The Place of Praver.

Come to the peaceful grove, it is a place Most meet for holy thought, for rev'rent awe And near approach to God.

The young leaves thrill I'nto the birds' wild music, and the breath Of the free winds of heaven come stealing in Through the embowering branches of the oak, den with sweetness from the dewy lips Of the meek flowers, fair nature's wildling ones. The lowly, the uncultured; whose pure smiles Lights up the lonely waste, by man untrod, Save when some pensive worshipper comes up To worship God. It is a blessed place ! By the world's breath untarnished.

Strife's wild din. And noisy revel never dare intrude Upon its quiet, but the drowsy hum Of mormuring insect and the joyous gush Of the free songster's music, the soft chime Of dis ant beils, the voice of lowing kine Borne o'ef the distance, and the rustling tone Of wind swept leaves, its music are. Bring their unholy off'rings.

No vain pomp With high embellish clothes its shadowy aisles "p-,stentatious trappings. No proud swell Of choral voices, blended with the tone Of sounding organs, through the dim arcades, Goas sweeping by. No hypocritic tone

Of prayerful mockery offends the ear Of him who hears in secret the low breath Of penitential worship, and whose hand Rewardeth openly " the lowly one Who loves his blessed service.

Oh! then come To this sweet sanctuary, by nature's hand So richiy garnished, and alone with God Hold heavenly fellowship ! Come, when the smile

Naw Yona, Der 27th, 1553. I came to New York in the ship Telegraph : my natire place is St. John, New Brunswick, when I reached the city, my health was very poor : had a very bad cough, raised a good deal of matter, which was frequently frived with blood ; bad pain in Ay left side, and was very weak and emschated. My friends and physician pronounced my case consemption, and beyond the reach of medicine I accidentally heard of Dr. Curits's Hygenan or Inhaing Hygean Yappor and Cherry Syrup, and obtained a pack-age, which I verily believe was the means of saving my life soon after wearing the Inhaier, I found it releved a.e. which I verify believe was the means of saving my life — Soon after wearing the Inhaier, I found it reheved the pressure on my lungs, and after awile the disease made its appearance upon the surface under the Inhaler. I took the Cherry syrup as directed and continued to do so, my cough gradually growing better, until it eutirely left me, and I now consider myself cured. I still wear the Inhaler, as the use of it is rather pleasant, and be-lieving it strengthening and puryfying to the langs, I feel unwilling at present to dispense with it JOHN WOOD.

The Closing Scene.

BY T. BUCHANAN READ. The North B-filish Review pronounces the following poem the best that has ever been written by an American auth r --

Within this sober realm of leafless trees, The russet year inhaled the dreary air, Like some tanned reaper in his hour of ease.

The gray bains looking from their hazy hills Sent down the air a greeting to the mills, On the dull thunder of alternate flails.

All sights were mellowed, and all sounds subdued, in mortal suffering, over the teeth. The hills seemed farther and the streams sung low:

As in a dream the distant woodman hew'd His winter log, but with a muffled blow.

Th' embattled forests erewhile armed with gold. Now stood, like some sad beaten host of old, Withdrawn afar in Time's remotest blue.

The dove scarce heard his singing mate's ed, stares at the dim taper. complaint ; And like a star, slow drowning in the light,

The village church vane seemed to pale and faint.

The sentinel cock upon the hill side crew : Crew thrice, and all was stiller than before-Silent till some replying wanderer blew His alien horn and then was heard no more.

Where'erst the jay within the elm's tall crest, Made garrulous trouble round the unfielded young; And where the oriole hung her ewaying nest, By every light wind like a censor swung;

Where sang the noisy masons of the caves, The busy swallow circling ever near, Foreboding as the rustic mind believes,

An early harvest and a plenteous year; Where every bird which charmed the vernal feast Shook the sweet slumber from its wings a morn,

To warn the reapers of the rosy east, All now was songless, empty and torlorn.

Alone from out the stubble piped the quail, And croaked the crow through all the dreary gloom ;

Alone the peasant, drumming in the vale,

The thistle-down the only ghost of flowers,

Its crimson leaves as if the year stood there, Amid all this, the centre of the scene,

Plies the swift wheel, and with her joyless mien,

EXTRAORDINARY CURE OF ASTHMA OF AN OLD LADY SEVENTY FIVE YEARS OF AGE Copy of a Letter from Mr. Thomas Weston, (Book Store,) Toronto, dated the 9th October 1854.

1854. To PROFESSOR HULLOWAY, Bir,-Gratitude compels me to make known to you the extraordinary benefit an aged parent has derived from the use of your Prils. My mother was afflected for up wards of four and twenty years with asthma and apliting of blood, it was quite agony to see her suffer and hear her cough; I have oiten declared that I would give all I pos-esses to have cured her; but slithough I paid a large sum for madicine and advice, it was all to no purpose. About three months ago, I thought perhaps your Pills might benefit her, at all events I resolved to give them a trial, which I did; the result was marvelloux; i by slow degrees my mother become better, and a her preverving with your remedies for line weeks, she was perfectly cured, and now enjoys, the best of health, although 75 years old.
