Entertaining Your Exhibition Visitors.

Exhibition week always brings with it a lot of our friends from out-of-town points. This year let's excel ourselves and give 'em the best time ever.

Surprise your family and guests with a host of good things, and do not forget the most important of all—to have a generous supply of 'Good Cheer' in the shape of Wines, Spirits and light, refreshing beverages. Speaking of such, naturally, you think of the LEITH HOUSE—the oldest Wine House in Eastern Canada, where your every need can be fully supplied.

During the Summer months many people do not eat nearly as much meat as during the cooler and colder months. We are now entering upon that time of the year when good, clean, healthy meat is absolutely necessary if one wishes to be healthy and strong and able to bear the rigors of the severe climate conditions that will prevail.

When you want just what you want when you want it in the meats, the best way to get it is to

Investment News

Halifax, September 4th, 1913.

A Word Of Welcome.

By train and steamer, visitors are thronging to Halifax for Nova Scotia's Annual Exhibition.

Among these sight-seers are undoubtedly many who have dealt with this Investment House at one time or other during the past forty years in which it has been faithfully serving the public.

May we ask these good friends of ours to consider themselves heartily welcome at our offices in the ground floor of our Exchange Building, at the corner of Hollis and Prince Streets.

Every facility at our disposal will be made available for their convenience.
If at the same time information about financial matters is desired, we will be glad to be of service.
But of course no obligation is incurred—just a hearty welcome.

He turned and ran down the steps and strode away through the long shadows of the garden. They heard the gate click after him as he passed into the Chabonne grounds, and then they glanced at each other with such a glance as may pass between two members of a peace commission sitting on the same side of the table who will not admit to each other that the latest proposition of the enemy has been in the nature of a surprise. They did not, however, suffer themselves to watch Armistice, but diplomatically refused the glasses.

Through the green walls went Armistice. He had not been out of the baron's ground before since he was carried there from the hospital, and it was pleasant to be free once more and able to sit without a nurse at his bed, and to be walking with his limbs, and to be able to do as he pleased with the confident stride of a man who has no doubt whatever of his immortality.

At the pergola he paused to recom-mence, finding on the bench certain weight that interested him deeply—a parcel, a contrivance of stone, lace and pink roses that seemed to be a hat and a long magazine. He jumped upon the bench where once he had sat as a child, a refugee, a person discussed in disreputable terms by the newspapers, and studied the landscape.
Then he went on up the gradual slope of the meadow until he came to the pasture wall. It was under the trees beneath which Oscar had waited for Zina that he found her.

"You told me you wouldn't dare venture out for a week," he said, advancing toward him and giving him her hand.

"That was what they told me," he said, laughing, "but I escaped from my keepers."

"You will undoubtedly take cold without your hat!"

"Yes! I shall undoubtedly have pneumonia from exposure to the Virginia sunshine. I take my chances."

"You're all out of the wall for three minutes, then you must go back. I cannot be responsible for the life of a wounded hero."

"Gossip!" He held up his hand.
"That's what I came to talk to you about."

"About being a hero? You have taken an unfair advantage. I was going to send for the latest edition in Laurel wreaths tomorrow."

He sat down beside him on the wall.
The sheep were a grayish blur against the green. A little negro boy was shepherding them, and they scampered before him toward the farther end of the pasture. The faint and vanishing tinkle of a bell and the boy's whistle were emphasis to the cover guide of the late afternoon. They spoke rapidly and impersonally of his adventures in the hills and of his illness.

"I don't know, Miss Chabonne, that I was going to lose my mind that morning at the bungalow or I should have asked your brother to conduct you to the conservatory while I waited. From what they told me I must have been a little light-headed for a day or two. I had been in my right mind I should not have let Captain Dick mix up in my business and run the risk of getting killed in a nasty little row. Dear old Dick! I made a mess of that whole business. I ought to have telegraphed for the Storm Springs constable in the beginning and told him that 'he wasn't careful the noble house of Schomburgk would rot and fall.'"

"Yes, and just letting the effect on our constable of telling him that the fate of an empire lay in his hands. It's hard enough to get a man arrested who bores his horse. But you must go back to your keepers. You haven't your hat."

"Neither have you. You shan't outdo me in recklessness. I inspected your hat as I came through the pergola. I liked it immensely. I came near setting it as a spoil of war—the loot of the pergola."

"There would be cause for another row. I am really tired, my hat is so much. But the baron will be after you in a moment. I can't be responsible for you."

"The baron annoys me. He has given me a lot of worry. And that's what I have come to ask you about."

"Then I should say that you oughtn't to quarrel with a dear old man like Baron von Marhof. Besides, he's your uncle!"

"No, not I don't want him to be my uncle! I don't need any uncle!"

He glanced about with an anxiety that made her laugh. "My father told me that the events of April in these hills were not to be mentioned.
But don't worry. The sheep won't tell —and I won't."

He was silent for a moment as he thought out the words of what he wished to say to her. The sun was dipping down into the hills; the wet air was still; the voice of a negro singing as he crossed a distant field stole sweetly upon them.

"Shirley!"

He touched her hand.

"Shirley!" And his fingers closed upon hers.

"I love you, Shirley! From those days when I saw you in Paris before the great Gettysburg battle picture I loved you. You had left the cry of the old world, the story that is in its bat-tlesides, its beauty and romance, just as I had left the call of this new and more wonderful world. I understood—I knew that you were in your heart, I knew what those things meant to you, but I had put them aside. I had chosen another life for myself. And the poor fire that you moved that is yours if you will take it. I have told your father and Baron von Marhof that I would not take the fortune my father left me. I would not go back there to be thanked or to get a ribbon to wear in my coat. But my name, the name born as a boy and degraded in my father's eyes—his name that he made famous throughout the world, the name I cast aside with my youth, the name I flung away in anger—they wish me to take that."

She withdrew her hand and rose and looked away toward the western hills.

"The greatest romance in the world is here, Shirley. I have dreamed it all over—in the Canadian woods, on the Montana ranch as I watched the herd at night. My father spent his life keeping a king upon his throne, but I believe there are higher things and dearer things than standing a shaking throne or being a king. And the name that has meant nothing to me except domination and power—it can serve no purpose for me to take it now. I have learned much from the poor archduke. He taught me to hate the sham and shame of the life he had led from. My father was the last great defender of the divine right of kings, but I believe in the divine right of men. And the dome of the capitol in Washington does not mean to me force or hatred or power, but faith and hope and man's right to live and do as he pleases."

Dr. J. C. Carter

Do not neglect your cough.
You may dislike taking medicines—but coughs are best cured without medicines.
The modern treatment is "Carter's Little Liver Pills." It isn't a drug—it's a healing vapor, full of the essence of healing balsam. It penetrates the airways that are weak and sore from coughing. Every spot that's congested is healed, irritation is soothed away, phlegm and mucus are dissolved, and all symptoms of cold and cough are banished. Nothing so sure, pleasant as Carter's Little Liver Pills as a cough cure. In 20c.

HALIFAX PEOPLE SHOULD PREPARE FOR OUR GREAT EXHIBITION.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION WILL SOON BE UPON US, AND WE MUST BE READY FOR IT TO MAKE THE MOST OF THE SPLENDID SHOW : :

EVERYBODY KNOWS THE DATES—SEPT. 3rd to 11th.

Everybody should know also that the Exhibition will be on a grander scale than before. The field of HORSES for the racing will be surprisingly fine; the flights by the TWO AVIATORS on the mighty aeroplane will be thrilling; the VAUDEVILLE and FIREWORKS, by day and night, will be superb, and the EXHIBITION ITSELF will be magnificent in all departments.

Immense throngs from the City and Country should and will see the GREAT 1913 PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.

G.O.M. OF HAMILTON

ADAM BROWN IS STILL HALF AT NEARLY MINUTE.

Adam Brown, "Hamilton's" Grand Old Man, is nearly ninety, but his face is fresh and rosy with health, his step firm and elastic, and from event to event he has been so much a part of the city's life that he is still a familiar figure in the city's history.

In 1850 he went to Hamilton by way of Toronto. To reach the latter he required six days and seven nights from Montreal, first by stage and then by coach. At Toronto he took the steamer Magnet, and the Ontario, the first iron boat on Lake Ontario. He took the boat, but it did not take him to Hamilton. At Port Hope he found it impossible to go by being found impossible. He then went by coach.

He had come to take a position with D. Macdonald & Co. Next day he was in Hamilton, and he was in the city for the first time.

He was a member of the Federal House of Commons from 1860 to 1869 when he was appointed postmaster of Hamilton, a position he held continuously to the present. Mr. Brown represented Canada at the World's Exhibition in London, 1873, and at the Exposition Universelle in Paris, 1875.

He was a member of the Federal House of Commons from 1860 to 1869 when he was appointed postmaster of Hamilton, a position he held continuously to the present. Mr. Brown represented Canada at the World's Exhibition in London, 1873, and at the Exposition Universelle in Paris, 1875.

In 1857-58 he took a leading part in securing a by-law for waterworks for Hamilton, and was one of the promoters, and later chairman, of the Board. The work was done by Theo. C. Koester, now C.M.A., of the Province of Wales was to visit the city and to open the gate to let the waters of the lake flow through the streets.

Mr. Brown, having charge of the keys to the two great houses in Hamilton, and was one of the promoters, and later chairman, of the Board. The work was done by Theo. C. Koester, now C.M.A., of the Province of Wales was to visit the city and to open the gate to let the waters of the lake flow through the streets.

Mr. Brown has been most prominently active in many ways. He was president of the railway that runs through the counties of Wellington, York and Bruce, from Guelph to South Hamilton and from Palmerston to Kincardine. When it was completed it was handed over to the Great Western, and later absorbed by the Grand Trunk Railway; he was president of that line between Toronto and Ottawa, then called "The Toronto and Ottawa Railway." At first this was a "pleasure" road, but it was built "in spots."

The policy of the Federal Government was to give but 500,000 per cent toward railways—the previous Mackenzie Government having given 425,000. Mr. Brown was justifying the saving of 50,000 back to the former 12,000 per cent, and the change was made. In 1850 he was secretary, and later president of the Hamilton Board of Trade, and in 1877 he was president of the Dominion Board of Trade, which met in Ottawa, once a year, and which was instrumental in bringing about the protection of Canadian industries. He has been and still is president of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, founded on the principle of the British Association. For sixteen years he was president of the Ontario Association of Railwaymen, which was the first of its kind in the world. He was also president of the Ontario Association of Railwaymen, which was the first of its kind in the world.

He is a trustee of the Aged and Infirm Home in Hamilton, and is president of the Hamilton Association of Railwaymen, which was the first of its kind in the world. He was also president of the Ontario Association of Railwaymen, which was the first of its kind in the world.

"Table Glass And How To Use It."

Is the title of a beautifully illustrated booklet which we wish to place in the hands of every household in this Province.

It contains a brief history of glass-making and a lot of correct information for householders regarding Every Day Essentials, Breakfast, Lunches, Dinners, Desserts, Wines, Puddings, Sherbets, etc., Ornamentation, Table Arrangement, etc.

Beautifully illustrated are a number of lines of the famous Halsey Glassware.

If you are interested in such things, drop us a line and we shall be delighted to send you a copy of this booklet, and change a better still, call and get a copy. You'll be pleased with it.

A Safe Investment.

ONE of the safest investments of to-day is to place your spare cash in building lots. It will in a short time yield for you a large return. No fear of land depreciating in value. Purchase a lot as an investment—if you do not want it for your self, secure one for your wife or children as a sensible present, and watch it grow in value. Do not buy it for cash, pay for it by instalments. The money payments you will never miss. Call and see us, and we will explain the plan more fully.

THIRTYYEAR AT GASPÉ.

Visiter Sees Scenes Which Recall Old Days
Near Gaspé, P. E. I., the other day, I happened upon a very much older P. E. I. making part of an equally ancient building, says Mr. J. M. (Grandfather) Hubbey. I saw neither Miles nor John, but I saw many more of the old days.

There is nothing like a horsehair sofa, there must always have been a Miles and a John where there is a horsehair sofa, one which rises to its knees and dips in its elbows, and is upholstered with blood red velvet and tufted springs.
