I NOW TAKE GREAT PLEASURE IN OFFERING MY "Climax" Wood Furnace

to every one desirous of obtaining a first class Heating Apparatus at a mod rate cost. This Furnace has been thoroughly tested throughout the New England States and has given perfect satisfaction, besides a large number of them have been in use in the Maritime Provinces for the past two years and ience of those using them, I do not hesitate in recommending them to be Far Superior to any Furnace in the Market.

The fire BOX is made wholly in one piece and heavily corrugated; thus giving it great strength and a large heat radiating surface. The RADIATOR is of cast iron jointed only at the base in same style as the Fire Box, so that smoke cannot possibly escape into the heated rooms, as is the case with many of the Wood Furnaces in use. An examination of most of the Wood Furnaces in use, will reveal to you the fact that they are all more or less warped snd cracked with but one or two seasons wear, and cases exist where the so called cheap Furnaces have proved useless and had to be renewed within the space of one year.

I WARRANT THE "CLIMAX"

to last longer than any two Furnaces of other makes, give more heat with less quantity of fuel and so very compact that it can be set up in-many places where other Furnaces could not possibly be placed. The price has been reduced which gives the "CLIMAX" the preference far before all others. Estimates furnished and every Furnace put in Warranted to give entire satisfaction.

A CAREFUL INSPECTION OF THE "CLIMAX" IS SOLICITED. CHARLES FAWCETT.

Theatre hats aren't always high,
In spite of the funny man;
And hayseed chaps are sometimes fly,
In spite of the funny man.
Her father's dog's not always wild;
Sometimes you'll find a well bred child,
And mothers in-law are sometimes mild
In spite of ths funny man.

In spite of the funny man.

Prohibitionists don't always yearn to drink,
In spite of the funny man;
And the dude occasionally thinks a think,
In spite of the funny man.

Chicago feet are not huge at all;
The plumbers bill is sometimes small,
And messenger boys don't always crawl,
In spite of the funny man.

The poets don't have to live on air,
In spite of the funny man;
Those front-row men sometimes have hair,
In spite of the funny man,
Sometimes a brand new joke is sprung,

And sometimes wives are not all tongue,
In spite of the funny man.

In spite of the funny man.
Society gipls at balls wear clothes,
In spite of the funny man.
Sometimes a man pays what he owes,
In spite of the funny man.
Sometimes the typewriter's plain in face'
Sometimes the deacons not at the race,
In fact, the world's quite a decent place,
In spite of the funny man.

Poor lad! I have often wished since that he had refused the commission and I had accepted the knighthood, for then it we might properly recover ourselves, ere we ventured abroad anew. And in this opinion he at length agreed But, in the evening, feeling wonder.

fully strong again, I renewed my-search about the ship; and so fine and beautiful a craft did she then show herself to me that I fell to doubting whether I could bring myself to leave her again. And when beneath the floor of the great cabin I found some Morton, the leader of the mutineers, chests of pieces of eight half broke cruised with some success, for two of open (I doubt not by those who had three months among the islands. He three months among the islands. He ne away in the boat), I determined took a Spanish brig, the S. In this prinon also, when I had given a handful of pieces of eight into his keeping, my son agreed and next day, the son agreed and next day, the son agreed and next day, and make the prize of the son of the surf, and to avoid capture, ran ashore. The crew, being unable to reach the land by reason of the surf, were taken off by the frigate's boats and make the prize of the son of the surf, and make the prize of the son of the surf, and make the prize of the son of the son of the surf, and make the prize of the son of th keeping, my son agreed and next day, after having passed the secondnight on deek for fear of the emanations from later, on June 2, the Thetis, after a the dead, we set to work to rid the ship of the bodies, to cleanse the cabin and lower deck. some days, I found yet other bodies in divers holes and corners, whither, I suppose, the poor wretches had crept to die of the plag ue which had seized upon the vessel. The last that I found was in the lower hold among the bilge, but how it got there I never knew, nor could I ever guess, unless, perchance, the man in the madness of his fever, had wandered some days, I found yet other bodies in divers holes and corners, whither, I suppose, the poor wretches had conference after conference had atmeas of his fever, had wandered

Those who remained were all so sick and so weakly that they could bury but eleven of their number at they died. The others stayed where they were until the ship was as we found it. As for those who fled they were never again heard of, and I doubt not they perished either of sickness or of hunger and privation.

The fied called forth a hymn from the devout congregation; but that time was long ago, for the boys who were then clinging to the skirts of their excited mothers, wondering what the commotion meant, were now fathers. The religious system, and consequently, the social complexion of the community shad been changed by the war. The saintly brothers, harrassed by guerillas, and robbed by mauraders that belonged to both armies, had moved away, many of them, and those who shouted.

No one was at the helm; the sails flapped in the "light air against the masts; and the ship drifted whither she would. I was still very weak, but some bread and a draught of wine strengthened me; and then I set about fexploring the great vessel. Leaving my son, Humphrey who yet slept, I went to the door of the cabin in which I had found the provisions. Then I will know who the thieve are, and can punish them, and I will no When the time arrived, the house was well filled with 'snickerers' and scofferk, but Brother Gregory, undaunted in the contemplation of so cheerless a prospect mounted the oak-slab pulpit and declared that he had come to preach, and that the privilege of retiring was granted to any one not desiring to hear him. 'I come as a friend to persuade, and not as an enemy to coesce,' he said. 'I come here to join you in all your sympathies your sports and your pastimes.'

The preacher came down out of the pulpit, stood on his head, and cracked his heels together. Old Nick got down on all-fours, galloped about the open space and yelped like a dog. 'Ounk, ounk' he barked.

The preacher got down on all-fours and galloped about with a high-keyed 'ounk, ounk, ounk'.'

Old Nick lay down and grunted of the his new case of the same policy has guided Stanley in his dealings with semi-savages who by hund-reds have been in his service as porters. A more racally ungovernable mob than the crowd of Zanzibaris, who have sometimes followed Stanley's leadership, could hardly be conceived. It is a fact that on one occasion at least, the jails of Zanzibar were empticated to supply Stanley with the porters he required. But he has always sought to have his men regrid him as a kind, considerate father. They have involved him in many a dilegman, and he can be very severe when necessary: but in his career he has never executed but four of his followers, all in his last expedition. One man he sentenced to death for selling rifles and amunition to the slave-dealing enemy.
