LADY LAURA'S RELEASE

THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER XXV.

Then she clung to Angela, crying out that she was the most miserable woman in the world, that she wished she could die, that her husband had ceased to love her. There came a quieter moment, when she looked up at her daughter and said:

"Oh, Angela, if I could undo it—I could undo my most miserable marriage! Yet I love him—I love him!"

Angela had never found it so difficult to soothe or calm her mother. She bathed the tear-stained face; she smoothed the golden hair, so tangled and tumbled; she kissed the pale, quivering lips. But neither gentle words nor loving caresses seemed to assuage her grief.

"Mamma," she said, gently, "you must not agitate yourself in this way; you will make yourself ill. See how you tremble!"

"Ah, Angel, it would be easier to die at once!" she cried. "But I cannot. There was a time when I believed that grief killed quickly; but it does not—it tortures slowly."

Lady Laura Wynyard was very ill that night. Angela would not leave her, and the girl's thoughts were very unhappy ones, as she saw the wreck that had been made of her mother's life. It seemed strange to her that this man should have had the power to change their lives so completely. Before he had met them they had known nothing but happiness; now it seemed as though they would never be happy again. Angela was seriously alarmed and anxious with respect to her mother, for she felt that much more of this misery would crush her entirely. Her beautiful fragile mother, who had always been so indulgently loved, was

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt relief. Take just a moment to prepare and save you about $1.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrup is a combination of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2 1/2 ounces of Pine in a 16-oz. bottle and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pine and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Sore throat, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pine is a highly concentrated, condensed form of genuine Norway pine extract, and it forces the mucus over, for its prompt effect upon coughs, colds, hoarseness, and sore throat. "His wife must take her chance, aunt, as all other wives do," said Gladys, with a sullen look on her fair face. "I do not think that I am bound to study her."

"I do," returned Lady Kinloch, emphatically. "I wonder that you do not see how blind you are to your interests? You cannot expect any good offers of marriage while Captain Wynyard is always by your side."

"I do not want them," said Gladys, proudly.

"You do not want offers of marriage! You are careless and indifferent about them! May I ask what you intend to do with your life?"

"Wear it away, as others do," she answered, drearily. "Aunt, it was you who made a mistake; you should have let me marry Captain Wynyard."

"Why, you would have had nothing to live upon!" cried Lady Kinloch, aghast.

"I begin to think that that would not have mattered so much," she replied. "I have found out that happiness and love are better than money."

"It is all very well to say so while you live in the midst of luxury; but you would soon change your idea if you tried love and poverty. I have done my best for you, Gladys, and, if you marry well, I shall leave you my property; but I must say I do not like to hear you speak in that manner."

"And," said Gladys, frankly, "we need never renew the subject; but while we are discussing it, let me say that I ought to have married Captain Wynyard. I should have been happy then; now all that I have to do is to make the best of a ruined life."

"Knowing that, Gladys," said Lady Kinloch, firmly, "does it not seem to you that duty is to avoid him?"

"No," she replied; "I have confidence in myself. His friendship is pleasant to me, and I do not see why I should give it up."

"Do you suppose, Gladys, that if you marry, your husband will allow this friendship to exist?"

"If he be a wise man he will," she answered; "but, as in all probability he will not be a wise man, I shall have to give it up."

"I am glad you take so sensible a view of it," remarked Lady Kinloch.

After that conversation, Lady Kinloch doubted whether she had done wisely, after all, in preventing her niece's marriage with the handsome captain—whether it would not have been better to let them find out for themselves what love and poverty were like. Still she had this satisfaction—she had acted for the best—she had followed the code that the world laid down—she had followed the highest light she knew. However, she resolved upon one thing; she would for the future keep her niece as far apart from Captain Wynyard as she could. When she heard that the captain was going to Nice with Lady Laura, who was in delicate health, she decided upon a trip to Paris; and thither with her lovely niece Gladys she went.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS

"California Fig Syrup" is Child's Best Laxative

Even if cross, feverish, bilious, constipated or full of cold, children love the "fruity" taste of California Fig Syrup. A teaspoonful never fails to clear the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the souring food and nasty bile out of the stomach and bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep California Fig Syrup handy. They know a teething child gives a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine California Fig Syrup, which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you Dominion Government Expedition to Arctic.

That Canada is to enter once more into Arctic expeditions is demonstrated by the fact that Captain Bernier, the famous Canadian explorer, who has just returned from Europe, appears to have made the necessary arrangements to buy the "Quest," Shackleton's Arctic ship. Capt. Bernier, according to information, was called from England by the Department of the Interior to give full details regarding the deal which is now projected.

Last year, on board the good ship Arctic, Capt. Bernier spent three months in the northern regions. He went as far as Ellis Bay and left a number of members of the Canadian Mounted Police to look after the enforcement of Canadian laws, including those affecting taxation. One more important duty was also bestowed upon Capt. Bernier, and Mr. Craig, of the Department of the Interior, that was to gain for Canada official recognition of its supremacy on certain territories, which were also being sought by the Danes and other countries.

This 1922 trip of Captain Bernier remained a mysterious one. A secret report was filed in Ottawa, and up to now its contents have not been revealed. According to Captain Bernier when he returned to Quebec he could not give out any statement as to the object of his three month's cruise in the far north. In fact, the old Arctic captain confined his declaration to statements regarding the developments of Eskimo education and to his fear that educational intervention at their point of civilization might not be only vain but dangerous for their own good.

However, he admitted that something had to be done to help that interesting population, which belonged to Canada and which was quite proud to boast of its Canadian nationality.

Capt. Bernier's journey to Europe two months ago was the answer of the Government to his demand that the Northeastern coast of Canada be looked after. The "Arctic" is now an old ship. Though not admitted, it is understood that Capt. Bernier's last trip had to be considerably curtailed for fear of being caught in bad weather. The result was that the Canadian authorities decided to send Captain Bernier across to choose a ship that would be suitable for Arctic expeditions, but as it was known that he was purchasing a ship for the Government the price would go up, he was instructed to act wisely and look over ships as for his own account.

BERNIER IN OTTAWA.

The Department of the Interior has learned of the successful transaction made by Capt. Bernier, and asked him to proceed immediately to Ottawa on his return to Canada, and he is now in the capital discussing contracts which are liable to be signed within a few days.

Captain Bernier, having returned on the C.P.O.S. Montclare, according to reliable information will leave early this spring for Europe to bring the purchased ship across the Atlantic to Quebec. From here an expedition will be organized in the beginning of June. It is said that mineral resources will be investigated.

Zeppelin Ready for Flight to U.S.

The giant new German Zeppelin, now under construction at Friedrichshafen for the United States Government, under a contract that calls for its delivery in America, is approaching completion and will soon be all ready for trans-Atlantic flight. The German newspapers are giving much space to a discussion of the subject. Upon the success of this trip, it is thought, largely depends the completion of the plans for the proposed Zeppelin line from Spain to South America by way of the Canary Islands, preparations for which are being made by a Spanish and South American corporation.

A ship has been making a survey between Cadiz and Buenos Ayres for many months for the study of air currents, temperatures and landing stations and this investigation now is about completed.

The Zeppelin under construction for the United States will be completed in April at the present rate of progress, will make a test flight over the Alps in May and come to Berlin late in June for inspection by American Ambassador Houghton before starting for America, in charge of German engineers, accompanied by American officers.

The start will be across France, the Zeppelin flying the American flag.

Across the Atlantic in Thirty Hours.

Daily aerial passenger service across the Atlantic, with the trip made in thirty hours, will be an accomplished fact in 1926, according to Edward R. Armstrong, of Philadelphia, who has just completed plans outlining in detail the establishment of this extraordinary service.

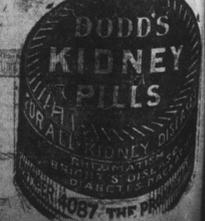

He proposes to construct eight zigzag stations which will be anchored at intervals of four hundred miles across the Atlantic ocean. By methods which he has perfected it will be possible to anchor these stations in fixed places and stabilize them so that they will be free from the roll and pitch to which even mammoth ocean liners are subjected.

Each station or "seadrome" will be 1200 feet long, 400 feet wide, and have a platform of about eleven acres on which the seaplanes will alight. A crew of about 125 men will be stationed on each seadrome. There will be complete radio-telephone and wireless telegraph receiving and broadeau, aeroplane repair shop and best accommodations for overnight guests. Between stations huge buoy—every 60 miles—illuminated at night by acetylene gas, will mark the course.

According to Mr. Armstrong's plans, at no time will a plane be more than one hour and a half away from a station.

It pearl buttons have been spotted in the laundry, give them a bath in cold oil and rub them with flannel.

THE EVENING TELEGRAM

THE EVENING TELEGRAM, LIMITED, PROPRIETORS.

St. John's, Newfoundland, Wednesday, March 14, 1923.

SHALL WE LET THEM?

The Government organs say "That Squires and Coaker should finish their work." One would have thought that the quality of work performed by these political twins for the past three and a half years, would have been sufficient for a country, without asking that they be allowed to complete it.

SOME CANDIDATES AND THEN SOME

When any man is announced as a Squires-Coaker candidate for the coming election, he immediately rushes into print to deny the "soft impeachment." No respectable citizen wants to be associated with the Cabal who at present are conducting the affairs of Newfoundland, hence the haste to refute association with the party of ruin and stagnation.

COOKING THE FIGURES.

The people who read daily the doings of the politicians will need to con carefully the figures on the cost of the Education Department as compiled by the Daily Mail yesterday. The figures quoted in the Telegram on Monday were taken direct from the Estimates, and defy change or contradiction.

THE SPANISH TREATY.

The Advocate states that there is no arrangement made in the famous treaty negotiated by the Premier at Madrid about importing wines or spirits from Spain. This has created a great disappointment among many of his followers, as it was reported that the Spanish authorities insisted on the Control Department stocking up with a large quantity of real choice high class non-intoxicating fluids but which still had a real good kick.

Banquet To-Night.

GUARDS HOCKEY TEAM BEING DINED AT GREENFELL HALL.

To-night in the Greenfell Hall, King George the Fifth Institute, the Guards hockey team, twice champions for the season of 1922, will be tendered a dinner in honor of their recent achievements on the ice.

TEMPERATURE.

The thermometer indicates a temperature of 55 degrees at 11 o'clock.

Star of the Sea Ladies' Association.

As will be seen by our ad. in another column, the Star Ladies' Association have arranged to look after dancers and non-dancers on St. Patrick's Night. A tournament for a limited number of players will be held in the Card Room and two beautiful prizes will be given.

Have you tried MRS. STEWART'S Graham Bread?

Congratulations.

The Telegram desires to offer sincere congratulations to Magistrate Penney, whose appointment to the Carbonear Bench has been gazetted as will be seen by reference to another column in to-day's issue.

Quips for the Times.

"Truth is stranger than fiction" - in the offices of the Squires-Coaker organs.

"I saw a capital thing in the Advocate last night," said a party to an acquaintance whom he met on the street. "You'd? What was it?" "A pound of butter."

"Deep thinking men," says the Advocate, Hokus-Pokus, alias "The Advocate," are wondering how much farther this state of affairs will go.

Squires being half-way into the elections and finding it hard to get the South Coast, where the cake dough is hung between heaven and earth as it were and no way of getting safely to either place. He reminds one of the Irishman who went down to clean it out.

When he was through he made a signal to be hauled up. His mates determined to have some fun pulled him up half way and refused to hoist him any higher. There he hung - no way to get up - no safe way to get down. It was a desirable. He begged and entreated, but it was no use. He stormed and raved but it did no good. At last in desperation he sang out: "Haul me up, ye spalpeens, or by the piper that played before Moses, I'll be after cutting the rope." Poor Squires, see where Coaker landed him.

Published by Authority.

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to recognize Mr. Arthur Williams as Acting Consul for Sweden at St. John's, Newfoundland, Dept. of the Colonial Secretary, March 13, 1923.

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to appoint William F. Penney, Esq. (Carbonear) and William J. Snow, Esq. (Clarke's Beach) to Justices of the Peace for the Colony.

His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to appoint William F. Penney, Esq., J.P., to be Stipendiary Magistrate at Carbonear, in place of Alfred Penney, Esq., J.P., deceased; David Courtney, Esq., to be Inspector of Meats, in the Department of Public Health.

Cathedral Young Men's Literary Association.

At the rooms of the above Club on Monday evening the following question was discussed: RESOLVED: "That the marketing of a country's products should be controlled by the State." The leaders for the affirmative were W. Verge and H. G. Ford, and for the negative H. G. Hawkins and L. Cullen. Other speakers were H. H. Hooker, Rev. J. Brinton, H. S. Ford, H. Mitchell, Herbert Smith, R. Morgan and M. Tifford. After a helpful discussion the negative won by a majority of three.

Assertion of Mail and Advocate Refuted--The Telegram Supported Humber Deal.

"Here again comes in the relationship of natural resources. The big proposition of the erection of a huge plant on the Humber River involving an outlay of, it is said, twenty-five million dollars, is approaching finalization. The vast quantities of material to be used in the construction of this plant in certain measure can be supplied from the natural resources of the island. Cement will be needed by the million barrels in the building of reservoirs, dams, foundations, bridges and power houses.

The foregoing is re-written from the Evening Telegram editorial of December 10th, 1921, and answers decisively the assertions contained in the Government papers daily that the Telegram is opposed to the Humber Deal or any other deal that will tend to increase the wealth and prosperity of Newfoundland and her people.

COAKER AND CALAMITY

How The Country Has Been Ruined.

Business men have been getting pitiful messages the past month from different parts of the country, telling of the distressful conditions of the people, and asking to have supplies of flour and provisions sent to them.

This is the calamity that Coaker has brought about, and the men who have represented these districts will be hurled from office on polling day because they did not have the courage to defy Coaker and stand up for the rights of their people. Foote, Chessman, Warren and Small looked out for themselves; and they let Coaker trample upon their constituents. Squires, too, must take his share of the blame. He was enjoying a picnic in London when Coaker put the worst of these rules in effect, and completed the downfall of the thousands of hard working industrial fishermen and their families who live along the South West Coast, in order that his backers should make a profit at the expense of the settlers on the West Coast.

Sealing News.

EASTERLY WIND BADLY NEEDED

The sealing ships are all jammed, and ice conditions still remain unchanged, and before any further progress can be made a strong easterly wind is required to loosen the jam. The following messages were received last night:

BOWRING BROS., LTD.

Viking - 20 miles E. by S. St. Paul's. Ice tight as far as can be seen. Eagle, (Tuesday p.m.) - Ice tight, ship jammed all day. Sagona, (Tuesday 7 p.m.) - 25 miles N.N.E. Bonavista, ice tight, ship jammed. In company with Eagle, Seal, Terra Nova and Neptune in sight to N.E., tight ice as far as can be seen.

JOB BROS. & CO.

Thetis, (Tuesday p.m.) - 20 miles E. by S. Cabot Island, jammed all day. Neptune, (Tuesday p.m.) - Making poor progress, jammed; position same as yesterday.

POSTAL TELEGRAMS.

Radi, via Fogo - Reports all steamers except Ranger, crews aboard and all well.

TO-DAY.

Terra Nova, (10 a.m.) - Ice tight, very heavy, ship jammed. Hoping for storm of east wind to make swell.

Every day

In every way

The people say

The days of the Government

Are getting shorter and shorter.

It is unlikely that the Mail will again refer to Mr. Outerbridge's reward after the set back in this column yesterday.

What answer would the two editors of the Mail give if by chance I should ask the same question?

But I will come to them later.

I'll bet one dollar to one cent on one will win that one hundred dollar reward offered by the Attorney General.

Why didn't the Prime Minister go one better and offer two hundred bones?

It would make the joke go further.

Will the apparition who didn't steal the documents please return them?

The Government papers are filled with refusals and resignations.

Mr. Squires has enough of refusals from Carbonear to elect the Opposition candidate.

And enough from all over the country to more than complete another party.

Sir Richard is still short of fifteen "white hopes."

Truly a grand position for a premier and a government to find themselves in.

Everywhere the chorus is we want Bennett and Better Times.

The menace of Coakerism is upon us.

Get rid of them without delay.

The tragedy of the West Coast is the result of Coaker-Squires control of Newfoundland.

Conditions in Conception Bay are attributed to the same menace.

You have only to look at St. John's during the past three years to convince yourself of what Coakerism means to this city.

Twenty million dollars added to the debt of the colony in three and a half years is more than poor old Newfoundland deserved.

This increased debt must come from the fishermen, laborer, mechanic, clerk and producer.

What would it be if another twenty millions were tacked on between now and 1927?

The West End will poll the biggest majority in its history for Cashin, Linegar and Hunt.

The straight party vote will give them a surprising majority over Squires and his colleagues.

Bennett means better times for all.

GALLAGHER AND SHEEAN.

O Mister Gallagher! O Mister Gallagher!

The other night I had an awful dream, I thought I was a scribe, One of the common tribe, Which caused me to wake and loudly scream.

Now Mr. Sheean; now Mr. Sheean! I was very sore and sorry, and looked lean.

And what do you think I wrote, Which got the Squires' goat? Was it "If Winter Comes," Mr. Gallagher?

No! "When Knighthood was in Flour," Mr. Sheean.

B.I.S. Committee Meet.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY CELEBRATIONS.

At a meeting of the B.I.S. Literary and Amusement Committee, held last night, there was a large attendance. Chairman W. Collins presided for the first time. Great interest was displayed in the preparations for the St. Patrick's Day celebration, which this year will eclipse all previous efforts of the Society. Arrangements for the event have been completed. The programme consists of cards, concert, dance and supper. The latter is in charge of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

International Sample Fair.

ANNUAL AFFAIR AT VALENCIA.

Mr. H. J. Wyatt, vice Consul for Spain, has received a communication from Valencia, that the 4th International Sample Fair, is being held in that city from May 10th to the 25th. The Valencia Fair is not an exhibition of goods, it is an actual International Sample Fair, which gives the maximum advantages and facilities to seller and buyer alike. It is patronized and supported by the Spanish Government, which made it an official institution, and is presided over by King Alfonso. To this mart are brought every year, goods and articles from all parts of the globe, and at the fair is of a general character every kind of commodity may be exhibited. The fair is held in specially erected buildings capable of holding 2,000 stands, and thousands of people from all parts of the European Continent assemble at Valencia during the two weeks the fair is in progress. As a result of our largest buyers, it is quite possible that other firms may also be represented. Vice Consul Wyatt will be only too pleased to furnish any information concerning the Fair.

Curling.

The President's four prizes were competed for last night between leads and second stones; the ice being in very good condition, good scoring was in evidence. The lucky winners were Major Butler, R. Stick, Duke Winter, Eric Chate. The following are the scorers: T. Hallett, 20; G. Habbitts, 23; T. A. MacNab, 22; Dr. Burden, 22; Leslie Taylor, 21; J. Edwards, 21; J. J. Bates, 21; H. C. A Miniature Flood.

HYDRANT OUT OF ORDER.

This morning a Council employee, engaged in testing the anti-freezing hydrants, turned the water on the one near Job's Cove, but through some cause was unable to turn the water off again. For nearly an hour the flood continued, and running like a river along the street car track it reached as far as the Court House. After considerable difficulty the rush of water was controlled and the hydrant put in working order.

NOTE OF THANKS.

My dear husband, Michael, who died March 14, 1922; also my daughter, Ellen, who died June 17th, 1921. R.I.P. May their souls rest in peace, Amen. I am enabled in their own hearts to feel the glorious repose of the blessed with God and His Angels above.

May those who tenderly loved the May meet them whose joys are ceaseless. Deep down in the heart, Dearest, May their souls rest in peace.

To-day brings back sad memories of those we loved so dear. He suffered much, he murmured not. We watched him day by day. Until at last with broken hearts we saw him pass away.

Inserted by his wife, Mrs. Stewart.

A Legend.

Premier is back. A trouble...

Richard says. Coaker fountain...

A Legend of R. A. S.

Premier is walking the quarter deck. He is down through the hatch-ways and other turns up to the truck up to the mast. Some of the party may venture to the place as the best of the best will participate.

Richard again the letter hath read and Coaker sent out from the mountain head. A ship sailed away reads that letter three time a day. The writing is fair and plain to the eye. Richard may read it in each degree.

Richard is as black and as broad as the flat. Coaker's Stetson hat. Squires he reads and he walks to the Casino. "darn Bill Coaker, he bothers me so."

Richard pauses now for his henchmen to the starboard quarter, a sail! a sail!

Richard he turns him back through his trumpet for Coaker. Coaker is worried too. A model farm that is styled the "Coaker."

Richard has no time to answer the call. "Sir Richard don't wait till I call." party then would surely be killed. Richard then would self-willed. Richard sits lonely in office and hall. The burglars come and they loot of the documents pass to the pockets of the thieves. Richard says by your leave, if you please. Richard take 'em from Premier and Warren the bold soul answers the ad that cold. The Minister of Justice puts through the press. Richard is counting some dollars there is no gain. Richard is plain. Richard is a citizen makes that one claim. Richard is the Premier and the Attorney. Richard is the Catholic Church. Richard is the Squires. Richard is the Minister of Justice. Richard is the Minister of Justice. Richard is the Minister of Justice.

SIDE TALKS.

JUST A DEBT.

How often one hears people of the younger generation who are contributing to the support of the old folks in the family speak of their contributions as of some heavy burden. Sometimes they pride themselves on how much they have to do. And even when the children themselves do not look upon their contributions as anything out of the ordinary they are pretty sure to be the point of view of the old folks are to be constantly expressing their gratitude and to be ready to get on as little as possible, even if it means the children live in comparative poverty.

And they often do! It is a very bitter thing for old folks to feel that what is given them is given grudgingly. A bitterness made doubly poignant by the injustice of it. It would be hard to take help from anyone who felt that way. But from a child who has every reason to feel differently! Truly sharper than a serpent's tooth is it to have a thankless child! I know it isn't always easy to find the money, but you who are helping the old folks know it is right that you should and you do manage to find it. There is no question in your mind about giving. Then why not give in a spirit that won't make the old folks feel like mendicants. Why not slip in and check some little word, showing that you realize that you are paying a debt instead of giving to a mendicant.

Stone Ink-Slabs.

The Chinese schoolboy and the Chinese scholar must have their ink-slabs for the mixing of their Chinese ink. These are made from a stone found at Nankangt, ure very artistic and represent fish swimming in ponds, flowers growing in water gardens, and buffaloes lying in cooling, refreshing pools. They are also made in square, oblong and round shapes and varying in size, weight and height. One particular kind of stone supposed to have been discovered in the Sung dynasty will retain the ink wet and moist for a whole month.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Please grant me space in the ever "Old Reliable" and esteemed journal The Evening Telegram to ask how long are the people of Newfoundland going to stand for the guff and bull that is being doled out to them daily by the papers that support the Government, the Advocate and Daily Mail, now known as the Daily News? Do the editors of these papers think the people are fools to swallow such trash? If they do they are greatly mistaken. One item in particular that citizens must laugh at is the way in which these papers sling their slurs and low-down abuse at men like Sir John Crosbie, Sir Michael Cashin, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Monroe, in fact all the gentlemen connected with the Opposition, and then tell you that you are not to say "boo" to Coaker.

Coaker, the greatest menace that ever had any say in the making of laws for the governing of the people of Newfoundland. Coaker, the fellow who is not fit to lace the boots of men like Crosbie, Cashin or Bennett, or in fact the poorest man in any district in the country. This is the man, who, linked up with Squires, ruined this country, who through their interference with other people's business was the cause of some of our best firms having to close their doors and put their employees on the street with nothing but their backs to the wall. (convict labor) labor they were compelled to work at and which the Government had to give in stonement for the blunders and misdoings of the past three and a half years, but for their doings there would be no need of stone breaking, and still they take delight in saying they gave employment to keep men from starving. But Mr. Editor, they simply had to do it or feed the men they were the cause of putting out of work, and no thanks to them for that. Come to size it up, Mr. Editor, don't you think it pretty tough to see fine young men such as carpenters, grocers, cooper, clerks of every description put down so low (through no fault of their own) to the task of stone breaking. These fine young fellows feel it pretty bad, but when the pinch came they had to do it, but they won't content themselves to spend the rest of their life breaking rocks. They see looming in the distance the dawn of a new era, the coming back again of prosperity, the opening up again of the cooper shops, grocery stores where they will be able to welcome back their old customers. The fish wharves will again be a hive of industry giving employment to the hundreds who could always get a full week's wages and go home on Saturday night to their families feeling fresh and happy and not with backs aching from breaking rocks. The clerks will be back at their office desks and counters again where it will take them all their time to make up the pay sheets of the men employed, and when these men go home, Mr. Editor, after their day's work what a welcome they will get from their dear ones. No more get from their mother or wife and little children have pitiful faces, because they will know that husband and daddy is not too tired to take them to the nickel or to the park. Oh, no, he will feel a lot better than when Coaker and Squires made them break rocks to feed them. All the family will feel happy when these days come again, and these days can only be brought back by J. R. BENNETT and his Government.

Why, there won't be a vacant shop on Water Street short of clerks, but there are plenty of young men in the outports who will be able to come here then and get jobs, thanks to our new Government, and the grass won't grow on Water Street either, as Coaker said it would. Coaker will then be resting comfortably in his castle at Port Union tired after the years he spent fooling the noble fishermen of the North—men who thought they were going to be able to carry on their way of living in comfort, but who were beggared by the wild vapourings of the uncrowned King of the North. To the fishermen of the North I say, for goodness sake, men, wake up, you have been made fools of long enough. Don't let Coaker and Squires betray you any longer. Before this gang of in-competents got control everyone in the island was happy, but to-day things are different—but not for long. Election day is only a short way off, and when that day comes, for the sake of yourselves and your families and this island home of ours, cast off the shackles of Coakerism and Squiresism and make Newfoundland a country fit for everyone to live in and not have all the young men going away building up other countries at the expense of our own. To the men who are breaking rocks to-day I say, cheer up! You may be smashing rocks to-day, you had to do it through no fault of your own. It was forced on you by Campbell and his two bosses. Tell your people that the day is drawing near when under J. R. Bennett and his Government you will be back to your old job and not employed at convict labor.

To every man with a spark of self-respect I say, don't let any of the Coaker-Squires-Campbell crowd keep you from voting for Bennett and Clean Government—the Government of Prosperity. If you do otherwise, goodness help us all.
Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor.
Yours truly,
A YOUNG VOTER.

open air and the out of doors. He left home in December, relatives say, with a revolver and a hunting knife. He has always had a keen desire to go to the Canadian wilds which, he said, was "God's country."
Richter recently set all Canada talking about his story of having come from the Great Slave Lake district, north of Edmonton, Alta., seeking vengeance on a man who he alleged, robbed him of his Eskimo dogs and his father's shipment of furs. He has now confessed that he came from Cincinnati, Ohio, and never saw the Canadian West.

Richter first came to the attention of the police in Toronto when, ill from exposure and lack of food, he was taken from a freight train and put in a hospital. He gave his name as "Jacques" Richter, and told a vivid story of a 700-mile tramp across the frozen northland, and of his early life on the border of Great Slave Lake where he and his father lived alone, his mother having deserted his father and returned to civilization when he was a child.

The Devil in Place-Names

By CLEMENT ANTHROBUS HARRIS, Author of The Story of British Music. In Chamber's Weekly.

However little he may be interested in demonology, no one can wander far from his own front-door without being struck with the number of places of interest which own the Devil as titular landlord. And the traveller will be singularly lacking in the spirit of inquiry who does not ask himself to what so recurrent a phenomenon is due. Is the cause to be found in profanity, or superstition, or what?

The question will obviously best be answered by analyzing a number of cases, and observing whether any common element is to be found in them.

Among the forty or so instances known to the present writer, it is difficult to find any one common feature. But if, in place of the whole, we take groups, analysis becomes comparatively easy. Perhaps the widest generalization is to be found in the element of danger. This is clearly the case in regard to the Devil's Current in the Bosphorus, for, though hardly perceptible when the wind blows from the south-west, it runs with great violence and rapidly when the wind comes from the opposite quarter. There is a similar, but more dangerous, current between Great Barr Island and Long Island, New York. The name of this rapid, Hell-gate, is a corruption of the term given it by the early Dutch settlers. Hoell-gat, meaning 'whirling-gut.' But it is probably used in another sense by so many people that no apology is needed for mentioning it here. Our own country is not without a somewhat similar instance, for the name Devil's Throat is applied by seamen to Cromer Bay, owing to its dangers to navigation. On land we have 'Devil's Elbows.' Those known to me are both in Scotland. They each consist of a road descending a steep hill, and made zigzag at very sharp angles to moderate the declivity. One is between Braemar and Spital of Glen-shee, and the other near Selkirk. There is a third in the Mount Lofty Range, near Adelaide, South Australia; but this title, as Debrez would say, is probably a very recent 'creation.' Danger, I take it, suggested the name Devil's Kettle being given to a hole in the cliff between Stonehaven and Dunottar Castle, in Kincairdineshire. As regards shape, 'funnel' would have been a more apt description; the opening is wide at the surface, nearly circular, and narrow towards the bottom, where an inverted neck opens into a rocky cavern into which the sea dashes. The sides near the top are smooth and covered with short grass, and any one who slipped thereon would have little chance of escaping a boiling in the 'kettle.' The Devil's Beef-tub, a curious depression in the ground near Moffat, is believed to derive its name from so many cattle having fallen into it.

Fire and brimstone, the air reverberating with groans, and a crowded population of devils and lost souls characterize most pictorial and verbal descriptions of the Satanic headquarters. That unbroken bleakness, silence, and solitude may be equally terrifying does not appear to have readily occurred to either the monkish or the puritanical mind. But it has to the topographer, for he has made the foul fend titular landlord of many places on account of no worse feature than dreariness and gloom. As Sir Walter Scott refers in The Pirate (chapter xxiii) to 'The Devil's Nostrie,' these two vast caverns separated by a huge pile of natural rock, in Mainland of the Shetland Islands, are perhaps among the most widely known instances, though not the most frequently visited. The tourist who has 'done' Ireland, will recall also 'The Devil's Punch-bowl,' a small lake near the summit of Mangerton Mountain, in Killarney. The water is extremely cold. This, it has been pointed out, may have suggested the name, since it would be a recommendation to an owner normally resident in a region of indescribable heat! The water is also almost as black as ink, which would, no doubt, form an additional recommendation to the Prince of Darkness. Despite extreme cold, the lake never freezes; this may be due to a still more uncanny feature—namely, that even on the calmest day the water is in agitation. Crossing the Irish Sea and the Bristol Channel, and landing on Exmoor, we shall find the barrenness amidst which the 'Devil's Cheese-ring' stands the more impressive because of the wealth of vegetation through which we have passed to reach it. It is, as we are told in Lorna Doone (chapter xvii), 'a curious pile of rocks, bold behind one another, and quite enough to frighten a man if it were only ten times larger.' It is sometimes called 'The Devil's Cheese-knife,' which means the same thing, as our fathers were used to eat their cheese from a scoop. The rocks are placed one upon another with such appearance of design that it is difficult to regard the pile as a purely natural formation. The Valley of Rocks, of which the Cheese-ring is the leading feature, and which has been so graphically described by Southey, is about a mile east from Lynton. Captain Cook, in 1774, named a harbour on the south side of Tierra del Fuego, in Christmas Sound, the Devil's Basin, on account of its gloomy appearance. The cliffs rise so sheer and high that the sun is shut out. Similarly the sun can rarely glint on to the waters running down a chasm in the Grampians, near Comrie, Perthshire, and it would have to penetrate a thick foliage, which is said to account for the name Devil's Cauldron. The Devil's Island, off French Gulana, probably gets too much sun, but equally deserves its name from its barren and lifeless character, as, doubtless, Captain Dreyfus thought many a time!

Where a natural feature takes the form of something man is in the habit of making for himself, but is too vast to have been made by human agency, demoniacal workmanship is almost sure to be assumed. Thus in the Pass of Glencoe there is a series of natural steps so extremely like a man-made staircase as to be an instance in point. And the name Devil's Ladder has been given for a similar reason to a rocky eminence, crowned with a castle, near Lorch, on the Rhine. As the author of evil can quote Scripture, it is quite possible that he can preach sermons; indeed, there can be little doubt that he often does so, and occupies far more pulpits than the two which Dame Nature has provided for him—one a singular granitic mass on the summit of the Brocken, in the Hartz Mountains, in Germany; and the other a remarkable precipice on an island in Tupper Lake, in the Adirondack region of New York State. But a pulpit is not more necessary to the equipment of a Destroyer of Souls than is a smooth and easy means of moral descent. And Mother Earth has provided Beelzebub with the physical counterpart of this in more than one corner of his hunting-ground. A smooth, white stone shoot, about fifteen feet wide, from the base to the summit—eight hundred feet!—of an immense block of dark-red sandstone, in Weber Canon, Utah Territory, as straight and regular as if laid by a stone-mason, is called the Devil's Slide. There is a very similar formation in Montana: 'Two ridges of gray rock stand some ten feet out of the snow and brushwood, and run parallel to each other for about a hundred and fifty feet right up the mountain-side,' says the guide-book; and the spit is called by the same name. By way of enticing those whose weakness is a love of good living, the infernal equipment includes a Devil's Frying-pan, this name being given to a circular chasm in the cliffs on the Lizard peninsula in Cornwall, communicating with the sea by a narrow gully (spanned by a natural bridge of rock) which forms the handle of the pan. The phenomenon is believed to have been formed by the falling in of the roof of a cave, and that the meal-tubs of the nether regions may be well filled, there is a Devil's Mill at Rumbling Bridge, near Dollar, in Scotland. Our ghostly enemy is generally cute enough to employ spiritual rather than mechanical weapons. Nevertheless three narrow monoliths embedded in the ground to a depth of four feet, and rising, the shortest sixteen, and the longest twenty-two feet, not inappropriately called the Devil's Arrows, the tradition being that they were shot from the Satanic bow. But surely the natural feature most remarkable, not to say uncanny, in its likeness to things of human workmanship, is the Devil's Garden, in Hardy County, West Virginia, U.S.A. This strange phenomenon lies at the head of what is called Trout Run. On the summit of a dizzy precipice is a natural pavement of flat rocks, and on the eastern edge stands a gigantic bust in granite, the head, neck, and shoulders clearly defined, and the whole appearance savage and terrific. About a hundred feet below the bust is an even more strange phenomenon—a cave of no fewer than twelve apartments, on different ascending levels, and connected by eleven series of steps.

Pharaoh's Gems Brought to Light.

FROM ROYAL TOMB—IMPERIAL WALKING STICKS ARE ALSO SHOWN TO VISITORS AT LUXOR.

LUXOR, Egypt.—More treasures from Tutankhamen's tomb have been placed on view. The latest objects to be brought out were a large couch, a box containing the King's jewels, a miniature alabaster vase and a connection of bows and arrows and walking sticks.

Among the last-named the only one worthy of mention in comparison with the other articles was the largest stick of all, which was notable because the handle represented a figure of an Asiatic captive. It was evidently one of Tutankhamen's official staves. Its significance lies in the fact that every time Pharaoh grasped the staff he held Asia in the hollow of his hand.

The couch is almost the size of an ordinary bed. The seat is made of cane, covered with white plaster. The gilt feet are shaped to represent lion's paws, while the foot and head of the couch bear carved figures of lions, some rampant, while others appear to be supporting the top of the couch. The frame work of the couch seems to be made of wood covered with a thick layer of pure gold. The whole effect is heightened by golden hieroglyphs at either end, describing Tutankhamen as Lord of the Two Lands, King of Upper and Lower Egypt, giver of all life, stability, happiness and strength. The prevailing colors of the couch are white, gold and black, but other hues amid the hieroglyphs introduce a quieter color scheme.

But the greatest sight was the jewel box. It was about 14 inches long by 12 inches wide and deep. It is also of wood—probably ebony—covered with gold on which are worked in the most artistic fashion the King's cartouches and the images of the sacred serpent and the sacred kingdoms of Egypt.

Mother and Her Baby Are Relieved of Eczema

Mrs. Peter A. Palmer, Salt Bore, Sask., writes: "Dr. Chase's Ointment has completely relieved my baby's eczema and skin. I also used this Ointment for my baby, who broke out in eczema. A few applications were all that was necessary in her case. Dr. Chase's Ointment has been worth a hundred dollars to me—before using it I had spent a great deal more than that in unsuccessful treatment from doctors. We have also used Dr. Chase's other medicines, the Nerve Food having restored my health after suffering from severe nerve trouble when a girl."

Rotary Luncheon.

COBSEY DELIVERS ADDRESS.

The weekly luncheon of the St. John's Rotary Club held yesterday afternoon at the Hotel de Ville, was presided over by Col. Arthur F. Cobsey, Executive Officer of the International Association of the Grenfell work, Rotarian and president of the International Association. The guests were Hon. Robt. Falconer, Dr. Fallon, Dr. Macpherson, Chas. F. Watson, J. M. Dawson, and others. Col. Cobsey said I am here to express his thanks for the most interesting remarks of the evening on the subject—"The International Aspects of the Grenfell work." My general experience has been that the splendid work of this organization is not known, and is misrepresented. Coming along by the Atlantic coast, I heard many deprecating remarks regarding the work of Grenfell, due, no doubt, to ignorance of the work that is so successfully being performed to alleviate suffering and help the distressed, around the Labrador and Northern coasts of Newfoundland. One was to the effect that Dr. Grenfell had grown immensely rich from the proceeds of the sale of furs and skins, bought in early years from the Coast Indians. Of course that is not so. As I had visited Dr. Grenfell in his home, and saw something of the circumstances, I was an eye-witness for me, knowing the extent to which lack of knowledge of a subject can give rise to prejudice and harmful propaganda. She said she was very glad to feel that the work of the International Association is of interest to business men of Newfoundland, and the Rotary type, men who are "the bunch" of the Colony. In the past, the misstatements of the fact, and the pleasure to give a brief outline of the work of the International Association, and to see how the many phases of the work have influenced me to associate myself with the International Association. The International Association may be termed the governing body of five associations, each interested and working for the good of all. These consist of the English Branch—the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, the Canadian Branch—the Labrador Medical Mission of Canada, the Newfoundland Branch—the Grenfell Association of Newfoundland, and the American Branch—the New England Grenfell Association.

association, and the Grenfell Association of America, with headquarters in New York. This International aspect of the Grenfell work, appealed to me strongly, and furnished interesting points of contact, inasmuch as I had effected four different contacts with all of the Anglo-Saxon races. The work of the Association viewed geographically, adds to its international interest by tending to make us realize more truly, the fact that we are neighbours. We are all in the North American zone, and the feeling of being helpful in a practical way to one's neighbour, enhances international relationship.

The practical assistance given the Grenfell work, through the channels of the five Associations, is no small criterion of the sympathy and approval which it justly deserves. The five Associations contribute, annually in amounts varying with their size, the New York Association, for instance, contributes about $30,000.00. The New England Association which covers a smaller territory, contributes about $12,000.00. The Labrador Medical Mission of Canada, about $14,000.00. Newfoundland contributes about $10,000.00 of which $8,000.00 is allocated by the Newfoundland Government. I want to say that this contribution from Newfoundland, appreciated above all others. It shows that our work has the official sanction of the governing body of the Colony. The grant, originally of $3,000.00, was increased by the Government to $8,000.00, thereby expressing their approval of the Grenfell work, in a very practical manner. I sincerely trust that, whatever may be the outcome of the present elections, whether it be a Squires or a Bennett Government, I do hope, and feel sure, that the same practical interest will be manifested in continuing the assistance. We are also deeply grateful to the Government of the Colony for the privilege of allowing the supplies for our work, to be admitted duty free. Indeed, without this, it would be impossible to continue the assistance we give to this policy will also be continued.

As an instance of the practical and continued interest in the Grenfell Mission work, we have in the New York Association, 2000 regular yearly subscribers; the Grenfell Association of Canada has 1700; the New England branch has 1500 active subscribers. These 5000 odd, subscribers at the rate of $2, $5, $10, $20, $25, etc. and, unlike the work of associations generally, the number of subscribers varies but slightly each year, proving ing the constant interest in the work. In Newfoundland, the number is about 30. This is small, but we are satisfied that, interest being aroused, and the real facts of our work known, this number will be considerably augmented. When you realize that six hospitals are being operated; three nursing stations, one hospital ship, four hospital launches, nine clothing distribution centres, four industrial stations, two children's homes, and one Seaman's Institute, I am quite sure that the magnitude and importance of the work will be better appreciated. I am glad to say the people requiring assistance, are not made to feel that they are accepting charity in any sense, as clothing and other needed supplies are only given for labour, or services performed.

The Medical work of the Association, so well begun 25 or 30 years ago, is of untold benefit to the Coast people of Labrador and Northern Newfoundland, and is now thoroughly established. The work performed is of the best quality. Because the people may be poor, inferior facilities are not accorded them; indeed, the Grenfell Association furnishes the best physicians, and the best appliances, and the best medical supplies obtainable. Patients have been sent from St. John's Hospital to ours at St. Anthony for radium treatment. In the year 1921—to give some idea of the work performed—the following number of patients were treated: 1188 "In" patients; 393 "Out" patients; and 14,612 patients with one day care—a total of 24,781. The mileage covered by visiting Doctors and nurses, a large part of which was by dog team, was approximately 7000 miles. Do you not think that this is a record to be proud of?

There is another department in the Grenfell work which has been gradually developed during the past few years, and which I think, will interest you. I refer to the Industrial work. When the fishing season is over, there is practically nothing for the women and children especially, to do, and in order that they may employ their time profitably, and in such an order that would enable them to earn sufficient cash to buy at least some of the necessities of life, we inaugurated the Industrial Schools. They are now proving of practical assistance to the people, and growing. We realized that it was of very little value teaching and preaching better living conditions, if we could not help our people, in a practical way, to obtain the necessaries to do this. Splendid home-spun tweeds are now being made and sold. Hooked rugs, of artistic designs, are also being made, and are finding a ready sale. At the Plaza Hotel in New York, $1200.00 worth of these goods were disposed of in a few hours. Likewise at Lake Placid, N.Y. $1400.00 worth of goods were sold in a very short time. This shows there is a market for the goods made, and our desire is to teach more and more of the livers, to help supply that market. We have a specialist to direct the work.

Another important, but more recent feature of the Grenfell work, is the Child Welfare Department. The little children, as a rule, drink tea, and it is almost impossible to get them to take milk, water, or even cocoa. The Association has sent Doctors and Dentists to the Labrador, and splendid work has already been performed in examining and adopting preventive and curative measures for various children's ailments, as well as instructing mothers as to the proper care of children. This is done through experts, along the best modern lines. We believe in it, and will increase this work.

In conclusion I might mention the Grenfell work in St. John's—the Seaman's Institute. With the short time at my disposal, it is impossible for me to give any lengthy report here. In this connection, however, I particularly wish to request your interest and support in the campaign which commences this week, for the very necessary purpose of obtaining funds to make up the deficit was made by the International Association, but as this is your work, the Board feels that a continuance of the policy would be dependent upon you. In St. John's, showing interest in a practical way. The Committee of gentlemen, appointed by the Local Finance Board, gave their assurance last year, that this deficit would be made good, and we have no doubt whatever, but that the $23,000.00 necessary, will be forthcoming during this week. The Ladies' Auxiliary have already started the ball rolling by obtaining $250.00. We feel quite sure that all will help the good cause.

The Seaman's Institute is an asset of very valuable aspect to the city. Every city has need of such a building of the nature of the Institute. It has been very useful in the past—times of epidemic, and shipwreck and fire, and it is now more than ever, entering into the activities of our city life—it being more used for public meetings, concerts, lectures. The upper section of the building has been given over to a Girl's Home, under the supervision of a Matron; here, girls coming from outports or girls working in the city, can obtain decent and respectable accommodation at reasonable rates.

Gentlemen, I do not wish to detain you further, but I feel that the St.

John's Rotary Club—the "Live Bunch" of this city, will see to it that the work of the Grenfell Association will be encouraged and assisted in a practical manner at the opening of the campaign necessary to obtain funds to meet the deficit on the operating expenses of this one of its activities, which is your local building. "Colonel" Cobsey was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his very interesting and instructive address regarding the splendid work which the Grenfell Association is performing. The National Anthem brought a pleasant and profitable hour to a close.

The Menace of Coakerism.

ARTICLE VIII.

Ardent supporters of the Squires Government as well as those politically opposed to Mr. Coaker, are emphatic in their denunciation of the infamous Fish Regulations, Salt, Sugar, Fishery, Supply and other scandals accredited to the present administration. Mr. Coaker insisted upon his selfish propaganda and the Colony immediately prepared itself for the immediate era of depression which to say the least, exceeded conditions similar to those which prevailed in the year of the crash.

Mr. Coaker's determination to foist his campaign to have "the grass grow on Water Street" has meant untold poverty and distress throughout the island. It is an unfortunate position we find ourselves in when one man, backed by a dozen pawns afraid to interfere or even suggest to him, is in control of the Dominion's welfare. Such being the case, surely all claims that we might heretofore possess in the name of a Democratic Newfoundland are ridiculed. The Democratic ideals which we in countless ages boasted of have been overrun by a politician whose policy evidently is to introduce a much-dreaded terror in our midst.

When Demagogues of the Coaker type rule the destiny of fair Newfoundland we have every reason to hang our heads in shame. The menace of Coakerism, as we have repeatedly outlined, was the greatest menace ever inflicted on Newfoundland. It is dangerous and has left in its trail privation and distress, starvation, ruin and disgrace. That he gained his influence by intricate methods, gulling first the illiterate and then hanging up his price of power, intrigued successfully to dupe his associates until now he is the controlling figure in as much as he is the controlling factor of a weak-kneed government.

He has played his cards (as he himself declares) well. He was free to administer the destruction and ruin so bravely outlined in his manifesto. His Union colleagues dare not protest or forfeit their seasonal fees. The dependent Prime Minister, in a like position. Coaker is still the strong arm of the Government, and whilst he holds this power he, despite all laws of common decency and respect, will outrage the Constitution to the limit.

Famous Story at Nickel To-Morrow.

CARTER DeHAVENS REVIVE WELL KNOWN STAGE FARCE. "The Girl in the Taxi," a First National attraction, starring Mr. and Mrs. Carter DeHaven, will be shown at the Nickel Theatre to-morrow. The picture is an adaptation of the same name in which Mr. DeHaven scored a triumph. The story centers around the exploits of a young man whose father has dubbed him a mollycoddle. His efforts to untangle the embarrassing situation that confronts his father earns for him a temporary laurel wreath. The situation which caps the climax is said to be most humorous. Other prominent members of the cast include King Baggott, the old time screen hero who has appeared in over 300 photoplays; Grace Curran, the serial queen who was a star in her own right not so long ago; Otis Harlan, Tom McGuire, Margaret Campbell, Lincoln Plumer, Freya Sterling and John Gough. Stanislaus Strange wrote the original stage version and Robert McGowan pictured the story for the screen. Lloyd Ingraham directed the production.

The Lighter Side.

"A Travelling Man told me—" "Hush! Wait till we pass these girls." Fashionable women at the Florida resorts are now wearing fur bathing suits, but reports do not say how far. Wisdom is knowing what to do, and skill is knowing how to do, and service is doing it. Topsy Turvy says so many stenographers these days are so swift they write faster than they spell.

"Finish Their Work."

The Government organs say "Let Squires and Coaker finish their work." One would have thought that the diabolical work that they have had in hand was about completed. The West Coast is practically ruined, the St. John's streets are almost deserted, mechanics are idle, and the stores of Water Street are deserted. The old time customers have no money to purchase even the necessities of life. The fisheries are ruined and the fish markets demoralized. The country is groaning under taxation and want, misery and privation stalk through the land. Is there anything else that these incompetents can accomplish in the way of ruin if given a further lease of power? "Let Squires and Coaker finish their work." Indeed! With what Jewish mockery must these words be uttered by the Government organs, and with what disgust must they be received by the people of the country. Three short years ago the country was flourishing and the people happy and prosperous, employment was general and there was contentment on every hand. To-day enforced unemployment and misery are in evidence on every hand throughout the country, whilst the supporters of the Government turn a deaf and indifferent ear. The poor man has no house to shelter himself and his family from the elements, but the members of the Government can erect palaces with the taxes ground from a starving people. Squires and Coaker have, we think, finished their work and a dirty job it is. But their day is done, they will not be permitted to work further destruction for the people will turn them down and vote for BENNETT & BETTER TIMES. Arachne at Home.

(By FRANCES PREWETT, in Chambers's Journal)

"Where do flies go in the winter-time?" is a query that may exercise the ingenuity of music-hall audiences, but any wanderer along country lanes can see where they go in the summer-time. In the hedge-side, the tangled growth of grasses is interspersed with such hardy flowers as the scabious and St. John's wort, whose fibrous stalks alone can push up to the necessary light and air. And here at every step one may find the spider's canopy. It is not the geometrical marvel of the garden-spider, which arouses our wonder as its delicate net swings from the veranda pillars in the evening breeze. The home of the hedge-spider is not designed to catch insects on the wing. It is built to trap the unwary creatures that haunt the hedges, settling to sip honey from some brilliant blossom, or to meet their mates amid the lush foliage.

From a canal of thickly woven opaque web the spider conducts her operations. Should any danger menace her, she flies down its length to take refuge in the roots of the grass. With its mouth, which opens like a trumpet, she sits waiting for some telegraphic message along her subtle wigs. From its sheltering precincts she rushes to seize her victim, and withdraws again to enjoy her meal. She has taken in a certain area just beyond her home, and covered it with strong threads, so closely woven as to present a united surface. This web gets more attenuated towards the outer edge, and its presence is dissimulated by the vegetation to which it is attached. That it serves its purpose well is attested by the ample proportions of the lady at home, seated among the wing-cases and other indigestible debris of her numerous victims.

Once when I was passing a bank thickly dotted by those habitations, a blue-bottle fly sent out his loud "S.O. S." He had been tempted to settle on the delicate pink petals of a black-berry-blossom, and his foot was entangled in a silky thread. Madam, warned by the vibration, hastened to secure her dinner. But the fly was twice her size; he was very angry and frightened, and at her approach he buzzed so furiously that she withdrew. Only for a moment, however. Then she once again advanced, and touched her visitor with one of her eight legs, keeping herself well away from his fluttering wings. This apparently useless manoeuvre was repeated again and again. But it had a deadly purpose. Under this light, almost caressing movement, the spider conveyed another silken thread, to bind her captive. With diabolical cunning, she wound his legs together, and suddenly drew the threads tight, so that he was thrown off his balance, and hung suspended from a strong elastic rope. The end was near. Standing on the rope, the spider reached down, and, scientifically as ever surgeon wielded knife, she plunged her poisoned fangs with precision in the back of the fly's neck. Twice she stabbed, and there were no more struggles. The fly swung idly like a hammock in a breeze.

The spider paused, as if to take thought. The slaughtered insect was too huge to handle. With incredible rapidity, round the dead, silent thing was woven a shroud, by means of which it was then drawn to the hole, to be devoured at leisure.

During the summer madam has sat there at her door, and has been occupied with the work of self-preservation. Judging from her bloated appearance, she has accomplished it very effectively. But other interests are now at hand, and how ever reluctantly her attention is diverted from the engrossing pastime of the chase, she must perforce turn to different business. An imperative call is made upon her by a visitor of her own kind. He will not be denied, in spite of the risk he runs. The Edwina who comes to woo this massive Angelina is of a lighter colour, slight, and elegantly shaped, far more attractive to the eye than his prospective mate. But she gives no sign of being vanquished by the mighty power of Eros, and as her suitor tentatively passes on the threshold, she makes a lunge at him and engages him in a wrestling-match. The 'urge' of the race impels this comparatively puny creature to tackle an opponent twice her weight. If he falls, his ferocious lady-love will make a meal of him. If he succeeds, it is by using brute force and infinite patience. This Amazon of insects will submit to no blandishments. And even then she may avenge herself for the indignity by gobbling him up before he can get away. Could there be a more convincing example of the psycho-analyst's contention that self-preservation is a less powerful motive than self-reproduction?

Once I viewed an interrupted courtship-scene. Startled by a falling leaf, the lovers relinquished their preliminary sparring-match and sprang asunder. Angelina, recoiled, found no trace of her suitor, and proceeded to regard herself on a fat green fly which she dragged from her lair. Involuntarily the picture arose of a muscular maiden kicking her would-be lover out of doors, and then seating herself at the window, gnawing a raw beef-steak, while he looks dejectedly around the corner. The new generation claims the attention of Arachne. She now abandons her trumpet-shaped home, and weaves a chamber with stout opaque walls under some sheltering leaves. Through the circular opening may be discerned an inner bag, which swings in mid-air, being hung at various points of contact on the outer shell. This is the receptacle for the precious eggs. The whole is so constructed as to provide the utmost protection against enemies or wind. The outer envelope is so tough and elastic that it is difficult to tear. A human invader with a stick may open the silken pouch, but he will not dislodge the spider, who clings to the eggs with tenacity, facing tremendous odds for her offspring. Should a marauder enter that smooth white cell, he would find short shrift from the indignant mother, who will defend her treasure with dogged persistence.

Other spiders merely spin a cocoon, in which they enclose themselves and their ball of eggs. Should one slit the thin silken walls, the mother sees the precious burden in her mandibles and makes off with it. Nor will she abandon it, even if followed with pertinacity. Arachne may fall woefully short of the human standard of conduct in many respects, but her motherly devotion cannot be surpassed. Were all human mothers like her in this respect, there would be less need for the National Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

You will be sorry if you miss The Cowan Mission Entertainment this year. The best yet. mar14

CABLE TEAM DEFEATED IN INTERESTING GAME.

A fairly large number of fans witnessed the hockey match in the Prince's Rink last night between the Commercial Cable Co. and Bowring's and Harvey's combined aggregation. The game was closely contested and resulted in a win for the latter team by the close margin of 4 goals to 3. In the first period the Cable boys scored two goals to their opponents one. Skinner and Armstrong doing the scoring for the former, while Bailey, who put up a splendid exhibition, made a rink length run and scored a pretty goal for the latter. After a brief breathing spell the players gave a fine exhibition of stick-handling in the second session. Five minutes from the start the equalizing goal was sent in by Bailey, and from then on an interesting and most exciting clash was witnessed. The Cable boys pressed their opponents hard, and Dunphy in goal was called upon to make several difficult stops. Shortly after, Clarke took the puck from behind his own goal and working up rink scored No. 3 for the Commercial. Before the period ended Barrett equalized the score. In the third period both teams set up a lively pace, good play was witnessed, and both goalies put up a splendid exhibition. Clarke of the Commercial lost a good chance to score in the mouth of the goal, the shot going over the net. Bailey for Harvey's scored the final and winning goal of the game a few minutes later. Towards the close the Cable boys made several onslaughts on their opponents goal, but were unable to score. The game was very clean, only two penalties were imposed by Referee Tobin, Clarke of the Commercial served one minute, and Peaver of the (B&H) team two minutes. A return game will probably be played.

A few questions re moving pictures.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I would like to ask a few questions in reference to the "Charlie Chaplin" film which has recently been censored at the Nickel at considerable disappointment to the public.

1. Whether the censor is not a Government henchman receiving a salary for doing practically nothing?
2. Whether he did not turn down the film referred to on the strength of an anonymous complaint received over the phone from a party who stated he was a Minister but absolutely declined to give his name?
3. Whether the censor did not remark afterwards to a friend that he saw nothing offensive in the film in question?
4. What the fishermen who are still supporting Coaker (if there are any left) think of the Government paying a man a salary to look at a few moving picture films?

Yours truly,

RAGLAN WEATHER IS COMING—We are ready for it with our first shipment of Navy Raglans, double breasted style, good rain shedders, correct sizes, $24.50 assure you perfect fit, we introduce them at there is the well authenticated story of the miner, who, having made forty thousand dollars among the Cariboo Mountains, wasted the whole sum in champagne, which of course, was sold at a fabulous price in those distant and almost inaccessible camps. For days he feasted all his neighbors and every newcomer who would drink with him, and made use of the last of his fortune by smashing with twenty and thirty dollar nuggets a costly mirror that hung in the bar-room. Others who deserved a better fate, and were instrumental through their discoveries in making large fortunes died poorer than the very latest arrivals at the diggings. Conspicuous among these many cases of hard luck, was the discoverer of the famous William's Creek, a German named Dietz, who, not long after his discovery, was living in Victoria, a broken man, dependent on charity. One of his companions, a Scotchman named Ross, met with an even less enviable fate. He died of starvation in the woods, after attempting to record his sufferings on his tin cup, on which he scratched a few disconnected words. While Dietz was living on charity in Victoria and Ross was starving to death in the forest, other men were amassing fortunes with their picks and shovels. Thus a miner named Cunningham realized on an average nearly two thousand dollars a day throughout an entire season, and a claim belonging to a man named Miller produced the enormous amount of 102 pounds of gold, or almost the equivalent of $30,000, and that too, in one day. Long and Dangerous Journeys. News of the finding of wealth like this spread like wildfire, and men poured into the camps and mining areas by the thousand. The early arrivals were mostly from California, where the local gold fever by this time was somewhat abating. These American miners took ship at San Francisco and came up to Victoria, where they offloaded, and then set out for the gold fields of the interior. Eastern Canadians were somewhat slow in setting out for the camp of the Cariboo, and when they did a long and dangerous journey lay before them. Many took ship for the Panama, crossed the Isthmus, and then took ship again up the coast. Others went to British Columbia direct by the overland route. By the way of Detroit, Milwaukee, and St. Paul they reached the Red River Settlement, where Winnipeg now stands. There they made up little parties and crossed the prairies, passed through the Rocky Mountains, and then followed one of the great rivers southward. It was a journey attended with great peril, and many a gold hunter from the East, instead of finding the mining camps and a fortune, found a grave in what was then the wild Canadian West.

Colossal Tombs of Tinian Although the colossal columned tombs of Tinian, an island north of Guam, in the Mariana group, were first discovered by Lord George Anson, an English naval officer, in 1744, it was not until July of last year, when the Bishop Museum of Honolulu sent a naturalist to Tinian, that these ruins have been accurately measured, excavated and photographed. Human remains and a great quantity of stone implements were found. These prove that the Mariana Islands were inhabited by Polynesians in prehistoric times, and the islands were in the path of the Polynesians' folk track from Asia to their present home. The pillars are monoliths of hard island rock, fifteen feet high, five feet four inches square at the base, weighing over thirty tons. They are surmounted by a hemispherical-top-piece weighing over seven tons. The pillars are arranged in two parallel rows, five in a row. The study of these sites (many have been found in Tinian) points to the conclusion that they were monumental, religious structures, marking the site of religious ceremonies, of cannibalistic feasting, of human sacrifice and of burial. Tools chipped and polished from basalt lava were the only implements these primitive people had with which to carve out these huge monoliths. In comparison with the largest single block in the Egyptian pyramids, it should be noted that the Tinian stones are larger by five tons. It will be remembered that the cultured level of the Egyptians was vastly superior to the primitive Polynesians' folk in that the Egyptian workmen used tempered bronze saws set with jewels (diamond of corundum).

Household Notes. Before straining pea soup add a half can of tomatoes. The soup will have a delicious and different flavor. If soup, gravy or a vegetable is too salty, stir in a little coarse brown sugar, and the dish will be improved. To procure a soft, rich shade when dyeing add a package of black eye to a package of the color desired. Lettuce should be dried in a clean old napkin. Gather the napkin up in the hand and shake it round and round.

A PLEA FOR GOOD PLUGS

"A defective sparking plug can be the cause of many and peculiar troubles. It is, therefore, false economy to purchase cheap plugs on the supposition that they are all 'much of a muckness.' It is true that a cheap plug may be perfectly satisfactory for many hundreds of miles; a plug of first-class make, however, for which a fair price is paid, will generally suffice for at least one season's running in an average engine."

The LODGE plug is known not only as a plug of first-class make which will last, but also as one that clearly manifests its superiority in the firing of a petrol engine.
