) fhou'd thine forth with the pureft luftre. This firft Pair were the Incris Manco Capac, and the Ccya Mama Octo Huaco, Brother and Silter, and Children of the Sun. Some of the common Teople of Pe. $\mu$ bring in the Story of the Deluge here, and make the Inct and the Coys a Couple fenc by fome Deity to pcople and reftore chis part of the World again afrer that gencral Defolation. So that here they were Tike Dascalion and Pyrrba in the Poct, and Manco Capac mighr fay as well as the other, 0 foror $\mathcal{E}$ conjux, 0 Fe minar fola juperfies. But the Inca Garcitaffo mentions nothing of a Flood, and he declares he rells the Story as it was generally receiv'd and belicv'd amongft the Inca's, and as thofe grave Perfons did ufe to relate it at his Mothers Houfe. To proceed therefore with his acconmt, they presended they were firft placid or fer down upon chis World about the Lake Titicaca, which is near eighty Leagues from $C u \int c e$, where they were dirated to fertle and lay the Foundations of the Imperial City: And the mark they had to find our this place by, was a Bar of Gold they receiv"d from the Sun, which flou'd melr with one ftroke upon the ground when they werecome where the Seat of the Empire was intended to be And whey trayelling, according to his directions, North ward from the Lake, had that fign come to pals (as they afterwards told the Reople) in the great Valley where Cufoo cufio the now ftands. However, leaving the Periviens to belicve mont anciont (as now they do) this Hiftory of the Origine of their ${ }^{\mathrm{Cit}}$. Rrinces and Empire, 'ris cerrain that the Politick Manca Capac (who found this the beft courfe to feat himfelf in a Thronc) fucceeded very well in his Device. He endeavourd in his Drefs and Orinamars, as well as by his Words and Precenfions, to appear to be fomething c $\pi$ traordinary; and the Savage People, who found him very differens from themfelves, believ'd him indeed to be the Off-fpring of their Dcity the Sum. When this Opinion was once fix'd, they were his Subjects and he their Sovercign; they gave him extravaganr Honours, and woud cven have gone through fire and water ar his command.

A:id the firft Pcople that thus acknowledg'd him, fet peoples cr:it about amonget all their Neighbours, that the Son of duitr. the Sun was come no Reign over them, and had brought good and wholfome Laws that wou'd make all Mankind happy chat fubmitted to them. By this means his Fame and Intereft grew apace together; and having gor a confiderable number of People abour him, he lef them at work upon building Houfes, which he gave them directions how to do, and fo the firft rough Lines of $\mathrm{Cu} / \mathrm{fo}$ began to be drawn. This was near 400 Years before the Spaniards conzucrd the Country, as appears by all their Memorials and Records.
All thefe rade People he endeavour'd to Civilize and hiu civilz:Inftruct in his Laws; he taughe them the profirable Arts them. of Life, to Culcivate and Sow their Land, to make Inftruments for that purpofe, to Drefs their Vietuals, and ear it after a more Humane manner, and to oblerve fumething of Order and Policy in their Battels. The Cogn alfo ondertook to pexform the fame part amongt the Women that the Incn did amonget the Men; the taught them to work in Wooll and Corron, and make Garments for themrelves and Families, and other Houltoh Offics futable to their Sex. Thus, in the fpace of 6 or 7 xears, the Ince faw himfelf at the Head of a Nation, and was in a condition to extend the narrow Bounds of his Territorics by force, and plant the Sun's Laws by the Sword where they did not meet with a due Refpect and Submiflion. But there was litrle need of force to conguer them that believ'd him to be the Son of fuch a Father; befides the allurements of his Governmenc, and the ufeful Arts he inftructed his People in, were fufficiens to make him nitw Conquefts without methods of violence. In a word, Manco Capac reduc'd all the Ealt Country to His Con the River Paucartapti, and Weftward 8 leagues to the quctis. great River Apurimac, and Southward 9 Leagues no Qursuefana; and in this whole Region he Pcopled, and brought into regular form, better than 100 Towns. Goveinors were plac'd over every feveral Nation that was brought in, and the Relipion of the Sun cftablifhid, Temples being built, and Sacrifices appointed to be offer'd to him. This Incal likewife made fevere laws againft Marther, Adultery and Robbery; he regulated the point of Marriage too, forbidding any thing of that marure cill tre Parties were come to Years of Difcretion, and enjoyning chat none thou'd maxry our of their own Tibe or Kindred.
Heintroduc'd the Cuftoms of wearing the Hair Polld, of boring the Ears, and (as a forr of Diadem) wreathins Cutoms inRiband of many colours, and almoft a finger thick, him. for 5 times'abour the Head. This parri-colour'd Riband was an Ornament peculiar to the Inca himfelf, but Manco Coapiz atways indulged this to his Vaffals, as their Irft Privilege, to bind a Riband of one colour about their Heads liketvife: : After forme cime, he allow'd the Polling 00 as a very great favour, bur done in a way diftingtithable enough from his. They had nothing elfe to ake off their Hair with but a harpFlinit, which was rery troublefome; inforiuch, that when the Spaniards afrexwards broughr: in Scizzars amongtt them, they were Co taken with the Invention, that they us'd to fay, if the spaniards had only come to bring them Scizzars, Combs and Looking-glaffes, they wou'd have given them all the Gold in the Country:. When this Inca came to die, he New Incai, dignify'd all the chief of his Vaffals (whom be affembled made. at ( $\mathrm{uj} \mathrm{j}_{\mathrm{c}}$ ) with the Title of Inca, leaving it as his Ordinance, that they and their Defcendants thou'd be Inca"s without difference, and their Wives fhou'd be all of them Paltas; as if all thefe had been of the Royal Blood, and become-Incis's and Pallas, nor by Favour and Priviege, but by Birch and Relation; but the Royal Family then was Uut Imall, and the Inca was willing to fee a greater number of the: Kindred of the Sun, for the fupport of new rifen Monarchy, before he died. Befides, by this Policy, ne fecurd their Allegiance and Fidelity

Chat

Chap.XIV. 1 be Civil and Moral Hiftory of the SpanifhWeft-Indies:
18.

His Policick

to his Succeffor, for having becn adopted into the Family of the Sun themfelves, they wou'd be fure to exprefs all manner of Duty and Loyal regard to the direct apd natural Defcendant. The Inct, for his part, told Farher the Sun returning back to the Regions for the future; but if they endeavour'd to angment the Glory of the Empire, and frictly obferv'd the Sacred Laws he had brought, he wou'd fuccour them our of thofe bright Manfions where he was now going to dwell. Hegave both the Va(fals (or new made Incris) and his own Children, their feveral Inftrictions apart; and, in fhort having taken all the beft Mcafures for carrying on the Bulding, of which he had fo well laid the Foundations, and acted the fame Politick part at laft that he did at firft, he died, and was fucceeded by Sinchi Roca his eldef Son by his Wife and Sitter, the Coye Mama Oclo Hunco second Inca He follow'd his Fathers example, and rook his ow Sifter Parmer both of his Bed and Throne; and rhis chey did to keep the high Blood of the Inca pure and entire by it felf, thinking 'twou'd be a difparagement to mix is with the beft Humane Blood in the World. He made great Conquefts roo towards the Southern Parts, and hedg'd in at leaft 20 Leagues more Within the Bounds of the Empirc. The Name of Sinchi was given limn upon the account of his Valour and Dexterlty, for he cxceeded all in his time at Running, Leaping, Wreftling, and cafting Darts and grear Srones. Befides his Southern Conquefts, he reduc'd feveral other Nations on cach hand of him, and rcign'd near as long as his Farher, which was 30 Years.
His Son Lloque Mupanqui fill'd the Throne nexr, who added unt a litcle to the extent of his Territorics, fpreading the Knowledge of the Sun's Laws amongit a great number of other Nations. He reduc'd a heap of Nacions calld by the gencral Name of Paincaicolle and Haruncolls, which we mention for no other reafon than that of their particular fancy in the chief Object of their Wormip, which was a whire Ram. They faid rlat the firft Ram in the World above, had more kindnefs for their Nation than all the other Indians befides, and had blefid them exccedingly in multiplying their Catrel. They wou'd have donc very well, if they had allo rold che World how char Rami came to have fuch a particular kindnefs for them above their Ncighbours; and how they came to know they were beholding to bim for to many Bleffugs. Bur Llogue Kupangui broke the Horns of this Ram, robb'd him of his Honour, and made his Devoro's turn about to the Sun.
His Succeffor was Mayra Capac, but what Relation the Inca docs not tell us. He led forth grearer Armics than the Princes his Predeceffors had done before him, and amongit many Conquefts, he brought the People Tiabuanach to acknowledge his Supreme Auchorizy. Thefe People deferve a paticulat mention upon the fcore of the famous Buildings that were amongit them, fuch chat they fay the wonderful Fortercs of Ctysc was copied out from.thence. There were Walls, Yorches, Fronts, and other imperfect pieces of Bulding, made of Stones of $\delta_{0}$ large a fize, that 'swas ftrange how they cou'd be manag'd and difposid into that order ; belides, there wer no Stonc Quarrics known in all the Councry. Particuatriy in the fame Region, faft by the Lake Cbuquivitu there was a Houfe that openid wich a fair Court fifteen Yards fquarc; and encompars'd, with a high Wall three quarters of a Yard thick; on one fide whereot was a great Hail 45 Foor long, and 22 wide. Bur che rarity was, that the whole Building was all one encire Rnck the Hall, Courr, Porches and Wall ir' felf, were all wrought out of one Stone. Befides this, there were Sculprures of Men and Women in Stone, fo natural rhat they appeard as if alive; fome had Cups in their hands, and feetid to be drinking, fome werc firting, others fanding, and in moving poftures, with a greas mary varieties more of this kind. In one Room there were two Giantrs, with long Garments rrailing upon the ground, and their Heads coverd; which is not the common Cuffom of that Councry. The People cou'd give no o ther account neither of the Buildings nor the Scalprures than only this, Thar according to their Traditions, all thofe monftrous Baildings were rais'd in one Night, and thofe Effigies were real Men and Women once, but converted into Stone for their Impieties. The Inca Garciteffo had chis Relation of the Wonders of this Place from went thicher on purpofe to furvey them.
Fifh inca
Capec Xirennqui, the Son of the laft Ince, fucceeded him in his Empire when he wene to reft with bis Facher the Sun. By the way we may note, that thefe Names Caprc and $\chi_{u p a n q u i}$ are not proper ones, but terins of Ho - nour and Dignity, and were given to the Incris for the ake of thofe Vertues and illuftrious Qualities they wert endowed withal. 'Tis probable' he had the two Names Capac and Tupanqui join'd rogetber, (which none of his Predeceffors had) from his exrraordinary fortune in his Wars, and the Glory he purchas'd by them ; for in his time the Empire ftretch'd 180 Leagues from $\mathrm{Cu} / \mathrm{co}^{\circ}$ Southward, and Weftward to the Seawards; 60 Leagues one way and 80 another, to the Eaftward 13 Leagues, and to the S.E. 40 Leagues, and all this before he had finifh'd his Conquefts, for afecr thar 'rwas grown to this bulk, he fwell'd it into larger dimenifions by running ic on co Arequippa 80 Leagues in length outright, and $i+$ in breadth. This Prince had occafion in'one of his En- Brides rerprizes to tranfport his Army over a grear River, and Buturin having no Boass nor Bridges ready madc, he was forc'd make a Bridge, and he did in of Bull-rumes. They grew in great plency thercabours, and to they fery'd chemfelves of them upon this occafion after the following manner. They made a parcel of great Cables of thele Bull-ruthes as big as a Man's Leg, very firmly twifted, and long enough to reach froin one fide of the River to he other. Some of thefe were extended crols the River and upon them were laid huge bundles of the fame ituff ied very fatt rogether and to the Cables. Oycr thefo bundles the $y$ laid other Cables, and Lo ftratum fuper flrarum, Bundles and Cables interwoven with one another, cill at laft they had made it into a from Bridge. The dimenfions of it were If fect in breadth, and 150 paces in length, namely the breadth of the River at that place; and this Bridse of Bull-ruthes was contantly revair'd evety fix Months. This Prince was remarkable for his pious Endeavours to propagate the high Race of the Sun, and ftock his Family with Ince's and cyeis, for he Icfi about 80 Children behind him. Yer our fnce fays, that ome others of them ourdid him feveral Bars length, blefung the Empire with 100 , otherd 200 ; hay, fome above 300 of the Off-fpring of the Sun
This Prince dying made way fot the Inca Rece, the Srrane $D$ : econd of that Name. He added more than soleagucs ${ }^{\text {lictit }}$ fquare to the Empire towards the Province Cbarcos, bicGdes his Northern Conquefts in the Narion of the Chanea, fierce and raliant Pcople. Thele Indians derif d their Defcent from a Lion, and thercfore worihipp'd that Animal, and frequenty cloathid themfelves in Lions skins. All the Valleys where the celebraced Plant Cosa grows were taken in too, and beyond chem to Cannachuay, where there is a defcenc, as our Author fays, of almont 5 Leagues perpendicular, the way all the while going with infinite rurnings and windings. Here in the efe Provinces they workipp'd the Herb Cocr, alfo Tygers and great Snakes, of which there are fome reporred to be 25 and 30 foor long, but of no poyfonous nor defructive narure ar all. This Inca bas che honour of be-Schools ing the firft Founder of Schools in Cufo . He us'd to fay foundal in. that Pachacamac muft needs be a very great King that had fach 2 glorious Houfe as the Heavens were to dwell in; and that if he were to worlhip any thing here below, it hou'd be a, Wife and an Underfanding Man. Bur he made this conclufion too, that that which begins, wife sajing. grows, and at laft dies irrecoverably, ought not to be an object of Wortip; a moble conclufion, for a Man that read no other Divinity than what was printed in the great Book of the World.
To this Inca fucceeded Tabuer Huacac his Son, le had Talmar Hars this Name becaule 'ris reported of him that he wept Blood tnca. ar his Birth; and as this was look'd upon ro be a prefage of the moft unlucky and crols Events, fo none of all the Incris of Peru ever had thar fate and thofe calamitics chat he had: The beginning of his Reign was profjerous enough, and he carried on the defign of his Prede ceffors, in extending the Bounds of their Dominions, with no litele glory; bur as he was forming yet greater projects, and laying our in his own mind ocher Nations and People to try his victorious Arms upon; his eldelt Sor at home became a plague to him; at leaft he was jea lous of him, and for that reafon banim'd him from Court. And to make the furer of him, he confin'd him o the private and obrcure Life of a Shepherd; he made him enter into the Socicty of thofe Men that kept the Shecp and Catrel of the Sun in Cbita. This life he liv"d between 3 or 4 Years, but then (tho directly concrary to his Farhers command) he came away to Court, preending a Meffage of very great importance to deliver to the Inca, neither wotid he go trill he had admiflion. The bufinels was, that he had a Yifion wherein he was a vifor inform'd of a dangerous Defign againft the Stare, that a a viftom Rebellion was harching, and the Imperial Ciry threarned with a furprize ; and all chis from che Mouth of an infallible. Meffenger, evenViracocba, the Brother of Menco

Nnnan

782 The Civiland Moral Hifory of the Spanilh Weft-indies. Lib. V.

Capac the firt inco, who came down from the Regions of Iight on purpofe to reveal it, and appear'd to him of Jight on purpofe to reveal it, and appear'd to him for that purpore as he was feeding his Sheep. The Inco, who wou'd not belicue any thing of this Story, fent him away with a good chiding to his Sheep again; however, threc Months after the Rebellion broke our indecd, and a grear many Provinces altogether threw off: the Inća's Yoke, and cut the Throats of the Governors, And as this was the firt Revolt that ever happend in the Go. vernment, fo 'ris very pollible that the young Prince might forcrel is withour a Vifion from ticaven, espe cially if he was any way concern'd in the procuring of it, which is as likely as that he fhoud live the Life of 2 Shepherd contentedly. The Inca being much furpriz'd, for his part fled away from $C u /{ }^{\prime}$, with a defign to fecure himfelf in fome of the remoter Provinces; and the Inhabitants were going to follow his example, but that they thougit of the Primec, and font for him to come and ftand liy thint. The Prince gather'd what Forces he cou"d, and in the firft place went after his Father, and reprefented to him his Crime and Cowardice in leaving the Houfe and Holies of the Sun, with all the confecrared Virgins, cxposid to the fury of the Enemies; and then bi. d ding all thofe follow him, who preferr'd ath honourable Death before a Life of Ignominy and Shame, he"carried off with him at leaft 4000 of the Royal Strick, the reft reriring with the fnce. After this, fome officr Forces join'd him our of the Provinces, To that 2 confiderable Army was made up as laft, with which he adianced towards the Encmy, met, gave them Batrel and after a tedious and bloody conflict entirely defeated them. Neither is this Battel any clear proof at all that位 Prince was not concern'd in the Ruing for People may be (by Orders) teaz'd and opprefs'd into a Revolt, as well as folicitced and allur'd to ir by Gold ; but whatfocver was the caufe of ir, 'ris certain that 'rwas a good opportunity for an active Prince to recommend himfelf to the Peoples favoure; and 'ris certain alfo, that whether there was defign or no, it had this effect. For he deals fo mildly with the Rebels, and us'd fo many foft Arss in treating them afeex he had beaten them, that he made them abfolutciy his own. But the Body of the Peoplc, in whore Caule he fought, did even adore him; he was receiv'd into Cufco with Triumphs hardly ever known, and as they had given him the Name of Viracocha before, upon the accounc of his Vifion, fo that now fecm'd almoft too list'e for him. After all thefe Horiours recciv'd; he went to vifit his Father in his retirement, who was now grown very melancholly, feeing how old freare things were likely to go. In thort, the Father and Son ires, and the conferr'd fome time in private ; the iffue of which was, Prince lix. ocacs. that the Prince came our and told the Nobility that the Ince wou'd return no more to $\mathrm{Cu} / \mathrm{co}$; and they taking it for granted that he fooke the truth, concluded chat a Palaic of Pleafures fhou'd be built for him in thar place, to fpend the reft of his Days in.
Viracocba upon this return'd to $C u f c o$, and pur on the Imperial Diadern himielf, being receivd and acknowTemple buir ledg'd for Ince Capor This was the end of the Vifion; by firsoroben. in reinembrance of which, (folucky 2 one as 'twas) the new Inca built a ftately Temple, bue wichout a Roof or any Corecing, becaure the Vifion was feen in the open a:r, and he made it his buinels to imitate the place where ir appear'd as much as was poffible. This Buil ding the Speniar ds pull'd down (as they did abundance of ocher noble ones in feveral places) to fearch for Treafure under it; for Gold being fo farce in this poor Country, they were forcd to demolin Tcmpies and Palaces, or any thing to come at a litule of it.

This Prince began and continued to be a Conqueror
B) undarics all his time; he fubjected the Nations Eaftward to the Sicire, and Sourhward to the fartheft Province of Cbarcr:s, 200 Leagues from Cufco. So that the Sea and the Hills on each hand, and Southwards the Defarts berwixt then and Chili, bounded the Empire; neither did he do ali there, but turn'd and weat Northward, where he impos'd his Laws upon a grear many Nations more Bur he did one thing which was of more fame than all his Wars, and thar was the cutting grear Water-chamnels, which might be rank'd amongft the Wonders of the World, confidering the Rocks and Clifs they were forced to break through, and that without any Iron Tools. There was one that went betwixt Parcu, and Picur to Risanas, which was. 120 Leagues in length, and 1: Foor broad; and another was cut in the Weftern Parts of the Empirc, that run full 1 so Leagues even from the high Sierras to the Quechras. The Spaniards futfer'd all thefe ufeful and, coitly Works to run to ruine and decay, as they have allo, above one third part of then char wexe to water the Com-grounds.

The Inca Garcilafo Divega fays, that in A.D. $1560^{\circ}$. Robis oritire panqui, and Huama Capac ; alfo the Bodics of Meme Runtu, Wife to Viracocha, and Mamn Oclo, Mother to Huryna Capar, at Cufer, which had then the very hair of their Eye-lids and Eyc-brows continuing entirc and unblemin'd, and all their Robes and Diadems as while they ivid. They were fer with their hands a-crofs thei Breafts as the Indians ufe to do, their Eycs turn'd downwards, as if looking upon the ground; and their whole feth and drefs appear'd folively and fune, that they made a figure not at all like dead Corps, but rather like fo many living Princes fhining in their Koyal Ornaments. The main difference (next so the want of fecech and motion), was the exceeding lightnels of thore Bodics which wastried by the weighing of them; but this fecret of Embalming was a thing, which the Sprniards cou'd never by any means whatfocver ger out of che $P^{\prime} \mathrm{c}$ ruvians. As they were carried along the Strects, the sim dicns were paffionate to the laft degree,- they knecl'd down before them, and pour'd out figlis and tcars in abundance; in this manuer reverencing their cartily Suns, tho, under the total Eelipfe of Death
This Inca left his Throne to his Son Pachacerce, who, Fachartere by fome of rhe Spanifh Authors, is confounded with his the soch mFather, and the Acts of boch wrapt up confufedly togeher, or that atrribured to one which was paft all doubt done by the other. This Prince cnlarged the Empire Srone 60 Leagues N. &S. in one Expedition, aind reform'd the Towns in the Pcople to the Religion of the Incti's ; particularly' the Provnce Province of Snufa, corruptly called by the Spaniards Xauxa, which was inhabited with a fout and valiant Pcople that had their Towns more like Fortreffes than any thing elfe, bur they had fix'd upon a fordid Crcature 2 Dog for the chicf Object of their Worfhip, and upon the fame fore made Dogs-flefh their chicfeft dainty. Bur Paclartutec was no lefs intent upon the improving his Country, than the augmenring ir by Conguefts, and therefore bufied himfelf in making Laws, building Tcmples, Palaces, Store-houres, and. Fortreffes to defend his Frontiers. After this manner be feent fome Years doing good to his Subjects and Empire, and then Spurr'd on with the infatiable defire of,more Victories and Glory, he went our to the making of new Conquefts, which he did with an Army larger than moft thar had been feen, and took in leveral Nations in that Expedition. Therublick to Vidtories gotren at this time were fo grear, that the Tri- umphs. umphs and Rejoycings in Cufce upon that fcore latted a Month ; and there were Solemnities, which till that ime had hardly been known. There were of all the Ceveral conquerd Nations there to grace the Ceremeny and bear a part in the Entertainment ; chey all appear'd in their Several different Habirs, and with the Martial Mufick us'd in their refpective Councries; they were divided into fo many diftinct Bands and Troops, which march'd in order, after the Inca and the Generals, to the Temple of the Sun; all the reft put off their Shoes when they came to the Boundaries of the Temple, only theInca himelf kepr his on sill he came to the very door, where he made his fect bare, and then went in and gave hanks for the mighry Victories he had gain'd. After this Religious Service, the whole Train returnd to the great Market-place, where they began the ofher Entertainments of Feafting, Singing and Dancing; which held for that fpace of time before-mention'd
And this Expedition was follow'd with another into valieys conthe Valleys of $P i j c o ;$ yca, anà CFincha, which proved of quer as great confequence for the Enlargement of his Territories. Thefe Counaries, for the fpace of 500 Leagues together, worfinipp'd the Sea, and-particularly the Whale, the biggeft Monfter of the fame.
After this he цubdued the Valleys of Ruma, Huaricy, Other $v_{2 l}$ Malla and Cbilct, which were all fubject to one Prince. leya fudud. From hence he past'd to the Valleys of Rachacamac, Rimac, Cancay and Huaman, at which time all the Counrry abour Lima was taken in, which wasalfo all of is under the Dominion of one King: Rimac the Spaniards now call Lima, very corruptly and abufively, as they do a grear many. orther places andichings. befides; and they gave it the Name of the City of Kings, becaufe they ounded it on the day of the Epiphany. In this Country Pactarmenc the Inca found a Temple dedicated to the Invifible Pa-moraipp4. chacamac, who was lerv'd here with a Worhip much more inhumane and cruel thanany known and practis'd in all the Parrs of Peru, for bere were Men, Women and Children, offerd in Sacrifice; and 'twas no uncommon thing to fee rhat more valuable Bloodimixd with the Blood of Brute Animals ar their Alrars. But they Ries difs: differ'd from the Rites of the Religion of the Inca theirrent fom the Conqueror, noc only in the point of Humane Sacrifices, frmvim
$\qquad$

\author{[^1]}
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$

$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$

$\qquad$
$\qquad$

Treaty of
Now when the Inca brought his Army into this Counary, he fenc to Cuyfmanke, the King of it, to demand Subjection in the Sun's Name, whofe Kinfman and De puty he was: Bur Cuy mrâk cu rcfus'd to yield upon thefe Summons, and fent word that his Pachecamec was greatex than the Sun, being the Maker of him and all other Beings, and that 'twas to this Deity that he paid all his Religions Deroirs, The Inca replicd again, That he and his Country did worthip Pacisccamac as well as he, but they did it withour Tcinple or Sacrifice, honouring him only with a Mental Service, becaufe they knew him not, nor what he wou'd be pleas'd with: And whercas they were afraid to look upon the Image of Prichacamac, he and his Psopic dreaded even to pronounce his awful Name.
In 化仿, after many Parleys and Debares, Peace was concluded upon thefe terms, That they fhou'd worthip the Sun as the Inca did, and make him a feparate Temple like that of Pachacamac. That they thou'd take away all thicir Idots, and worhip the Creator of the World without an Imate or a Seatuc. That they thou'd leave off their fhedding Humanc Blood, and acknowledging the Incn's Sovercignty, Thou'd obey hisLaws. And thius Cujjmencu was atill to remain in his Kingdom, only paying the impos'd Tributc, or doing the appointed Homage to his Sovercign.

But this reflefs Prince Pachacutor cou'd not fit down quict with all thefe great Conquefts, but muft fill go on to promote the Religion of the Sun amongit his Neighbours: His next and laft Expedition was to Truxillo, as "cis now call'd, and the Valleys of Parmunca, Hualmi, Huarapu, and fome others. Bur here he met with a cermain fubborn Prince that wou'd not hear of any new Deity, norbe obliged to worfhip the Sun in Complement to the Inca, tho he was not fo fortunate as to maintain his Refolutions handfomly by the Sword, bur loft both his Liberry, Country and Religion together, in one great Batrel.

And now Pacbrcusec turn'd to Domeftick Affairs again, founding Towns, Temples, Granaries, Schools, in greater numbers; enlarging the City of Cuf fo ir felf, and obliging all the Curaci's to leann the Cufco Dialea. The whole thar he added to the Empire was ar lealt 130 Leagues, N.& S. and in breadtin from the Hills to the Sca about 60 or 70 ; but he fat upon the Throne not a litcle while to do all this Work, not much lefs than 50 Years, which was allo abour as much as-his Father before him had kept it.
infontui the This Prince dying, his Son Tupanqui fucceeded him, who having fent tome time in Surveying his large Empire, and not finding it large enough to fatisfie his Ambition, refolv'd upon the defign of making is yet greater. His fixtt Army was employ'd to reduce the Connery on the other fide the ridge of. Mountains that lie Eaftward from Cufco, and becaufe there was.paffagealong thitherwards by certain Rivers that have their Rife from thofe Mouncains, therefore be fent his Men to cnt a great deal of thar ftuff which the Spenierds call Higuera, to make Boan mace. Boars; in which Work they fpent two Years, and then Froceeded in the Expedition.

The River the Army enter'd by. was calld Amonmanu, which is divided in thole high Mouncains into $s$ others: and the People they reduc' $\alpha$ at that time were the Chauchu, which livid on the Banks of the River, a painted feacher'd fort of Barbarians, and little acquainted with any of thofe Laws or Cuftoms that the ince came to teach them. The Tribure imposid upon them was to many Popenjays and Monkeys, fo much Wixx and Honey, which they continued faithfally to pay to the time of the Empires fare.
They proceeded from hence ill they came into the Counnry of Mufu, 200 Leagues from Cuj co. Thefe People had heard too much of the Ince's Fame and Power to-pretend to cope with him, and therefore/were very willing to have his Friendihip, bur they did not care to acknowledgeSubjection, and become his Vaffals : However, the Ince admitted them upon thefe terms, and fent a Colony of Peruvizns, who planted amongit them, as alfo the Mufuans fent an Embaify to Cufco ro bring from thence the Rites and Ceremonies of the Inca's Religion.

The defign npon the great Province Chiribuana, which ouritmant, is upon the Mountairs Eaftwardi from the Prövince of ${ }^{n}$ conpilfut: Charces, hiad worfe Succefs. The Country indect was enough to difcourage an Army, being all Mathes, Lakes Bogs, and wild mountainous Tracts, $^{\text {cencry where untis }}$ for Husbandy and Cultivation ;' and the People were a Cort of Animals as rude and barbarous as onc cou'd well luppofe to be bred in fuch horrid places. They cat the Fleth, and drink the Blood of Humane Creatures with cager delight, and for this purpofe ofecn ravaged the Neighbour Provinces, that they might have their fill: but their Cuflom was, when they had eaten the Flefh of any that died among fif themfelves, (fur they made no fcrupic of doing to likewifis) to lay all the Bones tneether, and mourn over them awhile, and then bury them They made no diftinction in Womankind, bur usd all promifcuouly, lyins with Mothers, Sifters or Daughters, acrording as the brucith Apperite-hurryd them. The faca was the more defirous to reduce this Couniry, le. caufe the Inhabitants were fuch arram Beatts as they were, and needed fo much more than all the reft of the Nations known in thofe Parts to be Civiliz'd and brought into good Oxder : Bur however, the chariable Delien did nor profper, and an Army of 10000 Mcn were igu'd there two whole Xears no no purpofe, bxing orc'd to resuri without making their Lord the Inca Mater of the Gountriy.
The Spronierds alfo afterwards, in A. D. i; T2. made che like attempr with the like fuccefs, and the Vhe Roy was forc'd to recurn withour any orther Satisfiction thar only that of having feen che cheiburares, who foilow'd him, and threaten'd to car him if they coid carch him.
This Project failing, the Inca refoliet-o rry at the Conguef of Conqueft of the noble Country of cinili, and fent out cmit. Spies to difcoter it, and the difficulties of the ways. Thefe Men found 8o Leagues of Defare fromi Atacame to Copayapu, which is a litrie Province well Peopled, and were forc'd as they went to make Marks by the way, that they might find it at chcir return; from Coparapu to Coquimpu, which is 80 Leagues more, they found it all deftirute of Inhabitants, The Inca, baving gorten fume account of the Country, fent out an Army of 10000 Men well furnifh'd, and quickly after thern 10000 more; which fudden pouring in of Forces fo daunted the Copro: apuans, that tho' they refus'd at firft to obey the Inca's Summons, yet they afterwards bethought themfelves; and came to a Compofitign. This good Succels made the Inca fend another 10000 Men to purfuc the Conqueft yet farther, and they march'd (tho' wirh infinite toil and difficulty) as far as the Province of Corfuimpu, which chey tubdued alfo; and fo all the Nations'till you come to the Valley of Cbili, from whence that Kingdom takes the Name.

After this they went farther Sonchward ftill, about Riversaenuli 50 Leagues, and crofs'd the River of ittatli with 20000 Men; here they met with a mott valiant and hardy fort of Enemies, and fuch as wou'd be by no means perfwaded to do as the reft had done, that is, lay down their Arms, and declare themfelves Vaffals to the Inca. In thorr, they difpured his Sovereignty with fomuch warmoth Talimaper. and fiercenefs, that chey kill'd above half his Army, and ple. let him know by that, thar the Congueft of their Counry wou'd cont him dear. The Batrel was renew'd three days fucceflively, and the bigger part of both fides being kill'd, they then fat down to reft, expecting what wou'd be artempted farther; but neither Party being much difpos'd to a fecond Action, they withdraw as in were by confent, the Rerruians being fatisfied to have gone rhus far.
The Southern Boundary of the Empite now was che Souterri River Maulli, it being extended above 260 . Leagues be Boundery yond Atacama, from whence the Spies. firt fet out All chis. Work was 6 Years in hand, and the Inca had upora chis Occafion an Army of above $5000 c$ Men in Cbitif.
Beffdes this Sourhern addition to his Territories, he enlarg'd them to the Northward in-all at leaft 1000 Leagues in extent. He alio rook a grear deal of care io adorn and improve his Counery; and befides many other publick Edifices, fome for Pomp and Majeft, and o thers for Religious and Civil Ures, he carry'd on thic Building of the wonderful Fortrefs of $C u f(0$, for which Forteres of his Father had laid in a grear ftock of Materials. who having beftow'd himfelf fome time ar home; pre-qui cte $x$ xime who having bettow'd himfelf fome time at home, pre-qui the $x$ par'd to follow the Example of his Forefathers. For'tis ${ }^{\text {D }}$ to be noted, that the Inca's being mounted the Thronc; did always eft folemnize cheir Predcceffors Obfequies next to thar their own Coronation; and then before they went upon any Foreign Enserprizes; fpent fome rime, Nannin

784 The Civil and Moral Hiftory of the Spanilh Weft-Indies. Lib. $\bar{V}$

more or lees in vifing their own Country. Being at leifure for War, he firft conquard the Cbacapuyans, a fierce and valiant Pcople, their Arms moftly Slings, and their Deity a Snake, and the Bird calld Cuntur; this Province lics Eaftward from Calfamarca. Next to thefc he picrc'd into the Country of the Huacrachuch, a People as untoward and crabbed as their Name is: Thefe worlhipp'd Snakes as well as the former, and kept them

Noraippcrsalways pictur'd in their Temples and Houfes; on their Heads they wore a roul of black Wooll, and inftead of a Fieacher, the Spike of a Deers Horn. The Inca Lnt a gricat many Mcn by medling with thefic untractable Fellows, and tho' by Policy and Perfwafion be did reduce them at haft, yer it coft him time and pains, for he was forc'd to fend for another Army out of Peru, as well to akesp them in awe, as to work at draining their Lands forethem, that they might be fir for Olowing and $-{ }^{-}{ }^{2}$ wing.

Thefe Princes, we may note by the way; when they enrere'd a Counrry thar they intended hou'd be their own; always began firft to try gentle Methods; they ingipuated that they did not come to take away their Count:y from them, and make themfelves Mafters of their Weath and Poffclions, but to civilize them, and do chem good, to reach them the Laws of the Sun, 2nd abolifh all their barbarous Rites and Cuftoms. Wirh fuch pretences as thele did they palliate their greedy Ambition and Defircs of Sovercignty, which is no new Srory in
A. inf the Worid, and is has been often enough feen, that Re ligion has been made ufe of as an Engine to moye and turn about a Secular Intereft.
The next Province the faca attempted, notwithfanding all his fine words and precenfions, gave him a very rough reception; and were fo far from hearkning to a Propofal of bcing civilizd, thar they cxexted the laft degrecof their barbatity and ficrcenefs to entertain him that made ir. This Counry was calld Cbachapuya, and was ar leaft 50 Leagues long, and 20 broad; che Hills were ftecp and craggy, the Ways sery bad, and in many places unpaffable, and the Inca lof abundance of his Men. Bur at laft be brought all into fubjection, and whether they wou'd or no Eftablithed his Laws amongit them.
From hence he maxch'd to Hucncapampe, a great Country, bur confifting of feveral Nations dirided, and at Wars amonglt themelyes; whom therefore he bad a very fair opportunity of conquering all together. Thefe People were the mort licentious in their Religion and ligion Worlhip of any in that part of the World, for whereas moft others had fome particular Object that they paid more religious Honour and Reverence to than the reft, thefe worhipp'd cyery Man what he lik'd beft, one a Bcaft, and another 2 Bird, and 2 chird Man 2 Plant; io that their Deities, in fhort, were wharfoever the Earth, or any Animals upon it produc'd.
And then as to their Wans, they foughr one with another nor for Wialth nor Glory, nor greatnefs of Command, but for Women; upen whore account, a great many other Menin the World go rogether by the Ears as well as they. The Inca having fubdud them, gave them Inftructors to teach them the Ares of Husbandry, building Houfes, and making Clorhes; he eftablifid Houfes of Pricits and Religious Virgins amongft them, and made char Province in a litrle time one of the beft and moft flouxithing in his Empire.
After he had well fecur'd this, he wenc and reduc'd three Provinces morc, but fuch as put him to no manner of rrouble abour the civilizing and regulating of them, the Inhabients being a People of excellent Policy and Government, and living in as good Order as the Subjects of the Ince themfelves cou'd pretend to: Thefe were the Provinces of Coffn, Ayabuaca, and Callua, which deferve particular mention for a Politenefs they had in the midft of all the brutilh and barbarous Nations round abour them. The Province of Ejuanucu, that lies Northward from $\mathrm{Cr} / \mathrm{Cc}$, was the next that follow'd the fate of the former; 'twas a rich and fertile Country, and the Inca endeavour'd to render it a very Religious one, building therein a Temple for the Sun, and a Houfe for the Sacred Virgins, with ar leaft 20000 Indians to perform che Offices of both thofe Manfions.
The like he did alfo in Carroar: 2 neighbouring Province; the Inkabitants of which, before the Inca came amongfthem, workipp'd the Moon, but were then oblig'd to quir her Service for that of the Sun, and adore whar their Mafter the Inca did.
The People of Quillact, who were the next that put on the Inca's Yoke, were abfolutely the tept miferable and fordid in the whole Empire; it was a piece of chasity and kindnefs to conquer them, that they might be brought 'to fomething of Humanity in their Manners and Converfation. Befides the natural Poverry and Barrennefs of thcir Country, they had norhing of Art or Induftry, or fo much as difpofition wowards any thing that might improve and render them happy. They were towfe $\pi$ : flochful and nafty to fuch a degrec, that the Inca impos'd bute. a Tribute of lice upon them, that they mighs be under 2 fore of neceffiry of keeping themfelves clean. In a a Prince to was nothing to be found that cou'd tempe a Prince so come and make a Conquett of chis Ccuntry, having neither Water, Air nor Land, that was any way having neither W/a good or agrccable.
Other Provinces were capable of fome Improvement, and the Inea adorn'd them with noble Bnildings, as he did in the neighbouring one of Canneri latel; mention'd, where the Temple of the Sun, and his own Ro :al Howfe, had all the extravagancy of Riches in the make of them that cou'd well be imagin'd almoft; bur as for Quillactr. the Inser did not think is worth while to do any ching of chat nature-there. Tis to be fuppos'd he taught the itupid Inhabitants as much of his Religion as they cou'd learn, but feeing them fir for litule clfe, he fer them to carch Lice, and fo pay Tribute that way, they bcing fo poorin every thing befides, chat no other was to be cxcted of them.
The Inca's next Expedition was an Innroductory fiep o his Conqueft of the rich and plealant Kingdom of conquer or Buito, for he took in feveral Provinces chat lay upon the of ghits. ixity of if
$\qquad$

$\qquad$
$\qquad$ orders of char Country : And having thus open'd his way pretry well, he began che attempt upon Quite if felf, with an Army of 40000 Men, and Penr two Years there without making any great progrefs in his Dclign. Upon this account, becaufe he faw the War won'd be long and sedious, and his prefence was neceffary ac home, he therefore went back to $C_{u f i c o, ~ a n d ~ l e f t ~ h i s ~ S o n ~}^{n}$ the Prince Huamn Capac to complear the Reduction of the Councris. And this according to the Inca's prefage, provid to be a tedious Work, for the Prince fpent three more before he cou'd do it; buis then the King of Quiru dying, the People were the more eafily poriwaded to Kubmit themfelyes to a new Sovercign. And thus was that noble Counrry; at leaft $7 \circ$ Leagucs long, and 30 broad, made a Province of the mighry Earpire of che Inca's. But the young Prince puif'\& on his formune fartherftili, and made the Country of \&uillacana; wirh feyeral other barbarous Nations, Itoop to his Fathers Yoke ar chat time. All whick Conquefts made, he return'd to Cufco wich a greas deál of Triumph, taking care as the fame time about the refining thefe battorous Pcople a litde from their dress. And the truth of it is, ther were Come of them almont as great Objegtsof compallion as their Names, they devour'd any thing that they wore in chutiancoss. their Names, they devour'd any thing thatcame to hand, the wortt of Carrion was caten by them? and they them-: Telves eaten up by Lice; the Province had the Niame of Quillfcenc, that is, Iron-nofe Rrowince, From a cutam thefe Barbarianskad of boring their Noftrils, and wearIron or any thing they fancied there.
The lnca Xupanqui having fervid himfelf to this good purpofe by his Wars, now gave himfelf up, for the remainder of his Days, to all the fweets and pleafures of Peace. He mighrily conich'd and improvid his Country, and particularly carry'd on the building of the Forrreis of $c_{c} f f_{c o}$ with 2 grear deal of vigour, cmploying contantly 20000 Men ar the common work of is befides what were taken up upon excraordinary Services.
This Prince, ar his Death, kept up the Cuffom of his Tintrosis. Predeceffors, which was to call all their Children and cuntom of Nobles about them, and make a folemn Difcourfe to making them, which was in the nature of a Laft Wili and Tefta- when rhey ment; efpecially not forgerting to intimate, thar they dic. are call'd away from rhis World by their Father theSun, to reft in his brighr Region above, and thar from thence cheir Succeffors are to expect an affiftance futable to their neceffities. By thefe ways the Inca"s kent up the Opinion of their Divine Extraction in the Minds of all abcut them, and confequently confirm'd their Families in that Sovereignty and Power which this Opinion at firft gave them.
Huayna Capac, the eldeft Son of this Monarch, fuc- Hugna Cai ceeded after his Death; and now the Empirc being ar powche 2 an irs full heighth of Glory and Grearnefs under this Princes hissLife and Actions will require fomething more of 2 particular account. This Prince was marricd to his eldeft Sifter in his Farhers life-time, bur having no Children by her, be was married afterwards to his fecond Sifter, the former being yer alive; and. twas eftablifh'd by a particular. Decrec of the Ince andethis Council, thar both the Sifters thou'd be lawful Wives and

Chap.

Stratige
ipuin of

Odid Nane
${ }^{3}$ y y of breding the Fcal incas Chilh

The Comp mons care in breedius breediur their Cini:

Chap.XIV. The Givil and Moral Hiftory of the SpanifhWeft-Indies. 785

Strithes
Coyn's, and not repured 25 Concubines. But rwas not only in this poinc, but almoft every refpect, that Hupan Capac appearid to bc, and to do fomething extraordinary above his Predeceffors: At the birth of his firt Son, bcfides all the extravagancies of Featting, and thofe things which are ufual upon fuch Occations; he fet himfelf to accomplith fome very great Projects, fuch as the whole World, that heard of them, thould wonder at.: One of them, parcicularly, was the making of that fanous Golden Chain, which our Aurhor Garcilaffo Difevega fays, an old Inca (once of his Mothers Brothers) affirm'd was the length of the great Street of Cuico, which is 700 foor, and crecry link was as big as a Man's Writt. Another Author (Augufinc de Zarate) gives it the Name of Maroma, that is, a great Cable, and from the report of fome Indians living at that time, fays that twas as much as 200 Mcn cou'd well lift from the ground. The Spaniards made old fearching and conquiring after this Chain, but were never fo happy as no find it, being hid up fafe in fome dark Repofitory or other, amonglt thofe orter rarities which the Perroians were refolv'd thou'd never fall into the hands of the Spaniarts. This Chain was made fur the folemn Dance in the Ring, in which chey hecd hand by hand, and fo danc'd round a matter of 300 sorcther; and the defign of it was, that all holding be this Cha m might dance in the Ring, according to the Cuftom, witheur joining hands. The for a bruic mory of this :hat was born was calla 1 fuafca, in Mcmory of this great Chain made to honour his bir:h; for the word iufcit fignifying a Rope, and they having no diftinet word for a Chain in their language, his Father thought fir to give him that Name. Yet it mutt be confofsd, that twas a vory fourvy one, and of as bad a found as any in the World ; and one can'r ayoid concluding it very odd for a Man ro have fuch a Name, that he cannever hear it mention'd at any time but ir muft lead him to think of fo ugly a thing as the Gallows. However the Prince was calld Hunfer for two Xears, and then to ayoid that ill found of the Rope, his Father order'd and $r$ to be added to it, and made Ftuafeer of it; fo dhat both the ends were obtain'd, the Chain preCerv'd, and the Rope loft.
*is of
The Inct Huapne Capac made as mighty doings at the breding tie Fcaft of his Sons weaning and polling as he did at his inch's chil- bitch ; for 'tis to be noted, that when che young. Princes were two Ycars old, they were taken from the Breaft, (and nor till then) and their hair was cur off with a harp Hint Razor, the Ince himfelf beginning that Ceremony. At the fame time alfo their Names were finally derermin'd, and then it was thar the young Ince had that decent alccration made in his Name.
The Nobility and the Commonalty follow'd the fame method in rreating their Children, believing the cxample of the fnee to be moft perfect, and every way worthy of Imitation; neither did this pass for prefumprion, or faucy arpiring in them, but was look'd uponas a picce of refpect, zad an honouring of their Prince. And up. on the whole, the Inctis examples in thole matters did deferve Imitation, for the Roval Babes were nurs'd and broughr up (cho' nor withour a fare and pomp futable to their Dignity) yet withour any thing of that overnicenefs and delicacy which only tends to render them Coft and effeminate, and very ofren vitiates a good Conftitution, or hinders it frefomexerring ir felf as otherwife it woud.
The Nobles and the Pcopte took the fame courfe in mons are in the Edupation of their Children likewife; as foon as they then- wrape them in Blankets. They gave them Suc bur three times a day ler them cry as long or as much as chey woud; for to do more than this, they faid would be to breed them up to Gluttony.
But to return to the Inca; When the Ceremony of weaning his Son was pcrform'd, he march'd away with an Army of 40000 Men into the Kingdom of Quito to look after his new Conquefts there, and in this Expedition he took for a Concubine the Daughter of the laft King of that Country, by whom he had (amongt feveral other Children) Atrablipa, who afrerwards gor into the Imperial Throne, and fat there when the Spaniards enterd rhe Country. He carried his Arms ar this rime much farther too conquering the Valleys of Cacma Cintu, Tucmi, and feveral orbers; together with the Country of Tump:n, where the Reople worlhipp'd Lions and Tigers, and offerd che Hearts and Blood of Men in Sacrifice to them. There People were very vicious many ways, and particularly horribly addicted to Sodomy, or the preventing of which, the Inca took fome precautions, and eftablitid the Rites of his own Religion a mongft theirz.

From there he pafs'd to the Province Huancavilca where there had been a forr of a murinous Rifing, and all the Teachers and Inftuctors that the old Inca Ifupenfui had fent to bring them to the practife of his Laws, and of good Manners, had been Sacrificid in thar nopuar ferment. And when the Criminal Curren's and Gion vernors that fhou'd have hinder'd or punifh'd that Out-age.-fppear'd before him, and expected-every Man to hear the Sentence of Death, the Inca chofe rather to furprize them with an unexpected act of Mercy and Clémency, giving all the reft their Pardons, and adjudging one only, and that by Lotr too, for the Honour of Juftice, to be made an Example in that cafe. But Rullireo ho the did not take the lives of thefe Men, he thought ot Text fir to mark them, as Perfons that had been guile of yery great Treachery and breach of Faith, and fur that pur-: pofe he made cyery Man of them lofe four of his Teeth, wo our of the upper, and as many our of the under Jaw; and chis punifthent he decreed mou'd not be Pcrtomal only, but defeend to their Pofterity after them. This gentlenefs (where all lookd for che fevereft torments imaginable) affected the whole Councry in fuch a manner, that the common leople wou'd needs bear a part in the punifmenent inflited upon the Grandees; the lnca did not require it of them, but they wout rhruft themfelves upon it, and fo all, both Men and Women, loft four of their Tcerh apicee, and made their Sons and Daughrers fubmit to the fame too. This paffage the Inca Garcilaffi. tells us he had from one of the Natives of that Conntry, who had lof fome Tecth upon thas fcore.
The Inca after this began to make his Conquefts upon pmananai the S:a as wellas the Land, and rook in the "Ihand' of conyuci'd. Puma; which is 12 Leagues in compafs; which he had nor done long, bur a Kebellion amongt the chacipuris calld him into thofe Parts. When he came with a ftrong formidable Army, the hearts of the Rebels begain ro fainr, and they who before infulted and abusid his Meffengers, now thook for fiar as his revenging power approachid them. And the lnea indeed had form'd a Defign of exterminating and rooting them all out, but they diverred that Storin by a clever policy of their own, and pacificd the Incabefore he was aware, and contrary to his incencions. This Prince had the Character of a p,lify of the Man of extraordinary sood Nature, very Merciful, and hests. gernle and cafie of Accefs. Particularly, he was infiitely Complaifant and Civil to all the fair Sex, gave them alway's, when he fpuke to them, the familiar and gende cumpellations of Mother, Sifter, or Daughter, according to their Ages; and which was ftill greater chan all, he never denied a Woman any Sute or Requeft that the made him.
This Character of the Inca's good Temper being fas it may well be fudposid to be) pretry gencrally known, an: the Rebels belicying a Female Advocare wou'd plead cheir Caufe for then if is were not impolfible to be had, they accordingly relolv'd to try if by this Mcthot they coud not appeate the hish Indignation of :heir Prince, the effects of which wou'd o herwife very quickly die heavy upon them. And the Petion they made choice of Wonen for this purpofe was a Lady that had bicn Miftrefs to piead tee per he Inca's Father, one well skill'd in the Ars of latina-don. ation and Addrels, and tha: knew how to footh up a Prince, and work him into good humour. But becaufe the Oratory of a fingle Perion might poitibly fail and a whole Chorus of Women, acting their feveral Parts of the Paffion, might do that which one alone cou'd nor, cherefore the went forth atrended with a great number of Female Supplicanss, and prefented her felf with her Train before the lnca. Neither con'd thar Prince withitand the Affaule they made upon him, bur found himfelf quickly charm'd out of all his angry and revengeful choughts; into an indulgent, mersiful, forgiving humour. For whillt the Speaker, ar the Head of this fair Troop, was making an eloquent and moving Speech on the behalf of the poor Rebels, the :others broke out into varieties of pationare actions and geftures; they fell into the molt humbic poltures inaginable, fent forth the mof nielting affecting crics, they wepr and figh'd, till the Inca was no longer able to contain himelif, but came off from his Sear, and took up the charming Oratrefs that lay ar his Fect, and granted her all the Fayours the defired. This was to welcom a grace the ground to the Cbacapuyans; that they immediandy confecrated wnclorid the Place where the Inca granted their Pardon, and made fica forgate holy Ground of ir. And that no foot of Man or Beant the Rebets. mighetread there for the future, to polluye and profane ir, they encles'd-it with three Walls, the innecrunoft of which was of poluh d Srone ; bur the spaniards, when they came, believing thexe was fome Treafure bid in the hallow'd Ground again
The-fnea having fer things in good order in this Province, went into the Country of Manta, in which it is that the Port call'd by the Spaniards Puerro Vicio ftands Tigere, he here worihipp'd the Sea and. Fifhes, Lion Thers, and great Snakes, bue more particularly a cer tain precions Stone, an.Emerauld it was, and reforted twayntic leis than an Oitriches Egg. always incwn publickly at their Solemn Fcato, and and Indicans came from all Parts abour to fec and adore it and make Offerings of other Emeraulds to it; for this the liriefts told them was the mot acceptabie of all they could make. But the intians were not alone in this theis Devotion to thi Emcrauld, for upon the Conquett of iceru, the Spaninds hearing of the Fame of thas Goddefs, came to worhip her allo. But, alas ! hic had left her Tcinpie, and was gone before they cane; and tho they made a vioiene fearch after her, yet the cover'd up her Divinicy fo clofe that they col'd never fitid her Perhaps the was gone along with the great Gold Chain which Hup;zn Capas made, which nippd away after a very itrange manner too, and lay for ever invifible, a was faid before.
The Mantans had feveral very edd Cuftoms amonga theim, which the Inca (now become their Lord; obliged rhem to leave off, and take up others more humane and civil in the room of them. They flad all the Captives tivey tnok in War, and filling the Skins of them with Alhes, they hung them up at their Temple-sates, and in all their Feafting and Dancing-places. In cheir Mari.nges the Bridegroms Kinfmen and Friends had always the firt handiti of the Bride; bur befides this, the Men burnt in lewd and moft unnatural Fises towards one ano aber.

Together with thefe, the Inca fubdued the Apichiqui, and Ieveral other Narions that lay upon' the Coalt, which were in forme refrects more brutifh and barbarous than the dimians. From thefe Countrics he pals'd to Saramiffis and Paffitu under the Equinoctial, wherc he found a lort of Peopic fo very favage and rude, that he thought ter.y'd le a reflection upon his Dignity to be calld the Lord of fuch ferry Wrectines is they were. They had ncither Houfe nor Town, nor Temple, no Law, nor no Religion; they liv'd like Owls in bollow Tiees, went fark naked, and had all their Women in common. Their faces were painted with four feveral forts of Co curs, cine quarter with one, and another with another and this, with their black bulhy hair, made thern fuch Figures, that the linea Garcilafo (who had feen them himecif) fays nothing Humane cver look'd like them. The Inca therefore left the:n to be their own Mafters and turn'd away to quiet an Infurcection amongit the Carumides; theic he punin'dreverely, curting off the Heads of 2 or 3000 of them, sho very much againt his humour, which was all for Goodnefs and Mercy
The Inca's, amongtt their many Glorious Tides, 500 k Ceitigh in none more than that of Lovers of the Pior, and Fariors and D-fenders of shesir Vaffals; and this, to be ure, they did not fail to recommend to their Succeffors at Death, aliways purting them in Mind that they ought o preferve chat Title, and by the Juftice, Clemency, and Enfinefs of cheir Government, to Hew that they defervid to wear it. And therefore they never proceeded to any rizorous rreatment of their Subjects, but when the higheft neceitity coinpell'd them to it, chufing rather to endear themfelves to them by Indulgence and eafie Forgivenefs of their Crimes, than by fevere and cruel Fraiithments to make themielves feard. This Example of the Thea Hunma Cafne's feverity, was parhaps che only one of any conkequence known crer fince the Foundaton of the Empire, and 'tis plain that there was gond reafon for't ; and the Inca very well knew, that a Goicrmant without fome 「unifhmenes is as likely to be depisid by the Subjects, as one that is all Rigour and Cinnercifulueis is to be hated and not endur'd. This great i'rince having thus far cnlarged his Empire, now laid atide all thoughts of making any more Conquefts, and employd his time in the fetling and well-governing of what be had got. Not to meation the Temples, the Palaces, azd other Publick Edifices which he rais'd, he accomplith'd two Works which wexe of as grcar difficulty as they were of no ufe and fervice to his Country:
Greatigh no le in lart one win Land arof the Ffountains and ragged Clifs, and theother along by the
which was cut through the Mountains was almoit fuch 2nother piece of Work as the ftupendous Fortrefs of Cuf o, confidering the heighths that were to be levell'd, and the deep and hollow places to be fill'd up, functimes of 15 or 20 times 2 Mans heighth, (as the lnca fays) and all to be made fmooth and even, fo that Carriages might pafs along upon them, as chey did. The Koad to the Wea-fide was 40 foor broad, with a high Cawfey, and Walls of each fide to hold in the Wiay, and all this both in the Valleys and the Sands; fo that traiclling, which before was unpleafant in many places, and it may lo inpracticable or dangerous in others, was now readrec! very fafe and cafie in all places. It was hinted befcre chat when luayma ciapec conquerd the Kingdom of node kin Quito, he took the King's Daughect for one of his Koyal Concubines, by whom he had, amongit other Children, the unfortunare Arnbalion, who fwayed the lomerial Sceprer when the Spaniaras came in here. This young Prince, by his noble Qualitics, frongly eng:ged his Fia thers love and elteem; and therefore tho whe Prince Hudicar wis the Heir, and to wear the Title of Lasta Capec after hamfelf, yer fech was his fondnér of Arcinalipa that he relolved to make him no lefs than a Sorercien too, and chercfore did in his life-time fix him inthe Throne of Quito, making that rich Kingdom his Purtion and Ponfefion; and becaule he wou'd be fure to liave him fit fatt and firm chere, he gave him fome of his beft Caprains, and a part of his Army, with this farther concelfion too. That all that he coud conquer anew thou'd be added to his Kingdom of Quiro. And the old Inca did all this with the frec Confent of his Son the Prince Huafsar, fo that asclenlipa far very cafic upon his new Throne as long as his Farter liv'd, tho' Matters prov'd as we thall fee in the courfe of the Seory) far otherwife afierwards. The whole Empire and Emperor too enjoy'd a profound Peace and Tranquility, and all things went as well as could be, when all of a fudden thofe bright and crene days were gone, and every body apprehended a black Cloud gathering over the Country, thar threatned fome fatal Storm. That which fruck them with there empirce: feaxful apprchenfions was the fight of tome Ships upon fusid the the Coaft, which were the Spaniards fent out by Numnen apparisice dc Balbon, for the difco:ery of the Sourh-Sea. This was the Corat: in A.D. 1515 . and whecher before or afier Arabelipa was made King of Quito is not very clear, nor much marerial; however 'tis certain, the Inca Huama Capae liv'd cight Xears after this difmal Alarm, But never pretended to ffer at any farther Conquefts; he had no ftomach to that, having once heard fuch News as this was. Bur that Prodigics, which made the impreffion the decper and ftronger, was Prenca, and an old Prophefic which they pretended to have amongit foortrict the them, which forctold, That when i2 Inca's had filld ruinc of the the Throne, the Line of the Suu Mou'd ftop there, and Emp:rc. a frange Nation thou'd come in and fubdue the Empire to themfelves. Beffdes this, fometime before the Spanierds Ships were feen upon the Coaft, there were feveral prodigious Appearances in all the Elcments; and odd Changes of the common Courfe of Nature, which their Superftition rurn'd into Omens and Prognofticks of fome grear Altcrations in cheir Nation and Government: One xhe Circie was, that che Moon in a very clearNight had three Cir-about the cles abour her the outcrmont of a bloudy colour, the Moon inses middlemof black, and the innermoft like fmoke. Now preced. this Pbenon black, and the innermoft like fmoke. Now this Phenomsnom, a certaith Diviner amongtt thern thus expounded the frignification of to the Inca: The redrefs of the outer Circle (fays he) fignifies the War and Bloodthed that thall be in thy Councry afrer thou art gone to reft with thy Father the Sun; the blacknefs of the middle one denotes the Defruction of our Religion and Empire, that they mall diffolve and vanifh away as moke; which (adds he) is clearly forefeen by the inmot Circle thar had the imoky Appearance. And this Interpretacion was nor his own tancy neither, (he told the Inca) but came from the Moon, the Mother of the Imperial Family. The Inca made him no ocher reply than chis, That he dreamt thefe Fooleries the Night before; and then canne and rold him his. Mother the Moon had fear him rhat Intelligence. However, tho he feem to de- the Inca's fife this Fellows predictions, he was decply concern'd farr and cora at what he had faid, and therefore made Applications by sern. Sacrifices and Offerings to his Father the Sun, in hopes he wou'd be more favourable to him, and divert this Storm ; that is, make his Mother the Moon a Liar and a falle Prophetefs. This great Monarch Huayna Capac died atQuiso; ordering his Heart and Entrails to be buried chere, bur his Body to be carried to $\mathrm{C}: 1 / \mathrm{co}$, and laid amongft thofe of his Anceftors. In his Teftamental Difcourfe ro his Children,' (of which he had abore 200, Sons and Daughters): he alio recommended to them the love of their Brother Atnbalipa his Darling Son, and to all the Officers

Frictulaip
berwen the
cwn Brothen $x$ firt.
 fint Propofal thic Prace. Drabalipas Semide; both thele run from $\mathrm{Cu} f \mathrm{co}$ to luito, and were delizu't for the opening a more free and catic Communisation between thofe two grear Citics, the Metro polis's of the Empire, in their refpective places. That

Chap.XIV. The Civil and Moral Hiffory of the SpanifhWen-ladies. 787

Officers and Curaca's be gave a Atriet charge that they Ohou'd ferve him with a peifevering Loyalty and Duty and finally, to the Prince himfelf, to be mindful of his Illuftrious Defeent, and maincain the Tirle of the Lover of the Poor. He told them alfo of the approaching Dif folution of the Governmens of the laca's, and Fince the Strangers that were to come and poffefs the Conntry Mou'd be a Pcople fo much every way their Superiors he advis"d them to obey and ferve them quietiy, and rather patiently fubmic ro, than ftrive againft the common fate. And indeed, che Peruvians have pretended to give this Account of the reafon why the Conquett of their Connery was fo very cheap and calie to the Sp.niards They alledged fo many Prophefics and Prodigics had forerold the deftruction of thicir Empire, thas is appearcd plaintly to be theirinevirable fare. Befides, the Inca upon his Death-bed (and his Dying words they infiniccl refpected, and muit obferec ro a tirte) commanded chem to reccive the Forsigners when -chey came, as cheirlords, and yicld to them as a People whole Excellencies entitled them to reign over them. ${ }^{\text {"r was this, (fay chey) and not }}$ the Arms of the Speniards, that made us refign our Empire upon fuch calie rerms. Tho' by the way, Mankind will not eafily be perfwaded that their Obedience to a dead Prince cou'd ever carty them fo far, and that if they cou'd have defended themfelves againit the Spatrierts, they wou'd not have done it, in complenent to any Oracle, Prophefie, or Death-bed Speech whatroevct.
Frimulaip
But to return to the courfe of our Story: Huayma $\mathrm{Ca}_{\boldsymbol{a}}$ beween the pac being dead, Huafiar was now Inca Capa, all the Emow frothers pire acknowledging him as fuch, the Kingdom of luito, $x$ fritt. .- and Dominions thereto annexd, only excepred, which paid Homage to seabalipa, Thefe rwo Brochers liv'd in Peace and good Undertanding of one anocher, for the fpace of four or five Xears aftex the old Inca's Death; but then FHuafcar began to chink with himfelf, that he had acted very impradently in confenting to place his Brother upon the Royal Throne of Quito. And befides ocher damages done to himfelf by this Confent, he was quire lock'd up from making any farther Conquefts, by the Sea on onc fide, the Mountains on the other, and his Brorhcr's Dominions on the other, which was to the part of chilis; fo that Atabalipr, (whore Arms were at more liberty than his) by adding new Countrics ftill to thofe of which the was already in Pofferfion, might in time make hiuncelf as great a Prince, and his Empire a large as his. Thefe thoughts growing very troublefome to him, he fent to his Brother to ler him undertand, Thar by the articns Conltitutions of the Inca's, the Kingdom of ginito ought nor to be feparated from the main Body of the Empire, and that his Father had wrong'd the Imperial Crown of $\mathrm{Cu} / \mathrm{cos}^{\circ}$ in making fach a Divifion as that was; and cherefore, tho' his Confent to that bufinefs had been exrorted by the Authority and Command of a King and a Farher, yer he fhouid not fland to the Bargain but upon thefe two Condicions Firft, That Asabalipa flou'd not exrend the Bounds of min his Ierritories, nor add the leaft Spot of Ground to ne frece. what the Inca had allotred him. Secondly, That he thon'd acknowledge himfelf his Vaffal; and do him Homage accordingly: This Meffage, as difpleafing as it was to fenbalipa, was yet receiv'd by him with a great deal of feeming Humility and Compliance with his Brothers Will; and therefore he rernon'd Anfwor to this purpore, That what was now requir'd of him, was no much more than he had done already, for in his Heart he had always been his Brochers Vaffal, and now, fince he demanded ir, Shouid not refufe to be fo in outward Sign and Action. The Inca. Huafar was fo pleas'd with this ready Submiflion of Atabalipa, (when there was reafon to have expected he wou'd nor fo eafily have parted with his Sovereignry) that he prefently fent again to confirm him in the poffefion of his Royalry ar quito but ar the fame time to ler him know, that he come and do the Duty of a Vaffal at Cufoo.by fuch a limited
Thus far did the Huafcar's imprudent hear, or ill counfol, carry him; prompting him to urge his Brother on to fuch extreminies, that he muft of neceffity cither refign bis Power and Sovereignty, or elfe lay Plor for Plot, and endeavour to take his that demanded it of him. Bur Alabatipi was nor behind-hand with him in this Matrer, he had Policy enough to form 2 good Plot, and Diffinulation enongh to cover it handiomly, and manage ir with an air of Serioufncts and Humility when he haid done. In mort, he reply'd to the Inca's laft Meffage, That he wou'd conform himielf to his Will, and come to Cufco at the time appointed: but for the greater folemnity of the bufinefs, becaufe he intended a Work of Piety and Devorion, as well:as Loyalry and Duty, to his Prince) he crav'd Leave of the loca that he might bring all the Stares of the Provinces of his Empire along with him, for he had a defirc to celebrate his Fachers Oofequies in Cufca according to the Rites of his own Councry ; and this Cercmony perform'd, he and all his woud do their Homage. All this Hurforar catil granred, and Arabaiipa had it proclaim'd through all his Provinces, shat all Men of Service ftoud be ready ar fueh a cime (and with their bett Equipages) to actend him to Cufro, Bur this was only to amule the People, for at the He to fos ame time he gave private Orders to all his Caprains to Arm; raile an Army of the very beft Soldiers be had; to make chem carry their Arms fo clofely that they thou'd no: be difonver'd, and to march them 5 or 600 together, each Company zor 3 Leagues belind the orher, and then all to join in one Body when they were cone wirhin ten or twelve days Journcy of $C$.
Thus was an Army of above 3000 . Men got together, confinting mofly of thofe old Wearlicr-beaten Soldiers that had feryd his Father Hesimna Cifpat in his Wars: Men thar had gorten a habir of conquering, and now conducted by thofe Expericnc'd Caprains that hat led them on to Victory fo many times beforc. IIun/iar was ${ }^{\text {nota ignot, }}$ far from 2pprehending any trcacherous Defign in his of hadeligu. brothers head, that he orderd his Army to be Cupplied with all neceflaries as they march'd throurh his Terricoties : Bur fome of his old Governors and Officers; who Notice fo made a nicer Obfervation of them as they pals'd along, so the fonce, did nor like the afpect of them, and fent the Inca word, with all speed, thar they fufpected fome Treafon going on, and thercfore defired him to raife what Forces he cou'd with all the halte imaginable. But alas! feme of the Provinces were a grear way off; others werc indifpos'd to War, by the long enjoyment of an idle and peaceable Life, and thofe Parts where the boft Soldicrs were lay in the way of Arabalipe's Anmy ; yet howcycr, Amy forde. the Inca and Empire being in fo apparenr a danger, they fence of $\%$ made a hlift to form an Army of 30000 Mc1 which Empicc was all that cou'd be sor together upon fo thorr a wam ng. Atabalipris Meis palsid the River Aturimec without oppofition, and march'd on in 3 grear'Squadrons to fillacuna, which is within 6 Leagucs of Cif:o; as for himfelf, he faid upon che Confines of his Country, to fee what wou'd be the iffue of this Undertaking, being a pofture ready to move towards Cu fo if it prov'd well, or rowards $Q u$ uto if the concrary.

Tho" the Enemy was thus near the Impcrial City, yet vatatipas was there none that appear'd yer to difpute their nearer Army mirapproach to it, fo that they continued their march till chestowards hey came within 2 or 3 Leagues of ir, and there they ound the Inca's Forces ready to give then batrel. Herc then was the great Controverfie decided, which of the wo Brothers thou'd remain final Poffeffor and Mafter of the Empire of the Sun. In fhort, the Lort fell to Ata-The Burel balipa to be fo, for his old bardy Soldiers quickly cruffed and victory. te more fofr and undifciplin'd ones of che Inca, and (which is more, and the crowning part of all their Sac- nuafarinati cefs) they took him Prifoncr too. This was the mifera-Rsifoncr. de fate of Huafar to fall into his Brothers hands, and now to have his life at his difpofal, of whom bur a lifdie before he had demanded Homage. This News was prefently fent to Atabalipa, and proclaimid alfo through the whole Empire, to difcourage all the Curatci's from attempting to raife Forces for his Relief. arab. lip:s (who was fecond to none in the Arts of feigning and difguife) made the moft politick ure of his Victory that coud be : He pretended thar his Defign was to for Fiufferr upon thieThrone again, but fince the Chance of War had giveri him this advancage over him, he wou'd make ufe of it To far, as ro ftand upon fome better cerms with him for he future, as to the point of his Sovereigncy in Quitc For this end he wou'd go to Cuffe, where he demanded all the Inca's in the Empire to mect him, rogether with all the Curaca's and Governors, to be Witneffes to the Solemnteague and Contrala berween Hunfar and himfelf. But what was the iffue of this Convention? the Sithsizs, barbarous Prince Sacrific'd every oric of the Inca's that tratenei' came thither, and all did come at the time a ppoinsed that Age, Sicknefs, or remotenefs did not hinder. In a Hs cruilly word, he ftuck neither at Age nor Sex, as half or whole murders all Blood, burdeftroy'd all thar fell into his hands, Baftards Swerk or Legitimate, Uncles and Coufins, Brethren and Sifers to the number of 200 , the undoubredOffspring of the great Huayne Capoc. And he did not fratisfie himfolf barely with their Deaths neither, bur execured them with crueity, and that feveral forts of ways; but the heighth of bis barbarity, was to brirg forth his miferable Brother the Inca Huafert, and force him to te an Eye-witnefs to all chefe difmal Execuitions, that he mighi

788 The Civil and Moral Hiftory of tbe Spanifh Weft-Indies, Lib. V.

Viage of dic in the Death of crery one of his Kinfrien. Yea, the made him.pafs in Mourning Wreds, and with a Rope about his Neck, chrourh a whole Lane of his Nobles and about his Neck, shrough a whole Lane of his Nobles and Officers that were fallen into the fame woful Bondage with himfelf; and then thofe unbappy Men fecing their Sovercign iord the laca in thats forlorn conditionburn ont into padionate crics, bewailing his lamentable fate; and ficll down adoring him as they us'd to do, the crucl Hatchers, or knock'd in the Head with Clubs before that wretched Prinic's facc. After this he rurn'd his fury upon the Woans and Children of the Royal Blood, thewing as little milducfs and compaffion to that tendex Sex and Age, as he had before mew'd to the other; and this his crusity he renew'd cuery Quarter of the Moon, till he hind made away with all that came within The Inca's his reachla. Notwithitanding this raging Perfecution of - the Blood and Progeny of the Inca, and the diligent fearch made to find out all, yer fome there were that cfar'd it, and livid to tell the Story to the next Generation. Amongt thefe were rwo young Boys, Sons of ber of which were the Mother and Brother of the Inca Girctiffi, ic Lavegr. Fus including thefe, of the whole Race of the Ineas in gencral there remaind 567 , in -i. 0.1603 . according to our Author's computation, and thefeall of the Male line of every Inca, for they made no accoune of thoic of the Female line till after the Congucit. Tincy reckon'd the Sons of Spaniards, by Women of the Royal Stcech, for Inca's alfo, becaufe they thought the Spanierds to be a Pcople fomething akin to their Father che Sun; and they had good realon ro believe fo, becaufe the Sprnicids were fo very kind to them. Now the exact account of the number of the linea's, was fene to our Inca Don Gercilifio, and another to the Grandfon of hargy:n Capac, in that formencion'd Year; in order to be fene to the King of Spain, rogether with a Pctit:on fex their exemption from thote heavy Impofitions of Taxes and Tribure which they lay under Tiscir Nires There was the wholeStock, the Rayal Tree with all its did tudiges. Branches, from Manco Cafec to chie Porterity of Flugne Cipat; ir was drawn upon white Tiaffety, with the Names, proper Habits. and Pictures of all the 12 Inca's, and under cach Inca all thofe of his Poftericy. The deItruction that stabuaipa made amongit the Progeny of the Inca's, rendred him fo odious to all the Survivors, that his very Name was an abomination to them, and they never gave him any other Title than that of Infathe hastal mous Tyrant and Traytor. The fame rancour too chey burn to Mise exprefid againlt all his Race, tho they were no way guilry of his Crimes; and therefore when a Grandfon of Atribalipr's (the Son of his Daughter by the Marqueís Pizario) was dead, and our Inca's old Uncle came to his Mothers Houfe in Cu/co, rejoycing that he had lived to fee the confufion of that Family, he demanding of his Uncle why he thou'd be fo glad of the death of a KinfA sia: of it, man, and one of their own Biood; The old Inca, biting , mis Mandcc, (which is with them a token of the higheft Indignation) "And whar, fayshe, woud'ft thou be the 'Kinfman of a Trayror? thic Son of him thar killd our - Inca, deftroy'd our Empire, and confum'd the Sacred 'Stock: I cou'd cat him raw withour Sawce now he is - dead; his Father, the Traytor diabclipe, cou'd neyen - have the noble Blood of EFu:y)ne Capac in him, for if he 'had, he cou'd not polfitly have commitred fuch Bar-- barities.; fay not chercfore that he is our Kinfman, for "chou doct Injury to chy Houfe, to make fo vile and oruch a Perion a Member of ic. Yea, this hatred went fo far, that they were beyond meafure pleas'd with the Sp:micris (cho' che Ravagers of their Empire) for the Ex ceation they did upon drebalifer, and for this realon particularly they eftecm'd them as Men fear from their Deity rhe Sun, becaufe they rook fo fevere a Vengeance upon the Graind Enemy and Deftroyer of the Coleftial Race.
The Principle that carried Atabalipa to all this Murder and Deftruction, was thar of Scatc-intereft and Po licy, for he knew that be was nor of the Ecgitimate Blood of the Inca; that is, tho the Inca Cape were his Father; yer the Cyat or Sifter of the Inca was not his Mfocher, as it mult have been to render him capable of Citting in the Imperial Throne of $C_{z} f\left({ }^{\circ}\right.$; while fo many ochers livid thercfore, that had more xighe than he, he knew himple not to be fafe, and to took this courfe to free himfif from the rouble and danger of potent Rivals.
$\hat{i}$ Brother of But this he cou'd nor do compleatly neither, for as theswartit. there were fereral of the Royal Blood furviving, fo particularly there was the inca unation Brocher or the Cian an' Sor; of Inaryne Capac, who deeply refenting the Crueities commitred by Arabaiipa, took up Arms to revenge his Family, and do right to himfelf in getcing polfeflion of the Throne which the other ukurp'd. As for Hhinfar himelf he was yet alive, but kepr under clofe Confinement; and whether Menco believ'd him to be dead, or thoughr che contrary, 'tis cerrain that he alferted his own pretenfions to the Crowin, and codeavour'd by force to And from the Head of this Brother Acabilipa.
And the bufinefs-ftood between thefe two Preenders in this manner, That Manco forcified himfe'f in the Mountainous parts of the Country, and far as Lord there, while Atabelipa kepr all the Lower parse, and thofe that lay to the Sea, which was the richeit and plealantert part of the Empixe. Neither cou'd cither of wirs 1 e. them obtain his defire in the complear Expulfion of the twen lin; other, tho' they endeayour'd is vehemendy, and the War arat natlipa. graw hor betwixr them. But while they wexs thus conrending, chere came one to do the Office of an Umpire in deciding their Quarrel, which was Francin Pizarro with an Army of Spaniards, who brought the bufinefs to the fame iflue that the Kite did in the Batrel betwixt the Frog and the Moufe; bur tis neceffary, before we come to crear of thofe Matters, to difcourfe a litrle of the firft entrance of the Spaniards into this Counery, and how they came abour to find their way hicher.
The Spaniards had been a confiderable time upon the account of Continent before they knew any thing of Peru; they the Spanivind, had buile the Towns of Nombre de Dios and Panama, dif firt coming cover'd the Coaft along New Spair, and traded guite to forn crofs che Coumry, but from Pancma to the Parts of Peru, they cou'd nor'accomplinh a Trade by Sea, becaufe the Sourherly Winds blowing along the Coant almoft all the Year long, Sailing was very difficule and toilfome, and by land the paffage was impolfible, in regard of the Mountains and Rivers. Yea, twas is Years before they got beyond the IAand of Pearls, which is bue twenty Leagues from Prenama, However there were fome Perfons that lived in Paname, whofe Minds giving them that thefe dificultics misht be conquer'd, and having a great defire to fee whar the Country (thar lay along the Coatt) wou'd prove, they made preparations for the Difcovery on't: Theie were Diego Almagio, Francifico Pizanerro, and Perrons the: Frimand hugucs a Prieft, the Men that fer up for the Gitt underTriumvirate of the Sourhesn Difcoverics, and concer'd wok the inno an agreement to mare equally bod the Lofes and Voye. inro an agreement to fare equally boch the Loffes and the Gains, the Care and the Trouble of is. There are fome that fay Pizarro was a very poor Man, and con'd contribure nothing towards this Defign but his Labour and $P_{\text {ains, }}$, and there are others that lay the concraxy; bur it matrers not much wherther he was poor or rich, and we fhall in this part of the Story principally follow * Fcrome Ben'on's Account, who may be prefuin'd to have - he writ been acquainted with thele Matrers yery intimately, bc- Hillory of ing engag'd in the Spenifo Wef-Indian Service for four- the tnder in teen Xears togecher. According to this Author, 'twas ${ }^{3}$ bort Ac. in the Year is26. that Pizarro and Almagro made their remph finf Atternpt; they boch let out chat Year one after another upon the fame Defign; and as for the Prieft, 'tis to be fuppos'd he ftaid at home to pray for a Bleffing upon cheir Endcarours. Pizarre had ar this time no very good luck, for after having fail'd about roc Leagues he landed, and was xepulsd by the fndians with fo much refolution and vigour, thar abundance of his Men were Aain, and himfelf wounded; and with chis baulk he was fain to come back to Pancma again. As for Alma $\dagger$ gro, he went up a River in another part of the Counrry, where he mer with Pcople of a milder Difpoficion, and (which very highly recommended them to his liking too) they had Gold in plency amongtt them, of whi, hhe gor at that thore vilit to the value of 3000 Ducats. But in his way home, having a mind to put in at the place where Pizarro had met with fuch rough Entertainmentr, he found the Ludians ready to give him the like; and when he landed they foughe with him, kill'd him a good many Mcn, and in the Battel beat ouc one of his Eyes. But Almegro had yer hears cnough to tefolve to Serend s:Find his way to fome of the golden Countries once more, enapi: this in this fecond Attempr chey furceeded worfe than in the former; for then they were bearen, but yer got Come Gald, whercas now they got Blows and Wounds, and mifs'd the Gold too. But the col erous Appetite being not half ftary'd with this difaphointment of its Food, renew'd its urgent cravings again, and hurried chem out upon a third trial. Here we are to oblerve, Third A: they did not come back again to Panama (both of them) tempe, after their fccond repulfe, but put in at the Ifland Gorgon, a fmall Defart that lies about 6 Leafnes from the Continent, where Pizarro, and a part of the Men, were et anore, whiltt Almag'o and the reft went home to Pancmen to ferch Supplics. 'Twas 2 minerable Life that Pizarro and his Company led here in the mean time; and Almagro, when he return'd, found them almoft tary'd. However, being refrefh'd, they fer fail once more, and attempting to Land, were bear off with confiderable lofs again, and notw werc forc'd to go feek out anorberInand for a Refuge to lie clore in, till they had put themfelyes in a capacity for farther action. And hers was the fame Secne almoft over again chat was beforc ; Piantro was fer a more upon the barren lMand; and Almagro with the Ships went away for Pamama. But his Men wevere in general fo tired, that they wou'd c'en have gone home 100, and left the Ditcorcries to dhem to ftay, and for form to ftay, and for fear they thoud do mitchicf by writing, you'd not fo much as let them fend lecters to thincir Friends at Panam., now the Ships were going thither. However, there were fome of them too cunning for him, and fent fuch Accounts of the Country where they had been, of their Captains, and their confounded coverous Humour and Defigns, that the Governor of Panama prefently fent Orders to Pizarra (to Cuck-I/and where they taid to detain none of thofe Men there with him by forcible methods, bur ler them ufe their liberty whecther they wou'd go or ftay ; and croly, they did ufe their libetty to pretry good purpofe, for they all wenc away cxeept 14 Neicher cou'd Almegro add to their mumber when he came again, for there had gone about fuch ugly Reports, that cyery body was afraid of theService, and he cou'd get no Recruirs. With an Army thercfore of 14 Men, half for Land-Service, and half for the Sca, they fail'd towards the New World they intended to conquer; bur now they took a wice couric than before, or they refolya to fail alone the fhore and fee it any rich profpects prefented themfleles, and not run headlong, Landing their Mcn at all Adventures, whether there wexc Gold to pay them for their hazards and lofs of Blood or no ; the Army was now reduc'd to a Bakersdozen, and fuch a one that rwas very tenderly to be nanao' ${ }^{\text {. Then }}$ They faild 500 . Miles alone the Coaft, and came to Clira a Province of Reru; where fome of them roing alhore (what number is uncertain, but however to be (ure lefs than 40 ). they gor fome Cartel, and a few Indiras, to whom by degrees they taught $\pi k r y$ lemin a hitile spanifo, and of them reciprocally learmt as much confernce with the Indians where they came. Having got chis neceflary affitance of the Language they fail'd back to Tumber, which ('ris to be fuppoon'd) was the place where they had been fo often bear off from the Coait before, or fomewhere thercabour. When they came hither, all the Speniards being atraid to ventare, 2 certain Greck, Candic, undertook to go affore, which he did with a broad two-handed Sword mounted upon his fhoulder. The Greck, with his grear Beard and Muftachoes, twas no little wonder to the Naxives; who flock'd about him, faring upon him with an eagernels, which well difcoverd their furprize at the fight of fuch a Creature. The Indian Governor usd him tery kindly, and led him to the Fortrels, in which was a Temple dedicated to the Sun full of Riches, which were as great a wonder to the Greck, as he was to the Natives. Ar his Policy of we departure the Governor wou'd have given him fome pieces of Gold, bur he feem'd utcerly to defpife fuch tiffles as thofe, and made Gold a very forry baic fort of a thing, that the Indians might not think that was the bait that drew them thicher, nor treat them like hungry covetous wretches as they were. But, in fhorr, be told fuch a ftory of the Riches of the Country when he came aboard again, that the hearrs of all of them were revivid with the News ; and Almagro, with his one Eye coud very clearly fee that this was the place they muft come to look for the fatisfaction of their Defires in One may eafily imagine with what joy they return'd ro Panama, and related thcir Succels to the Prieft their Copartncr in the great Affars in hand; theres no doubr but they blefsd the Saints all round, and pourd ont rapturous Praycts to Heaven, under the hopes and profpect of fuch Treafures on Earch as were now coming Pizarragossinto their Coffcrs. Bar fince there was nothing to be done fecurcly without the King of Spein's Licence, (and 'twas Cherles the Fifth thar was fo at that time) they agreed that Pisarro fhou'd make a Voyage into Europe to obrain it; which he did, but plaid the Knave fo far that he got the King's Comimiffion only for himfelf, making Sute only in his own Name for the Conqueft of the Courrty: Upon this, at his recurn into America, there grew a mighty quarrel between him and his Partners, they upbraided hist with his perfidioulnets, and unfaithful management of an Affair wherein they were equally concern'd with himelf, However; the matter was made up between Pizarro and Almagro, and they fwote and took the Sacrament uporit, that they wua'd ftick by each other, and have one common Intereft. But the poor Pricet was quire excluded, and trick'd out ct all concern and mare in the bufinefs, which was one lign that he was not a Man of this World, otherwife he had never been impos'd uposn in there Matters, and by the Lairy too. Perhaps he was the only Man of his Coat that had been fo ferv'd for a long while; but 'is but juft and reatonable that the Imity thou'd take their turn too, and as the Cletgy had pur a thoufand ericks upon them, they mou'd alio put one trick upon the Clergy. Buts whereas rizarre and Almagro bound their Bargain witi the Sacramens, "tis a queftion whecher they took it as the hands of that Pricft they had made fuch a Fool of; for fince the efficacy and virtuc of is (according to them) depends upon the defign and intention of the Priet, he had lain under a flerewd temptation to make Fools of them, and defign nothing at all to their advantage. B:t they were Soldiers, and cou'd (probably) take the Sacsament in the fenec thar the old Pagan Rone admanitted is, withour any great regard to the Infituxions of the Popith Rome. Having thus fetled the point, Piearre fes out of Paname with thiree Ships, in which werce about 180 Foot and 40 Horfe, leaving Almagro to come afier. In 13 days he arriv'd at the Rors of St. Martinet, (Which was as mach as he cou'd do before in two Yeats) and here he found all the Country up in Arms. Notwithflanding this, he march'd on to Colonction or Coccher, a Coust, great Town, which he affaulted of a fudden and took, and gor a large Boory of Gold, Silver and Emeraulds. From hence fending back to Panama for more Soldiers and Horics, he proceeded with what he had to the liland of Punc, where he was kindly entertain'd, till the Rapics and Robbexies commitred by the Spaniards made the Niatives rake Arms in cheir own Defence; but they firrid ro cheir own prejudice, and the difciplin'd Forces of the Spaniards earaly put thofe rude and untaughe ones to the Rout. From hence Piñare went over to Tumber upon the People refus'd his Friendihip, and cndeavout'd to oppofe his paifage.; bur he entcr'd the River by Night, and having good Guides furpriz:d the City; plundcridir, Tnmes and the Temple of the Sun, a Repofrory of Treafuxes froita not cafly computed. And now he advanc'd farther and farther apace inro Atrbalipa's Dominions, being in micit places very well receiv'd, tho' the Peruvians look'd tafen him and his Men as a very ftrange forr of People." As pis.r. he march'd along, he publift'd to the Country that he Mransflo. came to teach them the Holy Catholick Faith, and to bring them to the knowledge of mott excellent Laws and Cuftoms; and the truch on't is, whatever the Sprniards did as to the Inftuction of the Indians in the Faith, they did bring them to the knowledge of feveral very excellent Cuftoms, particularly thofe of Swearing.: Blafpheming, Perjury, Gaming, and a great many others as good as them, which were never fo much as known in the Country beforc. The Indians did not believe thefe things of the Spaniards at their firtarrival, if they had chey wou'd have'given them a lefs innocent Name. When they faw them firft come upon the Coalt, they Nane pirth call'd them (in a Fir of Wonder) Virccha's, that is, the to tre Spat fome or froth of the Sea; but afterwards they believ'd ${ }^{\text {nimds }}$. them no be bad cnough to deferve the Name of the froth or fpawn of 2 worfe Elemenr than char, and they lefe off the Name of Viracha's, as containing too much of complement in is for fuch People as they. Bur there criquet were feveral of the Crciques, or Curaca's, that fubmitted themfelves to this Catholick Faith, upon Pizarro's affurance thar'twas to excellenr 2 one; and wete trilling to acknowledge themfelves alfo the Subjeets of thie Emperor Charles V whole Power and Sovereignty Piztro preach'd along twith that of Jefus Chrift. He cortinued his march to Chira, a congiderable City, and the firf place where he (as the Emperor's Minifter forfooth) pitetended to exercife Authority over the Lives and For unes of the People he was come amongft. The Cacique piantiors of this City and of another, had confired to kill fome vatity. of the Spaniards, which tris not unlikely they had reI well defert'd, for fome Villany or other; and for this, Pizarro condemn'd chem both to be burnt aliye, and feveral of their principal Men to keep chem company in the fame punifhment. Only, out of his grear Grace, he was pleas'd to fpare the Crcique of Chira, as being the lefs guiltry of the two; and not only fo, but to give him the governmetry of the other alfo. At this place (to encourage his Men in the Entefprize to twas eading thein on to) he divided the Gold amongt them which the Caciques, and the People of Tumber, had

793  The Civiliand Moral Hiftory of the Spanifh Went-Indies. Lib. IV

Caxamales, where he had Intelligence Acabalipe was ar their Tcnes to teft, without the help of good Fires. UFthat time.' 'Tís 2 fign how much the Spsniards defpis'd the Forses of the In:a, when they enecid bis Country His fmall Ar. with 'ro viry finall an Army. Pianro did not bring ${ }^{2}$ my. bove 220 Men along with him, and out of thus number he drew a derachiment of 55 for a Colony which he planted by the way, (which was at Sc. Miclonels; : P Port they gave that Name to, abour 6 Leagues from the Sea in the Councry of Tumbe ) and with the litte remainder he adventurd to go and meer aleabalipa: This Prince had had notice of Pizerre's entrance into his Counrry, and had fent him Pecfents by the way as he march:d and withal defired ta knowk what bufinels he had in his grefunts from Tersitorics, or what he look'd for. 'Twas more than the inca to once that he was vifited by thefe Meffengers of the Inca by whom founctincs he fenr very foft and kind Meffages hack again bur the drew nearer he difooverd him ciff more plainly, and chang'd his Srile.
Atsintip. having one time fene him a l'refent, he order'd them that broight it to tell their Lord, That he was the Servant of 2 very mighty Prince, (whom he did net fermpie to call Lord of the whole World) and was ene to bring this Country to the Knowledge of the true God, and tister Obeliense of his Emperor; thar with as finallain Army as he had now with him, he had conçucrid Princes that were Superiour ro Atabalipa, who now was ar full liberty to make his choice. If he woun accepr of leace upon the Terms proposd, he woud help him in his Wars, and leave him in the free pofferfion of his Empire, bur if he chofe War, he would give him enough of it, and ferve him as he had ferv'd the C.acines of Pura and Timbri.

T is probabie that Atchalipg was not much frighmed at.this hectoring Meffage, in that tie fent Pinarra word he wou'd be slad to fec him, and would fay for him at C.axamakat But yet tis proter clear, that all together firral his Indignation not a litele, for as ro Meffenger that Piterro fent cond cuer be admitred to fee his face, buralways was referrd to his Unele, to he was once or twice about to take off the Heads of them, and had done it, but that he was reftrain'd by the fcar that his own Melfengers wou'd be ferv'd the fame fawce.
Before we draw the Scene for the Spaniards at Caxamalce, it will not be amifs to digrefs a litele into fome particulars of the Journcy and the Way, and efpecially to touch upon the derription of the City of Caxcmatiot it felf.
Valley from All the way from the River of Sc. Michrel to the Ciry of Ci:incis, is a delighafal Valley, very well Ycopled beat through with a func High-way made with no litelc coft and habour, and thaded on both gides with Trees The people of this Valley were fadd by tbe Spenicrds to offer Humane Blood to their Idols, yca, the Blood of their ownChildren, to ferinkic it uponthcir Tombs and Scpulchers, and to daub the faces of their Idols with it; apd the Spantik Writers do gencrally tell the tame urrerly denies all. this, and deciates no fuch Cuftoms as thefe were practistd under whe Governmenf of the Incas, but on the ofher haod, that the Spaniards invented there but on the other haed, that che Spaniards inverted thefed their Children, were guilty of Sodomy, Buggery, and the like, to give the more plaufibla coloar to their own crucl creamene of them, and to leaten the heinoufnicf of the injuries they did them, when it hou ${ }^{\circ}$ d be rold to the World they were worle than Bruce Beifts that were fervid in that manncr. And Don Barthotomeo de Cafas, the Bithop of Cbiapp:, who convers'd no lirtlewhile with thefePeople, is cutirely of the famic Opinion, as he has pubickly told us in his Book of the $\$_{\text {pianifb Cutres in }}$ the $H^{T} f(5$-tudics. Now both there Tctimonics ate the more remarkable and convincing, in that they are the Teftimonics of Spaniards againft Speniards, the one a zealous Dominican Friar, a Native of Spcin, tho a BiThop in Americe: a ad the other a Spaniard by his Fythers fide, tho a berwian by his Moctiers, efpecially fince the Inca Garcilaff's Hiftory of his own Country was examin'd and liccos'd for the Prels by the Friars, who to be fure wou'd not have faild correcting what made fo much againt their Councrimen, had it not beem too true to be denied.
Dificuit pat : The $S_{p a n i f b}$ Trocps turn'a out of this pleafant Road Cime up the to Chinctie to go into that of Crxamelec;, and here they Mouniciss, mer with Rocks and Mountains; they went up Srairs as ir werc, and were fored to lead their Hories in thear Cold Resom hands. As they arcended thefe cerated places they found the air exceeding colls, the Warers on the sop ware cold to thar extremity, that they con'd nor driok dhem withour warming, neither coud they hold out Themfelyes againt the yolenge of zt, when they fer up on chefe places they found a mighry Fortrels, shat might stron: Fur: defervedly be call'd a huge Mals of Srone, for 'twaywith the fance ; and if Asndul:pa had thoughr'fit to pue huncelf in here, the queltion is what Pizerio or Aima gro, or any Sfaniard of them all, cou'dhavs fstch'd him It was in Nevomber, A.D. 1532 that the Sparta finigid this tedious march, and cane to the $\mathrm{Cit}^{2}$ of of Caxamaica. This City was feated $3 u$ l.cagucs from the ${ }^{\text {ch }}$ Sea, it was four Miles in Circuit, and to be enter'd bur by rwo. Gates. The Walls were of very ftrong Srone, and at leaft three fathom high, and che Strects as ftrait and eren as a line. There were abundance of delicate Fountains up and down incheSerects, and all the Houfes in general very near, bur fome appear'd extrencly fine and bcautiful. Through the middle of the City ran a Srrect larger than any in Spain, and inclos'd on boith fulcs with a parricular Wall. Before it itcod a fitcong Fourrefs of Stone, up to which they afended by fepps from the Stect; and on one fide was the fately Palace of ditcbalipa, with varieties of Lodgings and Gardens belongng to ir. All the Apartments of elis Palace were pained with fercmal colours in the outfide, bur all that gatdinefs was nothing in comparifon with the fubtantial beaucies and riches of the infide, which may be partiy imagin'd, confidering how extravagant the lincais gencrally were in adorning their publick Buildings with all the embellifanents that Gold and Silver cou'd pur upon them. In one Room particularly were two harge Fountains adorn'd with Plates of Mantic Gold ; one of which Rare Foun. run with water fo hor, thar a Man cou'd not endure his satls. hand in it, and the other with that which was as innolerably cold. And, no doubr, bue the Magniticence and Curiofties of the other Apartmenes were proportionable to this; and thercfore, ex ungus I concm, ly, this part we mult guefs the reft. Upon one fide of the City was a fately Temple walled about, with a great Court before is planted with Trees; this was dedicated to the Sin. who was worthippid here with the fame Solemnitics and Frofuund Devocion, thar be was in the lmperial City of Cufco. Hither then it was that lizarro came to tind Ata- rizitro oc. balipa, who waited for his comins, baving a stoat dc- 10 cuatmat fire to fee thofe ftrange Men, of whom he had heard fo many ftrange reports, choilic had no little reafontolcok with indignation upon them, having receiy'd fo man injurice from them. The Inca was not in the Ciny it lelf, bur in his Camp. a little diftance from is, where he day with an Army of 30000 Men; as fur itinero and his Mon, they went into the City, and 100 k uf their Quarters there. As foon as he was come, Als.baty. fon Meffengers to him, with Prefents, to bid him welsome; or reurn which civility. Pizarro fent his own Brother, mramen with anocher Spenifh Caprain, that fame Evening tu It: the Camp. Tbele rwo were admitred into the Incis Preence, and deliver'd their Melages to him, but he fat up- fis fe re et on his Throne with an wnconcernednetis that befroke bim to imagine. chere was no body nhere; he did not ouchafe once to caft his cyes upon them, nor by any word or motion difcover any regard to them, but when they had faid whar they had to fay, one of the Princes that ftood by made a reply for his Sovercign. Bue. wie Spnnifo. Captain having fignified that his Companion was the Brother of Pizarre, this coming to stabulif.'s car he then lified up his eycs upon bin, and in a few words let him know, Thar his Brochers boldrefts in preculing to panidh his Subjats was very difpleafing to him ; however (he added) that for his parr, he woud be a Friend to the Spaniards, and not deal with them as thicy had (withour any juft caufe) deale with his Pcople. Fernat- pizarto do Pigarre then rotd him, That his Brother was willing firsatron to affirt him in his Wars with the Forees he had brought: the ina. To which the Inca replied, That be wou'd employ them zgainft a certain Caciquic in his Country, who had taken up Rebellious Axms againft him, and difturb'd the Peace of his Empirc. 'Twas his Brother Menco thar be meanr, and thus in foom calld a Cecique, as if he liad been one of his ordinary Vaffal Rrinces, and his Kiling ino other than a Rebellion.

Pianario gave him to underitand, that if the Spenifts proulton. Forces were employ'd in his Service, he woud foon. lec an end of all his Enemies,s and (according to the modefty of that Nation) told him, that ten Horfemen of their Troops would be fufficiene to do the whole bufnids, withour any affiftance from his'Army ar all. Atrabilipe at this fell a laughing, and faid no more upon that foint, bur bid the crwo Spaniards driuk, which when chey wou'd have excun'd, he prefid then fo carnenty that they cou'd not defend theoriflyes any longer; io the Woman

Chap.XIV.T be Civil and Moral Hiftoryof the Spanilfoweft-Indies.

brought Liquox of Maize in lange Veffels of Gold which was as great a Cordial to the Spaniards as the Wine it felf they drank: Atabalipa bid Pizarro tell his Sponierds
cntertan's und fens
awny. Brother he wou'd fee him the nexr day; and fo difmifs'd them.
Some of the Spanif Wxiters (Bcnzos particularly) make matrers to have been manag'd quite otherwife on the part of Atabalipa; that he was all along more ftern and rough in his Mcffages to Pi ararra; that he fcoffed at ane Forces of the Spmintr, derided their fmall Numbers, and fent them word, if they lov'd their Lives they mouid be gone our of his Territories. Ona che other hand they own nothing of Pizarro's threatning Meffages to the Inci, but only make him prefs pretty carneftly to come o an futervicw with him, treating him otherwife in ald chpests very civilly

But we chufe in this Marcer rather to fick to the Account of Francifeo de Xerics (which was that we gave before) than to Benna's, for tho the latter Perfon was concerned in the Spanif Service, yer the former was Secretary to $\mathrm{Pi}_{\text {andro }}$ himfelf, and fo may reafonably be at owed to underftand more of the rruth of the Affair. The

Pitartre p
piess
bior

coning. xt Morning being come; a Meffenger came from Atran batipe, to rell $P$ : arro that he wou'd come and fee him and his Soldicrs in ticir Arms char Day, which the other defired him to do, and immediarcly went to the difpofing and placing his Forces up and down in the great Sereet of Carimalica, giving them Orders nor to ftir till the Signal was given, and the great Guns were difcharg'd. And now P:intrro having all things ready, and fitted up a Trap for itabulip., was fo impatienr cill he had gor him in it, that he fenta Meffenger for hime to haften his coming. Bur for all this; the Inca made is almoft Sunfet beiore he mov'd out of his Camp, but then he came on with all the pomp and jollity in che World. His Army appear'd more like a Compatiy of Stage-playcrs than Men of War; thicy came funging and daticing along, and hone gloriouny, whar with cheir Ornaments of Feathers, and the Gold and Silver that was abour chem, pianarro did not move a thep forwards to meet him, bur kept his Station in the greatStreet, expecting him to pals through that. Accordingly atabalipa came thither, and made a tand in the middle of the Street; be was carry'd upon Mens ithonlders in a moft Majeftick Seat of Gold and baving not a little degree of Majefty and Comelinet's in his own Perfon, thar and his Ornaments together made him appear like the Prince he was.

As foon as che Inca fopt, (which 'tis so be fuppos'd was to fee and fpeak with Pianarro) there marches up to him .the Friar Vincent, with a Crofs in one Hand, and a Breviary in the ocher, and according to his Inftructions (by the help of an Interpreter) made a Speech to him to this purpofe:-:" That he was a Servant of God, and 'twas his - bufinefs to teach the Chriftians things Divine, and that * he came to inform him in fuch Marters as wou'd be to "his Advantage every way if he wou'd atrend to them. Then he began with the oid ftuff," Thar the Bifhop of a Rome, according to the Power Heaven had intruited Thim with, had given to theirSavereign Lord che Empe'ror all thefe Lands and Councries which were before ${ }^{4}$ unknown; and thar for this end and purpore, that he - might Send Godly Mcn thither to preach the moft Holy. Goipel, and rurn the Infidels from their Errors and Itolatrous Wormip. And that the Trince mighr undertand his rerms, and know what Gofpel, Pope, and Idolatry meant, the Friar converred bis Oration into a Sermon, and run over all the Fundamentals of Religion. Bur if the Doctrine was fine, the Ufe and Application was coarfe;' añd "cou'd nor avoid making a very ugly jangle in the Ears of a Sovereign Prince, and one fo great as Atrbalipa was too. This, as the Inca Don Gercilaffo Divegra relates it, ran in this Stile - For 6 which reafon his Imperial Majefty has fent this Captain, that your Realms mighr receive this benefir, and that he might begin the Alliance and Confederacy bctwixr the Majefties of the Emperor and the Inca. Bur this is to be done in fach fort, that your whole Em-- pire become Tributary, and you your felf a Subject, renouncing the Sovereign Adminiftration of all your - Countries, as divers ocherKings and lords have done.
a And that after fuch fibjection to the fublime Majefty - of the Emperor, you yield Obedience to the Pope, and receive the Faith of Chrift, utrerly abandoning your © Idols, and all your Superftitions, which were inven©ted by the * Devil. Thefe dhings, $O$ King, thou art

Who wess
tion in by?
Pracions preaching of thou wilc or no, and to cmbrace our Catholick Faith, and pay Tribure to the Emperor. Thou may'f do this freely and of chy own choice; bur if chou docit perGif in thy obftinacy, know for a certainty, that as of Old, Pharraob'* and all lis Army perith'd in the Red e tr wis Inci Sca, fo God will fuffer that thou, and all thy finlinem, wers pho be deftroy'd by our Arms. A very prerty Sreceh of a rest, the Friar to an Emperor! This Father Vincent was fome mo- wein not the deft, badhful, fhamefac'd Fellow or other, that had nor chidreil of coutage to look a Prince in the facc, and 'peak to him trael, thut's roundly; 'ris a wonder Pizarro pick'd him our for this Office, for he talk'd as if he werc moft fadly our of count renance all the while. As for Ambalipa, he had parience enough to hear the Man our, and then made a lieply as full of modeft Wit and Ingenuity, as the ochers was of blunt lmpudence and Sawtinefs. He figh'd as the words Drffrudiven and Confufion, and beginning with Arac, Afac, (which is an Interjection that expreffes che highef forrow) he told the Friar, 'That this Meffage was very different from what pizarro had formerly fent him. Reply That it appear'd very ftrange to him that the Empetor Chould be Lord of the World, and yet, the Pope have Power to beftow new Kingdoms upon him. That he was not unwilling to accept the Friendilhip of fo great a Monarch, bur he faw no reafon why he fhould pay Tribute to him; for a free Prince to do Homage to anorher whom he had never any concerns with, was a piece of Injuftice; and if the Empcror cou'd precend any Righr or Títle upon him, he ought to have fignified as much, before he had gone to threarning Fire and Deftruction, and to feize his Country by force. Befides he cou'd not fic (if he meit pay Tribute at all) why he thou'd not pay ic to (P-checnmac; who was the Creator of all things, and had the be!t Title to fuch an acknowledgment; or if ir muft be to any other befides him, why it fhoud nor be to Jefus Chrift, who was the beft Man, or to the Popc*, who The Pope was a greatcr Man than the Emperor by his owfi certurnly had confefion? And as to the Conceriss of Religioni, he mure T.tic ld the Friar . "The Pope might be as wife and good a pon the Em. Man as he reptefenred him, however is appear'd to him being Coriit's that he was a Fool, and a Mrin of no modety, to of. Stew.rat. he fer to give away thar to another that was none of his cive his own. Neither thou'd he change rhe Faith of his Coun- Rents hert try for that new one which he propos'd, and the Chrii bulow. ftians were at liberty to believe in Chrift which (they ownid) died upon a Crofs, whilft he belicvid in the Sun that never died at all. Laftly, As for themielves and the Prince thar fent them, whatever pretecoces of Ripht and Juftice they made, they feem'd ro be Men of Ufurping and Tyrannical Principles, in going abour to diftrefs other Nations, and rob and plunder thofe that had done them no wrong. Bur if they wete the Servants of Pachacamic, and the offended Deity had fent them to panimh his Country for its Offences, he and his were ready to fubmir themfelves to whar they Mou'd think fir to impofe upon them, bur not at all for fear of their Threarnings, or their Arms, but to fulfil the dying Command of his Facher Hitayna Capas, who enjoin'd them to ferve the bearded Nation that was more valiant than themfelves, and fhou'd bring them new Laws and Cuftorns.
What follow'd immediately upon the concition of ritacis Re. his Speech of Atabalipa's, is differently related by the porrs of the Auchors that wite of this Marter. The Inca Gercileffospmiarts fays, that the Spaniards impatiexs of fo tedious a Con-made on ference between the Inca and the Friar, feil to rifling satatedipa; the Inctians, and to plundering the Temple of the Sun : that fome of them drew themfelves our into Barcalia to charge upon Arabrlipris Men, whilft the Inca himielf, with a loud voice, commanded all of chem to lay down their Arms, and make no refitance; for this they were going to do, and in order to it had rurnod upon their Enemies wich a grear hour, according to their Cuftom: Alfo that the Friar Vincent madea favourable Speech to the Spaniards on the behalf of the Indians, and was fo far from inftigating them to fighr, that he endeavour'd to cool their hear; and perfwade them from it. But the Spanif Writers tell the Srory fomerhing differently, and relare fome circumftances which the Inca Garciicifo is imagin'd to have forborn mentioning our of scfpect to the Friars, becaufe they feem to caft an Odium upon cheir Otder.

They fay that Arabalipa demanding of the Friar how The tna's he came to know fome of thofe points of Religion which quection to he had precended to teach them; and the other replying, we Friat. that his Book (the Law of God which he held in his hand) rold him fo, the Inca ask'd to fee his Book, which the Friar gave himinto his hand, but had not the Senfe or the Manners to open firft, bur offer'd it hurt. Ataba| or the Manners to open firft, bur offerd it fhut. Acaba- |
| :---: |
| Oo, lipa |
| 0002 |

792 The Civil and Moral Hiftory of the SpanilhWeft-Indies. Lib. V.

lipa trying a while, and not being able to open it, the wedge of Gold or Silver, and if 'twant wice as much Friar reach'd our his Hand todo it for hima, but the other difclaining his help, hir him a found blow on the Arm, Thows the and at laflopen'd is himfelf. They fay he look'd upon as the Debr came to they did not carc. Noching was fo and at lan opend ar himenef. they fay he look wop that the Indichs ordinarily sxprefs'd at things thicy had never feen before; bue having look'd a little while, he chrew is away from him with a giear deal of indigna tion, and told the limar, that it Race not a word of thol

Fiar pros.
 Spinadat
Rei ange. things that he fopke of to him:. And now the Friar was all in a flame at this horrid consempt of the Gofpel, he ran away with open mouth on che Spaniai ds, proclaiming the heinoufnefs of the Fact, and calling for Vengeance uponehe protatic Prince. Come fort, ecme forth Caniftann (fays he) and (et arn thafo Elamios; Degs mhicis will nor Guceps clue things of Cod ; the Gofpels arc derided, their Prince bos stirwn the Sastad Bock on tbe ground; come forsti and $m$ Ike cher: Smare for fo mick:d $\because$ Decd. The Friar having thus Aushoriz'd all the Murder, Bloodfhed, Rapine and Ravihnents, the Spriniards had a mind to commit, the Drums prefently beat, and the Trumpers founded; the great Guns were difcharg'd upon the Indians, and the Sominds, boch Horfe and Foor, fell on with an incre

Aritaris.
Army con.
founucd ly tonched ming Grand Histios. to firs. Tis ealic to hagane hate wire froops of Atabnifpe (tho much fuferiour an number) ware norable to fand this lloock; the Spanicris made whar hayock they woud amongit them, and killd soco, fome fay half as many more, without the lois of any one Man. And no wonder neither, for the spaniards themfelves confels, that not an Indirn lifted up his hand againft them their Prince's command to the contraxy having tied them ald fafi. Pizario himfelf prefscdup to Altabaliper's liter and feiz'd him by the arm, making him a Prifoner ; in which action he got a wound, and that from one of his own Men, who were lacking and hewing the poor If: dimes that carried their Empcror upon their ohoulders. In a werd, the Army was all dilpers'd, and the Inca left in the hands of his Encmics; and this whoicacion was done info lietle time, that tho' the Sun was ferring when it began, he had not becn down more than half an hour before 'twas cnded. An inglorious Action, without dor:br all Pofteriry will call it, if as leaft it ke fo, forMcn to cut the Throats of fo many thoufands that ftood till made no rchutance. Afrer all was over, pizarro finding he had obrain'd to cheap a Victory, cry'd out a Miracle, gaveGod chanks for it, and had Mais faid, as if 'twas a work of feecial and extraordinary Providence for Cod to preferve the lives of the Spaniarts, when the Indiens ne:er fruck a ftroke in order to the taking of chem away. "Twou'd be much fuch another Miracle, for a Man to fall inco a dry Ditch and feape drowning; and as reafonable a Derotion as Pizarro's, for him to give God thanks for't when he came out again.
Atabalipa being now a Prifoner, was (as may eafly be imagind) very much afflicted as his hard fare, under which however Pizarro endeayourd to comforr him, and gave him reafon to hope ar leaft for very good and ho
-stasulipa
promitise mourable treatment at his hands. The Princs promis'd excramagane Ranloms and Rewards in cafe he wou'd fer him at liberry again; , that he wou'd fill a Room half again as high as a Man, 22 foor long, and 17 wide, up to half che heighth of it with Veffels of Gold, and the whole content twice over with Silver, and all this in the fpace of 5 wo Months. And is feems to be paft all doubr, thar piáarro upon this condition promis'd to fet him free; But yet fo much as what was promis'd, not coming in within the limited time, the Spaniards began to grumble ar Asabatipe, and (as fome fay) then took up the refolu tion of difparching him out of the way. He excus'd the Matter by alledging the grear length of the way to $\mathrm{C} u / \mathrm{fo}$, and rold them, that if they wou'd fend fome of their company thither, they: wouid fee enough so convince them that he had promis'd 230 more than was in his Spaniaria power to perform. Accorcingly fome were fent to Cufon the place, bur with directions to take poffefion both of che Ciry and Treafures. And they quickly began to Fearch into chofe Trcafures when they came thither, and to Anatomize the Royal Houles and Temples, and dif cover the rich Parts of them. In thorr, to many Burthens of Gold and Silycr came fromethence. to Caxamat ca , that befides the Emperor's fifths, every Horfeman had to his ihare $8880^{\circ}$ Cantilians in Gold, and 362 Marks in Silver, each Mark being 8 Ounces; the Foot men had half fo much, or more or lefs according to their Mcriss.
In this plenty of Gold in the Spanifh Camp, one may imagine the Rioting, the Gaming and Prodigality that was there: They paid their Debrs by the lump, nor ftanding to tell Moncy; but giring the Creditor a good and therefore the Prices of all gor as Gold and Silver and therefore the Prices of all things were according
A Horfe went ar 1500 Caftilians of Gold, 2 Quart of Wine for in, a pair of Shoes for 40 , a Shece of Paper Or 10 ; and fo of other things proportionably. The State of the World otherwhere was here inverted, Mo ncy wanted Commoditics, nor Commodities Moncy The Officers that were fens to Cufco, had a lighr of 1 Ihfoar at Saufo, in their way thither. That niferable fmefor of Prince had lain under a woful Continemene etrer finceftrs more his Brother Asabalipat had deprived him of his Crown befred and now when the Spaniads came to vilit him; he tamperid with them for his Releale and Reftomation. He promis'd three times as much Treafure as Atribalipa bad done, and told them he was beters able to perform is than the other was, becaufe he knew all the Repofitorics of the Riches of his Anceltors, and where their vatt hoards were to be found, which the other was wholl ignorant of. But they cou'd give him no orher anfive but this, that they mun firft go in Cuffe, whecher the were fent, and then confider of his Affairs afterwards.
In the mean time atstalipo had intelligence of thefe Pro- - Atratht pofals of Frufferr, and therefore faw now that he munt cen make fure work with him ; and therefore 'to foum the Spaniards, and fee how they worid take Htaf/cirs death, he pretended that one of his Captains had kill'd him, and he was in a mighty deal of attliction upon that account. Piärre, that knew nothing of the trick, ccml forted him under his lofs, and promis'd him to fee the aftors of that Murder fevercly punith'd. This was juft Haferem what Atrberipn wanted; and feeing the Speniards took kilied. his Brochers death fo quicrly, he difpatch'd a Poft wirh all feced and pria acy in the World to deftroy him, to that the Spaniards fhou'd not know but twas realiy done heforc. And this was exceured acrordingly, and that formidable Rival removed cur of the way. Tho 'ti: butipe was a Prifoner himfelf in the hands of the $S p$ pcniarts, yer he had a couple of Gencrals that were frec, and lay abroad in the Country, one in one Parr, and the other in another; and tho they had Feress ar their command, yer they attempred nothing againf the lnva ders of their Country. The Names of chele two grear Captains were Cbilicucbime and $Q u$ inquiz, the formoer of Gercrup. which the $S_{p}$ an: where Hiuffar was confin'd, and the latter they found at Cufoe with an Army of 30000 Mien. And 'ris a furpri zing confideracion, that thace Spanierds (for no miore were employ'd apon that firat Errand to Cufoo Mowit plunder a rich and glorious Ciry that had fuch a fower of Men to guard ir. That chey hou'd riae the Templa of the Sun, take down the Maflic Plates of Cold fiom the Walls, and bring at leaft 200 Mcns load of Gold away, while no body offcr'd in the leaft ro hinder them, or fo much as to ask them what they did. The Pots, the Rich $B$ ong Tankards, and all forts of Veffels of Gold and Silver, broughitian were fo numerous; that the Spaniards were Atruck with ${ }^{2}$ crfo. the deepeft afioniflament when they faw chofe Treafures; there were fome goldicn Veffels fo big, that 12 Men had much ado to bring one of: chem; and one of the Inca's Thrones of Mattic Gold, and a kecciver for a Founrain of the fame Mecal likewife, were so be fure no light and cafie Carriage. But the Gencrals were fo far from endeavouring to fecure thefe Treafures, that they willingly refign'd them to the Spanierds; and tho tis cer tain, that the acalon of it was becaufe they knew the Inca's Ranfom was to be paid with it, yer'tis much that all hou'd keep fo quier, and none thou'd be apt to think the Spaniards had gone beyond their Bounds, when the Sacred Houfes themfelves were not fared by them, tho there was no need of emprying them for the paymenc of what was promis'd.
The Spaniards returning from this firt Ranfack of $C, f$ co, broughe the General Chilicuebima; and feveral ochica grear Men, along with them, to fee their Lord Arabalipa in his Captise fatate. Thele Men coverd their Bo- 1 statipe dies with very coarfe Cloth before they went into his revercredty prefence, and as foon as they faw him; lifr up cheir Eyes and Hands to the Sun, giving thanks that they had icen cheir Inca again; then they approach'd him by little and itrle, and kifs'd his Hands and Feer, and, in a word did him all the Honours thar coud be expected in the heighth of his Glory and Profperity. He alfo kepe his Majefty as much as eyer, and as he was pruader than an of che Inca's beforc him, fe alfo now he woud not fo much as vouchefe to look upon any of chefe his faithfi: Servants. $\because$ Bur the Tragical cud of this unfortunate Prince now haften'd apacs, and he that had thed io much of the Blood of his own Family, was to have hi own thed by Forsigncrs for the expiation of thofe Crmmes. himfelf, but that the Spaniards had dio mind to be per-

Chap. XIV The Civiland Moral Hifory of the Spanih Weft-Indies. 793

Full parment uf the Rant

 Tis trte he had paid his Ranform to the full, and Pizat- fwaded of his innocency.of the Rane of folnmily and publickly acquitred him in Caxamaka of
com. havin, $f$ donc, and order'd is to be fignificd by found of Trumict, and by an aEt in writing drawn up by the Notary: But norwithftanding this he was not to be difcharg'd yer; Pijarro told hiun he mult be detain'd a Charges
broupht in bllipe. whe under a Guard, till more Forces of the Spaniards. werc come up to him for his Security from all attempts, for he had becia inform'd that Atabalipa had given Orders for the levying an Arny to affaule the Spaniards, and drive thein out of the Councry, and this he chought to present (at leatt the mifhiesous confezuences of it) by kecping him and his Gencral clofe Prifoners. Whether this were true or no, fome of his own People (the $S_{p n t}$ ninds lay) aftirm'd it; they receald the whole Plot to $P_{i}{ }_{i}$ rro, who perhapswas not unwilling to belice it, nor backward to lay hold of any fair Occafion for the ma-
: m Condcinhat exrent with his Prioncr. Macters in hort rum Fast and the we hear norhing of his Defence yer w do of his Condcimation and Scrntence; which was to be burne alive. Bur becaufe they had made a fort of a Chrittian of him, chat is, had baptiz'd him, in confideration of that the Sentence was fomething fofmed, and le had the favour of being ftrangled. When Atabalipa heard his Doom, he exclaim'd mont bitterly $2-$ gainft Pizarre, for the breach of his folemn Oath and Promife to fer hiun ar liberty; and nor only fo, but to depare peatcablyisus of his Country upon the payment of his Ranfom. Then turniug about with his Devotions to the Sun, he renew'd his exclamations, calling as is were his Deity to writnefs of the Infidelizy and Treachery of the Spenicrds. Bur Pizaric, who marcer'd none of thofe things, (tho he was preiene all the while) commanded his $N$ egroes to ftop his mouth, which they did by wringing a Cord with a Stick abour his Neck, and fo difpatchid thim. The good. Friar Vincent confented to this Murder alfo, and yosed for the oid Catholick way of Execution by the Fire. This Chrintian Mufri knew very well the Mind and Defigns of his Grand Scignior Pifarro, and no doubr having foanded his Inelinations to deftroy dabalipa, eafily proved it dawful by the Gofpel, and found ous that God would have it fo. The Sentence thus executed, his Corps were Interr'd,' as fome fay, in the Church ar Caxamilca, or as others, in a Royal Tomb amongt the Kings of 2 kito, in that City. His General Chilicuctiama was more fevcrely handled, being tied to a Stake, and tormented with flaming Braids thraft to his Body, no extort a confflion from thim of all the Treafures that were yer undifcover'd. He endured thele
 the ocher General, had all Hudynn's Treafures in bis keeping: Bus befides thefe, he difooverd where anocher Mals lay, which Pizarro afterwards feiz'd upon. His deach was fome rime after his Mafters; bur twas no litrle eafe to Pizarre to have him ouc of thenay too. for he was 2 Man of great Valour and Courage, and equal Truch and Fidelity to his Mafter. The Inca Garcilaffo fays, that Chilicushime was murder'd by one of Asabalipa's Captains, together with the own Brother, and all the Sons and Daughters of chat miferable Prince, that were then at Quito ; and this at the Solconnization of his Oblequies, when the Corps was brought to be buxied there. That this fame Caprain had an ambition to fer himecif up in the Kingdom of Quite, and in order to that (imizaring his Matters example) rook an opportunity to cur of all thote that mighe prove hinderances to him in that defign. 'Tis to be roted, the Spaniards in their Arraig:ment of Ar,ibniapa accus'd him of Treafon; which was, if well coniderd; a very precty fort of a Charse, and inad as muris dence in it as all their proceedings had, of Juftice and Reafon, and common Honefty For what was his Trcafon? were his Endeavours, to free himfelf and his Country from a parcel of Men that came to rob him, to be calld to? And who was he a Traytor to? was is ro Päarro, or to the Emperor? If the Emperor was never his Rightful Sovereign, he cou'd be no Traytor to him ; and that he was aever to is as infallibly urue, as that the Pope never had any power to give so him, or any body elic, the Lands and Dominions of orhet Princes. In horr, Pizarro's Defigns (of firing as Monarch himidelf in thas glorious Country) made ir neceifary for all the old lncas Race to be remov'd, and confequently for Atibulip,t to dic. And this Herern, the Sp.mifh Fiftorian, and ethers of the fame Nation, don't frruple plainity to fpeak out; faying alfo, that Pizerec prectided a far of Murinics and Troubles where there was licice occainon for't, and tiat Atrebtipa endeavour'd to anfwer ail thofe Ob bections, and wou'd have clear'd

How things profper'd with them afterwards, we fhall ree in irs duc place; bue we muft procecd in order with the Events chat happenid upon Aoabnlipn's death.
Pizarro, to oblige the Country the more; gave them a The new : iew Inca after he had eaker away the old one. This was alfo a Son of Huayni Capac, and they gave him the Name of Arabalipa; but he was a meer Tool of the spaniarts, and encixely at their difuofe. He thaving fafted threc days for his Predecelfor according ro Cuftom) publickly acknowledged the Sovcreignty of the Enperor, and perform'd the Kives of Valfalige to l'ia arro as hus Reprefenrative. The principal Cerernony was the Otterung of a whice feather, which he did, as alfo all his Caciques did to him ; they afterwardis own'd the Emperor for their Supteme Lord, (and next under him the new Acabalipe) by the Ceremony of holding up the Roya: Standard, which cyery Dian die in his turn. Now tho this Action of Pizanos was picafing enough to the one pars of the Empire, that is, to the Cufforms, yet'twas very ungrateful and diflianfing to the 2airminis, and all thofe of the firft itavalipe's Faction; for as chat Prince was of the Royal Tine of Quito, to his Generals Clilicuthima and Quinquiz were for advancing that Houfc, and fixing the Imperial Crown there. Uponthis Occafion $2^{\text {uarctity }}$ : thercfore, there grew very grear Jealonties and Difcon- and win; cuts between them ; yea, guizquiz ope:: decla:d hi:nrelf, and took Arms to Affers the Righrs of the Qu;tomiza: Houke; and Chilicuchim.a, tho' he did no: appear Earefacd, yer was as deep in che Defign, and gave peivate Encouragements to thofe Troubles. Bur Atnientif the Atajomp. Second did not long enjoy his new Digniey, fur he d.ed the siceo. bofcre Pizarro gor to Cufio; and the comimon Repors dia was, that he was poyfon'd by Cisiicuchio:n, wheli :ogether, with other more important $R$ calons, drew on the tate of thar General we mention'd but now. He had (bufore he died) proposd a Son of che firft Aabritipnco fuccecd the Second of that Name; but Pizarro, and tike Sp.unife ds in general, rather coclin'd to Mcico, the Son of the Inca Hunma Capac, who was conrending for the Empire with his Prother Asabatipa when the Spartards fint invaded the Country. Bus the bufunefs not being rizurro yet determin'd, P: itrio continued bis match to Cuft, (nject. and in the way rhither he was mot by $\ell u$ izguiz; whio commanded 2 good Army, and gave him Batrel; but his Forses coud not wothitand the fury of che Spanifh Horfe, nor abide the rerior of the grear Guns; fo that being cntircly routed, in him the Family of astabelipa loft their laft grear. Champion and Defender. So that the Spaniards were forc'd as it were to cut rheir way into $\mathrm{Cu} / \mathrm{cn}$; and the truch on'r is, tis no limall wonder that they were able to accomplifh it; they thenafelves were nor a liste furprizid to tind themfelves Mafters of that place. Had ir nor been for che Enularions and Quarrels berween the rwo Imperial Cirics of Cufco and Q:ito, in all likelihood it had been impolible for them to havedone is; and thofe Powers firmly united rogether, wou'd have been an invincible Bar in their wayBut chey ruin'd anc Common Inacreft by their Inteltin: Divifions; and 'twas spaniph Pulicy perhaps, to throw that Bone of Conrention betwixs them, as leaft noc to take it away from chem. Befides, the difficulties of the Way were fuch, that they mighr have been fatigu'd to death in their march thither; for the mountainous Paffes are fo ftrait and narrow, chat 10 Men may defend rhem againft 10000. In fome places they. were wrought like Mounturio. Stairs out of the folid Cliffs, and in others Stone-work Saiss, added by Art, to render them capable of being pafs'd over. Bur the speniards having none to oppofe them, made a hifr to climb thofe precipices, tho' abundance of theirHorfes broke their Necks; and tris a wunder all the Men had not donc fo too.. The ridge of Mountains concinues from Tumber to Xauxa, and from thence to Cufco ; and from Caxamaice to Xíusa, rans a vaft mouncainous TraA cover'd with Snow, which lies.there all the Soowy, Mour? Year round. When Pizarro camero Cifec, he had the ${ }^{\text {cuin }}$ profpeet of a City much finer, and more magnificent; than any he expected to find in that part of the World. The principal part of it ftands on the top of a Hill, tho ${ }^{\circ}$ Defcription it freads all along the Declivities, and rums down into the adjacen Plain. The Streets were ftrair and even, tho' narrow but the beauty of the Buildings made amends for that defect, there being few Houles bur what were made of Stone. The Palaces of the Caciques and Noblemen (of which there were a multitude) made a noble appearance, and efpecially in that part which lay down in che Valley; the Houfes of Pleafure of thole great Men, the Publick Strote-houfes, Magazines, and Repofitories of the Tribures, were difcoverd above all and par'd with Stone; on cle 4 fides of which food Palaces rais'd by fome of the Inca's, all of Scone-work, but painted and carv'd after a very agreeable manner The ftatelieft of all thefe was that built by Huayna Ca fre, and in which he himfelf commonly refided; the Gares of this Edifice were of Marble of Ceveral colours. and the Terraffes futable to all the reft of the work Through che middle of the City ran a ftream of warn enclos'd in 2 Stonc Canal, on cach fide of which a Horfoman might yery eafily pals; bur their main Fund of water were two Rivers which rook their courfe alons by the City, and over which chey had laid Bridges fuch as their Skill in thar fort of Building (which wa but little) coud raife. Bur that which produc'd a rea aftonithment in the Spaninrds was the Fortrefs, that In comprehenfible Building, fo Incomprehenfibly briilt and laid together ; in which they found fo many appearance of cirraordinary Art, and yet were puzzled to imagine what the Art mult Be , and who the Arift. Having furycyd this Srructure, they cafily concluded that it went beyond all the Buildings of the Grecks and Romans and many thar had feen the moft remarkable Antiquities that feveral Nations had to thew, confefs'd there was nothing like rhis. But then the infide Furniture wa extraôrdinary likewife, for being the grand Magazine of the Incas, the general Store-houfe for their Warlike Provifions, which were gatherd here from all larts of the Empire, there were fuch Piles of Clubs, Lances, Eows, Arrows, Axes, Targets, Shields, with other re quifites for Soldiers, that had there been but Soldiers to have us'd them, the Spenierds muft bave taken leave of Cufo in a lithls time. In fhort, the Towers, Terralles, Walls, Bartelments, Rnoms; Aparments, Furniture and Contenes of this Fortrefs, were all admirable to them and the Profpect and Scimuation no lêfs pleafing. What spaiara; Ciry: Treafures the speniards found in the City and Caftle of were fo grear thar what they had betore all thore load of Gold and Silver Plare) hardly bore any proportion to them; bur if we remember the general Account of the Riches of the Palaces and Tcmples of the Inca's, one may guels at what chey gor by coming hither. Bentos Kays, that they treated the Pcople of Cufco with the ut moft barbarity to make them confefs their Treatures that in the midtt of that prodigious Plenty (which migh racher havecloy'd a Man, and given him almoft a fur 'feit of Gold) they rav'd (oo with the hunger of is that they did any thing to come at their defired Satisfaction And whatever might be extorted out of fome of them by the pulls of 2 Rack, or the torments of Fire, yct 'tis paft all doubr that fome of the molt glorious Treafures of the Empire efcapd their hands.

We mult. now bring the lica Manco (of whom we Mance comes (poke before) upon the Scage again. This Prince hearSo Criso. ing Pi airro was at Cufco came thither to him, and his Errand was no demand his Right, which was the pofferfion of the Imperial Throne. And to encourage ithe Speniards to yield to him in this matter, he promis'd to promote their Affairs and Religion too, as the inca Gercilaffo tells us. Pizarre, who had fome inclination to him ty was then abour being Rcopled) and left the Inca Man oo co the keeping of two other of his Brochers, fotm and Gonfalvo Pizarro. Thefe Men held the Inca a clofe Prioner ; fome fay they laid him. in Chains, tho 'ris Cct- piore h. min that they fecur'd bim in the Fortrefs of Cufce, as a - where they fvere fure to hold him faft. The Inca Wan a Prince of a very haughry Mind, of great Courage and Refolution, and they had reafon to fear all things from him if he were Matter of himfelf; but he compos'd himfelf under this injurions treatment io a won- His Peirc) ful patience and eafinefs, as leaft he diffombled his refenements, and forbore all manner of harmineflections apon the Spanniards. When his own Subjects bewail'd his Misfortune, and exclaim'd againft the lnjuftice and Treachery of his Imprifotument, he wou'd fprak foft and comfortable words to them, and tell thein his Fathei Huayna Capac had commanded, in his Laft Teftamenc, that they thou'd fubmit to the Spaniatds; and in the mean time, under all thefe Opprefions, they fhou'd be quier till they faw the iffuc of all. Howerct, he did ris endeavours nor to have orcafion to obcy his Fathers Laft Will and Teftamenr very long, for he flatrer'd and carefid the Spaniards, fweetned them with Prefents foke honourably of them, and never made any com plaints of his Sufferings; fo that they dhought him to be very eafic and well-contented Prifoner. In Murt, he Gutahis dealt fo with Pizarro's two Brothers, his Jailors, that he brta obrain'd a degres of Liberty, for they gase him leave to go to Mucay, which was the Roval Garden of the Inca's, to fpend foms time for his refrelhment and picafure When he was got there, he fummon'd his Officers and Grandees privarely abour him, and aggravating all the foul and bafe treatment he had had from the Spaniard o the laft degree, and fince he couid no longer rely upon their Promifes, and plainly faw that they iurended to hare the. Empire amongit chemfelves, inftead of reftoring it to him, he told them heintended to take up Arms to recover his Right by Forcs, and wou'd truit Pachacamac and his Father the Sun, with the Succefs. All his Cap-He rifes atains were very glad to hear him make fo bold and painf ihe brave a Refolucion, and accordingly promis'd to mainrain his Rights to the ntmolt of their power, againft al he Pretentions and Encroachments of the spaniards And now prcparations were made for a War, which coft a vait deal of Indian Blood, and not a little Spanih. Mance made his firft Attack upon $C_{v}{ }^{\prime}$ ce, with an Army of 200000 Men , and fhooting fire along with their Arrows in upon the Spaniards, had like to have burnt down the City abour their Ears. In this Siege Gol:n Pi- $C_{n j o}$ t.ken zarro was Alain, and the Defendants cvery way fo hard- from the ly pres'd, that the City was taken, and Manco now become Lord of Cufso wichout the Spaniards leave. After And re:ken this the Spaniards recruiting their Forces, paid the Inca in the fame Coin, befieg'd $C u / c o$, and took is from him ; but they had nor been Mafters of it very long, beforic he came with anocher porent Army, which drove them out, and feated him there again. Marters being come to this pals, Pizarro. was forc'd to fend another of bis Brochers defeaniards $^{2}$ with freh Forces againit the Inca, bur he and bis Troop $\mathcal{M}$ were entertain'd after fuch a rude manner by the Perit vians, that not a Man was lefr to carry News of theit ill Succefs. After this he difparctid 4 or 5 Commanders more, one affer anocher, who had all of themfthe fame fate of being routed, and moft of them of being killd It was cherefore high time for Pizierro to cone himfelf piantu basa in Perfon, and humble the growime Power of this Enemy; Munct. which he did, and what with the terror of his Guns, and armid Horfes, the firft Battel be fought he overthrew the Army of Manco. Then to compleat the Work, he rentabout to all the Spanifb Colonies upon the Continent for Supplies of Men and Ammunition, and liaving made himfelf confiderably ftrong, he foughr one or two Bastels more, by which Manco's fate was entirely decided, for his mighty Army was too far fhatrerd and broken to be mended up again for another Action. The poor Prince He retirs to was now driven to his thifts, and obliged to recire to the mo fome clofe and fecure Refuges in the Mountains; and twas upon the Mountains of Villaca Cempa that he chore to retile his Abode, whether he made his retreat with 20000 Men, the remainders of his roured Army. Benzes makes as if his recreat was nor fo much the effect of his weaknefs as his prudence, and thar 'rwas to avoid being hemm'd in of all fides by the Spaniards, for she report now went that Almegro was coming out of chili with his Forces, who was more likely to join with his Enemies then him. But having broughe him to this theiter; we nuft leave him here for awhile to take his repofe, while we look into the Affairs of Pitarre and his Companions,

Chap.XIV.The Civil and Moral Hifory of the Spanifh Weft-Indies. 79 空

and fee sheir Fates. We mutt know, that after the ta- by fending ouce a Vice-Roy into the Comntry; and at king of Culfer, when Lima (the Cit) of Kings as is is calld by the spaniards) was' rais'd and poopled, pianaromade his Fricend and Partner Almagro Governor of that Province. But alfo becaufe he had been an active Man in the Peruvian Conqueft, (and one of the firlt Difeoverers 100) in confideration of his Services, the Emperor made him Marthal of Pcru, and gave him Autherity to somquer 300 Miles for himelf, beginning whete Pizarro's Conquefts ended. As for Pinarro himiclf, the greater actions lic had perfurm'd madc him Almagro's Supcriour ; but he allo now growing great, the other was conlequendy jealons of him, as all ambitious afpiring Mcn ufe to bc of one another. And many Dilputes and Quarsels parsid between them, when at laft Pinarro, to rid his hands of fuch a dangcrous Rival in a fair and an honourable way, fent him into chili to conquer, or to govera, or founcthing of that nature, as the pretence was; but the true defign was, that he might be knock'd o'th' head there. However, Almataro made nofcruple of going, and in that Country he taid till the time that the Inca Maner was finally routed, and forced up into the Mountains. But then he had enough of Caili, and tinling it did not anfwer his expectations, he march'd back into Peru, and same dircetly to Cufin. This place he prerended a Right to the Governmens of, and woud acroedingly have enccrid as fuch, but was opoos'd by Fernind, liazerro, who was placed in that Station by his Brother, and would not refign it withour Orders Amagre fe-from him. Bur Almagro found a way to get into the zos cufice. City in the Night time, and furprizing the two piaterros that were there, he clape them both up in Prion, and the nexr Day made himfelf be proclaim'd Governor, according to the Imperial Commition. By as good a srick he alfo feizd $A l$ unrado, another Spanif Commander, who was coming rowards him with fome Forces, and that for no good as be reafonably imagind; and now he Lorded is in Cufco at a violent rate, and threatned Pizarro's Party moft bitterly. Burt ikuarado, and one of the Pizarros, that lay therc in Priton, by making ufé of a golden Key, (which will open mot Locks in the World got out, and came to the General Pizarro, and acquainted him with all Almagro's proceedings treary he. . At this he gather'd a confiderable Body of Men, defignswen Fianr ing to march and drive him out of $\mathrm{Cu} / \mathrm{co}$, bur by the Me reand. that both Parties agreed to mect and fettle the Pounts in difpute berween them, in a fair and amicable Conke rence. Notwithflanding this Contract, Pinarodo difpos' a Company of Men, in a conyenient placeby the way, to musider Almagre as he pafsid along, but he having timely notice of it a woided the danger. Pirarro and he having met togecher, the iffure of it uras that they were reconcil'd, and Promifes and Oarhs pals'd on both Civit Wars. fides to bind thic Bargain that was made. But which of the two was perjurd firft, is as uncertain as "tis certain that one of them was foj for twas not long betore all there Sacred Ties were broken, and the Reconciliation degenerated into the fierect Enmity, and the enmity iffued in a Bloody War, which confounded all the Affairs of the Country. 'Twas Almagro's hard fate to be taken Prifoner in this War,' and" Pizarro no fooner had him in his Clutches, but he Sentenced him to Death ; anid ctat Seatcace, no Intercefion, no Pleadink nor Appeal, was able to Reverie. So he was Surangled. and Fernando Piiarre fent over into Spgin with the Procefs. Bar tho Almagro himfelf was dcad, yct he:hat a Son that fill liy'd to be a plague to the Family of the Pizarro's.' This Young"Man, and fome of his Friends, quickly went to Plotting againft Pinarro, bur be looking upon his own Power and Grearnef, defpis'd fuch trifling Enemies as he thought them to be, and that neglect of them coft him his Life, for they marder'd him in his own Houfe, together. with his half Brocher Martin de Alcantarc; how his four own Brochers were difpos'd of, we flall hear by and by. Pizarro being dead, the young Almagro invaded the Government, making all Swear to him, and acting all the Arbitrary Tyrannical Parts that Power and Revenge joinid together are rone to do: But thefe bonny Days did noc laft long winth him, and as the reft of the Men of Ufurping and Ambitious Principles had fome or other to pull them down, fo was he:fhorty afrer humbled by Vacca di Caftr, whom the Emperor fenr from Sprin to put $2 a \mathrm{cn}$ d to choic Broils. Almagro tis matro killed true fought one Battel for his Life, bur he had betrer have died bravciy in, the Ficld, for making his efcape co $\mathrm{Cr} / \mathrm{co}$, he was there betray d by a Friend, and fent to Cffer, who cur off his Head. And now the Empcror chuught fitw. prevent all future Pretenfions of any Prerenders, and ro pur an end to all Broils and Differences, the fame time a Publick Decrec, that all the In.tions Thou'd have their liberty, and be no longer treated as Dogs and Slaves by the Spaninrds. The Vice-Roy was wnest. ir.
 Ceverity, that he fut the Country into a ferment; and the Spamiards, who had becu fo long used to all iores of Licentioufnefs, and to 7 yrannize orer rhe Indians ais the; pleas'd, cou'd not endure the thrnit Keins of his Government, but rook up Arms, and broke our into a Rebellion. They chofe Gonfalo pizutro their Captain, and nominated him Procurator-General of the Perveich Provinces, having nonc hut him now to rrult to for the Head of a murinous Faction; for befides that $V$ icea di Caftra fem'd ro be a Man of more Loyal Principles, he was out of a Capacity of acting at that time, being macic a clofe Prifoncr by the rigorous Vice-Roy Blafas Ninn$n_{i}$ Vcla. The Animofitics againft the Vicc-Roy cncreafing, he was feiz'd and put under Confinement, but had the good forrune to meet with one Rricud lamongft (o many Encmics) who reftord hiter to his liacrty. After this the gatherd an Army, and tried for the Cobern- wial i:idd. ment of the Indies with Gonjalo Pizarrn, bur he was worfied, and taken Prifoner, and kill'd by an Oficci of piartro's, in revenge of his Brothcris death, whote Execusoner he had been.

To compoie theic troublcfome Affairs, the Enperor rene over Gafen, an Officer of grear Policy and Experience, who overcame Pizarro in a Sct Battel, took his Head, and the Heads of his chicf Adtherents, and brought the Conntry into better order; he casd the th-Gafa made dians of a part of their heavy Burdens of Tribute, and rats th: gave them fome reft from the Crueltics of the Spaniards, who before hunted them like Dogs.

And thus we fee the end of all the firf Difooverer and Conquerors of this Councry, Almerre, Pizarro and his Brethren; they all came to violent Dcaths, and there was not a Man of that company whom Juftice did not find out in fome recefs or other, and by punifhing fet a mark upon. And if Matters be weil confider'd, 'twill appear that this recompence was not undefervid as to crery onc of them; and fo much Mirdicr,and Blood Pcrjury and Treachery, Injuftice and Violence as they were guilty of, was bur juftly recenged in the breakirg of chem and their Families.
We muft retarn now to the Tnca Mianer, whom wo left in a fecure Place upon the Mounrains, where he liv'd during there Confufions, much more queictly and happily than he cou'd have done in his Imperial Cicy of ciffig In the ntican time that that ftern Vice-Roy Nunusa mit nag'd things in the Country with fo much fevcrity, there were fome of the Spenicrds, that to a soid falling ined his hands, thed to the Inca in the Mountains, who took Amongit others there was ofe Gomes Poria, rhom wo will name for the excraondinatincis of his Infolence and Ingracitude to his Benefactor. This Manthe Inca rreated very familiarly, and us'd to play at Bowls with him but one Day, as they were at that Kort, Gomen (who was a cholerick haughte Fel.ow in the heat of his play was fo far tranfported about the lietle nicetics and punctilio's of it, that he forgot all sood Manners and Refpect and talk'd on the Prince as if he had been a Slave, or fome very bale and vulgar Perfon. At which the inca (whofe firit was not funk with his Fortune, nor his Majefy grown (olitile as not to xcfent an Affront) with his fift gave him a good found blow on the breaft bur the enrag'd Spaniard repaid it again with a mournful Incereft, for taking up one of the Bowls, he flung is at che Inca, and ftriking him upon the Elad, kill'd him dead upon the foor. The Peruvian Nobles, and the Guand thar were by, prefently fer upon Gener and the Spaniards, who retired invo the Houfe to defend themfelyes there, bur they fired them ous, and being all like To many Furics, in fpite of all Arms and Oppoficion they bear and car them to pieces. Their rage ranfohigh, that they defign'd at firft to eat the raw flefh of the spaniards, to thew how much they refeneed the horrible Fact, bur (whether they were afraid of bcing infected by is or no, or whatever was the caufe) they did nor do fo, bur exposd it for Food ro sayenous. Birds and Beafts: The Inca Manco lefr two Sons, one the Irica Serri Tupac, which continued in the Moumains too, till the Vicc-Roy The ina Mendoza perfwaded him to come in and furrender himEelf; this he was broughe to by the Policies of fome that wexe about him, and whecher he died by any Spanifh treachery or no we can't fay. Only this is clear of him, that he liv"dax cufca fome cime, and was bapriz'd there, and from thence he went to the Vally of Yiciays wiere he continued three Ycars, and then died. The other

796  The Civil and Moral Hiffory of the Spanifh Weft-Indies.

 other Son of Manco was the Inca Tupac Amara, who Father and Brother had donc. The next Vice-Roy Francifio de Tulcdo. had a very great defire to bring this Trincc. lown from the Mountains, and to get him into his lower, for he was the nexr direct and legitimate Heir of she Empire, and the Spreniards did not care to have any Perfon (that cou'd write himfelf fo) Icfr in Be ine. For this cnd they rold the Vicc-Roy a great manj Srorics of him that his Men roblid the Mcrchanrs, and liv'd by Violence aned Depredations, and nu'd ruine the Councry thereabouts; all which was on intigate the Vice-koy to fetch him down by force, and to ferve him as they had Fervid his Unele stabultipn. The Prinie had already withtood all the fair and genle mecthots of Perfuation and Promile, he wond norbe coar'd and flatterd into Snarcs, nor relign himflf into the hancis of Men, who had forfeited their Truth fo of ten alrcady in their Dealings with thofe of his Family And in this Refolution he imitated the Examples of his Father Manco, who wou'd never be entired by the Spe uiards, tho' his Brother (as was faid before) did do it bur he was very young, and his Xears excus'd his weaknefs. So that the Vice-Roy, who determin'd to have him wharever it coft, fent ous 250 Men, under the Com mand of Mertin Garcia Layola, to beat about thofe Moun-Gazatierta
f. . . him
ox of the ricunteini tains, and fearch out the Inca. And they had much caficr work of it now than they woud have had in the lma Sayri Tupas's time, for the rough Ways were plain'd and the narrow Paffes open'd in many places, by which means the Spariards had no great difficulty to find out their Game. The Inca, who cou'd nor defend himfelf long from them, (they purfued him fo clofely) and knowun himelf guilcy of no crime. yielded to them, with his Wife, Daughter and two Sons, expecting that the Vice-Koy woưd have dealt no worle with him (ar leaft) than he had done with his Brocher. Bur die poor Prince was moft mifcrably deceiv'd, a Procefs was form'd againft him, and he condemnd to lofe his Head, 25 a ira cor againt the Majefty of Pbilip the Second, King of Spain, and Emperor of the New World. In this manner was his Crime proclaim'd, and the Charge manag'd againt him, which had been much cruer if ir had been inverted. The Inca hearing his Sentence feemad not much concern'd ; he faid the Vice-Roy might have ent him into Spain to the King, which woud bare been as good 2 Sccurity no him as Fis Death, but that there was no grear need for the Spaniards to be afraid of his Arms, for his Father Menco, with 200000 Men, coin'd hardily bear 200 Speniar ds our of $\mathrm{Cu} \mathrm{Sce}_{\text {, }}$ and they were and Friar do in now dan they im for were rent to prepare wor unwilling to receive becaufe he remernber'd (he faid) the words of his Grandfather Huayna Caper, that the Chritians fhou'd bring a Law betrer chan theirs. This Sentence was fo contrary to all Humanity and Juftice, and fo horrible a reflection upon the Kins of Spain, that the Spaniards themelves did not think 'rwou'd have been executed, but only imagin'd the Vice-Roy insended, by fuch a formality o rerrify the Inca, or had fome other fuch"defign However, to the amazemenr of all People, prepara cions were made for his Execution, and a Scaffold erected in the great Surect of Cafco, to which the unforanare Prince was brought in the molt agnominious unare Pime Ealnion in the World. He was er upon a Mule, with a Rope about his Neck, and his Hands tied; in the mean while a Man went before him, proclaiming him Traytor and Rebel. He not underfanding Spanifh, ask'd the Friars that were with him, what that Man that went be fore him faid? And they told him that he proclaim'd him an $A u c$, that is, 2 Traytor: With that he calld the Fcllow to him, and fpoke to this purpore, "Say not fo, fays he, for thon knoweft it is I Lye, and I neyer < though or practis'd Treafon in my Life. but fay that I - die forthe Vice-RoysSarisfaction, and becaufe 'ris his - Pleafure f fhould do to ; not for any faults conmitted - agaínt him or the King, and I appeal to Pacbacamac - that what I lay is true. The multitude follow'd him to tire Scaffold with bitter cries and lamentations, and there being no lefs (by moderate eftimation) than 300000 People gatherd rogether; chey were arraid of fome Tumals, and fo made all the hafe they cou'd to mount the unhappy Prince $u_{j}$ on the Tragical Stage. When he was there', the Prielts pray'd him to filence the clambours and ourcries of the People, which he did with 2 very roll composid and majeftick grace; he ftretch'd out his Arer, with Fis Hand open, and laid is on his Ear, and from thence by degrees let it fall to his Thigh, upEna which immediately follow'd fo profound a Silence, that that grear Multitude food there like fo many Statucs, and not the leaft noife or ftir was heard amoneft them. In a word, he died with all the compolednels and greatnefs of Mind thar cou'd well be imagin'd, an? left the Speniards in as much wonder at his courase, as his own Pcople were in forrow tor the lofs of him. Bu: the bloody Vice-Roy did nor ftop here, but periceured percerentest all the remainders of the Famgly; he forturit them in Koyaikna.', hopes to rack fome Confenions out of them, from which c might have a tair peccorce for theire sccurion way he did dot fpare the Meffin's, (as they call them; that is, the Inca's of the half Blond, the Sons of Spania'd: by Peruvian Women of the Royal Houfe, but loomed them to the fame punimmenes with the reft. Only he was ftopt as to the point of Exccution, by: the ontragious Exc:amations of their Mothers, who made kish a terrible noife, (and mingled is with threatnings tor) hat the Vice-Roy was afraid to thed their Blocd. Howcycr, he baniltid as many as he condd lighe of, fome The incit ocbili, fome to Mexica, orhers to the Mands; and, in de in theic thors, fent them all to fond the remainders of an unforcanate Life, in Parts far criough from their Niative Country. As for thofe of the Blood Royal, (the pure unmix'd Race of the Inca's) he confin'd 36 of them to the Cirg of Kings, to live in a fort of miferable Exile there) and together with them, the Son and two Daughers of the murderd Inca Tupac Amara, the eldeft of which was not ten Years old. The Archbifiop of that Place, out of piry, took the Daughter to breed her up, tho' one woud have thought (if his Grace had raken but ore) is thou'd have been more decent for him to have chofen one of the Sons; bur God Almighty took care of them; and 33 mors of thore Royal Exiles; withins wo Xears time, for they all died, coming our of a cold hilly Country into the hot Plains by the Sea. Now there were but three remaining of the Houre of the Inca's, and thefe were remov'd from lime and fent home so their own Houfes, where they liy'd but 2 little while, being quire overwhelm'd with thicir own miferics, and thofe of their Family. Thus they alfo went away after the reft, out of the reach of the perfecuting Spanimers. One of thefe three laft was the Grandion $r^{f}$ the grear The onlt Huanna Capac, and he lefr a Son behind him, the one Heir of the and only remaining branch of the Imperial Stock, and the undoubted Heir of the Crown. This Prince they mis baberoul were jealous of while he ftaid in the Indies, and there-treamen: in fore he was orderd to remove into Spain, where $2 . S_{\text {sain }}$. Princely Equipage and Allowance was promis'd him. So he quisted his private Lands and Inherisance in Peru, to come and live upon the Kings Bounry in Spain, where, in Mort, his Palace was a Monaftery, and his Courviers and Artendanss i parcel of Piebald Monks and Friars, and his Revenues a Corry pittance granted out of the Contractation-Houre at Sevil. This bafe dealing broke the poor Prince's heart, and he died as Aisnta do Heneres, where he was nus up; he had a Son which died in his Infancy, and fo the poor Revenue wenr back again to the Crown, and the Race of the Inca's was quite extine. But we are niot to forget the Vice-Roy, the Auchor of all this milchicf and confurion. This Man baving ferap'd rogecher a prodigions heap of Treafure, went back into Spain; recalld, 'ris probable, for his vile Managements of Affairs, When became home, vicc-Royin he went to Court to kifs the King's hand, but the Kiing Difroce. refus'd him that honour, and bid him get home to his Honfe, telling him he did not fend him into Peru to muxdex Kings, but to ferve Kings. And as great Courtiers, when once they begin to rumble, do fall apace, to this Difgrace was prelently followed with another, for the Grand Council of che Indirs having receiv'd Informations againf him, they orderdall his Treafures to be Arrefted. This broke the wretches Hcart, and in two days time fent him away to aniwer for all the innocent Blood he had thed. And Loola, the Tool he had made ufe of to drive Tupac 1 maru out of the Mountains. the Dog that hunted that Innocens Prince into the fatal Snare, (tho for an aggravation of the crime, he had married that Prince's Brothers Danghrer) he came to an end fomething worle than his Mafter. He was fent General Legulai into Cbilt, where the bold and brave Araucens having fct their Spies upon him, took aniopportunity to fall upon him; which they did with fuch fuccefs, that he and all his Spaniards were Sacrificid to their fury.
And now it falls in courfe for us to look a little into the Affairs of the Speniards in chat Councry; with which, and fome few Remarks, we hall conclude the Hiftory of this once mof flouribing Empire.
The firt Spanzard that look'd into this Councry, in Firfentanem order to a Difcovery, was almegro, whofe Army was infoc Chit by moft miferably harrals'd in his march bither; for the

Scconlat ar-remps by

Astiation plants the

Chap.XV. The Civil and Moral Hiftory of the Spanifh W eft-Indies. 797

Indian Guides that led him along brought him crofs the Snowy Mountains, where they were all like to be farv'd with cold. He went no farther than the Province of Copiapo, which is the firft plain Iand in Chili, and from hence he return'd again inro Pern, being weary both of his Joutney and his Entertainment too; and he went in good rime, for the refolute chiolois were up in Arms, and endeayouring to clofe the Speniards round, fo they march ed off to fave their Heads.

The next that weat upon this Defign was Pedro de Baldivia, who cffected that which almagro durlt not ftand to attemps; yer 'twas no more chan half the Country that he conquerd, and fiat part too which had acknowledged the Sovercignty of the Inca's of Peru before As for the nobleft and richeft pare, inhabited by the Ararians, he cond do little there; thofe Pcople, together with the mott Gold, had allo the moft Conrage and Valour to defind it.

The lnca's of Pern cou'd never cell how to manage them, tho' chey often rried to doit; yca, by all ascounts, they have always held is out againft all their Neighbours, ared never knew what twas to be complearly con'quer'd. When the Spaniarils came firlt apon the borders of this Country, (tor shey did not dare to enter in). they fent thie Niatives word, "That they wete the Children of God - aind if they would not yield themiclves to be Inftrueted, and Govern'd by chem; they wou'd hoor fire a-- mongit them and devour chem. As for the drameans, Wey neither believ'd they were the Children of God, nor that chey cou'd fhoos fire amongft them, but yetthey refolvid to try whetier they couid or no, and therefore uner them in the Field, and foughr a moft crucl Batrel; in which they found the Spaninids were as good as their words, and cou'd fhoor fire. And by chis msans Baldivia got fome ground in the Country, for the Indians, as valiant as they werc, cou'd not tell whar to make of, or how to ftand before thofe flaming Meffengers of Death; and they began to think the Speniards were Something more than common Men ar lealt, that con'd Atrike their Enemics dead without coming near them
TheSpaniards, whofe greas Defign in coming thither was to fearch out che Gold Mines, quickly began to sty whar they woud yicld, and they found them fo very xich and luxuriant, thar he that had leaft in the company had the value of 20000 Pezo's per Amnum; and as for Breldizia himfelf, he rais'd hisProfirs to 100000 , fome fay 300000 Rezo's yearly Income.
The fame of thefe prodigious Riches broughe the Pcople flocking over from Spain, to that now here was a sonfiderable Setclement, and the Spaniards took up fix Towns viä. Ville तuzeva, Sr. Jago La Conception, La Imperial, Beldivir, and La Villa Rica. The General Brilicia buile alfo a Forr in the midft of all there Plantations, which he furnifh'd with Soldiers and Ordnance; fo that now they feen'd very fecure, and to have made a good ftep towards the entire Conqueft of the Country. Bur the Araucins having convers'd with the Spani.zcts fome little time, found bymany good proofs that they were Mortal Men as well as others, ("is probable they bad knock d fome of them och Head to make the Experiminat) and thercfore refolvid amongit themfelves that they wou'd deliver their Country from them, and drive them all ours; for thefe People, it feems, werede termin'd never to fubmit to any thing that wore Flelb stresencen of and Blood. Having got an Army ready, and poited ab: $A$ fimann. with great privacy not far from the Fort there went 50 of them up to the Fort with Grals and Straw for the Spanimeds Horfes, which they were permitted to bring in, and that without che leaft fufpicion, bat the fubrle difucans had wrapt up their Weapons in this Horferecat, Clubs; Halberds, Bows and Arrows. As.foon 2 L they were in they feiz'd the Gate, and gave the Signal to their Companions, who marching up prefently, they fcil upon the Spraiards, kill'd them all, and got entire poffelion of the Fort. The News of this attempt co ming to Baldivia ar the Town of Conception, he fet out prefencly with 200 or 300 Horfe, to chaftize chefe bold and dating hiancons. bue they did nor pur him to the trouble of looking afrex them long, for they were upon the march to look him; and rwas his unhappy face to meet, hem upon a large open. Plain, where chey had ad-Brati with vantages to furround bim. There's no need to fay thiar
:heAranctit they fought; boch Partics came with a full defiga to do spmisrds. it, and they did is with a vengeance. The refule was, that the Aracians had a complear demonftration of the Mortality of the Spaniards, for the greatedt part of them were killd upon the fpor, and the reft ow'd cheir Iives to the goodnefs of Eheir Horfes, that cartied them apace out of the Bloody Field, and the reach of the revenge. ful Arcucans, But Bildiuis was the moft unhappy of all the Army, for he had his Horfe killd under hian; amd fell into their hands alive. Thefe Araucans calily knew their good Friend Baldizin; the that had Invaded their Country, and cideavourd to make Slaves and Valfats of them. They bid him nor be afraid, bur pluck up his $pirits and be merry, for they only intended to give him his fill of Gold. So they made a great Banquet for amivn him, and whatever Liquor he had as his Mcat, ahe lant Cup at the conclufioni of all was a Cup of Liquid Gold, because the Ciciperal was fuch a lover of that fame; and whatever foruples be made at drinking it off, in mort de Aracans forcid it all down, and bid him now ohit hime clf with Gold. Here was the Story of Creflir, las it were reptated again) and that amongft a Pcyple rio lefs old and valiant than the Perthians werc.
The next ehatrucseeded in the Ofice of General in fin, $G_{r}$ on.te, Chiti, was Pedro de Villa Grande, who quichly rais'd a detes. yood Force to revenge chis Difgrace of his Friend and aredeccllor Bahlivia, but his Army was entirely defcarcd, and all his Artillery taken; and this defear was fo much the worfe, in that the whole ftrength of the $S_{f}$. niards, then in the Country, was pur together to make up this Army.
Afcer this the Araucens were never quict, and tho' fo reral conniderable spanif Commanders came to reduce them, yet they cou'd neice compleatly do it, bur they rife up again as faft as they were knock'd down. Parti- rice Roy: cularly the Vice-Re; of Peru, $\lambda$ sendent, fene lis SonSnquy: with 2 ftrong Army to tame thele fierce People if poin- then: ble, and tho in diyers Battels he kill'd +000 c or sococt tine. of them, repaiting the Towns an 1 Forrs they liad demolifh'd, yet before he was quite got out of the Country they were all up in Aums again, befieging and burning of Towns, and falling upon the Spariards whercever they cou'd light of them. 'Twas in A.D. 1599 . that they furpriz'd the City of Veldivir with a wonderful boldncfs. There came down in the Morning betimes about 5000 of them, of which 3000 were Horfe, 2 or 300 being arm'd in Coats of Mail, and fome of them with Harquebuffes; all which were Spanif/; Plunder, and the Spoils of the Field. The Spaniardshaving a lictle beforexhis had fome confiderable Succeffes againt them. were quite intoxicared with their good formone, anid grown fo carclefs and negligent uponit, that 'rwas pity almoft bur they fhou'd be fuxpriz'd; they had bur four Men in their Corps $d^{\prime}$ Gurrd to walk the Rounds, and the wholc City was alleep. The Arcucans, who by tincir Arementr Spies bad incelligence of this general fupinenefs and ncy- of Eecidivia. lea, came up to thic Town withour raifing any Alarm, reiz'd and fecus'd the Gates, and fo marcli'd inro the place in a full Body. They prefently began to fit the Houfes a-fire, and to cut the Throass of the spaniards; and within the fpace of rwo hours had entircty confumed the Town, maffacred all the Inhabitants, won and burnt the Fort, and lefr all in Ruines. They carried off to the value off 3 or 400000 Pceo's, befides all the Arrillcry of the Fort; and they had likewife burnt all the Ships ins the Road, if norice had nor been given them to bic upon their guard.
From hence theymarch'd away to Imperial and $V_{i l l}$ - The Tows rica, the former of which places was fo ftraitly befieg'd ${ }_{\text {Afarvid }}$ by them, that all the Inhabitants, cxcept 20 were famith'd to death, and thofe 20 had as hard a farc, being forcid to yicld to the Macicy of the Araucans, who wou'd be fure to bave no more Mercy on them than Death and Famine had on their Countrymen. And they went on at fuch a rate, that the Affairs of the Spaniards quickly began to grow desperare; at leaft they look'd with a ycry bad :2lpect in the Years 1603 and $160+$; for abour this time they bad Saickd and Burnt 6 of the 13 Civies: which the Spraidrds had in Cbili. And by this time alfo they were fo improv'd in the Atr of War, and grown fo cry policick by long Pradifeiand Experichce, that they were a very formidable Enemy; confidexing how much Valour and Courage they had to mix with that Policy and Skill. Many derachments were made out of the Army in Peru for this Cbili Affair, but thofe that once came here, feldom wenr back again to Perr." All the Spanizards ook'd upon it as defperare Service, and reckor.2 them. relves as a forr of Forlorn Hope mark'd out for DcAruction
The laft places we have Accounts of their taking, boom mat Trese the Civies of oforno and Villiritic, which they did pitaricata with a horrible llaughter of the Spaniards, breaking of tren by the images, and firing of Churches and Houfes, putcing even all the Friars and Religious Men to the Swoid as well as she Soldiers; and leading the Nuns and ocher Women airay inta Caprivity. In a word, they became To good Soldicts, loy"d their own Liberties (and hated the Spanifh Yoke) to feastily; that the Spaniards cona never be free from modettations by them. And bue thar Gold! imaginable; and yet ar the fame rime calid thenfelves is a very tempring thing, and People love to be in the way where 'tis to be had, and to have it run chrough their hands, (tho' they don't hold much on's fait) or clife twas not worth the spaniards while to kecp any Fort or Town ar all in this Country ; for all the Profirs were fowallowed up by the War, and the Gold that was gor was no more than cnough to pay the Army that muft conftandly be maintaind there.

Rppp
And thus much for the Hiftory of thers Counrrics, and the Entrance, Conquefts, and Serticment of the Spaniard, here. How they behaved themfelves amongtt the $n$ diant, and what fort of Examples of Juftice, Goodnefs and Humaniry they fer, yo recommend the Chriftian Religion which they broughr over along with them to thefe People, is inother, but a long and a mournful Story. As it was not to promore Religion and Piety, but to Katistic their Covetoninefs and Ambitionthat they Grit came th: rher fo cwas nor by the laws of the former, bur of the larter, that they liv'd here; exceeding the noof barbarous ampicans themfelves in their Savage ierecnefs towards their Fellow Creatures, proud Tyrannick Governumene, and open violarion of all the Riphrs and Privilceses of Mankind. As they lovid norhing but Gold, did nothing buc hunt and feek for Gold; fo they tuck at nothing that tended to put thern in poffelinon of their fo much defired prey; not at Treachory and Ingratitude, not ar lying and Pcrjury, not at Swearing and Bialphemy, not at Robbing the Orphans and Widows, nor murdering the moft Innocent in cold Blood: They laid wafte and defolate fome of the moft chriving and floutilhing Kingloms in the World; they empried the Towns of their Inhabitants, whom they either laughter'd without difinction of Age and Sex, or forc'd out into the Mountains and wild Places, to be hunted and rom ro picees with Dogs. The Indians were always a Pcople of a mroft kind and obliging Difpoftion, to meek and mild, and diforering fo much of a charming imocence and Sincerity in all cheir Dealings, that Men that had nor wholly divefted themfelves of all the Verzues of Humane Narure, con'd not bur have been render and loring to chem. They never did any thing to make the Spaniards uncafie, never Plorred nor Confpired to do them mifdicf, will the laft degrees of cruel urage had compelld them to ir; nay, fo fax from thax, that they tudicd to pleafe chem, and were glad npon any core to purchafe a litrke favour at their hands. But all that they con'd do, cou'd never foften the obdurate tempers of thofe Men; Humility and Submiffion cou'd never make them xelent, rior Atrike a damp to the fire of that rage that tranforted them. Nor cou'd all the Riches and Weaith of the. Country which the Spanineds fivallowd crery where, procure the mincrable Natives forifuch as a little compalfon, or a mall degree of merciful ureatment. No, but their Blood and their Trealures were both pourd our rogether, and the Country filld with ter mangled Limbs and Carkaffes of thofe poor People; fo that wherever a Man went, he had the prolpect of a Shambles beforelus Eycs, and found a Field of Blood to cravel through. Neither were cie beft and greatelt Men, the Princes and Caciques, excusd from thefe Barbarities; they faw thieir Palaces nifled, their Wives and Daughrers ravilh'd and murder'd before their Faces, and had their own Carkaftes thrown ar length pertiaps amongit the heaps of their Maffacred Subjeets, to feed the Ravens and Vutures. Bur bare Exccations for the moft part did not ferve the rarn, and the Spreniarts were not content to put thefe People to death, our they did it with all the circumftances of Cruelty imaginable; they invented the moft exquifice torments for them, and mace them die in pains and agonies that wou'd have fhock'd Humane Narure to have feen cien the bruce Beatsthemfelves frugging under. And where they did not thus difparch outright, they Arove them away from their Houfes and Habimations, to pine away their lives in Stavery and horrid Bondage in Foreign Counrries, or effe to work and drudge in the Mines; to avoid which miferics many thomeands laid violemt hands on themfetives and either by Hanging, Stabbing or Drownints, or foitic othex wretched Death, pur chemfelves and their Children ous of all their pain at once. As for Banifhmems, the Bafe and the Noble equalfy fthard that fare, the Mo thers and their young Children togethes; they Franfooired oreat mumbers of Families 35 a rime: to places where they were to be fold like Bcatts at: a Marker. In' they, were to be told the Lives of feveral Mithois? word, they took with the cominals of a few Yeit they ruin'd a moftrictiand fertile Conntry; depophizice Cities and Towns witiout number, commined at mant ner of Impicty to the thigheft degree of Licentioufref tudims conduce to their creriafting Happinefs, But was the Majefty of Heaven cver to Blafphem'd by Pion: Wid the foolifh Rites of Idolatry and Superfitious Wnrthip ever expole him fo much to the conrempt of the World, as the mixture of all chis flaming. Wiekednefs with the Pretcufions to his Service, and 2 Commifion from him The Spaniards refolving to be fuch as they werc, fhou'd at their firft coming over have renouncid loth Chriftianiry and Humanity together; told the Indians plainly they came from Hell, were only. Devils in Humane Shape, and appcard on purpofe to torment them, for 2 great deal of this had teen rrue, and the Honour of the Chriftian Religion prefervid into the bargain, but the other was an impious Affrome to Heaven, as well as a filthy piece of Cheat and Hipecrilie, with refpect to the People they had to do with. And the fotions the thedians had of them and their Religion, were fuich as were to be expected from fuch Practices. I/hey look'd upon ath opinion them as a fort of Peopic emartly caren up of bafe and the womme covetous defires, and that wou'd do any thing for for- hid of thin: did Gain; and cherefore chiy have held up picces of Gold to them in Mockery. : Ho Chriftian, (fays they) here's Gold, here's Gold, intimaring, there was the thing they admír'd and ador'd. They knew very well it was the governing Idol of their Sonls, and that whatever refpect they prestended to God Almighty, 'twas this only that they worlhipp'd in their Hearts; and cherefore the Spanierds have heard them lay, " Look upongthis Gold and bethold your God;' ris for this chat you have fubducd us, and dene to many mif. chiefs; 'tis for this that you Game, Blafpheme, Curfe Quarrel, Steal, commir Rapes, ant practife all manner of Luft and Villany. And twas 2 fcrere and clofe, tho' juft reflection, made by one of the Caciques, upon a. Spanifh Commander thar came mexrors his Wealth from him, and usd feveral foul umioft practicesinorder thereco: If chy God fars he) bids thee Kob, Kill, A siory to Born, and do all manner of Mifchicf, we can ncither ilur puppos. believe him nor his Iaw. What milehief their lewd and wickel Examples did, may be guess'd by this Inftance farthor, which was 2 very remiatkable one. There was a Son of one of the Cacique, which, when he was a Boy, was in grear towardlinefs, and hope, and proniled very confiderable things; bar having the misfortune to have his Education nor amongh his own Pagan Councrymen, that cou'd have taught him lecter, but amonght the Speninuds that came to Convers the Counry, he grew inrolerably Loofe and Debauch'd, and was gsood as any of chem all at any kind of Villiany. Some of his Friends that perceiv'd this change in him, and were forry for't, ask'd him one time how he came to grow fo bad? ? Oh! (fays he; fince I have been a Chiiftian, and confers'd amongt the Spaniards; I have Matyring learn'd ro Swear by the Name of God, by the Crofs, Terh $h$.in and by the words of the Holy Gofpel ; I have learnt to Chinianir). Game, and Lye and Difemble as they do; 1 have pur on a Sword by my Side ton, to fight with in my Quarrels: and now I want nothing to be compleatiy like them in my Concerfation but a Concubine and ter I intend to britg home very fords. A very fine Story to be cold by 2 Heathen of hisChriftian Mafters ! but from this one may imagine what was done in other cales, and what 2 monftrous Ofence and Stumblingblock they have been in the way of the Infidels. Thef, and fuch like, are the Miracles they have done in the Councry; whaterer others they pretind to, one may bear them cilk of bealing the Sick, and doing extraordinary things with their Unctions and Chrifines, and confecrated Waters, bur thicy have gone beyond all that in other Performances, and have done chings that the World will for ever wonder at: them for. Neither are thefe things to be look'd npon as the bate Surmifes or Imaginations of other People, or as the Fictions and Stories of thofe thar are Enemies to the Spiniards, and are angry with them for fuallowing ap the Riches of to large and glorious:2 part of the World : Let their own Writers their own Councrymen, Fe producd as Wirneffes in the care; les them speak that were.chere upoa the fpor, that were acquainted with the Conntry, and Inve their Management there Particularly, let the Tbeir oñ Reader (dhat is defrous of the món ample Satisfaction) $\begin{gathered}\text { Tberir exm }\end{gathered}$

 zealoos Dentimikta Friar " a his laxter we eppecially re Sinment inser Perfor who. frems to write with an air of greax hiotefty and integraty; does not difcover any thing of Partialiny; Prejudife or Defign, or ther he whas $2 n$ any way biafsd in his Writing, bur feems to be anima' ted all along with a truc Religious Zeal, and a comparfionate Regard to the welfare of the poor Indians. He had feen a world of thefe Tragedies acted in the Indies, wherehe was Bithop, and being deeply afficted at them, and as defirous to prevens fuch milichicfs for the time to come, made a Journey over into Spain, to move the
An Account of the Con. 2 cert for rhat purpole. Before he came, there had been traverfic 2 certain Book written by one Dr. Sepaliveda the Empestourt tho indians. tor's Hiftorian, the defign of which svas to Excule and Detend the proceedings of the Spnniards in the CWiftIntirs; and this he was put upon by fome of them that had rhcir hands in the Slaughrers and Devaltations there, who feeing no way to concsal their Villanies, refolved to make them appear juit and reafonable to the World. Scpulucin was a fir Tnol for fuch Work, boch as he was 2 Man of barbarous Principles, and as one, who by his Elegancy and flowiflhing Language, cou'd befriend the worft Canfe imaginable, and give Vice and Knavery the Drefs of. Honefty and good Manness. The fubitance of his Book confifted mainly in the proof of chefe two Conclufions: Eirf, Thar che Wars of the Spaniards againft the fudians were Juft and Equitable. Scomdly, That the Indians were bound to yield and fubmit to them, as the Eoolifh are to the Wife, as the Bale and Inferiour to the more Noblc and Exccllent; and that if they did nant do Ko, the Spaniards mighe exccute their Pleafure upon them. But the Book did nor mees with any Countemanke, and the Spaniards themfelves reckond it lo Scandalous, that they wou'd not let it be printed. The Royal Cotancil of the Inders refus'd to Licence ir.; and for all the fulfome thatery of ir, in pretending to Affert the Right of the Spanifb Monarchs to an Univerfal So verciynty, they judg'd it unfit to fee the light. Being repuls deveral times here, he made his Application to the Emperor by fome Friends ar Courr, and got an Otder to go to the Royal Council of Caftile for rheir Approbation of his Book; and "rwas while he was Solicicing here, thar the Bithop of Chiappe came upon a yery conraxy defign. That Prelate haying notice of the Book, and the Contents of it oppos'd the printing of it with all the vehemence in the World, and teprefented the dangerous confequences of it fo effectually to that Council, that they wou d nor venoute to determine the Matter themfelves, but referr'd it to the Univerfities of $S_{a}$ lamanci and Alcnla, who were defired to Examine Dr. Scpulveda's Book very nicely. In a word, the Divines of thofe Academies (afer a great many Difputations) concluded that ir was full of pernicious Doctrines, and ought not cobe made publick; fo that the printing of it in Spain was abfolutely forbiddena; However, the Doctor (who was refolved to do his utnoft towards the propagation of Principles of Tyranny and Arbitrary Power) foorning, and railing as the Decifion of the Acadernies, Ienr his Book to Reme, the likelieft place to give a Birth to any thing that was defign'd to do mifchief And here is gor into the Prefs, tho the Emperor prefently iflued one Orders for the fupprefling of it in all his Dominions, and made all the Copies of the Abftract of ir; which were done in the Vulgar Spanifh, fro fpread the Notions amongit the Pcople more generally) be gatherd up. In 2 word, the Billop of Chiappa now fer himfelf to wrice, for and Antidote againft this Poyfon fo fpreading and fo pleafing to che Sprniards too; in thich he ruind all Sepulvoia's Foundations, and fhew'd how weak and precarious, as well as contrary to the Doctrincs of the Chriftian Religion, all that he had advancid chere was. But whether that Piece was then printed or no, 'ris cercain that (berides the Council of the Indies) the Emperor ummon'd an Affembly of Divines and Lawyers to Val ledolid, in A.D. 1550 . where the Bithop, and Dr. Sepulveda, both appeard, and had all the liberry and foope that cou'd be defired allow'd chem, to maincain, cach the Caufe he had undertaken. A full account of which Difputation, with the Bifhop's Advantages, his clofe and rerious Applications to the Emperor, on che behalf of the Indians, (with other Matters to the fame purpofe) may be feen in his Hiftory of the Spani/h Cruelties in the Wefl-Indies.

С н a p. XV.

An Account of the Voyage to Florida, made by the Fleet under the Command of Pamphilo Narvaez : Written by Alvaro Nunnez, an Officer in the fame.

Reot for the Flets for the Rlerid Dic correy. Fner. A. D. varo nimal People: The princtipal Oficers were al 4527. Alonzo Euriquez: Auditor; Alonzo de Solis, Factor and Overfer for his Majefty of Spain: and Narvaer Govemor. They fer Sail from the Haven of Sc. Lucar of Barrameds, with full Power to conquer all the Country from the River of Palmes to the Cape of Florida. Staying at the Ifland of $C u b$ f fome time for a Recruit of their Provifions, they mer with a Tcmpet there thar extremely damag'd their Fleet, and fank two of the Ships. The Wind at that time was outragious and violent to che laft degree, and did no lefs milchief ac Land than it did at Se2. It blew down Houfes and Churches; and unlefs 7 or 8 Men wenr rogecher, holding faft by one another, there was no ftanding againft the frength of is, a fingle Man con'd nor kecp upon his Legs. Thofe that leff their Houfes for fear of being buried in the Ruines of them, were in as much danger in the Woods with the conninual cracking and falling of the Trecs. The loffes they fuftaind by this Tempeft, rogecher with the roil and fatigue is pus them to, obliged them to concinue here and refreth themfelves for the fpace of fome Monchs; after which they proceeded in their Voyage wowards Floride, wish four Ships and one Brigancine, in which were abouc 400 Men and So Horfes in this Courfe they met with dangers nor mach inferiour to the former, being like once to perifh all togecher by running on che Sands, and at anocher cime by 2 raging. Tempelt; tho ${ }^{2}$ ar laft, withour any farther loffes, they camie up with the Coaft of Florida, and anchor'd in the mounh of a fair open Road. The Governor Narvaez, with tome others, went afhore to che Indian Town that was ncas, and took poifeftion of the fame in the King of Spain's Name; which they might very well do, without any manner of oppofition or difturbance, for the Indiens were all gone out in cheir Canoes the Night before. They coalted about the Gulph fome 4 Leagues, and then found come Indians who brought them to cheir Village, which was'ar the bead of the Gulph ; and here they found Pieces of Cloth, fuch as comes from Hifpaniola, grear Spanifb. Chefts, inevery one of which was the Body of 2 dead Man cover'd with Deers-skins, together with fome fragments of Gold. The spaniards were moft inquifitive abour the latter. of thefe things, how, and where they gorit; and the Indians gave them to undertand, by figns and words, thar it came from a far diftanr Province call'd Aprlachen, where chey mighr find grear quancicies of the fame. And 'rwas nor long afret that Nar- Rrovince of vact began to fer out with his Company for the fearch of this golden. Country. They travell'd 15 days without the fight of Man, Beaft, or Houfe, meeting in all that Way with no Cort of Provifion neither but a few Dates Ac laft 2 Party of 205 Indians prefented chemfelves to their view, but made figns to them that they flou'd join their Company to theirs, and go with them to their Villages; and the Spaniards, who wanted refrefhment, were willing enough to agree to.

After 2 litte inquiry inmo the Country that lay to the Sea, they continued their march towards Apalacben, and in cheir Journey 2 cerrain Cacique came.ro pay them a Vifit in his beft atrire, (as 'tis to be fuppos'd) which was 2 Deer-skin painted, and artended with a great many of his Reopte. As they pals'd through his Country they were kindly us'd, and kad Maize, and ocher chings the Soil afforded, freely brought by the Natives. In many Pants of the Country up and down they found Maize Cedars Sanine Trees, Holmes, Oaks, and low Palmes like thofe of cafitic. The lakes and Pools alfo lic very thick, fome of which are very difficult to be pafs'd, as alfo fome of the Rivers, which are fwifc and rapid, and give a great deal of trouble to them that are to pafs them. The Mountains in many places, bechads their own vaftefs, were coyerd with huge rall Trees, abundance of which were thrown down with Tempefts, and the Way quirc ftopr up, fo chat there was no palling wishout ferching a great compals; and they oblerv'd that the greateft part of thele Tress were cleft from one end to the orher, the certain and undoubred effect of the ter rible Lighonines to which thofe Parts are very obnoxious. Having march'd chrough many of thele difficultier, they came 25 latt to the fo much defired Apalacien. The Town of that Name they had cafic accels and eneranc into, for there were none but Women and Children there, all the Men being gone abroad cither for Sporr and Paftime, or our of Policy and Detign. However chey very quicily after came our in open view, and affulted the Spaniertds withe their Bows and Arrows, but the fighe was quickly ortr, and the Indians running a way lefr them ftill in poficfion of their Town. There Psopic had poor litele Houfes, but buile very ciofe and taug, in Ueives and Valleys, for fear of the direful Tempefts shat happen there. Their main Furniture was Skins of wild Beafts, and litule Mills to grind their Maize; they had alfo fome Garments made of Thread which were us'd ouly by che Women, burvery mean and forry like all the reft. The Province abounded with Maize. bur we hear of no other fort of Grain, nor nor 2 word of the Gold which the Indians promis'd. The Beafts they faw here were chiefly Conies, Hares, Bears Lions, and one that carried all her Young in a great Bag or Pouch, which Narure had provided for that pur pofe, till they were able ro ftand upon their own Legs, and shift for themfelves. The Fowl were Gecfe, Decks Herons, Faulcons, Sparrow-hawks, Black-birds, and fome others; bur of neither fort of Animals any great rarities. The Country was capable of maintaining Flocks and Herds, there being a grear deal of good Palturage in many places. The Indians thar had quirted the Town, and lefi their Wives and Children in cheir poffefion, came again to demand them of them, and the Spanierds deliver'd them all only they detain'd a corazin Cacigue, which offended the Natives fo, that the next day chey return'd and affaulred them with a grear fury, and fet fire to the Houfes where they were. Bu they did not care to ftand to the trial of a Battel when the Spaniards came ous to fighe them, bat recired into their thelecrs, and offit'd no more fuch difturbances. Another fort of Indians cannc alfo to make the like expeximent upon chem, but they cou'd do no good, and were forc'd to ily as the others had done.
$\mathbf{P H P P P}^{2}$

The Spaniards now began to be weary of fraying here for the Country feem'd to be poor and meanty Pcopled and rravelling very difficule by reafon of the many lake and Mountains. "Befides, by the accouns of thcir Indiom Gnides, the Province of hplan was the beft of an and Mouncains thar werc more unpaftable, and a Country worfe Peopled by far than that where they were. As for the Councty that lay towards the South, the werc inform'd is yielded Maize and Pulfe, and fome Fith, bur they coud hear no tidings, much lefs fee any figns of Gold all this while. However chey refolv'd to lec this Conntry which the Budions (that brought them cry of Aute. As they marchid thither, che Indians per plex'a them moft grievoully in their paffage over one of the Lakes, raking that opportunity to affault them; for the Spaniards were forc'd to wade through the water, and were very near Breaft high, and when chey were all in the Indians that lay clole amongt the Trees that were tumbled down into and about the Lake, fent a chower of Arrows upon them, and wounded a great many both Men and Horfes. After this they pals'd the other Lakes quiedly enough, for their Enemies had fpent the greateft part of their Ammumition upon them; bus when they came out upon the Plains, they follow'd them till at - diftance, and made their march as trouble ome and fatiguing as they con'd. Thefe People were very all and ftrong of Body, and wonderful dexurous Archers ; their Bows were as thick as 2 Man's Arm, and I or 12 Span long, and their Arrows fitted to do the worf of Executions. They won'd lhoot at the diftance of 200 Paces, and fo rery exact and level, as never to mifs the Mark they aim'd at. And with what a . pring their Bows deliver an Arrow may be guef'd from bence, that fome of the Spaniads law an Arrow ficking in a great Elon-Tree that picred above a handful into the body of it; and another of them in the fight was llruck with an Arrow in the Head, that (notwichutanding his Head-piece) almofanadgits way through frpua one fiuc

When they came to Auce, they found nópcople nor arin Houles neither, for the former were Bled, and the later proph grore burnt, only fome Stock of Maize, Gourds and Pulfe was left, which the Indinims ('rwas to be fuppos'd) cou'd or carry away with them. 'Twas to no purpofe for heni to fay in fuch a Country, where the Teople treared them like Enemics, and no Provifion hardly to be had ancither; having therefore made fome Obfervanions of the Sea-Coafts thar lay near, they rofoly'd, if poffible, to deliver themflyes out of to barbatous a place, and do their endeasours to find the way homeward. But how or which way was this to be put in practice? Therc was no going back again by land the fame way they came, for this woud be to rum into the lame dangers and difficulties, which with fo much lofs and rouble they had juft fnemounted; belides their Horfes were moft of them dead, and the reft fo feeble as not to be able to ftand upon their own legs, much leis to carry them that cou'd not tratel afoot. And as for their Ships, they were difcharged long before, and Boass chey had none, nor knew not where to provide themCelves with any; bue the cafe was defperate, and to muft bave a defperate remedy, and chey muft run any hazard rather than flay there and farve, or be deftro, 'd by che Ludians. They fer thercforc to making of Beats, Sorry Rent bur having no Nails nor Tools, they us'd the old Iron of Crols-bows, Stirrops and Spurs, inftead of them ; cheir Cordage and Tackling was Horfe-hair twifted, and the Rinds of Trees, sbeir Sails old Shirts, and in the rooms of Pitch and Tar they daub'd their. Beats with the Gum of Pinc-Trees; as for Oars, there was Wood cnough to make them, as alfo the bodics of the Poats chemflves. Bur they were wortt of all pur to is for Veffels to carry their frefl Warer in, to lupply which defcet they flead fome of their dead Horics, and low' their Skins togecher into convenient forms, and fo us'd them initead of betrer thiugs for that purpoic There were five of thefe furry Boass made in all, which weic fufficienr ro contain their whole Company, that was now confiderably lefferid, partly by Sicknefs and Famine, and partly by the Indian Arrows; there was no more than half the number that firt laoded in the Country. They D. remors. ommirted themfelves to Divine Providence, and un- Vojesc dertook one of the mof bazardous Vojages that cwer was undertaken by Mcn; bur necelficy (which obliged them to it) has no Law. After 7 days Sailing (with no litrle danger by realon of the many Gulphs). they arriv'd at an Illand that lies near the Land, where forne of the company landed, and got Come litale Recruits at the Houfes of the Indians upon the fame; they taw fome of chofe Feople too in their Canoes, bur they wou'd noe ftay ill the Spaniards came up to them, but made oif, and ieft the Canoes ar their difpofe. They Saild along the Coaft for above 30 days, being ftill in the fame Labyrinth that chey were at firt letring out, as to the knowledge of the Councry, and their right way home. Hunger and thirft preraild grievoully amongft them all this while, and they had no fighr of any People bur fometimes 2 Ew Indian Fibhers, 2 poor and mifcrable forr of wretches that were not able to relieve them, nor wou'd nor come near them. Some of their Men died with drinking arge draughts of Salt Water, which chey cou'd not forbear, the thirlt that pofferfed them was fo grear. In this m fetble diftrefs, and when they were almoft ar the poins of gi- cife of ithe ving ap all for loft, they Weacher'd a point of the Land where there appear'd to be fafe and cafte goine athore, and feveral Canoes of indirus came out to lee them. But the Barbarians having juft look'd upon them, went way again; however the Spaniards followd them athore o their Houfes, before the encrance of which they found reat quantities of Fith, and Yors of frefh Warer. The The Ccique Cacique, a Prince of thefe People, had more civility kidd to them than his Subjects, and offer'd all this Fin and Wacer Nerocer and his Company; and morechan chat, inriced them to his Houfe. The Spaniards were not ungrateful to thefe People for their hofpirable treatment of h cm ; bur entertain'd them with the Bread of Maize, and fome Trifles which they had brought. The Cacique's Houfe was neady made of Mats, and he was cover'd with 2 Mantie made of the Martincts Sable, which fmelt like Musk, or mather like Ambergrecfe; fome others fiad Furr Mantess roo; but ione like that. While here, the barbarous Indians gor together and affaulrod the Houfe, took away the Cacique, wounded Narunoz, purfucd them to their Boats, and attack the troop thar ftaid athore to favoir the retreat of the: reft inta their Boats, and to protect them chere) with fo much fut $r y$ in the Night time, chat thete was nor one of them that cicap'd wounding. "Twhs buc a poor refreihmend they got here, yer fuch as 'rwas they werc forced to be contented with it, and go to feek their Fortunes fomewhere elfc. Afrer a fery days Sailing they mer with more redicins in their Canoes, who promis'd to give them frefh Water cnough if chey wou'd furnifh them with Veffels to bring it in; So they left rwo Indians for Hoftages, and two of Nervaci's company went alhore along with them to ferch the Watct. Ac Night thele perndious Wrecches broughr back the Veffels, bur nor a drop of Warer in them; neither did they bring the Men with them according to promile, nor wou'd they give any account what was become of rhem. But inftead of that, the nexr day cime a confiderable number of them in their Canocs, together with ; or 6 of their Caciques, drefs'd incheir Mantes of Marsinet Furr, and they were fo impuidene ts so domand sheir two Men lefr for Pledges, tho" thofe of the other lide were ftill detain'd (perhaps Sacrific' ${ }^{3}$ ) by them. Thefe Caciques wou'd fain have had the Speninats gone afhore wich them; bur they faw too nuch of their treachery already to venture themfelues any farther amongt them; befides the Canoes Rill coming in thick and threefold upon them, they had reafon to fufpect fome Villanous Defign was then in hand. When the Indians faw they cou'd do no good, and chat the Spaniards peremprorily refisid to reftore their two Men, they chrew off the Mask, and appearid with the bare face of Enmicy ; they began to ling great Stones at them, and wou'd have done more mifchief, bue thas a froth gale of Wind blowing at that cime made them kecp off, and invited the others to go on with their ght. able Coalts continned very'fharp and prefling, and-they cow come to the poor allowance of half a handia fraw Maize a Day Bur they had nor haild many days in chis diftrefs before a Tempeft rife upon them, that catter'd that forry Flect of Boats from one another, driving them they knew not where themlelves; but how ever, they had no reafon to:expeet ever to fee each other gain. The Beaz in which Alvaro (our Author) failed, happly recover'd melter. in a certain linand whethe it was driven, but it was after they had endured the laft exurmitics by hunzer, cold, and the violem tolfings of a rough and ragins Sc . The violence of hunger made them fearch for Food in the Cottages of the InEans that were near, as foon as ever they came amore and happening to find all clear and open, (for che In dians were abroad in the Ficld) they took fome tew Ne coflaries and return'd to their Boar. Bur in a very litrle cime the Indians had gor the feent of them, and came with a matrer of 100 Archers upon them; they were very large ftour Men, and the wreak and wearher-beaten Speninids looking upon them with tire Eyes of fear, ima gin'd them to be Giants. Howerer, they did not offer to ler fly any of their Anows ar them; fo that Aluar fceing them appear fomecting mild and gencle came up to them, and with a few Toys won their Friendhip. 10 effectually, that every one of them gave him an Arrow in roken of it, and told him by figns that they wou'd return in the Monning, and bring fome Provifions with

Extre

Indians entertain him pryy. and peared their Vifits thus conftantly for two or three days the Speniards till requiting theis kindnefs with fome odd things or othei, which were not a lirtic pleafing to them When they thougbe they wete pretry well pro:ided with Neceffarics, they refolved to go on wish cheir Vojage and for that end went into cheir Boar, but one boifterous wave overturnd thic Boat, drown'd three of them, and

Res: jack 0 the bore

nomin. wear all theref back again upon the frore. They wer now in a miferable condition, wharever they had being lof, and themfelves quite naked, for they had Aripe of their Cloaths before to launch the Boat into the water befides twas the WinterSeafon, and the Weather ex cremely cold, and a long courfe of hard living had taken away all the covering of feith from their Bones, fo that they appear'd like fo many frightfui Images of Death. But rwas their good luck by fearching about, to find fome of the Brands which thet had jurt made a fire with before they cmbark'd, and as Providence wou'd hare it, thofe Brands not quite exringuift'd neither; fo that here they quicily blevg up a fire, which in tome meafure comforted them under the picreing blaits of the Dorth wind. They were in this forlornatate nor omect. . ing solive, when the Indinns (who knew nothing of their righsuad is misfortunc) came as they were wont, sobring themmore thin. Supplies; but when they faw a parcel of naked Skele.tons ftanding abour a firs, believing them do be fome very horrible things, they took up their hecls and run away as falt as they cou'd. But aluan mads after them, and ftopt chern at latt, with many fair words and penfwafions, and told them the Story of theis fad adventure, which thoy belicv'd when they came laick and faw one or two of the dead Bodies ypon the thoic. Arthe hearing of this they fell a weeping and lamenting after their manner, bewading the Spiniards in very moingr terins upon the fuore of sheir misformanes, and exprefid a grear deal of tendernefs and humanity. This encou. Iudian taine. raged. Alunro to defire them to take them into chair them Hous. Houfes for melrer, which they readily confenred to; aud becaufe their Habitations werc a good way off, they made feveral great fires by the way, ar which they fopt to rub and chafe the bentimmed Limb; of thefe poct Men, and carried them all the way upon their backs, not fuffering any one of them to couth the grouind with his feet. They alfo made good fires for them when they brought them home, gave' them frood and a wam Lodging, and Sung and Danced all Night for their $25-$ rival. Thefe Pcople (like moft of the reft they had hi- Deferintinn cherso feen) were of frono weil. compacted Fodics, and of the l ". of good were of ftrong well compacted Bodics, and ple. piercid courage. The Men had one of their Faps from one fide to the other, and in the nole a litIc Cane was chruit actobs, abous two or three fan long, and two fingers thick; fome had both their laps ferv'd thus. The like they did to the under-lip, in which. they carried a piece of Cane abour half $\dot{3}$-finger thick. They make this Inand their habitation from Oblocer to wif or ti the end of fobrucry, feeding montly all shat time upon ving. Fith, and 2 fort of Root which they dig out from under the water with much labout and trouble. When that time is expired, they remove inoo the Continene to feck orher Food, for thofe Roors do then bur begin ta grow, and are not in cheir perfection till Noucmber and December: : Their Houfes are made of Mass, and they have the Hides of Beafts for Berls and Couches to Alcep upon; their Weapons are only Bows and Arrows. They are the iove to theia fondeft lovers of their Children in the World, and ufi Cillect. themiwith as much tendernefs; if one dics, not only the Family and Kindred, but the whole Village lamonts the Iofs; and they keep up their Mourning for a whole Year, performing the Ceremony of Lamencation three times a day, before Sun-rigne, at Noon, and at Sun ler; firt the Parents, and then all the reit of the People. When the Year is up, and che laft Funcral Rites accouplith'd, they walh themielve, and hifs all their Mourn- Diferpcei of ing Apparel, and appear in their wonted Guarh. Old old Age. Age they never bewail in this manner, for they don'r pay any grear reverence to it, as many, yea, moft other endicns do. : They fay the old ones are good fur nothing bus ro confume the Maintenance that the Children ftou"d have ; and char fince they have lived their rime, "tis fir chey thou'd die to make soonu. They bury all the other Honvut to Dead excepe their Pbyficians, whom they burn, and rurn rnyuian: their boacs into a Powher, which at the lears end, when the Funeral Rites are confummated) they gite to cheir Kindred to drink up in a draughe of Water; the defign of this, 'tis to be fappos'd, is to turn them into Doctors too, for a fupply of the others Morralicy: Thefo Phyficians have wonderful Privi'eges above all ocher Peo ple, for they may marry two or threc Wives, whereas all the reft are allowed bur one. They have farthes this advantage, thar thofe whom they curc do eftecmi them fo much, as many rimes to give rhem all they are worth in the World, and to procure their Friends ro make them Prefents befides. Their merhods of practife pratife of are only to cur and gath the Part affected, ler it ail whar ihyack. it will, and then to apply their Mouths and fuck out the diftemper ; ihen inftead of a Plaifter, they Sear is with a hor Iron; and for the conclufion of all, blow upon she place, to blow away all the remainders of the grief that wou'd nor come our by Suetion. And they are fo much for propagaring the Faculty of Phyfick, thar they wou'd geeds have the Spaniards their Guefts rurn Doctors too and pretend to care by blowing and fucking as they did. Neither won'd they admir of their Excure, that they had no fuch Skill or Vertue ro carry off a difemper afict that unaccountable manner: For (fay chey) all manner Good Arga of Stones, and Plants that grow in the Ficid, have a ${ }^{\text {ment }}$ rerrue and agoodnefs in them chat is profrable for fome diftemper or other, and is nor Man 2 : more excellent Crearure than a Stone, or a. Plant, and to has more healing and reftoring Veriaes in him than chey ? How-cver, Alvaro lays they did not go that way to work that the Indian Doutors did, bur rather by Spixitual Methods of Prayer and Invocation to recoucr the Sick that way'; their Plaifters and Cordials were Pater Noffers and Ave Maries, Benedictions and Doxologies, which he reporss did wonderful Cures, and gain'd them a mighry reputation in the Country. Yet he confefics they were forced to comply wath the Indian practicic fu fas, as to blow over the Pactene like chem; but wherher the blaft was upwards or downwards he does nor tell us, but tis no great matter, fince both are of the fame vertuc. While (whinade their abode with the Indians of this lland, (whin they callid the lland of Mallado) forrunc brough rome more of their Companions to them, who had been caft here likewife as they were:: And being all together, they dectrmin'd to trim up a Boat, and as many of them as were ftrong and wsll to go in is, and endeavour to find fome way to come where Chififians liv'd, and the reff fhon'd tatay there till they were recover'd, and their Friends cou'd order Matters fo as to remove them alio Bur juft as they were putting chis Project in exccurion, their Boar faild and difappointed them; it was to 1000 cr Iaunched bur is funk to the bottom, and to frutrated their defign of efcaping for thar time. Howerer, four of them that were the beft Swimmers undertook to pais over to the Mixn land, and fo rravel cill they cartie to fone Town inhabited by Speniards, to give them notice of the difterefs their poor Countrymen were in here. Af ter thele Meffengers were difpatchd, Alvaredo and his company fufferd sery great hardihips and miveries up on the lifand. The Weather provid bad and unfeafonabie, and they were ready to flarve for want of Provilinus; there was a fad Morrality amonght them too, and of 80 Men which there were in all, there were no more left remaining but 85 . And which was worfe ftill, a indums iler Sicknefs happening amongit the Indians, which lwept of ihe: a a way great numbers of them, rheir Superfitious Cancy profwaded thern the Spaniards were the caule of that Mortaliry; and now, inftead of Phyficians, they made Negromancers and Murderers of them. In fhorr, this fancy prevaild fo far, that they began to confult about the Sacriticing of rhem, and this.they bad cerrainly done, had not one wifer than the reft argued his Companions into a belicf of the Innocency of the Spaniards from this confideration, Thas if they had a power to rake away Men's lis es, they might be as reaforably fapposid io have a nower to preferve them, which if they had bad, to be fure they wou'd not have fufferd fo many of their own Men to die as had done before their faces. This Reafon fav'd their lives, but they liv'd an uneafic life hese afterwards; both the Indiens and they too |fufferd great exrremitics for want of Provifions, and made a very. hard thift to aroid ftarving. Upon this, fome of the Indians removid over to the Mainland, where they cou'd have a betrer Subliftance, and carricd fome of the Spaniards along with tbem; and having liv'd chete fome time, they recurn'd to another lland abour two: Leagues from the Tirra Firma, for the convenience of the frch Warer that was there Alvaro was alfo tranfported over to the Terra Firma by fome other of the indians, who went, cis to be fi:pposid upon the fame account of fupplying thenfelves with the Neceifaries of Life. And chus all were releas'd from the Prifon of Malbsedo Ifland, bur ftill "rwas bur a remoyc from one Prifon to another;, and they were as far as ever, in thcir own Opinions, from ger- uing away frum thcic Heachenith People Whilt Alor'd bad notice of the place of his Abode, and gor an opporcunity to come over to him. the number that came was 12, and two were left fick behind in the lland. Thefe Men refolv'd ro cravel along the Coaft homewards, but Aloaro heing weak, cou'd nor pretend to bear them company in fuch a Journey; fo they went on and he traid. Afrer they were gone, he obferv'd his time when the Indizins were out of the way, and got over to the Illand where his two Counrrimen were left, and faid therea Year as icatt, till he recover'd his health a little better. but then he refolv'd ru bid farewel to them too, for they us'd him ill, and put him to the painful drudgery of digging under Water for the Roors they liv'd upon. This defign he cxecuted, and conveyd himfelf over to the Main Land again amongft the Indians of Carruco. Here

Kives with

ocher Lud as 1 Mer-

 as. Mker ded himfir cery prareful to them, and procur'd himb both good ufage and liberty roo. For now his bufnels was to travel up and down from one place to another wich Wares; he wenr whicre he pleas'd, and recurn'd when he woind, and the People every where made much of him, and defried lis company. The Merchandize he carried wasShells, Hides, red Oker, Canes to make the bodiss of Arows, and Flints to make heads, and fuch like tritles. Bur thas which was the greateft advantage to him by this courfe of life, was, that by this means he had an opportunity of viewing the Country, and contriving his cecape, for he travell'd ar leaft 40 or soleagues along the Coaft.
After this manner he feent 6. Xears amongtt thefe li:a dians of Garrucn, and wene naked all the while as they go ; but the 7 th and laft Year of his Apprenticchip cunaing on, he found a way to give bis fudian Mafters the alip, and came to another Pcople opon that faine Cualt. While he was here, by 2 ftrange curn of Fortune he met spanurs; with two of his Countrymen agzin, fome of them that inc: wionhad been with bim before at the liland of Matbasta, and that had parted from him at the other lland, 12 of them in company, to make their way homeward. But 'twas their hap to fall into the hands of fome of the findicns, who kept them with them; and as 'ris the cuftom of thofe People to rove from one place to another for Suftenance $z_{2}$ and to go and cat the Fruir or the Grain that fuch or, fuch 2 place affords, at the time when 'ris in feafon, fo is feems thofe Indinns, who had there Men in keeping, came upon the fame accounr to the place where Alvaro was, and to gave him and his Countrymen an opportuniry of meeting rogecher. Here Alvaro had a full All the Fles account of the ruine of thein Flect of Boars, when the ruin'd violent Storm feparated them frum one another; how Nirvesez himelf, and all the reft were loft, fome drown'd, fome ftarv'd afhore, and reduc'd to the miferable necefGry of eating one another; ochers murder'd by the barbarous Indians, who found them ftraggling up and down in their Country. Thefe few that were now lefi being thus happily mes:cogether, made it their bulinefs to confult about ways and means how so get out of the clutches. of thefe Indians; and they concluded, that the only way wou'd be to ftay till they went to eat Tume in a neighbouting Country, as their conftant cuftom was, tho it werc 6 Months to that time. This Tune is a Fruit of the Tire Frait bignefs of an Egg 'cis red and black, and of a very good $x^{\text {min }}$ tafte; the Indians eat chem three Months in the Ycar, and live entirely upon chem in the Seafon, cating nothing elfe.
The Indians in this part of the Country (particulariy the Nations of the Mariens and 7 faguans, amonght whon the Spaniards convers'd) were a Pcople of a fordid Lifc and brucilh and barbarous Cuftoms. Their Paps and Lips were pierc'd like thofe ar the Inand of Mallbado cheir Food Roors, and any fort of Animal almoit chat they can carch; Frogs, Worms, Lizards, Sexpents, go down like good favoury Victuals with them, nay Earth Wood and Beafts dung when they can get noching elfe will ferve the rurn. They neither reverence Old Age, Barbarity so nor love their Children as the other Indians do, but will wards chil kill them with their own hands many times, becaufe drer they thall nor (as they imperinently alledge) be ever fericeable to their Enemies. They dont take any but one Wives amonght themfelves, nor any Husbanals for their wiff. Daughters neither, for they fay they are all Kindred, and tis a fhame for them to marry their own Relations. So that what Wornen chey have in chat way, are eithex raken from their Enemies in War, or bought of fome of the neighbouring People; and the price they gencrally give for a Woman is cither a good Bow and a couple Price of of Arrows, or elfe a large. Net. They pur all the old People to carry burdens and do fuch ortier Drudgery as their feeble Age is capable of. The Men don't much Induatroion crouble themfelyes abour any Work or Labour, but throiv Women. moft of ic upon the Women, who are geñerally ftour and ftrong, and boch fit for is and us'd to it. They are fo bufie about their Houmold concerns, that they allow not above 6 hours of the 24 for reft; they Spend the greateft pars of the Nighs in heating their Ovens, and drying the Roors they ear; and then as foon as che Day begins to appear, they go to drawing of Water, and ferching of Wood into their Houfes. Their Houfes are made of Mats, and ftand upon four Arches, and are conrrivd io, that they can rake chem up and remove them into any place where the conveniency of Food calls them. As ro ril qualicis: their Temper and Moral qualities, the Spaniards give bur an ill account of them; they hay shey practifc unnarural Lufts one with another, are very Sortifh, will Lye and Diffemble monftroufly," Thieve and Steal, not only from Neighbours, but even Fathers and Chilonly from Nrom anether. They neither Till the Iand dren from one another. They neither Till the land, nor Sow any fort of Seed, bur leave all to the care and nor Sow any fort of Seed, bur leave all to the care and bounty of Narure; yer, norwithitanding their Poverry and uncertainty of Food, they live merry and jocund, and never ceate their Sports and Dancings. They are lo Gra: Rar. very lwift of foor, and every way to well made for nern running,

Chap. XV. AVoyage to Florida by Panóphilo Narvaez.
sunning, that they'll follow a Deer from Morning to Evening till they have quite run him down, and made him fo weary as to be caken alive. The beft of all their living is when they go to ear Tume, for then they do nothing bue cat almoft all Uay and Night too, and fpend their time in Dancing and Revelling while that fruis lafts. When they have done eating the Tumes in the Councry where chcy grow, they take fome and open and dry them, to ear by the way as they return home. In morr, this Tume time is a. Feftival of the fame qualit and great expectation amongft them that Clisiftmas it felf is amongtt the Eirropeans. As for Aclh, the moft they have of that is Venifon and Beef; fome Decr there are about the Country, and cven too in Come places. Thede Catrel are of the bignels of the Spani/B Oxen, have little Horns liks thofe of Barbary, and very long hair, and thicker than ufually in other Parts. Of the Hides they make Garments to defend them from the cold of their Climate, Shoes alln, and Targets for the War. The anct plague in this Country is the multisude of Flye hat breed here ; and to defend themfelves from which. the Nacives very frequently go with a flaming Brand in their hands, and fometimes burn down the Trees where they are, that the Flyes boing depriv'd of rheir helter may be forcid to go away. And indecd, Alvaro hays that they are fo miferably vex'd and tormented with chem, that it may be compard with the moft troublecome ching in she World. The Counrry contains a great deal of cxcellent Pafture-Land, which wou'd maintain mighty Herds and Flocks of Carrel; and wou'd certainly be a very fruifful and profirable one, if the Yeople hall but fence enough to manage is as is hou'd be. There's hardIy any Mountain to befecn in all that Part where the spanicrds were, bur all plain and open. There are Rivers of good clear wholfome water too, but the Natives having no certain fecled place of Abode, depend more upon the Rain warer for their contane Drink than trat of the Rivers. When the time was come for the Indians to go and ear Turc, che Spaniards, whio had laid cbeir Plot for an elcape, were unhappily prevented in the execution of it; for the [ndians happcning to fall out amongt themfelies, and they being difpersid in ícyeral Houles, one with one Indian, and another with another, they were by chis means parted from one anorher, and cond nor pur their defign in practife. And fo once or twice after this the Indians hinderd their running away, but whether by chance or concrivance, fufpecting their purpofe, is uncertin. However, thefe difappointments forc'd them to fpend at leaft a Year more amongtt thofe wretched Pcople, to their no little forrow and vexation; as for Aloorro, he declares he lived fuch a caricd Life amonglt them, and thicy usid him fo ill, thas he was neceffitated to change his Mafters by running away three or four times, and narrowly cfcap'd with his l.ife, they purfuing him with a defign to Sacrifice him if they cou'd have found him. But as they were feparated from one another by the Divifions and Quarrcls of the Intians, fo they were brought to cach other again, by the Reconciliation and new Exiendihip of the tame Parcies. So that now they had $2 \pi$ opportunity of exccuring thar defign which had been formid to lonf, and banlk'd fo often. They order'd matters fo as to give the Iudiens the flip all together, and begin their journcy our of that Savage Country where they had liv'd more like Bealts shan Men for fo long time. The Indians cither did nor purfue them, or ar leaft did not take the right way, for they wenton withour dittorbance, and came to fome other Indians calld Anaverres, whofe Languagethey underfiood, having rraded wich them before, and were very kindly reccird by them. They liv'd amongt thefe People $2-$ bout 8 Months, feeding upon fuch wild Fruits and Reors as rhey did, and (which is no little wonder in Men that had becn usd notonly to a warmer Clinate; but to wearing of Cloaths too) gaing miked for the moft part like them, excepr at any time they cou'd procure a few Stins to cover themfelves withal. Here they pretend too, thar they did a grear many miraculous Cures upon feveral forts of Sick, and that the Indians flock'd into them upon that fcore from the neighbouring Parrs; but when all's done, the greareft Miracle is their own living in a cold bleak Country, where they went as naked as ever they were born, their keeping fo many long Fafts, and giing for Months togerher withort eating any thing elfe than a lictle Fruit, and all this join'd with hard Labour and Travel, and yet coming oft with life and health ar laft Alvato fays farther, thar they chang'd their Skins twice a Year as the Snakesdo that their Bodies peel'd all over from head to foor, and what with the impreffion of the Wearher, with carrying heary Burdens, with travelling through Woods and Thickets, where the Thorns and Briers tore their fleft, they were iri a very miferable condition, and their Carkaffes fo mortificd, that 'twas the greateft wonder Men, who had becn us'd to another way of living, cou'd cyer go through swich ir. Fton: thefe People they remor'd to the Maticues, and we sibadoes, with whom they liv'd fome timac atcer the fare poor and hard rate chat they had with the former. When thefe People firft faw them before their Houfes thicy withdrew, and reafon'd a whice amongft chemfclies, (ris ro be fuppos'd about their reception) which confult being over, they came in a very fricadly manaer, taki: them by the hands, and leading them inno their HontiThe next Pcople chicy came ro iecmed to be fructe wit: a mighty fear and aft,nifhment as the firit approach of there ftrange Men. 'Twas a good while lefore they wou'd venture to come near them, and winen they did they came and laid their bainds upon the liaces and Bo, dies of the Speninrds, and afterwards upon their owa, bidding them welcome by that kind of action.

Of thefe People (as of all the reft in geactal, from the 1 Illand of Malbad hither) they obferyd that they give of ter itw their Children Suck till they are 10 or 12 Years old pie tit ofor and this becaufe of the great fearcity of Victuals in their Conntry ; for Nature having made a provition for them in the Morhers Milk, they rather chufe to let them depend upon that for a Maintenance, thani uron the uncerrain Products of the Earth, or their unicertain getring of them. They part from their Wives whencrex (quatrels and differcnces arifing between them) they can no longer enjoy Domeftick peace and quieneff; this is re ry common among the younger fort, hut 'tis nor cultomary for thofe that have had many Chiliten to turn off the Mothers of them, and abandon them totally. Whien Mriages any Couple is thus divorc'd from cach other, they buth moverco ufe their liberry to marry when or whom they picaic. When 2 quarrel happens berween rwo Families, you Thald have them. feparate from the reft of the Comnuenity, and withdraw with their Women, and whatever belongs to them, inno forne place in the Fields by themfelies; and here they ftay rill citlice the Neighbours make peace, or chey have muruaily digefted the Mattex on both fides, and are difpos'd to a Reconciliation If a difference amongt them ever proceeds fo far as rocon-mor come to blows; they take care never to ufe any cange- gate.... rous Weapons. They commonly cake fruty hardrome Cudgels and thralh one another with thein, till they have fufficiently vented their Choier on bothifides; ber as for their Bows and Arrows, they refere them for their Enemies, and no paflinn ever makes then turn ufon cach other with thofe Weanons, or any ctiver thar may prove fanal. They are So'diers good enough, hardy, widt Labour, and able to codure is; caming, and piceme: percciving the fiar cowardice of tiecrenemies, an taking all the advantage by it imapiarife. In flest, at Enemy mult ufe thent the wort that can be, and fear them dharo fays, there ate a fort of inpotent cficminaic Men, of much larger ard greater Limbs than odinary who go in Womens deres, and arè deyced to Worcers work; they carry no Bows onr Arrotws, but inftead of them Burdens of Wood and Water, and within Door other Dounctick Offices; and of thicte he declares he raw feveral.
They have a fort of Dink made of the Leares of a Trec like the Mulberry Tree, which they boil very well and work it up into a froth, and fo drink it as hot as ever they can luffer is to come into their Mouths. All strms the while this is over the fire the Veffel muft be clofe cunton in Thut ; and if by chance it thou'd be uncoverd, and adriking: Woman fhou'd come by in the incan time, they won'd drink none of it, but fling all away. Likewile, while they ftand cooling and pouring it out to drink, a Wo man muft not.ftir nor move, for they woud thiow it a! to the ground; or fpue it upagain, if they had druni any; and the her felf wou'd incur the Baftinado. All this time they continue bauling onc aloud who will drink: And when the Wonen begin to hcar thefe exclamations, then 'ris that they ferde themfelves in their poftures; and were they firting, or flanding, tho it were a tiptoc or one leg up and tother down, they muft continve fo all the Men have coold cheir Liquor, and make it fir to drink. The reafon of chis is cevery whit as foolin and unreafonacle as the coftom it felf, for they fay, thou'd not the Yomen ftand ftill when they hear their voice, Come bad thing woud be conyey dinto the Liquor, which they lay wou'd make them die ; and if fuch a Generacion of Aifes were all poyfon'd, 'twere no great lofs to the World. Our Spaniards continued rravelling on thro: his hangry barren Country ; the nexr Indians they came of, enrertaind them with a fort of Food dhich they had of a Fruit calld Mefquiquez, which is like the Carobe and Alvare fays of the lame kind. As it hatigs on the Tree it is yery bitter, and as they prepare it one wou'd think it thou'd not be mended, tho they are of another Opinion, and thetcfore proceed accordingly. They make a. Trench in the ground of a confiderable depch and throw the Fruit ineo ir, bruifing and ftirring it abour with a great piece of Wood. When they have done this to the purpofe, they take this Hodge-podge of Earth and Fruit and put it into a Veffel, pouring as much Water upon it as will juth cover it; then they rafte whecher it be fweer enough or no, if not, they take more Earth and mingle with it, till they have wrought it up to that degree of fwectuefs that pleafes their Palates beft

Rid way

 When this is done, they all fir round the Trench, an crery Man chrufts in his hand and cakes our a lump to cat ;and to they cat on in this way of good Fellowfhip till sheir Bellies fometimes are ready to burt. The LiHor they ufe to wafh down this dirty Meat, is made of the Sceds of Kernels of the Fruir and the husks togecher; for they take thefe and pue thens inco a Veffel of Warer, and after they havelain feeping there a while, they come and fuecze them, and the Liquor that is thas prefsd our, is witliout any farther preparation fit to be drunk the beft of themall.Thefe Nations the Spailiards were now got amongf rere of a much more civil and hofpitable temper than thofe they palsid through at firt ; but there were fuch arictics of thacin, that they dont pretend fo much as to give us their Names, much lefs cou'd they learn'the Language of every one of them. They were precty well acquainted with. fix feveral Tongucs, bur before they came into thofe Raxts of the Continent where the Spamiarts dwelt, they had mer with above a choufand forss of Languages; to that all along they exprets'd their Minds to the Indians by figns and motions, which they found no prear trouble to make them undertand the fince and meaning of kindanfion (for mon part beter uraveling in all ref tas. The muicus, with whom they Abode, woud an their departure accompany them to the nexr Nation, and fee chem weil Iceciv'd; and Alvaro fays, that fomecimes they had thoufands to attend them, neither was it an eafie matter to ger rid of lome of them. Many times the People, Whoic Comary they came into, woud march our in a fi:ll boity to mect them, and bid them welcome; and according to dixcir various Cuftoms and Manners, fuch was theirReception and manncr of Entertainment amongit them.

For the remaining part of their Journcy they had

One Nation particularly Alvaro makes mention of where the Pcople run our of their Houfes fhouting and hollowing, and ftriking their hands upon their Thighs 25 fuch a rate, that they frightned them mooft bitterly and then they throng'd and crouded about them with fo much eagernefs, every Man ftriving to be foremoft, and come as near them as peflible, that he lays they were like to be fuecrid to death The Multitude wou'd not Het them touch the ground wirfi their feet, but got them up upon their foulders, and cartied them away to their Houfes. Others of them, as foon as rhcy had broughr the Spanicids into their Moufes, wou'd offer them all their Goorls, and the very Houres themelves too; and Ho" there were na great Treafures there; yet they were not a little pleas'd to fee the free and open humour of chofe Preoplc. Some again wou'd nor come our of cheir Houles into the Ficlds and High-ways to meet chem, bur fir ar home, and fay yill they came; and 'cis comical enough what alvaro xclates of thefe filent Peoples (who were yer as hearry and kind as the noify ones before menion'd) that when they canc to their Hoofes, they found them all fitting with their faces nurn'd towards the Wall; wheir heads hanging down, and their long hair dangling over their cyes, as if they had been allecp; and after wards were entertain'1 by them in a very frank and hearty manace: They commend thefe for the mof cornciy and ienfible Pcople of all that they faw, their Women, and all the ohd Pcople in general. - wear a Coicring of Deers Skins, the telt go naked, here and there 2 Man only excepred. Their Country abounds with Kine, and they tiave alfo fome flore of Maize.
The Inditens wetc gencrally rery fervicesble to the along with them; and in Countries that yrilded Deer, Hares and Fooul, (as fercral thit they pars'd did) they won' ${ }^{\prime}$ go out with their Boios and Arrows, and Kill what was neciltary for the company A Ard certarnty, if we may give credir to their rcpors, never were any Men fo mich revcrencid, (adordone way fay) Io oblequioully ferv'd, fo diligently artended and waited upon, as they were by the ludians. Thote poor People thonghe no- Opininat: thing too good for them; they belicy'd they knew eren nntumi ind the moft fecrer things which they had a mind to conceal of the ron. them ; that they could heal all their Sick, and infict diftempers upon them that were well if they did provoke them, and therefore took cate to pleafe them in cuery thing, and to do what cver they commanded. And tho' we thall hardly take Alianv's word for the cures they did in the feveral Nations they palsid through, yee we may, when he tells us, that he and his company made very good ufe of this Itrange Opinion the Indinns had of them, and fervid chemfelves of is to many confiderable puxpofes.
In forne places there were figns of Mctals and Mine- Mentis in th. rals to be found upon enquiry in that Counery; thus Countr. they faw fome appearances of lron, and fome of the Natives gave them picces of Antimony, and fmall Plates of Silver. In another place they found a grear. Copner Bell with a face engraven upon is; and the Indians told thein, that where thar thing was made a great number of Plates of the fame Metal were hid under ground.
The Speniards having travelld a vaft tract of Land, and feen great varicties of thefe Nations, (of which they tell us hardly any thing mote confiderable, than the kind reception and great relpect they gave and paid to them) came at latt to the South Sea. Afrer they had the welcome fighre of this, they travelld many days in grear diftrefs for want of Provifion; fomerimes. chey fed upon the fat of Decr, (a thing which they had fome quantities of by them) bur the worft of all was their being reduc'd so powder of Straw, which Alarro fars they did eat for feveral days, having nothing elfe that was catable to pretend to, as neither had the Indians in whofe Country then they werc. Bur out of this miferable place Frairful they came into a Land that might be call'd happy, bcau- Country tiful and fruitful in comparion; for here they had Maize, Pulfe, Gourds, and Venifon for the Belly, Deex Skins alfo and Corton Mantles for the Back. Going farther, they had not only the continuance of chefe Neceffaries, but fuperfluities roo, the Narives gave them Turquoife Srones, fome Emeraulds, and pieces of Coral, and rold them they had the Emeraulds in exchange for Qaills and Parrots feathers, from a cerrain Rcople that drelr in vary high Mountains to the North. Thefe Fomenmais Indians were a polite People, in refpect of a grear many mech of and others they had met with; they had Houfes inore large and handfomely built than was common, their Women were usid with great refpect and regard to their Sex, they wore Shifss of Bombazinic Cotton which reach'd below the Knec, and a forr of Sleeves made of Deer Skins which touch'd the ground, and were peifum'd very fweet with certain Roors; and all in gencral, bock Men and Women, wcre fhod.
From thefe chey uravelld to others, who livid a muth more poor and mifcrable Life; and from thefe again tbrough another large and populous Country, where the Natives fow'd Maize and Pulfe thrce times a Year, and had alfo pleniy of Deer. They found here a fort of poyfonous Tree, which the Inhabitamss make ufe of for Tree poyfoning cheir Arrows, and that either. with the Fruit or the milky Juice that drops from the boughs when they are broken off:- There are feveral of thefe Trees tha are fo ftrong 2 poyfon, that the leaves of them brais'd and caft into any Pool or ftanding Water, will certainly kill the Beafts that drink of it, according to their report.

Thefe poor Travellers now ar haft canse to have fome notice of their Countrymen the Spaniards, and that by feeing amongt the Irdiains the Buckle of a SpeniJh Gir die, which affurid them they muit have been in whofe Parts: Upon examinarion, the Indians told thern fome Men with long Beards, like them, and with Horfes and Armour, had been there; but they faw fid demonfta tions of it as they pafsd farther into the Country, for the People had lefr their Towns and Villages, and hid themiclves in Woods and Mountains, the fruirful Lands lay neglected, and a whole rich and pleafant Country appeard to be fpoil'd.

Some of the Indians that had fufferdethns being ar lafr crace mp got oit of their holes and hidder places, rold them thar of cue $i p+$ the 'Spansierds hizd beeti' therc, had deftroy'd and burnin iard, x : their Towins, laid the Linds wafte, and carried away vaft numbers of the People for Slayes;: yer were thefe: moft irinocent and courreous People, and made" Alorro ivith fis company, as welcome is poffible, tho' thes had reafon to expect othet tratment at their mands, thai Beatds difcovering them plainly crough to be fome ching'a kin to thóe Men that had forgricvoufly infur'd them. In thots they berre on with a grear body of

Chap.XVI. A Woyage to Florida by Fernando de Soto $8 \in$

Indians attending, till they came where the firlt $S p a n i / \beta$ Colony was, having all along tracd the Spaniards in their marches, by thofe matks and toortteps of their Cruelty, which were rifible every where. Here they dixmiss their laft Indian Guides, bus thofe honeft Pcople were not willing to go, till they had (as she cuftom was) deliver'd them fafe into the cuftody of anorher Indian Pcople. And as the Spaniards were very kind to them in Noxion the maimint had
of the othe
Spaniards, propoling to feize them all, and make Slaves of them, had of there for they wou'd nor be perfwaded by any means that they were the fame fors of Men with Alvaro and his company ; for, faid they, thefe Men heal us, but the other kill us; thele are bountiful and kind, the others rob and are covetous; the one go naked, and withour Horfes, as we do, the others have Lron Coats and Lances, and ride on Horfeback. In thorr, the former came from the Eaft, and the others from the Weft; for which reafon alfo, as well as the reft, they wou'd not believe rhey were the fame Pcople. However Alvaro, with much ado, perfwaded them to return to their Houfes, to Till their Land, and Inhabir their Towns as before, and endcavour to make all their Countrymen join together, to do their beft to reftore the Country to its former flourifhing ftare. Alvaro and his Friends travell'd on till they came where more of the Spanif Officers refided; but the Spaniards, who were now their Guides, led chem. through barbarous defolate Ways, and deale very unkindly with them. They wanted Heathens to reccive kindncffes from, for Chriftians, and their own Countrymen, had none to thew them. They us'd farther endeavours to reduce the Indians from the Mountains, ind bring them down to Inhabit the, plain Country again, promiging them upon thofe terins, and their embracing Chriftianity; that they thou'd be free from all futuice mos. leftations, and enjoy their Country in peace. The lim dians agreed to do this, both to become Chritians;' and to Till their Land; but how the Spania'ds perform'd their part of the Covenant is uncertain. Aizaro and his siome Companions, after this, proceeded to Comp. $/ \frac{1}{}$ ell. , where comes to the Govemor recciv'd them kindly, and from thencé to Mexico, where the Vice-Roy gave them a noble Entertainmenr, after cheir long, tedious and hazardous travel.

Tis to be obferv'd, that Alvaro in this march came quite crafs the Continent from the North to the SourhSea; and the diftance berween thefe two, according to the beft of his oblervation, he judges ro-be as leat 200 I.cagucs. Farther 'ris remarkable what this Perfonfaxys of himfelf, when he-was come back amongf the Spaniards agann-strat he cou'd not endure any Cloaths upon his-back for a great while rogether ; the reafon of which was, parcly the rendernefs of his body by fo much ill ufage of it, and partly perhaps his long cuftom of going naked amotignt the Indians, which had now made jralmof natural to him. It was in A.D. 1527 . that this unfortunate Voyage commenc'd; and 'rwas in $A . D .1536$ : that a period was fet to the Travels of dorio and his little company ; little indeed, for tho' he went our of Spain with a grear number, yer by that time he return'd thither again, he had no more than three Men left, and their lives and his own were all fo many Mirackes.

C н a p . XV I.

A Voyage to Florida by Fernando de Soto, witb bis Diffovery of the Countries in that Part of the Continent; Written by a Portuguefe wbo went in the fame Expedition.

THis Captain Fernardo de Sote, was one of thore who had ferv'd in che Wars of Peru: He bad been at the taking of Arabalipa, and all the Sieges of Cufice, and had a large flare of the Plunder of that rich Ciry, He was alfo one of che number of thofe that opprefis'd and pinch'd the Indians for their Gold; and as there were vory few of them Men thar came to a good end fo by tracing the courfe of his Fortunes too, we thall find they bad not fo happy an iffue arlaft as perbaps he mighr expect.
This Perfon having the Emperor's Grant for the Conqueft of Elorida, furnifh'd a Fleet ar his own charge, or rather at the charge of Atabalipa, for twas Peruozian Gold that paid for all, and bore him our in thax vatit expence, Tbe Fleet confifted of Give great Ships, 2 Carrels, and 2 Brigantines, and had aboard 600 Men, fome fay near 1000 but that's no great maiter. They went firft of all to the Illand of Cuba, where they faaid to long, that the Year was come abou. Being artived fafe theres they went alhore about two Leagues from a Town which was the ordinary Refidence of a cerain Prince called Ucirc. The Indians, foritheir parts, having difcover'd then, gave notice to one another, by making grear fires along the Conft, thar an Enemy bad invaded their Conntry; and to they kept out of the way, and left their Towns for the Spanizirds to take poffefion of.
Ucita's Town trood juft upon a Bay, fo chat the Ships might be brought quire up to it ; the Cacique's Houre ftood upon a very high Mcunt hard by che fhore, and at the other end was the Temple, on the top of which was fuxd the Image of a grear Fowl carv'd in Wood, with gilded Eyes, the only appearance of Gold they faw as yet. The Houfes were all Timber, and neaxly cover'd with Palm leaves. Here chey found fome frmall quantivies of Pearl, but thofe of no grear value; the Indians pierce them and fting them likeBeads, to adorn their Necks, Hands and legs, with thiem.
Asa Party of the Spaniards wíre one day beating abour the counuy 0 find ane and we Reople, they happen'd to fee to or 12 of them, and in their company a ceitain

Man that plainly appear'd to be an European, buc was running about wild and naked likethem, and was fcorchid with the Sun, and had his Arms rac'd and pink'd after the manner of the Indiens. The Indiens no Cooner Gaw the Spanißh Horfe but they tun away towards. the Woods and the Spaniards purfuing overrook fome of. them, and were going to kill them, and amongft the reft chis Eurro-pean-Indicn was going to have a lance thruft into his Guts; but he cried out for Macty for himlelf and thern, relling the Speniards he was a Chriftian, and thefe Indians had lavid his life. Upon farther Examination, it appear'd that this Man was one of Nacatro's miferable company, molt of which had mer with cheir fares upon this Continent. He had now liv'd 12 Years amongft bienory. theIndians, and was ar firft taken Prifoner by fome of Vcira's Subjects, and broughr before him, by whorn he was condermnd to be broil'd ro deach over a Now fire, but that his Daughter begg'd his life; and not only fo, Kived woi but broughr him into fome degree of favour too. He was then made Keeper of the Temple, and his principal Work was to watch at Night, that the Wolves did not come and fteal away the dead Bodies." Bur in this Poft Ortiz (for that was the Spaniards Name) was-very, like so lore his life, for a Wolf one Night, in fpice of all care, ftole away the Corps of a Child of one of the principal Indims; and as chere were leveral of thole xavenous creatures together, Ortiz threw a Dart amonght hood caft. them, and happend to frike that very Wolf that had got the Child, which werit a litule way with his prey, and then fell downand died, without any defacing or cearing of it. But all this while it being dark, Ort:r knew nothing of his good luck in killing the Wolf; and To the next Morning, when the Corps was mifsd, Ucitt was fo enrag'd that he refolvid to pur him to death. Bur the Wolf being found dead, and the Body juft by ortin five" ir whole and entire, Ortizgorinot only his life, but more his life by efteem than cver he had before.: Afrer this a certainkillng the neighbouring Prince, calld Macoco, came and fell upon wolt cira, burning that Town where he then was, arid forcing him to retire to dinother., This made the Berbarian have 2 mind to Sacrifice Orisi, to afpeafe the anger of his Deity, as they do very often (is (cems) make fuch| Sacrifices both of Natives and Strangers roo. Bur this danger the kind young Woman prevented, (the that favd him from the fire) by difcovering her Fathers bloody defign to Orti $\hat{\imath}$, and perfwading him to make his elcape to Mocsso, who was a gencrous Man, and wou'd ule him very well. This fcafonable Advice he took and becanfe he did not know the way, the went out of Town with him a matter of half a league in the dark Night, and having fet him in the tight way; left him 50 the Influence of his good Stars for the relt of his Journey. Such a counpliment as this one fhall feldom hear of, and Orin., whatever he thought of it himfelf, had no littic obligation to this young Woinan. true font to

स्वq99

Being cone so Mocoico, he was receiv'd with a gicat deal of Joy, and that Cacique fwore, according to bis way, to treas him with all kindnefs, and give him his liberty to go'away with any Chriftians when they came into that Country; exacting of him at the fame time an Oarh after his own manner, that he thou'd never run away from him to any other lord. And here he liv'd 9 Years more, with as anuch coment as he coudd capeet amongit a Pcople no poiter than they; and 'rwas now that Mowo hearing of the Spemiards arrival; fent Orti (according to his promile) accompanied with thefe In diens to cheir Camp, and was like to have becn killd by his own Countrymen by the way (as was thown before:) Mocreo himielf came alio to the Camp to fec Soro, who efterm'd him much for his kinduels to 0, sī̈, and made him fome Prefents. Bur Orti-, who had liv'd fo long in the Country, coud not give Soto any inteligence of what he chiefly wanted, which was rich Mincs, only that aboue $3^{\circ}$ Leagucs from Pueto de Sprito Samer, (as they calld the Port where they had raken up their abode, and which was C'cisis's Town) that diere was a great Canith Pang, to whom both Mocren and Clim and all the reft ufon that Coaft paid Tribute, whofe Country was much more fruitful than that which borficrd upon the Sca, and might perhaps afford fomething clic, at leaft the News of it. So a Party was feat to liaracofis Country to fec what was to be done there, and they diffarchid a Methage to Soro again with this News, That according to the refore of paraciffs Subjects, there was 2 Province calld Calc, lying rowards the Wett, from whence they mighe draw plenry of Gold, and that fome Pcople that had made War with thole of Call, had declar'd thas they came into the Field with Gold Hicaddeclar'd chat they came into the Field with Gold Head-pieces, or as leaft fome Defence for their Heads of the fame nature. Upon this Soto left a certain number borh of Horfe and Foor, for the kecping of Puirto de Sprito Santo, and manch'd away wich all the reft of his Men to Cale, the Town of which Name was quite cmptied of all iss Inhabitants by that time he came to it. His Men were farigu'd with 2 miferable march hither, through Woods and Bogs, and over. Lakes and Rivers, pinchid for want of Provifions too, tho" they gor a cure for that difeafe when they cameito Cale, for they found a good ftock of Maize ripe in the Field, which Sito ordered to be gatherd for the nfe of his Men. Bur we hear not 2 wond of the Gold which thofe Indinns before fpoke of To that 'tis likely enough they rold the Speniands a fine golden Story of a Country a good wary off, to carry them out of their own Country, where they mighe have been troublefome Guefts.
From Calc, Soto march'd towards Apitache, a very large and fruifful Province, as he was inform'd; but orie part of his Army ftaid at Cele, with Ordets ro comininue there till they heard from him. Upon his. way thither tie heard that the Country he was going to wis the fame whecie Nixroaej had been before, and the fame where he made his Boars for that fatal Voyage, becaule he con'd go no farther by land. This made atl the company yery melancholly, and they begg'd the Gencral not to procecd in that defign, leaft they all had the fame fate that Narvaci and his Men had; bur he was abrotutely fet opon it, and wou'd have Ocnlar demontration of what was rodd him of the Country, and nor rely alrogeticr.upon reports. The greateft diftrefs the fndiams ever put himto in this Journey (indeed he had no direct oppofition in the way of fighring but this) was that which happen'd at a cerrain Town call'd. Naperuct, where the Inhabitants thought good to make head againit them, and fo fome of then to kecp the Incians in, who alfo endeavourd to creep ore ammingly when the Day was thut in, but being dif coverd they were forc'd to plunge imo the Waicr again. Hownern at laft they were perfivaded to yield to the ipariards, amt all canc our of the Lake, 12 only of itfe nobleft excepred, who chofe rather to die than to fall inotheir hands, and were forcid to be drawn our by the did of the Head by other Indians. Bat, in fhort, this did not quell their courage, for tho they were all made Slaves of, and were divided amongt the Spiniards, yet they found ways to meer together to plor and confpire a Rifing; neither did they fear to pur is in exceution, and that with a wonderfuldeal of fury and tefolution. Soto They \#fanit himfelf was the firft Man that was affaulted by himfelf was the firft Man that was affaulted by them; thes ipnmarti the Indian that was his lurcrpreser was appointed to begin with him, and while be was difcourfing to catch him ly the Throar and choak him. This he had well nigh accomplifhid; and all the reft fell upon their own Mafters with what Weapons came next to hand. In a word, therc being above 200 of thefe Defperadocs, and the Spemini ds not a ware of them, is coft. hhem fome aroit. bic ( not much blood) to reduce them, bur that was cffectually done at laft, and the greatelt past of them executed for what they has done. This flaughter at Nispesper, made che Indiams more cautious of their coming within the reach of the Spanierds, and Soro found forme confiderable Towns empry of People upon that foorr. But what Indirms they took they us'd cruclly, that is, made chem ferve with intolerable rigour, and the Intians did not fail to sequite diem fort whencrer they coud file off their Chains, of ges their Keepers in the Woods alone. Soro had a Journey otherwile well enough to Apalachr, being not fo much fraitned as at fometimes for Provifions, bur mecting good fore of Maire Rrovifions, bur meeting good ftore of Maize, Frenchbeans and Pompions by the way.. When to came to Apnlachs, he found likewife fore of thefe forss of Food in feveral Towns about, fo that here was living good enough for his Army. And now he thought geod to femd for all the reft of his-Troops from forr Sivito S:trit, to come to hinn to the l'rovince of Apatabe; which accordingly was done, moft gart of the Foor coming by Sca, and the reft travelling aling the I and. The Indicms fomerimes fallied out upon them by the way, but they coud nos do then any grear mifchicf, much icfs hinder their march to apelachs ro their Gencral. Soro now reColved to profecute the difcovery of the Country, fent our one of his Captains to fearch the Weitern Conf, who broughs him News of a Province call'd Oclius, that lay ome $\sigma$ Leagues to the Weftward from Apalicisten, where was a Port capable of giving Ships a vcry good fhelecr and defence from the Weather, and fome orter things; which made Soto rcfolve to no and find our that Count try. And thas he mighe be fuxe of Suptlies, be fent a way to the lland of cuba for a Stock of Provificns, and appointed thofe that went with the Veftels to come to him there, at chat Port, in the Province of Ochus beforementioned, Bur the love of Gold made him change the projett of a Weftern Journey inno an Eaftern one; for a certain Slave, who was a Native of a cerrain Country lying to the Sun-rifing, told ftrange Stories of the Riches it, how great his Queen was, and how great her Capiral City; all which enflamed Sorio with fuch a defire of feeing this fine Queen and Councry, that he refolved immediarely to march thither. The Name of this Coun- Xifschas a tiy was Tupachn, and fince 'twas a long march, they were oblig'd to carty a good ftock of Provifions, to ferve in cafe of any uncertainty by the way. They found going this way Indinn. Towns much handfomex than they ufe to meet with, and which inftead of Thatch Cor erings, were done with' Reeds fo pretrily, that they look'd almoft as if they hadd been Tild. They have theirSummer and their India Wrater-Houres; the latrer of which are daub'd with Houfes. Clay within and withour, and made very warm; the former have Kitchins adjoining ro them, where they make fries, and do their domeftick Work. They have 2llo their Barbacoas wherc they keep their Maize, which are litule Houfes ftanding upon Stakes, and floor'd wirh Cane Hirdics. The difference between the Houfes of the Lords and the vuigar People, lies not only in the hirgenefs of them, but alfo the Omaments of grear Galleties in the fronss of them,' and under them Benches made of Cane, and all round about them high Lofts, where they lay up what the Indians bring them for Tribute, which is Maize, Deer Skins, and Mantles made of the inner rind of the Barks of Trees, or of a fort of Grals like Nettes, which being bearen refembles Flax. The Women wear two of thef Mantles, one put about ${ }_{\text {abbis }}$ them from the Wafle dowinward, and another over cheir fhoulder, with the Right Arm out, according to the ancient cuftom. The Men have no more than one Mantle, which goesover their fhoulder too, bur they wear a Deer Skin to cover the Privy Parts. There Skins are admirably well drefsid, and colourd (red or black) ro perfection, which colours they give their Mantles alfo: they make their Shoes of the fame Lenther. Soto pals'd.
tha cos sete through the Countries of divers great Caciques, fome of解 plics of Provifion, and all ingeneral treated him very civilly; they alfo furnifhd him with Indians to carry his Provifions and Baggage for him. Thefe were the Cxciques of Achef, Ocute and Patofr, of whofe Countrics, Pcople and Government, we have no particulars, the Spanimds being upon 2 march, and not making many Obreryations by the way. Some parts of the Counery were very fruicful, beautiful and pleafant, as others (particularly out towards poot Spirito Sanici) barren, full of Lakes, Thickers and Woods of wild Pinc--Tress. Bur Soro having now traversd a great deal of ground, was miferably blunderd to find our the golden Country, neither coud the Intien chat firft informid him, and now was his Guide, well tell how to extricate the Spaniards out of chis Labyrinth. They pafs 1 Rivers that were decp and dangerous, and cou'd hardly find any open Way; no Towns neither coud they fee for feveral days tosether, and their Horfes grew weak for wanr of Fodder, only the Men had ftill Some Provifions left for themdelvcs. At haft, after much fearching, they happen'd to find a Town, which tho left by all the Peopic almoft, yet yielled them good fore of Maize, a thing they ftood recirly in wed of Some fucritics alfo made Cnerfactogni- three ftraggling Indians tell them of 2 grear Province call'd Curijashigui, which lay but two days Journey off; fo they continued their march thitherwards, and upon the Way mer fome finlians, who told them that the Queen of that Country had notice of their amrival; and ftaid to fee them in a certain Town of hers. However zeen eomes as Soto march'd, the came on to mect him, and brought him Prefents of what hics Country afforded, which were fine Skins, Furrs and Mantles, not to mention Provifions. She gave him alfo a rich Chain of Pearl, which me took off from her own Neck and put about his. Her Country Soil was rich and fat, had a grear deal of good Pafture-ground, fair Meadows, delicate Rivers, and Woods, nor fuch unpuliable ones as they had met with in other Parts, but picalant and cafie ro be travell'd through, and full of Wall-nurand Mulberry Trees: The Pcople werc of a handfomer Make, and more civil Manners, than any they had yet fecnin Florida, and all Shod and well Cloath'd ros. There were feveral grear Towns quite roid of Inhabitants, and over-run with Grafs, which was occafiond (as the Indians faid) by a Plague that rag'd there, and forc'd them to remove to other Places.
The Queen fecing the Spanizrds were very fund of Pcarl, dirceted them to fearch fome of the Graves of thofe difpeopled Towns, and here they found 392 pound weight of them. The Country being fo good, and likely to afford fuch plenty of Pearl, the Spaniards were willing to take up their Refidence here, and periwaded their Gencral to yield to it; bus he, who was for finding another Treafure like that of Arabalipa's, was bent not to make any thing of a Settlement here, till he was fure he cou'd find no richer Country:. The Sea was nor above rwo days Journcy- from the Town where the Spaniards were quarterd, and they found by leveral tokens that fume Clarittians had been here before them, which the Indians confirm'd as a murh. This was Don Lucas Vafgucric dollyon, who came hither as Governor in A.D. 1525. and died here; and his company was entirely. diffolv'd, as well as che defign: fruftrated, by cheir own private Quarrels and Diffentions.

Tho' the Qucen of Cutifachiqui had us'd the Spamisel's fo civilly, yer they cou'd not forbear wronging and opprelfing her Subjects; which the refented fo far, that the refolv'd to go away, and not fuxnifh the Sprio suiards with any Guides or Slaves so canty Burdens, as otherwife the had defign'd to do. For this reafon Soro made a Prifoner of her; and going on upon his defign of finding out Golden Countries, he carried her along with him, ufing her more like a Slave than a Princels. But upon the Road hae prov'd roo cunning for him, and gave him the flip; for pretending to go afide into a Wood to do her Occalions, fhe (in company of two or three of her Worren) run quite away, never ftanding to pue the complement of a Farewel upon the General. And that which made if fo much the worfe was, chat the took care to take with her a lirtle Cheft of Pearls; which Soto had intended to beg of her if the had ftaid ap little longer, but now the prevenced his asking for them. They palsd through her Country for ioo Leagues rogecher, through all which way, becaufe ihe was a Prifoner, the made her Subjects ferve the Spanitrds, tho' mach againft their inclimations, after the injuries they had done them; but the Queen was Abrolure, and all her Subjeets paid her a molt profound refpect." Soto having loft chis Rize, proceeded in his march to find out the Province of Cocit which he had heard News of while he was in cl:utifnchiqui, And the Provinces he pals'd in his way, thither- province of ward were chofe of Chalique, a poor and barren Country, the People of which fied upon Roors and Herbs i: Xualla, xualia. one every whit as bad as the former: Chiabia, 2 very fruitful one, abounding with Maize, Mulberrics, Nurs, Plumbs, Wall-nuts and Honey. The Cacique snterrain'd him with all the frcedom in the World, and offer'd himfelf, and his wholc Country, to his Service. The Town of Chialon food in an Ifland between two arms bricha. of a River, and was fcated very near to one of chem. The River divides it Xclf inco thefe two branchics, two Croisbow-fhot above the Town, and they both join again about a league below the fame. The Plain besween both the branches, is in fome places one, and in others two Crolsbow-fhots over; the branches themrelves are broad, but both of them may be waded over. There were all along the fides of them very good Meadows and Fields fown with Maize; the Country being To fruitful, the Spaniards and their Horfes both recruited cheir ftrength very well, and became fir for farther ctavel. The next Province was that of Coftc, the Cacique of Cofe, which rcceived the Spaniards civilly, but by their own rude Mannexs they had like here to have run themflyes into danger; ; for as Soto, with 7 or 8 of his Men enly, Spenierdi went up ro the Town to fee the Cacique, fome other Spa-xtraid bo niards from the Camp went to fearching and ranfacking be Indiant. the Houles, which the Indians took fo ill, that they gor rood Cudgets and bang'd chofe Fellows prerty handomly.
Ir . Mort, they were all in an uproar, and Sotomaving fo few Men with him, thought the beft way to quier them won'd be by ufing fome piece of policy, and therefore he got a Cudgel too, and feeming to rake the part of the Indians, he fell a beacing his own Mcn; and this took fo with them, that they laid down their Weapons and were quier. In the mean time he fent privare caique Orders for fome more of his Men to march char way, and fizich fo giving the Cacigue good words, and holding him in difcourle, he drew him on till he had himn out of the Town, and within the bounds of the Camp, and then made him and his attendanss Prifoners; yet be releas'd them afterwards, withour any farther damage, upon their furnilhing him with Guides and Burden-carriers. The nexc Province was that of Coca, the Cacique of which came out to meet him, fitting upon a fort of Throne carried upon the fhoulders of fome of his principal Men; he was cover'd with a Garment of Marterns and had a Crown of Feathers apon his Head, leveral InThans went abourbim finging and playing, upon Fiutest This Country was fat, and rich in: Fruits and Corn:and befides what they ufe to find in other places, here. they met with Grapes very large and fweet. Some of thele Vines were tall, andrun up che Trees abroad in the 'Fields'; ochers very low, which bore che beft Grapes, but they were all wild, and for want of digging and drefling the Grapes had large kernels in them, yery different in that refpect from what is commonly obferv'd of that Fruit. Soto having ftaid here fome time, with Soro's way of our finding any thing of what he came to look, for, dealing with narchd on for the Province of Tafcaluca, and as 'rwas she Caciques: his cuftom (moft commonly ar leaft) to carry che Cecrigue of one Province with him till he came to the next, that they might command their People by the way to come and ferve the Spaniards, fo he did now, carrying the Cacique of cica along with him, and difcharging him, as he did the reft, when he had no farther occafion for thems or reafon to confine chem any longer. The Provinces he pals'd now were chofe of Ulibabali and Tallife, the principal Towns of which bearing the Names of their repeetive Provinces, were large and populous, and the former forrified with an odd fort of a Wall which was made of great Pofts driven deep into the ground, and long Rails laid atcrols them, and daub'd ail over with Clay in the infide and outfide; they faw many Towns walld:after this manner afterwards. Borth thefe Countries were froifful, and the Caciques very friendly to the spaniards.
Now they enterd into the Country of T /faluca, and Soroi, Joutmarchid till they came within rwo Leagues of the not. Town of that Name, where the Cacigue refided. The courle of Soto's Travels thas far lay chus = From Port Spirito Santo to :Apalacbe 100 Leagues E. \& W. from ipalache to Cutrifachique $43^{\circ}$ Leagues. S. W. \& N:E. from Cutifacbiqui to Xualla 2 so Leagues N. \& S. from Xiallato Coca rgo Leagues E. \& W. from Coce to Taf caluca 60 Lemguics N. \& S.

Qq9q9:
This

This Cacique of Tafcaluce was a greac Prince, Lord of 2 very large Councy, and one that very well knew his own Power. Soto firt of all fent an Officer, with fome few Horle, to fee him: The Cacique fat in great Stare under a Canopy, upon an elevated place before his Houfe, and a Circle of his great Men encompafs'd him round about. He was a Man of heighth and bignels more than ordinary, and in fpitc of all his barbaroufnefs difcover'd 2 Majecty that procur'd him refpect. He feem'd not to take much notice of the Spaniards, and while rhey prancid their Horfes before him, be lookd upon them with 2 countenance that fpoke Scorn and Diflain. Afrerwards, when Sota himfelf came to him, he never offer'd ac all to ftir from his Seat; bur he made bold re rake his Majefty by the Hand, and fo they both fat down together upon aScat that was under the Cloth of State. In Mort, for all his Pride and Grearnes, Soso made bold 2 litcle farther with hint too, and that was to carry him along with him, as he had done others before.

They were now rravelling to Manilla, the Capital Town of a Province belonging to 2 Cacique fubject to chis great one of Tafceluca. This fubcle Prince pretendad to Soto, that he wou'd fend Advice to the Cacique of Manilta, that he might provide Viatuals and Carriages againft they came thither, bur in reality he order'd him to affemble as many Soldiets as he cou'd to fighr the Spamiards that held him thus a Prifoner. However, the Cacique of Manilla came our tomect Soro, with his Mufick, and receiv'd him with great hews of Joy and Friendmip; and Soto, attended with 10 or 12 of his Men ventur'd to go into the Town with the two Caciques Here the Cacique of Ta/celucs defired of Soto that he might fray in that Town, and not be obliged to go any farther; which he refufing to grant, the Cacique, upon fome pretended occafion, went out of Soro's prefence and got into a Houfe, where he flood upon his Guard, and rold Soto pofixively that he woudd not go any farther; and more chan that, bid him be gone our of his Territorics. But it feems rhere was one of che Spaniards Captains there by, who hearing the Cacique ralk fo boldly to his General, rook hold of the Gown or Mantle he had on, bart he llipr ic over his Ears, and fo gor our of the Spaniard's hands. With chat the Indians began to ftir, and the Spaniard feeing them do 10, drew his Curr-lafs,-and gave the Cacique fuch 2 chop along the Back thar he had alooof laid him Gpen. This put all into an Uproar, and tranfported his Sabjects into all the fury and greedy defire of revenge imaginable. In thors, the Indians came ous, and prelendy began to pour fuch plenty of Atrows upon the Spuniards, that Soto, with the reft, were forc'd to endeavour with all fpeed to make their way out of the Town as well as chey cou'd; bur forme of them were kilf, and all the reft (even the Geaeral himfelf) gricvoufly wounded. The Indians purfoed them too, and light of their Baggage all in. 2 lump, which they brought back into the Town; and here was all their Pearh, and all the fine things they had pick'd up throaghout the whole Journey loft at one ftroke. To up throughour this affront, Soto brought up all his Army, bork Horfe and Foot, to affanlr the Town; and tho' the In dians defended it with as much $V$ alour as the others did amack it with Fury, nay, Reveral rimes drove the Spaniards our again after they had fored rheir waylin, yee at laft they were run down by the Spanifo Horfe, and the Town fired abour their Ears, the Sword and Flames rogether depouring ar leaft 2500 of them. Of the $S p+$ niards there were 18 killd, (fix of which were Men of account) and 150 wrounded; bur thery loit irrecoverably all their Baggage in the flames that confumed the. Town. All the Trumpery us'd in ithe Celebration of-Mals was bume too, bur they favid a Prieft and a Friar that had gor into the Town when Soro went firf-thither, and cou'd nor make their retrear back again to the Camp when he did; and here the Indians thut them up in the Houfe where they were, and woud certainly lave practifed a new fort of Mortification upon their Carkafies, but thar chey cou'd not get into the Room where they were for they had barricado'd up the Door, and che Prief and the Friar frood each with a good Iufty Bar in their hands; one of one fide the Door, and the other of the other, ready to knock down the furft Man that eatred; and the Indians that cou'd nor come in there, were got to uncovering the Houfe to fall upon them that way, when the $S_{p a n i / f}$ Troops (in very good uime) came to their refcue. As for the Cacique of Tafcaluea, the frdiant iniad perfwaded him to retife our of danger, and fo had conveyed him away before Sato came to rake his revenge. The Councry abour Manilla is rich and well inhabited, and there are feveral great Walld Towns lying up and down inir. As foos as all the wounded Men were cur'd;

Sooo departed from Manilla, and pafs'd through the Province of Pafallaya. At fome places in this, the Indians made a brisk oppofition as they pafs'd the Rivers, and woud by no means accept of their Friendthip, or have any thing to do with them. In the Province of Chicact, Province. to which 山lcy came next, they mer with a far worfe En-Chret tertainment. The Cacique was to all appearance very kind and friendly to them, and to were a couple more which he brought to Soto, and prefented him with what their Country afforded; but in reality they were their anveterate Encmies, and wexited only for an opportunity to fall upon them, But what thefe cou'd nor do, their Friend the Cacique of Cbicaca did for them ; for the nfoule. Spaniards lying at that Town, and (tho' they had juf rcafons of ufpicion) neglecting their Watch, the Indian came in three or four grear Squadrons privarely in the Night time, and entring the Town, fet it on fire in a moment almoft, and put all into a mof lamentable confufion. The Spanierds run out withour Cloaths or Weapons, their Horics were fome of chem burnt in the Stables, and others broke their Halcers and gor loofe; they were ftunnd with the noife, and fo blinded with the fmoke, that they knew nor whish way to run or go, neither were they capable of obeying any Orders as that time. In a word, had the Indinns purfucd the bufinefs clofe, and made the fighting part of the Attack anwerable to the firing part, the spaniards had been quite ruin'd; but chey thought the Spanireds Horfes that ron loofe about had had Men upon their backs, that were driving about to encompais them in, and fo they xun away as falt as they coud, having done the firft part of the mifchicf. The Speniards loft 11 Men, 50 Horfes, and 400 Hogs , in this fire, befides a great deal of their Cloaths and Warlike Furniture; but to repair the lofs of the latter, Soto fer up a Forge, and made what was neceffary in that refpect. The Indians made anocher geric- Another ral Alfault upon them fome time after this, ber then athute the Spaniards were well encamp'd in a Plain, and keeping a better Watch, they eafily difpers'd thore Inficin Squadrons that came to difturb them. From hence he went through the Province of $Q_{1}$ izquiz̈, and came to the Banks of the noted River Rio Grande, where he cicamp"d, and made Barges for the raffing of thar River; and here they had Maize in plenty. While they lay here, a certain great Cacique that lived on tie ocher fide of the River, came with 200 Canoes full of Indiars, arm'd with Bows and Arrows, and Shiclds; their Bon dies werc painted, and they had Plumss of Feathers of reveral colours, This Flect of Canocs came within a Trecherean ftones caft of the thore, and there the Cacigue and Sora Cisique. enterd into a Conference; and tho the former faid he came to fubmic himfelf, and to receive Soro's Commands, wich a grear deal more to the fame purpofe, yct 'rwas plain that he came to aftuult him cou'd he have found an opportunity. For he wou'd not be courted to come athore; and farther, when he faw Sora and his Men in To good order, and ready for an affaulr, te made all his Canoes give back of a fudden, and retire from the fhore, without any thing of compliment or farewel. Bur the Spaniards were civiller thanthey, for they rook leare of them with their Crofsbows, and killd fome of them. Their Canoes werefurnin'd wîth Tiles, Flags and Plumes, that made 2 very fine fhew. Scto after this pafs'd over RioGrande, and marching into the Councry of this treacherous Cacique be found all the Towns empty of Inhabicants.

The next Province he came into, which was called c/foxi. $\mathrm{Caf} \mathrm{G} u \mathrm{i}$, he met with much better rreatmens; the Pcople atcended his coming peaceably in their Towns, and freely gave him what Provifions they had. The Country was full of great Towns, and they ftood fo clofe together, that from one Town one had the profpea of rwo or three mose. 'Twas fruirful too, and yielled abundance of Wallnuts, Plumbs, (many forts of them better than thofe in Spain) Mulberries, and Fin. The Cacique came forth to receive him with all his principal Men, and offerd him 2 fincere Service, which he did upon all Ocpations as fincerely pay him. His Indians made a Bridge of Trees over a Lake char communicates with the Rio Grande, for Soto and his Army to pais, withour which they had been ar a fad lofs, becaufe of the depth and ftrong current of the Water. By this means he was let into the Country of Pacaba, the Cacique of paceda which wou'd nir fee nor come near them Here were alfoz ${ }^{2}$ undance of grear Towns, and thofe defended with Walls; the chief Town had ftrong Walls befer with Towers, and Loopholes both in the one and the other; it was alfo cocompals'd very near all round with a Ditch, date was Cupplied with Water from a great Iake adjoining. From this Lake the Cacique had cut a Gur that opened opened into the Rio Grande, and brought the Fifh from! great Snows that fell, and partly by the Lakes and Wathat River into the Lake, where the Cacique kept shem trery Roads and Ways through which he was obliged to for his Recreation; and there was borh a valt number, and a grat varicty of Fith in it, moft of which were differcine from the frefh water Fith in Spain, Soto tran vcli'd from hence Southward, and entred the grear and plentiful Country of Quiganfe. The Cacique fent him Prefents, but wou'd not venture to fee him ; his chief Town was the greateft they had yer feen in Elorida. Fron hence he went to the Province of Coligoa, which lies to the North Wett of the former, in she way to which he pafid Woods and Defart places, in many of which there wore lakes and Pools infinitcly replenifh'd with Finh, which was the main of their Diet in this Journey. The People of the Country ficd from the Spaniards; and the Cacique, who was making his cicape with the reft, happen'd to be taken by them, together with fome of his Subjects, of whom Soto notwithftanding demandsd no more than Guides and Intelligence. Here was yaft plenty of Maize, French-beans (berter and larger than Thofe in Spain) and Pompions, which were alfo extraordinary good. Thefe Pcople informing him of the fruitful Prevince of Cayas that lay to the South, Soto procecded to tind it out, and in the way pals'd through that of Palifema, which afforded him but litcle Entertainment; there was but very litele Maize, neither was the Cacique, or hardly any of the Pcople, to be come at. The Cacique (who run away not our of enmity but fure fiar) lefr his Houfe hung with Deer-skins cua:ouny colvurd and wrought, and the floor covcrid with the Came, for Soro to lodge in; and this as a token that he delired his fricndmip. When they came into the Province of c.yst, they found little of that plenty (thas was froken of in any refpea, cxcept Maize, and thas inded was extraordinary. There was no appearance of fuch numbers of Reople neither as the Indians of Coligon had hinted. Soro found in the way parcels of Deerskins laid up and down, which the Cacique had order'd to be left there as a fign of Peace, according to the cuftom of his Councry ; this Prince being catch'd by the Spaniards, gave a good account of the Province as to the well-peopling of it, bur their Eycs did not rell them fo, and they werc forc'd to take the Caciques word fort.
suh made. This Country yiclded them one thing befides Maize, which they had all along wanted, and that was Salt, which the Natives drew grear quancities of from the water of 2 cerrain Lake that was warm, of 2 very brackilh cafte, and plentifully impregnaxed with this Mineral ; 'tis one of cheir bef Commodities, and they exchange it with ocher People for Skins and Mantles.
Soto's Travels thus far are to be computed in this manner, beginning at the Province of Tafcaluca, where rhe laft acioune of them ended. FromTafcalucato Rio Grande joo Leagucs, a low Councry, and full of Lakes. From the Province on she orher fide Rio Grande no Pacaba about so Leagues, and the Country more open, airy and champion, and the beft Peopled in Florida. From Pacalja to luigante too Leagues- From Quigante to Coligoa 40 Leagues. From Coligoa to Cayas as many; and in muit of there places 'ris a plain Councry, the Woods not thick and troubleforme, and the Ficlds fruifful and pleaCant.
So:o baving faid fome time as Cayns, went away to find out the Province of Auticmque; this lies to the South Eaft of the former, and is a fruitful and plentiful Country, at leaft in all thofe refpects thar any Countrics in Florida have had a character already. The Indians voided the Town of Autiampue before the Spaniards came into it, and the Cacique abfonted himelf and wou'd not appear. Soro found this fo good a place, that he took up his Winter Quarters here, and fortify'd his Camp to as to lie fecure from all arrempts of the rndicns. The great Game they had while they lay here was catching of Conies, of which there were a vaft number, and one lort particularly as large every way as the greateft Hares, bur of the fame colour and make with the Spanifh Conics. Here Soto had the misfortune to lofe Orriz fof whom we fooke before) which was no fmall lofs, bocaufe having liv'd to long in Florida, he knew a great many of the Languages, and lerved for an Interpreter wherever they came. Upon this account he was confin'd from travelling far into the Land for the time to come; his Troops allo were fadly thrunk, and all the Horfes almoft dead, and, chofe thar were alive bur in ill cale, having gone 2 Ycar unfhod for want of Iron.
From Autiamque therefore he march'd rowards the Counrry of Nilco, defigning to come to the Sca as foon as poffible, in noder to the gerting fome'Supplies of Men and Hories from Cuba. He pafs'd through the Province of Ay.ss, where he had a bad Journey ont, partly by the go. In the Territorics of Nilco they found fevcral great Towns, and moft of them well replenifh'd with Maize, French-beans, Wall-nuts and Prones: The Indians woutd not come at them any where in thic Country, rion fervo them withany Provifions; and in the chicf Town where the Cacique us'd to refide, thcy fer his Houfe a fire, becaufe the Spaniards thou'd nor lodge in it, and io ron away. As for the Cacique himiclf, he fent joto a Prefent of Pearl, and a Mandic of Marterns Skins, hut did not think fir to come and bid him welcome into his Country.
Soto endeayouring now to find out the Sca, came next Garti,jn. ro the Province of Guachoyn, and to that part of it that is wafh'd by the Rio Grende. The Cacique of this Country came ro Sore, and brought Provitions with him; but ghiatue. he of the neighbouring Tcrritories of Quigalta was a Man of fiffer Humour and higher Mertle. Soto having a mind to make this Cacique pay him the fame refpecit that the others generally had done, fent to tell him that he was the Son of the heavenly Sun, and that all the Caciques as he came along ferv'd and obey'd him; bur hie requefted his Friendihip, and cherefore wou'd have him come and bring fome of the good things of his Counrry with him for 2 roken of that Friendihip. The Cacique Bold Anfwe return'd for Anfwer by the fame Mefenger, Thar where of the C as Soto faid be was the Son of the Sun, if he wou'd command the grear River to dry up he wou'd belicve him; and as for all che reft, for his pars he did nor wie to make Vifits to any, but rather all thofe that had any notice of him came to vifit him, and ferv'd him ren either willingly or by force. And therefore, if he haci a rrind to lce him, he mult come to that Town where he was, "A.ch if he did in a peaceable way, he hou'd be recciv'd in like manncr; but if he came to fighe, he wou'd attend him in his Town, being never us'd to thrink or turn his back for any Man whatfoevcr. -iad Soto been in a gocd cafe, and wou'd the River have fuftr'! him to pals over, he wou'd have gone and cried to ccol the courage of this bold Cacique, who fpoks words to him chat he had never heard from any Intian before. Bue Matters were otherwife, his Forces wers fadly diminilh d, he himfelf was now dangeroully ill, and the River 'iat thofe Parts) was near half a league broad, 16 fathom decp, and run with 2 very fwift current. Thisfretted him extremely, and twas a great difturbance to bim thar he cou'd no way find our a palfage ro dhe Sea, nor had no profpect of coming well out of this Country again. In fhort, with Sorn's deah there diftempers of his Mind, and that of his Body, (which to be fure was nor a litule heighuned bv the other) Sore was quite overwheml'd, and died in this Province of Guacloga, nominating litys Mrfcofco de Aivaredo his Camp-Mafter General and Governour, in his ftcad. There was fomething to do to conceal his Dcath from the Indians, becaule twas probable they might take fome advantage by it, for Sota had made them believe (at leat perfwaded them to it) that the Chriftians were lmmor ral ; the contrary of which, when they had found by experience, and that in the cafe of the greatelt Man of them all too, they would have been the more encourag'd to make fome farther Expeximenrs upon"their Mortality. The account therefore they gave of the Matter to the Indians that enquired after him was this, That he was gone to Heaven, as he us'd to do fometimes, and be caufe he was to ftay there 2 few days abour bufinets, he had for that reafon fubftitured another ro govern during his ablence. But, in hort, they eafily guefs'd the rxuth, fudiant difce. and difcover'd that his Body was imprifon'd under verthe deati ground, hard by one of their Town-Gates, inftead of mouncing above the Clouds, and Aying up inro Heaven; for they obferv'd the Earth turn'd up there, and made figns to one another, intimating they knew who lay there. Upon this account Mofcofo was fain to remove him, and inftead of the Earth, to give him a burial in the Water ; fo his Body was thrown into the Rivcr, and that rithout any thing of the Ceremony due to fo great and valiant a Commander.
It feems 'tis the Cuftom in this Country, (as well as in many orhers both in the Eaftern and Weftem Worlds) for the Deaths of Lords and Caciques, to be atiended with thofe of Slaves and inferiour Men; for the Cacique of Guachona fent two Indiens to Mcfceno, on purpole to bc Sacrific'd upon the Occafion of Sori's Deach, and to ar cend and wait upon him where he was now gore, but Mof cofo did not fend them upon that Errand. The Spe nierds had now nothing elfe to do bus to find theit way out of the Councry as faft as they cou'd, fince he that broughr them hither, and kept them here, was gonc They refolv'd to travel by Land, nor purting themiclyes to any farther trouble about looking after the Sea, efpecially fince rhey were foill provided for a Voyage, as hating neither Ships, Compals, Chatt, nor Pilor. In purfuance of this tefolution, they march'd through the Protinces of dguacay, Amay, Nagateux, Nifoom, Nandacao and Soncatina, cven as far as the River of Daycno ; in which march they were exceedingly flurrafs'd and $\mathrm{f}_{2}-$ tigu"d, the Indians that they feiz'd for Guides leading them many times purpofely ous of the way. And here when they came to this River, they found 2 poor and a barren Country, cou'd ger no Intelligence, nor had no profpect of continuing their Journcy with any manner of fifety through the Land; fo that now they were reduc'd to very grear diftreffes, and cou'd not tell what courfe to tain to deliver themelves. The Journey they had made of it from Cryas (where the laft computation broke off) hither was thus: From Cayns co Autiamque near 200 Lcagucs, hilly ground : From auriamque to Aguacey 230 Leagues, plain cver ground: From Agurcay to the River of Daycan, where they now were, 120 Lcagucs, all hilly Country. When they faw that there was no going on by Land, they detcrmind even to go back again to the Pronince of Grackoyn to the Rio Grande, (made remarkable by Soro's Death and Burial in it) and there build chem fome Veffels, fuch as the Marcrials they con'd get wordd allow, and fo venture at laft to Sea. So they wravell'd Eaftward back 2gain, from the Riverfot Dirnye to the Country of Guacboya, where they had, been biffore, a long and tedions march, efpecially to be gone twice over in no purpofe.

As a certain place upon this Riper calld D/inoge, they fpent their Winter, and improved it in making feven Brigandincs, which they had Timter enough for, luts were forcd to caulk with Hemp and Flax: Howetcr, as it happen'd, they had fome good Workmen amongft them, withour which this Project alfo had been of an impofiible cxecution, (they muft bave Winter'd in Floridn) perhaps for crer

While ehey ftaid hete, 18 or 20 of the Caciques atour them form'd a Pectign of affaulting them, and had a great force of Meeready for that purpofe; bur Mofoofo difcover'd the Plor in good time, and letting the Indinins know as much, rhey ware afraid to give them ans difurbance.
When the time of Year was come for failing, they went aboard their Veffels, and fail'd down the Rie Grande from Minoy, and were 17 days before they came to the Sca, the diftance run being abour 250 Leagues. Near the Sea thar River is divided inro two arms, cach of them a League and half broad; it runesuith 12 violent fream invo the Sea, and the Coaft is io fhallow and gerele, that the frefh Water enters a great way into the falt. Proyidence favour'd them in their Voyage fo rhat afoef 52 days failing they came fafely into the River Panyeo, the number of them then living being 311 , and the time that they were our, from A. D. 1539. to A.D. 1543.

Thus we have feen bow tnforrunate Florida has been to the Spaniards; but Reru and Mexico were fo very kind and fortunare to them, that rhey might eafily forgive this for being orterwife.

A brief Account of fome of the frrt French Voyages to the Northern Parts of America.

IN A. D. 1524 one Fobn Verrazano a Florentine, was Fent out by King Francis the Third, and the Queen Regens his Mother, who is faid to have made Difcoveries from the 28 th to the 5 oth degr. N. L. apon which fore fome of the French Nation have pretended a Right to all that Coaft, and made their. Nesp France almolt as big as all Europe befides.. Wherein tis certain, that shey are very greatly miftaken, fince allithat Tand, and much more, had long before been difcoverd by Sir S:Laftian Ciblor foit the King of England, and he was without doubt the firft. that let foot upon the American Continent on the behalf of any Chriftian Prince; and this he did $A$. D. 1496. or, as others will have".is, in 1497.

Cenr wis Chafillicn, fent Monficur Ribale to difcover the Conft of Fiorida, and the adjoining Parss. He arriv'd as cipe Francri in Florida, which lies in 30 degrees; to which Cipe he gave that Name, as alfo to the River there doe Name of Mor, and to leveral other Rivers the Names of fome known in France. He buile a Fort and firnilh'd 25 with Provilions, and 10 lcaving 2 Colom there he came home aqain; but thofe left behind, tho the Indians werc kind to them, cou'd nor be kind to one another, but mutiny'd and fought, and at laft all came away, being like to be famif'd cre they reach'd England where they went alhore.

The fanc Admiral procur'd the King to fend three Ships more to the fame Coaft, in A. D. is $6_{+}$under the command of Monfieur Lexdenniere, who went afhore about 10 Leasues from Cape Frances, and the Indians received hin with a great deal of kindnefs.
Some Parss or orther of this Country, affords Silver, for Loudonniere had a wedge of Silver prefented him, which was faid to come from the Province of Thimogon; tho' we hear of no parricular difcovery made of that Province. Only this is faid roo, that fome of the French Soldicirs affiting one of the Savage Kings in his Wars, brought away with them fome quannizes both of Gold and Silver, but how much, on from whemee they don'r tell us.
A grear Lightning happened hers, which burnt up soo Acics of Land, and kill'd all the Fowl thercabouts; and afrer it follow'd fo violent a heat, that the Fifh in the River of May died with it by whole Carr loads, and from the parrefaction of chem proceeded feveral grievous difeares: The Savages believed the French had done all this mifchief wirh their great Guns, and thar rhat was the Lightning that killed the Fowl in the Air, and made the Fion die in the Rivers.
They faw here a Wonder of Old Age that defertes to old Man. be rememberd, a Man with fix Generations defcended from his own Loins, he himfelf being almoft 300 Years old, and his immediate Son near 250. The Erench ruin'd their Defigns here again by Mucinies, Divifions and revk Quarrels amongt chemielves; fome run away to the Spaniards atCuba, and others ftaid where they were, living in great diftrefs for want of Provifion, even to che next degree to downright ftarving, Bur Sir Foim Hamp kins happening to come chicher with 4 Englifh Ships was fo charitable as to afford Landonnicie and his company one for their Tranfjortarion home. Bur as they Fourth Expe were preparing for their Voyage, in comes Monfieur Ri- dirion. bats with 7 Sail from France, which the Adminal had emt for the recruit and maintaining of the Colony there. This put 2 ftop to the Voyage, and the French were now in hopes of getring the Gold Mines of Apalatci into drive ctem. their hands, (fome proofs of which they had feen) when our. 2 Fleer of 7 Spanifs Ships, guided by one of the run2way Frenctomen, came to drive them all away. As for Landomniere, he made his efcape, and came home fafe to France; but Ribalt was firft wrack'd, and afterwards Maffacred, with all his company, by the spaniards. The Spaniards itrengthned themfelves here with three Forts, one begun by the french; and two others built by themfelves; buc they horribly exafperated the Natives here, as they do every where, and prepar'd them for revenge. But this kindnels of the Spaniards was well requited by the Erench, in A.D. r567. under the Command of Mon- Fifh Expr. feur Gourges, who coming. with three Ships, made a League with feveral of the Savage Kings, took all the Forts, and killd all the Spemards. And to oblerve the French drive Lex salions in all poimss he hang abundance of the outsthe spe Spaniards upon the very fame Tree on which the French: niate Spaniards upon the very fame Iree on which the French had hung a Year or two ago: And the Spenif Admiral Lex saizmit, hid writect over the French in great letters; I do nor ting

Chap.X YIII. A Voyage io Canada by Samuel Champlain.

as 00 Prenchmen bnt as to Lutherins; to Gonres likewife|ffand, which receives ity Name from the incredible mulyofit over the Spmintrds Heads, I do not thei as to Spaniards, but as to Rabbers and Murderers. He razid all the Forts, not having. Men to keep them, and fo came bome to France, where he was ill rewarded by his Prince, tho the Voyage was undertaken ar his own, not the publick Coft; he was forcd to hide himfelf, (the King of Spain had fo poffers'd the French King in his prejudice) but in Finghand he mer with good Entcrtainment from Queen Elizaleth:
crifil
One Faques Carticr, in A. D. 1; 34. fet out from Sc.Ma-hand, which receives its. Name from the ircredible mut leems to have done no more this time than the finding our thefe two INands; however, the nexr Year, he went ont again with three Ships, and came to Sr. L.amprence's Bay;' ro Camada and Hochelaga. After this the King of Framer fent him again, in A.D. $1540^{-}$.2s allo Frauces ds (a Roche, Lord of Robewall, to be his Lieurcmait in Canada. This latter went in A. D. 1542. bur only built a Fort and Winter'd there, and then came back ; fo that the French, as yer, had litule or no foping in thefe Parts of the World.

C н A P XVIII.

An Account of a Voyage to Canada, by Samuel Champlain: Dedicated to Charles de Montmorencie Lord High admiral of France.

R.D. 1603

THE Voyage truicher containg no remarkable O ccurrence, exceps that only of the vatt Banks of Ice they mier with. They werc indeed rather fo many fioating lands, being bige criourh for the Habitations of many thoufonds of Animals, and many Iflands in the Worldare wellinhabited that are lefs than they. Thore were two of them particularly that were abore 8 Leagwes tong ; one of which chey faw whein they were beeween: 44 and 45 dcgr . N. I.

The Port they fift anchord in the Coustry was that of Taduufac, which is torm'd like aCreek in the entrance of che River of sigiucmy. It is but a frmall Port, and lies open ro the $S$, and S.S. E. Winds; brat there is Warer enough to the Foftward, rowards the opering of the River of Sazucnay zilong'by a Hill, which is almoft cut off from the Main by ithe Sea. Ar the emprance of it there are two Roifits, the one on the Weff-ride, which the other on the S. We. fide, comraining a quarter of $: 2$ leagu", which the icall che Poinr of all r/re-Druis, Theie two. Poinss ate very nerr a:League:afunder, and are dry arlow water. They broughtalong with chem 2 couple off Savages, which bad formetily been carried from this Conntry into itance, and very well ufed chere; for this tnid particularly, that they might commend the bounry and kindneis of the:Frewch. Nation to their Coumtrymen at home, and 'so :make way for their Setilemens in the Country.

The 'great 'Sagame, or Sanage:King, was.ar'their arrival engagedin a grear. Feallat the pointof.St:Marthews, and there 'rwas that the French Hiad their:fint Conference with him. The Sawage ethar was to tell the ftory of their good uffge-in France, and of thar Prince's.defires to plant his Subjects amongft them, Wid irforeffectually, that Ifnciditijiou, the Grand Sagromo, was tighly pleas'd, and eafity granred all; and all the reft vef the suramos:cx-obraind over the frogoeze their Enamies, abour:one bundreit of wefleids theyl hadi broughe along with them, the better to grace the Ceteriony. IIr the: grear Cabbin wheréther wore met cogether, they. hod: 8 or 10 feveral Fires abouin 6 paces diftant from one another, overerers one of which were hang:arketrel fual of fome forr of Acth, cither Wild Kowl, Bever, Bear, Seal, or Orignac which is likean Ox." While Dinner was dreffing, one which is like an Or. ftood in the midulle of she Cabbin; and when he came by thegreat s.tyem:, he threw the Dog down upon the ground, at which all, with one confent; cried ho! ho! ho! Which done, that Man went and fat down in his piace aga:n, and anochis rife up and did the like; and thus they frent the time till their Victuals was ready. When they wear so carimg, every Man had his Dith before him made of the Bark of a Tree, and a certain Perfon timat Cary'd gave to every one his Portion. When their hands were greafic, they wip.d them either upon the hair of their own heads, or that of cheir Dogs backs. After Dinner they went our to dancing, and to exprefs the grcater joy, did it wish the Hcads of thicir Enemies in their hands. In thele dances they ufe no great mo tion, but do more by odd geftures and turnings of the: Bodies chan any thing clfic. When the Men began io lang, all the Women and Maids, which Kat down in ranks by one anocher, ftarted up of a fudden, and threw off their Mantics of Skins, Aripping themfelve as naked as ever they were born; and when the Song was ended, and the Men with one voice cried ho! ho ho ! the Women and Maids far down again in their pla ces, and cover'd themfelves with their Mantles; and there odd actions they repeated feveral times. Thefe Pcople are of an Olive colour, more by reaton of the paint chey ufe than by Nature; they are generally of veJy good thape and well-proportion'd. Their Habit is nbi: Skins.and Farts, with which they are entirely cover'd in the Wiprer, but in Summer only a; part of their Bodies At that rime allo they make a fort of Rackets, which they fuften to cheir feet, that they may go over the Snow withounfinking. In the fevere Winter-Seafons chey are bitrenty pinch'd for iRrovifions, becaufe abundance of ch Animals they live upon retire themfelyes imo warme Climates. They have much more Senife and Ingenuity Mincery mad than many of the Americens have, but are revengeful, Relibioa. falfe and treacherous. In their Confults and Debates only the Ancients are prefent; and 'ris a euftom with them wo: ftopin their Speeches, and think a while, and then go on again, As for Religion, they believe one God, one Mother, one Son, and one Sun in the Firma merit, but thar God is above all the reft. There's lintle Derx:on. fign of any extermal Worlhip or Devorion amongtt them and the grear Sagame gave this account of the matte: That every one ipray'd in his Heart what he thought good. And concerning the Original of Mankind, their Eainh is, That when God had made all things elfe, the rook a bundle of Atrows and ftock chem into the ground rom whence grew Men and, Women.
Marriage amongt chem is a Woman's making choice marriage of that Man for her conitane Companion and Bedfellow that the has made trial of before, for $4 ; 5$, or 6 Years more or lefs as fle pleafes.. And 25 she has the liberty of trying a grear many, fo 'ris pant all doubr that the takes him whom fle finds the molt agrecable Companion düring the cime of bis Probation.
In their Funcrals they do no more, than pur the dead Funcris Body into 2 grear bole in the ground, rogerher with all the Goods and Houlhold-ftuff belonging to them; fo that this is not only a burial of Bodics, bur of Pots, Pans, Ketres, and the like Lumber. When their Frientifs are dead, they fay they are gone inro far diftant Countries or rejoice with heir Relarions and Acquainrance.' MonGeur Chrmplain preach'd the main Points of the Chriftian Religion to them, and tho' they were patient hearers, and approvers of thar Law, yet he does notrell as that any of them proceeded fo far as to be doers of ir,' and to renounce their owńn barbarous Rites and Cüfoms.
The Cabbins or Houfes chefe People dwell in are low, Hoine made like Tents, and coverd wich che Bark of a Trec, only they leave an open place in che Roof, about a foor wide, to lex the light in upon' them 's they make feveral fires in the middle of thent; and there are many zlmies ight or ren Houtholds rogether in one Cabbin. They ic upon Skins promifuioully by one another, and the Dogs lic ly their Malters fides upon the fame Courches.
Their Canocs are made of the Bark of the Birch-tre and are Areage:hened within with feveral litrie circles of Wood; we fuppofe chey mean Hoops, or fomething of that mature. They are fo very light, that a Man may carry one of them cafily, and the Natives very frequently Jo 10 , when they have occation to pals any land from ene River to another. Thsy aue 8, 9 or 10 paces long, and half I road in the midelle, bur they grown narrower towards the ends; there are but two that row in them, and thols are the Man and his Wifc.
As fire the actions of the $F$ entb in the Country this time, they made fome diforcics buth of the River of Sreme, $c$, in the menth of which the Tom of Tadonfic ftands, and ais. of the great liver of Conedr. As for the former, they went no farther than 10 or 12 l cagucs up it, ain! fo came not near the grater fall, whith by repore is berwent to and solesencs from taraifec. Lis nehers. and then feveral Lakes communcating with one arotice by insermediate Rivers; the fartheft of all which Iak:s are pioperiy the head of this River Saguenay. is far as they went the: found the Country mountaincus and rock: oa both fides the Kiver, the Soil unplea-ain inhasised by nothing bur a fow fmall Birds. Bua then Virege in quaft of the fall of the great River of Canola was mere conlincridit, in orucr to which they fer out of Tascu'a: and patid loy Herc-pland, the lland of is about 7 Leagries fretn Tadouffrs; and contains nothing renarkabic. The lecond is plealant and wooddy, has ftore of Slaze, and a good bravel Soil; ir's within two Leagess of Harcm Mand. The Ifand of Orlcans is a fmooth level, and dulightul foor, and about 8 Leagues lonis tis dangerous paining by the North-fide of it, becaufe of the Bailks of Sand and Rocks chat lie between it and the n.ain land, wince' 'tis almeft dry ar low Water.

After this they came to an Anchor at Queber, which is 20rbre. - 2 Streight of the faid River of Canadn, which is fome 300 paces broad. Excepting one very high Mountain on the North-fide of the Streight, the Country is plain and level, fult of fine groands befit with Oaks, Birches Firs, Cyprefics, Wild Vines, and leveral forts of Fruirbearing Trecs.
The Frouch fay alfo, that along the Coaft of Quebec berreer than thofe of Alonfon; from Quejece to the Illand of Fillerds are 29 Leagucs. Beyond Qrebec the River grows wider and wider, in fome places a League broad, in ochers a League and half, in others two Leagues, which is the inoft. The profpect of the Country grows alfo pleafaiter fill, and yeu hee all low Champion Siderable.

The North Coaft is full of Rocks and Banks of Sand, and therefore railing that way you muft rake the. Southfide, and po about half a League from the fhore. From gazbec they laild to St. Croix, which is 15 Leagues farther, and the Counury corrinues ftill the fame pleating proppect. ahe ground lexcl; and abundance of good Fruit-srecs, befides plenty of Woods which ftand well to the eye; the Soil is. black and foft, and only wants Art and Induftry to improve it so very good purpore.
They kepe fall Coafting on by the North flores and kinet of the Kiner of the Irogurice
rent, infomuch that their attemprsto go up it were fruftrared; it is at leaft 3 or 400 paces broad, and has reveral 10ands in if. Proceeding on wowards the fall of the grcat River of Canadn, they difoover'd abundance of Illands, many of thich were extremely pleafant and fruitful, efpecially them rowards the South Coaft, where they found in fome of them moft forts of the fmaller Fruits; as Scrawberries, Rasberries, Goofeberiics, with many orhers they did not know : As alfo for Animals, Does, Conics, Bears, Bevers, Otrers, witin a great many other kinds they had not feen before. When they came to the Grat fillor. entrance of the fall, they found an lland almoft in the the Rivir uf very midule of that entrance on the South-fide of which they pals ${ }^{\circ}$, and tho they quickly began to fint the fwift curren: of the Water. yet they found it withal exrremely low and hallow, fometimes nor exceeding s, 4 , or. 3 -foor: Abundance of Rocks and littre Inands allo he Cratter'd abour in the Rircr, many of which are juft cren with the water. Upon all thefe accounts they faw there was no going farther in the Pinnace, and fo the Skiff was made xcad;, in which the Author, with one or two more, and a few of the Saraces for their Gaides, atrempted to purfue the difcovery of the fall: And they went fo far as to be able to give this account of it. That the warex runs with a force and fwifonefs that is very furprizing, yet the fall is as it were ftep by ftep, and the depth fomerimes not above one or twofathom, and never above three fathorn. The breadth is about a league. and there are abundance of Rocks and Mllands up and down in ir, particularly in the middle there are feveral ong narrow lfands, that make the fall divide is felf into two others; one to the North, and the orther to the Sourh-fide, both which are very dangerous for any Skiff or Boar, tho' ever fo fmall, to pafs, and nothing bus the. ight Canoes of the Savages can poffibly do it. The French wert afhore and cravell'd a while by the River, to fee if they could find the end of the fall, and baving gone about a Leagre, they found no more Rocks, not any thing of fuch a fall as before, bar the water contanued running with 2 frange fwittnels, and thar current (as the Indians faid) held on for 3 or 4 Leagues.
The Sarages alfo inform'd them, that after this firt Acoount pigreat fall, there are feveral ochers to be palsd, and fo rnby tix through 2 concinuation of Falls and Laker, (many of which communicates with one another by Rivers, and are vaftly large and wide) forme of them had pasid a great way in their Canoes, but they had nor feen the end of it nor how far they cou'd have gone that way. The firft fall 10 which the French came lies in 45 degrees N. L. and according to all that they cou'd gather from the defripcions of theSavages, they found is muft be neas 400 Leagues from thence to the South Sea.

Afrer this they retarn'd to Tadoufac, from thence they Other Yon: ler our again failing to Gacbepay, the Bay of Cods, the Restorth Ifand of Percee, and the Bay of Hear, but in this Courle they made no remarkable Obfervations nor Difooveries. Gachepa is fciruated abour 100 Leagues from Tadoufac, in a fair Bay about, 7 or 8 Leagocs long, and 4 broad in the mouth Thefe Bays are nor rery far diftanc from one another, and all of them (as alfo the Ifand Percee) are places for green and dry Filh.

They faw nothing of Gold or Silver in all their progreffes, at leaft they would not tell of it if ebey did, ony there were fome fulpicions of a Silvex-Mine near a cerrain Bay in about 44 degrees S.L. within 5 or 6 Leagues of the South Coaft. Copper-Mines there certainly were coppet: in the Country, as parricularly near the River of Souricoua, mince. where their Countryman Monfieur Prevert had been to make trial of them, as he himfelf inform'd them ax the Ifland of Rercee, from which place' tis not difficuic to find the way to the River of Sourricoun. With chis Perion chey the way to the River of Sourscoun-. With whaterion they recum'd back again into France, where whatlocrer Dincoveries they made to their own Prince, they do not think corell the World any more.
came to the mouth of the River of froqueze, in which Rivers, too many to claim 1 particular defcrippion ; but this is obfervabice, that we Land for the moff part yield-Vincs and Wallnut-ress, which were in abondance, mades ir muxitiff ' 'was nox a barrea Soil.
The Rifer.of the Cicqicici runs with 2 vecy rapidCor-

C н а р. XIX.

Monfeur Monts's Voyage into New France; Written by Mark Lefcarbot.

The French King's Patent granted to Mon. fienr de Monts, for the Planting of Canada, Grc.

$\therefore \mathrm{H}$Enry, by the Grace of God; King of France and Navare. To our dear and well-beloved the men of our Chamber, greeting. As our greateft carc and labour is, and flath alyays been, frice our coming to this Crown, to ninaintain and conferve it in the an-- cient dignity, preatnefs and fplendour thereof, to ex-- tend and amplify as much as lawfully may be done, ' the bounds and limits of the famc. We being, of a long time, informed of the fituation and condition of che Lands and Territorics of La Cadic, moved above - all things, with a fingular zeal, and devout and con-- flane refolution, which we bave taken, with the help and afiffance of God, Author, Diftributer, and Pro© tector of all Kingdoms and Eftares, to caule the Peo. "ple, which do inhabit the Country, Men (as this pre-- icnt timc) Barbarous, Atheifts, withour Faith or Re-

- ligion, robe converted to Chrifianiry, and to the Be-
- lice and Profeffion of our Faich and Religion; and to - draw thein from the ignorance and unbelief wherein
- they arc. Having alfo of a long cime known by the
- Relation of the Sea Captains, Pilors, Merchants and - others, who of long time have haunred, frequented and ? trafficked with rhe.PRople that are found in the faid pla-- cec, how fruifful, commodious and profitable may be © unto us, to our Eftares and Subjects, the Dwcling,
- Poffefion and Habitation of tholc Countrics, for the " great and apparcat profit which may be drawn by the - greater frequucntarion and habirude which may be had with the People that are found there,; and che Traffick 'and Commerce which may be by that means fafely - ucared anti negooiated. We then for thefe caufes fully ‘ trufting or your great Wifdom, and in the Knowledge
- and Experience that you have of the quality, condition and firuation of the faid Councry of Le Cadia. for divers ind fundry Naxigations, Voyages and Frequen-' tations that you have made into thoie Parts, and others
- near and bordering apoo it, afluxing our felves that this our refolution and intention, being committed unto - you, you will attentively, diligenty, and no lefs"cou"ragioully and valorouly, execare, and bring to fuch perfection as we defire, have exprefly appointed and
- cftablifhed you, and by thefe Prefens, fignced with our owr hands, do commis, ordain, make, conititurc and eftablifh you, our Licutenant-General, for to reprefent - onr Perfon, ini the Countries, Temintories, Coaits and Confines of La Cadia, to begin from the 4oth degree unto the +6 th, and in the fame diftance, or part of it, "as far as may) be done, to eftablift, extend, and make 4 to be known our Name, Mighr and Aurthotiry. Aind - under the fame to fubject, fübmit and bring to obedi© ence, all the Propte of the faid Land and the Bordecres thereof: And by the means chereof, and all lawful ways, to call, make, inftrne, proove and incire them to the knowledge of God, and to the light - of the Fiith and Chriftian Religion, to eftablifh it - there: And in the exexcife and profeffion of the fame, kcep and conferve the faid People; and all other lnha-birants in the faid places, and there to command in - peace, reft and tranquilliry, as well by.Sea as by Land: "to ordain, deciac, and caufe to be exccuted all that
- which you thall judge fir and necelfary to be done,
- fir to maintain, keep and conferve the faid places un- der our Power and Authority, by che forms, ways and means prefribed by our Laws. And for to have there ; a care of the fame with you, to appoint, eftablifh, and conftitue all Officers, as well in rhe Affairs of Wat,
"as for Juftice and Policy, for the firt time, and from
- chence forward to name and prifent them unto ns, for
' to be difpored by us, and to give Lictcrs, Titles, and fuch Provifoes as fhall be necelfary, Er.

Givern ar Fountain-bleau the eightb day of November, in the Tear of Our Lord i603. and of our Reign the fifteenth. Signed Henry, and underneath by che King, Potier. And fented upon a fingle Labet pith yellom Wnx.

THO' Monfieur de Monts Name be only mentioned Monfuur ds in chis Tide ard Patent, yet we muft know that Nom, oot feveral others were "oncern'd in the Voyage as well as yone lone in the him, and as chey were all Men of fome note, fo che courfe of the Srory will make is appear that what he did, as to the point of Difcovery, was bur little in comparifon with whar they did.

There went along with him Monfiear Pourrincourt Marchi and Monfienr Cliamplain, he whofe Voyage was dclivcr'd A.D. 1624. juft before. They had no more than two Ships, and tho they fet out at a cime of Xear. when contrary Winds were hardly to be expected by thofe that fail to thof Parts, yet they were diftref'd with them fo far, as to render cheir Voyage much more long and redinus than otherwife it wou'd have been.
Being come as far as Sand-ffand, they faild to the cope ds 3 : South of ir, and came to Cape de Scble, and from thence we. to the Bay of St. Mary, which they commend for a vety commodions place to dwell in, and fay alfo that chere are boch Iron and Silicer Mines there.
From hence they procceded to a great Bay which is 40 Leagues long, and is at lcant broad, and which they call'd La Bay Francoife, or the Erench Bay. Hexe they found 2 moft delectable Porr, to which they gave the Name of Port-Royat ; 'tis $$$ Leagues in Circuir, defended with Mountains on the North-fide, and on the Souch erri-Eme: with fmall Hills which pour ouc a -rhoufand fine freamos, that renders the place cxtremely plèafanc. On the Eaf between che Mountains and the Hills, is a River in which the Ships may fail 15 Leagues and more, and on the Banks on both fides is nothing but fair Meadorrs all the way; this they call'd the River to Eguille.
From Rort-Royal they faild to che Coppci-Mines, cooper. menrioned in Monfeur Chrimplain's Voyage. This was a Minpe. high Rock between two Bays; the Copper appear'i very fair and pure, and the French Goldfomiths fancied 2 Golden Mine might be at the bottom. There was fome ftore of Diamonds too abour thefe Rocks, tho nor warranted for fine ; and a certain fogc of blueStones, which they reckon'd not lefs valuable thian Turquefes.
From the Copper-Mines they came to the River of Sr. Foinn, the Country along by which is very fruitful Riterof Trees. This River affords a good conveniency for a axcy of it Correfpondence between Port-Roal and the grear River of Canade, forPeople may hear of one anocher this way in 16 or 17 days, which they can'e do by the way of the Sea in a Month, nor then neither withour danger ; for in 6 days time they go to Gachepay by the Bay or Galph of Cbalear, and in 8 days they may go to Tadoufa by a branch of this River coming from the Ns, W.
 which is 20 Leagues diftant, and here they refolvid to make their abode for fome time. This Ifland is half a League in compals, and the mark to difcover it is three or four Mountains topping one another upon the fides, but ar the North end only one farp pointed one, from whence the River runs down. Rightover againt the Iland are ftore of moft pleafant frefh warer Brooks, and the-Soil there is very rich and fat, and needs litrie Til lage to make is. yield fair crops of Com; for Monfieus Morts : fow d fome Rye, which he was forcd to leave there angatherid, but two Years after fome of the company found aglorious crop there, which had fprung up fro:n the grains thar had fallen into the ground.

REafs
Morficur

Monficur Poutrincourt faild away from hence into France, leaving Monfieur Monts and his company here; but terrible illneffes forc'd him and them to remove from hence alfo into other Quarters, which they fer our to feek as foon as the rough Scafon was over. They wanting a inore warm and remperate Dwelling, went to the Southern Parts to find is out. The Voyage shey made im order to it was 120 leagues, from Sr. Croix to the Ri ver Kimibeki 60 Leagues; the Coaft lying Eaft and Weft and from Kimitcki to Malebarre 60 Leagues more, the Coaft lying North and South. The Rcople that lie from Sf. Folns River as far as Kimibeki are called Ertccoemins, and thofe from Kimilecki to Malcharre go by the Name of Armoushiquois, an odd Cort of People, as we mall fee afrerwards.

Tho the Country hercabouts was more agreeable and temperate than that from which they removed, yet they Ataid here but a fmall cime; for Monficur da Ponr, who had been with Monticur Cbamplain in thefe Parss bcfore, arriving from France with Recruits of freh Men for Monficur do Monts, they agreed all to return back to Port-Comeropurt-Ryyel, and make thar their Refidence, rill they bad carnoms apm. ricd on the Difcovery of che Country farther, and found fome more profitable or inviting flace. This defign they put in execution; and being come thither, Monfiear de Monts, and fome of the company, returnd in the Ships to Framic, leaving Monficur du Pont ath the reft, amongot whom the chief wexe Monfiear Champlain and Monficur Champdore, Men acquainted with the Country, and very ufeful in the conduct of the Affairs of the Colony. At partins Monficur de Monts made Monficur du Pont a pro mife, that he would fend him the following Year new Supplics from France to Port-Royal, where be was to flay. the iimited time in expectation of them. And bere it may be faid that they had a pretty good Correfpondence and Traffick with the Savages for Orters, Bevers, Stags, and fuch like things. But he cou'd bardly fadge here any more than Monfieur Monis had done at St. Croix; for fome of his Men died, and what" with one difafter or another, having fpent the moit part of the apfointed time here, he built him a Bark, and one or two Shallops, with which he refolv'd to go no fome of the plares where the French ufe to diy their Codfik, ro get apafiage by thole Ships imo France, if his Recruits did nor come in due rime.
Now Monficur de Monts bad raken care the mean while to furnift out a Ship for this Voyage, into which Monficur Pcutrincourt allo pur himfelf, refolving to ury this Counrry once more; the Writer of this ftory too iMonficur $L e f(a r b o t)$ came over at the fame cime., Their Voyage conraind nothing remarkable in it, bur only the account of the mighry Banks of Ice which are brought down from the North to the. Seas of Neufourdland and Letrciore. Tbat which they call the great Bank is (2s rhe Aurhor affirms, bur more from common eftimation than his own particular knowledge) 200 Leagues long, 2nd 18, 20, or 24 Leagues broad, and here 'ris thar the great filhing for Cods goes on. The mark by which the Seamen know they are near it is a multitade of Birds, the chicf of which are chofe call'd by the Frencl Hapfoyes, or Livex-carchers. becaule they fo greedily devoux the Livers of the Codfin that are thrown into the Sea and 'ris cerrain that they are fo fond of chat fort of Mear that they will venture inco any danger for ir; nay, tho a Po: were lifted up over their Heads to knock chem down, yet they woadd have 2 pull at their beloved Liver.
Monficuir du Ponr was gone from Port-Rgalbefore they came thither, haring left two Frenchmen only for the prcierration of the Srores of Meat and Merchandize repos:d threx; neither did they fcruple to venure themSelves there, amongft a Nation of Savages, to do this Service:to their Country. Before they had been here long, Monficur dar Pont (who was gane to find our fome Frencls Ships, and had had ridings of their being ar PortRoyal) came hither to then; and after fome time (pent rogether, the two companies parted again, Monfiear dil Pont, and fome with him, for France, and Moinfieur Pontrincourt in quet of fome Sourhern Region beyond Ma!charre, where they might meet with all convenieaces for a Plantation.
The Author, and fome others, were left at Part-Rogal in themean cime, where they liv'd in very great plenry, having Bread-Com, Peafe and Beans, Rice, Raifns, Oil and Butter; of their own; and the Country'afforded Wild-geefe and Docks, Larks, and ocher good Fowl, Deer, Stargeon, Salmon; and, in 2.word, any Filh or Ficfli that the Savages conid procure, for whatever Garse came into their hands they woid commonly bring the Frence half of it.

Monfieur Poutrinconf failed to the Iflatid of S: Cioix and from thence to Kimnibck; and fo on to che Bay of Marchin. Here many kindnefles pals'd reciytorally be- Leap, in in twecn the French and che Savzges, and Monfieur d'burrion the "avgh:court made a League with the Priuce of chein.
From hence they faild to the Bay of Chowfoner, at the entrance to which is an Inand full of Vines, the Trunks of which they found to be three or four foor high, and as big as ones tift in the lower part; the Grapes were fome of them as big as Plumbs, Bur the juice fo thick that is left a-ftain behind it upon whatfocter it came. They proceeded to a cextain Port of Cbonakoer, where the Savages entertain'd them kindly, and brought Miscibardize truck with them.
From hence they came to another Port which was farther than Monfiemer de Monts had evar been, who he had (as was faid before) been as far as Malcharre, which is beyond the Bay of Cliouther. This Porr was a very delightful one, and now they were in the Culntry of the? Armouchiquis, a therifh, ly fort of Pcople, and who muft be natrowly watch'd by all that have any Dealings. with them. They are much fcard by miany of the neighbouring Nations, and with refpect to their treachery and icfolution, as well as theix thicvilh qualities, they ought to be feard by all Psople, for there's nothing thas hinders them from the accompliflument of any defign they have a mind to but only mecr lmpolibility, or ascidental Fruftration; yet they carried it civilly enough to the French, and were ready to contend with one ancther who hou'd bring them in moft. Provifions.

The Armouchiquois wot'd not let any of their Pcople, that were wounded, be rouch'd by a Erench Chitargeon, till they had firft fung and baul'd over them a while, and then they willingly refign'd them up to be cured. Monfieur Poutrincourt continued not long amongit them, yet neither did be profecute that Sonthern Difcovery, but returning to Malebarrr, proceeded from thence back again to Port-Rogal. Tis ro be noted, that the entrance Buscintrase to Mrlebarre is exceeding difficult, by reafon of the great io Mast bats frearns and hools that are there. The adjacent Country is well Peopled, and affords great toore of Grapes. Being come to Port-Royal, they pafid the Winter there pleafantly enough, having plenty of all forts of ProviFions, and Sports and Recrearions in the Woods and Fields, that help.d to take off the burden of the time that lay upon their hands; bur char Seafon over, and no Recruits coming from France, but on the ocher hand miminow. 2 Melfenger, fignifying, That all the Projects abouritemea Plaiting che Country were broke to pieces, and nothing farther (now at leaft) was to be expected, upon this fcore Monficar Poutrincourt was now oblig'd ro is ak of a fpeedy recorn, which was nor 2 fmall grief to moft of them, the Country being fo fine and charming, and the People To good humour'd about Rors-Roynl where they refided. The Savages exprefs'd no lefs concern (than they) at their departure; yca, they wept hearrily, having been always in hopes that fome Sectletnent would have been made amongit them, Gince the affiftance of che French was to ufefal to them in their many and frequent Wars with their enemies. Howecer Monficur Poutrincourt, tho he came away, yet did it with a firm refolution to retumn thither again as. foon as matrers cou'd be brought to bear; yet he fraid long enough, before he fet friil, to fee a noble crop of Com come up, fomeSamplers of which (of feveral forss' he brought along with him, to let the Frencb Nation fee thar Country was not to: be neglected upon dight and trivial Occafions. Thefe few tokens of the Gritfulnels of the Country, obrain'd the end chey were privikger defign'd for to far, thar the King was very much pleas'd coofrmgd. with what he had feen, and confirm dMonfieur de Monita Privileges to him afrefh. Upon chis, he quickly made Provifion for the laft Improvement of the King's favour, io fending fevcral Families thither to begin the Plantation, and lay che firf Foundarions of 2 French Government. This was' A. D. 1608. and"twas but two Years New Colons. after that (che Canade Affairs going on now more profperoufly) Monfieur de Poutrincourt went over 2gain, as well roldifcharge himfelf of his promife made to the $S$ a- - ponmern ourt rages, is to lacisfy his own inclinations which were agin. Arongly bent to that Counury. He carried over a congderable number of People with him, particularly Arrificers of Ceveral forts, who were very ufeful Mcmbers of a new Plamation
The place be fix'd on for his Sertlement was Rort-Rogal, asibeing thas he had always admired, and was alfo granred him by Monfieur de Monts by the King's Order. Moufieur Poutrincourt, prefently upon his arrival, fer himfelf to the Improvement of the Land, by Hlowing and Sowing, ant Drefing, for she following Icar. After which noceflary care for the Bodics of his own

Peopler

People
ges, ar
the Ch Sacred them.
al, his with and th with t into th was no breath wou'd Neigh
carrya els of Examp
Spirito Spirit, let hin afraid out of court Readre of Co Chompiain's of 0 2nd tb
the gr confid help 0
quex̃", ta Yorage for th:
fince
Her.
riews

Chap.XX. An Account of the frlt Engliih Plantations in Virginia

People, he began to take care of the Souls of the Savages, and after Inftracting of them in fome Principles of the Chriftian Religion, he proceeded to Baptifm, which Sacred Rite was Adminifted to feveral of the chief of them. Particularly there was baptized the greax Sagamo of hise of the Savages, Hat habiredabout Ponour'd al, his Wife and his two Son, he himedibeing Pour with the King of Framce's Name, ine with the Queens, and the rwo Sons, one with the Pope's, and the other with the Dauphin's: The Spirit of Popery was gotren into this Savage King by that time he was baptiad; he was no fooner out of the Font almoft, bur he began to breathe defiance againft all the World about him that wou'd nor be of his Opinion. He threaten'd his Savage Neighbours with Fire and Sword, and was relolv'd to carry all the Plagues and Terrours of War into the Bowels of their feveral Countries, if they did not follow his Example, and become Chriftians as well as he. Bue his Spiritual Fathers, had they been themflucs in the right Spirit, wou'd have told him he was in the wrong, and let him know 'twas the way to make the other Savages afraid of Chrittianity, to fee him come all of a flame out of the Water of Baprifin. Whar Monfeur Poutrimcourt did after his Sertement here we cannor inform the Reader, but we can fay fomeching of Monficur Champtain, that moft Induftrious and Indefarigable Difooverer

of Councies

This Perfon made two Expedicions with the Savages of Quebec; one againft their old Enemies the Iroqueze, and the other to difcover the People beyond the Fallsor the great Rivet of Cansda. The former had no more confiderable in it than this. That the Quebecker;, by the help of the Frenctmen arm'd with Guns, routed the Irequeie, and came back wish a great deal of Triumph.

In the latter Expedition, Monficur Cbamplain did fomething remarkable, for he pals'd above oo Leagucs beyond the Falls of the great River, as far as a certain grear Lake which is soo Leagues long. The Councry hercabouts was crtrencly fine and fruitful, abounding in all the bett of chofe things that have hiutherto bees mentioned as the Products of any of thefe Paxts. The People were valiant, and bold fighers too, and purs Champlain and his company hard to it to defend themrelves. Their Villiges were fortified with ftrong Bar ricadoes of Pales; and rheir Houfes swo or three Storic high. Their Houfes were themfelrss like to man Forts ; in the lorver parts were planted huge great Bows chat difcharged Arrows big cnough to knock a Man down ; in the higheft they had Murdering holes and Bacrelments, from our of which chey 1 ang and caft great Sroner, that annoy'd their enemics at a diftance. In th middle Story they lay up their Corn, and other Provifions; and hither their Women retire themfclves in tic time of action, where they are nor idic neither, but do all the Service their $S_{c x}$ will allow them to do.

There is a vaft ftore of Bevers along this great I.aise, but'ris in vain to come hither to drive a Trade for the Skins of them, for the Reople burn their Be.ers as we do our Hogs, and fo effectually prevent all Trade that way. Monfieur Champlain was fo fer upon the bufinefs of dif:overing this Country, that he refolvid nos to leate offetl he had piered as far as the Weftern Occan, or that of the North, and to to open tic way to Chinc. Bur as many 2 one in this cafe has faild of being as good as his word, To we believe Monfieur Champlain did the like, for with out all doubr had that paffage been open'd, the performance had beea taken notice of in the World.

С н а р. XX.

An Account of the forft Englifh Plantations in Virgiaia.

THE famous Sir Walter Raleigh had fort of all a Ataid notlong there, but leaving 15 Mcn well fuaziniti Patent for thefe Difcoveries, granted by Queen Elizabeth. A. D. 1584 . he fer our rwo Barks for that purpofe, which arxiving on that part of America fince calld Wirginic, took poffetion of the Country in Her Majeflics Name, and returnd afrer taking 2 fhort riew of ic. ser Raleigh with 7 Ships; and came to L'irginia, where he for two Years, to keep poffifion in the Illand of Roanoak, came back to England.
A. D. 1587. Sir FFiller Relcigh fent another Colony ofis bry 150 Parfons, with 2 Governor, and 12 Amiltans:, so whom he gave 2 Charter, and lncorporated ricm by the Name of Governor and Abistants of the City of Reicig' in Virginia. Their directions were to plant as the Bay of Cbefcpiak, and erect their Fort there. Encquiring afrex left a Colone. Thefe Min difooverd from Ronnonk to the Countre of the Cbefepiens, above 180 Miles; anit to Chatomock N. W. as far. The Savages form a Conipiracy againit them, and made them uncafic; fo that Sir Framess Draic, who hat beca plundering Spruifo Towns, coming thicher with his victorious Fleet, they all went back with him to Eingland. This unexpeeted return of che Colons, was the reaton why a good large Ship, fer out by Sirkinlter Releigh the fame Year, coming thither, and finding all the Englifh gone, prefently return'd again, Sir Richard Greenvite alfo, who was abroad with chiree Shiss. arriving as the fame place, and fecing no Colony the is Ergiifh lefe lately in the Councre, they were inormed by Mantco (a Chriften'd Virginizan, and who bad een in England) that fome were killd by the Sarages, and the reft fled for Refuge into the other Parts of the Country. This Colony coud noc tell how to fettle neiher, but growing uneafic under their wants, perfwaded heir Governor ro return home.
A. D. 1590 . Mr. Fabm LEInte, the lare Governor, pur ath Yoper.
o Sca with three or four Ships and pinnaces, and came o Hatorask in $V_{3}$ roinir, bus the bad Weather wou'd nor permir any farther fearch into the Country, fo they faild for England wishour doing any more.

Chap. XXI.

A Relation of, a Voyage to the Northern Part of Virginia; performid by Captain Gofnoll. Written by Mr. Gabriel Archer, who went the Jame Voyage.

CAptaia Gof noll arrived fixtt ar the Northern Parts of this Country, where finding a proppect of things to his liking, he did not trouble himself to undertake the difcorery of the Southern. They went along the Coaft a contiderable way, feeing many pleafam llands, bue for the moft part uninhabired, and yer by their fruifulnefs capable of mainaining a great number of People. The firft Savages they mer with, aftet figns of Pcace made on both fides, and a long Speech made hy their Commander, (which the Englifh ro be fure underfood a grear deal of) came boldly on board their Ship. The Commander himeif was dresed with Walt coutrements of an Eus, Stockins, hat, and all the Ao Decr-skins atout their thoulders; and Seal-skins ried 2bour their middles. They were painted, tho' their matural fwarthy colour was eafily difcernd; their trair very long, and tied up with a knot behind. They had cerrainly converi'd with fome Europerns, as appear'd by fereral of their words, and wou'd fain have had the Capper or mopany of the Englifh longer. The next they met were Copper Ply deck d than the former, having all of them Copper Pendants ith their Ears; but one had a breant plate of the fame Metal a foot long, and hall broad; and another had bis Head all ftuck with Feachers, that rendred him a very frightful Figure. They broughe litthe trifles to Barter, bur they were a flyy, Ay, thievih fort of People. Twas in the Latitude of little more than 42 degr. North, that ibey firft came upon the Virgin:ian hore; and rwas in the Lhti of 41 degr. on min that the Captain fix'd bis Refidence. It was in an Ifland which be calld $E l i z \imath a b c t /$ I/end, that lies 4 Leagues from the Main, a fmall unpeopled Spor and over-ran wich Trees, but fertile and pleafant enough to engage Inhabitants. On the N. W. Ifde is a Lake of frelh Warer almoft a league in Circuit, and very mear the Sea; in the midft of which is another litule Ifland abour an Acre in compzis, and this they thoughr the moft convenient place for the building of a Fort, and therefore began it here. About this lake there was an iafinite number of Tortoifes, feveral forts of Fowl and Fith too, fo that thofe thas liv'd here might have a fair proffeet of Provifions enough.

Elizabsth Illand ic felf," as it abounded with Trees of many kinds, which we fee here in thefe Parts of the World, fo the moft remarkable of all were the Saffafras and the Cherry-trees, as whey call them. The former Fumge
Cicrry-ds are well known for their uie in Phyluck, and are no rarities in this lfand; the lattex bave this exuraordinary in them, that together with the Leaf, Bark, and bignefs, not differcit from ours in England, the Fruir grows at the and of the Stak 40 or 50 in 2 clufter. The Vines were very numerous here roo, and the more common Garden and wild Fruirs in great abundance. The Animals, both Terreftrial and of the Water, are fuch as are common efcry where in thefe Parts, and great plenty of them all. The Mincrals were Copper, Emery-ftones, Alabafter, together wich fome others of 2 blue Meraline colour, which out Author kiew, not what to make of; fome there were chat faid 'rwas Sreel Ore, but they oughe ro bave confidcr'd that tho' Gold Mines are very fearce, yet Steel Mines are certionly much carcer,and they are never found but where a Brafs Mine lies cither art the top or the bortom. There is alfo Srone for all forts of Building, and an Earth which they fufpect may prove of Finc Eatah
The Iland affords alfo Materials for Dying, and for Fitaxco. Smoking ; and no place yields firer Tobacco than this. The main Land adjoining, which they vifited alfo, was The main Land adjoining, which they vifited allo, was irall refpects as charming, as curious Meadows, Groves,

Brooks and Rivers cou'd make it. They had fone communication with the Indirms of the main Land, who came and Barterd with them for fome of thcir European rarities; and there'was nothing hardly but what was to to thofe Pcople. The Commoditics they gave in exchange for Knives, and other Toys; were Bevers, Lucerns; Marterns, Orters, Foxes, Conies, Seals and Decr-skins. They were all deck"d with Chains, Collars, Ear-rings and Bracelets of Copper ; their complexion Olive-colour'd, their ftature much higher than the Englifh, their bair very black and long, tied up behind in knots, in which they ftick feathers, and fo make them look Jike Coronets. Thofe to whom Nature has denied good Beards, boxrow the hair of other Animals to make faffe Beards, and fo fupply that defect.

One of the Englifh Sailors having a Carrot colourd Goed has: Beard, a certainSavage thought it was nor matural, wour of 2 becaufe not of the colour of the hair of his Head, and Savas:having a grear mind to one of that colour, he offer'd the Sailor to change Beards with him, pretending to give 2 very good one of his own making for that bunch of Carrors which grew upon the others Face; bue the Englifoman did nor care to have the hair of a Bear, or a wild Cat pexhaps, planted upon his Cheeks, and therefore told the Indian he would make no fuch bargain with him. Thefe People (thie Women efpecially, to whom the Men are wonderfully oblervant) are cominended by them as fome of the handfomett of America, and very gentle and courtcous too, not much fearful of harms from others, becaufe nor feeming to defign any themfelves; but we doubr this good character will nor agree to all the Virginiens. They ftrike fire with a flat piece of Emery-ftone and fort of Mineral, which they can's rell us the name of, but they have a piece of dry Touchwood ready, which receives the fpark they knock out between the other two. The Alfairs of the Plantation might have gone on very well, had all the Planters been unanimous and eafic in their Setulement here, but they were intent apon their private Inserefts, and contrived only to make a profitable Voyage. The Caprain labour'd apainft it, bur ro no purpofe, ifo having gorten good flore of Saffafras, Ccdars wood, Farrs, and other good Commodities, they fer fail for Englend, leaving their litrle Fort, which 10 Men, in about 19 days, had made fir to harbyur a conifiderable number, rogether wîth their Provifions.

The fucceeding Year, A. D. 1603 . there was a Virgi-Capt. Prins: nicn Voyage, with a fmall Ship and a Bark, fer out at Yoyars. the charges of fome Merchants of the City of Brifol, and perform'd by Caprain Pring. They fell in with the Game Parss of the Country that Captain Gofnoll had been at before, but they tell us nothing new of the Country or People, bur whar we have heard already from the others, Neither did they make any new Difcoveries, or meer with any remarkable Occurrences of any fort; upon which accoums, we fhall nor trouble the Reader wirh any particular account of their Voyage.
The fame Year, An D. 1603 . a Voyage was made to Capt Gitor-:", Virginic in the Elizabetb of London, under che Command unfortumte of Captain Gilbert, in which nothing confiderable, or Vor-ase. valcable, occurs neither. They traded with the Savages at Santa Lucin, Dominici, Mexis, St. Clurifoplore, and from thence proceeded to the Vinginien Coalt, coming to the Bay of Cbefepiak; from wherice zoing farther Ealtward, they went afhoxe, where in the Woods the Indians Set on them, and Captain Gilbert himfelf was one among $t$ 4 or 5 that bad the misfortune to fall by their Arrow. The Voyage chus broken, the refi recurn'd to England.

C н а $\mathbf{p}$ " XXIl.

An Account of a Voyage to Virginia, fet forth by the Rigbt Honourable Henty Earl of Southampton, and the Ebrd Thomas Arundel ; performed by Captain Waymouth in the Archangel. Writcen by $\operatorname{SMr}$. James Rofier.

THE way toVirginia was precry well known, and the Cominerce with thofe Parts in fome meafure advanc'd, when this Ship the Archangel was fent thithicr. She faild on profforoufly till fhe came towards the defired Coafts, and found her felf in the Latitude of 41 degrees and half, where the company 2 2board her began to wiith extremely for 2 fight of the Land tox tecruit their wafting fock of Wood and Warei. And whiceas their Chares gave them reafon enough to expeet it, and they barc in directly with is according to their prefcriptions, yet they found none in almoft so Leaguies running. Bui after much expectation they goc 2 fight of Land, which provid an lland of no grear compass, and very wooddy along the fhore, bur by the Fruirs, that appear'd, no barren nor defpicable fpor; there were ftrearrs of frefh water rumning down the Cliffs in gtear plenty, and vaft numbers of Fowl about them too, and Fin enough all along the thore. From heince they cou'd difeern a great many other Iflands, and the main Land in felf, from the W.S. W. to the E. N.E Several of thefe Illands adjoining to the main Laind they vifired, and found them all very full of Trees, borh Timber and Fruir, and thofe of feveral forts. Some of thimber afforded ar a litule depth, Clay red, blae, white, proper for making Brick or Tiles, And what the Soil of another was, may be gather'd from this experiment of ir, that Peafe and Barley, 2 fmall quantiry of which they fet in 2 dirte Phit, grew 8 Inches in 16 days cime, and fo continued groiving every day more than half an Inch, and yet this was no more than the very cunt of the ground that was thus xich and good:
Amongft thefe Inlands they found a Harbour in which Ships of any burden might lic defended from all mannex Clay Oze , and this they calld Pentecolt Harbour, be Clay Oze ; and caure twas at that time thas they found it.
The Firr-trees were the moft numerous about thefe Inands, and the Turpencine they yielded was the bef and fwecteft our Sailóns pretend crer to havefcen.
The Mufcecs found abour the Rocks afforded fmall Pcarl in abundiance, nay, they found fome that were large and orient ; the ilhells of cheie Mafcles look'd like Mocher of Pearl in ste infide.
Scveral Cainoes of the Savages came off from the Main to traffick with them, as they lay at this excellent Harbour, and the chice Commodities that pafsd were Kniyes, and ocher like triffos, ori one hanid, and Skins and Furs on the ocher. Thefe Skins were the Apparel of the $\mathrm{S}_{2}-$ vage, they hung down no their Knees, and were made faft upon the fhoulder with a learher Srrap. Some of them wore Slecves, others Buskins and no Sleeves; Come the hair of their Skins ourward, others ruxn'd it inwards; and befides all this; they had a piece of Skin ried abour their Wafie, and coming between their Legs to cover chofe Parts which Narure bids conceal. Thefe Pcople wore no Beards, bur the hair of their Heads very long, and tied up behind, tho' many of them were curlpared, and needed no fring for their hair. Their Faces were all painted winh fome colour or other, and Nature had formid them with good Features, tho miferably difguifed by thar bale practife of painting. What Women they faw (which were but few, for cither they were modeit. or their Husbänds jealous) were handrom, fat, and well made, only fomething too fhot They food behind their Husbands, and woud hardly be feen. Their Cbildien were very comely, but all raked except cheir Lege, which were corerd with thirr Leather-buskins Falterid with Straps to a Girdle about their Wafte; chis Girdle is hung all round wich frall pieces of Copper. Thcir Bows, Arrows, and Canoes, had nothing bur what is common enough hamongt thc Savages: Their Tobaccopipes were fometimes maide of Earth, fomerimes the Claw of a Lobfter; but twas always fomething that wou'd hold as much as 10 or 12 of ours. TheSavages and our Men growing pretry well acquainted, forme of Refliari. them lay aboard the Sthip while one or two of the $E \cdot g i / j / b$ went and lay. aftore to fee the Manners of them; but they law nothing that Night or two they lay athore, but an impertinent Cuftom, in which, whilc one of the company xifing up of a fudden, and crying bough, wough, all the Women fall fat upon the ground, and the Men repeas the fame words, thamping with boch feer till they make the ground thake again; which noife is not half ro bad as that they make with their Mourths at the fame time. They hold on ftamping and taring about till fome of the younger fort ferch fome Scones from the fhore, which they take every one onc, and fall a beating (firft of all) the Fire-fticks, and next the ground, wich all their might, in which framtick gettures they continue for two hours ; after which they all retire with theis Wives ro their feveral leparate Manfions in the Woods. The Savages, tho' they feem 'd to be very honeft-mind- $T_{1 \text { resthercis }}$ ed, and to have 2 grear Frienddhip for our Men, yet in Di.fipotitioe reality they had noching lefs, but rathex form'd Defigns to berray them. They woud have drawn tham into an Ambufcade ander a pretence of Trafick, 25 a cerrain place, but they happily difcoverd the Plor, and avoided the ill confequences of ir. As for the qualities of the Main Land, they were (as far as they difcovcid ic) faperiour in goodnefs to thofe of the fruiful IAlands beforementioned, and therefore to be fare rexy fine; but the difcovery of which they feem to be proudeft was thar of $A$ noble Ri2 River, which they do upon many accounts prefer to icreral con: any known Americar River. They went up it with rhcirvenimcsoon. Ship feveral Leagues, and give chis account of it: Thar it for a matter of 40 Miles it keeps a good breadrh, as it runs up info the Main ; in moft placesir is a Mile, fometimes three quarters, bur never lefs chan half a Mile broad. If flows 16 or 18 , foot ar high Water, and as low Water you have from 6 to 10 fathom depth. There are abundance of Harbours for Ships of all Burdens, and which will. fecare them becter from any Wind or Wcather chani any known in Europe. On boch hides there are at 2 frmall diftance from each orber feveral gallant Coves. fome able to concain noo Sail, where the ground is fof Oaze, with a tough Clay undernearh for Anchor-hold Nature alfo has made feveral excclicmr Places, as Docks to Grave and Careen Ships of all Bardens, and fecurt from all Winds. The neighbouring Land rends alons in both fides in a imooth Plain, and inftead of Rocks and Cliffs, one fees borders of green Grals and rall Trees, Firr, Oak, and the like. The ground in a word is fuch that wish a litcte labour ic might be conrected into good Pafture; in manty places'tis all clear Meadow already. The River yields vaft plenty of Filh, and is every way as delightful, as perhaps the beft Rivers of Old, defaribed by the Poets, have been. On both fides therc are sarious branches of it that xin into the Main Land, which afford a very cafie and convenient tranfportation of Goods from one place to anothcr. Thofe that come o Pencecof-Herbour before-menciond, will find this River withour any difficuly; bur this compziny feem to be che farft Europecns chat were crer herg, for ticy conid not difover int all their paftage up the River, by any igns whatloever, that any had been here before them. And whereas tis ufual amongft all Chiiftian Peopic to crect Croffes in thofe Newfound-places, they found zone hercabouts, but yet left one or two to fignific chey had been here. The Company cou'd all have far down Xiay kars cheerfully upon the Banks of chis River, and planted the camex theie; but cheir Commiffion now ran ocherwile, and they were obliged to leave che farther difcovery of this, and the reft of the Country, zill another rime. The Captain having finind all his Traffick with che Sarages

Ker Sail for Eugland, carrying + or $;$ Savages along with hitn; togecher with all their whole Eftates of Bows, As rows and Canocs.

The Reader may pleafe to expect larger and more particular Accounts of the Country and People, in 2 full Difcourfs to that purpofe.

С н А Р: XXII.

An Account of the Plantation of the Soutbern Colony in Virginia, A. D. 1606. Written by Mr. George Percy. To mobich is prefx'd the fret Patent for the Plantacion of Virginia, grantcd by K. James that Jame Year.

King James's. Patent, &c.

JAMES by the grace of God, E'c. Whereas our loving and well-difpofed Subjects, Sir Thomas Gares Sir Greorge Summers, Knighss; Ricbard Hakhupt, ‘ Clerk, Prebendary of $u$ zet minfter, Edmard Maria Wing - feid, Th:mas Hannam, Rawleigh Gilbert, Elquires a H:lliam Parkt, Gearge Pophapp, and divers ochers of - our 'loving Subjects, have been humble Suirors unto a us, that we would vouchfafe unto them our Licenfe to

- makc Habitation, Plantarion, and to deduce a Colony
- of fundry of our People into that part of Amertica
- commonly calld lirginin, and orber Parts and Teri-
, sories in Americr, eithcr appertaining unto us; or which
- now are not actually poffeffed by any Chriftian Prince
- or People, Gruare, lying, and being all along the Sea-
- Conft betivecn 34 degrees of Northerly latimude from
- the Equinoctial Line, and 45 degrees of the fame Jati-
: rude, and in the main Land between the fame 34 and
- 45 degrees and the llands thereanto adjacent wirthin a one hundred Miles of the Coaft thereof. And to that
- end, and for the more fpeedy accomplifhment of the
- faid intconded Plantaction and Habitation there, are de-
- Gaid intcoused liantation and
- Companies, the one confiting of certain Knighos, Gen-
- clemen, Merchants, and other Adventurens of ounCity
- of Lomdon and elfewhere, which are, and from cime to time thall bc joined unto them, which do defire to begin their Plantacions and Habiations, in fome fir and convenienc place berween 34 and 41 degrees of the faid

Coaft of simerica aforefaid. Am the other conffting
'of fundry Krights, Gentiemen, Mexchanss, and othex
- Adventarers of orar, Cities of Briftol and Exeter, and of
- our Townof Plisnaith, and other places which do join
- themiclves unto that Colony, which defire to begin
- their Plancations and Habications in fome fir and con- venient place berween $3^{8}$ and 45 degrees of the faid
* lacitude, all alonget the faid Coaft of Virginia and
- America, as that Coutt lieth. We greatly commen
- dinge, and graciouly acceptiny of their defires, to the
- furtherance of fo Noble 2 Work, which may by the
- Providence of Almighty God hercafier tend to the glone rac.- ry of his Divine Maiefty, in propagating of Chrintan zay to be & Rcipion, to fuch People as yet lire in Dazknets, mupimed be- "ferable Igrorance of the true knowledge and worthip panco of 50 and well-intended delires: And do cherefore or us, ou crltow.s.w. & Heirs and Succeffors, grant and agree that the faid Sir fommenphece. Heisa of thoir niti Thimar Gatrs, Wingfolla, Advencurers of our City of urmino.e. & London, and all fuch cthers as anc of v.E. withan' unto them of that Colony, thall be called the firft $C$ a ginds tor. - loriy and they thall and may begin their faid fort Plan two niks in & tarion and Scar, of their firt Abode and Habiraion she Sen over. apialt hem,: at any place upon the Nop winin - rict, wherc they mhall think fit and 0 .

 some toin- che faid $3+$ and trye all the Iands, Woods, Soil, Grounds bucifick : Havens: Pors, Rivers, Mines, Minerais, Marhes, bacikink wishour the fecialti-ceric io wrising ers.
and Habitation, by the fpace of 50 Mriles of Engition Stature-meafure all alongft the faid Coaft of Virginia and America, towards the Weft and South-weft, as the Coaft licth, with all the 1 Rhands wishin 100 Miles diretty over-againft the fame Sea Coaft : And alfo all the Lands, Soil, Grounds, Havens, Ports, Rivers, Mines, Minerals, Woods, Mirfhes, Waters, Fijhings, Commodities and Hereditaments wharfocver, from the faid place of their firt Plantarion and Habiation, for the 1pace of so like Englifh Miles, all alongt the faid Coaft of Virgisicic and $A$ merica, towards the Eaft and North-aft as the Coaft lieth, rogether wich alli the Ilands within 1 oo Miles directly over-againft the fame Sea-coaft. Ard alio all the Lands, Woods, Soil, Grounds, Havens, Ports, Rivers, Mines, Mincrals Marfics, Waters, Filhings, Commodicies and Hercditaments whatroever, from the fame so Milcs cvery way on the Sea-coaft, directly into the main Land. by the fpace of 100 like Englifh Miles. And thall and may inhabir and remain there, and fhall and may alfo build and fortify within any the fame for their better Safeguard and Dcfence, according to their beft difretions, and the direction of the Councel of that Colony. And chat no other of our Subjects thall be permirted or fuffered to plant, or inhabit behind or on the backfide of them rowards the main Land, without the exprefs licenfe or conifent of the Councel of that Colony, thercunto in writing firft had or obtained. And we do likewifc for us, our Heirs and Succeffors, by thefe prefents, grant and agree that the faid Itomas Popluam, and all ochers of the Town of Plianouth, in the County of Devon, or elfewhers, which are or thall be joined unro them of that Colony, hall be called the focond Colony, and that they fhall and may begin thicir faid firt Plancation and Seas, of cheir firft Abode and Habizacion, at any place upon the faid Coaft of lirgimia and Amirica, wherc they hall think fit and convenient, between 38 and 45 degrees of the fame latitude, and that they thall pave all the Lands, Soil, Grounds, Havens, Ports, Rivers, Mines, Minerals, Woods, Marites, Waters, Filhings, Commodities and Herediramenrs whatoever, from the firft Scat of their Plantation and Habiazaion, by the face of 50 like EEnglife Miles, as is afurefaid, all alongtt the faid Coaft of $V$ Iroinia and America towards the Weff and Southweft, and towards the South as the Coaft liect : And all the llands within 100 Miles direetly over-againf the fame Sea-coaft. And alio all the Iands, Soil, Grounds, Havens, Ports, Rivers, Mines, Minerals Woods, Mardhcs, Waters, Filhings, Commodities and Hereditaments whatfocter, from the faid place of their firft Plantation and Habitation, for the fpace of solike Englifo Miles, all alongft the faid Coaft of Viryizia and amperier, towards the Eaft and North-eaf, and towards the North as the Coaft lieth, and all thelfands. within soo Ritles directly over againit the fame Coats, and alfo all the Lands, Soil, Grouncie, Haveris, Poris, Kivers, Woods, Mines, Mincress, Marfhc's, Waters, Finings, Commodicies and Hereditaments whatfocver from hhe fame so Miles every way on cheSca-coaft, direAty into the main Land, by the pace of too like Eticifh Miles; and fhall and may, iphlabir there, and fhall and whay alfo build and fortify, within any the fame, for their berter Safeguard, according to their Eef Difiterions, and the direction of the Councel of that Colcay and that nomen of our Subjocts niatil be
- permitted or fuffered to platit or inhabit behind, or on - the back of them towards che main Land, without the - exprefs licenfe or confent of the Councel of that Colo ny, in wricing thereunto firft had and obrained. Pro5 vided always, Fic.
It followeth that neither Colony thall plant within one hundred Miles of each other; alro that each Colony Thall have a Councel of chirceen Perfons to Rule and be Ruled, according to Articles fer down and confirmed under the Privy-Seal, (which I have, but for brevity ounit, as alfo the reft of this Patent) the Scals of cacli Colony appointed, the digging of Mines granted in the fatns, and ond the backfode of their Colonies withins the main Cand, paying the fifth of Gold and Silver, and the fiftecnth of Copper, to the King; liberty to carry all Subjects (not reltrained) which will go with them. Of Coining for the Colonics ufe there, of repelling Encmics, of flaying Ships which trade there withour leave, were tro long to relicaffe, fecing this Patent hath been often alicred and renewed.

THis Account appears to the World with rhe Name of the Honourable $\mathrm{Mr}_{\mathrm{A}}$ Percy, who was Brother to the Earl of Northunberedend; yer ra do Juftice so all, we are oblig'd to rell the Reader, that he will tind here the Re. maiks and Obfervarions of feveral Perfons of the Plantation put together, but particularly thofe of the worthy Captain Fobn Smith, who was a principal Agent and Manager in thefe Parts. There being fo many of them, it's not irregular to prefix the moft Honourable Name to fuch a Medley of Accounts, having only inform'd the World that ic is a Mediey, and not the Compofure of one fingle Manz
21. D. n606. The namber of Planters chat went over at this time was confiderable, being better than 100 ; the molt noted of whom were the Honourable Mr. Pers, Capt. Gofnoll, Cipr. Smith, Capt. Rarcliff; Capt. Marrin, Capt: Ken.
dall, Mr. Wingicld; thefe were of the Courcel all crcept Mr. Percy. But befides rhefe, and 2 whole Train of Gentiemen, there werc Men of all neceflary Trades and Occupations; Bricklayers, Blackfmicts, Carpenters, Taylors; Barbets, Surgeons to take care of cheir Bodies, and a Reverend Divine to provide for the health of their Souls. The Fleet confited of two Ships and a Pinnace commanded and conducted by Capt. Nemport. Our Planters fell in with forme of the TVefl-Indicn Illands by the way, and went aftore upon moft of them they came to, eicher to make fome Obfervations, or to procure torac Refreftment.

simai Domi-

$\operatorname{simai}_{\sin } D$
Dominich (which was the firft) they commend for a fine and pleafant 1Mand. They priife the lovely Woods, the fwcer fmelling Trees, and the wholforne Fruits thar grow there; but the Reople they reprefent as fome of the moft brutifh and degenerate. of Mankind, lovenly to 2 Prodigy, and, in a word, of much fuch $a^{\circ}$ nice and iqueamin compofition as the Hootentots are. They will one mar ferve them as we do Dogs, and they'l (wallow chore favoars with as much pleafure as the Currs do licking their Lips as if they wanted more. Now one may reafonably fuppofe, that thofe that are fo much pleas'd with a Man's f pitting in their Mouths, wou'd not be much difpleas'd if he thou'd do fomething elfe thexe; and it muft be own'd, that this won'd be a terry great convenience for Travellers, fuppofing Clofe-ftools to be wanting in the Iland.
They wear their hair a matter of 2 yard long, and of an equal length every where, only tis phaited or parted before, fo that is does not hang down to that length over sbeir Faces; for if it did, a Man won'd find himfelf pretry much puzzeld to guefs what fort of Animals they were, whofe upper and more noble part was fo abfolureIy loft in a Wood of hiair. They paine and work their Skins," which is all the Apparel they have, and all the Ornament roo, except 2 few Beads, or pieces of Copper hung at cheir Noftrits, Ears and Lips. They are as barbarous as the moit barbarous of the Cannibals, nor knowing eicher how to live quiedy by one another, or to trear Strangers with any thing of Courcefie and Hamanity.
At che Illand Guadrlupa, our Men found a Spring to fo hor, that it boird a piece of Pork perfectly well in the frace of half anhour:
They pafs'd the Ifand of Monferras, and St. CEriftoopher, (both then uninhabited) and anchord at Mevis. Here they found a Bath in a Vally betwixt two Hills, of the fame Natare and Ufe-with thofe in England." The Conies, Fowl and Fifh, this Illand abounded with, enabled them to kecp 2 good Tablè as long as they ftaid here, bur they werc obliged to be alivays upon the watch for fear of the steacheries of the Indians, who yet never came near them; and to lpeak the truth, were more carcful abour hiding themfelves in places of fecure fhelter, than coneriving how to give the others any difturbance.
The frelh water of Megs has the ill character of growing purrid and itinking in a very litele while, to thare 'ris of listle ufe to Scamen.

From hence they pafid to the Virgin-Iflends, famous Fraineland for an cxcellente Bay capable of hariocuring 100 Ship; ; $;$ fforts is twis here the Scamen are at a iols again about water, for wate that of Mewis is nor good, bur ar sthis place there is none neather good nor bad. Befides Fifh and Fowl in abundance, they mer with a fort of Trees at this Mland thote Bark tafted lific Cinnamon, and was hor in the mouth like that.

They proceeted to the Ifland Mona and Monefre, 25 the latter of which there is'a terrible rocky landing, but the Inand at the rop is all frooth fertile ground, and fo full of Fowls, that our Pcople found it a hard master to ftis without rreading upo:a Birds or Eggs.

Having had fight of the main land of tirginic, (the firft of which that appeard they calld Cafe Heny) they. enterd Chefcipiak, whexe fome of them landing for a littlediverfion, were affanlted by the Savages, which Atole Ere:ifh af fuddenly and cunningly upon them; they, srack d them fuutited by tic indeed, bur coaid never find them.
The adjacent Country was very charming and inyiting; thole that love to fice fine rows of Cyprels and Cedar-trees, might here have had their fill of fuch frofpects ; and thole that love to pick Straivberries, might here bave loaded themfelves with chofe that were four rimes bigger, and as much better tafted, than ours is. England. Howevcr, there were no good depths of water here for theirStips, upon which account ticy quitred this lovely place, and pafid over so a cerrain point of Land which they calld Cepe-Confort, becaufe chere-cape.Cemitur. abouts they bad the comfolation of a good depth of water. And this was Capt-Comfort ro them in anotherre.fpee Surafesen. too, for here they found Pcople that wou'd converfe with ${ }^{\text {retring ehen. }}$ them ; the Sayages, tho fhy at firft, yer invired them afterwards to their Town Kecoughran, where they entertain'd them with the beft of cheir Provifions, and afterwards with their Dances. Thefe Pcople had thicir hair an Ell long on the leff fide of their Heads, and thaved on the right; but on that fide where ic is permitted to grow, they tie it up in a knot and ftick feathers in it. Their Bodies were painted, Tome with one colour, and others with another; their. Privy-parts coverd with Skins befer with the reeth and litule bones of Beats. Infteud of other Omaments, chey had thraft whole legs of Fowl through their Ears; which was very proper, for Nature bad furniff'd 2 Drum in that part, and 'twas natoral enough for them to add 2 pair of Drum-fticks. Our Plancers were now xbving abour to find our ig good place for a Setclemem, in which exquiry they came to the Town of Pafpiba, and the King of that place treat- pith reas ed them kindly. While they were here, the King of mem. Repabama came himfelf ink Cancar Ön. purpofe io in: King of Ra vite thern to his Town. He wens before, and whentheypitiamen. came (which they did in chicir Shatlop weil guarded with Mufqueteers) he receiv'd them wish an cxuraordinary deal of cercmony. He came down to the Warerfrde with all his Train, at the head of which he walk'd playing upon a Pipe made of a Reed. Fiis Head was adorn'd with a fort of 2 Coronet in the form of a Rofe, but of no fincr Materials than Decrs haiz colour'd red; this ftood on one fide his Head, faften'd upon the knot of his hair, whereas on the orher was a large Plate of Copper, and in the middle of all frood up ftaring a couple of grear feathers, which made his Majefty look as if his Wife had introduc'd him invo the moft Noble Order of Knights of theHorn. His Body was painted crimfon, and his Face blue; he had plenty of Pcirl in Chains and Bracelets about him; and which was very particular; through each Ear was thruft a Birds clarr." In flomr, this Savage King, tho drefs'd like a Jackamipes, yer behavid and carryd himfelf like a Man, and a Man of much civiller Iducation than any his own Counsry could afford him.

Afrer they had all refted awhile, he led them awaytorn of to his Town, and they lay the Walk thither'was it felf Erachume one of the fineft Enterminments that cou'd be deffited. Somerimes 'they prafs'd through goodly Corn-ficlds, at other times through Woods, to delicatcly watcr'd with Springs and Brooks, chat if the King had had no Town nor Palace to go ro, he might well have been allow'd a great fhare of happinefs only by living in thofelwect rural Manfions:- His Palace was feated upon the top of 2 very fteep Hitl, and the Eng/ifh being come thithcr, he enrertaiaid

820 An Account of the Southern Colony in Virginia. Lib. V
emertain'd them with all the beft Provifions it afforded When this Vifit wasfinifh'd they went on, purfuing their delign of finding ont a proper place for the Colony to fetcle in, and after feveral places view'd, they fix'd upon a fpot in the King of Pafpihn's Country, about 8 Miles from Cape-Comfort, where the Ships had been bronght
There was another point of Land which they call'd Arcler's-Hop, where the advantages of a rich and fruitful Soil, an cafic fatisfaction, and plenty of Provifions wond have invited them of fertle, but their Ships coud nor ride there near the thoie as they cood at Cape-Comfors where they were Moor'd to the Trees in fix fathom waSitrese of the ter. Alal now the lircle Government began so model it Eng.and had apromed. The Boxes beng opend, and the Orucrs read, the Prelident was fworn, and the Council likewife. This Prefident was to be but an Annual Archon, and to concert all his Meafures of Governmene with the Council, without whole Approbation and Confent nothing was co be done. All Matters of moment were to le cxamind by a Jurs, bur derermind by the major fare of the Council, in which the Prefident had two Voices. 'Tis to be nored chat Captain Smith, tho nominated in their Orders for one of the Council, was yet at the firt opening of the Government here excluded from being fo; neither was thar all, but they had laid lim under confinement roo, and 'ris to be fuppos'd intundel so make him the tirf example of Juftice in the new Commonwealch. This won'd have been done, cou'd his Enemies (which envicd his fair Reputation and Chacacter) have made good their Forgerics againtt him but they were fo happy as to difeover themfelves, and the Capains linocency too, by thofe very Pajuries which they intended to thain and render it fufpected by. When the Villains had done bim this kindnels as to clear him, he was, according to his Meris, and the Orders of his Country, receivd a Member of the Council. The Eurt buiit. lony, was to raife fome Fortifications for its Defence lothey beean a Fort, and followd it with fo much dilipence, thar in the fpace of a Month they bad finitin'dit. ihe form of it was Triangular, having three Semilunax Bulworks as crery Angle, with 4 or s pieces of Canmon meunted on cyery one of them. They fer themfelies aldo $n 0$ cuitivate the Land, and lowed a great deal of Com, which in a finall time ran up to a very confiderable heighth; forich and good was the Soil where they had planted themfelves.

The Savages of Pajpibar in the mean time were offentimes hankering abour the Fort, and plainly hew'd that they wanted only an opportunity to pur fome very ill defigns, which they had formed againft them, in execution The King himiclf came once to fee it, wich 100 Men arm'd well after cheir fafhion, and wou'd fain bave perwaded the Enrlifo so have laid afde their Arms, and enterraind him in a friendly manner, without chofe frightful tokens of War in their lands; bus they were wifer than to be impos'd upon by his fmooth words, and were more thani. "riendy convinc"d that they ought to expect all des. have the advant ry and furprize.
The Prefident (which for this firt Year was Mr. Whangfed employd fome of his Men to dicorer up the River of Pompatan. This River they reprelent under a yery advantageous charafter; ir ebbs and flows 160 miles, and Ships of grear burthen may ride in ir with fafery. In fixdays failing the Difcoverers came up as high as a Town calld Powibater, which is feaced pleafantly upon a Hill, having fine Corn-felds abour ir, and good Defences granted by Narure. The Prince of che circumjacent Country was calld Romberan alfo, of whom we thall laye occation to fpeak more afterwards.

As far as this Town the River is Navigable, but higher within a mile, by reafon of the Racks and lilands, there is nor paffage even for a finall Boar; and this is whar they call the Falls of the River. The:Difcoverers fay, that wherever they landed upon it, they faw the rwecteft Woods in the World; Cyprels, Cedar, Waltnue Trees, and Vines in abundance, under which a Man might find a delightful theler at any time. The eround alfo in moit places was cover'd with fragrane Hlowers of feveral forts; and the Srrawberries, Rafberries, and Mulberries, were as numexous as the Flowers. The River divides it felf into feveral, branches that fcat-ter-through the Wooks, and yield good fore of excellene Fin. They went up to the Head of the River and crected a Cross, proclaiming fames, King of Enicand, which they nam'd it. King R R turnd back again to the reft of the Company at the Fort, which was atfo dignify'd with the Name of their Sorcreign, and call'd 7 ames fort.
Caprain Newport having feen thefe beginnings of the Colony (which hitherto were not oice promifing) fail'd back for Englaind with the Ships that traniported them. But it was nor long after he was gone, thar their Affairs 115 Su:e or began to be in a yery ill condition; and whereas before the cour chere were not many harpy figns that promis'd much food, now there appear'd a great many unlucky oncs that feem did to threaten no lefs than the ruine of the whole Plantation. Onc thing was, the Savages began togrow troublefome. and continually plagu'd them cither with Alarms, Affaules, or one fort of trachery or another. The King of Rapoblaman indecd continued their Friend, $K$ of ref. yea, he bound himelf. to be fo for cyer, by a folemn lif- anes t ting up of his hands to the Sun, which is the fublimelt adt of Devotion known or practis'd in the Country. But the King of Prfpiba, who lay nearer so them, was ratima, thes a chorn in their lides, and tho he dar'd not pretend to canemic. wage open War with them in the Ficld, yet, as he cou'd not be their Friend, to he did not fail to make them fenfible of the cffects of his cnmiry whenever he had a fair opporunity. Thefe diftrefics however were nor the greateft that came upon them; they had Wants, Sicknefics, Difcontents, and treacherous Practifes amongit themiclves. The Prefident was a Man of Self-intereft Tomerthy and Delign, fond of his own Eafe and Pleafure; both Drefmernt which he freferr'd before the good of the Community, and did not care how it went with them, to he had his own private Contents and Satisfactions. All the bett Provilions boch for cating and drinking he engrofid to himfelf; he had Sack, Oil, Aquavitix, Beef, Butter and Egrs, while the rett of the company had the Kettle, with a little Whear or Barlcy Meal in it, to Dine and Sup upon. If their own Pains and linduftry fupplied them with any thing from abroad ; if they cou'd catcir Filh or Fowl they might, and wath it down with cold water when they had done, otherwife chey were obligit to take up with his fcanty Allowances, which was mucis bencath what the pooreft fudians in the Country were reducid to.

In fhort? what by their continual haxd Labours, and this pinching of their Bellies, a grear many fell fick and died, the Prefident himfelf living all the while in Eale, Healih and Plenty, and nor feeming to be any ways mov'd or affected with thefe Calamities. But the Com- pherficat is pany, who had fufferid after this manner for the fpace of pes'd. three or four Monchs, pluck'd up their Spiriss, and rook piry upon themfelyes; and did chemfelves thar act of futice and Kindnefs, as to depofe chis infamous Prefidenr, and pur him out of a Capacity of tyrannizing for the rime to come. The Perfon fubtiruted in his room was Caprain Reccliffc, who, if he had more Honetty and Goodnefs than his Predeceffor, yet had nor Spirit nor.Judgment cnough for fuch a Charge; fo that the main fuefs of all bufinefs lay upon Captain Smith's fhoul- cipt ©mits ders, who: cou'd have made the Plantation happy (at mapages Asleat prevented many of their misfortunes) had he fooncr fairs: been entrufted with tine Management of their Aftairs. The Savages about this cime (when 'twas leaft expected from chem, and no body can tell what motives indec'd them to be fo kind and charitable) came and broughs in a good Supply of Provifions; a Supply rect only to Plenty, bus Superfluity, they pour'd in more than the Englifh wanted for that prefent, tho' they knew there was no harm in having a ftock by them.

Caprain Smith began his Superintendency with laying joweria Josm the foundation of a little Town about the Fort; he em-bern. ployd fome in one Office, and fome in another, bur ever did the largett fhare of Work himfelf. And this bufinefs he pulh'd on fo vigoroully, that in a fhort cime he had rcar'd Houfes for the molt part of the Plantation to be ftow themfelves in ; and this was the beginning of fames's Town. The next thing was to fearch the Country for Trade, and to fix a fure and lafting Correfpondence with fome of the Natives that mightrurn to fome account. In order to this be went down the River to Capt. Smit: the Town of Kecougbtam, where the Savages looking pors to the upon him and his Company as Men half flarv'd, derided him; and to exprefs their foorn, offerd him to exchange they abus a handful of Corn for the Swords and Muskers they had ham. broughr with them, and propos'd to buy their Clorkes off their backs alfo upon the fame terms. But the Cap- he drive tain. to requite this Infuls of theirs, fince he cou'd not them aray by fair means bring them to more civil carriage, us'd his Murkers in another fort of exchange; thar is, he gave them 10 or 12 good thumping Bullets our of them; which put ans end to their jefting, and made chem run iway into the Woods in good earneft to fave cheir lives

Chap.XXIV. An Account of the Southern Colony in Virginia.

The Ent:'/h prefently upon this fell to rummaging their Houles, and fearching over their Stores of Provifion, for as that was all they wanted at this rime, fo they did nor expeet to find any hoards of Gold and Silver here. While shey were thus engag'd, in came the Savages again, making mot horrible outcries as they march'd along, and carrying their Okee before them, whofe prefence was to give chem courage in the affault they were going to make: This okee was an Idol made with Skins, and ituff'd out with Mofs, and hung all over with Chains Therafuit and pieces of Copper. They were well arm'd with actexith. Targets, Clubs, Bows and Arrows, and charg'd the Englifh with a great deal of fury ; but they on the other fide having once fired their Muskets upon them (which fetch'd doven the Idol, and laid feveral of his Worthippers fprawling upon the ground) fo effectually roured them, that they thought of nothing fo much as making every Man the beft of his way into the Woods.

Thry aik for Pece.
And the next thing was (as foon as they were recover'd from the horrible frighr) to fend an Ambaffador to beg Peace, and redeem their Gun-hor Idol, which Cap. tain Smith was frec enough to grant, upon condicion of a Boats lading of Corn. The Savages did nor boggle at thofe terms, but comply'd with them, and brought Corn, Venifon, Wald Fowl, which rhey deliver'd with Mufick and Daincing into the bargain.
Capt. Smith prevents
The Captain returnd juit in rime to preyens the execution of a bafe and fcandalous Projeet, which was that of abandoning the Country, and running away from all their pretenfions there. The Plotters were juft ready to be gone, and had gorten into the Pinnace for that end, but Capeain. Smitl, fired fo briskly ar then with his Mufkets and Faulcons, that he brought them to this Dilemma , either so fink in the River, or co ftay; the latter of which they chofe, tho the action coft fome blood, and Captain Kendall loft his life by it.
Nor long afrer, the mean fpirited Prefident, and Captain Archer, had form'd fuch another deaign, and were in like matiner baffled by the fame couragcous Perfon. But Cupt Smith the reftaints he laid them under were quickly taken off, ${ }_{3}^{3 z k e n}$ by de by an unhappy accident that happened to himfelf; and befides the Wirrer now coming on, the Rivers were fo cover'd wich Swant, Geefe, Nucks and Cranes, and fo many foits of Game were to be had in the Woods, that che Mutineers, who feafted their Carkaffes to fatisfaction licre, began to lay afide all thoughts of their own Country.
As for Caprain Smirli's misfortune, it was thus: He went ont upon the Difcovery of the Cbickatomine River, and having gone as far as he cou'd go in his Barge, he quitted that, and went on in a Canoe, having only two or three Englifonen, and as many Savages, with him. His Men thas ftaid with the Barge went (fome of them) alhore, concrary to his exprefs Orders, and one of them being finapt by a Party of Savages, they forcd him to tell where his Mafter Caprain Smirb was gone, and inmediarely they march'd after him, to the number of chrce hundred Men, under the command of Opechankanough the King of Pamanuke. And cho" 'rwas his ill fortune to be found our by them, and coniequently affaulted, yet he refolv'd to fell his Life as dcar as was poffrble, and in purfuance of that refolution dealt his Bullers fo freely gmongft them, that he killd three in 2 little time, and misac all the reft keep their diftance. They follow'd bim in the mean while with their Arrows, and the Caprain wanting a Targer to defend bimfelf; cied one of the Sayages, that came in the Canoe with him, on to his Arm, and fo made ufe of him to guard his own Body from their Arrows. In this mamer he endeavourd to make bis retrear to the Canoc, bur keeping his- Eye more upon his Enemies than upon his Way, he happened to lip into a fort of a Opagg, and as the Savage and he were now very clofe rogecher, he palld him in along with him, and chere they boch food up ro the Wafte in Mud and Water. The ochers did nor dare ro comenear him till he had thrown away his Arms, which he did, when te had ftaid fo long that he was almoft dead with cold. So at laft, when they had compounded the matter, the Savages pulld him out, and carried bim to a fire, where chey rubb'd and chafd his benumind Limbs, and recoverd his vital Warment that the cold Quagmire had confiderably abated. His Men were all kill'd, and he biomfeff was going the fame way, being bound to 2 Tree, and the Arrows of the Savages ready mounted apon the String to let fly ar his Breaft: Bur in the very inferim the King forbad it by a fign to the contrary, which fign was the lifting up a little Compals-Dial which the Capenin had given hith juft before. The Sa-sarage fine rages wondred extremely at the playing about of the Needle in the Box; and tha more, becaule they con'd
fee it move through the Glafs that cover'd it, but could not come to touch it with their fingers. Bur cis not eafic to exprefs cheir admiration, when the Captain explain'd fomething of the Ules of it to them, and launchd out into 2 fort of Cofmographical Leture; this Difcoarfe knock'd them all in the head, and they gap'd and ftar'd like Men that had Convulfions in their faces. After he is led in this they led him away with all the Savage Triumph oropexth imaginable to Oropaxe; the King march'd in the middle, having the Muskets and Swords, taken in this action carried before him as fo many honourable Trophees of his Victory. The Caprain came next him, being led along by three great Lubbers, and a guard of 6 Bowmen on each hand of him. When they had brought him to Oropaxe, the Women and Children came ftaring about him with as much earneftnefs as if he had becn fome Monfter, which when they had their fill off, preparations were made for a folemn Dance.
This was a fort of Thankigiving for the great Victory obrain'd by 300 Men over 3, and owing more to fortune too than their own Courage. For if Captain Smith had not flipt into the Bog, and fo loft the ure both of his Arms and Less, they might e'en have gone home again as fimply as they came. The Men of War threw themfelves into a Ring, in the centre of which food the King and Caprain Smich with 2 Guard; the cthers danc* about them, making all the odd poftures and horrid noifes imaginable, their Clubs and Quivets of Arrows hanging at their backs, and their Bows in their hands all the while. But their Drels was as remarkabie too as their Poftutes, for over their Arms they had thrown Foxes and Otters Skins, upon their Heads the Winys of of a Fowl extended to the full length, with pieces of Copper, Shells, and che Rattles of Snakes; their Faces and Shoulders were painted red, ro make all look the more agreeable. When they had finifhed threc Dances cup. Smirf they led him into 2 Houfe, and feafted him with nofiafech. worle Meat than good Venifon, of whicli they gave him as much as he car'd for every Day; and nor only then, but in the Night time allo did they follow him with this forr of Victuals. This made the Caprain belicere they had a defigh upon his Carkafs, and farted him up only to ear him at laft: Bur he was comfortably miftaken, as the fequel prov'd; for when ho had faid awhilc here, they carried him to feveral of the ncighbnuring Nations of the Savages to thew him, and to ar length to the King's Habitation ar Pamanuke. Ar chis place he had very civil Entertainmens, efpecialiy from the King's Brothex : but he obferv't borh here, and ar other places that his Hofts would never ear 2 bit with him, nor none of the company whatocver, but he always eat alone by himfelf; the reafon of it he cou'd not know, and confidering what a parcel of Slovens they are, he had nogreas reafon:to care for their company.
While he ftaid as Pamenuke, he was wimets to fome of cheir Ceremonies, which for their oddnets one may call Conjuracions. bur for what reafon they were perform'd thall be faid by and by.
Early in the Morning a great fire was made in a long Soranpe Room, and 2 Mar fpread on each fide, on one of which ciffor the Captain was placid. The Guard being gone our of the Room, in comes a huge grim Fellow, leaping and skipping, that a Man mighr well enough have miiftaken for the Devil, he made Io devilim a figure. That of his Face thar could be feen, was as black as Coal cou"d make it, bur che greareft part was hidden, by a parcel of Snake and Weazel-skins thar hung down all aboun his Head, Shoulders, Back and Face, and were ried rogecher Tail to Tail upon the crown of his Head, but befides all this, the pretcy Image had a Coronet of Fea thers rồ, and a Ratrle in his Hand. The voice and geftures, the paffions, were all futable to the Drefs and oucward Figure, chat is hellifh, frightful and abominable. Shaking bis Ratrle he began his Invocation, and encompafs'd the fire with 2 Circle of Meal. Upon this there ralh'd into the Room three more fuch Figures, and a little wfile after three more, which all dancid, and thew'd the fame Tricks and Poftures that the firt had done. Ac laftrhey all far down righe agaieft the Captain, three of one fide, and three of the orher, and the Arch-Devil in the middle. Then beginning with their Ractles they ftruck up a Song, which ended, the chief of them laid down five Whear-corns, and ftraining himflf with fuch violence that he froclrd again, he made a Speech, ar the conclufion of which they all gave a groan, and then laid down three grains more. To this imper cinent action fucceeded another Song, and to the Song an Oration, laying down berween whiles as many grains as before, till they had encircied the fire twice wich them. All this dooc they took a bundle of Saicks, and began

STffr
began rheir Songs and Orations again, at the end of cuety one laying down a Stick between the Divifions of the Cora; when the: whole bundic was exhaufted, the Ceremony was concluded. For three Days rogether did they cat after this ridiculous manner, and fafted cvery one of them cill Night, and forced the Captain to do fo too, but at Night they cat and drank foundly for't.
Now if the Reader's curioficy will not he Ratisfied without knowing the defign and foope of all this, and be Tasks whar was aill rhis buftle for ? We anfwer, It was to Find our whether Caprain Smith was really their Fricnd or no, and wherher he did not defign them fome mitithief. For (as they cxpounded the Myftery! the Circle of Meal Significd their Counery, the Circle of Sricks Captain Smith's Country, and the rwo Circles of Corn the ScaFounds betwixt them; and fo from thence, by a very natural Method, they found out whethes any cvil was like to come from the Country of Sticks into that of Meal. The reafon is yery clear, and is cafly made out by $P$ of. S. Cap. 2. of Hicius Doccius, zlour curting the Ifcer loco Curres at right Angles.
Thefe Pcople belicte the Earth to be round and flat like a Trencher, and their Country to be the very middle foot of all. Having alfo fecn the great Ufes, and many Annit
Thown Gur. itrange Effects of Gun-rowder, the gor a little quantity of it together, which they kept very carefully, inrending to fow it the next Spring, in cxpectation of a Crop of the fame. They had a mighry defire to have forne of that rare fuff growing amongft them; particuharly they had 2 curiofity to fee the Secds on'r, which they fancied wore mighty pretry things. 'Twas pity But they had had a Plancation of Gun-powder: they thou'd have fow'd one Field with that, 2nd another with Muskets and Piftols, and feen which wou'd have been ripe firft; fuch a Harveft as that once in two Years, would have made them a horrid plague to all the Couniry round about chem.
Bat Capizin Smith had not yet run chrough the worlt
fiputhit
Fomaic: reroos cangers, for they carried him away at latt to twe of theio, to appear before Powbation the great Prince of the Country. When be came to make his Enerance tec was thaid, all Powhitan and his Autendants had put themfelves into their beft Dreffes and Roftures; all whirh time he was the Object of the very grear Wonder of the gazing Cruad without doors.
Pomperten himiclf was fer by a Fire-fide on a Sear like a Bedftead, and cover'd with a Robe of Skins, the tails of which bung down in fight very pleafantly. On each hand of him fat a young Girl of 16 or 18 Years old, as on each fide the Room was a rew of Men, and behind them ancther of Women ; and all, both Men and Women, painted red, with feathers (or fome Spoils or other of Birds) abour cheir Heads, and Chains of Beads abour their Necks. This was the pomp the Savage Afembly appeard in at this time, and this was the Splendour that they had made fo much preparation to equip themfelves into.
Th. cip

At the Caprain's Entrance they all gave a great flout, and without any other Ceremony water was prefently broughr him to wa/h his hands, and a bunch of feathers to wife chem; and then the beft Meats King Powbataris Pantry cou'l aford were fery'd in, and the Captain eat

His damger adratice b inc Kine:
Dangris. heartily. After this they confulted together awhile, the iffue of which was that two great Srones were brought in and laid as the King's feet, and as many of the Savzges as could lay hold of the Caprain draggd him chither, and forcing him to lay down his Head upon the Srones, ftood ready with their Clubs ro beat our his Brains. Bur the King's heloved Danghter Pocabruta having conceiv'd 2 refritt for the Captain, diverted the Execurion for a moment and humbly entreated her Father ro fpare his life: Which requeft, when fhe found him no ways ar all inclinabic to grant, but feemingly fixd in his reinlution to facrifice him, the ftept of a fudden rowards the Caprain, and gor his Head inro ber Arms, declaring bry that action, that either his Life mou'd be favid, or hers loft toasther with his. In fort, she arms of this lady was fo guod a Protection to the Captain that he for his life by it; and Poop/matan feeing his Daughter as niuch bent the one way as he was the ocher, was ac lat contented he thou'd live, and live tomake little Toys and Baubles for his Daughrer, who bad now a Tirte ro him, and had purchas'd his Service for ever. But the Dafinefs is, how did the King come to know, or what made him think, that Captain smitb had been usid to any Handycraft Trade, and was capable of doing any of that fort of Work? Why he judged of the Captain by himiclf, and believd him to be fach another fack of cill Tirides as be was.
Pospkaten made his own Robes, Shoes; Pots, Bows and Arrows; and did all Offices like the meaneft of his Subjeats; and he reafonably prefum'd, that fince he did thus, Caprain Smith, who had no Majefty to pretend to, might have been brought up to the fame.

A few days after this Deliverancs, Powhatan made Annainge the Caprain be brought ro a great Houfe in the Woods, Cerfmery and there fer upon a Mar by the fire. aud left alone; which could be no great matecr of terror to him that had feen all thofe devilith Rites performil at Pamamo. When be had ftaid there fome sime in cxpcciation, he heard a moft frightuil noifs, and pr.fently in comes Pompintan moft horribly difguis'd, and 20 more with him. He came up to the Captain, and told him that now they were made perfect Friends nogether, and all grudges were remov'd; that to tectify the truth of the Fricndthip on his parr, he wou'd give him his liberay immediately, and fend him back to $\bar{J}$ ames-Torn, defiring only in requital a Grind-ftone, and a couple of Guns. So the Caprain recurn'd with a Savage Guard, whom he Capt. Smeic., entertaind at $\bar{F}$ imcs-Tomn, and inftead of a Grind-Atone ${ }^{n t u r n}$. ihew'd them a Mill-fone, which they were ientible they could not carry to their Mafter; and fo inttead of a couple of ordinary: Guns, he thew'd them two Demaculverins, which the Savages found likewife roo heavy for their houlders. Bur befides, they did nor care to meddle with them, for the Caytain loading them wi:h Stones, difcharg'd them againft a great Tree; tle boughs of which they brought down with fuch a horrible noife and fury, that the Nien were half dead with fear, and were very well pleas'd to be charg'd only with a few hc feraxpr. Toys for their Mafter, in the room of the other things fentato the that be demanded. The Captain's conduct in chis was King. that be demanded. The Captain's conduct in this was not any way blame-worthy, for 'twas not polizick to put Firearms into the hands of the Savages; and if he had never 2 Grind-ltone to fpare, the beft way was to thew them a Mill-ftone inftead on's.
We canic fay whether the Company was glad to fec Captain Sinith return from his Captivity amongt the Savages or no; but this is cerrain, that he was giad to come juf at time that he did, for he broke the Nieck of anothcr Project of defering the Fort and Town, and running away to England.
Quickly after his return came Captain Nemport, with A zd Poct frem Supplics from England, which port chem all in good cifcovcrut heart again: The Sarages alfo, who had been wonder ind pasec. fully pleas'd with Caprain Smith'sConverfation amonget ${ }^{\text {te }}$ them, brought in ftore of Provifions; part of which were Prefents from Powharan to him, and pars to be fold at the rates te fhould deremnine.
Thus there began a very good Commerce with thefe Trade inith People, but the ill-nanur'd Frefident and Council fooild the Samgra it; for they envying Caprain Smith's grear Intereft and Company. Repuration amongit the Savages; and to poffets them with a notion of their own Authority and Greamels. wou'd give four cimes as much for Commodities as he had agreed with them for, and fo facrificid the Common Good of the Plantation to their own ambition and bale hamour.
The Scamen alfo, that came with Caprain Newpers, being allow'd to trade at Pleafure with the Savages wond, according to their extravagant ways, (whenever they come afhore) part with their Commoditics uponfo eafie terms, and give fo moch for to litth, thar by degrees, 2 thing which mighe have been had ar firft for an Ounce of Copper, cou'd not be purciasid under 2 Pound. ; and 10 proportionably of other things that went in Barter. But this liberality (or foolifh exrrava- Capt:Smith gancy racher) of Captain Nerpport's Men, wroughr in ed Capain Powhatan fuck an Opinion of the Matters greatnefs to Pnomberan: that he defired to fee him; fo he and Captain Smith, with 2 good Guard, went to Werowocomoco, where the Sarage King entertaind them with all the pleafures and the good things his Court and Fown were capable of yielding. As much a Savage as he was, he had Pride and Majefty in him; and tho he was his own Taylor and Stocmaker, yet be con'd put on the King when be pleas'd, ant when 'twas fit for him to appear fo to orlhers. Our Englifb found is to at this time, nor only in his pormberan': putting his fivid Court inco tbe beft pofture for their re--Siare and ceprion, tort alfo his fcorning to trade and barter with Pride. them for fuch fitile riflifing matrets as the common People did. : Capreain Nexport, (lays he addrefing firmidelf to him) it is not futable to my Greatuels to drive 2 Trade for urifles in this Pedling manner, I efteem you "as a greax Prince, therefore lay me down all your Commodicies togecher, whar I like I will take, and in je compence III give you whar I think firting their yatie. In fhort, Pombatan fer foch extravagant prices of on his Commodities, that they cound come ta na terms with him at all, till a parcel of blue Beads charm'd trint, and bie agreed to give two or chree hundred Buthels of Corn for a pound or rwo of them.
Their eraile wish hime.
The King of Pamanck allo was bewitch'd with a paffion for the fame trifles, and allowid the fame good rates for them that Popobotan had donc.

Quickly after their return there happen'd a gricyous Fire at $\mathcal{F}$ anmes-Town, which did a great deal of damage in burning their Pallifadoes. Store-houfes, the Church, befides private Houfes.
Captain Nictoport being gone back with his Ship for Srores sup-
pite. Fingland, there came in aurocher Recruit of Men and Provilions fur the Plantations; a Ship that fet out from Englend with Captain icmporf, bur had been forced by contrary Winds to sake up for fome time in others Parts of the Weflindics.
Dy the care and diligence alfo of Caprain Smith, and Thent Mr. Scrivener, (an honeft and underftanding Gentleman that came along with Captain-Newport, and was admitted one of the Council here) the Buildings both publick and private were repair'd, the Town pur into a good poiture again, the Fields drels'd, and the Corn fow'd

- all rhich bufinets lay ucglected by the lazy Frefident, and his as Roarbful Managers. But now there happen'd an unlucky difference between the Savages and them, which was an introduction to the after-diforders and calamitics of the Plantation.
Rurrel with Pomporent
Pombaran had prefented Captain Nempore with a parcel of Turkeys; to require which kindncfs, the Caprain very indifirectly made him a Prefent of Swords, number for number with the Turkeys. The Savage expecting to have always the fane advantagcous returns for his Fowl; fenc Captain Smith fuch another Token (afrer Nexport was gone back to tingland) which he receiv'd, but fent back noSwords, to the very great difappointment of Powbaran and raifing of his choler and indignation. He faw the Swords did not come, but he was the sauzece: reiolv'd to fetch them; and thercfore firft of all, tried to bring them by tricks and policies, afterwards he proceeded to oren force and infolence, coming up to the sery Walls, laying Ambufcadoes for the Workmen, and furprizing them in their bufinels, with many more affronts of the like nature. The Prefident and Council faw all this, bur woud not meddle to right chemfelves, and curb thefe infolent People, bur let them xun on in a trade of doing mifchief, pretending the Orders from England were very ftrict in this Matter, and feverely prohibited the doing any thing to affront and provoke the Natives.
Cape Sminh But Caprain Smitio underfood the Orders after another currean them manner, and thereforc one Day, when the Savages came up and abusd fome of his Mcn, he fell upon them to rights, and thraik'd them handfomly; and raking forne of them Prifoners, he drove the reft home well cudgell'd, to tell their King how they had been entertain'd. This brought no lefs than an Army of them up to frames-Tomn, where they threaten'd terrible things, if their Prifoners were not prefently deliver'd to them. But the Captain, to try their Metrle, with a fmall force went out and artack'd them, and reduc'd them in a very litule while to a condition of begging Peace, and receiving it upon his own terms. Examining his Prifoners too, they confefsd that Pooplatrm had fet rhem at work to get their Weapons from them, and then cut their Throats; with all the particulars and circumiftances of che Plot.
As for Porobatan himfolf, his courage was fo far cool'd, Pumbatan's that he fent his dear Pecalunta (as the fitteft Perfon he coud pitch upon to mediare with Captain Smith) to excufe the injuries that had been done, to defire his Mens libecty, and to affure the Einglif of his friendmip. The Caprain, who ow'd his Life to rhis Savage Lady, was fo grateful and complaifane as to difcharge the Prifoners at her requelt; bur it was noe before he had borh given them fuch a correation as might riake them take care how they foll into his hands again upon the like Oceafion, and afterwards us'd them fo well, that they might know they had to do with a Perfon that cou'd be tery kind and civil.

The Council wou'd fain have pick'd a bole in the Captain's Coar, upen the fore of chis breach with the Savages, bui there was no room for'r; for he had thed - no Blood, bur done the Plantation very good Service in unpluming the Savages a little, who elfe wou'd have becn very troublefome. And 'tis certain this made them ftand fo much in awe, that the very Name of Caprain Smith, was almoft cnough to fright them.
When this Squabble was orer, Captain Smitb was fent out by the Prefident and Council to difcover the wenr upon Monacin beyond the Falls, which Delign he or twelve Men: The Difoveries made were very inconfiderable, the Savages in many places treated them as Encmics, and wearied them with Ambufcades and other Treacherics; again, in other places chey were kind and friendly, and did their beft to obrain the good-will of the Englifh. But they were effeetually convincid, by Treatiery of, an accident that happen'd, that Popphatan was their. Mor-Pnowan ral cnemy, whatever fair hews of the contrary he made; and enc ral enemy, whatever fair fhews of the contrary he made ${ }^{\text {and me }}$ Comp at for a certain Amburcade of Savages being put to the jamem. Tem. for a cerrain Ambulcade of Savages being put to the rout, when they came to parlcy, made a Confelion that Poopharan had order'd them to lie there, and he was encourag'd by the Malecontents as 'Jancs-Turn. A fine Project, for Englifomen to fet Savages at work to cus the rhroats of Engliflmen! The Caprain narrow!y cfcap ${ }^{\circ}$. with his Life this Expedition, he was given over for a dead Man, and his Bur sing-place provided. 'Twas not Vereman: the Savages that brought hum into this extremity, but a Fiff. ccrtain Fin which"had a Sting of two or three inches long: They fay it was like a Thornback, but had a longer tail, and a weapon in the end of it as long as was laid, which went into the Captain's fich very near an inch and half. The effect was a violent fwelling, and 2 tormenting pain, which fymptoms were not withftanding carry'd off by good applications of the Chirurgcon, and all made well again. This Fith was good to car, for the fick Man that was fo like to die in the Morning, was able to make a Supper of it in the Evening.
Ar their return they found the company at famss-Tomn Prefiden: in an uproar againft the Prefident, and ready to Dcpofe Deponit him"; his unfitnefs for Bufinefs, and effecially his riotous manner of living, (when their Srores were low, and all the reft mult pinch that his extravagant appetite might be gluted ; provok'd them to take thofe violent courtics afrer a grear deal of tame forbearance. The deire likewife of the Company was, that Captain Smith would take the Prefidency ;at leaft the Adininiftration of it; upon himfelf, which he did, and making honett Mr.Sc:icener his Subitisute in that Affair, he wear our a Eccend contsmath's time to purfuc his Difcovery. But the refule of boch 2 atempt thefe attempts put rogether, amounts to no more than the difcovery of a few Nations of Sayages, and fome. Rivers, the Names of eicher of which wou'd be of no great Scrvice to the Reader, fince there's nothing of importance relating to cither of thein; and efpecially tco, fince what is matcrial upon cither of thofe heads, thall be brought into our General Acconnt of Virginia, which will be added in its due place. Only this may be faid, that they had the fame fortune amongt the Sayages now as in the former Expedition, fome of chem being very friendly and hofpirable, orhers as full of treachery, and ready to affault them uponall opportunitics of doing it with advantage.

Caprain Smith at his retum upon the Election of the A. D. roas. Council, and she unanimous requeft of the whole Sc- C.pt smere. ciety, receiv'd the Letters Parents, and actually enter'd dant inc: upon the Prefidenthip. Quickly after this, Captain Nempors arrivid from England wich frem Supplies, and with Prefenss for Pooblatiat, which Prine they thonght to oblige the more by fending for him to Frme:-Tım, where they intended to entertain him with fome pomp, and were willing too to ler him ice fomething of the Englifh Grandeur and Magnificence. The new Prefidens was thought the fittef Perfon to undertake the delivery of chis Meflage to Pomberm, and he very willingly accepted of the Office, and went with four Perfons only in his compan;. When they came to EFeropoccomoso, he peoss to Powhaten was notthere, but abour forne thirty Miles off, Poribater: and in the mean while che Captain had this comical Entertainment from fome of his Women. He and his company were wirhout the Town in a fair Field, jult by the fide of a Wood, where they were firting upon Mars by a fire, and a grear many of the Inhabirants, both Men, Women and Children, were alour them, as they always garher abour Serangers. While rhey were in this pofture, they heard a moft difmal foricking and howi! ing in the Wood. fuch a noire, that the Captain beliey'd no less than Porobatan, with his whols Army, was come to furprize them, and therefore he and his Men accordingly food to their Arms. The People however aftur'd him there was no danger, and defired him no:ro dilturb himfelf, and by that time they had done this, the enemies rum'd our of the Wood and thew'd themfelves. They were a Troop of young Women, abour 30 in num-A comica: ber, as naked as ever they were born (only a few green Andentrit leaves Bifore, and cheir Skins painted, fome red, fome black, fome green, fome blue is) in a word, rhere were Girls of all colours. One had a Quiver of Arrows at her back, another a Bow and Arrows in her hand, a chird a Club, a fourth a Sword; and, in Morr, every one fome weapon, or fome device or other. But their Head-artire was the moft charmingly fine and pretry, for | each of them had a large pair of Stags-horns planted |
| :---: |
| $$ \int_{\text {fif }}$ |

upon her Forehead, fo rhtic here was Acleon and Diann in one Perfon. They made moft fcarful cries as they came out from among the Trees, and inftead of running to pufh the Captain and his Men with thofe horns they had gor, they all josind hands and caft themfelves into a Ring and fell a dancing abour them, being chemicives their own Muficians all the while
This wild Secne continued for near an hour, and then they all furtid away again into the Wood, where having put themfelves into' a handfomer 'pofture, they came and made Capmain Smith a folcmn Invitation to go and lice their Lodging: He accepted of the civility, and followed them inro the Houfe, but he was no fooner got within Doors, but they all came crouding and profing about him in fuch a inamner, that a Man of ics courage than the Capenin woud have been afraid of a Rape One hung abour bis C cer and another cuucht bold ut his Arms, and all cricd our, Don's you loce me? Don't en lo: me: So that no body con'd be anfwer'd firt, becaulfe cuery body fooke at che fame time, and 'twas a wonde if they werc all worth loving. Here was a Man hardly beftead, this was a very unequal Match; rwo to onc we commoniy fay is great odds, but thirty to one was a very hard cafe indeed.
How the combar ended we can't fay, bur we fuppore the Captain came off very well, and difengag'd himfel handfomly. This Salutation ended, they gave him a Treat of Finh, Flefl and Fruirs, fome of them waiting, others finging and dancing all the while. At the conclution of the Trear, they conducted him to his Lodging and it being dark night, and the Country affording no Torches, they lighted him along with Fire-brands.
Pumbatrin ooming the next day, the Captain told him of the. Preforts that were prepar'd for him at Fames Town, and the general defire there was of feeing him thete, in order to the concluding of the common league againft the Menacens. Bur che fubtle Savage made him this Reply: "If your King (fayshe) has fent me Prefents, I ana allo a King, and this is my Land. I will fay here sighe days to reccive thofe Prefents; and I expect that yuur Farther (chat is Captain Newport, whom Smith cal Ied Farher amongt the Sarages) Soou'd come to me, and not I to him; neicher will I go ro your Fort, nor - bire at any fuch bait. As for the Monacans, 1 can re-- venge my own Injuries; and if my People have rold you of any Salt water beyond the Mountains, their relations are falle.
This was all the Anfwer the Captain cou'd ger, and was forc'd so recturn with this to Fames-Town. Too much giod ufage had made Powhatan proud and infolens; and is plain, thas he valued himfelf and his Commodities valty more, upon the account of that regard thar he faw the Endifif had to both. There was nothing of Trade now to be had with him, and the more he faw the ochers frefs for it, the more backward be thewed hinnfelf. One wou'd have thought that the Plantation hiou'd have been roo fenfible of this bafe humour of the Savage, to do any thing afterwards to gratify it; and thar it thou'd have been their care rather to mortify it, and take fuch courles that he mighe fee they were not really fond of his Friendidip, tho they feem to courn

The folyof the Plat
tion. car io weak as to blow Pride and Vanity yet more, and under kne precace of obliging and winning him, to make themeneres was the rendring of both defpicable

Amongtt other extravagancies of this nature, Powha san, forfooth, muft be crown'd, and provifion muft be made to do it with fome ceremony roo. And becaure he wou'd not come to Fames-Toron, to receive his Crown there, it muft be fent him to Werowocomoco; and Captain Nienport was the Man that went upon this goodly Errand. The Prefident; "tis rue, oppos'd this toolinh Definin, or as lealt never approv'd it, but there were orhers that thoughe 'twou'd help. (rogether with the PreEurs that were to be carried at the fame time) to joyn find fafter to them in the Band of Friendhip. In a word, that in receive a Crown from the Englifk, wou'd difore him to proftitute bis Kingdom to them. But the Jeft of all was, that Pawbrten himelelf was not at all fond of this fine thing callid a Crown; he had no ambirion to have fuch a fplendid Banble fer upon his Head, and woud cafly have excufed them from the trouble of coming chicher to do is. He knew well enough the meaning of the Prefents they brought him, bur when they ame to the Ceremony of the Coromation, the Man was Kurprizid; he did not underfand what they pretended to do with his Head, and was afraid of fome defign againgt his life. And whereas, when the Crown was going to be pat on, Captain Nemport'cold bim he must kncel; he was fo obftinately refolvid nor to kncel, thitt all the company was ured with perfwading hom to ir, neither would he take his own Peoples word fort that there was no danger in fo doing. At laft, with makh ado, by lcaning hard upon his fhoulders, and fo forcing him to foop a litrle, they got him into fomething of a decent porture, and the Crown was fet upon hisilead, and he receiv'd the Complements of the Enslifl. Juft at thin time, when the bulinefs was done, according to apminement, all the Guns were difcharg'd from the Ships, the noife of which frighten'd his Majefty fo effictualls, hat he ttarted awry out of their hands, and lonk d about im to fee if the Enemics were coming to knock himoith Head. Bur he recover'd, after frome time, and to exprefs his Royal Bounty, he gave Captain Nimpert his old hoes and Mantle; for we muft know, they had broughe him an entire Coronation Suir, cyen a Sarict Cloak, which frryd at that cime for a Robe. Bur his gratimde formento; to the Plantation for thefe favours, was no more than a min, wute Prefent of feven or cight Rialhels of Whear, noe a confiderable quancity to lerve for a Sunply of ticia Wants; nor fo much as the Offic or Promife of Trale for that purpofe; as to any thing of this he faid not a word, nsither would he (at Caprain Nomporr's requeft) lend him either Men or Guides to make ahe difovery of Misnacan.
This was the Gencionity of the Savage King, and if the Plantation found him atrerwards Infolcnt and $D_{0}-$ minecring," or defpifing the Eivgifis Commodities, and over-valuing his own, they may ecn thank themfelses for's: For what need was there of fetting a Crown upon this barbarous Head? And what need of fuch contly Prefents, as Scarlet Cloaks, Bed and Furniture, 'Baton and Ewer, and the like, where 2 few Glars-Beads, or pieces of Copper, woud have done as well? To Cours and Complement Savages at that extravagant rate, is only to teach them to defpile thofe that do if; and our Men never found is betrer Dealing with that fort of Peole, than when at the fame time, rogether with Cisiities, they thew'd them good Reafons why they thould fear and ftand in awe of them.
Captain-Nempors, prefently. after his return to the. Town, fer our for the Difcovery of Monecan ; all the Council, with ar leaft 120 Mcn, went upon this Defign, the Prefident, with abour 80 more, ftaying behind at the Fort. The Prefident had foretold the ill fuccefs of their Enterprize, which they were as fadly femfible of at laft, as thcy were far from believing ar fret: for, in a word, they faw only two Villages of the Monacans; that was cheir Difcorery, and they had their labour for their pains, and that was their reward.

The Savages now pretry plainly difcover'd their Defigns of ftarving the Englifh, for they made it their buInefs to keep their Corn and Provifions from them: and the Prefident was forc'd to go our and lay fome of their Country under Contribution to ger necertary Supplies; the People he ferv'd thus were the Chickabrmines, the Noufamund, with fome others. But this fort of way wound never hold long, and therefore the Prefident refolv'd to endeavoui so ferce fomething out of Pewhatan, who had not che gratitude to ferve his Bencfactors of his own accord. And that which the rather induc'd him to it was, that Powibretan had abour this time fent him word, that if he wou'd come ro him and bring a Grindftone, 2 parcel of Swords, Guns, Beads, and other trifles, he woud give him a Ship's lading of Corn. The capt Smiph Captain fubftiruted Mr. Scriverer in his place, and fer our gocs to Prmo for Werowocomoce, with the Yinnace and two Barges, hem having in all no more than 46 Men, tho he order'i more to be ready as home in cafe of need. An honef Savage by the was periwaded him not to lee Powhatan, or at leaft to give him no manner of opportunity of feizing their Arms, becaufc his defign was only to cur their Throats. When rhey came thither, he entercain'd chem with the fame freciom that he os'd to do, but pretended $\begin{gathered}\text { Prmatron's } \\ \text { rechicron }\end{gathered}$ he had no Corn to difpofe of, and that he did not fend pritences. for Captain Smith to come upon that fcore; yet he added, thar for $4^{\circ}$ Swords he would procure them 40 Buthels. Bur the Captain confronting him with the to ry Meffengers that brought him that word, the Sarage, when he law he cou'd not deny it any longer, turnd it off with a langh. Then he ask'd to fee what Commodities they had brought; none of all which woud pleafe him withour Guns and Swords, valuing ftill a Basker of Corn above a Basket of Copper, faying he cou'd cat the one, but not the other. Upon this, Captain Smith was oblig'd to rell him in pretty fimart retms, That he was Capt. Smith's not imfenfible of his Artifices in delaying and whiling courp pit off the time atenther race; that he had always alfurd hinn him he had no Guas nor Swords to fpare, and thou'd be forry to be compell'd to employ what he had againft him, as ill Ufage and Affroms might fome time or orher make him do, otherwife be would preferve entire the good Correfpondence that had becn hitherto cultivated betwixt them, with all the zcal in the World. Many other Difcourfes pafs'd berween Captain Smith and Porsbaten at this rime, in which rhe Savage mighily infifted upon his laying afide his Arms, and for his Men to come alhore like Friends, withour thofe formidable Weapons, Guns and Swords, which did fo vehemently fright his Pcople, that (as he prerepiled) they were unvilling to come near the Englifh upin thas foore. The Captain perfectly well underfood the meaning of all this, and fince he manifectly faw that loophasar ineended nothing elfe than the murdering or making a Priforer of him he refolvid not only to fland she more nicely unon his guard, but alfo, if a fayourabic opporrunity offer'd' to put a rrick upon thePlotict, and fanp hita irit. They korh now had the fame defigns upon one an oher: pocpioctan waited but till more Men (which he had fent for) came to the Houfe; and Captain Smith bur ftaid till his Men landed under pretence of Trade. Bur Pophascris being come firf, he himfeif fips cunningly away, leaving two or three of his Women to hold the Captain in talik; in the mean while the Houle was befet with arm'd Savages, and the Captain had but eight of his own Men with him in this diftrefs. As foon as he was fenfible of the treachery, he prefently open'd the Doors and ruth'd out amongft them, and with his Sword and Piffol opend himfelf fuch a paffage amongt thofe naked Rascals, that he Cat. smith was quickly gor out of their reach. They Hed from driver the Se him like fo many Hares before a Hound, and feeing the vage. Ploc had mifcarried, quickly began ro cxcufe the matter, and pretend there was no harm defign'd. Potphatan allo fent a Prefent of Pearl, and Meffengets to excule his own abrupt going away, and the corning of char multitude withour his knowledge. In mort, they were now Io officious, that the Captain cafily got all his Corn inso his Barges, and fo went away to Pamonuk, inmending Ane rrache ro call apon Powiztan at his return. Bur here he fell inroundefignofto the hands of as treacherous a Wretch as Powharan, work by Porphatan to do what he coold nor yet do himfelf. This Savage, to colour his Defigns the betrer, ftruck prefencly into a Trade with him, and provifion was made for a much grearer Traffick to be carry ${ }^{d}$ on one day at che King's Hourt. The Captain, with about fifteen or fixteen very well arm'd went thither, Opechancanougb enrextaining them with a great deal of fecming friendmip and hearrinels; but they had nor beea there long, before they difcorerd that the Houfe and adjoyning Fields were befer wirh Savages, well furnith'd with Weapons too. One may imagine they were Shock'd ar this News, but the brave Captain heartmed them up with an Oration, and they all vow'd to follow him wherever be led them. Being fure of the Courage and Fidelity of his Men, he was now not afraid of the Savage Army, tho they had been a greater number, and they werc at leaft $7 c o$. But ruming to Opechancanough, challeneos. bur bim he was ienable of his derign to murder him, thers Blood, ler you and I (fays he) have a mial by our felves: Take your Arms, and IIl rake the fame, and frip off my Cloaths and be as maked as you, and the Conqueror of us tivo thall be Lord and Mafter of both Troops. If you don'c like this, draw your Men into the Field, and if they ben't enoagk, go fech more, but let cvery one bring a Basker of Com, and l'll rake the value in Copper, and fo let the conguering fide rake all. The Savage was daft'd at this bold Challenge, and inftead of accepting on't, endeavori'd by good words to abate the Captain's choler, and bring him into better remper. In order to chis, be rold hirm thar there was a Aplot mainint treated him to ftep forth and receive : The meaning of which was; that by that baic he thou'd be drawn out to rbe donr, where there was an Ambufcade of above two hundred Men, ready to falute him with their Arrows, as foon as he came. Bat being aware of the de-Boldattempe. Ggn, and having let a Guard upon the door, be comes up to of cchrncanough, (whofe horrid treachery had now tranfported him beyond all bounds of parience) and in the rery midft of his Guard feizes him by his Fore-lock, and clapping a Piftol to his Breaft, made him inftantly refign his Bow and Arrows. Holding him fill in this polture, he dragg'd him our before all his Men, who were aftenifid to fee that any Man dard ufe their King in fuch a manner: however, the Captain called to them, and commanded them all to fling away their Bows and Arrovis, and come and hear what be had to fay to them.

Capr. Sminh

The Savages very readily obey'd hum; down went the Weapons, and about him they throng'd to hear his Speech, rejoyting to fee thcir King alive, to whom the Dikourfe to thele Pcople, he only charg'd them, in the Sw.g.e. faort, with their Villanous Deligns and Treacherics, and threatend them feverely in cafe they made him lofe his labour, and did nor bring him Corn as thiny had promis'd. - You promis'd (fays be) to Eraughr iny Ship ere I deparred, and fo you thall, or l'll loan! her with your dead Carkaffes: But ftill; if you'll come and rrade as Friends, you fhall never be moleffed or griev'd by us. And they did preferaly go and ferch in fuch Thy yrf. heaps of Commoditios, weary ${ }^{\prime}$ with looking them ovet; fo that he was fored to retire himfelf into the Houre to take a Nap, leaving his Men to manage that Affair. But forne of them were weary too, and fell alcep, and pari of the Guard that hou'd have attended the Captaln were carclelly. hitpersd up and down : all which advantages being per ceiv'd by the quick-ey'd Savages, forty or tifty of the Itoutcit of them, armid with Englifh Swords, prefid into the Houfe, and there were two or three hundred miore marching after to fecond them. "Bur the Raicals made copr. Smils fuch 2 noife a crouding in, that the Captain was wak'd in danger. with is, and prefencly taking up his Sivorditand Target he flew in amongit them, and fome few of his Men (that were by him) sharging at the fame time, they quickly rid the Houfe of them, and made them. Kikuecze out a listle fafter than they did in. The Plor bcing thus fruftrated, according to their way they came to bes Pardon; bur the Caprain di: Tembled his -refenements, and fo having frent fome time in Mirsh'and Fcationg with the King, came aboard fafcly again wi=h all his Company that fame Nighr. The neat Morning they ano:he: itur wou'd have trepann'd them into an Ambulcale onl fiore, under pretence of crading, but thefe old Birds were yot now to be taken in fuch Snarcs. The following Nights the Savages thought that the Emplifo had ictrety fent away one of their Barges, which they concluded muft is ro fetch more Men and Arms, and that mirf be in order to the executing of that Vengeance which Captain Smith had threaten'd, for their trifling thus wirh him in the Matters of Trade: Vexy carly therstore the next Moming the King fends the Captain a good Cinin of Pearl, begs him not to fend for any more Men, upon which condicion he wou'd load him with Corn; and to sake away all ground of fufpicion, bring it a Ship-board 500 . And he was as good as his word; fear made him honeft, Thes hiag and the Corn was punctually deliver'd. It's phan all co:ll. this was the effect of no good-will, for the Captain, with forme others, (parriculasly Mr. iffer the Lord De la Ware's Brocher)-was like to be porfon'd by them before they went away; that is, they aetually took the Doic, but it was not ftrong enough to kill. and only made them fick. Pombatan was the caufe of all thefe atcompts againt the Life of Captain $S m:: 1 \mathrm{~h}$; and all the reft of the Recry-Kings hereabours being. his Vaffals, he cou'd command chem to go upon whatDefigns he pleas'd. As for Opecbancanougl, he was his Brother, and confequently cvery way his Tool.

The Captain returning homeward, calld (as he had refolv'd) ar Werowoomoco again, intending, if he had opportunity, ro feize Pomberian, with his Srores of Cosn; bur he was fled, and bad remov'd all lefore thicy came, and thofe that went afthore werclike to be kill'd for cheir pains too. The caufe of chis (and a grear deal of mif-The farth chief more) were fome Dutchmen which the Captain in mens tuitas. kindnés had lent to Powbetan' to build him a Houtc: Thefe horrid Villains betray'd all the Secress of the Plantation to him, and fome of the Ammunicion of is too, in the Prefident's abfence. In thort, they pur him opon mof of his curfed projeds, and did what chey cou'd to ruin the Englifh Intereft in Virginia

Captain Smisb rerurncd to fames-Tome with 270 Bufhcis ms Striment of Corn ; bur there had been chis furtiner misfortiane in let: his ablence, that Mr, Scrivener and Captain wfilde (buth Perfons of Courage and grear Ufefulnels) going our upon a fmall Expedition, were with all their listle Company over-wom'd in their Skiff and drownd. The Plantation however was now in poffefion of a prexy Srock of Provifion, and mighr have enjoy'd fome profperous days had it nor been for thofe devilifh Durcimert, and their Accomplices ; for a Party of Rafcals rhey had at $5: .7$ emesTown that fided with them, and helpd ro convely Ammunition out of the Fort ro them. The piact of their temidarcis Rendezvous was at the Glals-Houle, which is about a $\begin{aligned} \text { ond in } \mathrm{K}, \mathrm{yy}\end{aligned}$ Mile from Fames-Towns, in the Woods; and near this sume place they had planted an Ambufcade of Savages to take Caprain Smith; who was gone out one day to fearch this Neft of Rogucs. The Bird he won'd have taken (one of the Trayrors) was ficd, and having fent all the Musketecrs he brought our with him after this felAn niven- low, he walk'd home alone. Upon the way he meets tre of Cap the King of Pafpaligi', one of Pambaran's Tributarics, tin immth (or Allics at keat in the War againt Captain.Smith) and king. a wonderful ftrons itour Man. The Savage won'd fain have drawn him into his Snares, but the Caprain wou'd not go; fo that feing no other way, he endeavour'd to thoot him, but smiti prevented him there, for he prefencly cles'd in with him, and endeavourd to dif patch him with his Faulchion. But here again the Savage prerented him, for findin? his defign to itab him, he carches Spiti, up in his arms, and rems away with him to the Riser (int by) into whith he plunges both himelf and him. Here they tried to drown once another as falt as they con'd, for Swords and Guns figntied norhing in the warer. Whilf they were ftruggling in this Element, there came two of the Captainis Men upon the thore, which fight loft the King of Pefpaleigh all his courage Howerer che Captain had him faft by the Throar, and held him fo, till the Men rame in and took hime off; and then his Majetty bege'd his Iife very heartily, be in:withitanding was carriced Pifoner to fancs-耳nom frum whence afterwards, by the negizence of his Guards, he made a thift to clicape.

Coprain Smist, after this, by his prudent and politick namugements reconcild the Pafpaleigh's to the Enolift intecet, and bound them by a folemn Treaty to bring m Mrevition. By a lucky hit alfo of bringing a Savage of himfelf. thar was almoft ftifled with the fumas Chareoal, he got the name of a Man of extraordinary Power, and one that cuid raife the Dead to Life. This o:er-awd borbitran, and all his Allice, to that they defired Peace, and broughe Prefenes; yra, many of them thar had ftolen things trom the Emilifn, came and made Reftitmion of their own acrord, believing that Captain Smit', who cou'd reftore the Dead rolife, cou'd alfo difeover their Villanies. When the fock of Provifions grew low, and the Rats (which came in for the bift thare of is) had, together with other accidents, done their worlt towards the dettroving is, the Captain ie the Company ar work to trace the Country, and find their own Provition, and Billetted them abour upon the Savages in the neighbouring Parts; thele courfes fitrod the Gall of the lazy dronifh Reople, and fet them 2 murmuring. In morr, tho' the Caprain did all that rolid

The Fations be cxpected froma a rrave Governour, and a Man of an Heroick remper and conrage, yet he could nor picale thefe Malccontents, but was ever obnoxions to their ill-naturd Cenfures and Reflections. But a fudden rum of Affairs now came on, which promis'd quickly to remove this Prefident from tbem, that was by his Honefty and Bravery become fuchia burden to Knaves and Cowards: For the Council in Eritend hearing of the diftorbance in the Plantation, fix'd upon the lord De La Whare to go and govern there, who fent, as his Deputy; Sir Thomass Gates, with Sit Georre Summers, together with ${ }^{2}$ Ships, and as Icaft 500 Petions. What was the fuccefs' of this Voyage, we fhill fec by and by : thus much only is to be faid now, that the Adminal Ship of this Fiect, whercin were the rwo Knights, and nhe netw Commiffinn, was feparated from the xelt, and fored away by bad Weather to the Bermuja lllands, and one or two more were driven another way; the relt came fafe to Virinia.
Alone with thefe Ships tefurn'd fome of the troublers

2 2aninous Proplogresurnd to

Their De. of the Peace of the Plantation, who thad gone back to Entiand and now came arain to te a frem plague to Caprain Smish. "Tis nor catie ro defcribe the Ditorders they were the occafion of, and the extravaganaices they conmitted; as likewife the Plots and Srares they laid for his life, and the many Dangers he trene through. Honecier, beng Prefident itill, (tho hisulear was well nigh expiret? he exerted his Authority, Ceftraining fome, and-punilhing others, and difpofing of others into places where they night be capable of doing the lcaft midchicf The chicf Fcads of the factious People were Caprain Rareliftic; Cantain Mrettin, and Captabin: Arsber ; and ficir main guarrel againft the Prefutent feem'd to be this, Thas he was a Man of far moreMerit than they, and that his t'ertues atraded the love of all Peopic that had Eyes to fee them, even rhe Sayages themielves In thefa confulions the Honourable Mr. W'eft wenr, by the Piefidents leave, to Plant at the Falls of the River of Pambreim, with 120 Men; and Caprain Martin, with gear as many, to Nianfemund. Bur this latter Piancation mas prefently blown-up, for hartin muftaceds feize the King of Naulumtim, and rifle his Houfes and Country at whith Villanies he did with to much fear and cor-ternation too, that he encourag'd the Savages ro fall upon him, which they, did with fo gond fuccers, that hey redeem'd their own King, killd reveral of the Emgish, and carry'd off above 8000 Bufhels of their Corn tho the weak-fpirited Caprain had a Keinforcement of Muskeceers fent him by the Prefident, yer he dar'd not attempt any thing with them, bur left his Company to thift for themiclucs, and ranaway to Fames-Tomn, loaden with all the honour of chefe noble Actions.

As Sor the Company ar che Falls of the River Powhat itwe thry w : 4 n , Mr. Liff left them as foon as he had feated them but whicther he had fixd them in that place, or they had temor'd themfclucs as foon as he was gone, this is metcere. crtain, that che Prcfident (who went prefenty after overlook them in their new Sear) found shem in a place of moft intolerable inconveniences. Uponithat he pre- Cint. Smitis's (entiy fent away to the Sayage King Powhnfat, to buy ef cari to tittic him che Town ittinding upon this River, both which bore ${ }^{\text {secm }}$ betesr. his Name Powletañ, which was noc only yielded to, but alfo very good derms were made for the Englif with the Savages; they werc robring in conftant Supplics of Corn, in liell of which the tingitij) were so give them a aritiong Matter of Coppier, and to he their Protectors againt the Momacmens their Enemies. Bur theic Furies won'd not hear They i.:neither of the place he had provided, nor the good col crms he had made for them; they began to run inro downight Tunules, and to make ufe of their Ams Caprain Smith had bur five Men with him, and 'rwas a imprudenty bold action of him to truft himelf with O fender 2 Guard amonyft 120 of fuch ourrorous Murincers. However, they fued him to retire from tiacy rice the ihore imted 2 Boar, by which meams he gor to their maint imm Ship that hid all their Prosifion aboard her, and the Mariners prixing Honeft and Loyal, he made himied Mafter of ist and now had them at his Mercy. The Their Op, oreaking opxn their Houfes, and ttealing their Com nay, that was nor cnough;' bur they bear and abus'd thole poor wirctches moft unmercifully, and rais'd thrir tiry and refenge so the hingheft degrec. They catice in their Canoss to Caprain Smist, and complaind that the lemplift be had broughs them for Prötection, us'd them more harbarounly than their Eneriics the Monecens. and therefore, as for his sake they-bad patiently candurd is a great white, to now, if they did not mend their Manners, these thoud take up Arms in their own Defence, and reverise the tofuries that had been done them. The The saroes, Prefident fpent eight or nine Days in vigerous endeavours ${ }^{\text {rik }}$ to reclaim this licemtious multirude, but all being in vain, he refolvid to leave them and fall away no james-Town. The Shige was no fooner under Sail, bua the Savaess inmediately fell upon them altore, gave a brisk alfault to the Fort; and cut off ax many as they found fraggling boss in the Woods. This put them all into the dreadfulleft fright imagimable, and the Captain being yet within hearing of ail camc back again, and found them fo ferr'f with this accidens, that they werc ready to fubmit to his Mercy apon any terms whatfocer. He made Theypl in at come of the Heads of them cxamples for their crimes, P.sman*n. and then remov'd the whole Company to Pecolantrni-Tornn, whicre they were mott gallandy Seated, kad good Houfes a pretry Fortification, and able to fecure them from all the Sayages in $V_{i r g i n i a, ~ a n d . ~}^{300}$ Aves of very good Land ready to plant ; befides, a moft pleafant and healthful place and well delerving the Name thicy gave , Numpiact. The Sas ages allo, were appeas d and fa cisfy'd, and new Officers appointed; thes all being Friends, and every thing feled in gocd order, Capiain 5 misio was going 2 fecond time for 子apice-Torn, but juft at that intant arrivd Mr. Fiffl$^{\circ}$, who had indifercety pianted them at the Falls of Powbatci, and tho' that Ho nourabie Perion was no was concern'd in, or any cinculrager of their Diforders, yer his arivival undid all again, the Factions grew as high, and the infolent Mutineers alk'd as loud as cver, and nothing wou'd Kervetheir wirn, but they muft quit chis fine Town where the Cap cain had planted them, and recurn to their old Scar at ithy teat: the Falls of the River. And fo chey did, and Mr. Wrif's good humonr was governd by them: as forthe Prefideri, he determin'd to ftrice no longer with them, but eiender them rake their own courfe, and brew as they baked; fo he left them, and Gaild away for feme:-Town, But in the way 2 terrible misfortune befel him, for cap smitit llecping in his Boat, his Powder-Bag accidentally took misfontr ire and blew him up, fcorching and rearing his flefh afcer a moft fearful manner; and the Captain frying as it were in his own Cloaths, to quench the fire that tormenred him immodiately leapdover-board, and plung'd himfeif inta the River, where be was very like to be drown'd before ther coudd recover him again. In thi miscrah $\}$

Chap.XXIV. The Continuation of the Virginian Affairs, &c.

miferable care (having no Chirurgeon to diefs him) the ken off che Heads of thefe Plotters againft his Life, and was forcd to travel to 3 ames-Town, where; notwichftanding his illnefs, he won'd not be excus'd from publick bufinets.
The mutinous Captains, Ratcliffe, Martini and Archer, were quickly to be brought to their Trials, according to the Laws of the Plantation; to prevent which, they endeavour'd to difparch the Prefident as he lay upon his his Bed fo extremely fick, that cou'd they have had pacience enough, they might reafonably have hop'd his malady woud have donc it for chem in a litule time. Howerer, the Villain thar thou'd have Piftol'd him had not courage enough to do it ; fo that this Plor being baulk'd, they thoughr the beft way was to Ufurp the Government, and to make their Power ferve 50 vindicate their own The Soliter Innocency, and ftain his that had made thern guilry. Amon up for Captain Smith's ofd ftaunch Soldicrs won'd fain have ta-

Difturivers of the Publick Peace, but he woud ner yield to any fach Defign, buc got himfelf convey'd a Shipboard, and took Orders for his prefert recurn to England. This (next to bis Death) was the thing that pleas"d the malignant Patty the beft, and now all their cate was to get che Commifion from him; but the Captain would never furrender it to them, tho' he conniv'd at therr fteal$\operatorname{ing}$ ir away. Then raking his farcwel of them, with Cept. Smithis many fevere reflections and xeproaches for their bale depornure: Praetices, and calling all to bear wimels that'rwas not long of him that the Plantation was left thus expos'd without a Govetnour, he came away from a Country of which he cov'd fay thus much, That he had been more barbaroully us'd there by his own Countrymen than by the wildeft of the Savages,

C H a p. XXIV.

The Continuation of the Virginian Affairs, from A. D. 1610 , to A. D. 1620 .

WE concluded the laft Chapter with Captain falfe to your own Mafter, you cannor be true to me; Smith's departure, who left the Colony in a mifcrable confus'd ftate, tonmented with a parcel of factious Uforping Spirits, that ftudied nothing lefs than rhe Publick Good, nor moxe than cheir rice of the own Private Advantage. At his going away the whole coloñ when number was very near 500 , theirStore-Houres fall, their capc. Smirt Arms, and all Military Furnirare, in good cafe, and as wrot amay. much Powder and Shor as chey needed. They had all forts of ufeful Animals abour them roo, from Horfes cyen to Hens and Chickens; yer neither all the Captain's former Bencfits, nor thefe his laft Cares for them, to leave them in fo good a condition, con'd ever perfwade them into any foft and kind thoughts of him, or to afford him the leaft degree of gerexous treatment They merarc He was no fooner gone, but all thofe murbulent People, him when le with one confenc, began so rail at him; efpecially thofe is gooc. whom he had any way chaftis'd for their Infolencies, and who now had full libenty ro inrent whaterer Scan dals chey wou'd, and fwear to all they invented. There were as many feveral Scorics rold of him, as chere were Perfons thar cnvied and maligned him, and the degrees of their Malignire wete. very well difoover'd by the magnitnde of their Lyes. One taid thris, and anocher that, and 2 third another thing; and fo ther had their Says all round. As for thofe whofe Inventions were dall and they had nor Sence enough to parch up a plaufible Scory themfetves, the good Council help'd them out at a dead lift, and advis'd them what they fhould Stwear The Ships waited upon them all this time, white they were laying their Accufations together, for they were ready to fail back ro England before, but they were compell'd to ftay till the Witneffes were all furnifid, that they mighr go and reftify Caprain Smitht's crimes to his Hiteremics face. But che Jeft of it was, thar the beft of all his frpak ofll of Friends cou'd not give him a beter Charaeter, than femim in Ens. veral of thofe very Men did who had made fuch 2 conad. founded noife in $V$ irginia, and were fent over on parpofe co do the fame in Entlond. As to the reft of them that ftuck to their Principles, their Accufations had, fo evidencly all the Characters of Malice and Forgery flamp'd upon them, that all People, who yre nor blinded by prejudices, clearly faw that ic was fu, and the Caprain's Vertoes did fine but the lighter, for all rheir violent enCup:Rascifidearours to ectipfe them. There were feveral of his moft virulent Adverfaries, that by unexpected events came to reccive a joft recompence for cheirunreafonable enmities and treacheries againt him : The Dutchmen were knock'd in the bead by Powhatare; for when the talk: was firft of my Lord De la Ware's coming ovet, thoic fellows highly cornmended that Lard to him, and promis'd so do mighry things for him, if he woud give then leave to go to him when he came. ' No , (fays the Sa -- vage) you have betray'd.Caprain Smith to me already. * and youll betray me alfo to this Lord: for being lo commanded his Men to beat out their Brains.
Captain Ratcliffe alfo, with a Company of Men, atrempting to rrade, were furpriz"d and fain by Rowbastan; and So were feveral more of the englifh, chat went out under the command of Mr. WTe? and Caprain Martin. For as foon as cver the Savages heard that Capt. Simith Sarage; z: had quired the Country, they revolted every whiere, war wit and took all the opportunities that cou'd be, both'ro tarve them and cur their rbroacs. Poopioatan abfolutely denied them Trade, and the Savages in all places refus'd to replenith their decaying Stores with frell-Supplies of Provifions. And now they began to find the wans of copein Caprain Smith; yea, his greareft enemies were chen rea-Smis: cris dy to curfe the lofs of him. In a word, the soo that miser reprs: Captain Smist left, were within fix. Months reduc'd to the lor. 6o, and thofe forcid to live upon the wild Products of the Fields, or fometimes a little Filh; yea, the Living ometimes liv'd upon the Dead. The caufe of thefe Ditrefles was not to be attribured to the barrennels of the Country, but their own Rior and Laxury, their want of good Government, and prudent Care in laying up Provifors; and laftly, their ill Conduct in making the Savages their enemies. Twas in theice frairs thar Sir Thowne Gktes, and Sir George Summers, found the mifiexabe remainders of the Plancarion when they arriv'd at Fames-Tamn.

The Readcr was inform'd in the laft Chapter, that the sin $\dot{T}_{\text {memes }}$ beft part of this Fleet came to fames-Town: withour the Geromed two Knights: The bufinefs was, chat they were fepara- siticion ted from one anocter by one of she mof violent ftorms vopger. that was ever known. For a matter of four days conrinually, they did nothing bus pump and toil themfelves, ookecp the Ship from finking; they threw our soo Tun of water every four hours, and yet for the moft part of the time, when the Strip had lealt in her, the bore ten toor deep. They had no leifure to cat, drink orreft; fo can ip that now they were upon the point of commirting them-nc ipm 2 felves to the Mercies of God, when Sir Georg: Sumnners findu. happily difcorerd Land. This frov'd to be the Bermu$d \alpha-I f a x d s$, which from this cxcellent Perfon liad afterwards the Name of the Summer-Fhionds: Here they came ill fafe athore, and tho thefe hands thad formerly had 2 tery ill name, and werefaidem be the for nothing but Devils to dwell in. Yet they faundthem 2 very commodieus Habitation for Mem, and Blef'd the Providence that caft them herc.
The defcriprion of theféllands thall nor be given herc. but remitted so its proper place, where we trear of them profeffedly. As for the Colopy, they did nor want Provifions, but there werc no Inhabitancs for them to converfe with. The Governour had the plague of fercial ${ }_{2 \text { sutnian. }}$ Murinies $\mathrm{roO}_{1}$ fome of which were ftopt by feverities, and others by gentle trearment of the Offenders. They exercis'd all Religigus Duries during their ftay, and had opportunities of performing all the Rites of che Chriftian nued his fearch of thofe Inands, and at laft found them Religion, in a place where perhaps never any Religion cur:imsar. was practis'd before. Befides Preaching and Praying. hey had Marriages, Births, Baprifms and Burials here They fet up a Crofs as a Memorial of their wonderfu prefervation and fafe arrival at thisplace; a thort account of which was engraven in a Copper Plate, in Englifh and Latin, and plac'd upon the fame Crofs, toge ther with his Majeftics Pieture in Silver. They allo built a good Pinnace to help them on in their Voyage to Virginia, which was at leatt 140 leagues from the Sum-mer-Iflands; and, in a word, having every way fitted up themfelves for fuch a Voyage, they fer fail, and had a profperous Voyage on't thither. They came firft to the famous Bay of Chefepinch, and then to Cape Comfort, where they had the comfort of hearing that all the reft of the Flect were come in fafely the Year before; but the affliction of hearing at the fame time, that the Colony at Famis-Town was in a moft lamentable condirion. The Prefident then in being was the Honourable Mr. Per5, at that time over-looking the Affairs of the Fort, which they had built at Cape Comfort the Yeas before. This fort was very advantageoully fruared, and by reaSon of the Shoals which lic of the Sea-fide, it eafily commanded the mouth of the River, tho" in be as broad as the Thames between Grecnwich and the ffe of Dogs.

When they came up to 3 am:s-Town, they were fad
The rad Ame
$0 \rightarrow$ the Colo Eye-wirecfics of the deplorable ftate of the Colony there;
nis in wint all things were our of orler, their Srores cxhanfted, ai Eroviliotshand themfelves upon the point of tarving. And that which made the diftrefs yet far more terrible was, that here were no Supplies broughr to their relief; all thex was in thefe Ships being no more than fufficient for 150 Men for a litule while. Neither was chere any hopes of getring any in the Country'; for beffides thar, the Sai ages were all at Daggers draw with them, it was now rheir Sica-rime, and their Corn was bux juft, or fcarce put into the ground. Thar litrle matter however which Sir Tiomas Gates brooght with him from the Bermudas, he generoully refolv'd mou'd be dividediamongt them all; which when it came to be calculated, was found not poffible to laft longer than 16 days tho' hustanded to the bert advantage, and each Man's fhare no more than wor'd fuffice juft to keep him from being famim'd. All increductings put rogether, were reafons itrons enoughito introduce a general refolution of quitring the Country, and there was a neceffing of doing it prefenth, for after they were all ftarvid there wis no ruming away. Accordingly they beftow'd themfeives as well as 'inighe be in the Pinnaces then in the Roaty, and thofe they brought from the Bermudes, and fo the whole Phantation wemt off together, having buried all their Orinance before the Fort-gate, and by the particular care of Sir Thomies Gates the Town was leff ftanding, thio forme difcontented Peo ple had 2 great mind to have fer is afire. But they frad met the Right Honourable the Lord De le when they met the Right Honourable the Lord De La Wrete, who menc of Wirginin. So chat now they all repaird to fames Town again, with no litrle Joy ar fo pleaiant a difap pointment, and the care of the Depury in preferving the Lown from she flames, appear'd to have been to fome parpore. His Lordfhip brought three Ships with him cxocedingly well furnith'd with all neceffaries, and e nough to enable the Plantation to hold our for forme time All things were now regulated, his Lordhip's Commif fion read publickly, the Council nominated, and all the Officers appointed to their leveral Trafts and Charges The Lord Le la Ware had the Tile of Lord Governous and Captain General: Sir Thomar Gates Lieurenant-General: Sir George Summers Admiral: The Honourable George Perg Commander of the Fort: Sir Ferdinando Wrimman Mafter of the Ordmance: Caprain Newpors Vice-Admiral: Willicm Stracher Efq; (the Author of this accouna) Secretary and Recorder. The other Inferiour Officers were alfo nominated, and the ufial Oatiss adminiftred to all. Tho bis Lordfhip had broughis'a Sook of Provifions, yet fince thar wou'd quickly require to be ckd our with further Supplies, Sir George Summer cherefore proposid a Voyage to the Bermuda-Ifands, from whence he wou'd fetch 6Months Provifion of Filt and Fien, and accordingly he and Captain Argoll were dif parch'd thitber for that purpofe. Bat the effects of this nued his fearch of thole Illands, and at laft found them and his Death there, the effect of his over-roiling himfelf upon a Surfeit. His Heart and Bowels were Guricd sir cerer upon the fpot, and his Body broughe back to Englomd in deach, his own Ship, which, without any Iron about her, one Bolt only in her Keel excepted, endur'd the Voyage ehrough that mighty Ocean. In che mean rime, the The Savapo did noching but infult them, coming up to the very Works, and aflaulting the Men chere, and knocking all oth head that they found at any time unarm'd or firaggling in the Woods. The Englif had from feveral confidcrations hitherto forborn to chaftize them any thing rigoroully for thefe Infolencies, but now they faw there was no end on't, and they grew but the bolder and fawcier for being thus let alone, and therefore they bcgan to treat them after another manner, and teach thon good Manners by a litule ufe of the Sword.
Sir Thomas Gates went and plundered the Town of The Engitr Kccoughrom. more to frighten the Savages than to get any great Spoil. The loord Governour alfo fent 2 fort of an Embaffie ro Powhapdis, to demand the reftitution of all Enzlifh Prifoners, and farisfaction for all Injuries done, promifing all Friend Mip and Kindnefs in cafc of his compliance, and ou the other hand threatning to take a $f$ evere revenge, and pay all the old Scores, if he refus'd to do Juftice. Bur he (who had now loft all fear of the forthaten's Eng (ifh together with Captain Smith) let them know he prudinhou'd yield to nenc of their Propofals, bur bid them all wer depart his Country, at leaft confine themfelves to $\mathcal{F a m e s -}$ Town, and not rove about fearching his Towns and Rirers, and making his Propexty their own; and if they did nor, he won'd make his People do them all the nifichief they featid. As for the Mefiengers, he commarded chem never to prefume to appear before him any note, unlefs they broughe him a Coach and Horfes, for Anddmen: se had heard that the great Lords in Engiend us'd to rife in fuch ftate of fec one another.
Some of his Indians had been in Englond, and having feen Coacties, had told him what things they werc, otherwife a handiome Wheclbarrow might have ferrid welt nough; and whar a pretry figure wou'd his Virginiaz Majefty have made, with his Copper Crown and Scar. lec Cloak on, (the Eng (ifo gave him) in chis one wheel'd wooden Coach ? After shis, Powpatan fill kept on his old way of intriguing and watching the Colom; his Spies went prouling about in every Quarter, and his Amborcades lay up almoft to the very Patifadoes. The Engigh rifo Englifh, when they carch'd any of them, gave there Martial Law, and refolv'd. if Pombetam did nor atien his courfe in a very litcle while, to carry Firc and Sword into the Bowets of his.Councry. But this accident hap- Lond's fock pen'd in favour of him, that the Lord Governour (who ref, orherwile wou d have been as good as his word) quichly after his arrival loft his health, and by degrees came to fo inl a habit of Body, that in 8 Months cime he was confrain'd to retorm to England, having no profpect of any compleat cure bur his own Native air, His Lord $\mathrm{Mijp}^{2}$ Lord Dsia subftioured the Honourable Mr. Pergy Depury-Govemour wris crre in his room, who was to remain in that' Poft till farcher oy Ordersfrom Ens/and. He left the Colony upwards of woo humdred, in good ftate as to bealth, and fornin'd wich ven Months Provifion at leaft. Before his Lordthip's departure, Sir Thownes Gares was fent for ro EngIand by the Council for the Virgimian Affairs there, to give a true account of the Country, and to let them onow in plain terms, whecher it were fuch as was ever Iikely to anfuer all the coft the. Sociery had been ar, in their Concributions towards the Support of the Planiz ion there. The amfer of which worthy Gentieman was fuch, as gave them every way ample Satisfaction, and Encouragement to go on with their Defign; the Reafons of which being drawn mofly from the nature of the Country it felf, the Reader will cafily fee in the Defcription of Virginia, which we fhall prefent him with freewards.
When the Lonl Tela Ware came to England, he did Fir arempre imfetf in Perfon give the Council' a large account of tith counthe Affairs of the Colony, which was poblifh'd by Order of the fiid Coancil. For the betror fecuring of the Englifh Planzation there, he had order'd three Forts to be built; two of which were fented near Cape-Comforr, and the third near the Falls.

The Company being encourag'd by what they had Sir Tea Dole heard from the Lord Governour, and Sir Tbomas Gates, fent fent over 2 freth Supply. by Sir Timmas DeLe, who bore A. D. 16:1. the Tirle of Marinal in the Councry, and was to command there in chief cill Sir Thomas Gazes's arrival from England. This Gemeleman found the Planmarion labouring nender their old Diftempers of Idlenefs and Lazinefs, ons loft one another at Sa, and Caprain Arant in Pead of the Bermudas, fell in with the Coaft of Safadaboc. where refrefhing awhile, he recurnid with a fmall quanrity of Codith ro Fames-Tiwn. As for Sir Garge. Swmtrers, he alfo fell in with the fame Coaft, mifting the Bermidas, but having refrefh'd there awhile, he conti having thrown no Corn into the ground, but cruting If was fome cime (nòrwitithfanding all thie former pres to the Scores the Lord De la Ware had left, and what the Bountry of the Fields would afford them. He pre-feruly-fet to repairing the Town, and having made a Difcovery of Nafambord-River up to the very Head, and after that of the River of the Colony, he fix'd upon a place, (rowards the Falls of this latrer, near an Indian Town call'd Arfabattacke) a high Land, encompafs'd whith the main River, and about is Miles from the Falls, where he intended to plant 2 new Town. He had done no more than preparing his Materials for this new Building, when Sir Tiw. Gates a arivd from England, who came in the Quality of Governcur, and broughit fix Ships well-furnithd with Mcn, Cactle and Provifion. Sir Tho: Gares approvid of the defign of creeting a Town as the Falls of the foremenciond River, fo that Sir Tho. Dale prefently went abont it, and in four Months fpace had form'd fomething chat might (in Virginia ac leaft) be called 2 Town, to which (in honour of the noble Prince Henry) he gave the Name of Henry-Town. 'After the arrival of thefe two Knights the worthy and brave Cap' tain (afterwards Sir Samiict) Argoll, openid 2 trade wich rasummert the fndians of Patowomeck, and meeting with a very friendly reception amongft them, he deliver d in ari 7 amesT.wn, as the Fruirs of this Expedition, 1100 Buithels of c.ptantsek; Corn. He difcoverd this time up the River whîh they calld Penbrok - River, that cuns up inno the land about Gs Leagucs, being Navigable for any Ship. They faw great fore of a fort of Catele as big as Kinc, that prov'd very good and wholfome Meat; they werc a very heavy, now fort of Creatures, and tho Inhabicants of the Woods had nothing of that wildnefs in them that other Beats havc. The Caprain likewife difcoverid a Mine, Eaith. 2 trial of which he fenc into Eing land, and fercral ftrange kinds of Eaxth, one that the Indians of chat Councry always us'd to cat for Phyfick, and faid that it cuired all diforders in the Belly; another like 2 Gum , white and clear; another red, like Terra figillata; another very white, and fo light, that it wou'd fivim like Corn at top of the water.
Copturgors Caprain $A$ goght in chis Expedirion, perform'd allo anoconturivence ther very good piect of Scriice, which was the redemp-contriverice
on furce Pompaten in make reft: with Powhafan, partily upon the accounr of their Sta-very, and the continual apprehenfons of fome crucl deaxh ther thould be put ro ar laft. And he broughr it abouc by this pretry Straragem : Rocabumsa, the Beloved Daughrer of Ponfoasan, refided abour chis time with the grcat King of Ratowomest, which Captain Arzoll having notics of, he apply'd himfelf to the King of Paftancis Brocher to the former, and propos'd to him to ges this young Princefs deliverd into his hands. Now cho the King of Paffrncie was the Captain's yery good friend yet he was afraid of having his kand in 保 2 bufinefs as chat, for tear of drawing. Pobviataran's anger and revenge upon himiclf, as chere was juft reafon enough to expeet it. However, the Captain telling him (chat if he did nox do it) it wor'd be a brrach of the Friendfhip and good Correfpondence that was between them, and promifing $2 t$ the fame cime to Rand by him with a good force in cafe Powhasan flould ever affaule. him, he confented, and went away to his Brother the King of Pata momectey to perfiwade him to refign her. And he baving deliberated apon the Mater a litele while, chole rather to oblige the Engiff, and lofe Powharan's Fricndthip, thain the contrary, and fo deliverd up Pecabunte into the Gaprain's Cuftody. Upon chis, word was prefently O agher again, he muft difmifs the Englifh Prifoncrs Winth all the Arms and Tools that his People had folien S $\boldsymbol{7}$ the Colony at $\mathcal{F}$ ams-Torrn, and give a good guanpronemen ity of Corn into the bargain. The Sayage was bitterly himfelf, he fent, word back, That if the Captain worid bring his Ship into his River, he wou'd fatisfic hin Demands, and chere: make Friends'wich him and

- the Extrifar. With which anfiver, Captain Argoll rctufríd to the Plancation, and deliverid Pocaburra to Sir Tho, Cartes the Governour, by whoma fhe was treated wish all the civility and refpat in the World. As for her, the was cver a lover of the Emgijh Nation, and was fo far from eftecming this as a Capriviry, that fhe reckon'd in a Freedom. She was young, being not above rwelve or thirteen Years old when me preferv'd Captain Smith's life; and in all points the Pride and Flower of her Sir tho, Lee Country. In order to the managing this Affair with inftead of Capt. Argall; fo be fet outi in his Frigot, with 150 Men, .criking Pöcabuniea along with him, and came imeo wite Pamarkie-Kiver, where Powheran then refided.

It wat fome rime, (not with fanding all the former piec tences) before the bufinefs coud be accompliftid: The Savages pretended noo to know what Sir Tiso. Dale came about, and wou'd have referr'd him for difpatch to Opechancanourg 5 inftead of Poovhatan, who was, they faid; three days Journey.off. In Ihort, they made fo many delays thaz che Englif werc forced ro quicken them by, fome Hoftilitice, and threatkings of more; fo char at laft Powhactom fent his Men, but be fent them in fuch numbers, that is look'd as if he defign'd foncthing elfc befides the redemption of his Daugher. P'ecsijunte;; for Peochment her part wou'd hardly vouchfafe to talk to any of them, safetitinup. ar leat the did it only to a few of the chief; and them on her: The told. Thas fince her Father lovid her no beter; as appeard by his preferting a parcel of old rufy Tools betore her, fhe woud cen dwell with che Engifis atill, who fherv'd her all manner of kindocfs.
Powhatan, prefently after this, fent a Meffenger to ponti.um, affure Sir Tho. Dalc, that all the Guns, Swords and Tools, together with fome Coin, fhou'd be fens to Fames-T, wn in is days time, and the Prifoncrs alfo fhou'd cone along with them. He promisd alfo, that all Deferters from the Colony Thood be fent back; and any of his Subjects thar did milchief, fhou'd tee refign'd to them to be punifh'd as they thoughr fit. Lafty, he namd feceral of his Neighbour Kings, whom he defired hould be included in the Peace; and as for his Daughrer, he freely confented fle fhould live among che Englifl, defiring Sir Thoo. Lale no treat her as his own Child.
With thefe paditions they return'd to femec-T.mn, and Powharan way as good as his word, and perform'd tiem all by the time limited. Pocebinte. was very well pleas'd with her life amongft the Engl: $/$, and loy the bapiame iand care of Sir Tiso, Dale was throughly Inftrented in the m.sti.d. Chriftian Religion, which after fome time the mate ani open and folemn profeffion cf, and was thought fir to be enterid inco the Vifitle Charch by Baptilim, which accordingly was adminifter'd to her. Affer this (with her Father's and Friend's approbacion) the was mazried to an Englifh Gentlemani of the Plantation, and het Uncle gave her in the Church.
But to go on with Caprain Argoli's happy Managcments in this Country: The Nation of the Che:kelor- Theciciatiot manics having figniticd their defirc of a Friendhip with mamicatul. the Englifh, Captain argol went to them to conclude it. nit 5 , in They had no King amongt them, but were govern'd by eight grear Men : They were a very flour and warlike People, and wou'd never upon any tcrans acknowicdice the Sovereignty of Pcrpiztan. Xet now they were very willing to own King $\exists$ amcs of Fergta, for their King, and 反aid they wou'd be calid the chikemminy Engliihmen. The Caprain promis'd them affitance againIt thrir Enemics, and made each of their Gorernours a Prefent of Copper, which rleasid them highly. The Conditions were, That every Harreft they hould bring Corn to James-Tuwn, two Buffils and a half for cvery Man that cartied a Bowv: in requiral of whici, they fhould receive every one a portion of Copper, and eacii of their Governours a Suir of red Cloch ; and with thefe the Savages were very well farisfied. Thcir Counury is a delcare fors, and yields them Corn nough ra pay their Tribate, witiour pinching or ftcainning themfelves. Captain Argol's Induftry and Zeal for the good of the Planration, did nor reft in thefe performances ncither, bur pur him on upon imaking fome uffful Difoveriec Northward towards Sagacaliboc, and beyond; to Part-Regal and Santa-Crux. In, which latter Advennures, if he had broughr no other advantaje to the Colonit than Capt - Inezt the difilanting and driving out the Frencl); (who Fiad be- be Fromb gun to forrify within our Limits) raking thcir Strips, and bringing them away to fames-Town, rhis hidd bech fufficient to have Intitled him to 2 large mare of praife; bur this benefit did not come alone, bur rogecher with it fuch quanticies of Victuals, Apparel, and ocher Nicceffaries, as provid a very fubftanial help to the Colony in the circumitances it was in. And now we maft go on with che Series of thofe Pablick Affairs.
 before all thefe laft Evenrs happen'd, and gave the Com pany fuch an account of che Affairs in Virginia, as encourap'd them to go on with their honourable Defigns of cultivating that Country.
Sir Tho. Dale prcfided upon his going away, and uin- Sir Tro: Doic der his good Government matters wetic broughr to thaterrido. away for England, leaving Captain rardiy $^{2}$ DepuryGovernour in his roiom. Along with him came Pecia porrhatan' hunta the Daughtex of Rowbatem, (by ber Chriftian Dingutarer Name Rebecca) togecher with hex Husband, into Eng- comes inco Land. Tomocomo allo, one of Pondeatan's Counfellois, England.

840

 An Account of the State of the Virginian Affairs, &co Lib D.
C.ha P. XXV.

An Accoumt of the State of the Virginian Affairs, from the latter part of A D. 1619 ith A. D. 1624

O$\therefore$ E would think by the large Accounts of Ships Xien ana Guods now fert orer into Virgimis, that all thiles there hou'd be in a very protperous Stare, ana' the Plantation our of all Danger of being c. cr lifulted by its Encmics, for before thic Yur $16 i g$. was cippry, there vere no lesis than eight Shifs cidprad1 witrers, carriazg ar leaft 1260 Perfone, who found in IF g.niz mar feco ismaining of them thar had gone beforc. Ams there were great quanifitics of the moft uiful: Commodizics of all forts tranfporied ing thefe Ships; Iron, Cordaze, Por and Soap-attes, Timber, Salt, Sili, Yince, ali forts of Tools, Armour. Powder, Et: Thic Colony now began to pur on the face of an ortar? Goremancrre, and to aprear like fomeching able to Di ind and Mannain it fuf. It was diftinguifid into Eurough's, the Lands' were flar"d and kiad orrc; the Fublick ones, anï thofe belonging to private Societies. There was a Colledge oretted, and Publick Houfes for the Enter:aimuent of rew Iterinian Guefts. The Laws were reducd inoo form according to the Entligh Model, and J fitic: fat Enthioneni wich an awfal Majefty here, in fone proporion to what is did at home. The fame Ycar alio alere were eleven or fwelve private Parents granted tor paricisia- Piancations' the Undertakers in all wh.ci were to bring over fuffient numbers of People for the managemere of their refpective lands. Secerat well-difofed Pcefirs alfo gave rich Gifes rowards the promoting fo good a Defign as the cultivating of ais Councri, efpecially towards the brilding of Churches, the Eduation of the Chilisen of the Infidesis in the Christian Religion, and good Leafining. A. D. 1621 dicf Encourag enconss fill went on; for what by the Earl of Soistocinfon, the Companty, and by privare Adver rurers, there went over 21 Ships, in which were 1300 Perforis ; and the P tiace Patenss granted this Year were twenty fix, upoin tic Fund of each of which 2 conifiderabie, oumber of People were to be Tranforesed. This Year was alfo a lisar of great hopes, as to the Improvem m of alhe Commodicies brought thether: Their Ironworkers axtur'd then, no Counrry in the World was fitter for that bufincts than Lir rimie, both for Wofd, $\mathrm{W}_{2}$ trx; Wine and Sconc: The Frestimen alfo that belonged to the Plantation wert as pofitive. thar noike was properer for Vines, Olives, Rice and Silk; and ris certain there was good Winc made, which was the product of the Country. The Salt-works went on together with the reft, and there wasta profpect that erough wonld be made to fummilh themif for atl the great and profitable Filhings upon thas Coalt. The Cotron-plans thet ramic out of other Parts of the $t$ teff-Fmics profper dexueding wdll; yea, the Eaft-Lxdian Vegetables thriv'd heti= too, the famous Plant Nill, from whence the Indigo is mijede, wanted onty Shilful hatbds to manage it, in thest, in was not only thefe, but Supar, Hemp, Flax, Whad, Mulberries, Oranges and Lemons, Com, and vireta other ufful Vegerables, that the Plantation: fet the the felves to the Improvement of, and cafify faw thax thei) Lasour was not in vain. Bur the two principal Com-\#yars for modities that they refolv:d paticularit to atrend the en- improwing creafe andimprovenent of, were Silk and Wine, which sine e,a alfo they were efpecially directed to by an Order from his Majefty to the Earl of Southampoon, Treafurer, atd to the Council and Company of $V$ irzinia; , and fron to th to the Gevernour and Colony refiding in that Coonay.

The Gnvernour in this Xear 162 1. was Sir Francis s.rfon:a: Whatr, who, by his Letters to Empland, cerify'd the Governar Company of the happy and flourithing Stare of the ${ }^{-1 / 1627 .}$ Colony : All chings were in a profound Tranquiliry, the Savages were quiet in every Quarter of the Counrry abour them, and there was no noife or clamour of War to be heard; every Man fat fecure under the fladow of his own Ixce, and at the Fruits of his land withourdifuritance. There feem'd to bie an ennire Confidence, a friendly Truft (wichour any tincture of paloutic and fufficion) reposid is one anther murually, by our

Pcople and the Natives. Their Houfes flood open co cach other of both fides, aind the Englifh (who of the two werc capable of giving the better Entertainment) very commonly fed the Savages at their Tables, and lodgid them in their Bed-chambers. The. Planters were Ceatered up and down the Country in feveral little Companies, and fullow'd their rutal 1 abours with ala crity, being under the fure guard of a Peace. The great Prithe of all the Country at chis time was Opccianca nengh, the Brother of P'owhatam, and now his Succeffor and the fame Perfon too whom the brave Captain Smirl Jraggd along by his Forclock in fighe of all his Anny, nonc of whom durft ftir to relicve him. All manner of injurics, and rough dealings of boch fides, feerid to be perfectly forgotren; and ihis Prince was enter'd into the ftricteft Leaguc with the Plantarion, not only for reci procal Defence, bus as one conecrn'd with them in the protits of Mines, or any other Difcoveries made in his Country: And whereas his Majefty (Opechancanough) us'd to dwell in a fort of a Manfion, that might without injury be compard rather to 2 Hogity than a Houre, to oblige him the more, they buile him a Houfe after the Fingifio faftion, and pur fome Furniture in the infide, fo thar he was now feared after another manner than cver any of his Predeceffors lead been. Of this Houfe he was to exselfively proud, that he did nothing but walk in and out, hewing it to all the fitrangers chat came, who admird the ftrange pomp he liv'd in as much as he did himfle. But that which molt particularly pleasd his Savage fancy, was the lock and the Key of the Door; the was hurprizid to fee that the rurning of a litele pice of Lron one way thou d make the Door open, and the contrary motion flou'd thut it as faft. This Enginc was to wonderful to him, that he was neser weary of making Experiments upon it, and twas a thing thac hefpent a good part of the day in to lock and unlock his Doors. He was no fooner up in the Morning, but to work he went with his Keys; and if neither the Locks nor thcy were broke and fpoil'd, it was none of his faulc. The place of a Turn-key in fome Jail woutd have firted him to the life, and if the Colony had any liuch to betow, they wou'd have done well to have preferi'd him to is.

This wife King admiring Gun-powder as much as tic did Locks and Kicys, laid out a good picce of ground for a Gun-powder Plansacion; and having Manar'd it in fuch a manner as he thought moft agrecable to sbe nature of that Seed, he threw it liberally into the well-prepard Soil, not doubting but he fould reap the Fruit of his Labours in a xich and plentiful Crop. Bue che Virginian Soil not being apt for Gun-powder, he cou'd aever bring it to any thing, nor have the pleafure of feeing is thoot upinto the Blade, tho he wery much defired it.

But we muft tuxn our Eyes now to a more melancholy Scene, and fee the Plantaion (after thele happy days) innolv'd in the greateft miferies and confufions; all this Peace and Quictnefs was but the Savages preparation for Murder and Bloodihed. They wound themielves thus info the greateft familiarivies and freedoms with the Engdif, to accomplilh their nuix with the more fecurity, and to be the lefs fufpected while they were concriving of it. Nay, fo pexfect was their diflimulation, that but rwo elays before the Maffacre, they guided a Company of the finlifh fafe through the Woods, and recurn'd thole that fiad been amongt them upon bufinefs in a very friendly manner, and all this to encreafe their confidence in them, and rake them off from their guard; that fo, when the furprize came, it might be the more effectual, and che ftroke given do 2 complear and full exceution. They had afembled themfelves in great numbers rogether, and being divided into Ceveral Bodies, refolvid to fa apon all the Plantations as one and the fame cime. npon all the Plantations ar one and the fame cime.

Friday Morning, March 22. A.D. 1621, was the fatal time, and the Cur-throats, in purfuance of their dchign; came abour the Englifh Houfes, having no manner of Weapons with them, bur infead of them bringing Furrs and Provifions to truck for Glafs-Beads, as they ufe to do 25 8ther rimes. And the Englif entertaind thicm with their accuftom'd frecdom, and in many, places fer thern down at their Tables to Breakfant with them, litde imagining what a Cort of Breakfaft the others intended o give them. When they faw their opportunity they ran to all the Weapens they faw hying abour the Houfes; all the Tools and Inftruments by which mifchief might be done, and fell a killing as faft as they could drive: And what fome did in the Houfes,others did abroad in the Fields, and other places, amongft the Workmen and Labourets that were at their feveral Employments. They frar'd neither Age nor Sex: they treated thicir grearelt Benefactors with the fame crucley and rigour that they. did others whom they might have a pique againtt ; nay, if there were any difference, they us'd them the moit barbaroully, and fpurnid their mangled Carkalks with the greatelt malice and contempt. Thenumber chat fell y their hands was near too, taking Women and Children into the account; and amongtt the Men were feveral Perfons of confiderable Figure in the Cotony, and of the Council too. TheSlaughter had certainly leen Univerfal, and the Enolifh entirely Exrirpated this time, had not the merciful Providence of Hearen opend the Mouth of 2 Savage, to rell of the Plot before'twas put in exccution. By this means, timely notice was given to fames-Tourn, and they ftood upon their guard; and fo hey did in feveral other places that were within the reach of this Intelligence, aind where 'rwas poifible to give waming of the danger. And wherever the Savages found them in rhar pufture, they marchid off as faft as they cou'd, never venturing to fland the trial, tho in Some of athe Plantations there were but a few Men together, and burflender arm'd and fortify'd neither.
The next Year the Englifh reveng'd this Ourrage in 1. D. 26339 fome meafure, marching into the Country, and burning the Villages and Corn-fields of the Savages: They rumid the Town of Prmanuke alfo (which was Opectiansanough's chicf Scar) topfyaturvy, and left him a lively Image in his Comutry, of that Ruin and Defolation he had Spread through the Plantation. What mov'd the perfidiousSavaze to treat the Engifh thus is uncertain, weither cou'd they ever know any other caufe for it, than the killing of a Savage who had batcly murderd an Englifh Genticman inche Woods: Bur he was a policick ay Rafcal, fic to manage an Intrigue, and opechancmough was faid to be highly lncens's for the lofs of fo weffui a Tool, and to Vow this Revenge upon that fore. He prov'd ecer afterwards a moft invetcrate Encmy to the Englif; and practis'd with 2 King upon the Eaftern Ihore, to furnigh him with fome quancicies of a Vegetable poyfon, so deAtroy all them that furvived the Maffacre; but that boneft Savage refus'd.ir, and came and difcover'd the whole Marter to the Englifh, offering to juttify the cruch of it, with five or fix of his great Mcn, at any rime. Opecliancanourg had che fate of a miferable dcath, and 'tis believ'd fome' of the Englifh gave him that for his Reward.
The Colony, after this dreadful ftoock, came into i ected State again, and his Majesty of England ,oot 2 litule concern'd at it, order'd chem a ftock of Arms and Anmunition out of the Tomer, that they might be able to defend themfelves from the like Infules for the future ${ }^{5}$ and alfo appointed a Commiffion to examine the Affairs of Virginif, and find out the letes thar had hicherto him, dred her from $2 n$ frecing the Coft that had been'beftow'? upon her.

С н п p. XXVI.

The Hijfory of Virginia, dramn from the Writings of Captain John Smith.

Bündar:

WHar the Boundarics of this Country are, will ' of, but in a Country that had had a teputation for Gold, be more cafily feen by furceying 2 Map, than would perhaps have been taken for fomething of that deccrib'd by our writing down the Names of ; mature. In all the Country there is little or no Grafs io Graf. the Countrics: That part of it which the firft Plantations took up, was from 37 degrecs to 39 degrecs North Lat.
Et tanc: The entrance to it by Sea is acthe mouth of a very fine
Grat Buy
curfitick. Miles wide. The Cape on the South-fide was calld Capcoficmy in honcur of the Prince; and that on the North-fide Crpe-Charles, in honour of the Duke of Tork. The adjoyning Counery is as fweer and pleafant as moft that the World can how ; and there are all the Beautics that Morneains, Valleys, Plains, Brooks, and large Narigable Rivers can add to a Country. Thefe Navigable Rivers are fire in number; they lic on the Weft-fide of the Bay, and have their Falls within is or 20 Miles of one another. The firft of thefe, and which is next to bives. the Mouth of the Bay, is called Rowhnen-River, from 2 cry conliderable Country that lics upon it: It has its Courfe from the W. \& by $N$. its Kife from cerrain Rocks in the Country of Monncan, its Mouth ncar three Miles broad, and is Navigable 150 Miles, but nor to be patid any farther by realon of Falls, Rocks and Shoals. There are abundance of other Rivers of lefler note, that lofe themflues in this great one; and upon all, "or moft of them, dwe:l fome little Nations (or large Families of the I/irginians under their refpective Werourances or Perty Kings. Abour 14 Miles Northward from the Porsbaten is the River Pemenuke, which is Navigable fixty Miles, and with frall Barges thirty Miles farther. The rhird is the River Toppabianoci, Navigable 140 Miles. The fourth Petaromect, which is'fix or feven Miles hroad, and navigable as many Miles as the former. The fifth Pamptuxunt, inferiour in magnitude to the reft, but the Channel 16 or 18 farhom deep in many places. To which may be added ancther large and navigable River, $3^{\circ}$ Leagues to the Northward, which the Erolifo call'd Beius upon the account of the Soil retembing Bolc-Armenick thereabours. All thefe the laft only ex ecpted) have varieries of Pcople inbabiting abour them, many orther leffer Rivers alfo falling into them; the Naracs of either of which wou'd be of listle confequence for the Reader to know, unlest fo far as the Colony was concern'd with them, and in that cafe, as there is cocafion, they may be mention'd. The temper of the Country is luch, as very well agrecs with che Conftitutions of linglifh Bodies, being once a little us'd and feafond to it. The Summer is as hot as in Spoin, and the Winter ar leaft as culd as in France or E : ghimat. The hears of the former Scafon are very comforrably mitigated by cool Breezes, and the extreme cold of the other continues nos long. There are uncertain vicifficudes of Droughts and rainy wet Weather; and the Thunder and lighening is more terrible here than in any parts of Eurofe, as leaft tis fo for the molt.part. than in other parts, only frequent Obfervations have ontirm'd and recommended theic. That the S. W. Wind blows che ftrongett gutts, and brings Thunder and Heat. The N.W. is very cold, and is atronded wirh fair Weather. The N. exceedingly marp; and the E. and S. E. feggy and rainy. Themain of the Summer
:methat:

Tis Sail.
Sors o:
Anf.ar. is unfurs fuir and Autuf; and the Winter balf DEcember, Terrary, Eebruary, and half Marci:
The Soil (take is all together) is fuch as may well croush bear a part in compoling the Character of a hapiy Country. In fome places you ancer with a black Mould, in others a far dimy Clay, in others a Gravel ; but. 'tis not uncommon to lighr upon Marble, Fullerscar:h, Bole; or ar leaft a thing lo very like it that the va is nimhebe as good as the lemnien (thio here "twas to be called $V$ rirginian; Earth. What Mines there are is tancirain, only there vere fore indications of Copper and Antimony: The diffolving Snows walle offalfo trom the Mouncains (abour Cbefepiack Bay) a certain glittexing Mater which they cou'd not well tell what to manc but what grows in low marihy Grounds, for 'ris all overrun with Trees, thar by their continual droppings, and the ftrength of the Soil rogecher, turn all into high rank Weeds; which, notwithftanding, is 2 diftemper that might be cured by good Husbandry.
The principal Wood of chis Country is Oak and Wall- Trsen. nut, tho' there is plenty alfo of moft other forts of Trecs. Of the former fort you thall meer with abundance, fo tall and ftrait. that chey will bear two and a half foot fiquare of good Timber for twenty Yaxds rogether. There are rwo or three kinds of them; and one of thofe kinds, whofe bark is much whitcr, than the reft, yiclds an Acron which is fweet, and being boil'd half 2 day in feveral Waters, affords a very fwest Oil, which the Natives keep br chem to anoint their Heads and Limbs. The Am and E'm are very good for making Soap-athes, bur the large Trees alvays make the belt. The Cypresstrees ifor to our Engl: is calldd them, beraufe the Wood, the Fruit and theLeaf, did moft re(emble it) are many of them three fathom in compafs about the Roor, very frair and tall, and running up fifty, fixty or cighty foot. without a branch thooting ous of either kide. Neider are Firr, Cedar and Saffafras-trecs, ftranecrs ro this Counury, but on the other hand very plentiful, as the many Ships lading of the two latter, which the Englif' have carricd from hence, will ifftiviently prove. And befides the Gums which these Trees jicld pientifully, there is another like a white Poplar, from whence comes a clear odoriferous Gum refcmbling Turpentine, and for its cxcellency calld by fome a Bailam.
In many parts of the Country - there are Chefnurs, Fuid. equal to the Eeft thar any European Counery produces. The Plams are of three dorts; the red and whice are like our Hedge-plums, but the others, which they call putchamins, grow on a Tree ashigh as the Palmsai: the Fruit is like a Me.jlar, tis firft green, then yellow, and wher ripe tis red; if it be not fully ripe, is will draw 2 Man's Mouch awry, and pur him so pain in the cating of ir, but when 'tis in its perfect ftare, 'ris as delicious as an Apricock. The Cherries are maped like Damzens, howerer, for the fake of the Cherry, colour and tafte, the Ensiifo gave them that name. The Vine is a fort of a wild Plant here, bur with care and drefing might be made to nurn to good account: In many parts you fec them climbing up to the tops of the higheft Trees, Fer theic bear but few Grapes. But by the Kivers-fides, and abour the Dwellings of the Sayages, where they are not robb'd of the Sun's hear, they are laden with Ftoit, tho ir be nor the effect of any Art or Care in praning and manuring, but purcly the bounty of Naturc. . There they call Hedge-grapes, but there is another fort near as big as a Cherty, which they call Aefflonines; which yichl a thick heary juice, and not of fopleafing a tafte when made into Wine: The Chechinquamins are a Frait chuchim, ${ }^{\text {s }}$ in much eftecm amongit the Nacive, it is husked like a mone. Chefrur, bue refanbles an Acron other ways; is is bur finall, as alfo is the Tree it grows upon. The Rawcomins Rawomime. are like our Goofcherrics in mott refpects, and they cat them cither raw or boild. The Putciormins do as much Peuchartins. refemble Meilars, and, thefe, rogether with Wall-nuts, Chelnurs, Acrons, and Checisinguxmins, the Natives dry and keep; and as any time when they pleafe to have that Liquor; they beat them very fmall, and mixing Warer with then, afier chey have lee is fettle, and pourid off the clear Liquor. they have a Drink which they vawe nor a litele. Of the Chefnuts alfo and Ciectinatre mins, boild abour three or four hours, they maise bods Bread and Broch too; cither of which is an Entertainment for their greatelt Men. In the warery Valleys stuws a Berry which they call Ocoughtancmins, which are very like Capers. Thefe they dry in Summer, and when they have a mind to ear them they boil chem near half a Day, which is feems they require, being other: wife rery untholfome. The Mersonmes are a Fruir chat grow 28 our Beissido in Meadows; rhe Seed of which $/$ Rock-fiah, Eeles, Lampreys, Cat-filh, Shads, Perch, is not much valike Ryc, the frnaller. This they ofe for making a dainty forr of Bread, upon which they fpread Deers Suet as we do Butcer. Strawberries, Rabberries; Curcanc, Hurcleberries, are as common here as in Eng-Rooss land. Their chief Roor for Food is that which they call Tockawboge, which grows like a Flag in low manddy places, thic Root ic felf being of the bignefs, and having the cafte of a Potato. They are forc'd to give them a fubfantial wafting over the Coals, or arleaft to flice and dry them well in the San, and to cat them with Sorrel is and Mcal, or fomething elle, to qualify the cxtream bear and acrimony of them, or elfe they wou'd be very prejudicial, for caten raw they are as bad as poyfon $\mathrm{Hr}_{\mathrm{c}} \mathrm{y}$ farmen. Their other main Roor, which they call WIaghfacan, ferves for Phyfick, as the formet did for Food; they bruife it, and apply it so the part affected, Pecone is 2 Roos, which being draed and pulveriz'd becomes red; this they ure for pairring their Bodies, as well as curing them of pains and fwellings. Of the like ufe is the Mufqualpene, which is Ronstar
s.alowing.

Pimeid have alio amongtt them, but thefe are in the number of their dajarics, and they plant them amongt their Corn The only planted Fruits they have are Pampions, Ma cokes, which are like Musk-melons, bur lefs, ano no Co well cafied, ripening in the beginning of faly, and cont uñuing cill Sepsember: and Maracokes, a Finit lite a Lemon, which begin to ripen in September, and continue ill the end of Octiber; both chefe increafe infinitely As for the Animals, the principal are their Deer, which differ not ar all from ours. The Bears are very fmall in comparifon with them in Mufcroix and Treterr. The Beavers are as big as an ordinary Dog, but their legs excceding thort, and the two fore-fect as mach like a Dogs, as the hinder are 2 Swans; the rail is quire void of hair, and 'tis one of the chmicet biss the Sarage de. fire to cat. The Otrers are very numetons, and much fuch as ours are, and the Savages ear them as heartily as they do Fiith. The Foxes are very fmall, and like on Silver-hair'd Conies, bur wholly without that rank fmell that they have in chefe Parke. Their Dogs ought rather to be call'd Wolves, finecthey never bark but howl; yet are they rcally diftinct from the Wolves, which are in this Country no bigger than our Engliß Foxes. Martins, Polecats, Weazels, and other Animals of that Tribe, they have, but they are feldom feen; and 'tis obfervable of them, that they are not near fo ravenous as they are with us, and the Hen-roofs lic tory guict as forany much like a Badger, bur lives much up in Trees as Squirrels do. Squirtels here are almoft as big as our fmaller fort of Rabbiss. The Affep.anick the Engïfh call 2 Flying-Squirrel, becaufe by fpreading their legs, and extending their bodics to the full. Atretch, they will as it were Ay along for 30 or 40 Yardsrogether. The Opaf fam has cractly the Head of a Swine, and a Tail as much refembling that of a Rat; the Female has a Bag under the Belly, whercin the lodges, carrics and fuckles her young. The Maffof $\mathrm{cms}^{\text {s }}$ is a fmall Creature like our Water-Rats, bur finell extremely ftrong of Musk, which ours are far coough from doing. The Virginian Hares are none of them bigger than our Conies, and very few of them to be found. For Fowl, Vitrinia af fords plency of the Nobler and more Princely fort, as well of the Volgar: Thereare Eagles, and all forts of Hawks, bat (wtrich is odd) they prey mofly apon Fifh. Partridges are litule bigger than our Quails, but the wild Turkeys are every way as large as our tame ones Black-binds, Thrufhes with a great many forts of fmall Birds of various colours, are in great plenry too. In the Winter there come vaft numbers of Swans, Cranes, Herons, Geefe, Dicks, Widgarns, Dettereis, Ox-ejes, Pigeons and Parrots, with many orher kinds which the Englift were firangersto. For Finh, you have chere Stur geon, Grampus. Porpus, Scals, Scingrays. (whofe rails are fo dangerous, as Captain Srrith found to his colt Salmon, Trours, Soals; Pbile, Herrings, Cony-filh, Cuform of Womens wearing borns in that Country.

They were then in Mafquerade, and being naturally as wild as Bucks, thought fit co appear in Difguife like Stags. Yer this is to be faid of the Virgininn Women, that they are modeft and carf blum, and there is this particular effea of their modefty very vifible befides, that they always take a nice care to hide the oblcene Parts.

The Snfouctibnancks, who differ very much from all the reft of che Virginians in their bulk and ftature, are alfo much more formidably drefs'd; they look like fo. many He,cules's arm'd with mighty Clubs, and corerid with the Skins of Bears and grear Wolves, the complear Heads of which were on so che Hides, and hew'd their horrible Teech, feeming yer to threaren deftruction. The Paws alfo were on as well wishe Tecth, and made the Monfters that wore them appear as ficrec as thofe to which they betong'd. Their way of fpeaking was. fuch as mighs narurally be exphacd from fuch hiuge Bodies. The roice in the wide cavities of their Throars, founded like a noife soming ont of Come hollow Cave or Vaule; and were thofe Men to talk in folitary places chrough $S_{j}$;eaking-trampers, a credulows Mob mighr cafily be impos'd upon, and made believe they heard the voice of foncthing more than Humanc. 'Tis a wonder this Generation of Micn were not all Priefts, fince Nature has form'd them fo well for Impofture, and fince thofe Men, in ail there Countrics, cheat the Pcople with far lefs advanrangs for doing it. Our Englifg. were vifited by fome of this Nation, and therefere are the more bold in giving is this particular account of them. They had much ado to defend themfelves from being adord and wothipped by then, fo many execllencies did the sufaurfatancles fond in their fmall proporions, which they coud not fee in their own Gigantick ones.
Asfor their Women, whey don's rell us they faw any of them, but 'ris moore than probable they are of the fame lize with their Husbands, and io are cheir Marches in a comble refpes. Now the wort part of theie Prople is that which is rinuic to d Ese; rough and coarfe, but their tempers are more honett and innecent than the reft of their Neighbours, for the Virginians are gencrally fly, crafty, treacherous, feldom conftane and tate to their Word, but where fear or compulfion makes them for. They donic want facace and quick apurchemfinn, bur they want honcfty and fincesicy, whigh is the worfe want of the two, and renders thein that be under it the worf Neighbours to them tha: are about them. If they con's fteal and thiere from onermadke, 'ti, not becaufe their fingers don't itch at in, bat becaule they areminaidesheir Conjuress thou'd difcover them : For they have a fort of Thenramongf them that pretend to be Revealers of Sccrets, and whethar they ate $\mathrm{So}_{0}$ or no, the common People believe them to ke fo, and coniequendy are honeft, becaufe they are afraid to play the Rogue.
the lirginien Wornen we faid before were modeft; bur fome of our Buthors fay, That tbey are careful not to be fispected of D: faneity witious the leave of their Huf inds. From whence a Man might infer, chat when cheir Husbands gave their confent they couid les chat care trop, and be sufpected of Dihoncty : or (which amounts to the fame) do fomething to give caufe to that fufpicion. For when the Man gives keave, if the Woman hould fo no farther than bate fufpicion, 'rwou'd be a very ftrange thing: As for ste Habitations of thele People, they build their Houfes for the moft parr by the Rivers, orat laft not far foom fome frefh Spring. Thefe Houfes are buit like our Arbours, of fmall young fprigs bow'd down and tied together, and cover'd very clofe with Mats, or ture Barks of Trees, which, as they order the Matter, defend slem to well, that in fpite of Rain, Wind or Snow, they are as warm as Stoves At the top, righe agaioft the Fire-place there's a hole to let the finoke our, bur yer fo much flays in (for all the hole) that 'rwill make 2 Man that is nget us'd to it cry to ftay there.
Their Beds are litule Hurdles made of Reeds, and cover'd with.Mars, and fupported alout the Floor by frong Hurdles of Wood. Here they lie Heads and Tails by one another, round about the Fire, fome coverd with Mats, others with Skins, and others fark naked. And tris no little number that thus hipddles together while they take their natural reft, for if in one Houfe you fee eighe or ren, in the next perhaps you frall find twenty or thirty in this pofturc. Adjoyning to their Houfe are their Gardens, or Fieids, for the Service of their Families, nay, for the moft part they ftand in the middle of them; and nor far off is fome litele Wood or other that fupplies them with firing.
other fuch Exercifes, white the Women ate employ'd in making Mats, Baskets, Pors, providing Victuals, planting and gathering the Corn, and lugging it home upon their fhoulders: For the Virginians, we muft know, fcom all thofe kinds of Labours, and look upon them as too fordid and effeminate for their Sex, and therefore throw them upon their Women. But yet the Men don'r think is bencath them to make their Own Cloaths, and cerrainly the work of a Taylor is much more Womanith than that of a Husbandman; and $a_{r}$ Man looks more filly with a Needle berween his fingers, in the Chimneycorner, than with a Spade or 2 Rickax in his hand abroad in the Fields. The hardeft of all their Work is indeed punting ite the planting and drefling of their Fields, for which rea- Fieldin and Kon one woud think the Men moùd have taken it upon fowing their. themfelves. In order to the preparing of the ground, they do thus: As the Connery is naturally oven-xmm wish Woods, fo they come and bruife, and beat the Barks of the Trecs, to make thein burn the eafier; then they make Fires all about the Roots, and fcorch them fo ctfectually, that chey grow no more. The next Year they do, with a very litde labour, pull thefe fcorched Trees up by the Roots, and in that Mould where they flood they plant their Corn. The way is, making a hole in che ground with a Stick, to pur 4 grains of Wheat and 2 Beans, into the fame hole: Thele holes are made abour 4 foor diftance from one another. Tis the bufincfs of the Women and Children ro keep all clean and clear of Weeds; and when the Com is grown middle high, they hill is about hike a Hop-yard.
Whe beginning of their Plancation is in April, but the seafims for chicf is in $M a y$; and fo they continue till the midet of planang. func. What they fow in April they reap in Augu/t; in May in Scptember, in $\mathcal{F}$ une is ORober. Tis onc piece of Odd piece of Hasbandry prastis'd here, which is not common in other fubsudedy. Countrics, to fow or fer other chings amongit their Corn. Twas faid juft now that they bury Wheat and Beans to fether in the fame hole ; but this is not the only inflance of it, for you thall fee them plant Pumpions, and other Fruits, amongt their Corn; neither do they bclieve that cither of there will do the other an injury by its neighbourhood. 'Twas hinted before that they don't let their Corn ftand upon the ground rill'tis ripe, but gather is green, and roaft it by the Fire. Many times Winy of ma: they bruitc is in a Morrar, and lapping ir up in the naging ca: leaves of the fame, boil and ear it as a grear dainty They make a fort of Meal or Flower of their roafted Corn, of which they make Cakes; and there they fometimes Bake and fomerimes Boil, eaging the Broth together with the Bread. And they do in general eat the Broth of all things they boil, whether Fith or Flen, and thisindecdone won'd not fo much wender at, when one hears they car that "mixde of atcal alone: yer Porridge made of Shell-fin, a Man wou'd rhink inoúd be bur poor ftuex.
According to the vaxious Seafons of the Year, fo How ther does their Diet alter and change. In Marich and April live at fevethey feed much upon Fifh, Turkies and Squirrels. In rale $\begin{gathered}\text { rea }\end{gathered}$ May 2nd Fune they live upon Acrons, Wall-nurs, Strawberries, Mulberries, Oyfters, Crabs and Tortoifes. In Fuly and AuIuft they ear Roors, Fifh and green Wheat; and at other Seafons live upon their roafted Corn, and what they get by Hunting, This diverfity of feeding makes a ftrange alceration in the flate of their Bodies; fomecimes they are round and plump, at ocher times as lean as Rakes. They change juft as the wild Beafts themfelves do, that at cerrain Seafons have cheir Ribs well lin'd and coverd, and quickly after appear ready to ftart out of their Skins.
The whole Bufinéssand Sport of the Virginians (the Men I mean) is ro Filh and Hunt; and thefe they may be allow'd to underftand very well, fince they are brought up to them from their Cradles, and concern themfelres about nothing elfe. Their Fithing is for the Their Eivi moft part in,their Canoes; their Lines are made of the ing. finews of Deer, or 2 forr of Grafs they call Pemmenaw. or elfe of the Barks of Trees, cither of which the Women very dextroully Spin into a thread. Their Hooks are fome fharp crooked Filh-bone, tied on to the end of the Line. But fometimes they ufe certain long Arrows, with which they floot the Fim in the River. And there is one Nation of the Virginians that always ufe long Javelins, headed with bone, which they dart into the Water, and frike their Prey fwimming. Bur Hunting Their has: is an Exercife of mach more toil, as well as profit to ting. them, and tis this that they mainly value themfelves upon. Tis a matter of Glory with them to be well accomplin'd in this Sport; the Young Men raife their Reputation, and recommend themfelves to Wives, by cheir dexrerity and good management bere. Their Bows and Arrows do a double Execution, and kill the Women as well as the Decr. At rhefe times chey leave their Habitations for a confulcrable while rogether, and march out fomerimes 200 or 300 in a company. They know all the Haunts and lirk king: Places of the Game they feek and difoover no litte Art in traverfing their ground, and branging their Deer up into the Ponnds where they are fure to have them. Upr by the Heads of the Rivers tines find plenty of Spors, and there's hardly aty thing comes in thof: narrow lathes that cicapes them.
When they have tight of a pateel of Decr, they com-pafs them round about with Firss, and te:wixs thole Fires (which are at no greac daltance firm ote auother) they take their own ftandings. When this is don; they tegin to fee upa noat fearfol cry, which fiares the Deer, amd makes them non for their lives; bur finding themfelves farrounded with Fire, they are fored to run alous in that Circle, from one grarter to andtiocr, will the Hunters Arrows have perced chein. The Hunters fonctumes drive them into fome narrow poine of Land, and fro:i thence th y forre them inmo a River; where their Ambulianc-ions prefendy deftroy them.

Tinitent

 liar nolice. 'Tis rye. there's no grear matece of Crate in thonting re catcting a Dect, bue as che Vorminima munare it, there is a rick in at which featce any hur themflres practili. Whena Sarage gocs out a Hunring alone, he drefer himfelf up in the Skinenfa Deer: His artas come throwh holus the are fitadi for them, as likewile his ters; and the Head, which is prefervid entire upon the Skin, comes upon his Head. Thus the Man appears like a Dece; and to appear the more io, he crawls vpon all four, and jlaces himfelf behind fome Tree, sill he fecs fornc of his fellow Bucks come in view. When he has his Spore in fight, he talks along towards it, and cakes care as he marches to keep his Horns righe upon his Forchead, that the Deer may be ture to fee them ftand in the fame place that his own do. If the Decr ftarts, and ferms to difeover any thing that does nor belong is his own kind, the Man compores himfe'f into a decent poiture, and looks as Decrilh as poofible; he fers his Head in order, and ftreiches our his Cloven foor, and gocs to work upon the Grafs as thofe Crearures do. In fhorr, what by one imitation and another, he orepans the Aamal inro a Sccurity, and fo thoors him; for this Buch (we muth know) carries a Bow and Arrows wath him. which the others do not.

Thus much for their ways of gerting Provition; in order to the drefing of is they mutt have Fire, and than they' procure afies this manner. They don't ufe Fling and Steel as we do, which are Heccrogeneons Subtances, but for morecompendious way on work by Homogerecus orics. They rub Wool upon Wood, in ordar 2. Life gering of Fite; for having made a hole in a thick fytare piece orotronid, adey take another pointed Stick which firs that hoc; and by a cominoed aismifemotion hear it io far, that as iattit takes fire. And having gotten a fark; they quackly make a blaze, for they have always their Tinder reaciv athand, which is Mofs, Stubble, or any for of dry Rublisth.
Their
Having now raken a thort view of the Srate of Nature, and theit way of living, we thall in the next place, come to Moral Crmiderations, and fee how chey manage themfelves as bocceics; and what fort of Laws and Cuftoms they are under the power of.
Iin Matrers of War and Peace they always confult rhiren their Sages, and molt commonly cheir Friends and Allies. 'Tis very feldon that they dercrmine to fight another Nation. withour having the confent of the Priefts for't, thofe Men conducting then by their Opinions in all cafes of imporanace. And when they are come to the con clufion of fighting; they go regularly to work appointung fuch Mrn to command and lead their Troops as they know to be of a well-rried Valour.
Their Rcafons for making War, are vert different from thofe whid matie moft Peopic in thefe Parts of the Worh fall regether by the Ears: They don't fighe for Iands or Goods, for meer Dominion, or for fighring's take, but chicty to purchafe Women and Children; which, if they gee a grod tock of, they have all the Succefs that they sefire their Arms to be blefsd withal. It eser they tecin a War upon another Nation, "tis upon this account, or that of forie Wrong and Injuftice done: Fre as there are fiw of them that are not fome way or odher Encmics to cue another, fo any litule trijury or Affront wharfoerer is a fuff cient ground for fighring. If a Sarage of one Nation thould bear, or fexffe, with one of anothe:, this is cnough to engage the whole Poffe of lot odes.
'Twou'd be endlefs to reckon up all the Nations in Tne bratiVirginia that' are deciar'd Enemies to one another: The nimm, bire mott confiderable are the Pumbatans and che Monacans ; ansias. the Maffownmecks, and their implacable Adverfaries the Snfquefalianocks. Thefe are molt of them populous Nacions, and are coutinually plaguisy and tornenting one another: The Eng: ©/ were many times Culicited, with greatompertuniry, by the P. wisatans and Sofnusjainoncels. to efproufe their Caule, and underrake the Rrotection of themagaint their refpective Encruics; twas it an Cap: Smich's sunc, and is mighe have been donc with a few Men, a lift!e troubie, and to very great ad vantape, bue the perverfec Coincil (as that time ruling the Reat,, and enveing the Clory of that brave Man, wou'd not give way to. it.
AstheVi ginians are naturally treacherous and fuld of itir ate deceic, fo they abound in fratagems and tricks to ruin cikris oneramother in their Wars. There's no People under the Sun that underitand Trap betrer that they; that can lay a snare more arriticially, and bring an Adverfary irito is more cleverly. They do more by Surprize (by far; than by fair and cpen fighting, and pleafe chemicives more with a Victory, when they pop out of a Wood upon an Enemy, than when they mees him handfomly in the Fickd, and fighe upon cqual rerms.
The manner of their Engagements our Engl: 乃licarnt, Manner of by an Enterainment which the Savages cherriclves gase: ther: pitsh: them; in which. Scene they reprefented their way of fighting. The Socetasors being placid in their refpetive Srations, the Combatants appeard, painted and dufu:fed in the fatfullett manner they coud invene. they were abour 100 of a fide, ene part reprefonitng Pimbafir's, and the other Momatan's, the two math coneending Nations epon the Continent. Being led on by their Captains, they took their Stands at rhe diftance of a Musker-1hot from one another, and rank'd chernfelves fiffeen a breaft; the Ranks being 4 or $;$ Yárd, diftane, and tianding fo upon the flope, that the Rear coud moot as conveni ntly as the Frinc. While they ftrod thus, Meffengers paft berwixt them, carrjing thefe Conditionc, (ro be murually obferv'd) That which Panty fiever had the Victory, thofe of the anquithed that cfeaped thoud have cheir Lives, upon a fabmition to Marcy Within two days, but their Wives and Children Moud be a Prize for the Conquerors. Wirh all chefi furmaliries was the ludicrous Scene carry'd on; and now she Meffengers being return'd to their refpective Parties, both fides addrelsd themfelves to action. They marchid towards one another in good order, with their.Sergeants in Flank, and Lieutenanes bringing up the Rcar, but they came on leaping and finging cheir War-Tuae; Aor all which mirth and merry poftures, they did not ar all break cheir Ranks, nor pur themfelves our of the: due places. Upon the firit difcharge of Arrows they gave fuch horrible mouts, and made fuch fereechings, that our People faj) a Tronf of Infernal Hounds cou'd icarce have magre more texrible ones. When they had fpent their and rese whey closid together pretrily enough, charging and retiring, eiery Ranterentuing the other. As they got advantage, rhey catch'd their Enemies by she hair of a hew of beating out their Brains. The Aonacin, marty decrealing, (for abundance lay for dead, that werc alive enough to run away) thic Powhatsins, to ger a complear Victory, charg'd their Enemies in form of a Half moon, which they finding to be a defign to inclofe them, fled towards their Ambufcades, upion which they drew the others very cunningly, and here the Battel was renewcd with vigouri: In floort, the Powhatans now did theis beft to get out of this Snare, and retir'd rowards their old Quarters; and here was an end of the Bartel; which coft much lefs Blood than thole berween thele two Partics ufe to do.
Their Marial-mufick is formething Analogous to martial.cic. Trumpets and Drims: Inftesal of the former. they hate fict: Pipes made of Canes or Refds; and for the lititer, a great deep Plamer of Wood, the hollow of which is ca ver'd with a Skin. But their main Inftumenc is the Rantle, which is made of Gourd or Pumpion-theils; and of whith chey hase Eafe, Tenor, Counter-tenor and Trebie. The Pipes, the Wooden-plarrers, the Rattles, and the Voices, all pur together, do make fuch 2 charm, that a Man that had once heard it, wou'd never defire to hearit more.
What their Weapons are will eafily be guefsi; chey weapons have no Notion of any others than Bows and Arrows, Targets and Swoords, or as leaft a Weapon thar flands them in the tead, and does the Work of a Sword.
Their Arrows are made of frong Wood, headed with their AB-Bone, änd thole heads are fome of them two Bone, and trofe heads are fome of them two or three rown he Inchies long. But they have another fort of Arrows made of Reeds, piec'd with Wood, and headed with Splinrers of Cryftal, or fome fharp Stone; or perhaps with the Claw or Bill of lome Bird. To make the Norches of their Arrows, they ufe the Tooth of a Beaver fet in a Stick, with which he grates it by degrees Their Targers are round, and made of the Barks of Trees; their Swords of Wood: Tho many times, intead of Swords, they ufe other contrivances, as the tharp Horn of a Deer put through a picce of Wood, or a great Flint fer after the fame manner. Bur after their Acquaintance with the Englif., they grew lefs fond of their owin conrrivances of this nature, becaufe tbey found berter mongt them; and 'rwas hinted before, that fome of oir People. were fo filly as to make them very familiar with Swords and Hatchers; and not only them but Fire-2rms too.

TbeirRnirs.
What they commonly us'd to help themfelyes with inftead of a Knife, was only a Splinter of a Recel, with which a Man wou'd wonder to fee how rery cleyerly they'll cut their Feathers, and their leather for making Shoes and Buskins; alfo how thes will open a Ucer, and joint him, and divide him into his feveral pars.

With the Sinews of Deer, and the rops of the Horns of the fame Creatures, they make a very temacious Glew that will not diffolve in cold Wiater. Thefe Psople, as bariarous and anpolifid as we reckon them, have yet not a fmall number of Cercmonies in their Vifits and Entertainments of one another. If any great Man comes to fice another that pretends to any degrec of Suate and Power, in the firft place the Mats are fpread upon the ground for them to fit on; for the Virginians make juft the fame uff of chefe, that the Turks do of their Сагретs.
The Vifitant, and the Perfon vifired, being feated up-Cermonia
of Knerrain on their Mars oppolite to one another, the latter, with mennamongt all his Company, do in a Cort of a Mufical way (or betre ingin twixt linging and mouting) bid him welcome. Afier this, two or three of the chiefeft of the Hoff's Company make Otations to him, che fence and feope of which, is to let the Gueft know how acceptable his prefence thete is, and how much he is beloy'd. "Bur this they do with fuch vehemers paffion, and fuch an inrenfe ftraining of their Bocies, that the drops of fweat run down their faces apace; and they run chemelves quice out of breatb, and pant as in they. were ready wou'd think them to be raving all the while, and cither downright mad, or expreffing a violent indignation againft their Gaefts. When the pathetick Speeches are done, the ViCuals comes in, which is by far the berrer part of the Entertainment. Whatever chey have in the Houfe they bring out, and are pleas'd to fec thofe they entertain ear frecly.* Towards Night they provide his Lodging ; and to make the whole kindnels compleat, bring him a Woman very well drefs'd (according to their fartion) to be his Bedfellow. This is a fort of Civility not to commonly practis'd in other Parts of the WeftIndies; but the Virginians, it feems, wou dhardly think themfelyes made truly welcome ar their Exiends Houfes, if the Joys of the Woman were not added to thole of eating and drinking. Their trading is reo inconfiderable for a defcription, for as they aim ar no bigher things than Beads ani pieces of Copper, fo they have norhing.

their Phyit

There are fome People in Firginie thar profefs themrelves Dootors, and by certain odd unaccountable Methods pretend to cure diftempers.: They gabble our a deal of fltange ftuff, and accompany their words with actions fo horrible, thar fome People who are fearful of Wircheraft, wound conclade, inftead of being cured, they fhou'd be bewitch'd. Whar they woud make the World believe is, that they cure the diftemper by fucking away the caufe of is, for they apply thcir Mouths to the part affected for that purpofe. The Brefilians (we have heard in irs place) rake the like courfe, and are for drawing away the diftempers of their fick People into their Mourtis; and we believe the Brafizan and Virginian Doctors hare both the Eame degree of Skill and Succels in this Affair. They go a much more direct and narural way to work, when they make thofe fearful noiles, and pur themfelves into fo many Devilifh poftures, for pentaps chis may frighten away the diftemper, or at leaft the Paticut out of his Wins, and that's as good as curing of him. Yerethefe Difeafe-fuckers had to high an Opinion of our Englih Surgeons, that they believ'd any Phaifter of cheirs wou'd crree, any hurt; and thar what was intended for a broken Borie, or an Ulcer, wou'd Serve as well for a Fever or a Dropiy. if it were but a Medicine of theirs, and adminiftred by"them. The common People notwithitanding, are for the moft part their own Phyficians.
For a Dropfy, they go inro a little Har built like our their wey of Dove-houfes, and made as clofe as a Srove, and making cuing ita listle Fire here they fit and fweat it out; the farme they do for any pain or ache. Swellings they cure by Incifion with a marp. Fline, or fometimes burning 'the Parr, and fucking our she Corruption (2 parcel of nafty Whelps) with their Mouths. But if the fwelling happens to be in a place out of their reach, (as fuppofe it ra be juft behind) then their own Mouths are excus'd, and fome bodies elfe performs the cleaniy work for them Every Spring the; conftantly Purge themielics with the Strongra: Juice of the Rcor-Highfacam; they pour down a saft quantiry of is mix'd with Watcr, and continue loading their Gucs in that manner till it works moft furioully with them, and makes them a littlc weak and maukilh for three or four days after. Horfes perhaps, thoud they be ferv'd fo, wou'd be purg'd so death, or at leaft quice off their legs; but the Virginians, who ars not of foinfirm and puny a Conftitution as thofe Animals, are only 2 littic out of order uponit, and after 100 or 200 Stools can'r be brisk again, till Nature has refted her felf upon the harry for three or four days.
They have 2 fort of Men alfo amongt them; that Cenjurations pretend no lefs to cure diftempers in the Elements ihan $\frac{2 n+1}{}$ I in, thefe others in Humane Padies. They have Mcrhods for quicting the Sca, and filencing the Winds, when they rage in a Srorm. When the Waters begin to run high, they hafte away to the Sca-fide, or the Banks of the Rivers, and after feveral Invocations and Outcrics made they throw Tobacco, Copper, and other cram, into the Wacer; this is in order so appeaic that Power which they believe to be very angry upon foch occafions, and muft have fome fueh Oifcrings made him before he will be quict again.
When they have any dead Tecopie to difpere of out of arev. the way, chey rake, inftead of Shovels and Mickaxes, greas Stakes made fharp as one end, and to dig a hole of confiderable depth in the pround, in which they lay a parcel of Sticks a crois, and lapping up the Corps in Skins and Mats, they lay them upon thofe Sticks, and fo cover them up with Earih. Bur all their Jervels (that is their Beads, pieces of Copper, and the like) go under ground along with them; neither is there any Man buried without his Treafure.
The Burials of their Kings differ from thofe of the Finer is of common People in many relpects: The Bodiss are firft thir Kings. Embowelld, and then dried upon Hurdles, till they are very dry. Abour their Necks, and every. Joynr, are bung Chains of Beads and Copper, (the Toys they us'd to wear) nay, their very infides are futfld with form trafh or orher. Being wrapt very carefully in curious white Skins, and then roulk in Mats, they are laid in their Sepalichres (which are Arches made of Mats) in very great order. In all Burials, the Body being laid women in the gronnd, the Women prefently apprar with their moutmeth faces in deep Mourning; thar is, they black them over with 2 mixture of Cole and Oil, and then they go to their noify Lamentations in the Houfes, which commonly laft for 24 hours, and is mach fuch a fort of Mutick as a Man may hear as a Carterwauling- Bur when Kings dic, the Mcuming is much deeper, all the Pailions more intenfe, and the noife confequently more intolcrable.
The Religion of the Virginiaps confîts principally in The: Rein. this, That whatfoever is above them in Power, and gi able to do them any hurr, is an Objest of their Worthip. Any thing that may do them mifchicf, in fite of all the care they can rake to prevent it, is a fort of 2 Deity to them, and they exprefs a reverence for is accordingly: - Therefore Fire, Water, Thunder and lishrning; nay, cren the Horfes, the great Gums and Mlutkets of the Englifh, were at firt worlhippid by them. But that which they ftand moft in awe of, is a Being oke th:they call Ofee, and which the Englifh Intexpret the Dc- Dr vil. They confels themfelves they don't lerve him out of Love, but fear of his Power and Malice, and that they have oftentimes Conferences with him. In their Temples they have his Image fanding up, a loathfome and deformed Obiect ro look upon, bur drefid up with all the fineries of Chains and Bracelets that cheir Invention can add to him. Clofe by this Image are the Sepulchres of their Kings, who, it fecms; reckons it a felicity to lie by his fide.

The Vorginions have peculiar Edifices confecrated to Their Tcm their Deities, and devored to the Exercifes and Ccremo-ples. nies of their Religion. In the Territory of every Werowance there is one Temple ar lealt, and one Prieft (perbaps two, thace or four) for the Scrive of that

The grew onan at $p$. conctat

Tempic. The Principal and mof Sacred place of all for their Devotion is at Utramulfack at Pamannke; here, upon the rops of certain Hills in the Woods, are threc grear Temples, or Houfes, filld with the Images of Kings and Demons, and with the Tombs of the deceafed Werowances. They imagine fo mach Sanctiry in thefe places, that none but the Priefts and Kings themfelves dare to come into them. The Savages, as they go up the River in Boats, at a litrle diftance from it, throw pieces of Copper, Beads and Roots, into the Water, when they come over againft it, as a fort of Sacrifice or Offering to the $\mathrm{Di}_{\mathrm{i}}$ inity of the place; neither do chsy dare to pals along withour paying this Acknowledgment. In this place are always Refident 7 Pricits, the chief of whom differs from the Inferiours in this chicfly, chat he is more fithily drefs'd than they, and what that Drets is, may be known from the Kelation made by Captain Smish, conkerning their Conjurations done in his prefence ar Pamatu.k. That Story gives a full account of their Drefs and their Proceedings too, toth of whith the Reader will find to be as well ridiculous as devilith.
Tomions of
The common People have no Notion at all of any Immorality with refercuce to themfolves; but their Kings and their Priefts they telieve thall be lmmortal. They fay they gn, when they die, beyond the Mountains towards the ferting of the Sun, and remain there for ever, not in the form they appear in here in this World, but in the Mare of Okes ; that is, like fo many Devils. For they pay the Object of their Worthip this Compleminit, to trelicye the form he appears in to be handfoment, and to think the: are never fo beautiful as when they are likeit him. Alt their Notions of the felicity of thele Kings and Priefts, in the pleafant places beyond the Mountains, are futable to the grofs delights they enjoy and converfe with here. Thus chey fay that theirHeads thaill be painted there with fine Oil and Pocones; that they thall tee eclicarcly trimm'd with feathers, and have picnty of Beads, Copper. Axs and Hatchets; that they Whall be continually fmoking Tobacco, and Dance and Sing with their Anceftors in the Flowry Fields of that Region. As for themfilves, (as was faid before) chey don't expect to live any where, when once they die in this World, and confequently cmoke, and dance and fing, like Perfons that are to sake their leaves of them for ever. There does not feem to be any diftinction of Time into common and facred amongft them, their conduat fueaking for them, char all Time is alike to them, as far as it cou'd be obfervid. Yet this Cuftom is taken notice of, that in times of yery great Want and Scarcity, or when they have criumph'd over their Enemies, or gather'd in the Fruits of their Fieds, that they all meet together, Men, Women and Children, in order to a certain Solemnity. What they do ar this sime, is to make a rouzing Firc, for the moft part in the Fields, and all wo fiup and dance abous it for four or five hours together; and what with their fhouting, and noife of their Kattles, 'ris a moft fearful clatter they make upon this Occafron, Sometimes, inftead of dancing round a Fire, they fer 2 Man in the middle and dance round him, be all the while clapping his hands, and making as if he kept rime. to their Songs. All this ended, they go away to the far berter Sport of Frafting.

But once cvery feven or ten Year, they have a fort of 2 Solemnity nuch more ftrange than this ; 'tis practifed amongit all the Nations of Virginia, and the Englifh faw i: amonnft thofe that were their Neighbours as $\bar{J}$ amesTown. They rake is of the moft likely Boys they can find, between 10 and 15 Xears old, and paintr them all white: And when chey have pur them into this trim, the) bring them out to the People, who fpend all the Forenoon in finging and dancing about them with their Ratrics. In the Afternoon they lead them under 2 grear Trec, and fer chem clofe abour the Roors of is, where all the Men ftand by chem like'2 Guard, every one having in his hand a great Rod made of Reeds, ried up in 2 bundle rogether. Now all the Men with theif Rods in their hands, being in exact order, and making 2 Lane by their Ranks; in come five young Fellows to fetch away thele Boys, which they did one after another in their reipe $=$ ive rurns, fo thar each of thefe five bad five Boys apiece to lus our. Bur that which was che oddeft part of the Scenc was, that thefe Fellows all the while tun the Gaunlet, and vere whipp'd by the Guardafier a moft fevere manner, while they were going for, and carrying out the Boys, And fince they did not fetch their Boys all ngether, bur went in order one after ano ther, each for his fire, ir's ccrtain that this cou'd be no lircle penithment; for here were a multitude of hands, and cucry hand had a Rod, and every Rod was hearrily ayplied to the naked Backs of thofe pour Fellows, and chey had not the advantage of mifling a lath from one and another, as they wou'd have had if they had run all rogether. And yer they endured all very patiently, and carefully skreen'd the Boys with their naked Bodics, that none of the laftes fell upon them. Afrct the Boys were pals'd, the Guard fell upon the Tree, rent the yery Body, and tore off all the branches of it, adorning their Heads with the leaves Bur what became of the Boys afterwards the Eingliß cou'd not pofitively affirm; only this they fay, that they werc'all laid of a heap in 2 Valley as if shey were dead, and theic was a great Fcaft made for the Company thise upon the firor. It Gou'd have been obfervid before, thar all the white the Guard were a lathing the young Men, the Women wept, and cried out mott paifionately, and cmployid themfelves in providing Mats, Skins and Mols, as rhungs fitring for the Funerals of their Chillien. Yer the King of Quiyouricenamork, in whofe Territories this Solemnity was perform'd, told the Eniglifh rhar the Children were not dead when they lay there in the Vall $y$, bur that the next day afrer they were to drink the liquor of the Roor Mighfacen, which wou'd make thein all mad, and that $O k$ :e wou't come and fuck the Blood of loine of chem that fell to his fhare.
He gave alfo this account farther of the matrer : Severe DifiThat thefe Bnys were to be kept in the Woods for the plior. rpace of nine Months, by another Setr thar had gone th.ough this Difcipline the laft Solemnity; and that here chey endure the grearefi hardinips, and are fo abfolutely under the Goo crnment of chefe Keepers, thar they do the moft unnatural things in the World at the ieaft word of Command from them. If they bid them lie downnaked in the Snow, they'tl lic there rill they have leave to rife again; or if they Command them to go and rake Provifions from cheir Parents, they are fo afraid of the Malediction they shreaten them with in cale of refufal, that they'll tear their Muthers throars out, but they will have what chey were order'd to bring. In thort, they are documented as fuch a rate by theie deviluth Turors, and made fo fierce and wild, that they very often do mifchief to People they find fraggling in the Wuods. When the nine Months are expired, thofe that furvive all thefe difficulties come ro rheir laft Probation, which is, amongit feveral Dibes of Broth that are fet before them, and fome of which are poyfond, to diftinguim and find our chem chat are not pogiond. What becomes of thofe that do not hir upon the righe we can't fay, 'is probable the poyfon ends their days; and confidering the life chey had liv'd, a Mefs of fuch Broth wou'd have done them 2 kindnels nine Manths before.. As for thofe An odd rial that happen upon the wholfoine Meffes, they have done of Skill. cnough to eftablifh their Reputation in this Councry for ever. They are now confummated Priefts and Conjurers in the Opinion of the common People; and rhis any body elfe woud readily allow them to be, if swant by hap-hazzard that they did what they did." We muft fuppofe the poifon to be fuch, as nor any way fenfibly to have alterd the qualicies of the Broth; for if it did, where wou'd be the rrial of Skill in difcerning one Dilh from tother? And certainly, te thas can tell when his Mesat is poyfon'd, withour being firftrold fo by his Mear, does very honeftly deferve rhe Name of 2 Conjurer. The Virginzans look upon this Solemnicy as fo importanc a piece of their Devocion, that if they mou'd omit it, they Moud expect to mincur the higheft dificeafure of Oke, and he woud revenge it apon them, not only by with-holding the Neceflarics of Life from them, but alfo by making 2 horrible Slaughrer amongtt them, and deAroying far more than they deftroy themfelves by thefe Methods. In fuch Böndage do thefe poor Wretches live, under that Cloud of Ignorance of the true God, thas over-fpreads their Counnry ; yet we can'r bur do our Counrrymen the Juftice, to own that they us'd their hearty endeavours to difpel this Cloud, and gire them the true Lighr.
The King of pairough cohanock (before-mencion'd) was Tbe Vmpumi. one chey made many trials upon, and tho" not with the ans Noximen of great and moft defired fuccefs, yet not without any $25_{\text {the }}^{\text {the }}$ God of all ; for he made no fcruple to own, that the God of the Englifi exceeded his, as far (ro ufe his own homely comparifon) as their Guns and Piftols did his Bows and Arrows. When he wanted Rain, he wou'd fend ro 7 ames, Toom to defire the Englifh to pray to their God for is, alledging that his own were unkind, and 'wou'd nor end him any.
This Prince, as he was a Man of the finct Sence, and beft Difpofition the Englifh ever convérsd with in all that Country, fo 'ris probable he had gone farther had he been free from reftraints: Bur where People are 50 infinitely fuperfitions in their Way, and fo senacious of their Notions, as all the Americens are, and where the Pricts ride and govern as thas rase as they do amonght them, 'tis hard for a Prince to make any Innovation upon the Religion of his Councry.

Uunou. ... theis
$\underset{\substack{\text { their } G ॰ . \\ \text { vernments. }}}{ }$

The Sur
fion.

Laws.

Maporials.
The Virgiminn Government and Policy is next to be consider'd : The Succelion is Hereditary, tho" not in the fort place to Sons and Daughters, but ro Brothers and Sifters. All the Brothers being dead, the Sifters mounr the Throne, in order according to their Age; and when they are gone, the Children of the eldeft Sifter fucceed, and fo thofe of the fecond, and to on. But it never comes to the Heirs of the Males, unlefs in cafe of defect of the others; and never to the Children of the Body, but in cafe of defeet of all the others befides. There are no written Laws in the Councry, becaufe no Writing nor Letrers; bur Cuftom is the main Rule they go by, next to the abrolute and uncontronlable Will of the Prince. This is indeed the grear Law by which all thefe People are govern'd; bur this is to be underftood of a Sovereign Prince, fuch a öne as Powbatan, for as for all the Tributaries, they are tied entirely to the Meafures of Cuftom. There are none more Arbitrary in their Government than there Princes are, and all their Vaffals pay them as much refpect.• They lay their Tribures and Prefents at their feer, with the humbleft Adorations imaginable, and look upon the leaft frown that fits on their brow, with as much awe as Death ic felf. And there is not a lictle reafon for't, forchey punifh Offenders with a moft cruel rigour, and hardly pare any that they ever fufpect.
chutead of Records, and other Memorials, they ler up certain Stoncs (which they call Pateorances) in the places where, and at the cimes when they have had any extraordinary accident or encounter. And they are very careful to teach their. Children the meaning of them very exactly, and fo fee that they underfand thofe accounts of the Hiftory of their Country. 'Tis not uncommon for them alfo to Offer Blood, Tobacco and Deer-Suer, upon thefe Papocorances, at their recurn from Wars and Hunting, when things have fucceeded well with them.
Before we finith this accounr, it may not be amiss to add a few things more particularly relacing to thar Prince.
of fo great a Name and Power in thefe Countrics, and fo offen broughr upon the Srage inn the foregoing Scenes; Powbafan we mean. His natural Name was Wrabunfonia An accoube cock but he took the Name of Porolotan from the Counn of Permintan try and Town fo calld, and fonerimes his principal Re- and hin nan fidence: Several of his Countries came no him by Inheritance, but the greateft part were Conquefts. He was a tall well-proportion'd Man, with a fowre thougheful look. gray-hreaded, and lictle or no Beard at all, (as is ulual in thote Parts) and abour Sixty when the Englif/ firft knew hipn. Any one wou'd have thoughrtim as fuibele as the has been reprefenced to be, by the fight of fo politick a face; but befides, he had the afpeet of a Soldier, and was hardy and able to endure any labour or Travel. A Guard of 40 or 50 of the tallet Men in his Country conftantly artended him by Day; and every Nighr, at the four Quarters of his Houfe, four Sentincls were plac'd, who anfwer'd in their refpective Stations to one that hoilow'd from the Corps du Guard every half hour: And if any of the Sentinels faild in chis point of Duty, an Officer came forth prefencly thar beat him foundly. His Houfe ar Oropack pat the head of the River Clickabamine, to which place he retired from Wrarcwocomoco, for fear of the Euglifh) food in a Thicket, and at the four corners of it were the Effigies of a Dragon, 2 Bear, a Leopard, and a Giant. 'Twas here thar molt of his Trcafure was laid up, and here none but the Pricts came near him. He always kepr a multitude of Women; one generally lay on the Bed by him, another far at his Head, and a third at his Feet; but when he fat upright, he always fat between two, ore of each Hand of him. Before and afrer his Meals; fome of his Women bring him Water in a Wooden Difh to walh his Hands, and others wait with a bunch of Feathers (inftead of a Towel) to wipe them, When he is weary of any of his Women, he beftows them as fo many fpecial favours upon thofe of his grear Men thar have moft Merit. Herein he falls in wich the practife of ocher Princes in the World ; for crown'd Heads will crex have thar variety, to think that ocher Men will be proud of abeir Leavings. Hexe we thall take our Leave of Virginit, and pals to the Bermuda lllands.

Chapi XXVII.

An Account of the firt Plantation of the Bermudas or Summerllands, mith the Natural History of the Country; Extracted from the Memoires of Captain Smith, Mr. Richard Norwood, William Strachie, Efq; with fome otbers.

WE have heard before, that an Engtifh Fleer under the conduct of Sir Tho. Getes, and Sir Geo. Summers, put into thefe llands; but this was nor the firtt rime an Englifhman had fer footing here for the Difcovery of thefe Ilands, by thofe two Worthy Knighrs, was made A.D. 1609 , but orie of our Counurymen had been here in A.D. 1593. The Name of this Perfon was Henry Mary, one of Caprain Lancofier's Company, who had been in the Eafl-Indix, and in his return put over to Trinidndo, and fo to Porto-Rico anid Hifprniola, for refreflimenc. Here Captain Lancaffer de fring a certain Fienchman (Monfieur de Birboticre) to give this Henry May a Paffage home'in his Ship, by the way they were wrack'd upon the Bermudd-Ifiands. This Min came home to England in A.D. 1594 and to be fure rold of his Adventure; yet we"don't find that there was any morion made towiards che fending a Colony to thofe Illands till fome Years after. Bur Sir George Summers (as was'related before) dying at the Bermudas, and his Men going not from thence directly to Virginia according to his laft Command, but to England, whither they broughthis Body, "thefe Perfonsar their remurn gave fuch an account of the Country to the Virginia Company, that thsy thoughr it worth their while to effablith a Corréfponderice between England and in. Accordingly they fold nhére Illands to 120 Perfons of the fame $C n m-$ pany, who obrainda Cliaitcr from his Majefty, and became the Proprietors of is.
A. D. 1612 . a Ship calld the Plough was fent thithe wich 60 Pexfons, and one Mr. Richard Moon for Gover nour, an honeft and induftrious Perfon. He Spenc che moft parr of his time in fortifying the 1 llands, and training the Pcople fent over to Martial Exercifes; he buit nine or ten Forts, and furnifidd them all well with Ammunition. During his Govermment, there began that grievous and moof rormenting plague of Rats, which continued for ncar five Years. The Original of ic was a fmall Troop of thofe Vermin that came out of a Ship, that multiplied fo prodigiounl athore, that fuch numbers were hiardly ever feen in the World. They had their Nefts about in every Tree, and all the ground was cover'd with them; neither cou'da fpothardly be found where they had not Hous'd themfelves. They devour'd Fruits, and the Trees soo that bore them; when the Corn was fown, they wou'd come in the Night-time and dig ic up, or to be fure as foon as ir began to grow it hou'd not 'cape them." When'twas gather'd and laid up within Doors, they made a moft feartul deftruction of it They rried all ways and means imaginable to rid the Connury of chefe peftilenr Creatures, as by breeding up abundance of Cats, teaching cheir Dogs to kill them fetting up Traps, and laying Poyfon up and down in all places for them; and yet; in fpite' of all there Mechods, (which notwithftanding fwept away multitudes of them) they encreas'd ro that degree, that the Country was re duc'd to the laft diffeffes by chem, For two Years to gether they were fo deftitute of Bread, that afterwards when they came to have it again, they had forgot the Ufe of it fo far, as not to mind to eat it with their Meat. Neither was it the main Inand alone that was thus plagued by them, for they fwam the Salc Water, and Spread into all che neighbouring ones thereabouts, iniomuch thar there was nor one of them, for many Miles round, but what had a mare in the Calamity. Cou'd the Engtifh have planted the Illand as faft as the Rats did, they wou'd quickly have made a very furprizing Figute in thar part of the World: Bur this diftres wor off by degrees, tho" "twas fome Years firft, and the Rats went away as ftrangely as chey came; by whar Caufes they can't tell, but ar laft it came to this pafs, that the Wild Cats and the Dogs, that us'd to live upona thern, were abundance of them familh d for want of their accuifomed Food, and others lefs the Woods, and came down to the Houles, to get a Maintemance there. There's no reafon ro imagine a greater encreafe of the Cats and Uogs ac one part of that time than another; and fince the Rats encreas'd as well as they, and were too many for them all along, "ris nor probable that the entire deftruction of them was oritrg to thole Crearures. Bur this Obfervation they made, which was odd enough : That about the time when this Plague of Rats began, there was a confiderable number of Ravens came to the Inand, which faid there all the time the Rats ftaid, and departed again upon their going away ; and as there had been none of thofe Birds feen there before that time, to neither have there been any obferv'd fince. Now what connection there is berween Ravens and Rats, the Philofophers muft enquire : but there is a Maxim amonget them, that will prove the former to have been, Come way or other, the caufe of the latter, for they borh came and went together; now that's the Caufe of an Effect, (fay they) quí pofirâ ponitur cffectum quà fublarâ tollisur. Mr. Moor having filld up the 3 Years of his Governinent, was fucceeded thercin by Capr. Tucker, who alfo was very induftrious in improving the Councry, and doing all things for the bencfir of the Plantation. Before he left is, he faw it reduc'd into a very flourifing condition again; there'were good. Houfes builr,' Fruits planted, Grounds clear'd of Woods and Rubbinh; and an Orderly form of Governmenr eftablifhed. He refign'd his Charge in A.D. i618, and was fucceeded in ic by Capt. Butler, who came over A. D. 16ig, bringing four good Ships, with ar lcaft 500 People along with him and there being 500 more there before, the Body was now pretty confiderable. Capr. Butler's 3 Years being expired, one Mr. Bernard was fenc by the Company to fupply his place, which'within 6 Weeks after was vacant again, Dearh bringing thar Gencleman a Quiesuseft. And now, till farcher Orders came from Eng'and, one Mr. Ktarrifon took the Charge.upon him. And thus. we have broughr the Bermude Affairs to A. D. 1623, in all which time rhere being no memorable Occurrents in the Colony, and our Aurhors going no farther than this serm of Time, we fhall now come. ro the Defcitipion of the Counery.

Chap.XXVII An Account of the fryf Flantation of Bermudas, 6cc. 849

The Bermudas are a clufter of fmall Illands, which may be reckon'd at leaft 500 . There are none of them of any confiderable compafs, yer fome much larger than ochers, as Time and the Sea, continually walhing upon them, has worn them away in differenc proportions. They lie as is were in the Figure of a Croiflant, and within the Circuit of 6 or 7 Leagues at moft; fo that being fo many in number, and lying in fo frall 2 com. pars, 'tis plain they can'r be very large. The main, or grear Ifland of all, is 16 Miles in length from E N: E to W.S.W. and lies in 32 deg. 20 min . N. L. It is beholding to Nature for'a very confiderable Forrification of Rocks, which do every way round extend a great way, only lefs to the E. than to any other point of the Compafs. There are no more than two places whereShipping may come fafely in, and it is not eafie for a Man to find thofe places out; but then thofe places are fo well forify'd, thar if an Enemy thou'd light of them, he wou'd be eafily kept out. Thefe Rocks in moft places appear at low Water, for it ebbs and flows there not above $s$ foor. The very thore it felf is for the moft part a Rock, infomuch that ris not eafie to find out an lfand fo entirely furronnded, and fo well guarded by them as this is. The Mould is of divers colours and tempers.; the red, which refembles Clay, is the worft of all ; the whitilh; (which is like Sand) and the blackifh, is good, bur the brown between them both is beft of all Under the Mould, fome two or three foot deep, lies a folid white body, which they call the Rock; bur with very little reafon, for 'ris nor harder than Chalk, and 'uis as full of Pores as a Pumice-ftone, and thofe Pores contain abundance of Water, Nay, âs mpuch Rock as 'tisis the Trees ufually faften theirRoots it it, and draw thele nourifhment from ir. In many places chere is a Clay found under ic. The demfent and hardelt kind of this Rock is commonly that which they find inder the red Mould; chis has but very little Water in it, and lies in the ground in Quarrics, as it were chick Slates one upon anochcr. All the Warer finds a paffage our by the chimks and crevifes that are berween che feveral Lares, fo thini ris very feldom that any frefh Warer is found in thofe places; for'tis to be nored, that all (or ar leaft the fa greateft partof) the freth Water they have in this Illand, The ferm comes cicher our of the Sca, being ftrain'd in its palage through the Sand, or cife from the rocky Brdy jut now mention'd, in which the faline Corpufeles are lefr, as they are in the march of the Water through the Sand The Englifh digg'd feveral Wells within four or five paces of the Sca, and thefe held fuch a correfpondence with the Sea, thar they chb'd and flow'd as it did, and yer the Water was frefh and good.

The Weather is for the mof pare fine and pleafing Weather: bere ; and abating fome extraordinary Storms and 'Tumpefts, the Air is generally calm, and of a moderate cemper. But is muit be confef'd, that. the Thunders and Lighnings at thefe Iflands are more terrible than any where, and the larter oftentimes fplits the Rocks a funder, cumbles mighty pieces down, and buries them in the Sea. Once every New Moon thefe Srorms have their round Strange for the moft pare; and 'tis particularly obferv'd, thar if Storms. a Circle be feen about the Moon, a prodigious Tempeft Ciricis about does nor fail to follow. And thefe Circles are raken no- the Moon tice of at the Bermudar, to be vaftly larger thatn they cver appear any where elfe: Thus, when the Englifh lay there, in order to their Voyage to Virginic, there was an extraordinary Halo feen, and the Thunder and Lightning that follow'd upon if, was fuch as almoit frigheed them out of their Wits. The N. and N. W. Winds are winds, the moft predominant, and always turn Summer, into Wincer when they blow. The Rains thar are, are more frequent in Summer than Winter, and tho' they don'r aift long, yer when they do fall, they fall with a ftrange violence, and the Heavens are as black, as if'rwou'd never hold up and be clear any more. The Product of the co Ifle for Corn is Maize; thar common Grain, all the $W F_{c} /\{$. Indies over; and of this they have two Harvefts in 2 Year, for what they fow in March they gather in fuly and To again in December they have the Fruits of their Augu/f Labours. When the Englifh firlt came thisher, they found the Country over-rum with Woods and Plants of feveral kinds; Cedars, Palmetoes, Pepper-Trees, Tre Lawrel and Olive-Trees, Mulberries, and many others the k new nor the Names of, were the Natural grow f the Iaand. But the Palms here are not the crue Indian Bermmde Palms, fuch as at Si. Jobn de Porto Rico are full of a ${ }^{\text {RAm-Tress. }}$ frall Fruic like Almonds, and of the bignicfs of the grains in a Pomgranate, nor of thar kind of Palms neither which bear Dares, but a forr of Simeron, or wild Palm, that yet does, as to all vifible refemblances, (excepr that of the Fruit) come as near to the true Palm as can be They were high, Atrair, fappy Trees, ao branches but in the uppermoft part, and at the very top or head of all grow leaves, which fread and fall down upon the Tree ike a Coronet; thefe leaves are fo broad; thar one of them alone will ferve for an Urmbrella, and a Man may well enough defend himfelf with it from a good fhowet of Rain. The inmoft part of the head a top they call the Palmero, it is white and thin, and will peel into a grear many Plates which are very fmooth and fine, and a Man may ufe them inftead of Paper. They drefs the Palme oo after various manners, and the Engili $h$ commend them or very good Meat. Thefe Trees Bear a Berry which is black and round, and as big as a Damíon, being ripe aour December;' they are then very lufcious, buo fcalded when green rhey ear much like our Bullafes. The leaves don't continue on all the Year round, but fall off in the cold Winter Months, being quite blatted by the rough North Winds. They obferv dabundance of Silk-worms Sikk.worms Hous'd abour thefe leaves, and it being a matter of fre- in the palm quent Obfervation witfi them, one may conclude they were not miftaken, and that fome profits of that nature alfo might redonnd from hence. 'Of Cedar-Trees there Cedar-Beris no fmall fore, and the Berty thar they yield is very rits. pleafant and good for caring. The Olives are not many, and the Pepper is much hort of the Indian. There colourd are abundance of odoriferous Woods, and Woods of di- Woods. ers colours, black, yellow, red; and fome of thefe madicinc for coloured Trees bear a round blue Bérry, which has borh che Flur. the rough tatte, and the ftyprick qualiry of a Sloe, and much us'd by the Englifh for the Elux, which the greedy eacing of the lufcious Palm-Berries wourd bring them ve Iy frequently into it: Upon the Rocks there grows a fort of Fruit in flape and bignefs like a Catharinc-Pear, full of prickles all round, and for that reafon the Englif) calld is the prickle Pear. It is green.in the outfide, but being opencd is of a deep murry; 'tis full of Juice like a Mulberry, and juft of the fame tafte and fubftance. They are very good carch cicher raw or bak'd.

In Paris near the Sca-fide, therc is found a kind of Charfint Wood-hind (as the Enelifio calld it) that runs up upon Trecs dike a Vine; the Fruir of which is fomething like a bean, but onlythateer. If is be caten any way whatsoever, 'rwill purge a Man vehemenely. but without doing any farther harm. There is a Plant like a bramble, bearing a long yellow Eruit, with a hard mell within which is a hard tough Berry; this ftamp'd and taken inwardly, will purge gently.
Red Popper.
The red Pepper there is like our Barberies, and beaten or bruis'd with the Tecth, fers all che Mouth and Tongue of a violent heat ; buc if fwallowed whole, has the fame effect with black Pepper. Bur now befides.thefe, which are the natural Products of the Country, there are moft of the fervicable and fubtantial Fruits of other Parts of the Thelics, and of England too, tranfplanted thither, and ihri e exceedingly well. The mot xemarkable ftrange Plants are thefe; thefe at leat are what our Pcople obfervid. The Poyfon Wead, fo call'd from its venemous Narure: It is in lhape like the Enstift:lvy, but the very touch of it calles a redness in the Rart, loching and blifters, which notwithftanding go all away of their own The ted Resis while, withour any orher ill effen a red ride. the Roor of it fteerd in a fmall quanticy of the Juice of it drunk alone, is a forceable Vomit, and commonly usd there for Tndifpufions of the Stomach, and that to very good purpofe. The Sea-feacher is a l'ant that grows upon the Rocks as the bortom of the Sca, it's almoft in the form of a Vinc-lcaf, bur far more firead, with Veins of a palifh red trangely incerwoven and mixt with one another ; the Vertues of it are unKnown. Execpting this PoyfonWeed, there is not any renemous thing known in the Country; mo, not amongit the Animals as well as the Vegetables. But 'tis obrecruea Wl. that here is a fort of a perpetual Spring, and tho the Trees chrow off their old leaves, yet they are always Feen with frefl green buading out at the fame time. There is the like concimuity in the Animal-line too; as to the Seafons of the Xear; the Birds breed all the Ycar round, or at leaft moft Monrhs in the Xear, as a Man that walks the Ficlds will be abundantly Catisfied by feeing their Young ones.

In the furvcy of the Animals of this. Thand, the account

Antimisat Inhabithants of lions, Yyers, and oth W the Sheep, the more mane and gentle oncs of the Fields. But widd Hogs they do affirm are Natives of the place, at leaft the Englifh found them there, whin they came wirh Sir Geore Summers the firtt time: Thefe Creanures were a vory comfortable Supply to them, and the numbers the took of thein fo conifiderable, as ro leave it paft all toube that the Inand was plentifully fock'd with chem. The way by which they came ro difcover their being here, was the fernding fume few of their own Swine out juro the Woods ro feed; for when they rambled home again, a huge wild Boar kepe them company, and paid for this his Complemerit so the Atrange Hogs with the lois 'of his life. The fame decoy thar broughe this wild Boar into their clutches, afeerwards broughr leveral more; and then when they faw that; there was. Sporm abroad, they made a Trade of going a Hunting in the Woods, and alivays rerurnd with boars and Hogs enough to make it well worth their while. Abundance of there they Fcrding of tue Hogs. brought home alive, where they put them in Sties, and farted them with the Palm anid Cedar-Berries that dropt from the Trees in the NTonths of Aesiff; $S=p$ ember, Oftober and Nowmber. But when the time came about that chofe Berrics faild, ind the Hogs coinequerity grew poor and low, the main part of their fubfiftence then was Tortoiles, of which they had multitules not to be finail Birds, Wood-peckers, Sparrows, Robins, (or at leaft Birds very'like them) tho' the beft part of thefe have been deftroy'd by the wild Cats: But for Birds not fo common, licre is the Tropick Bird, as'tis ufually call'd; che Pemblico, a Bird feldom feen by day, and an unwelcome foretcller of ftormy rempeituous Weather ; the Cohow, another Bird of the Night, and whole Mu-Th: Cohost lick is not much more pleafant, tho' not fo fatal as that of the former. It is of the bignefs of a Sca-mew, and is hardly ever feen ly day, but in the darkeft Winter or Aurumn-nights comes forth of its Neft, and hovering abour in the Air, makes a very odd and harth noife. The colour of it is inclining to a Rul'ce, their Belies all white, and the lone feathers of their Wings rullet and whice. They breat moftly in thofe Mllands which are high, and fo far alone in the Sca, that the wild Hogs can'r fwim over to them, for is feems they do cither difturb or devour then ; and the Cohows are as much expos'd ro then as can be for their Nefts are not in Trees, or upon the high Clifts of the Rocks, but upon the plain ground, where they live and breed like fo many Conies in their Burrows. The way the Eniglifh took Their way. to carch them, was to ftand upon che Rocks in the N :ght- of br.ciag. cime, and there hollow and fcream, and make all the ner of carciaelieft neifes they conld pomble, which wou'd bring the ing them. Cohows flocking abour them, and fixine, themfelyes upon their Heads and, Arms; and all the while anfwering the note of che Men, and hollowing as faft as they. At this rate they took with eafe more than 20 dozen in two hours frequently; and when chey wanred other Provifion, rwas but fending out their Cock-boat to fome of thefe Iflands, which in a very litrle time woud rerurn with enough to ferve the whole Company. They are a very well relidh'd Cort of Mear, as fat and plump as a larridge ; their Eges are as large as a Hens-cgg, and differ other ways very little from them, ondy" that they are romething fpeckled.
The Bermudas have not lefs plenty of Fin than they Finh. have of Fowl; moft of thofe that are common here our Aurhor tells us of, both the Sealy and the Shell forr, bur then vaft numbers cf others Befides, to which they cou'd give no Names. frequently occurra. The Whale, with his everlafting Exiemics the Sword-filh and the Threther, ate no uncommon fights upon this Coalt ; but the Tortoifes do abound trangely there, and they are as good and great too as any where in the whole Univerke befides.

As for vencmous and dangerous Creatures, this hap- No venc: py'for has none; at leaft as far as the Englifh had then mous Creadiccower'd. Herc are no Toads nor Adders, Scorpions tures. nor Crocodiles. Cass did $d$, Cats deitroyd deftroy dhem all, but neither the Character of venemous nor hurful orherways agrees to them.
Neither do, the Spiders feem to deferve cirther of thole spidets.
Names, fince they cou'd nor find by any Obfervations that they were ar all pernicious; yerthey are of 2 very largefize, but withal beautifuliy colour'd, and look as if they were adorn'd with Pearl and Gold. Their Webs are in colour and fubftance a perfect raw Silk, and fo ftrongly woren, that running from Tree to Tree like fo many Snares, finall Birds are fometimes carch'd in them; this Captain Smith reports, upon whofe Credir as great an improbability as this may be ventur'd to be related.
The moft troublefome Animals of all upon the Ifland Elics, Ants are fome Infeets: The Musketoes and Burs creep inro and Worms, their Chefts and Cupboards, and befides what they de- thch hurt they their Chefts and Cupboards, and bcfides what chey de-do. vour, by their mof ill-feented Excrements defile all abour them, . The little Ants are forroublefome in Summer time, that they are forc'd to dry their Figs on high Frames, and befmear all the feet of them with Tar, to ftop the paffage of thofe Creatures, which elfe would froil all. Neither are the Wórms lefs pernicious to their Corn and Tobacco; and, chey are forc'd to take a deal of pains every Morning to deftroy them, or elfe they had as zood quit cheir Plantation.

It may norbe amis here at the conch fion, to take no-Amberrice (tho out of its place) thar this Illand has afforded $\begin{aligned} & \text { grest the Found } \\ & \text { Ber- }\end{aligned}$ good ftore of Ambergreefe, which fone of the Planta-muda. tion made a good Market of. This is encouragement enough to hops, that what once came into the hands of thefe Men, may alfo fometimes light into the hands: of honefter than they, who are there in the way to find it.

C н а р. XXVIIl.

An Account of fome of the frrt Attempts toxards the Difcovery and Plantation of New-England.

TEIE fixtt Perfon thitt went out upon this Affair, People of our own Nation, that werc for feeking their was that Worthy Gcntlcinan Mr. Henry Chanlons, Company not being in all above 30, and his Vedrel bur having enriced fone of the Narives inro his hands fow funn: dertaken as the Charges of the Righe Honourable Sir Folnn Popbam, Lord Chicf Juftice of England, and Sir Ferdinando Gorges, Governour of Plimouth Fort, toge Weft Cefincry. They fer out in Auqu/t. A. D. 1606 but the iflue of this Attempt was unfortunate; for being gotten as far as the Spanifs Wcol-Indian INands, they fell in with a Flece of Spanifl Ships, by whom they were raken, and afrer a great deal of ill Ufage, carried into Spain, where their trearment alfo was very cruel and inhumane. This Misfortune did confiderably damp the Courage of the firit:Adventurers ; however, the Lord Chicf Jufice Popham quickly after fent out another Ship under the Command of Captain Hanam, whofe bufinef was not fo much to Planr, as to make Difcoveries in order to it., And when they came back; they gave fo good an account of the Councry, that all People were as much encourag'd as'they had been the contrary by the firt Mifcarriage, and thofe that fell off before, now came boldly on to bc Adventurers again. Hereupon Captain Roppam and Captain Gilbert; were fent away with 2 Ships and 100 Men , Ordnance, and all neceffary Provifinins for their Ufe, till farther Supplics could be fo principal a Wheel in this bufnefs, made abundance of $\underset{i}{\text { Frefl. }}$ the reft fand ftill. Yct Sir Fiancis Popbam, his Son, on courag'd the Affair with his mof zealous Endeavours, and concributed liberally towards che fending forth 2 freft Supply, which accordingly the next Year was per-

The plensa- ormed. There Ships arniving there, brought the unnd S table News of the Deachs of the Cord Ch. Juftice and Sir Fobin Gillerr, (Brother to the Captain, and PreTidens of the. New-Enghand Councill and had allo, as foon as chey came, the fod News from the Plancers thar Captain Poplem was dead, a Man in whom a very that Confidence was repos'd, and from whom mo litele Matters were cxpected. Captain Gillser allo Chis Brother being dead. was obliged to recuxn to England to take porf: felion of his Eftare, fo that there was no confiderable Man lef upon che frot to fland at the head of the Company. All chele Misfortuncs, togecher with the lofs of their Srores, which they had fufferd that Winier by Fire, fo difpirited the whole Plantation, that they unanimouly refolv'd to go back to England withithefeShips. This Refolution they accordingly pur in practife, and an their coming home lo difcourag'd all the firf Undertakers, that here feem d to be a full fop. Ret to the jepeEngland Affair, and there was now no longer fo much as any difcourfe about fetting a Plantation there. The Enytib thus as it were quitting their pretenfions to that Country; the French prefencly came and made theirs, Plantañon raking nothice of Limits: But the Virginian Planation raking notice of rhis, and nor liking their Neighbourbood, (had therc been no other reafons for the ramoval of them) inmediately difparch'd Sir Sthuc! cal of courace and wrery For hatiog Forts thcy had built ar Mount Manfell, St. Croix; and Part Real, he carried away all their Ordnance, Provifions and Ship it felf, to Vin tintit, and fo effectually fruftrated thicir whote Defign of Seating themfelves there:" The Frenib being expelld, fome there were who not willing to part with Nem-Englaid upon To eafre rerns, at leaft not vill one trial more had been madé) fent our another

Mnre ships

Mnrs Shi

they came, confiding in the fincerity of his promifes) clapp'd them under Hatches, and carrying them away, fold as many of them for Slaves as he cou'd, the reft being taken from him by the concrivance of fome honeft Friars, who piricd the poor Savages, and duired to InItruct them in the Chriflian Religion. Bur this.Villanous practife four'd the Natives, and enrag'd themagainft the Englifh to a high degree; and thefe two Sarages that came over in the Ship, as foon as they underftood is fromb their Countrymen, refented it as deeply as they, and bent all their thoughts upon revenge. lif thotr, they enelif af plorted to cur the Throars of the Enylifh, and taking a lailtect. irtime for't, made a furious affaule upon them; bur our People, who had fome norice of their indignation, and he caufe of ir, were fo wife as to be always upon their guard, and to were not furpriz'd, yet the Action colt hem forne wounds, but no lives at all, tho' many of the Sarages were cur off. 'T was to no purpofe now to itay in the Councry, the Natives being all in Arms againt hem; fo Captain Hobfon cen faild home again to Engand; bringing the fad News of a War with him. Howver, 'rwas thoughr convenient to rey if Pcace and Trade cou'd be by no means cbrain'd with this Country, which by the intervention of fo many unlucky accidents had fo ofren icem to refufe them: And therefore two good Ships were fer our at the Charge of: Capt, Roion, Capt 1.0. $16 i 4$ angham, Mr. Bulls and Mr. skelton; and committed to Cuce Stitult the Conduct of Capeain Smisti. The Captain being royage. come to New-Engi.nnd, finh'd, traded with the Inhabitants, and with 8 Men alone ranged the Coaft, and rook 2 Plor of the Country. In a matrer of 6 Months he made his Voyage out and home, and got near $1500 \%$ in his Pocket by the advantage he made of Orrer and BeaverSkins, Salt-finh, Train-Oil, and fuch like grofs Commodities. The next Difparch was of 4 good Ships, ly Another the Virgin; Company, which Captain Smit/s not under- Voryger, the former Voyage, and underftood che bיffinefs. Thefe cturn'd alfo within 6 Months, with Finh, Train-Oil and Furrs. The fame Year Captain Smith fet out 2 Fecotid time for Nemp-England, with two Ships, and ill Weather breaking his Mafts, he wasforc'd to return to Plimouth again, where, rather than lofe all, he prefently Man to Sea again only with a Bark. Bue now this brave cape Smith; Man was to have his chare of Misfortunes as well as unfortu:ate others; for failing in amongtt 8 or 9 French Men of War; Voyage and his ligtle Bark was taken, bur made a Mift to efcape a-taking by gain' our of the enemies hands, while the Caprain himelf was left aboard them, and entircly at their difpole. By this micins he was carried Prifoner jnto France, and befides all the extremitics that he fuffer'd during his confincinent there, when he came home again, he was little better rhan ruin'd by thefe fad Misfortunes which fruftraBue Voyage
But notwith tanding the Captain's Perfonal Misfor- M.D. 1615 . une, a cerrain Ship (one of 4 that was intended for him' wont thar Voyage, and came home again very wellladen; and this the very fame Year that he was thus lamenrably baulk'd.
The next Year, from London and plimourth, chere wenr $1 . D_{\text {. }}^{2516}$ r leaft 8 more, and gor good quantinies of Fim and Train-Oil, which they fold as Sonin and the Caniaryflands for confiderable profic. The next Year to this, AD. 16,2 none went out upon any Publick account; but the focceeding Year, there was fet out from Plimonth two luty Ship under Captain Hobfor and Captain Herle, to make it (our and home) in 5 , Monchs time. fome Difcovery that hould revive the Dchign of Rlan- The next Year, tho feveral Ships were ready to fer A.D. isig, ting again. Along with them went a couple of Savages Sail from the fame place, yet one only went, but made of the Country, who had ben here in Englapy, and were: fo good work of ir in 6 or 7 Months time, (from the time likely to do fome geod Scrvice. Bur a. little before this they went out to the time they renurnd) that every Sailor Ship came, there had becr one Hunt an Euttifomin up- that had but a fingle fhare, had befides his Charges r 7 l. on the Coaft, a Manager for fome priyate fordid firited clear Money in his Pocket. Along wirh this Stip, there

852 Of a Plantation fettled at Plimouth in New-England, ©c. Lib. V.

went for NepoeEmg/and the Worthy Caprain Darmer, who Was betray'd by the Savages, and wounded in 14 or is did very good Scruice in Virginio and Nepfoundland, as well as Nepo-England. He profecuted a Northern Difcovery with excellent fuccefs, finding our many goodly Rivers, and very pleafant fruirful Coafts and tilands, for the fpace of 80 Lcagues from E. to W. for fo that Coaft ranges along from Hudion's River to Cape Fames. Bu Capt. Darmeris Difo. while he was profecuting thele Difooverits with more verices ath while he was prolecucing there Dircoverics with more zeal for the Publick Intereft than care for himfelf, he paces by them; of which wounds, upon his rerurn to Iirginia, the died. The three fucceeding Years Marters wens on ftill berrer; moreShips wear, (to the number at caft of $5 \circ$ ) and more profir was made both by the Filhing-trade and Furrs. And now we have feen the Correspondence berween the two Englands thus open'd Dentil

С н а. р. XXIX.

A Relation of a Plantation fettled at Plimouth in NewEngland, with the Proceedings thereof.

1T was in Seprember, A:D. 1620, that this Yoyage was tindertaken ; with what number of People and Shirs, or with what quantitics of Provifion, we can" fay, only fince they call themfelyes 2 Plansation, neither thou'd be very inconfiderable.
'Twas the beginning of November before they arrived

The excellent Bay at Cape Cod, the moft remarkable Point of the Nem-Englif Land. Coming to an Anchor in the Bay, they found it a very good and commodious one, capable of carestaining 1000 Sail, and giving fufficient Recruits of Wood and Water. The entrancs is about 4 Miles wide, and 'cis encompals'd all round, even to the very Sea, with Oaks, Pines, Juniper, Saffafras, and other fweer Woods. They declare they (aw here the greateft plenty of Fowl that ever nhey law, and had they had Tackling for the Whalc-Fifherys they might have made a very rich rerurn from hence, for they faw thofe monftrous Fifhes playing hard by chem every day.
Arcemp: to ditcore the Country, and find out a conveniens place to for themfelves in; and in order to this, they made feveral Ar tempts by Companies-fent our for that purpofe. The firt confifted of abour 16 Mim well arm'd, who quicky faw fome of the Natives; bur they xup away from them, and hid themfelres in the Woods, while the Englifh follow'd them from one Thicker to another, and endea vour'd no trace them through Valleys and over Hills, bur cou'd neither overtake them, nor lighr of any of their Habitations. They found indeed in thisRamble a grear deal of ground fir for the Plow, and feveral Fields where Corn had actually been fown; alfo fome of the Indian Sepulchres, which were cerrain heaps of Sand cover'd over with Mars, and had Bows and Arrows buried in them, but they did nor deface them much, for fear of affronting the Natises. In another of thefe Tumuli they found a good quantity of Indian Corn, pars of which they brought away for Seed, intending to pay the Natives when the Soil paid them. Strawberties and Wall nits they mer with grear plenty of, and fome Vines. There were fome marks alfo of Chriftians $\mathrm{r}^{2}$. it had been there before, as a Ship-kettle in the remainders of an old Hiune, and the Ruins of a Fors, which to be fure was nor built by the Savages; their Fortifications (of Poots and Stakes knock'd inro the ground). are as eafie to be known from the European, as cheir rude Houfes of Leaves and Mars from the orhers of Brick and Stone. The nexr time 24 were difparched in the Shallop, to make a farther Difcovery of the Country and the Rivers. Thofe that were landed fearched about, but cou'd find no Peo ple ; yet they light upon fome quantitics of Whear Bcans and Oil, which the Indians had buried, and ftood
The cortenci Beans and On1, which the Indians had buried, and itood che Revivers in very good fead. Happening alfo upon fome more of thofe Graves but now mentiond, they regived to dig up one of them which appeard much lar Rer than the reft: The ourdie covering was Boards, un der which was a Mar; next to that were Bowls, Trays Dillies, and then another Mat, under which was a Board abore chace quarters long, finely painted and carved. To this fuccecded another Mat, under which were two Bundles that promisd fomething more curious. The grearer of theie Bundles being open'd, difcoverd a large quancity of a sery fine and perfectly red powder, (of a ttrong, But no offenifive fmell) and in this were the Bones and Skull of a Man, the latter of which bad fine yellow hair ftill upon is, and fome of the fleth unconfum'd. Togerher with thefe Relicks, was made up in che fame Bundle a Knife, 2 Pack-needle, and 2 or 3 old Iron things, and all was pack'd up in a Sailors Canvafs Caffock, and a pair of Clort Breeches." In the lefs Bundle there was the fame fort of powder, and the Head and Bones of a Child; abour the Legs, ind other parts of which, wée Strings and Chains of white Beads, and by ir was laid a Bow abour three quarters long; with fome orher odd Nickfacks. Our Men conitinuing their Search, found feveral Graves more, bur no more Corn. Bur ir was the luck of fome of them to fall, in wich two gntianitoate or three of the Indian. Houles; the Nets were' there indeed, but the Birds were fled, fo that the Englif F were at liberty to take and look what and where they pleas'd. Thefe Houfes were made of young render Trees bent down Arboux-wile, and coverd from top ro bottom with thick and well-wrought Mats. The Doors were abour a Yard high, and made only of Mat ; the Chimneys were wide holes left open at rop, to be cover'd wirh Mars when chey pleas'd. All was as warm and clofe as cou'd be, for the Houfes were not anly Matred in the ourgide, but in the inflide allo. In the midft of them were four little Stakes knock'd into the ground, with Sticks laid acrols them, upon which they hung theis Pots. Their Beds were to many Mats fpread round abour the Fixe-place; for as the Fire keers them warm in the Day, to 'ris a Principle with them to keep that warm in the Night. Had the Engifh wanted Baskets. Hounold Bowl-difhes, Trays, Earthen-pots, or any Lumber of fuff, that kind, they might have had enough in thele Houles. The other things the Houks afforded were Corn, fome orrs of Seed, Provifions, and the like; fome of the beft of there chey rook away, intending: (as before) to pay heir Debrs another time when they wereable.
The third Attempt they made upon a Difcovery was with their Shallop again. Now thcy happen'd to have a fight of fome Indians, who woud not come near them, or ftay till they came near,: bur run away and ghelrer'd themfelves in the Woods.
Another large Burying-place was the moft confiderable more Gravi ching that entertaind them in this Ramble; the Graves here were more fumptuous than thole they faw before, and the whole ground was encompafs'd with a Pallifadoe but they did not ftand to enquite into the contents of them, bui left the Bones so their repofc.
One Nighr while they were out, the Indians came in Armulted by 2 good Body and affaulred them, bur keeping a friat the bidien. Warch, they received no damage by them. The propect they had of the Country this time, gave them very good fatisfaction as to the fuccefs of the Delign of Plan ing here. They found an excellent Soil in moft places, and both Timber, Fruit-trees, and good Herbs in abundance.
The Company now having fo good an account of the Ihey grito Councry from thofe that had been fent to view it, they vivew the went all rogether romake $\mathbf{2}^{\prime}$ Judgment of it, and ro come place where to their laft Refolutions about a place to fettle in; .fo they pitch'd'on 2 Spot upon the Main Land, 2 high grounf where there was a grear deal of Land cleard that hind been us'd to Corn, and was well warer'd with Springs and Brooks. There was affo near to it a good Haxtour for Shipping, and other conveniences fuaficient to encourage 2 Settement there: This Harbour was a Bay larger than Cape-Cod, and afforded ftore of excellent Fowl and Filh; and two fine uninhabited Inands sbat lay within it, were as well replenilh'd with, all forts of Timber. This place wasalfo fo near co Cape.Cod, shat from a certain Hill adjacent (on which they defiga'd to raife their Forr) Cape-Cod mighr calily be fecm, Here then they went to building as faft as they cou'd, and in 3 or 4 Monfls Space the firft rudiments of a Town appearid; for" "twas the whole bufinefs of the entire Company, them excepred chat watchd): and cyery Family had their proportion of Work allotred chem. By that time fo many Houfes were built, "that it mighe be call'd 2 litrie Town, the Savages began to make Vifirs to them. And firft of all came one Savage alone, marching boldy into the Street, and faluted the Englifh in their own language, bidding them welcome into the Country He was one of the Sagamores or Lords of the Moratiggon a Country abours days Journey by Land from their Town: he had convcrs'd amongt the Englifh that had come thither; and was a Pcrfon of a free eafie Carriage. Notwithftanding his (Savage) Dignity, he was as naked as the Child juft born, excepting only his Waite that was cover'd with a Leacher; he was a tall Atrait Man with long black hair, (but no Beard) and came Soldierlike with his Bow and Arrows in his hand:The Englifh created him with good Victuals and ftrong Liquors, which made him like their company to well, thar he did patexer the nor care to leave it. He inform'd them, that the place nndin Numa where they were feated was call d patuxes by the Indians and that all the former Inhabitants were dead of a Plague; fo that by this account, if feems the Englifh difpolfersd no body.

Chap.X XIX. Plantation fertled at Plimouth in New-England, ©r. 853

They difmifs'd him ar laft wirh fome Prefents, which

More Szya brought $s$ or 6 more skins on, and the chief of them 2 wild Cats-skin upon his arm; moft of them too had 2 fort of long Hofe that reach'd up to their very Groins, and picces of Leather wraps abour their Waftes. Their hair hanglong behind and was cur thort before much like his that came firtt; only this difference, thar fome of there had it truxs'd up with feathers, and after Ceverat other antick fahions. They were of a dark complexion like the Englifh Gipfies, and were very tall proper Men.: There ear and drunk very freely with the Englifh, and to make chem "amends for their kinduefs, entertain'd chem with fome of their Indiah Dances.

Quickly after News came by fome of thic Savages, abouts, wais come grear place hard by the Country thereview with the Governour; but the Governour thought fir, firt of all, to fend tome other Perfon ro fpeak with him, and know his mind, and accordingly difparchid one Mr. Wrinflow with a few Toys (Prefents) for the King and his Brother. Ma/fafoyr receiv'd the Meffenger civilly, and liking the Propofals he made of Peace and EriendThip, and of his being taken into the number of King $\mathcal{F}$ ames of England's Allics, he marct'd on to go mecr the Governour, leaving Mr. Winflaw in the Cuftody of his Brother Quadequina, and giving a fufficient number of Hoftages for his Security. He came cowards the Town with zo Menonly, and thofe unarm'd, and was met by the Way by Caprain Sfrndifh (the chief Manager of the Minitary Affuiss) with a File of Mufquetcers. They conducted him into a Houfe, where a Seat of State was prepar'd for him, which was three or four Culhions.pild up upon a green Rug.
The Governour came in with a Drum and Trumper mok, and a Guard; and Maffofor: having kifs' him, they fate down together. Prefently an Enterrainment was broughrin, the chief of which was StrongWaters (a thing the Savages love very well) and rhe King having once fer the Por to bis Nofe, drunk fuch 21 fwinging fraught, as made him fiwear all the rime he ftaid there
The next ching was to enter upon a Treary, which the Srrong-Water was a very good preparative to: And whar the Governour proposd was to this effect. "That - Reftirution or Satisfaction fhou'd be made in cafe of - any Injury or Damage or either fide, and Offenders c duly punifh'd. Thac they thon'd mutually affift each cother in their Juft Wars. Thar all Maffafort's Allies - Mou'd be comprehended in this Treary, and notice given thereof by him accordingly. That wheneter the - Savages came amongit the Englifk, they thou'd leave ctheir Weapons behind them, and the Englifh Mon'd ${ }^{2}$ Tikewife free them from all Jealougie and Sufpicion in - like, manner. Thefe Propofals were.readily embrac'd, and fo the League of Friendihip folemnly cancluded.

Maffafoye was a lufty tall Man of a middle Agc, of a Tho defrippgrave demure Countenance, and fparing of Specch and his com His Drefs was litule differcac from that of his Men, (the paniy. Tame with that before-mention'd) only he had a Chain of Fifh-bones about his Neck, in which Ornament all che Majefty of his Guarb was compris'd ; for without char, the others look'd as much like Kings as he, tho ${ }^{\circ}$ wich that, he look'd more like a Jackanapes chan they. His Face was painted wirh a Murry-red, and both that, and his Head, were well lick'd over with Oil; Co that is may eafily be imagin'd what a greafic figure he made. He had a long Knife hanging in a String at his Bofom, and behind ar his Back a little Pouch of Tobacco ; this was Furniture he never was without, bucthe Chain perhaps was only for high Days, and felect Company, or when fomething of the King more than ordinary was intended to be mewn. HisMen had allo their Bags of Tobacco at their backs, and their faces painted with varicties of colours; Come hew'd an outhide of. Deer-skin, orhers of Badgers, and ochers of Affes-skinc; thefe. laft being ftark naked.

After this Interview, the King retir'd with all his Pco- ${ }^{-14}$.ffifs. ple intothe Woods, about half a Mile from the Town, whexe the Women and Children came to thiom, and they lodg'd thar Nighr. . This Entertainment Mafifoyt fhortly after required in the beft manner he cou'd, to a couple of Englifh Gearlemen that wenr to fee him while he ftaid: in thofe Woods; and it appear'd by all tokens, thatithe had a real defire to maintain a Friendohip with the Englifh Nation.
Bur the Company tiaving let him digeft and paufe ur- Engifs On the League for the \{pace of 3 or 4 Monchs, thought fir to cry (by a fort of Embalfy Lent for that purpofic) how infar upon his Stomach. And there was another, and a more politick Defign in this roo, which was to make fome farther Difcoveries of the Councry, to fee where their ftrength lay; and fince they were Allics, to know where to find them if occafion requircd. :Mr. Иin who had already convers'd with intafffors, 'was thought to be the fitteft Perfon to undertake this Emplify Whercin he was accompanied by one or rwo morc, and particularly a Savage, that fpoke good Englifh, for an Interpreter. This Savage was one of thofe char had formerly been betray'd, and carried away by Hunt the Eng $i$ ifman; and fince he acts a confiderable part upon this NemEnglayd Stage, we arc obliged to name him; the Indians called him Tifquantum, a ny crafty Knave he was, and tho the Englifla did nor know him now, yet afterwards they came to have a crue notion of hinn, and plainly difcover'd his treacherous practifcs. Weli, bur Engitibmen, $1 . D$. isait in company with him, fer forward for Pakanokick, the Kindiç, of ordinary Refidence of the Grear Sagamore Maffifcyt. the them in. The Indians, all along by the Way; treated them with a thcir Jourgreat deal of courtefie, and plain honef frcedom. They ny. willingly gave them of their Provifions to ear, wou'd carry any Baggage for them; yea, take them themfelves upon their backs, and wade with them through :che Rivers. In fome places they found the Country almont de- D. Folate populated; there werc fine Corn-fields and Pafture- ${ }^{-}$onarr grounds, without cirhcr Cattle or Inhabitants. Twas a great Plague it feems that had fwept away thefe People, and left the Country in fo mournful and defolare a flate: Abour one River (where formerly abundance of People had dwelt) there were then bur two Savages remaining, and thofe both Old Mien, unfic for the hazards of War; or to ftand the Champions and Defenders of their Councry. Yer as foion as they faw the Englifh oncring the River, they ran to the oppofite Bank, and vabts. tood charged with Bow and Arrow in their hands; with a valt deal of courage, they demanded who and what chey were, intending, if they had found them cnemies o have exposd their old Caxkaffes to all manner of dangers, racher than fuffer' them to have pals'd the River but hearing them declare chemfelves Friends, they freely pormitted them to land, and welcom'd them with the beft Food they had. When they camic to Maffafort, they mafifore found him the fameMan, as to his Refolutions of main- coninucs taining an inviolable Friendmip with the Enilih, that ${ }^{\text {Fincna. }}$ was ar Plimouth Town Abundance of the Sachems Perty-Governours came abour them while tiey were sarcity of therc; bur the jeft of all was, that they cou'd ger no the cime Victuals at Court. Maffafort himfelf had none to enter- hey viifed tain them with; is fell our fo ar thar time, for they live from Hand to Mouth, and go with a full or an empty Belly, according as they have, or have noc fuccefs at their Sport. Our. Englifbmen hiad been very free of their own Provifions by the Way, and had beftow'd in all upon the Indiens they mer with, not doubting but at Maffafort's Houfe they ibould meet with a Belly full; but it feems chey were fadly difaplointed, and bad not the Savages beitirrd themelycs, and got a few Fith, and a Rartridige or two, they had come away without making one Meal there. Maljaforr was heartily amamed of his being fu. ill provided, bur could not help is ; however, be made up thofe defeets with ocher kindncfics and tokens of his good will, for he lodged the two Englifhmen upon the lame Bed with his Wife and himelelf, tho for want of ronm, two more of his Grandees were forc'd to fouccac in upon the fame Mat; fo that all things confiderd, our $P$ cople were in as ill a cafe, as to the point of 1 odging, as with refpect to their Dict, and meither theirBullics, nor their Bonss, cou'd reproach each other, Tis had becu perlaps rolcrable, had they had no orher company upon thefe hard Beds bur the King and the Qicen, and the rwo Graindecs, but there were abundance of other Ineruders that came withour asking leave from his Majefty, and 'ris to be fuppos'd wexe precty much us'd to the Honfe; what the Indian Name of thene may be we don't know, butin Englift we call them Ficas and liece, fome of thofe Animals that formerly plagud forypr, and were no fmall plagne now in America. Upon all thefe accoumes, they hurried away as faft as thicy cou'd, and tho Maffafort earnctly prefs'd them to tay longer, yot they remembred their Lodging, and thanking hitn for his kindnefs came away.

854 Of. a Plantation fettled at Plimouth in New-tngland, ©c. Lib. V.

Twas no finall farisfaction to the Colony, to find that Mefrliot food fo firm and tight to che Articles of the Leacue, and that he diforer'd to much Fidelity to the Enrifib Intereft. Their Satisfaction was alfo encreas'd by a new Friendhip with a neighhouring Prince, conhem of Cmmergid a moft affabte courteous, and well-accomplith'd Perfon, and in norhing Savage but the rudencts of his Habir. He and his People ftudied to do the Eurlifh all the good Offices imaginable, and as they had occafion 50 come imto his Texticories, ever treated thim with the utmelt. Civility, and the beft Provifions the had.
The Nitroas
But there were another forr of Neighbours calld the iarratbeniet, that were much ocherwife affeted rowards che Plantation, and in plain rerms breath'd Defiance, thrcatning no lefs than the utcer Deftuction of ic. The lradiens of all lides talk'd of this Expedition of the Niarragian/fes againft the Englifh, and that which rendert it the more probable was, that they were a numerous People, and as bold and daring as they were great and ftrong : And that all this was more than meer ralk, anpear'd convincingly- hortly after, for there came a Muffonger from Conaurcus, the great Sagamore of the Narragbanfers, who brought a bunde of new arrows up in a Ratme-Snakes Skin. As for the Engho they knew not the meaning of whis Prefent; the Arrows and the Snake-skin were equally a Myttery to them, bur Tifgunntiom, their Inrerprecer, unfolded the Riddle to them. He knew the Cuftoms and Manners of thofe Indinnt, and adwr'd the Englifhthat this was no lefs than a formal Challenge, and that the Narraghanfers did by thefe Svmbols detie them to Mortal Batcel, and proclaim themiclves their everlafting Enemies.

The Narraghonfers appear"d the bolder in this Defie of theirs, in thar ir was given juft uponthe coming of a Ship with Recruirs to the Colony. But they knew well cnouph what they did, and underftood by their Spies that the Engit/b bad only an addition made to their Numbers. but inone to their Arms nor Provifions, (which are equally the Support of a War) by the coming of this new Engtifh fee how litelc they fearid them; and the truth of it is, twas an lnfult big cnough, confidering they had no means of being fure that the Englif knew upon what grounds they made fo light of them, and that the reft of the World round abour, who did not know the true Scate of the Cafc, wou'd judge it an effect of pure ReCulution and Bravery.
Bur the Governour having confulted upon the point O. Reds Snoc. full of P of the Niarrimpures This it back again to the King his Challenge was accepred, and that whenever his People canac with their Bows and Arrows, the Eng $l$ ifh wou'd the Msimnzer deliverd this Prelent to Conauacus he was extremely iurpriz"d, and having fuund 'twas Powder and Stror, he wou'd not fo much as souch it; nor fuffer it to ftay in lis Houfe: fo that "twas e"en broughr back again as it went. The Savage King, 'tis probable, thought the Englifh had fent that Powder and Shor to do himi a mifchief beforchand; to murder him before the War began ${ }_{21}$ and fo prevent the fledding of more Blood for he knew that Mcn were kill'd with fuch things as thofe were, (tho' he did not know how nor which way) and thercfore he did very wifcly in nor fuffering the Powder and Shot to lie wirhin doors, Ieft is mou'd have gone off of its own accord, and fo a blown him up to rights. This was a Judicious confideration; and the Englifh Plot was thus encirely defeaced. However, the Englifh rook care to fortify their Town, and pur chemrelves into the beft pofture of Defence, that in cafe the Nerraghanfer King came (ro revenge that horrid Defign upon his Life) they might be in a condition to receive him. This done, they proceeded with fome Defigns of Trade.

They had a lone time promis' 1 the Maffachufer In dians to come and X raffick for their Furrs, and now notwithitanding thefe rumours of Wars, they refolved to be as good as their Word; fo Captain Standift, accom panyd with 10 Mcn , together with Tifquantum, and Hollwemock (which was one of Maflufoy's greatelt Caprains, and div'd now with the Eng! :f: at Nect Plimoutl, fer our upon this Defign. Bur they had nor gone far, A cunnings before a certain Indian comes to the Golernour, and plot ottiff tells him that the Narragh, it fers wexe marching towards the Town, and thar Mnff $f$ YF, the great presended Friend of the Engli/h, was joyn'd with them, and he muft therefore prepare for an allault. And the Rogie rold this Story with o much paffion, and fo many other appear me Town ances of truth, efpecially a Bloody face, which he faid he gor by feaking for the Einglifh, thar the Governour believ'd him, and therefore hor off 2 or 3 pieces of Ordnance for a warning so Caprain Standifh and his Company to retunn, if they wexe not out of hearing; which they not being, came back again, and put themelves into a readinc's to fighr.' Bur in rain did they expect the Enemy, who never came, having no fuch Defign at that cime. And Hobbirmosk, who was more nearly mofofor concern'd for his Mafter Mafffofr, affurd the Governour abus.d. of his Fidelity, and that all this Report was a Scandal upon him. To be fure of this, the Governour difpatch'd a Mefrenger to Puckanokick, the place of Maffefoyt's or dinäry Refidence, which found him at home quierly minding his own Affairs, and thinking of no Plots no Wars; "bur he was highly concern'd, when he heard how he had been mifreprefented to the Engliffi, and it work'd olar upon him, that he went. away to the Plantation Thortly after, on purpofe ro clear himpelf, and wipe away thofe afpexfions that had beca caft on him. This was the fift difcovery of Tifquantum; for the Savage that had acted that part before, and alarm'd all the Plantation, was one of his Creanures, and was fet awork by his Mafter.
Now this Fellows defign in all this under.hand deal. ing, was not fo much to expofe the Englifh, as to purfue Digiquar. his own Repuration and Adrantage, and make his Coun-try-mien think bim 2 mighty great Man: For he us'd to tell them, that he cou'd manage the Englifhen, and perfwade them ro Peace or Waras he pleas'd; and by this means, they encertain'd a high Opinion of him, and usid to make him large Prefents in the quality of 2 Mediator. He undertook ro procare themPeace or Prorection, Trade'or Commerce, or any other favour from the Englifh that chey defir'd. And on the other hand, when the Gifts did nor come in faft enough, he wou'd denounce War againft them, and threaten to fer the Englifh upon their backs; fo that he was much more ook'd upon than many of their Sachems, yea, M. foffoyt himfelf was grown an infignificant Perfon in comparifon with Tifquancum. For whereas the Savages us'd to apply themfelves to the former, to mediate with the Englifh on their behalf, now the latter was all in all; and who forfooth, but he, had Power at Plimourb Town? And the Tricks he had pur upon the Indians round abour were fo many, and had proceeded fo far, that the Engli/h having now found our the Rafcal, were obliged ro expofe him as fuch to thofe Iudians he had deceiv'd, and oaffure them of their Friendihip and conftans Refolution to maintain Peace with them, upon other Terms an Tifquantum us'd to reprefent.
Bur one of this Fellows deceits was to Comical, that a.d. saza we will divert the Reader with che account of is. 'Twas A.D.ingit his bufinefs to ftrike his Country-men with a very awful siory. ear of the Entijh, and by reprefenting them as a People omething more than ordinary, to make himiclf (who was very familiar with them; no be taken for fumething extraordinary too. He told them therefore, that che Englifh bad the Command of the Plaguc, and cou'd difpenfe it abour in the Country as they pleas'd. He faid hat they kept that Fury buried in'a ccrtain hole in the ground juft by their Store-houfe, and coud let it. out as any time upon their Enemics, and fo kill them without, che trouble of fighting. And as a confequence of the former, that by kecping that hole faft fopt, they cour keep the diftemper a Prifoner under ground, and hinder the -malignane Contagion from flying abroad to difturb the Country. Now the Indirms who had had the Plagne raning anongit them, and fo had known the terrible offeets of it, cou'd noc poitibly hear any thing more aftoaining ; and therefore (nor knowing the Kuiave they had to do with) thoughe the Englifh a very ftrange forr of Pcople, belicy'd it was their incercit upon all accounts to keep the Reace with them, and for that end courted Ti/quantum, by whofe means alone they.hop'd to have the faral hole kept clofe fopre Bur in the late alarm, it happen'd shat certain Barrels of Gun-powder, that were buried under graind, were dug up, and fanbamock fecing the great hole where the Barrels lay. Chanced to ask Tiff quanrum the meaning of it: Whyy (ays he) this was ahe place where the Plague was buried; which fo furpriz'd the other, that he went immediately to ask fome of the Englifh themrelves, who told him, They had nor (bu the (God they ferv'd had) the command of the Plague Thus all Tifinarisum's Rogacry came our, and the In diams were farisficd they were liable to no fuch Perfecution from cheir Ncigbours as that came to. 'Tis pofifible the Rafcal might mean the Guu-powder all the while, for that was a raging Plague ainongft the Indinns, and a grear many of them dy'd on't. The politick King of che Narraghenfers we know, woud nor fuffer the Infection to lodge under his Roof, bur threw it our of doors with all imaginable hafte; and tis probable he had fecn forne Men drop down very fuddenly of it, or elfe he wou'd not bave been in fuch 2 hurry. Bur whether Tijquantum to is grear adegrec, as if the Plague had becn actually Imprifon'd in chat Cavern he fake of ; and like the Winds, cou'd have been ler our and call'd in, atrany time whici the Kcepers pleas'd.

Chap.XXIX. Plantation fettled at Plimouth in New-England, ©c. 855
'I was hinued before; how Malfafoys was reprefenred ro the $E n g l i \beta$ as a Confederare with their Mortal enemies the Narraghapless, andidxis by the Ry infinuations of Tijmuffiof: dif quancum: Now this abue provok d:Maffafor fo far, thar
he fene to the Governour to have the fcandalizing Slave relign'd to him, and che rather, becanle being one of his Power to punith bim;-but the Emflifh found, or made forne excules for not delivering him upx. and tho Reace was afterwaids made for him, yet this retufal in tome macalure fourd that Prince: and the truth on't is, it fecms hardly worth their while to bave loft che leaft degree of his Friend hip for the fake of a defigning Vit lain, allowing him to have bcen anIntctpreter.
No Wars coming on, the Colony improva their time in triding with the Indians: They went that Voyage co the Haffachujets, from which they had been onic hindred by the noife of the coming of the Narraghanfers, and thcir Trade with thar People turn'd this time to veTheir Trade ry good account. A while after, the Governour in Perwith ferystl fon going out upon the difcovery of a paffage within the Towns. and having foms expectations of Corn from the $M c / /_{k}$ chufets, he went thither ; but a Sicknels had becan amonght thar People, and hindred their Country Affairs. They complain'd alfo to the Governour of the Englifh that were feared in the Bay hard by them; of their proulVewplencs ing about, and fealing their Corn Thefe we mut oppris the know werc a ditele Planration by themelelves, lately come indiunh. $\quad$ over, upon one Mr. Wefton's account, and who though fir to Seat themalelves in this place. They fpent and fpung'd upon the Colony at Rlimouth, and robb'd the terd inton; and which was wort of all, they had enTrade, with them of Plimouth Town, which feem'd to give them Parmers haxes alfo in the fcandal of the abudes, and injuries offerd to the Indians. The Governour Plandersere was no good to be done here, thole niew Plancers having indecd, quire fpoild the Trare bor Com as the Pimurutiann uis'd ro give for a good Beaver-skin; fo that he return'd ince the bottom of the Bay of CapeCrd, so a place callid Nauffer, where the Sachem us'd the Governour acry kindly, and furnithd him with 8 or to Hotheads of Corn and Beanis. The fame ufage they mer with at Matcachicf, wogether with 2 good quantity of Corn. And tis obfervable, that being under a necefity of leaving a confidcrable Srock of Corn, which chey had boughe here, behind thein one Winter, at their return to ferch it they found it perfectly unrouch'd, and not only lo, but well guarded and proferved by the Indinns:
theSachem (who was commanded by the Governour to look afier the Corn) obey. the Orders haid upon him.
After this they traded at Namosher and Nancmer, In- Nimamer. and Towns, and got good, ftore of Corn. Thar latter mer. place ftands upon a fine River that yichls abundance of excellens freh Fifh, and runs into the Nitraghinn/et Paty. It lics S. W. from P1imoush- Town aborit 22 Mules. The Sachem of this Conarry usid the Go ernour with very reat civility, and was une of thole that had acknowdg'd the Sovercigmy of King fames of Einyland.
The next Voyage about this Corn-trade was to Macte- Anatuct birf, and Capraia standifo undertook it. Here the $h_{n-}$ Vog "fs. dians difocover'd much anocher fort of temper than they had done before, for they pilfer'd and thole away feycral things from the Company, which tho in chemfelves bue Triffes, yer the Captain was refolvd not tolele, and derefore threaten'd she Sachem. till he had made him cake Orders for the reflitution of them again.
But this was not all, for the Caprain plaindy difio- Treachery ver'd that chey had a defign to mucder him and his Men, dime. bur he kept a good Warch all the while he was there, and to defeared them. Neither was this dire lirtt time the Indians had becn fingering the Englifh Commoditics; Gor befure this, when they were crading at Naufse, they lily gor away fome things, and the Captain was forc'd at that time to give them fome rough woxds before he cou'd have them reltor'd.
Bur to proçed: : Some time after, when their decay-Capt. Srami.
 g Srores requird a trenh Sueply, to Mevomet, to ferch bome a parecl of Corn that the Governour had concracted for. The Sachem of this place had given she Governour, when he was here, 2 rery kind Entextainment, but he treated the Captan now not nearfo well. In fhort, he very evidenaly faw The ladien, that they had the fame treacherous Minds with chem of Mactachic/f, and this paffage alone was enough to have perfivaded him of is had therebeen no others.grounds or fufpicion. While he was at the sachem s Honke, in The cartiags comes a centrain Maflochuffes Indian, by Name. Dr. tupar- of a bol. mat, 2 proud infulting Fellow, and one that had imbrucd his baads in che Blood both of Ergl.fomen and Frenchmen more than oncc. He was a lufty frong Man, and had Courage criough, and knew is to well, that he texten't is wonderfully by his extravagant braggs of it. This fawcy Savage coud tor forbear jeering the: inglif $h$. and Frenci, before the Capranis face, and laughing at their weaknefs and pufilanimicy : For (fays: hal they. never die like Men, bur dike Chikiren, crying, and making a parcel of foure faces, when they are Moctally wounded. But he did not content himfelf withrohis piece of Infolence, bur taking a Dagger. from abour his Neck, (which Weapon, he had gotren from fome of the Englifh of Wicfon's (lantation) he prefented in to the Sachem, and afrerwards made a lang Sperich, accompanied with a World of impudent geftures and actions; and twas very eqident, that he inrouded shor only to affront Caprain Ssandifh, bucalfo to let him know that herdeGgn'd to do fo. The Captain indeed, tho be navierfood the language in fome meafure, yer nor well enough to make fenfe of a tedious Speced; however, the underttood enough to make him fenfible what the Man wou'd be at, ret being fearful of beginning to operi a wide breach, he let them alone; and refolvd to tce what they mon:d make of it themfelves.
Now (as they came aferwacds to:be inform'dy WIztu- the fope of anin's Speech ro the Sachem, was to this eftect = Thiar his Mellage the Mafacinufers had formerly defign'd to deftroy the chem Englif Colony planted by them in the Bay, but they coniderd, chat if they did thar. they muft cut off them ar Plimoutch too or elfe they thou'd die expos'd to. a fevere revenge. Bur then finding themfelyes nor ftrong enough to carry on both thofe defigns, they endcax our'd to engage rheir Neighbours affiftance, and came now to befpeak him to joyn with the other Sachems.xound 2bour, who were refolv'd to do their urmoft towards the Extirpation of the Englifo. Farther he told him. That fince Caprain Ssandifo was thus luckily fallen into 土beir hands, they ought not to.llip the opportunity . but make him and his Men the firt Examples. Afrer this Meflage, Tifubisunat was mighrily carels'd by the sachem, and there was a manifét difference betwern his Entertannent and taptains. This was a plain Declararion of his Mis Captains as as folved to joyn in the Confederacy againit the Engitifl. The Captain eafly faw the difference made berween Triturinimat and humfelf, but howeret digelted chat, as long as they did nor come to other exrremities. Now the number of Men he bad with hith was very inconfrderable, they were nor above 6 in all, whereof one half was with the Sliallop, and the orher alhore with him;
$X x x_{x}$

856 Plantation fettled at Hlimourh in New-England; ©c. Lib. V.

yer they did not dare to come to open violence tho' be had fo tew, and the Caprais having got all his Corn ready, made the Imiturs carry it down to the Shallop, according to their promife, and fo came off clear. At this time chere was a notable Rafcal (an Andian of Cap:Co1) very officious abour the Capriip, and wout aecd help his in getring his Corn aboard, and doing other pieces of Service, almott whecher he wou'd or no. He had been arquaincudfome time with the Englifh, and now being got into the Rertappeard more courteous and dilizenc to pleafe chan cvert, but his crue defign was to kill Captain Stambifh, and being to lie amonght the Englifh that Nighs promisd the Sachen that be wourd Stab him before they parted, and then his Men might fall upon the reft of the company. Bur as is fell our, that Night the Captain con'd nos Acsp, and did nothing but turn to and fro (and formeriones walk abour by the Fire-fide) all Night long ; fo that the Affafinate tail'd of his purpore. The next day the Wind ferving, they aild back for Plimouth, and this Indian with them who wou'd fain have perfwaded the Captain to have gone to a certain place along with him, where he had (as he pretended) large Sores of Corn to furnifh him with; and Capr. Stand/fh, who fufpected nothing of his trea chery, wou'd have accompany'd him chither, bur Providence fre ented in, and the Wind rurning fuddenly abour oblig'd them ro lay afide rhofe thoughts, and fai ome. Thus the fecond Plor was baffled too, and the life of a brave Man happily fpard. In the interim that Capr. S-andifh was ar Manomer, News came to Plimourb chat Maffafoyf, their Old Friend and Allie, was very like oo die, which was no frnall crouble to the whote Plantaa :on, for they had always found him punctual, juft and fincere in all his Treaties and Dealings with them. Now fince 'twas the cuftom amonget the Indians when any (efpecially a grear Man or a Sachem) are fick, for all that profefs a Friendibip for them to fend to vifit them, the Government determiit'd to pay that Civility to Maflafore, and Mr. Wranfow (accompanied with the trufty Indian Hebbumock, and one Engliftrinan more) was difpatchd upon that Errand. $&$ By the Whay they had News that the good Prince Maffefore was dead, (which had almont Spoil'd cheir Journef) but confidering the uncertainty of Reporsiat 2 diltancerthey went on.
Bur Hobbamock burit out into a bitter Lamentation, He went ppoled deach of his beloved Lord and Malter Scgemus, My Sachem, my Sachem, many have I known but never any like thee. Then he woud rim to Mr. $w$ in $h n m$, and run into a long harangue upon the Praifes of his Mafter, and bid him depend uponit, that he fhau'd never find any orher Indians fo Jutt and Honieft, and Good as he. However, when they came to Puckan nckick, they were furpriz'd with the joyful tidings of his being yer alive, tho in a condition in which his life was nor long ro be expected. He had nor quite loft hisSenres, only his fighe was gonc, when Mr. Whiiflup came to his Bed-gide, and Hoblamosk relling him there was his good Fricnd byinfow, he pur our his Hand, and faintly repeated thofe words, Kecn Winfuow, that is, Art:thou Window ? for they can'r pronounce the Letter 1 , bur always ufe $n$ in the roond of it. To which Mr. Winflow replying, Abbe; Yes; he return'd, Matra neem monckaner namer Hinfnow; thar is, 0 ! Winllow, I Ball never fce thee rgain. And the truth on't is, the noife and buttle char was abour him was enough ro have kill'd a Man almot wichour a diftemper; for being mightily beloy'd amongt the Indians for his Vertues, there was a vaft concourfe of Vificants abolur his Houfe and Chamber. Several of chefe wexe at their Charms and Incantations for his recovery; that is, making loud noifes and clamours, and difturbing the Sick Man inftead of doing him good. Befides; there were 6 or 8 Women employ'd to chafe his Arms and Legs, in order to the keeping of the natural hear in them ; and what with the gibble-gabble of thefe, and the wild noifes of the Charmers, our Euglijh Vifiters declare that their Heads were diftemper'd. Mrf faloy yielded ro all thefe Ceremonies and Cuftoms of his Country, but in fpighe of all the Means,; concluded himfelf a dead Man. But Mr. Winflow. comforred him in the beft manner be cou'd, and began to act the part of a Phyfician towards him, adminittring fome Cordials which he brought from Plimouth 2 and found that they were not without their fuceefs. This encourag d him to go on in his practice, and the furcefs ftill artending the endeavour, the iffuc was, that in a few days time the Patient was fo far recover'd, is to be our of danger of dying this bout. But 'ris hardly to be exprefs'd how kiadly he took this Vifit from the Englijh; to make tume returns, he difcoverd all the whole Plor of the Muffacinfers, how many of the Sachems they had drawn in, and what applications chey had made to him to joyn with them too. But withal, he carneftly advisid the meforentr but to begin firit themelves, and cur them all off; ix kneilh. cherwife, if they foard them upion thofe Principles of rendernefs that they had hitherto done, the; wou'd have caute to repent ir hercafter. With infinite thanks, and frcth affurances of truc love to the Erglifh, they deparred from and fifor's Town, in company with Coubarant the Sachem of Martapuift, who entcrtain'd them ar his Houlc. This was a fort of an ynfetrled (if nos a hollow-hearted) Combinans Fricud of the E:inglifh; however, he eneerrain'd them ci- creme. villy, and difnifs'd them without any wrong, tho Mr. Hoinlow and Hoblamock both had been cmploy'd in a Scrvice againit him.

PAs thicir return hoine, the Affair of the Maffachufet-Refolution Plor was aken into publick confideration, and fince to punilinthe the Evidences that prov'd that bloody and barbarous Majachustu) Defign were fo many and fo clear, that there was noroom for doubr of it, it was determin'd Capt. Seandif Ihou'd go and prevent them. Matters were now come Mircrable to that pals with the Englifh of Wrcfor's Plantation, that ochere Colathey coudd hardly live thers for the continual Violences ny. and Infults of the Indians; they wou'd come and take their Provifions our of their very Fort, and ear ir before their faces, and if any body fpoke 2 Word to gainfay them. they wou'd draw their Knives and hold them to cheir Breafts. In horr, they were in a very miferable condition, and cou'd nor polibly hold our (berween want of Provifions and of Serensiti) much longer. lis mut be own'd, that their own Unjuft treatmear of the Indians brought all thefe Miferies upon them, and they were fo far from being not acceflary to their own Mifforrunes, that if the Savages had executed their Defign apon them, it muft have been allow'd they had receiv'd. bur 2 Juft recompence.

However, fince chey had plocted to carry their re- Defign ypas venge fo far, and to deltroy the innocent with the guilcy, o Maffacre them at Plimouth as well as theothers, itwas but reafonable for the Englifh to atrempr fomething in theit own Defence. And they concluded it the beft way to go to. Work in fuch a manner, that the Indianis mighr nor have any frightful alarm given them, and to fly and hide themelelves from their Jult indignation; bur rather Cecing no figns of any impending Srorm, might be left to their full liberty, and fo difoover chemfelves with the more plainnels. For this reafon, Capr. Scendifh took no more than 8 Mca (of which Habbamock was one) along with him; but wharfoever other action was forborn at his time, he had poffitive Orders to bring che Head of thar daring Savage Wirumpmat along with him at his return. Being coine to the Planration among the Maffa-Cardeffer? hufes, he found the People carelelly difpers'd up and of the nisw own the Conntry, like Men that neither knew nor mantion. ear'd any danger; they had neither Swords $10 r$ Guth mongtt chem, and they: Guffer'd the Cut-throat Indians o lodge and live together with them, as if they had been their Friends and Countrymen. Bur when die Caprain rold them their danger, and the horrid defign the Indians-to murder them all, then they cou'drefiect upon former paffages, and find our fome grounds ffuficion that all was not as it hou'd be, and that there was fome wicked defign in hand. 'Tis Atrange to hink what thefe Men had done with their Senfes all chis while, that People muft come from another Country to ell them that their next Neighbours were about to cut their Throats. And mont cerrainly, the very reafon why they were not all difpatch' (every Man of thein) before that time, was becaufe the Indians were nor in a capacity to prevent the revenge that was to be expected fom Plimoutb Town; that is, to murder them as well as the reft. Caprain Standifb endeavour'd to conceal his refentments and defign froim the Indians as much as was poffible, but yet a cunning Indian Spy difcoverd fome thing of Revenge in his face, and gave the hint to his Countrymen. Now befides the hectoring Savage Witu amat before mention'd, there was alfo another among the info of the Maffachufets whofe Name was Peckinor, as bold and Indiam nfolent a Fellow as che other, and of as much coniage ${ }^{\text {Hetlors }}$ and ftrength; and thefe two were Champions that they repos'd a great deal of confidence in. This Pecksnor talking one day with Hobbamock, difcorcr'd that the defign of their coming was very well known amongit the Maf achufets. We know (fays he) that Captrin Standifh is come to kill ws all, and sell him tbat we kutio it, but fcar. him nor, noither will we run away from bim; let him begion as foon as be dares, be fall. not come upan us unawares. Notwithftanding this fawcy Challenge, the Captain let him alone; yea, tho' chey came and wher their Knives be-

TWis Country (whatever the Enzlifh fay of it) the Globe, is not a Phanomenon peculiar to Nem-Ergland, Natives believe to be an IIland, and go fo far as but is oblervable in ocher Parts of the World: to . rell the very Name of thax Indet of the Sea thar parts it from the Main Land of Virginic. This Inpet they call Krobegzem, and conftandy affrm that the Enaliff and Dutch pals that way between the two Counmies, and drove a great Trade there For the confirmarion of tis $O$ pinion of the Natives it is alledged that they had no knowledge of the neighbouring Country of $V$ Virginit, tho it be not above 150 Leagues from chem; that they never heard of Powhatan the grear Prince of thofe Parts, nor knew nothing of the Englijh Plantation therte, till they were inform'd of it: And the reaion of they couid nos pais and that Councry. Bur they mult be credulous enongh and that will receive thefe things as Argumensid to prove New. Eig Iand an Mand. Pertaps any grear Lake they cant find the end of, they call a Sea ; at leaft thofe that did not underftand their Langaage well might think ro. Howeycr, if the Englijh have ever travelld by Land from Vrizinia to New-England, 'rwill be as muich as is needfulto puif aniend to this difpure. For the temper of the Air and the Sealons, Nem-England differs very dittle from Olid, ac ceaft that part where the Planation was fix'd; altho' in the Latiunde of 42 deg. 'one wou'd expect hitm for Plenty, Viflory, or other Benefits receiv'd. His Their that from this nearer poffition to the Line, in thon'd be Habization they fay lies Weftward in the Heavens, and dinougher of much hutrer here than in Ergland, yer Exiperience fhews all good Men when they die go thither, where they suar. the contrary, or if there be any difference tif next to in- meet all their Friends, and have their fill of all mannes. dificernible. On the orter hand, the Winters atre chought of Pleafures. As for bad Men, whien they dic they go Cold more' piercing, and the Frofts more fevere. . But this they have no anfwer from him bur Quachect, that is, walk Cifference, whichi is contrary to what frovid follow, if away; and fo, they wander abour in reftefs difcontent Fower altogether invifible, and not any of the Priefts they deferye to be, but) wife and devouc Men. And 'tis themfelves ever pretend to bave feen him at any time.

858

Their acBuctey ftand in mors awe of another Power, which counc of the they call Hobliamoski, and our Engtifomen the Devil., 'Tis apiranng to to him they make their application for the cure of dipemp tompers, 7and he feruples not (as they affirm) to make very frequent appcarances to them - Comerimes in one form, and fometimes in another, like a Man, a Dcer an Eagle, but moft commonly in the form of a Snake To lec him is an Honour that chey are vartly ambitious of ; however, 'ris conferr'd only upon thofe of the berter fort, and the meancr fort of People, as much as the long forr's, have fcarce any of his Vifits. Bue the mif chief of it, thefs better fort of People; to whom Hoblio mocko is thus kind, arc the Powats or Priefts, and the Panicfe or Counfellors of Stare to the Sachems; that is Men of Intrigue and Defign, chat love to govern and the accours Pceple in awe about them. And according to Notion of this Englifh give of the Matter, the very Heads by the Powahs ; and the bufinefs of making him and not Kichran, (whom they-believe to be all good theis great Phyfician, feems to have been entirely the Dc vics of chofe (roo fuccelfful) Cheats. One may guefs a

Merhod of the Original and whole Management of che Impofture by this parricular part of it. When 2 Man lies fick offome gricvous diftemper, the Powah (who is the black Powe rricvous diftemper, the Powah (who is the black Power's Agene and Officer) comes to do the good Work of curing him. The adminiftration is nothing elfe but an Incantation; the Prieft howls, fcreams, fings, jab bers, murters, makes horrid faces, and looks as uggly as and pootko himfelf. He has a thoufand antick tricks and poftures over the difeafed Man, who all the while the Invocation lafts, hews his confent to it by fome few words dropt ever now and then, and fometimes breaks out inso a Atrain of Mufick along with the Powabi. And if there be 2 wound in the cafe, after the noifes and poftures are ended, he goes to licking the fame. But the mifery is, that 'tis not the Powah that does this; tho" he feems to do it, but 'xis the Snake or the Eagle that firs upon his thoulder that does the bufinels; that is, (as we are to fuppofe) Foolbamocko in the shape' of thofe Animals. This Spectrum is invifible to all but the Powah himielf, who can fee it very plainly tho" none of the reft can; and yenthey are fuch Fools as to believe 'ris there giving the Lye to all their Senfes as once, racher than to the Knave that impofes upon them. Now for a Man that has his eyes open, and good ones too, to be perfwaded that an Objeet ftands before him when he can fee nothing of it, is no higher a denial of fenfe, than to be liese that an Object which he fees before him is really not there; and confequently; hoo'd an Indian carch on of the Powats in Bed with his Wife, that wou'd be no proof ar all of his being there, for the Man's eyes may cheat him one way as well as rocher, and fee what is not co be feen, as well as not fee what is to befeen. So that thefe Fellows may lie wirth all the Women of che Counury, and be raken in the fact roo, and yer never provoke Bur Jealoufie of the Husbands, nor be call'd guilty for't But to go on with their honeft practifes a lirtle farther When they come to a fick Man, they generally tell him nefs. pretty Story of the Caufe and Original of his illlikely to they find the diftemper any way hopeful and lisery to be curd, they tell him that Holbamocke fent it for fome Offence or other, who if he calls upon him in kis diftrefs, will ftill afford him relief: On the other hannd, if the cale be defperare, then they fay that Kichcan is angry, and laid char aftiction upon the Parient; and all Maladies from this hand they affirm are incurabie. Thus they give them a far worfe Norion of God Almighty than the Devil, while they make the former a cruel and inexorable Esing, but reprefent the latter as one that by Sacrifices and Prayers may be appeas'd. And our Enotij: Alanters pofitivelr tell us, from the Confer fons of the Indiciss themfelves, that the Wormip of Kichern was almot worn out amongt them; and that many had faid, within their memory, that Power was macch more Invold than he was at that time. The moth zealous of all ihe Indiane, in their Rel.gious Superfitions vere the Nimpagherfets, the inccteratc enemics of the Engifh. They have large fratious Houfes in the nature of Tomples, which are crdinarily frequented only by People refort burber at their Solemnities, vatt Crouds of Peopie achor chither, and offer the bef of their Trea Furis in Sacrifle, that is Shins, Hatchess. Kersles, and tie lis. All thefe are trircum by the Priefts into the reide of a great Fire and thmen as cur Authors fay) to athes, which we teline may be true of the Skine fuch a matrer of reputation to be open-handed ind this cale, that the Irvians abour Plimoutlin Town told the Engi/f, they with'd their Sachems wou'd appoine the like Sacrifices amongit them too. This is juftas if they wanted to be rid of their Houfholdnfluff, or ware fo overburthend that they cou'd not rell what to do with it; bur thofe that look into cheir Houres will find it otherwilc.

The Panicfe, or Counfellors to the Sachems, are nor The Panief only the wifeft and moft courageous Men thar can be and the nif found, bur gencrally of the largeft fize too. The Sa- cipline thors chems never make War, or undertake any weighty bu- bhas are of finefs, withour their Advice; and when the Armies that Order: march, thefe Mcn are always the immediate Guard of heir Perfons. To keep up to honourable $2 \pi$ Order as the Paniefe axe efteem'd to be amongft all the Indians, they chufe out the likelieft and moft promifing Boys, and crain them u P with ahandance of care, and in the Ob crvation of peculiar Rites and Cuftoms. Tis not a liscle hardifip thefe Boys go chrough while they are under this Difciple; they abitain from all curious Meats, drink the Juices of bitter Herbs rill they are ready to frue themclres to death; they are bear over the Legs'and Shins with Sticks, and made to run through prickly Buithes and Brambles, to render them hardy, to inure them to Pain and Labour, and (as they fay) to make them the nore acceptable to Holbibamocko. For'twas hinted before affirm he makes $\varphi$ ary freme of them to whom the Indians affirm he makes very frequenr Vifits, tho' our Englifh, in all their Converfations with them, never bad the luck of.coming to any of their Houfes when he was there Bur this fecms pretry certain of thefe Men, that they dif cover in all grear and dangerous attemprs a Boldnels and Courage beyond that of the other Warriours, and the common People firmly believe them to be above the reach of Swords and Darts, and that no (ordinary Weapons ar leaft) will kill them.
The Government of the Indian Sachems is altogether Governmo Mereditary; and if the Father dies before the Son or of the $f_{n}$ Daughter is of Age to focceed him, the Minor is com- diami mirted to the Tuition of fome able Counfellour, who Manages the Affairs of the Country till the other is fir to cake that burden upon his or her own 1houlders. Some of thefe Sachems are litule Tributary Princos that pay Homage, and depend upon fome greater ones for Procanon, without whofe Knowledge and Confent thicy. annot make War nor Alliances. There's none of them tibures Peoples which is for of an Amnual Triture from their Corn. "Thefe they for the moft part tome. Baskets of place near the Sachems and cer down in order in lome tand ready to give them thanks on the Sachem's behalf; and then going away, and acquainting him with it, he comes our himfelf, and exprefies his Gratitude to his People, by good Words and fome Prefents, and fo difmiffes them. Now confidering the abfolute Dominion of every Sachem in his own Country, this is bur a very reafonable Acknowledgment, for their Territories'are their own Inheritance and Propesty; and if any Man has occafion for fo mach Land, hie goes and takes it of the Sachem, who marks him out as much as he has need for, and fets him his Bounds. So thar the Sachems are fo many Landlords to their Pecple; and 'ris buc Juft fince there is no fuch thing as Money amongt them, tha the Tenants fhou'd bring of the Eruits of their ground o mare compenfation for the ufe on't. Neither do the pay only in Corn, but if any Man within the compars of his own land kilis any Venifon, the betrer part thereof goes to the Sachem, or fometimes the Skin
the Sachems generally keep open Houfe for all Stran-sachems re gers and Travellers. Any"fuch People, when they patscrive all through their Territorics, go thither of couxfe, where strongers, they are cntertain'd according to their quality; bur the Cuftom is always, as foon as they come, to sell whither they go, and how long they intend so ftay.
oo Sachem willtake a Wife that is not of a Birth equal their wive o his; Concubines indeed they chufe according to ap-and Ccnach perice and fancy, and ftick not at the want of Extraction, bince, pectice and things pleaife. And tho' they keep a great num-if ver ff thefe Women of Pleafure, yer all are fubject to the Wife, who is the Supreme Governeif of the Family. The Subjects take the fame liberty too, and give thein Wives the fame preheminence; befides which, they keep them during life Lut turn away the Concubines at pleafure. When a Wcman leaves a fingle Life and bercimes 1. Wife, the prefentis cuts her hair, and then wears 2 ort of a Veil upon her Head rill her hair is growin again the rime of War is a time of General Goal-Delivery to all Women that are uncomfortably Yokd: For if any Womia

Woman has either a bad Husband, or one The can'c love, for the Women to gec our of thia Slavery, wnu'd be to away the runs to the Enemy, where the is fure to be make their Husbands believe they Cuckold them when made welrome; for the Indians never think they have they are abroad at Work; for che Men cantralways warch Women enough, and fight to gain fuch Prizes oftner them, and perhaps they wou'd chufe rather to be at the than Sovercignct.
In the Cals of Adultery, the Husband puts awa'y the puninmerts villy Wife, or fomctima fides: Bur what the Wife does with the guilcy Husband, we can't inform the Reader; tho' cis bur Juft the thou'd ufe her Lad'c a litele abour him, in order to his Reformation. While the Indinn Women have their Monthly Purgations, they retirc frum their Husbands, and live in a Houfe alone; afterwards they walh themelves, and all thar they have çither rouch'd or us'd, and to come back to make a part of the Family again.
In Marters of unjuff and difhoneft Dealing, they proreproach'd with his Villany aftar a very difgraceful man- other American Councries. This Beaft is as big as an'Ox, ner ; for the fecond he is bearen with a Cudgel upon the is long libe an Ell Neck like a Red Deer, but his naked back; and for the third, befides a found beating, down his back a confiderable way. Under che Throas he has his Nofe flit, that all Men may know and avoid hangs down a grear bunch," ${ }^{\prime}$ hich is of a dark colour. him. Now in all thele Cafes, the Sachem is not only /The Legs are very long, and fo is the Tail, which reaches Examiner and Judge, bur Exceutioncr too; 'ris he that down almoft to his hecls; and the Fect are as large evebears and whips the Malefactors, and (when the Marter, ry way as an Oxes, The flefh is cxcellent good Mear, The Ure Tre Sachem requires it) dits their Nofes too, Murder is always, and the Natives Barrel it up, and keep it all the Xear made of punithed with Death, without the leaft favour ; and the round. The Skin makes a very fubftantial Buff, and by the sho Sachem does this bloody Work himiclf. Indeed, if the will ferve a Man for all the fame ufes and purpofes: Bur tive Criminal be a grear way off, and can't convenicntly be, to terurn to the People. The Indians are a fenfible inge- Thesemni brought, the Sachem fends his own Knife, with which niois People; they keep Account of rhe Time. by the ofthernding the Exccution muft be done tho" it can't be done by Moon, and know divers of the Conftellations by name. his own Hand, Bur any orber punihmenr that is not They bave Proper Names for the Winds alfo, and by Capital, the Indians will not receive but from the hands conftant Obferviation have very good Skill in judging of of their Sachems; they won't be beat or whippd by an the changes of the Wearher. Their Language is very tangugec Officer, but their Prince may do it co all extremicies, copious and difficult to be attain'd ; but they bave noand they'll never offer to run away. Nay, for 2 Man to thing of the Ufe of Lemters, or any fuch Symbolical ways cry or flinch during the time of his Correction, is reckon'd of exprefing things as fome of the rimericans have. To memoriah 2 more infamons ching than either the Offence in felf, or fupply this defea, and keep up the memory of ancient the Puniflment.
The Buxials in this Councry have been Occafionally defcrib-d before; the moft remarkable Circumitance fucceeding thefe are the Mournings, which concimue for Several doyscie are the Mournings, which continue for from Generation to Generation. So zhar as 2 M 2 : 2 . Ceveral days Night and Morning, in which all the Friends vels the Country, if he can bur underfand his Guide, ine. of the deceafed bear a parr, and make a very doleful, may read as it were the Hiftory of theirAffairs, and malce wretched noife. If a fick Pexfon happens to recover of his Journey pleaßant and eafie to him. Thefe are ftan- Charging his illnefs, there is mighry joy; and becaufe Sicknefs is ding Monuments that never wear out ; bur the Names Nomas. always chargeable, the Fxiends fend him Gifts to help to of Perforis (fuch is their Cuttom) are in concinual fux and make is up, and come and dance, and feaft with him.
Rorpearo
Old Age. The laudable Cuftom of paying 2 reverence $n 0 \mathrm{Old}$ of Age is frictly oblerx'd by all the Indians in thefe Parts; they were Young;; and if they do any remarisable thing, yea, the younger People will do all mean Offices to ex- they ftill affume a new Name upon't. Nuw to angcufe the old ones from it, tho' they be ftrangers to them. meat an old Name by a new Tirle, upon the accounr of And let 2 Man have as many Years over his Head as he fome exrraordinary Performance, bas been a practice $2-$ will, yet he is not counted a Man, till he has done fome, mongit tome of che polireft Pcople in the World; bue to action worthy the Place he fills, and the Poft he ftands'quir an old Name encirely, and take up a new one, is

Labours of Men and Woreca. action worchy the Place he fils, and the Port he fands quir an old Name encirely, and take up a new one, is and making Materials for the. Wars; bur the Women, fon of no one pars of Mankind (in Arbitrary Matrersbefides the burden of the ordinary Houfhold Affairs, (that efpecially) is to be a Srandard to the reft; and if the $I_{n}$. lies upon them of courfe) manage the Husbandry too, and dians of New-Eingland think they haye reafon for fo doing: do all in the Field as well as the Kirchin, The beft way 'ris fúficienr.

С н а р. XXXI.

The Difcovery of New-Scotland, with His Majefties Patent for the Plantation of the Same.

King James's Patent to Sir William Alexander, for the Plantation of New Scotland.

J TAcobus DeiGratia Magns Britannié, Francie, $\mathcal{E}^{3}$ Hiberxice fideig; defenfor: Omnibis probis bominibus rosius zerre fua Clericis of laicis falutcm. Sciatis nos femper ad quamlibet que ad decus É cmolumentum rgoni noffri Scotie SpeCarret occafionem ampleCtendum fuiffe intensos, nullamque aut faciliorem fut magis innoxiam nequifitionem cenfere, quam que inexteris $\mathcal{E}$ incultix regnis ubi vit.e ©f vîiui fuppecturn commode ncorx dedurcersdis Coloniis faciu fit; prafertim fi vel ipfa regna cultoribus prius vacua, vel ab infidelibus, guos ad Chriftianam convertis fidem EV. Dei gloriam interef plurimum; infefla fuerint. "Sed cum EG alia nonnuulla regna, $\mathcal{E B}^{3}$ bec non ita pridern nofta Anglia laudabiliter fua nomina noovs terris acquijitr fed in fe fubacit indiderunt, quam numerofa $E^{3}$ frequens, divino beneficio baec gens, bac tempeftate fit nobifcuim reputantes, quamque bonefto aliquo E utili cultu eap $\Omega$ fudiofe exerceri ne in deteriora ex ignavia EO? otio prolabatur expediat plerofgue in nooam deducendos regionem gucm Coloniis compleant, operepretium dxximus qui \& $\sigma^{2}$ animi promp situdine $\mathcal{O}^{\circ}$ alacritate corporxonque robore $\mathcal{O}^{3}$ viribus quibuf cunque difficulratibur, fi qui alii mortalium ufpiam fe audiant opponere, bunc conctum buic regno mexime idoneum inde arbirramur quod virorum santummodo $\mathcal{S}^{2}$ mulierum jumenfcrum E' frumenti, non esicm pecurite tranfueßionem prfalat, neque incommodam ex ipfius regni mercibus retributiorem boc rempore cum negoriatio ndeo imminuta fit, poffit repernere. $\boldsymbol{H i f}$ ce de caufis ficuti É proprer bonium fadele EG grarum dilcet nofri confliarii Domini Willicimi Alexandri equain施 ferví sium nobis praftitum ES praftandum, qui proprisis impenfisex noftraribus primus externam banc coloniam ducendam conetus incolendas expetiverit. Nos igitur ex regali noftra adCorifanam religionem propagandim $\mathcal{E}^{3}$ ad opulentiam, prof peritatem, pacemque ncturalium zoftroram fubditorum dieiz regni noftri Scotie acquirendam cura, ficuti alii Principes extranei in talibus cafibus bakenus fecerunt, cum avifamento E' conferm $^{2}$ fu predicii noftri-confanguinci $O^{2}$ confiliariz Joannis Comits de Marr Domini Erskene EJ Garriosbe fummi noftri Thefarm rarii computorum rotulatoris collectorx ac Thefaurarit nowarum noffrarum augmentationum bujus Regni noftri Scorie, ac religuorum dominorum noftrorum Commiffonariorum cjuf reque prefentis clarte noftre damus concedimus $\mathcal{E}$ difponimus prafrecto Domino Willelmo alexandro, heredibus fusis vel affgnasis quibufcumque bereditariz ommes © fingulas serrias consinentes as infulas fitunto $\mathcal{E}^{3}$ jacentes in America, inara caput feu promontoritum communiter Cap, de Sable appellatum jacens prope hatitudincm quadraginta trium gradakm ant ab eocirce,, ab aquinostiali linea verfus feptentrionem, à quo promontorio, ver fus listus marxi rendentis ad occidentom ad fationem Sancia Maricc ndvitum (vulgo'S. Marics Bay) Gु deinccps werfus foptencrionem per dircitam lincam introitum five offium magnic illius fations navium trajicientem quse excurric in terrs oricntalem plagam infer Regionsi Suriguorum \& Etrchemmorum (vulgo Suriquoй ©f Etcchcmines) ad farviuperul go nomine Santa Crucй appellatum. Ef nd foururiginem 7 cmo rifimam five fontem ex occidentali parte cjuldem qui fe primum pricdiflo fiuvio immifcet, unde per imaginariam direflam lineam que pergere per cerram feu eurrcie aerfus Seprentrionsm consipictur ad proximam navilumationcm, fluvitum vel faturiginem in magno fluvio de Caimnda fofe. exo-

-rucrantem. Eit ab copergendo velfis orientem per maris oras listorales cjufdem fuvii de Cannadia ad fuvium fationem navium portum aur littus communitcr nomine de Gacbepe vel Grjpic notum E' appillatum. Et deinceps vorfus Ekronotum ad infules Backlaos sel Cap. Briton wocetas Relinquendo cafdem Infulas à dextra छ゙ vornginem dilti magni fluvii de Cannada fies manno facions navium ef terras de Newtoundland, cum inluls add cafdem tertas pertincncibur à fmijtra. Es deinceps ad Caput five promentorum de Cap. Briton preditium jacensprop: latitudinem quadreginte quinque graduum äur co ciice. Et ia difito promentorio de Caf. Brition verfus meridiem E゙ Dicidentem ad pradillum Cap. Sable ubi incipis perambuatio includenda $\mathcal{O}$ comprcticida intra hatas marzs ora littoreles ac cerum circumferentios a mariad cmnes terias continents cum fluminibus forrcncilus, finubus, lifforibus, infuis cut maribus jacemibuis prope infra fex lucas ad aliquaim carumden parsem ex occidentali berenlivel oriensali partibus oraium lirroraliam E' pracinतurm enumdem. Er ab Euromoro (uti jacer Garp. Britron) GE ex anfrali parte cjujacm ubi sf Cap. de Sable ommia mariat as infulas verfus meridiem intra quidroginna leucas ditarum" orarum littoraliam earundem magnain anfulcm vulgariter appellatum Ije de Sable vel Sre blon inèluidcr. jncen. verfus carban vuigo Scuth-Soutb-Eifh circa trigintalusucas ádiElo Capo Britton in mari Ej exiften in latifudine quadraginta quattor gradium aut eo circa Ou,ce auidcm terre preditie omni sempore affuturo. nomine Nioup Scris :n America gaudehunt, Quas ctiam prafatus Dc minus Willsimus in parfes ET portioncs ficue si vifum fucti divider rifacmy; nomina pro beneplaciso imponct. Una cum omnibus fodinis sum regalibus auri © argenti quem aliis fodinis ferri, plommbi, cupri, fanmi, cris, E6C

In cujus.rci teffimonism buis prafenci Cbarta nofite magnum Sigillum noftrum apponi procipimus. Teftibus pradictn M̈nftris confanguincris Co Confliariss facolo Marchionc de Ha miton Comitc Arrania EOCambriage Domino Aucn Ef Luner dail, Gcorsio Marifcolli Comite Domino Kecith ES alt. Wegni nof:ri Marifcallo, Alcxandro Comitc de Dunferniling Dcmin Fjvia © urqubant noftro Cancellaric, Thoma Comise de Mel ros Domino Byres EG Byming noffro Sccrctario, Dilçis noftiis familiaribus Confliartis Domino Richardo Kockburne Fumior de Clerkington moffri Screcti Sigilli cuffode, Geargio Hay do Knifarunis noftrorum Rotulorun Rcyiftrorum ac Concilii Clerico, Foanne Cockburne de Ormsfoun noftra. Fuftitiartia Clera re, Minitibus, Apud Caftellum noftrum detFinfore decimo dia menfis.Seprembris Anno Domini milefimo fexentrfimo wigfimo primo Regriorumq; noftrorum annis quinquagefimo guinto © decimo nono.

3IR Ferdinando Gorges, who prefided over tha Affairs of Nem-England, confidering the largenels of the Bounds laid out for Plantations in thode Parts, and the flow progrefs made in Planting, made a motion to Sir William Mlixander, onc of His Majeltics Prib; Coun cil.-for the Kingdom of Scotland, to procurs a particu:ar Parent for the Planting fich a part as hou'd le calld NepreScotland; and to be held of the Crown of setlend and govern'd by the Laws of that Kingdont. Which Patent was accordingly granted by His Majefty, and the Limits of the Councry were thus fertled, To take in all that lies to the E. of St. Croix, compals'd with the great River of Canada on the $\mathbf{N}$. and the main Ocean on the . as may be feen more at lagge in the Patent above.

The firf Ship that went with a Company aboard her oPlant there, was fent out in A.D. 1622 . but ferting out roo late they were forc'd to Winser at Newfoundland. The next Year they fet Sail from thence, and having made Capr-Bretom they kept along the Coaft till they came che length of Rort du Muton, where they difeover'd 3 pleafant Harbours, and went abhore in one of chem which they calld Luke's-Bay. Here they trac'd. for 2 great way up, a delicate River which was 3 Fachoms decpat low Water ; on each fide of which werc flowry Meadows, and a profpect of a charming Councry; Roes red and white they rook notice of, and a fort of wild Lilly, which, wild as it was, was a Flower of a moft pleafing fragrancy. They Coafted along to the mext Harbour, which was bur 2 Leagucs from the former, and here they found a River more pleafant than the other, and that had 4 Fathom at low Warer, and the Fields and Meadows that lay abour, it were drefs'd. with Rofes and Lillies like that they had feen beforc. Within this Riven they found a place very fit for a Plantation; "twas a fat Soil, well for'd with Fruirs and Grain, and naturally aps o be Fortified. The Fruits they obferv'd growing there werc Gooiberiies, Huttleberries, Wineberries, Radoerries, and Sruawberries: And the Grain, Whear, Batley, Rye Peale, which latter grow every where in abundance, and are very large and good to eat, only bley tafe fomething of the firch. Sailing along to the next Harbour, which vas about 12 Ie agues ciftant,- all the way the pieafiures of the Country conrinued; and tho here were allurements enough, yet the place laft mention'd was concluded onas the moft commodicus for a Sertement. In all chefe Rivers they found plenty of Finh, as Cod and others botti great and lmall; and all along the Coaft, (as allo uron the Rivers chemiclives; grear fore of wild Fowl, as wild Geefe, Glack Duck, Woodicock, Hern, Pigeon, and many other forms which they did not-know. The forts of Wood the Country afforded were Oak, Firr Spruce, Birch, and reveral orher Kind of Trees they had nor feen before. They remurn'd back to Nicmfoundtran, and from thence to Ergland, very well farisfied with: this Difco very; bur for fome reafons did not ftay there now, but intended to return the next Year early in the Spring, to: lay the Foundation of a new Plantation there.
-

© н.a' р. XXXH.

-The Difcovery and Plantation of Newfoundland; mith an $A c$ conint of the Country, and His Majefties Patent for the Plantation of the fame, > TM. Rut, Nilert de Pratcin. Hore and orthers, to the $^{2}$ Game place. In $1 . D^{2} \times 1583$. Sir Humphry Gilbert wern thither, Carrying a large Patent granted by Q. Elizabet h and took actual poffetion of the Country in Her Ma enties Name at St. Fohn's Harbour. This: Worthy Knight failing from thence to Virginith, Ioft in that Courfe his beft and larget Ship, and in his rerumn towards Eng land, himfelf with the other; and all that furviv'd che forcgoing Shipwrack were ovcrwhelm'd witha Storm Notwithitanding all titere advances made towards Plantacion, yer the Affair was negiegted till fomePublick Sptits thoughtar (is A. D: 609. ; to pur their Country in mind of it: One Mry 7 Guy of Brifiol wrote Trearife on purpofe to revive the Eufinefs, and animare His Country was finf difooverd A. D. 1497 . by the Englifh to Plant there. This motion took fa well, Sir Scbrffian Cabof, who was let forth by King that the following Year; A. D. 1610. a Parent was grannHenry VIF. After this follow'd the Voyages of tred by K. Fames and a Colony fent over, of which the

His Majesties Patent for Newfoundland.

T A ME S; Gy the Gract of God, of Grear Britsiin, France and Ireland, Xing, renision ind furt. And therforr do of Ont pexidd grece, crrtain ponpipledge, and

 Sollicitor Gomeral, Sirmaniel Dun, Sir Walter Cope, Sir Piercival Willough by, and , Sir John Conitable, Kus. John Wcid Ef9, William Rreemm, Rxlph Frecman, john Simy, Humfrcy Sany, Wilham Turner, Roherr Rirkam, Spencer. Thomas juxoo, Join siokely, Eilit Cripe, Thomss Aport, rran ringum, Edw, Allen, Ric. Bowdler, Tho Jones, Simon Stone, John Short Joan. Visurs, John juxon, Ric, Hobby, Robert Alder, Antheny Havelund, Tho Aldwonh, will. Lewis, John Guy, Ric, Hallwortpy, John Laggron, Humfrey Hooke; Philip Guy, Will, Meredith, Abrom, Jeningi, and jotrn Dowghtie, ikvir Heirs and Alfignt. And to fach, :and fe matr) as ing do.: ing Shall be ome Body, er Commonalty porposmal, and hall have perpermal Smacef fion, and one Commen Seal te firve for ibe faid Bidy and Commonatry: And ibar ring, and shrir Succeffor, Ball be from tewaceforth for fuer inabled, re rete, ree guirs, and purcbafe by the name aforeffid (Licence for': be fame from $w_{1}$, Owr Hairi and Succeffors, fivt had and obrained) my mancr of Lands, Trmements and

 Compeny, end their Succefion, winder she riforvitions, timitationt, and dederen giomi hereafter axprefled, all ahat part and pertion of the foit Consutr;' comminon's called Newfound land, mbich is finate, ijing and bring fo the Sowthwart of the

 by she cipcope Headiend, comimenty cillod or known Io the Name of Cape Suncta Maria, or Ceps Saint Maries Inclufivs, which Cope or Healimen is re bo Eafimord of the Bof commonly called the Bot of Plecentia, zogether with sbe Sece anh Glande lying prithin 10 logmes if, any part of tha Scn-roaff of the Cowntry fort

 ing. Foppling, Commoditias, and Herditiments whatfocuer, fogether withat to or shercabume, both by Saa and Land, being, or in any furt belonging or op granced fo any cempany, Bodj Politick or corporate, or re ang Advemperer ar Adiventarcri, Undertafer or Underitifers, of an Difovery, plantation, or Trafiks, of, im ar inte axy Porcign Perts whatfoever, and in. os large and ampla mamer, as if the fame rpert hercin particelerly monsioned and axprovided, Nien wertbilfi Owr Will and Plisfoure is, and W's do bjitefe Prefonss exprefi end de.

 April 27. A. Reg. 8.

The Company unider Mr. Gur fucceeded very well in the Country, they goc acquaintance with the Natives, and gradually won them to a familiarity with them, by doing of them little kindneffes. Neither do we find thar they ever bad any difturbances from rhiem, but offering the Natives no violence, had none offerd by them. And tho" there were none that liv'd niear wherc they were feared as firtt, yet wou'd they coime and traffick with them, that is, leave things in a ceitain place where thie Englifh thou'd find chem, anid fo ftaind to their Courtefie to leave what they choughr giod in the room of them. This confidence chey feem'd to repofe inthem, beciaufe the Englif once lighting of fome of their Houfes when they werc alla abfent, rook away none of theiri Houlholdfuff or Provifions, only they pur feveral things out of their places, and left fome Trifles there, that the Savages, when they came home, might know fome ftrangers had been there. This made them firt fearch the Englif our, and afterwards exprefs fuch a good Opinion of them. And there's no doubr te be made, but the moft Savage People in the World might (before chey be too much abus'd at leaft) be brought to 2 friendly Correfpondence with ftrangers by gende Methods, and a juft and fair Cartiage rowards them. And there's as little queftion to be made; but that the concrary deportment has greatly contributed towards the making many People much more barbaro:s, than Nature and their own Difpofitions cver made them. Amongft thofe that made Voyages to this 10and before there was any Sertlement there, Capt Ricbard Whitbourn was one of the chief, who was alfo *here at the time chat Sir Humphr Gilbert was. This Worthy Perfon made at leaft 5 or 6 Voyages thither forne before, and, others aftēr the Plantation, And 'tis rom: his Remarks, and thofe of. Mr. Guy, and foune of the Members of the Colony, -that we extract the follow ing Account of the Country

The Illand of Newfoumdiand lics between the 4 Cth and 53d des. of. N. L., feparated from the nearelt part of the American Continent, about as far as England from the neareft parnof Erance. Ir is almolt as large as I ciand, and the greateft part of in lies above 3 deg more Southward than any part of England. All along the Cuaft are many large and excellent Bays, fome of them itretching into the Land towards one another more than 20 Leagues. On the Eaft-fide are the Bays of Trizityand Conseprion, which Aretch themfelyes towards the $\mathbf{S}_{f} W$ W. Tor and Copaliin Bays lying alfo on the E. ftretch towards the W. The Bays of Trepafliy, St. Mary, Barrll and Ploifance, which are all on the South-fide, extend their arms to wards the $\mathrm{N}_{\mathrm{H}}$. The grear Bay of Sis. Petcr on the S. W. fide, runs rowards the E. and lies E. by S. from the great River of Canada, which is about 20 Leagues diftant. The bot toms of there Bays do all meer regether within the compals of a-fmall Circuit; by which means, patinig ove Land from Bay to Bay, the difcovery of the whols Councry is much facilitated. There are, beffides thefe many ochers of Icfs Note, and in mott of theri finall Mands:' (none of which. are farther than a League from the thore) jery plcafant and fruitful. Hardly any Counry in the Worid can hew a greater number of fafe and commodious Harbours than this; but the two molt remarkable are the Harbours of Tninity and Treprfer. The former lies in 49 deg. and is moft advantageouliy feared for Shipping both to anchor in, and to fail from thence towards the E. W. or S. It has 3 Arms or Rivers, long and large enough to receive many hundred Sail, which may Moar faft at Anchor near a Mile from the Harbours Mouth. Adjoyning to the Rivers-fide, and within the Harbour, is much open land, that yields Grars cnough both Winter and Summer to maintain grear ftore of Catile. The Bay of Flowers lies to the N. of this Har bour, (nor above a Lcague diftant by Land in many places) but becaufe of ledges of Rocks even with the Water and very dangcrous, no Ships go thicher to Fifh; Ro that Tiznity Harbour is the mot Nottherly Filhing-place frequented by our Narion upox the IMand. Treprffe ${ }^{\circ}$ Harn bour is alfu a very commodious one, and has the advan tage of lying in a more remperate latitude, as being in 46 deg. very.near. It is a fair, plealant and wholfume Coaft, and free from Rocks and Shelves. Of all the Harbours, this is the moft Sontherly, and moft conve nicne to reccive any Silipping thar comes for, and from Virginia, the Burmudas liand, crome great River of Ca nada. The Seafons here are very temperate, neithet are there any extremities of Hear and Cold greater thatn thof in our own Climate; and the offen repeated experience of the Englifh have put it out of all doubr, that'ris a hcalthy place, and agrees very well with thgir Conftirutions. The Soil is exceeding fruitful, and without any Art or Cultivation produces Plants, Fruits and Grain profitable for Man and Beaft., Bilberrics, Barberries Rasberries, Cherries, Goofeberries, Strawberrics white and red, Pcars, Filberds, grow in fuch plenty; that a Man may much fooner tirc himelelf with catiog and gathering, than in looking about for Encertainmenc. And as thele are of a wild growth, fo are many good Herbs which one may fee abroad in the Fields, as Pardy, Sorrel Alexander, and a great many ochers befides. Whear Batley, Rye, Peafe and Firches, were found in che Country; bur the Engitf broughr in Oats and Beans, which thrive exceeding well. In a word, there is hardly any fort of Fruic, Roor, Pulfe, or Plant, thar flourithes in England, but will flourim here. The proof of this they had in che profpericy of their Lextice, Cablage. Coleworts, Turnips, Carrats, with the reft of the common Furniture of Gardens. The high Lands are adorn'd with Woods that keep their charming green all the Winter long; and the Plains are watered with Ponds, Brook and Rivers, which refrefh the Meadow-grounds, and make the Grafs high and rank. Vaft numbers of Cattle mighr be bred up here, and depend encircly upon the Meadows for fuftenance; for as there is great plenty of Grals, (and a Spring of it even in the Winter) foir has a good Spirit and firength with it from the rich Scil where it grows. There is abundance of admirable Timber in this Country; they commend the Firr andSpruce-Trees for Ship-Mafts, and all other Ufes, and don'r fcruple to compare them, in poinr of Serviceablenels, to thofe of Normicy. And they fay, that no Country can thew Pine and Birch-Trees, of dimenfions cvery way, to ftately as Newfoundland. As for the Animals; the. Beafts are Decr, Hares, Foxes, Squixrels, Wolves, Bears, and the amphibious Beavers and Otters. And whether it were fan-

862

 Difcovery and Tlantation of Newfoundland, occ.cy or no we can't fay, bur our People beliey'd the;Bealts atirution. So he retired from her, and thereby perhaps of prey here to be more tame'and gende than in other lefcap'd a drinking bouc, which wou'd have con him his places. To this purpofe: they tell a Story, That being pge cime a fifhing, and haring a great Mastiff-Dog with them. there came a parcel of Wolves out of the Woods, and fenced themfelves precty near the place where they werc at their work and there they late howling and making a moft rerrible noilc: The courageous Dog went up nothem, and imftead of fnarling and grining at cne another, (che ordinary Prologue to fighting) they began to wag rails and fawni; and ar laft went to dowst right playing ; and, in thort, lik'd one anothers company io well, that they all went avay together into the Whods, there the Dos ftaid amonget them 9 or 10 days and then came home fafe and found to his Mafters. And this Comical Scene berwecn the Dog and the Wolves was repented thrce feveral times; fo many times did he take his Ramble with chem, and when the Frolick:was our came home again. This made fome of our Planters furmize, thàt the Wolves were berter natur'd here than other where a and the truth on't is, the Dog's cntertainment was od enough, and weil allow the Wolves to be Hofpitable Robur a Man wou'd have faid a grear deal mere to't, fiad onc of the Mafters raken the Maftiff's place, and gone along with the Wolves into the Woods; and after 9 or 10 days fent with then, come home agatin without 2 hole in his Coat. They fay too, that * Tho the Bears ane fo very nurncrous here, yer they neice rirctably) was, bcaane they never came in their way, for Bears don't ule to be guiley of rhat piece of good brecding to any thicg that comes Within the reach of Thit paws. As for the Foxes, as cungng as they are, and fo they did the Martens, Beavers, and the reft of the Farty Tribes, which (accoring to the Genius of the Nomfoumdand Ammals) pere in god-naturtd as to be carch'd: " ${ }^{\text {phe }}$ he Fowl are (of the leffer fort) Spiarows, Larks, Blackbirds, Buttinches, Thrulhes, Nightingales, Fillidars, and che likc. Adnd of the larger, lartridge, Geefe, Ducks, Pigeons, Suipes, Tcat, Curlews, Etc And of che Sca-Fowl, Pcosuins, Murres, Hounds, Sanderlings, Redthanks, Ǧc. Laftly of Birds of Prey: All forts of Fatcons, Ofpress, Ravens, Gripes, Crows, Gulls, Pitcrei's. Tercells." ©ic. Thic plentrand variery of Fifh are nor lefs than thofe of the Fowl : All the World knows the repuration of Newforndinnd for Cod; and whara rich Trag it jicids only wich refpect to that one Commo*, By. But there's no Harbour or River bere but what's well ford with excellent Filh ; amongt which we may mencion Salmon, Peart, Eels, Trouts, Herrings, Mackz ril, Flounders, Eaunce, Capelm, Pales, Dorreh. Then Whale, the Sovicicign of Filhes, Porpoifes, Seals; and others of a Royal Character; and to conclude, all forts of Sl:cll-fifh: But the great raxity of all the Aunquals is the Mermaid; ior call it what you pleafe, fo yondo bur mean a Creature that lises in the Warer, and as far as is arpears in view of a Humane fhape) which is infallibly an Inhabirane of hefe Seas, if at lealt we may believe Capt. Whinbourn (the principal Aathor of this Accouns of the Cuuntry) "upon his word. He affirms' chat ar 8. Fohn's Harbour, AAD. 670 as he wasftanding by the Wacer-fde one day catly in the Morning, he fpied 2 the Eyes, Nore Chim Ears, Neck, Forehcad, and, in a word, by all thofe upper Parts which were very well proportion'd, appeard to be a Woman. The Hair indeed vas to be excepred; forimetead of that, there were all roind abone upon the Head'as ic: were blae ftreaks, which moch refembied hair, and hamg down to theNeck. The Captain lays the beheld it intenely, (and fo did ano ther of his compani, that ftood nor far from him). and fa:d till it came to abour the tengch of a long Pike from him, and then he thoughrit cimeno gobackwards. When the Creature faw thar he went fromit, ir cam'd aboutalfo and made away, which gave his the opportunity of viewing the hrouters and back Parts of it, down to the Waft, which he declares were as \{quare, frooth and wibite, as the like Parts in Mankind. From the middle to the lower part (to ufe his own words) it went poincing, in'proportion like a broad-hooked Arrow; but how is was in the fore part of the Body from the Neck and Sluniders downwards, he cond not:difeen, becaufe it dithot advance towards him fo muct above the Water "as it twent away, ThisSyren brada mind to'the Captain's empany, in fome Palace or other within the Dominions of Aeptures, bur he tho" otherwife a Man of good breedind) Fefusd the favour, and nighted her. What the wout liave done with him there the Lord knows; however, the knew there was nogood Wine in that Country, Fat or the ocher hand," 2 thof confounded guzling of Sale Water, foch as woud no way agrec with his Con-

Life, and depriv d him of Chridtian Burial too. The Syren let him go," and did not attempr, by any farther difcovery of her Charms, to reduce bim. She had shewn him thofe of her Face, but thought him unworthy of the Charms of her Voice; thofe, which Poers through all Antiquiry have fo wonderfully extolld. However, the fame Creature came fhorthy after to the fide of a Boat, in which were fome of the Caprain"sMen, and endea ourd to come into them. Thele Fellows were fufficiently fcar'd at the fight of it, but ready to leap out of the Boat when they faw it attempting to get in ; yer one of them recover'd fo much Spirit. as to manage his Oar, wich which he ftrick the Syren'a found blow crofs the Head, that made her let go her hold, and drop into the Water. Bur that it did nor kill her was plain,' by her coming afterwayds to fome Boars in the Harbour; at which time the Boats being nearthe lhore, the Men got all out and rom for their lives. This appear'd to be the very fame with the former, and the fane it was, unlefs the died with that blow upon theHead and walk'dafrerwards. Upon the whole, we canir fee why this Retacion hou'd nor as effectually perforade all People that there are fuch Creatures, as rhe Voyage it felf houd that there is fuch 2 place as Neppoundhind; for a. Man as'd to converfe with the Dangers and Monfters of the Sea, one may very ealify belicve:por to be timerous. And a Man can have no lneref in forming a Srory of a Mermaid, which is nor at all adapted to ferve any Defign in Church or State. If the Reader won' beconvinced by this, thexe's no way for him bue to follow the Caprain to St. 于obm's Haxbour, and there wait for Ocular Demontration. . Of the Na tives of this Inand, oar Plamers tell as bur liecle: Bur in general, as far as they know of chem, that in their Habirs, Cultoms and Manners, they relemble the Tidians of the Continenc, bax far lefs poline in their Civit Go vernment, as wedl as lefs Ceremonions in their Religion (If they have any ar all) than many orher Nations of the Americansare. They:line aloogether in che N. axd W Parts of che Country, which are leaf frequented by the Engtifh : But the French and Bijcioners, who follow the Whate-filing thereabouss, report them ro bea cractable, ingenious People, parient of liabour, and notMercenaxy bur ready to work for a malR eward Our Englifb in deed faw fome of them, and thofe were all painced with Oker, cloath'd wirt Stags-skins, (made inno fort of Gowns) that neactid to the middle Leg, and the Sloeves coming down at keat half way the Anne; and Beaver skims aboutr their Necks. Thicy were bare legg'd, and mont of them bare foored, only one had Shoes and Mirrens on. There was nothing of a Cover for the Hlead 2mongf them; they wore their hair pretry long, a great ock behind plaited with feachers, wirh 2 feather in is ftanding uprighs by the crown of the fead; and a fmatl. ock plaited before. Their hair is of very different coours, tho' they oblerve no proportion, but paint thear Cloaths as well as their Bodies red. They are of no large fize, bur are broad breafted, and of a bold ftrong make, and ftand very upright: tho by the report of ome, they don'r walk to, being fomething inclinable to the Vices of Cheating and Stealing. Theirgreateß Ars is feen in the coniturution of their. Kettles, Canocs and Oars; the fommer are made of the rinds of Trees very neatly fow'd rogcther, and the feamsoverlaid with Turpentinc, bur when they fet them over the Fire to boil their Mear, how they do to keep the rinds from forching, and the Turpentine from melting, is hard to conceive. Their Canoes are abour 20 foor lotg, and 4 and half broad in the middle, made in the form of a $\mathrm{Crcleferit}^{2}$, Stem and Stem alike, and both equally diftanc from the greareft breadth. From the Srem and Stem, chere rifes 2 light Sraff a Yard high, whipt about with the long ftrings of cerrain Roots that Serve inftead of Cords, which they take hold by to bring the Canoe amore. They will carry 4 People rery well, and yet don'r weigh 100 weight; fo that when they go a Land, they count it no burden to cacry their Canoes with them. Inftead of boards in the making of them, they ufe the outer Bark of the Birch-Tree, and fow them with che fame artifices that they do their Ketcles. As for their Oars, they are of two forts $s$ one is about 4 foot long, of one entire piece of Firr, the orber to foor, and made of two feveral pieces, the firftas long, big and round as a Half-pike, the fcond is the Bade of the Qar, and is ler into the end of the long one, llit and whipe very frongly. The former of thefe the yufe as a Paddle, and the latter as an Oar.- This is all thatour Pianters tell us of this Country, that is remarkable'; with this Accountchercfore of the Nemfoundland, we thafl finith our Hifory of tbe New Warld.

F
N
$T S$

A N

INDEX

OFTHE

Kingdoms, Countries, Rivers, Towns, Places, viz: in the Firft Volume of Navigantium atque Itinerantium Bibliotheca.

Note, For Shortnels; $k$ fignifies Kingdoms, pr Province, a Countries, $p$ People, ci Cities, $m$ Moumn tains, $r$ Rivers, sSeas, la Lakes, ilflands, f Forts, b Bays, ca Capes, bHarbours, t Tonns, vVillages, fa Sands, ba Havens, cas Caftles; $n$ Nation, d Defart, /b Shoils, ro Road, wWomen, po Rorts, ftr Streights, pl Plain, poi Point.

| Arabia, deferta $6^{\circ}$ 43I | Auroca $1 \quad 34$ | Bannaras t 208,280 |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| - Petran c.. $3^{81,431}$ | Aufame i . 50 | Bantam : $56,67,133,215$ |
| - Foelix c . ${ }^{\text {a }}$, | Autiamque pr 809 | 3 |
| Arabians in Afric31c,3 11 | Aute $6 \quad 8 \quad 800$ | Bani.Araz t - 340 |
| Arach : 409 | Auzoane i . 8i | Bangaya ${ }^{\text {ar }}$, 95 |
| Aranco pr $\quad 258750^{\circ}$ | Axuma ci 390,395 | Baratenc i : 23 |
| Aratana 70 : 55 | Ajnam $i \quad .185$ | Baragra ro : 325 |
| Araftit $\quad 4 ? 4$ | Ayas pr 809 | Barachre la 385 |
| Arawca 6 : 74 x | Ayrebangys $6 \quad 114$ | Barbanda ci. 356 |
| Arbadoes P P 803 | Azapi f 320 | Earaconda t |
| Arbacta 5 : 436 | Azamur : lbid 324 | Barbary $6 . \quad \therefore 305,306$ |
| Archers Hope jot 820 | Azegui $p$ : $\quad \therefore$ | Barcos, Vamelia's m 702 |
| Archipelagas ${ }^{\text {a }}$ A 74 | Azgan pr - 332 | Barbera z 102 |
| Ardouill 6 . 522 | Azjoch ci $\quad 356$ | Burdes 6 : 282 |
| Areciffe $64{ }^{\circ}$ : 149 | Azores i 269,468 | Barella i 4 462. |
| Arenas i : 270 |  | Barfrufudeà t 433,434 |
| Arequipa $t \cdot 274$ | - $B$ | Barnvelts 10ands 39 |
| Arefgol po 340 | Baaros r 249 | Baroche ci 90,108,422 |
| Argin $: \quad 3$ | Babelmandel fir . 102 | Barrampore f $208,25^{\circ}$ |
| Arguin 64 269 | Babylon ci . 437 | Barrus 6i 239,249 |
| -i | Bacchian i . 17 | Baru i 270 |
| Aria 1 . 435 | Bachian i . $\quad 120$ | Barate $1 \quad 152$ |
| Arica. 1 . 2 T234.750 | Bachea i lbid | Barropore : : 210 |
| Arimoa t - 44 | - Bachu | Barren ca $\quad 590$ |
| Armenia, Major c. 434 | Bacola & 210,250 | Bugora di 207 |
|  | Bactin $f 434$ | Baftimentos . 27 |
| Arracoory pr 747,718 | Bactria 6 - 435 | Bata i $\quad 56$ |
| Arrapoco r $\quad$, 17 | Baedz $t \ldots 433$ | Eitherport : 156 |
| Arratellon 6 . $255^{\circ}$ | Badar $t$ : ${ }_{4}$ | Batoctrina i $\quad 28$ |
| Amawary $r$ 716 | Bagamder k 390 | Batcicala poi . 169 |
| Arroras* 710 | Baydar ci $\quad 93,437$ | Batty t - 4 IL |
| Arfahatiockit 839 | Bagemedri k. ${ }^{\text {k }}$, | Bauhos i : 55 |
| Arui $r$ : 711 | Baharene i 98,207 | Das Baxas 6a 127 |
| Arwakai $n^{\circ}$ - 718 | Bahac r \% 88 | Baxos dés Chagas fo 225 |
| Arwarkai $p$ | Bajamond r:. 601 | Bayat 686 |
| Arzell $t$.. 34 | Bajadori fa i : 269,340 | Baya de Tedos Santos 705 |
| Axzilla 6i 3 332,336 | Baixost $\quad \therefore 3$ | Bajla Bay . 35 |
| Arzina $r$. 506 | Bakar pr\&t | Bayrea co $\quad 30$ \% |
| Afcenfien ci 750 | Balambtan cit . 216 | Bay of Cods 812 |
| -6 , 272 | Baldima co : 743 | Bay of Heat . Ibid. |
| -i $3^{8,255,270,271,468 ~}$ | Ealuta i 32 | Bay of S. Mary $\quad 313$ |
| Afea $i$, 273 | Baly $i \quad 210$ | Bay of Flowers 865 |
| Argar pr $\quad 33^{6}$ | -f .f. 42 | Bazelorf: 275 |
| A haraffe t 433 | Balaim $6 \quad 207$ | Barbay \% 533 |
| Afifinual $r$ \% 38 | Balamboa i - $3^{2}$ | Biarllae . 552 |
| Aifmere ci. 89-15,417 | Baldach ci . 437 | Bear Hayen - 6is |
| Aflab ro 105,110 | 'Baldith \% . 433 | Beelis $5 \quad \therefore \quad 3 \hat{3}$, |
| Affawayes P , 710 | Baldivia 6.31 | Behria pr $\because 352$ |
| Aflepore t ? 430 | Balli $i \quad . \quad 274$ | Buhat r . 41.3 |
| Affuan $6 i \ldots 3$. | Balfora ci 98,207,272, | Beber 314 |
| Aftracan ci 434,516,520 | 280 | B=het $\pi$. $16 i 4$. |
| Atacama $\pm \quad 77$ | Baltha pl $\quad \therefore 339$ |  |
| Arallons i $\quad .258$ | Baluches $p$ - ${ }^{1} 41$ | B-ld Etivici $34^{9}$ |
| Athul $i \quad \therefore \quad 711$ | Baly $i$. 32,216,463 | Beld Elhuacb it 342 |
| Atlas $m \quad \because 317$ | Band-Aly $t$, 407 | Benargax $1 \quad 207,230$ |
| Attack pr 188 | Bandon $i \cdots \cdots$ | Ballapore co \% - 6 bia |
| Ava c 113 | Banca il 185,227 |  |
| Ararella, Jalia 6,220 |  | Bemi Jelketten $\mathrm{min}^{2} .334$ Benaia i |
| St. Anguftine's Bay $79,225,231,257-143$ | Banda i 74,82,99,133,  ..c: 218,271:464 | $\begin{array}{lr} \text { Benaia i } \\ \text { Bengaya i } & 18 \\ 99,227 \end{array}$ |
| $79,225,231,257-1$ | Bando pr $218,274,464$  168  |  |
| Avna k $\quad \therefore \quad 279$. | Banknigle i ${ }^{\text {a }}{ }^{2}$ | Benibuhatal a 338 |

The $I N D E X$.

| Benigeuarcual m | But | Car |  | \% |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| Beniin 5 | Butres po | Carmantiin c. $\quad 388$ |  | Curgi P Sbid. |
| Brenilenur | Butrone is | Cazopan ${ }^{\text {ci }}$ - 346 | Cinquel $r^{\text {\% }}$ ci 249,250 | 3 |
| $\mathrm{B}=\mathrm{ni}$ - M м $\mathrm{g}_{\text {ir }} \mathrm{m}$ ( 324 | Byana $6 i \quad 86,87$ | Carruco ${ }^{\text {c }}$ - 8802 | Cipanghu $i$ | Curz pr . 337 |
| Benin $k$, ${ }_{269}$ |  | Carthagene in America | Cirion: 210 |  |
| Beni:Mefigaldah om 333 | c | ci   Carchare $i$ 270,748 | $\begin{array}{lll}\text { Cerne i } \\ \text { S. Clara i } & & \ddots\end{array}{ }^{56,63}$ | Cyrenc.pr 349 |
| dieni. Tafica |  | $\begin{array}{ll}\text { Carthage } & \text { cii } \\ \text { Cryor } \\ \text { 342,345 }\end{array}$ |  |  |
| Beni Satilit : 347 | Cabalu i $\quad 17$ | Caryjolis ${ }^{6} \quad 707$   Carufa ${ }^{\text {a }}$ 354 |  |  |
|  | Caban t Cabex des Las ilhas, 43 ca |  | Cobobarro m 409 | Dabul ci & poi 8i, 1c7, |
|  | $5^{8}$ | Cafafa pr 3 | , |  |
| Berdena $5 \quad 348$ | Cabo del Spirito Sancto, |  | 77 | Dahaka ci ${ }_{\text {ci }}$ |
| Berinyana ${ }^{*} 8$ |  |  | Cochin.china 6220 | Daia ci. ${ }_{\text {c }}$ |
| Bermudasi 8 i $837,848,5$ | Cabra : ${ }_{\text {¢ }}$ |  | Coca $6 i$ : 273 | Dimack ${ }^{\text {a }}$ |
|  | Cabal pr & cir . 89, 667, | Cafena E 351 | Cocoilland 40 | Daman 207,415 |
|  |  | Calhan ci ${ }^{436}$ | Cod.cape : 852 | Damaon 5 435 |
| 13ethuan i | Cabur $r$. 279 | Cafpian Sea 234,547,520 | Codego po 270 | Damare t |
| Brzenagar ci . 276 | Cabiaio i 77 | Casqui.pr 808 |  | Damkec t 412 |
| Bezat pr 336 | Cacclegate po 209 | Caflan ci ${ }^{\text {cis }}$ | Cot ci | Damiacer $\begin{aligned} & \text { Damota } k\end{aligned}$ |
| Brezequic | Ciclian-tribi. 3 ¢ |  |  | Danda Ragec-parce ${ }^{390} 85$ |
| Mhas $r$ rer 269 | C |  | Colay cape $\quad 5534$ | Dangala : ${ }^{\text {\% }}$ |
| Biana, ar B | in Africa ci 34 l |  | Coleway i 36 | Dara $\mathrm{pr}^{\text {r }}$ |
| jika | ataian is | Cafles of kighting 347 | Coligoa er .. 809 |  |
| Billethe: $3^{88}$ | ghaian $i$ | S. Catharine: |  | $5$ |
| Bildi: | Cazaner $\quad 716$ | Casitfa po |  |  |
| Bilbil po 526 | Cairo, or Grand Cairo oi | Cattigare.as | Colloumadoux 225 | Darabice 5:433 |
| 13 ma | 375 | Caturir 711 | Colmogro 5 5 4 4, 521,528 |  |
| kimini ${ }^{\text {a }}$ | Cairoan 6 \% 343 | Саилаха : - 43 x , | Colombo f $115,139,219$ | Datien 210 |
| linita i ${ }^{31,227,267}$ | Calao po 750 | Caucafis m 503 |  | ${ }_{\text {Daya }}^{\text {Davis }}$ irir |
| Biramboin i 17 | calara | Caurin ca 19 | Comfort 6418484819,838 | Dayta : ${ }^{\text {D20 }}$ |
| pindilles 619,690 | Cale pr $\quad 806$ | Caxamalea ci 273,790. |  | Daytaoc : ${ }^{\text {a }}$ |
| Vitra \& . 266 | ${ }^{\text {Calcada }}$ \% ${ }^{163}$ |  |  | Deadman's ine 619 |
| bitipuar ci 207,280 |  | $\mathrm{Cayxem}_{6} \quad 85$ | Comorin cape 119,139 | Decan $k$ - 418 |
| difara ci |  | Cazan Ceana in |  |  |
|  |  |  | Compoftela $c i r \begin{aligned} & \text { 22 } \\ & \\ & 272\end{aligned}$ | Deefficld \% 618,619 |
| Bifingar $i \mathrm{i}$ - $\mathrm{q}^{60}$ | Calleon Road : 34 | $55_{2}=142$ | 5 | Defreada i. 270 |
| Bizdevodi : 437 | calleon de Lima |  |  |  |
|  | lictici . 9 c | Celarur i . ${ }^{88}$ | - $6 \quad 3 \quad 301$ | Dekalec ci - $1 \in 3$ |
| S: Bhafe i $\quad 10$ |  | Cemainum t $\quad 506$ |  | Dela 5 210 |
| ughar ci $5 \times 8$ | Camana ro | Celebes i $82,227,463$ | Coney-IIfe 55,224,406 |  |
| 30:oil $i$ - ${ }^{2}$ | Camafo ci 274 | Celef $r$ | Conga k 3,708 |  |
| Eolai po 275 | Camalalia : - 7 x | 225 | Cootheberry pr $\quad .716$ | Delina ro 8ir,105,150 |
| Bolus $r$. $8+2$ | Camaran ${ }^{\text {a }}$ - 275 | Cena $r$ 3 35 | 45 | Delly pr \& ci 88,168,250, |
| Bolutan $i \quad 32$ | Camisjiva ca 709 | Cencumr-Putei * 3:0 | ania r. 716 |  |
| Bomahcem : $\quad .435$ | mbasa $k 390$ | Centopozzi m $\quad 334$ | Cpalita $r \times 26$ | Delgemucha, tbe New |
| Bonarce 't 90 | ya | De Cerma | Copiapo : 750 | Cafte - ${ }^{18}$ |
| Bonavifat $i^{\prime} \ldots 74$ | cra | C |  | Delyns Bay $\quad 457$ |
| Bona, or Hippona ci | Cambina pri 3 ${ }^{\text {a }}$ | Ceflier $6 x$ 185 | Coques i 3,36 |  |
| - Oid 3437368 | Cambogix $i \quad 464$ | Ceura ci 333,336 | Coqumibo cispo ${ }^{21}$, | $D=$ mos $6 i \quad 50$ |
| - N | Camburu r 86 | Chacoporo $\pm 433,437$ | 7+3,750 | Denuenfera m* 317 |
| Loquir : 35.8 | Camo ma | Chagrir 272 | Coradar t $\quad .270$ | Dengee : 433 |
| 3rorifthenes $r$ | Camoz ci | Chacapuya $6 \quad 734$ | Corafin $\quad 148$ |  |
| вогпео $i \quad 17,3^{2,464}$ | Camuca : | Chacilia ro 26 | Coranga 5 \% 18. |  |
| - 6 i , 32 | Cana ci mis | Chacouar i | Cordouai 5.318 | Deretre ai ${ }^{\text {a }} 3$ |
| Eorno $k$ | Cananor po 105, 222 | Cakhque pr So7 | Corduba in America ${ }^{\text {ci }}$ ci |  |
| Borreli bay . 861 | Canadar ${ }^{\text {a }}$ | Chamona ${ }^{\text {2 }}$ C ${ }^{272}$ |  | Defiderata ca \& por ${ }^{4}$, |
| Bofiri ci 353 | Canary Inands 3,224,269 | Chandis pr 168 | Corca pr. 136,404 |  |
| biotrancer s 209,280 | - Grand 37,405 |  |  |  |
| Dotia ci bid. | Canada pr ${ }^{\text {a }}$ | Chapman's Chance $b$ 224. |  | Deforation 615 |
| Botan $k$ i \& po 95,120 |  | Chappergat ci ${ }^{\text {a }}$ \% | Coromon-hathoon 437 | Defolare Mands. 96 |
|  | dahar cir $\quad 98,147$ | Clarah it 435 | tataiga b $\quad 250$ | Devils-boo |
| Bouto ? fr | pr 167,32 | Clarcas pr . 752 | Crro i $\quad .4^{68}$ | Dewa, wide Diu. |
| lıyprua ma 707 | Canqueimorra b . 97 | Charton i $\because 607$ | Cory 54 a ${ }^{\text {a }}$ | D=wehubaidula $r$, ${ }^{\text {cses }}$ |
| Boynca $i$ - 271 | Candari $\quad \therefore 108$ | Chategan ci 210,278 | Cormin F 210,279 | Dexehelien r bitic |
| amores pr | ande i | Chaul po 88,207 | 75 | Dewemanior $r$ Jbid |
| Prace Sound | Candiga i $\quad 272$ | Chauz ${ }^{\text {d - }} 333$ | Cufte pr 807 |  |
| Bram i | Candinghar i $\quad 17$ | Chechuan m - 337 | Coffa Rica 750,807 | an DickmansIfe 609 |
| viamport ci $85 ; 98,668$ |  | manies $p .839$ | 358 | Diego Rozi i 55 |
| - 419 | Canida- | Cherry-tule: 552,6 | Cofta Nicaragua 710 | Diego Gratiof i 56 |
|  | Cannari pr $\quad 78$ |  |  |  |
| 705,720,750-656 | Canno i- 21 | - 842 | Conche 6 - 209,280 |  |
| brave i 34 | Cano $k$ - 351 | Chenz pr \% 333 |  | 71,276-99, 97 |
| jirea 62.716 | Canowa, or Cannow : 87 , | Chiaha pr \& : 807: | Coureftan 6 a ${ }^{\text {a }}$ | 273,276-99,142, |
| brefaras: | 90,98 | Chiai $i$ : 17 | Courwa r $\quad \cdots 716$ | Diulci |
| brecher $\boldsymbol{p}$ - -339 |  |  |  | Dinnda poi 114 |
|  |  | Chiapes i $\quad 356$ | Crab i \% ${ }_{\text {ita }}$ | Doara so $\therefore$ M17 |
|  | Cape.Charies | Chicaca pr 808 | Crangalor ci 151 | Dodra ci |
| Biia-John m: ${ }^{1 / 59}$ | Cape Sable 8x3 | Chichimecas 272 | Cratz i $\quad 185$ | Doffar ci ily |
| brodera ci $\quad 168$ | Capes $r$ 3 ${ }^{15}$ | Cuilef $r$. 315 | Crincara i | Dog.Iland : ${ }^{39}$ |
| Buackar pr \&: 98, 468 |  | Chill f $31,53,273,750$ |  | S. Domiugo 2- ${ }_{\text {D }}$ Doma |
|  | ${ }_{\text {Caphi }}$ Caphat | China $k$ Chinau $r$ |  | Dominica $i 699,888,3_{19}$ |
| Bufu $i$ irer 273 | Capitua so | Chinabata i ${ }^{227}$ | S. Crux i ${ }^{\text {a }} 405$ | Don $r$, 542 |
| Bugia pr \% ¢ ${ }^{\text {c }} 34 \mathrm{t}, 3+2$, | Capan ${ }^{1}$ 2 211,281 | Chincha ${ }^{\text {\% }}$, 26 |  | Donatal $6 \quad \therefore 83$ |
| 344 |  | Chippit ${ }^{\text {a }}$, 17 | Cuba ${ }^{\text {cuba }}$ 5,271,688,799 | Dorado pr ${ }^{\text {pr }}$ |
| Bulach. ${ }^{\text {a }}$ |  |  |  |  |
| Bungo po Burbun |  | $\begin{array}{ll}\text { Chitor pr }{ }^{\text {a }} \text { ci } & 168 \\ \text { Chirimai } c 0\end{array}$ |  | Doulpore: t ( ${ }^{\text {d }}$ |
| Burning Ine | Caramburumma i 236 | Chouakoet b - 814 | Cudera $\mathrm{ca}^{\text {a }} 36$ | Doy $i \quad \cdots 123$ |
| Murning Mount Ibid. | 7 | Choul $\mathrm{c}^{\text {a }}$ - 457 | Cufifachigui pr 807 | Drano.r. ${ }^{\text {a }}$ - 715 |
| Jourro $i$ ( | Caribani poi : 270,271 | s. Chrittopher i 50,816 | Culcibat Elmand ca 317 | Duas Irmanas |
|  | Caribbec-Ilarids 270,718 | Chale i : 74 | Camaco t $\because 273$ | 3 |
| Bara |  | Chumro i | Cariom ba $\quad \because 506$ | Diccala pr . 320 |
| Burrom $6_{2}$ | de Carinas $r \quad 748$ | Ciboco i 17 |  | Duguela pr . 3 34 |
| Burras ro 31 | Caripo : 715 | Cidambaran ci | Curia Muria i 141,235 | Duiem $n$ E ${ }^{30 \%}$ |

The $I N D E X$.

| Danga | Futheyo pr $\quad 309$ | Guarme - 35 | Jama i $\quad 610$ | Lancerota i 23489 |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| Dufgun : ${ }^{\text {a }}$, 427 | Fyal ${ }^{\text {a }}$, 686 | Guarga $r$. 314 | Jamahey : $\quad 213$ | Lancerota i 224,489 |
| Dwina $r$ 5 $44,528,53.5$, | Fyrando : . 464 | Guafco-Bay . 31 | Jamaica 6 , 688 | Lanci 427 |
|  |  | Guatulco ba 21 | Jamba i 213 | Langafacque ': ' $\mathbf{1} 28,186^{\text {2 }}$ |
|  | G | Guayaquil si : 750 |  | Langeiancis 213 |
| E |  | Guema ¢ 273 | S. James Town 820,828 | Lanoi 6 - 752 |
|  | Gacheen : 427 | Guelles it lbid. |  | Lankin t - 134 |
| Eddo 62.128. | Gachepay.t 812 | Guiliguli ka 27x | James $r$ $ 6 i 272 | Latchiset s ${ }^{8}$ |
| Edge i $\quad$ O33 | Gafala 5 . 338 | Guiana 6 710,715,719 | lanagar ci $\quad 168$ | Lanugapatan t |
| Eideuet \% - 317 | Gago k\&: 350 | Guinea r 3,350 | Janero r $\quad 709$ | Lapland, or Lappia $¢ 506$, |
| Elabalic ci 416 | Galian i . . 18 | Guinea, New 6509 | langapore pr ibid. | 550 |
| Eli-Arays 336 | Galilo po - 272 | Guir r . $3 \times 5$ | Jangoncs p ${ }^{\text {P }} 213$ | rry- John, or Juon 5434 |
| Elazabert-1fle . 816 | Galite i . 368 | Guler : 35 x | Jopon ${ }^{\text {a }}$ 5 $2,123,124,130$, | Laution t 213 |
| Elchere | Gallia novi $6 \quad 272$ | Guixos : . 273 | 27,234,27,464 | Lurors ${ }^{\text {c }} 99$ |
| Elemedin 6 - 324 | Gallicia nova 1 lid. | Gumeri p . 307 | Taqueriather $\quad$ c9 | S, Lawrence the 63.97, |
| Elgihamuah : 320 | Gambroon ci 426,427 | Gumbra $r$, 386 | Hrawapio 200 | ,257 |
| Elhabet pr , 332 | Gambrar ${ }^{\text {r }}$ | Gunaigel. Gherben ${ }^{3} 334$ | Das jurrus i 225 | aztandit : 427 |
| Elhatir $i^{\text {a }}$ - ${ }^{\text {a }}$ | Ganderi : 93 | Gurchito an - 90,156 | Jaiqucs po - 803 | Lemata d 348 |
| Elhamma 5 - 344 | Ganges r 163,209,424, | Guxiguze r. 337 |  | 1. Jya interior 6305,349 |
| Elly m $m$ - 458 | Gat ${ }^{458}$ | Guyana r $\quad 708,710$ | i $18,68,0 y,+i 3-23$, |  |
| -i $\quad 25$ | Gaoga $k$ - 351 | Guzzuia pr . . 320 |  |  |
| Elmunkfig $r$ 308 | Gardiners Ine * 509 | Guzeras pr . 168 | Ice Haven 513 | Linagona : 475 |
| Elmhadia : $3+3$ | Garer Pr 333,337 | Gwalias pr . ${ }^{\text {b }}$. | Ichmin ci 356 | Linga i . 185,226 |
| Emeria a 7 71 | Garta $n$ \% 308 |  | Idolines . 228 | Loasda : . 406 |
| Emphias pr 390. | Garnets-head po 185 | K | Iekanat ci kie8 | Loingo m ${ }^{\text {c }}$ |
| anarrea $k$ | Gaize i |  | Jemini r 208,280,424 | Lubus i 405 |
| Encafaramif 279 | Gaudever ${ }^{\text {Gavelani }}$ ( 97 | Habafia c . 390 | jeneror $\quad 695$ | Loguffe. 286 |
| Ende $i$ - 18 | Gavelani i | Habac pr. 332,330 | jenba pr . 168 | Loupta : 335 |
| - men r . . . 308 | 边 $\quad 337$ | Mabrun.r - 308 | Jentam cs . 185 | Long Iland 710 |
| Engana i 326,249 | Gebslebbidich m. 317 | Hadagia. 338 | S. Jerom's Channel 25 | Loop.ca - ${ }^{88}$ |
| England, New - 849 | Gegel 5 . 34x | Hadecchis ci . 317 | Jeiclmere pr $\quad 168$ | Lour-Bander $\mathrm{PO}^{-} 418$ |
| England's Foreft ; 467 | Genad ci 163 | Hadimes m $m$ as | Jefuat pr Ibid. | Lopo Gunfalies 62. 32 |
| Epeoya : $\quad 710$ | Gelegula ro 100 | Hachifo $\mathrm{mb}^{\text {a }}$ - $\mathrm{b}_{\text {bid. }}$ | lguids : 3iy | Lopos P. $\quad \therefore 7^{\circ} 7$ |
| Ercze , 433 | Gelves i . 3id | Hajacari pr 168 | Ilbookee i , 3i | Loronna i ${ }^{\text {i }}$ - 5 |
| Erguile $t$ 330 | Gelour cas ..89 | Harhuits Headland 590 | Ilenfugaghen t $\quad 317$ | Lcubes i . 35 |
| Eric pr : 333. | Geman 5 - 336 | Fiamenotio i : 120 | 1lba Grande po 695,7 10 | Loucon : |
| trif - 435 | Gemini $r$ a 163 | Halvary $0 \quad 433$ | - $74{ }^{4}$ | Lucaparia falfa i 226 |
| Errif pr 3i6,352 | S. George i . 458 | iammum $r$, jos | Imiz Mizhi ci 3: ${ }^{\text {a }}$ | S. Lesini co , 18,27 |
| Efaga $r$, 337 | Geursia m 350 | Hiamunu i $\quad 15$ | India $6 . \quad 411,4 \times 5$ | S. Lieia 6 sis |
| Ecamariquesar 70 d | Gefuld pr 327 | Hangia ci - 3 So | Indoftan $6 \quad 411$ | -0. $225,6 \mathrm{~S} 7$ |
| Eteorar ${ }^{\text {r }} 709$ | Gerche Miacquorane s s.f | Hanceta m . 320 | Incas $r$ 1692331 | Lucnes i 29 |
| Etepararange m 700 | Getulia $k$ 343 | Hadar P. . 307 | Joana i ${ }^{\text {a }}$ +38 | Lucinnat |
| Ethes $n$. 308 | Gheer : $433^{\circ}$ | Harduard 62 : acio | S. Jutin'stiland 42,270, | Lacer, or Lifuni ${ }^{5}$ |
| Eufras : $\quad 104$ | Ghencoa, or Ghinea 3350. | Ma |  | Lacus r - 314 |
| Eugano, or Juguna $i 95$ | Gbeylan: ${ }^{\text {G }}$, $35^{\circ}$ | Harvar $\quad 308$ | 813. | Lue $=3 \times y$ S ${ }^{\text {S }}$ |
| Evil-Roads $\boldsymbol{i}$, 274 | Gilion, or Jehun $r$ Ibis. | Marran $6 \quad 335$ |  | S. Lukes loint aio. |
| Europar 9711 | Gil de buena, Vita 272 | dal 89 | John de Noro í 409 | E:natola $i$ - 18 |
| Eurar | Gilolo $\quad 19,44$ | Haffere cas 850423 | S. John de Yacas: 411 | Lution i 32 |
| F | Gioghi ${ }^{\text {G }}$, 18 | Hayme i $\quad 273$ | lur $k \quad: 113,2{ }^{\text {k }}$ |  |
|  | Gillasa i , 272 | Hazcord pr. .320,324 | jurdan $r$ a 271 | M |
| Fair.cupe . 29. | Gua ci. $98,207,282,410$ | $\mathrm{Hea}_{\text {pr }}$ | jurtan $6 i \quad 32,68$ |  |
| Fair-haven 590 | Godana 5 . 98 | Heankirk Shoals 509 | Iounpoze ci | N1620 ps 210,220 |
| Falfocape - 29,224 | Godaly ci 417 |  | Joy cape 20 | M木aria Gulf $\quad 276$ |
| Fambone : 150 | Goga i Ic6 | 270, 271,468 | Iruq.ezar $r$ atz | Macuker 711 |
| Famine $P \quad 25,696$. | Gujama ${ }^{2}$, 290. | Henrietca Maria ciz oco | İubeila ${ }^{\text {a }}$ | Maciflar $k$ is9 |
| Farswel cis : 594 | Golcond 6 \& 61113,207 | Henry 5 . 839 | Lue of painted People 272 | Machil ${ }^{\text {a }}$ jos |
| Farrabout : 433 | 240 | - 62.88 | Ine of PalmeTres lise. | Maschian - - 7 , 2 as |
| Facapoze ci =8a | Golden Rirer |  | Jlie of Kings jibil. | Macian t - $36,1 \pm 12027$ |
| Fayali 468 | Golden lilard. 353 | Mermannos $/ \mathrm{r}$. 82 |  | Mata it 275 |
| Sancta Fse t 750 | Gombazallelilo 1430 | Hierro i . 405 | The of Clioves. ${ }^{\text {dib }}$. | Madagatari 50,101,407 |
| Fefue $r$ 3it | Gomera i 405,730 | Hilber t 340 | Ide of Meafure 354 | M, derai , 2,223,257 |
| Felugia 5 . 206 | Gomeribo m 71.5 | el 308 | Ille of Eibe:ds ${ }^{1 / 2}$ | Mascrabumba 6.02437 |
| Fernadid i ${ }^{\text {a }} 3$ | Gomifpola i : 245. | Hippo 6i - 343 |  | Madura i 278 |
| Fernand-Puint i 3,39 | Gonfaloo ci . 29 | Hifyrian ci - 98 | Itey t . ${ }^{\text {c }}$ | Maturi ${ }^{\text {a }}$, 2172227 |
| Fernand de Loranba ${ }^{\text {4 }}$ 49, | Good- Hope 63 3,406 | Hifpanola i 5 | Juan de Caftravala i23+ | Magadur i 19 |
| 224 | Goore-Bay 300 | Hoaku t 134 | Juan de Nova i 137 | Magandano of. 17 |
| mambuco : 704,703, | Gor pr 1 ¢ | Hope Imand 41,633 | Juanay i. 149 | Mugaribr 322 |
| $74^{\text {8 }}$ | Gorbi i $\quad 344$ | Good-hope Exy . 609 | S. Juan de Luz po $7+8$ | Maydalea bx . 619 |
| Femandina $\mathrm{i}^{-}$. 5 | Gurgades i 403 | Hura ca - 39 | Jogana, ar sugamo i 95 |  |
| Feripore si $56,98,417$ | Goto ${ }^{\text {\% }}$, 124 |  | Jughezeghei $z$ : 81 | Magellanick Streighes 14, |
| Fezk\& pr : 225.335 | Gouria 6.209 | Howard $m \quad 712$ | Julel hadra m 324 |  |
| Fezzo si, $\because 333$ | Gojoone t. 428 | Houfe of Croffes 748 | S. Julian po 14,20,593 | Magliaglic $\quad 50$ |
| Fierio ${ }^{\text {a }} 738$ | Diego Graciora i - $5^{6}$ | Huancapampa ${ }^{\text {H }}$ 284 | Jufan i $\quad 4+$ | Magrot 315 |
| Finifire-cape 224 | Grande $\mathrm{i}^{\text {- }}$, 34 | Huanucu pr libid. | izacanao : 272 | Majerifa i - $50,1+9$ |
| Firando 6\% ro 12.th86 | Gracioan i 405 | Hubbed F $\quad 339$ |  | Masran ma jec |
| Fifhers-i - - -209 | Gracachica-m- - 405 | Hacban-r | K | - Mtamumatan 0-25s |
| Flium $\mathrm{ci}^{\text {a }}$ - 358 | -Green Illands 42,146, | Hued.el-Barbur $r 3 \times 5$ |  | Indilelia i . . 403 |
| Elorida pr 271,805 |  | Hued el Quiver $r$ 315 | Kait cas - 588 | Mijupor ilo |
| Ely:TIand 40 | Greenland 6 574;615;633 | Haedala-Abid $r$ : $3 \times 4$ | Kakares pr . 168 | Maja: - 219.74 |
| Del rogho i 19 | Green-Mouncain, 320 | Hued-Habra $3 \times 4$ | Kanduara pr jbid. | Majurca i 309 |
| Forteventura i 149,405 , | Grees t - 8 | Hugels 5 . 209 | Karbakateaka ci dioid. | Majerta i a 33 |
| 689 | Groenland: - 694 | Hugeli - 208,209 | Kaftow cas 4334 | Malabar cis co 139145 |
| Francia nora . 272 | Guachoya pr 809 | Haicin $n \cdots .308$ | Kawli $r$ - 105 |  |
| S. Franciko ca 21 | Guadalcanal i . 751 | Hyrcania a 433 | Kecoughtan 5 - 820, 838 | Malabriea fo 745 |
| S. Erancis m 31 | Guadalupa i: 271, 819. |  | King's River \% 820 | Majacck: 21,465 |
| - 1274 r 75 | Guadalajora ci 272 | 1 | King's Illand 38,372 | -b . . . ${ }^{26}$ |
| Erayles it 270 | Guaden $t_{r} \quad 346$ |  | Three King's Ine a 609 | $\overline{\text { Mataje i }}{ }^{\text {a }}$ 213 |
| ederick Hendricus Bay | Guador 5 : 141 | Jaarour t $\quad .428$ | Kininebecis $r$. 814 | Malale i Maluile |
| 609 |  | Jacatra $i \quad 36,183,216$ | Kur $\boldsymbol{r}$. . . ates. | Maluile ${ }^{\text {Muldivia Channel }}{ }^{20} 25$ |
| Frenchmens Harbour 709 | Gualeli : 332 | - $\mathrm{ci} \quad \therefore 68,183$ | Kys : $\quad \because 435$ | Maldivia Channel 50,225 |
| French-Bay: ${ }^{313}$ | Gualata $k \quad 35{ }^{\circ}$ | Jago i : 3,19,273, |  | Maldives : $50,225,258$, |
| Friezland 6576,$578 ; 635$ | Gualer pr \& ci 86, 168 | $-{ }^{-1} \quad 20,31,750$ |  |  |
| Frio ca $29,695,709$ | Guana $i$ Guangara $k$ | S. Jago, Quahatimallum ${ }^{2}$ |  |  |
| Froward ca 25,30 | Guangara $k$ : 3531 |  | ${ }_{\text {Laban : }} \quad .344$ | $\begin{array}{lr}\text { Male-Artallon } i & 258,260 \\ \text { Maliado } i & 802\end{array}$ |
| Fuao ci $\because \because 353$ | Guanipa Gulph | S. Jago de los Nigros ${ }^{\text {a }}$ |  | Maliago 3 802  Mallua 8  18  |
|  | Guanuca pr Guardafuit 102,235,270 | Jaic $r \quad \because \quad \begin{aligned} & 750 \\ & 517\end{aligned}$ | Lacanow ct Ladrones it is | Mazos Madon - ${ }^{18}$ |
| Fufhima t 125 | Guardafui t 102,235,270 | Jaic r . $\quad 5$ | Ladrónes it is | atalos madon - ${ }^{258}$ |

The I $N$ D E.X.

The INDEX

The $I N D E X$.

| Veniaga i 271 | Urgence 6 i | 517 | Wikcries p . ${ }^{\text {pro. }}$ | Tawa's p | 71.2 | Zarac cl |  |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| Veragua pr 270,748 | Utica ai | 345 | Prince William i 609 | Yedzo i | 129 | Zealand, New | . 609 |
| Verd i & cs $3,24,228$, | Vulcan's i | 43,274 | Without Ground i 40 | Yellez : | 337 | Zeb pr | 349 |
| $269.386,405,739$ |  | 43,274 | Wolga r 4434 | Yerallave cit 5 | 524.535 | Zegreg | 351 |
| ufaran: 348 | W | - | Wyamaffes $t$. 710 | Yeídecawn : | 430 | Zeilon i 22,5 | 52,214,277 |
| Vinj-rom 5 - 184 |  |  |  | Yapacha | 806 | Zembla Nova | 553,6131 |
| S. Vincent i 34,255,27t, | Wagara pr | 390 | X |  |  |  | 615 |
| $696,747$ | Walkajet pr | 390 |  | 2 |  | Zenan $\boldsymbol{r}$ | 103,104. |
| Virginia 815,848 | Warativa r | 710 | Xael ba \& $\hat{i}$, 81,236 |  |  | Zemat p | 307 |
| Virgins ca | Wariaw a | 90 | Xemina-feque fir 125 | Zagathas $\mathrm{E}^{\prime}$ | 435 | Zevenah ij |  |
| -i 270,690,819 | Warmoot 1 | - 427 | Xicalamot $\quad 272$ | Zaham pr | 349 | Zevil | 340 |
| ulockes $p$ 428 | Warer i | 40 | Ximo i 123 | Zalag m | 395 | Ziuria 6 | $\bigcirc 434$ |
| ulpaze | Wayanaffes p | 706. | Xualla pr 807 | Zama si | 348 | Ziz r | 4,315,334 |
| umen-Genuabo ai 338 | Waymoris $P$. | 705 |  | Zamel i | 15 | Zocatora i $$$ | 80,101,143, |
| Uniry $6: 42$ | Waycaquazes $p$ | 706 | $X$ | Zamba br | 270 |  | 270,409 |
|  | Weibegac b | 619 |  | Zanagha d | 347 | 2010 - | 17 |
| Volga r 434,503,520,542 | Werowocomoco | - 832 | Yadock r -325 | Zaufeira k | 351 | Zorobua ; | 18 |
| Vologhdat: 514,528 | Whice ca | 349 | Yaick r $\quad 519$ | Zangaran $f$ | 337 | Zulvan i | 15 |
| Uravor $\quad 716$ | Whong | 433 | Yaio's r or 71.8 | Zanguebar 680 | 0.10. | Zopon ai | 96 |
| Uraba Gulph .. 270 | Wiapatro ${ }^{\text {Wijer }}$ S | 742 | Xarchawn, or Yarmancan | Zanhagi P | 307 | Zubut i | 6 |
| Uraritan $i$ 7 710 | Wijumbir | 714 | ci $\quad \therefore .89$ | Zapateca 6 | 272 |  |  |
| Lurbs 6 i , 242 | Wiche 2 | $\therefore 633$ | Xavate : 522 | Zachon mb | 332,335 |  |  |

A N

I N D E X

$O F$

Perfons, Things, &rc. containd in the Firf Volume of Navigantium atque Itinerantium Bibliotheca.

A

ABba, a God worhipped by the Betbuans, $\times 5$ Abrabam, the Moors Notions, and Opinions about him, 326 Ada, a deformed Indien Idol, 208 Addas, a poifonousfisith, 36 s Adimmane, a Beade ilke a Ram, wich long dangling Ears, of whofe Milk Cheefe is made, 359
Adultery, fiverelv punnifhed, $220,775,859$ - By Deach ar fzox, 6y-Ar Patan, 220 - Parents to execuice clie Offenders, 221 - By curcing off the Ear; 707

Agates, a Minc of them, 90
Age, in the Ifles of Banda, they frequentIv live 120 Years, 213 - A Man 300 Xears old, and his Son 250, 810
Agreement, beiween the Kings of Spain ged Portugal, abont the new Difcoreries of the World, 8
Air, unhealchy, $5 \pi$ - Of Spitzburgen, 620 - Of Guiana, 788 - Of the spanigh Wesi-Indies, $75^{1}$
Alas, a Roor good for Food, 260
Albion Nova dificorered, and the Richnels of the Soil, 22
Albuquerques and Continiuss fight with the People of Calicut, is $\rightarrow$ He takes Goa, Ormus, and Malacca, 11,12
Alcatra, a Sea Fowl, $2 \hat{2} 9$
Alcarteries, a Sea-Hawk, 55 - Good Mear; ibiu.
Aloran, when publified, $444^{-}$- By whom compored, 454 - The Name and Subject of is 5 Dactrine delivered in is abour Chrift, ibid. - The Eight Commandmenss prefcribed in it, $l b$. - The Paradoxes of it, 256
Alban, a Tree, whore Leaves being dried and powered, dye a Reddilh Xellow; 38 : Alerbes, a fort of Thieves, 368
Aluigator, many in Garges, 90 - The Siones of them as fweet as Musk, 706
Almonds, ufed for Money, 209,280
Aloes, how made, and of what, 80, $81^{\circ}$ Where produced, 1 19,409
rox - The Plants, 233
Alonfo Pincom, firt dilcovered Eififaniola, 5 Alpbonfus VI. cook Toledo from the Moors, 2 Alivareq Capralis, difcovered Brafin, 20
Amadmagda, an Herb that cements broken Bones, 391
Amber, of feveral forta, and how it is to . be known, 132 - Whence it is to be had, 281. - What it is, 318 - The Beff, 464
Ambergreafe, where it is found, 81,150 , - 708,850-Moft plentiful wherés.268, 387
Anochi, delperace Soldiers, 277
Angelize, a Wood harder chan Iron, 286
Anike, a Seed ufeful for dying Cloth; 26
Amane, an excellent Froic in India, 169, 285
Ant, Ants tromblefone, 284 . ${ }^{2}$ Antboung Pigeforta, 15,17
Antimony plentifal in Mount Alles, 360

- Pusified with Sulphur, lbid.

Antilopes; where found 170

Antonio di Nolle; a Gerioefe, difcovers Cape Verde, and the Illes of Mayos, Pbilip and fago, 3 Anronius Abreus difcovered the Molucca's, fava, Amborna, and Banda, 12.
Ape, apes, one workipped, 281 - Theit Food and Cunning 359 - Their Malice and Activity, - Eafily camed, 362,391 Apbiaprappen, à very large Bird, $3^{87}$
Aquiry, a Subftance like Coral, ufed to make sugar, 258
Aqueducts, very noble onesat Moroceo, $3=3$, ${ }^{3} 325$
Arabs, Mafters of Zocorora, 104 - Cunning Robbers, 207
Arace, the Nuts phyfical, yet chewed with Betel, $\times 5,49,408$ - The Tres, 458 Arack, an bos Drink, 152
Arbor de Rays, defcribed, 257
Arkor Trijtc, that blows only in the Night, 286
Arenals, or Storms of Sand, $3 \pi$
Armenians, Cbrifitans, their Doctrines and Opinions, 376,43I Arms of the Brafilians, 736 Armour, where made and fold, 98 - O
the Arabians, 341
Army, one ef 500000 Men, 86
Arcificers, the beft fort in India, 173
Arverbari's, the Uuicorn, 392
Afs; Affes ranght to dance, 354 - Wild ones, 359 -Sea Afs, $3^{6 x}$ - The ChriAtians confined to ride on Affes in Egypr, 375
Afinoc, an Herb that fecures againt Poirom, 39x
Afa.fastide where che beft is to be had, $4 \times 7$ Aftrclogers confulced in all Matters of Importance, 178
Aftrology much profeffed in Indiz; 178 By the Maldivints, 259 - Muchi efteem. ed, 265
Aftronomy, a School erected for it in Pertz gal, 2 - Firft ufed in Navigation, 4 Axuyline's River in S. Lswrence Ine, how firft difcovered, 225
Asagayes, a fort of Indian Darts, 257

B

Babel, the Tower in Ruines, 207 Baboons, and Monkeys very large, 230 Baccbus his Feafts celebrated in the Indics, ${ }^{6} 6$
Baffata's, 2 rich Cloch made at Barocbe, 90 Balm, the Tree, and feveral forts of ir, 758 Balucbes; a brave and warlike People, 168
Bamichs, who they are, 151,490 - Their Supectition in not killing any living Creatures, and paying a Tribate to fave their Lives, 144,283 - Great Merchants, Ibid. 412 - Their Religion, 412, 427 Trees, 1 bid.

Bamrazas, $7^{8}$

Banque, or Guinnea Pepper, Ibido
Baptifm, many Kings and Lords baptized in the Wed-hadies, 273 - How admini:ftred by the Porsuguefe at Goa, 273 And in Ruffon 547
Batb; Baths, $43^{2}$ - Hot ones in Mount Tauras, 435 - At Mavis. 716 - At Mexiro, $753=$ Of the incia's in the

Wes. $\mathrm{Kndites}, 753$ - At Guadalupa, 819 Ex5, Bats as biy as Ravens, 260 - As Eagles, 16 - As Hens, 23 - Like a Squirrel, and as biz as an Hare, 56 Squirrel, and as big as an trare,
As blg as a Coney, and headed like a As blg as a Coney, and headed like a Fonx, 77 - $A$ croublefome Annoyanise, 94 , Fox, 77 - A croublefome Annoyancs,? 4 234
Beans, paifonous; 77
Bears, defrribed, 238 - Sea-Brars, $18 \mathrm{~B} \%$. - Oas kill'd, whole skin was Thirteen Foot long, 553 - That eat Ancs, cilled Ant-Bears, 703
Leard, Beards, feveral forts, and why wotn 260 - Odious, and cherefute distroyed in Prgu, 211
Bebimis, an Herb that fatens Catile foon, 335
E llouga, 2 Fifh live Eils long, 54
E:/us ils Temple ac Eibylon, 437
Benjumin, how many forts of it, and which is the beft, $132,133,250,464,85 \pi-$ Where molt plenciful, $150,281,287$ Betel defcribed, and the sonttant urcof ic, 264, 286
Bevers, where plentiful, 8 is Berour Stones, che feveral kinds which is beft, and how known, 132 - Where to be had, $132,751-17 \mathrm{C}, 464$
Bigamy allowed, 407
Birds of God, or paradice, 44,18-One Two thl hight, and Three trom the Tip of the extended Wings, 35 - Some that bark like Doge, 37 - All whitc, wich Two leachers only on the Tail, 55 - The forts in Guiana, 717 - in Brafil $_{2} 727$ In the Spanibh wr Indies, $76 x$
Clood, Peace and Friendilhip made and confirmed by thedding it, 16,17 - Shed in Devocion, 91
Blood.ftone, a wonderful Effect of $i 5_{2} 452$ Bombar: Trees, 55
Bone, chat of the Beaft Cabis, keeps Wounds from bleeding, 12
Sompes, their'Ars to forsell Thiogs, 13 I Sorneo, the Product of 15 , the King, and Cuftoms ufed there, $x 7$
Bows much ufed, $20-$ Where the beft are made, 167
Bramens, their Superfticions about their Food, $11_{4}$ - Their Waflings, and WorIhip, 90,208,216-Pray and eat naked, 208,280 - Some marry, others not, 210 - Their Wives buried alive with them, 217 - The Efteem they are in, 293 Their Doatrine and Opinions, 412
Brinby, a Grain like RapeSeed, 260
Brokers ufed in Tradiog at $P \in g^{n}, 27^{8}$
Buffalo, the Dercription of it, 170
Buildings in India, 177
Ball, the Popes to grant America to the King of Spain, in Lariin and Englijh, 6,7 Burning the Dead; $6,253,413$-ured always by the Indian Hinndo's, 176 - Wives with their dead Hufbands, and the Reafons of it, 1 bid.
Butter, none made in fapan, 126

Cables made in great Plenty in the Ifle PxRA, 26

$T$ C $I N D E X$.

Cubrite's, or gity heir Filen dried, ig - Very larester

Carac's, a fruithkizetmonds, which ferves fer Meat and Morrey, 26
Caicroch, a croublefome Hie, as well dead as alive, 457
C. ${ }^{\text {fifiares, }}$ their Cuftoms, 283 Catcons, a truit, 285 Cuiamburo, a Sweet wood, 457
cimbe, a dying Wood; 77
Cumels, their llavift Nature, 170 - Their fakeal kinds, 258 - Their Ructing Lovere Singing, and their Dancing, 399 Ridilled by Cold, 361 - Their urefur Riding upon, 367
Camelions, the ir Nature, and Qualities, 50 , 375, - Eat Flies, 79,375 -And Sun beams, 300 - Kill Serpents with their Spirtle, lbid. - Eac beetles, 407 Camsfacbacery, a ftrangé Fruit, 87.
Camphire, what it is, in - where produced in greateft Plenty, 223,290 - The beft, Bix. 281
Canara's, their Cuftoms, 283
Canary Illes, firft difcovered by the Emglifh, 3
Canaryns, theircuftoms, 283
Candou, 2 Tree whole Wood is.lighter than Cork, 260,361
Canou's of a ftrange fort, 22,27
Cxrpo fonto, a Vapour prefaging a Storm, 59 Carasofmos, 9 Jarkarian Drink, 101
Carving, che beft, 89
Cuhuncle, a Trange Beaft, 78
Cundamomum, on indim Spice, 256
Cusfix, the Tree and bruir, 300
adilles, great ones in fypzr, 200
Cufiwarp, a great Bird, whote Flefh sares clie Biting of Serpencs, 372
Cutbes, in the Maldives, 256
Cusars, what it is, and how it is made, $54^{2}$ Cinats, fine proved to be falfe, 226
Clidrter, one gramteitby $P$. and $M$. to the Ruffimerchants, to eftablith their Trade, 410
Cheere plentiful in Fapxn; 126
Cbichulf, a Deity ot the Patagons, 14
Cheating, natural to the Eaterm People, $C_{4}$
Cuickens hatched in Orens, and fold by che Buthel, 355
Children, one of the kings of Gilobo had 6on, anoiher 650, 18
Chriltianity planted in the II: zubur, 16 Pura, 26 - Banifhed fapan, 136,137 lerfecuted in Cbina, 274 - Rlanted in Congo, 259 - In Z:iton, 459 - Countenanced by the Mogul, 174 - permitted. to be planted in India, 175 - And in Vir. $\operatorname{sinis}, 839-\ln \mathrm{A} 4 \mathrm{flx}_{2}, 548$ Chritians, where, 104,277 - The Abexins, a fort of them, 283 - Omar rows to exfirpate chem, 444 - Of S. Tbomas, 459. Gici, a choice Liquor, 30
-ircumcifion, by whom afed, 28;233,261 - At Seren Days old, 329 - Ar Seven Years odd, 261 - Uled with Baptifm, 413 -at Thirteen Xears old, 453.707 - Oi Females, 261, 355,453 - Of the King of Buntam, and the Ceremonies ured as. it, $7_{2}$
Citern, a mighty large one at Morecce, 323 i-ron-Trees, 228
Civer, the Cars, 80,3 12,409-Made tame, 359 - Where che belt is had, and how known, 132,464 - Where moft plentiful, 35 s
Clersy men much refpested in Cubul, 36
Cloth made of a Grais callod Turva, 209 -- Of Cambrya, 89

Cloaths. See Habit.
Cloves, the Trees, 17 - How they grow, bid. - Huve exchanged; 18 - What Quantities produced in the Moltecra's, 122, $2: 36,463$
Coiv, the Tree and fruit defcribed, is, : 9,408 - A widd furt 79. - Mieful for all Things, 50,260 - An lland full of thele Trees, 40,56 - The Milk of it a Drink, 150 - Moft plencifil and moft uled in the Maldives, 260
Ccabinite, an Infeat, 759
Cobo, ur Coffee; a black Driak, 3 s - The Origital and ure of it, 445
Coins of Perfis, 148-Sumatra, 52 - Su- $^{2}$ rati 154 - Bansame 132 - Indis, 172 4:1 - Barampore, 208 - Pegu, 212 Maldiver, 268 - Ticom, 238-Gold only in Grimes, $c. 3co - Of Sheils, 40\%

Colloftrs, one in Egypt; 379 -Of Rbocles demolifhed, 445
Commodities moat raleable at Banfam, 133
Timon, and the. rines of Banda, xbid. - At Porta Rica, 691 - About Re Plata, 695 Compafs, when found out firf, 1 -ulied by the Moors, Concys Mors, 9
Concys a Plague in the Mifdera's, 2 - A Atrange fort of them, brit ufeful, 22
Copper Mines, 812
Copti, or Chriftians of Eggit defcribed, 373 Cormorants, 229
Corn, Places of Trade for it in India, 207 Corimbyns, heir Cuftoms, 2.83 Coflus, where found; is:
Cofmos, the Tariars Drink, sca Cotton $\cdot$ Trees, $206,77,80$ - The Wool and Xarn where to be had, 133 - The beft 381 -T The Profir of them in India, $166^{\circ}$ Cloathis made offit: 208,209 - The fineft, 210
Cooks Men, bated in the Maldives, 264 ? Coral, Plenty of is, where found, 568,467 - - How and where it grows, tb.

Coailian firft fent into - Etbiopia, 3-His Maps of fome Parts of Afric, and Indiz, .dia. 8
Cows worlhipped, $280,28 \mathrm{I}, 413,460-$ Not caten, 282 - Accounted holy, 283 The Cow fifh, 408,748
Crab-fifh, a great fort of them, called $\mathrm{C}_{2}$ couns, 25 - So big as to kill Men with their Claws, 285 - A fort chat burrow like Coneys, 23 .
Crcats, or Nomedes, 433
Crocadiles, young ones caken, 23 - A De. fence at $P$ egu, 210 - The Defcription of them, 360,462 - An Abundance of chem, 709 - Musk taken out of their Cods, $1 \mathrm{D}^{\circ}$, Crofs, lignof if ufed by the Heathens, 15 Crows yery bold and troublefome in the Maldives, 260 - And india, $28{ }_{4}$
Crowns of Kings made of Feachers, 22,42 Crucifying, a Punifhmenc in Japan, 128 Curiedin, an Epidemical Difeale; chat comes once in Ten Years, 265
Cuftoms as Berfam, 133 - In Yirginia, $\delta_{44}$ Cutcle-fing gives Light in a dark Night, 119

D

Dabis, an Idol in Fappr, 126
$D_{1}$ but, a Beaft with Legs and Feer like a Man, 359 - Rulls up the Corps of the Dead out of the Ground, 362
Dant, a [wift Beaft, 259 - Good Food, 351 Dates, the Harveft for them, how ordersd, and bow chey are packedup, Wine bow made of them, $80-A$ wild fort plenti ful in india, 90 - Bread made of them, 114 - Male and Female, 347 - The beft fort, $34^{8}$
Debts, $D=b$ brors, how paid if the Debtor be colvent, and if not, how punifhed, 179 At Acbcn, $\mathrm{A}\{\mathrm{I}$
Dccingns, their Cuftoms, 283
Delingege, a fort of Carriage, 210
Devil, bow he appears to the barbarous mm dians, 64 - His fuppofed Power, $26_{5}$ Adored by Negro's, 387
Diamonds of che Old Kock; 91 - At bimiza and Crincata, 32 - Of the Old Rock; $; 3$ 276 - A Trade for them, where, 100 207 - Where are the beft and moli plentiful, $\times 34,207$ - At Agra, 98 - As Suscadance, 100 - Of the Niew Warer, $213,28 \pi$ - Of the Old Warer, 280 Where found, $28:$ - The Mines or them at Golconda defcribed, 423 - Thate of Carzada, 812
Diac, Burrbolomets, difcovers the Crofs.Iffac and Cape of Good: Hope, 3
Diego Caci difcovered Comgo, Ib
Dicgo Deas ambuin builds the Caftle of $s$. George del Mina, in Guinnes Diet in India, 176 - Rules about eating it, 264
Difcipline of Soldiers in Fapmos:125
Difeares in Africa, 313
Divorce frequenr, $263_{3}$ - And on what Conditions, 16 . Jee Marriage and Wife.

- Dobis, an huge faponefa Idol, 126
- Doftrinesat ehe Aby frme Chriftians, 398 On the Rullarar Charch, 545-Ot the EngI醒 Cinurch approved in Rufin, $53^{\circ}$
Dodo, a great Bitird:

Dogs that cann'c bark, 39-Hazed in the Maldives, 260
Dogonne, a famous. Temple in Pegu, 212 Dolphins, their Bikneis, ther love of Men, 407 - Liece zeo Years, dbad. - Folluw Snips, 7シ9
Donatimn of Afrisi ant the Esit-indics to che nortuguff, by the Pupes, ; Doven, their Feathers ufed furmak Cromas:
kept by Nobles, 42. - Honoured in M:mory of Semirames . 43 s Dragons, is Mount Atles very pojfurious, - 300

Dromedaries defribed, and their Lare, ino Drugs in Gusma, 717 - In the W'cfolmdics, 759
Dxb, a Creature like a-Lizzard, eaten by the Arabisns, 360
Quelling and Blood hed how punibed in Fapan, $\times 24$
Dargoen, the beft fort of Fruit, 286
Datroa, a flupifying Herb, lbidu.
Dutct, their Qnarrels with the Englifh in Foreign Parrs, $73,75,183,195-1$ heir Defamation of the Eng $/$ /h, 71 - Their Cruelty to the Englifh, 198-A Delence of their Actions to the Englifh, and Animaduerfions on it, 199, 202 - Pretend to have a King, 75 - Oppore the Eng. lifh at $B$ ands, $3_{2}$ - Befiege Malacta, and barn the Portigute Ships, 8 ; - Maflers of $B$ eng ais, and Banda, 99 - Ger hice Mir Iuccais, butare fooncxpelled, 122 - Re. Eaccan s, but are looacxpelled, 122 - ReGdin Chem, Call themfotegte eal underhand, 124 Feared and hated on the Indies and Cbi: Feared and hated wi the Indies and $C$ bi: na, 130 - Englifh killed on their Accouns in Caprbin-ckima, Ib. - Accempt to defroy the Einglifh in Fxpan, 137 - Sxied by the Engitib at Macaldar, yee repure hat they were betrajed by them, 190 Quaree with the Englib atout che Illes of Banda, 193 - Cruetry to the Englifhat centore, lige - Their suicel's at Bunser Fssarra, ribsm, Cytais and Maders alo - Their Ruine plocted by the Porruguefe, 215 - Get Ambognd, 223 - Build atorc as Eands, lb. - Puilon the Engijh and Indanns, 237 - Cruelcy to the French, 247 - Villingy to the Englifh in Yiginis, S35

E

(agle- Fifh, its ftrange Nature", 467
Eagles carch Foxes and Wulves, 260 - Engender Dragons on the She-Wolve, 15 th Ears, fome a span broad, 209 - A broed one made a Badge of Honour, 214
Earthquakes, one that fhaked the ships in a decp Sea, 44-Ac Achen, 241-G:car ones at Lar, 427 - Jix Hundred Citic and villages demolifined by one, 445 In Petr and Blaxico, 754
Eeces, Fonguins, very refrefhing, $30-$ Eggs; Fonguins, very refreming, $30-$ Elies, where found, 170

Elephants in Indts telcribed, 170 - White ones, their Rarty, 210-A King takirs his litie from them, 12ta. 277 - hach waes, their bignefs, 170,214 - The Way of caking the wild ones, ant cam | 5 |
| :---: | chem, 16 . - Smail in Z-ilan, yet the bett, 214,225 - Tueir Teachablenefs and ule inwar, 252 - One of 14 Foor bigh, 64 - A.Trade for their Teeth, 79, 207 - Taught to bow, 160 - Hourss tocame them in 210 - bred for War bid Nine Cubies high, 212 - Carry Towers on their Backs, 1 bid. - Caught oy tighting, 22 K , - Their Helh earen, 2261 their Teect, where fold fold, lbid . The King of Acbens, 252. - Their Senie of Punifhment, bidt. - How they fighe and are taken, 278353 - Their. Bigneis and swiftaefs, 362 - Their Horas, nor Tecth, are the lvory, 391 - The white fort wormipped, 462 - Some $x$ s, and others 24 tout high, lbid.

Embroidery, 89, 90
Emeralds, one as big as a Man's Hand, 272 - 1 liency of $\mathrm{k} \mathrm{km}, 750$ - The beft, 16. 756 - The Differences between them, 1h. - A preac one worhipped, 886 Emperor of fapin, his rower, Policy and K=v:n

The $I N D E X$ ．

Englifh，help the spaniards againft the Mors， 2
Enterdinment，the Turkif）Mannef， 128
Eibac， 2 Shrub that bears Fruic like a Ca－ per， 80
Eunuchs，the Antinuity and ure of them in Perfia， 453
Eupborbium，what it is，and how made， 350 Eurocrlydm，an Hurrican mention＇d in the ARs， 41 ：
Excommunication ured in the Matdives， 266 Executions of Malefactors how yertiorm＇d in キxpan， 129

F

Factories，fettled by the Englifh in the Easfo Indies， 154 －Dy the Rortuguefe on the Cualts， 155 —At Bantam， 07.83 －At Foun e8－As Puloppay， 82 －Of the Dafcb，110－－By the Englifhat Suctada－ nea in Bormeo，lia－Ac Patan，Ibid．－ At Mas，$f_{2 r}$, 112； 113 －Ar Farando， 124 －At fapan， 128 －At Siam，Ibid． In Mogul＇s Dominions，and the Articles of the Sertement， $138^{\circ}$－Ac Calicut
 Brampore， 156 －At Baroch， 159 －At facate 183 －Of the Dutch it $A m$ boyns and Banda， $2 \times \mathrm{S}^{-}$－Ar Termate，Ib －At于apan，293－At famby for Englifh， Dutcb，and Portuguefe， 250
Tafts on the Day their Fathers and Mothers die in 于2pan，206－Upon the Account of the Womens Mcn／lrues， 262 －
Fealls óbierved in India，28n－at baly， 217 －On che Setenth Daf， $16 i d$, －in the Maldives，261－At the Tombs of the Dead in 于apan，130，262－On the Firft 45 th and 2 Sth Day of the Moon， 205－By the Mabometans； 455 －Brafi－ liaks， 734 －And Mexigans， 765
Fermander D：rys difcovered Cape．Verde， 3
Fertinand Gomer difovered Mina and Cape s．Cazberine，Ibsa．
Fig，Figs plentiful，of divers forcs，and mach caten in maia；their Tree and Growth， 285 391．See Fruit Fight，nghting at Sea between the Portu－ gucfe and Englifb at farfuč， 203 －Of Eicphants；Rans and Bufties，a Sport wied in the Court of Asbet， 139
Figo，a fort of Fruit， 22
Firc ufed as a gencral Medicine， 265 －Wor－ thipped by the Perfecs， 414,415
Firment the Mogul＇s $\therefore$ ）the Englifh to grant them a Trad，in his Dominions， ${ }_{13}{ }^{3}, 139$－The King of Perfia＇s for the fame End， 148 －The Scrivañ＇s of Mobz， 188 －The bafo．of sinams， －${ }^{2}$ id
Filh，a ftrange fort with kong Horns，that pierce Ships， 229 －In the Eigure of a Man， 257 －With an Head like an Hog， with Two Horps，and all Bone， 17 － Eaten ftioking 25 －In the Shape of a Eatsafiker＇s Kife 37 －With Gold Shoc－maker＇s Knife， 37 －With Gold Rings in their Snouts， 89 －Like a bald Head， 229 －White and round like a Tallow Candle，1b．－Flying－Filh plen－ riful abour the Equanoatial Line， $25^{8}$ －Made Food for Cattle， 270 －A mon－ frous fort，$=85$－Like a Cow， 408 － With a Sting， 833 －The feveral forts abour Spiszbargex，627，632－Guiare，717 －Brafii 727 －Bermeder， 350 －New foundiand， 862
Fibling，grod near Fernand＇s Ine， 39 －Vie－ sy croubleforne，257－In general ure 265－The Tackle for it， 16 id．
Flies a plague，40－That thine like Fire，
Floods in the Indies，112； 113
Flying－Fifh，a Prey boch in the Water and Air， 55 －Defcribed， 410
Aornication，allow＇dat Patause， 22 I－Com－

 | mon |
| :--- |
| 833 |

Fortune－tellers，many at Fer； 329
Fountains，one that is ：weet， 11 －One that is falt one Month in the Year 433
Cowls with Horns，that deftroy：Whales， 16 －Several Sort in Soldaris， $55-$ porto Rico， 692 －Brafil， 727 －Spa－ nifh Wast．Indies， $7^{61}$－Vurginia， 843 － Bermudas， 850
Erankincenfe whate produced，236－And plentifull，Ibid， 287
French－Pox，where ufual，18， 23 －How cured， 1 bid．
Froafts，great ones in Ruflia，555，－ Break Bartels with Iron hoops，lbid．－ Make beer inlipid， 590 －Freeze Sack and Vinegar， 601 －Clocks， 602 － The Ground Ten Foot deep，loid．
Fruic，which makes fuch as egt is mad， 220 －The Diverfity at＂Porso Rico， 692 －Guiana， 717 －Brafil，722， 723 －The Ines of St．Ann， 740 － Arawca， 744 －The Spanifo Weal．In． dies， 757 －A poifonous Sorr， 762 － In Virginia， 842 －In Bermudas， 852 － In New．Found land， 861
Funcrals，among the Mabomestens，and Hin－ do＇s in．India，176， 209 －At Pcgu， 213 －In the Maldives， 263 －A Feaft at them，Ibid．－Mabomerans ne－ ver bury in their Mofqnes，176－A－ ver bary be Brafilians， $73^{2}$－Mexicans， 766 －In Canada，8x．a－Among the 766 －In Canada， 899
Furs，in Ruflia， 542

G

Galleys，the King of Acbern＇s of a large Size， $25^{2}$
Galls，where they grow， 526
Ganges，the biggeft River in India，has Eighteen Branches，and receives Thirty Rivers into it，breeds vaft Numbers of Alligators， 90 －Its Water is facred， 209
Gardens in India，their Delight and ufe， 177
Gerro，a Tree that diffils Water to plen－ tifully，as to rapply the Teople near it， 405
Gazels，a timorous Creatare，like a Fellow－ Deer， 30 x
Giagre， 2 fort of Sugar， 27.6
Giants，in Brafil， $13,30,33,34-\mathrm{At}$ Cape Guardafui， 235 － $\boldsymbol{n c}$ ．Dois $D_{5}$ fire， 24,707
Giliareses，dicorer＇d bejond Cape Baja－ dore； 3
Gindus，a Fruit of a grateful Tafte 106
Ginger，where found，18，169， 280 － where the beft is，and how it grows， 286
Giraffa，a wild Beaft，that aroids all Com－ pany， 358
GOD，the Mexicens Notions of．Him， 763 －As allo the Perurims， 772 －And in Neve Englatd， 857
Gold，a rare Frait， 77
Gold，whete it is foand，15，38，25，27， 209 －In I，umps，Th－Nor allow d to be ufed in Oinines， 264 －Of Baldivia， $2 \pi$－Exchanged tor Silver， 28 －Bef at Porama Tbid．－In Cbili，31－A Trade for it； 78 －Vaft Plenty of it， 91，706，707－The fineft，152－Out of a River， 213 －In difers parts of Sumatra， $250-$ Tiber Gold， 349 －In Porso Rico，691－Arawera， 744 －Ve－ ragan， 748 －In the Spraib Weet－Indies， 754 －Not valued，706，707－A mighty Chain of is； 785 －Plenty at Cale， 806
Gonfateo 7arco Owner of a Part of the Medera＇s，called Fxrsiale， 2
Goofe，Geefe，red ones， 353
Goremment，the Form of it in Pera under the Spaniards， 35 －In India， 179 －In the Maldives， 266 －In Barbery， 366 － Of the $\Delta b b_{i}$ fowes， 393 －Of Ruffis；543－ Among the Mexicans， 767 －Perruians， 776 －Virginians，848－In Nem Emg． 7 land， 858
Gopernours good ones how hocoured by the Mogal． 179 －Bad ones how．pu－ the Mogril，
Grain；what Sorts in Endig， $160-\mathrm{Ia}$ ． merisa； 757

Grant，Queen Elizabeib＇s to the Merchant－ Adveritures for a Trade in the Eall－ indies， 57
Grigris，an Idol； 228
Gusbex，or wild Cow，good Food，36：
Guarel，a poifonuns Creasure，eaten．by the Arabians， 360
Guiney Pepper defaribed，77－Hens， $7^{3}$
Gun，where is the bef，4，117，i70－ Arabick， 107
Gumlack，where found，91， 170
Gans，mach defired by the King of Que－ da， 245

H

Habits，in India， 209 － 172 －In Frus， 69－In the Maldives， $2 \sigma_{3}, 264$－Wo mens limited by Law， 211 －Licences to wear fine ones， 264 －Of the wea． Indians，843， 859
Hair，how worn by the Maldivans，259－ Men all over hairy，lbid．－Very long worn by the Women in the llles of the Ladrones， 14
Hand－Worms，very tronblefome， 255
Harveft，when in India， 109 －Two or Three times in a Year in Habaflia，395 －Two in a Year at Mafulipafnn， 460
Hawis，white ones exceltent， 360 －Plen－ ciful， 467 ，tanghs to catch wild Hories， ＇517， $54^{2}$
Hermites，in Africa，317， 339
Herbs，in Spirtburgem 6xy， 621 －In Guiana， 717 －In Brafi， 721 －In Virginin， 843 －In Nem．fourd－land， 85 Germodatils delcribed， 87
Hides，from Rufia，viz．Buff and Cow 542－From Parto Rice，69x
Hindo＇s，or Heachen Indians， 173
Hogs，wild ones in Madagafar， 407
Honcy plenty of it in $R 4 \sqrt{i z}, 542$
Honour，the lereral badges ol it，wiz． The Cryie at Sumatra， 50 －The Robe and Calico－Tuck at $A c b e n, 64$－The Crimfon Yeit and Silver ac Muba，no2－ Titles of is in india， 1.80
Homs，worn by Priefts， 64 －Found in Ranicband Caftle，fuppoled to be the true unicorn， 90 －Grow in the Earth after cut off from the Beaft＇s Head， 286 －Worn as an Omament by the Virginian Maids， 843
Horfes，of an excellent Breed， 91 －Theis ure in India， 170 －Multitudes of them－ in Muscovy and Tartary， $2 i 0$－Arabian， and wild， 359 －The Sea－Horfe，1bid 360 －Barbary ones，and wild， $36 x$－ Beft Perfian and Arabian，where， 427 － Eaten by the Tariars， 516
Horpitals for Birds and Biafts， 280 －No－ ble ones af Fer， 326
Houses，their kalhion and Fumitare in India， x 77 －One as big as a Town， 694
Eumumocks， $8 \mathrm{I}, 82$
Byina，is Greedinets， 391
Hydra＇s，found in the Lybian Defarts，theis Poifon， 360
Hydri， 2 Sort of venomous Snakes， 392
I
Facca＇s，a Fruit like Chefnnts， 284
Farobites，their Origiaal， 357
Tackels croublefome， 427
fambo，a Fruitripe Four times a Year， 28 ； fangomas，a round Piamb，lbid， Ice all the Year， 2 Mountain of it， $30-$
In the North－Sea， 534 －About Spirt bargen； 620
Ictore ${ }^{2}=003$ ，its Nature， 463
Idols of the Peguans， 712 －Of Bifapour 207 －Of the Banians， 413 －Of a taft Bignefs， 465 －Of the Mexicans， 763 Tealoufic，frequent in Indic， 1.75
Jefuits，their Abufes of the Englifh，I24－
Their Cobege at Meact，128－Their Endeavours to poifon the Englifg， 145 － Xrverisus＇s excellent Preaching in mivia， 174－III Offices at the Mogn＇s Court $174-14$ Ccccccc

The INDEX.

 liow'd ro make Con Cbmis, $13^{6}$-A) Jews in Africa, 331, $33^{8}-\operatorname{In}$ Fidabaffa, 392, 403 - About Muunc Taurus, 435 Jewels, choice and plenciful in zeihm, 220 in Where the beft are to be had in all Parts of the World, 464 Images pulld down by the indisns, 3 rGreat Variety of them among the indians, $2 c 8$ - Some like Devils wor. thipped, 228 - Of Lumps of biack tarth worthipped, 55 !
Jtase's, or Indiam Priefts, their Original and Succellion, 780
Incenfe-Tres, the biggeft fort; 272
India, 2. Trading Company eftablifted for rhofe Parts in England by Putenc, 57 In Hollend, 218 - Dirctions for a Voy. age thither, 224
Intico, deferibed, how it is made, and known to be good, $87,88.98$ - Where plenciful Joid. - Made as Cbikele, buc not fo good as at Bysnat 89 - A coarfe fort, called Cole, $90-$ Markets for it, 98 - In in. dis, 169 - Africs, 347 enns, or Serai's; one chat will hold 2 Theulind Mea, $90-$ Others lefs, lbid. Very plentiful in Perfia, 147 - The Laws of them, ibid. - The nobleft in zerfis, $43^{6}$ - Called Curfamays in Rufis, 516
Indtruments in Navigatión, deceive without Expericace, 79
Intemperance of Samen their Ruin, 152
Jobm, King of $S_{p a i r,}$, took Ceuza from the Moors, 2
Ircin-Rote, an Indian Drink, 96
lling. Glafs, what is is, 2051 lands, fome plealant truiffnl ones, not inthibited, $96,115,123$
Jubz': Kingdom, whers, 348
Jujubes, plentiful where, $34=$
Iulutes, plentitul where, $34:$
 255 - In Indis, 179 - In the Maldives, $265-\operatorname{In} R_{4} \int_{j a} \cdot 545$ k

Kebals, where found, 9.1
Kinps, one refigns has Kingdom to Sir Francis Drake, $\mathrm{an}^{2}$ - Ot Ternate defribed, lbid 23 - His Kingdom, Ibid letty ones of Cbina, 205 - Of Bread, 207.- Of india, 415, 42 x - Of Ormus $4^{26}$ - Of Sckiras, and their Succefion, 429 - The Niames and Succefion of the Rcifinn Kings from Ninorod to Abbas, 4.8

Xnights of Malta, their Original and Inftitucion, $3^{82}$ - Women capable of that Otder, 1 kid.

$$
\mathrm{L}
$$

Cac, a fort of Gum, the Defription of it and how made, 237
Eadrones, the People of certain Ines, with out Goremment, Apparel, Civility; És. 24.

Lake; one that boils, $7 x_{2}$ - A wonderful one at Mexico, 753
Lamps always kept burning at the Sepotchres of the boly Men, among the Ma. bymetarts, i76-And in the indian Temples, 208
Language in India, 178 - In the RLeldives, 261-AtMayels, 541 - Siveral among rhe Mioors, 307 - The Sungai; $350-$ Pervicians, 77
Lart, a rwift Beaft, 259
Laws or Fapan, 324
Leather, and Skits eaten, 14,52
Learoing in Irdis; 178 - Of the Wren In dixprs $777^{8}$
Leopards, their Nature, and Way of ceeching them, 259 .
Leprofie cared by 20 hot River, 15 .
Letters, Queen Elizabetb's: to the King of Acbem, 64 - King of Acber's to Queen Elizabert 6 , 6, Kings of Terpact, Tydore and bantam to King fyames I. 76 - The Grand Seignior's for fofe Trade, 118 The Emperor of fapan's to the King of England, for Settlement of a Trade there, 127 - Old King Forne's to the (ome, 128 - King of Acben's to King Fames I. 140 - King famer's to the Great Mogul, 166 - The Mogur's Anfwex, Ibid. - King of Asbern's. to the King of Frence, 244 Of Confidence, 141 - King Edrozed the Sixth's to the Kings of the North Eaft Parts of the World, 507 - The Emperor of Reffia's to King Edzpard, Ibid, - King rbilip and Queen Mary's to the Emperot of RuJfa, 508 - King of Poland's to Queen Elizsberb, s20-i-Queen Elipabetb's to the Emperor of Ruffra and Soppy, '523
Lignum: Aloes, the beft, where found, and how known, $132,281,287$ - The Value of is in Perfors, 464
Lighes, Three fortunate ones at Sea, cal. led St. Frelen, Sc. Nicholas, and Sr. Clare, 17 - Made.at Sca by the Cartle Fijh, 119
Lightening, which killed the Fowls of the Air, and burat Five Hundred Acres of Ground, 810
Limons, the Juice of them a good Remedy againft the Scurvy; 63 - The Treedercribed, 78 - Woods of chem, 37, 77The beft, 458
Linnen-Cloth, at Lucanow, 90
Kine, the Meridian, fome.Diredions for faiting crofs it, 224
Lions, the Huating of them, 332 - Tame, 1bid. 334 - The craelleft torts, $359-$ A Way to rare them, 361 - Baiting them, 16 id, - Afraid of Fire; $1 b_{i d}$ - The Sea-Lion, $3^{8}$
Liturgy of the Church of Ruffa, 547
Lizzards, large, bur not hurcful, good - Meat, 257,726

Loadftone, its Property and ure,
Locufts, Places infefted with chem, 357, 399 - Their Genexation, 360 - Eacen, 406

M

Mace, it grows with Nutmegs, 28x How it grows, 404
nacbam, an Exigifh Man, firf diforered the Maderias, 2
Mabornet, his Pedigrec and Life, his Alcoran, by whom compored, $454=$ Profe. onted for Innovations in Religion 444 A Magician; 156 - His Denth folem. nized, $26_{2}$ - His Raign;: his Zegyra, when it begins, 444
Mabometens at Borneo, $32 \rightarrow$ At $70 r t a n$, Ibid. - At Sumatra, 5 I $\multimap$ At Moyelo, $116 \rightarrow$ In fordia, $17 \%$ - At Bunda; their Zeal, $218^{\circ}$ - In Madagefoar, $407^{\circ}$ - In Tertary, 434 - Mark'd with an Iron on their Temples and Forehead at Nimgafje, 234
Maleys, who, 238
Melfa (Jo6n) the Inventor of the Compas; 2
Malle-Merves, 2 Fowl, 30
Malebars, their Cuftoms, 283 - The feveral Diftingtions of them; 1bid
Mango's, a Grove of them, 84 - Their Fruit good Food, 159,285
Ramesta, a Japion. Idol, its magnificent Temple, 128
Mames, Medicinal, where is is found 347
Menvearediate, or Binds of Paredice, 464 Manfamallo, a Ernit, 77
Marble, a Monncain of the black Sort, 430
Marriages among the Mabometans in Indis, 175 - Of Children, 16id. 208,407 Af Eiely, 217, At Chas, 250-In the Maldives, 262- In what Degrees prohibited, 263: Among the Hiedo's, or Heathens, 175 - At Goi, 282 - At Fer, 328 - Second difallow'd, 409- Of the Dead; 413 - Among the- Perfees, 45 - Of the Ruffams, 548-Brafilicess,
 People of Curade, 8II

Marquarade, uled by the Faponsfc, 130 Mats; where the fineft, 147
Meafures. See Weights
Mendicants in India, 208
Mcrmaids feen at Sea in reveral Places, 5 465,729,862
Meffiro, the Son of a spiniard by an madian Woman, 26
Mesk, a Tree with Forty kinds of Leaves, like woven Cloth, 273
Memos, a luicious Wine, 84
Miconds, a Tree Twelve Fathom abourt 406
Milk, a Prieft that lives on Womens Milk 32 - Not caten in Japan, 126 - The tood of fome Indians, 209,210-Mares eaten by the Tartars, ${ }^{2} \mathrm{O}$
Minerals in Virginia, 810
Mines. See Silver.
Mira's, where found, $9 t$
Mirabelans, 169
Mogorer, a People, 209
Mogut; his Conqueft of the Indies, Is His kiches and Grandeur, 280,192 His Pedigree, 415,416- His Magazine as Batberport, is6.
Monaftery of Greck Colayers, 37.
Money. Sce Coin
Monkeys troublefome at Combags, som Vic. ry large ones, Very numenous, 257
Monfons, the Laws of dhem, $56,8 \times, 84-$ where they begin, 405
Monsezuma, his excelienc Vertues, Widom and Inftice, 770 - Seized by the Spia niards, 771 - His Leach, upon which follow'd the Conqueft of Mexico by the Spaniards, under Ciortics, 772
Monuments for the Dead, the mof fately Buildings amung the Mabometans, i76 Enbar's, Itid.- The Soldan's, 354
Moon workipped, 694,773 - Pains cauied by is, 739
Moors over-run Spain, 2 - By whom roat ed out again; 15id. - Their Religion. ${ }^{284} 4$-In - Iisyrf, 373
Morfe, or the Sea-Horfe, Plenty or them 2bout Greendard, 583 - Filhing for them, 633
Molques adjoining to the Tombs of the Ms bomerzans, 176
Mochs and Worms "croublefome in Indis, 234
Monntains, à tery high one near the Screights of Magellian, 20 - In India, 209 - By Table. Bay one 350 Foor higia, 230
Mourning in Blue, 175 - To entertain Strangers, 700,7.07
Moufe, Mice, 2 Sort of them whore Iifs is yenomous, 368
Mummies in WEgyt defcribed, 390
Mummy, a precious Liquor; 423
Murder, how punithed as. Cape Afirs
 In the Miflivics, 267 - Ey dic Tertans, 502
Mufa, or Mases, fuppofed to be the forbidden Fruic. 300
Mufick much loved by the frours, 69
Munk, the fevers? Sorse, which is beff, and how if is krown. 122464 - People chat fmell like ir, 78 - Where it is had moft plentifal, $9 x-$ Taken out of the Cods of Crocedils and. Alligators, 706 , 709 - The Cats defcribed, -462 Lotes its Odor, by being kepr with Spices, 130 - Whence is comes to ws , 462
Myrrh, where in grows, 287
N

Naires, $_{2}$ a People, 214
Nairi, a fort of defperate Soldjers, 277
Names ofren alcer'd in Fapan, 206
Nupibei, 43x
Navigation, by whom begun, $2-$ Schools created for the Teaching of it, 1 bid. Some Directions for it in a Voyage to the Euff-indics; 224
Tapbes, Priefts and Iudges in the Mar: Ajues, 266

The $I N \mathcal{D} \underset{Z}{ }$.

Negro's, an handrome Surf, 231 - Thore in Guiney Tink, Ibid. -
Nelpail, a Roor that turns inio Meal, 260 Nephet, a rare Oill, 433
Nerte, 2 Fruit, of which Oil is made, 364
Niffir, a large Fowl in Mount Athes, 360
Newa Moons oliferved by the Maluivans, and parricularly Four, vix. Ramadan in December; Tdu, Mas ridu and Paysacan; in April, 262 Nimrod, Author of Idolatri, 437 - Wor. Mipped under the Name of Sudermin, or Sazurp; Jbid.
Ningim, a rare Rout, 110
Nobilicy of India, $18 u-I_{1}$ Ruflu, cheir Degrees, 544
Noyras, a beaciful Bird that fpeaks like a Parrot, found in the Moluces's, 28.
Nuns among the-Peruvians, 7.34 - Their Works and Offices, lbid.
Nuts, S:a-Nuts as big as a Man's Head, and Phyical, 265
Nutmegs, where chey are to be had, 216 Places moft. famous for them, 36 The Tree defcriped, $281,286,46$ 3 Nyp, $2 n$-excellent Wine, 277.

Oaths adminifted in the MTaldiuts, "by touching the Alkoran, 266
Obel Iksat Babylon, 437
Ogofo-Sbamma's Lulurpation of the Kinguom of Fipan, 135 - His son lofes it, 205
Oil, a Fountain of ir 250 - Black, $43.4 \therefore$ when it rakes Fire nue to be quenched, tbid. - Whence Train Oil is drawn, 542
Okee, an Idol.in Virginis made of Skins, ttuffed wirh Mols, 831 - - Serv'd nor out uf Love, bur Fear, 8,46 Old Man, one worphipped as a God it Fe?, 334 - One 300 Years old, and his Son 250,810
olibanum, 107
Ophir, where it is, 46 x
Opium, how it is made, and where it is had plencifully, 86,99 - Much ured, and why, 454 Orarges, the beft Sorts where they grow $45^{8}$ orankays, Govemours in the Iflcs of Binda, 218
Otmaments of Women at Ormus tery ex. travagant, 207
Oftriches, their Eggs and Nefts, $30-$ Their Nature and Qualities, 360
Oxen with Bunches on their Backs, like Camels, 49,232 - Wild wnes, 349 m Rid upon 2 . Hories, 367 - Pertorm 211 Labours, 411 - Sea-Oxen, 359
Ox-Eye, a Neteor which prefages a Storm, 2.2.1

Oyou, a poifonóns Bcan, 77
Uyftar-Trees, 27,78
Gyeron, certain Carrents pear the Maldives, 259

$\mathbf{P}$

Prgods at Alabaffex 90 - Famous ones in Nirfings, 284 .
Psimanes, a Finh, which breaks Mens Legs and Arms to devour them, 258 Painting, nkilful Artifts at it in India, 1600 in the Mogut's Couatry, Ibid.
Palace, one erected on the Tops of Trees, 36
Painito's defcribed; 77,78 - Plenty of them, and Wine made of their Fruit, Ib. 467
Taims defcribed, their great UCe, 285,372In Bermudas, 849
Pandiare, or Cady, 266
penders, how treated after their Death, 125
Pangouiou; the Governour of puloway 245

Panther-Camel, as big as an Elephanr, and fo call, that a Man cannor reach further than his Knees, 391
Papoos, a ftrange Penple, 43
Papaco s, a Fruic like a MElon, 285
Paradife, where it was, 438 - Mabomer's what, 457-Birds fo called, 464
Paro's, 2 Sort of Boats, 211 parrots, feveral Sorts of them, 727 Some about the Magelin Sereights, 34-Gray, 78 - Very plentiful, 2577719The African, $360^{\circ}$ - The beft, 467

paflde-Eitmming, a beauriful Bird, 406 paffage, feveral Yoyages made to find out 2 Norch.Weft Paflarge. 579,593,610,611 Reafons for the Probability of it, 580 , 6 10,6:6-keafons to make it improbable, 608
Patagoms, a Gianc-like People of America, 13 - A Discription of them in their Food, Cloaths, UF. lbid. 14
Tafans, of Agnans, a barbarous people, $x 47$ Parencs of the King of Erance, to People Canada, 913 - Of King Fimes I.' to plant Firgini, 818 - As alfo 18 or 12 pritate ones for that enc, 840 - King Jumes T. for planting New Scorland; 859 - And of Ncop foundiamd, 860

Paupery, a kind of Peafe-cod, 106
Pearls, where found, $98,99,281$ - About Zcilon, 214 - Rare ones, 17,464 - A bit andround as an Ege,1b.-Dricmt,207-
 214-Fifhing for them, 27.3-In the Spis. nib Wress-Indies, 756 - Taken out of Graves, 807-About Virginia, 317
Pelagius drove the Moors onf of Spain, 2
Penc, a Grain for Bread, 77 - The Plant on which jt grows, 78 penguins, 12,20,30,62 - Their Eggs good Mcac; 30 - The Multitade of them, 94 -Withous Wings, 230,231 - Feather. ed Fifh, lbid. - Abound in the Mal diues ass Their Fleth not fofcly ear en, 405 - The Hanting of them, 742 pepper, forts of it, and how it grows, 13 $5_{1}^{1,28 \pi, 463}$ - How fold at Priaman, 8 : - The Trade for it at Bmatm, 120,132 - Where it is plentiful, $18,5 \pi, 8 \pi, 214$ - The beft, 237,246-Trees, and how to order them, 246,250 - Long, 281,286 - Red, 850

Perfecution ot the Chrifitans in fap,n, 135 137 - Equalling che Primitive, 1 1bid. Paifleclle, Owaer of Porro Santo, 3
Perimal, an Idol worfhipped in the Indies with great Gifts, 281
Perfees, their Religion and Laws, $4 \times 3$
Perfiens, the Succettion of their Kings from Nimrod to Abbes, $43^{\circ}$ - The Derivation of cheir Name, 450 - The Extent of their Empire, $1 b_{0} \rightarrow$ The Revenues of their Kings, $1 b_{\text {. }}$ - The Prefents and Honour paid them, 45 x - - The Nature of the People, their Garments, Learning, Arms, ©c; Ib.
Deftilence, a very raging one, 29
Pepo, what, 26, 27
Phearants, fo called from the Rirer Pbafis, where they are plentifut, 433
Pbyficians in Virginia, 846 pilgrimages to Tombs among the Mabomerens, 29, 104 Pillars; a remarkable one, 90 - Stone ores fer up in remembrance of the firft Dif coverers of Places; 3 -One fer up by Akxander the Great, 'in Memory of his Viaory over Porus, 168
Pines; a famous. Wood of them in fupan 206
Pipi, a Bird that leads Hunters to the wild Beafts, 392
Pitch boiling out of the Earth, 207 - How aled, lb. - - Natural and Artificial, 360 - Where it is moff plentiful, 716 .

Phantan's defribed, 24, 77, 78 - Good Food, 24 - The beff fort of chem, 169 408
Plants, the Senfitire, 6g2 - See mote in Herbs
Plittr, Eprors in them, 129,149

Plays ofed among the favivs, $89-$ aten rando, 130
Ploughing in Ploughing in mais with a Foor ploughte

Poilion, the Art of adminiftring it, $4 k 3$ - No poilonous Creacure in Bermudent 850
Pomberyise where made, 89
Pope, him Grant to the portuguefe of the: Coafts from Cape Bajadore to the Eala - Indies, 3 porpoifes numeraus, 229
Poringuefe, Enemies to the Einglifh, 107 Deftroy the Dutch Fakoriy ac Ambogna, 218 - And ger che Molucsa's, and how, 122 - Their places of Trade in the indies, 155 - Their Caftes, 16. - Their Character, $215=$ Routed from Santam, 1b. 216 - Undermine the. Dutrb, 1bid. - Kill a Erensb Captain and all his Men, $228^{\circ}$ - Tueir Puffeffons in Affick, 367
porane Kings, aud their Reople athercs, $14^{6}$
Prayer much ufed by the Moldivans, who will not cat with lach as oeslect if, 26 s - For the Dead, ib.

Preficr fobn's Kingdom difovered ${ }_{2} 3$-The Extent of it, 409
Printing long in u'c in fugar, 206
Privileges granted the Englijh at Acben, 65 $\therefore$ - In fapant 227 - In Relfia, 503
Privicies, Byths wora on the Mcns, and why, Product of Baratene, 23 - Bf S. Mury. /fe, 25 - Of puintero, Ib. - Of Puno, 26 2 Ois. Zuclent, 29 Of the Ints of Comaro, 50 - Of Fcrnando Lorariba, 49 - Of Sumatra, 51, 249 - Of Lc: runne, 55- Of Sierra Lcomna, 77 Of $\operatorname{Pcg} \mathrm{H}_{2} 212,213$ - Of Rufin, 542 the Spanifh Wefl-indiss, 752 - Of Flo mades, 549
Tralms, linging ufed, 67, 252
Punifmenss of Maletacturs, fereral Ways, in indis, 152 - In Pufta 545
Para, a Graim like Millet in the Maldizes, 260
Pyrates, the Malabars famous, 84 - Of Cambaya, 90
Pramids of EEgtpis, 377, $37^{8-}$ Their - Defcription, when and why they were buits, 75 .
Pyrec; the Temple of Firs, 435

0

Quacumburez, a poifonous Tree, 405 Quarrics in India afford Stone of any big nels, $S 8$
Quesas of rtafinga Burn themfelves with rhe dead Bodics of their Gasin ans, engi Quellar a delicious Fruit in the fratitucs, 260
Qucpde a poifonous Bean, 77
Quicknlver in America, and Spaiky 756 How exrrakted. lbid.

R

Recbama, a moft beantiful Bird, 406
Raja's, an Acconnt of them in $I n d i a, 90$, P1,413 - Raja Raris, the Succeffor of Porus, 156
Rain, exceifive ones, 25 - Stinking ones, 405,68.9 - A Rain-bow in the Night, 410-The Seabow, 621
Ramadan, or Lent, kept in the Muldives, 252
Rapes, how punithed in the Maldives, 267
Rats very toonblefome, where, $170-$ As big as Pigs, 284 - Smell like Miosk, 284
Rebellion, ways toprevent it, 205, 206
Reeds as big as a Man's Leg, fall of whole fome Liquor, 18

Reicionaled in India，1743．75－m the Maldives，26x－In fivs，6y $\rightarrow$ Among lie Africansr 310 －Of the Abybne Cirifians， 397 －In Rufls， 545 in In Guima， 718 Griof the Erafilians， 730 ＾mong thidMexicans，76\％－In Curndi；
8is，－Invirginio， 846
Resbout．See Raia
Rhinoceros deicribed， 170 －．Their Horns Medicinal，Ibid．－As alfo their otiter Parts， 285
Pice，a particular Was of dreffing it， 23 －Plentiful and cheap，8s，133，－Drink made of it， $126,205^{-}$－Dreffed feveral． Ways in the Maidives， 260
Pipplings，where frequent， 117
Kiver，Goidervone，why to called， 3 －A Medicinal one， 89 －Rn bot one， 344 Salt one Month，and no more， 434
Roadi from Yareflame and Mofco in Ru／ta， to Afracan and Hpaban in Perfia；204，205 －Thró reveral Parts of＂Todia，87－Ut Prisman， $225-$ Tccoo，Ibid．－Eugana， 226 －Marrougb，Ib．－Bansam，1b．
Rubies，where foond，280，28
Rue ufed as a Perfume， $37^{6}$
Ruffra， 2 Revolution there， 537 －Defcri－ bed． $54^{2}$
$\therefore$ 준
Sabbaths，none Kept in Japor， 206 －Kept at Baly by the Bramins， 287 －Keptere－ If Day of the Week by feveral Darties of Religion，434；
Sacrifices oftered or Sir Erinris Drakes＂and a Kingdom relhgned ronim，22：－0f
 －Of the Indiang in Nemenglaid， 858 Segi，a Meal made of the Tops of Irees， ～
Ssiling begon in Spain and porzugal， 2 －
Where sit is dangerous－in the Night，
Sils Ameriack，where itmis fond，225，227
Salamaraders，cheir Colduters， 407 gris
Salution，themantar of in in Ardig． 123 176
Sanders，white andred， 18,$183 ; 287$ m
Sandol，white，a Sweer－wood， 28
Sanguelo＇s，a fort of Cbirefe Merchantsz 27 in－Their Skill in Embroidery．Ib．
Sanguis Draronis，where produced，wot， 409
Saragoffa，a Seed－weed，where common， 153，406
Suffuaritio，where plentiful， 750
Saffifres，where it grows 816
Savages，or Maik－eamers at Aronco， 25 － Some toor rt Foot high；33－In Afri E 405 －Of dmerici 820 Scorpions their Stingiog and the Care of 2，i， $16, \times 72-A \operatorname{tand} 3$ 347，436，724
Turivutio an Offiter at fotom，next the Aga，
Sciry
／sea－farkling like Fire，55＝－Red like Blogd， 235 －Black as Trr， 249 －Mad
－d dy and clear at the fame time， 108 － Haring red Sputs in is， 235 －Blacik as Ink，and boiling，259－Yellow，257．－ White as Snow， 409 －Aboat Spitstur $\mathrm{gen}_{3}$ and Hithod， 619 －A Diftemper peculiär to it， $1 b_{\text {．}}$ Ibid．
Scaispiders， $40{ }^{\circ}$
Sea Wolves， $3 \xi^{2 N}$ Seen，a fort that intoricates the Brain if eaten 51 spmpervirum，or the Aloevinatit defribed， 79， 80
mirathis，Queen of Babylom；Her Buildings Conguefts and Reign， 437
Senifive Íce or Plant，17：092
Seols，or Sea．Wolres，delcribed， 12,0 Good Eood，and plentiful，16． 24 －To0
Oily： 50 be a wholefone．Meat， 406 ，

Thofe upoidpotyitin Jne different fromi

sepulctert，toledamonleft are Ecbars，178－ And Erodece Mierdects， 20 indian Saiar 98 serays，or Car cuenferays．See Inms，
Serpents tame and harmiefs， 334 ． ．The Kinds in che Spanijh Indies， 762
Setebars，a Deity of the Paragons， 14
Shark，iss ravenous Nature，and Way of Generation，78，284，407
Sheep，fome as big as Alfes， 21 －A fort with bunch Backs， 34 －Like Camels， 35 －With Tails of Fat of 12 or 14 Pound， 49－Yea， 50 Pound，284，259－S Some that bring forth 3 or 4 lambs at once， 257
Shell－tifh very large， 285 －Delicate Shells －of them fuand， 741
Ships，the Form of the fapamefe Ships，32－ 4how tho Arabians do build theirs， 234 Sbongo：jarmana，King of Frpan， 2 Rebellion againft hims． 205
Sick，bow ufed in India， 209
Sikk；where are the chief Markets for it in Perfia， 205 －The Worms where，and how managed， 434
Silver，Mines of it at Porofis Enip，Cbo－ cola and Cboea in Peru， 35,36 －Plenty of it at redzo，129－At．Sian， 133 － At Potof， 751 －In Peru， $754-$ Qua－ lities of it，and Art ofrefining it chere， 755
Singing，Plabus ufed at Acben，67－By the Chinefe at 于dua， $6 g^{\circ}$ Slaves，the Trade for them， 741
Snakes，a mighty one cherihed； 89 －Ma： ny in thes Sep near the lndian Coaft， $488,4 \mathrm{r} 8,433$－A fort of them ieaten， 701 sion－Several kinds of them in Brafil，as the Giboya，Bell－szake，\＆c． 724－One wormipped， 784
Saake．Weed，a good Antidote againft Poi－ fon， 287
Snow，great ones．in Ruffa， 572 －Makes the Ground fatiand very frotitnil， $1 b_{\text {．}}$－ Fallsgn fane，：594－Exhaled byathe Sun， 604 －Diferent Sorts ofrit， 625
Sodony，ufed moch at Cupul，and a Remedy againft in 28 －Mich qued at $A_{\text {qumar，}}$ 300
Soldan of $\mathcal{E g g e g r y}$ his Power and Autho－ rity 354
Soldiersin India their Weapons：and Dici－ pline， $\mathbf{1 7 8}^{-}$－In Ruflag their Litting Degree and Maintenance， 545 －Ho dourable Interment amoty the Ameri． $\operatorname{con} s, 766$
Soldonia，claim＇d as the Property of the King of Englard， 203
Somerine，or Governour of Melaber， 196 222
Sorcerers at Nangafiga， 234
Soun，the－Tranimigration of it believed， 412
Spewiardy how－hased by the Indiars， 31 －Ther Poffeffons in， E frica， 367 － Their：Conquefts of Mexicos 772 － Their Cruelty to Ehe Mexicars， $77 \mathrm{ra}-$ Their Conqueft of Tetik，788，：793－ Their＂Cruelty to the Indions 798
Sperne－Cent jarifes from the Engendring of the Whales； 527
Spikenard，where it it found 9
Sports in lidia， $175{ }^{* 1}=$ In the Maldives， 252
Spoucs at Sea，their Nature and：dange rous Effects，66，228
Springs，fome that ferve for - Pitch and Tar， 278 Stones，one ufed as an Emblem of the Deity，217－One found in and Hog＇s Belly，good againf Poifor， $407 \div$ One foand in the Head of the，Cow－Filh godod againft the Choticks 408
Storks reverenced； 430
Storms xaifed by Magick Arts，and the Ce remories ufed to do it， 20
Stcrgeons，where plentiful，205， 516 － Caveare made of their Ropifilted，and put ug with ：their Fat， 1 lhit

Sugar，the Canes firf planted ins dera＇s， $2-$ int fridia 109
aulphitain Nut， 207
Sulphar produced plentifully neate ficto and in Poolatiay， 250 Summers，Two in one Year， 10 －Am Name of the Hands of Eermudir， 848 gh Sun worlhipped by the Arabiatris， 3 to appear at once， $55^{2}$－Apterifot，or： Mock－Sun，621－Worflippty by the Peruvians， 773 －The Ephetwept in wh nour of it， 774 Superfition of the Indiens， $208 \pm 10 \mathrm{~F} 4 \mathrm{t}$ Maldivans，264， 705
Surnag，a Vcacteal Herb， $36 i$
Surrenders of the lies Poolopdy andingoll． roons to King 于ames 1． 190 － 0 Of the finging and Wxyre，191－Of Lent wh， 195
Swimming，the Diverfionof the Kiag of：A－s sben， 139
Swine not eatem nor kepthni Burréa， 32 － The Mesometcons win fot touch ant part of it，$\times 76$－The Moors will notent it， 282
Sword－Fifh，with Snopts a Yard long；and －toothed on both fides like a Saw， 78 ．

T
Talapoins，or Heathen Priefts mant oit them at Pegu，the mof Stria and Zeitic lons in their Euntion， 212 －Their Temple Degonme，their Place to firent and exercife in，and entertain pil高ms． their Way of tiving，Maintentrict and Admiflon into the Suciery； 76 ：－Their Houres and Feafts， 213 －Obliged to leave their Friends，and renounce the Company of Women，zso
Tadlow，from wherice，$s 42$
Tumarind Trees，the greatef plenty of theat， 50,233
Tuxdriprigns，a Eruit rike a Wan－ngty of a fragrant Smeily，and black Pajp，$\%$
Tapiri，a People that lend their Wives： 433
Tortars offended at the unjuf Dealings of the Ruffe，wiD not tuta Criniftians， 549 is $\rightarrow$ Their Wars，with the Reffians，and， their Yearly Invafions of their Conntry ${ }^{2}$ their Govercours，Army，Religion Meat， Habitations，EOc 501，502－．＇Divers： Nations of them； Iome more barbatous than ochers；all without Learning；bat have certain Laws oblerved by all， 550
Tasparglempe，an odoriforons Plint， 361
Teeth，Petguans blacken them，becaure Dogs are white， 31 it Temples of the Pegranst？ 212 －The trion magnificent called Dogomne，Jbid，- Of the Mabometans at Morocio， $326 \rightarrow$ A great one ar Mexico， 763 －Cbiduls， 766 －and others rich and large 1763 Tencheday，an Idol in farm，to which they offertyoung Virgins， 127
Tercera＇s，difouvered by fome Fkamings，${ }^{2}$ ： Tettars how caured； 265
Thefe practired in the IHes，called＂Latorof with the greateft Tmpudence， 14,31 It －By other Serberians 39 t Uredin Indiad 209 －Andther－Mujdives， 267 How punjhed in flapty Indiay 179
S．Tboines his Featt and Tonib in tinda， $-460^{\circ}$
Tigers，very troutferomes 210
Time，the Accounc of it in fudia，their Divifions of Day pad Night，179－The Compacations of the Bimdors and Mitio metcase differ， Of the Americidts in the Spanije Itarit Indies，778； 779
Tobacoo fmoakd，and the pipes fore it 77 －Plentifol in India， 169 － 10 op it is taken there，ithid－In uthelit， 408 －The bet in Virginia； 816 ．

[^0]:    $\qquad$
    $\qquad$

[^1]:    *

