3600 MILES ON A BICYCLE

RIDER SAYS HE WOULD HAVE FAILED BUT FOR ZAM-BUK.

Mr. Thompson-Clarke, of Vancouver, Secretary of the British Columbia Football Association, has just reached London, Eng., after riding from Vancouver to Montreal—3,600 miles—on a bicycle.

Interviewed after his long ride, Mr. Thompson-Clarke told a story of terrible hardship, and showed how it was only by the aid of the great herbal healer, Zam-Buk, that he was able to finish his gigantic task. He said:—

"Before leaving Vancouver, I played in the Football Championship, and received a nasty kick on my leg, but when I got to Salmon Arm, B.C., about 300 miles from Vancouver, I was hardly able to use the limb. The wound had been aggravated by the dust and friction of my stocking, and it looked as if I were going to have to abandon my trip altogether."

"At Salmon Arm, an Indian—one of the Thompson Indians—came forward and asked me what was the matter, and on hearing that I had a poisoned wound, suggested that I should use some salve which he said possessed extraordinary power."

"It proved to be a box of Zam-Buk, and he gave it to me in exchange for one of my photographs. I cleansed the wound and applied the Zam-Buk. It soothed the wound wonderfully and after a little delay I was able to cycle off with only slight discomfort."

"I continued the Zam-Buk treatment, and in ten days there was hardly a sign of the wound. Not only on that occasion, but later on throughout my arduous journey I found Zam-Buk an indispensable ally."

"I used it also for chapping of the face, caused by the ice-cold winds which I met with in the Rocky Mountains. In future, on my long rides I shall always carry a box of Zam-Buk after having thus thoroughly tested it and proved its great value."

"You can publish this letter along with photograph just as you wish."

"(Signed) THOMPSON-CLARKE."

Whenever there is ulceration, blood-poison, festering inflammation or any wound on sore place, apply Zam-Buk, and like Mr. Thompson-Clarke and scores of other famous men and women who have done so, you will get relief.

WE OFFER YOU FREE TRIAL BOX.

We want you to test Zam-Buk and prove its merit. Cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper and mail to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, with 1c. stamp (to pay return postage) and we will send you free trial box.

Zam-Buk is a unique herbal healer. Composed of pure vegetable extracts, it is devoid of the mineral coloring matter and traced animal fats which form the base of most ointments and salves. It is antiseptic, soothing and healing all of the same time. Mothers should see that it is always handy for the cuts, burns, knocks and bruises which children so commonly sustain. Whenever there is any skin disease—eczema, salt rheum, ulcers, scalp sores, or wherever there is any skin injury, such as cuts, frost-bite, chapped lips, etc., there Zam-Buk should be applied. All druggists and stores sell a box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

CHAPTER IX.

"Yes; what have you to say to me?"

"That I love you—that I loved you long before he died—that since that day I have had no thought, wish, hope, ambition, that has not had its life-spring in you; I am not worthy of you; I know I can never be that. If I tell you I cannot live without you, you will have pity on me. I have proved dull, unattractive, wearisome and oppressive to most women with whom I have been brought into contact."

"Yes."

"My wife, you saw—oh, you saw well!—had not one interest, one sympathy in common with me. She was tired of me before we had lived a year—what am I saying?—a week together. This woman here, trained actress as she is—even with my comfortable home, my position, and ample fortune before her eyes, can scarcely stifle her yawns, cannot hide the weariness that is consuming her during the long hours she devotes to me. Marie, it—it is a sacrifice I am asking of you; but you have often told me you were happy here, that you loved my children; you cried last night at the thought of leaving them. You have no other home but the close convent, where your heart is not. And—and, my dear, I love you so, I could guess—guess—"

"When I wanted to yawn, and so turn away your head? I whispered, raising his hand to my lips, for I was too deeply moved by the noble, delicate declaration—by the manner in which he teigned to ig—"

HEALTH RESTORED TO THIS FAMILY

Wife's experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food led to husband's cure. "Since childhood I was afflicted with biliousness and sick headaches," writes Mr. A. K. Van Wyck, Park Hill, Ont., "and as all the doctors' medicines and prescriptions failed to do me any permanent good, I had lost faith in all medicines. It was by accident that I came to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for it had been recommended for Mrs. Van Wyck and did her so much good that she wished me to try it. "It did so, and was surprised at the results. It is now three years since I discontinued the medicine and I have not had an attack of the old trouble. I hope that others may benefit by my experience."

The cures effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are lasting because it builds up the system and removes the cause of trouble. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50; at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

more the secret of my love, that he knew so well—to utter anything but the lightest words just then.

I did not go into the house again, for I wanted that day to live in my memory as the happiest and the sunniest of my life. I wanted no harsh sound, no note of discord to disturb the harmony that was filling my heart.

It was a lovely, balmy morning so he, I, and the children had our breakfast in an old summer-house at the bottom of the garden. After which he left us, in order to transact some business that would enable him to start the next morning, and I wandered about the woods all day too excited with happiness to still a moment; too excited even to recall the horrible experiences of the night—the stinging accusations, the unearthly sound that had so started us both, that the whole household had evidently heard; too excited to understand or to entertain any emotion but that of my intense happiness.

He joined us again toward evening, and sending the children home to bed, mentioned for the first time the scene of the night before; begged me, if I valued his peace of mind to banish it from my memory forever, declared he should never forgive himself for having been the means of placing me in such a false position, and assured me he would not have allowed those mercenary, intriguing women to remain under his roof had he not felt sure that I would not have stayed on without their chaperonage.

"I don't know about that, Sir Richard," I answered, laughing. "Let me tell you that up to last night—this morning—I had not felt the slightest necessity for protection of that nature."

"No; I was reserve, propriety itself, a block of granite—wasn't I? Ah, my beloved, you do not know how precious your happiness and your good name were to me; how determined I was that they should not have a single inch lent to seize upon, not one word, glance, movement they could bring against you—as afterward! And I knew, Marie, when the truth was made known, what a target you would be for venom and slander, how your every word and movement would be misinterpreted. At times I was almost afraid to look at you—to wish you good-morning, Marie. Didn't you notice how I avoided you?"

Presently we turned round by the lake, over which the moon was rising, and at the northern end I stooped to pick a bunch of forget-me-nots.

"Take care," he said, a little sharply; "you are wetting your feet, Marie! What do you want those weeds for at this hour of the night?"

The Bread and Butter Miss.

PART I.

Poor Gertrude Englewood, at that moment smilingly received her guests! She little knew how her great interest in the evening was trembling in the balance!

It was late when he arrived. Not that he had specially intended this. He cared too little about it to have considered whether he should be late or early, and, as he slowly made his way through the crowd at the doorway, he was conscious of but one wish—to get himself at once seen by his hostess, and then to make his escape as soon as possible. As the first part of this little programme there was no difficulty. Scarcely did the first syllables of his name, Mr. Despard Norreys, fall on the ear, before Mrs. Englewood's outstretched hand was in his, her pleasant voice bidding him welcome. Yes, there was something difficult to resist about her; it was refreshing, somehow, and—there lay the secret—it brought back other days, when poor Jack's big sister, Gertrude, had welcomed the orphan schoolboy just as heartily, and when he had glowed with pride and gratification at her notice of him.

Despard's resigned, not to say sulky, expression cleared; it was no wonder Mrs. Englewood's old liking for him had suffered no diminution; he did show at his best with her. "So please you've come, so good of you," she was saying simply. Her words made the young man feel vaguely ashamed of himself. "Good of me!" he repeated, flushing a little, though the same or a much more fervent greeting from infinitely more exalted personages than Gertrude had often failed to disturb his composure. "No, indeed, very much the reverse, I'm sorry, with a glance round, to be so late, especially as—" "No, no, you're not to begin saying you can't stay long, the very moment you've come. Listen, Despard," and she drew him aside a little. "I want you to do something to please me to-night. I have a little friend here—Miss Forde—that I want you to be very good to. Poor thing, she quite a stranger, knows nobody, never been out. But she's for a little or two. Will you ask her to dance? or— for the shadow of a frown on her favorite's forehead became evident even to Mrs. Englewood's partial eyes—" "You don't care to dance, will you tell to her a little? Anything, you know, just to please her?"

Despard bowed. What else could he do? Gertrude still her hand through his arm. "There she is, she said. 'That girl in black over there, by the fireplace. 'Maidie, my dear, for a step or two had brought them to the indicated spot. 'I want to introduce my old friend, Mr. Despard Norreys, to you, Mr. Norreys—Miss Forde!' and as she pronounced the names she drew her hand quietly away, and turned back toward her post at the door."

Despard bowed and, with the very slightest possible instinct of curiosity, glanced at the girl before him. She was of middle height, rather indeed under than above it; she was neither very fair nor very dark; there was nothing very special or striking in her appearance. She was dressed in black; there was nothing remarkable about her attire, rather, as Despard did in an instant, an absence of style, of finish, which found its epitome at once in his thoughts—"countryified, of course," he said to himself. But before he had time to decide on his next movement she raised her eyes, and for half an instant his attention deepened. The eyes were strikingly fine; they were very blue, but redeemed from the shallowness of very blue eyes by the depth of the eyelashes, both upper and lower. And just now there was a brightness, an expectancy in the eyes which was by no means their constant expression. For, lashes notwithstanding, Miss Forde's blue eyes could look cold enough when she chose.

"Good eyes," thought Despard. But just as he allowed the words to shape themselves in his brain, he noticed that over the girl's clear, pale face a glow of colour was quickly spreading. "Good gracious!" he ejaculated mentally, "she is blushing! What a bread and butter miss she must be—to blush because a man's introduced to her. And I am to draw her out! It is really too bad of Mrs. Englewood, and he half began to turn away with a sensation of indignation and almost of disgust.

But positively rudeness were a woman was concerned did not come easy to him. He stopped, and muttered something indistinctly enough about the pleasure of a dance. The girl had grown pale again by this time, and in her eyes a half startled almost pained expression was reflected the glad expectancy. As he spoke, however, something of the former look returned to them. "I shall be very pleased," she said. "I am not engaged for anything."

"I should think not," he said to himself. "I am quite sure you dance strenuously."

But aloud he said with the slow, impressive tone in which some of his admirers considered him so to excel, that "Despard's draw" had its school of followers— "Shall we say—the tenth waltz? I fear it is the first I can propose."

"Thank you, Miss Forde replied. She looked as if she would have been ready to say more had he in the least encouraged it; but he, feeling that he had done his duty, turned away—the more eagerly as at that moment he caught sight in the crowd of a lady he knew.

Mrs. Marrinder! What a goddess! he exclaimed.

He did not see Miss Forde's face as he left her, and had he done so, it would have taken far more than his very average modicum of discernment to have rightly interpreted the varying and curiously intermingling expressions which rapidly crossed it. Like cloud shadows alternating with dashes of sunshine on an April morning. She stood for a moment or two where she was, then glancing round and seeing a vacant seat in a corner she quietly appropriated it.

"The tenth waltz," she repeated to herself with the ghost of a smile. "I wonder—" but that was all.

The evening wore on. Miss Forde had danced once—but only once. It was with a man whom her host himself introduced to her, and though good-natured and unaffected, he was boyish and commonplace; and she had to put some force on herself to reply with any show of interest to his attempts at conversation. She was engaged for one or two other dances, but it was hot, and the rooms were crowded, and with a scarcely acknowledged reflection—for Miss Forde was young and inexperienced enough to think it hardly fair to make an engagement even for but a dance to break it deliberately—that if her partners did not find her it would not much matter, the girl withdrew quietly into a corner, where a friendly curtain all but screened her from observation, and allowed her to enjoy in peace the dangerous but delightful refreshment of an open window hard by.

"Here you are—there must be a window open, it is ever so much cooler in this corner. Are you afraid of the draught?" said a voice she thought she recognized.

"No—o—at least—oh, this corner will do beautifully. The curtain will protect me. What a blessing to get a little air!" replied a second speaker—a lady evidently.

"People have no business to cram their rooms so. And these rooms are—well, not spacious. How in the world did you get Marrinder to come?"

"The second speaker laughed. "It was quite the other way," she replied. "How did he get me to come? You might ask. He has something to do with our host."

"And made a personal matter of my coming, so, of course, I gave in."

"How angelic!" "It is a penance; but we're going immediately."

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

The fire which the wants-to-be-cynic had just laid.

"Indeed," said the wants-to-be-cynic. "How remarkable. Was it the first time that ever happened?"

"Go on, Molly. Don't mind him," said the author-man. "He's just jealous because you're making the fire burn better than he did. He can't make a fire."

"There is a continual rivalry in the family as to who can make the best fire. We all agree that making a good fire is a fine art, but that is all we do agree on. Each of us has his own particular style, and each new arrival considers it his privilege to take the tongs and re-adjust the logs according to his school of fire building."

"It was the queerest, most interesting dream," went on Molly, laying down the tongs after having set the top log crosswise—she is of the crosswise school—"that I ever had. I dreamed I was dead."

"More chalk," murmured the wants-to-be-cynic, with simulated horror. "I know its going to be that dream about going back for more chalk."

"I dreamed I was dead," repeated Molly serenely, ignoring him, "and I went somewhere. I don't know just where."

The cynic showed signs of breaking out, but was silenced by the author-man. "At first I was all alone in a big room, and then a man in white clothes, like we read about, came up to me. He had a woman with him and said he wanted me to meet her. And who do you suppose it was?"

"Nobody guessed." "It was me—I mean I," said Molly, "only different. She looked like me, but she was so much prettier. She was plumper, had red cheeks like the doctor said I would if I'd do my exercises, and was taller, or I guess she just looked taller because she stood so fine and straight. I asked the man who she was and he shook his head and kind of melted away, and left us together, so I began to talk to her. She had the sweetest voice and she knew everything. She'd read all the books that I've always meant to read, and she could play the piano wonderfully, like I might if I only hadn't stopped practicing, when I went to work. And somehow I felt she never lost her temper like I do and that everybody that knew her must love her.

"I don't know how I knew all these things, for I'm sure she didn't tell me. I just sort of felt them the way you do in dreams."

"Still, I didn't know who she was and she wouldn't tell me, so when I saw the man who brought her to me I ran up to him and asked him again, and this time he said, 'Why, haven't you found out yet? She's the girl you might have been. She's going to be your companion everywhere you go. He said, 'there she is now.' And I looked around and there she was behind me. We were in a room where there was a big mirror, and when I looked around I saw us both in it, and she looked so much sweeter and nicer than I, just hated myself and wanted to go away and hide, but when I tried to, she followed right after like a shadow."

Molly fell silent.

"And then what?" prompted the author-man.

"And then I woke up and was glad I was awake," finished Molly.

"And made good resolutions?" suggested the wants-to-be-cynic a bit mockingly.

"And made good resolutions," said Molly defiantly.

"I guess it wasn't half so bad a dream for you as it would have been for most of us if we had dreamed it," said the author-man thoughtfully.

"I should say not," agreed the wants-to-be-cynic emphatically and not at all mockingly this time.

And the fire snapped out loudly and suddenly as if it also agreed.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of dirt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half a million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Riot of the London Apprentices.

The London apprentices were an important and sometimes troublesome body, and, having formed an organization among themselves, often came into contact with the authorities. In the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries a continuous succession of riots and tumults, fostered and caused by the apprentices, are recorded.

On September 24, 1390, the London apprentices were ordered by proclamation to be within their masters' houses by nine o'clock each night. At that time it was usual for every tradesman to employ one or more apprentices, and from all shires and counties of England and Wales boys were sent to be apprenticed in London. They were not all recruited from the lower classes. The sons of gentlemen and ministers, as well as yeomen and tradesmen, did not disdain to serve their apprenticeship to trade; indeed, it was necessary that they should do so, for in many trades no man was allowed to set up in business for himself until he had served for seven years as an apprentice.

The particular act by which the apprentices incurred this restriction designed to curtail their liberty, was a serious one. A number of the apprentices, who had broken into some rooms in Lincoln's Inn, were imprisoned, whereupon their fellows assembled in force, attacked the prison and released their friends. Those who were taken prisoners for this riot were publicly whipped—a circumstance which caused tremendous tumult among them, and several hundreds, assembling on Tower Hill, marched off in military array, with the avowed intention of taking the Lord Mayor into custody, and serving him as their friends had been by his order. The soldiers were called out to quell the riot, and several of the ringleaders were arrested. They were tried and convicted of high treason.

By the time of Charles II. the Apprentices' Union seems to have died after his reign there is no record of their acting as a body.

Belfast Speech Was Costly.

4,500 Words Cost $22,500—Nationalist Demonstration and Winston Churchill's Speech Was Responsible for Big Amount.

London, England, Feb. 19.—The Nationalist demonstration which Mr. Churchill addressed in Belfast recently was a very costly one for the nation. It is estimated that the First Lord of the Admiralty spoke for one hour, and in that time he used 4,500 words, which will cost $22,500. The amount is principally accounted for in the removal of the soldiers to Belfast.

A Noted Scottish Murder Trial.

A trial which created universal attention throughout Britain concluded at Glasgow on September 19, 1862. A young woman, Jessie McLachlan, was charged with the murder of an acquaintance, a domestic servant named Jessie Macpherson, in a house at Sandyford Place in the Scottish city.

When the tragedy was discovered, an old man, Mr. James Fleming, who was then the only occupant of the house, was placed under arrest; but as robbery was the motive of the murder, and a quantity of silver plate had disappeared, which was recovered in a pawn shop, where it had been pledged by McLachlan, Mr. Fleming was liberated. When the body was discovered the surgeons testified that death had taken place about three days previous, and had been accomplished by means of some heavy instrument. Curiously, the absence of the servant did not seem to have alarmed Mr. Fleming, and it was not until some friends made inquiries that the body was found in a room in the house.

The jury found the prisoner guilty, but before sentence was passed a document was read, at her request, implicating the old man, whose age was nearly ninety, with the deed. She was sharply rebuked for this by the judge, Lord Deas.

Much controversy ensued in the Press as to whether the evidence warranted a conviction. Yielding to popular clamour, the Crown took the unusual course of ordering a supplementary investigation. This resulted in the death sentence being commuted to penal servitude for life. McLachlan was liberated in 1877.

Only the Best for Him.

Notwithstanding all the educational advantages of to-day, the rustic mind moves very slowly. The following is a very fair sample of the average.

The yellow and red poster which adorned a big board fence in a country village announced that the circus was soon to pitch tents in that place. A group of rustics were gazing open-mouthed at this announcement in letters of green, beneath the counterfeited presentation of a man on a bicycle turning somersaults in the air: "Wait! Wait! Wait! The greatest show on earth, Sept. 1."

"Ah ain't goin' to that show," remarked one of the youths to his buxom companion.

"What for you ain't goin'?" she replied, in a disappointed tone.

"Ah's goin' to wait for the other show, what's better," he said.

"There ain't no better show," said she.

"Yes, there is," was his rejoinder. "It says so on that bill. Can't you read? Greatest show on earth 'cept one."

THE SEWING CIRCLE.

The sewing circle is a form of unostentatious dissipation, which is featured by a rich flow of Oolong tea and undiluted conversation about people who do not care to start any fireworks in the community. The organization is an ancient one, having originated with the Pilgrim Mothers, during the hard winter of 1621, when nobody could get out to the moving picture show. It was the Plymouth Rock sewing circle which discovered the New England witch, and burned several of her in linseed oil, which was a very cheap and penetrating fuel, and gave the victim a lively sense of personal discomfort. As a result of this precedent, a great many people have been raked over the coals by sewing circles ever since. Human life is depicted in a very engaging and minute manner, at a sewing circle, the conversation having to do mainly, with the bondage of woman, and the best method of picking eggs, so that they will retain the bloom of early youth. Let a popular and protuberant citizen walk two blocks with somebody else's wife, and the sewing circle will dissect his past life until he looks like a composite photograph of Don Juan, Brigham Young, and Nat C. Goodwin. It is getting so, that a man can hardly exercise his lordly prerogative of beating up his wife without being landed on by the sewing circle and branded in the minutes as a fiend in human form, who ought to be turning out pin oak furniture under the watchful eye of the state. There is very little sewing done at the average circle, except in the form of tying comforters for people who are short on bedding and castle soap. Most women join sewing circles purely as a defensive proposition, while others never join at all, and are not obliged to divulge whether their clothes came from a catalogue house or were fitted on by the hired girl.

Cascarets Cleanse Liver and Bowels

No Biliousness, Headache, Sick, Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Coated Tongue or Constipation.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give you a thorough cleansing inside and straighten you out by morning. They work white you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Novel Discovery.

The sea-serpent, the giant gooseberry, and other old friends of the "silly season" can take a back seat in face of the following yarn: A Mrs. Rice, living near the village of Odington, on the borders of Oxon and Gloucestershire, keeps two cows, and it was discovered that the animals, although in perfect condition, were not giving the proper supply of milk that might be expected. The cowman was at first at a loss to find a reason, but one day he visited the cows in the meadow and found one of the animals lying down quite com-positioned. He was seized at Patras, a city of Achaia, by a party of infidels, who, for want of a cross, suspended him to the branch of an olive tree (A.D. 74). His body was afterwards removed to Constantinople, when Constantine the Great became a Christian, and buried in the great church erected there by that famous emperor in honour of the Apostles.

St. Luke is generally represented in pictures as sitting, with pen in hand, over a scroll, in an attitude befitting deep thought and reflection, and near him, lying on the ground, a winged cow or ox, apparently chewing the cud.

The Festival of St. Luke was instituted by the Christian Church in the year 1130, and the day on which it is celebrated is also called, in some parts of the country, Whip Dog Day.

St. Luke the Apostle.

St. Luke, the Evangelist and martyr, was a Syrian, a native of Antioch, and is said by some writers to have been a painter by profession. It was during the confinement of St. Paul at Rome that the Gospel of St. Luke was written, which, as well as the Acts, is addressed to Theophilus. Most authors state that person to have been a magistrate of Antioch; but some deny even his existence, contending that in using the word Theophilus, St. Luke merely addressed his writings to "every eminent lover of God."

The purity of language and elegance of style which so eminently distinguish the writings of St. Luke, strengthen the reason for believing that this Evangelist must have received that liberal and polished education which was attainable only by the opulent—to whom, indeed, every species of liberal instruction was accessible at Antioch, where he resided.

St. Luke, in the eighty-fourth year of his age, was seized at Patras, a city of Achaia, by a party of infidels, who, for want of a cross, suspended him to the branch of an olive tree (A.D. 74). His body was afterwards removed to Constantinople, when Constantine the Great became a Christian, and buried in the great church erected there by that famous emperor in honour of the Apostles.

Legalizing Robbery.

How preposterous and ill-considered the Teachers' Pension Scheme, which is now in the Bill Committee Stage in the House of Assembly, is, may be gathered from the following considerations which emphasize the facts that we have already brought out, viz., that two teachers who pay precisely the same premiums for the same number of years are pensioned not in proportion to their contributions, but according to their salaries. It works out that it is possible for one such teacher to be pensioned at $60 and another at $1,200. But this is not all. The premiums are those of the Act of 1903. These premiums with the 6 per cent. interest allowed by the Government for the use of the money accumulate a sufficient sum when the contributory is 60 years of age to buy an annuity of $100.

These tables being retained, it follows that a well paid teacher may get out of it twelve times more than he puts into it, whereas the poorer teacher may not get more than 60 per cent. of what he puts in. Yet the latter is forced to enter on the scheme, and will be robbed by Act of Parliament of 40 per cent. of an annuity that he has in reality purchased.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY March 19, '12.
The need of a mild laxative, one which shall yet be certain in action, and easy to take, is one that often suggests itself where there are children. The dislike which children have to castor oil, senna, etc., is well known, and there is often a tendency to put off the use of medicine until the last moment. In this way a slight stomach or bowel trouble often develops into serious illness, for want of an effective medicine which can be used at the beginning of the trouble. In our Syrup of Figs we offer such a preparation, one which can be absolutely depended on for good results; one which can produce no unpleasant results of any kind. And as it is not alone children who object to nauseous doses of physic, we commend it to the use of adults. Price 30 cts. a bottle.

COMING WITH STOCK COMPANY.
Mr. J. P. Kieley, Manager of the Nickel-Casino Theatre, who arrived by the Bruce on Sunday night from a two months trip to Canada and the United States, tells us that he has secured an excellent company to open an engagement in the T. A. Hall on Easter Monday night. The troupe includes that brilliant Shakespearean actor, Joseph Selman, so well known here, and his brother, Harry, while Miss Rose Valentine is leading lady. Their repertoire is a high-class one, and will be announced to-morrow.

Train Notes.

The local from Carbonear via Broad Cove arrived at 1.15 p.m. to-day. An accommodation train from Grand Falls left Arnold's Cove at 11 a.m. coming this way.
A train leaves here at 6 p.m. for Millerton Junction, taking passengers and mail.
A train left Port aux Basques at 5.30 a.m. to-day for Bay of Islands.
The railway line is now clear from St. John's to Port aux Basques, with the exception of the Gaff Topsails section between Millerton Junction and Kitty's Brook.
Rotary No. 2 is on her way up to the Topsails to clear the section alluded to above.
A train got within a mile of Trinity Junction last night on her way to Bonaville. There is a lot of snow on the line and a plow attached came off the track and will cause considerable delay.
The Fortia left Channel at 5 o'clock this morning.

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.
Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take two cups of granulated sugar, add one cup of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.
If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (20 cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much good syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly. Any household can easily prepare it in five minutes.
And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can find it take hold—usually the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good taste effect, and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.
It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.
Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gualacol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.
This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and printed in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated, but never successfully.
A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this recipe, if the genuine Pinex is used. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If you ask him. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

St. Patrick's Day Parade.

Under the most favourable conditions the Benevolent Irish Society held their anniversary parade on Sunday morning. The members met at the Hall at 9.30 and headed by the C. C. G. and City Bands the procession wended its way via Theatre Hill, New Gower and Hamilton Streets to Patrick Street. A halt was made at the Deaneery where cheers were given for the clergy of St. Patrick's. From there the Society proceeded by way of Water Street and Cochrane Street to Government House; here the Society's greetings were tendered by Vice-President Mr. J. M. Kent, K.C., to His Excellency the Governor, who made a particular happy reply. The body then marched to the R. C. Cathedral and attended High Mass which was celebrated by His Grace the Archbishop with Rev. Frs. O'Callaghan and Sheehan as Deacon and Sub-Deacon, respectively. Following the ceremony of the Mass Rev. Dr. Kitchen ascended the pulpit and delivered a powerful and eloquent panegyric on the Gospel of the Day, after which the Society reformed ranks and visited the Archbishop's Library when V.P. Kent in a brief address presented the compliments of the body which elicited a fitting response from the Archbishop. Fluent and appropriate speeches were also made by Monsignor Roche and Rev. Bro. Kennedy. On leaving there the Society returned to their Hall where votes of thanks were passed to Hon. John Harvey and Mr. M. W. Myrick for supplying their horses; also to Mrs. Higgins who furnished handsome and artistically made robes.

Makes Stomach Trouble Vanish.

No Indigestion, Heartburn, Gas or Dyspepsia in five minutes.

Why not get some now—this moment, and forever rid yourself of Stomach trouble and indigestion? A distended stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and, besides, and one single dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapepsin works, your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to take a little Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to become thoroughly cured this time. Remember, if your stomach feels out of order and uncomfortable now, you can get relief in five minutes.

Sent Home.

The bodies of the late Sebastian and William Farrell who were killed in the Sydney Mines last week arrived here on the S. S. Bruce, Sunday evening. Both were enclosed in very neat caskets protected with cases, and were sent home to Kelligrews by the shore train at 8.45 a.m. yesterday. Mr. J. Conway representing the owners of the Mine, the N. S. Steel and Coal Co., came here with the remains. A sad scene was enacted at the residence of the widowed mother when the bodies arrived at home. Both were well liked at Kelligrews and were also popular with people who every summer visited that place from St. John's.

 The Minimum Wage Bill will be introduced to-morrow. The Premier will ask that it be read a second time on Wednesday, and go through the remaining stages on Thursday. KINGSTON, Jamaica, March 18.
 Negotiations between the local government and American capitalists for the building of a dry dock and improving shipping facilities in order to meet the Panama Canal trade have been discontinued. Guarantees against competition were asked, and when the Americans were requested to define them, they declined further correspondence. The company proposed to expend $1,500,000.

LONDON, March 17.
 Despite the efforts of the Press to work up an interest in the strike, declared Ambassador Reid in an interview, the public seems to regard it with indifference, although an air of oppressiveness may be debited. It has been trying to recall conditions in Paris as described in history just previous to the overthrow of the Government, and a similar state of apathy existed then. Conditions here are grave, and are made worse by the intertwining of industrial and political situations.

LONDON, March 17.
 Realizing that no settlement of the coal strike is possible for another week, the Nation is facing with extraordinary calmness the prospect of swiftly increasing industrial paralysis, accompanied by hunger and destitution. To frame a measure to be acceptable to both parties will tax the powers of the Government to the utmost. The chief difficulty will be in Asquith's pledge to provide adequate safeguards for the protection of employers. Compulsory arbitration, and the rendering of trades unions responsible for breaches of contract, will probably be features. The Labour Party will oppose this. Even when the Minimum Wage Bill is passed the strike will not terminate immediately. The situation is shown in the utterance of Harshbarn, the Welsh miners' leader, who has said that "the workers are the masters of the situation. They have all the power. It is simply a question as to how they will use it."

Uncle Walt
 THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

Oh, that sort of seems to me, as I face eternity, and consider how much work I have in view, that the biggest earthly crime is this thing of killing time, which so many idle fellows seem to do. I am evermore in KILLING haste; I have not an hour to waste; I've a million things to do TIME before I die; and the minutes as they flee are as precious unto me as the diamonds that an actress wants to buy. Now he comes, with nerve sublime, some tired bore who's killing time, and he has a grist of stories he would tell; by my writing desk he stops, and he gurgles and he yawns, till I take an axe and kill him, with a yell. People partial to this crime of annihilating time might be pardoned if they'd only kill their own; but they murder yours and mine—kill our moments as they shine, butcher minutes which are rightly ours alone. Which is why I say in rhyme that the men who kill our time should be banished to an island in the sea, where, among the leafy bow'rs they can kill a string of hours and not have a chance to bother you and me.

The Durango's Rough Trip.

The Furness Liner Durango, Capt. Chambers, arrived in port at 9 p.m. on Sunday after an exceptionally stormy trip of over fifteen days. She left Liverpool on the 2nd inst., and at the outset encountered a strong westerly and south westerly gale accompanied by heavy seas. The third day out the wind blew with increased violence, tremendous waves came over the decks were constantly awash. About 200 miles off St. John's the vessel struck the skirt of the ice and together with the bad weather hampered the progress of the ship considerably. Capt. Chambers did not bring any news of the Erna, which is overdue, but reported seeing two vessels in the vicinity of Cape Race, evidently the Karona and Caladonta. Capt. Chambers said he never remembered experiencing worse weather. The Durango brought 1,500 tons of cargo, 15 bags of mail and three passengers.

Rapphannock.
The S. S. Rapphannock, Capt. Hawkins, reached port Sunday afternoon from London after an eventful trip, which occupied sixteen days. Throughout the passage rough weather was experienced and the ship had a hard time of it. In the vicinity of the Virgin Rocks she ran into a lot of arctic ice and the captain was obliged to take a round about course for fear of being jammed. She brought 1400 tons of cargo and a large mail.

Loss of the Coronation.

STORY OF THE CREW.

The ship-wrecked crew of the ill-fated Coronation which was lost off the Spanish Coast on the 15th of February, arrived here by the S. S. Rapphannock on Sunday evening. The names of the crew are, with the exception of one, who was drowned, Capt. Tibbo, Leslie Tibble, Alfred Martin, James Walsh, William Perrin, Herbert Burt and John Langston. They tell a thrilling story of hardship and endurance, which is briefly as follows:—

The Coronation left Grand Bank in December last, fish laden, bound for Oporto. Shortly after leaving boisterous weather prevailed and the ship was badly buffeted. Gales followed gale and hurricane succeeded hurricane, and when about 400 miles off Oporto a heavy combor boarded the vessel taking away with it from the deck Charles Westow, a seaman, who was never seen afterwards. The deceased was 27 years of age, married, and belonged to Grand Bank. The fatality cast a gloom over the ship. The vessel continued her journey to Oporto and reached the port without mishap. From there she proceeded to Cadiz and loaded salt for Grand Bank, leaving the former port on January 31st. After two days at sea strong head winds were met and the vessel sprung a leak. Soon the crew began to make water, rapidly and the crew kept working the pumps continually night and day. As the passage advanced the N. W. wind increased to the velocity of a hurricane. This made matters worse as mountainous seas were repeatedly going over the vessel threatening her with destruction. Despite the incessant efforts of the pumps they could not cope with the leak and several feet of water was found to be gaining in the hold. To make matters worse under such circumstances would be next to impossible and the crew thought they were all doomed. After battling with the elements for two more days without food or rest, and just as the crew were about to leave the vessel they gave their last signals to the Danish ship Ulfie, which was passing, and then bowed down on the wreck and took the crew off. This was 50 miles off Lisbon on the Spanish Coast. The ship Coronation was 99 tons register, was owned by Harvey & Co., and was built ten years ago.

"Cochranites."
We call the attention of our readers to the ad. in another column of the Standard Mission Bands' Cantata and Sociable to be held in the Methodist College Hall on Thursday evening next. Those who were fortunate enough last year to hear the members of this Band, who are well known as "Cochranites" for their high class and delightful entertainments in the past, should not fail to be present Thursday evening. The "Spirit of the Wood" is a charming Cantata with beautiful music. A glance at the bright faces and varied colours is well worth the admission fee of thirty cents, to say nothing of the refreshments.

Churchill's Programme.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Tuesday To-day.

Referring to the building programme, which includes 4 large armoured ships, 3 light armoured cruisers, 20 destroyers and a number of submarines, Churchill said £5,500,000 would be expended on the construction of submarines this year. As regards light armoured cruisers, the Admiralty had decided to return to the smaller type of vessel, they being more useful than recently built vessels of the Chatham class. These light armoured cruisers will be the smallest and fastest vessels, protected with vertical armor, even projected for the British Navy. They will be strong enough and fast enough to overhaul and cut down any destroyers. After reviewing the necessity of British preponderance, which may be described as purely defensive, pointing out that she did not possess a great army. Britain could not, even if she had, afford to maintain a number of vital interests of a great continental state. Churchill outlined the Government's plans to bring existing naval reserves into a condition of greater readiness. Under new organization, ships available for home defence are to be divided into three fleets, comprising the battle squadrons of torpedo flotillas and auxiliary squadrons, an expansion force of destroyers and submarines. He also announced this force would hereafter be placed under control of the Admiralty. They would be combined with a special new system of coast defence, which would enable battle fleets to confine themselves to their prime business of defeating the enemy's battle fleet without being diverted by the necessity of protecting the British coast from naval or military attack. The First Lord also foretold a modest democratization of the navy by yearly promotion of 2 to 30 warrants to the commission-rank as sub-lieutenants.

A Minimum Wage Bill.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day.

The Prime Minister announced in the Commons the Government would endeavour to pass the Minimum Wage Bill into law by the end of the week. It is understood that the Bill is short, the measures leaving to district committees settlement not only as to amount of minimum wage, but also as to the employers to be bound. No provision will be made for compulsory power to enforce minimum, or penalties on either employer or worker. The Labour Party last night adopted a resolution not to oppose the Bill. The Nationalist party issued an urgent appeal to the attendance of Redmondites to support the Bill. The record of strike situation. The price of coal had a smart advance in the London market yesterday. Dynamite and gunpowder are being sold at a half many public and private reserves unless a settlement is reached.

For Defence of the Empire.

Special to Evening Telegram.

OTAWA, To-day.

Speaking in the Commons on the Government's naval policy, Hazen Minister of Marine, said that the Government would embark on a policy not only of protecting Canada's own coasts and shipping, but also helping the defence of the Empire. No self-respecting citizen of Canada could feel that the British Isles, which are the backbone of the Empire, should be left unprotected. "It is our duty," he said "to contribute a fair share for purposes of naval defence."

The Empire Reaches Port

WAS GIVEN UP — ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY DAYS FROM OPORTO.

The schr. Empire, Capt. A. Benson to which we referred Saturday and which was given up as lost, was towed in here yesterday evening after being 170 days from Oporto and calling at Natal for repairs. After leaving here on September 9th, last, the vessel got over to Oporto in 16 days, and on the run had weather the like of which none on board ever experienced and the ship only lived through it as the result of expert seamanship and the grit and hardihood of her brave crew. Newfoundland Furion storms were encountered from the time the ship left Oporto with mountainous seas, and the weather became so bad that the vessel was forced to pass the Western Islands; gales and hurricanes in rapid succession beset the vessel as she crossed the Atlantic. She was for several days on a stretch hove to and making bad weather and when outside of the Grand Banks and as Captain Benson put it, "she was in a hell of a fix." She was to be able to run in for the land without much difficulty, the worst weather for this long and tedious voyage was encountered, and the ship met a fierce storm with the wind blowing a gale from W. S. W., which veered after several hours to W. N. W. and then to N. W., the wind blowing a hurricane from the latter point. The ship was hove to for a lengthy period when sea after sea made clean breaches over her and the men had a risky time of it working the ship. One sea tore away the greater part of the bulwarks, swept the galley away, bent the boat in pieces and took overboard everything movable about the decks. Hardly had the vessel recovered from this when another sea swept on board, shifted the ballast and threw the Empire out on her beam ends. The spars could not be cut away and the crew had to go in to the hold to try and trim the ballast to get her on an even keel. The vessel had to run before the wind while Captain Benson held the helm and it was several hours before the vessel was in shape to again face the elements. In heaving and wallowing in the sea she strained badly and her decks opened and at the risk of being washed overboard the crew had to do their best to caulk and plug the seams. A good deal of water had entered the hold and the Captain decided to run for harbor in the Azores to get repairs. It being impossible to continue the voyage with the ship so badly damaged. On reaching there she was delayed 5 weeks in getting fixed up, and left again on January 5th. She again met terrible weather on the run

A Case of "Have-to"

Every one must rebuild, each day a little, in order to keep the body healthy. The daily energy of brain, nerves and muscles destroys some of the cells and these must of course be rebuilt each day.

Now suppose you observe some trouble with the body and that you are slowly going from bad to worse. Wouldn't you accept the evidence as a hint from Mother Nature that either you are doing some hurtful thing, or more likely, that you are not selecting the food which contains the elements Nature requires for the daily rebuilding.

For instance, suppose you have an increasing tendency towards nervousness or perchance "Brain-fag" and Nervous Prostration. Stop the habit or food which may be the cause and use food which you know contains the things required.

Analysis shows the soft, gray filling of Brain and Nerve centres to consist of Albumin, Water and Phosphate of Potash. Now, unless your food contains these elements, you cannot rebuild and make good the daily destruction of this gray substance, a little being broken down each day by brain work and nervous tension.

There is a safe and sure food which can be relied upon and which does contain the required elements for rebuilding.

DOCTORS COULD NOT HELP HIM

BUT GIN PILLS DID

"During August" last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone in the Bladder. He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try Gin Pills.

They relieved the pain. I took two boxes and went back to the specialist. He said the stone was smaller but he could not remove it although he tried for two hours and a half. I returned home and continued to take Gin Pills, and to my surprise and joy, I passed the stone. Gin Pills are the best medicine in the world, and because they did me so much good, I will recommend them all the rest of my life!

The Bruce Here.

The S. S. Bruce, Capt. Spracklin, arrived here at 6.30 p.m. Sunday. The Bruce left Sydney on Saturday, the 9th inst., at 6.15 a.m., forcing the foe which was packed closely on the shore and at 8 o'clock came to a full stop, the ice barrier outside the harbour being impenetrable. The ice-breaker Stanley which was bound from Halifax to the Magdalen Islands with mails and freight and which was also at Sydney, left there at 6.30 the same morning but she as well as the Bruce had to retreat, and the latter ship had to tie up owing to a storm. She could not leave until Tuesday, the 12th., at 6.15 a.m. At 8.30 a.m. that day she was again stopped by the foe halfway out Sydney harbour. The Stanley again followed the Bruce butting her way out and going only from 5 to 10 feet forward each time she tried to pierce through the pack. The ice could be plainly seen rafting over the Stanley's quarter, from the Bruce's deck as the ship would go astern to continue butting and the foe falling on board on four occasions broke the ship's steering gear, keeping the engines busy at repairs. The Bruce hammered away butting all that night but could not make any head of it and had to return to Sydney again on the morning of the 13th., taking water and replenishing her bunkers. She left again at 6.15 a.m. on Thursday last, the 14th., but was stopped again at 7.30 a.m. she then had a strong gale of west wind with rain, and getting off Cranberry Head had to remain there until Saturday last, the 16th. inst. The screw of the wheel chains gave out and had to be repaired, and in going astern at 8.30 a.m. the quadrant was smashed, and the wind having caught the ice and a lake of water making near her the ship got clear of the foe at 11.35 a.m. and at 1.48 p.m. Flint Island was abeam. The Stanley came out in the Bruce's wake and also gave out. The Bruce was running through heavy field ice from 2 p.m. until 5.30 Saturday and the wheel chains becoming caught on Saturday night an hour was lost in repairing them. The ship came to port in 28 1/2 hours after getting clear and she made a good run down. Saturday morning the Stanley brought out another consignment of mails and a few passengers making the transfer of these to the Bruce at the edge of the heavy ice. The Bruce brought a large cargo and these passengers: J. Noonan, J. Mulrooney, F. Jerritt, J. L. Slattery, George Parsons, Kaleem Noah, Capt. Bartlett, A. P. Stoneman, J. Conway, Capt. Seeley, L. W. Hennessy, F. R. Dwyer, J. J. Murphy, H. J. Moulton, C. T. Symonds, W. V. Griffin, G. Ferguson, E. M. Burgess, F. E. Dench, Miss H. Chafe, E. Lawrence, W. R. Smallwood, Dr. W. C. Buntin, Miss Kepling, J. O'Rourke, D. J. Curran, W. C. Harvey and 48 second class.

OTTUMWA WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to you for my cure."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider This Advice. No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous medicine, made only from roots and herbs, has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., advises all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, confidential, and always helpful.

"Miles Aron."

Yesterday afternoon and last night great audiences attended St. Patrick's Hall where the B. L. S. Dramatic Co. presented the Irish comedy-drama "Miles Aron." The audiences were delighted and frequent and hearty applause greeted the talented performers. The whole company were in splendid form and the scenic effects were charmingly arranged. The cast comprised Misses Viguers, Howlett, Smythe, Murphy, Devereaux, Myler, Kearney and Fitzpatrick; and Messrs. P. F. Moore, White, Halley, Pippy, O'Mara and Summers. Songs were rendered in capital style by Miss Ida Howlett and Messrs. P. F. Moore and J. L. Slattery.

C.E.T.S.

Last night the C. E. T. S. held a meeting which was largely attended. Rev. J. Bell, the Chairman, referred to the Temperance meeting in the College Hall a week ago and spoke of the support and co-operation of Revs. J. W. Partlett and C. Hackett of the Methodist Temperance Conference with the C. E. T. S. Such unity, he believed, must give great impetus to the cause of temperance. It was resolved to endorse the Resolutions submitted and passed in the College Hall. Seven members were each given a band of merit for bringing in recruits to the Society's ranks. Mr. Bell then stated that the next meeting, April 15th, would be the last he could attend as Chairman of the C. E. T. S.

An Important Meeting.

The Daughters of Empire met Saturday afternoon, Lady Horwood presiding. A committee was appointed to visit the summer camp buildings and report on their condition, and improvement will be made in them. Patients will be treated there the coming summer. Mrs. Curtis reported the realization of an excellent sum of money for the funds as a result of the concert held last Thursday. Votes of thanks were passed to those who took part in the concert.

Saved Four Men.

The Marine and Fisheries Department had the following wire Saturday afternoon from Edgar Hann, of Greenspond: "Took four men belonging to Shambler's Cove from Gooseberry Islands last night at 7 o'clock. They lost their boat in Wednesday night's storm." No particulars were given as to the condition the men were in when found.

Broke Its Leg.

The country roams at present are in a fearful condition and almost every day horse-owners suffer severe losses either by expense or otherwise. Yesterday morning milkman Gorman Lester, of Toppal, while driving to town, met with an accident. The horse went into a rut and broke its leg. The beast had to be shot, which is a heavy loss to the owner.

"THE SPIRIT OF THE WOOD."—A Cantata and Sociable will be given by the Steadfast Mission Band in the Methodist College Hall, on Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock. Admission, 30 cents. Don't miss it.—mar 19, 21

SEARCHING FOR SHEBEENS.—Sunday afternoon Detective Byrne and Const. Tobin were out on the search for shebeens. The city is pretty dry now, thanks to the vigilance of the police.

The S. S. Bruce this trip brought a large mail from Sydney, the last instalment when she went back being considerable. The ship brought over 400 bags, and the postal officials were kept pretty busy assorting it yesterday and to-day.

EXAMINED THE PASSENGERS.—When the Bruce arrived here Sunday evening Dr. Campbell boarded her and was a busy man for a while. He examined all the passengers but found none suffering from any disease, and they received a clean bill of health.

PLAYED WITH SOCIETY.—The band of the Total Abstinence Society of the city left here by Saturday evening's train and proceeded to Holyrood, where they attended the parade of the Star of the Sea Society (St. Patrick's Day). Mr. L. G. Griffin, V.P. of the Society, accompanied them.

A DISGRACEFUL SCENE.—Sunday night two amazons of the higher levels had a falling out, and after a while words came to blows. Then both started in to maul each other. There was a hair-pulling match, and the language used was pretty bad. Though it was Sunday, quite a crowd gathered, and in the interest of decency some of the men who gathered parted the militant females.

Estimates Introduced.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, March 18. Winston Churchill to-day introduced the Naval Estimates. He called for $220,427,000, a decrease of $1,535,000. He promised augmentation or retardation to correspond with Germany's programme, regretted the necessity of referring to Germany, but said "The Germans are a people of robust minds whose strong masculine good sense and high courage do not recoil from and are not offended by blunt facts if expressed with courtesy and sincerity." He did not consider the 2 to 1 standard necessary at present, though it might become so. He laid down 60 per cent. superiority of battleships and cruisers of the Dreadnought type, with the German navy as a convenient basis, and pointed out that Britain at present possessed an enormous superiority. Churchill said it would be necessary for Britain to construct four or three Dreadnoughts alternately each year for the next six years if as now Britain was confronted with two new German ships. Any retardation of German building would be promptly followed by Britain. If both countries took a holiday in 1913, Germany would not only save $30,000,000, but her action would automatically wipe out five British Dreadnoughts, which would be more than Germany could hope to do in actual warfare. He added that the Germans will not be the gainers by any increases they may make, and they will not be the losers, on the basis laid down, by any diminution. The plan, without any diplomatic negotiations or bargaining, and without the slightest restriction of the sovereignty of either Power, would enable an abatement in the costly naval rivalry.

Devonia in Port.

The barque, Devonia, Capt. John Snow, arrived here from Pernambuco at 9.30 Sunday night after a run of 35 days, to A. Goodridge & Sons. She had fine weather all through the run until Saturday last when she met a breeze, and at 6 a.m. that day she was off Cape Spear, but owing to dense fog had to leave off. Capt. Snow wore ship at 9.30 a.m. and stood in again for the coast, made Sugar Loaf at 12.10 p.m., could see the Signal Tower and the people on it but evidently they could not see the ship in the haze and he ran off to sea and etched Green Island Sunday morning. The crew are well.

Flooded.

Yesterday Mr. M. A. Duffy discovered that his grocery store on Cabot Street had been badly flooded with water, the water pipes having burst there in two places Saturday night. It is thought, flooding the shop and basement where a large stock of goods is kept. Tobaccos, cigars and cigarettes of which there was a big stock there were soaked in water and rendered useless as were most of the groceries on the two flats. In all the loss is about $600. Men had to be summoned from the Water Store and holes had to be cut in the floor to let the water escape.
