FOWLER REPEATED STORY OF ATTACK WITH KNIFE!

Bloody Battle in a West London Butcher Shop Recounted in the County Court.

GIVEN A RAKING IN THE BOX

Mr. J. M. McEvoy Spent Much Time in the Cross-Examination Today.

When the county court oppened this morning William Heslop, of West London, was arraigned on a charge of having on the night of Saturday, Dec. 24, 1910, done grievous bodily harm to James B. Fowler, a West London butcher. Heslop was represented by Mr J. M. McEvoy, and pleaded not guilty. He said he was ready for trial. The case is expected to occupy some time.

The jury was chosen as follows: John O'Neil, Metcalfe; R. Squires, Lobo; R. T. Rose, Westminster; Jonathan Ardiel, London Township; Walter Vail, Lobo; John T. Lethbridge, Ekfrid; Hiram Lumley, Mosa; E. B. Wickerson, Westminster; D. J. McFie, West Williams; Jas. Baskerville, West Nissouri; Geo. Ryland, London Township; Addison Uptegrove, Delaware. Three of the men called, Jas. Self, London; G. Fulton, Ailsa Craig, and L. H. Martyn, London, were challenged by Crown Attorney McKillop.

The Witnesses.

Up to 3 o'clock this afternon the following witnesses had bene heard: Dr. John Wishart; James Fowler, the plaintiff; John Morden, an entirely new witness, whom the plaintiff produced, at the very last minute, and Harry Clare, Fowler's shop clerk.

Mrs. Heslop was an interested spectator throughout the proceedings. She sat on the bench immediately behind and to the left of her husband, and Mr. McEvoy drew conspicuous attention to her once when the new witness, Morden, stated that he did not know her and had never seen her.

"She is right here in the courtroom," said Mr. McEvoy, "sitting right over there," an dhe indicated her position.

Heslop never for a moment paid the slightest attention to his wife. It is stated that never since the night of the assault has he had anything to do with her.

Case for the Crown.

"The case before you," said Crown Attorney McKillop, in addressing the jury, "is a most serious one. It might easily have been one of murder. The plaintiff, Fowler, was so badly injured by a butcher knife that he has not yet, after nearly six months, recovered the use of his arm."

The Assault.

Mr. McKillop then went thoroughly into the story of the assault.

"It will no doubt be urged upon you," he said, in concluding, "that the accused had good reason for doing what he did. I contend that no reason would justify him in doing what he did."

Dr. John Wishart, the first witness called, stated that he was called to attend Fowler in St. Joseph's Hospital. Dr. Tillmann, he said, who attended Fowler first, was ill and unable to attend.

Badly Cut Up.

Witness said he found three cuts on Fowler's arm, a cut above his eye and one on his nose, which required stitches. A knife like the butcher-knife produced would cause the cuts. The wound on the upper part of the right arm severed the nerve and paralyzed the muscles. It would be one year, at least, before Fowler would get the proper use of his arm, but it might never get well.

Fowler in the Box.

Fowler was called into court, and showed his arm, with great scars on it.

He was put in the box and gave details as to the location of his shop, and the general lay-out of the premises and counters. He had known Heslop for 20 years, and had always been friendly with him. On the afternon of Dec. 24 witness delivered some goods there, and then in the evening went over again. He knew there was a party there. Witness was not invited, but a young man named Clare, who worked for Fowler, was at the party, and the witness went over to pay Clare his wages. Witness went to the rear door of Heslop's house, and when he went in Heslop asked him to have a drink of beer from a keg that was there. Witness did so, and Mrs. Heslop, John Heslop and Clare came into the room. William Heslop said: "Jim, I have run out of whiskey," and witness said, "I have a bottle at the shop that you may have."

Started for Shop.

Heslop did not say anything, and witness, after having another drink of beer, started for his shop to get the whiskey. He left by the rear door, and after leaving he noticed Mrs. Heslop following be-

HAREM SKIRT "O. K." SAYS EX-LONDONER

[Canadian Press.]

St. Catharines, June 9.—The first harem skirt appeared in St. Catharines today. It was worn by a girl playing at a local theatre. She created a lot of attention. Asked about it, Chief of Police Green said, "No, why should the police stop such a thing? There is nothing indecent about it."

TEN-YEAR-OLD BOY LOSING HIS EYESIGHT

Sad Case of Little Geo. Hobbs, a Lad From the County.

A very sad story was revealed yesterday when the accounts for the Children's Aid Society were presented at the county council, and that of George Hobbs, a little boy from the county, came up.

Although only 10 years old, the lad, through an illness, has lost the sight of one of his eyes, and there is practically no hope of saving the sight of the other. He is at present in Victoria Hospital receiving the best medical treatment possible, but it is said that there is little chance of anything that can be done to save his vision.

The county's account with Victoria Hospital was presented, and showed that the various patients sent in during the last few months had spent 1,665 days there. The bill of $1,665 was referred to a special committee with power.

FAULT IS FOUND WITH THE REFUGE

Strong Criticism of Institution at Strathroy in County Council.

COMMITTEE TO REPORT

Aged People Are Said To Have No Glasses, and Are Unable to Read to Pass the Time Away.

The house of refuge at Strathroy furnished the material for a warm and lengthy session of the county council yesterday afternoon. The councillors had spent the previous afternoon in making a thorough investigation of the institution, and what they found there was far from pleasing to a great many of them, and it is likely that sweeping changes will be recommended as a result of the matter having been left in the hands of the house of refuge committee to settle.

Councillor J. C. McDonald opened the discussion, and in his remarks he alleged that the physician who is supposed to pay regular visits to the institution not going nearly as often as he should. He also stated that the keeper, Mr. Hodgins, has instituted a rule that all the help must be in the building by 9 o'clock at night. There was nothing in the county bylaws, he said, providing for this, and the help thought it a great hardship.

A Hardship.

"I would consider it a hardship myself," he said, "particularly when many of them do not get through with their work until 8 o'clock. They are deprived of practically any recreation. They cannot go into the town to attend any amusements, as it is nearly a mile to go, and by the time they get dressed it is time to close the

NORFOLK'S COUSIN WEDS MISS JAMES

Brilliant Society Affair at St. George's, Hanover Square, Yesterday.

[Canadian Press.]

London, June 9.—There was a brilliant scene yesterday afternoon at St. George's, Hanover Square, at the wedding of Miss Millicent James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William James, and Mr. Henry Howard, cousin of the Duke of Norfolk.

Princess Christian and her daughter, Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, were among the fashionable guests who crowded the big church to the doors.

Miss James was one of the prettiest brides of the season, in a beautiful but simple dress of soft white satin covered with silver brocaded chiffon. In her hair was a wreath of natural orange blossoms and her tulle veil was adorned with seed pearls.

Mrs. William James, in a wonderful dress of white chiffon covered with hand-painted muslin, received the royal guests at the west door. Princess Christian was wearing a dress of black net embroidered in gold over white silk, with a black hat with touches of gold. Princess Victoria wore a dress of electric blue ninon, with a large black hat trimmed with blue flowers.

A huge throng of sightseers assembled outside the church in the hope of seeing the King and Queen, but their Majesties were unable to attend.

FOUR LIVES LOST ATTEMPTING RESCUE

Woman, Her Two Sons, and Victim's Sister, Perish.

[Canadian Press.]

Hattiesburg, Mich., June 9.—Four persons today lost their lives in a futile effort to save the life of Pearl Coursey, 5 years of age, daughter of a merchant, who had ventured out too far while wading in Bowie River. The dead are Mrs. Turner, her two sons, and Annie Coursey, 7 years old, sister of Pearl.

DISASTROUS FIRE AT ORANGEVILLE

The Big Plant of the Hurndall Company Destroyed.

MANY ARE OUT OF WORK

The Proprietor Managed To Save His Books and Documents.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Orangeville, June 9.—This town was visited by a disastrous conflagration early this morning, when the fine three-story brick factory of the Hurndall Novelty Furniture Company, was burned to the ground, only the dry kiln, a one-story addition, 25 by 50 feet, escaping the flames. The fire, which, it is thought, originated in the boiler-room, was discovered about 1 o'clock, and a fire alarm was promptly sent in. The fire brigade and many of the citizens whom the alarm brought to the scene, made a determined effort to save the doomed building, and it looked for the first hour as if their efforts would be successful. Eventually, however, the flames reached the second and third floors by way of the elevator shaft, and finally broke through the roof. Owing to the large amount of stock and other highly inflammable material, the smoke and heat were intense, making the work of the fire-fighters doubly difficult, and finally driving them from the building. The walls began to fall about 4 o'clock, and an hour later the building was a mass of ruins.

Loss Is Heavy.

The main factory was a three-story building, 55x100, with a wing 45x55, also three stories high, and an engine-house, two stories high, 28x30. The building was valued at $13,000, plant at $25,000 and stock and other contents at $20,000. There is about $30,000 insurance, the interested companies being the London Mutual, Dominion Fire, York Fire, Hamilton Fire, Monarch Fire, Rimouski, Crown Fire, Economical Mutual, and Waterloo Mutual. The factory was built about six years ago by Messrs. Disney and Hertel, of Hanover, the town aiding the enterprise by a municipal loan of $15,000, of which $2,500 has been repaid. The $12,500 still owing is secured by mortgage, and the insurance which is payable to the municipality. The destruction of the factory will throw 35 or 40 men out of employment, most of whom are married with homes and families.

Mr. C. W. Hurndall, the manager of the company, was awakened at his room in the Grand Central Hotel, and reached the factory in time to get into the office and save the books, office file, etc.

LONG LOST HEIRS HAVE TURNED UP

Missing Since 1873, Supposed To Have Perished in Indian Massacre.

[Canadian Press.]

Toronto, June 9.—A romance was shattered when Col. Logie, of Hamilton, announced to Mr. Justice Riddell at Osgoode Hall this morning that W. H. Baker and his sister, who have been missing since 1873, and who were supposed to have been massacred by Indians when children, had been located in Texas. Mr. Baker lives in Temple, Texas, and his sister is living at Houston, Texas. There is $839.28 in court for them, part of the estate of William Munn, their grandfather, a Barton Township farmer, who died in the fifties.

William Munn left his farm to his son for life. After his son's death it was to be divided among the testator's six daughters. One of these was the mother of the two Bakers, who have now been located. Their mother died while they were children, and they went off through the United States with their father. There all trace was lost of them, and it was thought that they had perished in an Indian massacre of which there were many at that time.

For the last six years every effort has been made to locate the missing heirs. Advertisements were sent all through the south without avail. Last week an application was made to the high court for an order declaring them presumed dead. This was refused. The surrogate court at Hamilton directed that there should be more advertising. Col. Logie wrote to the chief of police at Temple, and by return mail came a letter from W. H. Baker, who identifies himself by means of a photograph of his mother. The photograph has been recognized by Mrs. McCann, of Burlington, the only survivor of the six daughters of William Munn. She has retired from all claim to the fund in court, and it was directed this morning that it be distributed under letters of administration.

UNIONIST PRESS FURIOUS AT THE CANADIAN PREMIER

Enraged at Sir Wilfrid's Defence of the Dominion's Autonomy —British Opposition Organs Call Him "Wet Blanket" On the Conference.

[Canadian Press.]

London, June 9.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's defence of Canada's autonomy and his opposition to any measure proposed in the Imperial Conference which might affect the Dominion's right of self-government, is stirring the Unionist press to wrath. The Standard says that it seems to be Sir Wilfrid's aim to eliminate everything but the sentimental link of the crown, making Canada, in fact, a separate kingdom under the British monarchy, and calls him a "wet blanket" on the conference. Other Unionist organs, in effect, say the same thing. Sir Wilfrid smilingly refused to comment on these attacks.

THE SEPARATION OF QUEEN'S BEFORE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Seventy Per Cent of Graduates in Favor of Separation, Declares Principal Gordon—Quebec Protestant Schools Lack Teachers.

[Canadian Press.]

Ottawa, June 9.—In his report on the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa to the Presbyterian General Assembly, Rev. J. H. MacFarlane, home missionary secretary, said that there is great need of remedy in the Protestant schools of Quebec. There are 1,200 elementary Protestant teachers in Quebec, of whom over 400 have never qualified, and many are ill-fitted for the work. In many cases there are no English schools at all.

"About 1,500 Presbyterian English Protestant children in Quebec are in Roman Catholic schools," he said. "Eastern Ontario is also very bad in this respect."

Queen's and Church.

Principal Gordon of Queen's dwelt at considerable length on the history of the movement for the separation of Queen's from the church. Seventy per cent. of the graduates of the university all over the world had voted on the question and ninety per cent. of those voting favored the separation as proposed by the board of trustees.

This vote was backed up by an overwhelming vote of the board of trustees, the teaching body of the

COUNTY JUDGE TO INVESTIGATE

Board of Works Ask That the Mulhall Charges Be Probed.

AFFIDAVITS WERE PUT IN

Ald. Cooper Resents Statement of Ald. Tancock That Part of Board Is Prejudiced in Mulhall's Favor.

Resolved, that His Honor the Senior Judge of the county of Middlesex be requested to investigate, pursuant to Section 324 of the Municipal Act, 1903, the alleged malfeasance or misconduct of the city's employee, Mr. Patrick Mulhall, as set out in statutory declarations filed by Ald. J. A. Tancock, and presented herewith.

The above resolution was unanimously passed at the meeting of the board of works last night, and it is expected that Judge Macbeth will set a day shortly when the whole matter can be investigated.

The affidavits secured by Ald. Tancock were presented to the committee last night. Accompanying them was a letter stating that they were handed over on the understanding that the county judge would investigate the alleged wrongdoing.

There were six of the documents. One of them, that of Alex. Henderson's, was sworn to before Mr. U. A. Buchner, while the others were sworn to by Ald. Tancock.

Sent to the Judge.

When they were presented, Mayor Beattie at once noved that the whole matter be sent to the county judge.

"It was necessary that the original documents should be in the possession of this committee," explained his worship. "Without them we would have nothing to investigate. I spoke to Ald. Tancock about the matter, and he was loath to give up the documents, but he at last decided to do so. He wanted an investigation before the judge. An investigation conducted by this committee would be of no value. We could not put a witness under oath, nor could there be any cross-examination. If we came to the conclusion that there was nothing in the charges, we would be accused of whitewashing Mulhall. I would, therefore move a resolution to the effect that the senior judge be requested to investigate the whole question. He will be able to examine under oath, and get at the facts of the case."

Ald Tancock Criticised.

"Ald. Tancock had no business saying that Ald. Cooper and Saunders were prejudiced in favor of Mulhall," commented Ald. Cooper. "He had no foundation whatever for making such an assertion. At the council meeting we were decidedly in favor of an investigation by the county judge."

"We asked him to make a charge before the judge, and he would not do so," declared Ald. Saunders.

"I do not think these charges should have come to this committee at all," continued Ald. Cooper. "If there was any wrongdoing it was committed during his year as chairman of the committee, and he should have stepped it. We are not to blame in any way for it."

The chairman then paid his respects to the newspapers, who deliberately misrepresent him, he declares.

No Unfairness.

"Ald. Tancock feels that certain members of the committee are biased, and objected to putting in the affidavits," said Mayor Beattie. "That is just another reason why we should send the charges to the judge. There will be no unfairness, and we cannot be charged with unfairness. I have nothing to say regarding the charges themselves, but I am sure this action will do justice to all parties concerned, particularly to Mr. Mulhall."

"The man who made the charges is worse than the man who is charged," said Ald. Cooper. "We will get at the facts regarding that famous bridge plank deal."

When the resolution was put not a vote was recorded against it.

YOUNG MAN GIVEN A SCATHING ROAST

Judge MacBeth Told Joseph R. Levitt What He Thought of Him.

Joseph R. Levitt, the young Grand Trunk brakeman, charged with criminally assaulting Myrtle Orum, an idiot, residing on Ingleside street, South London, was discharged this afternoon by Judge Macbeth. The judge gave the matter a great deal of consideration and several times heard arguments, and decided that as Mrs. Orum, the girl's mother, did not take the necessary steps to secure evidence until too long a time had elapsed, that he could not find Levitt guilty.

"I want you to understand though," he said, "that I cannot find words strong enough to express my contempt for a man who will act as you have done. I am satisfied that you went to the girl's home with the intention of acting improperly. In heathen lands they would not on any account, injure anyone whom God has deprived of reason, and yet in this Christian country we find men like you. We have had to organize societies all over to try and protect girls from such men as I strongly suspect you are. It is a cruel and heartless thing for any man to do, and as I told you, I cannot express my contempt for you."

USES LISLE STOCKING TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Parents Objected To Her Marrying Man Younger Than Herself.

[Canadian Press.]

Greenport, L. I., June 9.—Because her parents objected to her marrying a man younger than herself, Miss Edith Terry, of Orient, choked herself to death with a stocking.

Miss Terry was 39 years old; her fiancee was 29. After spending most of the day with him yesterday she went home, stuffed her ears and nose with cotton, made a slip noose of a long lisle stocking, put it around her neck and pulled it tight until she fell unconscious. She died soon after she was found by members of the family.

KILLED BY TRAIN WALKING ON TRACK

James Clark, of Branchton, Run Down South of Galt.

[Canadina Press.]

Galt, Ont., June 9. — As he was walking along the tracks of the G. T. R., four miles south of Galt, this morning, James Clark, of Branchton, was run down by a train and instantly killed. He was walking between the rails ahead of the train, and although the engineer whistled three times, he failed to regard the warning signal and before the train could be brought to a standstill he was run over. His body was terribly mangled and his head almost severed. He was about 59 years old.

BARBERS SAY THEY WILL RUSH WORK

Big Gang of Men To Be Put at Work on Pavements on Monday Next.

MAY BE TROUBLE AHEAD

It Is Not Known as Yet What the City Will Do Regarding the London Street Railway.

Superintendent Driscoll, of the Barber Asphalt Company, arrived in the city this morning, and informed City Engineer Wright that he would have his men at work on Monday morning re-surfacing.

All the material necessary is on hand and he expected that they would be up to the street railway inside of two weeks.

"We are going to put on every available man we can get," the foreman informed The Advertiser. "We will not hold the work up once we get a chance to get at it."

They will be able to complete Richmond street south of Dundas, and Dundas, east of Richmond, as the railway company will be through with those sections by the end of the week. The Barber Company will then start on Richmond street north.

At the next meeting of the city council it will be definitely known whether or not the Barber Asphalt Company will be instructed to go ahead with the work of re-surfacing the pavement irrespective of the London Street Railway Company.

May Be Trouble.

At the last meeting of the council, Ald. Cooper stated that he had instructed the Barber Company to go ahead and finish the pavement, no matter where the London street railway were at the time.

This met with the approval of the council, but some of them declare now that at the next meeting they will be in a position to decide definitely what is in the best interests of the city.

"Of course, if the council issue orders to put the pavement down, we will have it put down," said City Engineer Wright. "It will not make as good a job as it would be if we waited until the company had their tracks down. It is quite a difficult task to lay steel to asphalt, much more so than the way we are doing on the other streets. I would like to have it done, as it is being done, but I realize that it is an injustice to the merchants who have had a lot to put up with, for the past year. If we get orders to do the job we will do it, make no mistake, and we will make as good a job as we possibly can."

Merchants Compplain.

The merchants and the public generally have made so many complaints that the aldermen and the engineering department are much worried about the situation and are wondering what is best to do.

"The street railway company are altogether too slow," said Ald. Eckert. "The city should not be held up by them as they hav been—it is an injustive to the merchants and an injustice to the citizens generally. I am heartily in favor of the Barber Company laying the whole pavement at once. It may not make as good a job but it will be done, and the merchants will be able to do a little business. These delays are terrible."

The London Street Railway Company declare that they are making as much headway as is possible under the circumstances, and that they will be through in six weeks or a little better.

MULHALL CASE OPENS NEW VEIN

Looks as Though Judge Macbeth Will Have a Busy Time Shortly.

"Any man who will lie like that, will say anything."

In this rather short sentence, Ald. Saunders expresses his opinion of Ald. Tancock, who declared yesterday that Ald. Saunders and Ald. Cooper were prejudiced, and would not give the charges against Ward Foreman Patrick Mulhall a proper hearing.

Ald. Saunders is after the scalp of Ald. Tancock, and it is just possible a writ for slander will be issued against the latter for statements he made regarding Ald. Saunders. The latter is now consulting his lawyer on the subject.

In addition, Ald. Saunders will move at the next meeting of the council that the charges circulated last year against Ald. Tancock be investigated by the county judge at the same time that the Mulhall charges are being inquired into.

Must Prove Statement.

"I never heard of such a man as Ald. Tancock in my life," said Ald. Saunders. "He deliberately states what is not true regarding me, and he will have to prove it. At the next meeting of the council I am going to move that the accusations heard against Ald. Tancock be investigated at the same time as the Mulhall charges. We will then find out whether or not he paid for that sewer he has in front of his property, or whether or not he took bridge plank, broken stone and flagstones, and what right he had to them, if he did. W emight as well go to the bottom of this thing and have it settled for all time to come.

Ald. Tancock's Statement.

"I see in an interview he has the following to say about me:

"'When the affidavits were being read in the council on Monday night, Ald. Cooper and Ald. Saunders, two of the members of the committee that will investigate the charges, showed their disregard of them by jumping up and walking out of the council chamber, waiting until the charges were finished before they returned. By the newspapers I see that Ald. Saunders declares that he believes Mulhall guiltless. This, I claim, is a direct indication that the committee is prejudiced.'

"It is all false," added Ald. Saunders, "and he knows it. I will give him a chance to prove these things in court, as I am tired of all his talk. He was not protected by the privileges of the council when he said that, and I am going to get after him."

An Explanation.

"As a matter of fact, I, not Ald. Cooper, voted to send this matter to No. 2 committee. I knew by the way he had chased up the affidavits after night that he was prejudiced and biased, and I moved that No. 2 committee look into the charges, so that if there was anything in them we could have the whole matter dealt with by the county judge. We suggested that to him in the council. He named a special committee, and we told him to lay the case before the county judge. He would not do so, but wanted a committee selected, of which he would be a member. There is no doubt that the judge is the only person to hear his charges. He is looking for trouble, and now we will endeavor to give it to him in good shape. We will make him come up and prove his charges he knows about statements circulated about himself."

Hunting for Witnesses.

In the meantime, there has been a considerable amount of hustling for witnesses and affidavits.

Both sides are out to protect themselves, and every person who knows the least thing about the matter will be summoned to court to give evidence.

According to information given The Advertiser today, Mr. Mulhall has affidavits covering every load of gravel that came near his premises. He will prove, it is claimed, that all the gravel with the exception of what he bought and paid for himself, was used on the streets, and that he did not take a single load of it.

In connection with this part of the transaction, ex-City Engineer Graydon will be a witness, and he will explain what he had to do with it.

On the other hand, Ald. Tancock declares that he has more evidence than was made public in the publication of the affidavits.

"I can get lots more evidence," he stated to The Advertiser. "My whole case does not depend altogether on the

PASTORS' SALARIES NOT ADEQUATE

Must Be Better in Order To Get Good Men for the Pulpit.

SAYS PRINCIPAL PATRICK

Home Mission Report of Presbyterians Laid Before General Assembly.

Ottawa, June 8.—At the Presbyterian General Assembly, Rev. Dr. Somerville, in connection with his report, pointed out that in the west, great difficulty was encountered in securing accurate figures. There were so many changes, both in ministers, missionaries and congregations that reports could not be obtained from a great number of them. There should, however, be more attention to this. The General Assembly was entitled to know these statistics and in cases where it was making grants for missionaries it surely was entitled to know whether five or twenty-five families were being served. Any missionary who failed to make this report should be called upon to explain. It was very unfair to the church, for with these large numbers of members unreported, it makes the membership of the entire church much smaller than it really is.

The following recommendations were made:

First—That presbyteries be enjoined to give special attention to securing complete and accurate returns from every congregation and mission station.

Second—That the committee on statistics of each presbytery be composed of the clerk, the convenors of augmentation home missions, French evangelization, Sabbath schools, and such other members as may be deemed necessary, and that this committee see that there are no discrepancies in the different statistical reports presented to the General Assembly.

Third—That special attention be given to the formation of the roll of presbytery that it contain only the names duly authorized by the church and that it contain a full list of the congregations and mission stations as at March 31.

Fourth—That when charges are made in the names of congregations or mission stations, or in the groups forming the pastoral charge, or mission field, the presbytery clerk shall immediately notify the treasurers of the church and thus enable them to correctly report contributions to the schemes.

Fifth—That presbyteries be enjoined to fully consider and deal with the matter of statistics and finance as set forth in report to the assembly at the first ordinary meeting after the minutes of assembly have been printed and distributed, or as soon thereafter as possible with a view of ascertaining the increase or decrease in the several congregations what congregations, if any, have failed to report or have not contributed to all the schemes of the church.

There was considerable discussion over the immigration as it affected the statistics and Rev. Dr. Love, of Quebec, maintained that there must be a very considerable shortage in the total numbers. He assists in receiving immigrants on their arrival in Quebec, and he instanced two ships he met last week. On one there were 1,350 immigrants, of whom about 1,075 were Presbyterians. On the other there were 1,400 or 1,500, of which 1,250 were Presbyterians. "This has been going on all spring," he said, "and indicates how many are coming to Canada."

He argued that there was something wrong with the system that such a number of these which came in last year had not yet become connected with the church. They were given cards to give to the minister in the place to which they were going and the minister was notified to look out for them. However, there was something wrong that so many of them had not yet come to the church.

Rev. Dr. Somerville was of the opinion that too much emphasis was being laid on the financial side in proportion to the amount of energy used in the spiritual side.

Lack of Students.

The dearth of young men studying for the Presbyterian ministry, and the needs and opportunities of the west, were the burden of the discussion arising out of the reports from the various colleges. In presenting the report of the Halifax College, Rev. Dr. John McMillan said the colleges were the backbone of the church, as without them it would be impossible to get home and foreign missionaries or ministers for the regular churches. In the Maritime Provinces' presbyteries alone there are now 35 vacancies, showing how inadequate is the number of men who have entered the ministry.

Prof. J. W. Falconer, who seconded the adoption of the report, spoke of the studies and the high standard that was maintained. There were men who desired to go into the ministry who were handicapped owing to insufficient education in the primary courses, but these special cases should not be allowed to prejudice the normal students. Woe to the day when the Presbyterian Church lowered the academic standard required of her ministers.

The expenditure for the year was $1,028.96 more than the receipts. A year ago the college fund was in debt $3,777.67. On March 1st of this year it was $4,816.63. The debt has, indeed, been increasing from year to year by an average amount of about $1,000 per annum.

Dr. A. T. Love, Quebec, presented the report of the Morrin College, which had been closed as a college for several years, but which has property worth $100,000 and an endowment of $100,000. Its funds are now being used for higher education in Quebec, but the board of governors proposes to set a sum apart for scholarships for young men who are trying to enter the Presbyterian ministry. Rev. Dr. Robert Campbell, of Montreal, and Rev. W. A. Martin, of Quebec, were appointed representatives of the assembly on the board of governors.

Principal Scrimger, of the Montreal College, reported that out of $9 student deficit from the two preceding years. The college had made a special effort to get students for the ministry, and had been successful. The ordinary revenue for the year has a little more than covered the expenditure; but there is an accumulated deficit from the two preceding years of $3,825.93, and with the completion of the staff about $3,000 of additional revenue will be required annually for the future. The congregational constributions have this year amounted to $3,536.94, an increase of $641.43 over the previous year. It is hoped that the revenue from this source may be increased still further in future years. The sum of $7,334.49 has been added to the endowment fund, and the efforts to increase this fund are still being continued among the friends of the institution.

Salaries Too Small.

That something like an adequate salary for ministers must be provided if good men are to be secured was the outspoken statement of Principal A. Patrick who presented the report of the Manitoba College, Winnipeg. There was a great need for men in the ministry the highest of all vocations. But to get the best men the church had to provide what it was not now doing, something like an adequate stipend for ministers. The intellectual standard of the ministry should be maintained and raised, but what was just as much needed was the spiritual inspiration and personal devotion.

Rev. Dr. W. T. Herridge, Ottawa, in moving the adoption of the report, referred to the fact that of the students in Manitoba College, very few came from the west. Was the reason that the west was more materialistic than the east? The financial statement shows that when the books were closed at the end of the financial year, on the 31st of March, there was a deficit in the ordinary fund amounting to $1,940. This adverse balance was due to the considerable increase in the expense mentioned in the last report to the assembly.

That the propaganda of the last few years was bearing fruit in an increased number of students entering for the ministry was the statement of Principal A. Gandier, in presenting the report for Knox College, Toronto. There is a small surplus from last year. This, however, must be applied to the reduction of the large deficit which has been the result of shortages in former years, amounting to $11,229. The endowment fund now amounts to $318,641.27, and the revenue produced by it for the past year has been $13,869.

The smallest number of graduates in theology ever recorded in Queen's University was reported by Principal Gordon. There had been five, but the graduating class dwindled down to three. The financial statement showed an accumulative deficit of $11,609.67.

Home Missions.

The home mission committee's report, presented by Rev. E. D. McLaren, was quite encouraging. Last year the number of fields reported to the general assembly was 674. During the year 129 new fields have been opened, and five which had been raised to the status of augmented charges were returned to the care of the home mission committee. Forty-eight fields were closed, merged in other fields or ceded to the Methodist Church in exchange for fields from which that church agreed to withdraw; 26 were handed over to the care of the augmentation committee, and three became self-sustaining without requiring assistance from the augmentation fund. The net result of the year's operations is, therefore, an increase of 57, and the total number of fields this year is 731. Of these fields, 168 are in Ontario and Quebec, 108 in Manitoba, 245 in Saskatchewan, 130 in Alberta, and 80 in British Columbia.

The church's response to the appeal in behalf of home missions was exceedingly gratifying. A year ago the commitee estimated that the expenditure for the year would be $248,000. On account of the impossibility of securing a sufficient number of missionaries to occupy all the fields, especially during the winter months, the actual expenditure was only $226,700. The total revenue was $220,156, leaving a deficit of $6,544, which was covered by transferring this amount from the reserve fund. Even this small deficit would not have occurred if all the contributions that had been promised (and that were actually paid before the annual meeting of the committee on the 21st of March) had been sent forward, as they should have been, before the 28th of February. Although this delay in forwarding contributions reduced the total receipts by nearly $7,000, the amount actually received was still fully $12,000 in advance of the high-water mark of the receipts the previous year.

Perhaps the most important event of the home mission year was the preparation by a committee representing the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches of a plan of co-operation which, if loyally carried out, will put a stop to the unnecessary duplication of missionary effort and the appearance of unseemly rivalry in religious work by the church concerned.

Two Deaconesses were appointed during the year, one at Prince Rupert and the other in Winnipeg. Their work justified their appointment.

Last year the assembly decided that the principle of synodical instead of Presbyterial representation on the home mission committee should be made applicable to the three eastern synods. The recommendation of the sub-committee, to whom this was referred, which was adopted by the full committee, was:

(1) That the general assembly's committee consist of thirty-eight members to represent the synods in the following proportions: Montreal and Ottawa, 6; Toronto and Kingston, 10; Hamilton and London, 7; Manitoba, 4; Saskatchewan, 3; Alberta, 3; British Columbia, 3.

"That, amongst the representatives from the various synods there shall be included the general secretaries (ex-officio), the superintendents, synodical conveners, the treasurer of the church (western section), the western treasurer, and the convener of the augmentation committee.

"That each of the synods shall nominate for appointment by the general assembly not more than three members, one of whom, at least, shall be a layman.

"That the remaining members of the committee shall be appointed directly by the general assembly."

One hundred and twenty-five new districts and mission bands were organized by the Women's Home Mission Society during the past year, and the total number of auxiliaries and bands is now 740. The year's income was $30,784, an advance upon the previous year of $5,152, and the estimated expenditure for the current year is $40,458. Besides continuing to support eight mission fields at a cost of $2,000, this society made a special contribution of $400 to a field in Alberta to assist the people in the erection of a church.

The churches of Great Britain and Ireland, recognizing the large increase in the financial burdens of the Church that is necessitated by the efforts to provide the ordinances of religion for those who have emigrated to Canada, are still extending assistance that is very gratefully appreciated. The contributions received from the British churches during the year amounted to $5,276. Special mention has always to be made in the home mission report of the munificent contributions of the American Presbyterian Church in the city of Montreal. Although ecclesiastically identified with the Presbyterian Church in the United States, the generous-hearted members of this congregation have for years been enthusiastically loyal in their support of Canadian home missions. Their contributions for the past year amounted to $5,250.

Knox College Missionary Society is again taking charge of forty fields; seven are being supported by Queen's Missionary Association and seven by the Montreal College Missionary Society. The number supported by the Manitoba College Society has not yet been reported. The work that these societies are accomplishing is equivalent to a contribution to the home mission fund of nine or ten thousand dollars per annum.

Reports were presented from the superintendents of missions for the synods of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Northern Ontario and Montreal and Ottawa.

"I want to speak carefully," said Dr. McLaren, "but I must call attention to the fact that we are meeting a large share of aggressive ecclesiasticism in the west. The persistent abuse of members of the Home Mission committee by The Catholic Register—like the ne temere decree—may be regarded as an indication that the Roman Catholic church believes herself now strong enough to set at defiance Protestant sentiment in our country." Dr. McLaren added that "considerable danger confronted the west in the growth of Mormonism," which doesn't look like a dying cause.

Rev. W. L. Clay, Victoria, said it was time that the problems of western mission work were freed alike from superstitious indifference and virulent hostility. He looked forward, however with hope in view of what had already been accomplished.

Eczema Worse In the Spring

THE BLOOD IS WATERY—DIFFICULT TO GET THE HEALING PROCESS STARTED.

But Whatever the Cause You Can Relieve the Itching and Heal the Sores With

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Salt rheum and eczema are usually worse at this time of year, because of the sudden change of temperature and the watery condition of the blood.

It is not necessary to refer to the suffering caused from the intense itching nor to the tendency of these ailments to spread over the entire body. The essential point is how to bring about cure, and if you have been reading the cures reported from time to time in this paper you will already know that there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis and every form of itching skin disease.

This ointment stops the itching almost as soon as applied, lessens the discharge from the vesicles or blisters, cleans out the morbid growth and stimulates the process of healing.

Because other treatments have failed, you may feel discouraged. But in Dr. Chase's Ointment there is a cure for you. We know this because of the reports we have received from so many thousands of cases.

For instance there is the cure of Mrs. Nettie Massey, of Consecon, Ont., who had psoriasis or chronic eczema so bad that almost the whole body was covered with sores, and three doctors failed to cure her. One doctor said she could never be cured. Write to Mrs. Massey about her case.

ADVISORY BOARD IDEA IS DROPPED

Withdrawn After Hearing the Views of the Premiers.

SIR WILFRID'S VIEW

Canadian Premier Points Out That Matters Are Better as at Present.

London, June 8. — The Imperial Conference resumed consideration of Mr. Lewis Harcourt's proposal for a standing committee.

The colonial secretary, since the previous week's discussion, had circulated amongst the members of the conference a memorandum stating that the standing committee would, in effect, be a subsidiary conference meeting at more or less regular intervals for the transaction of all business referred to it by the secretary for the colonies with the assent of the dominions governments. It had been by no means uncommon for governments to nominate and use an advisory committee as an aid to administration. Ministers continued Mr. Lewis Harcourt found such committees of great service as a method for securing the interchange of views among public departments and commercial interests, and both one and the other were being adequately represented on the committee.

Mr. Lewis Harcourt proposed that the committee consist of the secretary for the colonies, the parliamentary and permanent under-secretaries for the colonies, the secretary to the imperial conference, the high commissioners of Canada, Australia, New Zealand South Africa, a representative from Newfoundland, and the secretary to the committee.

Proceeding, Mr. Harcourt said that while it was not desirable at the outset to define too precisely the duties of such a committee, it must be advisory, and not executive. There was, therefore, no necessity to confer voting power on its members. The committee must deal only with matters concerning the past conference or the preparations for an approaching one. In all cases the dominions governments to be consulted through the governors-general as to their willingness to submit questions to the committee. It would be unnecessary to keep any detailed minutes of the proceedings.

Mr. Harcourt wound up the memorandum by reiterating that the Imperial Government did not desire to press the appointment of the standing committee upon the dominions of they were unwilling to accept the proposal. The Government, however, was of opinion that such a standing authority might be of substantial advantage in securing efficiency in the working of the business of the secretariat and conference.

Sir Joseph Ward, premier of New Zealand, and Premier Fisher, of Australia, approved the proposal, General Botha dissenting.

Sir Wilfrid's Views.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he would view with serious apprehension the interference of any body whatever between the Home Government and the governments of the dominions. He adhered to the position he took up four years ago, that the relations between the dominions and the mother country should be carried on by themselves. The organization of the colonial office had given ample satisfaction. He thought they should leave matters as they were at present.

Home Government Not Anxious.

Mr. Harcourt said it was never contemplated that the members of the committee ultimately should be members of the conference. It was clear, however, that the conference was not sufficiently unanimous to make it worth while to proceed further with the proposal. The suggestion was made to meet what the home Government believed to be the desire of some of the dominions. It did not represent any conscious want on the part of the home Government. Hon. Andrew Fisher thought the proposed machinery a distinct improvement for enabling the views of the dominions to be put forward and discussed. He recognized, however, that unless there was a nearer approach to unanimity there was no use in proceeding further.

Sir Joseph Ward, of New Zealand, pointed out that the representatives from Newfoundland, Canada and South Africa could reach London in a comparatively short time, but the case was very different with Australia and New Zealand. The idea seemed to prevail among those opposing the proposal that if they agreed to it, it was going to help towards the establishment of an imperial council, which, he thought, would come in any case, but only when public opinion was ripe for such a reform. The proposal for an imperial council would neither be prejudiced nor helped by any decision on the present question.

Premier Botha said that no government would allow itself to be ruled by such a committee. The creation of such a committee might be a false step leading more to breaking down than to building up. They must hasten slowly. The Home Government had taken the prime ministers into their confidence on all subjects. That was a step in the right direction. Along those lines work, though slow, was sure.

Mr. Harcourt said they had had a useful and informative discussion, but in view of the opinions expressed he would not proceed farther with the proposal.

DYSPEPSIA

Can Be Cured.

This disease is the all prevailing malady of civilized life, and one which oftenest baffles all ordinary treatment. It gives rise to a great variety of distressing symptoms, such as distress after eating, rising and souring of food, wind in the stomach, heartburn, etc.

Nearly everything that enters a weak dyspeptic stomach acts as an irritant; hence the great difficulty of effecting a cure.

The long train of distressing symptoms, which render life a burden to the victim of dyspepsia, may be promptly cured by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

B.B.B. regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, stimulates secretion of the saliva and gastric juice to facilitate digestion, purifies the blood, and tones up the entire system.

Mrs. Herman Dickens, Benton, N.B., writes: "I have used Burdock Blood Bitters and find that few medicines can give such relief in dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was troubled for a number of years with dyspepsia, and could get no relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles and became cured, and I can now eat anything without it hurting me. I will highly recommend it to all who are troubled with stomach trouble."

SARNIA CO. WORKMEN DROWNED IN LAKE PENAG

A Heavily Laden Canoe Submerged During a Squall.

Sudbury Ont., June 9.—Archibald Tutt, aged 31; Jael Hunter, 26, and George Girard, 20, were drowned in Lake Penag on Monday.

They were crossing the lake with Thomas Chambers and another man in a Peterboro canoe, when a squall sprang up. The heavily-laden canoe filled with water.

The men clung to it, but the three mentioned became exhausted and sank. Chambers and the other managed to hang on to the submerged craft and drifted ashore, after being in the water about two hours.

Tutt, who came from England a few years ago, lived in Webbwood, and leaves a young widow and a week-old child. Hunter came from Burk's Falls, and Girard from Arden.

All three were employed on the Cleveland-Sarnia Lumber Company's drive. The bodies were recovered.

LONDON, FRIDAY, JUNE 9.

FIELDING TO TUPPER.

Mr. Fielding has been the great man of the past week. His controversial powers exerted on both sides of the Atlantic have put a quietus on Sir Charles Tupper, as a revived factor in Canadian politics, and given British Unionists pause in their attacks on Canadian self-government.

It is hard to see why Sir Charles Tupper should have ventured out in extreme old age to attack so formidable a statesman. But the veteran has never lacked audacity. He is a Sir Kay of politics, fond of hot water. His somewhat truculent letter to Mr. Fielding has brought an answer of marked forbearance, to which it will be impossible for him to make any effective counter.

Mr. Fielding, in fact, goes through Sir Charles as easily and smoothly as a bullet through tissue paper. For the most part he merely quotes from the Hansard reports of Sir Charles' own speeches. In so doing, he absolutely proves to any reader that Sir Charles did predict the ruin of Canadian industries from the Fielding tariff of 1897, after, as well as before, it had been variously amended. But now, writes, Mr. Fielding, "our opponents generally acknowledge the splendid success of that policy. They picture the condition of the country as so prosperous and happy that we should now have no change of tariff policy, but should let well enough alone."

As regards this part played by Tupper in the reciprocity negotiations of 1887-1888, the Minister of Finance shows up Sir Charles' evasions on that head, and proves again, from the report of his work, which Sir Charles himself made to the House of Commons, on returning from Washington at that time, that he not simply favored reciprocity, but was so eager to get it that he proposed fishery concessions to the United States.

Sir Charles' present enthusiasm for British preference, which he laments to see "whittled away" by recent treaties, is criticised in two ways. In the first place, there was no opposition by leading members of the Opposition in Parliament to the new commercial arrangements with France, Holland, Belgium, Italy and Germany. They woke up only when the name United States caught their ear. Secondly, neither Sir Charles nor his associates ever favored a British preference in any practical form; they have paid only lip-homage to some imaginary ideal of imperial preference which is set, not on this world, but in heaven perhaps. Sir Charles' complaint, therefore, that the British preference, which he himself opposed with fury, but which the Laurier Government carried through, is endangered by the reciprocity agreement, is hard to understand. Mr. Fielding reminds Sir Charles that he was paired against a resolution, moved in the House of Commons, affirming the "material benefit to the mother country and to Canada" of British preference.

Is it just childishness that the former advocate of reciprocity and enemy of British preference, should now show such hatred of the former, and zeal for the latter? If so, it is not the childishness of old age, for Sir Charles is still in vigorous enjoyment of his faculties, and the Opposition leaders have made the same sudden flop-over.

STATESEMEN AT PLAY.

"A Peer," writing to the Times, complains of Premier Asquith's scandalous lightness in going at this funereal time in costume to a fancy dress ball. While Mr. Balfour went in ordinary evening dress, the sober peer was pained to see Mr. Asquith in a domino. He argues that participation in such gaieties shows that the Prime Minister does not realize the "gravity of the issues that he himself has raised, and which he is endeavoring to persuade his countrymen are vital to the public interest." One can hear "Peer" wailing: "The peers are dying, Mr. Asquith, while you sport. Have you thought of that? Have you no soul? The sport to you is death to them, poor frogs."

"Peer" goes on to observe that fancy dress balls are not the kind that Lord Beaconsfield would have gone to. This is a crass and obvious misstatement of fact. Why, Lord Beaconsfield always lived in fancy dress. If "Peer" had said Gladstone, there would have been less of a joke, although his biographer records that the Grand Old Man used to sing comic songs.

Worst offence of all, says "Peer," Mr. Asquith, in his domino, betrayed amusement at the appearance of Mr. Astor, the American Unionist member of Parliament, in a peer's robes, with the number "499" attached to a tinsel coronet. Mr. Astor's joke was not particularly delicate or well-timed, but the fault was all Mr. Asquith's, who was polite enough to laugh at it.

It is a relief to know that the two party leaders can relieve their serious cares by going to a ball in a domino, or by taking a ride in an aeroplane, and that they do not treat such diversions as though they were politics. And the Empire? It is very reassuring to get the impression that neither leader is really afraid that Britain or the constitution is going to ruin or in danger of it. In private life these gentlemen and their followers are still enjoying themselves and a measure of friendship or amity.

THE NOVA SCOTIA ELECTION.

At this distance it is hard to appraise the relative weight of local and Dominion issues in the Nova Scotia election campaign. It looks as though the Conservative Opposition, in its helplessness against the efficiency of the Murray Government, and against its own long record of defeat, has clutched at an anti-reciprocity plank as a forlorn hope to rescue it from its want of a provincial policy. The Government, on the other hand, while it carried a vote in the Legislature of 31 to 4 indorsing the pact, prefers in the election contest to stand upon its own record and provincial policy. It is not going out of its way to import an extraneous issue. No doubt it may be willing to take advantage of any favorable gale from the reciprocity quarter, but it makes a fair fight on the really pertinent issues.

There is no doubt that the Murray Government will be sustained against a "leaderless, policyless and rudderless" Opposition. It is a literal fact that the Opposition has no leader. Mr. E. W. Thomson writes as correspondent to the Boston Transcript:

"If he did not feel sure that the tenure of Premier Murray is about to be extended for four years more, Mr. Fielding would, no doubt, be campaigning actively in the province. He sailed for England on Wednesday last. The many interested Bluenoses of Boston will interpret this to signify Mr. Fielding's confidence that Mr. Murray is very capable of holding all that he has."

It is, however, too much to expect that Premier Murray will retain his full majority. Only four members have represented the Opposition in the late Legislature, the party being almost annihilated at the election of 1906. Probably it is not in the best interests of Nova Scotia that a broken-down, one-lunged Opposition like that should sit on the Speaker's left. There is a pendulum in election affairs which may swing this time more the Conservatives' way, even in Bluenose land. But it would be absurd to ascribe a diminution of Murray's huge majority to any anti-reciprocity sentiment. Quite the contrary, a Government now 29 years in the saddle might well consider not only its clean and brilliant record, but the favorable influence of a strong sympathy with the reciprocity agreement to be a cause of continued victory.

To throw in the agreement, however, along with the Liberal record, is to paint the lily. Under Fielding and Murray the coal industry has particularly prospered, the product increasing from one million tons to sixteen million tons, the employees from 4,300 to 17,900. From this industry the province has reaped rich royalties, and on this industry depends the great expansion of steel business and railway building, in industrial and technical education Nova Scotia leads the Dominion. The Murray Government deserves the support of the people, and will get it.

A PERTINENT QUESTION.

[Goderich Signal.]

Will Conservatives admit that it was only the unfriendly attitude of the United States Government that saved Canada from disaster when Sir John Macdonald and Sir John Thompson besought Washington for a reciprocity treaty? Or is this outcry now made simply because it it a Grit Government that is securing what their leaders could not get?

PUNY.

[Chicago Tribune.]

"Mrs. Caswell, while you were in Venice did you see the Bridge of Sighs?"

"Oh, yes, I saw what they called that, but, my land! I've seen bridges ten times its size without going out of Pennsylvania!"

VALUE OF AN IMPRESSION.

[New York Telegraph.]

"Can she sing?" asked the personage who engages the chorus.

"Not a note," replied assistant, "but she has an attractive dimple."

"Give her a contract that she can't fracture!" said the personage.

HABITS OF THE PEST.

[Chicago Tribune.]

"Dicky," called out his mother, hearing him at the front door, "wipe your feet!"

Dicky paid no attention to the command, but every fly in the house instantly obeyed it.

A HURRY CALL.

[National Monthly.]

The political boss of a small western city drove his buckboard at top speed down the main street on the morning of election.

"Hey, Johnnie," he yelled to his son, "git down to the fourth ward quick! There's people voting down there as they blame please!"

UNENTHRONED THOMAS.

[Idler.]

There are some names which seem peculiarly suited to royalty. Francis, George, Henry, in both spellings; Charles, William, Edward and James have all served their turn. Johns there have been and Stephens. I remember a Robert in Sicily and a Peter in Russia and Servia. Frederick has often worn the crown, and royal honors are even now paid to Ferdinand in Bulgaria. But was there ever, anywhere, a king named Thomas? Oscars and even Haakens ascend the dais, but ever throughout all the centuries Thomas remains the subject, sometimes struggling up to a bishopric or an earldom, but never attaining the crown. Nicholases wear the imperial purple; Godfreys lord it over Jerusalem; Alexis struts in ermine; Alexanders fare forth to conquest; Julius and Leo don the triple crown, but Thomas has never a crown to his name. Now tell me, you who are wise in the occult influence of names, what is the matter with Tom?

TO BE SURE.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Regular Patron—Say, old man, why don't you put a roof over these bleachers?

Baseball Magnate—My dear sir, they wouldn't be bleachers if we did.

ONE OF THEM.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]

"Mrs. Rockinham, are you a Daughter of the Revolution?"

"No, but I am the vice-president of the new society composed of Ladies Who Have Been Snubbed by Queen Mary."

NO GOOD FOR HIM.

[Philadelphia Record.]

The dyspeptic was discoursing on the subject of his ailments.

"Worcestershire sauce is very good for the liver," said the man who gives advice.

"But I never eat liver," snapped the dyspeptic.

ON THE HOTEL PIAZZA.

[Harper's Weekly.]

"Why don't you show a little ambition, Slithers?" asked Binks. "Go in and make a reputation for yourself."

"What's the use?" said Slithers. "I'd no sooner make it than these old ladies on the piazza here would tear it all to pieces."

AN ORGANIZATION AND ITS OBJECTS.

[Washington Star.]

"What is the object of the club that Mrs. Barmg-Banners is organizing?"

"I believe," replied Miss Cayenne, "that the charter members expect to derive great enjoyment from blackballing applicants for membership whom they happen to dislike."

THE BARN'S OFFSHOOTS.

[Buffalo Express.]

"Pretty handsome barn, don't you think?" said the member of the city group who had been on the farm before.

"Which is that?" asked the one who was on her first visit.

"The large red building is the barn."

"Oh, yes. And the little buildings around it are the barracks, are they?"

HUMMED THE TUNE.

[Grit Reformer.]

You cannot down the Scotch. At a New York public school picnic the other day, Andrew Carnegie, who was present with his family, called for a Highland dance, and the youngsters executed it to a hummed accompaniment, the Italian band which was in attendance being naturally quite unequal to providing them proper sounds. As if the Scotch could be suppressed by merely providing them with Italian bands! Mr. Carnegie presented the school with a hundred dollars, another evidence of his ability to "make things hum."

BATHING POOLS ON THE RIVER!

Board of Works Order Three Places To Be Selected at Once.

CLOSING VICTORIA PARK

Citizen Asked That Autos Be Barred, But the Letter Was Simply Filed.

At the meeting of the board of works held last night, Ald. Cooper and City Engineer Wright were named a committee to select three suitable bathing places on the river, where proper facilities can be provided for youngsters to go in swimming.

They will interview Sir George Gibbons to see if the tail race at the Saunby mill cannot be utilized as one spot. The others will probably be at the head of Maitland street in the north end, and the foot of Adelaide street in the south branch.

J. H. Flock, K.C., and Dr. J. S. Niven appeared before the committee, and asked that a sewer be laid to the Protestant Orphans' Home. City Engineer Wright will report on the cost, etc.

It was decided that no privy vault shall be allowed to be built within 50 feet of a dwelling house, if there is a sewer on the street. The matter was brought up by a resolution from the board of health asking that some action be taken in this matter.

The board of works recommended to the council that the stub end of Wellington street be rented to the Thistle Bowling Club at $1 a year.

Closing the Park.

Mr. W. E. Saunders wrote suggesting that Victoria Park be closed on Sundays to automobiles and all other vehicles. He pointed out that the place was made so dusty that it was unfit for people to sit in.

On motion of Ald. Mitchell the communication was filed.

"Why not oil the roads?" he suggested. "That would prevent the dust, and make the place a proper one for people to enjoy themselves. It is very foolish to endeavor to keep vehicles out of the park.

The roads will be oiled, and No. 2 committee instructed to have the work done at once.

The county council notified the board to remove their buildings from their property on King street. City Engineer Wright was instructed to have the work done at once.

The Building Bylaw.

City Architect Nutter recommended amendments to the building bylaw to provide protection for property where gasoline, etc., is used. The old bylaw is obsolete, and Mr. Nutter was instructed to bring in the necessary amendments.

It was reported that the C. P. R. had taken 11 feet more property than was given them by the city at Quebec street, and City Engineer Wright was instructed to investigate at once.

It was decided to lay a walk at Trafalgar and the Hamilton road, the city to pay half the cost and the township of Westminster the other half.

The tenders for the repairs to the court house and jail will be opened at the county buildings on Friday evening, and the board will be present.

Those in attendance were Ald. Cooper (chairman), Ald. Saunders, Ald. Mitchell, Ald. Morgan, Mayor Beattie, City Engineer Wright and Secretary Baker.

GREAT PLANT FOR SYDNEY TO BUILD THE WARSHIPS

Ten Million Dollar Concern Formed Ready to Construct Anything From a Torpedo Boat to Submarine.

[Canadian Press.]

London, June 9.—The formation of the British-Canadian Shipbuilding Company, with a subscribed capital of $10,000,000, is announced.

The company is organized to build warships and merchant vessels, and it is said it has bids in for four armored cruisers of the Bristol class, and six torpedo boat destroyers to be built by the Canadian Government.

Sir Henry M. Pellatt, of Toronto, is chairman of the company, and other directors are Lieutenant-Governor Gibson, of Ontario; Sir Charles Ellis, of the John Brown Company, of Clydebank, and Mr. Gracey, of the Fairfield Company.

The new company's shipyards, docks and machine shops will be at Sydney, Nova Scotia. The company will receive a yearly subsidy of $170,000 for 35 years from the Government.

It is stated that the company is ready to build anything from a torpedo boat to a submarine.

The Clydebank company have agreed to send to Sydney all the technical experts needed.

VIOLENCE AT VANCOUVER

Two Men Badly Beaten by Strike Sympathizers.

Vancouver, June 8.—Two men were man-handled and badly beaten by strike sympathizers this afternoon in an apartment house being built on Twenty-first avenue and Main street.

W. Patterson, a foreman of construction, was attacked by five men, and hit over the eye with a piece of two-by-four scantling. The wound was serious enough to necessitate the putting in of eight stitches. J. Byrant, an apprentice, aged 18, was kicked and beaten till he was laid out. The building is being erected by Contractor A. B. Beach, and is just about finished.

LONG STRIKE SETTLED.

Chicago, June 9.—A strike of 2,500 brickmakers, called May 1, that caused 40,000 men to be idle in the building trades, and tied up $40,000,000 worth of building operations, was ended today. The settlement, which the strikers voted to accept, is a compromise, giving the men last year's wage scale. Two men struck to prevent a reduction.

Of Interest To Women

After-Supper Talks

With Cynthia Grey

"Guidance" Should Be the Mother's Watchword and Not "Discipline."

If you are a stickler for discipline, much discipline, spelled with 10 great big capital letters, and believe that discipline is the material to be used in laying a good strong foundation for the building of your small daughter or small son's life, read Kipling's piteous little child story, "Baa, Baa, Black Sheep." Just read it. And having read it, take a backward look at your relationship with your own small son or daughter.

Guidance and companionship is what children need, not discipline. If there is never any guidance and companionship element in their small lives, perhaps the necessity for discipline will arise and grow; but starting right, with understanding of the child mind, and the child viewpoint, and with a desire to establish and maintain the relation of comrade to your child, the word discipline may be taboo in the household vocabulary.

Kipling's lovable and entirely normal little "Black Sheep" was done to death by over discipline, administered with a cruel mind and hand.

Later there came a change and love came back to him, but all the love and tenderness in the world could never blot out the memory of the cruel years, or make the little soul quite the same, for the scar was there. Faith and trust in the goodness of the entire world and everybody had been shaken, and forever and ever in the child mind there must be a germ of doubt and a shrinking of suspicion and fear.

Of course real mother love and father love form the necessary mainspring and motive power for proper understanding and guidance.

Not sentimentality merely, but the great big deep real parent love.

Children's Corner

DOW IS A WONDERFUL DOG—HE TALKS!

A Story for Boys and Girls About a Nine-Word Dog Wonder and Other Dogs.

There is a dog that can really talk, it is said. Not bark as many other well-trained dogs do when they try to imitate the voice of man, but he can say nine different words, and as distinctly as a human being says the same words.

More than that, he can speak German, but that isn't as strange as it appears because Don—that's his name—lives in Hamburg, Germany, and his master, Herr Ebers, is a German.

Among the words that Don can say are: Have, hunger, quiet, Don and five other words, including the name of his master's daughter's best fellow. He is very fond of his master's daughter.

Scientific men examined Don very carefully and found that he can really articulate, which was hitherto thought impossible for a dog.

Many dogs can be made to bark in a way which closely resembles the human voice. If you have a dog try to teach him to do tricks, such as sitting up, barking for food and other simpler things at first until he shows an aptitude for more difficult performances.

Did you ever stop to think when you played with your dog, about his history?

Dogs come from the same family as wolves, foxes and jackals. In fact, the dog is today little removed from the wolf, and if allowed to run wild for many years will become a wolf practically. When Robinson Crusoe left his island several tame dogs were left behind. Thirty years afterwards, these dogs had become quite wild; hunting like wolves, howling instead of barking, for you know, a wild dog seldom barks.

Australia has multitudes of wild dogs, called dingoes; in Asia and Africa there are many also. There is an island off the coast of Iceland where there are dogs which are really little wolves, and if they are allowed to stay wild much longer will become wolves.

A TENDERFOOT'S WOOING

BY CLIVE PHILLIPS WOLLEY, Auther of "Gold, Gold in Cariboo," etc.

[All Rights Reserved.]

"Leg broke," he said. His shot with the pine billet had been a good one. Under that gray blanket by the white man's fire a lover of dogs felt his flesh creep and his hands clench, but Jim Combe, having been trained in a hard school, had learned when to interfere and when to hide his time. He could not help the poor beast now, and his first duty was to look after his boss's wife and that dear curly little head under the blue robe. After this the gray dawn began to come, a sad, weird light sifting through the pine trees, while the fires died down, and the tiny chickadees began to call among the boughs, warning their woodmates that those silent-footed things who use the "fire sticks" were moving again in their lairs, and would soon be creeping towards the high places whither the ful-fed stags were already sauntering for a day's siesta after a long night's feed.

With the first hint of light, a busy stir began in the Indians' camp; even before that the women must have been moving in their teanto, for Emma, bent and old, began to put out strangely compounded packs, blankets rolled and corded, and bloody parcels of meat.

Then the lean-tos came down, and they, too, were dissolved into packs, and before the dawn had come the Indian camp was competely dismantled, the pack horses loaded with hides and meat, and everything ready for a start.

The Indians were apparently not going to stay to cook breakfast.

It had been a successful hunt, even for the Chilcotens, and every living thing in camp, except the braves, carried packs. Of course, the braves would neither pack anything nor allow their saddle horses to be packed so long as there was a tottering old woman, a child or a dog in camp which could possibly be made to stagger under another pound.

When the procession had wound away into the woods, the toothless old princess leading, bending under a mountain of rugs, followed by bundles under which tiny bare legs tottered, and dogs, upon whose backs clattered pots and pails, by the fire there still lay one bale of cedar matting.

The young buck who had thrown the pine billet came round, kicking the charred sticks and peering among the young trees, stripped of their feathery frondage, and growing giants brutally gashed and wounded, so that their life blood would ooze slowly away from them, leaving them dry and fit for the camp fire, but though he turned over the brush bedding and looked at every extemporized peg on which anything could have been left hanging, he found nothing.

The camp was empty—nothing had been left behind. Then his eye fell upon the bundle of cedar matting. It weighed nothing, so that he might have tied it on behind his saddle; it was worth nothing, so that he might have left it where it was, but his eye, wandering round to find someone on whom to lay the worthless burden, fell upon his victim of the night before, crouching where it had been tied, its head Stretched out along the ground, not dead, but cowering to escape notice.

This was what the Indian was looking for. Seizing the dog's rope he untied it from the tree and dragged the unhappy beast toward the pack.

At the first jerk the dog howled with anguish, and Mrs. Holt, whose ears were always open to a beast's cry of pain, turned sharply on her heel. The howl was, of course, rewarded with a curse and a kick, and then, screaming at every movement, the poor brute was jerked along the ground, its broken bones grinding together as it went.

In its agony it tried to bite its tormentor, and in a moment a club was in its hard again.

"Oh, my God, won't someone stop the brute?" cried Kitty, almost in tears, but the elder woman, white with rage, said nothing. With her riding crop in her hand, and her fine nostrils wide and twitching, she was almost within striking distance of the Chilcoten, when a strong hand caught her and swung her unceremoniously out of the way.

"You swine!" she heard, as she was pushed on one side, and though it was not pretty English for Anstruther, her heart went out to the boy for it, as his fist crashed into the big Indian's face, dropping him like a pole-axed ox.

Kisheenaw, for it was the chief's son, struggled to his feet. "Want moxe, do you?" drawled the English voice, now quiet and steady, and again the fellow went down, and Anstruther stood over him ready to repeat the dose as often as the man should require it.

But a woman's voice cried to him: "The rifle, Frank, the rifle!" and he was only just in time to put his foot upon it before the figure at his feet had got possession of it.

At that moment a man who had come running back from tending his horses stepped, white lipped and stern, in front of Kitty Clifford, so that she saw neither Kineeshaw nor the other Indians, who had returned at the sound of the fighting, but she heard a rifle shot ring out, and if she could have seen from where she stood, she might have seen Jim square his shoulders and put his head back, like a man who prepares to take a shock. But neither Anstruther nor Jim fell. Khelowna, though he had fired point blank into the group, had not dared as much as that yet. It was only the wretched dog, which with a strange instinct, had crawled for preservation to Mrs. Rolt, that turned over under her very feet and stretched itself in death. The blood of it splashed her skirt.

Then Jim jumped forward.

"Drop them guns, you dogs!" he roared. "Anstruther, cover those men and stand still. If they stir, shoot. Now, Khelowna, drop that gun, or——" and his rifle said the rest.

The cowboy's tense face was working with rage, but the Indians, who were fortunately in a group and unsheltered by timber, saw that his Winchester was as steady as a rock, and they knew a white man's voice when it meant business.

They knew, too, Jim Combe's reputation as a rifle shot, and when Khelowna dropped his empty rifle the rest of the band followed his example.

It takes a very brave man to shoot when another and a quicker man has the drop on him, and except when behind cover Indians are not very brave men, neither are they good shots, and this they knew.

"Let him up, Anstruther," ordered Jim, with his eye still on the group. "And now, you dogs, git out of that! No! leave them rifles there. I want those in my business. If you put a hand to them I'll shoot, sure."

Sullenly, but without a word of protest, the four braves slunk away, leaving behind them at one white man's command what they prized most in the world.

When they had gone, Jim turned to Mrs. Rolt.

"That's a bad business, a bitter, bad business, I'm afraid. I lost my head a bit, so you mustn't mind if I did swear, Mrs. Rolt. We've got to git now, and only hit the high places between this and the ranch. Put Miss Kitty up, Anstruther."

But Anstruther was busy collecting the rifles.

"No, never mind them. I'll fix them," said Combe, and, taking them one by one, he smashed the stocks off them against the nearest pine tree.

The Troubles of Two Maids

Dear Miss Grey—I am a girl 19 years old, and I have been keeping company with a young man who is 21. We have been keeping company for almost three years. He will come awhile, and then he will stay away awhile. Then he will come back as though nothing ever happened, and he will never say what is the matter. Would you advise me to find out what he intends to do or if he is just coming for a pastime? MINNIE.

Dear Miss Grey—Will you kindly advise me, and answer my questions? What would you think of a fellow who has been coming to see you six or more years, and also has another girl, and goes home with her whenever he gets the chance? Or when she asks him to go home with her he goes, and, on his way back, calls in to see me? I like to have him come, but not after he goes there. As I am not ready to marry, he has kindly consented to wait for me, but as he has broken so many promises, I don't hardly know whether to depend on him or not. Do you think he will be as good as his word? I think the world of him, and he says he does of me. When I ask him why he goes with her he says: "I like her. She has always used me well," but say, "I like you best." But I can't see it that way. I have told him he has either got to stop coming here or going there. Isn't that quite right? He also takes her places where I am. Don't you think he is very nervy? Thanking you in advance.

YOUNG SISTER.

Miss Grey's Advice.

These forlorn maidens are indeed having troubles of their own, and I fear that I cannot help them in any way. I should feel like giving the cold shoulder to any one, man or woman, who acted in this manner towards me. I don't like these spasmodic friendships—hot one day and cold the next. However, in answer to "Minnie." If there is no engagement between you, the man is not bound to pay you steady attentions. You could give him to understand, though, that you do not like his way of treating you, but I do not think it would be advisable to question him regarding his intentions. If he means business, little girl, he will tell you some day. In the meantime, you are young, and perhaps will discover that he is not "the" man after all.

If "Young Sister" feels now that she cannot trust the man, I should not think her prospects of happiness would be very great after marriage. Personally, I have little use for a man who says one thing and acts another. If you are really betrothed, I do not blame you in the least for disapproving of his paying attention to another girl. Perhaps you have exaggerated his friendship for her?

To both of you, I would say, in conclusion: Have you consulted your mothers about your love affairs? Remember, mother has been through the mill herself, and knows best how to advise her girl.

Break enough leaves of tender mint to make one cupful when pressed; cut or chop, cover with a pint of boiling water and steep for half an hour; then strain, pressing hard. Soak a half package of gelatine in a half-cupful of cold water and stand over hot water until dissolved. Add to the mint water one tablespoonful of powdered sugar and three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice or vinegar. Tint slightly with green coloring and pour into wetted molds, placing on ice until firm.

Lobster a la Newburg.

One heaping tablespoonful butter, one cupful cream, one-half gill or one-fourth cup sherry or Madeira, yolks of three eggs, two cups chopped lobster; season with salt and pepper. Melt butter in chafing dish, add wine and cook until the wine is partly evaporated; mix cream and beaten yolks and add to butter and wine; stir till it thickens, then add seasoning and stir in the lobster.

Do You Know—

That a slice of lemon put into the copper when boiling clothes will make them beautifully white and will remove all stains from handkerchiefs and children's clothes? Cut the lemon with the rind into slices and allow it to remain in the boiler until the clothes are ready to come out.

Refrigerators and Robins.

To avoid the daily emptying of the refrigerator pan, conduct the water by means of a hose to the garden. To do this, bore a hole an inch or more in diameter in the floor directly under the refrigerator. Have a tinner make a 10-inch funnel large enough at one end to fit the pipe on the refrigerator, tapering to an inch or less. Fit the funnel to the pipe and thrust the small end through the floor with a piece of tubing or old hose. Draw the end of the hose from under the house or the porch into the grass.

Three or four feet from the house wall sink a shallow pan to the level of the grass. Over the end of this lay the end of the hose, which has been covered with wire gauze to exclude insects. The continually melting ice will supply a drinking cup very much enjoyed by the robins and other birds in the neighborhood, especially if it is large enough to allow them a good bath once in a while. I have seen three at one time quarrelling about a tiny cup at which they were daily visitors all through the hot summer days. Robins chirped, but also blackbirds and catbirds, sparrows and an unknown feathered visitor, all in turn, gathered about the little cup of fresh water under the shady pear tree.

Sammy Smith had ample revenge for the unkind things the umpire did to him Wednesday, handing a beautiful beating to Naughty Lee's Kolts yesterday afternoon at Tecumseh Park. The Londoners galloped home, with the score 9 to 1 in their favor. About 500 fans enjoyed the pastiming to the limit, as it gave the home folks the first real opportunity to cheer lustily this week.

About all there was to the game was Sammy. The big boy had a rare assortment of curves, and great control. He had his salivated slant working like a bit of greased machinery, and he rarely was in danger. It was about as impressive a bit of twirling as has been seen here in many moons. The big boy pitched shut-out ball, and only the worst kind of luck prevented him decorating the visitors with the order of the white wings. An unfortunate error by Bierbauer on a nasty bounder, paved the way for a tally, marring an otherwise perfect record. However, Sammy was there, and did some swell heaving. In the ninth inning, just to show the gallery some regular steam roller work, he disposed of three Hamilton hitters on strikes.

Sammy Some Hitter.

Sammy broke into the picture from the offensive point of view also. Once he laid down a perfect sacrifice, but some bad heaving followed, allowing a run to ooze across. He followed this up with a base knock that scored a run. According to statisticians, this is the first healthy wallop Sammy has had credited to him since Cain struck out Abel. Then came the climax—he actually stole third. This is some feat, believe us, and when the visitors saw him do this trick they almost collapsed. Sammy just did this to show his versatility.

However, there were eight other gentlemen in the doings, from a London point of view. The team for the first time in some days showed consecutive hitting, that was a delight. It was a field day for Hynes, who played left field. Long Tom had four healthy hits on five times up—some bingling. Reske played the most sensational game since coming to the city. He caught Smith perfectly, and his pegging to second was certainly some treat. He had three knocks, two of them for two stations. Bierbauer, at first, got in the limelight, making some great stops, and hit like a veteran. He had the only error credited to the local outfit, but his brilliant fielding and batting atoned for any misplay he made. Andrews was great. He was always handy with the hit that counted, and fielded cleverly. Hynes fielded well, while Brant and Nichols handled the infield in fancy fashion. Jo-Jo and Pancratz did all that was required of them.

Hams Fail to Bat.

Hamilton was shy on the bingle, and also played a somewhat ordinary game in the field. Keating, a nice-looking lad, did the trundling, and he was comparatively easy. He was nicked often, and seemed to have little but a smile. Carey and Rose made some catches in the outfield that were some class, believe us.

The visitors scored their only run in the second inning. Grieves hit a bad bounder to Bierbauer, who played it badly, allowing it to go through his legs. Killilea sacrificed him to second, and he was rescued by Carey's base knock to centre. After that, Barton and Kolseth got as far as second, but were anchored. Keating made a fine drive to left, but failed to touch second base and was called out. It was an easy two-base drive.

The Scoring.

London started scoring in the third, Keenan hit for two sacks, Bierbauer laid down a perfect bunt, beating the throw. He stole second, and both scored on Reske's two-base drive to left. Barton let a pitch get away from him, and Reske scored when Barton tossed the ball to left field to get him.

Another was added in the fourth, three in the fifth and one in the seventh and eighth.

It was a great game, and the team looks 100 per cent better than it has any time this year. With fair pitching it is more than good, and with good pitching the bunch will be hard to beat.

HADLEY TOO MUCH FOR MAPLE LEAFS

Brantford Twirler in Great Form—Holds Visitors to 5 Hits, All of Scratchiest Variety.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Brantford June 9.—The Maple Leafs never had a look-in here today against the superb pitching of Hadley, who struck out twelve men and held the visitors to five hits, all of which were of the scratchy in-field order. Only two balls were batted to the outfield off Hadley's delivery, and these were flies gathered in easily. Hadley's pitching was a shade better than that shown by Orth here on Wednesday, in that the Brantford portsider allowed only one base on balls and was never in difficulties. In the seventh inning Guelph scored one on Jeffries and McWhirter's scratch hits, being advanced by infield outs.

Harvey Muir lasted four innings against the Red Sox. A single by Duffy, Kane's double and Barry's liner to centre, scored two. Orcutt sacrificed, and Harrison scored Barry. Mason was called in, and a hit, a sacrifice, followed by two more singles, drove two more in.

Brantford will pitch Joe Jerger against the Leafs at Guelph today.

FLYING DUTCHMEN ARE TOO MUCH FOR SAINTS

Tracey Is in Great Form, Shutting Chawser's Crew Out and Allowing but Five Hits.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

St. Thomas, June 8.—The Flying Dutchmen were too much for the Saints, handing them a lovely coat of kalsomine. The final score was 4 to 0, and Chaucer Elliott's bunch never had a chance.

Tracey, Deneau's best bet, was in great form, allowing but five hits. They were scattered as widely as the ten tribes of Israel, and did no damage. One man reached third base, and he died there.

Howick pitched a fair game, but some slow fielding on bunts made easy outs go for hits. There was some brilliant fielding, the game being the best of the season. The score:

OVERTIME STRUGGLES IN EASTERN LEAGUE

Skeeters Take Ten Innings to Win, While Baltimore Needs Twelve to Scratch Out Victory.

Providence, June 8.—Jersey City took the first of the series this afternoon in a loosely-played game of ten innings from the locals, the score standing 6 to 4. Errors were responsible for all the Jersey City runs, except the home run of Dolan, which Elston misjudged badly on an ordinary drive. Dumb playing was mixed with the errors. Bartley was batted off the mound in the ninth after pitching a splendid game up to the eighth. The Providence pitchers worked well, but received miserable support. Score:

Baltimore, June 8. — The Baltimores celebrated their return home today by taking the Newarks into camp in an exciting well-played game in twelve innings. Both McGinnity and Vickers pitched splendid ball at critical stages, and were faultlessly supported by their team-mates. The Orioles won the game in the twelve inning, scoring a run on three scratch hits. The score:

SILVER JOE THIRD AT CHATHAM RACES

Dan McEwan's Colt Cannot Carry Speed a Mile as Yet—Dr. Wood's Fair Hazel Fourth in Trot.

Chatham, June 8.—The third and final day of the Chatham races was brought to a close here today and proved to be the only day of the meeting that a record did not fall by the wayside, although fast time was made. Another large crowd was present and enjoyed the sport.

Canadian horses were conspicuous in four events, and managed to get a big share of the purses in two of the pacing events and the running race.

Lou Jean won the 2:15 pace in easy fashion from a good field, including Countess Marie, the Colorado mare, driven by Ramey Macey, who failed to get near the coin and was flagged in the last heat.

The 2:10 pace went to Bushnell King, the Toronto horse that made such a remarkable showing earlier in the season on the Toronto track. Ian Bars and St. Anthony both made him step to win.

Gertie T., the mare owned and driven by Jacob Fisher, of Lexington, Mich., after losing the first heat in the 2:18 trot, went out and won in easy fashion.

The best time of the day was 2:14¾, made by Lou Jean and Bushnell King. From here the campaigners go to Tillsonburg, where the circuit holds forth next week. The summaries:

WILL SETTLE PROTESTS

The executive of the East End league will hold a session tonight at 8:30 in the store of Secretary Simmons, 666 Dundas street, to finally dispose of the protests now in hand.

The games on Saturday promise to be good. In the first session the Ramblers and St. John's hook up, while the Jubilees and McClary's take the sunset session. All the teams are in good shape, and there should be some fun.

DAILY HISTORY OF BASEBALL

JUNE 9.

1881—The Buffalo Nationals defeated Boston, 1 to 0, in thirteen innings, Jim Galvin pitching against "Grasshopper Jim" Whitney, who held the Bisons to three hits. Not another thirteen-innings 1 to 0 game was played in the National League until nine seasons later.
1883—The Boston Nationals vanquished Detroit, 30 to 8, the pounded pitchers being Weldman and Mansell.
1890—The Brooklyn American Association Club played a championship game with Syracuse on the Polo Grounds, in New York, the switch from the Ridgewood Park being due to the fact that the grounds were hard to reach.
1890—First professional baseball game played in Montreal, the International League team of that city defeating Toronto, 11 to 10.
1893—In the Baltimore-Chicago National League game, the outfielders caught 23 fly balls.
1896—Ed McKean, of Cleveland, obtained four singles and a triple in the game with Philadelphia.
1899—Eustace J. ("Doc") Newton, of the Indianapolis American League Club, twirled a no-hit game against Milwaukee.
1901—The Giants made 25 runs and 31 hits, for a total of 39 bases, off three Cincinnati pitchers—Bill Phillips, Amos Rusie and Barney McFadden. "Kip" Selbach, now managing Harrisburg, led in the attack, garnering 4 singles and 2 doubles.
1906—The Philadelphia Nationals attempted to delay a game with Pittsburg, and Umpire Bill Klem, declaring it forfeited to the Pirates, was almost mobbed, and ever since has been persona non grata in Quakerdom.
1910—The Giants rallied in the ninth inning of the game with St. Louis, when the score was 4 to 0 against them, and made five runs of Pitcher Sallee.

PITCHER M'INTYRE REPORTS FOR DUTY

Big Toronto Hurler on Hand — Complaints Made About Rowdies—Lurid Language Must Be Cut Out—Kyle Better.

Pitcher McIntyre, late with the Torontos, arrived last night from that city, and will try and hold the Flying Dutchmen down at Berlin today. This big fellow is a southpaw of great promise, and his friends are hoping that he will turn the trick this afternoon. Deneau's bunch have a good lead, but they can be pulled down, and the Tecumsehs are banking on McIntyre doing the trick.

Andy Kyle also reported. He has been at his home in Toronto ever since he was struck by a batted ball, resting up. He is in fairly good shape, although his eye is not properly healed. He will also be in the lineup today, making the team the regular nine.

Complaints have been made to President Ferguson regarding the rowdy tactics of some of the fans. There have been some very vociferous rooters of late in the stands, and their language has not been as polite as it should be.

The matter was taken up last night at a meeting of the directors of the club, and they decided that in future this sort of thing will have to be cut out. Examples will be made of some of the chaps using the lurid language.

There have been complaints about smoking at the games and it is possible that some restrictions will be made regarding this. The directors have not finally decided upon that.

The Tecumsehs will play here on Saturday, entertaining the Guelph aggregation. It is not known who will pitch, but the choice will lie between Rich and Bignall. Both are ready.

TUG-OF-WAR FINALS SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Contest for The Advertiser Cup in Tecumseh Park at 2:45 P.M.—Perrin's and White's Pull This Evening.

The semi-finals in the tug-of-war contest for The Advertiser cup will be pulled this evening at Tecumseh Park, the Perrin team pulling White's. This will be some contest, as both teams are in the best of condition.

On Saturday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock the winners of this pull will tackle the C. P. R. team at Tecumseh Park. Patrons of the ball game will have their money's worth, as this sure will be some pull and worth while seeing.

Capt. T. E. Robson will referee the doings.

HOBBS WALLOP WHITES

Great Pitchers' Battle Last Evening in the Commercial League Goes to Hardware Team.

In the Commercial League last evening Hobbs trimmed White's, handing the foundrymen a shut-out, the score being 9 to 0. It was a pitchers' battle, between Rankin and Henley, with the honors in favor of Rankin. One of the features was Turner's great catch of a fly ball.

COBB AND DONOVAN CHASTEN CHAMPS

Do the Heavy Work in Handing Athletics Glorious 8 to 3 Beating in Philadelphia.

TIGERS HIT SOUTHPAWS

Drive Eddie Plank, One of the Best, to Cover, and Win Running Away —Delehanty Hits Well.

Philadelphia, June 8.—The veteran Bill Donovan showed form for the Tigers in the Memorial Day bill at Cleveland, but it was only against the Naps and a few skeptics were of the opinion that his work that day was only a flash in the pan. Philadelphia fans were the leaders in doubting the ability of the Smiler to "come back." Today Bill showed them that they were wrong, for pitted against Mack's southpaw hope, Eddie Plank, he held the world's champions safe while the Tigers pounded out an 8 to 3 victory.

The game was another thriller like Wednesday's battle. Up to the eighth inning when the Tigers started making a walk away victory there every one of the thousands at Shibe Park was looking for the Athletics to pull out a victory. The Athletics never had a lead on the ex-champions, but at the end of the sixth the score was even. Three runs were scored in the eighth and they put the Tigers one to the good. Hope was not given up then. The fans hadn't had a chance to forget yesterday's rally and the Athletics were fighting their hardest. In the eighth another pair of tallies came home for the Tigers but still the Athletics hung on, starting a rally in their half that resulted in runners getting on third and first. There were two out, however, and no scoring resulted.

PAPKE WINS FROM ENGLISH CHAMPION

"Illinois Thunderbolt" Helps His Claim on Title By Defeating Sullivan.

LOOSER SHOWED CLASS

Had Better of Argument at Long Range—Papke Roughs It Wonderfully.

London, June 8.—Billy Papke, the American middleweight, tonight took the measure of Jim Sullivan, the middleweight champion of England, in nine rounds of fast and furious fighting. Again it was the fighter against the boxer, and the fighter won with ease.

The contest was for the middleweight championship of the world, a purse of $10,000 and a side bet. It was pulled off under the management of Hugh D. McIntosh, the Australian promoter, in Palladium, one of London's noted music halls, before a large crowd.

Throughout the fight was a gruelling one. Sullivan proved the cleverer at long range work, but Papke excelled at in-fighting. There was much clinching and hitting in the clinches, and the referee, Eugene Corri, was compelled to remain in the ring, having difficulty at times in separating the men. He warned Papke twice.

The meeting had been the sole topic of discussion in sporting circles for days, and large sums were paid for ringside seats. Notwithstanding that the fight had been advertised as "America vs. England," Papke ruled a strong favorite at odds of 3 to 2 and 2 to 1.

Sullivan showed nervousness when he climbed into the ring, but after a few rounds seemed to recover confidence. For a time he was able to stand off Papke, who roughed it from the beginning, cleverly dodging slashing swings of the American, which, had they landed, would have ended the fight.

Sullivan used his left and right with good judgment, but without affecting the stamina of Papke, who was able to take unlimited punishment. Towards the close of the ninth round Papke landed a savage uppercut which put Sullivan to the floor. He took a count of five, and when the bell rang staggered blindly to his corner. When the call for the tenth sounded Sullivan was unable to stand up, and Corri awarded the fight to the American, amid great applause.

Boston, June 9. — Capt. Wagner, Shortstop, and Third Baseman Engle, of the Boston American League team, are to be shelved, temporarily, at least, because of the management's dissatisfaction with their work.

CANADIAN LEAGUE FAST.

A number of aspiring young ballplayers have walked into the Canadian League, only to turn around and walk out again. The class of ball supplied in the new circuit is too fast for totally inexperienced ball tossers. There seems to be little respect either for money or the limitations of the salary rule in Western Ontario.—Toronto Globe.

CONGREGATIONALISTS SHOW GOOD GROWTH

The Total Membership of the Churches Now Over Twelve Thousand.

Kingston, Ont., June 8. — At the opening session of the Congregational Union this morning Rev. J. T. Daley, Maxville, Ont., gave an address on "Our Religion." A report of the membership committee was adopted, taking into membership Rev. John Murray, Shanty Bay; Rev. John T. Tucker, St. John, N. B.; Rev. A. G. Sleep, Ottawa; Rev. Herbert Moule, Montreal; Rev. E. J. Thompson, Keswick Ridge, N. B.; Rev. G. Watt-Smith, Ottawa. First Congregational Church, Calgary, was received into membership, also the Ottawa South Churches, Zion Church, Toronto, formerly disbanded, will be dropped from the roll. The statistical report was read by Rev. A. Margrett, of Toronto, showing the total membership of the churches to be 12,204, an increase of 905. The value of church property amounted to $1,547,096, an increase of $325,000. The amount of money raised was $210,689, an increase of $11,770.

William Copp, Toronto, president-elect, took the chair at the meeting of the Missionary Society, and greetings were received from many, telling of the good work in all parts of Canada, Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Victoria churches, showing marked progress. The foreign work was also reviewed, and cheering reports presented. Men and women were giving themselves to the work.

H. W. Baker, treasurer, read his report. Contributions for the year amounted to $5,320. Under the head of designated funds reference was made to the gift from Mrs. William Freeland in commemoration of her late husband, who for many years was connected with Zion Church, Toronto. The income of this fund will be used for the education of native workers.

THE MARYS' GIFT TO GO TO CHARITY

Canada Headed the List With Thirty-Five Hundred Dollars.

London, June 9. — The Queen at Buckingham Palace yesterday was presented with a check for £12,500, which was subscribed in small sums by her namesakes of the Empire as a coronation gift. The Queen wished to devote the amount to charities. The collecting committee was insistent that the gift was a personal one, and the Queen therefore consented that a part of it should be devoted to the purchase of a diamond insignia of the Garter, and for portraits of King George and the Prince of Wales. In her letter of acceptance of the gift the Queen says: "I look forward with special satisfaction to devoting the remainder of the noble gift to a charitable object in which I am greatly interested."

The Queen has not divulged the name of the charity. Subscriptions are still coming in. The greater part of the amount was subscribed in England. The overseas contributions were headed by Canada, whose Marys sent £700.

Y., whither Mrs. Moore has gone to bring the remains home to Toronto. Funerals for the comfort of the widow and family were fervently recited by Rev. D. W. F. Wilson and Rev. C. O. Johnston, and a vote of sympathy will be tendered at this morning's session.

Could Not Rest at Night.

Back Was So Weak.

Weak, lame and aching backs are the primary cause of kidney trouble. When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning from the kidneys that everything is not right with them.

Heed the warning, cure the weak, lame, aching back and dispose of any chances of further trouble.

If you don't do this, serious complications are very apt to arise and the first thing you know you will be troubled with Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of Kidney Trouble.

On the first sign of anything wrong Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go to the seat of the trouble and strengthen the kidneys, thereby strengthening the back.

Mrs. John Puigh, Parkdale, Man., writes:—"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and find nothing to beat them. I could not rest at night my back was so weak. I tried everything, but could not get anything to do me any good until I was told by a friend to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I tried them and I am not the same weak woman I was before. I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

ANIMALS WILL BE PROTECTED

The Humane Society Intend to Start a Much-Needed Campaign.

CRUELTY TO BE STOPPED

Dumb Brutes Will Find the Full Measure of the Law Exerted To Insure Them Fair Treatment.

The Charity Organization and Humane Society held its monthly meeting yesterday afternoon in the city hall.

Many matters of interest relating to the humane branch of the work were discussed, and it was decided to start an educational campaign in the autumn, when the society will make an effort to put a stop to all ill-treatment of animals in this city, and to bring about the proper care of them.

If it can be arranged, next season's work will be opened with a walking contest between checked and unchecked horses at the Western Fair, and probably a street parade of working horses. One of the members spoke of such parades having been very successfully held in some of the American cities. A committee was appointed to interview the Western Fair Board in respect to the matter, and was given full power to take the necessary action to have these plans carried out.

Cases of Cruelty.

It was also decided that the society should make a thorough investigation into all practices concerning which any question existed as to whether cruelty was or was not involved, and to put the society's stamp of disapproval on those practices in which actual cruelty was found to exist, and to if possible have them prohibited. In order to go thoroughly into the matter the society will co-operate with similar organizations elsewhere, and so secure an interchange of opinion and unity of action.

The committee appointed at the last meeting to deal with the question of drinking fountains reported that they had found that there were only eight drinking fountains in the city, including the two erected by the society, and the two in Victoria Park.

New Fountains.

A communication had been sent to the city council asking the council to take some action in the matter, and suggesting that at least twelve new fountains be erected by the city this year. The city covers seven square miles, and the society felt that at the very least there should be three fountains in every square mile. The committee stated, however, that it was evidently the intention of the council to merely put into repair the existing eight fountains.

The inspector submitted interesting reports on both the Charity Organization and Humane departments of the work for the past month, which were adopted.

It was decided not to hold any monthly meetings in July and August and the board then adjourned until the second Thursday in September.

ASKS COUNCIL TO RAISE ASSESSMENT

Stamford Township Farmer Makes an Unusual Request.

St. Catharines, June 9.—It is seldom a township council or any other council finds itself confronted with a request like that which the Stamford township council has received. George R. Lundy, a farmer, appeared before the Stamford council and asked that the assessment on his farm be raised from $45 an acre to $100 an acre. Though it surprised the councillmen, they granted the request with alacrity.

When that formality was completed, Lundy sprung his surprise. "Now, gentlemen," he added, "I would like to ask you to raise proportionately the assessment of my neighbor, Allan Stevenson, and of the Bell Telephone."

Fine, the council flatly refused to do. "Very well," retorted Lundy. "I'll take the matter to the county court."

What the object of this singular move is, is not apparent.

FOWLER REPEATED STORY

blind him, when he reached the sidewalk. He had not spoken to her, on reaching his shop witness unlocked the door and went in. There was one light burning. Mrs. Heslop went into the shop, following witness. He did not know if the door was closed.

"Where did she go?" asked the crown.

"She must have gone to the back of the shop," said witness, who said he went behind the counter to look for the bottle. He found it, and witness said he had not been in the back shop, but heard glass break there. He went out, saw Mr. Heslop there, and asked him what was the matter. Before this, witness put the bottle down on an ash sifter. Witness asked Heslop if he had gone crazy. Mrs. Heslop was either in the back shop or doorway. Heslop said nothing, but went into the shop, and picked up two big knives, which witness produced.

"I've got both of you," he said holding them up. Witness ran back behind the counter and Heslop chased him, saying, "Come out of that."

Witness came out and went toward the office. He had to pass near Heslop, who struck at him. Witness threw up his arm to save his head, and had his forearm cut.

An Awful Chase.

He made for the door and when lifting the latch felt his arm fall, as if it had been pulled away. Next he felt his face numb. Witness ran into the back shop, and went through a window which Heslop had broken in getting in. Witness saw Heslop out in the street next, and again Heslop made a pass at him with a knife. It touched his coat, and Witness went eastward down the street, with three men after him, one of whom was Heslop. When near Mr. Grimmey's place a man named Garratt caught him. Some one knocked witness down, and he was taken out into the street. He was again knocked down, and when he got up and started back to his shop he was knocked down again. Witness went back to his shop and crawled through the broken window. Later he was taken to the hospital. Witness said he could not use his arm anything like as well as he could formerly.

Cross-examined by Mr. McEvoy, witness said the window turough which Heslop jumped was about a foot wide. The door between the back and front shop, he said, was always open, and there was a window in the back shop through which one could see into the front shop. The counter is about 8 feet long and the shop about 14 feet wide.

"You were in looking for a bottle of whiskey that was not there?" asked Mr. McEvoy.

"It was there," said witness.

A New Witness.

"When did you find this new witness, Morden?" asked Mr. McEvoy.

"I don't know," said Fowler, who said Morden told him so much that he wanted him for a witness. Witness said he got the bottle of whiskey that afternoon. It was brought over by Clare. Witness could not say whether he had given Clare money to pay for it or not.

Fowler said he stayed at Heslop's house not five minutes, and went there about 10 o'clock. Witness denied that he was with Mrs. Heslop.

"Did you say anything to her in the house?"

"No."

"No need to say anything?" queried Mr. McEvoy.

Witness made no answer. He said he had been getting a few meals at Heslop's and was very friendly with the family. He said he knew Mrs. Hartman, who lived close by.

"Do you remember Mrs. Hartman taking you to task for lallygagging with this man's wife?"

"No," said witness.

He denied that he had been in Heslop's house many times alone with Mrs. Heslop.

Mr. McKillop objected that this was not evidence.

"You have added to your evidence that you had two glasses of beer and said to Heslop, 'Are you going crazy?' That is new, when did you think of it?"

Witness didn't know. He denied having spoken to Mrs. Heslop in the house.

"Did you give her the wink?"

"No," said Fowler.

"Just as soon as you stepped at the back door she went out?"

"I suppose so."

"You knew she was coming?"

"No."

"When did you know Mrs. Heslop was behind you?"

"When I got to the sidewalk."

"Why did you say before that you knew she was behind you after leaving the door?"

Witness did not reply.

"What did she go into the butcher shop for?"

"To get the bottle of whiskey, I suppose."

"Did you speak to her at any time in the shop?"

"No."

"How long were you in the shop with her?"

"Till I found the bottle."

"How long?"

"Five minutes."

"Where were you in the shop?"

"Looking for the bottle."

"Were there any lights?"

"Only the one."

"Where was Mrs. Heslop while you were hunting the bottle?"

"I don't know."

Hunting the Bottle.

Witness said when he found the bottle Mrs. Heslop was sitting in a chair near the doorway to the back shop. He said he was behind the counter when Heslop came through the window. Witness said he did not lock the door and did not hear anybody try it.

"Unless you were very much engaged you would have heard if any man tried the door?" asked Mr. McEvoy.

Witness said he did not hear anyone.

"I didn't wait," said Fowler, when Mr. McEvoy asked him if he didn't say anything when Heslop came in.

"You didn't say anything when Heslop called you a 'dirty, dirty cur,' out on the street, and you didn't wait to say anything when the men chased you?"

"I kept on going," said witness.

Asked if Heslop was sober, witness replied: "He seemed pretty lively on his feet in the shop."

"And with his hoods?" said Mr. McEvoy.

"Yes," said witness.

"I would like you to tell this jury why this friend of yours came in and cut you up in this manner," said Mr. McEvoy.

"I can't," said Fowler.

"Give us some explanation," said Mr. McEvoy.

"I can't," said Fowler.

"How did the light get out?" asked Mr. McEvoy.

"It was broken," said Fowler. "Heslop must have struck it with a knife."

Evidence Differs.

Fowler said he did not see Mrs. Heslop when Heslop came in. Mr. McEvoy read from his police court evidence that he and Mrs. Heslop were standing close beside each other in the doorway at that time.

"If the door wasn't locked, why did you climb through the window when you came back?" asked Mr. McEvoy.

"I don't remember," said Fowler.

Witness said he knew of two blows that Heslop struck him. He said he did not cut himself when he went through the window.

"Have you been receiving letters or notes from Mrs. Heslop since?"

"No," said Fowler.

"No one gave you her address?"

"No," said Fowler.

"Can you tell us why these other men who were all friends of yours should attack you?"

"No."

John Morden.

John Morden, next called, and a new witness, said he lived over Fowler's store. He was awakened by hearing angry words and hearing glass broken and seeing no light thought there were burglars getting in. Someone in the shop called, "Jim! Come here, Jim!" Someone said, "Come in here, Jim. I've got both knives," and he saw a woman getting out of the window and she fell on her face. Fowler called, "You can't do that," and then someone groaned and witness saw Fowler getting out of the window. He ran down the street. Witness heard the front window smash and saw a man's foot come through. A man with a knife in his hand came through and exclaimed, "Oh, I'm cut," but went on down the street. Witness heard Fowler later outside talking with some men. The man with the knife in his hand came back, and Fowler said, "Take him away!" and ran out into the road. The man with the knife made a slash at Fowler, and witness heard a sound as of cloth tearing and the knife went down so low that witness thought Fowler's foot must be cut. The man with the knife lost his balance but recovered himself and called, "Catch him, Jack. Get him for me, Jack," and the men all passed out of his sight.

Cross-examined by Mr. McEvoy, witness said he heard no one in the shop before he heard the angry words. He said when Fowler came out of the window he went west a short distance after the woman.

"Why do you think Heslop said he had both knives?"

"I don't know; it seemed strange to me," said Morden.

The court then adjourned for lunch.

Harry Clare, the young man employed by Fowler as clerk, was the first witness called when court opened this afternoon.

ESKIMO OF THE CANADIAN NORTH

The Nunatalmutes Are the Arctic Aristocrats.

IMPROVEMENT IN MORALS

An Arctic Romance and a Tragedy of the Ice Fields Recounted.

Ottawa, June 9.—One of the most interesting departments of the annual report of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, presented to Parliament before adjournment by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, is that devoted to the Canadian Eskimo living at Herschell's Island. It appears from the report that these people are divided into two tribes, the Kogmollocks and the Nunatalmutes, but the latter are the better of the two in every way. They are the hunters and trappers and in the winter live in the Mackenzie delta and the region back of the mountains. The report adds that "this tribe has a high moral code and looks down on the Kogmollocks for their loose custom in this respect."

The report of Inspector Jennings, commanding the Mackenzie River subdivision, with headquarters at Fort Macpherson, on these Canadian citizens is interesting. He states: "The Kogmollocks are seal hunters and depend entirely on the sea for their living, although in late years they have been doing a little trapping along the coast and on the ice. They are the poorer of the two tribes and generally hard up. It seems impossible to teach them to be provident and to store up for the winter."

Regarding the morral customs of these people, Inspector Jennings says:

"The girls of the Kogmolloch tribe mature at a very early age and are generally married at 15. The percentage of female children born is so great that it was a custom in years past for a mother to let a newly-born girl baby die as it would only be a drag instead of a help to the family. This is not done now, however, and it is well known that native parents are kind and indulgent to their children. These people cannot now do without tea and breadstuffs. Children must have it or probably die. Since their association with whalers the coast natives have never lived or dressed so well. Also they have learned much of the white man's ways, his language, cleanliness, cooking and housekeeping. Most of the igloos are clean, although sometimes the odor from seal and rotten fish is rather strong. Every family has a bath at least once a week, and every Sunday they appear in clean clothes. They take plenty of exercise and are very fond of football. They have no marriage ceremony, the consent of the bride's father being alone sufficient. Last summer four native couples were legally married at Herschell. Later when they found a ship would winter here and that their wives should have nothing to do with the sailors, they remarked, 'Minister like me get married, what for he no give me grub?' The point in question was beyond their comprehension. It is pleasant to note, however, that these married natives stuck to their marriage vows, and, as far as I know, did not revert to their old custom."

Moral Problems.

In regard to the ancient custom of men loaning their wives to the sailors on the whaling ships, Inspector Jennings, after telling of the restrictions he put into force, adds: "I have talked over this moral question with the Bishop of Yukon, and he agrees with me that it is one which must be handled delicately and with tact. The solution of it is a matter of time, together with the teachings and examples of missionaries and other white men in the country."

Inspector Jennings has a good word to say in conclusion of the Eskimo of that northern territory. He says: "The Eskimo as a race, are the most interesting of any I have ever seen. They are quick to learn, good manual workers, hospitable in the extreme and are in almost every way the direct opposite of an Indian. I consider a Government school similar to that in Alaska an urgent necessity. Men, women and children would attend. These people do not mix with Indians, and come into contact only with the white men. It is essential that they should learn English and the values of trade, if only for their own protection. They themselves are most anxious for this. I have heard an Eskimo father who could speak but little English himself teaching his baby girl to repeat the English alphabet."

A romance of the north is thus dealt with in simple langauge by Inspector Jennings. "Constable S. Carter was married by the Bishop of Yukon to an Eskimo woman. Constable Carter is retiring on pension and remains in the country. I believe this is the first case of a white man in the Canadian Arctic being legally married to an Eskimo."

It is also interesting to note that Inspector Jennings is strongly in favor of Canadian rations in preference to those of American manufacture. On this point he says: "I am pleased to note that all our provisions were of Canadian manufacture and came from almost every province. Bacon, canned beef and brawn is very much superior to anything of a like kind of American manufacture. I think the same might be said of all the goods."

A tragedy of the ice fields is thus briefly reported: "Fred Moran, deserted from his ship two days after the police patrol left Herschel for Macpherson. He attempted to follow the patrol, but never reached the mainland, being found by the police search party from the island, frozen to death on the ice."

In this simple manner is the work of the men who brave hardships on the Empire's outposts set forth. The annual report in question abounds in narratives of the pluck and daring of these men of the Mounted Police, all told with moderation and a touch of modesty which are rarely found in Government reports.

AN ALBATROSS TWICE CAUGHT.

When the British barque Lawhill arrived at New York last week with a cargo of hemp from Manilla, her second mate, Fred Wilson, had the following incident to tell:

Off Cape Horn, while she was hove to in a northeasterly gale, Wilson caught with a fishhook, so he says, a big albatross measuring fourteen and a half feet from tip to tip of wings. Across the bird's breast in indelible red ink was the inscription in large letters, "I am the Queen of the Air." Wilson recognized the bird by the label as one that the Lawhill had caught five years before off the cape, and had released after putting on the inscription.

LOBO FARMER WANTS MONEY FOR CLOTHES

Mr. Peter Campbell Had Suit Destroyed Putting Out Fire at a Bridge.

Mr. Peter Campbell, a farmer residing in Lobo created a good deal of amusement yesterday afternoon when he appeared before the county council and demanded full information as to why Mr. John McEwen was given $5 last April.

Mr. Campbell was very wrathy, and said he would have Mr. McEwen's statement in black and white, or he would sue the county.

The cause of all Mr. Campbell's trouble was that some time ago when he and his son were driving across a bridge they found it on fire. According to Mr. Campbell's story he sent his son to a nearby mill for water, while he started to extinguish the fire himself. It seems that Mr. McEwen came back with the boy and brought water and the fire was put out.

In the meantime, however, Mr. Campbell's clothes had been partly burned. Last April Mr. McEwen came up before the council and was given $5 for the work he did in connection with putting out the fire. Mr. Campbell was not given anything.

Should Sue County.

Yesterday afternoon he declared that he would produce the burned clothes if necessary.

"Here you are going to give this man Bateman $12,000 for nothing," he said. "And this claim of mine has been left over."

"You had better sue the county," said several councillors, and Mr. Campbell left to make room for a deputation from the West Middlesex Agricultural Society, who came to thank the council for the grant they made last year, and to ask that it be continued this year. The speakers were Postmaster Evans of Strathroy; A. P. McDougall, Melbourne; D. A. Graham, Ilderton; William Young Mount Brydges; A. J. Blaikie, Westminster; W. Robson, McGillivray; W. McKay, Ailsa Craig, and R. Corbett, McGillivray. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Police Magistrates.

The question as to whether the county has to maintain a police magistrate's office in Strathroy and Parkhill was gone into at some length. A report of a special committee stated that the county in their opinion, did not have to do this.

The committee further recommended that E. B. Smith, of Ailsa Craig, and C. W. Hawkshaw, of Lucan, be allowed $75 a year in lieu of offices being furnished. A letter was read from the attorney-general, to whom Councillor Campbell had written, stating that the act does not require the county council to maintain magistrates' offices in Parkhill and Strathroy.

The matter was finally referred to a committee to deal with further.

"STAIRCASE WALTZ" IS THE NEW "RAGE"

From "Count of Luxembourg" —Described as It Is Seen in London

London, June 8.—The Count of Luxembourg would have been a success even without the presence of the King and Queen on the opening night and their evident enjoyment of the opera. As it is, this latest work of Herr Franz Lehar, composer of "The Merry Widow," bids fair to be the rage in London for many months. In addition to its charm it has the stamp of royal approval, which is very much like holding three aces and drawing another.

The audience, which was as big as the theatre could hold and as fashionable as a purple necktie, came mainly to see two things—the royal party and the much-talked of "staircase waltz." Their majesties were more or less familiar sights, but the "staircase waltz" was something the sedate Britons had to see to believe. It was performed by Mr. Bertram Wallis and Miss Lily Elsie, the star of the opera.

In an apparently unconcerned manner they waltz up a flight of steps, Mr. Wallis, who is big and strong, lifting his dainty partner up and swinging her clear of each rise. They accomplished the feat successfully, while the audience held its breath, but at the very last step Mr. Wallis caught his toe, and for one shuddering second it looked as if he would lose his balance and the pair of them do an undignified and bruise-producing sprawl down that stairway.

Encores had been forbidden, but the King and Queen and everybody else in the theatre applauded so vigorously that they had to do it again. The second time they reached the top without a hitch.

It is really a very pretty effect and, of course, thousands will be trying to do it. It is sad to think of the ruffled feelings that will result. The air is is simple as a nursery tune. Anyone can repeat it after hearing it once, as the rhythm has a catchy swing that even an unmusical ear can remember. In consequence this simple little waltz is being hummed all over London today. It is wonderful how rapidly it spread

OIL TRUST TO MOVE TO LONDON, REPORT

Standard's Headquarters May Be Established in English Metropolis.

London, June 8.—Is the Standard Oil Company going to transfer its headquarters to London as a result of the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States? You hear this question discussed in city offices and on the London Stock Exchange every day, and many prominent financiers are convinced that before the six months' grace granted the Rockefeller octopus has expired we shall see it firmly established here.

In the magnificent building at Queen Anne's Gate, which is far more imposing than most English government buildings in that neighborhood, a feverish bustle and activity seems to prophesy of great events to come.

The big building is lighted day and night, enormous quantities of office furniture have arrived, not only of the ordinary kind, but costly carpets, sumptuous hangings and richly carved desks, tables and chairs of the kind you find only in the private offices of the American magnates.

That the headquarters of the company will be transferred to this city is considered very likely. The position would be more central, as it has as many and as important interests in this hemisphere as in America. In the country of its birth, besides, it will have to be very careful in its movements, years may pass before it will dare extend its field, but with its headquarters in London, with its master plotters enthroned here, it may send its tentacles eastward with some hope of acquiring control of the immense oil fields in Asia and Egypt, because the people of the old world are less practiced in fighting against trusts and their laws are less carefully framed.

Nobody will bid Rockefeller's concern welcome in Europe. Its reputation has reached even the remotest corners of the Czar's empire, and every one knows that its coming will mean a fight the like of which we have never seen here, with victory for John D's concern by no means certain, for old world governments are somehow less pliable than Uncle Sam, and a ukase of the Czar or an edict by some other monarch comes more quickly than a United States Supreme Court's decision and is more difficult to evade.

SEAMY SIDE OF COMMAND EVENINGS

How It Means Serious Loss to Many Poor Players.

London, June 9.—The King, of course, does not know or realize that command performances mean a serious loss to a large number of people who can ill afford it," said Mr. Charles Dudley Ward in discussing the recent command performance of "Money" at Drury Lane. "The subject should be brought to his majesty's attention, and I have no doubt some arrangement would be made by which this evil would be remedied."

"For instance," he continued, "on the night of the Drury Lane command performance several theatres in London were closed—three I believe—as the stars in the plays running in them were in the cast at the Lane. The managers of the theatres got considerable free advertising out of it by announcing that they were closed for the benefit of the King and the Kaiser. At one of these theatres at least, and maybe at all, the pay of all the employees was stopped for that night. With the big salaried people it made little difference. They could afford it and didn't care. With the stage hands, supers and small salaried people, getting anywhere from 10s. to £3 a week, it was a very different matter. They felt the deduction of the few shillings very much.

"The members of the company, the poorly paid little fellows and the hands are not so pleased. They get no honor out of it and their pay is stopped. As I said before, I don't believe the King knows this. If he did he would surely take some measure to remove this hardship from the struggling workers of the stage. He is the last man in the world to want pleasure at the expense of giving any one pain."

TEACH WIVES TO SAVE

Columbia University To Start a New Course.

New York, June 8.—Are American women capable of undertaking the expenditure of nearly $10,000,000,000, a sum, it is estimated, that is spent every year on the American household?

In a bulletin just issued by Teachers' College, of Columbia University, a new course is presented, which will instruct women how to conserve the husband's income This course will be given by Durward Earle Burchell, lately instructor at Wisconsin University, and expert accountant.

"There is tremendous waste in the American home," said Mr. Burchell. "There is no doubt that millions are wasted every year by careless and thoughtless women.

"Experts have figured out that $10,000,000,000 are spent annually in the United States for the household—that is, for food, shelter and clothing. These same experts declare that 90 per cent. of this vast sum is spent by the American woman.

"Spenders of so huge a sum, it would seem, should have knowledge of business methods and training in the art of justifiable expenditure."

Bookkeeping the Basis.

In explanation of the course, Mr. Burchell said it would include double-entry bookkeeping for housewives.

"Nothing," said Mr. Burchell, "so quickly brings the spendthrift to her senses as to see her wasteful expenditures set down in accusing figures. For instance, we will have a foolish column. Do you suppose if women who spend money foolishly—that is, for things which they could get along without, and often have no need for—were to see the amount of their purchases set down in round numbers that they would likely continue this practice?

"There are many kinds of spendthrifts. There is the woman who buys something because it is cheap. Then there is the shopper who shops for the love of it. She buys lots of things in her enthusiasm for which she has not the least use."

Wives Cause Husband's Ruin.

"It is a wife's duty to conserve her husband's income. The family budget is as important as any other budget. If a man fails in business his failure is recorded—it becomes a matter of public criticism. A woman fails in household management and nothing is said of it. She is just as much of a failure as her husband. Wide experience and observation has convinced me that many failures in business can be traced to a failure at home. Frequently a man is making all he can out of his line of business, and his success depends upon careful management. If his wife is wasteful he is certain to fail.

"Take two men getting $2,000 a year. One man with his family of two or three children lived comfortably and happily on this sum, buying with it the things that persons of culture and refinement demand. Another man on the same income may be constantly in debt. His family will live badly, is dissatisfied and unhappy. Whose fault is it?

"If a man in business can accomplish a reduction of 20 per cent. expense in any department he congratulates himself. How many women give serious thought as to how they can accomplish a similar reduction in household bills?

"I believe that putting housekeeping on a business basis will not be a great help to the individual, but will help to establish a more essential national prosperity.

TEMPLE BAR.

The probability that owing to the death of Lady Meux Theobald's Park, with its famous Temple Bar gateway, may come into the market, recalls the strong history of that ancient London landmark, which has now had a long period of exile. It was in 1670-72 that Temple Bar was rebuilt by Sir Christopher Wren, after the great fire of London. Its predecessor, "a house of timber, erected across the street, with a narrow gateway and an entry on the south side of it under the house," had stood for about two and a half centuries; since early in Henry VII.'s reign it had supplanted the "posts, rails and chains" which marked the city's western boundary. Wren's structure was removed in the winter of 1877-78, during the building of the new law courts.

A GREAT BOOM IN APPLE GROWING

English Syndicate Said To Be Buying Up Farms With Orchards.

According to various members of the county council there is going to be a great boom in apple-growing in this district, due to the extensive operation of an English syndicate.

"These people are buying every good farm with an orchard on it they can secure in our district," said a member from the west yesterday. "They are going in for scientific apple-growing, and say that it will pay big money. They have a big gang of men who do nothing else but go from orchard to orchard that they have bought, and prune the trees, spray them, and look after them in the latest ways. They certainly do things up well, and lose no time. They have immense sprayers and keep a couple of men doing nothing else but mixing the spraying material and keeping the tanks filled. Absolutely no time is lost and a tree is done in a very few minutes."

Another member stated that the syndicate is buying extensively, and also leasing, in the southern districts.

CORRESPONDENCE

Rev. T. H. Mitchell on Moral Problems.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I wish to thank you very heartily for the timely article of yesterday under the caption "The Social Evil." It is the one sane thing I have seen upon this theme in recent editorials of the city press.

About twenty years ago Mr. Charles Booth, a rich merchant of Old London, undertook on investigation into the economic and moral conditions of that great city. The inquiry did two things for which moral reformers have ever since been grateful. It awakened social intelligence, and it directed social effort. Now, sir, these are the two objects which should be attained by such a committee as that of which you speak and for which Mr. Inkster has been pleading. Josiah Strong contends that of our civilization is to fall the break will come in our large cities. He even mentions the opinion that in some respects we are already approaching the danger point. At any rate no serious student of social questions can confront our civic problems without misgivings.

A day or two ago I talked with a gentleman who, perhaps better than any other of our citizens, knows the morals of this community. I feel sure that should I mention his name his opinion would command respect. Said he to me: "There is no denying the fact that the sad conditions are here."

I do not go about looking for unseemly sights, nor do I care for filthy stories, but I affirm that, if only a few of the sickening tales I hear are true, the time for a thorough house-cleaning has arrived.

I am sorry that two out of our three city papers have within the past week found cause for exultation in the fact that the request of a body of intelligent and earnest citizens has been ignored. One of these same journals insinuates that the judgment of women and of ministers on moral questions can't be trusted anyway. I have no desire to defend he fraternity to which I belong, but on behalf of the splendid women of this city I beg to record my protest. Who does not know that in scenting moral evil women have ever shown themselves superior to men?

I am sorry, too, that the school authorities felt called upon to take so weak a position, and that they attempted to buttress it with still weaker argument. By just such logic I can prove, any way, that the North Pole does not exist. I think I can truly does not exist. I think I can truly say that I have never listened to any other speech, in my judgment, so unfortunate, as that of the chairman of the school board at that same meeting, where, as has been stated, he was one of the four or five men who alone represented the life of our city.

I am sorry, finally, that the mayor has been so sensitive and impatient. It would almost seem as though he were more anxious about the reputation of the city than about its real character. Is it true, as many suppose, that his very boylike and hasty letter of repudiation, at the very beginning of this discussion, committed him to a position which in consistency he feels he must still hold. If so, it may comfort him to know that there are doubtless others who in this controversy have had a like experience.

The question I started out to ask is this: Would it not be well to stop this whole white-washing business? Any man who keeps his eyes open and entertains a single thought anywhere in his head, knows that there are aspec of our civic life which ought to have a closer crutiny. Would it not be wise to take any step that will give light and leading toward the solution of our delicate and difficult problems, even if, by such procedure, the world should discover that some of our officials are, after all, only fallible like ourselves? Respectfully yours,

THOS. H. MITCHELL.

OXFORD PROBE ACCOUNT

County Will Pay About $3,000 for Graft Investigation.

Woodstock, June 9. — The final report of the investigation committee was presented to the Oxford county council yesterday. The statement showed a total expenditure of $7,040, from which has to be deducted $3,000 paid back by M. T. Buchanan and the Government's share, probably about $1,200, leaving less than $3,000 for the county to pay. Discussing the report, many of the councillors expressed great dissatisfaction at the ending of the trial in St. Thomas, after the committee had done such thorough work. A resolution of confidence and congratulation to the investigation committee was carried unanimously by a standing vote. A demand will be made on the Government for a complete copy of Judge Snider's report, and a majority of the councillors seem to be inclined to ask for the pressing of the two traversed indictments against Buchanan.

LONDON LADY ABROAD

Miss Priddis Writes of the British Metropolis, Looking Its Best Now.

Miss Harriet Priddis, of this city, writes entertainingly from London, England, as follows:

"The weather is perfect, the odest inhabitant says 'phenomenal,' and when the sun shines there is no place in the world like London: its parks and suburbs, their beautiful grass and wonderful trees. The yellow laburnum, the pink and white May, the lilac and wistaria, with the carpet of daisies, narcissus and bluebell, give a restful scheme of color like nothing else in the world. London proper, just now, is very much disfigured by the hugh stands going up everywhere for the convenience of the crowds already gathering for the festivities, which practically began on Friday, when the King and Queen opened the Festival of Empire at Crystal Palace.

"The King is a good speaker, a conscientious worker, is respected and spoken well of; but has no magnetism. The masses do not go wild over him, as they still do over the simple photos of King Edward and the statue of Queen Victoria. As the enthusiastic crowds, that everywhere followed his movements show, they are inclined to make much ado over the erratic Kaiser. The unveiling of the Victoria statue on Tuesday was a great success. The tens of thousands of spectators forming the outside circle began taking their places as early as seven o'clock in the morning. Except the first two or three rows those who arrived near noon and took their stand on the raised ground at some distance, had a much better view of the drop of the curtain and first sight of the fine statue. The singing of the grand choir and strains of martial music were audible to everyone on the ground."

LONDON DOG SHOW.

Forty judges adjudicated their work and watched with much interest the Pekingese spaniels, which dogs naturists had a large following.

doors. They are practically confined in the place, and the result is that there has been the greatest difficulty in securing help. They simply won't stay under such conditions."

"Councillor McDonald's grounds is well taken," said Councillor Campbell. "Such conditions are indeed a hardship. It is too bad, indeed, to prevent the pretty girls from taking a walk beneath the starry skies on the grassy plains of Adelaide."

"It's a poet you should have been," shouted someone, as the councillor took his seat, amid laughter.

Councillor Butler, of Strathroy, said he thought that keeping the help in in this manner was a hardship, and there was no such rule in the by-laws.

Councillor Beech, of Metcalfe, said he had heard many complaints about the doctor not visiting the house of refuge as he should.

Are Human Beings.

"These are poor people," he said. "But we want to remember that they are human beings, and we should look after them. The doctor is paid to do this work and he should do it. If he does not, we should appoint someone who will. I noticed that there was a great scarcity of literature for those there to read, and I also saw that many of the old people had no glasses. I lent one old woman my own glasses for a while and she read a passage out of her Bible to me. I think we would be doing a good work if we spent $5 for some magazines and books for these people and a few dollars in getting them glasses."

Councillor Beech said also that he did not think the walls were in the most sanitary condition and that a cleaning up would do good.

Improve Conditions.

Councillor Moyes did not favor the idea of closing at 9 o'clock. There were many girls there who, after working hard all day, wanted to get out for a little while, and they should be allowed to go. The sanitary arrangements, he thought, could be much improved, and many of the rooms might be made much more clean and comfortable. A cesspool, which was most annoying, was alluded to, and the danger that it was to the health of all those about.

Councillor Ferguson, of Lobo, had noticed this also, and favored spending the money to do away with this, and he also would like to see the walls cleaned up.

Magistrate Hawkshaw, of Lucan, did not favor making all the people be in by 9 o'clock.

"I think such a proceeding is a slur on Adelaide," he said. "It looks as if it were not safe for people to be out at night."

Councillor McDonald again brought up the matter of the doctor not attending regularly.

Lax in Duties.

"We are certainly lax in our duties," he said, "if we allow this to go on. He should have reported this matter of the cesspool to us."

Councillor Hodgins thought the keeper was in an awkward position, as there were a great many people who wanted to flock into the building during the winter and then run out again for the summer.

It was finally decided to leave the matter for the house of refuge committee to make a special report on.

How to Destroy The Dandruff Germ

BY A SPECIALIST.

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair, is a well-known fact, but when we realize that it is also indirectly responsible for many of the worst cases of catarrh and consumption, we appreciate the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. We are, therefore, particularly pleased to give herewith the prescription which an eminent scientist states he has found, after repeated tests, to completely destroy the dandruff germ in from one to three applications. It will also almost immediately stop falling hair, and it has in numerous cases produced a new hair-growth after years of baldness. This prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you: Six ounces Bay Rum, two ounces Lavona de Composee, one-half drachm Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly, and after standing half an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning rubbing into the scalp with the finger-tips. If you wish it perfumed, add half a teaspoonful of Te-Kalen Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. While this preparation is not a dye, it is unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color.

Caution: Do not apply where hair is not desired, and be sure to avoid tonics containing poisonous wood alcohol.

POTATOES ARE SELLING AT FIRM PRICES NOW

Price Is Now 80c a Bag on the Local Market.

Hay and oats were the only staples offered on the market square this morning. Some fifteen or more loads of hay sold at prices that varied from $9 50 to $11 50 per ton. Sales were not quite so active as yesterday, but there was a fair demand notwithstanding.

Oats were moderately plentiful, and brought from $1 11 to $1 14 per cwt. Prices are fairly active, and the demand is quite as large as the supply.

Potatoes are selling at firm prices, although a carload which was shipped yesterday was bought up at 70 cents per bag. Single bags bring as high as 80 cents, however.

There is an unusual scarcity of dressed poultry, butter and eggs. However, the demand for these staples is only fair else the prices would soar skyward again. As it is, there are no marked changes in the market valuations of these products.

LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, June 8.—Trading was again brisk at the city cattle market yesterday, and prices for good butchers' steers and heifers leaned toward a higher level. Sheep and lambs held steady, and hogs made a substantial gain. Aggregating 1600 head of cattle, 588 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs and 264 veal calves, the receipts fell far short of the required supply, and competition was keen, although largely confined to home buyers. The yards were cleared at an early hour. Freak prices were again in evidence, as, for instance, when $6 40 per cwt was paid for four steers weighing 1270 lbs. Several hundred choice steers and heifers sold at from $6 to $6 15 per cwt, which is a decisive gain in comparison with the records compiled some days ago. Medium to good butchers' cattle brought from $5 60 to $5 90. Butchers' cows were steadily absorbed at from $4 to $5 50 per cwt, while bulls went at from $4 50 to $5 25. Milch cows dragged, and, although the receipts were comparatively insignificant, many animals proved unattractive, and their disposal was only possible at a concession. Some of the sales yielded less than $30 per head. Veal calves were fairly popular at $4 to $7 per cwt. Some improvement in the sheep and lamb trade halted the recession of Monday, and the market closed steady. Hogs advanced to $6 65 to $6 70 f. o. b., country points, and $7 per cwt fed and water at the market; the demand showed no signs of relaxing, and isolated transactions were asserted to have involved 10c higher.

Representative transactions were as follows: George Rowntree (Harris Abattoir) bought 290 cattle; medium to good steers and heifers at $5 60 to $6; 100 choice cattle at $6 15; butchers' cows at $4 to $5 40; bulls, $4 50 to $5 25. Alex. Levack bought 1 load of butchers' cattle, 1050 lbs, at $6. W. J. Neely (Park, Blackwell & Co.) bought during the week 350 cattle; steers and heifers at $5 60 to $6 12½; butchers' cows, $4 50 to $5 25; bulls, $4 75 to $5 25. Dave Rowntree (Harris Abattoir) bought 75 spring lambs at $5 to $6 25 each, 40 calves at $7 per cwt, and 45 sheep at $3 50 to $4 50. Dunn & Levack sold 10 loads of cattle; butchers' steers and heifers at $5 60 to $6; do, cows, $4 50 to $5 25. A. W. Macdonald (Dunns, Limited) bought 4 loads of steers and heifers at $5 90 to $6 10; 2 loads of cows at $5 to $5 50. Weslep Dunn bought 100 sheep, average $4 25; 100 spring lambs at $5, and 75 calves at $6 50. H. Hunnisett bought 2 loads of butchers' cattle at $5 50 to $5 85. Crawford & Co. bought 1 load butchers' steers, 1050 lbs, at $5 80; 1 load mixed butchers, $5 to $5 50. W. Crealock (D. B. Martin, Limited) bought 4 loads cattle; choice steers and heifers, $5 90 to $6 10; good steers and heifers, $5 70 to $5 85; choice cows, $5 to $5 40; good cows, $4 50 to $4 80; good bulls, $5 to $5 25. Maybee & Wilson sold 12 loads of cattle; exporters, $6 to $6 10; butchers, $5 70 to $6 10; bulls, $4 75 to $5 25; cows, $4 60 to $5 40; milch cows, $25 to $60. John O'Keefe sold 4 choice steers, 1270 lbs, at $6 40 per cwt.

FINANCIAL.

[From Charles Head & Co., by private wire to J. J. Tearney.]

NEW YORK, June 9.—(10 a.m.)—There is some talk heard of an advance in the Bank of England rate, but this doesn't mean much. Our favorable trade balance makes imports of gold a likelihood, though there is no real reason why local banking interests should facilitate this movement when money commands so low a rate. Sentiment is more optimistic because of the fine showing of the government crop report, which indicates the largest wheat harvest on record, allowing for the usual deterioration pending the final returns. Judge Gary in his testimony before the investigating committee in Washington, made a plea for government regulation of inter-state commerce so far as industrial prices go, suggesting that the trusts realize that they need the protection against legislation which this would afford. The increased consumption of copper shown in the producers' figures is favorably commented upon as indicating the turn in the copper situation. It is well to note that the bond business is good, and the investment demand in the high grade raidroad dividends continues to absorb offerings explaining the higher prices. We feel that the market is a purchase for the pull, and would take advantage of all breaks to add to commitments.

LOCAL ITEMS

—Mr. Fred Betts, of 79 Askin street, entertained a number of friends last night, the anniversary of his wedding. The evening was spent in games, after which a dainty luncheon was served.

No Offer.

There is nothing new in the molders strike. The men are still out, and have received no new offers from the bosses.

Non-Support Charge.

Charles Richardson, a north-end man, was charged in the police court this morning by his wife, Mabel Richardson, with non-support. Richardson is employed in a local glass factory, and has one child. Magistrate Judd postponed the hearing of the case until Monday morning.

New Street Lamps.

The water commissioners are hurrying the erection of the new lamps on Dundas and Richmond streets, and expect to have them raedy for use in about ten days. The cable has been put into the conduits and the bases made fast. All that is necessary is to put on the upper portion, and that will be done in a short time.

A False Alarm.

Someone telephoned the house of Chief of Police Williams last night that a street fight was in progress in the north end. The chief called out the patrol, but on its arrival at the place of combat there was nothing doing. The police state that, contrary to report, they heard nothing whatever of a woman being assaulted in the north end last night.

June Bugs' Ravages.

London Township farmers say that the ravages of the June bug are not nearly so serious in that township as has been reported in the Government reports issued from Toronto. It is said that the pastures have not suffered any more than usual from the larvae of the insect, and that the fruit crop has been damaged less from its ravages this season than in previous years.

Blackwell—Parsons.

A quiet wedding took place on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the home of Rev. C. A. and Mrs. Parson, 103 Pearl street, Brantford, when their daughter, Nora S., was united in marriage to Mr. Wellington Blackwell of London. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, the bride and groom being unattended. After a dainty luncheon the happy couple left on the 6:30 train for points west. They will be at home to their friends after July 1, at 129 Langarth street, London.

Mr. Allison Promoted.

The many friends of Mr. W. H. Allison will be pleased to learn of his promotion with the C. P. R. to district freight agent at Saskatoon. Mr. Allison entered the C. P. R. at London, and until some four years ago was employed in the local freight offices here. He was transferred to Regina and from there to Winnipeg, where for two years he was chief clerk to Mr. N. B. Lanigan, who was then general freight agent. He was later made city freight agent at Regina, and has now been appointed district freight agent, with headquarters at Saskatoon.

SCHOOL CLOSES JUNE 30

Three Weeks More For the Pupils of London.

There are just three weeks more of school, and then swarms of youngsters will be turned loose for eight weeks or more of unadulterated joy. The official closing is set for June 30, but it is expected that many of the youngsters will get ahead of the schedule and have a few days' extra holidays.

The entrance examinations are set for June 26, 27 and 28. The promotion examinations will be held at the same time, so that it is not at all probable that much work will be done the last two days of school.

EAST LONDON NEWS

A PRESENTATION TO MISS SUSIE M'GILL

Popular Young Lady Given a Cabinet of Silver and a Linen Shower.

Miss Susie McGill, who has been a member of St. Mary's choir for some years, and who is to be married shortly, was very pleasantly surprised last evening when she was invited to St. Mary's Hall and there presented with a handsome cabinet of silver and given a linen shower.

Miss Mary Graham made the presentation on behalf of the choir, and Miss McGill was almost overwhelmed with kind words and appreciation of her services as a vocalist and a consistent and sincere church worker.

There was a large turnout, and a dainty lunch was served to all. Rev. Father McKeon was amongst those present, and he, too, paid a warm tribute to the many good qualities and endearing disposition of Miss McGill.

At the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Caleb Freeland, of Queen's avenue east, Miss Alberta Geraldine Freeland was united in marriage yesterday, at 1 o'clock, to Mr. Charles Gammage. The bride was attended by Miss Nellie Wilson and the groom's assistant was Mr. Leigh, of Toronto.

OBITUARY

The death took place yesterday of Mr. James French, at the residence of Mr. Chancey Blinn, lot 48, townline of Westminster and Delaware. Deceased was born in England, coming to Canada when quite a young man. For the past 31 years he has been employed by Mr. Blinn. He never married, and was 57 years of age. Deceased was well known throughout the township. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The services will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Kippen, Lambeth, and interment will be made at the Delaware Cemetery.

The funeral of Robert John Small took place from G. E. Logan's undertaking parlors, 418 Richmond street, this morning to the G. T. R. depot. Interment took place at Wingham, Ont. The late Mr. Small is survived by his wife and seven children.

MUST HAVE NUMBER ON BOTH SIDES

Adolphus Bibbings, a teamster, who had his number on only one side of his wagon, contrary to law, paid 85 cents in the police court this morning for the little oversight on his part.

Fred Anderson, who was advised to leave town when he appeared in court on Wednesday, came back this morning, and not having the necessary $5 to pay the fine which was meted out to him this time, went down for fifteen days.

Donald McCuaig, charged with intoxication, explained that he was on his way from Toronto to Detroit, but not being well, dropped off the train to have a drink. He took more than one and missed the train. "I'll get right out of town if you let me go," he told the magistrate. "I'll walk right out now." He walked.

John Loughlin, who insisted on declaring that he belonged to London, and had been here once in a while for the last ten years, was discharged on a similar charge.

Frank Haskins, from Toronto, and Charles Manning, "who didn't know, but guessed he must have been drunk," were also allowed to go.

William Lowes rode on the sidewalk of Beaufort street at 6 a.m. the other morning, and paid one dollar for the diversion.

SWIMMING POOL FOR GIRLS OPEN JUNE 30

Arrangements Have Been Completed by the Playgrounds Association.

Arrangements have been completed by which the Playgrounds Association are able to announce that the swimming pond at the sulphur baths will be opened for the girls of the city on Friday, June 30, and for boys on the following Wednesday, July 5. The baths would have been opened for the boys earlier, but it was found that it would interfere too much with school arrangements.

Sheriff Cameron stated to The Advertiser this afternoon that Mr. George S. Gibbons had donated $100 and the Woman's Canadian Club $20 towards the expenses, and that the baths will be engaged week by week. There is little doubt, he thinks, that they will be available for the chuldren through the season, as he has numerous promises of other subscriptions. In all, $250 will be needed to allow the children to have the use of the baths regularly.

Mr. Chris Butterworth has been secured as swimming instructor, and arrangements are being made for offering first, second and third prizes to the girls making the best progress as learners, for the best girl divers, and floaters; for the boys making the best progress as learners, the best divers, floaters, back swimmers, and for the winners of several special races.

The youngsters are greatly delighted over the prospect of the free baths. Last year the move took a great hold on the boys and girls, and large crowds of them availed themselves of the opportunities afforded them through the work of the association. This year it is expected that even more of them will learn to swim and enjoy the chance for the recreation.

HAND LACERATED BY A RIP SAW

James Schofield Is Likely to Lose Two Fingers.

While working a rip saw in Campbell's Carriage Works this morning, James Schofield in some manner ran his right hand against the saw. The hand was badly lacerated, and it is probable that he will lose the thumb and first finger. They have not yet been amputated, but it is not likely that they can be saved. The remainder of his hand is badly torn, but he will lose none of the other fingers.

PREFERS POISON TO LIFE ON A FARM

Robert Pope Ran Away With Farmer's Horse and Buggy.

Robert Pope, a young man employed by a London Township farmer, Chas. Connor, of Arva, went to the blacksmith shop with a horse and buggy on Thursday afternoon, but instead of stopping at the village, drove into London and about the city until late last night.

Then he left the horse at the Queen's Hotel and later was taken in charge by the police, to whom he stated that rather than remain on the farm he would take poison. He threatened to destroy himself in any case. He has been very despondent ever since he left the hospital a short time ago following a very severe illness. His employer speaks favorably of him, and declares that no fault could be found with him until his recent illness.

The youth admits that he has been treated well by the people for whom he has been working, but he appears to be not strong enough for the work of the farm.

He appeared in the police court this morning, but Magistrate Judd sent his case down to the county magistrate. On his subsequent appearance before Squire Henshaw he was remanded for one week.

Barkis Is Willin'.

Questioned as regards the bridge plank, Ald. Tancock said that he was perfectly willing to have that gone into fully.

"I am just as anxious as any person to have that matter cleared up," he declared. "If they have any evidence to show that I have in any way done wrong, I want them to bring it to the investigation. I will be ready for them. I deny absolutely that there is any wrongdoing."

He would not admit that he had taken any of the lumber in question.

The friends of Mr. Mulhall were pleased when the original affidavits in the case were presented to the committee last night. They were afraid that they would not be forthcoming, as they were anxious that they should be in the possession of the city should complications arise later.

"There can be no such result come from the investigation," said Ald. Tancock. "These affidavits came to me, and I swore to them as I have a right to do as alderman."

Witness stated that on the night of Dec. 24, when at Heslop's house he saw Fowler there, and saw him leave. He knew of no trouble until someone came in and said. "Will all kindly go home. There has been some trouble." Witness went over to the shop and found Fowler sitting in a chair. Witness tried to turn on the lights, but could not, althought they had been all right early in the evening.

Asked if he got a bottle of whiskey for Fowler, witness said he called at a liquor store and got a parcel and put it under the counter when he went back.

Cross-examined by Mr. McEvoy, Clare said Fowler did not tell him why Heslop attacked him.

"How did you come to leave Fowler?" asked Mr. McEvoy.

"I wanted more money and he would not give it to me."

"Your parents didn't insist upon it because there had been women about the place?" asked Mr. McEvoy.

"No," said witness.

Witness said he was in the room with Heslop and Fowler at Heslop's house, but heard no conversation.

Witness would not deny that he might have told the police that he told Fowler not to be so intimate with that man's wife. Witness said he said this to Mr. Richardson.

R. W. Richardson, next called, said he was at Heslop's house on the night of Dec. 24. He saw Mrs. Heslop come in about 11:30, and Heslop came in about a minute later, and told him to ask the company to go home, as there had been a little trouble. Heslop had blood on his face.

Edward Garratt was at Heslop's also on the night of Dec. 24. He heard someone say that Mr. Heslop was covered with blood, and, on going out, heard Jim Heslop say "Catch him, Jack," and saw a man running down the street. Witness ran after Jack Heslop when he started after the man. They chased the man to Mr. Grimmey's house, and when they caught up he found the man was Fowler. Wm. Heslop came up, and witness and Jack Heslop caught Fowler and held him. They did not strike him, and went out into the street. Wm. Heslop called Fowler a "dirty" something, but witness didn't hear what.

Cross-examined, witness said Fowler was crouching in among some vines at Mr. Grimmey's when they came up. No one struck Heslop.

SEPARATION OF QUEEN'S

university and the council of graduates.

The church has accepted no responsibility for the management, control, financing or appointment of the professors. All this had been left to the board of trustees. Hal Principal Grant been a failure instead of turning out to be the peerless college professor of Canada, had Queen's gone down instead of rising, no court of the church could have intervened to rectify affairs. The whole matter rested with the trustees. Some speak of Queen's as an asset to the Presbyterian Church, and say that the church would be sacrificing something and making a surrender in accepting the proposal of the trustees.

"But," he continued, "the college has continued to be denominational in the eyes of the Government. The majority of the trustees have to be Presbyterians, and the principal has to be a Presbyterian. As such the university is subject to all the privations and destructions of a denominational university. While the church has assumed no responsibility for the financing and management, the trustees have made reports to the assembly as the supreme court of the church because the university desired the supp of the church."

Principal Gordon said he concurred with the stand of the Government in refusing to give ai dto denominational universities. The school of mining while on the Queen's campus, was separate, and so was aided by the Government.

Queen's had originally been patterned after Edinburgh University, and as the Scottish universities had passed out of the control of the church to be national universities, so it was essential that Queen's should be more national in constitution as it has long been in character, more national in form as it has long been in spirit. And the Presbyterian Church has always stood for national as above denominational education.

Just as the universities of Oxford and Cambridge and all the other later colleges of importance in England have become national in their policy, as the universities in Scotland have become national, Queen's is asking to become national.

Some people referred to the change in Queen's constitution as a separation from the church, he continued. One might as well say that the independence given Canada by the British Empire was separation. He strongly urged that the question of what change should be made in Queen's be not delayed, but settled in this assembly. No institution could do its best work while under strain and uncertainty. Queen's had suffered from this uncertainty and strain, and it was an evidence of its good spirits that it had not suffered more. Delay would cause great strain, and he feared an estrangement from the church that it would take years to overcome.

Making this change would not separate Queen's from the Presbyterian Church. It would be impossible to vitally separate the university from the church which had cradled it. The spirit of Queen's would ever be Presbyterian.

LORD'S DAY ACT BROKEN BY HEBREWS

Abraham Taylor, Moses Fink, Hiram Beren, Louis Taylor, Jacob Silverstein, and Moses Gresshin, six Hebrews, were charged in the police court this morning with breach of the Lord's Day Act for working last Sunday morning in the tailor shop of Abraham Taylor, at 180 Simcoe street. The latter, together with Fink and Beren, was found guilty, but allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Sergt. Birrell stated that in company with P. C. McRoberts, he went to Taylor's shop about 10:30 Sunday morning, where he found the elder Taylor arranging cloth apparently for the others to work upon. He also was sewing, and had a needle in his hand. Beren and Fink were both operating machines.

Taylor admitted to the police officer that he had been working since 8 o'clock, and stated that he was accustomed to working on Sundays when he was very busy.

"You don't expect me to keep two days a week," he said to the sergeant.

Moses Gresshin claimed that he was only a boarder at Taylor's house, and Silverstein was not actively engaged.

Moses Fink lived at 112 Clarence street, and Hiram Beren, at 104 on the same street, but both were regularly employed by Taylor.

Loui Taylor, the son of the shop proprietor, was also in the room, but placed on the witness-stand, stated that he was not an employee in his father's shop, but merely carried the goods to and from the wholesale for which Taylor manufactured them.

Law Was Broken.

Mr. William Meredith, who represented the defendants, admitted that Taylor, Fink and Beren had broken the law through not clearly understanding it, but now regretted their actions, and were ready to abide by the law in the future. He pointed out the hardship which these people endure through having to keep both their own and the Christian Sabbath.

Magistrate Judd, after discharging the younger Taylor, Gresshin, and Silverstein, found the others guilty, but allowed them to go on suspended sentence.

"I recognize that it is a hardship to have to keep two Sabbaths," he said to the defendants, "but here in Canada you must keep the Christian Sabbath as other people do."

McFarlane—Jarvis.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jarvis, Wreay street, South London, on Thursday afternoon, their daughter, Lorine Olive, was united in marriage to Mr. Chester A. McFarlane, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. K. Birks, in the presence of some 40 guests. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ethel Jarvis, while her two little cousins, Miss Eleanor Nichol and Miss Helen Wyatt, made charming flower-girls. The groom was assisted by his brother, Dr. W. H. McFarlane. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl sunburst, to the bridesmaid a pearl ring, and to the flower-girls, monogram bracelets. Following the ceremony, the guests sat down to a dainty wedding luncheon. The wedding gifts were numerous and beautiful. Among those present from out-of-town places were: Mr. and Mrs. J. B. WILL NOT DO FOR YOUR EYES!

LANDED ON ICE.

Nome, Alaska, June 9.—Unable to find an open lead, the steamer Corwin, whose coming marked the opening of navigation in Behring Sea, landed her 102 passengers on the solid ice seven miles from shore here yesterday. The passengers, four of whom were women, reached land safely.

The Corwin was unable to discharge her cargo, but sufficient provisions for immediate needs were brought in by dog sleds. The Corwin left Seattle May 19.
