Very Charming Event Transpired In Brantford This Afternoon

A large and fashionable wedding took place this afternoon in Zion Presbyterian Church when Miss May Watt, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watt, became the bride of Mr. Fred Allan Popplewell. The ceremony, which took place at 3.30, was performed by Rev. Edward Cockburn, of Toronto, uncle of the bride assisted by Rev. G. A. Woodside of the church. Through an arch of evergreen and yellow mums, the bridal party, headed by the flower girls, little Miss Miriel Watt niece of the bride and Miss Margaret Watt, a cousin, very pretty in their Kate Greenaway gowns and butterfly hats, entered to the strain of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, played by Mr. Donald Wright, brother-in-law of the groom, and took their places under a high floral bell. The bride was given away by her father, and looked very charming in her wedding gown of Ivory satin, trimmed with Duchess Lace and Court train of brocade, lined with myriad rows of French lace, one corner being held back coquettishly with a lover's knot of orange blossom and seed pearls. Her veil a lovely creation of fine French tulle trimmed with seed pearls and embroidered in lover's knots, was held in place by a bondeau of Rhine stones and pearls with trailer of orange blossoms falling over the shoulders. To complete her costume, she carried a shower bouquet of new lilies of the valley. In the midst of honor, Miss Margaret Gould, of Uxbridge, cousin of the bride was a petite brunette in buttercup yellow. The bridesmaids being Miss Alma Knapman, of Peterboro, cousin of the bride, and Madeline Ward, of London in Nile green; Miss Ann Burden, Toronto and Miss Lottie Larze of this city in buttercup yellow. All of whom wore the groom's gift of pearl bar pins set with jewels to match the individual gowns. Their dresses were of French crepe effectively draped. The bodices of shirred net with bolera of shadow lace and trimmed with lace butterfly and pearl tassels. Their novelty butterfly hats gave a very distinctive touch to their gowns. All carried huge bouquets of yellow mums. The flower girls carried long-handled baskets filled with yellow mums and wore the groom's gift, a dainty little pearl beauty pin. Mr. Hilton MacKay performed the offices of best man while the ushers were: Mr. Harvey T. and Thomas L. Watt, brothers of the bride; Howard Harris, Toronto; and Digby Spencer, large cousin of the groom, all of whom received pearl tie pins. Mr. David Wright also received a tie pin. During the signing of the register Mrs. Joseph G. Watt, of Virginia, Minn. sister-in-law of the bride, sang very sweetly "O flower of all the World," by Woodford Finner, the soloist also wearing a pin, the gift of the groom. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 70 Alfred St., where Mrs. Watt looked particularly handsome gowned in purple moire and lace coatée with corsage bouquet of violets and lillies of the valley and becoming hat to match. Mrs. A. A. Popplewell, mother of the groom in soft gun-metal chiffon satin with touch of pink and black velvet hat and carrying pink roses and lillies of the valley received the guests. The house was very beautifully decorated with smiles and ropes of cupid hearts and shells. The dejeuner was served in a marquee on the lawn and was very attractive arranged to match the decorations in the house. The many handsome gifts were arrayed artistically on tables in the living room. Among them were some cheques, a piano, Tulle trimmed with seed pearls, covers of silver and silver tea set, etc. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome necklace of pearls and aquamarines. Mr. and Mrs. Popplewell left at 6.01 for Buffalo, Atlantic City and New York. The bride, going away gown was smart and becoming, tailor-made of putonia colored broadcloth with hat to match and ermine furs. The Courier heartily wishes them many years of life and happiness together.

Several members of the senior physical class gave an exhibition, showing the work in that department. At this juncture an opportunity was given to register for class work in the various departments. The short sketch, "How the Story Grew" was presented by Misses White, Cooke, Huber, O'Leary, Bythem, Smoke, Morden, Stephenson. Throughout the program several musical numbers were rendered. PLEASING EVENT

The members of the C. O. C. F. Brantford Council No. 147, numbering about 30, gave a pleasant and complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Colmer, Oxford street, on Monday evening, this being the occasion of their 40th anniversary of their wedding. After the friends were seated, the Chief Councillor, Mrs. Miller, called for orders, and asked the grand rector, Mr. James presided at the organ, and Mr. W. F. Campbell of Hamilton, to express the feeling and good wishes of the Council. He remarked that a printed address had been put into his hands which he would read. During the address Mrs. Hainer, a charter member, was called upon to make the presentation of a beautiful mahogany chair. Mr. Campbell concluded his remarks by saying that there was more in fraternity than dollars and cents, and wished Mr. and Mrs. Colmer happiness and prosperity for many, many years to come. Mr. Colmer, on behalf of himself and his wife, made a suitable reply, after which games, etc. were indulged in. Lunch was then served, and at the house of midnight the friends took their departure feeling in a pleasant and profitable manner. Fire broke out in a singular way in a dwelling-house at Clyde street, Port Glasgow, A hot cinder, alighted on the top of a cat lying in front of the hearth. The animal darted under the bed, and the cinder fell among some clothing and set the place on fire. The brigade were called out, but before their arrival the flames were extinguished.

THE HOSPITAL YEAR.

The report of the hospital year for the month ending with September last, tells in eloquent terms of the progress of this excellent institution.

An increase in patients of considerably over one hundred and in receipts of nearly $3,000, serves to impressively demonstrate the all round advance which has been made.

It is not that there has been so much sickness, but that public confidence and appreciation have shown a steady advance.

The demands are now becoming so great that the building of the nurses home, and other hospital additions are seen to have been fully warranted, in fact have come in the nick of time.

In Hamilton and Winnipeg, the citizens find themselves up against a serious lack of accommodation and enlargement will have to be rushed.

WOMEN ON THE FARM.

Mr. A. P. Sandell, Secretary of Agriculture for Ohio, makes the statement that the tendency of so many young men to leave the farm will never be stopped to any appreciable extent unless the girls are induced to remain there also.

A REPRIEVE.

Charles Gibson, a young Toronto man awaiting execution has been reprieved at the last moment.

The evidence that he killed another man was most conclusive. The jury didn't doubt that, neither did the Judge nor any one else who heard, or read the evidence.

On the top of that the Minister of Justice after he had carefully reviewed the testimony told his colleagues in council, that he could not under the circumstances recommend a reprieve.

Then petitions were started in the Queen City and pathetic appeals were made on behalf of the comparative youth who was awaiting the hangman's rope.

The incident more than anything else shows that a great many people are averse to the extreme penalty.

Ernest Kemp, aged 27, an aeronaut, was drowned in Thunder Bay River, at Alpena, Mich., when he came entangled in the ropes of his parachute.

Conference Here Today On Prison Farm Idea

Resolution Carried at Noon, All But Brant County Representative Voting in Favor of the Scheme.

Representatives of five counties, Brant, Waterloo, Norfolk, Perth and Oxford, gathered here to-day to discuss the idea of establishing a prison farm.

Warden Denton of Oxford was chairman of the meeting. The chairman did not think it necessary to outline the movement as it had been dealt with previously.

At the conclusion of the chairman's address, Ald. Charlton read the Industrial Farm Act.

Dr. Bruce Smith explained Clause 3 of the act which does not cover cases coming under the criminal code.

The speaker urged the meeting to first decide whether to establish or not and then take the matter to the several councils.

The industrial farm was not for the punishment of the prisoners but for the physical and moral welfare of the prisoner.

There was no doubt in the speaker's mind as to the industrial farms in Ontario being self-sustaining.

In the neighborhood of one year ago a superintendent with 10 prisoners and 3 tents, had located on a 100 acre tract which required to be cleared.

Dr. Smith suggested that a committee of managers could be appointed from the municipalities to deal with matters pertaining to the farm.

As far as the financial end of the scheme was concerned the municipalities had nothing to fear.

Owing to Dr. Smith having condemned the local jail Councillor Cook took occasion to state that probably an inspector would come along and condemn the building.

Ald. Ward asked as to the maintenance of the farm. The doctor stated that the amount now being received to maintain the county jails would be forthcoming.

Ald. Charlton asked—who would bear the cost of conveying the prisoners from the municipality to the prison used jointly by the municipalities.

Dr. Smith replied that there would have to be an arrangement. He thought the time was coming in Ontario when county jails would entirely be done away with.

An Expert.
A party of Brantfordites headed by Mr. Brien Forsayeth, the popular manager of the Bank of Hamilton, journeyed to Onondaga Fair by motor yesterday. Arriving at the grounds, the officials were found in great distress. One of the gentlemen whom they had picked out with great care to act as judge at the baby show failed to turn up. When Mr. Forsayeth arrived, great was the joy of the officials. "Here is our man," and promptly the Brantford bank manager was impressed into service. There was a great array of hopefuls all gathered around, and mothers and friends showed almost a militant spirit of rivalry. The officials of the show were satisfied that Mr. Forsayeth was an expert on babies. And the Brantford manager sighed as he consoled himself with the fact that he made one another happy and probably a dozen or so others real womanly mad.

A Banquet

Complimentary Affair by Secretary Goodwin of the Y.M.C.A.

A complimentary banquet given by Mr. George L. Goodwin, the energetic secretary of the Brantford Y.M.C.A. to all those connected with the actual building of the handsome new association headquarters, was a feature of Tuesday's celebration in connection with the opening week exercises. The banquet was held in the auditorium on the second floor, and about 120 of those, who for the past couple of years have been at work on the building, of which Brantford is now so proud, sat down to a sumptuous repast. Included in the gathering were plumbers, brick layers, hod carriers, electricians, carpenters, painters, and all other who have had anything to do with the erection of the "Y," and the "party" was certainly one of the merriest imaginable. The men sat side by side and laughed and joked among themselves, bringing back to memory incidents of their common work, and some not quite so humorous, which had occurred during the construction of the building, while Mr. Goodwin, who presided over the gathering, invited those present to "fall to" and help themselves.

Following the banquet an interesting and excellent program of toasts, speeches and music was listened to. Mr. T. F. Best, general secretary of the Hamilton Y.M.C.A., and Mr. Lees, president of the same association, being the principal speakers. Both gentlemen had some very flattering remarks to make regarding the excellence of the Brantford association's new home, while Mr. Best's remarks on the relationship of the Y.M.C.A. to the workmen were listened to with keen attention. The Hamilton male quartette was present and rendered a couple of selections which meted hearty applause.

Toasts to the architects, the contractors, the plumbers and heaters, the electricians, and all others taking part in the work, were then proposed and were responded to in a brief but pleasing manner by Mr. Barber for the architects, Mr. G. C. Schultz for Schultz Bros., general contractors, John Cousland, the energetic foreman, for the men in general, Mr. Avery for the plumbers and heaters, and Mr. Lyons for the electricians.

During the progress of the workmen's banquet, the board of directors were busy downstairs receiving those employed in shops and stores south of Colborne street, with their gentlemen and lady friends. Hundreds of those anxious to see the new building took the opportunity to give it a thorough inspection, and were met from early until late the reception committee was kept on the hustle. Mr. T. F. Best of Hamilton addressed the gathering briefly, congratulating the city upon the beautiful structure, and pointing out the great opportunities presented for work of a practical nature. Mr. Best was listened to with interest and pleasure, and was accorded a hearty reception. The Hamilton male quartette also received enthusiastic applause when it rendered a couple of selections in excellent voice.

At a late hour, those present dispersed, every person who had been shown through the building, being delighted.
On Tuesday afternoon the school boys of Alexandra and King Edward schools were guests at the association, and in relays of 100 each, they were taken on a tour of inspection to all parts of the building. The youngsters were greatly interested in everything that they saw, and "ain't she a peach" was the general expression heard on all sides. Of course the greatest centre of attraction to the boys was the swimming tank, the big gymnasium, and many of those present lingered in the swimming department, expressing the hope that the secretary would "fill her up and let us have a duck."

$13.50 Silk Dresses for $8.95

Our ready-to-wear section has been particularly successful this Fall in securing a number of real bargains for our patrons and we think for real value that the last offering is the best yet. We have a limited number in the full range of sizes, practically every dress, exclusive of silk afternoon and informal evening gowns. These dresses would regularly sell for $13.50, but over-production in one of the larger factories enabled us to get them at a very low price, and we are able to offer them to you while they last for $8.95. They come in Navy, Copen., Tan, and Black, and they are made with the beautiful new Medici collar with lace ruffle, the modish long drop shoulders and the smart draped skirt. They are a wonderful bargain and you should see them.

The Vogue of Brocades

Magnificence and sumptuousness governed by the best of good taste is the key-note for the fashions this year and in no other garments is it more noticeable than in evening wear. The simple white chiffon is still the gown for the debutante, but not for her elders. Our showing of evening gowns and wraps gives a fine idea of the popularity of the stunning brocades that have been evolved for this season. Especially in evening wraps is this apparent. We have a few gorgeous cloaks in brocades and Jacquards in Copen., Taupe and Black, some lined with colored silk and some with colored mole skin; be sure you see these cloaks. In evening dresses we have a very excellent value at $16.50. These are made of shadow lace trimmed with brocaded satin in delicate shades giving the much desired appearance of sheerness with the richness of the brocade. For the younger girl we have some beautiful chiffons in pale blue, pink, yellow, mauve and Copen., all lined with silk; very dainty and smart, at

This Year's Trimmings are Rich and Colorful

The brocaded goods for all kinds of wear have brought the heavy rich trimmings more to the fore than for many years. Not since the days of the first Georges on the English throne, have we had so much gold trimming. All the most attractive of the heavier lines are woven with more or less bold and usually it is more. This combined with warm rich colors that Milady will wear, will give a truly regal air to the costume. There are also some exquisite lace handings from 2 inches to 18 inches wide, in White, Cream and Ecru in Bohemian, Venetian, and Maltese, and many other patterns which are just the things to go over the rich dress goods. We have some exquisite Marabout trimmings in Pink, Sky, Brown and Black for evening dresses.

WHAT BRANTFORD MEN THOUGHT OF ATHLETIC VICTORY

Mr. Nelson Wires Courier This Morning That Philadelphia Will Win the 1913 World's Championship — It Was Some Game, Says President.

Other papers may have their Ty Cobb, Grantland Rice and correspondents, writing copyright matter on the world's series, but the opinion of a coterie of Brantfordites on the big game played in New York yesterday, will be well worth while for Courier readers. President T. J. Nelson, wiring the Courier to-day, picks Connie Mack's Philadelphia sluggers to bring home the bacon again this year. Others from the Telephone City were wonderfully impressed with the terrific slugging powers of the Athletics. Here follows the Brantford dope:

NEW YORK, October 8.—Connie Mack's Athletics to-day demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of over forty thousand fans that they still have the punch and judging from to-day's battle are likely to repeat their 1911 performance.

To-day's game was an exceptionally good one from a spectator's point of view, as the pitcher's were all hit hard. Sensational fielding saved them many hits. Collins was the star of the day, both in the field and at the bat; while Baker's home run was liberally applauded. He did not shine in the field. Schang caught a good game, while Doyle looked the best of the Giants.

THOMAS J. NELSON.
 John J. Kelly.
 "I have heard a lot about the greatness of John McGraw, the leader of the Giants, but believe me after to-day's game I have a whole lot more respect for Cornelius McGillicuddy than I ever had. When New York had a man on first and a man on third, with one out, and one run needed to tie the score, it looked to me as foolish that McGraw did not order Fletcher to pull off the squeeze play. As it was, Mr. Fletcher hit into a double play and it was all off. Giant hopes were killed right there."

J. Franklin Baker, "The Bear"

Frank Baker, whose specialty is home runs when they are needed. He landed one yesterday in the right spot.

I have always had a dislike for the bunt game, particularly as I have seen it in the Canadian League in our own games at Brantford, but never in my life did I think a bunt or a sacrifice was more needed, from a New York standpoint than in the spot which I have picked out. It is all right to win games after they have been played, but here was one spot where a game might have been played and won at the same time. It looked to me as if the New York signs were grabbed by the astute Mack and flashed to Bender, the big chief doing the rest."

Arthur O. Secord.
 "Baseball, as she is played in the big gonfalon, is a revelation to me. I didn't expect anything like this; it was wonderful, the crowd being the most wonderful of all. The Phillies can not only hit often, but they can hit hard. That tells the tale. We had a good motor trip to New York."

E. C. Andrich.
 "When Eddie Collins made that three base hit in the fourth inning, lots of other nerve-racking sporting events, but this baseball climax in New York capped them all. In the next inning when Baker binged a homer into the grand stand a mile past where we were sitting, I took off my hat to Connie Mack. At that, they say in New York here that the Giants still have a chance. I fail to see it."

Roy Brown.
 "Treasurer Brantford Ball Club: 'I picked the Giants to win on natural strength, particularly on their pitching ability, but to-day's game showed me that the hitters are to be given a whole lot of respect. Connie Mack surely has the sluggers, and no matter how weak his pitchers may be, the Giant hurlers waver in the slightest the game is likely to be broken up there and then. You must bear in mind that weather conditions were not good to-day, and being such as they were it is no indication of the respective playing strength of the clubs. This fellow Bender, did not look as good as he did two years ago. Continued on Page Eight

Sporting Comment

BY FREE LANCE
 In the last two world series, the Giants have won the opener and lost on the series. This year they lost the first and their friends take it that they will win the series.

The Giants used three pitchers in yesterday's battle, but even then they failed to stop the Athletics. "All pitchers look alike to us" was the song of Connie Mack's slugging baseballists.

Just while you are talking about slugging the ball, the Giants appeared to be right there with the big stick yesterday. Eleven hits garnered off Bender's delivery, shows that McGraw's men can hit some at that.

The Maple Leaf rugby team had a punting and catching practice last evening and a number of candidates were out. Rugby football promises to become as popular in Brantford as the association game was during the past summer and that is surely going some.

Those who predicted that "Home Run" Baker would again be the batting sensation of the world's series, are sitting back to-day and saying, "I told you so" as a result of Baker's demonstration of yesterday. The way Baker slams that pill is the joy of the Philadelphia crowd.

Despite the efforts of the members of the National Commission to prevent ticket scalping in connection with the present world's series, the scalpers are just about as thick as ever. Now the Commission will get busy and think out plans to prevent the work of the scalpers next year, but it is a safe bet that there will be a good many of them sticking around when the world's series opens in 1914.

And yet, we have heard nothing about any organization hockey meeting for Brantford. Other towns in this district have organized and are ready for the annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association which will be held early next month, but local hockeyists have no idea at the present time just where they will play this winter. Once again we urge those at the head of affairs to get busy.

The rule which says that freshmen shall not take part in senior Athletics at Toronto University has been rescinded in order to make it possible for Dick Sheehy, formerly of Ottawa College, and a well known rugby star to play with the Varsity team this year. It is probable that the new rule, allowing freshmen to play will remain in force for all time to come. Varsity opens the season with the Royal Military College at Kingston on Saturday.

As far as can be learned, the Courier's suggestion that a hockey league be formed this year with teams from the various clubs and young people's societies in the city churches, has met with favor and it is altogether probable that the scheme will be taken hold of in the very near future. Several of those spoken to appear to be enthusiastic regarding a "church league" and it is the opinion of many that if the league was organized, some first class sport would be witnessed. More will be heard from the church league at a later date.

Mighty Bats Of Collins And Baker Did Trick

Critical Review of Yesterday's Big Clash For the Baseball Championship in New York—Shaffer's Costly Misjudgment.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—In the third world's series clash between the all-but-perpetual champions of their respective leagues, the Giants and Athletics, and under a sky as dull and dingy as the uniforms they wore, the Athletics won the first game 6 to 4. It was a battle of bats. Elementary power with the mail tick took the tale, and was the dominant factor. The Athletics hit the harder, and won; they clustered their hits better, they drove out more long hits. What of the subtler elements of finesse, of shrewd manoeuvring there was in the game was associated more with the fielding. The simple tactics of clean and timely hitting, the effectiveness of which was increased by speed on the bases in making the most of hits mustered the runs.

Two of McGraw's pitchers, Marquard and Crandall, were stopped by the Athletics, driven from the box. The trust reposed in Marquard of carrying on the pitching in the first game to a successful issue was not fulfilled by the left-hander, and he fell by the wayside under the heavy and concentrated pelting of the punishing Mackmen. Crandall, too, ran into a drubbing, and gave way to Tesreau. The latter game in with the toughest of situations confronting him, solved it with the aid of a smartly planned and executed trap set by Meyers and Doyle—the best fielding play of the game—and pitched the best of any of the New York occupants of the pedestal.

Meanwhile Chief Bender, the most outstanding pitching figure in world's series history, was feeling the weight of the New York bats. The Giants did a big share of batting themselves not quite as lengthy or as bunched as the Athletics did, but enough to make them dangerous, and to let Bender know that he was in for a busy day. The Indian had to go his best from start to finish to win, and got only one hand on it and dropped it. The play was of tremendous bearing on the game, because two runs scored on it. It was one of three critical moments in the fortunes of the battle—moments surcharged with defeat or victory. The other two came when the Athletics were in the lead. This particular one was rough on Marquard and complicated the situation to an extent for which he was not to blame.

Admirable, though, not brilliant, outfield playing attended the charges and counter-charges of the game. There were no hard fly balls to ensnare, but there was quick and deft handling of ground balls, accuracy and good judgment in returning them to infield points, and nice judgment in playing for batters. Pretty clever work was the conservation of the Athletic outfielders in not attempting to head off a runner going to third on a hit but holding the batter at first, so that he would be less likely to score on what might follow. Being ahead, the foreign alien outposts could afford to do this. The New York pickets, too, combed their range widely and well.

Says that the Giants tried the hit-and-run often than the Athletics, the range of the tactical developments was about equal. The Giants showed more fielding originality and daring, and twice put a damper on hostile prospects by outwitting the invading champions. Despite more accredited speed, there was no evidence of superior base-running by the Giants. They weren't a bit more fleet or bold in advancing on hits. What attempts there were at pilfering were few and far between. One base was stolen, Collins did it. There were only two tries aside from this. Fletcher and Murphy each tried to steal. Both were unsuccessful. It was policy, not timidity, that limited the larceny.

A Poor Light for the Batters
The wonder was that there was so much hard hitting with such a poor light for the batters. The air was murky and the mist laden—better for pitchers than batters. Marquard's normal speed would have gone a long way on such a day—or should he have the wherewith to hold the crowd of talented hitters. Ordinary and easy for stretches of innings, when they did strike they were as vicious as the devil and they struck in unison. Yet the Giants didn't let the game go by without giving exhibitions of forcible consecutive hitting and harassing the foe, by giving them a taste of their own medicine.

Alternating rallies, a vigorous effort by the Giants to catch up after the Athletics had taken a comfortable lead, aggressive and incisive birching of the ball, closeness and numerous opportunities to score, to say nothing of the occasion itself, made the game one of the most brilliant of its blue ribbon kind and were kept on the sharp edge of interest throughout. A world's series conflict does not often furnish as much free hitting and liberal scoring by both sides. There were ten runs and twenty-one hits, and no hit save one was fluky. More power in hitting won for the warriors from abroad. They held the balance of power; a cogent agent of extra dimensions. Four times they took hold hard enough to volley the ball for more than singles. They made two doubles, two triples, and a home run. A 2-bagger by Burns was New York's only extra base hit. The long hits of the Athletics multiplied their scoring.

Baker and Collins Starred
Two well known figures in the Athletic band did more to play havoc with New York's chances than all the others. They were Baker and Collins. They fielded perfectly but they batted ferociously. They were the backbone of the Philadelphia structure. Collins reached first base four times, scored three runs and made three hits, ranging from a three-bagger to a bunt. Baker made two singles and a home run and batted in three runs. McInnis, Barry and Schanz also made hits which counted.

For New York, Doyle, Murray and Fletcher made most hits, two each, and Doyle did the most timely hitting. The batting of Merkle and McCormick counted in New York's scoring, which took on added proportions because wedged in with the wobbles of Barry at shortstop. The Giants didn't neglect to make the most of what paths to the plate that were opened by cracks in the opponents' defence. McGraw and Mack both sent out a right and a left hander to warm up, Bender and Plank and Marquard and Mathewson. Both teams adopted the plan of hitting at the first ball, and there was little disposition to wait it out. Eddie Mitrzycki took a swing at the first ball pitched and a yell of approval greeted Murray's seizure of his drifting fly.

COOMBS RECEIVED RETURNS AT BEDSIDE

The Crowds in Philadelphia Thronged All Available Points for Results.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Business was practically suspended in the centre of the city yesterday while the game between the Athletics and Giants was in progress in New York. Crowds surrounded the scoreboards in front of the newspaper offices and at other points where the results of the game were given, play by play. More than 10,000 spectators watched an electric scoreboard from the City Hall Plaza, while others viewed the game in theatres, nearly all of which had arranged to show the game on screens as quickly as a play was Signs and superstitions were numerous among the good-natured crowd. When a load of empty barrels, which has long been with many Athletic rooters as a presage of victory for their favorites went past, throng on City Hall Plaza, hats were doffed and a great cheer went up. The next play displayed was Baker's home run, scoring Collins ahead of him. The crowd went wild and there were many expressions of "I told you so."

Every score was the signal for an outburst of countless automobile horns, which made the conduct of trials in the courtrooms almost an impossibility. At the end of the ninth inning the cheer of the assembled fans appeared to shake the surrounding buildings. Many women were in the throngs following the plays with the same interest as their companions.

There was very little betting here, the game appearing not to want to take their eyes off the scoreboards long enough to lay a wager. Pitcher John Coombs, hero of two previous world's series, and the only player eligible to participate in the series, not at the Polo Grounds, received the report of the game by telephone at the bedside in the University hospital. His wife and Mrs. Ira Thomas were at Blue Park, and told him each play as it was flashed on the scoreboard there. Coombs, who is suffering from twisted muscles, is stretched out in bed with a 38-pound weight attached to his feet.

Naps Again Trounce Pirates
CLEVELAND, Oct. 8.—Cleveland again defeated the Pittsburgh Nationals to-day, 2 to 1 in an eleven-innings pitchers' battle. Gregg, Cleveland's star southpaw, opposed Robinson, Pittsburgh's best left-hander, and the honors were about even. Gregg's first base on balls helped Pittsburgh to their only run, and Robinson's base on balls allowed Cleveland to score the deciding tally.

Only about 2,500 were present, but they were well repaid; Hans Wagner, who failed to get a hit the day before, got two singles yesterday, while Lajoie, his rival for seniority got but one. Wagner handled six fielding chances perfectly. To-day's game will be played at Pittsburgh. Score: Pittsburgh 1, Cleveland 2.

ago to me, but he was a fair pitcher just the same, well worth the draft price from a minor league. Mathewson may show something different, but the feeling of New York to-night is that the Athletics have the jump on McGraw and have it properly." Peanuckle Cancellia

"The pitcher with the hop on the ball and the guys who could hit that old pill won the game out there today for Connie Mack." New York fielded faultlessly, and what would the score have been if, New York had bobbled. It is a shame to tell it. I still insist that McGraw made a tactical error when he allowed Fletcher to hit into a double play. Instead of ordering him to bunt. He did the same thing last year in the first game, and it was in the ninth inning with one run, needed to tie the score. This year it was earlier in the game and he had more chance. He could have well afforded to sacrifice, and it would have given the Giants a chance. This is said to be the McGraw method, but it doesn't work against teams such as Connie Mack's.

George Battersby.
"The best game in the world's series I have ever seen and I have seen several. It was the best because the fielding was so clean and the hitting so hard. There was action every minute, and one could never tell when someone on either side would land on the ball to the nethermost parts of the big grounds and clean up. The Philadelphia seemed to have the monopoly today of the bombardment proceedings and that is why they won. Believe me, this boy Schanz for Connie Mack is some cat, and believe me it will be some series before the final is played."

William J. Fraser.
"Same old story as it was two years ago, the Mackmen can hit the globe."

and hit it tremendously hard. If I were a betting man which I am not, I were on Philadelphia would look to me like backing a horse at Dufferin or Hillcrest, Toronto, when the starter shot the barrier with the favorite turned around to run the opposite way of the track, and my horse had several dozen lengths to the good. There is gloom all over New York to-night, and one might hear considerable knocking of McGraw for lack of generalship. The gamer fans expect him to come through, however, and make it close. The Giants have got to have, however, pitching of the wonderful order to get by."

John McGraw.
Not the big manager but the well-known Brantford contractor who is at the big games.

"I have seen my namesake in action and have seen his team, and I don't know whether I would rather back to my name McGraw or McGillicuddy to-night. This kind of baseball is a revelation to me in the extreme, and I could hardly hold Jack Kelly in his seat to-day. Here were the two Irish managers fighting it out for the supreme honors of the baseball world and could you imagine how excited Kelly was. I have heard him yell and seen him work behind the dycs many times for victory but he went crazy to-day with all the rest of us in the heat of the battle. It was Trojanic."

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe To Restore Color, Gloss and Thickness.
Hair that loses its color and lustre or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.
Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance. "Do not see that it is quite a question of profit," said Oscar quietly in a voice that did not sound like his at all. "We are not in a court of justice, where justice like to settle these questions now." "If we were I could challenge you to produce my letters. There is no doubt of my meaning in them."

"There are also my poor contributions to your collection," chimed in Jack Meredith. "A comparison must have been interesting to you, by the same mail presumably, under the same postmark."

"I made no comparison," the girl cried indignantly. "There was no question of comparison."

She said it shamelessly, and it hurt Meredith more than it hurt Guy Oscar, for whom the sting was intended. "Comparison or no comparison," said Jack Meredith quickly, with the keenness of eyes that had never been touched, "there can be no doubt of the fact that you were engaged to us both at the same time. You told us both to go out and make a fortune where- will to buy your selections. One can only presume that the highest bidder—the owner of the largest fortune—was to be the happy man. Unfortunately, we became partners, and such was the power of your fascination—we made the fortune. But we have and share in it. We are equal, so far as the price is concerned. The situation is interesting and rather amusing. It is your turn to move. We await your further instructions in considerable suspense."

She stared at him with bloodless lips. She did not seem to understand what he was saying. At last she spoke, ignoring Guy Oscar's presence altogether.

"Considering that we are to be married tomorrow, I do not think that you should speak to me like that," she said, with a strange, concentrated earnestness.

"Pardon me, we are not going to be married tomorrow." Her brilliant teeth closed on her lower lip with a snap, and she stood looking at him, breathing so hard that the sound was almost a sob.

"What do you mean?" she whispered hoarsely.

He raised his shoulders in polite surprise at her dulness of comprehension. "In the unfortunate circumstances in which you are placed," he explained, "it seems to me that the least one can do is to offer every assistance in one's power to the person who has been de- ceived in a word—a scratch."

She gasped like a swimmer struggling for life. She was fighting for that which some deem dearer than life itself, her love. It is not only the great women who love; though these understand it best and see further into it.

"Then you can never have cared for me," she cried. "All that you have told me—and her eyes flashed indignantly across Oscar—"all that you have promised and vowed was utterly false if you turn against me at the first word of a man who was carried away by his own vanity into thinking things that he had no business to think."

If Guy Oscar was not great adept at wordy warfare, he was at all events strong in his reception of punishment. He stood upright and quiescent, bearing the weather sign and movement that set words could hurt him.

"I beg to suggest again," said Jack Oscar composedly, "that Oscar has not yet brought any accusations against you. You have brought them all yourself."

"You are best wrong and cowardly," she exclaimed, suddenly descending to vituperation. "Two to one. Two men—gentlemen—against one defenceless girl. Of course I am not able to argue with you. Of course you can get the best of me. It is so easy to be sarcastic."

"I do not imagine," retorted Jack, "that anything that we can say or do will have much permanent power of hurting you. For the last two years you have been engaged in an intrigue such as a thin skinned or sensitive person would hardly of her own free will undertake. You may be able to explain it to yourself—no doubt you are—but to my mind limited comprehension it must remain inexplicable. We can only judge from appearances."

"And, of course, appearances go against me. They always do against a woman," she cried rather brokenly.

which is so incriminantly offered to women, merely because they are women, the indulgence which is sometimes given and sometimes withheld, according to the softness of the masculine heart and the beauty of the suppliant feminine form. Guy Oscar was quite sure of his own impressions. This girl had allowed him to begin loving her, had encouraged him to go on, had led him to believe that his love was returned. And in his simple ignorance of the world he did not see why these matters should be locked up in his own breast from a mistaken sense of chivalry to be accorded where no chivalry was due. "No," he answered. "There is nothing more to be said."

"You need not go away; I will do that," some months ago. You are likely to suffer more than I, because I do not care what the world thinks of me. Therefore you may tell the world what you choose about me—that I drink, that I gamble, that I am lacking in honor! Anything that suggests itself to you, in fact. You need not go away; I will do that."

He listened with compressed lips and heaving shoulders, and the bitterest drop in her cup was the knowledge that he despised her. During the last few minutes he had said and done nothing that lowered him in her estimation—that touched in any way her love for him. He had not lowered himself in any way, but he had savely trodden her under foot. His last words—the inexorable intention of going away—sapped her last lingering hope. She could never regain even a tith of his affection. (To be continued)

EVENING GOWNS FOR DINNER AND DANCE

Copied From the Greeks

Flowered Crepe in Surplice Form

A Spiral Beaded Tunic Trains White Silk

Of Gold Lace and Beaded Chiffon

Note the Wrap Like Drapery of Shadow Lace

THEY are the newest expressions of the evening gown, which, above all other types, gives opportunity for beautiful alliance of line and color. Who does not look her best in evening dress? In this day of variety and attention to personal requirements every woman should have a becoming dress for the summer dance or evening affair formal enough to plan especially for the hours after sunset.

In the model which shows a beaded pattern in squares and circles there is a combination of pink chiffon and gold lace over pink satin. The lace forms a deep hem at the bottom of the tunic, and a lovely new line of lace drapery is shown on the bodice. This is caught at the front of the high waist line under a jeweled buckle, passes over the shoulders, forming sleeves, and terminates in a scarf train, which hangs to the floor over a square panel train. The beauty of this gown is in the beaded and metallic nets.

More simple is the white charmeuse dress, which has a draped skirt and accordion-pleated tunic, reflecting the beauty of the Greek classics. The bodice has a pointed low line at the top, outlined by crystal bands. The kimono sleeves are shirred on the outer line and a white satin girde defines the normal waist line. A pink rose is attached to the front of this. The tunic is of two lengths below the waist, an idea very simple and effective.

The wraplike drapery of shadow lace is a noteworthy feature of the gown showing a high satin girde and a beaded hem on the overskirt. Pink satin is the undergown, with a square side train. The lace is caught in slanting lines below the knees and again at the satin shoulder straps. There are no sleeves, the drapery forming artistic covering.

Flowered crepe de chine in a surplice dress shows a beautiful expression of the flowered idea. Blue roses are scattered over the white background. Broad bands pass over the shoulders, with ecru lace filling the spaces between and forming the sleeves. A blue satin ribbon girde holds in the fullness of bodice and skirt, the ribbon forming huge loops of a rose in the center. The bands of the bodice, by the way, form a collar at the back, weighted by a blue silk tassel.

White net with a Greek border in silver beads is wrapped in a spiral tunic around a white satin gown. The top of the bodice is of folded tulle, which is continued in short sleeves. Across the top of the satin section is a rever of net, placed in a new horizontal line, ending in a cluster of pink panne velvet roses. A short round train is used to complete this exquisite model that has artistic simplicity as a dominant note.

Any woman should welcome a dance if one of these gowns is in her outfit.
