CHAPTER LXVI.
"TRAITOR, AS WELL AS FRIEND!"

"I did not confess without a reason, my lady," retorted Vignes, without a shadow of resentment at her scornful and contemptuous looks and words. "I listened, hoping that I might be of service to you; I now confess that by doing so I have been of service to you."

"You?" she said, with simple wonder.

"Ay, I, my lady," he echoed. "I am an humble individual, an humble worm, my lady; but I have been of service to you."

"How?" she demanded, convinced that this smooth-tongued villain was attempting to extort a further sum from her by playing on her supposed credulity.

"By discovering the person who"—a look of passionate fire stopped him in time—"whom you request Mr. Dartmouth to find," he said.

She looked at him with a piercing glance, but his white, pallid countenance, more like a mask than a face, baffled her.

"Go on," she said.

"I guessed from your ladyship's manner how eager you were to discover this person, and I knew that you would not be close-fisted with a reward to the man who made the discovery. So, my lady, I went to work—you see, I had the clew which Captain Dartmouth could not trace."

And he looked with a significant glance at the locket clasped in the countess's hand.

She inclined her head with the mechanical gesture of an automaton.

"Go on," she said, sternly.

"I went to work, my lady, and traced the young lady, whose portrait is in that locket, to her death."

The countess turned still whiter, till her face looked like marble and her lips stone-like and carved.

After waiting a moment and taking a glance at her, Vignes continued:

"You will be prepared to hear some painful details, my lady—some very painful details."

She gasped as if for breath, and stretching forth her hand, reached a small vinaigrette, with which she wiped off the numb feelings of faintness that threatened to overcome her.

"Go on," she said in a voice almost inaudible; "I am prepared."

Vignes unbuttoned his coat, which fitted his attenuated frame so closely that his ribs were plainly denoted, and took from his pocket a small packet of letters.

These he held in his hand and, tapping them with his long, lank forefinger, resumed, in the same husky whisper:

"My lady, I came to-night prepared for a refusal and some obloquy. I imagined that your ladyship would refuse to see me, or, perhaps, go still further and have me maltreated—as Captain Dartmouth maltreated me," he added, with a venomous hiss. "That being my purpose, I intended sending one of these letters up to your ladyship with the intimation that the remainder of the series with the story relating to them were in my possession. Your ladyship was kind—and wise—enough to grant me the interview without forcing me to such a device. I am grateful, truly grateful. It has spared your ladyship the shock of a sudden surprise and me some trouble."

As if charmed and horribly bewildered by the intent regard of his viperish eyes, Lucille sat listening speechlessly, almost breathlessly.

After a pause he went on:

"On finding the locket, my lady, I commenced my search. It would be tedious and to no purpose to enter into the particulars of my system of following the clew. I followed it and to some purpose. I was then in the service of Captain Dartmouth. Some business of his favored my visit to Paris. I commenced my search there and discovered that the young lady—my lady's sister—was enticed from her charge by a gentleman, as my lady stated. That gentleman was an Englishman. I learned his name. I followed up the fresh clew which the information gave me and tracked—yes, my lady, that's the word, tracked—him across the Channel home, here, to England. He came with the young lady that he had betrayed, and, using his influence placed her on the stage. She became a dancer, my lady, a ballet dancer—I regret your ladyship's evident pain, but as I forewarned you, the details are unpleasant. She became a ballet dancer and gained considerable notoriety. The gentleman had bestowed upon her an English name, a handsome house, carriages and servants, all that his wealth and her earnings could purchase, but he never married her. My lady, I come to the unpleasant part of my story. Your sister gained many laurels and much fame, but she lost her betrayer's affection. He deserted her. Yes, my lady, deserted her. Richer and possibly finer game enticed him, and one morning the papers were eloquent with an account of her desertion and subsequent suicide by poison. She died by her own hand for love of the gentleman who had enticed her from abroad and then deserted her."

He paused; the dry, emotionless tones of his husky voice seemed burning into the heart of the listener. She seemed powerless to move, her eyes dilated with horror and almost unbearable anguish, her lips burned as if a seething iron had passed them.

The viperish eyes watched the effect of his words for a few moments; then, in the same tone, he continued:

"This is the bare outline of the story, my lady; for the details I refer you to these letters. You will find in them the name of my lady's sister and the name of her destroyer."

And with a noiseless step he glided to the table and laid the packet upon it.

The countess, with a shudder and a gasp for breath, seized the packet and examined the top letter.

As she did so the room seemed to swim round her, her heart almost ceased to beat, and with a gesture of despair she sprang to her feet, letting the letter flutter to the ground at her feet from her outstretched, nerveless hand.

"My lady is surprised!" said Vignes, with a malicious sneer, as he stooped to recover the letter.

"Your proofs—your proofs!" breathed rather than spoke the countess.

"Those," replied the man, pointing to the letters, "and this," taking from his pocket as he spoke a small miniature and handing it to the countess.

"My lady will remember to have seen that on Captain Dartmouth's watch-chain a thousand times. It opens with a spring—allow me. Ah, it is open!"

The countess looked one long, scrutinizing look at the portrait within it, and then sank upon the fauteuil, her arm falling inert and useless at her side.

There was a pause of some minutes, during which the beautiful woman lay as one stricken motionless and senseless, and the man-reptile stood regarding her with unmoved face and merciless eyes, which sometimes raised themselves and wandered with an envious look round the luxurious apartment.

The minutes passed and Lucille raised her head. Vignes saw with the quickness of his snake species that a change had taken place.

The stony look had given way to one of passionate and dogged determination, the compressed lips had relaxed into a merciless expression of hunger for revenge, the eyes had lost their wild, terror-stricken look and gained a hard, penetrating glance, before which the spy shrank abashed.

There was still silence for a moment, then Lucille broke it.

"How came you by this locket?" she asked, in a low but metallic tones.

"I—I—"

"Stole it?" she interrupted, with a look of disdain. "You took it from—from—his person?"

He nodded.

"These letters you stole likewise?"

"Yes," he said; "and still something more, my lady."

She held out her hand without a look of surprise.

"Give it to me," she said.

He took from his pocket a folded paper and placed it on the table; to which her finger pointed, as if she feared the contamination of his touch.

She took the paper and opened it. At first she did not recognize its import, but after a moment of personal she looked up with a glance of almost sublime triumph.

"Ah, traitor as well as fiend! Your fate is sealed!"

At these words the silent onlooker uttered a hiss of exultation, and Lucille swung round upon him.

"How has he injured you, for nature alone can not have created so base a man?"

Vignes smiled with calm impassibility.

"My lady," he said, huskily, "he struck me."

She regarded him for a moment with a look that went far beyond him; then, as if with an effort, recalled her wandering attention, and, pointing to the heap of gold, said, sternly:

"Go!"

The man glided to the table, took up the money, and without a word left the room as noiselessly as he had entered it.

The countess took up the letters and the miniature and concealed them in her bosom; then, with the folded paper in her hand, consulted her jeweled watch.

"Midnight," she murmured, in the same suppressed and metallic tones.

"Before the next midnight, my sister, thou shalt be avenged!"

CHAPTER LXVII. LIFE'S RIDDLE.

Oh, if there be an Elysium on earth, it is this, it is this!—SCOTT.

Hugh strode along with Sir Charles by his side, and Mr. Reeves hurried after them, as if for dear life.

Hugh had become so injured to and prepared for strange events and extraordinary excitements that he understood this sudden summons as indicating nothing less than, perhaps, a fire at the Warren, or the sudden demise of its fair owner.

In his anxiety to reach the old place he almost forgot the disappointment he was laboring under in regard to Cecil, and, nerved himself into determination of showing no surprise at the event, accident, or intelligence but what it might.

Sir Charles did not feel inclined to break in upon his companion's reverie, so the two hurried on and at last reached the Warren.

It's better to PAINT than REPAIR

BRANDRAM'S Genuine B.B. White Lead is free from gritty particles—it falls from the stirring paddle in a stream of velvety smoothness. It breaks up so easily and mixes so readily with linseed oil that the labor preliminary to a painting job is greatly reduced. This splendid white lead is used.

Their Views on Russian Situation Identical--Maritime Union Suggested by Sir John Aird--Soviet Exporting Russian Crown Jewels--British Labor Vehemently Favors Russia-Anglo-French Premiers to Confer Again.

FRANCE AND U.S.A.
PARIS, Aug. 13.
 The French Government is sending a note to the United States expressing pleasure that French and United States views on the Russo-Poland situation are in complete accord, it was learned to-day. The note, which is eight hundred words in length and is signed by Premier Millerand, recapitulates the conclusions in the United States note to Italy, saying that France reaches an identical conclusion. It adds that France never varied in the determination to support the principles so clearly formulated by the Government of the United States.

Civic Commission.

WEEKLY MEETING.
 The regular weekly meeting of the City Commissioners was held on Thursday, at 2.30 o'clock. All the members of the Board were present. After the preliminary business of the meeting the following matters were disposed of:

A letter was read from the Colonial Secretary, to the effect that Samuel H. Peet, Esq., and J. M. Devine, Esq., had been appointed members of the temporary Commission for the City of St. John's in conjunction with those already appointed. Mr. Peet and Mr. Devine took their seats and were congratulated by the Chairman, who welcomed them to the Board.

A communication was read from the Inspector General of Police, to the effect that two Serbians, their wives and nine children were camped in Council's Field off Sudbury St. Mr. Murdoch had rented them this field for a few days until they secured a house. It was ordered that this matter be referred to the Health Office, as the Commissioners were of the opinion that if no sanitary arrangements were provided for, a nuisance might be committed.

A communication was read from the Newfoundland Motor Association, in which attention might be given to the condition of Cornwall Avenue, which is in a very bad state of repair for traffic of all kinds. Ordered the Secretary be informed the Commission recognize the bad condition of the street in question but cannot undertake any repairs at present, as a lot of other work now in hand must be completed first. This will be taken up later.

A discussion took place over the appointment of a man for the new dump truck. Action deferred until Saturday. Justice Johnson communicated with the Commission respecting the Dickinson Memorial, Cavendish Square. He requested some information and particulars. It was decided the space allowed for the monument should not exceed sixteen ft. square.

Hon. Jno. Browning requested that the sum paid for licensing his Studebaker car, be refunded, as the car was imported on June 13th. As no car can be legally driven through the streets without having first been registered and fees paid, and there being no power in the Act to permit the Commissioners to refund any sums, Mr. Browning's request could not be acceded to.

Messrs. Bowring Brothers and H. J. Stabb and Co., tendered for cement. The tender of Messrs. H. J. Stabb & Co., was accepted.

The Dickie Construction Company for the Canadian Bank of Commerce, requested a 3 inch galvanized water main for protection purposes. Ordered they be asked to come and consult the City Engineer in connection with this matter.

The request of W. D. McCarter to build a structure on Boncloddy street for Messrs. Soper and Moore was referred to the Health Officer for his opinion.

Harvey and Company were granted permission to erect a temporary wooden shed on the western side of their boiler house, at Butterline Factory. Jas. Peddie was permitted to build, Franklin Avenue, provided foundation wall was constructed and water and sewerage installed.

Ordered the Plumbing Inspector be requested to proceed against the residents of Merrymeeting Road, who have not connected with the water and sewerage.

Mr. Chislett's plan of house was deferred.

The plan of school for the Convent of Our Lady of Mercy, Military Road, met with approval.

Permits were granted to F. P. Hows, Barter's Hill; Thomas Hickey, Hayward Avenue, for repairs, and plank platform.

Several applications were received for the new houses, now under construction on Quidi Vidi Road. Applications ordered to be filed.

P. J. Kerraven applied for water connection in his house, Burke's Square. Ordered the City Engineer be asked for estimate of cost and Inspector Rooney to inquire as to number of houses that can be connected there.

The City Engineer reported on the sewer work, Franklin Avenue; and general work in other Departments.

The Engineer estimated the cost of laying of 4 inch water main from opposite Edgar's on Mill Road, to the Trade Bakery to be $2,938.78. In this connection it was ordered that Rennie's Estate be reminded that if this pipe is laid they will be called upon to pay their proportion of cost, according to their building frontage.

Agreed to have the tank Merrymeeting Road temporarily installed, and owners of houses there prosecuted if connections are not made with water and sewer mains.

The City Engineer reported that the cost of connecting Franklin Ave. with Gear Street by laying water and sewer mains, would be $4,200.00. Ordered Mr. Fitzpatrick be informed of this.

The cost of laying water sewer in McKay Street would be $5,600.00. The Commission cannot see its way clear to lay these mains this year. The cost of laying pipes in the new street west of Leslie Street will be $7,500.00.

The two applications received for Small Homes' water and sewerage will be asked to pay in seven years.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DO YOU FEEL ADEQUATE?

RUTH CAMERON

There is a woman in our town whom many people have been inclined to call lazy. She doesn't keep her house as clean as one likes to see a house; she is always slumping down in an easy chair or lying on a couch even when she has callers; and the ladies of the Church claim that she never does her part there and that they feel she is doing it just as well as they. "Look at me, with three children and no help even so much as to do the washing for me, and she with not a chick for a child and with her washing at her feet," one woman said to me last summer. "I guess if I can help about the Church suppers, she can."

"Perhaps she is ill," I suggested. "Never has a doctor," answered the three children, tight-lipped. "I guess if there was anything much the matter with her, she'd have a doctor. No, I guess the thing that's wrong with her has eight letters in it and the first is L."

A Wonderful Change.

A week or two ago I met this much respected person at a Church supper. She was wearing a new dress and she was looking so well that I asked her how she was getting on. "I'm a new woman," she said. "You know I never was really sick, but up till this year I've never been really well. I never went to the doctor because I wasn't sick—just didn't seem to have any strength; but last summer I felt so wretched that I finally went to a doctor and he started me on the right path and you don't know how different I feel. I try to describe the difference to myself and one word that seems to hit it is 'adequate.' I feel so adequate the work I have to do, and when anything goes wrong I don't let it fret the way I used to. I feel adequate deal with it."

The House Fretted Her.

I used to feel inadequate all the time. I'd know the house wasn't clean and it would make me feel miserable, but I didn't feel adequate to go at it and get it clean and keep it clean. I'd feel as if I ought to go about with my husband and do more outside like other women, and yet I just didn't feel as if I could. "You can't think how I enjoy working when I feel this way. Work isn't anything to mind when you have the strength to do it. The dreadful thing is to have it to do and to feel inadequate. "Of course you have to do what a doctor says and stick to it if you're going to make yourself well, and it takes some time to get a start. But my. It's worth it, a thousand times!"

I Hope You Like Morals.

I wonder if people like a moral tacked on to the end of a chat or prefer to supply their own? Maybe I'm funny that way but when I used to read Esop's Fables I was most disappointed with the ones where the moral wasn't written out in plain letters.

I hope some people feel the same, for this time there are two morals: The first is, if you do have that dreadful inadequate feeling, it's up to you to get rid of it and feel adequate. The gist of the second I know you've guessed, but just for the interest of it—look up Luke IV:37, and see if you were right.

Our Uncle Sam.

The unravelling of Abraham Lincoln's statue was typical of England and our climate, for it was in pitiless rain from a sour grey sky that Goude's fine effigy looked out across the sea of dripping umbrellas to Westminster Abbey. The speeches were not without their references to international politics. Mr. Ellhu Root declared that no great world emergency could ever range our Uncle Sam and ourselves on opposing sides, and Mr. Lloyd George, in a pointed allusion to America's present aloofness, pictured a torn and bleeding world calling for the help of the America of Abraham Lincoln. But the "Sammy" of those days was not the "Sammy" of these. And for our part we don't call him 'uncle' quite as much as we once did.—Liverpool Post.

HIRED, HELP.

WALY MARCH

We used to have a stately butler, the most impressive gent alive, a major-domo and a butler, and a proud domestics four or five. Before the war they did their duties as good retainers ought to do; they seemed to us a bunch of beauties who well deserved the wage they drew. But since the times became unsettled they tried to travel on their galls, and they became so highly mettled we had to can them, one and all. And now my wife does all the cooking, rejoicing that the gang is gone, and I, besmearing and gadzooking, keep up the fires and mow the lawn. About my household tasks I scuttle, so gay I carol songs aloud, and I'm convinced that I can butle as well as any hireling proud. My wife is singing "Annie Rooney" and other good old songs of yore, before song writers all grew looney, as she mops up the kitchen floor. Without hired help my heart is bubbling with harmless mirth, that makes a hit; my days no more are filled with troubling for fear some haughty maid will quit. The pies are burned, the bread is soggy, the meat comes smoking from the stove, but I'm so glad I'm feeling groggy, because we fired that grouchy drove. I do not care two jots or lilies what people say of us in town; far better live on ruined vittles than wilt beneath a servant's frown.

A Dean's Tip.

The Dean of Lincoln, the Very Rev. Dr. Fry, in a recent speech at Nottingham said that many Lincoln race-goers always visited the Cathedral. On one occasion when he had shown a party of them around, a big Irishman from Liverpool, thinking that the Dean was a vergar, insisted on giving him 6d. "I told him that I did not need it," said the Dean, "but he pressed it into my hand and whispered; 'well, buy yourself a drink and a cigar.' "I am a teetotaler and a non-smoker," added the Dean.

Bob White! Bob White! I can hear him call As I follow the trail to my little ball— Bob White! He Knew the Cause.

At an engineer's shop the proprietor had one man upon whom he could rely for being punctual to his time. Just recently he had fallen from this habit, and on several occasions had been late. He was behind time a few mornings ago, and the proprietor called him into his office. "Can't you manage to get here at your old time, James, as you used to do?" he said. "I can't sleep nights now, sir, and it makes me late sometimes, but I will try and alter it," replied the man. "If it is sleeplessness you suffer from, James, why don't you consult a doctor and find out the cause?" "Oh, I know the cause, sir. It is six weeks old."

Decorated Graves of Titanic Victims.

Eight years ago in April, a cold spring day that had little of the warmth and promise of spring about it, a long sad procession wended its way from the Dockyard to the churches and cemeteries of Halifax. It was the funeral of the Titanic dead, those who had perished when the ill-fated White Star liner crashed into an ice berg and went to the bottom. Even the elements seemed to be in sympathy with the tragedy for the winds howled and the storm clouds lowered. Since then the neat grassy plots where the victims sleep side by side has been pointed to as one of the saddest monuments of the sea.

Friday's brilliant sunshine and soft breezes were little suggestive of that other day when the Titanic dead were buried, and yet there was a similarity, for Friday each grave was marked with a cross of pine and oak, symbol of courage and strength. The branches were placed on the graves by Mrs. J. J. Brown and her two nieces, Mrs. William Harper and Miss Helen Tobin, of Newport and New York. Down the long length of the aisle which the graves form in Fairview Cemetery the emblems were placed and the three ladies strewed white flowers over the graves. On one small grave, that of an unknown child, a great bunch of white flowers were placed. In Fairview Cemetery there were two more recent graves laid side by side with the victims of that older tragedy, the graves of two unidentified British officers who lost their lives in the Halifax explosion. Their graves, unmarked and as yet not green, were covered with the fragrant pine and oak. In Fairview Cemetery, there are on hundred and twenty three graves, in the Jewish Cemetery, there are ten graves and in the Catholic Cemetery, the last visited, there are nineteen. Many of these graves bear but a number, others have larger and pretentious stones.

The car which conveyed Mrs. Brown and her niece to the Cemetery was laden with the great mass of fragrant boughs and white flowers.—Halifax Morning Chronicle, Aug. 9.

The Latest Craze.

There are a large number of people in this world who are ever on the lookout to get something for nothing, and playing upon their credulity, money sharps often reap a rich harvest. An American slang expression states that a sucker is born every minute and some one is waiting for him the instant he opens his eyes. In Boston at the moment the tribe of suckers numbers many individuals, all of whom are rising to the fly of one Carlo Ponzani, an Italian, who has discovered a method of getting rich quick, that would turn that king of sharps, J. Rufus Wallingford, green with envy. Ponzani has been occupying a deal of space in American and Canadian newspapers, and his offices have literally been inundated with people possessing more money than sense, all eager to invest in the schemes originating from the brain of this financial manipulator. In referring to Ponzani, 'Saturday Night', Toronto, says, editorially: "Just now Boston is having a revival of a get-rich-quick game that is reminiscent of the celebrated 'blind pool' operated by C. D. Sheldon in Montreal, some years ago, and which eventually landed that 'dear old man' in gaol. In this case the operator is an Italian, Charles Ponzani by name. You just give him your money, any sum from fifty dollars to fifty thousand, and in ninety days he hands you back just twice as much as you gave him. Ponzani has been doing this now for some eight months. Indeed Boston, according to the despatches, has gone mad over the game, the people literally handing in their money by tens of thousands daily, standing in line for the privilege of having this Italian 'banker' manipulate their funds. Ponzani is presumed to be trading in International Securities of one sort or another, just what no one seems to know, and least of all the people who invest."

During the months in which Ponzani has been operating he has certainly paid over returns at the rate of cent per cent to some of his patrons, but how many will get back in the final process of cleaning up, which must inevitably come, now that the State has moved in the matter, will only be known at the conclusion of the investigations. For Signor Ponzani is now under arrest, though admitted to bail. Should he have been operating a "blind pool" by the easy process of taking from one and giving to another, which on the surface appears to be the case, there will be a whole legion of wiser and sadder people to mourn the moment when they trod the path of the royal road to riches, as outlined by the man to whom they—without question—handed over their money. Ponzani believed in "faith" investments by his patrons. In other words they gave him their cash and took only a plain receipt. That was their sole security. The rest depended on their trust in this modern John Law. According to his own statement Ponzani, when he had sufficient funds, intended to begin buying up industrial concerns and bidding for vessels from the U. S. Shipping Board, in order to prevent England from getting everything. He meant to twist the British Lion's tail by keeping these ships from falling into British hands. And maybe there's the whole thing in a nutshell. Ponzani may have been backed by interests hostile to Britain and Britain's supremacy on the seas. The men behind, possibly, put up the money for this purpose and the dupes, attracted by the unprecedented offer of marvelous returns, rushed at the gilded bait. But the jig is up. The financial juggler, finding things too hot to be pleasant, made his surrender to the United States Marshal on Thursday, the charge against him being that of using the Federal mails in a plan to defraud. Those who reaped any profit out of their investments will congratulate themselves upon being so lucky, but the thousands who have not received their dividends can have the solace that they are a great deal worse off than before they were deluded into parting with their cash. It will be theirs now to worry. Finis has about been written to another spectacular scheme of getting something for nothing, with the losers in the majority.

Trap Fishery Over.

A report to the Board of Trade from Peter's River, states the total catch of codfish there is 13,500 qts. All the traps have been taken in but 40 dories and skiffs and 3 boats are fishing. There is a good sign of fish in deep water, and trawls would do well if bait were obtainable.

PAROCHIAL HONOR CONFERRED. Special to Evening Telegram.

LAMALINE, Aug. 13. On Thursday, His Grace Archbishop Roche, accompanied by Frs. McGrath, Rawlin, Savin and Battcock, arrived at Lamaline. A cordial reception awaited them. The Holy Name Society, numbering 200 strong in procession, proceeded to the church where an address was presented to His Grace. Confirmation was administered to 144 candidates. His Grace thanked the people for their enthusiastic reception, and announced the erection of the new parish of Lamaline under the spiritual charge of Father Thorne. After a visit to the Meadows the Episcopal party were escorted to the S.S. Carmen by about forty motor boats, with flags and guns, which made a great display despite the dense fog which then prevailed. After boarding the S.S. Carmen, the Holy Name Society called for three cheers for the Episcopal party, which were given, and the party then left for St. Lawrence, accompanied by Father Thorne.

Monday's Big Night.

JAZZOLA ORCHESTRA STRIKES TOWN.

We live in an age of wonders. First Wireless Telephony, then the Gypsies, and now the Jazzola orchestra. All hitting St. John's within the compass of one month. We are indeed building history.

After the Baseball match on Monday night the obvious and only place to go is to the C.C.C. Hall to hear Newfoundland's first Jazz band. There has been nothing quite so good in our midst for years, and no one should miss this great chance of hearing the very latest music played in the snappiest and newest way. The big dance on Monday night is to welcome the Canadian Ballplayers.

Tor's Cove Garden Party

Those who like to leave town on Sundays for the green fields and shady nooks of the country, cannot do better to-morrow than take the 11 o'clock excursion train for Tor's Cove, where Father Coady and his people have made every preparation for entertaining numerous visitors. The jaded business man, the tired employee, the weary artisan and laborer, all will find a day's outing at Tor's Cove most enjoyable and give them added zest in returning to work on Monday morning. There is not only the pleasure of the day to be considered, but the worthy cause for which the Garden Party is being held, and the latter consideration should induce every one who can to go and help.

Suggested Schooner Race.

The Telegram is in receipt of a message from the Halifax Herald suggesting that Newfoundland should enter the proposed fishermen's race, which is suggested to take place sometime after September, between Nova Scotia owned and manned vessels and American owned vessels. A number of business people were interviewed on the matter, and while all would like to see a Newfoundland vessel enter, they thought that it would be impossible to compete this year. Firstly the conditions are not known, secondly, the time would be too short, and thirdly, the greatest factor as stated by a large merchant, the times here are too serious now to think of yacht racing. A group of business men on being approached were favorable to the idea of a race, but not on the conditions of the International Race. The only other obstacle at present is the seriousness with which the present financial conditions are viewed. To state the position, the interviewer was told to ask the bank managers about the matter, and if they were satisfied well, themselves, were only too willing to compete in a race with all comers.

Splendid Residence Destroyed by Fire.

The splendid residence of Mr. Garrett Byrne on Falk's Hill was almost destroyed by fire last evening. The alarm of fire was sent in from the Cross Roads and in less than a minute the West End Motor Chemical was on the scene, the apparatus from the Central arriving immediately after. Several streams of water were soon pouring on the burning building. A large number of people assembled and watched the firemen as they fought the blaze, which was not subdued for nearly an hour and a half. The loss is estimated at about $10,000. Mr. Byrne carrying only $5,000 on the building and $1,500 on the furniture. How the fire originated is not known. The family were at tea when an alarm was given that the upper portion of the house was in a blaze. Mr. Byrne and his family had to make such a hurried exit that they saved none of their personal belongings.

Newfoundland Will Nationalize Coal.

HALIFAX, August 9.—The Newfoundland government is expected to nationalize coal and develop it for the country's benefit, according to William Arthur, of St. John's, who is in Halifax on a business trip. At St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd. hold large areas of coal, and this is the coal which the government may nationalize. Geologists who have gone over the St. George's coal areas declare that there is an enormous quantity of coal there and that, when developed it will outrival the coal mines of North Sydney. The Newfoundland government is therefore taking time by the forelock and will probably operate mines there.

"Ructions" Over Fish Regulations.

INSPECTORS OF FISH CARGOES ON WEST COAST UP AGAINST IT.

We learn from the West and South West Coasts that there are "ructions" there over the new regulations call of fish, and that some of the inspectors have thrown up the job and are coming home. The system that they are endeavouring to carry out is regarded by fish men as extreme and ridiculous, and in several cases we hear that cargoes that had been loaded for market were ordered by the inspectors to be discharged and given two days sin otherwise they would not pass it as No. 1. Judging from the idea that the inspectors have as to what condition No. 1 fish must be there will be very little of it on the West Coast.—Trade Review.

The Scouts Rally Opened

London has had its first glimpse of the Boy Scouts, who are mustering from the ends of the earth for the international jamboree which the Duke of Connaught opened at Olympia yesterday. They were very much in evidence in the City streets, marching in picturesque little contingents or sweeping past on motor-buses, with their national flags flying gaily in their midst. Their first hosts were the City Companies, who entertained the boys at lunch in their handsome halls, and the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, who preside over bounteously-laden tables in the Guildhall. Here it was rather a novel sight to see "Robert, the City water" long used by magnum and turtle, decanting ginger pop for the youngsters.—Liverpool post.

The HAY Situation.

Advices from Quebec (the great hay centre of Canada) indicate a fair average crop for this year and under normal conditions reasonably low prices should prevail, but on account of railroad disorganization and the possibility of increased freight rates we are inclined to think that quotations may be higher rather than lower as the season advances.

Fortunately for our customers as well as ourselves we were lucky in securing a low rate of freight on a shipment due to arrive at the end of the month and are booking orders for this lot at attractive prices for prompt delivery from steamer's wharf on arrival.

We would advise live stock owners to take advantage of this opportunity and secure their fall and winter requirements of hay while present low prices are available.

BOLSHEVIKI NEARING WARSAW.

PARIS, Aug. 13. Closing upon Warsaw from the northeast and southeast, Bolsheviki hosts are now within twenty miles of the capital, and little doubt is felt here that they will be in the city before peace negotiations are concluded. General Hallers' army is holding positions along the Vistula, Narew and Bug rivers, in a country offering few natural advantages for defense, and is being relentlessly pushed toward the capital by the Bolsheviki, who are speeding up their advance. Northern Reds, according to the latest news reaching Paris to-night, had passed Pulutak and were marching southward on the capital down the valley of the Narew. Another column was advancing between the Narew and Bug, while south of the Bug the enemy had reached and passed the line running from Tluszcz through Pivki, Dobrz, Kaluszyn, Targlow and Latowitch to Zelchoff. Farther south the enemy had succeeded in forcing the passage of the Bug and was moving on Lublin. Bolsheviki cavalry along the Russian frontier has made another bound forward, and is now 40 miles beyond Miawa, almost half way to Thorn. In other words the Reds are advancing all along the line, except in the extreme south. Citizens of Warsaw to the number of a hundred thousand, have pledged themselves to defend the capital to their last breath.

BURNED TO WATER'S EDGE.

GAGETOWN, N.S., Aug. 13. Capt. Donald Williams and crew of the steamer Albatross, a vessel once seized for smuggling barley, escaped with their lives when the craft was burned to the water's edge and sank in the St. John River at Bosley Point, below Gagetown, at last midnight. The steamer was coming down the river towing a raft of lumber, and after leaving Gagetown tied up at Bosley Point to wait for daylight. The captain and crew were asleep when the former was awakened by thick smoke from the engine room filling his cabin. He fought his way through to the deck, and after arousing the crew, all hands were able to escape, all suffering from inhaling smoke.

REPORT OF MUCH ICE.

MONTREAL, Aug. 13. The steamer Manchester Division reports that northward of a line drawn through the southern part of Belle Isle to Red Bay, large numbers of bergs and growlers were seen. More were seen west of Red Bay and the Straits are clear from south of Belle Isle to Cape Normap.

Fishermen Disgusted.

Several small lots of new fish from the nearby outports were disposed of this morning. One fisherman from Bauline, who had a few quintals of what he said was No. 1 last year, received $4.50 per quintal for it, and to say he was disgusted is putting it mildly. He was told that No. 1 fish would probably fetch $10.00, although $3.00 was the highest offer he had heard of. Another fisherman from Kelligrews section had a small lot which he sold, but the price was not named. Some of his fish which at other times would be good No. 1 did not pass the inspector, as they were not split to the crux of the tail and thus showed a blood clot. The fins were clean and the fish were well made. He remarked that there would not be one No. 1 fish come from his section this year.

Paradise Plumage Under Red Shirts.

NEW YORK, August 1.—Bird of Paradise plumage worn beneath red flannel undershirts are no longer considered de rigueur among our best Italian firemen.

Two dark figures scuttled over the side of the big liner Duca D'Abruzzi, at midnight. Two other dark figures gathered them up as they landed on the dock. Then there began a thorough search, which ended only when the scarlet garments were sent aboard, to disclose $80,000 worth of plumage tickling the spines of the prisoners. This is the method, Customs House officials declare, by which thousands of dollars' worth of the ultra-expensive feathers are smuggled into the country.

High cost of living note: Bird of Paradise plumage will remain high this season.

A Mayflower Story.

A passenger in a Boston-bound steamer grew more than a little tired of the name of Plymouth Rock before he even sighted America. But his mood after landing in Massachusetts rapidly approached frenzy. It was, "Have you seen Plymouth Rock? Let me show you a photograph I took of it." "Been to Plymouth Rock yet? Here's a picture of it." And so forth, the remarks always ending, "You know, the Pilgrim Fathers landed on Plymouth Rock."

At last the worm turned.

"Take a peep through this spy-glass," ordered a bystander. "That's Plymouth Rock. You know the Pilgrim Fathers landed—"

"I know, I know," interrupted the visitor wearily, "and I'm beginning to wish that Plymouth Rock had landed on the Pilgrim Fathers."

Obituary.

MRS. ANN ANDREWS.

There passed away on Sunday morning, Aug. 8th, an old and respected lady of Upper Gullies, in the person of Mrs. Ann Andrews. She had reached the ripe old age of 86 years, and had seen many trials, one of her sons having been killed whilst blasting rocks for the foundation of the church at Hopewell, whilst another son, a little boy, having been drowned. Her husband died suddenly of heart trouble about twenty years ago. She leaves to mourn 7 children, two sons residing in the States, three sons at Upper Gullies and two daughters at Kelligrews.

"Gone home! gone home! She hangs here no longer,
A restless pilgrim, walking painfully,
With homesick longing daily growing stronger
And yearning visions of the joys to be.

Gone home! gone home! Oh human heart, through which she vanished
Closed with a jar and left us here alone,
We stand without in tears, forlorn and bearded,
Longing to follow where our loved has gone.

Gone home—gone home! Oh human heart, give us a balm to soothe our heavy woe,
And if Thou wilt in tender pitying favor,
Hasten the time when we may rise and go."

Princess Marries

Her elopement with a chauffeur, Fritz Meyer, has been recently reported. The Princess is a daughter of Prince Frederick, Duke of Schleswig-Holstein, and her husband was Prince August Wilhelm of Hohenzollern.

Frau Meyer is now on her honeymoon, but the people of Berlin are still gasping from the shock of the affair. Meyer, before the war, wore the ex-Kaiser's livery, and became a lieutenant in the German Army. It is understood his romance with Princess Victoria began while he was still piloting the Royal motor cars.

Prince August Wilhelm is reported to be employed still as a bank clerk in Berlin. He was considered the least militaristic of the Kaiser's six sons.

Incompatibility was the reason publicly given for his divorce from Princess Victoria.

All aboard for Argentina Garden Party, Sunday, August 22nd. Train leaves St. John's at 10 a.m.; returning leaves Placentia at midnight. Dinners and Teas served on the grounds. Full City Band in attendance.—aug14, 11

Idiosyncrasies of Mistaken Identity.

Sydney, Australia.—Unless Reginald Harkins, ship's fireman, who described himself as an American citizen, was allowed to land from the Canadian-Australian liner Makura, when that vessel reached Vancouver upon her last voyage or managed to land somewhere on route from here to that port, he runs the risk of being carted up and down the Pacific indefinitely.

Harkins' account of himself, given in Sydney just before the Makura sailed from here with him on board, was as follows:

"Back in January a man with the same name as I reached Vancouver on this boat. He asked for a day off but the chief engineer refused him. He went ashore without leave, got into a street fight, had his leg broken and was taken to a hospital. The chief engineer reported him a deserter. The Canadian authorities arrested me as being the Reginald Harkins who had deserted.

"They put me on board the liner Niagara bound for Sydney. I didn't want to go, so when the steamer reached Honolulu I left her. At the 'Institution of the Union Steamship company, agents for the Canadian-Australian boats, the immigration authorities at Honolulu arrested me and forcibly put me on board the Makura. Not wanting to be idle I signed on at 14 pounds sterling a month. When I reached here I couldn't get my money and the Canadian authorities wouldn't let me off the ship.

"I was born in Omaha, Nebraska, 42 years ago, leaving America when I was 7 years old. I came to Australia and stayed here until I was 25. Since then I have travelled about the world in ships. When I was brought on board this boat (the Makura) at Honolulu, the chief engineer and the purser admitted that I was not the man who went off the boat at Vancouver, but in spite of all that the captain took me to sea.

Harkins complained further that on the strength of promise by the customs authorities at Sydney that he would be released from detention on the Makura if he signed a certificate that he was an alien he signed the paper but the promise was not kept. The American consul here, E. J. Norton, took up Harkins' case, but was unable to do anything on the man's behalf because of lack of proper proof of American citizenship.

"The whole thing," he said, "goes back to the action of the Canadian authorities."

Trinity Past and Present.

Continuing our historical observation along the waterfront of the Harbour, with our thoughts on the past, and our eyes on the present—leaving the premises of Ryan Bros. going north, we pass Tavernor's Point, Dumping Point, and Walters' Point, and turning to the south west we lift our hats, for we find ourselves in God's Cove. Nature was very beautiful with beautiful surroundings when this part of Trinity was laid out. Realizing that "nature is but a name for an effect, whose cause is God," and knowing that no part of Trinity was more beautifully wooded down to the water's edge, than this sequestered, well surrounded spot, we are not surprised to find that it was named and known, two hundred years ago, as God's Cove.

Surely the name was fitly given, for in its primitive beauty it suggested, not only to the person who saw it first, but also to others who saw it for the first time afterwards, as the special handiwork of God. Strange to say, nearly one hundred years after it had been called and known as God's Cove, one Dr. Gott, a German, lived there, and after a while the place became known to many as Gott's Cove. Strange, because (as many of our readers know) Gott is the German word for God, so that it has always been God's Cove in either English or German. As we have no need to use a German word, either to express a meaning or to name a place, in future let us all, in speech and writing, reverently refer to this beautiful part of beautiful Trinity as God's Cove.

Although the Cookesleys developed the beauty of the southern side of this spot years ago, and some evidences of their work still remain, yet owing to the frequent forest fires, not only has the woods on the north west side of it been entirely destroyed, but the earth, too, has been burnt, leaving the bare rock, where once the forest primal was so beautiful, that reverent men spoke of it as God's Cove.

The railway, too, has had its share in lessening the beauty of the surroundings, though of course we are satisfied to exchange scenic beauty for the many practical conveniences which a railway brings to a country, and which it has brought to us. The only part of the railway that has not brought us any material gain as a town, is the unfinished Spur-Line from Trinity Junction via Tavernor's Point. Were it not, however, for the fact that the part of the road bed of this line between Dumping Point and Tavernor's Point, had to be blasted out of the face of a high and dangerous looking cliff, with deep water at its base, probably it would have been finished at the time when it was begun.

To begin and to carry on the blasting there, the men had to be lowered to their work with ropes, and as, today, we look at the unfinished work, we are not surprised to hear that the blasters at one time refused to continue the dangerous work, and we are glad that we have not got to travel along such an eerie road bed.

This, together with the fact that the people of Trinity had ceased to care very much as to whether the Spur-Line came in or not, resulted in the work being discontinued. We are still of the opinion that it could have been brought nearer to us by way of the South West Arm; but we have got used to the disappointment and the inconvenience now, and apart from a candidate's speech just before an election, we do not hear the subject mentioned.

Rounding Newell's Point, we pass along an uninteresting shore to the mouth of North West Arm Brook. Here we are at Lockston (which I described in a previous article) and where in our boyhood days, we rose early, and late took rest, in order to be on hand when the trout were hungry. Following the shore along the north side of the Arm, we come to Fresh Water Brook; and though it is partly hidden by the railway crossing, yet nothing can deprive the pool into which the brook pours its waters, of its quietude and beauty—situate as it is at the base of the clear cut cliff on either side.

We would recommend the visitors to Trinity to go to Trinity East some fine morning by the 9.30 ferry boat, and come back to Trinity Junction by the 10 o'clock express from Bonavista.

In that short distance they will get such pretty views of the Harbour, and of the North West Arm, and God's Cove, as will linger long in their memory, and give them full value for the thirty cent ticket; whilst the walk from the junction to the town, on any fine summer morning, is well worth several thirty cents.

Another excursion that our visitors should not neglect, is to go to the South Side by the ferry boat, climb the hill to the main road, follow it to the Light House on the Fort Point, and then cross over to the town by boat. The views of Trinity and Trinity East from the different points on this road are surpassingly beautiful, and if the visitors have time to turn off the main road, and go down into Green Island Cove, they will find themselves on the shore of Trinity Bay. The picturesque scenery of this Cove will fully repay them for the climb, and they will be anxious to go again, and to take their friends and their families with them.

If the visitors are ecclesiastically inclined, the view at one point will be particularly interesting, for in addition to all the other things, they will see five churches and one Mortuary Chapel belonging to the Church of England, two Methodist Churches and one Roman Catholic Church.

The Fort Point itself, with its beautiful view sea-ward and land-ward; its Light House and Fog Alarm Station; and its old cannon still where they were when mounted to sink any French warship that attempted to enter the Harbour, is worth a special visit, and constitutes one of our delightful private picnic grounds.

The Hon. A. W. Mews, wife and children came to Trinity some days ago. Mr. Mews left again to join the Imperial Press representatives, and Mrs. Mews and children are enjoying native air.

Mrs. Pittman celebrated her eighty-fifth birthday on August 9th, by a family gathering. Her many friends offer congratulations and best wishes.

Mr. Nelson W. Pittman is spending his annual holiday with his mother and friends in his native town. Mr. Pittman is one of our expert telegraphers in the employ of the Western Union, New York City. He is also a reader, a walker, and an angler, and our quiet nooks, our good roads, and our brooks, will provide him with all that is necessary for an enjoyable holiday.

Rev. D. Bailey and wife, of Old Town, Maine, U.S.A., passed through Trinity this week on their way to Mr. Bailey's home at Bonavista. We are proud of Mr. Bailey, as one of the several priests of the Church of England, born in this parish. He will spend a Sunday in Trinity.

Dr. Bond Cross, a native of Trinity, has returned to Newfoundland. He will make his home, and practice his profession at Brooklyn, Bonavista Bay. We wish him good success.

Mr. Archibald Hodder, of Ireland's Eye, who for several years has been living at Point St. Charles, Montreal, visited his sister, Mrs. White, proprietor of "White" House, last week. He is now visiting Ireland's Eye, and will return to Montreal. Glad to see him.

Guests at Garland Hotel; Mrs. Jenkins, Prop.; Arthur Hiscock and wife, St. John's; H. Y. Mott and wife, St. John's; Mrs. D. Ryan, Marguerite Ryan; Rev. D. Bailey and wife, Old Town, Maine, U.S.A.; Hon. D. Ryan, H. Randall, Catalina; J. Robertson, St. John's; A. Coleman, representing Coleman's Baking Powder.

Amongst the welcome visitors of this week are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hiscock, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Mott, of St. John's. Mr. Hiscock was born here some sixty years ago, and this has been his longest visit to Trinity, since he left it as a boy of twelve years of age. Naturally it is more or less new and strange to him, owing to so many changes, though his affection for it is no less, nor are his many friends less glad to see him. We would enjoy a fully equipped boat race on the waters of the South West Arm, under the expert supervision and direction of Mr. Hiscock; but, Alas!

For a thoroughly enjoyable holiday come to Trinity; and if you don't believe me, ask Mr. Mott.

I desire to thank the Trinitarians in Canada and the United States, who have written to me expressing their thanks for, and their appreciation of the articles on Trinity in the Evening Telegram. I am glad to know that those articles have given so much pleasure. Owing to my movements I shall have to discontinue them for a while.

The annual Memorial and Flower Service will be held in the Church of England Cemetery on Sunday afternoon next, preceded by a celebration of the Holy Communion in the Mortuary Chapel at 8 o'clock a.m.

Mr. Walter N. White has returned to Trinity, and reported for duty, at ter an enjoyable and well earned holiday.

A few days ago a person asked me if it was true that the late Bishop Reginald Heber (the hymn writer) once visited Trinity. The person thought it must be true because of so many men in or around Trinity whose Christian name is Reginald, or Reginald Heber. Trinity, however, was not honoured by a visit from this well known Bishop. Rev. William Bullock's eldest son was named after that Bishop—viz., Reginald Heber, and those in Trinity who were, or are known by that name, were named after Reginald Heber Bullock, and he was named after Bishop Reginald Heber. That is the origin and sequence of the name in Trinity.

Rev. C. A. Moulton, passenger on the Sagona to Labrador, arrived in Trinity just in time for breakfast at the Hotel with his parishioners there. —W.J.L.

Where Nerves Are Barred.

COOLNESS AND COURAGE ARE REQUIRED BY STEEPJACKS.

The narrow escape from death recently of the two steepjacks gassed on top of a 140 feet chimney at East Greenwich, and the gallant rescue of one of them by a third steepjack, Mr. Horace Powell, of Plaistow, though it thrilled the hundreds of on-lookers, was regarded by rescuer and rescued as "all in the day's work!" These men have no nerves. They dare not possess any. Should a steepjack by any chance develop such, his mates will refuse to work with him any more. It is the one unpardonable "sin" in their eyes. There is reason good enough for this, for a nervous man is a source of danger to his fellow-workmen. Will Larkins, the well-known Bow steepjack, was once working with a mate so afflicted on top of a lofty chimney at Deptford, when the nerve one suddenly lost his reason altogether, and announced his intention of throwing himself down the interior of the shaft.

Luckily there was a third man on the job, and after a sharp tussle in mid-air on a coping about eighteen inches wide, the two sane ones managed to overpower the madman and bind him with one of the ladder ropes. Apart altogether, however, from any such untoward happening as this, the risks run by steepjacks are many and varied. The rotten, over-hanging coping of a chimney, for instance, loosened by the jarring of the hammering necessary to fix the ladders for the ascent, may collapse and fall, an avalanche of bricks and mortar, on the men climbing laboriously upward from below. This is a far from uncommon occurrence, and one against which, unfortunately, no human foresight is of any avail.

Another fruitful source of accident is when chimneys have to be ascended by means of iron rungs permanently bolted into the outside brickwork at distances of about twelve inches apart throughout its height. These are very liable to become eaten partly through by rust, and to give way when least expected. More than a score of fatalities have occurred amongst steepjacks from this cause alone within the last twenty years.

"To me the world seems more beautiful every day." John Wanamaker said in the midst of a quiet observance of his recent 82nd birthday at the cottage of Rodman Wanamaker, his son, in Chelsea. Touching upon birthdays in general, Mr. Wanamaker said they "come rapidly as a man's years increase in number, and that then a man more than ever appreciates his friends."

LONDON GOSSIP.

THE DUKE OF YORK.

LONDON, July 5, 1920. The Duke of York (Prince Albert) has finished his studies at Cambridge University, and has now taken up the duties which fall to his lot. Prince Henry also will be taking his departure soon to commence military duties with his regiment.

L. T.

What is the meaning of the secrecy surrounding the surrender of the German airship L. T. 1, which arrived unexpectedly at Pulham aerodrome, Norfolk, in the early hours of the morning of the day last week? Naturally Germany was not anxious for publicity, and L. T. 1 was sent over before anyone expected her. She carried no wireless, and even the British Air Ministry officials had no idea she was on her way. There was no landing party waiting for her, and she had to be moored by a party of local military which was suddenly called out. The sudden appearance of Germany's latest and largest type of airship over the east coast prevented any elaborate stage-managing of the surrender, as was the occasion in 1918 when the German fleet was handed over. On that occasion permits were issued to the press, the proceedings were vividly described, and the whole event was regarded as a matter of great and popular interest. Except for one or two paragraphs in the morning papers, however, the surrender of the airships has been almost unheralded. But there is surely no need for a continuance of this secrecy. Enquiries at the Air Ministry as to what was going to be done with L. T. 1 produced no definite information. So far as could be gathered, press permits are not to be issued, and nothing further is to be said.

main there for the full five years. He has already some acquaintance with South Africa since he was there for a time towards the end of the South African war, when he caught dysentery and was invalided home. Princess Arthur's father, the late Duke of Fife, was one of the original directors of the British South African Company, a position he resigned after the Jameson Raid.

"SPA" OR "SPAW"

At question time in the House of Commons the other day, Prime Minister Lloyd George referred to Spa as "Spaw." This was the old-fashioned way in which the British Spas were referred to in the eighteenth century and early Victorian times, but I thought it disappeared with "good" for gold and "Jemee" for James.

HOUSEWIFE B.S.C.'s.

It would be futile as well as unwise to discuss the relative initiative displayed by the educational institutions. But no invidious distinction is implied in the observation that the London University displays remarkable enterprise along most novel lines. Its latest venture is well in keeping with

A FIVE YEARS' SOJOURN.

When Prince Arthur of Connaught takes his new position as Governor-General of South Africa he will rethe spirit of the present age when the pettiest flutters in all the affairs of mankind, for it has decided to confer B.S.C.'s upon housewives. Students will undergo a three years' course in household science, embracing everything from laundry work, office management, and a study of labour problems to the correct method of endorsing and signing cheques. Such are the qualifications which the University deems essential in the ideal wife, but it has not overlooked the needs of those who do not wish to enter housework with such commendable ardour. For them a year's course has been instituted for the inculcation of valuable hints on cooking, dusting, ventilation, and so forth. By those who deary the tendency of the age to break away from the home-loving habits of our mothers the courses are applauded, but possibly the women themselves may regard them merely as the belated official recognition of the value of a much misrepresented and misunderstood science.

CANCELLING CONTRACTS.

Anxiety is being felt in London's banking and financial district over the marked tendency to disregard the obligations of contracts. Japanese merchants first adopted the practice of cancelling contracts during their financial crisis, but at that time little notice was taken as it was possible to place the goods to advantage elsewhere. Now, however, China, America, and the Continent generally are following suit, and the whole basis of international business is being undermined. Such a practice was unknown before the war.

GENERAL IRONSIDE.

General Sir Edmund Ironside, who, it is reported, will command the Allied forces against the Turkish Nationalists, is the only soldier who has achieved the honor of promotion to the substantive rank of major general before the age of forty. He was a captain when he went to France as a staff officer in August, 1914. He is, too, the only officer who possesses a decoration gained for service in the field with the German Army. He won this as a driver in the German field artillery during Von Deimling's campaign in South-west Africa. He was then a subaltern in a battery in South Africa, and disguised himself as a Boer in order to supply the War Office with first-hand information about Von Deimling's campaign. As a staff officer in France he was very notable, especially on the Intelligence side, and he quickly rose to the command of an infantry brigade. He is a remarkable linguist, speaking six languages fluently and having more than a smattering of several others. His appointment to Ismid is a surprise, for it is well known here that he is not popular with several army chiefs, with whom his directness of speech and his caustic candour have several times brought him in conflict.

SPORT AND NATIONAL PRESTIGE.

Unless £10,000 can be raised by public subscription within the next four or five weeks this country will be unrepresented for the first time at the Olympic Games, which take place on Belgian soil this year. The last celebration was due to take place at Ruhleben, near Berlin, in 1916, so that the Olympic Games have not been held since 1912, when Stockholm was the venue. Although there is no precedent for it, the invitation of the Belgian Government to the British Foreign Office to send a British team was more than a mere formality, for it is regarded as adding significance to the international competition among the Continental countries. There is no mystery about the delay in the British preparations for the Olympic Games. They had all been planned a year ago by Lord Downham, but he has unfortunately been laid up for over six months. Hence the delay. In other countries, notably France and Sweden, State grants are made for financing their national teams. The public demand for economy has prevented the Government from giving similar support to a British team, but as it is desirable to avoid any suspicion of discourtesy to Belgium every effort is being made to organise a team.

FASHION IN MEN'S CLOTHES: NO DANGER.

Quiet men were shocked the other day by the announcement quoted in the London papers that a tailoring journal that there are going to be revolutionary reforms in men's fashions. In particular the fancy waistcoat, "that garment dear to the heart of the middle-aged and portly some fifteen years ago," is, they say, to return to favour, while there are to be even greater varieties of hue in ties, socks, and handkerchiefs. One remembers the sartorial prophecy of a few years ago that all tail coats would be banished from the world of right-thinking men. Well, anyone who went to Ascot would have noticed how popular the morning coat was. Close observers of men's fashions have long since given up hope (or fear) of any violent change. The editor of that expert and entertaining journal, the "Tailor and Cutter," said that the chief change in West End tailoring is the number of people of the richer sort who are having their old clothes done up. The material of the older garments is of so good a quality that the owners are generally surprised at the success of the renovation. Before the war the best tailors would have been snuffy if they had been asked to do such work, but now even Savile Row (the home of London's most expensive tailors) is at it. My inquiries produced no evidence of a return of the fancy waistcoat. One fashionable but exceptional West End tailor put his disbe-

Through Canadian Eyes.

A MISCELLANY OF REMARKS AND COMMENTS FROM THE LAND OF THE MAPLE LEAF.

(By J. R. Smallwood, Halifax Herald.)

I should explain that I do not claim to be writing as a Canadian as might be supposed from reading the headline. I am interpreting the sentiment of Canadians and expressing it in my own words. Where any remarks are my own observation and not expressions of Canadian thought the reader will have no difficulty in perceiving the fact.

"Bat the Rat!"

A campaign to start a campaign is now being carried on by a newspaper in Halifax. The campaign which this newspaper wishes to see started is one for the extermination of rats. Halifax, in common with thousands of other cities, swarms with the rodent, and incredible damage is done by them. Every seaport town has always been more or less infested with rats; since the war the number has in all cases increased and now, the contention is, the North American continent is threatened with Bubonic Plague. Already, in Mexico, and in some cities of the Southern States, Bubonic plague has appeared and claimed victims. In such cities rats, when found, were disease-bearing. Bubonic, with typhus, plague, are caused by a flea, and the rats carry them and transfer them to human beings. Poland, Roumania, Serbia and other European cities have been plague-swept since the ending of the war, and now, disease-carrying rats having come across in ships, the New World is to have its turn unless steps to prevent are taken. In Winnipeg, Manitoba, the city council pays 10 cents each for rats' tails and there boys have organized themselves into rat-killing clubs and exterminated them. In Seattle, Wash., U.S.A., the grant is 20 cents. In other cities, in Southern States, determined steps are being taken. Ships entering harbors are searched and fumigated. It would be interesting to know how many rats there are in St. John's. A rat-exterminating campaign there might not be altogether unnecessary.

Canadian Politics.

All the indications are that, in the next general election, the Federal government of Ottawa will be defeated. Wherever a provincial or a Federal bye-election is being held the Ottawa government is being rejected in favor of either the Liberals or the Labor-Farmer group. Ontario, Manitoba and Nova Scotia have only to be mentioned to show the trend. In Ontario they have a Labor-Farmer government and in Nova Scotia a Liberal, with good Labor-Farmer representation. The Conservative government at Ottawa has grown in unpopularity for the past two years and to-day it is in a shaky position.

A Canadian Challenger.

It looks now as if the next challenger for the America's Cup will be a Canadian. C. Ross, a Sydney man, and member of the Cape Breton Yacht Club, wired a challenge from Toronto and was answered by J. Pierpont Morgan, commodore of the New York Yacht Club, holder of the America's Cup, to the effect that the challenge would have to come from a regularly registered club and not from an individual member. Ross thereupon wired the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron and the squadron wired back that it could not agree to anything until it had assurances that the money which would build the yacht would be forthcoming. Ross says that the money (it would take from a million to a million and a half dollars) will be raised by popular subscription. I gathered from conversation with Commodore R. G. DeWolf, of the Yacht Squadron, that his club members are just a little nettled at Ross for challenging without first consulting the club. Whether this will make any difference with the challenge is hard to say.

The Wheat Crop.

The wheat crops in Canada this year promise to be well above the average. Combined with the fact that American crops will be far above the average this looks as if flour will be much cheaper. With cheaper grains everything will be cheap. Pork and beef and poultry will be cheaper when the grains which they are fed are cheaper. A big wheat crop, therefore, means cheaper everything. Gene!—$10,000,000.

Genuine regret at the turn of events in the British-Polish-Russian situation is felt in Canada. Right on top of the announcement that the Soviet government had $10,000,000 in gold to place in banks for Canadian goods comes the announcement that Lloyd George has decided, practically, to declare war again on Russia and reimpose the blockade. Not only Canadian business will regret it. In Great Britain Leonard Krassin has made final arrangements for trading with English business men and now—now that gold is gone! Really, however, it is hard to believe that Lloyd George means what he says. He is the one who brought Krassin and his couple of dozen conferees to London to talk business, and he did so knowing that there was in Russia a vast amount of exportable wheat and other goods. To now destroy forever British chances of trading with Russia surely were too much to expect of him? Both Britain and France warned Poland against waging warfare on Russia, too, and it is pretty certain that they are not too sympathetic for air, now that the small boy who investigates the wasp's nest, she has been stung!

Cheaper Potatoes.

St. John's may reasonably look forward to cheaper potatoes this fall and winter. In Prince Edward Island, from which Newfoundland gets such a large quantity of "spuds," this season's crop is the best in their history. There was never so big a acreage under cultivation as this year, moreover, and the yield is expected to be beyond anything ever known. I must repeat here a story told me by a man from Charlottetown. A man from United States settled down on the island and started to grow potatoes. Last year he grew 200 bushels on each acre. This year he has 400 acres set out. It's a pity that we can't grow potatoes like that in Newfoundland. The American imports his fertilizer from United States and to this he attributes his phenomenal yield. Saltfax, Saturday, Aug. 7.

Mainly About People.

"Hi, Prince! Will you tell me what your weight is?" This was the query shouted at the Prince of Wales as he was about to leave the station at Auckland, New Zealand. An attempt was made to have the man silenced, but the Prince smilingly replied: "Oh, certainly! It is 140 pounds. I suppose you have made a bet on it." The man replied: "Right you are." "Well," said the Prince, "I hope you have won." "No, I lost," the man shouted, "but you are a good sport and I thank you."

The birthplace of Arthur Meighen, the new premier, was a farm, and his first job was peddling milk for his father in the nearby town of St. Mary's, Ont. When he graduated from the University of Toronto with the degree of Bachelor of Arts tacked to his name he taught school for a year or two. Then he went to Winnipeg, and after a brief spell at high school work became a manufacturer's agent. But even then he had not found his niche, for he took up the study of law, after graduating in which he hung out his shingle in Portage la Prairie, a new town a few miles west of Winnipeg, and which for 12 years he has continuously represented in the federal parliament.

"Wanted—For Murder"

FUGITIVES WITH FATE AGAINST THEM.

In eluding his searchers for six weeks, Toplis, the motor-car murderer, shot down like a mad dog in a Cumberland road recently, created almost a record in elusiveness.

"Wanted" men have rarely, in recent years, baffled police pursuit so long, while the number of those wanted for murder who have defied capture is strikingly small. Crippen escaped for a month the hands that sought so eagerly to clutch him, but the snap of the handcuffs on the wicked wrists was only delayed so long because he was on board ship. He was "located" some ten days before, and the days passed while the vessel he was on came carrying its prey closer and closer to the waiting hunters.

For close on a fortnight James Canham Read, the murderer of Florence Dennis—whom he shot in a cornfield near Southend—contrived to throw his seekers off his track. Under a false name, and having effected considerable changes in his clothes and appearance, he had sought refuge in a pretty little cottage in a Surrey village. There he seemed to imagine he was perfectly safe. But one evening the Scotland Yard detectives pounced upon him.

For ten days Lefroy, the murderer of Mr. Gold on the Brighton railway, remained hidden while every eye was searching for him. He had taken a bed-sitting-room in a quiet street in Stepney, and remained indoors all day, informing his landlady that he was an engraver suffering from overwork, whose eyes would not bear the light. At last his landlady, growing uneasy, went to the police station, and an hour later Lefroy was arrested.

Disarmed Suspicion.

Jackson, the murderer of a warder in Strangeways Prison, Manchester, whose life had been confined, baffled his pursuers for over three weeks. Having made a few changes in his clothes, he mixed boldly with people, frequented public-houses, and made a large number of acquaintances, whom he entertained by singing to them. At night he used to burgle houses to secure the means to enjoy himself during the daytime. He carried in his pocket an execrable likeness of himself which he had cut out of a newspaper, and this helped considerably to disarm suspicion. He showed it to his companions, and, as there was no likeness between the picture of "Jackson, the Man Wanted for Murder," and himself, suspicious persons were put off the scent. Jackson's horror of sleeping by himself ultimately led to his arrest.

A bad likeness in a newspaper has often served a criminal. Eyrard, the man concerned with Gabrielle Bonaparte in the sensational murder of it. Couffe, escaped to Havana, after flying over the United States, Canada, and other parts of the world. Like Jackson, he carried an alleged picture

The Coal Shortage.

C. B. MINE MEN AT OTTAWA.

Halifax, Aug. 9.—Whether there is a shortage of coal will probably be known officially soon when a delegation of coal mine owners of Cape Breton will visit Ottawa and if possible interview Hon. F. B. Carvell, chairman of the railway commission and final commissioner, it was announced last night.

Coal producers of this province, when interviewed by The Herald over the week-end, corroborated the statements made in The Herald Saturday, by J. J. Macnell, member of the executive board of the United Mine Workers for the Inverness district. Mr. Macnell said that there was no shortage at all in fact, that unless the Inverness operators were allowed to export coal or get orders somewhere unexpectedly the mines might have to go on a three-day-a-week basis.

The Mail learned yesterday that a ship with 7,500 tons now lies at Port Hastings. It is said that the owners, the Inverness Railway and Collieries Ltd., cannot get a market for this coal, yet from Montreal and elsewhere come reports that coal is most urgently needed. The reason given why Nova Scotia builders cannot get cement from Montreal is that on account of the lack of coal only two out of six plants are running there at the present time.

With the commission beginning sittings here this afternoon and the Ottawa delegation discussing the situation with Mr. Carvell, something definite should be arrived at this week.

Sydney Will Build Cup Challenger.

Royal Cape Breton Yacht Club To Enter Competition.

Montreal, August 9. (Montreal correspondence of Sydney Record.)—Canada's challenge for the America's Cup is no flimsy. Within three or four days a definite challenge will be made by the Royal Cape Breton Yacht Club to the New York Yacht Club, and then it will simply be a question of determining the right dates of sailing. That statement was made to The Record's correspondent here in an exclusive interview granted him by A. C. Ross, Montreal, formerly of Sydney, to whose enterprise Canada's participation in the cup races will be due. There is no doubt whatever that the challenge will go forward within a few days," said Mr. Ross. "Both syndicates and members are enthusiastic but they have to meet and draw up a formal challenge. The date of challenge will not be decided on yet, and will not be named in the challenge, as the rules do not require it, but I understand ten months' notice is required.

Asked if he had any idea what race would be chosen, Mr. Ross stated that he believed the syndicate might favor the Cape Breton Yacht Club. "They used to race with syndicates for the America's Cup years ago," he said. "Mr. Ross is a member of the Royal Cape Breton Yacht Club. He is also member of the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron, and he declared that any unforeseen hitch prevented the Sydney club going on with the challenge, the Halifax club would take it up.

At first the idea was for the two clubs to unite in this matter," he said. "Mr. Pierpont Morgan, Chairman of the New York Yacht Club, stated that under the rules the challenger must race under the auspices of only one club. In any other case it would be difficult to determine the ownership of the cup if it should be won."

Asked about the confusion which has arisen over the publication in the story that the challenge was for 1921 and in another that it was for 1922, Mr. Ross said the challenge was good for either year, but he would prefer 1922, as it would give more time for preparation.

"What will happen if Sir Thomas also challenges," he was asked. "It is quite possible there will be three cornered race," was the reply. The correspondent pointed out that perhaps Sir Thomas might enter a schooner rigged yacht, and asked what course would then be pursued. Mr. Ross thought it likely that in that event there would be two defenders, but it was evident complications would be produced, for, if the first challenger won the cup, the second defender would have no chance to race, and Sir Thomas would have to race in Sydney and try to wrest the cup from the Canadians.

"I don't think Sir Thomas will challenge so soon," said Mr. Ross. He added, however, that he had not heard from Sir Thomas, though he had wired him in care of the New York Yacht Club, commiserating with him over the Shamrock's defeat. He had since heard that Sir Thomas was at the Atlantic Yacht Club, so perhaps, the Irish sportsman did not get the message. Mr. Morgan was on the high seas in his steam yacht when the coming challenge was announced, but he received it at once by wireless and replied without delay.

Talking of the fund to be raised to build the challenger, Mr. Ross said the Cape Breton Yacht Club was at first nervous, but he was sure they had no doubt on the matter now. "Offers to subscribe are flowing in every day," he said, "coming not only from Canadians but from New York visitors, and from Canadians resident in the United States." "All the Americans I have met hoped the Shamrock would win," continued Mr. Ross. "They felt that the races were becoming monotonous and they would welcome a change. For the same reason, and from patriotic motives, Canadians resident in the United States will be glad to see a Canadian yacht enter."

Mr. Ross corrected a misapprehension that thousand dollar subscriptions would be accepted, and said subscriptions would start at a dollar and would be limited to one hundred dollars.

"If we had made it a thousand," he said, "the money would be realized before everyone who wanted to have a chance to subscribe. We could raise far more money than is needed for the construction of the yacht and its maintenance and the expenses of the race."

As showing what progress had been made, Mr. Ross announced that he had asked Horace Davis, a prominent advertising man, to co-operate with him as organizer, and said that as soon as $150,000 had been raised a start would be made in building the yacht.

"The challenger will be built at Sydney," he concluded, "and in the event of our winning the cup we will have no difficulty in Sydney's beautiful harbor in providing a safe safe course for the next race."

League Football.

The league football game last evening between the B.S. and Collegians was won by the former with a score of 4 goals to 1. The regular team of the Collegians failed to turn up and they had to play with a number of substitutes. The B.S. forwards played a good combination, Fred and Ed. Phelan getting in some good work. Mr. H. Churchill was the referee.

FINIS.

We hasten to write "finis" to the closing of the "Woodford Affidavit," once cause celebre, but now to be known to future historians as the whitewashing of several individuals high in Government circles to-day. The end came rather suddenly when the commissioners refused to allow Mr. Woodford to interrogate Mr. Gibbs. It became very apparent at once that nothing was to be uncovered, and that the whole purpose of the commission was a mere camouflage.

It should be understood that our position has not been the upholding of Mr. Woodford, by any means; but it is unfortunate that the whole system of the deliberate sale of positions (which has occurred not only now, but times without number) for a "consideration" should not have received a thorough probing.

Unfortunately the bulk of the electorate knows little of this game, and the politicians themselves believe that it is impossible to play party politics without it. Therefore it becomes evident that it must still go on, until the people are sufficiently informed to know what is being done, and call "halt."

If what Mr. Squires said in his evidence before the commission be true, it reveals an absolutely shocking state of affairs.

"His Excellency the Governor, informed me that from his knowledge of Newfoundland political conditions the last two or three years since he had been Governor, that he would consider it disastrous in the interests of Newfoundland abroad if there was any general inquiry covering a period of years involving the conduct of some of his late advisers."

The pity is—If Mr. Squires is quoting his Excellency correctly, and of that we have no conclusive proof, that the Augean Stables were not thoroughly cleaned—amely job as it might have been!

SUGAR.

No longer will the words of the world famed duet "sweet and low" fit the case of the Sugar question. The Food Control Board—excuse us a moment, while we laugh up our sleeve—the achem, Food Control Board as aforesaid, has gravely announced that "from and after this date (July 27th) the retail price of white granulated sugar shall not exceed thirty-one cents in the Outports, plus transportation, insurance and other charges."

This will mean that white sugar in the Outports will be sold at anywhere between 35 and 40 cents a pound.

To show there is no reason for such a price save alone the bungling of the F.C.B., the Trade Review (itself favorable to the Government), states that the people of the West Coast who deal with Halifax, can buy sugar in Canada for 24 cents, and could retail it at 28 cents a pound, but "they are not allowed to import."

This would be almost unbelievable, but that all the evidence seems to show that the position is absolutely correct.

The people of Newfoundland then are paying anywhere from ten to twelve cents a pound more for sugar than is necessary, simply because of the work of a group of incompetents. And this is the Government that was going to reduce the heavy burden—but what is the use talking about it anyhow!

TALQUAL ONCE MORE.

Very little trade seems to be coming out of St. John's this summer. Most of our coastwise schooners find it difficult to get outward freights from St. John's, and have to come north with half a load or in some cases without any.

Those who have visited St. John's say that it is impossible to obtain any quotation whatever for codfish, and there seems to be no price quoted by any one.

As for the hope that was expressed that we would receive a dollar or two better price than the other, even that seems now to be in doubt, and men who have their pulse on the codfish trade say that while business firms who are not friends of the Government may have to do as the Regulations require, the old system will prevail among party supporters. This another hope goes to the ground, and just what many people feared seems likely to happen.

If the promises, inducements and threats, which were held out to the fishermen this year to make good codfish, turn out to be nothing more than hot air, and there is no difference in the prices between well and indifferently made codfish, we tremble for the fate of our codfishery; for it will be useless to ever again ask for the extra work that has been evidenced in not a few cases this season among the fishermen who have done their very best to produce a superior article.

Thus we are told by persons who came from there recently, that the Union Store at Joe Batt's Arm, for instance, while paying different prices for No. 1 and No. 2 codfish is also buying on a talqual basis. We understood that Mr. Talqual was forever banished from the Dominion, but he seems to have somehow secured a reprieve.

Heavy tassels of gold, silver, jet and silk card are in demand.

LOW MARKETS!

With practically all stocks at their lowest price in years—with the wave of pessimism sweeping over the country over the war cloud—with thousands of weakly margined accounts liquidated—
Surely this is the time for the investor with money to pick up some rare "buys".
The recent price-smashing wave has caused a slump in nearly all stocks, although their intrinsic value is unimpaired.
Our advice is—take advantage of the present prices.
